Somebody left us a copy of a publication distributed by the Byron Weston Co., which tells how people were worrying about environmental problems 150 years ago. They attribute the report to an imaginary lawsuit described in a recent issue of a law journal in New York.

In 1820, the population of New York was 1,500,000. Horses furnished the power for all transportation within the city and the number of horses at the time was 300,000—equal to 20 per cent of the human population. Every 24 hours, each horse deposited on the streets of New York an average of 10 pounds of solid waste. As of 1820, the total for all horses was three million pounds a day, or 1.1 billion pounds a year. The city employed 25,000 street sweepers to collect and remove this waste, which required about 10 per cent of the city's total budget.

In view of this situation, petitioners, who had become alarmed over prospects for the future, pointed out that at that rate, it was extremely unlikely that any life could or would exist on earth in 150 years (Which is now).

The petitioners in the case, which was supposed to have appeared before the Supreme Court of New York in 1822, pointed out that with the invention of the steam locomotive in 1815, there was little left to invent in the field of transportation and that the horse would continue as the chief mode of travel within cities. Moreover, scientific testimony was introduced projecting that by 1973 there would be 10 million people living in New York City and their transportation needs would be served by 3.5 million horses. The waste from these horses would amount to 35 million pounds per day, or 12,775 billion pounds a year just for New York City. For the entire world it would be 137.26 billion pounds.

To remove this quantity would require 50 million sweepers whose wages would exceed 90 per cent of the world's income. Since this obviously would be economically impossible, the waste would have to remain, which meant that the streets would be covered to a depth of 12 feet by 1973.

Thus, man responds to threats in various ways and, as the article pointed out, it is easy to see problems, but something else to foresee the ultimate solutions that will be available as man works to solve them. If man had continued to rely upon 1820 methods, the bleak experience projected by the petitioners of that day very well could have materialized. —WACIL McNAIR.

A TEEZEE WEEZEE—"You're such a teezee weezee," whispers the French Maid, Fleurette, in this scene from "The Boom Town Follies," as she corners Mookie the farmhand. Ingun Grytli, foreign exchange student from Norway, has the role of Fluerette, while Greg Patterson is the farmhand. The show will be presented at 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Snyder High School Auditorium as a feature event in the Billionth Barrel of Oil celebration.

'Boom Town Follies' Is Oil Celebration Feature

A duel entertainment package, billed as "The Boomtown Follies" has been developed as part of the Billionth Barrell of Oil Celebration. Opening on Monday evening, Oct. 8, the "Oil Theatre" presentation will feature an old-fashioned Melodrama, titled "Dirty Work at the Crossroads" along with a "Vaudeville Review" presented by high school and adult talent from the community. Jerry Worsham, Snyder High School Drama Director, and Bill Lyon, Choral Music Director at SHS, have produced and directed the show in conjunction with the Entertainment Committee from the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Billed as the "Canyon Reef Opera Company" the group includes 70 singers, musicians, actors and technical workers. The show will run Monday and Tuesday evenings, Oct. 8-9, at 8 p.m. in Snyder High School Auditorium.

Scenery from Peter Wolf Studios in Dallas will be utilized to transform the high school auditorium stage into a turn of the century opera house and a 30-foot red-carpeted runway will enable performers to move within touching distance of the audience. Lantern Footlights and tiny white chaser lights will be added to heighten the mood of yesteryear.

According to Worsham, the play is not about the Oil Industry per se, but is certainly geared to a celebration of the Billionth Barrell Celebration in Snyder. A historical pageant was first considered, but the more frolicksome Follies idea was later decided upon because it had more possibilities for fun and celebration.

A number of Snyder adults are giving time and talent to the show. Molly Walker, recently returned from studying piano in London, will accompany the melodrama on a special "rinky-tinky" piano. Those familiar with the 1890's melodrama will realize how important the music is to such a show.

Mrs. Lynn Bethel has organized a "Rag-Time" Band utilizing piano, organ and saxophone with bass. She and Dub Everett, along with her students, David Vaughn and Stanley Burgess, will bring back memories with numbers like "Twelfth Street Rag" and "Alexander's Rag-Time Band."

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Taylor will provide top quality entertainment with their renditions of the Nelson Eddy-Jeanette McDonald favorites, "Sweetheart-Sweetheart" and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life." Mrs. Taylor, a graduate of SMU

ARGUMENT—Leonie Asterbilt, played by Paula Parks, right, argues with her mother, played by Roxanna Huddleston, who has forbidden her to see the wicked Munro Murgatroyd, villain in "Dirty Work at the Crossroads," in the Oil Theatre presentation set for Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Compromise Reached On Bill Limiting War Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate-House conferees agreed today on a compromise bill limiting the President's power to engage in undeclared war for more than 60 days.

The compromise bill apparently meets none of the objections of President Nixon, who said earlier that he would veto it.

The bill would provide for extension of the 60-day war-making limit only in the event of written certification from the President that continued hostilities are necessary to protect troops withdrawing from the field, unless Congress authorizes further action.

The extended period could be for no more than 30 days without congressional approval.

The bill states the conclusion of Congress that the constitutional powers of the president as commander-in-chief to introduce U.S. armed forces into hostilities or situations which could lead to hostilities can be exercised only through:

Declaration of war, a specific statutory authorization, of "a national emergency created by attack upon the United States, its territories or possessions, or its armed forces."

The bill sets up a procedure for speedy congressional review of situations in which U.S. troops are engaged in hostilities.

It requires the President also to consult in advance with the Congress and to report in detail on any military action he may undertake.

The bill provides that Congress can terminate any undeclared war prior to the expiration of the 60-day deadline, or the 30-day emergency extension, by concurrent resolution which is not subject to presidential veto.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the bill does not infringe upon the constitutional authority of the President and that he should sign it.

