SKELETON OF INDIAN FOUND NEAR GUYMON

Last Sunday afternoon while George Foreman and Billy Bales were crossing a field to get a disc to bring to town for repairs they noticed part of the top of a skelton protruding from the ground. Upon closer investigation it was found to be the body of someone who had been buried several years previously that of an Indian from the abundance of beads and other trinkets pechliar to Indians.

The dirt was dug away from the body and before taken from the earth a photograph was made of the skeleton. Before raising the remains the bones were all in place, but when disturbed the bones fell away at the joints. The bullet, resulting in his death, entered the head a little above the forehead and lodged there.

On the right arm at the elbow was what appeared to be the sling of his tomahawk. There was also found in the grave a small wallet somewhat decayed, but which contained several rifle bullets, some paper and other little articles, including two small stones or rocks which he evidently had valued. Most of the smaller beads when picked up immediately pulverized, showing the effect of age.

Several years ago Mr. Foreman found the bones of a horse, probobly the one which the Indian had ridden, about twenty steps west of where the skelton was dug up Sunday. Mr. Foreman also recalls an incident of two or three years ago in which he found three or four human teeth laying upon the ground near the grave, and at the time thought it queer that they would be there with no signs pointing to the presence of a body near. The body was evidently aged when killed for the teeth which remained in the skull were very much worn down and square.

At present the bones are arranged according to their proper location and on display in the Owl Drug store. —Guymon Tribune.

WHY IS IT?

Why is it that so many people will ask their home merchants or the editor of their home paper to cut prices for them, and then step into a store in the city and buy something without even a suggestion of lower prices? Or why is it that some people will send a check for the full amount of the printed price in a mail order catalogue, but will finger the price mark on goods in a store at home and ask if that can't be trimmed down a bit, since they are "good customers." And why, oh why, will the same people send away a check for something because it looks cheap, without asking the merchant if he can duplicate it? No one has ever answered these questions, so we have to take it that it is just a trait of human nature; this thing of thinking that home people don't like money as well as strangers, or that they don't want to live as well as other people. Driving a bargain is all right. But there's difference between driving a bargain and trying to talk a neighbor out of an honest profit. Wouldn't it be a better community all around if we could drill this into the heads of those who most frequently, insist upon talking the home merchant out of the little profit he is bound to make if he stays in business? —Groom Booster.

The Liberal Kansas Golf Club has promised to send 8 or 10 players over this following Sunday. May 4th. The local club has made improvements on their course and are ready to meet the Liberal bunch. Anyone interested in clean sport are invited to come out, as the Liberal men are good sports as the writer well knows.

Bernard Hurter, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hurter of the Huntoon community, was stricken with appendicitus Thursday of last week and was taken to the Shattuck Hospital and operated Friday. The latest report is that he is doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Cutter left Monday for Amarillo where they will attend the Odd Fellows and Rebakah Saddle Association. They will be there several days.

Mrs. Wilbanks left Monday for Western Kansas on business.

FEEDING BABY CHICKS

Success in raising baby chicks depends largely upon feeding proper rations. Chicks must get a good start if they are to develope into growing stock and good layers. Strong chicks are necessary but they also require good environmental conditions such as clean quarters that are free from dampness and kept at a comfortable tempature. A properly selected diet is of equal importance.

Baby chicks require a ration that will supply nutrients necessary to furnish heat and energy as well as to manafacture bone and muscle. It is also of vital importance to contain in the ration what is known as accessories for growth. Due consideration should be given that the ration be made up only of clean, wholesome feeds properly mixed and having a sufficient amount of crude fibre and roughage. A liberal supply of sour milk and fresh green feed are almost as necessary as grain for growing chicks if they are to develope properly. Plenty of fresh clean water is absolutely necessary for growing chicks and should be kept before them at all times.

The following schedule of feeding is recommended.

Remove the chicks from the incubator in the evening when they are about 36 to 48 hours old. If possible give each chick acouple of swallows of sour milk.

The following morning provide the chicks with clean sharp sand, water and sour milk. Also give them their first feed which is best if of rolled oats or ordinary oatmeal. Feed should be given dry.

Scratch Grain—First week. 1 part finely cracked corn or kafir. 1 part cracked wheat, 1 part steel cut oats. Feed the above 5 times daily but never all they will eat except the last feeding at night.

