IDAHO SHADOW LOOMS OMINUS IN CAL'S PATH

Borah, Implacable Foe Of World Court, Threat To Coolidge

NOW BEFORE PUBLIC

Able Western Senator Has Covetous Eye On The White House

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff.

AUSTIN, March 28.—Politics is a facinating game in nation as well as state. Ever the shadow of Borah of Idaho follows at the heels of Calvin Coolidge coming out of the west, and over the shadow of Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania coming out of the east. Those who are close to the Idaho shadow say that the distinguished senator would like to be the presidential nominee of his party in 1928, and those who know intimately the innermost thoughts of the Pennsylvania shadow broadly assert that he too hopes to be the presidential standard bearer of his party in the battle of the political giants staged for 1928.

Borah is a distinguished statesman, perhaps the ablest man in the American congress. Pinchot followed the flag of Roosevelt in all the campaigns of that immortal soldier statesman and author and globe trotter, whose achievements are a part of the heritage of the American people. Pinchot four years ago, in his race for governor, defeated the republican machine of Pennsylvania and the wet forces. He had behind him the women of Pennsylvania, at least, those who vote the republican ticket; he had behind him the ultra dries and the independent voters who have a contempt for machine bosses and machine rule; he had behind him an army of coal miners who may be wet in sentiment but Pinchot had been their friend and they voted to make him governor of his state.

Now Wants the Senate.

Now Pinchot wishes to go to the senate. He has fought wets to a finish. He has been manhandled by the political bosses of Pennsylvania, and his legislative recommendations have been slaughtered by the legislative

SAN ANTONIO, March 28.—(AP)—Mexico City will be linked in an air mail circuit with San Antonio, Chicago and New York, according to plans now being made by the Calles government, details of which were imparted to officials of the National Air Transport company in San Antonio today. This will give San Antonio an overnight service to Chicago, they said.

The route from Mexico City to San Antonio has already been charted and trial trips to the border have been made. Fred M. Herndon, publicity secretary of the chamber of commerce has been informed. The 1,300 mile jump will be made in about 13 hours, according to existing schedules maintained by the ships now in service by the National company.

NOT SO BLACK

Department of Agriculture Holds Out Crow as Benefactor.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The crow is not as black as he is painted, in the opinion of the department of agriculture, and it recommends that farmers inflict the death penalty on them only in extreme cases. Sprouting corn is only one item of a large and varied crow menu which includes many insect pests the department says.

A trap has been invented which will catch the wary crows, the department asserts, recommending its use or the employment of warnings to the feathered pirates where they are too numerous.

PAWNS LAST JEWELS TO BUY PLAY

COUNTESS CATHCART

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP)—The Countess of Cathcart has withdrawn her play, "Ashes of Love" from Broadway after a week of scanty audiences.

"I'm closing 'Ashes of Love' because it is bad," she said. "I know that because I had very little experience in play writing. The play, however, wasn't the same that I had written—it was changed so much. I shall have another shot at writing one and hope to do better."

The play had its American premiere in Washington under the banner of Earl Carroll. The countess brought the piece to New York after repurchasing the rights to it from Mr. Carroll with what she said was the last of her jewels, a $20,000 pearl necklace. She did not announce her plans for the immediate future.

Quest of Great Adventure Ends in Even Greater One

HOUSTON, March 28.—(AP)—What is believed to have been a runaway exploit of three Eureka, Texas, youths ended in death today when their bodies were found in the wreckage of freight cars of T. & G. N. train No. 56, which was derailed at Malone, Texas.

The youths were: Arnett Freeman, 15; Riley Hunt, 15; and Jesse Gidden, 17. They are believed to have been riding the blinds of the freight cars which were derailed.

Twelve box cars were derailed. When the cars left the track they toppled down an incline along the track.

The youths, huddled in between the cars, are believed to have been caught underneath one of the cars as it turned over and crushed them to death.

Trainmen were unaware they were riding until their bodies were uncovered in the splintered cars.

Each of the boys comes from a family well known in this section. They are believed to have boarded the train for a lark. The bodies were sent to Kosse for burial early today.

Woman, Forgiven By Husband, Now Held in Robbery

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP) Charged with defrauding Florida banks of $30,00 through bad checks and violation of the Mann act, Mrs. Doris Berne, wife of a plastic surgeon, Dr. Louis P. Berne, was arrested today with two men, one of them the man with whom she is said to have eloped to Florida a year ago, leaving her six-year-old son, Allison Berne, ill with pneumonia.

Mrs. Berne eloped with Paul Rosen in February, 1925, Dr. Berne said, taking $45,000 from a safe deposit vault. She was gone two months and then he learned that Rosen had deserted her. He sent her money in Florida and she returned to him.

"I forgave her because I knew she was a good woman," Dr. Berne said. "I don't know what kind of influence Rosen had over her and her brother.

Thomas will be petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus. The petition will be presented probably by Ray M. Wiley of Springfield, Mass.

Meantime, other legal moves considered by counsel to keep their client from hanging April 6, are being perfected. Mr. Wiley expects to go before a superior court judge on Tuesday with a writ of coram nobiss, maintaining that error occurred in the federal proceedings before Chapman was tried a year ago in the Hartford county superior court. SHREVEPORT, March 28.—(AP)—More than 200 patients of the State Charity hospital here who were forced to flee in their night clothes last night when fire threatened the building that housed them today, recounted their experiences to friends. None was injured. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Officials of the instution feared that the exposure would prove fatal to several of the seriously ill inmates, but a report tonight listed no grave consequences. The flames originated in a wing of the three story structure.

With the railroads, he said, taxation is a very serious item of expense, consuming about half the net earning of all railroads in the United States. In 1924 the class one roads paid $339,421,000 for taxes, he said.

HERO OF FIRE AND EXPLOSION MAY LOSE LIFE

T. R. Williams, Employe Of Plant, Burned, Trying To Put Out Blaze

LOSS IS $50,000

Workmen and Volunteer Firemen Extinguish Flames

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, March 28.—One man was critically if not fatally injured and a property loss of $50,000 sustained here at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon when the Dale Oil and Refining company plant two and one-half miles east of this city was virtually wrecked by an explosion and fire. T. R. Williams, aged 24, an employee at the refinery is now in a Wichita Falls hospital severely burned on the body and head. His oil soaked clothing turned him into a human torch when they caught fire as he was making a desperate effort to turn steam into crude stills threatened by the flames.

Leaking Oil Ignites.

The explosion was caused, it is believed, when a gasket blew out of a pipe, allowing oil to escape. The entire refinery was speedily enveloped in flames and was saved from complete destruction only by heroic work on the part of plant employees and the Electra volunteer fire department. More than an hour and a half was spent in fighting the fames.

Officials of the company stated tonight they could not make an exact estimate of their loss until a thorough check had been made of the ruins. They thought, however, it would run to at least $50,000. Part of this was covered by insurance.

Williams, with other plant workmen, was doing all possible to control the blaze when a tongue of a flame lapped out and touched his clothing, which had been soaked in crude oil. They ignited in a flash.

Just Left Hospital.

Other workmen, however, immediately hurled him to the ground and smothered the fire. He was rushed to an Electra drug store where three physicians gave him first aid and he was then taken to a Wichita Falls hospital with a physician attending him in an ambulance. Williams left the hospital only recently after a long incarceration in which a crushed leg was healing. He suffered severe injuries while at work at the plant.

The Dale refinery has been operated as such since Aug. 1, 1925, when it took over the old Griswold Refining company properties.

RADIO AIDS FARMER

National Council Reports On Importance of Arial Reports.

CHICAGO, March 28.—(AP)—Importance of radio to the farmers is illustrated in a survey just completed, the National Farm Radio council reported today. Particularly is this fact noticeable in connection with markets, the council said.

A digest of the replies received from 43 states, showed that more than 46 per cent of them gave specific examples of cash savings effected by the use of radio for the reception of market reports, and practically all of the returns indicated the value to the farmer of having market reports from 24 to 48 hours earlier than heretofore.

Texas G. O. P. Offers $20,000 Bet To Tilson

Leaders Accept Defi Of Wurzbach For Probe of Affairs

SAN ANTONIO, March 28.—(AP)—Republican organization leaders of Texas today accepted the challenge of Congressman Harry Wurzbach for an impartial investigation into the organization's activities in this state.

In a letter to Senator W. M. Butler, chairman of the national committee, eight republican leaders, proposed that if the investigating committee did not find "clear and unequivocally" that the organization and its heads were reputable and making material party progress they would donate $20,000 as a campaign contribution, provided that Wurzbach and Congressman Wood of Indiana and Tilson of Connecticut would also donate that sum should conditions be found to be satisfactory.

Assails Tilson

The telegram to Senator Butler was signed by R. B. Creager, national committeeman; Mrs. Florence C. Griswold, national committee woman; Eugene Nolte, state chairman; Orville Bullington, vice state chairman; F. L. Thomson, state treasurer; Leonard Withington, secretary and T. P. Lee and W. E. Talbot of the state headquarter committee.

The message assailed again the Indiana and Connecticut campaign for supporting Wurzbach in his controversy with the organization over patronage dispensing in Texas.

