JUNCTION FIRE DEPARTMENT HOLDS REGULAR MONTHLY BANQUET FRIDAY EVENING

NOXVILLE ROAD WILL BE OPENED TO TRAFFIC SOON

Within two weeks the cut-off on the new Junction-Noxville road will be completed and opened to traffic, according to Mr. Henry Bierschwale, Commissioner of Precinct 4 and Mr. Will Emsley, foreman of the construction crew. This cut-off will shorten the distance from Junction to Noxville by three-fourths of a mile, and will open a route through one of the scenically beautiful sections of the county.

The cut-off joins with the O. S. T. highway eleven and one-half miles east of Junction. Just before the road joins the highway, it descends a long hill, and affords the motorist a beautiful panoramic view of the countryside.

The entire road project will shorten the distance from Junction to Fredericksburg by thirty-two miles. This will make the distance from Austin and Houston to Junction thirty miles shorter. Besides serving as a more direct route with these central points, the road will open up a new trade territory for Junction. The Noxville territory is considered as one of the best ranching sections of Kimble County, and this road will serve this section by directly connecting it with Junction.

It was through the co-operation of the people in Precinct 4 and their commissioner, Mr. Bierschwale, that this road project was made possible. Realizing the need of a good road, the voters of that precinct voted a $50,000 bond issue. Neither county or State money has been used in the construction of the road. Private gifts totaling around $3,000 have been received for the road. According to figures about $35,000 have been spent on the project up to now.

Engineers and persons who are in a position to know, state that this piece of road is the straightest in the entire county, and it covers a distance of 23 miles.

Practically every man working on the road lives in Kimble County. Those in charge say that the crew working on the road are doing good work. State designation is expected shortly after the road is completed and opened to traffic.

FIREMEN CAGERS DROP FAST ONE TO BOERNE

The Junction Fire Department basket ball team journeyed to Boerne Tuesday and met a picked team of that city. The Boerne goal tossers put out the Junction Firemen by the score of 46 to 16. The firemen are still practicing and expect to win a game before the season is over.

On the return trip to Junction, a deer tried to cross the road in front of an automobile driven by L. D. Borden. Now L. D. is minus a radiator and minus the deer also as game officials took charge of the carcass.

H. G. PERRY SELLS WEST, TEXAS, NEWS

Mr. H. G. Perry recently sold the West News to Mr. J. M. Ripley, who has assumed the editorial duties.

Mr. Perry formerly owned the Carrizo Springs Javelin, and was once owner of the Junction Eagle. It is not known what Mr. Perry intends to do now since he has sold his interests at West.

Rev. Milton F. Hill left Wednesday for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hill, in San Antonio.

Key Rate Inspector Is Honor Guest At Affair

With L. B. Newsum, key rate inspector of the State Fire Insurance Department, as honor guest, the Junction Volunteer Fire Department enjoyed a banquet served at the Methodist Church by the Methodist ladies last Friday evening. In addition to Mr. Newsum, the following were guests of the fire boys: J. A. Heyman, Jim Massey, L. R. Hodges and Frank Bissett of the City Council; Rev. Milton F. Hill, pastor of the local Methodist Church; Edgar McLendon, manager of the Junction Eagle, and V. P. Emmons, manager of the West Texas Utilities Company.

On entering the dining room each one was told to find his plate by studying the place cards as some familiar slogan was written on each one. For instance, when assistant chief, Leon Powell, found a card with "Phone 51 and count the minutes," he did not hunt further. Very few had any trouble finding his plate.

Chief John Hankins was master of ceremonies and presided in his usual enthusiastic manner. Mr. Hankins has given much time and thought to the organization of the local vol-

The two outstanding basket ball games of the week were the matches between the fast girl's high school team and a picked team from the town who were stars of a few years ago.

The first of the two game series was played Sunday afternoon and the score was 34 to 7 in favor of the high school. The starting line-ups were: High school—Tempie Boone, Vivian James, forwards; Ruth Sandherr, Elsie Bessent, centers; Lorena Couey, Marjorie Montgomery, guards. The second game was played Monday night on the Blackburn court. The score was 20 to 4 in favor of the high school team. Town team—Mrs. Grady Kindrick, Miss Cecelia Merchant, forwards; Angeleen Eastman, Eileen Newby, centers; Thelma Schrier, Gladys McKay, guards.

The town team is planning to play a picked team from London soon.

J. A. Wallace Builds New Residence Here

Messrs J. A. and D. A. Wallace are building a new home in the Riley-Ragland addition, that will be completed in about three weeks. The house is a four room structure with bath and is of the American Bungalow style of architecture.

The cost of construction will be approximately $2850, according to Mr. Wallace. It is a wooden structure with concrete foundation, and modern throughout. Plumbing is being installed by the Blackburn Plumbing and Electric Stop.

POLL TAXES FEWER THAN LAST YEAR

George T. May, Loved Citizen, Dies at London

Funeral services for Mr. George T. May who died on February 1, 1930, were held in the London Community Hall Sunday afternoon with more than one thousand present for the services.

Elder J. S. Newman, pastor of the Junction Church of Christ, officiated. Brother Newman and Mr. May were intimate friends. He was the first man that Brother Newman became acquainted with in this county.

Deceased was born January 29, 1857, in Bee County. He was married to Miss Nora F. Stewart at El Paso, Texas, on May 19, 1891. Many years ago he joined the Church of Christ and remained a member until his death.

He is survived by his wife, two sisters, Mrs. Charlotte Hayne, Berclair, Texas, and Mrs. Ella Roberts, San Antonio.

Election For Independent School District Carries By Large Majority

Stolen Motor Car Recovered At Van Horn

The Chevrolet sedan, owned by Mr. George Cavaness, that was stolen from in front of the Methodist Church last Friday afternoon at 4:30 was recovered Saturday in Van Horn, Texas, by the sheriff of that city.

Sheriff Frank Patterson, Joe Bissett and George Cavaness went to Van Horn and brought the automobile and the two men that were arrested in connection with the theft, to Junction.

With the exception of having been driven at a high speed, the automobile was not damaged, Mr. Cavaness said.

The alleged robbers gave their address as Dallas. They made the statement that they did not want the car other than for transportation to California, where they had started.

Eagle Cagers Will Enter District Meet

By defeating London 28 to 16 Wednesday afternoon, the Junction Eagles won the County tournament and earned the right to go to the district meet which will be held in San Angelo February 14 and 15. There will be thirteen counties represented in the meet.

Coach Earl Bowers and his team expect to make a good showing in the district meet. The team has improved rapidly in the last two weeks, and shows good form at times.

Truck Drivers Must Comply With New Law

Because many of the truck drivers of this county have failed to understand the Motor Truck Law in Texas, Judge Weaver H. Baker has made a summary of the law and pointed out the important features.

There are approximately 35 truck drivers in the county and scarcely ten have complied with the provisions of the law, according to a check made by an inspector. The law affects the public as well as the truck owner and operator and everyone should understand the law.

The law applies to the transit of freight of any class over the public highways or streets of Texas between incorporated towns for compensation and hire. All truck transfers are divided into two classes, namely: Class A and Class B. Class A motor carriers are those engaged in business with the following requisites: First—Fixed routes; Second—Regular schedules; Third—Fixed termini; and Fourth—Published rates and tariffs. Class B trucks are not required to have any of the above requisites.

All trucks operating for compensation and hire are declared to be common carriers and are subject to regulation by the State of Texas through the Rail Road Commission, and must, before operating, obtain a permit of public convenience and necessity before operating.

All trucks are regulated generally in the same manner as railroads having full insurance against property damage or personal injuries or death and must file reports of operations as and when required by law, an

GOES NEARLY 3 TO 1

Borden, Reid, McCarroll And Buster Are New Trustees

The election for the creation of an Independent School District, which was held at Junction High School building Wednesday carried by the count of 282 for and 105 against. This was nearly a three to one majority for the issue. There were 395 votes cast during the day.

Judge Weaver H. Baker was the presiding officer during the election; H. F. Bossman and D. P. Taylor were judges; and Louis Loeffler and W. C. Oliver were clerks.