Second week—Same as first week but 4 times daily.

3rd to 8th week—Same as first two weeks but 3 times daily.

9th week to Maturity.—2 parts cracked corn or kaffir. 2 parts wheat. 1 part oats.

Mash (Keep before chicks at all times), Bran.

2 parts bran, 1 part middlings, 1 part cifted ground oats, 1 part corn meal.

2 parts bran, 1 part middlings, 1 part sifted ground oats, 1 part corn meal, ½ part beef scraps.

1 part bran, 1 part middlings, 1 part sifted ground oats, 1 part corn meal, ½ part meat scraps.

A FIRM SEEDBED PAYS

A reader writes us: "From observation and from experience, I conclude that I have made a mistake in planting cotton, as well as other crops on freshly broken and prepared land. Three years ago I planted a one-acre plot in cotton, half of the plot having been broken early in the spring. The other half was broken, harrowed, and rows run the same day that the entire lot was planted. A good stand was secured on the whole acre, but there was a marked difference in the growth of the two divisions, the early broken side making a better growth and a heavier yield than the other."

The above note is timely and important, since poor stands and poor growth after germination often come from planting on too loose a seedbed. If it should be necessary to sow the seed on freshly prepared land we should by all means use a roller; but the better plan is to prepare the land far enough ahead of planting to allow the soil to settle. Nothing will do this better than a rain. The ideal seedbed is one that has been prepared by thorough pulverization of the soil and settled or firmed by a good rain.Such a seedbed, when harrowed and dragged just before planting, offers the best conditions for ease of planting and germination. Another very great advantage of planting on land that was prepared beore a rain is that while the seedbed is becoming dry enough to be worked, the weed seeds germinate and are killed when preparation for planting is made. This giving the crop a good start ahead of the weeds.

When it is necessary to plant on a freshly prepared seed bed, the use of a roller will be of great benefit to the freshly planted crop. The roller may be used beore or after planting.

HANSFORD COUNTY DISTRICT COURT

Hansford County District Court adjourned Wednesday night after a three days session. The civil docket was light and most of the time spent in disposing of the criminal cases. Dick Kennedy who was charged by indictment of the manufacture of intoxicating liquors, there being two indictments against him received a sentence of three years confinement in the penitentary in each case making a total of six years he must spend in the penitentury for violating the prohibition law. The case of The State of Texas against Finis Frizzell, charged with transporting intoxicating liquor resulted in a hung jury which stood nine for acquital and three for conviction.

District Attorney Holmes is making a fair and fearless prosecutor and we commend him for the efficient service he is rendering the State. He has made a vigorous and fair prosecutor. When the laws are violated the guilty should be punished.

R. H. MOORE FOR COMMISSIONER

R. H. Moore of Alfalfa has announced for Commissioner of Precinct Number Four. Mr. Moore has lived in this county for the past ten or twelve years and has been a progressive citizen and is one of Ochiltree Countys successful stock-farmers He is a native of Alabama and came to the west twenty-two years ago. Mr. Moore having made a success of his private business will, if elected, make the county an able officer.

NINE WAYS TO INSURE A GOOD STAND OF COTTON

If you are sure to have and keep a good stand of cotton, then you have done or will do these things.—

1. You have made an extra good seedbed well in advance of planting, have planted extra good seed extra well.

2. You will avoid planting dead seed. Read "Danger! Don't Plant Dead Cotton Seed!"

3. You will plant on a freshly dragged or harrowed surface of a well-settled seedbed, free of weeds and clods.

4. You did or will plant early.

5. You did or will use the best improved seed of a proved variety.

6. You will test your planter and regulate the feed before planting.

7. You will use a planter that firms the earth over the seedbed.

8. You will see that the furrow is opened at a uniform depth, that the seed are planted uniformly, and all covered uniformly.

9. You will cover the seed very lightly. An inch is a good depth.

"TAXES"

There is one form of tax which I believe is unjust and ought to be remedied. It is what I suppose you would call a double tax.

Many people when they buy farms pay only a small amount in cash and give notes for the balance. Then the one who buys the place must pay taxes on the whole place, and the holder of the notes has to pay taxes on the amount which he holds. This makes it especially hard where the land is high and the taxes going up each year.