As committee to make the investigation, the republican leaders suggested Senator Butler; Charles D. Hilles, Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky; Herbert Hoover, Nicholas M. Butler, Senator Dupont of Delaware and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt or any three or more of them.

The message follows:

"Referring to press reports of suggestions made to you by Congressmen Tilson and Wood for an investigation of the Texas republican organization, we in Texas resent the insolence of this suggestion made by persons without shadow of authority. We in turn and with equal authority suggest an investigation into the conduct of the gentlemen mentioned ingratituously reflecting upon honorable men and women constituting organization in Texas and their unprecedented and unwarranted in-

Desist, Diogenes, Your Search Ends In Wichita Falls

Diogenes, put out your lantern! Come to Wichita Falls and Electra where honest men and women abound!

Dr. J. S. Vogel a day or so ago was hurrying to catch a Fort Worth and Denver train in Electra. A woman, unknown to him, touched him on the arm, "Here, sir, you dropped this," and handed him a small roll of bills. Before he could remonstrate she was gone.

On the train the doctor examined the packet she had handed him and found three ten dollar bills and one five dollar bill. The money wasn't his, so Dr. Vogel handed it to the conductor and told him to keep it, pending the establishing of ownership.

In Wichita Falls, however, the doctor was told of a small classified advertisement appearing in a local paper reading "Lost, three tens and one five. Reward for return."

Wherefore the doctor comes in to search the files for the ad.

TEXAS CARGO GROWS

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP)—Southern states handled more than one-third of the foreign commerce of this country last year with every coastal state from Virginia to Texas showing an increase in the volume of cargo tonnage movement, it was reported today by the shipping board.

While Southern states increased their foreign traffic by 3,700,000 tons last year, the combined foreign trade of all other coastal states declined 2,450,000 tons.

Texas ranked second among the Southern states in total cargo volume. Virginia's commerce increased by 18 per cent above the previous year as a result of coal exports and greater importations of pulp wood, fertilizer, paper and minerals.

Belled Buzzard, Nemesis Of Evil Doers in Southland Is Brought Down After 44 Years

Venerable Avenger of The Skies, Known From Maine To Mexico, No Longer Strikes Fear In Superstitious

BY MILLARD FERGUSON
Special Correspondent
Copyright, 1926, by the Consolidated Press Association

COMER, Ga., March 28.—The belled buzzard is dead.

This weird bird, believed by negoes of the south to bring vengeance upon evil doers, particularly murders, was killed today near this little town by W. C. Birchmore, a farmer who was out hunting for geese and brought down the buzzard by mistake.

He stripped the bell from around the buzzard's neck, and the chipped and scarred piece of brass is now on display in a jewelry store window at Athens. Scratched on the surface of the bell is the date, 1882, indicating the amazing fact that the buzzard has lived for 44 years with this brass cowbell slung around its neck.

Piece Bitten Out.

The bell measures about two inches across the bottom. A piece is "bitten" out of the edge as though with clippers and the entire surface is scratched and marred by use. The wire by which it was suspended from the buzzard's neck is almost worn in two. No one ever sees a brass cowbell nowadays, like this old "bell boy of the sky" wore, and the wire attached to it is not like the modern galvanized wire. Everything points to the fact that the date, 1882, scratched on the bell, is right and that the buzzard wore this heavy piece of brass around its neck for nearly half a century.

The carving on the surface of the bell was done with a blunt knife, and in addition to the date, the name "Joel Mine, Lanville," is easily discernible.

Alarms Countryside

The buzzard has been appearing periodically in the south alarming the countryside with its weird tolling. It has been heard in so many places, has seemed to cover such incredible

CLOUDY, WINDY, COOL AND DAMP

City and Territory Have Threatening Day Here Sunday

Gray mottled skies, a cool breeze and a temperature reaching a maximum of 58 degrees prevailed over Wichita Falls territory, the Panhandle and southern Oklahoma Sunday. Threats of heavy downpours, predicted by the weather bureau failed to materialize, but the effect of the forecast had its influence on traffic of the day, when autoists feared to venture too far from home.

Dispatchers on the Katy reported no rain had fallen Sunday on the line, and no other snow had fallen, but it remained cold and cloudy. No rain had fallen in the Panhandle, according to the dispatcher at the Fort Worth and Denver office, and the Wichita Falls and Southern territory had weather similar to that in this city.

Late Saturday night a slight rain fell over this territory with a precipitation of .06 inch. A minimum of 42 degrees was noted Sunday, 12 degrees higher than the minimum reached the preceding day. At 5 o'clock Sunday, the barometer stood at 29.10, slightly below normal.

Big Cigar Wrecks South Sea Romance Of Boy Wanderers

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP)—Two runaway boys of 14 and 16, from Springfield, Mass., today found that a black cigar is a symbol with two meanings.

Smoked with a certain jaunty air for a few moments, it signified the rover, the cosmopolite. After that it meant the bleak end—in a police station—of high dreams of romance in the South Seas.

"My pal, George, is dying," Donald Shea, 16, gravely told Policeman Sasket.

George Jukes, 14, lying in a hallway on Third avenue confirmed the diagnosis with a groan. There was a smoldering black cigar—a villianous "two-fer"—by George's side. Policeman Sasket drew his own conclusions and applied fresh air. They were held for the arrival of their parents.

Fair Plans To Be Made Monday

Final plans for pushing the $100,000 Texas-Oklahoma Fair association stock sale to a successful conclusion will be mapped out this morning when a steering committee of 25 prominent business men meet at the chamber of commerce offices. Approximately one-half the $100,000 quota has already been subscribed and plans will be made today to conduct an aggressive campaign to raise the balance.

Members of the committee are as follows: W. B. Hamilton, J. A. Kemp, W. F. Weeks, N. H. Martin, J. J. Perkins, W. M. Priddy, J. T. Harrell, J. C. Mytinger, W. D. Cline, J. S. Bridwell, Reese Allen, Morris Marcus, Tom Burnett, Frank Boyd, R. H. Henry, P. F. Gwynn, Orville Bullington, J. I. Staley, P. A. Rogers, Clint Wood, Horace Robbins, Al Miller, R. M. Waggoner, R. M. GAS MAIN DEAL READY TO SIGN

Chamber of Commerce To Discuss It Today With Prospects

A meeting will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the chamber of commerce rooms at which time, it is believed, a definite areement is expected to be reached which will insur the construction into this city of a new line to supply Wichita Falls with an adequate supply of industrial gas. Preliminary negotiations between a chamber of commerce committee headed by Walter Priddy, and out of town interests anxious to bring in the line, have already reached a point where it is virtually certain the deal will be closed. Considerable pipe and other material, as a matter of fact, have already been unloaded north of here in anticipation of orders to begin construction.

It is believed that representatives of three different interests will appear before the committee today to make propositions. The Upham Gas company, an Ohio concern, however, will probably be the eventual winner in the race to put a line into this city. This company has already contracted to supply gas to a number of communities between Wichita Falls and the Wheeler county gas fields and has placed materials at numerous points north of here.

The line, when built, will be a 16-inch tube which will make available to Wichita Falls manufacturing interests an ample supply of gas for fuel at all times. It will have no bearing on the domestic distribution here.

Fascists Observe Seventh Birthday Of Cult in Italy

ROME, March 28.—(AP)—Fascism's seventh birthday was enthusiastically celebrated today throughout the nation with imposing ceremonies attended by hundred of thousands of "black shirts." Premier Mussolini and other members of the cabinet reviewed one of the great parades, and heard with approval the pledges of the fascists to continue the task of making fascism all powerful.

In Rome 50,000 black shirts marched to the strains of the hymn "Youth" and saluted the duce while as many more sympathizers cheered enthusiastically. Similar celebrations took place in every large city.

PEPPER STILL DRY

Senatorial Candidate Opposed To Change in Liquor Law.

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—(AP)—Senator Pepper, candidate for re-election in the three cornered battle for the senatorship, today announced that his conception of his duty as United States senator is to retain the prohibition law as it stands.

The senator made this declaration today to a committee of ministers representing the Philadelphia conference of the Methodist Episcopal church now in annual session. The ministers explained they called to learn whether "certain rumors" were true and "where he stood on prohibition."

CASH, CHECKS STOLEN FROM OFFICE SAFES

Most Costly Robbery In Years Perpetrated Here Sunday

EXPERTS ARE BLAMED

Knobs Knocked Off Two Strongboxes and Valuables Lifted

Safe-breakers dealt Wichita Falls their heaviest blow late Saturday night or early Sunday morning when he knobs were knocked from two safes at the W. B. McClurkan store, corner of Ninth and Scott streets, and cash and checks approximating $5,500 in value taken. While a complete check of the loss had not been finished late Sunday night it was stated by Marvin Smith, co-proprietor with Lamar Fain of the store, that something like $3,500 in cash and $2,000 in checks were probably stolen. Besides this some men's clothing is believed to have been taken and at least one leather bag is gone.

The theft, it is declared by police, involves possibly the largest loss in actual cash that has been sustained in the city in many years.

Discovered Sunday.

