agricultural con- ayments will be r cent, due to the n percentage of participa- in the program, accord- ing to C. V. Griffin of the local AAA office. These pay- ments were cut ten per cent for 1939 also.

Mr. Griffin also announced that all wheat producers who received cash indemnities on 1940 wheat in- surance could buy the number of bushels on which cash indemnity was paid, and put this wheat in the 1940 loan program.

At the present time this wheat can be purchased at the local Gal- veston market cheaper than the loan rate calls for. All producers who received cash indemnity on wheat are urged to take advantage of this regulation. Further infor- mation can be obtained at the lo- cal AAA office.

The AAA office sent off the first cotton parity applications Tuesday. About two hundred were sent off, said Mr. Griffin.

The annual Chamber of Com- merce banquet will be held Mon- day night, August 12, at 8 o'clock at the First Christian Church. Officers will be elected for the coming year.

Everyone is cordially invited to come, said J. L. Beard, president.

Plans are complete for the one day of reunion and re- membrance of the time when this county was young—the annual gathering of the Old Settlers of Collingsworth County. This reunion will be held Thursday night and Fri- day, August 8 and 9, at the LaHue Grove four miles east of Wellington on the Mangum Highway.

Those who care to do so will come to the grove Thursday night and camp. Others will arrive throughout Friday morning, bring- ing basket lunches which will be spread picnic style at the noon hour.

Registration of the old settlers and their families this year will be at the Wellington Leader office, with Mrs. Dolly Gardner and Mrs. Mary Stall in charge. Old settlers may register either Thurs- day or Friday. Eligibles this year are those who have lived in the county 30 years or longer.

"We want to urge all old settlers of this county to register on Thursday if it is at all possible, so that Friday may be devoted largely to out-of-town visitors," Mrs. Gardner requested.

Badges will be given each old timer upon registering, and these will admit him to the Reunion grounds.

"We cannot urge too strongly that the pioneers of Collingsworth County attend this reunion. You were a part of the making of this county, and you should share in the tribute paid the pioneers for one day each year. There will be shade, and plenty of drinking

Rain Spotted But Hopes For Crops Brighter

Rains falling here Monday and Monday night, although spotted over the county, broke a six weeks' drouth and boosted farmers' hopes for a feed crop and cotton crop this fall. The last rains received in the county before this were on June 21, when .3 of an inch fell, and on June 23, when .12 fell. The rain Monday varied from light showers in several communities, to an estimated two inches in others.

Forty-five hundredths of an inch was measured in the government gauge at the home of J. M. Strong in Wellington. This included both the rainfall for Monday afternoon and Monday night.

In the Cross Roads community northwest of Wellington, J. C. Phipps reported a good shower at his farm, but added that there was not enough moisture to plant feed at this time.

Good rains were reported just north of Salt Fork River, and an estimated one and one-half inches was reported near Lutie, and in the vicinity east of there, although the fall grew lighter near the Oklahoma line. The rainfall was light at Samnorwood, but heavier several miles west of that place.

An estimated one-half to three- fourths of an inch fell in the Dozier and Abra communities in the northern part of the county, and rain was reported to the north line of the count.

Mat Eiland of the Cottonwood community stated that approxi- mately one-half inch fell at his farm, while R. H. Goodnight, who lives in the Buck Creek community stated that approximately three-te- nths of an inch of rain fell.

Only a shower was reported a few miles southwest of town, but W. V. Huffman of the Rolla com- munity reported at the county agent's office that an estimated one inch fell there.

The rainfall was termed spotted through the Quail section, with only a shower falling at Quail. In the Marella and Ring commun- ities approximately an inch was reported. Approximately one-half

Friends By Thousands Push Wells Campaign In Panhandle

Showing the same vigor and enthusiasm which has characterized his entire race, Deskins Wells and his thou- sands of workers throughout the Panhandle plunged deep- er into the dawn-to-midnight campaign which they are con- fident will take Deck Wells to Congress as representative of the people of the entire Pan- handle.

