The directors will meet November 7 to select delegates to the state convention.

The membership attending passed 13 resolutions, which the delegates will present to the state convention.

Support was urged of a proposed law to permit casualty insurance companies in Texas to file their own rates and policies, rather than be required to charge the standard rate.

The State Farm Bureau was urged to continue work against any change in the rural road program unless it be expanded.

The Farm Bureau asks that county agents and vocational ag teachers be allowed to certify calf-hood vaccination, issue health certificates for shipment of stocker feeder cattle, and carry out other tests for controlling bangs disease.

Members asked that the Herbicide Law be amended so that it will not hold up the use of modern-day chemicals.

Again, the state or national Farm Bureau, or both, were asked to use influence in holding down inflation, preventing the rise of taxes, freezing the allotments of

MARY ANN ROARK IS CARNIVAL QUEEN OF ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Mary Ann Roark, third grade student, was crowned Carnival Queen of Elementary School at the annual carnival Friday evening, October 23.

Her escort was Tony Hurst, and he placed the crown on her head. Mary Ann is the daughter of Mrs. Lola Lee Roark, while Tony is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cal Hurst.

The stage of the school cafeteria, where the coronation took place, was decorated in keeping with the approaching Halloween season.

Candidates for queen from the other grades and their escorts made up the queen's court and included Debra Neeley and Kenneth Melton, first grade; Kathy Tyler and Billy McAllister, second grade; Jan Bowen and Johnny Harris, fourth grade; and Regina Ferguson and Jimmy Campbell, fifth grade.

The carnival was sponsored by Elementary School Parent-Teachers Association, which will net approximately $400 from the event. This will go to help finance the PTA project, which this year is playground equipment.

be the second conference game for Wellington.

Game time is 8 p.m. but 12 minutes before play starts, introduction of the fathers will begin, with each boy presenting his father or guest. Eli Wolf will be master of ceremonies.

During the game, the fathers will sit on the sideline, with each father wearing a number corresponding to that on his son's football jersey.

The identity of the Band Queen has not been revealed, nor does the girl know of the honor she is to receive. At half-time, while the Rocket musicians are on the field, the Queen will be called out and the crown placed on her head.

The game that accompanies these two events will be a tossup. Luckless Perryton lost six games straight and then as the underdog downed the Childress Bobcats 52-0 Friday night on their home field. Childress a week earlier had won over Wellington 20-0.

Injuries have plagued the Rangers throughout the season, and one of the latest losses was regular tackle, Jim George, who creased his leg with a bullet from a pistol during a freak "fast draw" accident. It is not determined if he will be back in the Wellington game. Other assorted bruises and sprains have kept the Rangers weakened.

As to play, Perryton runs the T formation with the belly series.

In spite of their win-loss record, the Rangers have been hard competition for those teams that defeated them, and no easy job is anticipated by the Rockets.

Boys and their fathers or guests who will take part in Dad's Night are:

Bobby Antoon and William O'Rear; Leon Bawcom and Eugene Bawcom; John Wolf and Bill Wolf; Burl Lowe and Olan Lowe; Herman Childress Jr. and Herman Childress; Weldon Cleveland Jr., and Weldon Cleveland; Ralph Coburn and L. R. Coburn;

Study Begins of OM and Norwood Damsites

Bureau of Reclamation geologists reached Wellington Monday October 26, to begin checking two Collingsworth county damsites.

The first of these is the OM location, where much work has been done by the Collingsworth County Water Control and Improvement District toward securing a dam.

The other is identified by the Bureau of Reclamation as the Samnorwood dams site and will be upstream from the Fort Worth & Denver railroad bridge across Salt Fork, west of Highway 83.

Starting the survey are Robert C. Redfield and Kenneth Cooper, both geologists for the Bureau of Reclamation in its Austin office. They will complete their part of the work in about a week.

They are here at the request of M. G. Barkley, area engineer for the Bureau of Reclamation, Oklahoma City.

If the usual course is followed, other geologists will come after these two to do more work in connection with the Salt Fork survey.

This is the first time there has been any definite word on a second dams site within Collingsworth county. Previous announcements have mentioned only a survey of Salt Fork.

The Samnorwood dams site is a potential location, Redfield pointed out. There is no definite site, but the geologists will study the area upstream from the railroad bridge.

John Coleman, president of the water control and improvement district board, has been in contact with the Bureau of Reclamation Oklahoma City office and said such a location would probably put it at a point where Zook Thomas owns land on the south side of the river and Oran Starkey on the north.