The theft was discovered early Sunday morning by two employes of the store who had come down to work before going to church. A casual visit to the second floog of the building showed the two safes broken open and checks and papers littered all over the floor. Police and the owners were immediately notified and an investigation begun which netted few clews beyond some good fingerprint photographs, it was stated by police Sunday night. Police Chief George Hodgins said a special detective had been employed to work on the case, and it was announced by Marvin Smith that a large reward would be paid to anyone giving information leading to the arrest of the culprits.

Just how an entrance was obtained to the store is something of a mystery. A small window vent over the Ninth street entrance had enough of its glass broken out during the night to allow a had to go through and unfasten the latch, and it is possible that someone went through this narrow aperture and opened the door from the inside for confederates. Police admit however, that this may be purely a blind, that someone may have been locked in the store when it closed its doors Saturday night, that a dozen more or less plausible theories as to just how it might have happened are offered.

Work of Professionals.

There is one fact that police are not inclined to discount at all—that is the safe on the night chosen for the burglary contained some two or three times the amount in cash that it has contained any time within the past two or three years.

There is little question that the actual safe-breaking was the work of professionals, police state. The job was clean-cut and was consummated with thoroughness, they state. One of the safes broken into, that used to contain the books of the concern, was not actually entered, it is explained; the knob was knocked off and enough of an opening made to see that it did not contain any cash, after which it was abandoned.

Among the papers littering the floor of the office was found a lone $5 bill, evidently dropped by the yegg or yeggs when they made their getaway.

Smith said that an unusually large number of checks were cashed Saturday. He has also asked that all persons who cashed a check Saturday or who paid a bill by check, get in touch with him as early as possible Monday in order to prevent the checks from being cashed thus incurring further loss.

The loss is partially covered by insurance.

SPRING MARKET PRICES LOWER

Quotations Plunge Down, Resulting in Retarded Buying

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP)—Declining prices for both securities and commodities have marked the opening of spring business, creating fresh doubts as to the future trend of trade. Reports from the various industries last week disclosed a fairly even balance between favorable and unfavorable developments, which on the whole were disappointing because of the failure of a spring revival to develop.

With stock prices plunging downward, many of them to the lowest levels of the year, the inevitable question was raised as to whether the market's action foretold a severe curtailment of business activities.

In financial circles, it was generally agreed that the latest deluge of selling orders represented forced liquidation by distressed speculators, who were able to survive the first sharp crash early in the month in the desperate hope that a brisk rally would restore them to their feet. Heavy withdrawals of funds from the New York money market, while a contributing factor to the market reaction, were regarded on the whole as a sign of expanding business in the west.

Profits Narrower.

The maintenance of high production schedules in various industries, however have not been accepted as prima facie evidence of continued prosperity. The meager earnings reports which have so far appeared for the first portion of the year have indicated that narrower margins of profits were prevailing and that favorable comparisons with last year's record demand and output could not be expected.

Steel trade reviews held scant promise of improvement and hinted that April would see a let down from the present high rate of operations. Automobile factories showed a tendency to expand their output in the face of reported cancellations of orders, apparently in the belief that the spring buying movement still has time to develop. Certain banking interests, however, undertook to warn the industry that a re-adjustment of schedules was in order, and that the longer it was delayed the sharper would be the curtailment in employment and purchase of materials.

Price Fall.

In wholesale trade channels, falling commodity prices were said to be retarding purchases to some extent, off-setting the normal inflow of seasonal replacement orders. Freight car loadings, bank clearing and other measures of activity, nevertheless, testified to a large volume of business.

The oil industry displayed little concern over the announcement that recent consolidations would come under the scrutiny of the department of justice, their promoters maintaining that in no case had competing companies been brought together. Statistics made public during the week showed that the excess of petroleum production over consumption which, stood at 100,000,000 barels in 1922, had declined to approximately 26,000,000 barrels in 1925.

Award Honors At Camp Fire Council Sunday

Initiation of the Woodgathers of Camp Fire Girls, the awarding of certificates to those who passed the required examination in the recent Camp Fire Training school together with the Camp Fire birthday ceremonial were featured in the meeting held Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist church, south.

The meeting opened with the Wohelo call by Miss Mary McIlheran, executive, and was answered by the girls who had not yet appeared. They came in in two groups, the first, those who had gained the first rank dressed in the ceremonial gown, and the others in the Camp Fire camp uniform, making the two circles, with the inner one formed by the girls of first rank. In these groups they sang, "We Come to Our Council Fire." The hand sign of the fire, the crossed log and flame, was given, and "Wohelo for Aye," was sung.

Theresea Kauffman, Edith Crump and Edna Skaggs said in unison, "We Are the Camp Fire Maidens."

The candles of work, health and love were lighted by Charlotte Kennedy, Maxine Duffy and Charlie Mat Ebner. A group of girls in ceremonials sang "Burn, Fire, Burn," with motions. Roll call was given in a unique way with Miss Pauline Newman member of the guardian's training school, appeared draped in a picturesque Indian blanket representing a totem pole. Symbols of the Camp Fire headquarters and of the fires were pinned to the blanket and each representative explained the symbol of her organization.

Those receiving birthday honors were: Theresea Kauffman, Pauline Coombs, Dora Jeannette Nix, Marjorie Jones, Lois Brackett, Mildred Jamison, Laura Mae Costley, Edith Brown, Charlie Mae Ebner, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. T. N. Colligan, Kathleen Colligan, Jean Fisk, Charlotte Kennedy, Mary Leonard, Maxine and Nell Duffy, Mrs. Anna Barnhill.

"HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for nearly a year when he asks her to break their engagement. He frankly tells her that he's in love with her best friend, FAY SHIRLEY.

Broken-hearted, Sylvia gives him up, much to the satisfaction of her AUNT AGONY, the shrewd spinster who reared her. She encourages Sylvia to marry PETER WILK, a sober-minded bachelor who's in love with her.

As the time draws near for the marriage of Fay and Ranny, Fay tells Sylvia that they have decided that they don't really care enough for each other to go through life together. And Sylvia discovers that Fay is still seeing a great deal of her old beau, EDDIE CARTER.

On a moonlit May night Peter gives a picnic play hide-and-seek like children in the dark woods, and Sylvia finds herself paired off with Ranny. He tells her that, after all, she's the only girl in the world for him. Afraid that she may lose him again if she doesn't take him now, Sylvia suggests that they run away that very night and get married. And they do!

Before many months are past, Sylvia finds that her dream of wedded life is very different from Ranny's. His real life is still spent with Eddie Carter's crowd of poker players. He loses heavily and Sylvia keeps house on next to nothing, doing all her own work. And he sees rather too much of Fay.

The day after Sylvia tells Ranny that they're going to have a baby in a few months, she finds Fay Shirley's handkerchief and a carved hairpin of hers in Ranny's car, and takes it to her.

"YOU ARE JUST A FOOL, AREN'T YOU?"

Sylvia returns the handkerchief and pin to Fay and a few days later Fay comes to see her. Sylvia, realizing that she has really come to see Ranny, decided to tell her that they are to have a baby in the spring. Fay leaves, refusing Sylvia's invitation to stay to dinner.

CHAPTER XX.

The night before Hallowe'en Sylvia was sittin galone in The Nest reading, when Fay dropped in on her way home from the Y. W. C. A. swimming pool.

"I saw a light up here as I drove past, and I thought I'd come up to say 'Hello,'" she announced darkly, as she dropped into a chair and stretched her long legs straight before her. "I feel so low that I could stand up under the sidewalk. Really I do."

She threw a look around the flat, "Where's your wondering boy tonight?" she asked.

"He's gone over to his mother's house to play bridge," Sylvia answered. "He wanted me to go over, too, but I was dog-tired and decided not to budge out of the house."

Fay's green eyes stared at her. She was not listening.

"Let me ask you something, Slyvia," she said sharply, after a pause, "Am I beginning to look like an old hag, or what?"

Sylvia burst out laughing. "You? At twenty-three? You must be crazy!" she cried. "Why, of course you don't look old! What makes you think you do?"

"Two things," Fay answered. "First of all, Eddie calls me up this afternoon to ask me if he can take Sally March's young sister to a dance tonight! It seems this kid has no regular beau of her own and she wanted to borrow Eddie. I told him to go ahead. I really wasn't jealous, because the kid is a dumbbell—a regular blank cartridge. But think of it! Here are these flappers of sixteen coming along and taking our men from us!"

Her face was quite tragic as she went on: "And then, there's another thing. Tomorrow night is Hallowe'en and for the first time in my whole life I haven't been invited to some kind of Hallowe'en party! You haven't any idea how old and blue it makes me feel! You know, Sylvia, girls are old at twenty-three these days! Honestly, I'm beginning to feel like an old maid, and I've just about made up my mind to marry Eddie Carter right away and be done with it! If I don't this March kid or some other flapper is going to sign him up, sure!"

It was plain that she was most unhappy because the faithful Eddie had gone "stepping" with Sally March's flapper sister.

And at the sight of her misery Sylvia forgot all the heart-ache and jealousy she had ever given her. Once more she was Fay's Very Best Friend, as she had been since they were ten years old.

"I'll tell you what, I'll throw a HaHowe'en party tomorrow night," she said, her eyes dancing with sudden excitement. "I think Ranny's getting a bit bored, anyway, or he wouldn't have wanted to play cards tonight."