WholesaleFood Prices Decline

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm and food product prices fell a record 6 per cent last month to lead the biggest decline in over-all wholesale prices in 25 years, the government reported today.

The big drop in wholesale food prices, expected to start showing up on supermarket shelves in coming weeks, indicates this year's great food price rise may be slowing down.

The Labor Department's Wholesale Price Index showed the over-all decline in wholesale prices during September was 1.8 per cent on an unadjusted basis and 1.5 per cent when adjusted for seasonal variations.

The over-all unadjusted decline last month was the most in any month since a 1.9 per cent drop in February 1948. The seasonally adjusted drop last month matched the seasonally adjusted decline in February 1948.

The sharp decline in farm products reflected lower prices for livestock and corn, fresh and dried vegetables, live poultry and eggs. Raw cotton and milk prices increased, however.

September's drop in wholesale prices followed the biggest one-month rise in 27 years, a leap of 5.8 per cent from July to August, the period during which President Nixon lifted the midsummer food price freeze.

Despite the September drop, however, wholesale prices were still 16.6 per cent above a year ago.

Farm products, after leaping a record 23.1 per cent in August, fell 6 per cent in September, the sharpest one-month drop since February 1948.

Prices of processed foods and feeds also fell 6 per cent last month.

And when combined with the drop in prices of farm products, the over-all decline in the category of farm products and processed foods and feeds was 6 per cent on an unadjusted basis and 5.2 per cent seasonally adjusted, both the biggest declines on record since the government began keeping these statistics in 1947.

The Labor Department said prices of consumer finished-goods, including food and non-food commodities nearest the retail end of the wholesale chain, dropped seven-tenths of 1 per cent last month, following a sharp 3.8-per cent increase in August. The decline in this category was the first since last October.

Industrial commodities rose five-tenths of 1 per cent in September, reflecting wholesale price increases for fuels, textile products, wearing apparel, metals and lumber.

The over-all Wholesale Price Index last month moved down to to 140.2.

Urge Judge To Consider TapeRuling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee urged a federal judge today to consider his earlier order demanding that President Nixon turn over White House tape recordings as a precedent applying to the committee's suit.

"That order is a precedent and we rely on it," Samuel Dash, chief counsel of the Watergate committee, told U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica in a reference to his opinion of Aug. 28.

In a suit brought by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, Sirica had ordered the President to permit him to hear Watergate-related tapes to determine if the White House claim that they must be kept secret is valid.

Dash and Charles Alan Wright, representing the President, argued the committee's case before Sirica.

The committee had subpoenaed five tapes and then filed a civil suit asking for a ruling upholding the legality of its demand.

"What in effect the President is arguing," said Dash, "is that we should conduct a factual inquiry but not too much ... don't try to find out who did it."

The tape recordings are said to contain Nixon conversations about the Watergate affair.

Dash said the committee has a responsibility to investigate presidential campaign activities and "if it is established that the criminality of the President existed it would call for drastic legislation ... we cannot get drastic change unless we have full public support."

Carr And Osorio Denied Tapes

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge refused today to order the White House to produce tapes purportedly bearing on a Texas mail fraud case which the defendants claim was brought to destroy the Texas Democratic party leadership.

U.S. District Court Judge William M. Taylor Jr. said the defendants had not proved that conversations between President Nixon, John Mitchell, then attorney general, and others in the periods the defendants specified had a bearing on their case.

"What is sought here?" asked the judge. A sort of fishing expedition. What would it show clearly? I am not willing to go that far."

Taylor added that even if some of the White House discussions were of political significance, before he ordered the tapes brought to court "there must be some showing or inference of criminality on the part of the person ordered to produce them. There is just not that."

Earlier today, government attorneys replying to an amended petition said no testimony presented to the two days of hearing this week shows "any evidence tending to corroborate the defendants' claims of politicalization."

The reply also said, "Testimony that Mr. Mitchell (John Mitchell, former attorney general) had conversations with President Nixon concerning Will Wilson and Sharpstown during the period of time at issue falls far short of establishing that these conversations had any relationship to allegations contained in the defendants' motion to dismiss."

The fraud defendants contended charges against them were an administration plot to discredit Texas Democratic leaders and the current hearings are on their motion to dismiss for that reason.

Court was recessed immediately after convening today to allow the defendants to examine a number of files just delivered to them. The court did not specify, but it was believed the files came from a U.S. attorney in Houston.

Tricks Were To Split Candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Miami Young Republican said today that the real purpose of Donald H. Segretti's campaign of dirty tricks was to divide Democratic presidential candidates and hopefully prompt them to start sabotaging each other.

"These things weren't done to influence votes at all," Martin Douglas Kelly, 24, told the Senate Watergate committee. "The idea was to get the candidates backbiting each other and possibly doing it to each other."

Confessed political saboteur Segretti has said he was directed in his work by a White House aide, Dwight L. Chapin.

Kelly testified at the Watergate panel's first public hearing not to be broadcast live on network television.

The CBS which carried live coverage of Segretti's testimony Wednesday, decided against televising testimony of Kelly and Robert M. Benz, 25, two men who asisted Segretti in sabotaging the campaigns of Democratic presidential candidates last year. Benz was to testify later today.

Kelley added some new details to Segretti's recitation of dirty tricks played on Democrats in the Florida presidential primary. And he explained how the tricks were designed in most cases to cause one Democrat to blame another for the sabotage.

Kelly said he arranged for some Cuban-Americans to picket a news conference held by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and said he also released a small bird and two white mice to further disrupt proceedings. The mice had blue ribbons tied on their tails and carried tags saying, "Muskie is a rat fink," Kelly said.

He said the pickets wore buttons supporting Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, one of Muskie's rivals in the Florida primary. "When one of Sen. Muskie's aides asked me about it, I said that confidentially we were working for Sen. Jackson."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington was another Democratic candidate.