"Both these men have been contacted and would be glad to have a dam located there," Coleman said. Men upstream, who would lose land by inundation, also have given their consent to such a location, he said.

It was pointed out by both Redfield and Coleman that no work has been done toward getting a dam at this point and no local group is pushing it as yet. The Bureau of Reclamation thought it was a likely point for a dam location if the OM location does not prove suitable.

The area which will be studied lies a mile west and about four south of Samnorwood, and two miles south of the old Plymouth cemetery.

The railroad bridge crosses Salt Fork in almost the exact geographical center of the county. Redfield and Cooper are here specifically to check the soundness of foundations for a dam structure, and to examine the area around the two damsites.

They began work on the OM location, working Monday on the Mish Dukeminier ranch south of the Needwood community.

On completing their work here, Redfield and Cooper will turn a report of their findings over to Barkley.

Crackers Play Away from Home

Thursday, October 29, they will play Childress at Childress, in a game that begins at 6:30 p.m.

The final game will be with Shamrock.

So far, the Firecrackers have won one game, from Clarendon, and lost to Canadian, Quanah, and an earlier game with Childress.

Assault Charge Filed Saturday

Two charges of aggravated assault were filed against Tiffin Brown following a chase shortly after midnight Saturday, October 24, in which he twice tried to ram the car of Police Chief Troy Marsh.

Marsh said that Brown, driving a 1953 Chevrolet, tried to ram his car at the northwest corner of the square and again in the 1300 block of West Avenue, before Marsh curbed him in the 1400 block of Dalhart. The police chief's 1959 model Edsel was only slightly damaged.

Brown is being held in Memphis jail.

Will the Cost of Hand-Pulled Cotton Become Prohibitive?

Do you want to pay $100 a bale to have your cotton hand picked?

Don't laugh. You may do it sooner than you think. The ginning industry is warning its managers, as well as cotton growers, that this is in prospect. Already there is on foot a move to bring migrant workers under the minimum wage law, and considering the amount of time it takes to pull a bale, time that would be killed when payment is by the hour, not pounds, and other factors, ginners have come up with the $100 figure.

It costs from $40 to $50 now, and at the end of the cotton year, many a grower comes up with the realization that those who harvest the crop get more out of it than he does.

If pullers wages do become governed by the minimum wage law, it will accelerate the speed of the revolution that has been going on in the cotton fields for a number of years.

Time was when a man sled his crop as a last resort. A dozen years ago, the new strippers were proving that they could pull cotton cheaply enough to offset the drop in grade.

Now cotton pickers that take only open cotton have been more satisfactory to Collingsworth farmers who have tried them, with no loss in grade and the ability to get the early crop that is the money maker, if any profit is realized.

But at $18,000 to $20,000 per machine cotton harvesting may move in the category with wheat and milo harvesting, custom work, done by men who become specialists in that line, as is already the case among California cotton growers.

There will always be cotton in this area that has to be hand pulled if it is pulled at all—unless the law of supply and demand works to simply take that cotton out of the picture.

But the money saved by the $10 or $12 per bale machine harvested, compared to $40 hand harvesting now, may be a bit disappointing. That money won't go to the Rio Grande Valley and Mexico, or to east Texas. But it won't stay in Collingsworth either. It will go to buy machines (for the man who buys one harvester and works in his neighborhood) and for all the other equipment and fertilizer and insecticides that are already a permanent part of cotton growing.

Guns a Responsibility, Hunting Season or Any Season

Carrying, possession and the sale of firearms is, for the most part, governed by law. But it is difficult to legislate against carelessness that is responsible for the most firearms injuries and fatalities.

Almost half of all fatal firearms accidents occur in the home. These generally happen when preparing to clean guns or pistols, in dropping a gun or knocking it off a support, in showing the "unloaded" gun, or in actual horseplay.

One of the greatest hazards from firearms comes from leaving them loaded and in places where they are accessible to everyone . . . including children.

Other precautions include:

1. Always treat a gun as though it were loaded—until you have proved that it is not; and never aim unless you intend to fire. Put firearms away unloaded, dismantled, with all ammunition in a locked closet.
2. Before a person is allowed to handle firearms alone, he should be taught how to use them, on a well-protected range under competent instruction.
3. When buying ammunition, care should be taken to make sure it is suitable for the gun in which it is to be used.
4. With many accidental deaths and serious injuries resulting from the mishandling of revolvers and guns, it is possible that the hazard created to members of the household may outweigh their protective value as defense weapons.
5. Loaded guns should not be leaned against trees, fences, walls, or other objects, nor should they be left unattended.
6. When carrying a loaded gun, it should be kept on "safety" and carried in such a way that if the "safety" fails, no injury will result.
7. When climbing with a gun over or through obstacles, such as fallen trees and fences, "break" the gun or open the breech and put the gun over the obstacle first.
8. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger, and never shoot at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water.
9. It is also important to know the maximum range of the gun you are using so that your shooting will be kept within safe limits.
10. All hunters should know the laws regarding hunting and the use of firearms.

