British Airmen Cripple Half Of Mussolini's Battle Fleet

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Nov. 13 — British announced today that their bombers had left half of Italy's elusive battleships crippled and reeling in Mussolini's main naval base of Taranto, and claimed that the blow had altered decisively the balance of Mediterranean naval power.

"This glorious episode," Prime Minister Winston Churchill told an exultant House of Commons, will, moreover, leave its impression "on the naval situation in every quarter of the globe."

The admiralty said photographic evidence showed that two battleships were lying part way under water, one of them beached; that a third "probably" was severely damaged; that two cruisers were leaning tipsily in the inner harbor of Taranto and that the sterns of two fleet auxiliary vessels were submerged.

London naval circles, doubting British bombs alone could have wrought such damage against the battleships because of their armor, suggested that torpedo planes took part in the attack.

Torpedo planes swoop close to the water on a line toward their targets to drop their torpedoes. Once in the water these operate much like submaine torpedoes.

More in the traditional style of naval warfare was the reported sinking of an Italian supply ship, the firing of two others and the damaging of an Italian destroyer off Valona, Albania, Monday night, as announced by the British admiralty.

A communique said the attack was delivered the night of Nov. 11-12 when a squadron on patrol along the main line of Italian communications with Albania, in the strait of Taranto, intercepted the convoy.

Two Italian destroyers sought to shield the supply ships, but one was

Axis-Russian "Negotiations" Discussed, May End Today

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Nov. 13. — Adolf Hitler and Vyacheslaff Molotoff, the Soviet premier and foreign minister, talked for four hours in the Fuehrer's chancellery today and most of that long period, said informed persons, was devoted to "negotiations."

The information was not amplified and, while the use of such a term suggested that preliminary talks were done and the stage of decisions reached, there was nothing to hint at their nature.

Better Relations Seen.

Nazi press sources were reserved and circumspect. For example, the authoritative commentary service Dienst aus Deutschland observed that certain speculations abroad were mere "trail balloons" of interested persons, and added that a "further deepening" German-Russian relations was in prospect.

On tomorrow, the third and perhaps final day of his visit, Molotoff —and his accompanying 32 Soviet executives and experts — probably will have still more conferences.

So far as conferring with German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop was concerned, that phase of the Russian's visit was ended this evening when, as DNB, official German news agency said, they conferred "for several hours."

His talk with Hitler—today's was the second and longest—were described by certain informed sources as intended to develop a long range program of Soviet-Nazi collaboration.

Before joining the Fuehrer at an oval table in Hitler's private apartments, the Russian had spent the morning discussions with Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Nazi party leader Rudolf Hess.

No Comment Given.

During the day it was reported that the Turkish ambassador had called at the German foreign office, but upon this authorized persons would make no comment.

(The world has speculated much that Hitler may intend to get Russia to put sufficient pressure upon pro-British Turkey to keep her out of any developing Balkan or near East war.

(The German wireless, in a broadcast received in New York, said that when foreign journalists inquired whether the Turkish envoy had appeared at the foreign office the reply was that this was "likely.")

Franz von Papen, the German ambassador to Turkey, was said authoritatively to be here for talks on "all matters pertaining to his sphere of officials duties."

Willkie May Turn Writer And Lecturer So That He May Better Lead Republican Party In Next Four Years, GOP Leaders Believe

By RICHARD L. TURNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—An impression prevailed in Republican quarters today that Wendell L. Willkie is planning a career as a writer and speaker on public events, to follow a bent which he enjoys and to lend force to his leadership of the Republican party in the four years to come.

Although the defeated Republican presidential nominee has yet to come to a final decision, his friends here expect him to settle down on or near his Indiana farms, contribute regularly to the magazines and emerge from time to time for speaking trips.

In no event, they think, will he return to Commonwealth and Southern, the public utility holding company whose presidency he resigned to wage the presidential campaign, or take any other post intimately associated with big business.

The idea is that he would be in a much more effective position to guide the party and help shape its policies from rural Indiana than from a vantage point in business or a Wall street law firm, any number of which would be only too delighted to take him into partnership.

The proposal at any rate is being urged upon Willkie, and reports reaching Washington are that he finds it to his liking.

Studious by nature, Willkie prefers a quiet contemplative life, with abundant time for books and for thinking about the problems of government as they arise.

Britain To Get Bombers Soon

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—A trade to Great Britain of giant long range bombers for warplane engines was reported today to be one of several new administration measures fast taking shape to reinforce British air might.

Release of a bomb sight mechanism long jealously guarded by the army and navy also was said by authoritative sources to be under consideration, although there was no official confirmation of recurring reports that the army and navy had already agreed to permit Great Britain to obtain the sights. It was authoritatively hinted that only one of two such mechanisms developed exclusively by the United States figured in the latest negotiations.

Many Receive 40

Application of President Roosevelt's rule of thumb policy, under which the United States would share newly manufactured war material with Britain on approximately a 50-50 basis, might give the Royal Air force 20 bombers of a current army order of 80. The last of the order is scheduled for delivery next month.

Another defense a development was a reported plan to train pilots for Britain and Canada in this country. The reports said that 4,000 men would be given primary flight training this winter at commercial schools not handicapped by severe Canadian winters. Mr. Roosevelt has said there were no legal barriers to the procedure.

Advanced military flying would be confined, however, to Canada, center of the British empire war pilot training scheme.

Axis "In A Hole," Turkish Radio Says

ANKARA, Turkey, Nov. 13. (AP)—The official Turkish radio declared tonight that the German-Italian Axis is in a hole because of Italy's attack on Greece and that "Yugoslavia is planning to resist an attack if it comes."

It added, "Germany plus Italy is weaker than Germany alone. Germany knows this now. Berlin, after failing to win help from France and Spain is now trying to win aid from Russia."

Tommy Too Aids Father In Demonstration Of Diapers

TO fulfill an assignment in speech class at Texas Technological college, Tom Murray, senior student from Hobbs, N. M., employed the aid of his own eleven-month-old son and gave a demonstration of "The Technique of Folding and Applying a Diaper."

Murray brought his son to class and conducted his demonstration, carefully explaining each operation, before the students. The baby evidently enjoyed the process and lay on the instructor's desk and gurgled the whole time.

Murray described his technique as being, "A simple tri-fold method I worked out during my spare time." He states that it is quite simple and practical as it may be used with equal effectiveness in the middle of the night or while riding along in an automobile. He has perfected the technique by much practice.

The baby is named Tommy Too. Murray said that he and his wife, the former Ruby Long of Vernon, both disliked the name "Junior". But wishing to perpetuate the father's name they used Too, knowing that when the baby grows up it may become just the initia' "T".

Tommy Too will celebrate his first birthday Friday and his father and mother plan to have for him a party, complete with ice cream and cake. And Murray adds, "Of course he can eat it, he has a whole mouthful of teeth."

Another Suspect In Maas Case Held

Kenneth Jackson Is Arrested In California

Sheriff Abel To Return Man Here From Bakersfield

SHERIFF TOM ABEL will leave this morning for Bakersfield, Calif., to accept custody of Kenneth Jackson, who is charged by indictment with armed robbery Jan. 27, 1938, of Arnold H. Maas.

Jackson, one of two men so indicted, was arrested Tuesday night by the Bakersfield sheriff, upon request of the Lubbock sheriff's department.

Sheriff Abel had sent pictures, fingerprints and a certified copy of the indictment by air mail to California, so that Jackson would not be able to obtain liberty before Sheriff Abel arrived there.

The Lubbock sheriff said Wednesday afternoon he had made application of Governor O'Daniel in extradition proceedings. Governor O'Daniel will ask the California governor to extradite Jackson who has employed a lawyer to fight the proceedings.

Has Been Suspected

Jackson, 28, son of a former Oklahoma peace enforcement official, for months has been suspected of having figured in the Maas case. Raymond McAdams, also indicted in connection with the case, signed a confession wherein he implicated Jackson. McAdams is a federal prisoner.

Sheriff Abel said he believed the California governor would act swiftly upon the extradition application and that the Bakersfield sheriff would have been ordered to deliver the prisoner when the Lubbock official reaches Bakersfield.

Jackson was not the only fugitive reported held Wednesday. Grady Harrist, deputy sheriff, had gone to Angleton, 50 miles south of Houston, for Lester B. Lewis, indicted on a charge of burning insured personal property Sept. 3, 1939, in a bill returned in 72nd district court Nov. 10, 1939.

Oil Case May Be Settled

By The Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13.—Revisions in laws governing the petroleum industry were proposed to Congress tonight by President Cardenas in a move some sources interpreted as designed to put Mexico in position to work out a settlement with oil firms whose properties were expropriated March 18, 1938.

Aides of the president have said all along the chief executive was anxious to work out a final settlement of the expropriation-compensation problem before he leaves office Nov. 30.

The proposals to Congress were designed chiefly, it appeared, to fortify the financial position of the industry which has been running at a deficit.

Plans for reorganization of the industry through personal reductions, salary cuts and other economies now are in negotiation between the government and its employes.

Hurlwood Farmer Is Hurt In Collision

T. W. White, 42, a farmer living near Hurlwood, received minor cuts and bruises and possibly other injuries when his car was in collision with a cattle train near Hurlwood about 7:45 Wednesday night.

White was brought to Lubbock sanitarium by passing motorist. He was treated for cuts on his chin, nose, and right eyebrow, and for bruises on his right arm and leg. He will remain under observation today.

Hospital attaches said they understood White, only occupant of the car, was driving along a highway parallel to a railroad track near Hurlwood. It was believed he had turned off the highway to an unpaved road which crosses the railroad, and since no train passes regularly at that time, he mistook the train light for an automobile approaching on the highway. The car was knocked over on its side and one side was crushed.

German, Italian Agents In U.S. Must Face Dies Group

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 — Chairman Dies (D-Tex) announced today after an exchange of messages with the state department that his House investigating committee would start hearings next week on the activities of German and Italian consular and other agents in the United States.

Advised by Secretary of State Hull to use his own judgment, Dies said he was unable yet to say whether the hearings would be open to the public.

After receiving Hull's telegram, Dies said at Lake Charles, La., that the hearings would start in the capital next Monday or Tuesday.

The committee's records, he said, contained more evidence against Italian diplomatic agents than against German agents in this country.

Both the Italian and German embassies have denied that officials of their governments in the United States were engaging in any activities outside of their official duties.

The exchange between Dies and Hull was made public by the state department.

Dies telegraphed Hull that he intended to start public hearings on November 22 unless the secretary of state believed they "would embarrass you in the conduct of our relations with Germany" or otherwise complicate the international situation.

Asserting that he had turned over to the state department about six weeks ago "certain evidence which we obtained showing the activities and propaganda of German consuls and agents," Dies said it was necessary to dispose of the matter soon because his committee's life expired next January 3.

Hull replied that the evidence had been referred to the attorney general for his consideration and "decision as to what action, if any, should be taken." Since then, Hull said he had not received a formal report from the justice department.

Greeks Mop Up, Continue Drive Into Albania

(By The Associated Press)

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 13. — The Greek high command declared tonight that in "successful attacks" in the Pindus mountains region its troops had occupied a new series of hill tops on Albanian territory.

No more precise location of the counter-offensive was given, but a government spokesman had said earlier that the Greeks were moving forward rapidly in a mop-up of territory abandoned by the Italian invaders in the Pindus region and along the Greek west wing.

Little Activity

There was little or no activity in the Macedonian sector, he reported, adding that Greek troops still were "holding fast the positions they occupied some days ago."

A British air communique issued from Greek headquarters told of new successful attacks by the RAF. It said:

"Valona and Durazzo (Albanian ports) were again bombed by aircraft of the Royal Air force on the night of Nov. 12-13. Long range bombers successfully attacked oil refineries at Bari (Italian base across the Adriatic and west of Durazzo.)

"At Valona high explosive and incendiary bombs hit ammunition dumps, causing fires and explosions. Explosions still were continuing when our aircraft left 20 minutes later."

Almazan Not To Give Up Fight

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Despite the United States' recognition of General Avila Camacho as president-elect of Mexico, General Juan Almazan said tonight he still considered himself the president-elect and was waiting for the people of Mexico to ask him to return there.

In an interview conducted through an interpreter, Almazan branded as "wholly unfounded and false charges by the present Mexican administration that I am tied up with the Axis powers."

Championed Democracy

"My past record definitely shows that I have been the champion of democracy in Mexico and that for many years I have led the movement of close cooperation between Mexico and the United States," he said.

Refining Operations Decrease Last Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—Refining operations of the petroleum industry slowed slightly last week, the report of the American Petroleum Institute disclosed today. The figures were a day later than usual because of the Armistice day holiday.

Reporting refineries reduced operations to 81.0 per cent of potential capacity from 81.7 per cent the week before. Runs to crude oil to stills for the industry as a whole were estimated at 3,510,000 barrels a day compared with 3,535,000 the previous week and 3,497,000 a year ago.

Special Session Of Cabinet Of France Called

(By The Associated Press)

VICHY, France, Nov. 13. — An urgent session of the French government was called for tomorrow following a surprise cabinet session tonight.

Contrary to custom, no communique was issued and ministers declined to give any hint as to the important questions under consideration.

Political observers pointed out that this in all likelihood meant that the government had failed to resolve major problems before it.

Rumors Denied

Simultaneously with the cabinet session, the government issued a communique denying what it called foreign rumors concerning high personalities in France's African colonies and French Indo-China.

Whether this statement concerned Gen. Maxime Weygand, Petain's personal representative in French Africa, and Admiral Jean Decoux, governor general of French Indo-China, was not disclosed. (Refusal of General Weygand to return to Vichy Monday as expected aroused speculation among foreign circles at Bern, Switzerland who professed to see therein a stiffening attitude toward France's German and Italian conquerors.

General Weygand, whose impending return to Vichy was announced recently, had not shown up tonight. (Here 12 words and the entire next paragraph were censored.)

More Seats To Grid Game On Sale Today

Approximately 1,300 additional seats in temporary bleachers to be erected at the south end of Texas Technological college stadium for the Amarillo-Lubbock High school football game here next Thursday will be placed on sale at the principal's office in Senior High school at 9 o'clock this morning.