The tax problems are getting more serious all the time, and I think it is time for something to be done instead of so much talk just before election time.—Elvin Lewis, in The Progressive Farmer.

Mr. Price shipped fifty eight cars of cattle Monday night. This shipment constituted a Special train and had a direct run to Emporia Kansas where he will place the cattle on summer pasturage. Mr. Price has the Billy Whitsel ranch leased over on the Canadian river.

O. J. Orr was in Perryton Tuesday, he has contracted to buy the J. W. Cook farm 8 miles northwest of here. Mr. Cook will farm the place this summer. Mr. Orr will locate here later, he is from Vernon, Texas.

Rev. Bryant and wife went to Plainview, Texas last week to attend the Parent -Teachers Association.

E. A. Ford from Amarillo was here on business Tuesday.

ANOTHER PERRYTON BOY TO CAMP THIS SUMMER

Son Antonio, Texas (Special)—The Commanding General, Eighth Corps Area, has approved the application of H. C. Coffee, Jr., of Perryton, Texas, for admittance to the Citizen's Military Camp for 1924.

Mr. Coffee will be privileged to attend the C. M. T. C. to be held at Fort Sill, Oklahoma during the month of August, all his expenses being paid by the Government.

Mr. Coffee was a member of "B" Company at last year's camp at Fort Logan, Colorado, and made an excellent record.

The quota for the camp is rapidly beng filled and young men desiring to attend should write Van W. Stewart, of Perryton, Texas, County Chairman of the Military Training Camps Association, or the C. M. T. C. Officer, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

It is assured that the Fort Sill Camp will be the largest and best ever held at that place.

SWEARING ON THE BIBLE

The custom of swearing on the Bible comes from the ancient Jews, who at first touched their Phylacteries—small cases containing strips of parchment inscribed with texts from the Old Teseament—intaking oaths, and later laid their hands on the Book of the Law. The various customs of taking oaths in different countries all have a similar origin.

The early Anglo-Saxons regarded stones as sacred to their gods and therefore laid their hands on a pillar of stone. In medieval times it was customary to touch a relic and this was regarded as giving the oath more sacredness than when sworn upon the missal, or prayer book. Another cus tom of the same time was swearing by churches. A certain number were mentioned and the attestor was obliged to go to each one, take the ring of the church door in his hand and repeat his oath. The custom of kissing the cross to attest an oath has been observed in Russia from very early times, and has extended into other countries. According to the laws of the Order of the Garter in the time of Henry VIII, knights were required in taking oath to touch the book and kiss the cross. Since the Reformation the taking of oaths by kissing the Bible has not been permitted in Scotland.—K. C. Star.

Son Antonio, Texas (Special)—The Commanding General, Eighth Corps Area, has approved the application of H. C. Coffee, Jr., of Perryton, Texas, for admittance to the Citizen's Military Camp for 1924.

Mr. Coffee will be privileged to attend the C. M. T. C. to be held at Fort Sill, Oklahoma during the month of August, all his expenses being paid by the Government.

Mr. Coffee was a member of "B" Company at last year's camp at Fort Logan, Colorado, and made an excellent record.

The quota for the camp is rapidly beng filled and young men desiring to attend should write Van W. Stewart, of Perryton, Texas, County Chairman of the Military Training Camps Association, or the C. M. T. C. Officer, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

It is assured that the Fort Sill Camp will be the largest and best ever held at that place.

SWEARING ON THE BIBLE

The custom of swearing on the Bible comes from the ancient Jews, who at first touched their Phylacteries—small cases containing strips of parchment inscribed with texts from the Old Teseament—intaking oaths, and later laid their hands on the Book of the Law. The various customs of taking oaths in different countries all have a similar origin.

The early Anglo-Saxons regarded stones as sacred to their gods and therefore laid their hands on a pillar of stone. In medieval times it was customary to touch a relic and this was regarded as giving the oath more sacredness than when sworn upon the missal, or prayer book. Another custom of the same time was swearing by churches. A certain number were mentioned and the attestor was obliged to go to each one, take the ring of the church door in his hand and repeat his oath. The custom of kissing the cross to attest an oath has been observed in Russia from very early times, and has extended into other countries. According to the laws of the Order of the Garter in the time of Henry VIII, knights were required in taking oath to touch the book and kiss the cross. Since the Reformation the taking of oaths by kissing the Bible has not been permitted in Scotland.—K. C. Star.