Not to be outdone by the candi- date they are supporting, Deck Wells' home folks—the men and women who in the primary startled the entire 18th Congressional Dis- trict with their spontaneous and wholehearted support, are again in action, effectively, working by groups and as individuals in every corner of the Panhandle. This support, Deck Wells proudly points out, gave him over 81 per cent of the total vote cast in Collings- worth County, the largest margin by which any candidate in the race carried his home county.

"It is to these people, the cru- sade of friends, that an immeasur- able amount of my success is due —these men and women who are leaving their own work for me. One farmer in Collingsworth Coun- ty got up at 3 o'clock in the morn- ing to drive to the north part of the district to work for me. An- other drove 30 miles in the rain Monday to find out what he and others of his community were to do in connection with my cam- paign the following day. Another with an idea of his own is quietly but rapidly going ahead with it. Still another is carrying out plans already worked up. Multiply these four cases by hundreds in Collings- worth County and by thousands over the 18th Congressional Dis- trict, and you get an idea of what is being done for Deskins Wells," he said gratefully early this week.

One of the outstanding displays of support ever accorded a candi- date for such a place came Tues- day, when hundreds of enthusias- tic Collingsworth County citizens formed the "Win With Wells" Caravan to Dalhart and the XIT Reunion. Some of these drove through sticky mud to get into Wellington to join the caravan.

Meanwhile, the work which Deck Wells is doing personally in his intense person-to-person contacts is taking him from one end of the Panhandle to the other. Saturday he went into Cottle, Hall Childress and Donley counties. Monday he was in Dahart where hundreds of old-time ranchmen and cowboys had gathered for the annual XIT Reunion. Tuesday he was in Dal-

Mobilization Of Industry Outlined By Gov. O'Daniel

Participation of Texas in the industrial mobilization for national defense will receive the first attention of everyone connected with the Texas Industrialization Program, Governor W. Lee O'Daniel told chairmen of 227 local industrialization committees in a bulletin just released.

Commenting on the fact that Texas now has 8,000 manufacturing enterprises whose facilities will doubtless be useful to the nation in the present emergency, the Governor predicted that many new plants would be located in the State.

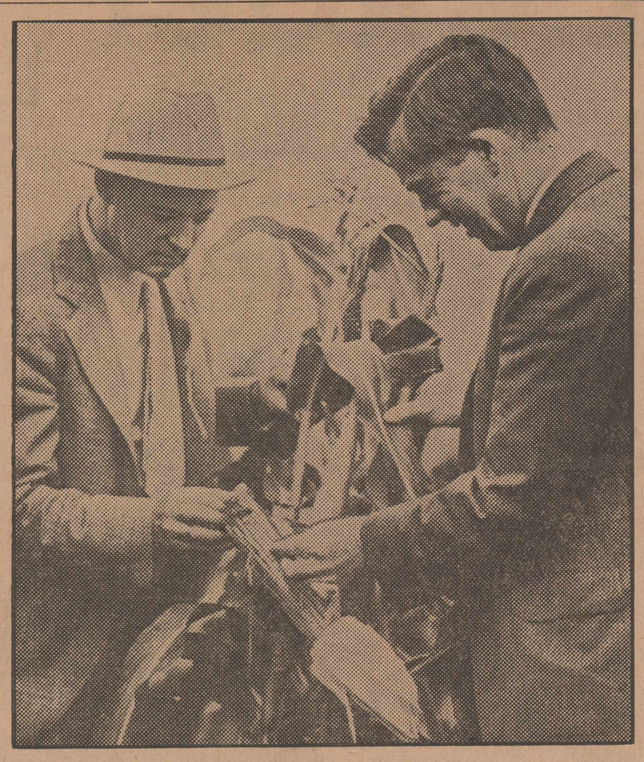

"It was fortunate," the Chief Executive said, "that when this emergency developed, we already had underway in Texas an Industrialization Program, with community and business surveys being made and with careful plans being laid for business expansion. The entire staff and facilities of the Texas Industrialization Program have now been assigned to the work of organizing the State's resources and energies to meet the needs of the new situation."

