SHANTUNG AGREEMENT REACHED

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. F.

Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana demands a tariff upon the finished products of the farm and ranch, including sugar and rice, with the products of the mill and the loom. During the debates on the emergency tariff bill it was brought out repeatedly by many Democrats that the traditional policy of the Democratic party is a tariff for revenue only as distinguished from the Republican policy for protection on the one hand and free trade on the other. Democrats of the house who voted for the Emergency tariff, including Representative Lucian W. Parrish of the thirteenth Texas district, did so with the open declaration that they adhered to "the time honored Democratic doctrine." In discussing this bill Congressman Parrish set forth his views on the tariff question as follows: "Legislation which seeks to do justice to the farmers and producers of the United States ought to be welcomed as the omen of a day that promises more from the Government to those who toil and struggle on the farm, and who produce the world's supply of the things that the nations of the earth must eat and wear. In voting for this bill, however, I want it understood that I do not waive my convictions on a permanent tariff policy. All of my life I have believed in the Democratic principles of a tariff for revenue only, and still believe in those principles, but so long as there is to be a tariff of any kind, levied on the finished products, then I for one shall ask and insist that the producers of raw material be given the benefit of their proportionate share of such a tariff. The farmers and products of this Nation represent one-third of its population, and they buy one-third of the finished or manufactured products as they come from the stores and shops, and it is manifestly unfair amjust, and undemocratic to require them to sell their products in an open market, and compel them to buy the things they must use in a market that has the benefit of a tariff. All of the instincts of common justice compel me to say that so long as the policy of the Government under the rule of the Republican majority is a tariff in the interest of American industry, I shall demand that same privilege for American agriculture in the same just proportion. If we are going to have a tariff for revenue only, I can see no reason why the Government should not collect money from the importation of farm and ranch products in the way of raw materials along with the collection from manufactured articles, and I believe this is a sound principle of government which will appeal to the sense of justice of the American people, and meet with their favorable approval. No tendency in government is so dangerous as that which favors one class or section against another, and I believe that no policy would be so dissatisfying to the American farmer and producer as for him to know

MEXICAN WAR RUMOR ABSURD SAYS OBREGON

Special to the Record News

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 30.—"No difficulties exist between the Mexican government and the Guatemalan governments, and although our administration has not yet recognized the new Guatemalan regime the relations between the two peoples are as cordial as ever," said President Obregon in talking with the newspaper correspondents today.

The president laughingly dismissed rumors of war between Mexico and Guatemala as absurd.

COMPLAINT IS MADE AGAINST TELEPHONE CO.

City Council Told Will Not Extend Service; Officials Summoned Before Body for Explanation.

Complaint Lodged Against the Plumbing Inspector, Charging Inefficiency and Favoritism; to Investigate.

After N. O. Monroe, local real estate man, representing himself and others had voiced strong objection to the local service of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company the city council Monday night passed a resolution which calls upon representatives of the company to be present at the city council meeting next Monday night for a public hearing.

The council also voted to set a hearing for J. L. "Daddy" Mohr, city plumbing inspector. The action taken after B. F. Kaufman and Jack Barnes, two local plumbers had made specific charges regarding the inefficient methods used in the inspections and the method of enforcement as carried out by the city attorney's and city engineer's offices.

The specific complaint made by Mr. Monroe was that the company was refusing to extend its services to new customers. He cited numerous cases as did members of the city council where people had made requests for telephones for periods extending over several months.

Attitude Not Pleasing.

"I have not been at all pleased at the attitude the company has taken in regard to new telephones," Mayor Cline said in voicing his own approval of the resolution, "there are a lot of people in this city who are delaying the buying of homes here simply because there is no certainty as to when they will secure telephones."

It was brought out that in the recent past that the company has always declared when complaints were made that their entire employment force was busy preparing and installing the new automatic system. This excuse, council members said along with the familiar contention that labor and materials could not be secured would no longer apply.

Says Pass Buck.

"Too much passing of the buck is in evidence in the enforcement of the state plumbing requirements which the city has adopted, according to Mr. Kaufman and Mr. Barnes in their statements to the council. They said from the city inspector's office to that of the city attorney they had been unable to find anyone that was willing to assume responsibility for the irregularities which they said were obvious. They said that men were doing work without licenses, that poor work was being passed by the inspector and favoritism was being shown in the enforcement of other ordinance requirements.

City Attorney Mann explained what his office has done to secure the enforcement of the ordinance which he and City Engineer Montgomery both conceded had caused them considerable trouble. Mr. Mann said he had filed complaints in the county court at law for violations of the state requirements and these cases are now pending to be tried at the pleasure of that court. For violations of the city requirements he said complaints had been filed in the city court.

The council decided to take no action until Mr. More had appeared before them and had explained his attitude in the matter which has been brought to the attention of he council on previous occasions.

Eleventh Paving Order Passed.

After a petition had been presented with the required number of signatures from property owners the council passed the initial order looking to the paving of Eleventh street from Grace street to Ohio avenue. The first order calls on the city engineer's department to prepare specifications preparatory to asking for bids.

Mayor Cline read a letter from City Attorney Mann in which he said that in his opinion the city could exempt from taxation all property owned by the Salvation Army pro-

ARGUMENTS IN BOUNDARY CASE ARE POSTPONED

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 30.—The state of Texas obtained from the supreme court today an order postponing argument of the case involving the location of the boundary between it and the state of Oklahoma.

The case is set for argument on March 6, but by the action of the court today, it will be postponed until April 24.

The request was based upon the delay of counsel for the state to receive copies of the testimony taken by the commissioner appointed by the court in an effort to locate the line which the court decided should be the south bank of the river.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC SECTION GETTING BACK TO NORMAL

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Bright sunshine and thawing temperatures did much today to restore normal conditions in Washington and the Middle Atlantic section buried under Saturday's severe snowstorm.

Forecasts of the weather bureau were for a continuation of the favorable temperature. The sunshine in Washington, although helpful in removing the snow, seemed to contrast strangely with the deep gloom hanging over the city as the result of the Knickerbocker theater disaster.

All danger of food shortage passed during the day as the train service was resumed.

DR. DANIEL IS CHIEF SURGEON SOUTHERN LIFE

Announces Acceptance of an Important Post With Texas Life Insurance Co. Monday Afternoon.

Announcement of his acceptance of the post of medical director for the Great Southern Life Insurance company of Dallas and Houston, a step which he had also advised some of his friends of, was made Monday afternoon by Dr. J. E. Daniel.

In making this announcement Dr. Daniel, who has been one of the most prominent of local physicians in his 12 years as a practitioner here, expressed keen regret at his having to leave Wichita Falls. He expects to leave to take up his new duties about March 1.

Before the consolidation of the Wichita Southern Life Insurance company with the Great Southern Life, Dr. Daniel was medical director for that concern. When the post in the Great Southern became vacant, Dr. Daniel was again sought by E. P. Greenwood, president of the Great Southern, and prior to the merger vice-president and general manged of the Wichita Southern Life to fill this place.

While there will be general satisfaction at this splendid advancement that has come to him, there will be much regret at the loss of both Dr. Daniel and Mrs. Daniel from the club and social life of Wichita Falls, in which they both hold a prominent place.

With his 12 years in Wichita Falls, and 6 years additional in this section, at Olney, Dr. Daniel is one of the oldest in point of service of any of the physicians and surgeons in this section of the state, and enjoys as wide an acquaintance in this section as probably any other member of his profession. Prior to coming to Olney he practiced five and a half years at Clarksville, in Red River county, of which section both he and Mr. Greenwood are natives.

Dr. Daniel succeeds Dr. J. H. Florence, who is now state health officer. He is now associated with Drs. Lowery, Terrill and Pritchard in the Bob Waggoner building.

BELIEVE RAIN ENOUGH FOR SAVING WHEAT

Belief that the drizzling showers of the past three days have been sufficient to save the wheat crop, at least in some sections of Wichita county, was expressed by several farmers Monday. The precipitation which was scarcely more than a mist in Wichita Falls, attained the dignity of real rainfall at other parts of the county, it is reported, and the pastures and fields already show signs of freshening up, under the cloudy, damp weather of the past week.

Continued cloudy weather, with a possibility of more rainfall is promised in forecasts for the next twenty-four hours. The northern section of this district reports a drop in temperature.

LEADING CITIES IN IRELAND RE-ELECT THE LORD MAYORS

By Associated Press.

CORK, Jan. 30.—Daniel O'Callaghan, was unanimously re-elected lord mayor of Cork today. Although he was opposed to the Anglo-Irish treaty, he was nominated by Liam de Risre and the nomination was seconded by Harry Eagan. Both were in favor of the treaty.

BELFAST, Jan. 30.—Sir William F. Coates today was re-elected lord mayor of Belfast.

MANY AGENCIES TO INVESTIGATE THEATER CRASH

Inquiries May Be Held by the War Department, Congress, Federal Grand Jury and Coroner.

Revised Death List Shows 105 to Have Lost Lives, With Many Injured, Perhaps Fatally.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Investigation of the cause of the Knickerbocker theater diaster, which caused the death of more than 100 persons, was begun today by several agencies of the District of Columbia government, with the probability that the senate and house also might undertake exhaustive inquiries.

The senate is expected to act tomorrow on a resolution by Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, calling for an investigation of the catastrophe by a senate committee. Despite the announcement by Representative Mondell, republican, leader that the house would not authorize an inquiry until District of Columbia officials have concluded their investigations, Representative Ryan, republican, New York, charging that the collapse of the roof was due to faulty construction and would not have occured had there been proper inspection, offered a resolution proposing an investigation.

District of Colurbia commissioners declared they would go into every phase of the tragedy which occurred Saturday night when the roof weighed with snow, fell on an audience of several hundred, not only to fix the blame, but to guard against possible recurrence of such calamities.

Defect Blamed.

Colonel Charles Keller, engineer commissioner, after making a personal survey of the wreckage, declared he believed the cave-in was caused by a defect in material at some point of the roof's support. He stated however, that it would be impossible now to determine whether there had been any defect in material.

Plans for the support of the roof, Colonel Keller asserted, indicated that the capacity for weight was greatly in excess of any requirment in a climate like Washington's.

Building inspector Healy also was of determining the cause of the colstruction of the roof were sound and practical and that the necessary tests following construction had been met.

Preliminary to an investigation of the disaster the federal grand jury went to the scene and examined the wreckage today. Witnesses will be called before the jury without delay, it was said.

D. J. Ramsay Nevitt, district coroner, declaring he would spare no efforts in placing responsibility, requested Peyton Gordon, district attorney to ask the war department to assign expert engineers to the task of determining the cause of the collapse.

Search Halted.

Convinced that all bodies had been removed from the debris the search for dead was halted today. The last body was removed from the wreckage late last night. Inspector Healy ordered the walls of the theatre razed at once as a safety precaution. Unfounded reports that the walls had collapsed killing men in the rescue party were spread broadcast today causing much excitement.

Careful re-check of the dead indi-

MAN CREATES SENSATION AT REQUIEM MASS

By Associated Press.

ROME, Jan. 30.—Suddenly becoming violently insane a member of the pontifical choir today created a sensation in the Sistine chapel during the requiem mass for the late Pope Benedict XV by shouting: "Down with the pope!"

He insisted upon leading the procession out of the chapel preceding the cardinals and somewhat roughly elbowing Cardinal Vannutelli out of the cortege before he was overpowered by the Swiss guards and locked up.

The incident was without precedent in the history of the famous chapel.

The demented man will be tried before Vatican Justice Monsignor Sanz de Samper, the palace major demo, on a charge of creating a disturbance and probably will be sent to a sanitarium. Members of the vatican household said the man had been brooding over the death of Pope Benedict and had been suffering from insomnia for a week.

ESCAPING GAS IS FOUND TO CAUSE DEATH OF TREES

WESTFIELD, Mass., Jan. 30.—Majestic elm trees in a central location in this city are dying as a result of a leak or leaks in gas mains. Forestry officials have reported the destruction of many beautiful trees and the gas company has been called upon to check the escape of the poison.

CONCERT MUSICIAN WOOS BY MAIL AND MARRIES BY PROXY

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—A husband whom she had never seen was waiting for Mrs. Edward Tak, when she walked down the gangplank of the Liner Ryndam from Rotterdam today.

Edward Tak, violinist, and one of the concert masters of the New York Philharmonic society, has wooed and won Miss Sarah Speyers by mail, and married her by proxy. His brother, David, went to the altar in his stead, kissing the bride farewell and putting her aboard a vessel for her new home.

SENATE FAILS TO REACH VOTE ON DEBT BILL

Reference to Agricultural Bloc Provokes Clash That Upsets Announced Plans or Leaders.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—By fairly decisive votes, the senate refused today either to require congressional approval of the agreements to be entered into with debt-or nations by the proposed allied debt refunding commission or to limit the authority of the commission in the matter of deferring the time when interest payments on the eleven billion dollar foreign debt shall beign.

Despite an agreement sharply limiting debate, a final vote was not reached. Late in the day when the roll calls on amendments began it looked as though the now week-old fight would come to an end, but a reference to the agricultural bloc by one senator brought a tart reply by another that led to further discussion and finally it was decided to recess until 11 o'clock tomorrow. Those in charge of the bill hope to dispose of the measure on that day, but many amendments still are pending with plenty more discussion in prospect.

