Jets Shoot Down 6 Migs

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli jets shot down six Syrian MiGs in wide-ranging aerial combat Tuesday, two over northern Israel and four in two separate dogfights in Lebanese skies, the military command announced.

Palestinian broadcasts claimed 60,000 Israeli troops were now in Lebanon and that they controlled the 50 miles of highway running from the border north to Damour. U.N. officials said five Israeli brigades plus commando units were in Lebanon. An Israeli brigade numbers about 3,500 men.

The intrusion of the MiGs over Galilee, as well as indications that Syrian artillery batteries were shelling Israeli forces inside Lebanon, marked a major escalation of Syrian involvement in the hostilities.

Israel launched an invasion Sunday to drive Palestinian forces out of southern Lebanon and prevent PLO artillery from shelling northern Israeli settlements. The Israeli government calls the operation "Peace for Galilee."

The flight of the MiGs over Galilee was the first incursion into Israeli airspace by Arab forces since the 1973 war. The Tel Aviv command said the MiGs were downed by Israeli interceptors, and an Israeli radio correspondent said the MiGs apparently were trying to attack an Israeli army convoy in southern Lebanon.

The Tel Aviv command also said its jets downed two Syrian MiGs in northern Lebanon. The Syrian command in Damascus confirmed two of its MiGs were downed in dogfights over Damour, and claimed an Israeli Skyhawk also was shot down. Israel denied any of its planes was hit.

Another Syrian communiqué said Israeli jets and artillery blasted the Syrian-controlled Lebanese town of Jezzin, killing 20 civilians in the predominantly Christian town. Jezzin is about 12 miles east of Sidon.

In another development, the Lebanese government announced electricity would be rationed because the power plant in the coastal town of Jijeh, 14 miles south of Beirut, was bombed out of action by Israeli forces.

In London, President Reagan said in a speech to Parliament that "the fighting in Lebanon on the part of all parties must stop and Israel should bring its forces home. It was Reagan's first call for an Israeli withdrawal, although Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. had done so earlier.

The Palestine Liberation Organization and Lebanese radio stations said most of the coastal highway south of Beirut was in Israeli hands following a landing during the night by helicopter-borne paratroopers and amphibious commandos who overran the town of Saadiyat, 13 miles south of Beirut.

Twelve miles to the south and 37 miles north of the Israeli border, Israeli tanks and troops were besieging the port of Sidon, while 25 miles farther down much of the port city of Tyre was afire after its capture.

"Sidon is within an Israeli noose," Associated Press correspondent Edmond Shedid reported from the outskirts of the city. "All hills around the city have been taken by paratroopers, and the beach is crowded with tanks and commandos north and south of Sidon."

This morning, telephone contact with Sidon was cut off. The Lebanese Christian radio station Voice of Lebanon said the city was under relentless air and sea bombardment.

Inland, the Israelis on Monday captured ancient Beaufort Castle, the cliff-top fortress from which the guerrillas shelled the Galilee panhandle; the eastern mountain town of Hasbaya, capital of Arkoub province, 9 miles north of the panhandle and 5 to 10 miles south of Syrian forces in the Bekaa Valley, and Nabatiyeh, a forward PLO command post 10 miles from the Israeli border, along with nearby Habbouch and Aiyehiyeh.

Israel's announced goal was to push the Palestinians back at least 25 miles from the border so their artillery and rockets could no longer hit northern Israel.

Israeli military analyst Haim Herzog, a former brigadier general, said if Syria's 30,000 troops in Lebanon did not intervene, the Israeli's might achieve their goal by Wednesday or Thursday.

The invaders brushed against the Syrian troops in air skirmishes and artillery exchanges, but the two governments appeared to be trying to avoid a major confrontation that would widen the conflict.

Late Monday afternoon, Israeli planes flashed over southern Beirut and attacked several high-rise buildings housing the PLO's information, political, and military offices as well as the internal security forces responsible for protecting the PLO's leader, Yasser Arafat.

Lebanese police said five Syrian MiG fighters scrambled to intercept the Israelis, and one of the Syrian planes was shot down. The Syrians claimed two Israeli jets were also destroyed, but Israel confirmed only the Syrian downing.

A Syrian military communiqué reported five Syrian soldiers killed in artillery exchanges in southeast Lebanon Monday.

Israel announced total casualties up to midnight Monday of 25 Israeli troops killed, seven missing, one air force pilot captured and 96 wounded, 11 of them seriously.

There has been no PLO announcement of casualties in the ground fighting and no report of casualties in the air raid on southern Beirut Monday. Lebanese police reported at least 230 people killed in Israeli air strikes Friday and Saturday.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin flew to Beaufort Castle to congratulate the troops who took that prize.

Sources in Washington said the Reagan administration would defer any U.S. sanctions against Israel while Habib tried to restore the cease-fire he helped negotiate between Israel and the PLO.

Tuesday update

Psychiatrist Testifies

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr., the man who shot President Reagan, had no delusions about his one-sided relationship with actress Jodie Foster and suspected that she considered him a "poor little twerp," a psychiatrist says.

Dr. Park Elliott Dietz, a psychiatrist called by the prosecution, said Monday that Hinckley "recognized throughout the relationship (with Miss Foster) was one-sided."

Dietz, a Harvard Medical School professor, testifies again today, his third day on the witness stand.

On Monday, the psychiatrist described Hinckley as a man who "controlled his conduct, decided what to do and carried out his goals. ... This is not a man who is wild, but a man who chooses the precise moment when the time is right."

To Fight Labels

CHICAGO (AP) — The aspirin industry has vowed to fight a government-proposed warning label on aspirin packages, saying studies that link aspirin to the sometimes-fatal childhood disease Reye's Syndrome are inconclusive.

The declaration Monday by the Aspirin Foundation of America Inc. came in response to last week's government proposal for a label warning parents not to give aspirin to children with chicken pox and influenza because of studies linking the medication to Reye's Syndrome.

Two of those studies, detailed for the first time in the June 11 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, suggest children have a higher risk of developing the syndrome, which is fatal 20 percent of the time, if they are given aspirin for chicken pox or influenza.

Admissions May Be Reduced

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The state prison system may have to restrict inmate admissions for three or four years, not just a few months as predicted when a reduced admissions policy began, the head of the Texas Department of Corrections says.

"The controlled admissions policy should continue until all the inmates housed in temporary buildings are removed," W.J. "Jim" Estelle told an emergency meeting of the Texas Board of Corrections Monday. "It could take three to four years to get (inmates) out of every temporary type housing."

The prison system houses about 3,600 inmates in tents and dormitory buildings.

Monday's meeting was called to budget $58 million recently authorized by an emergency session of the Legislature.

To Raise Funds

HOUSTON (AP) — Employee groups from Houston's police and fire departments have voted to raise $625,000 from their 6,200 members to fight Mayor Kathy Whitmire's plan to replace the current civil service laws.

"We can't have the system changed at the whim of a mayor or city council," Lester Tyra, president of the 3,000-member Houston Professional Fire Fighters Association, said after the meeting Monday.

Officials said they will raise the money by assessing each of the 6,200 officers and firefighters $100.

19 Indictments Returned Here

Grand jurors for the 132nd Judicial District named 17 individuals in 19 felony indictments Monday.

Joe Marcello Flores and Ralph Edward Bohannon were each indicted on two counts of burglary with intent to commit theft.

Flores is charged with the April 26 break-in at the Tiger Drive-in and a Dec. 26 break-in at East Elementary.

Bond for Flores was set at $2,500.

Bohannon is charged with the May 3 burglary of a travel trailer owned by R. W. Bowman and parked at Wilson Motors and the burglary of the tool storage shed at the Best Western Motel construction site across the street.

Bond for Bohannon was set at $3,000.

Bond was set at $2,500 for David Lujan after the jury chose to indict him for the March 8 burglary of Pioneer Furniture.

Felony theft indictments were returned against Mark Allen Hillburn and William H. Starling.