The Governor transmitted to the local committees a list containing hundreds of items which the Army and Navy Departments require, and gave the names and addresses of the procurement offices for the various branches of the federal service which will provide specifications requested by Texas concerns.

He advised local business executives to communicate direct with these procurement offices, pointing out that correspondence with or visits to Washington are not encouraged by the federal authorities supervising the defense program.

National Defense Financing

Financing of the vast NATIONAL DEFENSE program will take two forms:

Direct expenditures by the Government financed by the sale of Federal Securities, and the financing of business concerns which have government contracts.

We believe that both forms of financing can, and SHOULD be through the banks, without the creation of new agencies, devices and mechanisms. The banks in the United States were never, in their entire history, in better position to undertake the financing of this vast Defense Program; they have the resources, the trained personnel and the knowledge of economic conditions generally, which fully equip them to carry through this immense undertaking.

This bank is ready and anxious to co-operate to the fullest extent possible in furtherance of the NATIONAL DEFENSE program, and will continue to supply the needs of local borrowers engaged in other lines of legitimate business at reasonable rates of interest.

PEACHES FOR WINTER EATING

The peach season ends all too soon for those who enjoy the flavor of the fresh, juicy fruit. But the homemaker, who looks ahead to the months when fresh fruit is less abundant, will can surplus peaches when the price is "right." Along in December the canned peaches are more than welcome as a breakfast fruit, in salads, and in all kinds of desserts. Peach preserves, peach jam, and peach butter will carry the peach season into the winter months.

The peach crop of 1940 is about up to average. There'll be plenty of peaches to eat fresh during the summer, with enough left for canning and preserving. And this is the time of the year for homemakers throughout the country to get out their directions for "putting up" peaches.

Select peaches for canning with great care. To make sure of the quality, look for peaches that are firm and ripe but not soft. Avoid those that are badly bruised, those that are uneven in shape and have punctures made by worms, and those with brown spots of decay.

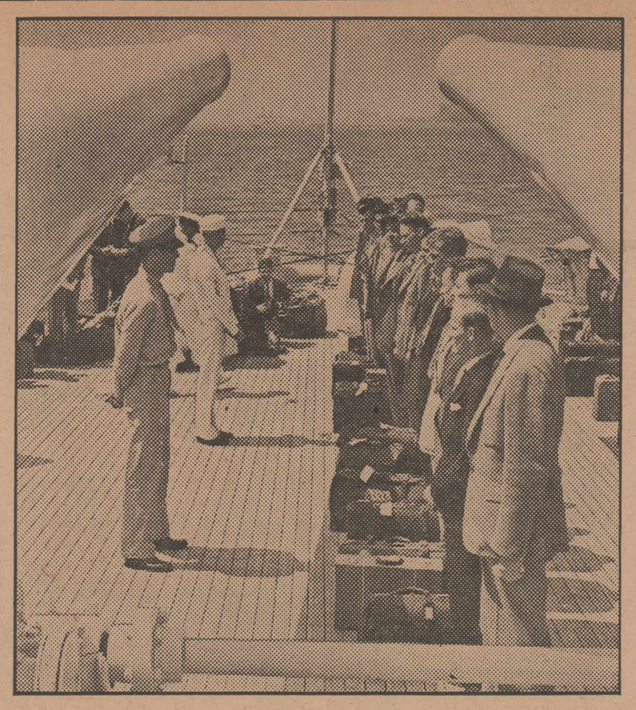

The chief problem in canning peaches is to keep them from turning brown after they are peeled. That's why it is important to get the peaches into the containers as quickly as possible.

Peach jam and peach butter are favorites with hot breads or toast on cold winter mornings. For them you can use the soft, riper fruit that would not hold its shape so well in canning or preserving.

Dust Storms Will Decrease More By Conservation

AMARILLO.—Dust storms definitely are on the decrease in the Southern Great Plains, but constant vigilance on the part of every farmer is necessary if these gains in controlling wind erosion are to be maintained, according to H. H. Finnell, regional conservator of the Soil Conservation Service.