The first statement rejected today was that proposing approval by congress of the bond conversion agreements. It was proposed by Senator Johnson, republican, California, and was voted down 44 to 36. Seven republicans—Borah, Brandegee, France, Johnson, LaFollette, Moses and Norris—joined with twenty-nine democrats in supporting the amendment. Senator Williams, democrat, Mississippi, was the only democrat opposing it.

Next, the senate rejected, 49 to 32, an amendment by Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, proposing that interest on the converted bonds be paid semi-annually or annually. Senator Williams also opposed this amendment, while four republicans—Borah, LaFollette, Johnson and Norris, supported it.

Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, then proposed that the commission be prohibited from deferring the interest payments by any country for a period longer than two years, but this also was voted down, 44 to 34. Senator Williams also opposed his amendment, while five republicans, Borah, Johnson, Kenyon, LaFollette and Norris, voted for it.

Senator Simmons offered an amendment limiting the time for deferring interest payments to three years. This was pending when the senate finally went into a brief executive session preliminary to taking a recess until 11 o'clock tomorrow. The recess plan was agreed upon after a motion to adjourn had been defeated on a roll call, 44 to 32.

In the course of debate today there were charges of "sinister" influences behind the bill. Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, declared that powerful financial interests both in the United States and abroad did not intend that the allied debt would be paid. Senator Simmons reiterated charges that the proposed legislation would benefit the holders in this country of $5,000,000,000 of the bonds of the allied countries floated largely before the United States entered the war.

THREATEN TO KILL ONE ATTORNEY FOR EACH CONVICTION

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Special Assistant States Attorney Edwin A. Raber, in charge of the prosecution of officials of the Flat Janitors union in Judge John A. Swanson's court, was threatened with death in an anonymous letter received just before the afternoon session opened today.

The letter written in a scrawling sand said that for every conviction obtained there would be a funeral in the states' attorney's staff.

BOYS' ANTI-NEGRO ORGANIZATION IS NOW DISORGANIZED

By Associated Press.

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Jan. 30.—A secret organization composed of small boys has been discovered and broken up at Ellisville. The organization had a membership of twenty-two and called itself "R. A. R." (Run-African-Run). It is said the purpose was to run negroes out of town.

ARMS PARLEY TREATIES ARE ALL COMPLETE

Results of Conference Will Be Submitted for World Approval at Plenary Session Wednesday.

Agreement Is Reached on the Fortifications Article After Alaskan Area Is Included in List.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The text of the five-power naval treaty, to carry into effect the capital ship settlement, the limitations placed on auxiliary war craft, and the "status quo" agreement regarding Paficic fortifications was put into final form today and will be placed before the world at a plenary session of the arms conference Wednesday.

Final agreement on the fortifications article came after Japan had suggested and the other powers had agreed that the American Aleutian Islands, which are a part of Alaska, should be included in the area in which no further fortifications or naval bases are to be erected.

As accepted the provisions pledges the powers to maintain in their present status the fortifications of the Philippines, Guam, the Aleutian Islands and various smaller Pacific possessions of the United States; Formosa and other Japanese Islands stretching to the north and south from the principal Japanese group; and the British port of Hong Kong, together with a number of British Islands lying to the southeast. The Japanese mainland, Japanese Sakhalin, British Singapore and the Hawaiians do not fall under the prohibition. Although at first regarded by the American delegation as a part of the American mainland, for all the purposes of the treaty, the Aleutian group was said in American naval circles tonight to have little strategic value in any of the naval plans of the general board. The Japanese, on the other hand, are understood to have taken the position that the Archipelago, stretching out from the Alaskan mainland toward Siberia, might become a potential factor in the Far Eastern situation if it became the site of an American naval base.

As finally agreed to, the text of the fortifications article contains authorization for such repair and replacement as may be necessary to keep establishments now existing within the "status quo" area up to their present standard of efficiency. This stipulation will permit the small marine base in operation on Guam to remain, along with the fortifications that have been in stalled in the past by Japan on Formosa.

MINNEAPOLIS MAN KILLS WOLF WITH HANDS AS WEAPONS

By Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 30.—Using only his gloved hands, Arthur Lener, Minneapolis, killed a large timber wolf within the city limits, the first instance of this kind for more than a decade. Lener grasped its hind legs and crashed its head against an iron railing when it attacked him.

OARSMAN BELIEVED TO HAVE PERISHED IN BAY

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Wireless messages were sent by the police today, asking all ships leaving and entering the harbor to be on the lookout for some trace of John Rogan, widely known oarsman believed to have perished yesterday when the rowboat in which he left Sheepshead Bay was crushed by ice floes.

TODAY LAST FOR PAYING POLL TAX

From eight o'clock this morning until midnight. This is the time left for Wichita Falls men and women who wish to have a voice in their government for the coming year to qualify themselves for the same by payment of their poll tax.

Without such a qualification they will have little more practical say in the affairs of government or the selection of officials to carry on this government than if they were residents of the Desert of Gobi.

The same margin remains for property owners to pay their taxes without the infliction of the penalties required by law. This is through the announcement of M. L. Tittle, county tax collector, that he will be prepared to receive taxes up until midnight. The city tax collector has made similar preparations for a rush.

The tax collectors office was a regular hive throughout the day Monday, and for some time following the usual closing time.

The figures on the payment of poll taxes as announced at the end of each day's business during the past week were not available last night. The total already promises by far the greatest number of qualified voters in the history of the county.

LAST OBSTACLE IN LONG CONTROVERSY FINALLY OVERCOME

Only Details in Phraseology of Proposed Treaty to Return Shantung Province to China Remain to Be Worked Out, Is Announced by Eastern Delegations.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—An agreement on all the principles involved in the plans for return of Shantung province to China was reached tonight by the Japanese and Chinese arms delegations.

After the two groups had been in conference for nearly seven hours, wrestling with the final problems of restoring the Tsing Tao-Tsinan Fu railroad to Chinese control, word came from the committee room that only details of phraseology of the proposed treaty remained in the way of complete agreement.

None of the Japanese would comment on the status of the negotiations prior to a formal announcement and no one who attended the meeting would disclose the exact extent to which the plan is supported by the "good offices" of the President, Secretary Hughes, and Arthur J. Balfour had been approved.

"We made considerable progress on the basis suggested by our friends, Mr. Balfour and Sec. Huges," Dr. Koo said.

Pressed for details of the settlement, Dr. Koo said that he did not care to go into details as he thought the two mediators would want to make a statement after tomorrow's meeting. He said, however, that the agreement thus far reached provided for a managing director who would be Chinese and that the factor of chief accountant "of whatever nationality," would be subordinate to the managing director.

Recent conversations were broken off because the Chinese insisted on having complete control of a traffic manager and accountants, while the Japanese delegates declined to concede the point. The Japanese insisted that their experts should occupy these posts.

Another point seemingly cleared up was the question of payment, the Chinese offering cash, or payment in installments covered a period of 12 years with a three year option. The Japanese declines and insisted on a loan covering fifteen years with a five year option.

MANY FEARED TO HAVE LOST LIVES IN MINE

Bodies of Four Recovered Since Explosion Although Rescuers Have Penetrated but Short Way.

By Associated Press.

PINESVILLE, Ky., Jan. 30.—A mine explosion tonight killed four persons and may have killed or entombed many others at Layman, 20 miles from here. An explosion, heard a considerable distance, occured in the mine of the Layman-Calloway mines shortly after 9 o'clock.

How many persons were in the mine at the time had not been determined tonight. Four oodles have been recovered although the rescue corps has been able to penetrate only a short distance, according to reports received here.

TEXAS JURIST TO PRESIDE IN FISHER'S CASE

By Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 30.—United States District Judge Hutcheson of the Southern district of Texas will preside at the hearing of the corruption case against United States District Attorney Hugh C. Fisher and other proceedings growing out of the case beginning February 13, it was announced today. Emil Kuntz, Republican national committeeman from Louisiana, and R. A. Giddens of Coushatta, member of the state Republican central committee are involved with Fisher.

STERN RULING ON WITHDRAWALS OF LIQUOR ANNOUNCED

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Owners of liquor stored in bonded warehouses, even though the liquor is subject to leakage evaporation, have no constitutional right to take it home for personal consumption, the supreme court announced today.

In two cases up today warehouse receipts for the liquor were purchased after it became legally impossible to remove the liquor for beverage purposes and in two others the owners of liquor neglected to remove it during the seven months allowed for that purpose. The decrees of the lower courts in the case were affirmed.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the anti-saloon league, declared the decision to be "the most important for law enforcement since the decision sustaining national prohibition.

"If the court has construed the law to permit the withdrawal of these liquors for personal use," Mr. Wheeler said, "millions of gallons would have been taken out and part of it devoted to unlawful purposes."

SMALL BLAZE ON THIRTEENTH

Explosion of a gas stove was assigned by firemen as the cause for a small blaze in the home of Wad Hurley, 1416 Thirteenth street, early Monday night, which burned the wall paper off one room. Damage was estimated at about $25. The fire was extinguished by chemicals.

OKLAHOMA TO LOSE TAXES ON INDIAN LEASES

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—A tax imposed by Oklahoma upon income derived from the sale of oil and gas produced under leases upon restricted Indian lands was held unconstitutional today by the supreme court.

The case was brought by F. A. Gillespie against the state of Oklahoma where such Indian lands are a large part of the territory of the state and was advanced at the request of the state, based upon the large sum of money involved. It was contended in opposition to the tax that it was unlawful burden upon a federal agency and would affect the value of the leases.

TAXES ARE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS EACH YEAR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 30.—Several hundred thousand dollars will be lost to the state of Oklahoma each year as the result of the ruling of the United States supreme court today, declaring unconstitutional a tax imposed by the state upon income derived from the sale of oil and gas produced under leases upon restricted Indian lands, according to C. W. King, assistant attorney general, who handled the case through the courts.

NO COMPLAINTS ON RESIDENCE RENTS MONDAY

C. of C. Committee Takes It as Confirmation of Belief That Situation Is Adjusting Itself.

Three Landlords Appear; Two Willing to Make Concessions While the Third Stands for Lease Contract.

Neither residence nor apartment rents were complained of at the Monday session of the Chamber of Commerce rent commission, none appearing to lodge complaint in that connection. While reserving commitment until further date on the apartment rent, members of the committee declared that the lack of complaints from the residence section bore out their belief that this situation had, or rapidly was, working itself out, and that the excessive rent problem, reputed to Wichita Falls with regard to residences, existed no longer to any appreciable degree. The same conditions was found with regard to downtown room rents in the examination of two hotel proprietors during the past week. Residence and room rents are free, it is pointed out, from the long term lease feature which is regarded by members of the committee as in many instances a severe handicap not only on business establishments, but in the long run to property owners in the downtown section and to the city as a whole.

Three Landlords Heard.

Three landlords appeared before the commission Monday afternoon, which was just exactly three more than the committee expected to hear when they set the hearing for the landlords last Friday afternoon. Two landlords, who were unavoidably away from the city, notified the committee to this effect. Both had previously signified to the committee their willingness to discuss the complaints made by their tenants.

The committee did not attempt to go any further into the cases with the landlords at the Monday hearing than to discuss and analyze the conditions shown by the complaining tenants. Following the close of the discussion it adjourned not to meet again until Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, February 10. At this time landlords who were not present Monday will again be invited to discuss the matter with the committee. Following this a plan of action being mapped out by the committee members in the cases of those considered unreasonable, and collecting what is considered as exhorbitant rents, will be placed before the committee, to be carried into effect either as a committee or as individuals, as the committee sees fit.

One Tenant Appears.

One tenant appeared, but after questions from the committee as to his rent, his other overhead expenses, and the amount of reduction he had made in his overhead, he was advised to go back and cut expenses some more. This was a restaurant proprietor, the business which represented the largest proportion of complaints among the business tenants.

Of the landlords appearing, one appeared in the dual role of landlord and tenant, coming in response to a complaint lodged by a sublessor.

After hearing his case members of the committee expressed themselves as believing that the parties in question were paying more than their equal share of the entire rent, but that the entire rent was excessive and exhorbitant and should be reduced on the grounds of equity, regardless of the lease contract and in the eventual interest of the landlord. One member of the committee estimated that the property in question was bringing a return in profit of 18 per cent on a present fair valuation.

Two Reductions Made

The first landlord to appear agreed to make a temporary reduction in the rent in the case a lease could not be concluded with a tenant who had asked for the lease a year ago, and for whom an attempt was made to dislodge the tenant now complaining of the rent, in order that a 10-year lease could be made. The original rent, at first $600 for a location on Indiana, had been cut first to $500 and later to $400 on account of business conditions, notwithstanding the existence of a long term contract. This condition applied to two neighboring locations on this street owned by the same persons.

The other landlord whose tenant is under a five year lease with half to run, refused to make any adjustments, expressing the belief that a present rent of $500 for a 50 by 150 two story building on Ohio was a reasonable rent, although the figure and the contract was made in the latter part of 1919. He said that in leasing to this tenant located there at present, an opportunity of leasing the place for $750 or $1000 per month had been passed up. He admitted the dubiety of collecting contracts which might have been made at the latter figures.

He said that if convinced that the rent was exhorbitant, he thought that it should be changed, regardless of the existence of a contract.

Says Rent Not Hurt

In declaring the belief that the present rent was not excessive, he said that it took $500 per month to pay taxes and insurance and pay eight per cent on the valuation placed on the property. He said that business conditions obtaining at the present time—the "buyers strike," etc.—was responsible for the business losing money, not the rent. He admitted that the present tenant was able to pay $300 per month, the figure the building rented for before the present contract was made, and had been paying about that amount. He said that the tenant was about $300 behind on the rent at the $500 figure.