Hillburn is charged with the theft of a stereo that had been rented from the Rent-n-Own store. This theft was listed as occurring March 8.

Bond for Hillburn was set at $2,500.

Starling is charged with the theft of some 27 cassette tapes and a bulk tape eraser from Cogdell Memorial Hospital around the first of May. His bond was set at $2,500.

Ricky Dewayne Cox and Ronnie Lane Bailey are now under indictment for forgery by passing.

Cox is alleged to have passed a check drawn on H. H. Yearwood on May 22.

His bond was set at $3,500.

Bailey stands accused of passing a check drawn on Tommy Croft last March 3. Bond for Bailey was set at $2,500.

The grand jury returned separate indictments against Juan Jaimez and Juan Ramon Cardenas for burglary of a motor vehicle. The pair is alleged to have broken into a pickup truck owned by Charles Staton on May 28.

Bond for both Jaimez and Cardenas was set at $1,500.

Archie and Rachel Bailey were indicted by the jury on charges of felony possession of marijuana in a quantity greater than four ounces. Bond for the pair was set at $2,000 each.

John Alva Nance drew a felony indictment on charges of possession of a controlled substance. He is accused of having a quantity of Methamphetamine in his possession last May 9. Nance's bond was set at $1,500.

Felony indictments for driving while intoxicated, subsequent offense, were returned against five men. John Elton Burns, Lewis Eldon Brown, Jesse Ramos Escobedo, Paul Garcia and Richard M. Molano Jr. were all indicted on this charge.

Bond for each of these men was set at $1,500.

Serving on this month's grand jury were James Patrick Sr., Robert H. Stewart, Tommy Vineyard, Patsy Fuentez, Rose Nell Walker, Sadalia Malone, Anna Mae Perry, Charles Collins, Betty Sorrells, Gracie Collins Degrate and Dr. Don Newbury, who served as foreman for the jury.

Parliament Members Cheer Reagan's Speech

LONDON (AP) — President Reagan won cheers from members of Parliament today for a ringing defense of Britain's fight for the Falkland Islands and a challenge to Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to address Americans on television, on condition that "he will allow me the same opportunity with the Soviet people."

Reagan also publicly urged Israel to "bring its forces home" from Lebanon. But he offered Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin some succor in the war against Palestinian guerrillas by saying, "We must all work to stamp out the scourge of terrorism that in the Middle East makes war an ever-present threat."

Proposing a worldwide promotional campaign for liberty and democracy, Reagan offered Brezhnev television exposure in the United States and suggested a periodic exchange of television news commentary, to invite Soviet participation in a peaceful "competition for ideas and values."

He did not explain how he could guarantee Brezhnev access to the independent television networks in the United States.

Reagan addressed parliamentarians in the 120-year-old Royal Gallery of the Houses of Parliament, speaking from a blue-carpeted dais underneath portraits of British monarchs. Many Laborites, opposed to Reagan's nuclear policy and support for right-wing governments, were absent. The president's audience totaled only about one-third of the 1,813 members of the House of Commons and House of Lords.

As Reagan left the chamber for lunch with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at 10 Downing St., a group of women peace demonstrators with blackened faces shouted "Reagan Out." It was not known whether Reagan noticed them in the crowd.

The parliamentarians, who could be expected to maintain a dignified reserve during a world leader's speech, interrupted Reagan with applause twice.

Pupil Aids

Not Endorsed

No administrators in Snyder Public Schools have endorsed any type of educational materials offered for sale to parents of pupils, Supt. Bill J. Hood has advised.

Hood said his office had received reports that some parents had been approached by a sales person offering some type of educational aids and indicated that the superintendent had endorsed the merchandise. Neither he nor other local administrators have approved any such endorsements, Hood said.

Ask Us

Q.—Does Snyder still get any of its drinking water from wells?

A.—Not under normal conditions. All of Snyder's municipal water supplies are furnished by the Colorado River Municipal Water District, of which Snyder is one of three member cities. The wells formerly used are still here, but are under control of CRMWD, and they could be pressed into service if supplies from Lake J. B. Thomas should become insufficient, or, if they should be needed for peaking.

New School Post To Be Considered

Snyder School Trustees tonight will consider a recommendation to employ a director of special education at their regular meeting in the school administration building.

The meeting is set for 8 p. m.

Heretofore, the special education program has been administered by Dr. Thomas Scannicchio, assistant superintendent-instruction. However, demands in the special education area have increased to the point that supervision interferes with curriculum development work, according to the recommendation submitted by Supt. Bill J. Hood.

The local school system now has 29 people working in special education.

The board also scheduled to get a report on the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills tests, and consider requests for use of school buses.

Mrs. Patricia Blakely scheduled to confer with the board concerning school policy on participation in graduation ceremonies by students who lack one credit qualifying for graduation.

Proposed revisions of the high school handbook will be presented, and the board is due to name a delegate and an alternate to the Texas Association School Boards assembly next Oct. 2 in San Antonio.

Of Two Teenagers...

Parents Bitter Over Deaths

LEE, Mass. (AP) — One year after two teen-agers drowned during a graduation night brawl with youths from a rival high school, students are gathering again at Laurel Lake, a picturesque pool in the Berkshire Hills.

And although seven teen-agers were convicted of involuntary manslaughter, some of the bitterness over the deaths that shook two small western Massachusetts towns remains.

"As far as I'm concerned, there's been no justice. None whatsoever," says he father of 19-year-old Barry Griffin, who was found in a white Cadillac when it was pulled from the lake on June 5, 1981.

The body of a second youth, 18-year-old Richard Retzel, was also in the car. Griffin and Retzel were from Lee, a working-class mill town south of the lake.

The youths were 1980 graduates of Lee High School. The seven others were members of the June 1981 graduating class of Lenox Memorial High School, Lee High's athletic rival.

Lenox, northwest of the lake, is the site of the Tanglewood Music Festival, the summer home of the Boston Symphony.

It was never established how the car went into the water, but, according to the prosecutor's closing arguments, the two victims may have panicked, putting the car into drive instead of reverse, hurtling it into the water.

Court records indicate that the incident began when Griffin, Retzel and a third Lee teen-ager attacked Joseph Burke, one of the Lenox defendants, and David Carpenter, also of Lenox.

In a statement to police, Burke said the Lee youths attacked him and his friend, saying "They were sick of you Lenox kids."

Carpenter suffered a broken jaw in the fight and went home. But Burke met the other six defendants at a party, and they later found the Lee youths at the boat ramp.

Superior Judge William Simons said the incident was like any other manslaughter case, except for the fact that it occurred "at a place we all love to look at and a picture postcard setting." The judge dismissed high school rivalries and graduation party drinking as mitigating factors.

The seven Lenox students were sentenced in December to 2½ years in the Berkshire House of Corrections, but remain free pending appeal. Arguments are set for September before the state Court of Appeals in Boston.

Barbara Holmes, Griffin's mother, says she occasionally sees some of the defendants when she shops.

"I just grit my teeth every time I see them. They haven't said anything...It's just hard on us," she says.

"They'll never do a day behind bars," says the boy's father, Barry Edward Griffin, who now lives in Houston.

The younger Griffin graduated in 1980 from Lee High School and went to live with his father in Texas. He returned home three days before the incident.

Mrs. Holmes and other relatives of the two dead teen-agers attended nearly all of the legal proceedings which were held in nearby Pittsfield. They sat in the Berkshire County courtroom watching the seven defendants, who were together in the first row.

On Nov. 19, the jury convicted each youth of two counts of involuntary manslaughter and one count of assault and battery. They were acquitted of another count of assault and battery.

Since the sentencing, the 18-year-old Burke has married his high school girlfriend, his attorney, William K. Danaher of Springfield says.

Burke, a carpenter, holds a full-time job at Tanglewood and runs a part-time house painting business, Danaher said.

"He's stoic. If the appeal fails, he is willing to do what the court says," Danaher said.

Another defendant, 19-year-old Robert Walker, owns and operates an ice cream truck in central Berkshire County, according to his lawyer, Andrew Campoli of Pittsfield.

