16 OKLAHOMA MINERS LOST IN EXPLOSION

Legislature To Hear "B" Hall Row

REGENTS MAY BE CITED ON COURT DEFY

Students' Attorney Plans New Step as Dismissal Order Is Given

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A petition that the University of Texas board of regents be held for contempt of court for an alleged violation of the temporary injunction granted in the B. Hall dormitory case, and the submission of the squabble to the special session of the legislature in Austin this month, if possible, were announced Thursday by Victor L. Gleckler, attorney for the former dormitory residents as the next step in the [illegible].

This was his answer to the announcement that three B Hall men employed at the university had been discharged for their part in the squabble. Their answer, announced at the time the suit was first filed, was, "let 'em fire us; we don't care."

Three Discharged.

The three men discharged were George Hefley, who has been employed at the reserve desk of the university for a number of years; Percy Woodward, who was in charge of the faculty mail for some time, and Robert Massengale, special campus policeman and director of student dramatics during the second summer term. Woodward and Hefley are among the plaintiffs in the injunction suit.

Gleckler said that he would ask Judge George S. Calhoun to pass on the removal of the furniture formerly used in B Hall dormitory from its storage place to the men's dormitory on the "Little Campus." He declared that he believed this act would be regarded as in contempt of the temporary injunction granted by the court two months ago. Judge Calhoun was not in the city.

H. G. Woodruff, manager of Breckenridge Hall, will throw the squabble into the legislature at the special session, if opportunity permits, Gleckler said. Woodruff is a representative from Wise county. He will ask for a complete investigation of the situation.

Out of Town.

Woodruff was out of town Friday, but he is expected to return early next week in preparation for the special session of the legislature. The plan for submitting the squabble to legislative investigation was hatched shortly after the suit was filed, and the B Hall leaders resolved to take advantage of the special session call if possible.

Woodruff lost his job as manager of B Hall when the regents decided to close the building as a dormitory.

RATE RAISES IN INSURANCE TO BE FOUGHT

Chambers of Commerce Will Conduct Campaign Against Proposals

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—(AP)—General increase in fire insurance rates in Texas as proposed by most of the companies operating in Texas, will be strongly opposed by the Texas Chambers of Commerce Fire Insurance association, organized here Friday, it was announced by the facts and finance committees of the organizaton.

A minimum of $50,000 is to be raised by the organization to audit the books of the companies, which petitioned the state insurance commission several weeks ago for a general increase based upon the facts presented by the companies relating to the expenses of operating and losses as compared to the premiums given.

Whaley Is President.

Porter Whaley of San Antonio, elected president of the organizaton, pointed out that nearly ever chamber of commerce, including the West Texas Chamber, wholesalers, manufacturers, lumbermen and other business concerns and property holders, have pledged support to the organization in not only resisting the proposed increase, but to fight for a reduction of the present rate.

The proposed increase, the association showed, on premiums would be approximately $8,000,000 annually, and in the meeting various members declared that it would be ridiculous and unjust.

A. C. Dunn of Marlin, member of the legislature, urged that the matter of revising the laws regulating the rates be submitted before the legislature.

Will Investigate.

Assistant Attorney General R. B. Cousins was called before the meeting of about forty men and declared that the attorney general's department will investigate the proposed increase fully and impartially.

The proposed hearing on the increase is scheduled for Oct. 20 in Austin, and A. L. Burge of Port Arthur, president of the new organization, said that the organized insurance companies will meet determined resistance on every classification.

J. W. Davis of Galveston was named chairman of the finance committee and explained that if it is necessary more than $50,000 will be raised to prevent the increase. Other members of the committee are: George Byers of Temple, A. W. Sherrill of Georgetown, Carl Mueller of Austin, and J. E. T. Peters of Cisco.

SPIRITUALISM GAINS

Pulpits of Texas Accept It, Is Claim of President.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Pulpits of various denominations in Texas are now expounding the philosophy of spiritualism and providing a fertile field for rapid expansion of membership in the Texas Spiritualistic association, J. L. Maxwell stated in his annual report made Friday to the thirtieth annual convention which opened a four-day session here.

It was inevitable that orthodox churches make certain concessions to the teaching of the spiritualists, Maxwell said, if they were to maintain their prestige with an enlightened thinking congregation. To the advanced minds the spiritualists make a definite appeal, he said.

PHYSICIAN TESTIFIES

Chicago Crowds Gape In Vain For Glimpse Of Valentino Funeral Car

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—An eddying multitude packed the LaSalle Street railroad terminal and its environs for hours tonight without so much as getting a glimpse at the funeral car in which the body of Rudolph Valentino was brought to Chicago nor that in which is was carried on westward.

Surging against the steel doors separating the concourse from the train sheds, filling roof tops and windows for a radius of five blocks, breaking police lines and blocking traffic in the vicinity of the station, the crowd craned its necks in vain for a view of the casket or the courners party which accompanied it.

At least half a dozen persons were injured. Police made twenty-five arrests of disorderly spectators. As the Lake Shore limited of the New York Central entered the terminal with the funeral car, a locomotive propelled a similar car of the Rock Island's Golden State limited into the sheds parallel to the car which contained the casket.

The casket was transferred across the two foot opening between the cars withing ten minutes, trainment admitting only a handful of emissaries from the Rudolph Valentino Memorial association of Chicago who bore a six-foot high floral horse shoe which they placed beside the casket. Then the funeral coach to which the body had been transferred was hurried to the outlying yards where it was serviced for the westward voyage far from the gaze of the gaping thousands. It contained Poli Negri, Valentino's lover, Umberto Gugleilmi, his brothers and S. George Ullman, his manager.

Divorce Paradise Solves It

Corliss Palmer and, insets Mr. and Mrs. Brewster.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 3.—For six years Eugene V. Brewster, wealthy publisher of film feature magazines, and Corliss Palmer, a lovely young lady who won a beauty contest sponsored by one of Brewsters magazines, have been anxious to wed.

For six years Mrs. Brewster has energetically worked to prevent, first, a divorce from her husband, and, second, the wedding of the romantic twain.

But now Corliss Palmer and her wealthy lover are happy. For a place in Mexico has been found where divorces are granted "without grounds." In this paradise of unhappily married folk, Mr. Brewster hopes to obtain a divorce from his unhappy wife and, almost immediately marry the beauteous Corliss. This climax to six years of romantic endeavor is scheduled with some feeling for the fitness of things, for Thanksgiving.

And Thanksgiving time may or may not bring to an end the vow of Mrs. Brewster that her husband's "lack of consideration" and his unhusbandly affection for another woman should lead, eventually, to his financial disaster. For Mrs. Brewster announced, when her husband bought a luxurious mansion for Miss Palmer, that she would fight, sue and counter-sue up to and including divorce until her wealthy husband's riches had melted away.

The "Divorce Paradise" is a small city in the state of Sonora, Mexico. There Mr. Brewster is to establish a temporary residence, request divorce on the general "grounds" that he and his wife are not living together, and win to freedom—and Corliss—if nothing happens.

THE PETTER

Author of "Love Bound" "Her Man"

Illustrated and Copyrighted by Johnson Features, Inc., 1819 Broadway, New York City

READ THIS FIRST:

Merry Locke, pretty and gay as her nickname, is a born flirt. She has no ambition beyond having a good time and plenty of beaux.

At 20 she fails in her course at business college, to the great disappointment of Moma, her ambitious mother. When her father dies she takes a job in Lillie Dale's beauty shop.

At this time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is Tony Gaines, a serious young lawyer who wants to marry her. The engagement is broken when Merry goes out with other men, and Tony finds it out. Merry sends back his ring, and soon afterward she hears that he has gone to Montana to open a law office there.

Helen, the oldest of the Locke sisters, marries Bill Hepworth, and has a baby. Cassie, the next oldest sister, marries her rich employer, Morley Kaufman. They do not get along together and are unhappy in spite of their money.

Through Cassie, Merry meets Bill Erskine, a wary bachelor, approaching middle age. He falls in love with her, sends her expensive presents, lends her money, but puts off the date for their wedding. Merry isn't in love with him, but she is very fond of him, and thinks he would make an excellent husband who could give her the kind of home she wants. During one of Bill's long absences in Florida, where his sick father lives, Merry goes out, with Cabby Marsh, who she met through Morley's sister, Muriel, and Les Purcell, an old beau of her own. Les is salesman for a famous cold cream, and Lillie Dale, who has come to live with the Lockes, says she thinks he's married. Merry doesn't believe her.