C. S. Bearden a while back brought in peaches that were the second crop of the season, a habit of some of his trees. The second crop peaches are no larger than average size apricots, and the seed are tiny in proportion. But the taste is just as delicious as it is in early summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Donnell were in Colorado with sick relatives when the widely publicized big snow came recently. While friends in Wellington sweltered, they enjoyed a snowfall that looked like something out of a picture book, and when more was predicted, they came home. But they had to have their car towed to the highway to get out.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Dodson will celebrate their 38th wedding anniversary in a few weeks, and only recently they spent their first night at home alone. When they married, they lived with their parents, and five years later, when they moved to themselves, there were children. For many years, they kept teachers and others in their home. Then recently, they helped daughter Barbara Saunders and granddaughter Vickey move to Borger, and that night, they came home to a house that for the first time was theirs alone.

"We kept wishing some of the other children would drop in during the evening, but no one did," Mrs. Dodson commented.

The season of persistent house-to-house salesmen is starting and one Wellington woman came up with a sure-fire line, abetted by the fact that there is a business on her block. "My husband works right over there and he doesn't like to see strange men at the door," she told a salesman before he could get his glibness started.

Mrs. W. W. Sugg has put in a low iron fence across her front yard, reminiscent of the iron fences around yards of fine homes years ago. This one matches the iron work on her house, but I doubt if a Victorian home owner would have painted her iron fence a delicate pink, as Mrs. Sugg has.

His job as Quail high school principal brought Richard Gilbreath back home, after a number of years with the Forest Service. He, with his wife and four small children, were living at Santa Fe, but part of Richard's work was going over the country, as far as California, forests on fire-fighting duty, directing this highly dangerous work right up to the blaze.

Mrs. Palo Cummings Jr. is getting over a bad burn on her left arm which she got when a jar of scalding pear preserves she was making broke and sloshed over her. Bette Elliott Crawford, another of the capable youngster set, moved with husband Don to Kansas City recently for him to attend school, and right away Bette got a good job with an insurance company.

Lucille McMillin went to an insurance meeting in Midland recently carrying with her borrowed party finery—for a "Roaring 20's Party," that is. And it's harder than you might imagine to find a woman who has kept in good shape a party dress these 30 years. Dudley, on the other hand, was less interested in what he had in the 1920s than what he got in the late 1950s—the grandson, whom he had to himself in Big Spring for the whole week end.

When Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Stevenson went to the Texas-Oklahoma District convention of Kiwanis International, they stayed at the famous old Galvez hotel—where they spent their honeymoon 39 years ago.

Methodist Men's organization of the church here recently invited members of the same group at Childress over for a Venison supper, and Dr. J. M. Orr, Henry Sullivan, John Holton and Doug Barker went to New Mexico to bring home the main course. They saw many fine fat deer and got none. We are a little hesitant to discuss this with hunters who hunt in vain, and the menu for the venison supper is still not announced.

A well sodded terrace outlet is to a terrace what a well constructed foundation is to a building.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where some politicians are now bragging that we have got close to a half-trillion-dollar economy, and ought to reach a trillion in a few more years.

My easy-gone neighbor says he is mightily enjoying this wonderful prosperity—getting twice as much pay for the same job of work as he used to get, and being let to spend it up to 30 years ahead.

Says future prospects are real rosy, too. A few more spurts of inflation and he can likely pay off the $10,000 mortgage on his home with, say, a couple of $5,000 eggs.

I see where the congressional legislative oversight committee is still investigating rigged TV quiz shows, maybe on the theory that hoaxing the public is a sport only politicians are eligible to play.

My case-hardened neighbor says being taken in by the actors on those quiz shows didn't cost him a cent except for beer to drink while watching same.

But says some fast-talking characters made up to look like statesmen on TV just before the last election sure fooled him expensively.

I note that it is getting more convenient every day to get shed of money.

Folks don't have to bother any more about paying income taxes or union dues, buying bonds or making contributions to charities; it just gets taken out of their wages.

My deduct-dazed neighbor says pretty soon they will be checking off what a man owes for groceries, credit card consequences, etc., and all he will get at the pay window will be green stamps.