Asked if he did not think that it would be better for himself and better for the city for a reduction to be made in the rent, temporarily at least, in order to help keep the business running without a loss, he said that he did not think so. He said that the owner of the business had other means than the business from which the contracted rent could be collected, and that this had been taken into consideration in making the lease.

cated tonight that if no more of the injured died the death toll would be 105. Reports that three additional persons had died were unverified. A dozen persons in hospitals, however, were reported in a critical condition tonight, although E. H. Shaughnessy, second assistant postmaster general, was said to be greatly improved. More than 100 persons sustained injuries of more than a minor nature and were taken to hospitals.

The tragedy caused the postponement today of practically all social affairs planned for the week. President and Mrs. Harding were to have been the honor guests of the Ohio society at a reception tonight, but at the president's request the affair was postponed. Mr. Harding informed those in charge of arrangements that he preferred to omit a social affair while Washington was suffering from the great shock. Attorney General Daugherty also postponed a dinner he had planned to give for the president and Mrs. Harding Wednesday night.

Chain Theaters Closed.

With the exception of five motion picture houses controlled by the corporation which owned the Knickerbocker, theaters in the city were open today, advertisements in newspapers assuring the public that they had been carefully inspected and declared safe by officials. Harry Crandall, manager of the Knickerbocker, in announcing that other theaters in the Crandall chain would remain closed until further notice, said this was done, not because any of the theaters were considered unsafe, but because he and his associates did not desire to accept money for amusement while the city was mourning for those who lost their lives at the Knickerbocker.

Officials of three foreign governments, in statements today expressed sorrow over the tragedy. They were Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador, M. S. Arraut, head of the French delegation to the arms conference and Minister Brun of Denmark. The gridiron club, at a special meeting adopted resolutions of respect for two of its members, C. C. Brainerd, Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle and Lewis W. Strayer, correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, who lost their lives in the crash. The club also adopted a resolution calling for an investigation of the disaster.

Errors in List.

Revision of the names of the dead today brought out that Wyatt McKimmie and Jack McKimmie, both listed as dead, were the same person and not brothers, while Miss Frances Bikle, one of the victims was listed also as "Miss M. C. Bikle." It also was discovered that while Howard W. Kneessi lost his life, an error had been made in listing a son as also dead. William Walters, Brooklyn, N. Y., a student at Georgetown Medical school, it was found, was listed twice among the dead.

These corrections brought the number of dead, at one time given at 108, down to 104 with officials attempting to learn the identity of a "Mrs. Davis," whose death was reported. Her death would make the revised total 105. It also was learned that Mrs. Elmer Barchfeld, the daughter-in-law and not the daughter of former Representative A. J. Barchfeld of Pennsylvania, who lost his life, was among the dead.

MAN SENTENECED TO YEAR IN JAIL FOR ELOPING WITH WIFE

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Guillermo Plana, 22, a Depaw university student was sentenced to one year in the house of correction today for eloping with his wife. It is a test case. Plana, who lived in Manila, eloped to Crown Point, Indiana with Emmaline Reavis, 16, a Petersburg, Illinois, telephone operator, and her sister here caused the bridegroom's arrest. The charge was contributing to the delinquency of Mrs. Plana.

Cardinal La Fontaine Designated by Dying Pope to Succeed Him

Pope Benedict XV, on his deathbed expressed a wish that Cardinal La Fontaine, patriarch of Venice, should succeed him, according to Cavalliere Fagiani, Benedict's private chamberlain. Cardinal La Fontaine was born in 1860 and elevated in 1916.

ROME, Jan. 30.—The sacred collage was completed today as it will start deliberations on Thursday next to elect a pontiff. Fifty-three cardinals are now present in Rome and they will compose the conclave at its opening session. The arrival of Cardinal Logue, primate of all Ireland, completed the list of electors for the early meetings, from which seven cardinals will be absent—Prisco, archbishop of Naples; Martin DeHerrera, archbishop of Santiago; Di Compostella, Spain; Arcoverde, archbishop of Rio Janeiro; De Skrbensky, archbishop of Olmutz; O'Connell, archbishop of Boston; Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia, and Begin, archbishop of Quebec.

MARY PICKFORD'S DIVORCE CASE IS THRESHED OUT IN SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA

OWEN MOORE.
Mary's Former Husband.

Doug and Mary.

By Associated Press.

CARSON CITY, Nev., Jan. 30.—The Nevada supreme court, after hearing oral arguments today on a motion of Attorney General Fowler to have the divorce obtained by Miss Mary Pickford at Minden, March 2, 1920, annulled, took the case under advisement.

The court has three months in which to make a decision unless the case is resubmitted before that time.

Fowler, contended that the divorce of Miss Pickford from Owen E. Moore, another motion picture actor, was obtained by fraud since she deliberately swore she had no other residence than Genoa, Nevada, although both she and her husband were bonafide residents of Los Angeles.

The Nevada supreme court and the supreme and appellate courts of other states had declared the state to be a third party in a divorce case, he said, and he intervened, since Miss Pickford had flouted the laws of Nevada.

Gavin McNab of San Francisco, attorney for Miss Pickford asserted that the attorney general's act was "gratitious and meddlesome action and interference by a stranger, without warrant in law and against public policy." He declared that the attorney general could not have appeared in the divorce action for either side or as independent intervenor, and the district courts action was irrevocably final since neither party had appeared.

Robert Richards, deputy state attorney, opened the arguments for the state and P. A. McCarran, former chief justice of the Nevada supreme court, followed McNab, saying that there was no aggrieved party in the case, and therefore no foundation for the suit to annul the divorce decree.

McCarran asserted that because one of the parties in the divorce case was "not of obscurity but of world-wide fame," and that the matter was full of human interest, the attorney general saw and embraced the opportunity of getting publicity and "borrowed" the name of the state of Nevada in bringing suit to annul the divorce.

"I don't take much stock in that kind of argument," interrupted the Chief Justice Sanders.

Shackleton's Body to Be Buried In Rude Coffin Constructed by His Friends of Antarctic Islands

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 30.—The body of Sir Ernest Shackleton, the British explorer, lies in a hospital here in a rough wooden coffin that was made for him by Norwegian whalers of the Island of South Georgia where he died on January 5. A squad of Uruguayan soldiers act as a guard of honor and until the body is sent to England probably February 11, the guard will be maintained by the Uruguayan government which plans also to send other honors.

In this handiwork of simple living Antarctic Islanders—a strong box of unplaned dead wood lined with corrugated zinc—the famous explorer will be buried in England.

"I am sure that it is what he would wish in keeping wih his own simplicity and because these whalers of the south seas whom he loved, made it for him," said Captain L. Hussey, meterologist of the steamship Quest.

As described by Captain Hussey to The Associated Press correspondent today Sir Ernest's death occurred at 3:30 o'clock in the morning in his cabin the day after the arrival from Rio Janeiro at the Principal whaling station of South Georgia, a place called Gryvicken, a town of 200 inhabitants.

ANOTHER GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE FOR LYNCHING

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 30.—Robert McAlister, the seventh man to receive a life term in the penitentiary for complicity in the lynching here the night of January 14 of a non-union negro packing house worker, was sentenced today when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of murder before District Judge James I. Phelps and told the story of his participation in the hanging in open court.

John V. Harris, the eighth man held in the case, pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder before an examining magistrate and was ordered held without bail pending his preliminary trial, which was set for Wednesday.

McAlister is an uncle of Emler Yearta, one of the men already sentenced in the case, and John Yearta, who has been implicated in the lynching by confessions of the men arrested, but who has evaded arrest.

The five other men who pleaded guilty and were sentenced to the penitentiary for life are Charles Polk, Lee Whitley, Oscar Smith and Nathan Butler and Robert Allen, negroes. All except Polk were strikers, officials, said.

Arguments on the motion of Polk that his sentence be set aside and that he be allowed to substitute a plea of not guilty probably will be heard tomorrow in district court, it was indicated.

COMPLAINT IS MADE AGAINST TELEPHONE CO.

vided it was used for charitable and benevolent purposes. The local property was assessed for taxation but will now be exempted from payment of taxes.

Frederick Thompson, J. W. Nicholson and S. G. Henry living in the Sibley-Taylor addition asked street lights and fire alarms for that section together with the opening of Broad street across the Wichita Valley tracks. They were assured that street lights would be placed there as soon as possible although the present outlined program covered three months. Fire alarm boxes cannot be installed due to the fact that the city has no funds to purchase them. An attempt will be made to straighten the Broad street crossing at the railroad through the co-operation of property owners.

Knight Makes Complaint

C. C. Knight owner of property at the corner of Indiana and Ninth streets asked that the city pay for the repair of the curb to sidewalk in front of his property damaged through the expansion of the wood block paving. The request was left to the street department for recommendation. It was pointed out by members of the council during the discussion that the curb and sidewalk condition was general in the down town section and if the city paid one property owner others would have an equally as just a claim.

The paving of Burnett street between Eighth and Tenth streets was forecasted when the council agreed to pay the expense of grading provided the property owners bore the remaining cost. A local contractor said that he had practically signed up all the property owners concerned in the project. The council authorized Mayor Cline to sign a contract leasing a mule farm for the city from Joe Ward.

Renumbering Ordinance

Ordinance 390 calling for the renumbering of houses was passed on its second reading. Dr. Douglas, head of the sanitary department told of the progress being made to provide for a city ordinance regulating filling stations in the city. It was indicated that weights and measures department for the city might be the outgrowth of an ordinance to provide for the regulation of the stations and other work that would come properly under that department.

PIONEER OIL MAN DIES AT HIS HOME IN SAN ANTONIO

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 30.—William T. Leary, said to be the discoverer of oil the southern California field, died at his home in San Antonio last night at the age of 65 years. In 1893 he brought in an oil well near Los Angeles. Three years later he moved to southwest Texas where he became active in drilling artesian wells on the famous King ranch on which he completed sixty wells.

Books, however damaged, can be repaired and missing pages replaced by special treatment, which is, however, very costly.

MEANEST BANDIT TAKES PANTS TO PREVENT PURSUIT

(By International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 30.—Shame on such a bandit—he robbed Morris Bluestein and then stole his pants to prevent pursuit.

"It was awful, terrible, something fierce," Bluestein told police.

"There I stood, in my stocking feet, garbed in my shirt-tail."

The bandit held up Bluestein in his toggery shop, where the stock of goods does not include trousers. Pointing to the snow outside, the bandit opined a man would have to be "dressed warm to go out there."

Then he made Bluestein take off his shoes and trousers, and tucking them under his arm departed.

SURVIVORS OF MOD TELL OF GRIM BATTLE

By Associated Press.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 30.—The story of a grim battle with shifting freight was told by twenty-three survivors of the crew of the new, electrically driven Norwegian steamship Mod, which foundered in mid-ocean January 22.

The survivors were brought into port aboard the steamer Melmorehead, which arrived on the scene just as the Mod gave her last lurch. Captain Waarli, four of his officers, the steward and four firemen drowned when their life boat capsized.

Chief Engineer Peter Iverson said that the cargo first began to shift January 17. Keeling hard to port the Mod continued to make progress until she turned over on her side, January 21, after being hit by a terrific sea. The crew kept her afloat with pumps, as long as possible but were clinging to wreckage when the Melmorehead came to the rescue.

Those who perished with Captain Waarli were: First Officer Knudsen, second officer Iraoson, third officer Hilgieson, third engineer Bendikson, chief steward Arnson and firemen Kolsen, Stranstead, Ole Olsen, and Solberg.

Pays Fine on Delinquency Charge Monday

L. LARGE CROWD ATTENDS LADIES' AID MEETING.

More than 100 members of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Christian church were present at the first all-day meeting of the new year, held at the church Monday.

In the morning session which was devoted to business, a full report of last year's work was given. The charity committee reported that besides the other work done by the society this past month, that they had helped four families who were in need the entire month. Two dozen towels and wash rags were given to the Day Nursery and $200 pledged to carry on the work for next year.

Plans for a bazaar to be given some time during the year were discussed, the kind and time to be given to be announced later.

Total receipts for the meeting including dues, pledges and donations, amounted to $225.55.

A social feature of the meeting was luncheon at the noon hour served by Mrs. J. C. T. Christensen's division. this was followed by a vocal number rendered by Miss Gertrude Ray, accompanied by Mrs. R. E. Shepherd.

The table was decorated in the Danish and American flags forming the center, surrounded by miniature dolls in Danish costume. The menu also carried out the suggestions.

AWARDS DAMAGES AGAINST WESTERN UNION TEL. CO.

Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court Monday granted a judgment of $600 against the Western Union Telegraph company for the alleged failure to transmit correctly a message from this city to Fort Worth. The message was sent by J. C. Smith, local grain man who was the plaintiff in the suit.

The suit grew out of an order which Mr. Hunt declares he placed with a Ft. Worth commission broker a year ago for the sale of 15,000 bushels of wheat. The message was sent by code and through error by the defendant company in transmitting the message, according to the plaintiff only 5,000 bushels was sold. Subsequently the other 10,000 bushels was sold at a $600 loss over what would have been obtained had the first price been obtained, he alleged.

Fashions for Americans

Cotton and Linen Fabrics Are in High Favor for Intime Apparel.

A great many women prefer cotton or linen undergarments to those of silk for warm weather wear, the cotton and linen fabrics laundering so freshly that they really seem daintier than the more expensive silk things. Because of this designers and manufacturers of undergarments pay increasing attention to styles for cotton undergarments each year, and most attractive things are available for the coming spring and summer.