Dr. W. B. Irvin, city school superintendent, emphasized that sales will not begin until 9 o'clock and that no reservations will be accepted by telephone. Price will be 75 cents.

A total of 1,440 seats in the north end of the stadium were placed on sale Wednesday morning, and the last was sold in the afternoon.

The seats to be placed on sale today, the superintendent warned, probably will be the last available. There still is a possibility that additional bleachers or boxes may be crowded in "some place," Dr. Irvin said, but the prospects are none too bright. The indications are, he warned, that only standing room will remain after today's supply of tickets is exhausted.

Dr. W. B. Irvin, superintendent of Lubbock public schools, said late Wednesday night there would be a bleacher section for negroes, accommodating from 150 to 175 persons, but that no reservations would be made in advance of the game. Tickets, costing 75 cents, can be bought by negroes only at the gate. There possibly will be standing room for negroes in addition, he said.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—The New York Maritime register said today that the 4,952-ton Dallas City, British freighter which traded with the United States and the far East before the war, had been sunk by enemy action off the English coast.

The register, quoted English sources, also said that the British freighter Hauxley, 1,595 tons, was sunk three weeks ago in a German torpedo boat attack on a North sea convoy. Twenty men were said to be missing.

Sailors Missing; 31 Hunters Die; Cold Continues

THE toll of death in regions raked by wintry storms passed the 100 mark yesterday amid indications that the turbulent waters of Lake Michigan would cast up the bodies of many more victims.

Fatalities attributed directly and indirectly to cold and buffeting winds since Sunday increased to 102. The total included 18 sailors known to have drowned but excluded 49 members of lake boat crews who were missing and who were believed to have perished.

Two big freighters, the William B. Davock and the Anna C. Minch, and two fishing tugs, the Richard H. and the Indian, were presumed to have foundered with the loss of all hands—65.

Eighteen Known Dead

Listed positively as dead were 18 sailors—16 members of the crews of the Davock and the Minch whose bodies washed ashore near Ludington, Mich., and two hands from the Canadian pulpwood carrier, Novadoc.

Seventeen sailors and their captain who had clung to the broken hulk of the Novadoc for more than 24 hours on the beach off Pentwater, Mich., were brought ashore when subsiding seas facilitated the heroic task of rescuing survivors of one of the worst gales in the lake's history.

While they told the story of their fight for survival against wind and wave, the tale of another tragedy was related in a Winaona, Minn., hospital by Gerald Tarras, 17. He was the only survivor of a storm-bound hunting party. He told how his father, Carl; his brother, Raymond, 16, and a friend, William Wernecke, accumbed to exposure along the Mississippi river Monday night and Tuesday.

LaGuardia Believes We Can "Lick The Whole World"

By The Associated Press)

SEATTLE, Nov. 13—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia asserted bluntly tonight that he was "still that kind of American who believes we could lick the whole world if we had to."

The outspoken New Yorker, chairman of the United States delegation of the Canada-United States defense commission, made this declaration emphatically when asked about the implications if other powers, such as Russia, should join the German-Italian-Japanese alliance.

He elaborated by saying he had no illusions and recognized that the whole technique of war has changed.

The mayor, who served as an AEF flier during the first World war, said that "to win a modern war a nation must have plenty of equipment, ample resources of supply and a great reservoir of trained men.

"We are getting all of these so rapidly that I hope and believe we will not have to use them.

Nevertheless, they are essential. Military might is the only effective argument in international relations today."

Governor O'Daniel Proclaims Nov. 21 As Official Texas Thanksgiving Day

Date Coincides With FDR's Day

(By The United Press)

AUSTIN, Nov. 13.—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel today issued a Thanksgiving day proclamation designating Thursday Nov. 21 as the official date, in conformance with President Roosevelt's early Thanksgiving plan.

Last year, because the president's date was announced after many state meetings had been scheduled for the last Thursday in November, Governor O'Daniel proclaimed both days. He announced then he would adopt the president's selection for 1940.

To Celebrate Both Days

Despite the one day proclamation Austin will celebrate both days, Nov. 28 is the day for the annual Texas-Aggie football game.

This year it will have not only the morning parade of aggie cadets, for which everything in Austin closes, but preceding the Aggie's 10 o'clock march, there will be a farewell parade of the 111th quartermaster regiment of the National Guard just before it leaves for Camp Bowie, Brownwood.

One Of Great Causes Cited

The University of Texas will observe the president's Thanksgiving day, omitting classes on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of that week. One day will be observed as a holiday. The governor's proclamation noted as one of the great causes for Thanksgiving this year this country's freedom from the war engulfing much of the world. "I invite the citizens of Texas," he said, "to observe this holiday in such a manner as will show our appreciation for the bountiful blessings which are ours. I especially urge that the United States and Texas flags be displayed in public places and on public buildings to signify our gratefulness for the privileg of living in this land of freedom and opportunity."

'Eric The Eradicator'---Lowly Skunk---Being Hailed As Hero In U. S. Forestry Service

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13. — The American wildlife institute today hailed the lowly and unpopular skunk as the new woodland hero of the land.

The much-avoided little animal has proven his right to recognition on the hushed slopes of the New York conservation department's Saratoga nursery, world's largest forest tree production plant.

It happened this way:

Zealously cultivating several million seedlings and transplants, the Saratoga scientists suddenly became alarmed when they discovered the nursery tract harbored almost as many grub worms as tree shoots.

A grub worm, if you don't know, feels the same way about a future tree as a cat does about a canary.

The worms began cutting into the young trees and there wasn't much the scientists could do about it.

Enter the skunk—just a lone skunk travelling unaccompanied.

Now grubs make a tasty morsel for skunks, so the one that arrived at Saratoga suddenly found himself overwhelmed with a delicious plenty of the things he holds best in life.

The seedling situation improved remarkably. Nurserymen, fearful lest the skunk disappear, did everything possible to make him happy. They even built him what are described as the finest living quarters ever provided for a skunk.

In "protective custody" since early autumn, the little tree saver has become docile and gentle as he goes about his conservation work.

The skunk has not been deodorized, hence he commands the greatest of consideration even from those who don't realize the value of his work. No unnecessary noise is encouraged near his pen.

Things have been so easy that there are ugly rumors the animal is getting fat and lazy of late.

His work has been done well, though, and in America's conservation program he's saved wide forests-to-be.

His name is Eric the Eradicator.

Yoakum County Will Get First Jail In More Than 30 Years

Yoakum county will have a jail for the first time in more than 30 years as a result of opening of bids and award of contracts by the commissioners' court Tuesday afternoon.

Sampson Bros., Lubbock contractors, were awarded the general contract for $12,619, said M. C. Butler, Lubbock architect who drew the plans. Southern Prison Co. of San Antonio, was awarded the contract to build 12 cells for $2,999 and Wells Plumbing Co., Quanah, the plumbing and heating contract for $2,400.

Structure To Be Modern

The building, located at Plains, will be 43x23 feet, of brick and two stories in height. It will be of fireproof construction and modern in every respect.

It was back before 1909, when the county was organized, that a small frame jail was built. John C. Keller, now of Lubbock, was sheriff.

"The jail didn't amount to much," Keller recalled the other day. "I put a prisoner in it and shortly afterwards it was burned down. They never built another one."

There was little need for a jail for the county until recently. Some time ago a one cell, concrete building was erected at Denver City, in the south part of the county.

Prisoners, when there were any, have for years been kept in other county jails, generally in the Terry jail at Brownfield. They could be brought before the court when it met at Plains, for trial, and returned at night.

Now the county has a valuation in excess of $20,000,000, Butler said. The court is paying cash for the job. Work will begin as soon as possible on the new structure.

Death Penalty Is Upheld By Court

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Nov. 13. — A sentence of death assessed J. C. Lomax, negro convicted of raping a white woman in a case appealed from Walker county, was made final today by the court of criminal appeals.

The tribunal, finding no reversible error in trial procedure, overruled a motion for rehearing. It had affirmed the verdict last February.

Improper trial procedure was given by the appellate court as the reason for reversing a judgment and remanding the cause in the case of Fred Mullins, jr., assessed life for burglary on third offense by a San Patricio county district court.

The court affirmed the conviction and 30-year sentence assessed Clay Whittle and Jimmie Pierson by a Midland county court on conviction of robbery by firearms. The men were tried jointly.

The average annual income of the poorer classes of Cuba is now 4245.

Six Are Fatally Injured As Four Trucks Collide

Five Others Are Hurt In Crash

EDINBURG, Nov. 13. (AP)—Six persons were injured fatally in a pile-up of trucks on a highway 28 miles north of here today. Five were killed in the collisions; a sixth died several hours later.

The dead included drivers of three of the four trucks involved, one of whom was Thomas Cisneros, sr., 50, of Karnes City, Tex., father of three children killed in the pileup.

Five other persons were hurt, three enough for hospitalization, in the crash, which occurred early today. Assistant District Attorney Jack Ross said a large and small truck apparently were first in collision, then minutes later the other two were involved.

Several Injured

Silvestro Cisneros, 12, died in a hospital this afternoon. His father, Brother Gilberto, 20, and Sister Elena, 17; Bonnie Bert Kellum, 27, Corpus Christi, Tex., truck driver, and J. B. Stodghill, 54, truck driver of Denver, Colo., were the others dead.

Injured were Mrs. Inez G. Cisneros 45, whose arm was broken, her son, Tomas, 4, cuts and bruises, and Mrs. Cleofilas Canales, 59, of Ecleto, Tex., passenger on the Cisneros truck, broken arm and leg. M. Bruenger and John Graham of Wichita, Kans., were not hurt seriously. Mrs. Cisneros was the wife of Tomas Cisneros, sr.

The body of Keilum, Corpus Christi, was taken tonight to Goldston, Tex., for burial and that of Stodghill to Denver. Stodghill was driving a truck with Colorado license plates.

Funeral services will be held in McAllen tomorrow for the Cisneros dead.

Graham told investigating officers he swerved to miss one truck and struck the rear of a wrecked vehicle in the center of the highway. Three of the Cisneros bodies were found among bags of citrus from one of the trucks. The body of Stodghill was discovered 50 feet behind his own truck, and that of Keilum across the road near the cab of his vehicle.

One report was that the crashes occurred during a sandstorm stirred by a cold, stiff wind which struck the lower Rio Grande valley early today.

Drive For Bricks To Finish Museum Will End Saturday

Less remains to be collected in the West Texas museum's 'Give a Brick' drive than was donated in the first 10 minutes of the campaign.

That was pointed out Wednesday by Ray F. Hinchey, general chairman of the campaign, who urged workers to bring the drive to a successful close by the deadline Saturday night.

Eight donations totaling 940 were reported Wednesday afternoon, bringing the total pledged to 204,478, still 25,522 short of the goal of 230,000 bricks.

To Rush Efforts

"When the idea for the campaign was advanced at an informal barbecue on the night of Sept. 26, in less than ten minutes a total of 29,000 bricks had been subscribed toward completion of the building," Hinchey said. "Surely we can secure less than that amount in the next three days."

Saturday will be homecoming day at the college and an effort will be made to bring the brick drive to an end through alumni donations. The total sought is estimated number needed to complete the museum building, basement unit of which was erected in 1936.

Woman Said Aided In Break

(By The United Press)

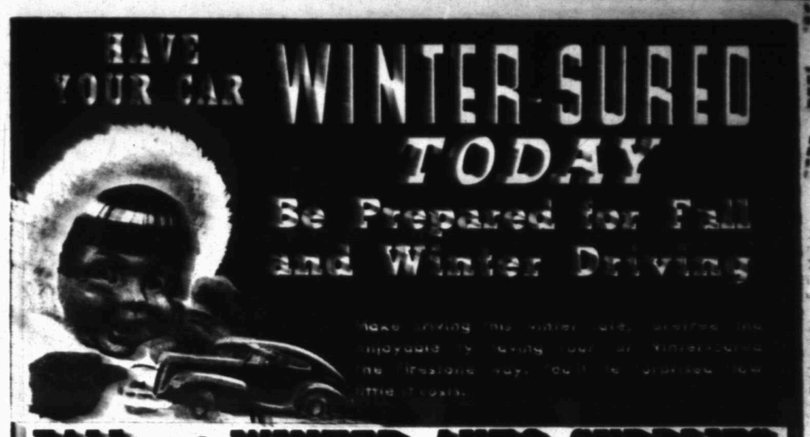

ODESSA, Nov. 13.—Ector County Attorney O. E. Gerran said today that he had "definite proof" that Isabelle Messmer was aided in her escape Monday night from the county jail by "someone on the inside."

The dark little New Jersey woman was being held in the county jail on charges of killing Buford Armstrong, House of David baseball player, in a tourist camp here.

Monday's escape was the second time she had fled the Odessa jail since the killing.

Gerron was conducting an investigation into the jail break today and said all evidence will be placed before the grand jury when it convenes here in three weeks. He said he had discovered "definite proof" that she had been freed from her cell by "someone in the courthouse," although he added he did not know what "person or persons unlocked two doors to allow her to flee."

Meanwhile officers spread an intensive search for her.

Thanksgiving Luncheons Are Planned By Needle Clubs Wednesday

The Woman's Angle

By Margaret Turner

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the absence of Miss Margaret Turner, regular conductor of the Woman's Angle, who is in Austin attending the state convention of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, today's column is from the typewriter of Miss Ruth Whited, N.E.A. woman's staff writer. Take it away, Miss Whited.

WHEN you buy a book for Junior —aged eight or over — take him along with you. If you can't actually take him along, at least keep his taste in mind when you pick out what he is going to have to read—for fun.

That is the advice of Miss Josette Frank, who is staff adviser on children's books for the Child Study Association of America, and herself author of What Books for Children?"

Miss Frank thinks too many parents, when they select books, pick out what they think their children ought to like—instead of what their children actually do like to read.

BIGGER AND BETTER "NONSENSE"

MISS FRANK points out that there are several new trends in children's books—as evidenced by the books published in 1940.