Let manager, not you, handle noisy patrons

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 By Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I took my wife out to dinner in the best restaurant in our small town to celebrate our third anniversary—the first one we had ever spent together because I had been in Viet Nam.

At a nearby table sat a group of older people. They all obviously had had too much to drink because they became so loud and boisterous that we and other patrons couldn't carry on a conversation.

This went on all during dinner, so while we were waiting for our dessert, I went over to this noisy bunch and asked if they would kindly lower their voices.

My wife says I should have complained to the manager and let him handle the situation. I feel that the manager would have probably lost customers if he had done so, while I had nothing to lose. What is your opinion?

A QUIET KENTUCKIAN

DEAR QUIET: If you waited until the dessert to tell the noisy bunch to pipe down, you waited too long. As soon as it became apparent that they were preventing you from carrying on a conversation you should have talked to the manager. HE might have preferred to risk losing a couple of customers to your losing a couple of teeth.

DEAR ABBY: Dick and I married after going together for about two years. He had gone with Helen (made-up name) for 3½ years, breaking up with her to go with me.

Dick and I just bought a new home and now I learned that Helen, who recently married, bought the house directly across the street.

I trust my husband and know he wants nothing to do with Helen, but she has different ideas. She doesn't want Dick, but she doesn't want us to be happy together, either. She has been bitter toward me ever since Dick left her to go with me.

I work days and Dick works nights, and I just know Helen will be over here talking and being friendly with Dick when I'm gone. It bothers me because I'm sure she will feel he still cares for her if he is friendly to her, and I want her to know he cares only for me.

How should I act? I don't like to be unfriendly to my neighbors but I'm afraid if I give her any encouragement, she'll be here seeing Dick when I'm away. JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: You are doing a lot of second-guessing with regard to what Helen thinks. Don't pretend a phony neighborliness where none exists, just be civil. And if your jealousy can't be overcome with mature judgment, you can always change to the night shift.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "The Other Kids" who thought grown, educated, working children should live at home for free prompted this letter.

It's up to the parents to finish the job they started by insisting their grown children support themselves.

A feeling of self-worth is one of the greatest treasures one can possess. But it must be earned. Well-meaning parents who continue to support their adult children long after they are able to support themselves do them no favors. They are depriving them of one of life's most valuable assets. MRS. C. R. SHELTON, WASH.

DEAR MRS. R.: To which I say: "Amen!"

Historical Films To Be Shown Here

Three films produced by the Institute of Texan Culture will be shown in the Academic Science Building at Western Texas College during the open house Sunday afternoon.

The films are 8 to 10 minutes in length, and will be shown throughout the afternoon, James Palmer, associate professor of history and geography, said. Because the films are brief, they will be shown continuously and visitors may see one or all of them as their time permits.

A display of posters showing the role of black Texans in Texas history, also produced by the Institute of Texas Culture, will be set up in the lobby of the building.

The films to be shown are titled "What Is a Texan," "The Mexican Texans," and "The Indian Texans." These films and others dealing with Texas history are available through the college for showing to interested groups. Palmer said there are present films on Spanish missions in Texas, Spanish ranching in Texas, the Tegua Indians, and the Alabama Coushatta Indians. All have been produced by the Institute of Texan Culture and are accompanied by sound.

Woman Set On Fire By Youths

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Evelyn Wagler was a stranger in town. The 24-year-old white woman from Chicago arrived last weekend to look for a job.

She moved into the city's Roxbury section, which is predominantly black, and took up housekeeping with friends, some black, some white.

A few hours before she died Tuesday night, Evelyn Wagler, her body aflame, walked into a liquor store and calmly asked the clerk to call an ambulance.

"Her face was black," said the clerk, Fred Cortney. "It was amazing she could even talk. Her clothes were smoldering. Her skin was peeling. She walked in and said, 'Will you please call an ambulance?' Then she turned around and walked out, just like nothing happened."

Police say Evelyn Wagler had been set on fire by six black youths. They said the trouble started about a half hour before when Mrs. Wagler set off down Blue Hill Avenue in Roxbury to get gasoline for her stalled car.

Before she could finish her 15-minute walk, police said, the six young blacks jumped her, dragged her behind an apartment building and forced her to drench herself with the gasoline she carried. Then they flicked a match and left her to burn.

Mrs. Wagler was quoted as having told police that she was confronted by a group of black youths Sunday near her new home, called "honkie" and told to get out of the neighborhood.

Mrs. Wagler, who was separated from her husband, had spent the day Tuesday riding around Boston looking for a job. On her way back home that night, her car ran out of gas, two blocks from the house.

It was here, police said, that the six young blacks jumped Mrs. Wagler. Police said Mrs. Wagler told them later in the hospital that the six dragged her into a litter-filled vacant lot behind a yellow brick apartment house.

They told her to pour the gasoline on herself, and when she refused, they threatened her, investigators said. So then she doused herself with gas, and they set her afire, police said.

Police said there was no known motive. Apparently neither robbery nor sexual assault was involved. No arrests have been made.

Mrs. Wagler rolled on the ground, throwing dirt on the flames. Then she got up. She was smoldering, and her long dark hair was burned to her blackened scalp.

When Mrs. Wagler got onto the sidewalk, she walked in a daze past two apartment buildings, a sandwich shop, a laundry and a record store. Then she crossed a street, passed the drunks who hang out in front of the liquor store and politely asked for help.

"Someone yelled, 'Get a blanket. Get a blanket to throw over her,'" the liquor store clerk said.

By the time the clerk called police and got the blanket, four store customers had picked off the remains of her sweatshirt and covered her with a coat. At 9:39 p.m., a police ambulance picked her up and took her to Boston City Hospital.

About four hours later, Evelyn Wagler was pronounced dead.

Explanation Due Says Bentsen

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says the NPAVY OWES THE Southwest Regional Federal Council an explanation for cancelling a recent Dallas meeting on project Sanguine.