BRAY WINS SOLDIER BONUS CASE

Bruce Bray has just received word through a recent ruling of the Kansas Appellate Court that his claim for the Kansas Soldiers Bonus has been allowed, the Appellate Court reversing a ruling of the Kansas Compensation Board in which the Board held Mr. Bray was not entitled to the compensation. Mr. Bray appealed from the ruling of the board through his Attorney Allen & Allen of this city. We are glad to learn of Mr. Bray success in this matter and in fact the Herald is always strong for the ex-service men who showed themselves to be one hundred per cent Americans.

SPLENDID RAIN THE PAST WEEK

The Official Government Rain Gage at Perryton shows a rainfall of ninetytwo hundreths on Monday and Monday night and six one-hudreths Tuesday night, making a total rainfall this week of ninety-eight one-hundreths. While this moisture was not badly needed, it came at a very good time as the barley was beginning to need moisture. This moisture will also place the ground in splendid condition for the preparation for cotton planting as well as other spring crops. The total rainfall at the Perryton Station during the month of April was one inch and seventy-four hundredths.

COTTON IS SITTING PRETTY

(By E. H. Taylor)

Why, not? The World needs more of it than we can grow.

A world search for cotton is going on equal to that for oil. In little-known back lands of the globe men are experimenting with cotton raising.

Mankind has come to require more cotton than is being grown.

It has been consuming American cotton at the rate of around 13,000,00 bales a year. But only once since 1914 has America produced that much.

This has meant a steady whittling away of the reserve that piled up in 1920-21, the year of a concurrent big crop and reduced demand due to deflation. On July 31, 1921, the world's carry-over of American cotton was 9,364,000 bales. By that date in 1922 it was down to 5,123,000 bales. By the same date in 1923 it had dropped to 3,100,000.

The present cotton year promises to end, July thirty-first, with the smallest carry-over that has been known to this generation.

In that situation is a reason for the extensive curtailment and worry among cotton manufactures both here and abroad—that and a fear of what the consumer might do if charged a price for cotton goods that is justified by the situation.

Low prices in the past when cotton was a "misery crop" encouraged a wide adoption of it in our system of life. It was not only the cheapest and most extensively used source of apparel. It entered also into widespread mechanical uses, especially in the automobile and electrical industries, for which no substitute of equal value or economy is in sight.

These factors of supply and demand will have much bearing on this year's crop. They would seem to insure a good price for it, perhaps a very high price.

That depends on several things, most important of which are: The size of this year's American crop; how business conditions stand up in this country; and recovery abroad.

The American crop is the important crop. Much as it has declined it is still half or more of the world crop. No great additions to foreign crops can be expected soon despite all the activity in that direction that is going on.

John A. Todd, the great English authority on cotton, says that there is no immediate prospect of increasing supplies outside the United States even a million bales a year. Or, as an American authority put it:

"One week of favorable or unfavorable weather at a critical time in America means more to the world's immediate cotton supply than all the efforts being made to increase production elsewhere."

In the opinion of Todd an American crop of more than 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 bales is not to be expected in the next several years. Most American observers agree with him; for this year anyway.

A larger yield is not outside the realm of possibilities, but it would call for a combination of fortuitous circumstances that is not likely to occur.

Reports and forecasts all indicate a large acreage. But last year proved that a large acreage does not insure a large crop. New land being put in cotton in Texas, lower Illinois, Northern Okla. an delsewhere is in weevil-free territory, but also untried territory, often farmed by men unfamiliar with cotton growing.

Nor is there any way of foreseeing now how much acreage will be abandoned because of unfavorable weather or lack of labor. That was a considerable item last year.

"The best opinion inclines to a crop of not exceeding 11,500,000 bales," stated W. S. Griffin, of Greenville, South Carolina. His judgment is very highly respected in cotton circles.

"If every state equaled the largest crop it has made since weevil infestation became general the total would be 13,210,000 bales," continued Mr. Griffin. "If it dropped to the lowest yields in each state under boll-weevil conditions the total would be only 7,134. Strick a balance midway between and you very nearly have last year's crop.

"More fertilization and arsenate treatment and better cultural methods generally may have the effect of increasing the yield. Present prices will tend to encourage such practices."