But attorneys for Burke, Walker and the other five defendants — Peter Bianco, Bruce Kern, Mark Hinman, Stephen Piretti and Todd Terpak — said their clients did not want talk about the incident.

The other defendants either hold jobs or attend school. None has been in any other trouble, according to Jim Overmyer, spokesman for the Berkshire County District Attorney's Office.

Meanwhile, steps are being taken to prevent similar incidents.

Parents in Lenox plan to provide rides to seniors too drunk to drive home after parties this week.

Seniors who graduated Saturday from Lee High School dedicated their yearbook to Griffin and Retzel and a third member of the 1980 class, who died in a traffic accident last year.

Sometimes I think women are their own worst enemies. Take pregnancy. Please.

To be "with child" used to get you a seat on the bus, a pillow for your back, 30 days in bed watching soap operas following the birth, and 10 years of intense guilt for your husband.

For more than half a century, we had a good thing going for us. Then, one by one, our benefits began to tumble. Pregnancy isn't the fun time it used to be. As the list of no-nos keeps getting longer, so does the list of yes-yeses.

You can't smoke because it's harmful to the baby and to you, but you can do aerobics.

You can't drink alcohol because of the potential danger to the fetus, but you can work up to the last day.

You can't indulge yourself by eating because the delivery can be difficult, but it's all right to jog. You can't shop for clothes because nothing fits, but you can get into a swimsuit and do three miles every morning. Even coffee drinking is a no-no, but you can play tennis.

I don't know when someone figured out that exercise and fresh air were compatible with pregnancy, but women's lives haven't been the same since.

Personally, there's nothing I loved any more in my 11th month than a good volleyball game, but some women have gone overboard.

Mary Bacon, a jockey, gave birth to a daughter soon after riding her third horse of the day.

Wendy Boglioli, the Olympic swim champion, was in her fifth month of pregnancy when she competed in the 100-yard freestyle at the America Amateur Athletic Union meet.

Andrea Mead Lawrence won two gold medals in Alpine racing at the Winter Olympics while in her first trimester.

Mary Jones ran half a marathon (13.1 miles) in two hours and five minutes near the end of her eighth month of pregnancy.

Okay, so times have changed. Let women pump iron, run 10 K's, play four sets of tennis, deliver twins at lunch, and hike a mountain before the sun sets.

But let us not forget the Maternity Martyrs of a decade ago who also have medals...fur coats, dinner rings, live-ins who never left, and cruises all over the world.

Annual Economics Session...

Soviet Leaders Meet

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Government chiefs of the Soviet Bloc countries gathered today for their annual economic session. It was expected to focus on their $80 billion debt to the West.

Shrinking that debt, realigning the East European common market's trade priorities and dealing with the bloc's increasing oil bill will be high on the agenda for the three-day meeting, Eastern and Western observers said.

The premiers of the Soviet Union and its close allies are meeting for the 36th scheduled session of the Council of Mutual Economic Assistance, or Comecon, which was organized in 1949 to coordinate the economies of the Soviet bloc.

Few previous meetings have had to cope with problems as severe as Poland's economic breakdown, economic instability in Romania and an increasing tendency for each Comecon member to protect itself in the competition for the world's shrinking export market.

The host country, Hungary, offers an example of divergence among bloc members and, possibly, a path for them to follow out of their current difficulties.

Hungary last month became the newest member of the capitalist-dominated International Monetary Fund. Its version of modified socialism, which allows private entrepreneurs to run their own small businesses, is being studied by bloc members, Western diplomatic observers say.

"Nobody has an exposure to the West like Hungary does," said one Western diplomat.

Another strategy is offered by Poland, with a debt to the West estimated at more than $22 billion. It has been calling for independence from Western markets and more internal trade among Comecon members since Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski declared martial law last Dec. 13.

Jaruzelski is the one of the participants in the meeting, which is being attended by heads of government rather than the more powerful Communist party chiefs. Premiers Nikolai Tikhonov of the Soviet Union, Grisha Filipov of Bulgaria, Lubomir Strougal of Czechoslovakia, Willi Stoph of East Germany and host Gyeorgy Lazar of Hungary are also present.

Representing Romania was Constantin Dascalu, appointed in mid-May to replace Premier Ilie Verdet, ousted in a corruption scandal.

"You have to look at the differences between all these countries," said a Western diplomat on the eve of the summit. "I would not bet that anything much is going to happen, at least that we'll hear about."

According to reliable estimates, the Soviet Union has run up a hard currency debt in excess of $10.2 billion — on a per capita basis small compared to Poland's $22 billion and to Romania's estimated $11.1 billion owed to the West.

Much of the oil debt is not to countries in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries but to the Soviets, who are one of the world's major oil producers.

Asks Trial To Be Moved To Denver

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Pervasive pretrial publicity would prevent the man accused of killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. from receiving a fair trial in Texas or three surrounding states, a defense attorney contends.

Defense attorney Thomas G. Sharpe filed a change of venue motion Monday asking the court to move the trial of Charles V. Harrelson to Denver.

"The nearest prejudice-free state is Colorado and the defendant believes a fair trial can be obtained in Denver," the Brownsville attorney said in the motion.

Harrelson and imprisoned drug trafficker Jamel "Jimmy" Chagra were indicted for the murder of Wood and for conspiracy to kill a federal judge. Conviction on either charge could result in a life sentence.

Wood was shot by a sniper outside his San Antonio townhouse May, 29, 1979. The killing prompted the most massive federal investigation since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Of Saints...

Woman Likes To Restore Statues

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — In the wee morning hours, Edna Yrigoy transforms her living room into another world. Her job: restoring saints.

"I lose all sense of hearing and smell. It's strange but it seems that my senses disappear because of my concentration," Mrs. Yrigoy said of her nighttime project of restoring religious statues. While her husband and two children sleep, the 24-year-old brings out her cardboard box of oil paints and goes to work. With plaster of Paris, she reshapes fingers, faces, or limbs. Then she repaints them, winding up with an overall protective covering. Mrs. Yrigoy, who completed three years of fine arts courses at the University of Arizona, is constantly surrounded by images of saints that "are so important to the owners."

"A lot of people don't want to get rid of their old statues. They have been passed down from generation to generation. They have so much love for the saint," says Mrs. Yrigoy. She charges customers only for supplies used in the restoration. Her reward: "The happiness I see in their faces. Some become so moved that they shed tears. 'I know they are trusting me with something which is very valuable and sentimental to them,' she says. 'I feel God put us here for some reason. My faith in Jesus (is) my gift to others I share through my art."

Because she sees her work as a religious act, Mrs. Yrigoy may spend from four hours to several days working on one object, but to her it "seems like only 15 minutes." She has repaired about 25 statues.

The most challenging was the reconstruction of four 3-foot-tall statues that were badly burned in a chapel fire on the Papago Indian Reservation in Sells.

"The statues were brought to me charcoal black, all smoke stained. The paint was chipping off the statues. I had to sand down parts of the statues," she said of the first six hours of the job.

Mrs. Yrigoy began her unusual specialty about 1½ years ago when a close friend approached her with a broken statue that was more than 20 years old. She remodeled and painted the piece. Others who saw her work began to seek her services, she said.

Criminal Mischief Reported Here

Snyder police officers are investigating three incidents of criminal mischief reported Monday.

Jody Pitts of 2225 Sunset called police around 8:45 a.m. to report the vandalism of a jeep parked at her residence. According to reports, someone had cut several holes in the jeep's cloth top and stolen a piece of drain gutter from the house. Value of the missing drain gutter was listed at $8 while damages to the jeep were estimated at $500.

Police received reports of two tire slashings in the next block of Sunset around 4 p.m.

According to reports, one tire on a car owned by Orden Benenech of 2325 Sunset and another on a car owned by Weldon Cooks of 2334 Sunset had been intentionally punctured. Value of damages in these incidents was estimated between $50 and $100 each.