Records maintained on the Guymon, Okla., Soil Conservation Service demonstration project in the heart of the wind erosion area show there were 101 dust storms of 655 hours duration from July 1937 through June 1938. During the same period in 1938-39, there were 42 dust storms of 301 hours duration. From July 1939 through April 1940, there were only 28 storms of 199 hours duration.

"These figures are especially significant when it is considered that the severe drought last year placed 3,500,000 acres in condition to blow as compared to only 1,300,000 acres that were not protected against wind erosion in 1939," Finnell said.

This reduction in the number of dust storms during the last three years is due to a great extent to the progress that farmers are making in protecting their land against soil blowing, the conservator believes.

Through erosion control demonstration projects and by working in cooperation with CCC camps, the Soil Conservation Service has been demonstrating soil and water conservation practices for six years, Finnell stated.

Farmers now are organizing to cooperate in carrying on the fight against erosion through formation of soil conservation districts, it was pointed out. Twenty-five soil conservation districts, organized under provisions of state laws, now are functioning in the Southern Great Plains in addition to eight county wind erosion districts in the Texas Panhandle.

"Winter snows undoubtedly have made timely tillage operations more effective this year by making the soil moist so a cloddy surface to resist soil movement was created," Finnell pointed out. "Also, there have not been as many long periods of high winds as in some recent years.

"Farmers should remember that dust storms can come at most any season of the year," the conservator said. "The Guymon records show dust storms in every month since February, 1936 with the exception of November, 1939, and January, 1940. There were 17 dust storms in May and June, 1938, and eight during the same months last year.

This means that every effort must be made to maintain a protective cover of vegetation on the land at all times. Farming operations on the contour this spring will hold most of the water on the land where it falls and give better chances of producing a protective cover.

"It is only through such soil and water conservation practices that the necessities for costly emergency tillage operations during periods of high winds can be eliminated and agriculture pla... sound, long-time bas... Southern Great Plain... declared.

To the voters of Collingsworth County

There has been much discussion of late among the citizens of our county about the relief work. Our local conditions due to drouth seemingly is getting worse daily. It would be well for our people to know just what is being done for the unemployed of the county.

The county is sponsoring with the City of Wellington a street paving project, which the county is paying one-half of the expense. This project is now working 69 men.

Next the county is sponsoring the sewing room which is giving employment to 54 women. These are making 2000 or more garments monthly that are distributed to our local relief clients. The county is having to furnish a large amount of the expense for this project even to purchase part of the materials.

The county is sponsoring a Sanitary Project that is giving work to 22 men, which the county is having to furnish one truck and one man's salary, which is about $90.00 per month, making a total at present on this project of county expense of about $150.00 each month.

The county is furnishing the transportation expense on men going to Lone Mound on a school building.

The county is sponsoring a County-wide Library Project to repair library books that gives employment to 9 people.

At this time we have 35 men working on the shelterbelt.

Besides all this the county entered an order to sponsor a County-wide Culbert Project to build 75 culberts and bridges on April 27, 1940, which order is to be found on page 118, Volume 6, of the Commissioners' Court Minutes. This will employ 60 or more men for 9 months. This has been delayed for some cause which the county has no control over. This project was sent out of this county for approval early in May and was never sent back for correction. The project is now in Washington for approval, and the Commissioners' Court should be notified any day for its approval.

The above expense does not take into consideration other expense the county is out to help the needy of our people. The county is renting store buildings for the Commodity groceries, paying the county case worker's salary, paying rent and utilities on office for the Farm Security Administration that has helped our people in a wonderful way. The county has hauled in about 30,000 pounds of groceries for the month of August for distribution.

Yet with all this many think that nothing is being done for our needy people.