The trend in books for the very young is toward more and better nonsense. Grown-ups who buy books for five, six, and seven-year-olds seem to be as anxious to have their small fry "get away from it all" as they are to find escape literature for themselves. Nonsense books for the very young like "The Topsy Turvy Circus" and "Rowena, the Skating Cow" have swamped the country's nurseries this year. May be the grown-ups are reading these books themselves. That's my idea — not Miss Frank's.

Another new trend in keeping with the times is the number of books recently published which deal with our American heritage. Mother wears an American flag in her suit lapel and little daughter eats up such stories as "They Were Strong and Good."

Then, too, the children are reading about refugee boys and girls and learning of the problems they face when they are set down in a new country. Dorothy Canfield Fisher collaborated on one such book for children called "Nothing Ever Happens and How It Does." Another noted writer, Susan Glaspell, also turned her talents to a refugee story for children — a Christmas story about two little refugee girls called "Cherished and Shared of Old."

CHILDREN'S ART, AIR MINDED

ANOTHER trend, as was inevitable, is toward books about aviation. For years aviation books for children talked mostly about transport planes and played up the constructive side of aviation. Now small fry want—and are being given — books about bombers. And the books are up-to-date on their facts. For example, "Fighting Planes of the World," by Major Bernard A. Law, shows the fighting planes of 15 countries as they are right now, in 1940. Part of the same trend are such books as "Uncle Sam's Navy," which offers Junior fine photographs from official United States Navy sources. Little boys who are interested in war and defense want facts.

And for the young who feel that life is real and earnest—there are the books where the young hero or heroine, struggling against odds, becomes a success by the time the last chapter is reached.

The new thing about these junior success books is that in 1940 they do not follow the old Horatio Alger pattern. There is as ever success on the last page, but the characters are realistic, not goody-goodies, and the obstacles the hero or heroine meets are real obstacles. They're the kind the reader himself might bump into in five or ten more years, when he is trying to reach the success held out to him on the last page of the book.

IT IS ALL very well for the child psychologists to frown on a mother's working when it is not absolutely necessary.

And it is all right for marriage relations counsellors to tell young people that they must share each other's interests and find time for companionship if their marriage is to last and be more than merely a living arrangement.

A PRIME EXCEPTION

But take the case of a young couple with a baby. The husband's salary will feed, clothe, and house the family, but won't stretch to cover the services of a reliable person who will stay with the baby so that the young couple can have some free time together. Where do "rules" of psychologists and marriage counsellors leave this couple?

It leaves them on a spot where they must decide which is the lesser of two evils. On the one hand, the wife can stay home and care for the child, day and night, and give up any thought of being a real companion to her husband. Or she can go to work so that she can hire someone to look after the child, and therefore have her evenings and week-ends free to spend in the companionship of her husband and mutual friend.

THEY'LL GROW APART

THAT is quite a spot for young people to be in. If they agree on the first, the wife is bound to wonder if she will not in time grow away from her husband, not being able to share his interests and be a ready companion to him—and if in the end she may lose him because of this.

If they agree on the second, both are bound to have moments of worrying over the child and wondering if they are not being selfish to go against the best advice of child experts.

Some young folks are deciding the matter one way. Some another. But whichever answer they decide on—they shouldn't be criticized. Having children and doing right by them is a complicated business these days.

Texas Federation Of Women's Clubs Head Will Be Elected In Austin Today

By MARGARET TURNER

AUSTIN, Nov. 13 — With 650 voting delegates, an unprecedented number, registered for sessions of the 42nd annual conference of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, excitement is rising to a high pitch as the hour for ballot approaches. Polls open Thursday morning and close in mid-afternoon.

Mrs. W. Walker of Plainview, seventh district candidate for the presidency, at this early prediction seems the favorite over her only opponent, Mrs. O. H. Carlisle of Houston.

Delegates and visitors were the guests of Gov. and Mrs. W. Lee O'Daniel at an open house at the governor's mansion this afternoon.

Speculation continued on the possible effect of deferring membership of 29 clubs said to be favorable to Mrs. Carlisle's candidacy. Their acceptance was postponed by the board of technical grounds and although there was talk that the presidents of some of the clubs would make demands from the floor for immediate admittance no such action developed.

Prospects For U. S. Labor Peace Said "Better Than Ever"; Lewis Aims Cited

Lewis' Quitting Post Is Factor

(By The Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 13.—Labor's peace prospects appear "better today than ever," a high official of the American Federation of Labor said but warned there could be no final settlement until John L. Lewis quits as head of Congress of Industrial Organizations.

George Meaney, AFL secretary-treasurer, said in an interview that Lewis was "seeking political domination" and "may even have ambitions for the White House."

Would Not Mean Gain

Meaney, explaining an internal fight in the CIO would not necessarily mean a gain for the AFL, said "if they couldn't get along among themselves, how could we expect them to get along with us?"

What he considered a move toward labor peace, he said, was "the fact that some CIO unions have thanked Lewis for his services and now want him to step down as he said he would if Wendell Willkie were not elected president."

AFL Ready For Peace

Meaney asserted that he considered peace prospects among America's orkers "better than ever before" because of this attitude toward Lewis within the CIO ranks and labor's general cooperation in the national defense program.

"The AFL for years has been ready to make peace," he added.

Green Assures FDR AFL Ready For Peace

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 (AP) — William Green discussed prospects of "labor peace" with President Roosevelt today and said afterward he had assured the chief executive that a committee for the American Federation of Labor would be "glad" to meet with one from the CIO to resume peace negotiations.

Green, AFL president, said he thought there had been "some improvement" in prospects that organized labor would close ranks since negotiating committees broke off discussions months ago.

Red Cross Drive Shows Progress

Between 1,250 and 1,300 memberships had been reported Wednesday night in the Red Cross drive for a 3,000 quota, Mrs. Carl E. Slaton, drive secretary, reported.

Mrs. Carl E. Slaton, secretary of the drive, said sale of between 1,250 and 1,300 memberships had been reported. The quota is 3,000 and the Lubbock county chapter hopes to go above the quota.

Drive Continues

Workers are to turn in fees collected by Saturday and this morning's reports represented only partial results in every section, W. C. O'Mara, chairman of the campaign in the business district, J. E. Mnisen, chairman of the drive in schools, office buildings and large firms, and Mrs. Slaton had received incomplete reports from workers.

Mrs. Slaton said the 20 key women in the residential district had sold more than 20 memberships each. Mnisen reported 100 per cent memberships for the city hall, Myrick building and Avalanche-Journal Publishing company.

Eighty-seven memberships have been purchased at Texas Technological college and canvassing has not been completed.

The drive, as a whole indicates the public has become "Red Cross conscious," said Mrs. Slaton.

Films based on the American Red Cross, roles in which are played by Priscilla Lane, Deanna Durbin, James Cagney and others, have been received here and are to be shown in Lubbock theaters.

Toy Pickup By Scouts Planned

Plans are complete for the Boy Scouts' annual Christmas toy pickup Saturday morning for Lubbock Goodfellows, John E. Toles, pickup chairman, said Wednesday.

Chairmen of the various districts in which the scouts will work are Doyle Settle, Vance Apple, Frank Kennedy and Lloyd Croslin, in the white section, and Oscar Iles, in the negro section.

Scouts To Assemble

Toles reminded that the scouts are to assemble at their designated places at 8:45 a. m., and that the pickup will begin immediately after. The work should be finished in about an hour, he estimated, so that the boys taking part in the pickup can be guests of William F. Dean at a showing of the sound film, "Touching All Bases," in the American Legion hall, 910 Texas avenue. The film features American league baseball stars.

Pickups in the past, according to scout officials, usually have netted 2,000 or more toys to be repaired for distribution to the needy children of Lubbock on Christmas day. At least that many will be needed Saturday, because preliminary surveys indicate that the Goodfellows face the biggest job this year since the movement was brought to Lubbock eight years ago.

Toles suggested that those with toys they wish to contribute leave them in a package or sack on their front steps plainly marked for the scouts. The boys will be instructed to knock at the doors of residences where no toys are in sight.

The chairman also urged that there be no hesitancy in contributing toys which seemingly are beyond repair. A little paint and a few extra parts often will do wonders, Toles reminded. If the contribution actually cannot be repaired, no harm will have been done. The best plan, he explained, is to let those who will do the work be the judges of whether repairs can be made.

Hunting Plans Parley Delays Court Session

AUSTIN, Nov. 13 (AP)—Sign of the season:

The Supreme court justices, normally models of punctuality, were 15 minutes late in taking the bench today.

A conference in chambers delayed them — a conference for planning the court's annual deer hunt beginning Saturday with the season opening.

Rev. D. C. Ross To Miss First Conference Of Methodists In Approximately 65 Years

Seriously ill at his home at 1924 Twenty-second street, Rev. D. C. Ross, 68, will be absent from an annual session of the Northwest Texas Methodist conference in Pampa this week-end for the first time in approximately 65 years.

The superannuated minister might not have been able to attend last year's session of the conference, if the meeting had not been held in Lubbock. The fact he did not have to travel enabled him to maintain his record of attending each meeting.

Pastors and lay delegates are making plans to leave for Pampa to attend the conference, opening Friday afternoon. Most of the Lubbock persons plan to leave Friday morning.

Lubbock Pastors To Go

Pastors to go are Dr. L. N. Lipscomb, pastor of First Methodist church; Rev. C. R. Matthews, assistant pastor of the First church; Rev. Luther Kirk, pastor of St. John's church, and Rev. W. E. Peterson, pastor of the Asbury church.

Rev. C. E. Lynn, superannuated minister of Lubbock, will be present to serve in his usual capacity of conference postmaster.

Other Delegates Listed

Rev. J. A. Laney, also a superannuated minister, hopes to attend, it was said at his home this morning.

Lay delegates will be A. N. Gamble, First church; Charles Pike, St. John's, and C. H. Campbell, Asbury. Rufus Scarbrough, member of one of the general conference committees, plans to attend.

Dr. O. P. Clark, superintendent of Lubbock Methodist district has left for Pampa.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13. (AP)—The Pacific coast's largest cities, San Francisco and Los Angeles, rest on land which has a tendency to slip inward with the result that some day the cities may slide toward each other a bit, a Pasadena geologist has reported.

Since the cities are 500 miles apart his audience, members of Sigma XI professional science fraternity, agreed there was little danger of a municipal collision.

Ex-Students To Hear Cawthon

Head Coach Pete W. Cawthon of Texas Technological college will address the Lubbock chapter of former students at a meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight in Lubbock hotel.

The coach is expected to discuss prospects of a Tech victory in the Tech-Wake Forest homecoming football game scheduled Saturday afternoon.

Dance To Be Held

Royal Purgeson, member of the alumni dance ticket sales committee, asked that all members of the chapter with dance tickets be present. Tickets not sold or reserved will be turned in.

The Lubbock county chapter, of which Bill Collins is president, is aiding in sale of tickets to the downtown dance to be held Saturday night exclusively for former students and their guests.

Revised arrangements were announced Wednesday afternoon and provide for gatherings of former students in both men's dormitories. An information desk will be maintained in each dormitory by the dormitory associations and representatives will be present to welcome alumni. No refreshments will be served.

Italians Crippled

sunk outright and two others were "seriously" fired and "almost certainly sunk" while the fourth escaped behind a smoke screen, according to the admiralty.

Both destroyers escaped, but one was damaged. The British acknowledged no casualties or damage.

Blockade Extended

Almost as though reflecting these reports of naval victories, the British government announced extension of the blockade to include Syria, French West Africa, Liberia, Portuguese Guinea, Madagascar and Reunion Island.

Blockade vessels were ordered to halt ships in sea zones off these territories, on three side of Africa, unless the vessels have certificates of prior inspection and approval of their cargoes by the British.

The biggest and newest of the battleships reported crippled in the bombardment at Taranto, the admiralty said was one of the 35,000-ton Littorio class. She "is badly down by the bows, her forecastle is under water and she had a heavy list to starboard," the communique said.

Another Damaged

Italy has two newly commissioned ships of this class, the Littorio and Vittorio Veneto, and they are among the most powerful battlewagons in the world, each mounting nine 15-inch guns.

"One battleship of the Cavour (23,622-ton) class has been beached and, from her stern up to and including the after turret, is under water," the admiralty went on. "The ship is listing heavily to starboard.

"It appears probable that a second battleship of the Cavour class also has been severely damaged."

Italy has four of this class battleships—the Conte di Cavour, Giulio Cesare, Caio Duilio and Andrea Doria—with main armament of ten 12.6 inch guns each.

Bombers Get Them

These are the ships which the British warships have reported spotting only at a great distance, and then always heading at forced draft for the protection of their shores and coastal guns.

But the bombers hunted them out at fortified and guarded Taranto, the admiralty asserted, "smuggling behind their shore defenses."

Suspect Is Held

ey's office informed. Stewart had been billed by the same grand jury as that which accused Lewis on a charge of conspiracy to burn insured personal property.

Specifically, it was set forth that on about Aug. 15, 1939, Stewart conspired, combined and confederated and entered into an agreement with Lewis to unlawfully burn personal property owned by Lewis, an automobile insured against loss from fire damage.

Bond of $1,000 conditioning Lewis' appearance in court was ordered forfeited by Judge Daniel A. Blair presiding magistrate of that chamber. Victor H. Linosey, assistant district attorney, said he believed judgment had been taken on the forfeiture in Hale county.

The sheriff's department said Hale county men, sureties on the bond, had promised they would stand expenses of the trip to Angleton to return Lewis.

The sheriff said that arrest of the two men "clears the investigation docket for Lubbock county with exception of one case, the burglary several years ago of Hanna-Pope and Co. store."

Americans are "happy, affable, and well-bred, a bit rash, but very courteous," in the opinion of Jose Brito, a Brazilian.

Brito's impressions of this country, as presented in a book, Estados Unidos (United States), were outlined by Dr. C. B. Qualia in an address received enthusiastically by Lubbock Rotary club at the club's weekly luncheon Wednesday.