Police also investigated a minor two vehicle collision in the Safeway parking lot around 4:05 p.m. yesterday. Involved in the mishap were a 1972 Chevrolet driven by John Sidney Lockabay of 402 33rd St and a 1981 Pontiac driven by Leticia Castillo Rios of 420 30th St.

Only minor damages were reported to both vehicles in this accident.

British Renew Surrender Plea

By The Associated Press

Britain made another appeal for surrender to the Argentine garrison at Port Stanley as its troops captured high ground north of the Falklands capital and closed the ring on some 7,000 Argentine troops.

"In another jump forward, marine commandos have outflanked the Argentines north of Stanley," reported Michael Nicholson of Britain's Independent Television News. "Strong British positions have now been established on the mountains... British sea and land forces control and move freely along the northern waters of East Falkland and large quantities of stores, guns, ammunition and men have been moved up there."

In London the Defense Ministry said the British troops, believed to number 7,500, were "consolidating" their position and "patrolling forward territory."

Argentina said its patrols routed British units laying siege to Stanley and seized abandoned equipment for the second straight day. An Argentine communique also claimed anti-aircraft fire drove off three British Harrier jets attacking Stanley, and "one of the planes was observed trailing heavy smoke."

The Argentines also said the two forces exchanged artillery fire Monday, but the communique did not mention damage or casualties.

With the British assault on Stanley expected at any time, Maj. Gen. Jeremy Moore, the marine commander of the British ground forces, called on the Argentine governor of the islands, Brig. Gen. Mario Menendez, to surrender and "end the killing."

Moore radioed Menendez on a VHF transmitter, using a Spanish-speaking British captain as interpreter, Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency reported.

There was no indication of a reply from Menendez. But he had already said his troops "will fight to the last man and the last bullet." Twice last week British planes dropped leaflets over Stanley urging the Argentines troops to give up.

British Defense Ministry spokesman Ian McDonald said British soldiers and Gurkha mercenaries from Nepal were clearing out "Argentine pockets of resistance" inland from Stanley.

The British news agency said government sources reported as many as 60

Argentine soldiers were killed over the past five days in clashes with the British patrols, but this was not confirmed officially.

The Defense Ministry said Argentine warplanes bombed British ground forces around Stanley on Monday, but there were no casualties. The ministry announced that a British Gazelle scout helicopter crashed Saturday, killing four men and bringing to 142 the number of British lives lost in the battle for the Falklands.

In Buenos Aires, "foreign diplomats and military attaches told The Associated Press that Argentina is getting replacements for the military equipment it is losing in the war from Israel, Peru, Venezuela and the black market, mainly in Libya."

An Argentine with high military and political connections confirmed this, saying, "We are buying everything we need."

One of the increasingly popular lines of boats for skiing or fishing is the Deck Boat. Deck Boats come in sizes from 15'9" to 18'8", and styles for the fisherman to a party boat, plain or fancy. Laughing To Aid Patients In Hospital

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — Laughter may not be the best medicine for all ills, but doctors at DeKalb General Hospital are willing to give it a shot.

The hospital has opened a "laughing place," a blue-walled room filled with plants, a player piano, a stereo equipped with comedy records and a video tape player featuring old Laurel and Hardy films and clips from the old "Candid Camera" television show.

It's all designed to help patients laugh, said Dr. John Harrel, medical director at DeKalb General.

"I think everybody agrees that happiness and mirth and glee take one's mind off an illness," Harrel said.

The laughing place was dedicated in ceremonies Sunday.

In 1950, Princess Anne, the only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, was born.

Smoking Ban Spreading To Offices

NEW YORK (AP) — There are no "No Smoking" signs posted as you enter the Manhattan offices of Furniture Consultants Inc. But the ashtray outside the doorway provides the first clue, and the clean, smoke-free air inside confirms that a ban on smoking is in effect here.

The firm, a dealership that specializes in office furnishings, is among the growing number of companies to adopt some type of no-smoking policy. Though only a fraction of U.S. employers — 3 percent, according to Public Health Reports — have or sponsor smoking-control policies or programs, at a recent Conference on Smoking and Health, it was reported that employer involvement is increasing.

In the case of Furniture Consultants, the no-smoking rule evolved when the three principals of the firm, all exsmokers, formed their partnership in 1978.

"At that time," explained David Itkin, one of the partners, "there were only the three of us plus the office manager, another non-smoker. The staff has since grown to 40. During hiring interviews we would mention in a 'by-the-way' fashion that employees do not smoke on the job and we'd hope this practice would be respected. So, what was the norm for us became an unconscious, unwritten but accepted personnel policy."

Ironically, the staff increase has meant that smokers now outnumber non-smokers. Concerned that employees might become dissatisfied with the informal prohibition, Itkin asked Consumer Response Corp., a research firm, to conduct an attitude survey and determine exactly how the majority felt.

"The results surprised everyone," Itkin says. Sixty-five percent of all employees said they approved of the policy and, of those who smoke, 46 percent wholeheartedly endorsed it. Additionally, as a direct outcome of the no-smoking rule, smokers in the company have reduced their total cigarette consumption by 34 percent, Itkin notes.

Mark Schlossberg, a two-packs-a-day smoker, joined the firm as service manager two years ago.

"When I was told about the no-smoking policy, I didn't know if I could handle it. My first thoughts were 'Would I have to give it up totally? Where would I smoke?' Once I saw that other smokers were coping so easily, I knew I could do it too."

Schlossberg is now down to one pack a day and finds that he's more conscious of his smoking habits in public and at home.

"Now it's easier to give it up in other places. I find myself requesting no-smoking sections on planes and at the movies."

His wife, Deborah, a nonsmoker, is delighted with the fact that he's not smoking on the job and recently implemented a policy of her own at home, mostly to support her husband's attempts to give up smoking altogether. Smoking at the Schlossberg home is now restricted to the bathroom and Schlossberg says he's found it easy to comply.

"I like the idea. The air is noticeably cleaner and easier to breathe," says comptroller Ron Santore. He described himself as a heavy smoker of the type that can stop smoking whenever he wants. He has cut his cigarette intake in half, from one-and-a-half packs to three-quarters of a pack a day.

"Some days are harder than others," he admitted, "but I haven't had to resort to gum chewing, snacking or any substitute habits."

In addition, Santore noticed that he's been "sensitized" to the smoking habits of others.

Couple Finds Traveling With Infant Enjoyable

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Citron and Barbara Sleeper go in search of adventure at least eight months each year.

Veteran travelers to such places as the ancient Incan city of Machu Picchu in the Andes and Africa's Mount Kilimanjaro, the husband-wife team didn't consider curbing their expeditions when along came baby Kelly Regine.

In fact, Kelly Regine has logged nearly 70,000 miles of travel with her parents in the seven months since her birth.

"We've always enjoyed traveling and we do plenty of it," Ms. Sleeper, who prefers to use her maiden name for professional reasons, said in an interview. "We decided to incorporate her into our plans — with a lot of responsibility."

And the couple, adventure travel consultants to the Samsonite Traveler Advisory Service, didn't waste any time. They started traveling with Kelly Regine when she was no more than 3 days old, to parks and other points of interest near their Seattle home. Following that was a trip to Denver when the baby was 4 weeks old.

But the first real adventure trip with Kelly Regine was to test her out, Ms. Sleeper said. That trip took the small family on a five-day wilderness trek through the isolated regions of the Florida Everglades.

"We took her camping and on a 10-mile canoe trip on the Turner River," she said. "It was more of a learning experience for us than for her. We had to see what equipment and clothing we'd need, and how much time we needed to get from place to place. But babies are so adaptable if their basic needs are met."

And the trip proved to the couple that traveling with an infant could be both enjoyable and rewarding.

"We enjoyed it so much because she enjoys the stimulation," Ms. Sleeper said.

A three-week trip to Thailand followed. The trio headed for the mountains, where they learned about the primitive tribes who lived there.