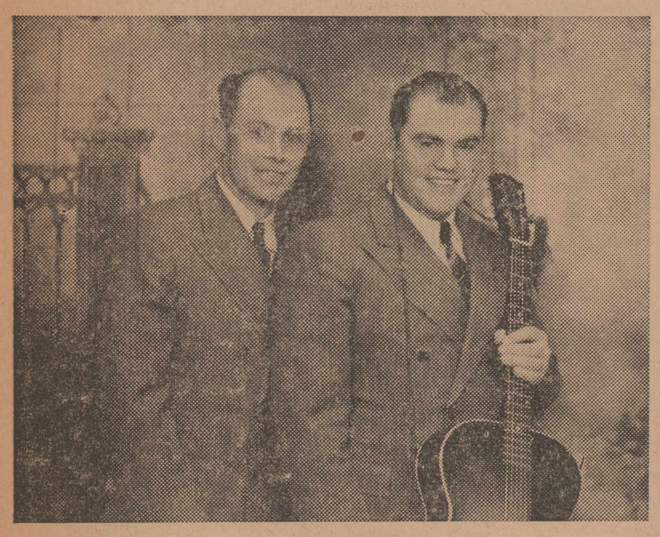

First, I want to thank each and every one that voted for me in the Primary and I am soliciting you for your support in the coming election. If you people should elect me for your Commissioner again I will do everything in my power for your interest and welfare.

Sincerely,

N. C. TENNISON

ELEPHANT AND DONKEY

For nearly 70 years American political cartoons have been adorned with pictures of elephants and donkeys, as symbols of the two major political parties, and have amused millions who never heard of their originator.

The Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey were the creation of Thomas Nast, the most famous cartoonist of his day, and first appeared in Harper's Weekly—the donkey in 1870 and the elephant in 1874, according to researchers. He also first used the tiger to represent Tammany, and his cartoons exerted a great influence on public opinion for many years.

Thomas Nast was born in Germany a century ago, on September 27, 1840, and came to America at the age of six. He early began the study of art and when only 15 was appointed to the staff of Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. He later drew for periodicals in London and Paris, but returned to the United States shortly before the Civil War. His powerful caricatures during that war in advocacy of the Union cause led Lincoln to call him "our best recruiting sergeant."

Besides his newspaper and periodical illustrations, Nast produced several creditable paintings in color, and illustrated a number of books. He also engaged in the publishing business on his own account without marked success, and was finnaly appointed United States consul-general at Guayaquil, Ecuador, in 1902, where he died of yellow fever the same year.

His name is now almost forgotten, but his famous elephant and donkey will appear on the pages of American newspapers and magazines so long as our present political parties survive.

A NEGRO EXPOSITION

Officially opened by the pressing of a button by President Roosevelt which turned on the lights, the American Negro Exposition began a 60-day run in Chicago's Coliseum this month. The exposition commemorates the emancipation of the American Negro, and illustrates the progress of the race under freedom.

A total of 120 special exhibits traces the achievements of colored people in religion, music, science, art, industry and other laudable pursuits. The art exhibit alone contains some 300 paintings and illustrations. Congress and the Illinois Legislature appropriated $75,000 each in aid of the exposition.

At the opening, Mayor Kelly of Chicago and United States Senator Slattery of Illinois were among the speakers. In the course of his address Senator Slattery said:

"In this hour of peril we need for all the intense patriotic devotion of the American Negro, who has never failed his country and will not fail it now. America will find in her Negro population no 'fifth columns' of subversion and destruction."

It is said that the present exposition is the most ambitious show ever staged by American Negroes, and more than 20,000 persons crowded into the big Coliseum on the opening day. It is expected that not less than two million people will visit it during its 60-day period which ends on Labor Day.

James W. Washington, president of the exposition, has devoted the last five years to its promotion, during which time he traveled more than 100,000 miles throughout the country to create interest in the project.

ODD USE OF STREETS

In a suburb of Niles Center, Illinois, which did not develop as its promoters hoped, an odd use is being made of some eight miles of paved streets which have never been needed for traffic because no houses were ever built on them.