Moms begins to go out with Mr. Hefflinger, who has rented Cassie's old room in the house. Jinny, the youngest of the girls, elopes with Derrick Jones, who lives next door. A few days later, when Merry returns from a ride with Les Purcell, a man calls her on the telephone. At first she thinks that he says he is Tony Gaines and her heart seems to stand still. "Tony?" she asks, afraid to believe her ears. Then the voice repeats that it isn't Tony Gaines, but a friend of Tony Gaines, a man named Benson. She asks him to call her again in a few minutes, and, stunned, sinks down into a chair near the telephone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Is He Going to Marry?" She Asked Him.

CHAPTER XXXIX

By the time the telephone bell rang again, Merry was cool and calm. At least she was cool and calm enough to ask Tony Gaines' friend to come to call. . . . She supposed that was what Tony expected her to do.

But halfway up the stairs another thought came to her. Perhaps this Benson man had some message for her from Tony! . . . Otherwise why would he have called her up, and be coming here to see her tonight?

As she took off her hat before the mirror of her dresser, her cheeks were pinker and her eyes brighter than the wind had made them all afternoon.

Her yellow hair was crushed to her head in flat waves. She fluffed it out and ran down the stairs to the kitchen.

"We're going to eat out here if you aren't too grand and high-falutin' to do it." Lillie said to her with a laugh for they always had breakfast in the kitchen.

She had laid their supper at one end of the kitchen table and was filling the water glasses at the sink, as she spoke.

"It's all right with me. I'm not proud," Merry answered absently.

She really liked to eat in the big warm, cozy room. For Moms' kitchen, with its blue-and-white rag rugs, its checkered gingham curtains, and its rocking-chair, was more comfort than any other room in the house.

It was pleasant to sit there, picking at the food, listening to Lillie's chatter, and afterward smoking one of Lillie's cigarets.

"That was a friend of Tony Gaines, who called me up just now" she said, presently, just as Lillie had known she would.

For Lillie Dale had found out that the easiest way of getting at women's secrets was never to ask about them. As soon as you did, they became suspicious and close-mouthed.

But if you asked them nothing at all, they told you everything that was on their minds.

So tonight she sat perfectly still and did not even glance up when Merry started her story.

"It's almost a year and a half since Tony went to Montana," she began, "And this is the first I've heard from him—this man calling up tonight."

Lillie took a long drag at her cigaret, and looked as if she were only half listening. "Is that so?" she asked indifferently.

"Yes, and I can hardly wait until he gets here. I'm sure Tony sent him." Merry answered breathlessly.

"You'd better run up and dress—I'll do the dishes," Lillie offered generously. "It's quite a relief to do dishes when you've been doing heads all day. Life on the permanent wave isn't all it's cracked up to be!"

She poured herself another cup of tea, and settled herself to listen. For she could tell that Merry had more to say on the subject of Tony Gaines—and Lillie had been wildly curious for a year and a half to know what had happened between him and Merry.

"I never saw Tony Gaines, did I?" she asked carelessly.

Merry shook her head. "No. He left town two or three weeks after I started to work at the beauty shop," she said. "We had a fuss because I let Derrick Jones kiss me one night. Then he came to see me about a week afterward and I happened to be out with Bill Erskine, and Moms told him so. . . . A letter came from him and it got lost around the house. I've always had an idea that Cassie did something with it. Hid it, or burned it up, or something. Anyhow, when I finally got around to telephoning Tony, he'd left town, and that was the end of him—until tonight. It just seemed as if everything happened to keep us apart."

Merry never blamed herself for anything that happened. As she saw it, the hand of fate had brought her and Tony together only to fling them apart again.

"I know," Lillie answered. Her voice was full of sympathy. "That's the way men are. They leave a girl lying around like an old straw hat in December, and then expect to find her waiting for them when they want her again. I don't blame you for stepping out if this Gaines neglected you—"

"Oh, but he didn't" Merry cut in, her nose in the air. She was not at all flattered by Lillie's remark about the old straw hat in December. "No man ever got much of a chance to neglect me, Lillie Dale! I've always been too popular."

Lillie looked up, and her shrewd bright little eyes twinkled more shrewdly than ever.

"Too popular! That's what's wrong with you Merry! she said bluntly.

"You're too pretty and too popular. Too many men are crazy about you, and you're too crazy about too many men."

"That's where you're wrong! I never honestly cared for any man in my life but Tony Gaines!" Merry said, coldly, "And I still do!"

Then all at once her breath caught. . . . She had said the thing almost without knowing that she had said it.

But now that she actually had put it into words, she knew that it was the truth. . . . She still was in love with Tony Gaines!

Furious with herself for letting the cat out of the bag—and especially to the gossipy Lillie!— she got up and went into the sitting room.

It was strewn with papers and the ash trays were filled with gray cigar ashes left there by Mr. Hefflinger. The cushion tied to the back of dad's old chair bore the print of Mr. Hefflinger's bald head. He took his ease there every afternoon, when he was in town. . . . and lately he seemed to be always in town.

"Such a pumping station!" she murmered aloud, as she looked at the untidy room.

She was still violently setting it in order at 8 o'clock when Tony's friend from Montana rang the front doorbell.

Mr. Benson was not at all the sort of man she expected to see. Montana somehow suggested a cowboy type in a wide hat, boots and a ranchman's way of talking.

But he was dressed much better than Morley Kaufman, much more of a gentleman than Bill Erskine, and almost as good looking as Tony Gaines—this John Benson.

He was tall and blond. His gray eyes were full of friendlessness and there were laughing wrinkles all around them. He shook hands as if he meant it. Merry liked him instantly.

They sat down and he began to talk about Tony Gaines almost at once.

"Tony and I went to college together," he said "Years ago. My uncle, Judge Bannerman, and Tony's father had always been good friends, and so were Tony and I. Then we left school, and I didn't see him again until he came out to Billings to live. I have a ranch near there, you know. Let me show you some pictures of it—" and he pulled out an envelope from his inside coat pocket.

"I brought these along just to show you," he told her with his friendly smile, "what do you think of this? Isn't it a wonderful old ranch house? That's where I live—and look at this—" He rambled on, showing her pictures of the Montana ranch and of another one that he owned down near Palm Springs in Southern California.

He told her about his pony named "Henessy," and about his young sister who was with him on her way to school in Virginia, and about his nickname "Benny."

"Tony hung that on me when we were at school," he said with a laugh, then he told her very simply and naturally, how he happened to be with her tonight.

"I saw a picture of you that Tony had in a billfold of his, last spring," he explained. "It tumbled out one night when he was looking for some papers and looked at it and asked him who you were."

Merry frowned. She couldn't remember any picture of her that Tony Gaines had had . . . . . Yes, there was one. She suddenly remembers that he had taken some snapshots of her one long ago day when they had gone for a long drive and eaten their lunch under a willow tree away out in the country near Sunset lake.

"Oh, yes, I know the picture you mean," she answered dreamily. "I had on Tony's cap didn't I?"

Benson nodded, his direct, unsmiling gaze on her face. "Yes, you did," he said. "Well, to make a long story short, he wouldn't tell me who you were, at the time. But I asked him again about a month ago. I couldn't see why he wouldn't tell me, so long as he was going to marry Katherine Bannerman anyway. And I asked him for the picture, too."

"He's going to marry Katherine Bannerman?" Merry repeated din a still small voice. "Who's Katherine Bannerman? The judge's daughter, I suppose."

"No his niece," John Benson answered. "My cousin, and a mighty nice girl, she is too. She and Tony are sure to hit it off—No doubt of that. They're both the salt of the earth! Both of them!"

His tone was a bit impatient. He had not come here to talk about Tony Gaines and Katherine Banerman. He had come to talk about himself to Merry Ann Locke.

"The old begger wouldn't let me have your picture," he said. "He told me he had lost it, and perhaps he had. But finally I got your name from him—I was coming here to see his mother about some land she has up in the mountains. I've only been in town five hours and I've spent most of that time calling you up." He laughed as he made the confession.

"I was afraid you would be married before I got here," he said in his humorous way, "Tony said he heard you were engaged when he was here at Christmas time."

. . . At Christmas time. Tony had been here in the very town last Christmas, and hadn't cared enough about her to come and see her! . . . . .Last Christmas when she had spent most of the day thinking about him and wondering why he hadn't sent a word! . . . . And he hadn't even let her know he was in town.

"How he must hate me," Merry thought miserably. Or, worse than hating her, how indifferent he must be toward her!

Her pride flared up, all at once, under her misery, and she smiled brilliantly at Benson. That ready-made glittering smile of hers that was getting to be as hard as it was glittering.