American movies give many false impressions of this great land, but certain social types depicted in the movies are actually taken from life, such as the director who wears plus-fours, the tall gangling girls and boys in their teens, boys with balls and bats, fat negro women and happy children.

Food Is Tasteless

American food is healthful, scientifically prepared with all the calories and vitamins necessary, etc. It is abundant and well served, but it is tasteless. To supply the taste they will put a whole battalion of bottles of sauces in front of you at the table instead of cooking some simple seasoning into the food."

Coffee is a serious thing in America. If you want to drink coffee brewed to satisfy you have to ask for demi-tasse or black coffee and this costs you from 35 to 50 cents. America consumes more coffee than any other country in the world. The people drink it from morning until night and in every fashion, hot, cold, iced and especially, well watered (not strong enough).

Stories Published

Those are some of the impressions gathered by Brito, a Rotarian, when he toured this country early this year. He returned to Rio De Janeiro and wrote a series of newspaper stories so entertaining that several firms published them in book form, in Portuguese. Proceeds from the book go to charity.

Dr. Qualia's address met with such success that he received an invitation Wednesday afternoon to deliver the same speech before Slaton Rotary club today.

Brito's book is not a travelogue giving impressions of scenes as the author viewed them, but is devoted to social types, customs, and institutions, such for example as the American's idea of "the biggest," the people, hotels, Yankee pleasures, the two expositions, stories, traffic, gardens, parks, education and politics.

Impressions Given

"The first article gives the author's impression of New York," Dr. Qualia pointed out. "When he came in sight of the city with its immense docks and great trans-Atlantic lines tied there, the tall buildings that seemed to pierce the sky, the unbelievably large bridges, and the inconceivable traffic, Senor Brito says that he realized that our boast of having the biggest things in the world was not an empty manner of speech but a reality.

"But in spite of the complexity of life in our great city, Senor Brito remarks that everything is timed perfectly and works with clocklike precision. And he is struck particularly with what seemed to him an almost perfect working of the democratic way of life. He says, 'There are no upper classes or lower classes; it is truly a land of equality.'"

The visitor heard the phrase "largest in the world" so much that he finally learned to say that Brazil had the most beautiful things in the world.

Amazed At Confusion

He was amazed at the confusion of life and hubub in American hotels. He was struck by the fact hotels are used for conventions, clubs, weddings and other events. When he arrived at his hotel in Los Angeles, he wrote, he couldn't see anyone in the hotel for the dense smoke that filled the lobby. He was told the pipe smokers were holding a reunion there.

"Being used to the quiet of Brazilian and European hotels, he says that lobbies of American hotels looked like public squares to him," said Dr. Qualia.

"Senor Brito says that the American houses of amusement top the world. He says that our theatrical spectacles are the most elaborate and most dazzling that he has ever seen anywhere in the world. Billy Rose's Aquacade at the New York exposition was probably the thing that he marveled at the most. And the most extravagant thing he saw was the Cotton club in New York.

He cautions his people not to think that all is noise and jazz in America, for he heard some of the finest symphony orchestras in Cleveland, New York, San Francisco and Chicago.

Senor Brito thinks American department stores are "simply colossal and of clerks he says, 'Never did I see people so capable in the art of persuasion.' 'They can make you buy anything even though you don't need it.'

The visitor marveled at America's streamlined trains but was disappointed that this country that has the biggest of everything does not have the fastest trains. He rode the fastest trains between Berlin and Hamburg and between Paris and Bordeaux.

"Far from being materialists, I found Americans to be sentimentalists," he wrote.

President O. W. Ribble presided over the meeting, J. A. Raley, jr., and Dr. Ben Moore were co-chairmen, the former presiding and introducing the speaker. Chas. A. Guy announced a dance for Texas National guardsmen from Lubbock who are called into national service, will be given Nov. 30. It is being sponsored by service organizations and former service men here.

Prints Entered In Contests

Salon prints entered in the third annual South Plains salon of pictorial photography sponsored by the South Plains Camera club will be judged this afternoon.

The salon is held in collaboration with the Texas Technological College Art institute and prints entered will be on display at the West Texas museum located on the college campus.

For the benefit of those wishing to see the prints the museum will remain open after regular hours, which are from 2 until 5 o'clock, or from 7 until 9:30 o'clock Saturday and Monday nights. Members of the Camera club will be at the museum during those hours to explain methods of making the salon prints from ordinary photographs. The prints will remain on display at the museum until Nov. 30 and then may be seen at regular museum hours.

May Be Recognized

Until Wednesday night 148 salon prints had been received by Charles Adams, jr., salon secretary—many more than were received last year. The prints show varied artistic effects achieved through combination of light and shadow. A wide variety is evident in choice of subjects.

Among prints received is one from a fellow of the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain, who lives at Durango, Colo., and one submitted by Don Barker, a feature staff member of the Fort Worth Star Telegram. Nine entries were received from Amarillo, and four from Oklahoma City. Other cities represented in the display are Macon, Ga., Phoenix, Ariz., Austin, Edinburg, Clovis, N. M., Birmingham, Ala. and Lake Charles, La.

It is believed that the South Plains Camera club will received national recognition and affiliation as a result of the widespread interest which has been evidenced in the salon. The Camera club is now affiliated with the Photographic Society of America.

Almazan Answers

dent-elect Henry A. Wallace to represent this country at the inauguration of Camacho on Dec. 1, Almazan said:

He Has "Proof"

"Russian tourists are only shown certain things. The danger of a visit to Mexico by Mr. Wallace will be that he will be shown such a stage setup.

"But being a man of the world and intelligent," Almazan added, "and most probably taking a staff of wise men with him, he will be in a position to get first hand information on the Mexican situation."

The "situation" regarding the presidency, he said, was this: Camacho claimed 2,400,000 votes, whereas the Almazan party had proof through affidavits with fingerprints that Almazan received 2,500,000. "And there are not more than 3,000,000 votes in all Mexico," the general said.

To Get Bombers

policy last week, Mr. Roosevelt said it applied specifically to huge long-range Boeing bombers of a type developed exclusively for the army and capable of carrying heavy bomb loads more than 3,000 miles.

The engines which the United States would obtain in the deal were included in current British orders with American manufacturers for more than 20,000 motors. They were said to be more needed for the moment by the expanding American air forces than by Britain.

On the basis of contract costs, 15 or 20 of the most powerful engines would approximate the $350,000 complete cost of the latest type 4-motor army bomber.

Dies Hearings

Dies for his cooperation and for the information, Hull said:

Liechtenstein 'Black Out' Finally Ordered

VADUZ, Leichtenstein, Nov. 13. (AP)—The last 65 square miles of light in Central Europe went out tonight.

Leichtenstein, little principality between Switzerland and Germany, ordered a blackout at last.

Her government feared, as Switzerland has, that her neutrality might be endangered if belligerent bombers should use the Liechtenstein lights as a guide to their targets.

Plans For Building Bridge Disclosed

Significant plans for the future were uncovered Wednesday when Lubbock county commissioners court awarded a $1,000 contract for building a wider bridge three miles west of Abernathy on a road leading from Abernathy in Lubbock county to Countyline community and the Hockley county line.

Sampson Bros., contractors, will build a 30-foot-wide bridge of six piers and six-foot wings, the fill to be constructed by county road repair crews. It will be of reinforced concrete construction.

More significant, according to information told to the contractor, the entire 40-foot road will be doubled in width, so that it could qualify for state designation and a possible hard-surfacing project.

From Abernathy to the county line is 15 miles, and wheat from Hockley county pours over the route in good weather. In bad weather the wheat, bound for Plainview storage, must go to Plainview by way of Lubbock.

It further was understood that Hockley county will equally widen the road another 10 miles, to Anton.

There would be a great saving in time and mileage for farmers so engaged in hauling, it was pointed out.

Case Dismissed Against Woman

Dismissal of a case of forgery charged to Mrs. Glen Gover of Oklahoma was ordered by the district attorney's office Wednesday when it was learned Mrs. Gover is a juvenile.

"She is 15," one official said he had been informed.

The woman, it was alleged, forged endorsement of her husband to a $97.02 check made payable to him. A deputy sheriff had gone to San Angelo to transfer her to Lubbock.

The check was presented for payment to a Lubbock merchant last week.

Jury To Report

A 99th district jury will report at 9 o'clock this morning to hear the case of Walter Wilkinson, charged with forgery and passing, said court officials.

Mack Shipley, charged with robbery, and Minnie Freeman, charged with theft, will be tried at 9 o'clock Friday morning, according to the court's settings.

Pat C. Muckleroy, charged in 99th district court with drunk driving, entered a plea of guilty when arraigned Wednesday before Judge E. L. Pitts and was given a five day jail sentence and $50 fine and costs.

Deer Hunters Will Meet In Uvalde

Before the week is over a small army of deer hunters will gather on a special lease in the Uvalde country. All members will be from the South Plains.

Louie P. Moore, deputy county clerk, Charles Adams, Charles Adams, jr., Daniel A. Davis, Fred Higbee, Jim Collier and Elmer Rag, all of Lubbock, and Frank Moore, tax assessor-collector of Floyd county, and Dinty Moore of Amarillo, will comprise the party, together with a negro cook.

The Moores are brothers.

Adams and Louie Moore have gone ahead to the meeting place, Davis will leave this morning and the rest of the party Friday.

SCHOOL IS STARTED

The school of instruction held by Altrusa International, Lubbock chapter, Tuesday night at the West Texas Gas company was attended by 12 negro maids. Another meeting will be held Nov. 19.

SCIENCE guards America's telephone service

Men of science watch as fantastic apparatus enacts an unrehearsed drama before their eager eyes... nearby, other research experts peer into their microscopes ...in another room, laboratory technicians put through grueling tests some new and better part for America's telephone system...

The scene is the Bell Telephone Laboratories where nearly 5,000 scientists and assistants explore the unknown to build a better telephone service for America. Today their thousands of inventions and developments serve America.

By modern scientific methods huge telephone cables are made and buried underground, guarded from floods, fires, storms, and other disasters. Some of the more important cables are kept under constant gas pressure, so that the smallest leak in the lead covering sounds an automatic alarm, summoning crews of repairmen.

America's telephone system, guarded by science, is armed to withstand many attacks which a few years ago might have silenced thousands of telephones and isolated many communities.

Today Americans, in any emergency, turn to the telephone, knowing they will receive fast, dependable service.

Tech Frosh Open Weekend Grid Card Tomorrow; Varsity Awaits Deacons

Hardin-Simmons Frosh Coming

Fairly out-whooping the whooping varsity Red Raiders, Texas Tech's freshman gridders made the welkin ring in a fierce workout yesterday in preparation for the "homecoming preview" Friday afternoon.

Big game of the week is Texas Tech vs. Wake Forest, scheduled for 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. But 24 hours earlier the Picadors of coaches Berl Huffman and Dixie White will tangle with the Hardin-Simmons university Tenderfeet. The game marks the re-opening of football relations between the two big West Texas institutions, and is of unusual interest in view of the possibility of Hardin-Simmons Cowboy and Texas Tech Red Raider varsity games in the near future.

Last Game As Fish

The Tech fish, winners in three of their four games this season, will wind up their 1940 schedule tomorrow when they meet the Hardin-Simmons frosh, and they have promised to "take off the wraps and go to town." In some previous games they have left the impression of "playing under the blankets," but they have asked the coaches to "let us go in our own way against those Hardin-Simmons boys." Huffman and White seem willing, and the game should be a sparkler.

The Picadors worked out at one end of the varsity field yesterday, made more noise than the varsity, and that was plenty noise because the varsity was cutting up more than considerably. They've got their eyes on the Wake Forest game, and yesterday's spirit prevails Saturday, the "giant killers" from Wake Forest will have a job on their hands.

Webster Replaces Dvoracek

Coach Pete Cawthon had his backs running offensive plays most of the afternoon, and they looked mighty good doing so, with big Walter "Jumbo" Webster essaying to look like Charles Dvoracek, the injured regular fullback, and Tom Douglas doing just about everything Weoster could do. For a long time, the backfields took time about running "power" plays, but mixed in some fancy stuff, too. Line Coach Dutchy Smith had his division working overtime in perfecting line blocks, and sent them at the blocking and tackling dummies for a vigorous workout.

The Tech teams will work out again this afternoon behind closed gates, each working on offensive plays they hope to spring Friday and Saturday against the highly respected opposition from Abilene and North Carolina.

"We hope to condense our total

MOWER-DOWNER— You don't hear much of Jimmy Ringgold when the talk turns to Wake Forest, because he seldom carries the ball. That's the reason Tony Gallovich and John Polanski get the headlines. But Ringgold is good enough to be captain of the Deacons, which means he is plenty good. Saturday he'll be matched against Texas Tech's Ty Bain, likewise a blocking back, who is Tech's co-captain.

Deacons In Dallas For Drill Today

(Special To The Avalanche)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 13.— The Deacons of Wake Forest, en route to Lubbock where they meet Texas Tech Saturday, stopped over here tonight long enough to put in a two-hour workout at Fairground stadium, practicing from 7 to 9 o'clock before resuming the trip.

Head Coach Peahead Walker said his boys were showing the strain of the long ride and did not drive them through the usual rough Wednesday session, indicating that Thursday's drill in Dallas would find the boys going through a scrimmage.

Greeted In Alabama

The Deacons will spend all day Thursday in Dallas, working out at a high school field in the afternoon and departing for Lubbock at 10 o'clock tomorrow night. Arrival in Lubbock is scheduled for 8 o'clock Friday morning, and the Deacons will drill at Tech stadium that afternoon.

A large gathering of Birmingham people turned out this afternoon to greet the Deacons as they stopped over there to switch trains. Included in the group were Farmer Seal, popular Birmingham sports writer; Mrs. E. R. Walker, wife of Wake Forest's backfield coach, and Coach Peahead Walker's mother; residents of Birmingham.