The streets were laid out and paved several years ago in anticipation of a boom which did not materialize, and for a long time they were useless. Finally a man who needed a large area of hard surface on which to sun-dry a chemical compound which he manunfactures, saw an opportunity to utilize the vacant streets, and rented them from the village very cheaply.

Now passers-by during the summer see the unusual sight of a large gang of men pouring a thin coating of a white jelly-like substance over the streets, and shoveling it up again a few days later after it has dried. This seemingly crude and laborious process is necessary, it is said, because drying the mixture in the sun is required to make a satisfactory product.

Even so, the manufacturer in this case perhaps enjoys the benefit of low production costs, through taking advantage of a unique situation caused by a busted real estate boom.

A laudable aim in life doesn't count for much if one persists in shooting blank cartridges.

We read of a Roumanian woman who at the age of 106 called a doctor for the first time. She died.

An 80-year-old Tennessee woman has never seen an automobile. Which may explain why she has lived 80 years.

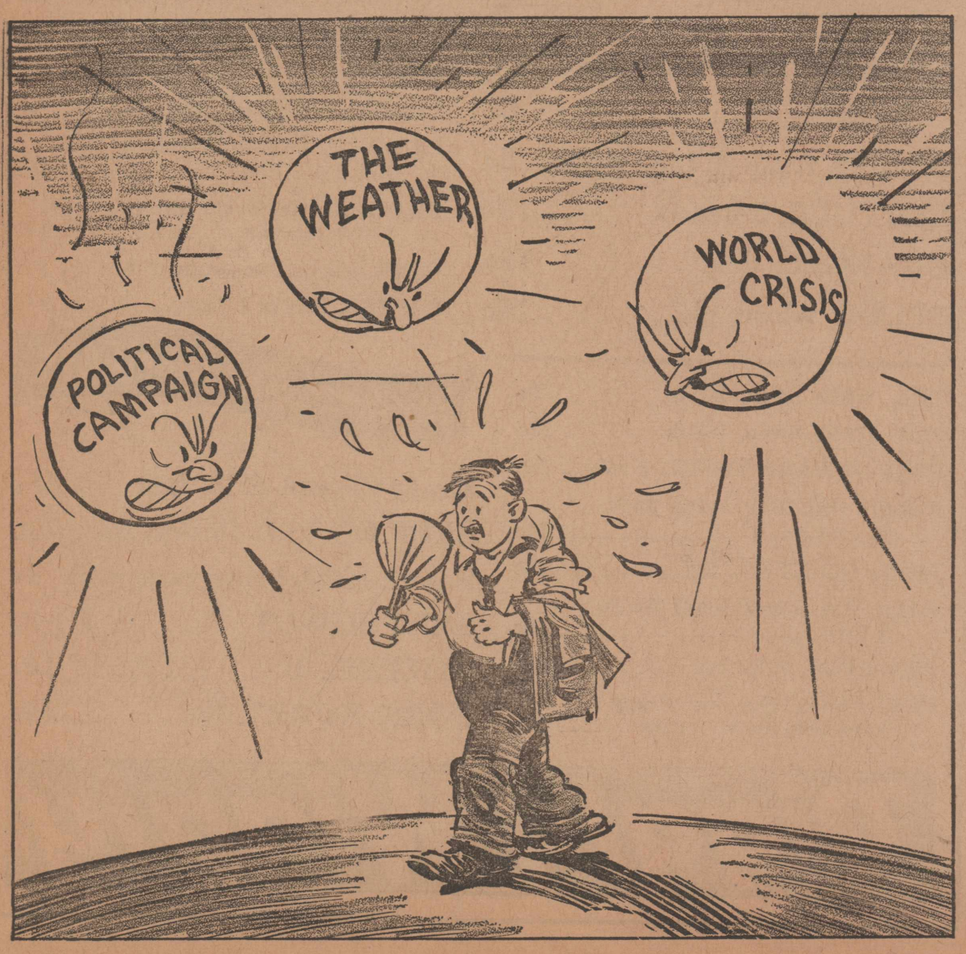

In instructions to correspondents a paper in New York state says: "Every birth, engagement, marriage or death is good news."