Project Sangine is a controversial communications system that was originally planned for Wisconsin and later for Central Texas.

The Texas Democrat said Wednesday he received reports that the Navy did not wish to confront a large number of opponents to the project and called the meeting off.

"I am left with no choice," said Bentsen, but, "I would prefer to think this is untrue...in the absence of a response by the Navy to my inquiry."

Bentsen, who opposes the project, has asked the Senate defense subcommittee to restrict the Navy from locating Project Sanguine in Central Texas.

Meanwhile, at the tiny town of Llano—in the Sanguine area proposed in Texas, a tavern owner said Wednesday he was forwarding a petition with 500 signatures supporting the project to Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

Mark A. Beaubien said he obtained the signatures by leaving the petition in cafes, taverns, barber shops, service stations and florist shops. He disputed published reports that most of the names came from tavern customers.

"Only seven of the town's 14 tavern operators had the petitions," Beaubien said. "They obtained less than one-third of the signatures."

In a letter that accompanied the petition, the tavern operator told Sen. Tower "that a few people making loud noises are forcing you and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen to modify your policies on Sanguine."

Beaubien, who also operates a teen center in Llano, said he was particularly concerned not only because of national defense but because Project Sanguine would furnish jobs for youths who he said now leave the area when they became old enough to work.

Nixon Won't Endorse Anyone

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he will not endorse anyone for the 1976 Republican presidential nomination "until they have been in the field of battle" in the primary elections that year.

Nixon told a news conference Wednesday that history teaches that some aspiring senators and governors "can't hit the big league pitching" they'll face in a presidential campaign.

"I would like to see how these various potential candidates handle themselves in primaries before making any decision in regard to who should be candidate," he said.

The President gave his views after being asked if he stood behind his temporary opposition to Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois as a possible GOP standard bearer.

Acknowledging he once opposed Percy because of what he described as a misunderstanding, Nixon said the senator has a right to seek the presidency if he desires, as do "several governors or former governors who might be a candidate, as well as the mayor of Indianapolis (Richard Lugar) or a number of senators and one or two House members."

Conspicuously absent from Nixon's list was Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. A White House aide said this had no significance because Nixon was talking off the cuff. Included, as an ambitious former governor, was John D. Connally, who often has been described as the President's favorite for the nomination.

Seeming relaxed as he faced reporters in the White House press center, Nixon said he has never asked Agnew to resign because of the bribe-taking allegations he faces and defended as "altogether proper" Agnew's vow not to resign even if indicted.

Questioned about troubles of his own, Nixon restated his refusal to turn over White House tapes to Watergate investigators. And regarding federal spending on his California and Florida estates, Nixon declared, "I think full statements have been made over and over again on this."

On another topic, Nixon sympathized with Austria's "very difficult position" when faced by Arab terrorists holding hostages.

But he expressed hope that Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky "would reconsider his position, even though I know he has even lately reiterated it." Kreisky agreed to shut down transient facilities in Austria for Jewish emigrants from the Soviet Union bound for Israel.

Humanitarian considerations aside, Nixon said, "we simply cannot have governments, small or large, give in to international blackmail by terrorist groups."

Agnew Inquiry Resumes

BALTIMORE (AP) — The grand jury investigating Spiro T. Agnew resumed its inquiry today while lawyers for the vice president returned to their work with unprecedented subpoena power to search for news leaks in the case.

The grand jury session, like those that preceded it, was held under the strictest of security restrictions.

It was not known what evidence and witnesses the jury would hear, but Joel Kline, a Montgomery County, Md., land developer was seen entering the courthouse with his attorney, Stephen Sachs.

It has been reported that Kline told prosecutors he collected more than $100,000 for Agnew and other Maryland politicians and disguised the source of the funds. However, sources close to the case have said those reports were erroneous.

Dried Flowers For Your Harvest Bouquet

HARVEST BOUQUET—The wide variety of dried materials offers unique arrangements, and their "earth colors" make them naturals for the back-to-nature trend in home decorating.

Autumn is the "season of mists and mello fruitfulness"—a time to pause and appreciate the beauty of nature. What vivid splendor in fields and forests!

Nature's fall touch on grasses, leaves and flowers has been borrowed for a man-made copy of this dehydration process and preservation in a dried and often altered form. The result: Vintage flowers that last indefinitely and all with a softly aged, subtle and weathered appearance. Their "earth colors" make them naturals for the back-to-nature trend in home decorating, notes the Society of American Florists.

Entry halls, living rooms, and dens are perfect areas for dried harvest bouquets, and dried materials especially lend themselves to casual bunched arrangements in antique containers. Sea oats, yarrow, statice, wood roses, and golden wheat; lotus pods, pencil cattails, thistles, and cardone puffs—all of these gems are available at modest cost to the flower arranger who wants to bring the gold and burnished spirit of fall into her home.

More floral arrangements of dried materials create centerpieces of subtle beauty to last all season and beyond. Perhaps the most remarkable characteristic of fall's dried foliage and blossoms is their great variety of textures, shapes, and graceful lines. There are giant, feathery plumes and long, needle-like spikes; dainty, whiskery grasses and thin brown leaves as big and round as dinner plates.

Dried materials today provide the casual look of common grasses and wheat plus the exotic interest of imported materials. Many unusual items are being brought in from European countries and Mexico, and many familiar items are available now with unique treatments, such as bleaching to give them a clean, zesty look. Commercially dyed or sprayed materials offer an extensive range of vivid colors for unique arrangements to accent any room decor. Composite flowers—hand-made flowers from parts of dried leaves, pods, cones, seeds, and even wood shavings—are a very popular new item for fall bouquets.

The wide world of dried materials offers arrangements that remain handsome indefinitely, and thereford, the beauty of dried harvest bouquets lingers on and on and on. . .