Study Tech Plays

The Memphis fans who watched the Deacs work out here tonight saw some fancy punting by Tony Gallovich, J. V. Pruitt and Red Mayberry. These three stars sent the ball booming down the field 40 to 60 yards on the fly, while the ends, tackles and guards went down to cover. Fred Welch and Jolting John Polanski were fairly successful on the returns.

Besides the punting exercise, Coach Walker gave his boys a look at Texas Tech formations and plays, a bit of "two-on-one" for the linesmen, a dummy scrimmage and 15 minutes of work on kickoff returns.

Outstanding among the linesmen in the drill were Long John Jett, end; Carl Givler, guard, and John Pendergast, center.

District 4-A Spotlight Is On Matador-Paducah Tilt

This is just another week in District 4-A football.

Matador's Bullfighters, who might easily choose to rest on the laurels they won in eliminating Floydada from the conference race by a score of 7 to 0 last week, run into Lockney on the Lockney turf Friday afternoon. That should be an easy assignment. The Longhorns have failed to show any of the power this year that carried them to successive championships in 1938-39, and have lost three conference games. Lockney was idle last week.

Floydada, defeated only by Matador in the district race, will invade Crosbyton for a game with the Chiefs, who have failed to win a conference game this year. Crosbyton dropped a 19-7 decision to Ralls last week.

Title At Stake

The mighty Paducah Dragons, who are idle this week, couldn't be stopped by Spur, a highly regarded eleven. They won 20 to 0 and that left them undefeated but tied by Floydada.

If Matador dusts off Lockney according to schedule, the conference championship will be determined at Paducah Thanksgiving day when the Bullfighters place their perfect record on the spot in a game with the Dragons.

This Week's Schedule

Floydada at Crosbyton.
Matador at Lockney.

Conference Standings

Team	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Matador	4	0	0	1.000
Paducah	4	0	1	.900
Floydada	2	1	1	.625
Spur	3	2	0	.600
Lockney	1	3	0	.250
Ralls	1	4	0	.200
Crosbyton	0	4	0	.000

Last Week's Results

Paducah 20, Spur 0.
Floydada 0, Matador 7.
Crosbyton 7, Ralls 19.

Hale Center To Meet Petersburg Friday

HALE CENTER, Nov. 13. (Special) Hale Center's Owls and the Petersburg Buffaloes will meet here Friday for the second time this season in a non-conference game.

Improving with every game, Coach Melvin Ratheal's Buffaloes have won five of seven contests, scoring 98 points to 56 for the opposition. Coach Sammy Bryan's Hale Center eleven has won six of eight tilts.

Early in the season the Owls edged out Petersburg 7 to 6. Comparative scores have been almost even throughout the season.

Deer Season To Open Cold Snap Good News To Lubbock Hunters

Lubbock hunters, looking forward to the opening of the deer season Saturday, found their hopes soaring yesterday as cold weather increased prospects for good hunting.

Among Lubbock people planning to try to bring back a venison steak or two are Bill McMillan, who hunts with both gun and camera, George Kuykendall, John Broome, Bill and Harold Humphries, Chas. Adams sr., Dr. Sam G. Dunn and Dr. F. B. Malone.

McMillan plans to go to the Barrillo mountains near Balmorhea, as he has for several years. Limit on the white-tailed mule deer prevalent there is one per person. Always before McMillan has bagged his deer the first day out.

Many are going to Kerrville, including Kuykendall, who will hunt with his son, Roger Kuykendall of Austin; and Humphries, Clifford Williams and their families.

Unsung Grid Stars Are Revealed

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 13.— Shuffled to the sports page sidelines by the illustrious Kimbroughs, Robnetts, Thomasons, Crains, Brumleys and Johnstons, there's a little band of Southwest conference pluggers who may here and now take a belated bow.

Not as eye-catching, perhaps, as the headline hitters but long overdue in the credit department. Are the following members of the 1940 all-unsung squad of the conference.

CENTER—Clarence Alexander, Texas Christian and Ray Pope, Southern Methodist. Two lads forced to near violation of the wages of hours act by going 60 minutes of every ball game because of injuries and lack of material that leaves nothing behind them but the coach's moan.

RIGHT GUARD—Charlie Henke, Texas Aggies. Quietly he starts every game, plays his usual 50 or 60 minutes of flawless football and is known as "that other guard on the Aggie team." Marshall Robnett's shadow is that fog that blurs the No. 38 that has started in 18 straight Cadet triumphs.

RIGHT TACKLE— Chipp Routt, Texas Aggies. Sure you've heard the name before— but it was his brother, Joe, the old All-American. Steady, getting rather sensational as he goes along, you'll find Chipp's name in all the programs.

RIGHT END—Connie Sparks, Texas Christian. Remember, way back there in 1938 when Connie was All-conference fullback? Well, he hasn't faded. He's a grand, reliable, sturdy end now, never whimpering about his lost glory.

LEFT END—Jack Russell, Baylor Giant, battering sophomore. Tag this 220-pounder as the end to end all ends before he gets his B. A. from Baylor.

LEFT TACKLE—Carl Anderson, Baylor, and Firman Bynum, Arkansas. Two riots, these fellows. Bynum whacked the Aggie backs as hard as they've been struck all year; Anderson has been tough as the rear end of a shouting gallery.

LEFT GUARD—Livy Bassett, Rice Institute. Not unsung, this boy. Just sort of overwhelmed by the ball carriers. Some rate him a breath behind Robnett.

QUARTERBACK— Milton Merka, Baylor. Rugged, hard-hitting line backer and quite adept at bagging those needed few yards for first downs. Merka is a 60-minute man in the shell-shocked Bruin backfield. Fourth ranking ball carrier in the league.

LEFT HALFBACK—R. L. Harkins, Texas. More than once Harkins has ambled into the Texas backfield and stolen Jack Crain's thunder. Clever runner, good kicker and great passer, he likes the contact work. Truly, an underrated back.

RIGHT HALFBACK— Will Mullenweg, Southern Methodist. Not, as some of the critics contend, almost the equal of the Aggies' Jim Thomason. That matter was settled and buried when they met face-to-face

Mighty Mites Of Masonic Shoot For Title Today

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

Masonic Home's mental marvels— the masters of hocus-pocus in school-boy football—go after their sixth district championship in eight years Thursday night.

Ever since they got into the top bracket, the Mighty Mites have been the scourges of the gridiron for the powers of Texas high school play.

This season they turned up with a team many rank as their best since 1932 when they played a scoreless tie in the state finals. This time it has weight and power along with the all-firedest brand of legerdemain it has been the privilege of critics to see.

Arlington Unbeaten In District

They are undefeated, untied and unscored on—and not only that, they haven't allowed an opposing team to enter their 20-yard line for the solace of a penetration, much less a touchdown.

The Masons play Arlington Heights, their Fort Worth rivals, in a game generally looked upon as the championship struggle of District 7. Arlington Heights is unbeaten in conference play, although the record is not so good in games outside the district.

Sherman-Paris Outstanding

This tilt features the opening round of a week-end that will name likely champions in several areas. There are five tilts scheduled Thursday night, with 25 Friday and seven Saturday.

Outstanding Friday night is the Sherman-Paris struggle at Paris. On this game hinges the District 5 championship. Both teams are undefeated and untied and Sherman is the state's high-scoring outfit with 280 points in eight games.

Graham and Wichita Falls clash at Wichita Falls Friday night to determine the leadership of District 2—with the winner due to become the outstanding title favorite.

Eyes On Thanksgiving Tilt

The championship of Central Texas will be in the balance at Temple Friday afternoon when Corsicana meets the Wildcats. They are deadlooked for the leadership of District 10.

Other sectors continue their elimination schedules with the showdown battles carded for Thanksgiving day.

The conference schedule in the state for Thursday, Friday and Saturday:

District 2—Friday: Olney at Childress, Graham at Wichita Falls, Vernon at Quanah.
District 3—Friday: Lamesa at Abilene.
District 5 — Thursday: Denison at Gainesville. Friday: Sherman at Paris.
District 6—Friday: Arlington at Greenville, Denton at Highland Park (Dallas).
District 7—Thursday: Arlington Heights (Fort Worth) vs. Masonic Home (Fort Worth). Friday: North Side (Fort Worth) vs. Riverside (Fort Worth). Saturday: Paschal (Fort Worth) vs. Fort Worth Tech.
District 8 — Friday: North Dallas vs. Woodrow Wilson (Dallas). Saturday: Sunset (Dallas) vs. Adamson (Dallas).
District 10—Friday: Corsicana at Temple, Bryan at Cleburne.
District 13—Thursday: Austin (Houston) vs. Sam Houston (Houston). Friday: Jeff Davis (Houston) vs. San Jacinto (Houston). Saturday: Reagan (Houston) vs. Milby (Houston).
District 14—Saturday: Galveston at Port Arthur South Park (Beaumont) vs. Beaumont High.
District 15 — Thursday: San Antonio Tech vs. Brackenridge (San Antonio). Friday: Harlandale (San Antonio) at Austin, Kerrville at Laredo.
District 16—Friday: San Benito at McAllen.

Cubs Fire Gabby Hartnett

HOT STOVE LEAGUE WARMS UP— Baseball news breaks into the headlines this morning. Gabby Hartnett, left, got his walking papers from the Chicago Cubs yesterday after 19 years as star catcher and manager, Owner Phil Wrigley announcing that he will not return next season. Hartnett had been manager of the Cubs since August, 1938. Right is Frank McCormick, first baseman of the world's champion Cincinnati Reds, who was named the most valuable player in the National league.

New Skipper Not Yet Selected

By EARL HILLIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Gabby Hartnett, who for 19 consecutive years carried his big red face, bat and chest protector to the plate for the Chicago Cubs, came to the end of the road with that team today.

His contract as Cub manager, said Owner P. K. Wrigley, will not be renewed when it expires Dec. 31.

Waivers To Be Asked

The surprise announcement, one which was not without a tinge of sadness, thus terminated the big Irish catcher's connection with the team, which began when he joined the Cubs in 1922—a 21-year-old rookie with a world of hustle and an ingratiating grin.

Wrigley, who remarked, "We simply decided we'd have to buckle down and do something for the team," said waivers would be asked on Hartnett and that if there were no takers he would be given his unconditional release.

"We are announcing this decision now," Wrigley said, "both out of

Frank McCormick Named National League's 'Most Valuable' Player

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.— The Cincinnati Reds may or may not have a monopoly on the National league pennant but they apparently have a strangle-hold on the circuit's most valuable player award.

Frank McCormick, whom the Baseball Writer's Association of America announced today as their selection for the 1940 award, was the third Cincinnati player in as many years to win the honor.

The hard-hitting, smooth-fielding first baseman followed the trail marked out by Catcher Ernie Lombardi in 1938 and Pitcher Bucky Walters last year.

Walters Is Third

There was some division among the committee of 24 baseball writers who made the annual selection with the result that McCormick's margin over Johnny Mize, the St. Louis Cardinals' first baseman and home run king, was only 274 points to 265. Last year Walters received 303 out

Junior High Gridders End Season Today

Lubbock Junior High's two football teams finish out the 1940 season today, Coach Gordon Thompson's Calf Ropers playing the Levelland juniors here while the Cowboy charges of Coaches Mule Davis and Lovis Liston go to Big Spring for the season's finale.

The Calf Ropers, beaten in four straight games by the margin of one touchdown, are trying for their first 1940 victory against Levelland. The game is to be on the Junior High field, beginning at 3:30 o'clock. The Calf Ropers say they will win by four touchdowns today, just to make the season's record even.

The Cowboys will be trying for their 16th successive victory at Big Spring. They went through all of 1939 without a loss and have come to the final game of 1940 still unbeaten.

Democrats Plan To Reorganize Party Machinery To Meet GOP Opposition

Executive Post To Be Created

(By The United Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Democratic leaders were reported planning today to reorganize party machinery under an executive director stationed here to meet the new Republican program of "vigilant third term opposition."

The United Press was informed that party ranks would be solidified around a strong central organization extending in every state and, in each case, under liberal progressive leadership.

Flynn To Remain Leader

National Chairman Edward J. Flynn, it was said, will remain as head of the organization. Most of his duties, however, will be taken over by the executive director who will be an outstanding Democrat with a liberal background and acceptable also to the more conservative element.

Sen. Sherman Minton, defeated for re-election in Indiana, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt and Assistant Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman are being mentioned for the new post.

President Roosevelt, according to the informant, has approved the outline of the program.

The first civilized ruler to have an army was Sesostris, an Egyptian king of thousands of years ago.

of 163 1-2 plays we've been running this season in order to have something definite to hurl at the Hardin-Simmons team," commented Coach Huffman of the Preadors. The frosh have learned a lot of plays this season in order to run them against the varsity.

Tickets Going Fast

Tickets for the freshman game will be sold only at the box office tomorrow, the price being 40 cents, plus tax, with no reserved seats. The game is expected to attract the largest crowd of the season for a freshman game.

Graduate Manager of Athletics Mule Dowell said that tickets for the Wake Forest game sold rapidly yesterday, and that he had only a few hundred choice seats left.

"Tech fans have a habit of waiting until the last day before a game to buy tickets, but if they wait that long this week, they'll find themselves in the position of fans who tried to buy tickets for the Lubbock-Amarillo high school game. There just won't be any left," he said.

AMERICANS WIN

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 13. (AP) — Frank Guernsey of Orlando, Fla., and Miss Jane Stanton teamed together today to defeat Alejo Russell and Ana Pauwels of Argentina 6-4, 6-3 in a quarterfinal match of the Argentine mixed doubles tennis championships.

Littlefield Program Will Be Delayed

Laying of the cornerstone for the new Littlefield postoffice has been postponed indefinitely because of the illness of George Mahon, Congressman from the 19th Texas district, according to W. D. T. Storey, Littlefield postmaster.

The congressman has had an attack of the flu and underwent a tonsilectomy a week ago Saturday.

Postmaster Storey said the date would be set at a time satisfactory to the congressman.

last Saturday, but a fine blocker, good line-backer and balance of the Methodists.