A Mexican seer prophesied that the world would come to an end last month, and some cynics will think it unfortunate that he was wrong.

Selling drinks of moonshine at his home for a dime each brought a church trustee into court at Charlotte, N. C. The offender explained that his church had to have money and that was the only way he had to get it.

Most of us are extremely modest in estimating our own faults.

The Heat Is On

Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance

(Editor's Note: The following is one of a series of articles prepared by Dewey Reed, manager of the Amarillo Social Security Board field office).

KEEPING TAB ON SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNTS

The Federal old-age and survivors insurance is similar to other insurance plans. The worker pays a contribution, and so does his employer, to help meet the costs of the benefits which the worker will receive. In other words, he pays a premium on what might be called an insurance policy, which will pay benefits to him when he is 65 or over and to his family if he should die.

The old-age insurance tax paid by the worker is 1 per cent of his wages and for the employer it is also 1 percent on the worker's wages. The employer deducts 1 percent from the worker's wages and sends that with his own 1 percent wage tax to the Federal Government. The law provides that the employer shall give each worker a receipt for the taxes he takes out of his pay. He must furnish such a receipt at least once a year or whenever a worker leaves his employ.

Nearly 47,000,000 workers now have accounts with the Social Security Board. Each worker's wages, as reported by his employer every 3 months, are recorded in his individual account.

If a worker has reason to believe that a mistake has been made in his wage record or that all of his wages have not been reported, he should request from the Social Security Board a statement of his wage total. Discrepancies which may thus be found in any wage earner's record will be corrected by the Board.

Any worker can get a post card request form at the nearest field office of the Social Security Board. All he has to do is fill in this form and mail it to the Board, which will send him a statement showing the wages credited to his account.

Man To Blame For Warring World

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Aug. 11.

Text: Psalm 19.

The world man inhabits is a wonderful place. His imagination and interest have always been challenged by the starry heavens, and his richest poetical literature has come from the emotional response to beauties of the earth.

The 19th Psalm is one of the noblest of these responses to the immensity, glory and beauty of the universe. As the Psalm says concerning the heavens which declare the glory of God and the firmament which shows His handiwork, "There is no speech nor language; their voice is not heard."

Nevertheless, poets like himself have given voices to these wonders of nature, which speak a language of the soul that is no less real because it is not in words. The music of creation is suggested in the passage, "Their line is gone out through all the earth," for the reference seems to be a line, or chord, that is struck in music.

This universe is not merely one of immensity and beauty; it is a moral universe related to the law of its Creator. How different is this song of creation and of the world in which we live from the voice of atheism that finds nothing in the universe of spiritual law and order, nothing that corresponds to man's own free spirit.

The sensitive poets and prophets of Israel manifested their faith and their courage in linking man with the Creator. They saw a universe not only upheld by physical law, but a universe in which there is moral law, a universe in which integrity and happiness of human life are based upon precepts and commandments.

In times such as these in which we live, in which scientific progress, human ingenuity, and human action and endurance are so extensively turned to ways of violence and destruction, one cannot help contrasting the world in which God has placed man with what man has done to that world and to himself.

How rich human life might be if, instead of greed and lust and false ambition, men had been willing to enjoy this world and to share all its good things with their fellows! The inventive genius that we have turned to war and violence would have been sufficient to provide enough food and clothing and good habitation for everyone.

If even a small part of the efficient organization that men have created for military ends had been used to organize the life of mankind for peace and for mutual helpfulness, what wonderful changes in the structure and organization of society might have been accomplished!

When we are tempted to feel that God has deserted His world, or when we say, "Why doesn't God stop the carnage?" do we consider how man has brought upon himself the horrors of today?

It is not God, but man, who is responsible for the failure of a world in the grip of war. How can we ever change all this until we get back into the spirit of the Hebrew prophets and poets? They are good guides to a new life for man and for society.