New Orleans Jazz Book Is Spotty

BOURBON STREET BLACK. By Jack V. Buerkle & Danny Barker. Oxford University Press. 244 Pages. $7.95.

Subtitled "The New Orleans Black Jazzman," this is a sociological study of black jazz musicians who are bound together by their music as a subgroup in New Orleans.

Jack V. Buerkle, a sociology professor, and Danny Barker, a banjo player, start off their book with a nice, tight history of the origin and growth of jazz in New Orleans and its spread throughout the world. Then they take an in-depth look at the men, and women, who create and play jazz as well as other forms of popular music.

The historical portion is written interestingly enough but the remainder of the book which concentrates on the current scene is spotty, quite interesting at times and at others extremely heavy going. The interviews with the jazz men are, for the most part, interesting, but the authors have an irritating habit of referring to them as young, or middle-aged, or old without defining just what these terms encompass. To a 3-year-old, 30 can be pretty antique.

Another irritant, not peculiar to this book, is the use of liberal footnotes while confining the notes to the back of the book rather than placing them at the bottom of the page. A good way to have the notes ignored.

For the jazz buff, this book will have some value. It's not for those whose interest in music consists of being able to hum a few bars of the latest hit.

What Is Cooking In Country Communes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Why would a nice girl like Lucy Horton, a graduate of Bryn Mawr, hitchhike over 12 states and part of Canada visiting 43 country communes? Well, why else but to engage in one of America's favorite sports — gathering recipes for a cookbook.

When Lucy studied at the prestigious eastern college she majored in the classical archaeology of ancient Greece and Rome. Those courses helped with her book. "I knew from my training at Bryn Mawr that if I wanted to do a good job of reporting the eating habits of present-day country communes, I'd have to research the subject thoroughly and document every statement of fact," Lucy says. And Lucy's clear blue eyes, looking steadily at you through granny glasses, make you trust her.

When Lucy Horton's "Country Commune Cooking" (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan) came out at the end of last year, it fascinated me because the recipes and the tales that preface them give a vivid picture of what goes on in the kitchens of the counter-culture movement. Commune cooks, it goes without saying, are devoted to "natural" foods and Lucy's book is "organic with lapses." Since reading "Country Commune Cooking" I've looked into about two dozen other recent "health food" books but none is as interesting and entertaining.

Lucy, now in her late 20s, lives in a small commune in northern Vermont and tested her cookbook recipes there. But her practice-cooking started when she was in her teens. Her early years were spent in Chicago where her father was a sociology professor. When she was 13 the Horton family moved to New York City and because her mother — this country's leading book restorer — was busy setting up a new bindery, Lucky helped make the family dinners. "When I started to cook independently, my mother was delighted and gave me a lot of guidance," Lucy told me. She showed me her mother's well-worn copy of "The Joy of Cooking," an edition from the '30s. "I used to love to read it," Lucy explained, "and my interest in it endures. 'The Joy' and Adelle Davis's 'Let's Cook It Right' are the overwhelming favorites in communes.

"In country communes you eat what grows in your area because you try to live off the land," Lucy continued. "It's sturdy fare, but it has had strong influences. Stir-fry cooking, because it is brief and casual, and using tamari soy sauce, because it adds flavor, have been adopted from oriental cooking. Mexican dishes are popular in country communes on the west coast because they're economical and tasty."

When I asked Lucy whether the controversial macrobiotic regime was in vogue in communes she said, "Most country commune people are too pleasure-oriented to follow that dreary diet. But some of the macrobiotic cooking techniques are worth using."

Lucy never gets bored with cooking: "I rarely cook the same dish twice unless I'm testing a recipe. What fascinates me about food is its infinite variety. There are so many combinations to try. When friends love one of my dishes they have to plead with me before I'll make it again!"

While Lucy was testing the recipes for her book, she did all the cooking in the Vermont commune: "During that time I was involved with food from the moment I got up until I went to bed. I learned that to be a good commune cook you need to be flexible and have a calm disposition. You usually have to cope with a wood stove and feed unexpected visitors — wayfarers as well as friends."

Here's our adaptation of Lucy Horton's favorite recipe from her cookbook; it came from The Motherlode in Oregon. When I tried it in my own kitchen, I found it one of the savoriest of vegetable dishes.

SWEET-AND-SOUR
BEET-CARROT SAUTE

- 3 tablespoons oil
- 2 beets, pared and thinly sliced (about 1½ cups)

- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons tamari (soy sauce)
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed

In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil and stir-fry the beets, carrots, onions and raisins for several minutes over medium-high heat. Add the remaining ingredients, lower heat, toss well and cover; steam, stirring several times, until vegetables are tender — 20 to 40 minutes. Serves 4.

Tough Tornadoes Host Snyder Tigers Friday

Probably one of the best football games of the season will be held in Lamesa Friday night when the Golden Tornadoes host the Snyder Tigers in their last non-district clash of the campaign. Kickoff is on tap for 7:30 p.m.

The Tors and Tigers are old rivals. They used to compete in the same district—3-AAA, but the Tigers were boosted to Class 4-AAAA last season. That didn't particularly impress the Tornadoes last year as they won a 27-6 decision over the Tigers.

So, Snyder will be out to change things this year. Snyder hasn't beaten the Tornadoes in Lamesa since 1964, and the Tornadoes, ranked fifth in the state in their class, could be hard to put down this time around.

Moreover, the Tigers will be at a disadvantage this week. Three of their key players are doubtful starters due to injuries. The three are middle guard-offensive guard Willie Smith, 230, senior; offensive tackle Robert Braziel, 190, senior; and, cornerback Buddy Mayes, 155, senior.

Coach Maurice (Mo) Hodges of the Tigers said Tim Sonnier, 200, junior, will start for Smith on offense, and Jerry Webb, 200, senior, will handle Smith's chores at middle guard. George Willis, 170, junior, will replace Braziel at quick tackle. Steve Grimmett, 160, senior, will fill in for Mayes at cornerback.