"How news travels, doesn't it?" she laughed. "I hardly knew myself that I was engaged last Christmas . . . . I haven't announced it myself, yet, but I am engaged, all the same. I'm going to be married this Christmas . . . . I think Tony knows Bill—Bill Erskine. He's the man I'm going to marry. He's down in Florida just now."

The news that Bill was in Florida seemed to cheer Mr. Benson up a great deal.

"Well, in a case like that," he said in his nice voice "Won't you have dinner with me tomorrow night?"

Merry said that she would. Her voice was cheerful and her smile still glittered. It dazzled Mr. Benson.

When he had gone, Lillie called downstairs and asked her to come up and tell her "all the news from Montana" . . . and Merry called back to say there wasn't any news from Montana. None at all.

She just could not talk over Tony Gaines with Lillie Dale—or with anyone else that night. She sat down stairs in Dad's old chair, and sat waiting for the sound of Lillie's bedroom door closing. Then she went up to her own room and bed.

(To Be Continued.)

"I wonder if I want Bill Erskine for either a friend or a lover," Merry asks herself in chapter 40 of "The Petter."

MEDDLESOME MOLLY THE BAD LITTLE POLLY

BY MARTHA HART

"And now I must go," said the [illegible] to Molly, the [illegible], "but remember this: the kinder you are, the luckier you will be. You are in an enchanted forest and some strange things will take place, but if you are always polite and kind, nothing really bad can happen. Goodbye!" And spreading her [illegible], she flew away.

"Come back! Come back!" cried the [illegible], stretching out her [illegible] toward the bright little figure. But the [illegible] wouldn't return,—so with a deep sigh, the [illegible] picked up her lunch [illegible] and started down the path. 9-4

Shenandoah Crash Passes 1st Year

CALDWELL, O., Sept. 3.—(AP) Just a year ago today the giant dirigible Shenandoah, pride of the navy air service, "broke up" in mid-air near Ava, O., during a severe storm which swept over southeastern Ohio. Fourteen o fthe crew of 43, including Commander Zachary Lansdowne, were killed.

For several hours prior to the wrecking of the "daughter of the stars" it was storm-buffeted over an area of about 50 square miles. A line squall which struck the ship was directly responsible for it breaking up after having been weakened by the elements.

COUNTY OFFERS USE OF TRUCKS

Tillman Commissioners To Aid Farmers in War On Cotton Pests

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 3.—Use of the county's trucks to haul poison to combat ravages of boll and leaf worms in the cotton fields of Tillman county has been tendered by the county commissioners who have also ordered 3,000 pounds of poison which will be distributed in the infected area of the county. The poison will be brought from Vernon.

Following the recent rains the pests are making new inroads in the western portion of the county. Several plantings of cotton in the northwestern part of the county are also affected. Damage is continuing in the southern part of the county, although a vigorous campaign of poisoning has curbed the work of the worms to some extent there.

The poison is being applied by the dusting method. A long pole is used by some farmers, suspended over a mule, with two sacks suspended over the cotton rows on each side of the animal. Cheese cloth is used to form the bags, the texture of the cloth allowing free dispending of the powder. The operator walks along behind the outfit, jolting both sides of the pole with a stick, dusting the powder on the plants. A cultivator, with a pole across the back, to which can be attached sacks is also used. Lugs strapped on the wheels will serve to jar the rigging and scatter the poison.

Church Sessions Planned in Altus

ALTUS, Sept. 3.—Plans are now under way by members of the Nazarene church of Altus for the western Oklahoma district assembly of the church to be conducted here October 5 to 10. The first of the assembly will be a meeting of the young people of the church when representatives from all young people's organizations of the district will be in attendance. The main evangelistic service will begin that evening.

Approximately 500 delegates from the western half of the state are expected to attend the meeting when the pastor of each Nazarene church and other delegates will be in Altus.

Dr. J. W. Goodwin, general superintendent of Pasadena, Calif., will be the presiding officer of the assembly, and other main speakers will include Rev. J. Walter Hall, district superintendent, Prof. A. K. Bracken, of the Bethany college, at Bethany, and several other instructors from the college.

They Help Negro; He Pays in Full

FORT WORTH, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Being obliging, repaid a number of men who helped a negro truck driver lift back the delivery compartment of his machine after a collision here Friday morning. Apparently nervous, the driver failed to get started again, crashed into the curb and droppel the compartment a second time.

This time there was a crash of glass and as the doors of the compartment flew open, several bottles of beer rolled out.

At this point the driver decided that he did not need his cargo any longer and stepped on the gas, leaving the good samaritans to pay themselves off in bottled goods. None failed to do so.

Murder Charge Is Filed Against Man

HOUSTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A charge of murder was filed against M. R. Jameson, 35, owner of a filling station here following the fatal shooting early Friday of Walter Havens, 19.

The dead youth lived at Cross Timbers, 7 miles from Houston.

The killing, it appeared from statements made to George Andrews, special investigator for the district attorney's office, was during a controversy over a can of oil.

Jameson was released on $1,000 bond.

$5,000 Damages Asked of Gin Co.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 3.—Alleging that the Valley Gin company 13 miles southeast of Frederick, had been negligent in providing her husband, Irl Emenhiser, a safe place upon which to ride, and that the negligence caused his death, Mrs. Minnie Emenhiser Thursday filed suit in district court for damages in the sum of $5,000. Emenhiser was killed when thrown from a truck on which he was carrying a steam boiler for the gin, September 17, 1925. The team he was driving became frightened and the truck passed over his body.

BAPTISTS TO MEET.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 3.—The annual meeting of the Tillman county Baptist association will be held in the Bethel church, six miles northwest of Frederick, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 7, 8 and 9. The main motive of the meeting is to secure reports of the annual work accomplished by the Baptist congregation of this district.

The following churches will be represented: Antioch, Bethel, Davidson, Hurst, Tesca, Tipton, Manitou, Snyder, Maple Grove, North Deep Red, South Deep Red, Hollister, Loveland, Jack Creek, Grandfield, Devol, Pleasant Mound and Red Bluff.

$100,000 HUBBY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Perhaps Marie Kryl's $100,000 Greek fiancee is a bit unfamiliar with the Eenglish alphabet. Anyhow the Chicago pianist was kept waiting nearly an hour at the pier for Spiro Hadji-Kyriakes, coming from abroad. He failed to appear under the proper letter for examination by customs agents. Now that Dad Kryl has relented and decided not to make Marie forfeit $100,000 for marrying, wedding bells will ring shortly at Tarpon Springs, Fla.

TEXAN IS KILLED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—(AP) Eugene Sheehan, 72, of Fort Worth, Texas, and his brother, Frank Sheehann, 70, of Darby, Pa., were killed near Darby today when their automobile was struck by a Pennsylvania railroad train. They were on their way to the Sesqui-centennial exposition here.

Aged Hotel Man Slays Companion, Ends His Own Life

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Kelly C. Kirtly, 70, wealthy restaurant and hotel man, who formerly lived in Fayette county, killed himself shortly before 7 o'clock this morning in the bath room adjoining his room in a hotel here after he had slain Miss Mildred McDaniel, 26, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The girl, a pretty, red haired telephone operator of Brooklyn, who had accompanied Kirtly on a motor trip to Lexington, was shot while she was asleep in the same bed with Miss Alma Gregory, also of Brooklyn.

The two young women had registered at the hotel Wednesday as Alma and Mildred Gregory, both of New York City. According to Alma Gregory, they posed as cousins and Kirtly as their uncle.

The two had quarreled Thursday night over the size of a stone in a diamond ring which Kirtly had given Mildred. Alma declared.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The treasury today modified its liquor permit regulations to require the annual renewal only of those permits for the manufacture, transportation, prescription or sale of liquor.

All other permits, in accordance with a recent decision by the circuit court of appeals, will be good until revoked by the government or given up by the permittee.

FLOWER FOR ERNST.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Clemington Corson is going into the movies for her children's sake. She will demonstrate her swimming strokes and also play the piano at a film house some time after the children lead a parade up Broadway. Trudie Ederle, who has had a song named after her, is already cashing in at the Philadelphia exposition. Ernst Vierkoetzer, mer (e) man, who beat 'em both, was still an amateur at last accounts.

BLOOD JUST THE SAME.

Science Declares Babe Belongs to Father.

VIENNA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Similarity in the blood of an alleged father and a child has been accepted here as sufficient proof of paternity. The ruling was made by Judge Panta of the criminal appeals in confirming an order that alimony should be paid by the man to the mother of the child.

The judgment was rendered after a test of the blood of the man and the child had been made.