The trustees elected were: Chris Schraub, J. O. Wright, J. L. Hodges, W. B. Buster, E. R. Borden, C. E. Reid and C. W. McCarroll.

The manner in which the election carried evidenced the spirit of progress of the people of the district. A spirit of progress was reflected by the voters Wednesday.

High School Team Defeats Fire Boys

As basket ball players the Firemen's team loom as good fire fighters. The hopeful firemen, playing in their new brilliant red uniforms, suffered another severe set-back Monday night when the well-coached High School team gave them a 49 to 15 defeat.

The firemen seem to have a hard time whipping into shape, or the high school quintet has them jinxed.

JUNCTION TEAMS WIN TWO FROM ROCKSPRINGS

The Junction High School boys' and girls' basket ball teams won two games from the Rocksprings teams on the local courts Saturday afternoon. The score of the boys' game was 42 to 17. The girls won their game by the score of 49 to 12.

During the first half of the boys' game, the two teams played evenly, but in the last half the Junction team played a fast game, and completely outclassed their opponents both in passing the ball and hitting the basket.

The championship girls' team found the Rocksprings team to be merely a set-up. Several substitutes played in the game.

EX-PRESIDENT TAFT IS CRITICALLY ILL

William Howard Taft, ex-president of the United States and recently resigned as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, is critically ill. Doctor's bulletins state that he is suffering from high blood pressure and disease of the arteries

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Childres had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Lemburg of Mason.

To Celebrate 121st Anniversary

On next Wednesday, February 12, the American people will celebrate the 121st birthday of Abraham Lincoln, and pay tribute to one of the greatest statesmen and characters that this nation has ever produced. A genuine American, a deep thinker, and an honest man; these attributes portray some of the reasons why he is beloved today, sixty-five years after his death.

Little Theatre To Present One Act Junior Play

The Children's Little Theater of the Hardeman School of Speech Arts will present a one-act play "Ten Minutes by the Clock," at the Texan Theater Friday evening, February 14, supplementing the regular program. This is a bright little satire on foolish conventions, written by Alice C. D. Riley, and was brought out by the Drama League of America in its campaign for better dramatic literature for junior production.

The cast will include Milton Blackburn and Mae Delle Lowry as King and Queen; Margaret King as Pom Pom, pompous butler; Nancifred Duderstadt as Bitter Batter, the king's chef; Dux and Dox, the lively attendants, who furnish much of the comedy, will be played by Mary Farmer and Roberta Ragland. Victor Loeffler will appear in the role of a gay gypsy, whose song captures the heart of the queen, and the lovely page of her majesty will be acted by Dickie Dane Emmons.

A second number, Dolly Dance, will be given by seven little girls: Wilna Pepper, acting the part of the toy store keeper; Virginia Ashabranner as the shopper, and the mechanical dolls will be played by Marie Tracy, Josephine Hamilton, Marche Burt, Florence Sheppard and Dickie Dane Emmons.

PERPETUAL MOTION

Some day, go into the Patent Office in Washington and look at the applications that have been made for patents on perpetual-motion machines.

You will see some very ingenious devices.

For instance, a machine to be run by the power of gravity—iron balls dropping down a chute and turning a wheel.

The inventor of that machnie provided for everything. He even added a brake to stop the machine, in case it should run so fast as to become unmanageable.

He forgot only one thing—that it requires just as much energy to lift the balls up against gravity as they develop by falling down.

In England, between 1617 and 1903, more than six hundred separate applications for patents were made on perpetual-motion machines.

They stand—this unending procession—as a magnificent monument to the unchangeableness of human nature.

A testimony to man's unquenchable belief that somehow, somewhere, it is possible in this world to get something for nothing.

Every man who goes down town to business in the morning should pass a perpetual-motion machine and be reminded of its lesson.

There is one great law that runs through all life. Many men have discovered it; Emerson named it the Law of Compensation.

Everywhere that law is operative. In physics, action and reaction are equal. In electricity, if the north end of a magnet attracts, the south end repels.

When I started in business I used to be somewhat worried by the good fortune of the wicked. I saw men who worked one half as hard as I and were paid twice as much money.

I saw other men lift themselves into the good graces of the boss on the golden wings of golf and funny stories.

But I have seen the Law of Compensation get in too much deadly work ever to concern myself any more about anybody else's success.

I have seen good fellows who thought they were perfectly secure because they called the boss by his first name, be fired by the same boss, who called them by their first name when they did it.

And I have seen men grow very rich—and I know that there are many ways in which the Law of Compensation can work when a man has the ambition to become very rich.

It can make him pay in health. It can turn his home into a counting-room. It can make his children snobs and hypocrites. It can destroy his joy in simple things.

Another gentleman discovered the Law of Compensation even before Emerson. He stated it in this form:

Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.
—Bruce Barton.

There were 47,772 retail stores in business in Texas in 1929. Groceries were 13,620 and auto accessories (including tires, etc.,) were second with 6,488.

LAMON DAVIS DIES

He is survived by three brothers. Schreiner-Hodges Company had charge of the funeral arrangements.

CURING "COUNTRY" HIDES

"Country" hides sell for less than "packer" hides, partly because of careless methods of salting and curing hides. After removing the hide from the animal, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture, leave it in a cool, dry, dark place with the flesh side up, until the animal heat has escaped. Then salt it promptly and thoroughly. Keep it clean and away from water. Do not let the hide dry out either before or after salting, and do not allow it to freeze. Spread out the hide smoothly, being sure to open up any folds. Use plenty of fresh, clean salt—about 1 pound to each pound of hide. Too much salt will do no harm; too little will. Salt more heavily the thicker parts, such as the head and neck.

EAGLES SHOW GOOD FORM TO DEFEAT MENARD FRIDAY

The Junction Eagles defeated the Menard quintet Friday by the score of 39 to 12 on the local court. The Eagles showed good form in disposing easily of the Menard team.

The starting line-ups were: Junction — Dunbar, King, forwards; Cochran, center; Witt and Hendricks, guards. Menard—Vaughan, Pope, forwards; Trombilson, center; Oliver and Matthews, guards. The referees were Laughlin of Menard and Bowers of Junction.

Left over yolks have many uses. They are a valuable source of iron and so should be utilized. They may be hard-cooked in the double boiler, mashed, and seasoned for sandwich filling. Raw or hard-cooked egg yolks make a good foundation for salad dressing. Several good egg sauces for fish or meat can be made with the yolks only, and soft custard for desert is still another use. Pastry trimmings, cut out like cookies, brushed with egg yolk, sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon or sugar and grated orange rind, and baked, make delicious tea cakes.

LONDON LOCALS

Again death has claimed one of our most honored and beloved citizens. On Tuesday night of last week G. T. May was taken ill. He appeared to hold his own fairly well Wednesday, and Thursday and Friday seemed some better: Friday night got weaker and died Saturday evening about 3 o'clock. Mr. May was one of our old citizens, having been a resident of London for about 25 years. He has been in business most of that time. He and his good wife were preparing to again go into the general merchandise business, having bought their dry goods and groceries and have received a nice stock of same, but had not gotten them opened up yet. Mr. May was one of the best business men London ever had. All who knew him respected and loved him. I do not feel that I could pay a greater compliment to him than to say the children of the town loved him. His friends were numbered by a great host which was proven by the throng which followed his remains to its last resting place. Our large community hall was filled to its capacity where the funeral service was held, conducted by Bro. Newman of Junction who read some scriptures and made a short address in applying them which were appreciated by all. Bro. D. F. Draper of Fort Worth followed with a few well chosen remarks and an apt illustration of the life of our neighbor and friend, G. T. May. Bro. Wallace also made a few fitting remarks relative to the deceased, all of which was appreciated by all present. The pall bearers were F. Cummins, Dad Price, J. P. Jones, Frank Thurber, Jim Furr, Chas. Bannowsky. The honorary pall bearers were many, too many to mention all. They extended from A. J. D'Spain of Lampasas to Claude B. Hudspeth of El Paso; D. Gibbs, Sonora; C. R. Stevenson, J. N. Hodges, J. A. Brownnig, Bro. McKee and others of Junction; J. W. White, Mr. Lemberg and others of Mason; R. T. Amberson, L. M. Walton, J. S. Goodman and others of London. All the men named on the list of honorary pall bearers were considered especial friends of Mr. May and I am sure we all appreciate the honer of being so classed. The relatives and friends of this good man out of the county came to his funeral from Fort Worth, Tahoka, Abilene, Rocksprings, Menard, Brady, Mason, San Antonio, Kerrville, Leakey, San Angelo and others points. These out of county people numbered a great company of men and women—too many to name if we knew all their names. The floral offering was simply grand. Thus was laid to rest Mr. G. T. May, a man who for thirty-five years has been a leading citizen of this community. Speaking from personal knowledge, he has been on the side of progress, and on the moral side of every issue for 25 years. We will miss this man, but God knoweth best.