"Everyone raised their eyebrows when we said we were taking her to Thailand, but the Asian people just loved her," she said. "She's an entree into any civilization because people really relate to babies. We've found that people are so friendly because of her."

"Of course, it does require a lot of extra energy to travel with the baby," Ms. Sleeper said, "but the success of the trip is really dependent on how well you plan."

She suggests list-making as the way to avoid overpacking, or worse, leaving out a crucial item. "I think of the baby's day-to-day routine and write a list of all the things we should bring."

"Make sure you bring plenty of spare clothing for the baby," she suggests. "The trick is in layered clothing — depending on the type of climate you will be entering."

"I also recommend breastfeeding the baby. If you don't, you're forced to use formula mixes which may make the baby sick. I've found that her behavior is easier and if she's hungry I can feed her right there."

"There are also little considerations such as trying to plan the trip or departure around your child's normal sleeping time. This will make it easier on you."

The only main problem arose when the family returned home and had to settle back into the home routine, she said.

"She was used to having us around 24 hours a day. You have so much physical contact with the baby while traveling, and when you go home and have to attend to other business, they sense the withdrawal. She had a hard time with that. It usually takes three days to get back to normal."

"But traveling with an infant is special because it helps freeze in time a certain developmental stage of the baby. You are constantly taking photographs, which helps to intensify that special time in her development."

The next adventure in store for the family is a trip to India, where they will travel through Kashmir to live on a house boat on the Dahl Lake.

Today's hand left all four players unhappy with their respective partners. North and South blamed each other for reaching the silly no-trump game when five clubs was the cinch to end all cinches.

Their arguments were mild, but East and West really went to it. It seems that West had opened the king of hearts and East signaled with the 10 spot. West continued quickly with the ace and jack. At this stage of the proceedings East broke the tempo by thinking. Then he studied, cogitated, gazed at the ceiling and finally played his queen on his partner's jack. Now the nine blocked the suit and South made his three no-trump.

West suggested sarcastically that East should just toss a coin when he had a problem and would then have an even money chance of being right.

East wanted to know if West was so smart why he hadn't defended correctly by playing his jack of hearts at trick two? In that case it would have been easy for East to duck and then get in his fifth heart.

East was correct. That lead of the jack of hearts at trick two would have kept East from going wrong. It also would have been the sort of play that not even the greatest of players would think of and make at the table.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

Summer brings new life to the produce section of your grocery store with a wide variety of fruits and vegetables. Farmer's markets and roadside stands provide an abundance of home-grown goodness from which to choose. This summer, make an extra effort to supply your family with the wealth of vitamins, minerals and fiber that only fresh vegetables and fruits can provide.

Diet Center offers these economical and healthful suggestions for choosing and preparing produce.

- When selecting vegetables, look for firmness and crispness. Generally, the darker the vegetable, the more nutrients it contains.

- If lettuce is sold by the head, buy the heaviest one.

- Try new varieties of vegetables in your salads as they come into season, including endive, chard, escarole, spinach and cabbage.
- Wash all vegetables and fruits thoroughly before they are eaten to remove chemical sprays and dirt.
- Leave all skins on or pare as thinly as possible to preserve nutrients that lie just under the skin.
- Keep cooking time to a minimum. Steam or bake vegetables, rather than boiling them, for both maximum flavor and nutrient retention.

For other helpful hints, call your local Diet Center Counselor.

Dear Abby

Judge Frees Himself From Chain-Smoking Habit

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 70-year-old retired municipal judge from the Philippines. Ten years ago I suffered a serious heart attack. I had been a chain smoker for nearly 40 years, averaging four packs of cigarettes a day. My physician ordered me to stop smoking. I objected vehemently, promising to cut down but not quit entirely.

In 1979, when I was strong enough to travel, my wife and I came to the U.S.A. On Nov. 18, 1981, I read in your column in the Long Beach (Calif.) Press-Telegram:

"Tomorrow will mark the Fifth Annual Great American Smokeout, a good-humored, upbeat, one-day campaign to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours — just to prove to themselves that they can. It's the brainchild of the American Cancer Society, which insists that anyone who can live without a cigarette for 24 hours can quit forever. So if you are hooked on cigarettes and have been meaning to quit, why not start tomorrow — for just 24 hours? It won't be easy, but I promise you it will be the best present you can give yourself and those who love you."

I decided to give it a try. I quit for one day, then another, and another, and I have not touched a cigarette since! The cough and chest pains I used to have have stopped, and I no longer crave a cigarette.

I wish I could personally thank you for this, for if I could, I would not only shake your hands firmly, but would kiss them as well as a sincere manifestation of my appreciation and gratitude. You may use my name.

JUDGE JOSE L. COLLADO

DEAR JUDGE: Your letter is more than sufficient thanks for me. And if there are other readers who quit smoking on the Great American Smokeout Day, I want to hear from you!

DEAR ABBY: I deeply resent the pressure put on bosses to "honor" their secretaries by sending them flowers or candy and treating them to a lunch or dinner. As I see it, it's just another commercial gimmick to sell more flowers and candy.

After all, secretaries are paid for their services. And if the secretary does an outstanding job, let the boss show his or her appreciation as he or she sees fit.

Having a National Secretaries Week to "honor" all secretaries pressures all bosses to go along with the gimmick or look cheap.

I happen to be a wife as well as a secretary, and I do not need my boss to take me to lunch. I spend eight hours a day with him, and that's enough!

I know this letter won't change anything, but it sure felt good to get this off my chest.

NO HONORS, PLEASE

DEAR NO: You're right. It won't change anything, but I'm glad you got it off your chest. That's what I'm here for. Read on for a letter from a secretary with another point of view:

DEAR ABBY: Once again National Secretaries Week has passed unnoticed by my boss. I wonder how many other secretaries can identify with this:

On holidays and special occasions, nobody in the boss's family would be remembered if his secretary didn't remind him to send flowers or buy a gift. (And guess who orders the flowers and buys the gift? And when the boss receives a gift, guess who writes the thank-you notes?)

Believe me, the movie "Nine to Five" was no exaggeration. I would sign my name, but my boss is a very famous celebrity. Thanks for listening.

Alligators Becoming Domestic Pests Now

HOUSTON (AP) — Alligators occasionally are meandering down residential streets, dining on pets and livestock and in general making themselves a nuisance in places along the Gulf Coast where once they were almost extinct.

"We're up to our ears in alligators. They're all over the place around here," said state Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who helped get a state ban on hunting the reptiles lifted this year.

As many as 90,000 alligators thrive in the waterways of Chambers, Jefferson and Orange counties, and their population also has increased in Harris County, officials said.

State wildlife officials are considering an alligator hunting season in 1983, but they must get approval from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Chambers County ranchers have complained that alligators are eating young calves.

"I know personally of 15 baby calves that have been eaten and three of those belonged to me," said Joe Lagow, 72.

Judge Orders Five Men To Pay $287,000 Judgment In Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Saying Missouri farmer Wayne Cryts is a thief, a federal bankruptcy judge has ordered Cryts and four others to pay a judgment of more than $287,000.

Cryts took 33,000 bushels of soybeans he said were his from an elevator at Bernie, Mo. in July. Baker had issued an order that the grain be sold as part of a complicated bankruptcy case involving James Brothers Co. of Corning, Ark. Cryts had removed the grain earlier from one of the company's bankrupt elevators near New Madrid, Mo.

In a 19-page judgment filed Monday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court, Judge Charles Baker said if the five don't pay by today, they would be fined $1,500 more a day. Baker said any defendant could pay the money.

In another development Monday, Baker recommended to U.S. District Court and the U.S. attorney's office that the five be prosecuted for criminal contempt of court.

In addition to Cryts, the defendants are his wife, Sandra; his father, William Cryts Sr. of Dexter, Mo.; Evans Ippock of Buffalo, Mo.; and Bill Jewell of Long Lane, Mo. Pictures introduced into Baker's court recently showed them helping remove the grain.