It is possible to purchase ready-made garments that are entirely or almost all made by hand, but many women prefer to make their own undergarments, and this naturally means that lovely things may be had for much less money than if they are bought ready made. In addition, each woman may think out little individual trimming touches for herself. Two and three-piece sets are having quite a vogue.

The sketch offers a suggestion for a two-piece set, consisting of a short chemise vest and wide knee drawers. A nightgown may be made to match if desired. A fine batiste was used for the set shown, with trimming of hand hemstitching and lace edging. Very fine handkerchief linen either in white or colors is used for very dainty undergarment sets. The chemise vest is a garment that is liked by many women as a substitute for the silk vest or combination.

Fine voiles with white ground and satin stripes in color are used for lovely two and three-piece sets and for separate nightgowns, and one of the popular trimmings is binding all the edges with plain color self-fabric. Sheer cotton crepes are more extensively used for spring and summer undergarments than ever before, sometimes trimmed in piping or bindings of fabric in contrasting color, sometimes with sampler stitch embroidery or brier stitching. The dainty woman will chose white or flesh colored undergarments in preference to the more vivid orchid, maize or blue shades that are offered for the sake of variety.

Fine material and excellent workmanship rather than elaboration of style features is the watchword in the development of intime apparel for the woman of good taste.

CHAPTER LXV.

"Woman," some one says, "is the world's greatest failure, or she is marking the beginning of an evolutionary process which will produce the greatest race the world has ever known."

It was Sam who voiced the quotation.

"How reconcile that with the refusal of the revolutionary woman to marry?" Ted asked.

"That's the point. Take women like Ruth, or example. A woman who is healthy, vital as she is, with her character and disposition is the sort of woman who should bear children if we are to improve the race. And it is just her sort who remain single. It's the fascination of being of important economically, I think. It flatters them to think that at last they are recognized as a power. I am not talking now of the women and girls who must work, but of those who prefer to be in the turmoil of business life rather than stagnate in some domestic environment. Most of these are college girls of good families. The other sort the ones who make their labor simply the means of subsisting until they find some man to look out for them, would never under any circumstances count in the scheme of things. It is a psychology of the hour, of the times. Do you recall something Walt Whitman said on the subject of women?"

"Never read a word of him in my life. Remember, I've been roaming about the world while you sat in the chimney corner and improved your mind. What was it?"

"He says: 'I have sometimes thought that the sole avenue and means to a reconstructed society depended primarily on a new birth elevation, expansion, invigoration of women.'"

"I guess he is right. Somehow I can't get the hang of this new order of things. Partly, perhaps, because in the countries where I have lived since I was sixteen women don't count for much except to bear children. To come back and find my own sister one of these new women, a mighty clever and successful one at that, has sort of frazzled me. I guess, Sam, we have been Lords of Creation about as long as we shall be. It looks as if it were getting on toward the time when we must step down a peg—if we ever are to do it gracefully."

"I for one don't begrudge them their success," Sam said. "Just to be with Ruth has been an education, to see the single mind she has brought to bear on all her problems, the way she has studied every angle of the investment game. I tell you when women are like Ruth they deserve to be recognized economically as well as socially. There are lots of them too, now. They are fast becoming a force, one that must be acknowledged. There is no use beating around the bush about it, no use trying to discourage them by poking fun at them, calling them New Women and that sort of thing. They are here to stay. It's up to the men to learn that a woman can be, as Ruth insists, a good wife and mother and a good business woman just as a man can be a good husband and father and a good business man."

"My, but we are getting serious, Sam. Come, run me out into the country. I want to get all these farfetched ideas that may be true, but which I do not understand, blown out of my head."

And arm in arm the two brothers, one tall, broad shouldered, bronzed, the other thin, pale, limping a little, went out together.

In the days of his invalidism Sam had often discussed these subjects with Ruth on the nights when she sat with him because he was sleepless. It was only natural that he should have imbibed many of her ideas.

To happy-go-lucky, adventuring Ted they were scarcely understandable.

As was but to be expected, now that they lived in town, Ruth's brothers had often met Robert Turnbull. He escorted Ruth to some play or the opera occasionally, and twice she had invited him to dine with them. The boys both liked him immensely, although he was much older than either of them. At this time Turnbull was about forty-five. He had felt at times that perhaps Ruth thought him too old—that that might be one reason for her refusal to marry him.

He had not mentioned the subject again, although with a tenacity peculiar to him he said to himself:

"As long as she is single I'll never give her up."

So while attentive, he cleverly kept things upon their old friendly basis and thus saved Ruth any embarrassment.

"What a couple Ruth and Turnbull would make," Sam said once to his mother.

"She cares nothing about him except as a friend," Mrs. Browning sighed heavily. "There is nothing of the Peabodys in Ruth. She seems to have no idea of what is due her family. She can now remain at home and be the lady she was born to be. But no! She prefers to go down to that old office and slave all day, a servant to all those women who come to her."

"Aren't we all servants, mother—in some way? Ruth is doing a lot of good, and while I should like to see her marry a man like Turnbull I don't think she ever will, and we must not try to make her."

"Make her! I'd like to see the person who could make her do anything."

PAINS ACROSS SMALL OF BACK

Husband Helped in Housework. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Strong

Foster, Oregon.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains across the small of my back. They bothered me so badly that I could do my work only with the help of my husband. One day he saw the 'ad.' in our paper telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is doing for women, so I began to take it. It has helped me wonderfully. I am feeling fine, do all my housework and washing for seven in the family. I have been irregular too, and now am all right. I am telling my friends what it has done for me and am sure it will do good for others. You can use this letter as a testimonial. I will stand up for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound any time."—Mrs. Wm. Juhnke, Foster, Oregon.

Doing the housework for a family of seven is some task. If you, as a housewife, are troubled with backache, irregularities, are easily tired out and irritable, or have other disagreeable ailments caused by some weakness, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. Let it help you.

How Ironized Yeast Fills Out Figure

And Puts New "Pep" and Energy in Thin, Nervous Rundown Folks

If you are thin and feel tired out all the time—or if you are nervous and your skin is marred with pimples or other humiliating blemishes—you need only to try taking two IRONIZED YEAST tablets with each meal for a few days to learn how quickly this splendid food-tonic builds new solid flesh, beautifies the complexion, and enables you to store up a seemingly inexhaustible supply of new "pep," energy and nerve force.

FREE! Mail coupon below for Amazing Three Day Trial Treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. Watch the Results!

Hundreds of thousands of people all over the country are now taking IRONIZED YEAST tablets, and the results reported in many cases are actually astonishing. For thin folks to gain five pounds or more on the very first package is not unusual. Complexions blotched with pimples, etc., are very often entirely cleared up within 10 to 14 days. As for increasing "pep" and energy, apparent "miracles" are reported by folks who were formerly run-down, weak, and lacking in physical and mental vigor.

Here Is The Secret!

Nature intended that you should have a well-developed figure, with the clear skin, sparkling eyes, strong nerves and rugged strength that goes with it. If you are now thin and run-down it is because certain of Nature's laws have been disobeyed.

Nature requires that we get a proper amount of vitamines and iron into our systems. But these two essential elements, due to improper selection of foods and to modern methods of food preparation, are lacking in the modern diet. That is why so many of us are thin and run-down.

Results In Half The Usual Time

The thing to do, therefore, is to supply this lack. This you can do by taking with each meal two tiny IRONIZED YEAST tablets which contain in highly concentrated form, a specially cultured yeast grown under the strictest supervision for medicinal purposes—a yeast unequalled for its richness in the essential Water Soluble B vitamines. In addition it contains the correct amount of the two other vitamines—Soluble Fat A and Water Soluble C—which are equally important to health, yet which are lacking in the average modern diet.

These three vitamines bring excellent results even if taken alone—but when taken with a proper amount of easily assimilated organic iron, as in IRONIZED YEAST, these results are secured often in just half the usual time!

Watch The Quick Improvement

You will certainly be amazed at the quick improvement IRONIZED YEAST shows in you. Note how it immediately increases your appetite—how it enables you to get real joy out of every morsel of food you eat. See how quickly it gives away pimples, blackheads, etc.—how rapidly your skin takes on a new freshness and charm. See how your energy increases—how this truly acquired "pep" makes hard work or play a pleasure instead of a task. Try IRONIZED YEAST today! Pleasant to take—will not cause gas or in any way upset the stomach. Each IRONIZED YEAST tablet wrapped air-tight and moisture proof in waxed sanitape when made, thus assuring 100% purity and strength. Special directions for children in each package. Go to your druggist or mail coupon today—NOW!

Money Back Guarantee

IRONIZED YEAST is sold at all drug stores on a positive guarantee that the first package will bring satisfactory results—or your money instantly refunded.

WARNING!

Not all yeast will give the desired results. There are certain types of yeast which have absolutely no medicinal value. By insisting on the genuine IRONIZED YEAST, and refusing cheaper imitations or substitutes you can be sure that you are taking a vitamine tonic treatment which is unsurpassed in effectiveness, convenience and genuine health-building value.

that he must buy his supplies in a market that is surrounded by a tariff wall, and that he must sell his own products in a market in which there is no such consideration given to the products of his own toil. It is of vital interest to the American consumer and the American people as a whole that the American farmers and producers survive, because if they go down and we are thereby forced to look to other markets for our food supplies, the net result in the long run would mean that we will have all suffered in the way of high prices far in excess of that would have been our fate had our farmers and producers prospered." In naming Texas delegates to the National Agricultural Conference President Harding did not overlook the Southern Tariff association. Louis J. Wortham is affiliated with the Southern Tariff association; R. J. Kleburg is in sympathy with its declaration of principles; W. W. Turney of El Paso is for a tariff on hides and frozen meats and of course would be willing to go all the way. There are others of the delegates who insist that producers of raw materials shall be given "the benefit of their proportionate share of the tariff to be levied."

OLD MR. TOAD'S MISTAKE

If is a very little word to look at, but the biggest word you have ever seen doesn't begin to have so much meaning as little "if." If Jimmy Skunk hadn't ambled down the Crooked Little Path just when he did; if he hadn't seen that big piece of bark at one side and decided to pull it over; if it hadn't been for all these ifs, why, Old Mr. Toad wouldn't have made the mistake he did and you wouldn't have had this story. But Jimmy Skunk did amble down the Crooked Little Path, he did look for beetles, and he did pull over that big piece of bark. And when he pulled it over he found Old Mr. Toad there, and Old Mr. Toad had just waked from his long winter sleep. He had crept under that piece of bark because he wanted to keep out of sight until he felt a little more awake before he started out to find something to eat.

But when Jimmy Skunk told him that he had seen Mr. Blacksnake that very morning and that Mr. Blacksnake had asked after Old Mr. Toad, the very last bit of sleepiness left Old Mr. Toad. Yes, sir, he was wide-awake right away. You see, he knew why Mr. Blacksnake had asked after him. He knew that Mr. Blacksnake had been asleep all winter and that he must be very hungry, and he knew that Mr. Blacksnake had a fondness for toads. He turned quite pale when he heard that Mr. Blacksnake had asked after him, and right then he made his first mistake. He was in such a hurry to get away from that neighborhood that he forgot to ask Jimmy Skunk just where he had seen Mr. Blacksnake. He hardly waited long enough to say good-by to Jimmy Skunk, but started off just as fast as he could go.

Now, it just happened that Old Mr. Toad started up the Crooked Little Path, and it just happened that Mr. Blacksnake was coming down the Crooked Little Path. Now, when people are very much afraid they almost always seem to think that danger is behind instead of in front of them. It was so with Old Mr. Toad. Instead of watching out in front as he hopped along he kept watching over his shoulder, and that was his second mistake. He was so sure that Mr. Blacksnake was somewhere behind him that he didn't look to see where he was going, and you know that people who don't look to see where they are going are almost sure to go headfirst right into trouble.

Old Mr. Toad went hopping up the Crooked Little Path as fast as he could, which wasn't very fast, because he never can hop very fast, and just now he was weak, because of his long winter's sleep and because he hadn't yet got the kinks out of his legs. And all the time he kept looking behind for Mr. Blacksnake. Presently he came to a turn in the Crooked Little Path, and as he hurried around it he almost ran into Mr. Blacksnake himself. It was a question which was the most surprised. For just a wee second they stared at each other. Then Mr. Blacksnake's eyes began to sparkle.

"Good morning, Mr. Toad, isn't this a beautiful morning? I was just thinking about you," said he.

But poor Old Mr. Toad didn't say good morning. He didn't say anything. He couldn't, because he was too frightened. He just gave a frightened little squeal, turned around, and started down the Crooked Little Path twice as fast as he had come up. Mr. Blacksnake grinned and started after him, not very fast, because, you know, he has just waked up and he didn't feel very lively yet. Besides, he knew that he wouldn't have to run very fast to catch Old Mr. Toad, do him good.

And this is how it happened that beautiful spring morning that jolly bright Mr. Sun looking down from the blue sky and smiling to see how happy everybody seemed, suddenly discovered that there was one of the little meadow people who wasn't happy, but instead was terribly, terribly unhappy. It was Old Mr. Toad hopping down the Crooked Little Path for his life, while after him, getting nearer and nearer, glided Mr. Blacksnake.

NEXT STORY.—JIMMY SKUNK IS JUST IN TIME.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

IN A HURRY.