RAIL WAR IN SOUTH LOOMS

Business On Mexican Border to Involve Big Times

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A railroad war between two huge trunk lines or perhaps three, for Mexico business seemed inevitable Friday when Ing Leon Salinas, president of the railroad council of Mexico, announced here that negotiations for the sale of the Texas-Mexico railroad to either the Missouri-Pacific or the Southern Pacific have been opened and still are pending.

Salinas confirmed that both the Missouri Pacific and the Southern Pacific made overtures to the "National Lines of Mexico two years ago for the Texas-Mexico line, which runs from Laredo to Corpus Christi. The National Lines own the smaller road. These overtures, first made in 1924, were not revealed, he said.

The national Lines took both proposals under advisement, but as it had interior matters of its own to take care of, such as the returning of the railroad to private ownership, and the balancing of expenses, as well as an investigation into equipment matters, no definite agreement was entered into, Salinas said.

The National Lines has almost completed its interior program. The last two years the Texas-Mexican showed a profit for the first time in its history, according to Salines. The Katy railroad has never made overtures for the purchase of the Texas-Mexico, he said.

The railroad war was first opened a few years ago, when the Missouri Pacific acquired the International-Great Northern; San Antonio, Uvalde and Gulf and Gulf Coast Lines. Then the Southern Pacific asked for an extension from Falfurrias to Edinburg which application was opposed by the Missouri Pacific.

Lately, San Antonio business men asked the Katy to extend from San Antonio to a point on the Texas-Mexico Line. The Missouri Pacific asked for the purchase of the San Antonio, Southern, running from Kirk to Christine. C. N. Whitehead, president of the Katy, announced recently that his road will oppose the Missouri Pacific in its action.

Salinas had no comment to make on the railroad war. He was in San Antonio on his way to El Paso after inspecting some of the National lines coal mines in Coahuila.

Earthen Storage Sought in Amarillo

AUSTIN, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Dixon Creek Oil company of Amarillo, Thursday filed application with the Texas railroad commission to store a million barrels of oil in covered earthen storage in the Panhandle oil fields. Application was set for hearing Thursday, September 9, at Austin.

This follows the recent permit granted Haywood and Phillips of Amarillo to use earthen storage.

In setting the hearing, the commission gives notice to the public and parties interested direct and indirectly to be present and present such evidence as they may "consider helpful in arriving at a proper conclusion."

The permit was granted Haywood and Phillips, it was explained, to aid in relieving the congested condition in the Panhandle oil fields, where the production is double the facilities for exportation.

91 New Reports In Oklahoma Field

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 3.—Scouts report 91 new "first reports" the past fiscal week from Oklahoma oil fields. Nineteen counties were responsible for the new field work.

Southern Oklahoma reported 16 new wells starting, to 75 for northern and central Oklahoma.

Creek and Osage counties tied with 17 each for first place, while Seminole reported 14. Okmulgee had 11; Stephens, 5; Beckman, 4; Kay, Pawnee and Jefferson, 3 each; Hughes, Lincoln, Muskogee and Grady, 2 each, while Caddo, Carter, Noble, Tulsa and Waggoner, each reported one new well.

32 NEW WELLS

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 3.—The Sunflower state oil fields reported 32 "first reports" for the past week.

It goes without saying that Greenwood county is still the most active county in Kansas. It had 23 new wells to report. Cowley and Sumner had 3 each to 2 from Butler and 1 from Lyon.

SEMINOLE PRODUCING

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 3.—Most of the Sooner state's new production the past fiscal week was from the Seminole City field of Meminole county. The Hughes county area of the Wewoka deep sand pool made that district second, with the Osage fields third, and Garfield fourth.

In Kansas the trend pools of Greenwood caused it to continue to lead, with Marion displacing Butler for second place. Butler was third. Cowley had one small well to keep in the lists.

MANAGER IS SHOT.

Chicago Business Man Injured by Robbers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Two robbers who kidnaped William B. Lloyd, general manager of a paper company, early today shot him when they discovered he was not wearing his valuable diamond ring. They had driven to a sparsely settled district where, after robbing him of $40 and a diamond stick pin they threw him out of their automobile when they learned he did not have the rings. Then they fired at him three times, one shot hitting him in the arm.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

September 4, 1925

Robert Whitfield on stand in own trial for murder.

WHY THE TEXAS CHANGED

NOW it is announced that the Texas corporation has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware with an authorized capital of $250,000,000, consisting of $25 par value shares and will function as a holding company to take over the stock or the holdings of the Texas company. This is interesting.

The Texas company was organized by James Stephen Hogg, J. S. Cullinan and Judge James W. Swayne. Hogg and Swayne dropped out and Cullinan remained in until he had accumulated millions. Then he stepped out.

According to high officials of the Texas company under the new plan the estates of stockholders in the new company who reside outside of Texas will not be subject to the inheritance tax imposed by the law makers of Texas.

At present, according to this high official, the transfer of an estate of stock in the Texas company, more than 90 per cent of which is owned outside of Texas, is subject to the inheritance tax of Texas regardless of the rest of the stockholders.

Furthermore it is said that the plan of the Texas company will relieve the company of the handicap "which could be exercised under the laws of Texas. The principal competitive companies, organized in states other than Texas, enjoy the privilege of holding the stock of other corporations without limit, so long as the anti-trust laws are respected."

Texas is second in the list of states in the production of petroleum. In the year 1925 Texas fields produced 144,648,000 barrels of oil. This oil had a value of $262,270,000. This was an increase in production of 30,000,000 barrels over the year 1924.

There must be money in the petroleum game in Texas and all other oil bearing states if figures do not lie.

MAYBE THE WAR IS OVER

ENCOURAGING news from Herrin, Ill.. An eltcoi was held here Tuesday. unaccompanied by the whistling of bullets and the rattle of musketry.

True, a special detail of police officers, armed with automatic rifles and sawed-off shot guns were stationed about the polling places. But heretofore such awe-inspiring precautions have not restrained the gunmenmen when an excuse to shoot presented itself. So it may be assuemd that the muscles of the trigger finger have relaxed and that the citizens of the town ballots instead of bullets. It seems that the ticket supported by the ku klux klan was elected. But after the strenuous times of recent years is immaterial whether Herrin is ruled by klan or antiklan, so long as a man may express his convictions and live.

If the peace at any price policy is to survive, there is no better place for its culture than in Herrin. All must admit that progress is being made in the Illinois town when a newspaper headliner can truthfully write above a story coming therfrom, "Herrin election quiet."

Maybe the war is over.

"THE TRAITOR"

ANNOUNCEMENT is made that Harry Thaw's book, "The Traitor," is off the press. The story of his misspent life as written by him is said to have been published at a cost of $25,000 for 50,000 copies.

That ought to be sufficient to meet the demand. At least it is hoped there will be no necessity for the publishers to run off a second edition.

We have not read the book, nor do we expect to do so. Nevertheless, we venture the assertion that there is one good thing about it—namely, that no one has to read it unless he wants to.

It is written that "of making many books there is no end." So Thaw has just as much right to turn author as anyone else. Going a little further, and looking for some good in everything it might be said that the writing of this book indicates a change for the better in Thaw. He couldn't possibly do himself nearly so much harm by spending his money with the publishers as by spending it on wine, women and song in cheap dance halls.

By ensconcing himself in some quiet retreat and spending the remainder of his days in scribbling, Harry would benefit himself and confer a favor on society.

PARENTS AND POLICE

IN Chicago the police have been commissioned to do a work that is obviously the duty of the parents.

A series of kidnaps and attacks on young girls is responsible for an effort on the part of the authorities to keep boys and girls under 16 years of age off the streets after 10 o'clock at night. The instructions of the police are to send home or take in custody children who come within provisions of the regulation.

As might have been expected, the officers are having their troubles in carrying out the orders. So many married women effect the dress of little girls these days that it is often difficult for mere men to determine with any degree of accuracy the age of anything in petticoats that is more than 15 and less than 25.

It is a sad commentary on parenthood when social conditions are so chaotic that the police are required to attempt something that ought to be done voluntarily by the fathers and mothers of children.

We talk and preach and write about the waywardness of modern youth, when our sermons ought to be about the delinquenciesof modern parents. Youth today is pretty much the same as it was 25 years or 100 years ago. The parents, not the children, are responsible in large measure for the deplorable conditions that give society cause for such grave concern.

The legislative and law-enforcing branches of the government might wrestle from now until doomsday with the crime problem as it pertains to youth, and get no results.

It can be solved in the home, and nowhere else. The home was established as a sacred institution. Let the parents maintain it as such by giving their children an environment conductive to spiritual, intellectual and physical growth, and it will be unnecessary for the strong arm of the law to interfere.