In five minutes' time she was making out a list of the things she would need for a midnight lunch tomorrow night, and Fay was at the telephone inviting the old "crowd."

"Sylvia and Ranny are going to have a roedo tomorrow night," Sylvia heard her say, "and be sure to bring your rubbers along. It's going to be awfully, awfully wet, I'll tell the bensurpin world!"

Sylvia walked out into the hall and laid her hand on Fay's shoulder. "Don't say we're going to have a wet party," she whispered, shaking her head, "because we're not."

Fay cut her conversation short and asked Sylvia what she meant, "for the love of Mike!"

"Just what I said—we're not having any more liquor parties in this house," Sylvia answered. "Ranny's cut out drinking and I'm not going to help pull him off the water wagon."

Fay stared at her and began to hum something about "Sunday school scholars, every one—following in the steps of Washington."

"Listen, Lizzie!" she said, in her comical way to Sylvia when she had finished, "if you really have a yen to hold Ranny, you're not going to do it this way—by giving bone-dry parties and preaching to him about the evils of red rum!"

Sylvia flushed under the sting of her words.

"I don't preach to him about anything," she answered, "but Ranny's settled down lately. He's changed a lot since we've been married."

"Yes, he has—not!" Fay laughed, blinking her big green eyes like some lithe, lazy tiger cat. "You may think he's settled down for good, but he hasn't, any more than a gas balloon! You just wait a while and he'll be giving you such a run for your money that your ankles will catch fire trying to keep up with him!"

Sylvia was not at all ruffled by what she said. She was sure that Ranny was through with his philandering and his poker playing. She knew that he had settled down, once and for all, to the serious business of being a married man and the Head of a Family—for hadn't he told her so himself? And hadn't he been home every night for a month? What more could she ask in the way of proof?

"Well, don't say I didn't warn you!" Fay said, getting up from her chair and lighting a fresh cigaret.

"Warn me about what?"

"Warn you about Ranny," Fay yawned. "I know his type. He's just like I am—full of pep and gingerfizz and adventure. Keep him guessing, Sylvia! Don't let him be too sure of you. Make him the least bit jealous of you every now and then. It'll do him good. It's the way to hold him!"

Sylvia shook her head.

"No," she said, with a quiet little smile that barely dimpled the corners of her soft mouth. "That's not my idea of being a wife to Ranny—to run away from him and say 'Chase me, Ranny, I have a new place to hide!' My notion of holding his love is by being on the job all the time, by letting him know the truth—that he's the only man I've ever cared two pins about, or ever will! Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I can't help it."

Fay came over to The Nest early the next evening to help Sylvia make sandwiches for the Hallowe'en party.

When Ranny opened the door for her she marched in jauntily and solemnly winked her eye at him and Sylvia.

"See what the cat dragged in," she said, nodding toward the hall door. And in walked Peter Wilk, with his arms full of bundles!

"What do you think of us as the new vaudeville team—me an' Pgter?" she asked impudently. "I telephoned him and asked him to bring me over. The big idea is to make Eddie jealous, see?"

Ranny laughed and answered with a line of slang that always puzzled Sylvia: "So's your ole man!"

"Sows your wild oats!" Fay came back at him, looking up and giggling coyly, as if the two of them were the closest friends in the world and had all sorts of jokes between them.

As she watched them Sylvia couldn't help feeling the familiar stab of jealousy that she always felt when Fay and Ranny were together.

For Fay gave him the thing that Sylvia knew she never could give him—amusement. Ranny always said she "tickled him to death"—and "was more fun than a barrel of monkeys," and when she was around he never noticed anyone else.

Sylvia forced herself to look away from them and to talk to Peter, who was still holding his bundles.

"I don't know what's in your packages, Santa Claus," she said, smiling at him with her lovely eyes, "but I can guess."

All her life she had seen packages like the ones that Peter was holding now. They were wrapped in shiny white paper and were bound with the green cord that Peter's sister, Sarah Wilk, always used when she tied up gifts.

Usually her gifts were things that she had baked—pies and cakes and crullers. For she was not only a wonderful cook, but very proud of her baking, and generous with it.

This time she had sent a hundred tiny sandwiches—dainty, airy things made with jelly, or chicken, or caviar—and a hundred sugared cookies.

"I told Sarah you were having a party and she thought it might help you out if she made these little things for you," Peter said in his awkward, embarrassed way.

He began to pull off the brown paper wrappings from a third bundle. Sylvia knew from the size and the shape of it that there were flowers in it.

And there were—two dozen great yellow chrysanthemums that filled the little kitchen with that unforgettable autumn smell of theirs.

"I remember you used to like these," he was saying as he put them into Sylvia's hands.

She held them tight in her arms and looked up at him.

"Peter,' 'she said to him, "you and Sarah are the two best people in the world. You always have been so good to me—and do you know something? —if ever I were in trouble, I think you two would be the people I'd come to—"

She broke off suddenly, realizing what she was saying, and walked into the dining room for a vase for the flowers.

When she came back Peter was sitting at the kitchen table beating a bowl of salad dressing with all his might. He had tied an apron over his suit and he seemed to be thoroughly at home.

"Never did this before in my life!" he said, stirring wildly, "but I do it well, don't I?"

A half hour later everything was ready for the supper, Sylvia was washing some olive oil from her hands when Ranny and Fay opened the door and came into the kitchen. They were laughing uproariously.

"Well, we sh'd worry now, whether it's a dry party or not, Sylvia!" Fay gurgled, leaning against the sink for support. "We're four drinks ahead of the world, aren't we, Ranny?" She held up a silver whiskey flask and shook it to show Sylvia how she and Ranny had emptied it of every drop.

Ranny had stopped laughing suddenly. He was standing perfectly still in the center of the kitchen, with his eyes fixed on the table where Peter's chrysanthemums bloomed like yellow suns in their tall vase.

From them he looked grimly at Peter.

"Who told you you could bring my wife flowers?" he asked thickly, walking toward the table.

His face was flushed and his eyes blazed ith his anger. Sylvia laid her hand on his arm, but he shook it off and leaned down into Peter's face.

"I repeat," he said again, "who told you you could bring flowers to my perfectly good wife?"

Peter's level gaze never shifted from his face, as he answered him:

"Phelps, you're just a plain fool aren't you?" he asked, and he got up, untied his apron and handed it to Sylvia. Before any of them guessed what he was about, he had walked coolly out of the flat. A second later came the sound of The Nest's front door closing quietly behind him.

Ranny and Fay, who are always making someone else jealous, experience the feeling themselves.

Eddie Carter arrives at Sylvia's party with "Puss" March, a young flapper. As a result, Fay suddenly announces her engagement to Eddie.

There is more of the "doings" of the flappers in tomorrow's installment.

henchmen of the political bosses. Pinchot is a fighter. He has thrown down the gauntlet to the Mellons and all others who constitute the regular republican machine. He has hurled his challenge in the teeth of Senator George Wharton Pepper, and the battle for a senatorial prize in Pennsylvania is going to be one of the features of the national campaign of 1926.

Pinchot has ever been in sympathy with the coal miners of his state, and in Pennsylvania there are more than 250,000 organized miners who follow the lead of President John L. Lewis, the head of the United Mine Workers of America. Lewis is a republican, and in all the national elections the vast bulk of the miners have been voting the republican ticket. Well, the miners have declared for Pinchot for senator. Their leaders in Pennsylvania held a conference and they decided to go all the way with Pinchot and place him in the American senate if possible.

This makes the situation interesting in Pennsylvania where Congressman William Dare of Philadelphia, is in the race for the senate and will remain in the race unless he is permitted to name the republican candidate for governor, who will be the successor at Harrisburg of Gifford Pinchot. George Wharton Pepper voted for the world court proposal, which was the pet measure of the president. In doing so he reversed his position and was compelled to eat his own words and repudiate his own record. Like Saul of Tarsus, the senator from Pennsylvania, coming down the political but not the theological highway, saw a great life, and his conversion to the world court gospel was without warning on his part and almost instantaneous.

Borah of Idaho voted against the world court proposal and transferred the fighting from legislative halls to the court of public opinion. In other words, he is carrying his cause to the people and hopes in the end to win a recall of the world court decision. He is the western shadow that is disturbing administration leaders, who have a program for 1928. Pinchot is the eastern shadow and should he win the senatorship in Pennsylvania this year, then his ambition may carry him farther and higher two years hence.

These coal miners of Pennsylvania backed Theodore Roosevelt in all his campaigns, and they deserted the regular republican party when Roosevelt organized his Bull Moose army of political reformers. They placed Pinchot in the office of governor, and now they have declared it to be their intention to place him in the senate if the solid vote of their powerful organization is numerically strong enough to hold the balance of power and to name the victor.

BUZZARD

distances, and has evaded firearms and traps so cleverly, that many have come to consider the story as a myth, while the superstitions have attached to it a supernatural significance. But there has been no myth about the belled buzzard. At least, about this one. Farmer Birchmore not only killed the creature but brought the old veteran of the skies back with him so that others in the community could see. Then he placed the bell on exhibition.

Buzzards are grotesque scavengers, common in the southern part of this country and in South America. They look something like turkeys but their plumage is dull, dirty and of a funeral brown. They are clumsy on the ground, but aloft they are amazingly graceful and are the original "heavier than air" gliders. At a height miles above fields and swamps, they coast along the upper air currents without visible motion of their wings.