I see where some people think our good congressmen ought to show the people itemized expense accounts when they travel abroad in search of new rat holes for our money.

But my trustful neighbor says we ought not to expect busy statesmen to be bothered with minor details like where a few thousand dollars went.

Says they ought to be let to devote all of their time to the real big aspects of government, such as purifying TV programs, begetting deficits, and finessing $50 a month more out of the till for their office expenses.

I see where Mrs. Roosevelt is real put out with President Eisenhower on account of the says he is to blame for all of this racial integration trouble.

Says he has been sitting back and not taking sides, and you can tell from the lady's record that she feels like unbias on any subject is even more sinful than being Republican.

My open-minded neighbor says he hadn't noticed the President was astraddle of the integration fence. Maybe because he didn't know an oncoming bayonet was an emblem of indifference.

I see where some people who make tobacco-free cigarettes claim the tobacco peddlers have fixed it so they can't buy advertising space and TV time to push their product.

My aged-in-smoke neighbor says if this is a fact, the cigarette trust is being very short-sighted on account of a synthetic cigarette will be good for their business.

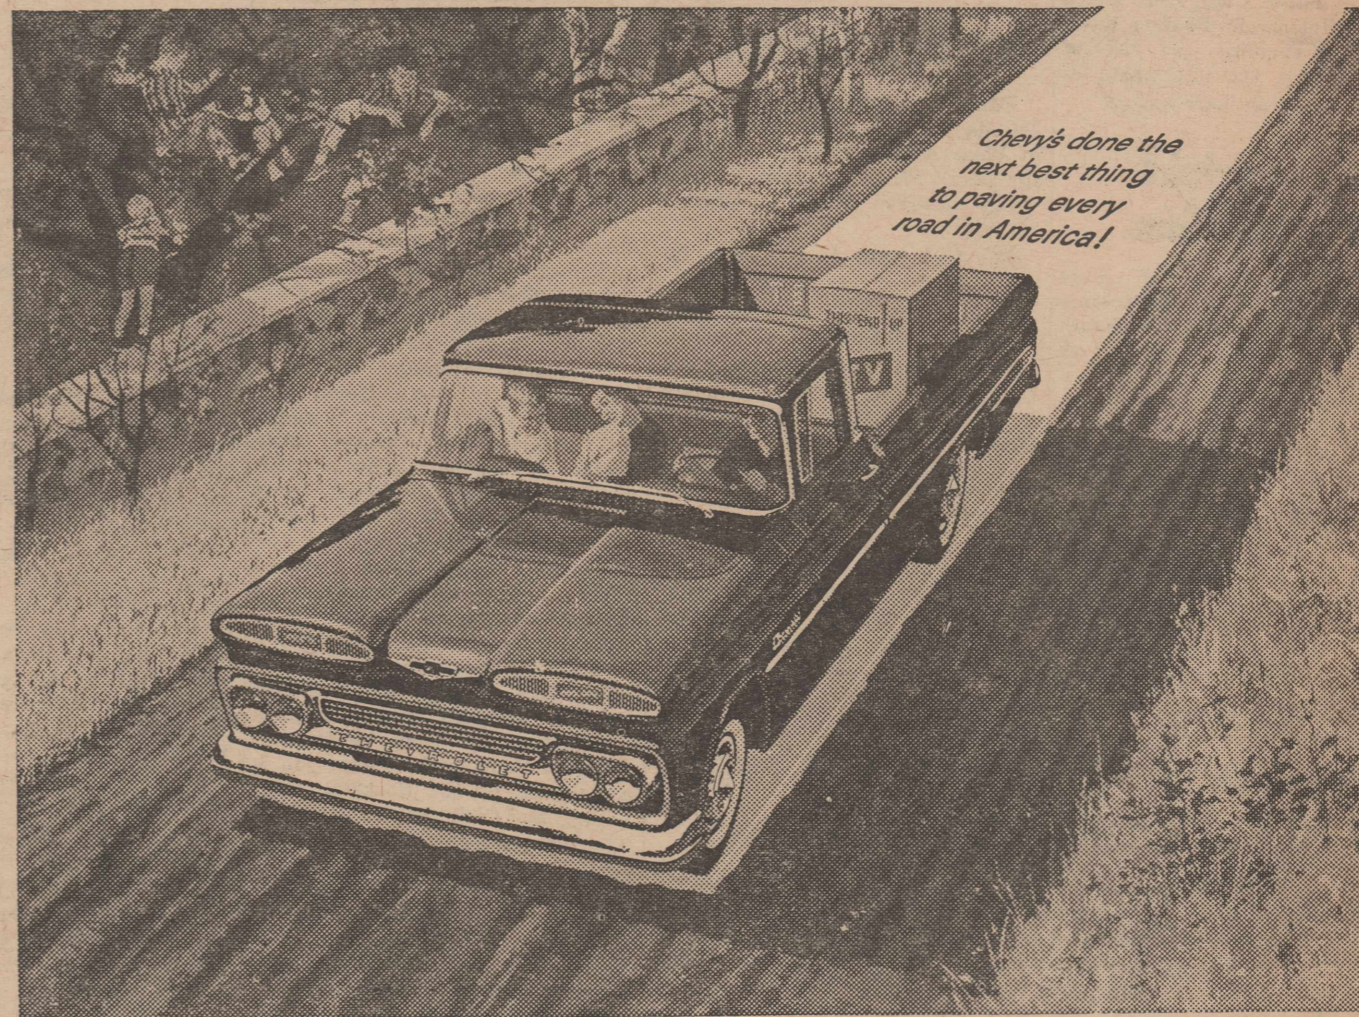

Says when he was a low-income teen-ager, he learned there is nothing like smoking chunks of buggy whips, bois d'arc bark and coffee grounds all week to make a Sunday tailor-made taste real good like cigarette should.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Kincannon of Abra Observe Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Kincannon of Abra community, who homesteaded in the Oklahoma No-Man's Land celebrated their golden wedding Sunday, October 18, at their home, when more than 200 friends and relatives called or sent gifts.

Hosts were their children, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Breeding and Dee Kincannon, and their only granddaughter, Miss Karon Breeding, all of that community.

Earlier in the day, 75 relatives and close friends were served a buffet dinner in the Breeding home.

Other members of the reception house party were Mrs. Carl Amerson and Mrs. J. C. Breeding.

The reception table was laid with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of bronze chrysanthemums and golden bells. Appointments were of crystal. Mrs. Joe Frank Knoll of Canyon served the cake and Mary Elder, Pat Golden and Suella Payne alternated at the punch service. Assisting in serving were Earlene Thomas, Janie Thomas, Janice Cochran, Jo Nell Breeding and Janice Garner. Carlene Myers registered the guests and Mrs. Eddie Thomas and Mrs. Bill Wilson showed the gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Kincannon were married in Altus, then Indian Territory, and their wedding trip, 19 years by wagon, was to his claim near what is now Griggs, Cimarron County in the Oklahoma Panhandle. As homesteaders, their life was typical of those of many others who filed on the new land. Both were the children of homesteaders, who lived on claims near Olustee, then in Greer County.