The Sheriff and Justice of the Peace were down Monday of last week. They were shaking hands and endeavoring to get better acquainted with the boys.

T. J. Lang of Yates has been working in the Pearl-McKinney Handy-Andy store. I think Tullie is the Handy-Andy part of the business.

Rex Lavelle says he hears many things over the radio that is interesting and beneficial and some things that are a little hard to understand. For example, he says some fellow explained how cold it was at his place: said he placed a kettle of boiling water in the hall and it froze so quick the ice was still warm. Rex says he doesn't doubt the statement but can't understand perfectly.

We are now having some very pleasant weather. Our farmers are making use of it preparing their farms for another crop.

Mr. Draper of Tahoka was a pleasant caller Monday morning.

EMOTIONS

Anger, fear, worry, especially the latter, kill more people than "real" diseases, according to a report recently made to the New York Academy of Medicine. There is no such thing as overwork, either of body or mind. The body, will quit of its own accord when fatigue becomes too great, and a night's sleep will put it back into trim again. Probably no human being has ever used his brain to its full capacity. Men who have studied that subject say that most of us use less than a quarter of our power of thought.

But let work, jealousy, fear of losing one's job, one's money or one's sweetheart, creep in, and the whole picture is changed. The emotional tension tires both mind and body, which cannot go on without violent stimulation, and the process of decay is hastened. Most of the deaths from heart disease and kidney trouble are the result of emotional tension rather than any real defect in the physical organs.

Fertile Soil Needed For Good Farming

A fertile soil is the basis of prosperous agriculture. No one can farm a poor soil and succeed. But why cultivate poor soil? Plenty of evidence has been advanced in recent years showing that our soils are capable of being built up to a high state of fertility. It is just a matter of whether one is willing to pay the price. Briefly speaking, the price is good soil management. The fundamental principles of good soil management are:

Terracing, where needed. Much fertile land is lost each year by erosion. This can be stopped by careful terracing.

More organic matter is needed in our soils and this can be supplied by plowing under trash, by planting summer legumes, and by growing winter cover crops.

Good cultivation is essential to high production. The land must be prepared well and cultivated often for best results.

Rotation of crops helps to keep up the fertility of the land and to control such pests as weeds and insects.

Texas reported 116,759 births in 1929.

In 1929, Texas brought in 5,101 producing oil wells and 574 gas wells. Dry wells numbered 3,333.

Select large oysters for single frys. Drain them and look them over carefully for bits of shell. Have finely sifted stale bread crumbs seasoned with salt and pepper. Dip the oysters in a well-beaten egg to which 1 tablespoon of cold water has been added, and roll them in the seasoned crumbs. Place the oysters on a pan or board to stand until the egg and bread coating has hardened. Fry in a wire basket in deep fat, hot enough to brown a bread crumb in 40 seconds.

Texas' coldest day was February 12, 1899, when an official registration of 12 below zero was recorded in North Texas. Unofficial registrations were as low as 16.

MEMBER TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

R. E. THOMASON WILL VISIT JUNCTION SOON

Judge M. E. Blackburn has received a letter from R. E. Thomason, candidate for congress for the 16th district stating that he will be in Junction at an early date in the interest of his race. He has already visited many sections of the large district and expresses the confidence that the returns from the July primary will make him the successor of Claude B. Hudspeth.

Mr. Thomason was once speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, and has been prominent in public affairs for years.

Hon. Claude Hudspeth who has represented the 16th Congressional district for years is not a candidate to succeed himself. C. C. Belcher of Del Rio has withdrawn from the race and Thomason and Pat Murphy of San Angelo are the only candidates still in the field so far as we are informed. The 16th district, the largest in the country, extending from El Paso to Kerrville and from Colorado City to Del Rio, is composed of Andrews, Bandera, Brewster, Coke, Crane, Crockett, Culberson, Ector, Edwards, El Paso, Gillespie, Glasscock, Howard, Hudspeth, Irion, Jeff Davis, Kerr, Kimble, Loving, Martin, Mason, Menard, Midland, Mitchell, Pecos, Presidio, Reagan, Real, Reeves, Schleicher, Sterling, Sutton, Terrell, Tom Green, Upton, Val Verde, Ward and Winkler Counties.

FIREMEN BANQUET

unteer department, and Mr. Newsum was loud in his praise of the efficiency displayed by the boys during his inspection here. He was the chief speaker of the evening and brought a good message on what constitutes an effective fire department and expressed his delight in the good work that chief Hankins and his boys are doing. He commended the city council for furnishing the modern truck for the department. He said that when you find close co-operation between the city council and fire department you would always find an effective organization.

V. P. Emmons, of the West Texas Utilities, assisted by Ollie Floyd, gave a demonstration showing the disastrous results that often follow the use of pennies instead of fuse plugs. With the light trunk they demonstrated what may be done with artificial light in various color schemes. The demonstration was enjoyed by the firemen and visitors present. Short talks were made by several visitors and members.

It was an enjoyable evening and all were loud in their praise of the banquet served by the Methodist ladies. Chief Hankins and his boys appreciate the complimentary terms used by Mr. Newsum and other visitors in talking of the enthusiasm and effectiveness of the Junction Volunteer Fire Department.

The manager of the Eagle appreciates the honor bestowed on him by making him an honorary member of the department.

Junction Handy-Andy Locally Owned Store

During the past few weeks so-called "chain stores" have received considerable unfavorable publicity over the radio and through the press. Since the Handy-Andy stores are thought of as chain stores we felt that we should give the status of our store.

The Junction Handy-Andy is a locally owned store, being the property of the Schreiner-Hodges Company, one of the oldest firms in Junction. Only local men are employed and last year they received $3,222 in salaries. Rent amounted to $360 which was paid to local men. Expenses for water, light, fuel, advertising in the Junction Eagle and other incidental expenses amounted to $595. In addition to these expenses the usual school, city, county and state taxes are paid. If the store makes any profits they go to the stockholders of the Schreiner-Hodges Company and not to some foreign corporation.

Practically all the merchandise is bought from jobbers in this section. The Junction Handy-Andy contributes regularly to the chamber of commerce and supports all worthy causes. Few local institutions, if any, have contributed more to the development of Kimble County than the stockholders of the Handy-Andy store in Junction.

We appreciate the liberal patronage given us since we opened our store here and assure you that it shall continue to be our policy to support all local institutions and to serve the people of Kimble County to the best of our ability.

EARLY AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS STRUGGLED FOR EXISTENCE

America's first newspaper was short-lived. It was promptly suppressed by the government after the first issue on the ground that it contained "reflections of a very high nature."

The only edition ever issued was dated Thursday, September 25, 1690, and was called Public Domestic. Richard Pierce was the publisher and Benjamin Harris was employed to print it. Boston was the place of publication.

Pages were 7 by 11 inches. Three pages contained printed matter and the fourth was blank. Plans were formed to get out a monthly but the heavy hand of the government wrecked the project. Only one copy of the paper exists and that is in the Colonial state paper office of the British government in London.

Fourteen years later, on April 24, 1704, the first successful newspaper on the western hemisphere in Boston. It was printed by one B. Green, and the owner was John Campbell, postmaster. In the beginning it contained only two pages 8x12 inches.