Well-framed statutes little heeding, laughing all the laws to scorn, still the fathead fan goes speeding, honking blithely on his horn. Through the streets of thronging traffic, he goes like the bolt of doom; and the epitaph is graphic that we place upon his tomb. Lives of speed fiends should remind him death awaits, in many styles; but the cloud of dust behind him shows he's hitting sixty miles; "let no speed law halt or stay me," all his actions seem to rave; and the choir sings "Now I lay me," when we gather round his grave. When he reads the daily papers, with their lists of auto wrecks, he must see such bone-head capers lead at last to broken necks; through the crowds we see him slipping, throwing up the dust and rocks; and our tears are sadly dripping when we lay him in his box. He is sane in other matters, he is wise in many things, but he rips the road to tatters and the landscape into strings; all in vain our admonition, vain our protests and appeals, and the sad and stern mortician sorts his fragments from the wheels. In the boneyyard he is sleeping, far from all the traffic's roar, and his maiden aunts are weeping for the nut who speeds no more.

Your Discontent

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

You write to me complaining of an inexplicable restlessness and discontent. This is not due, you are sure, to any condition of physical disease, for you feel in excellent health, and your doctor has informed you that you are indeed in excellent health.

Nor is it due to poverty, your income being more than sufficient for your immediate needs. In every way, in fact, you are comfortably situated, which makes your discontent the more mysterious to you.

"I ought to feel perfectly happy and contented," you say, "but I do not. Something seems to be missing. I am uneasy most of the time. And I am utterly at a loss to imagine what the cause can be."

Possibly it is lack of adequate occupation, if, being among those not obliged to work, you refrain from doing work of any kind.

Idleness would be enough to make any man thoroughly discontented. This because to idle is to go contrary to one of the basic instincts—the instinct to achieve—which every normal human being brings with him into the world.

Or, if you are a worker, it may be that your discontent is rooted in failure on your part either to make the most of your possibilities as a worker or to make proper use of your leisure.

Those whose minds and hearts are not in their work are likely, indeed, to be a prey to discontent. They are the more likely to be this if numbered among those to whom leisure is merely synonymous with time-killing.

One of the great purposes of leisure is to afford opportunity for cultural and spiritual development. Such development is as real a need in all men and women as the need to engage in productive work.

Those who fail entirely to give thought to what may well be termed the finer realities, who make no effort to cultivate in themselves an enlightened interest in things of the mind and the spirit, cannot possibly escape discontent. Inevitably they degenerate into mere pleasure-seekers, and pleasure-seeking is of all occupations the most certain to create, soon or later, dissatisfaction with life and with one's self.

Or, finally, it may be that the discontent of which you complain is rooted in selfishness. This is a lamentably common cause of discontent, and it is one certain to cause discontent when present in any marked degree.

As I have repeatedly insisted in earlier writings, there is an altruistic as well as a self-regarding instinct. Overdevelopment of the latter invariably means undue repression of the former. But all instincts must be given adequate expression if life is to be really satisfying.

Hence discontent is an inevitable penalty of selfishness. And not until the self-seeking activities are in due measure replaced by activities of a self-forgetting altruism can the discontent thus caused be cured.

All of which means that if you really would escape from the discontent which torments you, you must give some time to honest self-scrutiny. Study your behavior and your dominant motives. In some faulty mode of thinking and behaving the source of your discontent is to be found.

That you may set down as certain.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

KING BORIS AND HIS ELEPHANTS.

King Boris of Bulgaria is up against it.

He has got to get rid of his elephants!

They are very nice elephants. Little used, in point of fact, and practically as good as new.

One of the elephants has a few scratches across its right hip where the king struck matches, and there is a possibility the baby elephant of the herd may have the print of a circle on its back where his excellency set a glass of wine in a moment of carelessness, but these little things happen around any house. As elephants go these days, there are no better than these with which the king would part.

It seems the elephants belong to the royal menagerie established by former Emperor Ferdinand. In Ferdinand's time a king was a king. There was some satisfaction to it. There was no such thing as skimping on one's elephants.

A king or an emperor had everything his heart desired, and Ferdinand's heart desired a whole menagerie.

Those were the days when European monarchs were on the outside of the cages where they could laugh at the animals. Now the situation is reversed—the animals laugh at the kings. And the fact that there are so few kings left to laugh at is causing great unrest among the animals.

Kaiser Wilhelm had a menagerie. It included some laughing hyenas. Only recently did it dawn on him what they had been laughing at all these years.

King Boris found himself in the position of many other monarchs: totally unable to support a wife and eighteen elephants, not to mention twelve bison, seven kangaroos, and other zoological odds and ends. It became a question of choosing between the wife and the menagerie.

The elephants presented the chief problem. They are gluttons for hay. And if Boris had any hay he would eat it himself.

So the other day he called the queen in and broke the news. "My dear," said the king, "we are reduced in circumstance. We must begin to give up luxuries and get down to plain living. I deem it in keeping with the spirit of thrift week that we make a great sacrifice and give up the non-essentials. I can think of nothing more non-essential than our elephants."

"Boris!" cried the queen, "is it as bad as that?"

"It is," replied the king, "either you agree to give up the elephants or you don't get that new hat. Choose!"

"So be it," cried the queen, wishing that old Ferdinand had stocked up the menagerie with Birds of Paradise and pheasants instead of elephants and bison in the first place.

You can't trim a hat with elephants.

Straightway Boris put in an advertisement throwing the elephants on the market. He will sell them singly or in case lots.

The keeper of the Cincinnati zoo has offered to buy the whole set if Boris will guarantee their safe shipment. At the present moment that is the fly in the ointment. The king doesn't know just how to pack a load of elephants to guard against damage in transit.

Stevedores and freight handlers are so darn rough with packages these days!

THE HEART OF SOCIALISM

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

(Copyright, 1922, by Frank Crane.)

In a recent article Walter Lippmann calls attention to the popular limitation that affects all ideas we receive. He brings out the point that most of us do not take what is told us as it is given, but that we convert it into types that are already in our own minds; we pour it, as it were, into our own moulds.

That is to say, we think in catch phrases.

Most of the contents of our minds are canned goods. It is a rare mind whose contents are fresh and fluid.

When we speak of socialism, for instance, most of us simply get the vague idea of the solidarity of society. There is awakened in us stirrings of old, familiar notions of universal brotherhood, of co-operation, and of the unity of mankind. Of socialism as a definite and elaborate scheme, we have only an indistinct conception. Probably not one in a thousand of us uses the word in this sense.

Hence it is true, especially of those who become passionate upon the subject, that what they are really heated about is that central thought of the unity of humanity which is the core of the great religions. This central thought is true, it is wholesome, and it is more or less self-evident.

Unfortunately, however, socialism has a hundred forms of manifestation. Some conceive of it as a natural, normal, and inevitable growth of human society. They look upon it as a phase of social evolution. As such, it doubtless has its place among other scientific discoveries, and is entitled to the respect of all thinkers.

To many others socialism is primarily a scheme for the division of property. It is something that has to do with economics. It is a device. It is something artificial which attracts the hosts of envy and makes it what it often becomes—a huge cave of Adullam, where the failures, the petulant, and the dissatisfied give vent to protest.

If we could only think clearly and feel the heart of socialism, it would mean much toward the welfare of the world.

For its heart is undoubtedly sound. Its heart is the elevation of humanity above all nationalisms, above class distinction, above all those oppressive authorities that come from privilege of one kind or another.

Valued with this understanding, the core of socialism and Christianity is the same.

Most of our discussions are merely battles with catch words, the bandying to and fro of preconceived ideas and prejudices.

There are some even to whom socialism and anarchism, which are precisely opposite, mean the same thing. Needless to say in any intelligent socialism there is no place for violence nor disorder.

BURIED TREASURE

It was an idiotic thing to do, Anne Warren told herself, half smiling, half fearful, but she had to do it. That was all. She had to see it all once more—the old town, with its gray roofs and maple trees, the one particular gray roof under which she had been born, the quiet academy where she had learned that Vineville was not all of earth, and the river where she had rowed, fished, swam, and gathered water lilies, where, indeed, she had once come near drowning and had only been saved by her long hair and the sure hand of Tom Whipple.

Yes, she owed her life to Tom Whipple. She wondered if he remembered the fact as well as she did. He stepped before her as he had looked the last time she had seen him—tall, squarely built, dark, and plain till his flashing eyes came. Not everybody could make Tom Whipple smile, but she had seldom failed until the day he had dragged her into his boat, sopping wet inside and out, with her hair full of sand where she had touched bottom. How white his face had been! It came to her now as then that he had perhaps cared more than she thought. But before she could find out Aunt Ella had whisked her away.

She had had seventeen years of Aunt Ella—trying years, full of service to an old woman who saw life as one vast ego. They had sought health all the way from the sunshine of California to the crisp airs of Nova Scotia, and in the end Aunt Ella had died peaceably of lobster salad eaten in her own home. She left Anne nothing but a vast education in traveling and nursing and a professed training in patience. Of a truth she had nothing to leave. And as Anne had never had much money of her own she found it necessary to go to work.

It was not difficult for her to get a secretaryship. In fact, she might have done without the secretaryship and married, but she did not care for either of the two men who came wooing. No, she would rather work all the days of her life than marry some one she did not love. But first before she settled down to her job, she would go back across five states to Vineville and see if everybody had forgotten her. She believed they had.

At thirty-five Anne was better looking than she had been at eighteen, though she did not know it. Much traveling had given her a gracefully sophisticated air. She had met people of all kinds and conditions and learned from them. When she put a smart black hat on her fair head and buttoned close her cleverly cut coat she was worthy of a great many glances. And she received them, too, during her two days' journey.

So it chanced she reached Vineville with a smart hat and suit still unsullied. A cab took her through the midnight street to the hotel and she fell asleep to dream that the whole town had turned out to give her a welcome home. Next morning, however, she began to find out what seventeen years had done to her memory. The whole town seemed to have turned over in her absence. A factory had brought in strangers and driven some of the old residenters away. The girls she remembered had married and forgotten her. Old people had died. She had changed so much that when she walked along the street nobody seemed to show the slightest curiosity regarding her.

She went back to the hotel and her room, keeled over on the bed, and wept many ineffectual tears. She hadn't found a soul she knew. She felt frightfully old, but when presently she arose and looked in the glass she did not find that she appeared old. At thirty-five her great-grand-mother had worn caps. At thirty-five Anne drank soda and wanted to dance. She went down to supper. After that, as the evening was cool, she decided to walk the mile out to her old home. She had saved her visit there for the last.

Through the sweet, hot dark of deep shadows underneath the trees Anne walked slowly, now and then pausing to browse at a clump of daisies, blackeyed susans, or fireweed. Two or three times a dusty car passed her, and once she recognized a face, but she was not sure. The man, who was airing a large and exuberant family in an old-fashioned car, reminded her of Tom Whipple.

"Well, if it was Tom, he looks happy and prosperous, and he certainly has family enough to keep him busy scrambling for the wherewithal of life and contentment. I'll be glad when my secretary work begins. In the mean time," Anne sighed, "I almost wish that Tom had let me remain at the bottom of the river that time."

She had come within sight of the old place. A gasp escaped her. The house was gone. A charred beam or two told what had happened to it. But the wall was still fairly intact. There were the stone steps that had led to the front door and the lilac bush beside it. A cuckoo in one of the tall trees began throatily to speak. In a distant pasture a cowbell jangled heavily. On the crest of the hill was the graveyard where some of her own ancestors lay. Her own parents reposed far away. There was nothing to remind her of them and her youth but the foundation of the old house and the lilac tree.

"Homecomings are mightily unsatisfactory," Anne thought, as she stared across the darkening valley. "Life is unsatisfactory, too. I don't believe I like living very well. But I suppose I must go on with it for a time."

A car whisked down the road in a cloud of dust, got out of her sight among some bushes and did not reappear. When a man came stalking toward her through the yellow clover and young wintergreens she knew that Tom Whipple had found her out.

"I thought it was you when I passed you on the road," he said. "But I couldn't stop then, for the kids had been in swimming and I had to get them home. How are you, Anne? You are one of the few people who doesn't change."

"Not changed!" cried Anne. She realized that he had changed very much indeed for the better. "Why, I have changed so much that old Mr. Pease at the postoffice didn't know me, and Angie Clapp, who works at the hotel, did not display a glance of recognition."

Tom laughed in his deep, hearty way. Then he sat down upon the steps beside her. "Well, to tell the truth, I wasn't sure," Tom said. "So I came back to see. And here you were. Well, Anne," after a moment he went on, "the old house was burned up one winter night three years ago. I always thought some boys broke in and started a fire."

Anne did not speak. He went on telling her things, bits of history and incident, finally drawing her out to speak about herself. "I was with Aunt Ella till she died. Now I'm taking a holiday till I begin as Mrs. Hawyer's secretary. I just thought I'd fly back and take a look around. I'm going away tomorrow——" said Anne.

He laid his hand over hers. "Oh, no, you musn't. Why, we're just beginning to get acquainted," Tom reminded her.

She liked the touch of his strong, honest fingers, but she drew her hand away.

"And, anyway," Tom said, quietly, "you owe me something."

"Oh, I know that," Anne cried. "It was noble in you, Tom. "I'll never forget it. But sometimes I wish you hadn't."

His face sobered. "But you can't help yourself. I have."

"I can't help wondering, if my life was worth saving," Anne said sadly.

He stared at her an instant before he understood. "Oh, you mean the time I pulled you out of the river by your hair. But I meant something different, Anne."