Memphis, Borger To Meet Red Rockets Here

Two baseball games that will hold the interest of local fans this month are scheduled when the Red Rockets meet the Memphis team and the Borger Gassers on the Red Rocket diamond.

The Memphis team will be here Sunday, August 11, while Borger comes here Sunday, August 18. The games begin at 3:30 o'clock.

In their game at Memphis Sunday, Wellington eked out a 7 to 6 win in the ninth inning before a large crowd. The Rockets were leading 3 to 1 in the second inning when Stewart, Memphis third baseman, cracked out a 3-base hit, tying up the score. The game see-sawed until the ninth, when Davis, Wellington pitcher, came to bat, and with a three-bagger, won his own ball game.

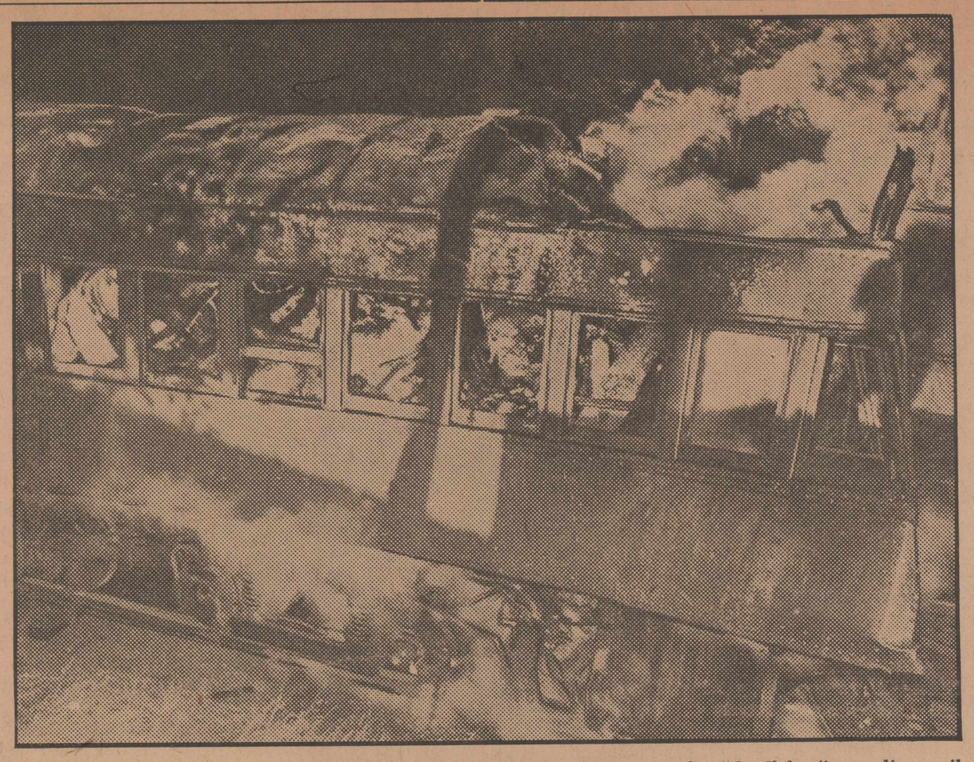

"Each of the Rocket players is playing tops-up baseball and we urgently ask the support of Wellington fans. With a 13-game win, we feel the local fans will enjoy these games, and we are anxious to secure the support which other towns give their teams," Kid Monroe, manager of the Red Rockets, said.

All young men who are interested in entering the CCC in the October enrollment are urged to see Mrs. Cleo Templeton, county worker, at once. Previously, only boys whose families were receiving government aid could enroll in the CCC, but under the new regulation, any boys who are willing to deposit the money they make during the six months enrollment can join the CCC. At the end of the enlistment in the CCC, they are given the money they have earned, and can use it to continue an education.

Of this, Texas retail merchants received 324 million dollars, landlords 44 million, utilities 38 million and professional men 22 million, while 83 million more went for insurance and savings.

This huge sum is distributed and redistributed in an endless chain of income for our State and its people.