Mr. Kincannon held down his claim in the Oklahoma Panhandle, living in a sod house he built, four years before he returned to Olustee to marry Lela Drury on October 20, 1909.

Returning to his claim, along with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drury, who married four days after the Kincannons, they ran into bad weather, first rain, then an out-of-season snow storm near what is now Perryton. They broke camp at 4 o'clock in the morning and started on without breakfast. The storm became so bad the men walked and drove the team and the women stayed in bed in the wagons to keep warm. At one creek that was frozen over, it was necessary to put a rope on the horses to pull them across.

They lived in the sod house until a more comfortable half dug-out could be built. Later they added rooms onto it.

That first year, they broke sod and planted broom corn and maize—and made one shock of feed. Four years later a good crop enabled them to buy farming equipment and a luxury—a new buggy.

Most of their neighbors were bachelors who had filed on the land.

"I pressed a number of these men's suits when they married, and I was glad to do it to have neighbors," Mrs. Kincannon remembers.

Mr. Kincannon recalled that they were 32 miles from the nearest town, Texoma, and it took two days to make the trip.

In addition to the quarter-section on which he filed, they later bought two quarters, which they farmed 17 years, until they moved to Collingsworth county in 1926. They have lived in the same community all these 33 years.

Mr. Kincannon was born October 30, 1883, at Stephenville and moved to Olustee when he was six, with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. T. W. P. Kincannon. She was born at Chillicothe Jan. 14, 1889, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Drury, and moved to Olustee when she was only three months old.

Three members of the family who attended their wedding in Altus also attended their golden wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drury of Olustee and Mrs. H. A. Hughes of Altus. The Frank Drury's celebrated their golden wedding Sunday, with Mr. and Mrs. Kincannon, their and their daughter and her family attending.

Texas Tops All States in 1958 Net Farm Income

College Station — Texas farmers realized a net income of $1,001.5 million from farming in 1958, $474.6 million more than in 1957. Estimates prepared by the Agricultural Marketing Service show that Texas ranks 1st among the states in realized net farm income.