A fourth Tiger—defensive left tackle Mickey Gonzales—also was injured against Andrews. All four of the Snyder lads had strains to the left ankle. However, Gonzales apparently has recovered. He participated in the team drills Tuesday, and Coach Hodges believes he will be ready to go Friday night.

Dennis Young, 155, junior safety who sustained a hairline fracture of the ankle in the opener against Lubbock Dunbar, still remains a doubtful starter.

Friday's game will pit two of the strongest running teams in West Texas against each other. The Tornado coach, Robert James, is a former Snyder schoolboy, and he is a believer in the "hard nose" school of football. Both teams are undefeated. The Tigers are 4-0 after defeating Dunbar 21-3, Midland Lee 27-15, Big Spring 28-25, and Andrews 21-7. Lamesa is 3-0. They beat Carlsbad, N.M. 39-6, knocked off Seminole 24-6, and bested Pecos 40-20. With an open date last week, the Tors have had two weeks to prepare for the Tigers.

Lamesa operates from the Wishbone T attack. Their two best runners are fullback Melvin Robinson (190) and left halfback Kent McCurley (215). Guiding the attack will be quarterback Kyle White. The Tors have seldom passed this season, but White looks good throwing the bomb in practice. Two lads alternate at right halfback. They are Charles Jackson (160) and Jerry Calhoun (145).

Snyder will counter with quarterback Richard Gorman, 185, senior; fullback Tommy Welsh, 205, senior; tailback Welton Cobb, 190, junior; and, halfback Ralph Lewis, 180, senior. Hubert Crayton, 165, senior, also will work some at tailback. Cobb is leading District 4-AAAA backs in scoring with 42 points.

Across the Tiger offensive line will be ends Steve Grimmett and Doak Witherspoon, 200, senior; tackles George Willis and Grant Knipe, 245, senior; guards Jerry Webb and Tim Sonnier; and, center, David Yearwood, 170, senior.

Defensively, Snyder employs an Oklahoma 5 alignment while the Tornadoes go with a 5-2-4. In the past Lamesa has stunted their linebackers a lot, but this year they have been playing it straight.

Snyder has several other lads ready for action, including quarterback Widgeon Emerson, 145, senior; fullbacks John Boren, 160, senior, and Ricky Howell, 160, junior; halfbacks Kerry Smith, 155, senior, and David Mayes, 170, junior; center Joey Hardin, 155, junior; guards Nicky Neves, 156, senior, and Eicke Perry, 165, senior; tackle Mack Dishman, 165, senior; and, end Doug Nall, 140, senior.

Look for a close, hard-hitting, exciting clash with the Tigers prevailing by about 14-13. It could even be closer.

Horned Frogs, Porkers Open Southwest Action

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Not since Jack Spikes and Don Floyd led Texas Christian to the Southwest Conference title in 1958 have the Horned Frogs walked away from a football game with Arkansas in a celebrating mood.

The score was 12-7 TCU on that autumn evening 14 years ago.

TCU again tackles the big red jinx Saturday night at War Memorial Stadium in Little Rock in the only Southwest Conference contest on this week's card.

The rest of the SWC will try to bandage a sagging .500 record against outside competition with Florida State at Baylor, Houston at San Diego State, Missouri at SMU, Wake Forest at Texas, Texas A&M at Clemson and Texas Tech at Oklahoma State.

Something always seems to happen to TCU at Hog-killin' time. Last year the Horned Frogs led 13-0 only to allow Joe Ferguson to rifle four touchdown passes against man-for-man coverage late in the game.

This year TCU teed it up against Ohio State on the Saturday before the Razorbacks. Not only did TCU lose 37-3 but they lost safety Terry Drennan with a broken ankle and tight end John Ott with a shoulder separation. Tailback Mike Luttrell is hobbled with a strained knee.

Coach Billy Tohill, whose Horned Froos are touchdown underdogs, said "We probably faced the best team in the nation last Saturday. We played well in places. I know our kids have put it behind them and are ready for Arkansas. After all, it's the conference opener."

As if worry about the jinx isn't enough, the Horned Frogs have to worry about Arkansas playing with 11 men after the "12th man" incident against Iowa State in which the Razorbacks scored the winning touchdown with 12 men on the field.

"It was an honest mistake on the part of the players officials and the coaches," said Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles.

Regarding the jinx, Broyles said "It's just a freak thing. Except for last year, most of these players don't know the past score. It's just something that has happened."

Some 50,000 fans are expected in War Memorial Stadium for the 50th meeting between the schools. Arkansas holds a 27-20-2 margin.

The game holding the most intersectional interest is the clash between unbeaten SMU, the 19th ranked team in the land, and 15th ranked Missouri, also unbeaten, in Texas Stadium Saturday afternoon. The contest is slated for regional television.

SMU leads the nation in rushing with an average of 438 yards per game. The Mustangs are two-point favorites over the Strong Tigers.

Oddsmakers see Oklahoma State by 14 over Tech, Texas A&M by 7 over Clemson, Baylor by 12 over Florida State, and Texas by 33 over Wake Forest in the other games. There's no line on the Houston-San Diego State game.

Travis Plays Here Today

Two local football games are on tap here today.

Travis 8th grade hosts Big Spring Runnels at 6 p.m., followed by a 7:30 p.m. clash between Travis 9th grade and the Brahmas.

Also today, Lamar 8th grade is at Big Spring Goliad at 5:30 p.m., and Lamar 9th will meet the Big Spring Toros there at 7:30 p.m.

Friday night, the varsity Tigers meet Lamesa there at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday, the sophomore varsity hosts Abilene High at 2 p.m. while the junior varsity will be at Abilene Cooper at 1:30 p.m.