In the first number Campbell made a bid for advertising with the following notice:

"This News-Letter is to continue weekly; and all persons who have any House, Lands, Tenements, Farms, Ships, Vessles, Goods, Wares or Merchandise, etc., to be sold or let; or Servants Runaway, or Goods Stole or Lost may have the same inserted at a Reasonable Rate, from Twelve Pence to Five Shillings and not to exceed.

"Who may argee with John Campbell, Postmaster of Boston, all persons in Town or Country may have the News-Letter every Week, yearly, upon reasonable terms, agreeing with John Campbell, Postmaster, for the same."

"B. Green," the printer, became owner of the publication in 1722, and after that his name blossomed into Bartholomew Green. The News-Letter was published continuously in Boston for seventy-two years and was the only paper printed there during the famous siege.

The Massachusetts Historical society has a partial file of the publication. In its early years it was crudely written with small regard for grammar, spelling or punctuation, and the printing was badly done. Its columns reveal that trading consisted largely of barter and that a condition of semi-slavery existed.

Servants were "bound out" and "indentured," imprisonment for debts was common and there was much poverty.

For many years it was believed that the first American publication was the English Mercurie, published originally in 1588. Finally it was admitted that this publication was a hoax perpetrated by the second Lord Hardwicke.

Proof of this came along with evidence that the paper upon which it was printed came into existence long after the supposed time of its publication. Errors in historical data and mistakes in the timing of notable events of the period were other evidences offered to prove it a forgery.—Exchange.

Enjoin State's Use Of Rural School Funds

A temporary injunction restraining the State from using the $5,000,000 Texas rural school aid fund, which had been sought by Mrs. Louise Mumme of Medina County, was granted late Saturday in a ruling announced by Judge R. B. Minor in Fifty-Seventh District Court.

The ruling held that the rural aid bill was unconstitutional in that it violated the State and Federal Constitutions. It further was ruled that it denied constutional rights to a taxpayer. Assistant Attorney General Rice M. Tilley filed a notice of appeal to the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals after Judge Minor had made his ruling.

The suit was filed more than a month ago for Lillie Mae Mumme, pupil in a Medina County rural school, as a test of the constitutionality of the rural aid law, with the primary purpose of preventing State school officials from using any part of the $5,000,000.

The complainant attacked the constitutionality of the law mainly on the grounds that it is discriminatory against schools of limited enrollment of the type of the school attended by the Mumme girl, and that it has failed to carry out many of its provisions.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the State Treasurer and members of the State Board of Education were named as defendants in the suit.

Much disturbance was created Saturday in public school circles when it became known that District Judge R. B. Minor at San Antonio had granted an injunction forbidding the spending any of the biennial $5,000,000 rural aid appropriation on the ground that the law was discriminatory and void. L. W. Rogers, First Assistant State Superintendent of Schools, said ten employes in the department can not be paid their salaries during the existence of the injunction and a large number of rural high school students will not have their tuition paid.

The appropriation is equally divided, each year receiving $2,500,000, and out of each year's fund comes $400,000 to pay the high school tuition of rural students who are forced to leave their own districts. The district giving the instruction is paid the tuition. This must cease and the student will be forced to pay his tuition. None of this tuition has been paid for, as the State settles with the schools at the close of the term.

The purpose of the rural aid is to supplement the State available school fund apportionment, $17.50 this year, and the local school tax to guarantee or provide a minimum school term of six and one-half months. The money was appropriated to help the districts not otherwise having sufficient income for that much schooling.

POULTRY PAYS

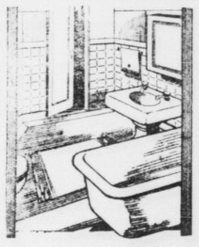

Hens on American farms in 1929 produced eggs at the rate of 45,600 a minute, U. S. Government statistics show, while poultry as a whole created a net income of more than $1,181,000,000 for the farmers of the nation. This places poultry well above wheat, oats, fruit, potatoes and a long list of other farm products in rank as money makers for farmers.

THIRD INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS

Margaret Leferre's brother, Rex, has been found dead with a note addressed to his sister stating that he had been ruined by investments recommended by Luke Maddison, wealthy banker, to whom Margaret is engaged. Danty Morrell, a rather shady character, informs Maddison that Rex had cashed a check for 18,000 pounds bearing Luke's signature. Detective Bird, known as "The Sparrow," calls on Maddison, who refuses to take any action although his signature was forged to the check. Maddison does not know of the dead man's accusation of him. Margaret does not know that her brother was a forger. Her love for Maddison turns to hate but she decides to keep her promise to marry him. She is desperately poor and Maddison makes over his entire fortune to her, everything he possesses. In the background of these events is the figure, still shadowy, of Gunner Haynes, a famous American crook, who had encountered Maddison and Margaret, apparently by chance, the evening before Rex's death.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Luke, is that your lawyer you're calling?"

Conscience overwhelmed her with a sudden fear; she realized for the first time the enormity of her treachery and was horrified.

"Yes, Hilton—it is Luke Maddison speaking . . . you had the draft of the antenuptial contract? Well, include everything! You have the list of my securities? . . . Yes, all. And the cash in bank—everything. My interest in Maddison's . . . no, I'm not mad!"

"You are!"

She was standing by him now, her face white as death. The words came tremulously.

"You're mad, Luke—I didn't mean it."

She stood there, her hands gripped, her breath coming quickly and more quickly, and heard him override the protests which came from the other end of the wire. Presently he hung up the phone and turned to her, a smile of triumph on his flushed face.

"You are Maddison's!" he said grandly. "Lock, stock and barrel, darling—I am what old Bird calls a child of the poor."

Even she could not realize that he was speaking prophetically.

"Do you want to see a man named Lewing?" Stiles asked Maddison.

"Lewing? Who is he?"

From Mr. Stiles' expression of disparagement he gathered that Lewing was not of any great account.

"Show him in."

The man who followed Stiles into the room was tall and spare of build. His deep-set eyes had in them a furtiveness that was almost animal. He glanced quickly around the room, and it almost seemed to Luke that he was pricing every article within view against the night when he might enter and take away such movables as would show him profit.

"Mornin', sir."

He held his head downwards and sideways, looking up from under his heavy and untidy eyebrows.

"Like to speak to you private, sir," he said in a husky voice.

Luke glanced at the manager and signalled him to leave the room. Mr. Stiles left with the greatest reluctance.

"Sit down, will you?"

Not taking his eyes from Luke's face, the visitor stretched out a hand and drew a chair to him.

"Well?"

The visitor sat down.

"Gunner's got three moon for bein' a suspected," he said in a low, hoarse voice. "The Sparrer spoke up for him, but the beak handed out the three moon. The Gunner's appealin' to the sessions."

Luke nodded.

"He has got three months hard labor and is appealing? I hope he gets off. Did he send you to see me?"

Lewing nodded slowly. He had the appearance of a man who was lying and expected to be found out at any moment.

"Yes. A few quid would do him a bit of good. He wants a mouthpiece. The Sparrer says he'll get off—an' the Sparrer knows."

"Who is the Sparrow?"

A slow smile dawned on Mr. Lewing's face.

"He's a busy—a detective, Bird by name—"

Luke nodded. He remembered Mr. Sparrow, whose activities were apparently not wholly confined to inquests.

"I am inside meself—for breakin' and enterin'," confided Lewing, "but they couldn't prove nothin' so I got out. But me an' Gunner's like brothers. He was in the next cell to me at Brixton an' he told me to pop up an' have a talk with you—a few quid would help him."

Luke looked puzzled. His acquaintance with the redoubtable gunman who called himself Haynes was a slight one, but it had struck him, during their brief interview in the Carlton, that the Gunner had the manners and certainly the vocabulary of a gentleman, and that this mean sneak-thief who was looked at him stealthily from the other side of the table was hardly the type of man in whom the Gunner would confide his commissions.

Luke felt in his pocket and took out a few pound notes.

"I suppose you know Mr. Bird very well?" he asked as he counted the money.

The man grinned.