FULLBACK—Frank Kring, Texas Christian. Really here is the lad who has been completely overlooked. Not once has this ponderous line-jammer been tossed for a loss. He goes almost the full 60 minutes, has carried 45 times for 178 yards and an average of 3.93 yards to rate as one of the four or five leading gainers of the conference! He'll be the league's Kimbrough next fall.

The honorable mention list could be run into the night.

JORGENS QUITS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—Arndt Jorgens, veteran New York Yankee reserve catcher, today notified President Ed Barrow that he was retiring from baseball.

Carl Maxey Shoots Canadian Goose

This tale should raise goose-pimples.

Carl E. Maxey and a party of friends will dine tonight on roast Canadian goose, a dish which in this area is relatively scarce since the birds are intelligent and elusive.

Maxey, his brother Robert, also a contractor, and Henry Roberts, manager of a Lubbock sports store, were hunting ducks at a lake about 10 miles south of Lubbock this week. Robert Maxey, friends explained, has often longed for a chance to bag a Canadian goose.

In the distance they saw a flock of what appeared to be ducks. Carl and Roberts began to inch their way on their stomachs toward the birds, but Robert Maxey said it looked like a wild-goose chase to him, and stayed at their parked car.

After laboriously crawling along for 10 yards, the two hunters were in firing range, and Carl brought down the goose—a large black and white bird with a four and one-half foot wing spread and weighing six pounds seven ounces.

Cub Manager Is Fired

fairness to Hartnett and because we believe the fans expect and are entitled to know what's what about their ball club. Several names are under consideration for the position of Cub manager in 1941. All the men we would like are under contract and their names cannot be discussed until we have made definite arrangements with them and their present employers."

This was taken to mean the new Cub manager would not be a Cub player, even though the name of Bill Herman, second baseman, long has been mentioned as a possible Cub managerial possibility.

of a possible 336 points.

This year Walters again received 146 points and Paul Derringer, his pitching partner, 121 to finish third and fourth, respectively, in the balloting.

PGA REELECTS WALSH

CHICAGO, Nov. 13. (AP)—The National Professional Golfers association today unanimously reelected Tom Walsh of Chicago president for another year.

Frank Sprogell, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, was named secretary, replacing Charles R. Clark, Willoughby, O. The vote was 35 to 34. Willie Maguire of Houston, Texas, was reelected treasurer, defeating Joel Smith of Hartford, Conn., 47 to 18.

Walsh said that the contract of Fred Corcoran of Boston as tournament bureau manager had been continued through 1941.

Tacoma's Bridge Collapse

THE presumption at present must be that proper authorities will make every effort to get to the bottom of causes for the collapse last week of the $6,100,000 government-built bridge near Tacoma, Wash.

Presumption also must be that findings as made by the most competent experts after the most thorough investigation will be disclosed without attempting to apply any coatings of political white-wash.

But until there is evidence to the contrary, it must be assumed that incompetence, negligence and perhaps outright criminality belong in the picture somewhere. That must be the assumption because bridge-building is one of the oldest, the most exact and the most highly developed of structural sciences. It is not an experiment. Every bridge is a problem which deals with known factors of stresses and strains. If a bridge is to be built, there need not be and should not be any guesswork about the factors. Thus, in the case of the bridge near Tacoma, there could be no possible excuse for not knowing just how much allowance should have been made for sway due to winds of which there is more than a half-century of record.

Of course, there is a possibility that some cause impossible to anticipate can be blamed in this case. But that is a bare possibility, at best. It is one which seems wholly untenable because this bridge, presumably built for the centuries, failed to last two years.

More likely, the real cause may be found among some of these: Engineers employed for political reasons rather than for competency; failure to obtain all the information that should have been obtained before starting on the project; refusal to heed facts indicating the bridge could not be built safely; the ignoring of warnings which should have been apparent from the fact that the bridge was known far and wide as "Galloping Gertie;" and last—but not least, the possibility someone may have substituted inferior materials for those called for in the specifications.

For the present, the cause must remain conjecture. Opportunity must be given for thorough investigation with expectation that real causes will be sought, blame will be placed if there is blame, and penalties will be imposed where deserved.

But if there should become reason to suspect that cover-up methods are being employed, it will be time for Congress to take a hand to forestall any possibility of political monkey-business.

Let The RAF Smash Rome!

THE mere thought that some of the relics of ancient Rome that have withstood the ravages of more than 2,000 years may soon be destroyed is ample cause for something akin to world grief.

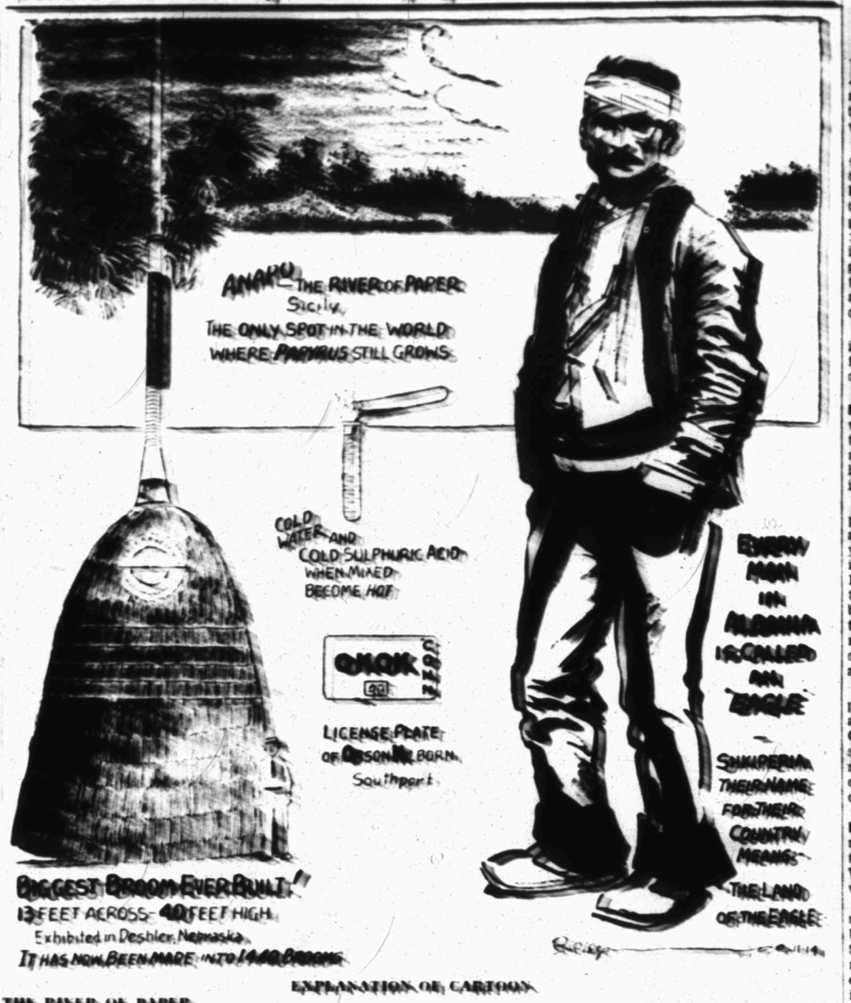

Those ancient ruins are almost the only remaining tangible links with a nation more powerful in its time than any that has existed since, with a civilization largely comparable to the most magnificent of our day.

But the British certainly are not to be criticized if they send their bombers over Rome. The criticism will be due if they fail to do as they now threaten in retaliation for the part that Italian aviation is playing in the aerial war on Britain. The Italians cherish those ancient ruins of theirs, and with good cause. If they actually should see some of those relics blasted out of existance, it might give them less stomach for this war of unspeakable horror that has been waged on Britain.

Of course, it is not to be supposed that Britain bombers would attempt deliberately to blast the ruins. That would be a waste of good ammunition upon objectives without military value. But when bombs are released, no one can say with certainty where they may land. If enough are dropped, some are going to demolish some of the ruins. And that would be a proper penalty because London, which has been subjected to the most merciless aerial bombardment of any spot in history, was as magnificent for this day as the finest of Rome was for the days of its glory.

So if the British are capable of striking telling blows upon Rome, they will be worse than derelict if they fail to do so. The fact that those blows may obliterate more of the links with a nation and a civilization long since dead is infinitely of less importance than that they would be struck in order that a nation and a civilization of living people might continue to live.

THE RIVER OF PAPER.

The only spot in the world where papyrus still grows is on the shores of the Anapo River near Syracuse, Sicily, Italy. It is extinct in its native country, Egypt.

It has a very romantic history. Hiero II, King of Siracusa, sent an 8,000-ton ship full of gifts to King Ptolemy of Egypt. In return the Egyptian king sent the Syracusan the seeds of the papyrus plant. The seeds were planted at the order of the king near the river where they still grow, while their mother country knows them no more.

The Road To Shani Lun

By RITA MOHLER HANSON

Chapter 33

Struggle By Night.

At five o'clock the boy returned with the extra horses. Temu paid for them and for the hospitality they had received, and shortly afterwards, led the way across the snow-clad plain under a threatening sky.

"We'll save time by crossing the mountains here," he said.

"Do you know where we are?" Lynn asked, gratefully tucking her hands in the long sleeves of her Mongol coat and letting her pony have his head. The horses kept side by side at a steady pace.

"We're directly east of the border town of Dorchi."

She looked at him curiously. "Do you realize that when we arrive there, we'll probably find that Dick and the Duke of Sacnito have taken over the government of Shani Lun?"

"That's on the knees of the gods," he said shortly and urged his horse ahead. He did not seem to want to talk about it.

They began a climb through a rocky gorge that looked like the dumping ground the contractors had used when they were finishing the mountain peaks for the Creator. The trail wound interminably hour after hour through the waste. They stopped a few minutes at noon for a bowl of hot tea and then pressed on into a rough plateau, thinly covered with snow in the places where dry grass lay abundantly around the rocky outcrops.

Temu saw that Lynn was becoming tired and cold. "We'll soon reach a stone hut," he promised.

"Can't we sleep out?" she asked, drowsy and a bit breathless from the high altitude.

"Too cold with snow on the ground." He urged the horse forward at a faster pace, crossed another divide, and followed a stream around a mountain peak to an alpine valley where the hut with a few stone tattlepens stood on a shelf above a perpendicular canyon wall. Tethered near the hut were three saddle horses.

Temu stopped. "Someone else is here tonight," he said in a troubled voice. "I don't like it."

"Why?" asked Lynn, halting her horse beside his.

"The place has a reputation of being a robbers rendezvous."

He sat thinking a moment before dismounting. "Stay here," he said and disappeared into the hut through a low door, across which hung a camel skin. Lynn's pony sighed wearily and cocked an inquiring ear back at her.

"You don't feel any worse than I do," she answered him and looked up at the sky. Low, threatening clouds were smoothing themselves out in preparation for another snowfall.

Temu reappeared. "Three of them," he said, leading the horses into one of the stone-fenced corrals. "They're none too prepossessing but we'd better stay. One giant of a fellow looks as if he might be a renegade professional wrestler from some Prince's retinue."

Lynn slid down into the snow. "Wait until I can go in with you," he advised, giving the horses their cosebags of grain and loosening the saddles. He concealed his field-glasses and electric torch in a saddle-bag. Then he turned to Lynn and began unwinding the sash from about her waist. He spoke crisply.

"Keep on the fur cap, pulled low. Do not look the men in the face, they'll consider it an invitation." He thrust a small pistol into her hand.

"It's loaded and on safety." He showed her how to handle the weapon. "Hide it in your blouse and do not use it unless I give the word. Do you understand?"

She nodded, unable to speak.

"Then put your saddle on your shoulder and follow me."

Lynn drew back. "It is that bad, can't we go on?"

"We're between the devil and the deep blue sea. Keep up your courage. We'll come through all right."

Alone With Death.

Lynn followed him, stiff and white with apprehension. The inside of the small hut was bare except for the accoutrements and packs that the men had brought in. A small argol fire burned in the center of the room under a smoke hole in the sod roof. The floor was a bed of animal chips. Temu stocked the saddles and saddle bags in a pile and spread a robe for her.

The three men watched them in silent inhospitality sizing them both up and their few belongings.

Later, in the blackest part of the night just before dawn, Temu's senses were brought alert by the pressure of Lynn's hand on his shoulder. He turned over and her fingers explored his face and tilted it so that she could put her lips to his ear. His arm went around her outside the robe, drawing her close. They lay for a while in tense silence.

Suddenly he made a spring and gave a twist to the stealthy arm that had been searching in the dark. A man half groaned, half screamed. A bullet from one of his comrades sang not far above Temu's head.

He snatched the electric torch and turned it on. Never having seen such a light before, the two on the opposite side of the fire dropped their weapons and fell back, their hands in the air.

"Hold the light and keep them covered with your gun," Temu commanded Lynn. He had glimpsed the giant whose arm he had twisted preparing to come after him, a knife in his hands.

Obeying instantly, Lynn was on her feet ready for action. One of the pair opposite started to lower his hands. She sent a bullet into the ground at his feet. It was all the warning they needed.

From the corner of her eye she watched Temu's struggle, his skill and agility matched by the other's maniacal strength and size. Temu managed to get the knife flipped away but could not break the fellow's hold on himself. They had gone to the ground almost immediately, Temu fighting for his life, the other fighting to kill.

Quickly, Temu managed to get on top and clutch the man's neck, ram his thumb joints violently into the windpipe and jerk until the fellow's grip on his relaxed and the death gurgle had ceased.

Then he rose panting. "On your guard still, Lynn." He went to the door and cut strips of hide from the camelskin that hung across the opening. With this he bound the other men hand and foot.

"Now," he said, coming back to Lynn and taking the gun and the flashlight from her hands, "now your job is done. Are you going to faint?"

The question was just what she needed. It jolted her. "No," she replied, "I'm not going to faint. Is the man dead?"

"Quite dead, poor fellow."

"Would it help any to kill the other two?"

He gave a quick, surprised laugh that eased the tension. "Not at all, Lynn, dear. They can free themselves after we are gone. We must brew tea and get on our way." He sat about enlivening the fire and brought in snow to melt.

"Can't we go at once?" she asked, crouching down near him.