On the area scene, Ira hosts Union-Terry, Hermleigh visits Southland and Hobbs entertains Trent in Friday night affrays.

Elsewhere in District 4-AAAA, Monterey hosts Hobbs, N.M., Plainview journeys to Borger and Hereford visits Amarillo in Friday tilts while Palo Duro and Coronado battle Saturday afternoon.

Coach Joe Paterno of Penn State often tells his football teams, "Do the little things right and the big things will take care of themselves."

Consumer Resistance To Rising Prices Stiffens

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer resistance to rising prices is beginning to stiffen. One widely known business consultant on economic matters is forecasting a poor Christmas—for retailers.

The growing cautiousness of buyers hasn't demonstrated itself sharply to date, but attitudinal surveys show that many Americans have had their fill of spending for the time being and are now prepared to save.

Such forecasts in the past sometimes have had an uncanny accuracy rating, and few businesses are willing to ignore the findings. The first signs of weakness already are showing up in clothing, furniture and appliance sales.

Higher prices are listed as only one of the reasons. Among the others are:

—A growing burden of debt. The ratio of installment debt to after-tax income has risen to about 15.5 per cent. While this figure isn't unusual, it is considered somewhat high when combined with other factors.

—Perhaps the most important of these other factors is the inability of many workers to maintain their buying power. Goldman Sachs, the investment banking firm, notes that while disposable income rose at an annual rate of nearly 9 per cent during the second quarter of the year, inflation reduced it to an effective rate of 1.5 per cent.

Earnings of production workers in August rose 7 per cent over a year earlier, to $3.92 an hour, making weekly earnings of $145.43, about $9.27 higher than in August 1972. But higher prices resulted in a 2 per cent decline in spending power.

A further erosion of buying power can be expected in the final quarter of the year, according to Chase Manhattan Bank, which comments:

"For this reason, plus a host of others—ranging from news about the American dollar to interest rates, the stock market and Watergate—the public has turned decidedly pessimistic about economic conditions."

As consumers retreat from the market place they are expected to tidy up their personal financial conditions. Expected to be most noticeable is a tendency to repay debt and build savings.

The present savings rate is about 6 per cent of income and is variously forcast to rise between one and two percentage points. In 1969 it reached a percentage between 8 and 9.

Such an increase would deprive retailers of billions of dollars in sales, although if conditions repeat themselves as they have in the past, a spurt in sales a year or so from now might equalize matters.

Junior Editors' Quiz on TITMOUSE

QUESTION: What is a titmouse?

ANSWER: A titmouse is a small bird, less than 6 1/2 inches in length. It belongs to the Paridae family. Titmice are found in nearly all parts of the world. Approximately 300 species and subspecies are known and 39 occur in North America. They are closely related to the Nuthatch.

These small, plump, gravish birds, with a soft and fluffy plumage, are cheerful. Their large heads have big beady eyes and small, pointed bills. They are the gymnasts of the woodlands. Their friendliness makes them popular with many people. They respond to whistled imitations of their calls and frequently beg for food in the winter. They are valuable birds because they destroy the eggs and larvae of insects.

The Chickadee is a common North American titmouse. The Tufted titmouse of the eastern United States and some parts of the west has a distinct crest. The Golden Titmouse or Verdin, lives in the southwest and the Bush Titmouse is found in Southern California.

Things We Could Do Without

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could all do without:

Anymore weird cookbooks, such as "How to Bake a Tarantula" or "Tasty Salads Made from Your Backyard Weeds."

Old high school sweethearts who drop into town unexpectedly and ask you to take them to dinner on a date that happens to be your wedding anniversary.

Neighbors who make you a gift of 20 pounds of uncleaned fish they caught four days ago and forgot to take out of the back of their car.

Everybody who tries to face life by running away from it—such as dropout college students, office work shirkers, runaway husbands and renegade wives.

Guys who lend you leaky fountain pens without warning you of their defect.

Leftover cocktail canapes for dinner.

Fathers who are spending so much money for their daughters' wedding receptions that they weep openly if you pour yourself a second glass of second-rate champagne.

People who think you are organically wrong because you don't always eat organic foods.

The sound of opportunity knocking on the door of a room in which all you want to do is get a little sleep.

Going on a blind date with a girl who has a million-dollar body and a 10-cent mind—or vice versa.

A big pimple blossom on your nose the night of the junior prom.

Applying for a job, 10 years after graduating from high school, to the classmate who was voted the most likely to succeed.

A weekend at a ski resort where the snow is so good your girl wants to spend all the time skiing.

Buying a home the week after the mortgage rates jumped another half of a percentage point.

Bumping into an old army platoon buddy you thought you never could forget—and desperately trying to remember his nickname—just as he calls you by a nickname that belonged to another guy in the platoon.

Being called a "male chauvinist pig" by a fat woman as she elbows you away from the counter at a department store shirt sale for men.

Wives who go to fortune tellers for advice on their marital problems.

Doctors who, after listening to your symptoms, send you to another doctor to treat you. Then, if you get well, they take part of the credit.

People who try to show off their individuality by buying as a pet a breed of dog so strange that no one in the neighborhood has heard of it or can spell the name. They are the kind of people who would never toss out a bone to an ordinary mutt in the rain.

From these and other pinpricks of mind and being, deliver us, Amen.

Some Stuck With Fat Cells

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fatties who spend hours and days and weeks bicycling in place, doing pushups, lifting weights and sitting in steam baths in hopes of achieving the "Twiggy" look may be wasting their time.

Same for skinny people who eat and eat in anticipation of being "pleasingly plump."

They may be permanently the way they are for the very good reason that they're supposed to be, according to Dr. Myron Winick of Columbia University's Institute of Human Nutrition.

Speaking to a nutrition seminar Monday, Winick said doctors have long recognized two kinds of fat people. Those who can lose weight and maintain their new slim look and those who, while they may have lost weight on a strict diet, "zoomed right back up."