"What do you mean, she asked in curiosity.

He looked away, flushing. "I mean that I've cared about you unrequited for seventeen years," he said slowly.

And now Anne sat staring at him. Suddenly her mood broke in a laugh. "Oh, Tom," she cried, "how funny for you to say that—you, with a carload of children such as I just saw you with."

"But they aren't my children," Tom explained. "They're my sister's. She came to live with me six years ago when her husband died. Dave didn't leave much, and as I was doing pretty well as a civil engineer and my house stood empty half the time I told Lou to come and live with me. But she's going to have a home of her own pretty soon—going to be married, you see—and that will leave me alone again." Again he held his hand over hers. "So that's one reason besides my loving you for seventeen years that you ought to give me a thought or two."

This second time Anne drew her hand away. "But if you cared like that, why didn't you look me up?" she inquired coldly.

"Because I didn't know where to look for you. I did my best, believe me, Anne; then I sat down to wait for you to come to me. I had faith you would, and there's a lot in willing a thing to be done, if you will hard enough."

"Do you suppose that was why I did come? I wonder," Anne murmured.

Anne's cheeks burned. She looked down. For the third time Tom's big kindly hand rested over hers. And this time she did not draw her hand away.

Rheumatism at 60

S. S. S. Thoroughly Rids the Body of Rheumatism Impurities.

Somebody's mother is suffering tonight! The scourge of rheumatism has wrecked her body; limping and suffering, bent forward, she sees but the common ground, but her aged heart still belongs to the stars! Does anybody care? S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-purifiers known, and it helps build more blood cells. Its medicinal ingredients are purely vegetable. It never disarranges the stomach. It is, in fact, a splendid tonic, a blood maker, a blood enricher. It banishes rheumatism from joints, muscles and the entire body. It builds firm flesh. It is what somebody's mother needs tonight! Mother, if you can not go out to get a bottle of S. S. S. yourself, surely somebody in your family will. Somebody, get a bottle of S. S. S. now! Let somebody's mother begin to feel joyful again tonight. Maybe, maybe it's your mother! S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger also is the more economical.

How glorious you will feel, mother, when your rheumatism is all gone. Let S. S. S. do it. It will build you up, too!

RODEO PLANS TAKE SHAPE HERE MONDAY

Building of Arena and Holding Show at Call Field in Connection With the Live Stock Show Suggested.

Suggested That Dates Be Postponed in Interest of Sales. Feature of Live Stock Show and of Rodeo.

Plans for the holding of a spring rodeo in connection with the Wichita Falls livestock show, which contemplate the erection of an arena and the holding of the rodeo at Call Field, assumed definite shape Monday afternoon with a conference between the fair and rodeo committee of the Chamber of Commerce and Tom Burnett, Wichita county ranchman who has staged the last two annual rodeos. Mr. Burnett was accompanied by Fog Horn Clancy, publicity director and assistant business manager of the former rodeos, and Tommy Kirnan, widely known rider.

The matter will be presented for discussion at a called session of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce to be held at 10:00 o'clock this morning.

Dates for the holding of the show, now fixed for March 22-24, will be postponed until the middle or latter part of April, if the recommendations made to the committee, and to be transmitted by the committee to the livestock association, are adopted by the latter. This was suggested by Mr. Clancy, who expressed the opinion that the April show dates would make possible much better sales, and for this reason will draw more widely from Northwest Texas and Southwestern Oklahoma, than would dates immediately after the Fort Worth show, which draws most of its stock from the same territory.

Believes in Show Here

Clancy, who is connected with the Fort Worth show, expressed the belief that a highly successful show could be put on here, declaring that this city was ideally located with reference to the livestock district. He also expressed the opinion that recognition and contributions toward prizes could be obtained for the show from the national and state associations of the various breeds which would compete.

The building of an arena and stands at Call Field for the rodeo was favored by all present. The uncertainty of obtaining the base ball grounds each year, and the expense of obtaining them and putting them back into playing shape, were mentioned in this connection. The saving of this expense would soon pay for the grounds, Clancy declared, and he pointed out that such a field, making possible the staging of big footbal games and other athletic events here in the fall, would pay for itself within a short time.

Arena Plans.

The enclosure of sufficient space to permit the building of a three quarter mile track, is the plan which is favored in this connection. Stands will be built around this space, according to the plans, and parking space provided for those who prefer to view the events from their cars. Stands sufficient for the first year, with temporary covering, will cost in the neighborhood of $12,000 it is estimated, making the first investment, according to belief of the committee, toward a permanent Wichita Falls fair. Transportation is a problem which it was the belief of those present, could be easily arranged—for transportation of people either by the running of shuttle trains, or possibly through bringing street car service nearer the field. The distance to Call Field is less than the distance either to the Fort Worth show grounds, or the fair grounds at Dallas. Referring to the success of the past years rodeo, Clancy said that it was recognized as the best in the country—superior, he said, to the celebrations staged at either Cheyenne, Wyoming, or Pendleton, Oregon. He reminded the members of the committee that the rodeo here was featured in a full page display in the Sunday rotogravure section of the New York Times last year.

Says Not Moneymaker.

Despite the large crowds attracted to the rodeo, it is not a money making proposition, Mr. Burnett declared. He did not stage the rodeo here as a money making proposition, he said, declaring that he had taken responsibility for $19,000 expenses last year, and made less than $2000. He had Clancy read the financial statement from last year's show, showing a net profit to him of a little over $2000 dollars. "And I was still paying bills out of that last summer when Fog Horn Clancy was clear up in Michigan," he declared. "I was reputed to have made anything from $15,000 to $20,000 out of that rodeo. I wish some of those fellows could see these expense accounts."

He offered, however, to make a personal donation of $500 toward the building of the arena at Call Field.

Members of the committee present were: W. F. Weeks, chairman; W. E. Norton, vice chairman; C. W. Snider, W. D. Cline, M. J. Gardner, Jerome S. Stone and Guy R. Jones.

CLEVER CRACKSMEN RESORT TO RUSE IN ROBBING SAFE

By Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Cracksmen placed a dummy safe made of cardboard and oil cloth in the window of the United Motor service corporation today to fool the police while they robbed the real safe. They escaped with a code book for making keys for ignition locks and with $800 in liberty bonds and jewelry.

POLK COUNTY MAN GIVEN PLACE IN HEALTH DEPT.

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 30.—Dr. Harry E. Downs of Corrigan, Polk county, today became director of the bureau of child hygiene of the state health department succeeding Mrs. Lyda King. Mrs. King resigned on account of sickness in her family, state health officer John H. Florence announced.

Dr. Downs served overseas with the Red Cross during the world war.

Weights and Measures Dept. Recommended

Creation of a department of inspection of weights and measures, with authority over every line of business offering food, drugs or other necessary commodities to the public, is recommended to the city by a petition framed Monday afternoon by a committee headed by J. M. McFall, appointed at a meeting of dealers in gasoline and oil Monday morning.

The plan of inspecting the gasoline pumps, to safeguard the measurements has been originally proposed in some quarters, with the suggestion that an inspector be maintained through a tax on each pump in the city. The committee, however, urges that a department of inspection of all weights and measures be created, and maintained by aproropriations from the regular tax funds.

Thirty signatures had been secured to the petition Monday evening, according to the chairman, J. M. McFall. It is planned to present this petition for the consideration of the various civic clubs both men and women's, in the city, and to bring it to the city council for action next week.

There would be no fairness in penalizing the gasoline dealers, to the extent of putting a special tax on them, members of the committee pointed out, especially when a department of weights and measures is included in the working personnel in practically all larger cities. There was no objection voiced to such supervision, but the feeling was general that it should be extended to all lines of commodities offered the public for sale, and for food stuffs especially.

Dr. A. H. Douglas, director of the health board, has been working with the dealers in this connection, and was instrumental in framing the petition.

OIL COMPANY BUYS LEASES FROM SPENCER

Purchase by the American Consolidated Petroleum corporation of two producing leases in the Iowa Park district from Judge C. F. Spencer was announced Monday. The newly purchased properties comprise a 130-acre tract out of the Lochridge pool, one of the oldest shallow producing areas in the county, with eight producers, and a 50-acre lease out of the Burnett ranch, with five producers. The purchase price was not made public.

The further development of this acreage is contemplated, as soon as the water scarcity is relieved, the company announces.

The increase of the monthly dividend rate from 1½ to 2 per cent, effective January 1, 1922, was also announced Monday. The company has paid to date 28½ per cent in dividends, since the organization in May, 1920.

A sales department has been added to the executive offices in this city, it is announced, the offices being located at 905-907 American National bank building. J. Wharton is president, Vaughn T. Jones, treasurer and W. Martin, secretary. Vice presidents and directors of the corporation include, L. F. Ramming, J. F. Hund, L. A. Bewley, C. M. Cates, L. F. Mansfield, and L. E. Jones.

OIL AND MONEY AFFAIRS BRIGHT SAYS OBREGON

By Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 30.—Negotiations between the Mexican government and New York bankers are "proceeding with satisfaction to all concerned, and every day brings a settlement nearer," said President Obregon today.

Referring to the agreement with the American oil men, President Obregon asserted that an amicable adjustment had been reached but that for the sake of convenience, the export taxes to be collected under the decree of last June are merely deferred indefinitely awaiting a final agreement with the bankers.

President Obregon explained that the money collected for these taxes is to be used for payment on the foreign debt, and that inasmuch as arrangements have not yet been made the revenues are to be held intact for future use. "The government has reserved the right, however," the president added, "to notify the oil men at any time that the revenues under the special export tax are to be paid."

He was exceedingly optimistic in his statements with regard to oil and financial affairs.

General Obregon admitted he had received "some data relative to the alleged activities of certain persons in the United States working in conjunction with certain Mexican exiles, to foment a revolution in Mexico."

Answering a question as to what course the government would pursue, General Obregon said.

"We can only deal with these alleged conspirators as we encounter them, if, as has been suggested, certain North Americans who are charged with conspiracy against this government, attempt to enter Mexico, we shall proceed against them and punish them accordingly."

Contrary to expectations, President Obregon did not announce today the men he has in mind to fill the vacant posts of minister of war, agriculture and commerce and industry.

NEVER HAPPIER MRS. WHITAKER TELLS PASTOR

Self-Confessed Slayer of Husband Says Deed Had to Be Done and She Is Glad It Is Over.

Says Quarreled Night Before Over Way She Made Butter; May Change Murder Charge to Insanity.

"I never felt happier or more contended in my life," declared Mrs. John A. Whitaker, aged local resident who Sunday confessed to having killed her husband with an axe while talking at her cell at the county jail Monday with the assistant pastor of a local church of which she and her husband were members.

"It just had to be done and now I am glad that it is all over," she added as she talked freely of the early Saturday morning tragedy which was made known Sunday when her son arrived from Marlow, Oklahoma after being summoned here by his mother following the killing. The attitude is on line with the statement to the police Sunday of the son T. L. Whitaker who said that his mother appeared calm and less nervous than at any time in the last few years when he arrived at the house Sunday afternoon.

Monday with her only son in this part of the country she planned the funeral of her victim. The funeral services were held at a local undertaking establishment Monday afternoon, the Rev. J. D. Pickston, assistant pastor of the First M. E. church South having charge.

Husband Buried.

At Mrs. Whitaker's request her husband was buried in Rosemont cemetery where she and her husband secured a lot several months ago when their daughter, Mrs. Tom Hurd, died here. She directed other details in connection with the funeral services which were largely attended by friends of the aged couple.

At her cell Mrs. Whitaker talked freely of the tragedy and events in the lives of herself and husband leading up to it. From her statements she seems to realize the enormity of her deed but apparently continues in her attitude of believing that she was fully justified, according to officers and others who talked with her. An added detail to the tragedy was given Monday by Mrs. Whitaker when she declared that she and her husband had been quarreling up to midnight before the early morning killing. She said her husband had complained about the way she made butter.

May Change Charge.

Information elicited from county and district officials Monday indicated that a formal charge of insanity would be placed against Mrs. Whitaker. At present she is being held on a murder charge. Officials and officers said that to date their investigation had led to no other conclusion than that the woman was temporarily insane when she committed the gruesome deed.

Dr. J. S. White, superintendent of the Northwest Texas Insane Asylum visited her at the jail Monday. He later appeared before the grand jury of the thirtieth district court now in session. No announcement has been made regarding his findings.

Mrs. Whitaker was arrested Sunday afternoon after she told her son, living in Marlow, the details of the tragedy. She said that she killed her husband with an axe as he lay in bed about 4 o'clock Saturday morning. She then stayed at the house with her 7-months-old granddaughter alone until Sunday afternoon when the son arrived. She summoned the son here by wire Saturday morning, telling him that his father was ill. She told the details of the killing to her son and then surrendered to Sheriff Smith.

Due to error in information, the Record News in its Monday morning issue said that Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court refused the aged couple a divorce last July. A local attorney, was acting judge of the 89th district court on the date the divorce proceedings were heard and refused to grant Mrs. Whitaker a divorce.

LORCH AGAIN PLEASES IN DUAL ROLE

Before a house that was well filled in spite of the inclement weather, and which included a number who had seen the play at its previous showing here by the same company, Theodore Lorch again gave his clever performance of the dual role of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

The versatility actor in representing the loyable doctor, as well as that of his demonine other self, as pictured in Stevenson's masterpiece drew repeated tributes from the audience. As on previous occasions Mr. Lorch was capably supported by the other members of his company.