It was never intended that the police department should have a hand in regulating the lives of children and if men and women would only live up to the responsibilities of parenthood there would be no necessity for its having to do so. There would be such a change for the better that in time children's bureaus and other organizations formed to deal with youthful delinquents would have little or nothing to do, if they didn't go out of existence entirely.

But just so long as children of tender age are allowed to follow their own bent and roam the streets by day and by night, just so long will there be crime waves, necessitating the vigilance of big police forces.

After 10 o'clock at night the proper place for a boy or girl under 16 years of age is at home in bed. And the father or mother who is unconcerned as to the whereabouts of the child at that hour is holding ajar for it the gate that opens the way to disgrace and ruin.

RELIGION AND ADVERTISING

ANNOUNCEMENT is made that after Christmas a campaign to stimulate interest in religion will be launched with a commission of a hundred clergymen preparing the messages. There is nothing new in the advertising of religion, but this campaign ataracts attention because of its magnitude.

Perhaps some will say that religion is not the kind of subject which should be advertised, but there are many who will welcome the campaign. Only the super-conventionalists, the extreme formalists, fill any hesitancy in accepting this campaign. And why should they? Religion touches every one of us. It is a part of our lives, our code of living, our attitude in our relations with all those with whom we come into contact. We cannot escape it. Whatever our viewpoint, we cannot help being interested in a general campaign intended to bring out the fundamentals of religion. Sanctimoniousness will get nowhere in this age. The fact that a large part of our time is given over to frivolities and artificialties is the very reason why we are in a state of mind to listen to serious, straightforward truths.

Religion needs no ballyhooing. Its application to our lives is worth more than passing consideration. The most fertile field may possibly be found in the areas ordinarily considered only "barren ground." The success of the experiment depends largely on the methods which are followed.

Tomboy Taylor's New Kite

The Pied Piper of One-Track Gulch

By Francis Lynde

"What can you do?" he demanded.

"Anything."

"Anything means nothing. Catalogue it."

"I can 'shorthand' a little, and hammer the keys of a typewriter, when I have to. But it will be a sinful waste of good raw material if you make me do either."

"Humph You want something bigger; wouldn't begin at the bottom. See here: you put up a rather neat pair of hands last night, and I liked that. But we don't need a slugger. Neither do we go to the scrap heap when we need material for this department; we specialize."

"So do I," said the petitioner, calmly. "Specializing is my long suit."

"It is, eh? What makes you think so? Hoboing doesn't prove it. You need to have some of the conceit taken out of you, young man."

Then to the chief clerk: "Arthur, have we definitely lost that party of miners from the Dolomite Queen?"

"A wire from Dillard yesterday says they have definitely decided to go over the Transcontinental."

"There is our chance," said the head of the department, wheeling short upon the vagrant. "Twenty-six miners working in the Dolomite Queen are going to the Wood River country in Idaho. The Transcontinental is their natural route, and our agent has given them up as a bad job. Stanwix, here, will give you a pass to Dolomite and a grubstake for two days. Get the miners for our line, and I'll put you on the pay roll. If you don't get 'em you may fade into the landscape. Good morning."

Two days lalter the specialist turned up smiling, walked into the private office disregardful of Stanwix's protest, and laid a pencil memorandum, bearing the signature of the ticket seller at Dolomite, on the general passenger agent's desk:

This is to certify that H. Montgomery has this day ticketed 26 miners from the Dolomite Queen: rate, regular; destination, Hailey, Idaho. Form Exc.—3, Nos. 1328 to 1354.

"Say!" said Reddick, quite unofficially. "You're not so foolish as you look. How did you do it?"

"Easily enough," was the unmoved reply. "They are Welshmen, and I sung 'em a Welsh ditty or two. With out reflecting upon the worthy Mr.—Dillard, I believe Stanny called him—I should say that what you need most is the trained mind in your subordinates, Mr. Reddick."

The chief sat back in his chair.

"Just between us two, Montgomery—who are you?" he queried.

"I'm a man out of a job. If you'll give me a chance—"

"You've earned your chance," was the curt rejoiner; and the tramp was turned over to Stanwix.

This was the vagrant's adoption into the D. & U. P. headquarters family. Nominally he became Stanwix's second stenographer, but within a month or two his grasp of detail had included the entrie passenger department.

"He'll have my place first, and then yours, Mr. Reddick," the chief clerk ventured to assert, gloomily, one day when Montgomery's gifts were the topic. "Besides being a mystery, he is a living, breathing wonder."

"A mystery? You mean because he came as a hobo?"

"That, and some other things. His tongue is hung in the middle and wags both ways, yet he never says a word of his past—not a syllable. Another thing: every Saturday night, regularly, he props out of sight, and it was only last week that I found out that he goes somewhere up the road on Number Five, coming back on Four Sunday night."

"That's harmless enough."

"Y—yes, I suppose so. But I don't like mysteries. I'm hot every time I remember that I took him to Mrs. McLains," Stanwix went on, for the easing of his mind, for the painstaking Stanwix was as good as engaged to the widow McLain's daughter.

"He captures everybody, everywhere. The other night somebody bluffed him into sitting down at the piano, and what he didn't play, from P. P. Bliss to grand opera, isn't worth mentioning. Sings too—confound him! He's going to give Miss Mabel lessons—in Italian folk songs, and all that!"

"What's that?" demanded Mr. Reddick. "Does he know Italian?"

"Yes; and there's another of the mysteries. Every two or three days some bandit of a dago comes into the office, and Montgomery chews the rag with him till I'm sick of the 'occo' and the 'chis'."

The department chief swung his chair to face the window and became reflectively abstracted. There was a knotty traffic problem confronting him, and Stanwix's mention of the tramp's linguistic gift opened a small door of hope.

Roughly accounted for, the problem turned upon the completion of the grade of the Transcontinental's coal branch to the Burnt Hills.

With the bitter fight to prevent the competing lines from crossing the D. & U. P. at Riata and the still shrewder battle to keep it from usurping—as the courts decided it might, and as it ultimately did—the very rails of the D. & U. P. Burnt Hills Extension through One-Track Gulch, the passenger department had nothing to do. But on the completion of the grade, Mr. Reddick's problem had developed suddenly. Five hundred laborers, padroned colonies of Italians, were to be disbanded in the Burnt Hills; they would bee-line for the cities of the east, most of them; and their fares, for the railroad carrying them, was a pfize to be striven for.

Reddick had done his best, against odds. For a week or more, Donald, the traveling agent, had lived in the Burnt Hills camps, harranguing the men through an interpreter, spreading largess of gifts among the influential, and matching wits with the wily padrones, who were not above taking D. & U. P. retainers with one hand and Transcontinental commissions with the other.

Donald had been out of the hills by the space of a day, confessing defeat. The Transcontinental had every advantage. The business was local to its line. A huge special train would run over the new branch, picking up the men and their dunnage at their camps, where otherwise they would have been obliged to march six, eight or ten miles to the nearest D. & U. P. coal switch. Donald asserted that the business could not be secured against the secret opposition of the padrones; and he added the information that the big special train was already on its way from Wind River, the Transcontinental's division station to the west

Reddick turned suddenly upon Stanwix.

"Send Montgomery here," he ordered abruptly; and when the former tramp, now second stenographer, came in, "Sit down. They tell me you speak Italian; do you?"

"I can patter it a little—in the dialects—yes," was the admission.

"You learned it tramping, I suppose?"

"I did—just that."

"Here?"

"Oh, no; in Italy."

"Montgomery, I'm going to fling you up against the biggest thing, and the most hopeless, you ever heard of." And thereupon the specialist was put in possession of the Burnt Hills facts.

It was only when Mr Reddick sought to explain the topographies that the young man interrupted. "You may skip all that," he said, briefly. "I've been out there a number of times lately, Sundays, and I know the ground like a book. Just put it in ten words and tell me what you want me to do."

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Why the Wife Who Divorces Her Husband Is Seldom Better Off.

Dear Miss Dix—I am thinking of leaving my husband, but before doing so, want your advice. He is thoroughly selfish. For years I have done everything I could for his happiness and comfort, but he never thinks of mine. He is niggardly to me. He never gives me any money, only barely what I can run the house on, and he growls over the price of everything. But he boasts of how much he gives to charity, and what he gives to his friends, and how he helps boys and girls through school.

He allows his secretary to open my letters and read them, and this secretary treats me as an interloper when I go to the office. I do not know how far the intimacy between my husband and this woman goes, as he gets furious if I ask him about it.

Yet I love my husband in spite of his faults. Shall I leave him or not?—HEARTBROKEN.