"The Sparrer? I should say so! He's always goin' on about the children of the poor—but he's always laggin' 'em! He pretends there's a lot of poor people who are sufferin' because of the likes of—" he was about to say "me" but changed his mind—"of fellers who go on the crook. That's silly. If you can't do work you've got to do something: you can't starve. The last time the Sparrer started to talk to me about it I says: 'Look here, Mr. Bird, why don't you go after the children of the rich an' make 'em pay their whack to these children of the poor?' He couldn't answer me. He was dumbfounded. I'm always beatin' people in arguments."

He seemed rather proud of his accomplishment; was not without his vanities, even if he had to lie about his triumphs.

"Here is ten pounds. Give that to your friend. I can't help him much more. I'd like to know what happens to him, and he can write to me here."

At two o'clock Margaret Leferre stepped from her cab at the door of the Marylebone registrar's office, and Luke, waiting in the room of that official, turned to greet the palest bride that had ever entered those commonplace portals.

She spoke not at all, only answered the questions that were put to her. With a shudder she felt the ring slip upon her finger.

It was all over so quickly that she could not believe that the first act of her vengeance was played. Somebody put a pen into her hand, and a squat forefinger showed her the place where she must sign her name. For a long time she held the pen, and when she wrote it wavered in her fingers and the scrawled signature looked like nothing she had ever seen.

Leaving for Paris that night—the Meurice, or was it the Bristol? There was some confusion in her mind about these details; anyway, they did not matter if she kept her courage. The two o'clock wedding had been an inspiration. She went back to her house—Luke was coming to dinner; they were to leave immediately after to catch the night boat from Southampton.

Luke's voice was tremulous. They were alone in her pretty little drawing room, and he was sitting by her side, his arm around her. She was very still and unyielding, but he thought that he understood this.

Luke was bubbling over with excitement—he was like a boy who had received a new and wonderful present.

"I say, did you see that queer-looking man standing on the pavement as we came out? A fellow named Lewing—a thief of some kind. I wonder if he came to pick pockets? I'll bet he did; touched his hat to me as I came out."

She was not listening, and, after he had gone, could remember nothing that he had said except something about Rex. It was indecent of him to mention the boy. Danty rang her up, but she would not see or receive him. She must go through now without help. Luke was coming at seven. At six she called him on the telephone, and had one panicky moment when she feared that he had already left his flat and could not be found. Then she heard his voice.

"Darling, isn't it odd? I can't believe it—I still think of myself as a crusty old bachelor—"

"Luke, I want you to do something for me." She found her voice at last. "No—no, don't interrupt. It's a big thing. I don't want to go away tonight, not for a day or two. I want to be alone, not to see you. My nerves are in a terrible state; I think I am on the verge of a breakdown."

As she went on, he listened with a growing sense of alarm and dismay. And yet he was not thinking of himself.

"I've been a selfish brute. Of course, darling, I quite understand."

The conversation did not occupy five minutes of time; he could hardly realize what was happening, to what he was agreeing, before he was sitting at his writing table staring blankly at the telegraph forms by which he was to cancel so many pleasant arrangements.

Danty, waiting at Waterloo Station with a full view of the barrier, watched the mail-boat passengers filter through to the platform. He saw the barrier close and the red tail lights of the train disappear into the darkness, and went home humming a little song, for Mr. and Mrs. Luke Maddison were not among the passengers.

Luke did not even trouble to see Margaret at once. Before lunch he remembered and telephoned.

"I want to see you, darling," he began.

"Why?" It was difficult to disguise the suspicion she felt.

"I wanted you to sign a little document," he said gaily.

So that was it! Danty had warned her. Only she had never dreamed that she would be asked to renounce her marriage portion so soon.

"Wife! It's wonderful—unbelievable!"

"A document?"

"I want you to transfer some money to me," he said. "It is the merest formality—I've discovered that I have rather less than I need."

She thought quickly.

"Very well, come to the house at three o'clock."

He forgot that the bank closed at three-thirty and agreed. After all, it did not greatly matter if the check was returned. It was merely a transference from his personal account to the bank's.

He was, true to his methods, five minutes late, when he was shown into her sitting room. The first thing that struck him was that she was dressed. He had pictured her resting in her negligee—in bed even. She was not as pale as she had been. It was when he went to take her in his arms that he had his first shock.

"Don't kiss me—please!"

It was not a request; it was a peremptory command.

"Why—what is wrong, darling?"

She shook her head impatiently.

"Please tell me what you want."

Her tone turned him cold. It was hard, almost antagonistic. He could hardly believe the evidence of his senses.

Stammering like a schoolboy, he told her in disjointed sentences of the situation which had arisen, and she listened and did not speak until he stopped.

"Ninety-seven thousand pounds," she said. "A tenth of that would have saved Rex."

He could only stare at her uncomprehendingly.

"It was rather dreadful to see a man make a god of money, Luke, and to know that for its sake he is willing to sacrifice even a young life."

To him her voice sounded like the clang of a bell; to herself it hardly seemed that it was she who was speaking.

"And to accuse this poor boy of forgery—to add that infamy to the other—"

"I—you are speaking of me?" he said in a whisper.

She nodded.

"Of you. I knew that you were coming to get your money back—that is why I did not go with you to France. I wanted it to happen here. Here, where I have friends and can meet you on even terms."

A pause, and then:

"Luke, I am giving you no money. You gave it to me—it is mine. Not a penny can you have—not a penny!"

She wished he would speak during the silence that followed. She wished he would rave, curse her, do all the things that were consistent with her picture of him. But he said nothing. He was not even looking at her, but was studying the pattern of the carpet. Presently he jerked up his head.

"Good-bye," he said, and turned on his heel.

She heard the door close on him, and then there came to her a realization that made her brain reel. She loved him.

Why he gravitated to the Embankment he could never tell; it seemed a natural objective. He had no thought of suicide, no intention of finding that gross way to forgetfulness. Walking slowly by the papapet, he came to a halt before Scotland Yard and eyed that Gothic building incuriously. That big detective was there, the Sparrow—the Sparrow, who righted so many wrongs, could hardly disentangle the problem which deadened the mind of Luke Maddison. The "children of the poor!" He smiled mirthlessly. He was one of the children of the poor, the natural charge of that big man. To protect the children of the poor and punish the wrongdoer. Who had done wrong? Margaret? He tried hard to apportion all blame to her, to hate her. He shook his head and walked slowly back toward Blackfriars.

Build Garages For Convenience And Appearance

Few garages are placed in the best locations for either looks, convenience or safety. They should never stand facing a front street or road; an open garage is not inviting.

Try to place your garage so you can turn the car as soon as you back out of the garage. Always drive forward in going out.

Some more don'ts: Don't build your garage with the front close to a road or street so you will have to stop your car across the street or road or across a sidewalk, while you open the garage door.

If you make enough such drives, someone will bump into you or you will run over someone large or small. During the last few months I have read of three children having had cars backed over them.

If a driveway is properly curved it adds much beauty to the grounds; if not correctly curved it mars the beauty.

Both the concave and convex curves offer fine places for planting shrubs and evergreens; generally they help screen the back yard and also answer for background.

Never start a curve from the door or entrance. Always run a driveway straight the same distance as its width. If there is plenty of distance or room, let the straight part be as long as the car.

When you back a car it does not feel pleasant. It does not look good. It is dangerous.

It takes less work to keep a gravel driveway looking clean than a cement driveway.—F. T. Ramsey.

Texas led all the states in railroad building in 1928 and 1929 and will lead again in 1930. New mileage built in 1928 was 449.53, in 1929 158.82 and actual and tentative construction for 1930 totals nearly 1,000 miles.

The most densely populated county of Texas is Dallas with 343 persons to the square mile (1928 census estimate). The most thinly populated is Loving with one person to every four square miles.

In spite of a short cotton crop and a lower price, Texas' agricultural production for 1929 was valued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture at $615,351,000, again giving it first place among the States.

If No One Lets Go They May Get Somewhere —— By Albert T. Reid

Twelve Millionaires Hold Seats in the U. S. Senate According to Latest Figures

When Joseph R. Grundy of Pennsylvania brought his reported personal fortune of $36,000,000 to the United States Senate he brought the total of reputed millionaires holding Senate seats to 12.

This is the largest group of men of large wealth ever assembled in the Upper House and it represents one-eighth of the total Senate membership.