The "Unkissed Bride," the play for the remainder of the week, has its opening performance tonight.

MOVE BEGUN IN HALL COUNTY FOR BETTER POULTRY

Special to the Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Jan. 30.—W. G. Quigley of the citizens State Bank of Memphis in his talk at the one day poultry school here today said he was authorized to say that all three banks of Memphis would make loans to farmers for the purpose of buying standard bred eggs or baby chicks. He said that every farmer who has chickens, cows and hogs makes a success and those who do not, fail.

Another prominent banker says that when a farmer applies for a loan he always asks how many standard bred chickens do you keep. This record is attached to the note. G. A. Sager, chairman of the finance committee of the poultry school, announced that every bank in Hall county will render financial assistance to the farmer for the purpose of buying standard bred chickens, eggs for hatching or for building houses necessary for poultry raising. In spite of cold weather Hall, Collinsworth and Childress counties came to Memphis to hear the lectures of the poultry specialists at the forenoon session.

Rondoliers To Be Heard Here Tonight

The Merry Rondoliers, "Lyceum's Liviest Entertainers," are bringing their original "pep program" to this city tonight 8:00 p. m. at First M. E. church, south, Tenth and Lamar streets.

The Rondoliers is one of the most popular entertainments now in public work—popular because they not only give a clean, wholesome entertainment, but for the further reason that they give a high speed program that pleases everybody. It is an entertainment brimful of fun, with music galore, and with action every minute.

The Rondoliers consist of five talented young artists who will be heard in a variety of vocal and orchestral combinations. They give a peppy, punchy, popular program, presenting the kind of music you like, and making ever-changing combinations in their instrumental ensemble. They feature cornet, trombone and trumpet trio a harmony saxophone quartet, orchestral group, vocal ensemble, combination of two violins and lano, comedy readings and sketches, and excellent solo work on violin, cornet, trombone and saxophone.

The members are Mr. William Larson, Gertrude Erickson, Della Erickson, Emily McGregor and Mr. Walter Reed.

DON'T INTEND TO CHANGE ON ROAD MATTER

There will be no change in the attitude of the county commissioners court regarding the paving program to be followed out after the completion of the Burkburnett road so far as they are concerned, according to expressions of opinion Monday by Commissioners Prescott, Kuntz, and Haynes whose unified action several weeks ago resulted in a change in the previously accepted road improvement schedule.

There was no discussion among members of the court at the regular weekly meeting Monday. Commissioner Jackson of this city asked the other three members of the court regarding their attitude in the future and they stated it was unchanged.

Statements from the three members after the meeting indicated that they believe that the contract which the county has with the federal and state officials including that of Potts and Prentice, contractors will not hold if the commissioners court decides to change the terms of the agreement.

UNIVERSITY CLUB HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

Open house will be held by the University club today for all local business and professional men when Major William P. Morgan, a noted speaker and lecturer on business and social conditions, will address the members of the club.

MEET SUCCESS IN THE SALE OF AUTO PLATES

Legion Committees Pushing Plan to "Tell the World" About Wichita Falls; Dual Purpose Served.

Wichita Falls motorists in large numbers will be able to "tell the world" where they live, thanks to the activities of the American Legion, the "salesmen" of the name plates, reporting a very gratifying success for their first efforts, Monday afternoon.

The name plates, of bright green enamel, carry the name "Wichita Falls," in white letters, three inches high. They are sold in pairs, to be placed below the state license number plate in both front and rear of an automobile.

By this means the Legion is hoping to raise "beaucoup jack" as well as to provide a good advertising medium for Wichita Falls when ever motorists make cross country trips, as frequently happens. Each check for $2, what the name plates cost, per pair, means a profit in the Pat Carrigan Post treasury.

Ben Neal is general sales manager for the two days drive.

The following salesmen are announced for the various down town districts:

Eight street and Bog Waggoner building; Zeb Nixon, sales manager; Dr. Lucey, J. W. Chatham, Guy Rogers, Norris Ewing, C. V. Chenault.

City National building and Scott avenue: Dr. Fletcher, sales manager; B. D. Sartin, L. T. Burns, Dr. Parnell, Dr. McClory, Sam Black.

American National building and Indiana avenue: J. B. Hatchitt, sales manager; W. E. George, O. T. Ailes, A. L. Taylor, J. R. Claypool, Ernest Thornton.

WAVE RETURNS MAN SWEPT OVERBOARD TO DECK OF YACHT

By Associated Press.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Jan. 30. —Gordon Woodbury, former assistant secretary of the navy, was swept over the railing of his yacht "Half Moon" forty miles off Cape Charles Friday night but was returned by a wave to the ship, it was stated tonight when the yacht, formerly the "Germania" private yacht of Emperor William of Germany, was towed into Oldpoint Comfort, in a damaged condition by the Standard Oil tanker Japan Arrow.

Several members of the crew were also swept over the rail, it was added, but all but one were rescued. The Japan Arrow came up a few minutes later and got a tow aboard.

HERMES DECLINES POST OF AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—Dr. Andreas Hermes, minister of food, had definitely declined appointment as Ambassador to the United States. His declination is largely due to leading members of his own party, who desired him to retain his post in the cabinet.

PUBLIC GIFTS OF ROCKEFELLER ONCE PENNY DONATIONS

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—John D. Rockefeller, whose public gifts approximate $500,000,000, started his benefactions with contributions of five cents a week to foreign missions and three cents to the poor, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., his son, yesterday told the members of his Sunday school class in the Fifth avenue Baptist church. The Standard Oil magnate kept a ledger which showed such items, his son said.

MUSIC AND BUSINESS AT KIWANIS CLUB

Musical numbers of excellence, and business matters which involved considerable discussion, featured the Monday luncheon of the Kiwanis club. The address by Ma Burdick which was on schedule for the program's feature was postponed, the speaker being unable to attend because of illness in her family.

Mrs. Harold Carpenter, of New York City, at one time a resident of Wichita Falls, a sister of Kiwanian Leroy Schneror, sang several numbers which were much enjoyed. Prof. F. F. Loew at the piano was another feature of the entertainment.

The attendance prize, $10 worth of merchandise from the D. L. Fritz Motor company, was won by J. W. Green, and Pat Jarrett announced that some very extraordinary automatic, self lighting thatch boxes were available for distribution from his place of business, as the "silent boost" of the day.

ELECT KEITH MEMBER C. OF C. BOARD MONDAY

George D. Keith, local produce merchant and prominent in the promotion of pure bred stock in this section in addition to his other business interests, was elected a director of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of the board held Monday morning. Mr. Keith takes the place of N. H. Martin, resigned recently because of the press of private interests. A special nominating committee consisting of J. M. McFall, W. D. Cline and W. F. Weeks, presented Mr. Keith's name.

Expressing their regret at Mr. Martin's resignation from the board on which he has served for several years, and for one year as president, the board also expressed their satisfaction at, having Mr. Keith to succeed him, and to represent a phase of activity which the Chamber of Commerce expects to make one of predominance during the next few years, with the development of the big irrigation project.

A request that the Chamber of Commerce make some expression as to the Muscle Shoals project, sent from Alabama, was acted on by the board, a resolution favoring the taking over of the project by some private enterprise, being passed. The road question was brought up, but majority of the directors expressing the belief that it would work itself out equitably in the end.

8 NOTRE DAME GRID MEN PUT ON BLACK LIST

All-American End Included Among Players Who Confess to Participating in Semi-Pro Game.

Gus Desch and John Mohardt Are Exonerated by Teammates of Any Implication in the Affair.

Special to the Record News.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 30.—Eight Notre Dame university athletes today voluntarily confessed to Father William Clarey, chairman of the athlegic board and Knute Rockne, football coach, that they had played in the semi-professional football game at Taylorville, Ill., November 27, 1921, with the Carlinville, Ill., team. They were immediately disqualified from further athletic competition at Notre Dame.

The eight men were:

Chester Wynne, Orinoque, Kan., all-western conference full back selection of several football writers and star hurdler.

Roger Kiley, Chicago, varsity end, captian of the basket ball team and star track man.

Robert Phelan, Fort Madison, Iowa, sub-tarsity fullback.

Earl Walsh, Adrian, Iowa, subvarsity back.

Dick Seifert, Carlinville, Ill., subend.

The players exonerated Gus Desch, member of the American Olympic team, and John Mohardt, all-American back, from taking part in the game, saying that neither was in any way implicated in the affair.

Girl Sent to State School

The fifteen year old girl who figured for a time in the "Tony Benson case" of the police officers has been taken to the girl's training school at Gatesville according to information Monday from Juvenile Officer Yates. The girl was declared a deninquent several days ago with the consent of her parents.

It was the father of the girl according to one of Benson's stories ten days ago that attacked him in the residence part of the city. The story was later repudiated by both the father and Benson.

CASCARETS 10¢

For Constipated Bowels, Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Bilious Liver

The nicest cathartic-laxative in the world to physic your liver and bowels when you have Dizzy Headaches, Colds, Diliousness, Indigestion, or Upset, Acid Stomach is candy-like "Cascarets." One or two tonight will empty your bowels completely by morning, and you will feel splendid. "They work while you sleep." Cascarets never stir you up or gripe like Salts, Pills, Calomel, or Oil and they cost only ten cents a box. Children love Cascarets too.—Adv.

GROCERIES AT COST

NOTICE!

—We have purchased the market formerly owned and operated by the Wichita Co-operative Supply Co., and will open up a first class meat market in this same building which will be known as the Wichita Market House. We shall convert our present market at 616 Seventh street into a wholesale and retail market combined. In other words we will be specialists in the meat business. We feel that by concentrating all our energies in this particular field we shall excell.

Owing to our venture in the business of feeding and slaughtering livestock, for wholesale and retail trade, it is necessary that we have the space now occupied by our grocery department for our expansion in the meat business. In the future we will specfalize in the meat business exclusively.

We have decided to put a price on our entire stock of groceries that will move them in a few days. We advise that you call and make your purchases while our stock is complete.

Goceries at cost and under.

Record News Readers: Laugh With Us

Some Chest-Nuts

Sandy and Douglas were paying their first visit to London. They discovered that the ways of the big hotel were not their ways. In the morning they prepared to go out, but were unable to find the staircase. Sandy discovered the elevator shaft open and he promptly stepped in and tumbled to the bottom. Leaning over, Donald called to his friend "Did ye get down all right, Sandy?"

"That I did," replied Sandy; "but, mon, be careful of that first step; 'tis a brute!"

The wife was greatly pleased with her success at the woman's meeting. On her return home she said to her husband: "Yes, I was absolutely outspoken at the meeting this afternoon."

Her husband looked incredulous. "I can hardly believe it, my dear," he said. "Who in the world was it that outspoke you?"

A certain lord chancellor was in the habit of paying surprise visits to asylums at odd intervals and thereby hangs a tale. Once he arrived at a certain institution unheralded.

"I'm the lord chancellor," he said to the attendant, who was, of course, ignorant of his identity.

"Oh, you are, are you?" was the reply. "That's all right. Walk straight through. We 'ave three more of 'em in 'ere."

Seenob was very fastidious, but he was also a very hungry man, when at 1 o'clock one day he found himself in an unknown town in which only one rather cheap-looking restaurant was to be found.

The call of the inner man was not to be denied, so he pushed open the swing doors and entered. It was a rough, ill-smelling place, but he thought he could manage to get down a cup of coffee and something to eat.

The waitress brought the coffee in a thick, heavy cup.

"Where's the saucer?" inquired our fastidious friend.

"We don't give no saucers here," replied the girl. "If we did some ill-bred ignoramus would come blowin' in and drink out of his saucer, and we'd lose a lot of our most swagger trade!"

Laughing heartily, the man with the bruised nose and blackened eye was stopped by a friend who asked: "What are you laughing at?"

"A man stopped me," was the reply, "hit me three times and said: 'Take that, you Norwegian.'"

"But I don't see anything to laugh at in that," said the other.

"Why, don't you see the joke? I'm not a Norwegian, I'm a Dane."

LETTER BOX

From an Advertiser

Wichita Falls, Texas.
January, 30, 1922.

Mr. Norris Ewing,
Care The Record News,
Dear Mr. Ewing:

It is common knowledge, of course, that you are unmarried, and the natural presumption would be that you are one of the last men in Wichita Falls who might be considered a likely prospect to buy a home in this city.

Considering that fact, we do not suggest that you should consider such a purchase with the view of living in the property. But after we have called another angle to your attention, you will readily see that you or any other citizen of Wichita Falls is a live prospect whether they will ever need a home personally or not. Because—

Right at this particular time property can be bought for a smaller consideration than ever before and those who have studied the situation believe at a lesser price than at any time in the future.

By this we do not mean to suggest that all property here is being offered at a bargain price. But we do insist that some properties are being offered at a sacrifice. Ours is a fair proposition. If you will allow us the pleasure, we will show you certain buys in this city that can be picked up at ridiculously low figures.

Of course this is true only because some owner is so unfortunately situated that he must dispose of his home at a tremendous sacrifice in order to raise some cash. We are doing him a favor in finding a buyer even at a give-away price, because he must have money.

So, Mr. Ewing, now is the time to get together. You furnish the desire and the money—cash deal or time purchase—and we'll show you where you can save by buying now.

This suggestion applies not only to you but to many others who read your paper. Therefore kindly publish this on your Real Estate page at your regular rates and greatly,

Yours sincerely,
BEN NEAL, Real Estate

P. S.—Also, Mr. Ewing, if you have any friends who are anxious to sell and will put a selling price on their property, kindly advise them to get in touch with us by calling 3333, or dropping by 416 Bob Waggoner Building. Let us thank you in advance for this courtesy.