He said this is because they developed a certain number of fat cells during their formative years and now they're stuck with them.

About a quarter of the world's known fresh water volume is located in Canada.

Hearing On Liberty Ships Moved

HOUSTON (AP) — A hearing on a program to sink 12 Liberty Ships as artificial reefs off the Texas coast moved to Corpus Christi today after the Texas Coastal and Marine Council heard four witnesses here.

Some 40 persons attended the Houston hearing Wednesday but only four asked to be heard.

Joe C. Moseley 11, executive director of the council, expressed hope that the project can get under way in less than a year. He said much will depend on environmental clearances.

Moseley's comment was in answer to a question asked at the hearing on proposals to sink the ships in four areas selected for accessibility to fishermen but with minimum interference with shrimping, shipping and mineral development.

The project calls for the sinking of three ships at each of four locations offshore from Freeport, Matagorda Bay, Port Aransas and Padre Island.

State Sen. A. R. Schwartz of Galveston, council chairman, said the ship project is only the first phase of an overall artificial reef program planned by the council and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. He said current plans call for an Oct. 19 meeting in Houston for formal approval of application of applications for federal permits for the project.

Two areas are under consideration near Freeport. M.C. Raney of Lake Jackson, representing the Brazosport Chamber of Commerce, recommended an area that would be 15 to 20 miles from a site selected for a proposed offshore superport. The second Freeport area would be only three miles or so from the superport site.

Schwartz said he was for the site that is closer to San Luis Pass. He added that many of his constituents in the Galveston area were disappointed that the shallower water off the Island precluded ships being sunk there.

Dury L. Selig, representing the Galveston Chamber of Commerce, said he regretted this was the situation but added the chamber has appointed a special committee to seek other types of artificial reefs.

J.E. Baker of Houston, representing the West Gulf Maritime Association, requested that shipping interests be consulted. Schwartz gave quick approval.

The strongest criticism came from Richard P. Matthews, representing a Houston junk firm. He objected to the sinking of the hulls, which he said amounts to "giving away our resources."

Schwartz said the federal government already had decided the ships could be used that way and that the council was only trying to determine how best to do it.

Texas Senators With Majority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both U.S. senators from Texas voted with the majority twice Wednesday as the Senate approved two amendments affecting education.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Jr., Democrat, and Sen. John Tower, Republican, voted with the winning side on adoption 52-43 of an amendment that would prevent school districts from either losing or gaining more than 10 per cent in federal school aid.

The measure was by Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H.

Tower and Bentsen also favored an amendment, passed 52-41, to prevent cuts in education funds for disadvantaged children.

The latter measure was offered by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers.

Q. My wife and I are going to purchase one U.S. Savings Bond each month for my son's college education. Would it be more advantageous from a tax standpoint if I purchased the bonds naming my son and myself as co-owners or naming him sole owner?

A. From a tax standpoint, naming your son sole owner of the bonds would be more advantageous, since interest on U.S. Savings Bonds bought in the name of the child is income to the child not the parent. This is so even if the parent paid for the bonds and is named beneficiary. However, interest on bonds purchased by a parent naming his child as co-owner is taxable to the parent. For more information, see IRS publication 576, "Tax Information on United States Savings Bonds". Contact your local Internal Revenue office for a free copy.

Q. Are brokerage fees deductible?

A. Fees you pay a broker to collect your bond interest or dividends on shares of stock are deductible as miscellaneous deductions. But brokerage fees paid to acquire investment property, such as stocks or bonds, are not deductible. They are added to the cost of the property.

Q. I work as a waitress in a restaurant. Occasionally, a group of customers will use our banquet room for a private party. Instead of tipping, customers are required to pay a service charge which is split among the waiters, waitresses and other employees. Should I report this amount as a "tip" to my employer for tax purposes?

A. No. Your share of this service charge is not a tip, but is part of your wages paid by the employer. As such, it is taxable, but does not have to be included in your report of tips to your employer.

Q. My son is 20 and works full time during the day and goes to school at night. Can I still claim him as a dependent regardless of how much money he makes?

A. Generally, you may not claim a person as a dependent if he had gross income of $750 or more during the year. The only exceptions to this rule occur if your child is less than 19 at the end of the year or a full time student during five months of the year. In your son's case, he is over 19 and is not considered a full time student because he is attending night school and is employed full time during the day.

Campaign Act Said Illegal

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A section of the new campaign finance act could put judges in the position of pre-judging alleged violators of the act, and therefore the act is unconstitutional, says Atty. Gen. John Hill.

Hill said the unconstitutional portion, however, does not invalidate the entire law, which was passed by the 1973 Legislature.

He responded Wednesday to a request from County Atty. Joe Resweber of Harris County.

Hill noted that the law creates county and state election commissions, which include district judges and appeals judges, such as the chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court.

The law charges the commission with investigating alleged violations of the election code and with reporting their findings to the county or district attorney. This means, Hill said, that in some instances a judge on the commission might be pre-judging a case which would come before him.

Also, Hill said, because of the presence of appeals judges on the state commission, "no civil or criminal legal actions initiated by a district attorney pursuant to the State Election Commission's advice could travel the full appellate route of this state's judicial process without reaching a court upon which sat a member who had already considered and judged the factual and legal basis for the alleged violation."

Fire Levels Texas Landmark

JEFFERSON, Tex. (AP) — A blazing fire here has levelled a two-story cafe designated as a Texas historical landmark and seriously injured the cafe manager.

Firemen from nearby Marshall as well as Jefferson fire fighters fought for more than an hour to save the structure adjacent to the historic Riverfront Cafe, which burned to the ground here Wednesday.

Cafe manager Roy Butler received burns around his upper body and had to be hospitalized. His condition was listed as serious.

No monetary estimate was given immediately to the charred two-story brick and wood building.