"It's best to eat first. Take the grain bag and go feed the horses." She did as he bade her and then washed her hands and face in the snow.

When she came back, she saw that the dead man had been taken to a corner and decently covered with his sheepskins. His friends lay trussed like cattle.

"Will they bury him?" she asked.

"That's not the way Mongols usually do." Temu looked at her keenly.

He caught her fingers and drew her down near the fire and gave her a bowl of tea.

Danger Ahead.

"More snow fell last night," she said. "The horses carry white roofs on their backs."

That day they crossed another bleak plateau and dropped over another divide, striking the trail that would take them down to the border town.

"Shall we reach the town tonight?" she asked.

"I don't know," Temu replied, looking anxiously at his horse's hoofs and ankle. "This nag is going lame on me. I've an idea I'd better walk him the rest of the way."

She said, "If the revolutionists have taken the country it will not be safe for you to enter Dorchi."

"Don't I know it, Lynn?"

"What—" she asked diffidently, "what will you do if such is the case?"

"Let's not face it now."

"Perhaps — perhaps you and I could work out something together."

"I don't think so, Lynn." He refused to talk about it. "We know we have the present together. Let's play. Dine with me tonight in Peiping."

"Make it San Francisco," she suggested, entering the game.

"Not so good," he objected. "Your friends would take you away from me."

She looked at him remembering his fine appearance in army uniform. "They'd probably take you away from me. We'll make it Peiping."

"We'll take a table in an alcove and I shall forget the Prince and make love to you."

"Then I must look very beautiful. It would be fun, Temu, to make you lose your head."

"You don't know whether it would or not."

She wished he wouldn't look at her so steadily. She lowered her head.

"Wear white with blue violets to match your eyes," he told her.

"There's a soft white velvet dress I brought from San Francisco."

"Tell me about it."

Her eyes became starry. "It has a train, and not too much above the waist and not too little. Really, Temu, I hardly know myself in it. I look like a dream."

"I imagine you do, Tala Lynn. I've seen pictures of you in almost everything, in cap and gown, in tennis dress, in bathing suits."

She looked startled. "Did Dick show around all those silly snapshots I sent him?"

"He gave them to the Princess Mother."

She must have been shocked, considering how thoroughly the Chinese cover themselves.

"So was the Prince — pleasantly shocked. He has built you a swimming pool in the palace grounds."

Angry color mantled Lynn's face. "I despise a man who's so sure of himself. Why are you content to be a slave to such a person?"

To Be Continued.

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT will pursue a more aggressive policy in foreign and domestic fields as a result of his new vote of confidence. He feels that the people have specifically ratified proposals which were only dimly outlined in the pre-campaign period.

The President is not expected to present any startling changes in his program, but to press more boldly for things he has long wanted to accomplish. He will furnish more assistance to Britain, including the announced quota of newly manufactured planes—possibly more old warships. He will undertake to obtain additional bases in the Western Hemisphere in a sequel to the destroyer deal. He may even suggest the departure of German and Vichy representatives still in the United States. He may embark on a program of vast financial aid to South America in order to insure greater Pan-American solidarity.

These related moves will represent no radical shift in his general foreign program. But whereas he has felt it necessary to stimulate public sentiment quietly or indirectly in the past, he will now lead the parade.

PROGRAM: Two other problems he aims to tackle without the handicap of political gloves involve the tangled federal finances and the discord within the ranks of organized labor. Both on and off the record, he has declared his intention of cleaning up these issues if humanly possible.

In view of extremely large national defense expenditures, it will hardly be possible for him to do any real balancing of the budget within the next four years. But he does intend to propose a tremendous increase in taxes—perhaps akin to the British rates. It is possible that the proposed program might eventually bring in 12 billions a year, with expanding business. By reducing normal government expenditures, this would go a long way toward financing rearmament out of current income. Should the emergency end within a few years, it might permit a slight cut in the mounting budget.

The squabbling labor elements may settle or compromise their internal difficulties among themselves as a result of John L. Lewis' promise to abdicate his CIO presidency. But if they do not, it would not surprise insiders if FDR intervened by naming a commission of distinguished Americans to arbitrate their quarrels. He believes, in view of November 5th's outcome, that labor's rank and file would support him.

PROBLEMS: Mr. Lewis' resignation as CIO head may not settle the labor problem. John L. figures that he lost no prestige from his part in the Roosevelt-Willkie battle, and will attend the Atlantic City convention next week in a belligerent mood.

It has been generally unnoted that Mr. Lewis did not pledge himself to resign his presidency of the United Mine Workers, which pays him his salary of $25,000 a year. Outside of labor circles it is not realized that it is the mine workers whose pay envelope contributions have largely financed the CIO in its organization of industrial unions. Should John L. go through with his promise to quit, and take the miners with him, the Congress of Industrial Unions might crack up then and there. The leaders who broke with him during the campaign have been the least active and generous in their contributions to the organizing movement.

The great CIO unions—rubber, automobile, steel—might decide to align with the AFL if Mr. Lewis walks out, and that might help toward a settlement. But that would involve them in costly jurisdictional disputes with the older unions, which was one of the reasons why they flocked into the CIO in the first instance. So it will require all the diplomacy FDR can muster to win permanent peace on this front.

BOOSTS: President Roosevelt may have unwittingly helped to unseat his Senate Whip—Sherman Minton of Indiana—in the recent campaign. He refused to make a great friendly gesture to the negro vote which packs a powerful political punch in the Hoosier state.

Mr. Minton was the author of the Senate amendment to the Ramspeck bill eliminating the requirement that Civil Service applicants must submit photographs—a sore point with negroes seeking these positions. Because of the Minton proposal the measure became unacceptable to the House, and did not become law before the election. Then Mr. Minton—also Senator Mead of New York—begged FDR to issue a last-minute executive order appeasing the negroes.

Other Senators facing a close contest put in their political pleas. It was pointed out that the photographic move would help to offset any resentment resulting from the unfortunate Steve Early incident at the Penn station in New York City. But the President refused to grant these requests, although he may wipe out the provision if the bill does not reach his desk before Congress adjourns.

CRISIS: The defection of six states in the heart of the farm belt—Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, the two Dakotas — puzzles and pains the AAA-ers at Washington. Their special surveys as to why Wallace beneficiaries whooped off the party reservation have dug up a peculiar variety of causes.

Despite an increase in agricultural income, the farmers do not appear to be very happy. They are getting low returns for most of their major crops, and although retail prices have not got out of balance in most instances, they probably expect them to increase. So, by their votes, they discounted the future. Moreover, they figure that most of the benefits from defense expenditures are flowing to the great industrial states rather than into their areas. The billions they have received in federal checks—and even the early payoff this year—apparently did not outweigh these other factors.

In some sections there was hangover resentment against the reciprocal trade agreements, although events abroad have tossed them in the ashcan, at least temporarily. Lastly, it was in these states that the anti-war feeling has been most vocal.

CONTRAST: If Joe Stalin has a sense of humor, he must be chuckling over the way his Soviet embassy at Washington has emerged from the political and social doghouse.

Few years ago Ambassador Oumansky's parties were boycotted because of the still unexplained disappearance of Vladimir Romm, a popular Moscow newspaper correspondent here. He was suddenly summoned home, and a search instigated by a National Press club committee has failed to locate him or his family. Last year the Soviet celebration of the Red regime's birthday was a flop because of the brutal attack on Finland. Officialdom sent regrets worded in curt language.

But a few nights ago the 23rd birthday party brought out the most distinguished and largest crowd of the season to sip vodka and eat sturgeon. And the guests of honor were Commerce Secretary Jones, Under Secretary Welles—and Finnish Minister Procope.

NEW YORK
By Richard Wolde

THE next Governor of New York, if you are a Republican, will be Tom Dewey. If you are a Democrat you will start plugging for none other than foxy James A. Farley. That Tom was getting groomed for Albany rather than Washington was carried in this space as early as last spring. This does not infer that Dewey wasn't playing for keeps while fighting for the presidential nomination. The prosecutor is simply coming around now to the conclusion of older heads then, that a 38 year old man had everything to gain by entering the select company of presidential timber.

As it worked out, Willkie won the Philadelphia preliminary and lost; Bruce Barton edged Dewey out of the Senate run and took the rap; Ken Simpson, consistently opposed to Dewey, has been placated with the Congressional seat vacated by Barton. Dewey stands shoulder high over the Republican field, has the unanimous backing of the up-state organization and will clinch the nomination with the indorsement of Simpson, Barton and Willkie.

Which brings in Farley. Jim is being boosted by an army of Democrats who doubt that anyone else could stop Dewey. Governor Lehman, now that his White House chief is safely installed, is anxious to be done with politics. Lieutenant Governor Poletti, while a sound executive, is a colorless campaigner. The answer is Jim Farley, who could count on the all-out support of every Democrat from the President to the humble janitor in Tammany Hall.

Nothing Feminine About These Guys!

Greek "Ladies From Hell" Thump Invading Italians

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Correspondent

JUST as the Scotch regiments of the British army called "The Ladies From Hell" by the Germans in the last World war—became favorites, so these days the gallant Evzones of the Greek army, battling Mussolini's hordes in the mountains between Greece and Albania, are fascinating the American imagination.

It is not only their preliminary successes against great odds that count, but also the way they look. Their costume is, if anything, more picturesque than that of the kilted Scots, for the Greek battlers wear a peculiar swinging skirt called by them "foustanella." Not only that but in ordinary times they affect a peculiar shoe with upturned toes, said footgear often being dyed in gay colors. The outfit makes them look more like ballet dancers than bullet handlers.

Just as at one time most highland Scots wore the kilt as part of their everyday garb, so, up to about 100 years ago most Greek highlanders wore the "foustanella." Today most of them wear ordinary pants and coat just as do the Scots. The name "Evzones" is said to come from "Eu" meaning "well" and "Zonis" meaning "belted." In other words, the Evzones are well-belted. This, because they wear a tight belt around their waist which, with the skirt, makes them look rather slim at the body's equator.

LED REVOLT AGAINST TURKS

AFTER the glory that once was Greece, the nation fell upon evil times under various conquerors until they became the vassals of Turkey. In 1821 the Greeks in the southern tip of the land rose in rebellion.

Many of the volunteers were mountaineers. As a matter of course they wore their skirts. They took part in all the troubles of Greece clear down to the time when peace finally came in 1863 with the choice of a Danish prince as George the First, King of the Hellenes. It was then that regiments of Evzones became part of the regular conscripted Greek army. The Evzones also became the principal guards of the royal palace and person.

In ordinary times, there are about 10,000 of them. In war their regiments are greatly expanded. They are largely recruited from the tall men of the mountains, who are great climbers and walkers and dead shots. They are mostly farmers cultivating small patches, and shepherds.

KNOW THEIR MOUNTAINS.

THEIR uniform, in addition to the white skirt and queer shoes, is a short jacket. In wintertime some of them wear a blue instead of a white skirt. In the present conflict the Evzones are said to have camouflaged their skirts by rubbing them in the mud.

Their big advantage is thorough knowledge of the frontier mountains. All their lives they have been familiar with every pass and path and every cave and hiding place.

An Evzone bugler, wearing regular dress of the Greek "Ladies From Hell."

WORLD OUGHT TO CLEAR

Editor, The Avalanche: Knowing your Anti-New Deal tendencies, we New Dealers could not question your preference for Ray Tucker as a political columnist before the election. Now, however, with the election over and your own editorials added to the many other pleas for unity, we think it most inconsistent to force Ray Tucker down our throats without giving us Dorothy Thompson or Pearson and Allen as an antidote.

Being broad-minded, we would understand how Ray Tucker and other Anti-New Dealers and Anti-Third Termers could extol Willkie's virtues and deride Roosevelt's policies before the election. We cannot, however, understand how any thinking person could think Tucker's column for today anything except an effort to create fear and distrust in the present administration. His intimation, oft repeated before the election, that Roosevelt's election would cause our entrance into the present war is so much bish. Any intelligent person realizes that circumstances not controlled by the President will give us little choice and that the situation would not have been different with Willkie as President except that war with an amateur at the head of our government would be much worse for us than Sherman's definition.

One thing we must admit is that whatever has been accomplished during Roosevelt's administration has been done despite the most damnable opposition ever encountered by an executive of the United States. I knew Republicans all over the Southwest who devoted time needed by their much-crippled business to tearing down and interfering with every effort at rehabilitation made during Roosevelt's first administration. They could have been responding to the President's memorable plea to "be the good neighbor and take some unemployed family under your wing until this crisis has passed." Had they done so, the national indebtedness would have been billions less.

It apears that the terrible state of world affairs is not to deter the Republicans and their Pro-Willkie cohorts from following the same destructive policy now. If it is to be so, then we who think constructively rather than destructively must rise up also. Therefore, in all fairness to us, you should give us both sides. We do not ask you to cut out Ray Tucker. Just give us the other side.

Also, did Ray Tucker spell cynical with an "s"?

Very truly yours,
A Reader,
Lubbock.

FORENOON LOSSES REDUCED

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP)—Steels and a number of other recent industrial leaders again were under pressure in today's stock market but a wide assortment of specialties displayed renewed strength.

Senior stocks pushed up in the final hour and forenoon losses of fractions to more than 2 points elsewhere were reduced at the close. Dealings dwindled on the recovery move.

The Associate Press average of 60 issues was off .2 of a point at 46.1. While the composite had erased a portion of its advance of the past week or so, it was not overlooked that a month ago it stood at 44.5. Transfers totaled 1,068,250 shares against 1,446,971 the day before.

Continued optimism for business, and the belief dividend accumulations on several preference stocks would be paid off if the industrial upswing proceeded, provided a bolstering influence.

Principal share losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Western Union, American Smelting and International Harvester.

On the other hand General Steel Castings preferred shot up 6 points and gains of 1 to 4 were posted for American Woolen Preferred, Armour Preferred, International Paper Common and Preferred, Budd Mfg. Preferred, Climax Molybdenum and Hiram Walker.