I HAVE one of the best 10 room bungalows in Wichita Falls. Strictly modern. Steam heat and all built-in features. Must be examined to be appreciated. Will trade equity for smaller house or for production. Phone 3036.

DEMPSEY BOUT WITH BRENNAN IS ANNOUNCED

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Jack Dempsey will defend his world's heavyweight boxing title against Bill Brennan of Chicago, in a 12-round match in Madison Square Garden, March 17, it was reported tonight. Managers of the pugilists stated that they would sign articles for the match tomorrow.

The Chicagoan has twice been knocked out by Dempsey. In 1918 when Jack was on his way to the title, he disposed of Brennan in six rounds and in 1920 in a championship match in Madison Square Garden Brennan was knocked out in the twelfth round.

Plans for a proposed match between Dempsey and Harry Wills, the New Orleans negro heavyweight have not been abandoned because of the Brennan arrangement, it was said.

NEW PLAN DEVISED TO RID STAGE OF CRITICIZED PLAYS

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—A new plan to eliminate or correct questionable plays was announced today.

The idea, promulgated by men of prominence in the theatrical industry, is to select a jury of 12 reputable citizens to judge a play that is under criticism and decide by a three fourths vote whether the play shall be exonerated, condemned or revised.

The vote of this jury will have the backing of powerful interests in the theatrical profession and pressure will be brought to bear upon the manager of the play concerned to follow the judy's verdict.

KENTUCKY DERBY RENEWAL ANNOUNCED FOR MAY 13

By Associated Press.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 30.—The forty-eighth annual renewal of the Kentucky Derby, the racing classic of Western Tracks for three-year-olds, will be run at Churchill Downs here Saturday, May 13, it was announced today. The race will carry $50,000 added money, but changes in rules will increase the winner's purse. Nominations for the race will be closed February 21.

NEGRO FOUND GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Luther Boddy, Harlem negro charged with the murder of two police detectives, January 5, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury in Supreme Justice Wasservogel's court tonight.

2,000,000 CHILDREN OF RUSSIA WILL BE FED

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Meals for 2,000,000 children in the famine regions of Russia will be provided by the American relief administration by March 1, according to announcement made by the local office of the relief today. Shipment of food commodities is being rushed from America.

The relief administration hopes later on to undertake the feeding of starving adults.

EXCURSION

Will leave here Saturday eve. for the noted Rio Grande Valley. The last time of this season to see her in full bloom with fruits and vegetables. Get out and see the sunshine. It will cure your cold. SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The raw market was firm and in the absence of business spot prices were nominally unchanged at 2 1-16 cents for Cubas cost and freight, equal to 3.67 for centrifugal. It was rumored that sales had been made to operators for February shipment at 2 1-8 cents cost and freight equal to 3.73 for centrifugal.

Raw sugar futures were firmer on covering and scattering buying by Wall street interests, prompted by the steadier tone of the spot market. Final prices were 7 to 11 points net higher. March 2.27; May 2.47; July 2.66; September 2.78. The market for refined was unchanged to 10 points lower, one refiner having reduced list prices to the basis of five cents for fine granulated. The demand was moderate with refiners still behind on deliveries. Refined futures were without transactions, closing unchanged to 10 points net lower with March at 5.50; May 5.60; July 5.70.

CHICAGO PRODUCE.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Butter unchanged; creamery extras 36½. Eggs higher; receipts 14,660 cases; firsts 36½@37. Poultry alive higher; fowls 24½; springs 24; roosters 18.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The buoyant tone of the foreign exchanges which seemed to be based mainly on the improvement shown in the European economic conditions, was the outstanding feature of today's financial markets.

Demand bills on London made a further advance of 3 1-4 cents to $4.28, the best quotation in over two years. French, Italian, Belgian. Dutch and most of the neutral rates rose 10 to almost 25 points, German marks were the one exception, showing no perceptible change. Trading in stocks was unusually quiet, total transactions of about 450,000 shares being the smallest for any full session this year. Price changes were very confusing, popular shares of the oil, motor, minor steel and food groups displaying occasional weakness.

Gains were limited to some of the shipments and specialties comprising the chain stores issues, but the movement in those stocks seemed largely of professional origin.

The five per cent opening rate for call loans held until the final half hour, when belated demands forced the rate to 5 1-2 per cent. Time funds were plentiful, however at 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 per cent, according to the length of maturity.

Certain industrial conditions were reflected in the lower prices quoted for various commodities, particularly crude rubber refined sugar and the sagging tendency of coppers and allied metals. Western and southwestern terminals reported only moderate increase of tonnage movements.

Foreign bonds were responsive of strength of inter-national remittances, the majority of that group, including United Kingdoms of 1922, Swiss eights and various European municipals making appreciable gains. Domestic bonds, notably liberty issues and the industrial section, were irregularly lower. Total sales (par value) aggregated $16,750,000.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Jan. 30.—Draggy markets were in evidence in most all divisions of the stock yards today. The cattle offering amounted to only 2,000 head and not more than 1,500 calves were here, but hog receipts were the greatest of the year to date, the count being close to 4,500 head, of which 600 were on through billing to the Pacific coast. In the sheep house receipts amounted to 1,000 head.

Most classes of cattle sold at steady prices, but South Texas steers, which made up the big end of the run, were quoted steady to 15c lower. The run of calves was trashy and the market dragged on a weak to 25c lower basis. Good steers sold at 6.40 to an order buyer.

Hogs averaged 20c lower. An outside buyer took one car at 8.65, but the top to packers was 8.45 and bulk sales ranged from 8.00 to 8.40. Pigs brought 5.00 to 7.00, the market being mostly steady.

Feeder lambs, selling at 8.75, represented the chief quota of the day's business in the sheep division. The market was steady. Quotations:

COFFEE

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The market for coffee futures opened at an advance of one to two points on the steadier showing of Brazil but there was scattering liquidation and after selling at 8.58 early, March contracts eased off to 8.50 and July sagged back from 8.38 to 8.34. Business was so quiet that prices responded to very small orders, sales for the day being estimated at about 6000 bags. The market closed net unchanged to five points lower, March 8.49; May 8.42; July 8.34; October 8.32; December 8.26. Spot coffee steady; Rio 7's 7⅞ to 9; Santos 4's 11⅞ to 12¼.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Cotton goods and yarns were quiet today with a softening tendency following the drop in speculative cotton markets. Silks were quiet, with raw silk much lower. Clothing fabrics for fall were purchased very conservatively. Burlaps were steady and unchanged.

OPEN SHOP IS DEBATED.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 30.—"Open Shop or Closed Shop" is the subject of debate in the fifteenth annual contest of the Nebraska High School Debating league, which starts this week and continues until the middle of April. Every high school in the state has entered a contestant. The winners will take part in a state debate tournament.

Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Buying power in the wheat market today was the most active that has been seen in several months. Estimates were current which emphasized smallness of farm reserves supplies of wheat and of mill and elevator stocks. The close was firm, 1-2c to 1 1-8c net higher, with May $1.19 3-4 to 1.19 7-8 and July 1.05 1-8 to 1.05 1-4. Corn finished 1-8 to 1-4c down, and oats off 1-8 to 1-8@1-4. In provisions, the outcome was 5c to 30c advance.

Eastern interests in particular were credited with heavy buying of wheat, and a big elevator concern here was also said to have taken hold freely as a purchaser. Nevertheless, during the first part of the session the amount of selling to realize profits was of sufficient volume to make prices average lower, and it was approaching mid-day before upturns in price acquired much impetus. Meanwhile estimates of farm reserves were circulated putting the total at 140,000,000 bushels as against 264,000,000 bushels a year ago. Mill and elevator stocks were figured at 95,000,000 bushels, a notable reduction compared with the customary aggregate. An advance in sterling exchange and a cold wave threatening unprotected fields of winter wheat tended further to stimulate buying.

Hedging sales against purchases of corn to arrive had a depressing influence on the value of corn and oats. Besides, the visible supply both of corn and oats showed a fair increase.

Higher quotations on hogs together with some export business in lard did a good deal to lift the price of provisions.

Cotton

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The cotton market was weak and unsettled today. Prices not only lost the rallies of late last week but broke into new low ground for the movement, selling about $3 per bale below Saturday's closing quotations. March declined to the 16c level and May sold at 15.80, the lowest price touched since the advance to 22.38 for that position early last September. Trade interests were reported, good buyers on a scale down and last prices were 10 or 12 points up from the lowest, with May quoted at 15.90 and with the general market closing steady at a net decline of 35 to 53 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 15 points which was better than due on the showing of Liverpool and also well above a parity with opening prices in New Orleans. As a result both Liverpool and New Orleans sold heavily here, with Liverpool a particularly heavy seller of July, presumably against purchases in the English market. The showing of the Liverpool cable was a disappointment to local buyers of late last week, who had anticipated that the improved conditions reported in Bombey and Egypt would be reflected in the English market.

Private cables, however, reported a continued absence of trade demand abroad while advices from India and Egypt failed to confirm the more optimistic reports of last Friday and Saturday. Another unfavorable influence was the persistent weakness of New Orleans, accompanied by complaints of a poor spot demand, and while there was trade buying on a scale downward, the decline continues with prices reaching the low levels during the middle of the afternoon when July contracts sold at 15.50, making net declines of 60 to 65 points on the old crop and of 40 to 53 points on new crop positions. Japanese interests were credited with heavy purchases of July, their buying of that position being estimated at about 50,000 bales on a scale down from the opening prices.

Rumors that cotton might be shipped here from New Orleans for delivery were in circulation again today but without definite confirmation. Exports today 25,436, making 3,369,730 so far this season. Port receipts 0,167; U. S. port stocks 1,205,775.

LIVERPOOL SPOT COTTON.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 30.—Cotton spot, quiet; prices steady. Good middling 10.17; fully middling 9.77; middling 9.42; low middling 8.47; good ordinary 7.22; ordinary 6.47. Sales 6,000 bales, including 2,150 American.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Cottonseed oil advanced 17 to 21 points through general short covering on the strength in crude and lard. Subsequently realizing sales caused a setback, closing bids being 10 to 13 points net higher. Sales 40,500 barrels. Prime crude 8.75@8.00; prime summer yellows spot 9.00; March 9.30; May 9.55; July 8.82, all bid.

LONDON WOOL.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—A small selection, amounting to 10,650 bales, was offered at the wool sales today. Fine grades were readily sold at firm prices, but inferior sorts were in slow demand, and were frequently withdrawn.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 30.—Turning soft on the opening call today, the cotton market remained soft practically throughout the session, showing small upturns toward the end as shorts took moderate profits. After selling 52 to 76 points under the close of last week, the close was 38 to 66 points net lower on the session. March traded off to 14.84 and closed at 14.94; October traded down to 14.35 and closed at 14.49. October was less weak than the old crop months and floor comment was that whatever investment buying was being attracted by the low price levels, reached, was centered in that month.

The poor Liverpool was mainly responsible for the initial decline and its effect was increased by highly unfavorable trade accounts from Manchester and news of a fresh break in the price of Egyptian cotton. Further selling resulted from the cold weather in the belt, which was considered highly favorable for the soil, in connection the crop yet to go. Reports that cotton was being certificated here to be shipped to New York and tendered against March contracts there caused a good deal of selling.

GET SEVEN IN OIL CITY BOOZE RAID

In connection with the raid of federal and state officers Sunday at Oil City in the Bunger oil pool of Young county, Mrs. C. Miller, Elzie De Spain, Mrs. L. A. Bordeaux, Jim Wilson, Ernest Tubb, C. Allen and C. J. Bracheen were arraigned before United States Commissioner Lantz Monday and waived preliminary hearings on charges of having sold liquor in violation of federal prohibition acts.

The three women were released under $300 each and the four men $500 each. According to Sergeant McCormick of the state ranger force and Deputy United States Marshall Dodgen, who conducted the raid, the seven men and women were arrested in soft drink stands and drug stores in the new oil field town.

The officers also destroyed a still of twenty gallons daily capacity near South Bend. The officers found a quantity of mash and five gallons of whiskey at the still. The still was located in a shed which had apparently been deserted with the approach of the officers. The officers made a general tour of South Bend and Oil City and the surrounding sections before returning here Monday.

GRAND JURY RETURNS 22 INDICTMENTS

A few hours after they had reconvened following a one-week recess, the grand jury of the 30th district court Monday afternoon returned twenty-two additional indictments against twelve people. A total of seventy-three indictments have now been returned since it started work January 2. Two other partial reports were made previously.

The indictments returned Monday were against persons whose cases were investigated previous to the week's recess. None of the indictments will be made public until arrests have been made.

The grand jury in its report said that they had not completed their work and continued in session during the remainder of the afternoon. Although no indications were given as to when the final report will be made it is rumored that it will be during the present week.

VIRGINIAN WINS VERDICT OF CENT IN DAMAGE CASE

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—John Armstrong Chaloner of Merrymills, Va., won a verdict for one-cent today in the supreme court of the District of Columbia in his civil damage suit against the Washington Post. The case came up for re-trial here, a verdict for $10,000 rendered in 1916 in favor of Chaloner having been reversed by the United States supreme court.

Chaloner based his suit on an article printed by the Post in 1909, relating to the shooting of John Gillard an Englishman on Chaloner's Virginia estate.