Practically every venturer of an opinion on the important subject of the size of the 1924 crop adds that "it depends on what Texas does."

Texas is a mighty big question mark as well as a big state. Last year it produced 40 per cent of the American crop, and it has done round 30 per cent or better for some years past. It's coming along with another large acreage this year. But Texas exceeded its average crop last season, and it yields to no state in the Cotton Belt in range of weather hazzards.

So much for the probable size of this year's cotton crop. It is surrounded by uncertainties, more so than any other major American crop.

Not nearly so uncertain is the demand.

A market and a need exist for every bale that can be raised.

In fact, Todd declares that the world will have to get along with 2,000,000 fewer bales of American cotton than it is now using. At least half of that, he says, must come off the American consumption. About the only way of accomplishing that is for prices to rise to a point where the consumer will reduce his buying. How high that point is has been a matter of some raw guesswork.

The middleman agents of Worth Street, New York, to whom is intrusted altogether too much of the distribution of cotton goods, last spring raised a vehement outcry that the public would not buy goods based on thirty-cent cotton.

They convinced the retailers if nobody else. Retail merchants got their backs up whenever goods were priced to them on a proper parity with thirty-cent cotton.

They bought goods by the handful If a man went into a store for a couple of shirts of ordinary size and pattern the clerk probably would have to rifle the showcase to fill the order.

This niggardly buying dammed up the flow of goods so much that manufacturers frequently had to sell stocks at figures representing a loss to keep from flooding their stock rooms.

Last October, for the first time in years, all the chief cotton cloths were selling at a price level below a parity with raw cotton. That situation has more or less continued ever since.

The net result is that the consumer has not had to buy cotton goods based on a thirty-cent price for cotton, other costs being included in their normal proportion. The simple reason is that other costs have not been included in their normal proportion.

So nobody can definitely say at what price the consummer will reduce his buying to such an extent as to affect the price of cotton.

This much is certain—for several years the people of the United States have been consuming more than half the American crop, whereas before 1914 much over half was exported.

Prior to the war we were using nineteen pounds of cotton per capita. It has jumped now to nearer thirty. Two things have happened: Prosperity in the cities has caused people to buy more clothing, and cotton also has entered into a multitude of industrial uses.

The automobile industry, running at the rate it is now, requires many thousands of bales for upholstery, tops, curtains and tires.

Millions of feet of cotton and rubberizied cotton belting are used in mills, factories and on farms.

Machines requires great quantities of cotton waste.

Flour and cement mills put up their products in cotton sacks.

Shoe manufacturers require cotton fabric for shoe linings, and the electrical industry for insulator wrappings.

Besides, cotton has crowded into fields once occupied by other fibers—tablecloths, napkins, towels and handkerchiefs, where linen once held sway, and in fine dress goods and lingerie, where silk was once supreme.

It is being mixed with silk and artificial silk, a product of cotton linters, as well as with wood pulp, to produce goods equal in sheen and superior in whearbility to silk itself.

There are no heavy accumulated stocks of cotton goods anywhere along the route of distribution. Mill curtailment has attended to that.

And there is only a slender carry-over in prospect—a carry-over more likely to be below than above the 3,000,000 bales whicch W. D. Adams, secretary of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association, says are necessary for a "comfortable situation."

So the market for this year's crop so far as this country is concerned, looks highly favorable unless business goes to pot.

The rest of the world is still largely on a hand-to-mouth basis in respect to cotton. Prices of cotton and cotton goods have soared away above the pre-war level Most peoples outside of America are poorer than before the war.

Prior to the war it was thought two pounds of cotton per capita annually was the very minimum on which a civilized people could exist. But a great many of Europe's people have been getting along on much less than a pound. They have a vast accmulated need for cotton goods. But it can be satisfied only as their buying power increases.

There is some indication of that happening soon. A Southern firm that buys for Germany stated that German demand was picking up. They expect it to improve much more as daylight comes in the reparations muddle.

Russia recently organized facilities for the buying of American cotton. Italy, under the rejuvenation wrought by Missolini, has added considerably to its taking.

But the greatest market, England, is still in bad shape.