Answer: Divorce isn't a panacea for a bruised heart, my dear, and if you still love your husband I think you would be far more miserable separated from him than you are with him.

Certainly a selfish, selfcentered, egotistical man is hard to get along with, and he is bound to get on his wife's nerves, and make her feel that the thing she yearns for most in the world is just to be done with him, and to go where she will never be aggravated by him any more. While their hearts are hot and angry, and they are rebelling at the injustice that they have to suffer, many women rush to the divorce courts, and sever the bonds that bind them to their husbands.

But they seldom find that a decree absolute brings the absolute peace and happiness they expected. They find that the divorced woman has no settled place in society; nowhere to go, and that she is neither fish, nor flesh, nor good red herring. If she goes back to her family, she finds that she is not wanted, and that they resent having to take care of her. If she goes among strangers, they lift an eyebrow, and have for her none of the sympathy that they have for the woman who is a real widow.

And she does not find it very easy to get married again, because she has made a failure of her first marriage, and that disqualifies her as a wife in many men's eyes.

Moreover, the divorced woman generally finds that she has to go to work and make a living for herself, and sometimes she does not know what to turn her hand to. Even if she has worked before marriage, she is out of practice and not able to compete with the smart young girls. And then she is lonely. She is used to companionship, and the time is sure to come when she will feel that the society of even a grumpy husband is better than no society at all.

It is a terribly serious matter from every point of view to leave your husband, and I advise every woman to think it over long and earnestly before she takes the fatal step.

It is often better "to endure the ills we have, than fly to those we know not of."

POPE GETS REPORT

Mexican Secretary Issues Statement On Conditions

ROME, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A first hand report of the Mexican religious situation was given Pope Pius today by Monsignor Crespi, secretary of the apostolic delegation to Mexico, whom he received in private audience.

Monsignor Crespi reviewed the situation from its origin to the circumstances surrounding his departure from the country, including the steps taken by the Mexican government to put its religious regulations into effect and the attitude adopted by the Mexican episcopate in opposing the regulations.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

A GAME

We do not always win at cards,
For fortune is not always kind,
But man plays on, and disregards
That one's ahead and he's behind.
With smiling face, with tranquil mind,
He bears his losses now and then;
He has not whimpered, has not whined,
But laughs, and deals the cards again.

For, after all, it's all in play,
A little contest for awhile,
And they who find it fun are they
Who still can lose and still can smile.
For only fools their luck revile,
With ugly words, and anger hot;
The game's enough to reconcile
A man, a man who wins or not.

And when the cards are laid aside,
And men return to mill or mart,
With some new project to be tried,
Some dream of wealth or dream of art,
I wish the contest we would start,
I wish we made a game of life.
The daily task, the larger strife,
With smiling face, with sturdy heart—

Librarian's Delight

A story is told of the librarian of Harvard that well illustrates the feeling that people had about books in the early part of the last century when libraries were regarded as collections of books, like collections of jewels, to be kept in place. Someone asked the librarian on the street, "How's the library?"

"Fine," answered the delighted librarian, "I was never more pleased about it; every book in the collection is on the shelves except one that Prof. Agassiz has, and I'm going over to get that now."

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Flies are harmful because, living in filthy places and then visiting houses, they spread disease germs.

2. The tiny flies that swarm around fruit that was apparently free of flies when brought in, are usually hatched out from minute eggs laid on the fruit when in the orchard.

3. The best way to get rid of ants when they get in the house is to leave dishes of molasses near their favorite haunts; they will collect here in large numbers, and may all be destroyed at once with boiling water.

4. A catch crop is a cheap crop sown early to catch harmful field insects. The crop is soon reaped and burned, thus clearing the field for a really important crop.

5. The latest method of combating the boll weevil is spraying from airplanes.

6. The weak point in the life history of harmful insects is the chrysalis stage, when the larvae, often in large numbers, are dormant and can easily be destroyed.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

VIRGO

Today's planetary aspects are benignly favorable. They may not be propitious for the initiation of enterprises of importance. They do, however, denote a condition of mind, more beneficial for the emotions than for active endeavor. Routine work will lose some of its monotony under these influences, and such duties will be accomplished with greater ease and zest than usually atends their discharge. It is an excellent opportunity for travel, either by land or sea, and also a promising occasion for marriage. Those who wed today an forward, with every assurance of certainty, to a partnership of ever increasing happiness and contentment.

Children born today will need more careful watching than nursing. In infancy, this condition will first reveal itself and, as they grow up, the difficulty will be very much accentuated. They will show a marked propensity to get into dangerous situations, from which only quick action will enable them to escape. In disposition, they will be venturesome, and their curiosity will be illimitable. As they develop in age and mentality, they will of course, moderate their natural inclinations, and what may prove to be a liability in childhood, may become a valuable asset in years of maturity. They will be inventive, rather than imitative. If today is your birthday, you are more of a disturbing factor than a quieting influence. our temperament is tempestuous and volatile. Any points you carry are won by sheer force of will and never by the wiles of diplomacy or persuasion. You possess a keen and brilliant mind. Owing, however, to lack of perseverance or persistency, and a degree of impatience that is very marked, you are not able to achieve much that is "worthwhile." You have the facility to conceive many good ideas. If, however, they do not materialize quickly, or without any great effort on your part, you quit in disgust and, thereby, often permit others, less gifted but more consistent to reap the benefits of your projects.

You are a good friend, but a relentless enemy. People either like you very much, or dislike you heartily. No one who knows you, however, is indifferent to you. Your disposition does not permit anyone to assume a negative disposition towards you.

Successful people born this date are:

Edward Bates, lawyer and politician.
Phoebe Cary, poet.
Willard Warner, soldier and senator.
John H. Rauch, physician.
Daniel H. Burnham, architect.
Richard R. Bowker, journalist.

FREAK PHILOSOPHY.
By Harold B. Goodrich.

I love to go to side shows
And look at all the freaks,
The cow that has goat's whiskers,
The ducks with chicken beaks;
The girl who weighs eight hundred,
The man who weighs two pounds,
The tattooed Queen of Sheba,
New Zealand's humpbacked hounds.

My wife thinks I am crazy
To gape at things like these.
But any chance to see them
I never fail to seize;
Then when I feel discouraged,
I say, it is a sin
For me to feel unhappy—
Think what I might have been!

But had it been my fortune
To be some sort of freak,
And I could do the choosing,
For one thing I would speak;
I'd say, "Make me a pygmy;
As small as I can get,
Then, when it is hot weather
There won't be much to sweat!"

The preacher had been invited to dinner and as it was summer, the usual fare was prepared. Among the vegetables cooked were extra fine early June peas, steamed in butter and served a la casserole.

The leading steward of the church was also invited and present, as he was the husband of the hostess. The preacher, as usual, ate heartily of the food and especially of the peas. He noticed that the steward did not eat any peas.

"My brother," said the preacher, "let me help you to the peas."

"Not any," said the steward.

"They are fine—and besides a very healthful food," said the preacher.

"Yes," returned the steward, "I know they do not cause you any ill," countered the preacher, inquiringly.

"Nope," said the steward, somewhat peeved, "I just can't eat them because they won't stay on my knife long enough." —Rev. W. H. Hantzman.

THE PRIDE OF A CREATIVE GENIUS

A colored person of a formidable aspect was arraigned in a South Carolina court of justice on a charge of mayhem. As exhibit A, for the case of the prosecution, the mutilated victim of his wrath was presented before the jurors' sympathetic eyes. The face of the victim was but little more than a recent site—a place where a face had been, but was no longer.

When the jury very promptly and very properly had returned a verdict of guilty, his honor, the presiding judge pointing to the chief complaining witness and adressing the defendant, said:

"This is the most lamentable example of brutality I have ever seen in a long experience on the criminal bench. Surely no human being, unless he were inspired by infernal influences and hellborn suggestions, could deliberately work such wreckage as you have worked upon the countenance of a defenseless and helpless fellow creature. Demons from below surely must have prompted you in what you did. It must have been the devil himself who urged you on and on and on."

"Well, Jedge," said the prisoner, "come to think it over, I ain' shore but what you're right. As I look back on it now it do seem lak to me 'at w'en I wuz cuttin' his nose loose from his face wid a razor, the devil was right behind me sayin' 'That's right, separate him fum his nose.' An' I 'spects it must a been them demons you mentioned which suggested me stompin' out his front teeth.