Realized net is the income farm operators have to spend after paying their production expenses.

Average realized net income per farm in Texas amounted to $3,430 in 1958, compared with $1,774 in the preceding year. The Texas farm operators ranked 17th among the states in realized net income per farm.

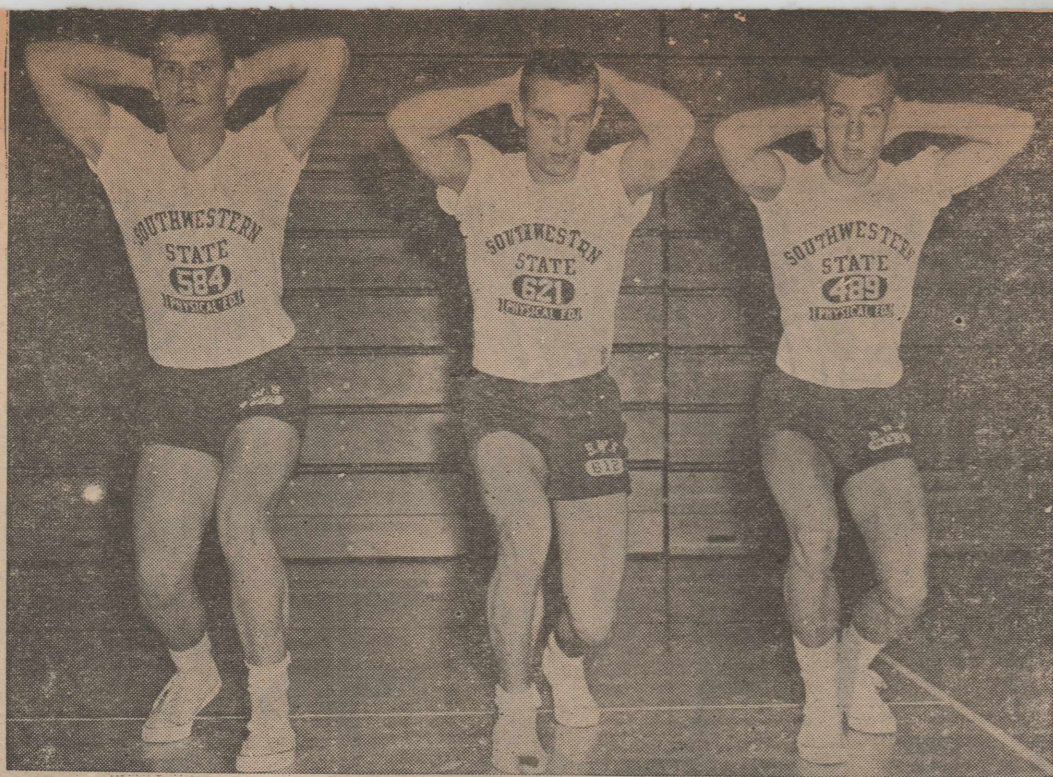

Farm operators in Texas built up inventories of crops and livestock in 1958 by $46.4 million. When realized net income is adjusted to allow for the change in inventories, the total net farm income of Texas operators was $1,047.9 million. It was $719.1 million in 1957.

Cash receipts from sales of farm commodities yielded Texas farmers $2,372.6 million in 1958 compared with $1,702 million in 1957. Government payments to farmers totaled $122.2 million, $9.5 million more than in the preceding year. The gross farm income of Texas farmers amounted to $2,684.3 million in 1958, a loss of $697.7 million from 1957. Gross income includes cash receipts and government payments plus allowances for the value of food and fuel produced and consumed on the farm and the rental value of the farm dwelling.

Production expenses of Texas farm operators rose from $1,459.7 million in 1957 to $1,682.8 million in 1958. Production expenses are subtracted from gross income to obtain realized net income.

Guests of Mrs. Bertha Williams over the week end were her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams, Tana Sue, Walter and Robert Allen of White Deer; and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Woodriddle, Kent and Nancy of Liberal, Kansas, who also visited in the home of his father, Mr. and Mrs. Les Woodriddle.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cole and daughter of Borger were Sunday guests of his uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Long.

Tops Among Physically Fit

Billy Lockhart, left, Wellington, ranks among the top ten first-year students following a series of army physical fitness tests given a group of 147 men at Southwestern State College, Weatherford, Okla. The college is stepping up a program of corrective work to improve physical fitness of its students.

Farm or Ranch Capital Should Give Fair Return

College Station — How is your farm and ranch business doing? Here are some ideas from Tom E. Prater, extension farm management specialist, which may help you determine where you stand.