English mills export four-fifths of their production normally. They sell largely to the world's poorest people—India, China and Africa. These customers are no longer able to afford the former quantity of cotton goods. Too labor is more than ever in the saddle in England. It demands a larger share of the price brought by the product. Thus the English manufacturers are pinched from every quarter.

That is one prime cause of the frenzied search now going on for lands that will grow cheaper cotton.

It is largely British promoted. Nothing new about it. For two thirds of a century it has been a British dream and an American bogery.

It is estimated that once Europe is well on the road to recovery the world will need 500,000 bales increased production a year.

How hard that requirement will be to meet can be judged by the fact that it took the South from 1800 to 1860 to pull its crop up to 5,000,000 bales. And the South had [illegible] tion of climatic, soil and [illegible] tages that no section of [illegible] now enjoys.

FARNSWORTH FLASHES

Rev. Chas. G. Kelly of Perryton, spoke at the school house, after Sunday School last Sunday. We understand that he will arrange to come each fourth Sunday. This will give us a sermon for each Sunday.

Rev. Kelly arranged to deliver five sermon-lectures during the week, the storm on Monday night, interfered, and very few were out, at this writing (Tuesday P. M.) it is raining again, and will probably make the roads bad, but the rain will be welcome to the growing crops.

C. W. Connor, father of Equity Manager, L. R. Connor, is visiting his son this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Rogers drove to Spearman last Sunday evening, calling at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Young, Mr. Young is one of the engineers on the railroad, and is making for himself a nice place in Spearman.

The community Sale Day at Farnsworth last Saturday, was the usual success, even tho not so large a crowd as usual. The Service Store gave a lunch and sold merchandise at auction, then the stuff that was brought in was sold. This idea of a Community Sale Day, has been worked here at Farnsworth for two or three years, and has become a settled thing.

Amarillo is trying to do the same thing, of course they expect to do it on a bigger scale, but the principal is the same. A day, once a month, when all who have something they would sell at auction or otherwise, can bring it in, and sell it, so keep this in mind, and the last Saturday of next month(bring in whatever you have to sell.

The Service Store promotes these sale days, and offers to list and advertise free of charge, anything their customers have to sell, if listing is done soon enough, but there is always stuff that is not listed, and it is looked forward to by folks in this community.

The peas, now in bloom in Bird Rogers garden, are proof that peas may be planted early. These were up and an inch and a half high when it was so cold it froze up the town well. The peas are now blooming.

The play at the Farnsworth school house, last Saurday night, was well attended this was given by pupils of the Optima High School. Chas. Polf sent his car to bring and return some of the players.. The play was well rendered, and very much appreciated.

The base ball game at Farnsworth last Saturday between Wawaka and Farnsworth, ended in favor of Farnsworth. The Farnsworth folks have outfited the boys with some good stuff, and the boys say they will play ball this summer. Right here the writer will say that the Saturday afternoon games should be encouraged, in this day of efficient, machinery, and, if what they say is true- over production; it does seem that our farm boys should have at least one half day off in the week, for games. We are glad to know that so many of our farmers here are so broad minded, as to see that t hefarm must not be a place of endless work and drudgery, if we expect to compete with the other industries, where, Saturday afternoon is allowed for recreation.

Miss. Clemmie Polf, is helping at the Service Store, this week business seems to be getting better, and takes more help.

W. E. Dear and family, spent Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. John Powell at Farnsworth.

Reports from The Amarillo News-Post Contest Office at Amarillo, continue favorable to Mrs. Adalaide Rogers, the work she and friends are doing is wonderful, subscriptions are being paid at the office in Amarillo, giving her a large block of votes.

Wouldn't it be a fine thing if the Grand Prize should be secured by an Ochiltree County Contestant, against all the others, in three States? Mrs. Rogers is working hard in the ways that she is able, and the results seem to prove that her work has been very effective.

Reuben Pois, was trading in Farnsworth last Tuesday, and looking over the implements at The Service Store.

W. E. Dear, pulled his Massey-Harris Harvester Thresher, up to Farnsworth, at the request of Mr. Rogers, who says he would rather have used machine as a sample to sell from, than a new one. Anyone interested in looking this machine over.

W. M. Shrader brought in a load of barley, the first of the week, and amongst other purchases at the Service Store, took out parts to put another disc on his Sanders plow.

Gould Mears is now using one of those two row power-lift John Deere listers, no more straining with levers to put lister in or out of the ground, all he has to do is "step on it."