With President Hoover, a millionaire, calling upon the wealthiest men in the country to aid him in Cabinet diplomatic and lesser government posts, Senators are discussing among themselves the trend of the times which has attracted successful men of great fortunes to public business and public service for salaries which hardly would pay their rent.

Senators are particularly interested in their own 12 wealthy colleagues, including 10 Republicans and two Democrats. Five of the 12 rarely, if ever, vote for questions generally believed to be favorable to wealth. Two of the Republicans like laughingly to call themselves Bolsheviks, a term they have picked up from their opponents' description of them. Another is a leader of the farm bloc.

The wide variance of their views and votes has been the topic of much cloakroom debate. Among them Senator Lawrence S. Phipps, (Rep.), Colorado, is reputed to be the wealthiest man in the Senate. His fortune is estimated well above $50,000,000.

Two States, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, have Senators, all of whom are reputed to be millionaires. Before Grundy was appointed, Senator David A. Reed, former attorney for Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, was the sole Pennsylvania millionaire.

The two New Jersey Senators are Hamilton F. Keane, banker and farmer, and David H. Baird, Sr.

The two who joke about being Bolsheviks are Senator James R. Couzens of Michigan and Senator Bronson Cuttings of New Mexico, both Republicans. Couzens is reported to be worth about $23,000,000, accumulated as a partner of Henry Ford. Cutting's fortune is considerably less.

Couzen's favorite policy is to contradict the financial recommendations of Mellon and he is not advocating so-called liberal legislation to relieve unemployment and regulate the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and Radio Corporation. Both oppose nearly everything for which Grundy or Phipps stands.

The farm bloc leader is Senator Arthur Capper (Rep.), Kansas, whose money is invested largely in newspaper properties.

Others listed in the millionaire class are:

Senator John D. Kendrick, Democrat of Wyoming, ranch owner and live stock man.

Senator Reed Smoot, Republican, Utah.

Senator Jesse Metcalf, Republican, Rhode Island, mill owner. —Harper Herald.

DRIVERS

Automobiles kill more people in America than any other single source of accidents, far more than are killed by railroads. The cause of accidents is usually inexpert driving. We have interpreted individual liberty to mean the right of anyone to drive a car whether he is competent of not.

Massachusetts has stiffened its tests for drivers, so that now it is impossible in Bay State to get a license to drive a car unless one really knows how to drive. And that means a lot more than merely how to shift gears and apply the brakes; it means appreciation of the fact that there are other cars on the road as well as pedestrians.

Some day nobody will be allowed to drive a car in any state who has not some sense of responsibility to others.

NEED OF AUDITOR PROVEN BY REPORT, STEVENSON SAYS

Austin. — "Need of a State Auditor has been demonstrated," said Representative Coke Stevenson of Junction, commenting upon the first State Auditor's report, filed recently.

Stevenson, a banker, is author of the law under which a State Auditor and efficiency expert was authorized. The law is practically as Stevenson wrote it except that appointment of the auditor is left to the Governor. Stevenson's bill made the appointment by the president of the Senate and speaker of the House.

How the legislators are left misinformed for lack of suitable State accounting, Stevenson illustrated by three separate official estimates upon what the State deficiency will be Sept. 1. The first put the figure at $523,000, the next at over $1,000,000, and the third back near $500,000. He pointed also to the House Journal of the first day of the present session. It shows the State Treasurer and State Comptroller $90,000 apart on estimates of the State deficiency on Jan. 15, 1930.

Stevenson is being congratulated by many members. J. C. Albritton of Yorktown urged him as a candidate for Governor.

MAKING WHITEWASH

The easiest way to make whitewash is simply to add water to hydrated lime that has been well protected from the air. However, if hydrated lime is not available, fresh quicklime may be slacked with clean water by the following process: Use a clean wooden pail, keg, or barrel, and add the water a little at a time. Slacking may be hastened by breaking up some of the lumps or by adding a little hot water. When slacking is well started, add more water to replace that lost. If not enough water is used, the lime will become "scorched" and part of it will be granular. On the other hand, too much water may retard or "quench" the slaking process. After the lime is completely slaked, add enough water to make a thick paste, cover the container with boards to keep in the heat, and let it stand for at least several hours. Strain the paste through wire fly screen and thin to brushing consistency with clean water.

TEXAS PRISON SYSTEM IS WORTH MILLIONS

Few people in Texas realize the vastness of the Texas prison system. It consists of the main prison, situated in the heart of the city of Huntsville, in Walker County, and ten prison farms, all but one, the Shaw farm in Bowie County, being situated in the territory around Houston, in Harris, Fort Bend, Brazoria, Walker and Madison counties. These farms range in size from 1,000 to 15,040 acres. The smallest is the Goree farm in Walker County and the largest the Ramsey farm in Brazoria County. The total acreage is about 82,000,000 acres. The total appraised land value of the system is $2,825,201.80. The buildings have an estimated value of $403,825 and the equipment, including livestock, implements, etc., are appraised at $155,806, making a total value of $3,841,040.42. There are approximately 5,100 prisoners.—Texas Mesquiter.

BASKET BALL BOYS HAVE WINNING STREAK

During the past week the basket ball boys have been going strong. Out of four games, they lost none.

On Wednesday night they captured a fast game from the Fireboys by a score of 36 to 21.

Then Thursday afternoon they overcame a five-point lead to defeat London by the score of 45 to 29. This was a very interesting and hard fought game and at the end of the first quarter the future looked dark for us. During the next quarter the Eagles tightened down and when they came on the court for the last half they were a different bunch.

During the last half they played real basket ball and put over a fast offense that London was unable to stop. The high point man of the game was Cochran of Junction.

Again on Friday afternoon they snatched victory from the Menard Yellow Jackets by the score of 39 to 12. The Yellow Jackets put up a hard fight but they were unable to stop the fast offense that was carried on by the Eagles throughout the game. Dunbar, forward for Junction, was the high point man of the game.

On Saturday afternoon the Eagles carried off another victory when they defeated Rocksprings by the score of 42 to 17. This was another hard fought game in which the Eagles displayed real team work. Witt, running guard for the Eagles, was high point man of the game.

SOPHOMORE PICNIC

Mr. Brison took the ninth grade class on a picnic last Friday night. All of the students met at the school house at 6:00 p. m., and immediately departed to Price's Camp.

Several games, such as "Dare-Base," "Flying Dutchmen" and "Stealing Wood" were played. After much running and laughing they were invited to eat weinies, pickles, bons, marshmallows, cakes and fruits.

Most of the girls walked back to town. Mr. Brison followed along in his car. When they got into town Mr. Brison took the entire class to the McInnis drug store for a treat. All the Sophs. had an enjoyable time.

NEW SCHEDULE

The schedule has been rearranged since the mid terms, giving each class five periods a week. The first year class has class the seventh period and the other class the eighth period. Bonita Barnes, Lorena Couey and Maude Boone are taking first year sewing, but on account of conflicts, are coming to class the eighth period.

They have been working on sample stitching but are now beginning a new project which is pillow cases. All the work is being done by hand.

The second year class is now working on a new project which is a two-piece lingerie set of crepe de chine, with lace trimming.

Margaret Hubbell was absent from class Monday and Tuesday owing to injuries received in an accident Saturday. We hope she will recover rapidly and can soon be with us.

Jack Denman spent the week-end in San Antonio.

THINGS NEVER SEEN ON OUR FOOTBALL FIELD

Coach Bowers running the laps.

Enough water boys to drown the team.

The Pep Squad not yelling.

Dick Coleman asleep on the job.

H. T. missing a pass.

Frank not going through the game.

Roy not out for practice.

A vacant seat on the bleachers.

A $50 bill at the gate.

The team loafing on the job.

J. H. C. ELECTS OFFICERS

The J. H. C. met last Friday in room 14 to elect new officials for the ensuing semester.

Mrs. Dutton, sponsor, presided. Parliamentary rules were observed.

Harry Witt's resignation as president was not accepted. Ralph Meador was elected vice-president and Dewers McElrath will be the new secretary, treasurer and reporter.