On the offside in the curb were Aluminum of America, Bell Aircraft, Bath Iron Works, Jones and Laughlin and N. J. Zinc. Plus signs were shown for Brewster Aero, Gulf Oil and Pennsylvania-Central Airlines. Volume was around 182,000 shares here compared with 235,000 yesterday.

Grain . . .

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP) — Lacking the broader speculative activity which contributed to last week's post election bull market in wheat, the grain trade today was forced to depend on scattered professional and commercial dealings for determination of prices.

Wheat continued to retreat under weight of profit-taking, backing down ½ to ⅝ cent during the first hour. Later prices rallied and then pushed up to net gains in the final hour.

Closing figures were at the best of the session, unchanged to ⅝ higher compared with yesterday, December 87⅞@88, May 87⅝@87⅞. Corn, which had lost ½ to ⅝ cent, closed ⅛ to ⅜ net higher, December 62⅞@63, May 64½; oats ⅛ to ⅞ up, soy beans 1⅛ to 1⅜ lower; rye unchanged to ½ higher and lard 5 to 13 higher.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, Nov. 13 (AP) — Good demand continued for grain here today.
Wheat—No. 1 soft red winter 97⅛-98⅛.
Barley—No. 2 nom. 62-63.

Book Week Observed In Schools This Week

"Good Books—Good Friends," the theme of the twenty-first observance of Book Week, is to be impressed on the students of Senior High school through the library of the school, according to Mrs. R. T. Groves, head librarian.

Bulletin boards in Senior High school have special displays this week, and many of the guidance groups are planning special programs today, emphasizing the reading of good books. Several radio talks are to be given to the students over the school's public address system. All these displays, talks, and programs will emphasize the part books have played in the education of the people of America, and will stress the fact that American Education week and Book week go hand in hand as well as stress how education through books can aid democracy.

According to Mrs. Groves, the idea for Book week originated in 1919 when Franklin K. Mathiews, chief scout librarian addressed a convention urging booksellers of America to make books more attractive to children. Later that year the American Library association gave their support to the movement, and immediately librarians everywhere fell in line and the result was the induction of Book week. All Book weeks have emphasized the pleasure which may be derived from reading.

Guidance Meet Scheduled Here

Dr. D. B. Harmon of the Texas State Department of Health will lead a Mental Health and Guidance conference in Lubbock from Dec. 2 through 13, and teachers and pupils in the public schools will have an opportunity to participate, Miss Dorothy Lomax, director of curriculum, has announced.

While in Lubbock Dr. Harmon will give several lectures to all teachers and then visit each school for the period of one half day to consult with teachers and give them instructions in the work of mental health and guidance. The conference will stress the preventive aspects of guidance work, a phase of education which is being studied and initiated in all Lubbock schools, Miss Lomax said.

To Deliver Lecture

On December 2 Dr. Harmon will deliver his first lecture to teachers at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium at Senior High school. He will work with Miss Grace Padley, guidance coordinator, during the morning of December 3, and then go to Wilson school for the afternoon period. Another lecture will be delivered on the evening of December 3 in the Senior High auditorium. December 4 Dr. Harmon will give a demonstration, with the assistants of the state department, for all teachers in the Senior High auditorium.

The schedule to be followed by Dr. Harmon during the remainder of the conference is as follows: December 5, Sanders school; December 6, K. Carter school; December 9, a. m. Senior High school, p. m. Bean school; December 9, a reading conference in the Senior High auditorium; December 10, Dupre; December 11, Central Ward; December 12, George M. Hunt; December 13, Junior High school.

Italians Report Submarine Blockade Will Be Tightened

U-Boats Sent To North Atlantic

(By The Associated Press)

ROME, Nov. 13. — The Fascist press reported today that German and Italian naval forces, intent on tightening the counter-blockade of the British Isles, were concentrating in the north Atlantic shipping lanes to smash at British supply ships.

Both Il Giornale d'Italia, whose editor, Virginia Gayda, frequently voices Premier Mussolini's ideas, and the Duce's own paper, Il Popolo d'Italia, mentioned the new Axis plan.

Subs Are Active.

Il Popolo d'Italia said dozens of Italian submarines now were operating in the Atlantic and Gayda noted that these submarines, hitherto busy in the central lanes, have moved farther north.

While the Italian high command reported that British planes had attacked Italian naval bases at Brindisi, Bari and Taranto, it limited its communique to the declaration that bombs were dropped only on Bari, an Adriatic port, where three persons were wounded and slight damage was caused.

Italian troops in Greece, the communique said, repulsed a Greek attack on outposts in the Epirus region near the Albanian frontier, and a heavy artillery duel and considerable patrol activity has taken place in a sector between Moritza, Albania, and Pisdirina, Greece.

Dispatches to Rome reported heavy air raids by large squadrons Italian planes, particularly in the Lake Presba region near the frontiers of Greece, Albania and Yugoslavia.

Greek planes were also reported to have raided Durazzo, an important Albanian port.

The Fascist press published editorials today speaking of the wide range of the Italian fronts and declaring the men had to fight under the very worst conditions in Egypt and Greece.

What's Ahead? . . . Second Of Three Articles

Roosevelt Mood Is: Go Ahead, More His Own Man Than Ever; Republicans May Get Defense Posts But Not Willkie

Seventh of three articles, interpreting the probable course of the New Deal in the next four years.

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13 — The important thing about the third term is that President Roosevelt is still in a mood to go ahead.

Specifically, that means that the policy of seeking economic recovery via heavy government spending will be continued.

It means that such measures as the Wagner act, the securities act, the wage-hour law will be kept without essential modification.

It means continuation of the New Deal farm program (although the exact details of that program may be changed in recognition of the increased Republican vote in the farm belt).

It means that such things as work relief will go on, that organized labor will continue to exert a powerful influence — as, for example, through the position of Sidney Hillman on the defense commission — that there will be no retreat on TVA, and that pensions for old people will be progressively broadened and extended.

In short, it means that if there is such a thing as the "Roosevelt revolution," the revolution isn't over yet.

He Own Man Now.

If President Roosevelt comes up to his third term holding the broadest powers ever given an American President, and equipped with a Congress which is likely to give him a good deal of active cooperation, he also comes up to it very much more his own man than he has been before.

The President burned his bridges behind him at Chicago. He insisted on Henry Wallace as his running mate—an immensely significant act, when the future course of the New Deal is considered. By that act he served notice that he was not going to compromise with members of his own party whom he regarded as lukewarm on the New Deal.

He no longer has political debts to the Garner group, for instance, or to the mildly conservative crowd aligned with James A. Farley. He fought that all out at Chicago. Nobody has a piece of the New Deal now but F. D. R.

Note, too, that on the other side of the fence there is no longer an alliance with the extreme leftists in the field of labor. John L. Lewis is not especially a leftist, but when he broke with the President left-wing labor walked out also. The President no longer needs to feel that he owes any favors in that direction.

"Reforms" Won't Hinder Defense.

Cutting straight across the future of the New Deal, of course, is the war situation and the defense emergency.

As a matter of practical politics, if nothing else, the President is not likely to push any "reforms" in such a way as to interfere with the needs of national defense. Nevertheless he will be his own judge of what does or does not interfere with those needs. In a sense, the chief way in which the defense program will modify the New Deal program will be in the fact that it will provide the avenue for most of the spending.

Whether the administration's foreign policy will be appreciably modified as a result of the election is an open question. Certainly there was nothing in the campaign or the balloting to cause any slackening in the aid-to-Britain program.

The fact that the ardent wish of the nation to remain at peace was unmistakably expressed is more important. It drew from the President repeated insistence that he will keep the country at peace.

Whether you can say that will mean a toning-down of his foreign policy depends chiefly on whether you feel his foreign policy to date has been more war-like than was consistent with a desire to stay out of war.

There is still another angle to the defense problem.

Men close to the President say he is convinced that no defense of democracy can be perfected unless the overwhelming mass of the citizens have reason to feel their democracy is worth defending. In other words, to his mind a defense program lacks something vital if there is not a continuing and successful effort to wipe out unemployment, cut down poverty, raise living standards and increase security.

That means the business of arming, and equipping the military forces, is very likely to be accompanied by new programs of the kind vaguely described as "social reforms."

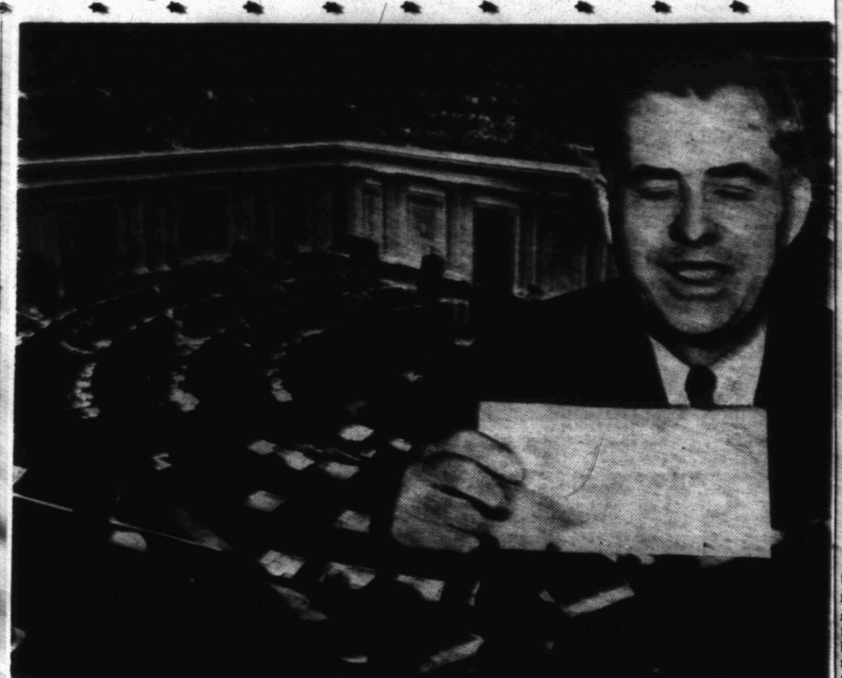

Lastly—what sort of mental and emotional attitude toward the people who have fought him politically is the President likely to take into his third term with him?

New Dealers who are in a position to know what is in his mind say there won't be any reprisals, and that the presidential shoulder is not going to be carrying a chip. The President is fully aware of the need for national unity, and it is probable that such expressions as "economic royalist" will be given a rest.

Nevertheless, the President is represented as feeling that the need for national unity does not require him to modify his New Deal program or to put into effect the social or economic policies of men he beat at the polls. He wants harmony, but he feels that getting it is not entirely up to him.

It is perfectly possible that some leading Republicans, either in or out of active party politics, may be given important posts in connection with the defense program. But here's a tip for you—the chances that Wendell Willkie will be one of them aren't at all good.

NEXT: What about Congress?

HENRY WALLACE presiding over the Senate as vice president, will be one visible evidence of President Roosevelt's complete domination of the Washington scene.

Letters To The Editor

one minds since. We do not rate Mr. Tucker's column for the press of influencing readers; we use it to give them "News Behind The News" in a quantity and a quality not approached by others writing in that field. You suggest substituting Dorothy Thompson or Pierson and Allen. Dorothy Thompson is not in the same field; she is an interpretive analyst and essayist on current affairs. Pierson and Allen, while in the same field with Tucker, are frequently in hot water over allegedly inaccurate statements and, in my judgment — which, incidentally, coincides with the judgment of many other editors — are not even close to Ray Tucker. He is one of the most widely read and experienced reporters on the national scene and his experience covers a long period of reporting, big city newspaper editing, such a period as managing editor of Collier's magazine. You sense you didn't sign your letter. I am always glad to receive criticisms and suggestions from readers and knowing their identities makes it easier for me to consider their ideas and promptly use to study them, more carefully. Very truly yours, The Editor).

AGREES WITH EDITORIAL

Editor, The Avalanche: Your editorial in Sunday's paper interested me very much. I am very much in agreement with you and Mr. Lodge that we should elect the President by direct vote. It seems to me that such a system would give the South an added advantage in the matter of electing a Democrat.

However, your statement that the Hays-Tilden contest of 1876 was the only instance where the man receiving the greatest number of popular votes failed to receive the greatest number of electoral votes, is incorrect. In 1888 Mr. Cleveland received over 100,000 more votes than did Mr. Harrison, but failed to get as many electoral votes as Mr. Harrison. Magruder says that such has been the case in several instances in the history of our country. This would imply that it has happened more than twice, however, I do not recall any other at this time.

It is interesting to note that a number of our states, among them Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Iowa, take notice of the fact that the old electoral college is outgrown. They print the names of the candidates for President and Vice-President on the November ballots instead of the long lists of electors.

Maybe we as Americans, will come to the realization in the days to come, that to break a precedent is not always bad.

Give us an article on the subject of a new Constitution for Texas. It seems to me that we have outgrown this patch-work of 1876.

Respectfully yours,
R. T. Rucker,
Shallowater.

(Dear Mr. Rucker: Thanks very much for your informative letter. As you suggest, the Constitution of Texas is out-moded and greatly needs a thorough overhauling. From time to time in recent years, suggestions have been made for a new Constitutional convention, but for some reason the politicos who have the last word, have killed the idea. We'll see what we can uncover on the subject, although getting material here in Lubbock is apt to be difficult. Very truly yours, The Editor).

Slaton Schools Plan "Open House" Today And During Friday

SLATON, Nov. 13. (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. Slaton will have an opportunity to check up on their Sally and Johnny's school activities Thursday and Friday when the public schools hold an annual "open house" in connection with National Education week, Supt. Joe H. Webb has announced.

The schools will observe the week in a different way this year, it was said. Instead of displaying posters and presenting special programs, parents will be invited to follow their children through a regular day's routine, going from class to class and hearing an everyday class session. Or parents may attend one or more classes separately.

A band concert will be held here Friday night at the high school auditorium, only special program to be given during the week. J. J. Hensley, new band director, will conduct the concert, his first since coming to Slaton.

Nearly 12,000 pilgrims embarked at Singapore, Malaya, for Mecca in the last year.