Once more this correspondent takes time and space to ask the readers to let the Editor know whether you like to have, less, or more, of these neighborhood notes. Most editors of weekly papers believe that community correspondence, helps make the paper more interesting. If you do like to have these neighborhood items written up and a little encouragement to the editor, and help to your neighborhood writer, and see that they get hold of items, that you can give in. You will perhaps have little difficulty in knowing to whom to hand them, in your locality. Just remember, that, the same thing that make interesting reading for you, when about the other folks' doings, these same things concerning you and yours are what makes reading for the other fellow.

Encourage, the effort being made to put your community forward, and help whoever it is in your neighborhood, who is interested enough to take time to write up the news each week.

The newspaper tells of a man who asks a divorce because he had to do the washing. It all came out in the wash.

The old-fashioned rolling stone that gathered no moss has a counterpart in the rolling dollar that gathers no interest.

Folks who worry over little things never have time to accomplish the big ones.

The girl of today is so afraid she will become the girl of yesterday that she tries to become the girl of tomorrow.

"Remember the days of thy youth"—the days of hard work and little pay—when ou want a small fortune for doing nothing.

When you see a man rushing along the street, the chances are he isn't busy, but has only forgotten something.

Success does not always come to the one who waits because there is always a hustler to step in and hog it all.

One thing that may be said in favor of the radio—it has converted a lot of loquacious people into good listeners.

Some people acquire riches in their dreams and spend them in their waking hours, providing their credit will stand the strain.

Perhaps if we would blame the customers a little more and the bootlegger less, we might get some place with this illicit liquor business.

It was discovered in an Ohio town that bootleg booze would eat the lining out of a bath tub. Further comment would be useless.

A train running sixty miles an hour covers eighty-eight feet in a second. Something to remember when you come to a railroad crossing.

IT'S BETTER TO DIE TRYING THAN SIGHING

It's better to be working than to be idle.

The idle young man is said to be most likely to sow wild oats.

The idle dollar likewise is likely to become a prodigal and WASTE AWAY IN DISSIPATION.

A working dollar brings in earnings—small perhaps, but he is learning the habits of thrift—which is very important.

Bring them in and get a Certificate of Deposit—it will be good business for everybody concerned.

What would you do if you lost your grain crop?

This question makes you think of HAIL INSURANCE.

When you think of HAIL INSURANCE, think of LA MASTER.

Why, LA MASTER? Because for FIFTEEN years he has represented only the oldest, strongest and best companies. Because our losses have been paid quickly, courteously and liberally. Because we have never tried to sell you Mutual or Reciprocal policies, even though the commission would be much larger for us. Because we have protected, looked after and safe-guarded your insurance interest.

We offer you the same old companies:

ST. PAUL FIRE & MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY

The Company that wrote the first Hail policy on crop in the United States

SPRINGFIELD FIRE & MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY

This Company is celebrating its 75th Anniversary and was the pioneer company in Tornado Insurance

HOME INSURANCE COMPANY, NEW YORK

Financially, the strongest company in the United States.

We want your Insurance. You need our protection and service. Let's get together.

Primrose Profits Come to You 365 Days in the Year

The McCormick-Deering Primrose gives you all of the cream. It skims clean, and the cream brings the highest market price—the globules of butter fat are smooth and unbroken and the cream is in the best condition for butter making. Such a separator brings you the greatest return from your cows. Because experienced farmers and dairymen insist upon receiving positive profits from their investment in dairy cattle, building and equipment, they demand and use a clean-skimming cream separator—the McCormick-Deering Primrose.

The spindle in McCormick-Deering Primrose has a finely polished steel surface, and the steel balls roll in hardened steel race. This makes a bearing which maintains greater accuracy of the spindle.

Users of cream separators appreciate the new supply can on the McCormick-Deering Primrose. It is made of one piece of steel strong and seamless—asy to wash. You can fill it without splashing

Ask us for a Demonstration—We want every dairy farmer to see this modern, efficient, ball-bearing separator. It combines the advantages of ample capacity with easy turning and close skimming. Drop in at our store. Give the crank of this machine a spin and listen to the smooth hum of the mechanism. We will be glad to give you a demonstration and trial on your own farm. Ask us to do it.