Recent research indicates that one item often overlooked by farmers and ranchers is the allocation of a charge for the money tied up in capital investment. Prater says you should consider the fact that money is worth money and that the capital investment in your farm or ranch operation should be earning you as fair a return as a person owning property or an investor, and that you should make a fair charge for the capital.

One way to determine this is to charge interest on the money tied up in your operation and compare it with the interest return you would receive from United States Savings Bonds, stocks, other bonds or other business opportunities. Consideration should also be given the risk factor.

Another way to figure interest in land investments is to charge a fair rental price to yourself for using your land.

Prater adds that these charges will give you a guide for determining whether or not you are getting the most for your money.

Dam May Go to Who Is Willing to Pay Reimbursable Costs

Who gets the dam on Salt Fork is going to depend pretty much on who is willing to repay the reimbursable costs to the government, a Bureau of Reclamation official said in effect when he spoke before a group of Oklahomans recently.

Leon Hill, regional director of the Bureau of Reclamation, Amarillo, gave this explanation of the Bureau's study of the proposed dam site near Mangum on Salt Fork River, while speaking at a banquet in Anadarko, Okla.

Attending were representatives of 18 western Oklahoma towns who heard Hill review the status of projects in that part of the state.

Following is the part of his speech devoted to the Salt Fork Study at Mangum:

"We are studying the Mangum Project on the Salt Fork of Red River in Greer County. At the time we built the W. C. Austin Project (Lugert) it was recognized that the water supply to be provided by the Altus Reservoir would at times be deficient and become progressively so as siltation of the reservoir occurs. The Mangum Project could provide additional storage to supplement the present water supply for the W. C. Austin Project. There are three major problems which are yet to be resolved before development of this site can be undertaken:

1. Determine suitability of the reservoir site
2. Determine effect of developments proposed by Texas interests on the storable flows at Mangum site
3. Determine whether or not Lugart-Altus Irrigation District and other project interests are willing to repay the reimbursable

NATIVE GRASS GROWS TALL

In just two years crop-land turned back to grass and seeded with a native grass mixture, has produced this fine cover on the S. S. Coleman farm in the Swearingen community. Tom Cunningham, checking the land under the conservation reserve program, holds a head of Indian grass. Coleman will run cattle on this pasture when it comes out of the conservation reserve program. Soil Conservation Service helped Coleman figure out the grass mixture that would be best on his land.

costs. "We are starting a drilling program which we hope will lead to an answer on the tightness of the reservoir. As the result of action by the last Congress, we are also initiating studies on the Texas portion of the Salt Fork which should establish potentialities for use of Salt Fork flows in Texas. We are hopeful that the result of the Mangum studies and the upstream studies will be helpful to the States of Oklahoma and Texas in reaching an agreement on use of the Salt Fork water. When these conditions are known and estimates of costs are available, then we will be in a position to find out who wants the project enough to repay the reimbursement costs."

The studies of which Hill spoke include core drillings now under way on the proposed Mangum site. In addition, Bureau of Reclamation engineers are due to be in Wellington some time this month to begin the studies here. Other projects discussed by Mr. Hill in his talk at Anadarko were the W. C. Austin Project (Lugart-Lake Altus), the Mountain Park project, the Washita Project which includes the Fort Codd division and the Foss division; and projects at Chickasha, Norman, Waurika, Arbuckle-Liberty Bottoms and Canton.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

The Lyndon Johnson bandwagon is rolling right along all over Texas and it is going to be rolling right here in Wellington Thursday night. L. B. Bratten has called a meeting to be held in the county court room for the purpose of organizing a Johnson for President Club. Everybody is invited to attend.

People are talking about the exceptional yields both cotton and maize are making this fall. At one time in the hottest days of August, 15,000 bales was an average guess on county production. Now the estimate has been raised to 30,000 or more and with the windy sunny days the sample of the cotton which means so much in price has started to climb back up. The cattlemen continue to talk about the best grass in history and the quail population is the largest ever. In fact there is practically nothing to worry about except such dull subjects as inflation, taxes, strikes, and Russia.

Evidently I am not the only person who likes to watch the pigeons soar in their graceful flight. Quite a number have stopped me to mention the birds as well as my original manner of spelling the name. I put a "d" in pigeon. But our readers must not be interested in the State Fair of Texas. Not a single soul has mentioned that we "road" the train to Dallas.

There is no sense in going all the way to Canadian to see the leaves on the trees. Just get in your car and drive around the streets of Wellington or along the streams of the Wellington area. The leaves have changed in one week's time. This has nothing to do with frost. The trees have decided it is the time of the year to send the sugar in the leaves down to the roots for winter storage.