Baker is the same judge who ordered the Puxico, Mo., farmer jailed April 28 for civil contempt after Cryts refused to say who helped him remove the grain from the elevator at Bernie.

On May 24, Baker ordered Cryts freed from the Pope County Jail at Russellville because, the judge said, an agreement was reached to divide the proceeds from the grain sale among creditors and farmers. The civil case, therefore, was closed, Baker said.

The judgment is to cover losses suffered by farmers who had grain stored in the elevator near New Madrid. Among other expenses to be paid are attorney fees.

Charlie Cooper, a spokesman for the American Agriculture Movement which supports Cryts, said by telephone Monday night that attorneys probably would appeal the ruling. Cooper said the decision didn't surprise Cryts, who was unavailable for comment.

Baker said Cryts had stolen from the court and his neighbors. "He ought to be punished for his criminal acts," the judge said.

"It is obvious to the court," Baker said, "that Mr. Cryts envisions himself to be some sort of folk hero who has been called on from on high to right the wrongs inflicted upon farmers when grain elevators fail."

But Cryts is determined he's right, Baker said. "And it doesn't seem to make any difference how many times he is told otherwise," the judge said. "He is bound and determined to do as he jolly well pleases."

In August 1980, James Brothers filed for bankruptcy. Baker said the company should sell the grain stored in its 11 Missouri and Arkansas elevators. The proceeds, he said, should be used to pay creditors and farmers.

Included in the judgment is the amount Baker believes Cryts has cost the bankruptcy case's trustee, Robert Lindsey, by taking the grain and disposing of it.

Wet May Reduces Water Demand

The question of how much the phenomenal increase in municipal water consumption for 1982 was due to dry weather was partially answered in May deliveries of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

May was cooler and wetter, and deliveries to cities took a nose dive to 1,254,884,800 gallons of water, or 8.42 percent below May a year ago. In contrast, deliveries for April were up 25.55 percent. The increase in municipal consumption dropped from 20.39 through April to 12.63 percent through May, or a total of 5,729,259,800 gallons for the five months period.

Oil companies took 221,813,936 gallons in May, a modest 3.12 percent more than for the same month in 1981. This made the total delivery figure through May 6,738,314,361 gallons, or 11.10 percent over the same five months in 1981.

During May, Odessa required 596,994,000 gallons, down 6.63 percent from May of 1981 but up 23.56 percent for the first five months of this year. Big Spring took 229,674,000 gallons, down 2.26 from May of 1981, but up 15.92 percent for the first five months. Snyder received 70,026,000 gallons in May, a decline of 24.57 percent for the month, but up 4.75 percent through May. Midland, which receives only part of its supply from the district, took 342,910,000 gallons in May, a decline of 12.69 percent, and a 3.41 decrease for the initial five months of 1982.

Stress test might help

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am in my mid-30s and have been running more than six-mile races. After I finish a race, my heart seems to beat irregularly for the rest of the day. I say seems to because it could be just beating harder at times.

Is this something I should worry about? Should I stop running? Is this an indication that I might drop dead from running? I've heard of this happening to some runners. I enjoy running and would like to continue my program but I don't want to take unnecessary risks.

DEAR READER — You cannot make an intelligent decision about a problem unless you know what the problem is. It is important whether your heart is beating irregularly after a race or just beating strongly. The way you find out is to have an examination. You may need to have an electrocardiogram taken after a race if you can't find out any other way.

This story is an example of when a stress test can help. If you are exercised to comparable levels in the laboratory and the rhythm of your heart is checked everyone will know what you have and can better advise you.

Now, I must tell you that people who undergo high levels of exertion regularly often gradually develop a potassium deficiency. That is why a good eight-ounce glass of orange juice is a good thing for a runner or for others who labor or exercise regularly. Lowered potassium does make the heart more susceptible to irregular beats.

Most runners who get into trouble with heart attacks do so because they have underlying heart disease, usually enough to have caused symptoms, or they simply overdo the exercise. How you exercise is important. So are your risk factors of blood pressure, cholesterol and whether you smoke or not.

If you exercise sensibly and have no underlying problems you are most unlikely to get into trouble.

To help you have a better concept of the dangers or lack of dangers and what exercising sensibly means, I am sending you The Health Letter number 13-4, A Perspective on Jogging Deaths. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the percentage of nonsmokers who develop lung cancer compared to smokers?

DEAR READER — Let's put it another way, 80 to 90 percent of all lung cancers occur in cigarette smokers. A nonsmoker's chance of getting lung cancer is quite small. This means that lung cancer is one of the easiest of all cancers to prevent. We do not need a cure for lung cancer, we need the will power to prevent it. Millions of dollars are spent for a cure of a problem that can be prevented. And while preventing it a person also saves money — the smoking bill.

Unfortunately, lung cancer is on the rise in the United States. We are reaping the effects of smoking 15 and 20 years ago. Basically it is a story of smoke today and die of lung cancer 20 years later. It takes years to see the effects of tobacco smoke in causing lung cancer in a population.

About 6,000 more people will die of lung cancer in 1982 than in 1981. Lung cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths in men and rapidly challenging breast cancer for first place in women.

Rotary 1 Step Closer To Reversing Rule

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The Birmingham Rotary Club will be asked June 30 to overturn its white-only membership rule, following a turnabout Monday by the local board of directors.

The board voted Monday to recommend that the club adopt the standard Rotary constitution, replacing the Birmingham club's 1913 document that opened membership to white males only, said President Foster Etheredge.

The Rotary International board had pressured the local club following its 120-90 vote in May to keep the racially based membership policy.

The question was brought before the members at the insistence of Birmingham Post-Herald Editor Angus McEachran after the local board voted it down. McEachran resigned from the club following the May vote.

Rotary International requires all clubs formed after 1922 to use the standard Rotary constitution, which makes no mention of race in its membership rules. The Birmingham chapter, formed in 1913, was exempt because of a grandfather clause that permitted it to keep the original charter.

Two weeks ago, the Rotary International directors urged the Birmingham club to reconsider its membership rule, and the members voted last week to ask the board to again take up the question.

Etheredge said the June 30 date for a new vote would allow for proper notice of the proposed change as provided in the current constitution.

Of Indian Artifacts...

Recession Aids To Lure

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Thousands of dirty, broken pieces of pots in the Southwest are taking on new lustre for the professional thieves as the nation's recession continues, with some of the prehistoric Indian artifacts selling for as much as $10,000.

But tough new state and federal laws designed to stop stealing also are stopping "mom and pop collectors" from poring over Indian sites in the Southwest for loot, said U.S. Forest Service archeologist Martin E. McAllister.

"The economy seems to have pushed more hobbyists into the professional type of pot-hunter," added McAllister. He said the trend is similar to the increase in poachers who illegally take game and fish during tough economic times.

"I'm optimistic, however, that the stiff new laws will eventually bring things under control," McAllister, who is assigned to Tonto National Forest, said in an interview Monday.

McAllister said fear of a felony conviction and sentences of up to five years in prison have discouraged most amateur "pot-hunters."

The three peak periods for the theft of American artifacts have been the 1890s when there was a general economic collapse, during the Depression in the 1930s, and now, he said.

Most undiscovered artifacts seem to be in Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Utah, all of which are large and sparsely populated in areas, making detection of illegal pot-hunting difficult.

The potential profit is huge: a single pot in good condition can ring from $200 to $5,000 and sometimes as much as $10,000, McAllister said.

"The tragedy is that once the pot hunter has ripped into a site, not only is it destroyed for visitors but the information left for us by people from prehistoric times is lost forever," he said.

The new Arizona state law became effective last summer; the federal law a few months earlier.

People arrested on federal lands for stealing artifacts or damaging a site can be sentenced to a year in prison and a fine of $10,000 for a first offense if the loss is less than $5,000, and two years and $20,000 if the loss is more than $5,000. A second offense calls for five years and a $100,000 fine.

Damage on state lands calls for a possible two-year sentence and $150,000 fine for a first offense and five years and $150,000 for a second offense.