Raymond Schneider was selected as a committee of one to express the thanks of the club members for the service Miss Lucille Motley rendered the club.

Miss Lorena Couey thanked Mrs. Dutton for the interest she took in the club work. A rising vote of thanks was given the president. Everyone appreciates the effort the president has put forth to make the club work more interesting to its members.

Mrs. Dutton made an interesting talk on the progress the club has made in the past, and it was decided, at the president's suggestion, to let the vice president preside at every other meeting. This arrangement will give the vice president practice and will lessen the monopoly on the club work.

The members of the J. H. C. are going to invite the members of the N. G. L. C. to come in to visit them some time in the near future. We are sure the N. G. L. C. members will enjoy this visit, as well as profit by it.

GLEE CLUB REPORT

The Glee Club was requested to sing at the Epworth League last Sunday evening at 6:30. Only a few of the members were absent. Two selections were sung, "Twilight" and "He Lifted Me."

We are indeed glad to hear that our director, Mrs. C. W. McCarroll, is improving.

Several new members have joined the club. They are Lorena Couey, Elsie Martin, Mickey Sheppard, Mae Delle Lowry.

Monday morning the Seniors viewed with pleasure Miss Nevada Blackburn, the valedictorian of the class of '29. The pleasure was not the Seniors', however, for a certain Junior was absent from school Monday afternoon—now we wonder.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Felps and Miss Cecelia Merchant were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Turner Saturday night.

DESCRIPTIVE SKETCH OF THE PLAYERS

Tempie Boone, the forward, is a "tall," "short," "fat," "slender" girl with a light heart and heavy feet. She can ring goals against a storm. Miss Boone is really a credit to any ball team!

Vivian James, a beautiful blonde, plays forward with an unfaltering faith. This is her first year as forward, and she is "one" of the six on the team.

Ruth Sandherr, a well known student of the Schreiner High School, plays jump center on the team. She is in love with a handsome youth, but otherwise she is in good condition to help the mighty six to "champs."

Lorena Couey is another tall girl, and she has a good understanding of basket ball. She can guard any player to a fare-you-well.

Marjorie Montgomery is the fighting spirit of the team. She has plenty of basket ball ability.

Elsie Bessent is a good run center, especially when Buckshot is on the side line.

Katherine Johnson is a good jump center, she knows how to knock the ball.

Vivienne Livingston is a good player, this being her third year.

Look out, opponents! These girls will be an undefeated team again this year.

JUNIOR NOTES

Muriel Warren is absent from school this week on account of sickness.

Monday morning Leonard Dunbar was at school and all smiles, but in the afternoon he was absent. We wonder what made it so necessary for him to stay out in the afternoon. It must have been something important because it kept him away from English III make-up class.

Lucille Motley seemed rather thrilled at the basket ball game Saturday evening. We wonder why?

The English III class feels very proud to know that it is developing a contemporary poet, in the person of Harry Witt.

We hope to develop a poet of the old school. Louise King will probably be this one, for she seems to have an aversion to contemporary poets and poems.

JUNIOR NOTES

Margaret Hubbell is absent from school this week. Saturday evening a car in which she, Ruby Deats and Llano Boone were in overturned near the twelve-mile crossing on South Llano. We are glad to say that Margaret is not seriously injured, although she came out with numerous bruises.

Muriel Warren was absent from school several days last week. She accompanied Mary Jane Robertson to San Antonio where Mary Jane underwent an operation for appendicitis. We are glad to report that Mary Jane is doing nicely and will be able to return home soon. We regret hearing that she will not be able to attend school any more this term.

Opal Porter was absent from school last Wednesday.

The Juniors are studying circles in Plane Geometry. Many Junior minds are traveling in circles.

V. A. CLASS ORGANIZES

The first and second year Vocational Agriculture classes met January 10, 1930, and organized the Future Farmers' Association.

The following officers were elected:

President—Oliver Lynn Vierling.

Vice President—Sherman Hendricks.

Secretary-Treasurer — James Hodges.

Reporter—Roy Nelson.

NINTH GRADE BOYS WILL PLANT GRASS

While all of the high school students were assembled in the auditorium at one o'clock Tuesday the following conversation took place:

Mr. Moses—"What grade will volunteer to plant grass on the school ground the next holiday you have? Next spring when the weather is more suitable you can have a picnic."

Ninth grade—"WE WILL!"

Mr. Moses—"How many boys in the ninth grade want to?"

Ninth grade—(A few hands go up).

Mr. Moses—"All right, we shall have a holiday tomorrow on account of the election which will be held in the school building, and we will expect you boys to be here. Mr. Bowers, Mr. Brison and I will be here to help you."

Eighth, tenth and eleventh grades—"Oh Fine!"

Ninth grade—(Silence, frowns on their faces).

NINTH GRADE NOTES

The pupils of the ninth grade have just finished studying Napoleon in history. They were required to write character sketches on William Pitt and Napoleon.

The ninth grade English class has completed its course in grammar and composition, and are now studying literature. It is using Literature and Life Book II. We are basking in the sunlight of O. Henry's humor at present.

Eunice Northcutt and Lois Goodwin spent the week-end in the country with Eunice's sister, Mrs. Chester Bannowsky.

Each afternoon from three-fifteen until four o'clock Miss Bennett helps the Latin pupils get their lessons for the next day.

The ninth grade wishes to thank Mr. and Mrs. Brison for the excellent chaperones they make.

N. G. L. C. MEETS

The Ninth Grade Literary Club held a business meeting last Friday to elect new officers for the new session. Mrs. Dutton presided. The following officers resigned their positions in the club: Miss Harrie Ethel Hubbell, president; T. M. Tumberlin, vice president; Betty Kropff, reporter; Vivienne Livingston, secretary-treasurer.

The officers elected for the new semester are: Betty Kropff, president; Marie Davis, vice president; Catherine Randolph, reporter.

Miss Vivienne Livingston's resignation as secretary and treasurer was not accepted. She will continue in that capacity during the next session.

Mrs. Joe Felps had as her week-end guest Mr. J. M. Daugherty, of Amarillo. Mr. Daugherty is Mrs. Felps' grandfather.

ANNOUNCING

The revelation of a contemporary poet from Junction, Texas, U. S. A. The remarkable abilities of Mr. Harry Witt have been revealed in the form of poetry. His latest production is a beautiful lyric entitled "Rain." His style of writing is somewhat similar to that of Sandburg. With the kind permission of Mr. Witt, we hereby take pleasure in presenting it to the public.

SPEECH ARTS NOTES

A number of the Senior members of the Speech Arts Department motored to Kerrville Saturday to attend the talkie movie which showed the "Thirteenth Chair." The class has this play in rehearsal for production here in February.

Mae Delle Lowry read at League Sunday evening.

Jewel Riley read two dialect number, "Katy's Answer," and "Leetla Humpy Jean," at P.-T. A. Monday.

Mrs. L. E. Standifer is coaching a one act play, "Mix and Stir Well," to be given by her Sunday School class as a benefit for the Methodist building fund.

THE WEAKER SEX

"Yes, I agree that women are the weaker sex—to a certain extent. Their muscles are more delicate, their bones and body as a whole more frail than those of the men, but does this give the young man any room whatsoever to consider himself just a few notches above any girl that ever existed? Well I guess not! A normal girl is just as intelligent, has just as many natural talents, and can succeed in life just as well as any normal boy. In the middle ages women were regarded with a peculiar chivalry—long since lost—taking for granted that their brains were too delicately poised to allow them to learn anything, and the boys of today still think they should use that manly power, or perhaps, better yet, that knightly power that King Arthur created in his Knights of the Round-Table while treating the girls as fragile little nothings.

Indeed, actions do speak louder than words! Just yesterday a young man in answer to my "Hello," said, "Why hello there——," as if I were a crawling ant, and he a superior being. Other young men always have that pitiful "Hello" for the young ladies; they are so sympathetic with the girls, in fact, so congenial that I sometimes have a little feeling of weakness, which I positively know is not natural.