I would like to hear from Donald Nored way up at North Pole, Alaska. The nights must be getting pretty long up there by now. Only two months ago the sun stayed up until 11 o'clock at night and rose at one o'clock in the morning. In another month the sun will rise before noon and set shortly afterwards. Give the folks back home the timetable by the sun in that cold country, Don.

Otto Russell, his son I. D. and Richard Gilbreath of Quail along with two men from Canyon went hunting in the La Platte mountains in Colorado last week. The group of five killed eight bucks and three elk, and I. D., who had never been deer hunting before got two bucks with his first two shots. This brings up another thought about my neighbors. If Leo had as much weight, he would be as salty a football player as his brother. He has the spirit.

Jacobs to American-Royal

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jacobs and sons, Gerald and Mike, attended the American Royal Livestock Show in Kansas City last week. From there they went to Omaha, Nebr., where they visited Father Flanagan's Boys Town, for Jacobs, ag teacher at Norwood, to inspect the livestock. Part of this stock had been exhibited at Kansas City. They also visited the Omaha stockyards, the world's largest. The Jacobs family then went to Walnut, Iowa, to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Jacobs.

Look After Farms Here

Mrs. Lucille A. Greer and her son, Murry Greer of Glendale, Cal., are here this week looking after their land in the south part of the county. Mrs. Greer and Mr. Greer visit here each fall. This year the trip was combined with a vacation that took them to Sacramento, then east through Reno, Nevada, Salt Lake City, and Denver. They also stopped at Manitou Springs, near Colorado Springs, where they vacationed a number of years ago.

Two Ten-Year Prison Sentences Given Aldridge

Willis Aldridge, Wellington colored man, pled guilty in 100th District Court Thursday, October 22, to two charges of incest and received a ten year prison sentence in each case.

The sentences will run concurrently.

Aldridge waived a trial by jury and the case was heard by Judge Luther Gribble, presiding judge.

Judge R. L. Templeton was appointed by the court to represent Aldridge.

He was arrested in mid-September and indicted by the grand jury on two counts of incest with his 15-year-old daughter.

Aldridge was taken to the state prison at Huntsville Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Kenneth Hodge.

Crackers Lose to Canadian

Wellington Firecrackers, junior high team, lost a hard-played game 28-8 to Canadian junior high team here Thursday night.

The Firecrackers made their only score just 10 seconds before halftime, when Quarterback Danny Martin sent a long pass to half Richard Layton, who then ran 30 yards to score.

Bryan Hatch made the two extra points on a handoff play from Martin.

Canadian scored mainly on end runs, and the Firecrackers had trouble stopping them. The visitors scored twice in the first quarter, once in the second. The final score came in the fourth.

Wellington boys perked up in the last half, and play was nip and tuck. If the Crackers had got started sooner, this game probably would have been a tossup.

Aged Resident Breaks Hip

Mrs. Flora Russell, 94, received a broken left hip at her home, 1101 El Paso street, Tuesday evening, October 20, when she fell as she started to arise from her chair.

She is in St. Joseph's Hospital, where members of her family said her condition was improved.

Standing near Mrs. Russell when she fell and reaching her immediately was a daughter, Mrs. Carson Irwen. She is also the mother of Mrs. John Bevers and Robert Russell of Wellington.

Four other children have come to be with her, Mrs. Macie Taylor and son, Bill Taylor, and Mrs. Norma Clay of Tucumcari, N. M., Mrs. Kate Weis of California, and Fate Russell of Waupanucka, Oklahoma.

Mrs. Russell is one of the oldest county residents.

Car-Train Crash Injures One

Ronnie St. Amant, linotype operator for The Wellington Leader, was painfully injured Wednesday, October 21, about 5:30 p.m. when the car he was driving collided with a Fort Worth and Denver engine at the 9th street crossing by the depot.

St. Amant, who was alone, was driving west and the train was headed south. Both were traveling at a slow rate of speed, and this is credited by investigating officers with probably saving his life, although the car was dragged from the crossing to the front of the depot before the train could stop.

In St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Amant was treated for a dislocated left shoulder, and painful bruises and cuts. He was still hospitalized Tuesday.

The accident was investigated by Sheriff John Rainey, Deputy Kenneth Hodge and Police Chief Troy Marsh.

One dealt with the sale of cooperative assets; another urged that co-ops pay for the money they borrow; and the third recommended enactment of a state law to allow electric co-ops "equal rights with other electric suppliers when they invade co-op service areas."