McAllister said convictions under the new laws have been for first offenses so far, and "judges are not inclined to sock it to first offenders, whether they be pot hunters or drunk drivers or what."

Hikers and ranchers can help archeologists curb the pot-hunters, he said.

"Many of our cases develop from a rancher or hiker or someone like that — on the land for a legitimate purpose — being angry enough to call us to report pot-hunting activity," he said.

U.N. Ambassador Says U.S. Policy Is On Mad Hatter Basis

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeane Kirkpatrick, ambassador to the United Nations, said today she was not criticizing the Reagan administration's foreign policy when she said the United States has been impotent in the U.N. and has been "stumbling ... almost on a Mad Hatter basis."

In a speech to the Heritage Foundation on Monday, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the United States has shown an ineptitude in the United Nations that has "persisted for decades."

Interviewed on ABC's "Nightline" early today, Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was not referring to the embarrassing diplomatic gaffe Friday, when she cast a veto against a Security Council resolution that called for a ceasefire between Great Britain and Argentina in the Falkland Islands.

On instructions from Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., she later tried to retract the vote, announcing the orders to abstain had come too late, an event she termed a "pure communications snafu."

In her speech, she said one reason for a poor performance at the U.N. "is that the United States has been unable to express a cohesive national purpose; instead the country has been 'stumbling from issue to issue almost on a Mad Hatter basis.'"

She said another problem is that U.S. delegates leave the job before getting to know the ropes, and noted that the Soviet Union keeps personnel on the job for decades. On ABC she suggested appointing career officers as ambassadors might help solve the problem, although she added even career officers turn over quickly in a form of "bureaucratic turbulence."

In her speech, she indicated she wasn't planning an extended stay in the job. "I couldn't stand it, I don't believe," the former Georgetown University professor said.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who has been at odds with Haig and the administration's policy of support for Britain in the Falklands crisis, said on "Nightline" that the British performance at the Security Council was one the United States should seek to emulate.

"It is very strange that we Americans, who are very good at ... politics, should be so inept at international politics in arenas such as the United Nations," she told the Heritage Foundation.

The ineptitude, she added, "has persisted through several decades, several administrations" with Americans conducting foreign policy "like a bunch of amateurs."

The ambassador said she had been reflecting for months on what she called "our unhappy fall from influence to impotence."

"Unless we approach the United Nations as professionals, political professionals ... then we don't even know if the United Nations can be made a more hospitable place for American national interest," she said.

In the ABC interview,

Mrs. Kirkpatrick said she was not criticizing U.S. foreign policy, but added she meant the U.S. should "behave in a politically sophisticated fashion, the way we behave ... in our legislatures and Congress."

Video Art Creates Museum Wonderland

NEW YORK (AP) — More TV sets than are ordinarily seen in captivity outside a factory are assembled in an exhibition at the Whitney Museum of American Art here.

But it's misleading to suggest that they're captive. Rather, they've been liberated by Nam June Paik, the pioneer video artist, to play a lively variety of roles undreamed of by their makers.

This is the first retrospective of the video art created by Paik, Korean-born and now a resident of New York City, and it's the largest show devoted to a single video artist that New York has yet seen. There are more than 60 works in the show: more than a dozen video installations, environments, multimedia sculptures and music scores.

Paik arranges groups of TV monitors to bemuse visitors with bright multiple images; he uses functioning or gutted TV sets as frames, as found objects, as components of collages; he screens videotapes, and has live videocameras recording and playing back instant still lives.

Anything concretely or conceptually relating to video is fair game for his flexible sense of fantasy, and is equally eligible to inspire an electronically oriented sculpture, crack a multimedia joke or make a dark space glow with a poetic message.

A series of these darkened galleries introduces the visitor to Paik's wonderland. The first is Video Fish: it has a line of 15 monitors at eye level flashing dancing images, including videotapes of tropical fish, through 15 screen-sized fishtanks containing live fish, placed directly in front of the monitors.

In TV Clock, 23 screens each show one line, going from white through the colors of the spectrum against a dark background, in the positions of the minute hand of a clock as it runs around one hour. Moon is the Oldest TV shows phases of the moon in black and white from full to crescent, on 12 screens.

In the gallery for Fish Flies in the Sky there are mats on the floor so that visitors can lie down in comfort to look up at 33 TV sets beaming mixed videotapes down from the ceiling, accompanied by the sounds of breaking waves.

The title of Imagine There are More Stars in the Sky than Chinese on the Earth is more poetic than its actual seven blurred video images, but Laser Video is an intriguing roomful of repeated images, a walkin Cubist picture come to flickering life.

Then there's the TV Garden — an enchanted environment in which the musical blossoms are the TV monitors glowing from a lush ground cover of potted palms. It's viewed from a slightly raised platform that runs around it. The monitors all show the same series of videotapes but in differing color tones, and the sound track ranges from "Nights in the Gardens of Spain" to electronic bumbles.

Two daylight galleries contain a variety of whimsical sculptures and video artifacts of varying sizes. A solemn guard standing by the entrance to one room, Robot K-456 is a 20-channel radio-controlled construction of assorted hardware, lots of wires and transistor bits.

A reproduction of a few inches high of Rodin's The Thinker hunches over, staring deeply into a mini-sized TV set, its postage-sized screen tuned to a local program. A similarly pensive stone statue of Buddha contemplates his own image being played back on the TV screen in front of him.

A single candle burns inside an empty TV set. A handsome antique carved wooden English mail box, more than 6 feet high, beams out slices of TV programs through its two slots, near a ceiling-high tower of 40 TV sets, a tapering pyramid of pulsating images with music.

Music is the theme of the TV Cello, playing its concerto. The cellist in the videotapes the cello plays of itself is Charlotte Moorman, a classical cellist who has collaborated with Paik on several projects. She is shown wearing two other exhibits, TV Bra and TV Glasses.

A microphone is wired to another monitor so that visitors can participate in the creation of a purely abstract form of video art: sounds made into the microphone activate swirling color streaks in random patterns on the screen.

Paik, 50, has worked in and experimented with many art forms, and with composing and performing.

After graduating from the University of Tokyo with a degree in aesthetics and a thesis on composer Arnold Schoenberg, Paik went to Europe, worked with avant-garde composers, extended his interest to visual effects to accompany sound, and eventually began to explore the widest possibilities of video and electronic media.

This show provides a very wide sampling of the concepts he has made visible and audible in ways that please, amuse, sometimes puzzle, and are usually in some way eye-opening.

The show will be going on tour in this country and in Europe, but no dates have been set.

Worm Plan Raises Fuss

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A children's librarian wormed her way into trouble with plans for an unusual summer lawn race, but the local Humane Society has let her off the hook.

To keep her charges interested, Lola Teubert, children's librarian for the Evansville Public Library, decided to hold a race featuring those stars of fishing hooks and gardens — worms.

But an unidentified caller, saying he represented the local Humane Society, said the race was cruel to worms.

"It knocked the stuffing right out of me when I heard the Humane Society complained," said Mrs. Teubert. "We're not putting them on any fishing pole — we're just going to race them."

While admitting she is "no worm fan myself," Mrs. Teubert promised that no harm will come to the contestants. In fact, she plans to give them all new homes in her backyard after the race.

Humane Society President Mary Jo Keown set the record straight. "If someone called, it was not with our authorization," she said. "I think it was probably someone a little on the kooky side."

Nelson Haunts Texas By 6-0

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Gene Nelson has returned to haunt the Texas Rangers.

The 21-year-old right-hander, signed originally by Texas in 1978, came back to Arlington Stadium in a Seattle Mariners' uniform, tossed a two-hit shutout against his former mates and, adding insult to injury, used a pitch the Rangers taught him.

"It's a three-finger changeup where I use my outside three fingers," Nelson said after the 6-0 Seattle victory, the Mariners' 10th win in 14 games. "When I went to tryout camp they (Rangers) wanted me to learn how to throw it."