Gives Rise to Legends

Stories from Maine to Mexico have been told of the belied buzzard and it is not unlikely that this old man of the skies was the subject of them all during his 44 years of life for this venerable old bell-boy has flown thousands of miles and has spanned a vast stretch of territory. He has struck fear into the souls of the superstitious and has given rise to many legends with a touch of the voodoo about them.

A popular belief among negroes living on the fringe of the great Okefenokee swamp in south Georgia is that if a murderer leaves the body of his victim exposed in the ooze of the swamp, buzzards will gather for hundreds of miles and hold an inquest. The murderer is tried before the highest tribunal of the air and if he is found morally guilty the bailiff of the buzzards—that grim, flapping bell toller of the skies—is summoned and ordered to dog the steps of the killer until the murder is avenged.

Cobb Used Him

Usually, the murderer, so the legend runs is driven crazy by the dreadful tolling of the bell and takes his own life. Irvin S. Cobb used this legend as the basis for one of his most famous fiction stories.

A fact more interesting than these legends of black people, however, is the cruel whim that could have caused "Joel Mine, of Lanville" to attach a brass cowbell to the buzzard's neck in the year 1882. And even stranger is the vitality of the buzzard which enabled it to live for 44 years with a brass cowbell slung around its neck.

He is a missionary from the southern district of the church and has returned following seven years spent in China. He talked in the morning on the nation, school, family and church of China.

One hundred and one members were present at the Sunday school, Dr. Gaines B. Hall, minister of the church, reported.

Artists, Models Begin Where The Others Leave Off

"Artists and Models," which is probably the most widely discussed revue in the world, will be revealed to Wichita Falls by the Messrs. Shubert for one day, April 6, at the Palace theatre. There are many comedy skits in "Artists and Models" that meet the critical demands, for instance, "The Ice Man," "His Father's Child," and "Two In One," which is not a shoe polish. If "Artists and Models" was restricted to the reportoire of the 18 Hoffman girls alone, there is no hesitancy in affirming that the revue "begins where all others leave off." Whether demonstrating 57 varieties of steps formed in the Charleston, performing on what may be called a webbed curtain, or indulging in a remarkable exhibition with the foils, Gertrude Hoffman's proteges are a positive sensation. Fifty beautiful models and the Winter Garden orchestra are features.

Nagoya, Japan, will build a municipal market at a cost of $2,000,000.

MILLERS DOWN SPORTS, 5 TO 3.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 28.—(AP)—One bad inning turned the tide of victory against the Sports in the third and final game of the series with Mike Kelley's Minneapolis Millers here today and the visitors carried off the contest by a score of 5 to 3. Hoffman made a couple of errors on a pinch and before the stanza was closed the Millers had come from behind to score three runs and take the lead in the eight. In the nine Ford added the fifth tally with a homer. One of Hoffman's errors resulted from an attempt to force a runner out at second by Phelps who made a nice stop. The bases were loaded at the time and Hoffman dropped the throw, with the bases still packed he fumbled the next grounder and another man scored. The third run came when he threw out a runner. The next two were out in order. Hits by Herman and Jourdan scored the Millers' first run.

Barnabee, a southpaw, held the Millers to two hits and no runs in the first five innings. Blankenship relieved him and was scored on. Only 16 batters faced Barnabee during his time on the hill. The Millers used Moon, Middleton and Malone.

Minneapolis (A. A.)	5	7	2
Shreveport (T.)	3	0	2

Batteries: Moon, Middleton, Malone and Byler, Sengstock, Krueger, Barnabee, Blankenship and Ranval.

CARDS DEFEAT COWTOWN, 7-4.

FORT WORTH, March 28.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals first team, with Walter Mails and Huntzinger on the mound, defeated the Panthers here today, 7 to 4.

The Cards got off to a 3 run lead lead in the first two rounds off Hogsett, a rookie, who tightened, and held them scoreless through the sixth. The Cats tied it up in the sixth off Mails, who was relieved after this round. Doubles by Windle and Sears and an infield error figured in this scoring.

The Cards got four more runs in the next two rounds, O'Farrel and Bottomley hitting triples to help in the scoring. Huntzinger was wild which cost him a run before he settled down. Howard worked the final round for Fort Worth.

St. Louis (N)	7	7	1
Fort Worth (T.)	4	6	2

Batteries: Mails, Huntzinger and O'Farrell; Hogsett, Howard and Moore.

SOX POUR IT ON DALLAS CLUB; 13-6.

DALLAS, March 28.—(AP)—Making 15 hits, along with five Dallas errors, account for 13 runs, the Chicago White Sox took the odd game from Dallas Sunday, 13 to 6. Ted Lyons yielded four runs in as many innings and Cox, McKinney rookie, held Dallas to a pair in the last five frames. Pence, Dallas pitcher, hit a home run with a man on. Sheely led the Chicago sluggers with a quartet of hits. The score:

Chicago (A.)	13	15	1
Dallas (T.)	6	10	5

Batteries: Lyons, Cox and Crouse; Schalk; Pence and Love and Hungling.

SHIPPERS RAINED OUT

BEAUMONT, March 28.—(AP)—Rain which fell intermittently throughout the day deprived the Exporters of two exhibition tilts, one to have been played at home against a semi-pro team from Port Arthur while the other was scheduled against the Gulf Coast Lines team in Dequincy, La. Galloway still retains all players with the squad one week ago although he has intimated that several will depart for smaller leagues very soon.

AMERICANS WIN!

Medford's American refinery club nosed Duncan, 6-5, in a hectic 13-innings Sunday afternoon on the Duncan diamond.

Farquhar of the Americans clouted four safeties, drove in three runs and scored two markers himself.

Martindale furnished the victory punch in the 13th with a single that sent Farquhar across the plate.

Snipe Connally, Wichita Falls pitcher, was touched up for three runs in the first inning, but settled down and allowed one earned run during the other 12 frames.

COLLINS RETAINS TITLE

CHICAGO, March 28.—(AP)—Percy Collins, Chicago holder of the mid-west amateur 18.2 balk line billiard championship has retained his title by winning the annual tourney here. Collins finished with a clean slate, winning three games and losing none in the match concluded last night. His nearest competitor was Ray Fessenden, Harry Schoop of Kansas and James Peabody, finishing third and fourth.

CAGERS IN CHICAGO

Williams Displays Unbeatable Stuff in Five-Round Tenure

Domestic Crew Falters In Eighth Frame, Blues Grabbing Decision, 6-1

Mule Kicks Lefty Fiegert's Offering For Unhampered Passage—Two Work Sessions Carded Today

By BLONDY CROSS

Denizens of Gardner's breezy orchard Sunday saw our proud Spudders momentarily falter and then by alertness of the foot, the eye and the wing in courageous rally recover merely to totter again a few short minutes later on danger's brink and then avalanche into the chasm of defeat before onslaught of Spence Abbott's burly blue bludgeoners from Kansas City.

But these same diamond worms who daily haunt the Gardner environs saw something more than that! They saw the veteran Carl Williams, sterling Spudder right-hander who last year a goodly part of the way was the only Wichita Falls hurler who could keep apace of the inimitable Long Bob Osborn in the victory column, the toiling slabster who in the summer of 1925 should have, and by all rights would have, won if not more, just as many games as any Texas league heaver had he not been shot onto the knob time and again out of turn, had he not served tenure as an outfielder in many games as well as being called upon to carry a large share of the mound burden—they saw the veteran Carl Williams in his 1926 spring debut!

They saw Carl in his old-time form!

It mattered not that the weatherman had left open the door to his refrigerating system, that the mercury hovered around the 42 mark, not so many degrees above the freezing point, albeit not so many close to it either, the sturdy starboarder performed just as if a mid-summer sun were shining down on him, as if low temperature meant no more to his hurling arm than a frozen thermometer does to the oily-mugged Esquimaux of the land made famous by Bob Service and the shot that killed Dan McGrew.

The Spudders were kicked under by a 6-1 tabulation. But what's it matter?

Willard Carl Williams was out there in the box five innings, and certainly it was not during that span of endeavor our gentle athletes unwittingly accomplished, as with premeditated precision, a noble takeoff on a snapped-wing aviator tittering into a tail-spin.

Nossir! Willard Carlos ground the winter icicles out of his chucking sinews and tabbed 'em by the blustering double A swingers with the deadly ease of a master marksman taking a sucker's money at a side show shotting gallery.

And had Carl staid the limit, double A willow wielders would be swinging yet. But Carlos, of course, could not be expected to do a day's work on a Sunday afternoon, especially during mid-winter and when Boss Brainard has other flingers he needs must exercise.

They touched Williams for a quartet of safeties, these bruising American association hitters did, the slam-bangers who Spence Abbott himself declares are in fine condish, thanks to gobs of early training and exhibition work, and in season form at this moment. But Carl's only noticeable inconvenience was Denver Grigsby, and Denver, as you know, doesn't play favorite with any pitcher when he's at the pan, war club in hand. Denver tagged Willard for a single in the second and then rifted an unkind double to center in the fifth. With Denver reclining on the keystone, Carl uncorked a jungle heave at Lapan. Grigsby skidded to third. Pick hit to the mound and Denver displayed just a bit too much temerity. Carl tied him up between the bag and the plate, Lapan finally running him down. Pick sneaked up on second during the play. Wells, apparently a mighty sort of midget (he's only a littul fella) brushed one through the box and Carl didn't jump quick enough to get squarely in front, so the wallop went for a base hit and Pick went for home, gathering in the only score made off the veteran heaver.