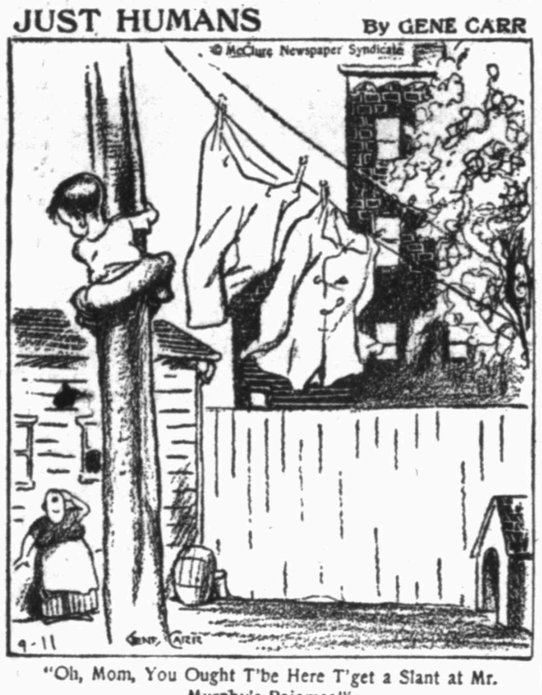

"But Jedge, bitin' off his ear was strictly my own idea!"

PIRATES NOSE CUBS IN 10TH

Two-Run Rally Behind Hill Gives Buccos, 3-2 Victory

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates got back in the pennant race today by defeating the Chicago Cubs, 3 to 2, in a ten-inning pitching battle. The world's champions won the game when Kaufmann, who had allowed only two hits for nine innings weakened in the tenth. After Mueller had singled, Eddie Murphy former American league star batted for Cronin and beat out a hit to Beck. Smith followed with a single which scored Mueller, breaking the tie and Murphy scampered across the plate on Hill's out.

The visitors' first run resulted from Grimm's fumble of Cuyler's drive, an infield out and Wright's single.

Carmen Hill, recently purchased by the Pirates from the Indianapolis American association club, made his first appearance on the hill for the Pirates. He pitched steadily and was given perfect support. The Cubs bunched two hits with a sacrifice for their first run and staged a belated rally in the tenth when Hartnett's double, a single and an infield out, produced a second marker.

RUTH BANGS 41ST!

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Philadelphia split a twin program with the Yankees today, annexing the opened by 7 to 3, and dropping the closing struggle 7 to 4, after the New Yorkers came from behind with a five-run rally in the seventh. Babe banged his 41st circuit drive of the season off Lefty Grove in the fourth inning of the second game, with none on base. Although the Yankees gained an even break today Cleveland's victory over Detroit shortened New York's lead in the pennant race to five and one-half games.

Gorman Wants Dutchman Again

Mantell Accepts Challenge But Defers Time of Meeting

Declaring that the windup of his match with Dutch Mantell in which the Amarillo ape-man was awarded a decision Thursday night, was very unfair and entirely uncalled for, Jack Gorman, Wichita Falls wrestling favorite, has issued a challenge to Mantell for a return match any time and anywhere.

Gorman tripped and fell under a clumsy referee who was shoved at him by Mantell. In the fall with the full weight of the referee coming down on him Gorman seriously wrenched an arm. Struggling to free himself from the referee who was lying on top with a foot in his face, Gorman was caught unawares by Mantell who slapped a body scissors on him, rolled over, shifted the hold, locked Gorman's injured arm and pinned him.

Handicapped in such manner, Gorman contends Mantell's victory was unorthodox. He declares that had not he had the run-in with the referee the match would never have ended in such manner.

On two occasions Gorman had Mantell pinned under the ropes, but under the rules was not allowed either fall. Jack says he is sure that he can flatten Mantell again, this time without the "rope rule" serving as a loop hole to save his enemy.

Gorman asks that Mantell make 140 pounds for him.

Dutch when approached on the matter said:

"I'll make any weight he wants me to and BEAT him. But I can't take him on very soon because of my eyes. I'm having them treated by Dos Shripling now. Anyhow, I'm too busy to foll around with small fry like him right now."

MANTELL REFUSES ROMONOFF MATCH

They all want to wrestle Dutch Mantell. Billy Romonoff seeks a match with him next week, the only drawback being Mantell refuses, saying his eyes are in bad shape and he wants to give them a rest.

However, Mantell's eyes have been bothering him several weeks but he's gone on and wrestled a number of men without using the eye alibi.

Romonoff beat Matsuda in San Angelo the other night. Kicked the Jap in the stomach and then on the chin, knocking him groggy so that it was easy to pin him.

Perhaps Dutch is glad at this late stage he suddenly can rig up the eye alibi.

Lucy Back Home,

Lyman Lucy Lamb, riotous right fielder with the Spudders, returned to the home fort yesterday dragging a damaged shoulder with him. Lucy isn't laid up for good, however, because he probably will join the team again Monday at Fort Worth, said Prez Gardner in telephonic communication from Houston.

Gardner has returned south from a scouting trip through the middle west and east, joined the club in Houston and will be home with the gang Tuesday.

He intends to make several announcements relative to Spudder deals made recently, he said, upon his arrival in the city.

Southpaw Thompson held the Bears scoreless in the first game until the eighth inning when the Bruins batched five hits. Frank Watt got off to a bad start as the result of lack of control. Jim Lindsey, aided by good fielding, pitched San Antonio to victory in the second game.

McFarlane Will Be Soloist At Band Concert

Quo warranto proceedings which sought to bar the name of W. D. MacFarlane of Graham from the general election ballot failed in the 78th district court Friday noon when Judge W. W. Cook held the portion of the election law which decrees that four-fifths of the allowable campaign expenditure might be spent prior to the first primary did not apply in cases where no second primary was necessary. Deductions totaling $248 amounts MacFarlane claimed since the final filing of his expense account he had found to be not properly chargable to campaign expenditures were allowed by Judge Cook, the deductions bringing a total expended by MacFarlane in the campaign to $871, more than $125 less than the $1,000 allowed by law under Judge Cook's ruling. Both features of the findings by the bench were concurred in by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court who sat with Judge Cook during trial of the suit.

In the findings of the two judges were the basis for a decree denying the injunction. Notice of appeal was given by attorneys for the plaintiff.

Defendant On Stand

W. D. MacFarlane, himself, took the stand at the opening of the trial Friday morning, and underwent a two-hour gruelling examination in which he was questioned regarding every item on his expense account. In his pleadings for deductions of certain amounts which he had charged to campaign expenditures in his sworn expense account he stated that various items of traveling expenses, hotel, bills, meals and the like were intended to represent business trips in which campaign matters had been only an aside.

C-C SEEKING FISH HATCHERY

Active Steps Will Be Taken To Secure New State Park

Prompt and consistent action will be taken in getting the establishment of a fish hatchery and park near the diversion lake in Archer county, since active steps are being taken to relieve the bond validation situation in the state, was the resolution adopted by the board of directors of the chamber of commerce in regular session Thursday morning. The board pledged its active support to this project, and a committee composed of C. E. Basham, chairman, E. G. Hill, Jim King, Frank Boyd and C. H. Clark was appointed by President J. C. Mytinger to take active steps toward pushing the project forward.

The proposal for a hatchery at this site has been in question for some time, and was recently approved by T. E. Hubby, fish, game and oyster commissioner of the state, but there remains some work to be done before the project can be realized. The location was given for this purpose by Mrs. Herbert Griffin, and lies about three-fourths of a mile from the main highway. A gravel road must be built and a bridge will be required across the creek at this place. These were the requirements made by Mrs. Griffin and by Mr. Hubby before they would co-operate with the plan.

Myers to Talk To Waco Chamber

Raymond M. Myers, local attorney, will be the principal speaker before the Waco Chamber of Commerce at Waco, Tuesday, September 7, when he will tell the history of the irrigation project of Wichita Falls and its influence on the agriculture of this section.

Mr. Myers is speaking there at the request of the Waco chamber which is working in cooperation with plans of Waco to build a dam across the Brazos river for the purpose of irrigating near that city. Waco is planning to launch a campaign for a bond issue to raise funds towards building the proposed dam.

Wichitans To Get Promotions

Several carloads of Wichitans will depart from the city this morning to stage a friendly visit to the Baylor county fair at Seymour, providing rains do not muss the roads up too much. The party will assemble at the chamber of commerce at 10 o'clock this morning and will leave immediately for Seymour.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd will lead the caravan, and several members of the chamber of commerce and business men will attend.

SHRINE DATE CHANGED

Announcement was made Friday by Potentate R. E. Shepherd that the Shrine ceremonial for the fall which had been scheduled for November 24 had been changed to an earlier date, that of November 18. The change was made in order to conform with a change in dates of the Scottish Rite reunion which is to be held in Dallas.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—An easier tone developed in the cotton market today owing to favorable weather reports, the failure of bullish private crop figures materially to stimulate demand and further reasonizing or liquidation in preparation for the holidays and approaching government crop report. December contracts sold off from 17.81 to 17.63, but recovered a good part of the loss closing at 17.77. The general market closed steady, net one point higher to six points lower.