With two outs in the seventh, Buddy Bell spoiled Nelson's perfect game with a line-drive single to center.

The only other hit - and base runner - Nelson allowed was an eighth-inning infield single by Dave Hostetler.

He gave no walks and struck out five. Texas starter Jon Matlack, 1-4, retired the first 12 Seattle hitters but Richie Zisk singled to open the fifth, Al Cowens walked, Todd Cruz singled to load the bases and Terry Bulling drove in line. Gaither was all-district for Lubbock Cooper two years. A three-year letterman, she shot 81 percent from the field as a senior and was named to participate in this year's North-South All-Star Game.

She also participated in track for three years and tennis for one year.

A member of the National Honor Society, she won awards in typing and accounting and received the Cooper High School Outstanding Academic Achievement Award. She was a member of FHA and the Future Business Leaders of America, was Basketball Sweetheart and a homecoming queen candidate and was Miss CHS Runnerup.

Lakers Hosting 76ers Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It was only a few days ago that the Los Angeles Lakers were being touted by many observers as one of the greatest teams in National Basketball Association history. Now, there are those who believe the Lakers have their backs against the wall.

The Lakers, with a 3-2 lead over Philadelphia in the best-of-seven NBA Championship Series, entertain the 76ers tonight in Game Six. The contest begins at 8 p.m.

The series moved back to Los Angeles because the 76ers rolled to a 135-102 triumph on their home court last Sunday. If the 76ers win tonight, a seventh game will be played at the Spectrum in Philadelphia Thursday night.

On the whole, the Lakers would rather not be in Philadelphia, at least not right now.

"It's going to be a heck of a basketball game because the Lakers are going to treat it like it's the seventh game," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham, speaking of tonight's contest. "They don't want to come back to Philly to play us."

Of course, the 76ers aren't too fond of playing the Lakers at the Forum, either. Los Angeles has won 40 of its 58 home games against Philadelphia over the years.

Philadelphia is trying to become the first team in the 36-year history of the NBA to win a Championship Series after trailing 3-1.

One 76er who played a great game Sunday was 6-foot-11 center Darryl Dawkins.

Dawkins came off the bench to score 20 points, grab seven rebounds and played a key role as the 76ers held Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to only six points.

Holmes And Cooney... Pre-Fight Hoopla Gets Thick

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Gerry Cooney may not be a good standup comic, but then he won't be trying to make Larry Holmes laugh when they meet for the World Boxing Council heavyweight title.

"You better stick to boxing," said Cooney's trainer, Victor Valle, after the No.1 ranked contender had cracked a couple of jokes at a post-workout news conference Monday.

"Which room you playing Friday night," somebody else asked Cooney after the fighter's brief attempt at being a comedian.

22 Pros Enjoy Tourney Here

Tapatio Springs assistant pro Bryan Hargrove shot a 65 here Monday to take top honors in the professional division of the annual Snyder Country Club Pro-Member Golf Tournament, held under near perfect conditions.

Twenty-two professionals and 66 amateurs participated in the single-day tournament, which also saw Floydada Country Club pro Ronnie Rosson aid amateurs Jake Broyles, Jerry Staggs and Joe LaRoux to first place in the team division with a 56.

"It was a very good turnout," said local pro Price Courter, who placed third in the professional division along with former Snyder Country Club linkster Don Bryant. "The weather was nice and the golf course was in excellent condition thanks to our greens superintendent Tony Montgomery."

Bryan Hargrove is the assistant under another former Snyder Country Club pro, Bill Keys, at the Tapatio Springs course in Boerne.

Terry Lester of Midland took second place in the professional division with a 70, followed by Courter, Bryant and Rex Worrell, all with 71s. Bryant heads up the San Angelo Country Club while Worrell is pro at the Hogan Park Golf Course in Midland.

Lubbock Country Club pro Mike Walker led a team of Toby Foster, Larry Hildreth and Lu Wolf to second place in the team division with a 59. Third was a foursome of Monahans Country Club pro Beau Wright, H. Coursey, Dorothy Wright and Dode Lamkin. They turned in a 60 in the low ball competition, tying Tim Andruss of Fairway Oaks, Lance McMillan, Charles Lawrence and Theresa Hildreth.

Four teams tied for fifth place. They included Courter's squad of Howard Crenshaw, John Greene and Gina Courter. Also shooting a 61 for fifth were Bryan Hargrove's crew of Dr. Bob Hargrove, L.A. Berry and Rex Robinson. The other two teams tying for fifth were Lester, Joe Hart, Cheri Thomas and Betty Hildreth, and Alan Pursley, Bush Jordan, Jackie Nunn and Kaye Cypert. Pursley is the professional at Andrews Country Club.

Guerrero

Wins, Keeps Advancing

Jimmy Guerrero, regional boxing champion, will compete in the State USA-ABS Junior Olympic Championships to be held June 11 and 12 at Jonesboro, LA.

Guerrero, who won the 70-pound class at the regional tournament in Andrews last weekend, will represent the West Texas Olympic Team in the upcoming championships, which includes boxers from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

The 13-year-old is coached by Johnny Claxton and Frank Gonzales and competes with the Snyder Boxing Club, a group sponsored by the Scurry County Boy's Club.

Two other Snyder youths went to the regional bouts. Danny Martinez was disqualified in the 60-pound division for not making his weight. Gilbert Gonzales lost his first fight by split decision.

"We'd like to thank those who sponsored our trip to regionals, Shafer and Son's Ranches, Wild Country, Club Sundown, Bucking W, and Jaxons. We'd also like to urge that donations are welcome," said Claxton. For further information, call 573-4737.

"The main room," said Cooney.

Friday night Cooney won't be trying for laughs. He will be fighting Holmes in a 32,000-seat arena in a Caesars Palace parking lot.

It will not only be the "main room" at Caesars, it will be center stage in the world sports.

The 25-year-old Cooney appeared relaxed at the news conference, discussing a variety of subjects, a couple reluctantly.

Holmes addressed the fans attending his workout, but he did not meet with members of the media.

The movie boxing character Rocky was mentioned, and Cooney said, "Rocky is a great character. It (the series of three films) doesn't have to be about boxing. It can be about anything."

"The most important thing about it is he was an underdog and a regular guy," Cooney said.

One subject Cooney, who is white, didn't want to talk about was the race being an issue in the fight.

"I just forget about it," said Cooney. "I don't want to talk about it. The more everybody writes about it the worse it gets."

Another subject Cooney said he didn't want to talk about was Holmes, a man Cooney says he can't be friends with because of things the champion has said about him.

But he did talk about Holmes briefly, and one of the things he said was: "If I was married and had children, I wouldn't want them looking up to him."

"Gerry Cooney never had an obstacle to jump over," said Holmes, who says Cooney hasn't earned his No. 1 contender's ranking.

The champion also told fans that he didn't like some things that have been written about him recently.

"I'm bitter and angry. I admit it," said Holmes, who drew cheers when he added: "I feel each one of you deserve five minutes of my time. You're the ones who are going to help me make $10 million."

At the beginning of his chat with the fans, Holmes said, "I'm ready and I'm going to put a whuppin' on him."

"Stop bragging," someone shouted.

"I'm not bragging," said Holmes. "I'm telling the truth."

Local Fourth Net Tourney Shaping Well

The annual Snyder Fourth of July Tennis Tournament is beginning to shap up as an outstanding event, according to its organizers, who relayed the information yesterday afternoon.

Entries have been reported from throughout the area, including such locations as Houston. Several of Snyder's former standouts have also made plans to play in the tournament, which is sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

The tournament will be held July 3 and 4 and entries may be obtained by contacting the chamber, Snyder Athletic Center, or by calling (915) 573-3344 or 573-3940.

Rocket Deals?

HOUSTON (AP) - The owners of the Houston Rockets say they are listening to offers to buy the team, but insist it is routine and the National Basketball Association franchise is not on the auction block.

Ray Patterson, general manager of the Rockets, confirmed Monday that the team's owners have received four or five offers to buy the team.