The run knotted the count, for the huge Mule Washburn, who we have a lurking suspicion acquired his lead-off monicker because of the TNT kick he packs, had coyly clouted one of Lefty Fiegert's services to the unhampered regions back of the port field in the second round.

Sutherland accepted the spinning responsibilities in the sixth. There the Spudders tottered and then recuperated with sudden gusto. Suds opened on Murray with a bit of high and fancy flinging that in four pitches sent him down to first base with a coupon. Smith flittered one at second. Skip Brainard in enthusiastic effort to get away fast with the double play ball merely booted it in out into right field. The situation for the moment became exceedingly clouded, but the top Spudder enacted an aesthetic chase out into the garden region, grabbed the playful pelota and launched a perfect throw to Turgeon at third who pulled in the speeding sphere with one hand and caught Murray on the slide by the margin of a couple of pin points. The menace was mild, for Philbin popped out to the catcher and Turge took care of Moore's bounder.

Suds turned back three in a row for his seventh-inning performance, but in the eighth two infield mistakes, a base single and a base on balls spelled disaster. Lefty Fred Fussell rushed madly to the rescue, was touched for a double by Philbin and a floozy two-bagger by Kuhl, who hitting from the south side, caught one on the end of his bat for a tap down the left field foul line with so much reverse English on the ball that it couldn't be recovered in time to head him off at the keystone. The Blues checked in five markers before the domestics could get 'em out.

Kansas City proved troublesome but ineffective in the ninth.

Bob Turner pinch-hitted a single for the Spudders, but it was only a trifling threat.

Two workouts are on for today, says the tall tactician. First drill comes at 9:30. Second session at 2:30.

Won't be any intramural conflicts. Haven't got enough players to make up two teams.

CARDINAL BOX CORPS BETTER

Improved Throwing And Mask Staffs Tickle Rogers

SAN ANTONIO, March 28.—(AP)—Additional strength in the pitching box has made the St. Louis Cardinals more formidable National league pennant contenders than a year ago, when they finished fourth, in the opinion of their famous player-manager, Rogers Hornsby.

Elaborating on his theme for the Associated Press, Hornsby said:

"Three new right handers are with us this spring—Victor Keen, formerly with the Chicago Cubs; Walter Huntzinger, whom we purchased from the Giants, and Sylvester Johnson, once with the Detroit Tigers, whom we drafted from the Vernon club of the Pacific Coast league. Bill Sherdel, who led the National league pitchers last season, is in good shape as is Jesse Haines, the big right hander. Allan Sothoron, a veteran, has worked hard and I look for him to win his quota of games. Walter Mails is in far better condition than he was at this time last season.

"The success of our club, I am sure, depends on the pitching and I believe our pitching will be vastly superior to what it has been.

"I believe our infield, with Bottomley at first, Thevenow at short, and Lester Bell at third, with myself at second, compares favorably with any in baseball. It is my intention to start the outfield with three right handed hitters, Douthit, Blades and Hafey, with Mueller, Smith and Holm in reserve.

"Bob O'Farrell, the best catcher in the National league, will have capable assistance with Ernie Vick and Bill Warwick. I have two great utility infielders in George Torporcer and Jake Flower, the latter having graduated from the Oakland club of the Pacific Coast league."

Texas and Oregon Enter Drake Relays

DES MOINES, March 28.—(AP)—Interest in the Drake relays to be staged here April 23 and 24 was increased today with the announcement that the Oregon Agricultural college would again send its four-mile relay team to the meet, and thereby take up its old grudge with the University of Texas in that event.

The four-mile relay also will see entries from Wisconsin, Illinois, the Kansas Aggies and Notre Dame.

WHITE SHOWS UP TODAY FOR EWING BATTLE

Tommy Will Find Wildcat Tough One, So Ping Worms Say

Tommy White, the popular welterweight mittster, who has cleaned up on just about everything his weight and sometimes heavier in this section, is expected to arrive in the city today with the purpose of tapering off his training activities leading up to his ten-round engagement Wednesday night with Wildcat Ewing of Houston.

The bout is to be held in the legion arena at Twelfth and Ohio, the promoters announce, and there is where the fighters probably will work out.

That White has a tough proposition on his hands seems assured. Ewing stopped Kid Rich, one-time very popular welter in Wichita Falls, with less than a round of milling. He also slapped the skids under Pat Corbett, sending him down for the nine-count.

White shaded Corbett in a ten-rounder here last summer.

The best scrap ever proposed in Wichita Falls, it is generally admitted, is the White-Hull mix-up carded for April 16 on the day nursery fund program. But some fistic followers are won't to aver the Ewing-White melee has still more potentialities. The say Ewing can beat Hull, although the two have never met, and even hazard he can beat White. If these boys are guessing right then in truth the Ewing-White affair stacks as good as the Hull-White tiff, if not better.

In that case, should Ewing beat Tommy he would make still a better drawing card with Hull. Should White beat Ewing Tommy's prestige will be improved that much more as he prepares for the Hull match. Anyway you look at it, Wichita Falls fight fans seem assured of a pair of topnotch struggles inside of the next 20 days, something they have missed by a wide margin the past several months with exception of only a few occasions.

Dick Griffin is taking Vincente Aguilar to Mariand today for a battle Tuesday with Walter Varner. The big Mex under Griffin's directions may tag it on the Fort Worth slugger.

Griffin boxes Fernandes in Galveston April 16, so won't be on hand for the day nursery bouts.

ELECTRA TEAM WALLOPS FORT SILL, 10 TO 0

Courtney Leads Sluggers With Three Hits In Five Trips

ELECTRA, March 28.—The Electra all star team which was composed mostly of the Magnolia players easily defeated the Fort Sill army nine at the Sunset park Sunday afternoon by the score of 10 to 0. F. Ray, the veteran hurler for the All-Stars started the game for the locals and held the army bunch to three scratch hits the first five innings of the affray. The south paw offerings of Reynolds proved too hard to find the remainder of the game. Wynot started the game for Fort Sill but was knocked from the mound in the sixth inning and was relieved by Pendleton whose luck seemed too availing to the Electra nine.

The All-Stars got off to an early start to score three counters in the first inning of the game but Wynot's knuckle ball was good until the sixth inning.

Courtney lead the batters with three singles to left field. Brown was the only Fort Sill man to rank high in the batting column, connecting with two singles out of four times at bat.

The All-Stars probably will play the Fort Sill team next Sunday at Fort Sill.

Those Were Wild Days for Connie

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 28.—Paul Shannon, Boston scribe with the Boston Braves, in camp here, who traveled with the Red Sox for many campaigns, tells one on Connie Mack that happened several years ago when the tall leader was trying out seven dozen ball players a year in his frantic efforts to build up a new team.

"The Sox were playing the Macks and trouncing them," says Paul. "Connie had sent in about seven pitchers and everyone of them had been hammered. Finally he sent in another.

"Half dizzy himself with the constant changes the umps asked the catcher for the pitcher's name so he could announce it.

"And they had to hold up the game until the catcher found out."

Three New World Champs Crowned in Hectic Indoor Mitt Season Just Closed

Only Flyweight and Heavy Classes Fail To Develop Title Activities, Almost Million Dollars Taken In

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP)—Three new world's champions were crowned in the seven title fights of the indoor season which has just closed its ledger. Only the flyweight and heavyweight classes failed to develop championship activity, with the diadem changing ownership in the middleweight, lightweight and junior lightweight classes.

The new Madison Square garden opened for boxing on December 11, had a stimulating influence on the game and new indoor records in attendance and receipts were established in the 16 shows held under its roof. Almost a million dollars passed through the ticket windows, a new record, while the closing fight of the season between Young Stribling and Jimmy Slattery attracted a paid attendance of 17,977, the largest crowd ever to witness an indoor bout in fistic history.

The most startling title change came on February 23, when Harry Grebb, Pittsburgh, Pa., veteran, relinquished the middleweight crown to Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, Ga., negro after defending it against all comers for nearly three years.

Rocky Kansas, Buffalo, N. Y., lightweight, relegated to the "has been" list by many critics, emerged from fistic oblivion to knock the 135 pound diadem from the head of a fellow townsman, Jimmy Goodrich, in a title clash at Buffalo, December 7.

The third new face in pugilism's gallery of champions is that of Tod Morgan of California, who interrupted the Western invasion of Mike Ballerino, of Bayonne, N. J., December 2, at Los Angeles, Calif. to win the world's junior lightweight championship.

Berlenbach met the charge of Jack Delaney and emerged with the decision in the opening match at Madison Square garden. The second largest "gate" in the history of indoor boxing was recorded, the clash attracting 16,939 spectators who paid $148,155. This figure has been eclipsed only by the Jess Willard-Frank Moran fight of 1916, which drew $151,000.