If the young men could only see themselves as others see them, their proud, haughty manners would readily change. They seem to consider themselves privileged characters simply because they are of that sex. They stomp and cuff their feet, they swing their arms and heads in a conspicuous manner with that "who-is-more-important-than-I" air. Oh, such superhuman beings they consider themselves to be! My, what would happen if these young men of the modern generation were made to understand that they are just like the rest of us?"

This article was originally written by Laura Stoddard, North Dallas High School, Dallas, Texas, but for the good of the offended sex, we are publishing it.

FRESHMAN REPORT

Mae Delle Lowry has brown eyes that pop up over her book every once in a while, so says Mr. Brison. He also says Elsie has the habit of looking over her shoulder at the teacher.

We have been fortunate in not losing any pupils since mid-terms, but Van Callan hasn't returned since Christmas. Every one misses him, especially Elsie Martin. He was the life of the English class, and they are a good match.

Christine Schraub was absent Thursday and Friday.

MUSIC

Music is a mystery; I would even call it a miracle. It is half spiritual, half material; like the blending twilight, it hovers between mind and matter, akin to, yet different from both; it is mind, but dependent on time; it is matter, but independent of space. Though we cannot define music, yet we know what is good music and, still more, what is bad music. Musical criticism has to depend upon experience, and not on a synthesis; it must class musical works by analogy only, taking as a basis the effect produced on the world at large.

The first girl's basket ball game played on the local court was played Saturday with the Rocksprings team. The weather was not fair but regardless of the weather the Rocksprings girls came and the game was played. It was not a hard game but our opponents showed some improvement in their playing. All the girls, including the second string, played during the game. The score was 49 to 12 in our favor.

There was a larger crowd than we really expected due to the fact that the weather was so damp. The next game we play here we are hoping to have a larger crowd, and we feel sure we will have if the weather permits.

Warren Taylor is a new pupil in 6-A.

Warren Livingston, 6-A, moved to Evergreen.

Patricia Patterson has been sick for the last few days.

James Evans is back in school after an absence of about two months.

Mary Ellis Blackburn spent the week-end in Rocksprings and Kerrville.

Junior Stevenson has resigned his position as the Senior Reporter of the "Eagle Screams." Elsie Bessent is the new reporter.

Since the new schedule has been followed the Spanish Club has not had time to meet. We hope to report a meeting soon.

English projects in the intermediate grades for the past week have been oral and written descriptions of "My Teacher." Many hidden talents and much physical beauty of those described have been brought to light, by the efforts of these "ambitious pupils."

ANTIQUES

Almost any old piece of furniture, china, glass or junk, if it is battered enough, can be sold somewhere as an "antique." I attended several country auctions in New England last summer and saw absurd prices paid for trash to which most folks would not give house-room. Yet among them there was always a piece or two which was a real bargain. I bid on a Sheraton table, which might have been fifty years old or a hundred and fifty, but which was of value to me because it would fit my dining-room, was beautiful in design and sturdy in construction, and a modern table equally good would cost more than $200. I stopped bidding at $175 and the table went to a dealer who bid $5 more.

Just before Christmas, rummaging through the antique furniture department of a New York store in search of a good mirror at a bargain, I saw this identical table. I asked the price. "Nineteen hundred dollars," said the saleswoman.

As time goes on, old furniture takes on increasing value, provided it is well designed, well built and in good condition. The things that our grandmothers threw away are treasures today. Tomorrow much of the junk that we discard may be priceless.

Remember that the table is a place for good comradeship with one's children and not for discipline or nagging. Take it for granted that the child will eat happily everything served to him, and be that he becomes acquainted with a variety of foods.

Junction Trade Notes

Helping Solve the Farm Problem: S. H. Gray, banker- farmer of Coleman, utilized the feed grown on his farm in fattening lambs for market. The feed was ground maize, ground cane, with a sprinkling of cottonseed meal. The lambs were fed 120 days and when sold, averaged 100 lbs. and brought $11.83. The Coleman banker-farmer figures that his feed, marketed by this method, brought $40 a ton for maize and 15c bundle for cane. At the same time he was penalized on price of lambs account of overweight.

Early in April this year Kimble County citizens will have a caller, probably an acquaintance, who will have a fountain pen and a complicated questionaire. He or she, will be an agent of the U. He will want to know your age, number of children, value of your estate, how big the mortgage is, whether living with lawful wife or divorced, whether your appendix has been removed, or what have you. We thank all our subscribers for their interest in the Eagle. Some who do not have the money just now have told us to keep the paper coming to them as they do not want to miss an issue. A few names were dropped a short time ago. We regret to drop any name from our list and we ask those who can not pay just now to drop us a card saying that they want the Eagle to keep coming. This will insure the paper to keep coming to you.

Leather furniture coverings look better and last longer if they are rubbed occasionally with castor oil. This restores to the leather the oil that gradually dries out. Rub the liquid in well and wipe off any excess on the surface, to prevent its soiling whatever touches it and collecting dust and dirt.

TRUCKS TO COMPLY

Class A motor carriers may be sold, assigned, leased, transferred or inherited. Class B trucks have no value except to person holding truck and cannot be transferred. The law provides that anyone violating any law of the State pertaining to regulation of their operations shall be subjected to a penalty of $100 per day.

Section 16 of this act provides "that every person, officer, agent or employee of any incorporation and every other person who violates or fails to comply with or procures age or abets in violation of any provision of this act shall be guilty of misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year or both."

It is noted that the law applies to shippers and consignees as well as motor carriers. On the sixth and seventh days of January, 1930, the Railroad Commission adopted railroad rates as controlling operation of all truck lines.

Since special conditions prevail here in Kimble County, truck owners of this county who have provided with the law, excepted to this ruling, and have filed with the Railroad Commission rates that are lower on short hauls than railroad rates. This application was endorsed by the Kimble County Chamber of Commerce and a major portion of business men of Junction.

A good homemade dampproofing paint for cellar walls or floor can be prepared by dissolving paraffin in gasoline or kerosene warmed to 80 degrees F. Several coats of a 10 to 20 per cent solution (¾ to 1½ pounds of paraffin per gallon of gasoline) are usually applied. The more dilute solution is best for stone, and the heavier one for brick or concrete. Work of this kind should be done only where there is good ventilation and as gasoline is highly explosive, no open flame should be permitted in the vicinity of the operation. The gasoline or kerosene may be warmed in a vessel of water presiously heated.

DR. SAM G. THOMPSON VISITS ROTARY CLUB

Dr. Sam G. Thompson of Kerrville, district governor of the 47th district, visited the Junction club today. Dr. Thompson is always welcome to Junction and the local club is always delighted to hear his addresses. His message today on what Rotary really is was one of the best he ever delivered here. He told how that Rotary like practically everything else had about faced during the past thirty-five years. Rotary, he said, is no longer a selfish club, but serves best when it helps a man find himself so that he can better serve others.

Dr. Thompson is making official calls to the many clubs in the 47th district. He compliments the Junction club on the interest and enthusiasm displayed, and stated that it is a pleasure for him to visit live organizations like the local club.

There is no reason for removing food from a can as soon as it is opened. In fact, transferring the canned product to another receptacle might add to the danger of contamination.

In these modern days if there is smoke there usually is a testimonial, too.

If you are inclined always to insist upon your right of way—remember that you are likely to have the right of way some day in an ambulance returning from an accident.

"Every time I kiss you it makes me a better man."

"Well, you don't have to try to get to heaven in one night."

Nothing great can ever be accomplished in tomorrow's harvest without our first planting the seeds of greatness in some little way today.

A Good Ice Refrigerator Is All Important—

Get one properly designed, sturdily built, well insulated. Temperatures below 50 degrees are easily maintained in a GOOD ice refrigerator. And remember, there is less drying out.

LINCOLN HAD BIG IDEAS

THE poor boy who was born in a Kentucky log cabin and later split rails for a living might have lived and died in obscurity but for one thing: Big Ideas. It was Big Ideas that sent Lincoln to the White House, Big Ideas that captured the West in a network of railroads, Big Ideas that achieve every success.

The man with Big Ideas uses every ethical weapon. And greatest of these is the power of the Bank. We stand ready with cash and counsel to aid in the development of every Big Idea in Kimble County. Tell us about yours.