The opening was steady at a decline of three points to an advance of one point, and prices held within three or four points either way of yesterday's closing figures during the forenoon. Selling on the more favorable view of the weather news evidently was held in check by the tendency to scale down estimates of the crop and with offerings light, only a little buying was required to hold prices.

Offerings increased later, however, with a renewal of near month liquidation accompanied by reiterated rumors that 15 or 20,000 bales of cotton were likely to be shipped here from New Orleans and Galveston for delivery on contracts next month. The relative weakness of the October delivery which sold off to 17.46, or 20 points net lower and about 17 points below the price of December seemed to have rather an unsettling effect on sentiment but except for realizing, offerings of the later deliveries were light and after declining to 17.72, January closed at 17.78.

Three more private end-August crop reports were issued with condition figures ranging from 57.9 to 63.4 and figures on the indicated crop from 14,800,000 down to only 13,900,00 bales.

The average of the private end-August reports published here during the past few days points to a condition of 59 and an indicated crop of about 14,681,000 bales.

The market here will be closed from today until next Tuesday morning.

Exports today 15,650, making 440,614 so far this season. Port receipts 24,838; U. S. port stocks 595,937 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The cotton market was rather nervous and erratic today, and while quite active at times it was comparatively quiet at others. Prices were reactionary the greater part of the session on liquidation by longs in advance of the government report and the long holiday and on more or less hedge selling against rather liberal buying of spots in the interior of late and the lowest of the afternoon prices showed losses compared with yesterday's close of 11 to 19 points. October showed the greatest lose owing to transferring from that month into the later positions. There was a fair rally in the last hour which advanced prices 13 to 16 points from the lows, recovering nearly all of the earlier decline owing to covering by shorts on reports of rain in southwest Texas and fears of unsettled weather over the holidays, but prices eased off some from the top in the final trading the close showing net losses of five to 11 points except on March which closed one point net higher.

The opening showed losses of four to six points and although there were slight rallies in the early trading, prices gradually eased off until in the early afternoon October traded down to 17.52, December to 17.57 and January to 17.57, or 11 to 19 points under the previous close.

The market rallied in the last hour to 17.73 for December and 17.72 for January, new highs, and 14 to 16 points up from the lows but eased off about eight points from the top at the end. Exports for the day totaled 12,456 bales and for the week 183,283 bales.

He's Astounded At City's Growth

That the growth of Wichita Falls is astounding to occasional visitors was evidenced by the comments of W. T. Buchanan, general press representative of the Robbins brothers four-ring circus, who was in the city Friday for the first time in two years. "It is an easy matter to predict that Wichita Falls will be a city of 250,000 within the lifetime of most of our citizens," he said. "Everywhere you go you hear the expression, 'Wichita Falls is a mighty good town'—Good will counts very much in building a metropolis."

The Robbins brothers circus will not be in Wichita Falls this year but it is expected to be here next season. It will appear in Childress on Monday, Sept. 6, in Vernon Tuesday, Frederick, Wednesday and Elk City Thursday.

Bradford and Frank Morgan, candidates for constable list neither expenditures nor receipts.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Breaking away from the tradition of quiet and indecisive trading in a pre-holiday session, stock prices today bounded upward under the leadership of the high grade railroad shares, about a score of which touched their highest prices in a year or longer. The usual week-end realizing was in evidence early in the session, but offerings were well absorbed and the general upward movement, which started a round mid-day reached its peak just before the close when many of the day's highest prices were recorded.

Bullish enthusiasm was created by the optimistic tenor of the weekly mercantile reviews; the large volume of funds available in the call money market at the renewal rate of 4½ per cent and the report that the steel industry started September with operations around 85 per cent of capacity an increase of about 3 per cent in th elast fortnight. Stiffening gasoline prices in the middle west and expanding public participation also were regarded as favorable factors.

Persistent rumors that some of the smaller federal reserve banks would shortly increase their rediscount rates were disregarded, while the increase in rediscounts and note circulation show in the weekly federal reserve statements were construed as an indication of an expanding commercial and agricultural demands for funds. The failure of G. L. Miller and company, a large real estate mortgage concern was not announced until after the market closed. Chesapeake and Ohio crossed 160 to the highest price ever recorded on the prediction of President Harahan that earnings this year would reach $22 a share. New York Central crossed 146 to the highest price since 1909 on a large turnover, and Southern railway touched a new peak for all time at 131½. Other rails to break through to new high levels for the year, or longer, were Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Pacific, Rock sland, Louisville and Nashville, Omaha, Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific preferred and Chicago and Northwestern.

U. S. Steel was sluggish in the early trading, selling down to 148½, but it later rallied to 153 on predictions of a large increase in August unfilled orders which will be made public a week from today.

CONCERTS WILL BE CONTINUED

Muny Band to Appear At Park In Sunday Programs

Last Sunday was the final date for the union church services at Bellevue park, and from now on the churches will conduct their services in their own buildings, but the band concerts will be continued for a while, R. A. Brollier, director of the municipal band, stated yesterday. The hours, however, for opening the program has been changed from 7:30 to 6:30, which will give everybody time to hear the band concert and then go to their respective churches for services.

The program next Sunday is rendered through the courtesy of the Security National bank, which is paying for the concert for the evening. C. C. Cabiness, active vice president, stated he regretted very much that the band had not been in the regular program which run with the church services, but intended to give the people a concert, and had been assured by Director Brollier that one of the rest programs of the season would be rendered next Sunday evening.

Everybody is cordially invited to attend the concert.

Colvert's Ice Cream is a food—not a luxury.—Adv.

CITY PLANNING FUTURE NEEDS

Will Make Recommendations For New City Hall And Auditorium

Some new data will be available for inspection and discussion at the meeting of the city council and auditorium committee Monday when practically every department of the city government will submit a report giving full details of the needs of their departments and especially the amount of room needed for their offices. These reports were requested for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of room for administrative offices needed in the new city auditorium, and they will be turned over to the architect who draws the plan for the building, if approved by the council.

Every department o fthe city government with the exception of the police and fire departments will have their offices in the new building, and each is being required to calculate the room they will need. They will also take into consideration expansion and demands for the future as the city grows. These departments include the health, water, tax accounting, welfare, administrative departments.

It is also planned to have a large council room in the new building which will also be available for committee rooms when the building is used for convention purposes. A basement storeroom is also to be incorporated in the building.

Architects who are intending to submit plans for the new building will be furnished with a copy of these specifications after they are approved at the council meeting Monday.

A large Sousaphone bass horn has been ordered through the Ripley-Jones Music company and rehearsals will start as soon as this instrument arrives. The club is standing the expense of a number of instruments and expects a number of boys to form the organization.

Requirements necessary for membership are to attend rehearsals, and work diligently along the lines pointed out by the director, Mr. Seeds.

Piggly Wiggly With Big Business Success Opens Two More Stores

PIGGLY WIGGLY NO. 11
1504 Holliday Street

PIGGLY WIGGLY NO. 10
Hayes and Seymour Road

"The Piggly Wiggly stores of Wichita Falls are appreciative of their business success here, are confident of the future and for these reasons we are installing two more new stores to our system here,' Mr. Oberstein, manager of the stores, stated yesterday on the event of the opening of their new store at the corner of Hays and Seymour road. Piggly Wiggly is also opening up another new store at 1504 Holliday.

The two additions make a total of ten stores in the city of Wichita Falls and one at Burkburnett under this management, and represents a growth and phenominal increase in business for the past six years.

The new store at Hays and Seymour road is the first Piggly Wiggly in the world to build ddifferently from the ordinary single entrance style on which the original plan was constructed. This store has two openings, one on Hays and the other on Seymour road and permits customers coming in either door to go direct to the service shelves.

The two new stores will soon be open to the public and when in full operation Piggly Wiggly service will practically cover every section of the city.

By eating four and one-third quarts of peas one only receives the same nourishment obtainable in a quart of Colvert's Ice Cream.—Adv.

INTEREST NOT EVERYTHING

THE interest an investment pays is important, but far from everything. Of equal, if not greater importance, are safety, value an marketability.

Besides paying a fair yield, a saving account is the safest investment you can make. Furthermore, unlike government, railroad and industrial bonds, it never fluctuates in value. And unlike mortgage bonds, your money in a saving account can be quickly recovered.

Just on its merits as an investment, a savings account here heads the list.