Walker defended his title in a no-decision fight against Sailor Friedman at Newark, N. J., November 25, in which he won the newspaper decision. Kaplan answered a challenge of Babe Herman by scoring a decisive triumph over his foe in the second fight in the new garden December 18. Rosenberg, barred from the New York ring by the suspension of his manager, traveled to St. Louis and won a verdict over Charley Butch.

CARLARIS WINS RICH COFFROTH

Munden Pilots Chula Vista Colt Into $70,000 Purse

SAN DIEGO, Calif., March 28.—(AP)—Carlaris, wonder colt owned by the Chula Vista stable, returned his owners $70,000 here today, in the running of the seventh renewal of the Coffroth handicap, western racing classic over a mile and a quarter course, when he beat out a field of nine stellar runners by eight lengths pulled up.

Royerofter finished second: Cherry Tree was four lengths behind for third, and Kentucky Cardinal finished another length back for fourth. Time 2:02 3-5.

Princess Doreen Fourth.

Princess Doreen, piloted by Jockey Earle Sands, for the Audley Stock farm was fourth off at lifting of the barrier, but was never able to get up with the leaders and finished in seventh place. Osprey, Leslie stable star was last to get away and never overcame the lead of any of his rivals, finishing last.

Carlaris was away well at the lifting of the barrier, and Jockey Munden brought him to the fore with little delay rounding the first turn with a length and a half margin and had increased the advantage to four lengths at the quarter pole.

Munden urged the colt to greater efforts and had drawn out to ten lengths over Roycrofter upon entering the stretch. He was then eased up and finished eight lengths to the good.

Second Money $5,500.

Roycrofter, C. F. Crossant's stellar colt, took second money, amounting to $5,500, third money amounting to $3,000 went to Baron Long, owner of Cherry Tree, and Kentucky Cardinal, also owned by G. F. Crossant returned his owner $1,500, for fourth place.

The time breaks the track record of 2:04 4-5 set by Dr. Clark, by two and a fifth seconds.

An immense crowd, estimated at well over 25,000 witnessed the Chula Vista colt's triumph and cheered him wildly. He was given a great ovation upon returning to the winner's circle, it being one of the few times that the favorite has won in the running of the western turf classic.

OILERS DOWN CYCLE CLUB

Taylor Slams Triple With Bags Full To Even Count

An error in the eighth inning by Auley Thorne gave the Texhoma Refinery a one run margin over the Munden Cyclers Sunday afternoon and allowed the Oilers to win out, 15 to 14. The Cyclers held the lead until the seventh inning when the Texhoma club punched over five runs to tie the score. A three-base knock by Andy Taylor tying the count. Taylor's knock came with the bases crammed.

The game was scheduled for only seven innings, but an extra inning had to be played to decide the winner. Jimmy Parker, strikeout king of the Sunday School league last year, was slated to pitch for the Refinery this year, but Skipper Boone held him back and would not risk the old whip in the cold weather.

Jack Brazil and Paul Enloe led the hitters, each collected three safeties each. Boone hit a pair. Lawson and Allison led the Cyclers with a pair of hits each.

Texhoma will play the same team again next Sunday on the Refinery diamond and then go to Electra and battle the Magnolia Refinery team at Sunset Park the following Sunday. This will be the last game for the Texhoma nine before the opening of the season according to their schedule.

ON JOE SHAUTE'S LEFT ARM RESTS REDSKINS' CHANCES IN COMING RACE, AVERS BROWN

Tribe Comparatively Weak on Pitching, It Needs Two Stronger Infields And Better Mash Corps

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Sports Editor of Central Press

The "If" club of the American League race is the Cleveland team. Not a single player that could be expected to add material strength to the team immediately was added last fall or during the off season.

The team is weak on pitching—until some of the newcomers prove their worth.

It has not a regular second baseman or an accepted third baseman.

It lacks efficient catching.

These conditions prevailed last season. Why expect

The big disappointment of the team last season was Joe Shaute, young pitcher. The year before Shaute had more from the same crew unless fate is kind?

given every indication of being set for a great year in 1925 and loomed as one of the great young pitchers of the league.

His Flop Sunk the Club.

Last year he was a horrible flop. Won just four games and lost 12. Had he turned in 20 or more victories the team might have nosed out one of the first division teams instead of finishing sixth.

The sudden loss of his curve ball was the cause. Although he seemed in perfect shape a year ago this spring he failed to get the "hook" on his curve ball—his chief asset. He labored all season hoping in vain he could recover it.

This spring he worked for weeks without unloosing a single curve—under Manager Speaker's orders. Then one day in an exhibition contest Speaker told him to try it. Shaute started hooking them over in his old form.

If he holds his curve the Indians will be a better team.

Walter Lutzke, Kansas City infielding star, has proved that he is not a reliable, steady, dependable third baseman. Brilliant at times, his fielding over a season is mediocre. And he can not hit big league pitching. His average last season was just .219. This after several years of effort on the part of Manager Speaker and his aides to improve Lutzke's hitting.

Pin Hopes on Hodapp.

Last year the club purchased Johnny Hodapp, young infield sensation of the Indianapolis Indians. Hodapp broke into 37 games last season. He proved to be a cleaner fielder than Lutzke. There was little to choose between their batting averages, Hodapp hitting only .238, but it was his first year in big time and he can be expected to improve that under careful direction. He also has a better fighting spirit than Lutzke.

If Hodapp comes through this season the infield strength of the team will be improved materially.

The team has been without a big league second baseman since Bill Wamby was allowed to depart.

The first year Manager Speaker tried to fill the gap with Riggs Stephenson, Chick Fewster and young Thompson. Last year Fred Spurgeon, Fewster and Joe Klugman were jockeyed around in the hope of finding someone who could hold the proper pace. Of these Spurgeon looked the best. Speaker and President Barnard believe that he is set to play a brilliant game there this season, knowing that the job is his.

If Spurgeon delivers at second, along with Hodapp at third, the infield will stack up with the average big league infield. And this will help carry the pitchers, of course.

Is Young First Sacker Ready?

The coming season may see the veteran first baseman, George Burns, singing his swan song. However, his work last season indicated that he has considerable baseball in him. If he does not find the grind too hot this summer Bob Knode, youngster, will get the acid test. In that case, if Knode comes through in great shape the team will be strengthened for the future, but Knode now lacks the stability of the calm old warrior.

Speaker is banking on Shaute, Ben Karr, George Uhle and Garland Buckeye to carry the burden until Byron Speece demonstrates what he can do. The Indian boss is sweet on him, however, and may well be. Speece showed promise last year. If he comes through and the others do a journeyman's share the Indians will have much better pitching. The youngsters are those who were tried out the last couple of years. Of these a southpaw, Ray Benge, looks the best, I think. He has lots of stuff and knows how to use it. Levsen, Yowell and Lehr, with a year's experience in the bushes, may show more class. Yowell is a poor fielder, however. Old Sherry Smith will be relief hurler.

If one of these lads shows he is ready to deliver the pitching staff will be improved.

As for the outfield, Speaker in center and Jamieson in left are as good as ever. It will be up to Pat McNulty, Summa and Cliff Lee to battle it out for the rightfield berth. Summa has the edge. McNulty is fast but I doubt if he will hit as well as Summa. I figured Lee will be utility outfielder.

And As for Catching—

As for the catching. That is the weak spot on the club. Neither Glenn Myatt nor Luke Sewell are up to big league standard, all things considered. I look for Chic Autrey, from Texas, to make a bid for the catching job. He will hit harder than either of the vets and seems to be a better pegger.

Autrey gave some indication of his worth last fall.

If he comes through as he appears able to this year, the team will have someone who can labor with the uncertain pitching staff.

But you can't take a team that finished sixth in 1925 and shove them very high in your predictions for the 1926 campaign with nothing but ifs on which to stand.

LEARNING FROM SHAKESPEARE

I HAVE said in this place before that if one who loves to read Shakespeare for the pure joy of it were asked to point out the special features in which Shakespeare's plays are transcendently excellent, he probably would mention, among others, this—that his stories are not put together, and his characters are not conceived, to illustrate any particular law or principle.

They teach many lessons, but not any one prominent above another; and when they have drawn from them all the direct instruction they contain, there remains something unresolved—something which the artist gives, and the philosopher and the moralist cannot give.

It is in this characteristic that persons who really know Shakespeare are accustomed to say Shakespeare's supreme truth lies. He represents real life.

"Shakespeare's drama teaches as life teaches—neither less nor more," comments James Anthony Froude.

"He builds his fabrics, as nature does, on right and wrong; but he does not struggle to make nature more systematic than she is.

"In the subtle flow of good and evil; in the unmerited sufferings of innocence; in the disproportion of penalties to desert; in the seeming blindness with which justice, in attempting to assert itself, overwhelms innocent and guilty in a common ruin—Shakespeare is true to real experience.

"The mystery of life he leaves as he finds it; and, in his most tremendous positions, he is addressing rather the intellectual emotions than the understanding—knowing well that the understanding in such things is at fault and the sage as ignorant as the child."

Only the highest order of genius can represent nature thus.

An inferior artist produces something either entirely immoral, where good and evil are names, and nobility of disposition is supposed to show itself in the absolute disregard of them, or else, if he is a better kind of man, he will force on nature a didactic purpose; he composes what are called moral tales, which may edify the conscience, but only mislead the intellect.

Here you have the difference between good literature and poor writing.

THE SCALE OF AMBITION

ONE of the wisest of men offers this advice: "Don't be ambitious; don't be all too desirous of success; be loyal and modest."

Materially, this may not be the best of advice, but there are nobler ambitions than owning a gold-trimmed, diamond-set limousine.

In an address to students, Thomas Carlyle said:

"I have no doubt that you will have among you people ardently bent to consider life cheap, for the purpose of getting forward in what they are aiming at of high; and you are to consider throughout, much more than is done at present, that health is a thing to be attended to continually—that you are to regard that as the very highest of temporal things to you.

"There is no kind of achievement you could make in the world that is equal to perfect health."

What are nuggets and millions? An American millionaire mourned one time, "Alas! why is there no sleep to be sold?" Sleep was not in the market at any quotation. And he, with millions and insomnia, died for lack of it.

It has been remarked that there is one thing a man is born to in all epochs. He is born to expend every particle of strength the Almighty has given him, in doing the work he is fit for—to stand it out to the last breath of life, and do his best.

We are called upon to do that; and the reward we get—which we are perfectly sure of if we have merited it—is that we have got the work done, or, at least, that we have tried to do the work.

Optimists would have us believe, of course, that there is more of a reward than this. Well, let us look at it as Thomas Carlyle did:

"If a man gets meat and clothes, what matters it whether he have $10,000 or $10,000,000, or $500 a year? He can get meat and clothes for that; and he will find very little difference intrinsically, if he is a wise man.

Carlyle's idea of a perfect man was one with his intellect a clear, plain geometric mirror, brilliantly sensitive of all objects and impressions around it and imaging all things in their correct proportions—not twisted up into convex or concave, and distorting everything, so that he cannot see the truth of the matter without endless groping—healthy, clear, and free.

Here, then, is something more to be desired than the things that most men seek.

STORY OF A CRIME

GENERAL MANUEL TORRES, a political refugee from Mexico, sought and found an asylum in Texas. He had been a revolutionist and the revolution failed. He was ordered deported to Mexico by the immigration department of the federal government. He was arrested, placed in hand-cuffs, taken across the border and placed in the hands of a Mexican army officer and a squad of soldiers. According to the evidence elicited by Senator King of Utah, General Torres, hand-cuffed and manacled, was taken by the Mexican firing squad and shot to death.

This is the brief story of a crime, for it was nothing short of criminal, for this political refugee to be sent to a bloody grave without trial by this Mexican officer and his riflemen. It is reflection on the traditions of the father. It is a reflection on the state department at Washington. It is a reflection on the immigration department of the government. For more than a hundred years, political refugees from other countries were given an asylum under the free flag of this republic.

Now all this has been changed. Now a man who fights against oppression in his native land and fails, is denied a place of refugee or an asylum in this republic founded by exiles from all lands who loved liberty better than life, and freely offered their lives and fortunes in defense of freedom and the rights of men. It is the system recently inaugurated. It should be changed. Nay, it should be destroyed, uprooted root and branch.

A political refugee from any country should not be deported or handed over to a firing squad commanded by officers of the type of this Mexican firing squad that sent General Manuel Torres, handcuffed and manacled, to a bloody grave. Now it is said Secretary Kellogg of the department of state has written the department of labor, cautioning the department to give every possible consideration to Mexican deportees wishing to go to some other country, pointing out that General Torres was shot after being deported from the United States.

Senator Kellogg ordered the door of the barn padlocked after the horse had been stolen. It is better late than never. Of course, the buck has been passed to President Calles of Mexico. He is said to have given assurance that Torres would not be excuted without a fair trial. He was not given even the mockery of a trial. He was not given the benefit of a counsel.

In his hand-cuffed condition with riflemen standing over him, he was dispatched to the land invisible by the merciless gunmen who wear the uniform of a Latin-Indian republic.

Gone are the traditions of the American fathers. Gone are the traditions of the early statesmen. Gone is the asylum for political offenders established by those American fathers and framers of the constitution of the republic in the long ago.

OKLAHOMA

GOVERNOR M. E. TRAPP of Oklahoma, who wishes to be a candidate for the democratic nomination this year, has been ruled out by Federal Judge Bob Williams of that state. Trapp was lieutenant governor when Jack Walton was empeached and thrown out. His contention is that as he has never been elected governor, he is therefore eligible for the office.

Jack is in Texas. He is said to be a voting resident of Texas. For this reason, it will be impossible for him to return to Oklahoma and run on the vindication platform this year.

There are many cindication candidates the country over. Indeed, vindication, political and otherwise, is getting to be a paramount issue. Governor Len Small of Illinois, threatens to run again on a vindication platform. According to the supreme court of his state, he owes the people a million dollars.

Now he is going to ask the people to vindicate him from the allegation made by the court of last resort. It is more than a paramount issue. It is a favorite political pastime.

WHO'S WHO

ARCHIBALD G. GRAHAM.

A South Bend lawyer, Archibald G. Graham, has begun an active campaign for the Republican nomination for senator in Indiana. He hopes to succeed Arthur R. Robinson, Indianapolis, whom the governor appointed to serve in place of the late Samuel M. Ralston, democrat, until an election could be held.

ARCHIBALD GRAHAM

Graham was born on a farm 25 miles southwest of London, Ontario, Canada. He acquired a rural grammar school education and then walked 10 miles daily to high school. After his graduation from the elementary school he became a teacher, earning enough money to enter the Detroit college of law in Detroit. He was graduated from there in 1896.

He began to practice law in Mishawaka, Ind. In 1903, A. L. Brick, who represented the thirteenth Indiana district in the lower house of congress, made Graham his law partner in South Bend. They continued to be partners until Brick's death five years later.

Although Graham has been an active worker in the cause of the republican party he has never held an elective office and never an appointive position but once. Years ago he served as city attorney in Mishawaka at a small annual salary. In 1904 he was made republican county chairman of St. Joseph county and in 1908 he was chosen chairman of the thirteenth Indiana district republican committee.

He is married and has two daughters and a son.

DINNER STORIES

The evangelist was entreating his hearers to flee from the wrath to come.

"I warn you," he said, "there will be weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth."

At this point an old lady in the gallery stood up.

"Sir," she interrupted, "I have no teeth."

"Madam," said the evangelist sternly, "teeth will be provided."

On the occasion of a most interesting family event, Mr. Peedle, who desired a son, paced the drawing room in extreme agitation, until at last the doctor appeared in the doorway.

"Oh, oh, tell me," he gasped, "what is it—a boy or a girl?"

"Tr-r-r-r—" the physician began stammeringly.

Peedle paled.

"Triplets! Merciful providence!" "Qu-qu-qu—" spluttered the doctor.

Peedle paled some more.

"Quadruplets!" he moaned.

"N-n-no!" the physician snapped. "Qu-qu-quite the contrary. Tr-r-try to take it qu-quietly. It's a girl."

The new clergyman in the country parish, during his visit to an old lady of his flock, inquired if she accepted the doctrine of Falling from Grace. The good woman nodded vigorously.

"Yes, sir," she declared with pious zeal, "I believe in it, and (praise the Lord! I practice it"

POEMS THAT LIVE

Nydia's Song.

The Wind and the Beam loved the Rose
And the Rose loved one:
For who recks the Wind where it blows?
Or loves not the Sun?

None knew whence the humble Wind stole,
Poor sport of the skies:
None dreamt that the Wind had a soul
In its mournful sighs.

O happy Beam, how can'st thou prove
That bright love of thine?
In thy light is the proof of thy love,
Thou hast but to shine.

How its love can the Wind reveal,
Unwelcome its sigh:
Mute, mute to the Rose let it steal—
Its proof is—to die!

POISON PEN LETTERS SENT OUT BY LOVELORN SUITOR.

WILLENHALL, Eng.—That his love for Miss Doris Kendell had affected his mind will be the defense offered by Albert Eccleston when he is tried in April for writing poison pen letters about Miss Kendell. Eccleston wrote to other youths attacking the girl's character and advising them to avoid her. He also wrote several letters to Miss Kendell, signing them "Lizzie." These threatened the girl with death unless she stopped going about with Albert." These letters were apparently designed to make the girl think she had a rival. Eccleston was caught after a month's detective work.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

What are luxuries?

When we speak of people enjoying the luxuries of life, we mean that they have fine homes, gorgeous clothes strings of pearls, high powered motor cars and that they fare sumptuously every day.

We always think of luxuries in terms of money and feel that it is something that only the rich can possess, yet in reality the greatest luxuries in the world have no price tag on them and are equally within reach of the poor and the wealthy.

There is love, for example, and all the tender human relationships, which are luxuries far oftener enjoyed by the poor than the rich. Money seems, somehow, to clutter up the heart action, and there are very few millionaires who ever know the bliss of either loving or being loved.

Mr. Croesus is filled with suspicions of the motives of any woman who marries him. The poor little rich girls regard every man who comes near her as a fortune-hunter, and so neither one ever knows the ineffable luxury of resting in perfect faith and trust in the devotion of wife or husband and knowing that he or she is loved for himself or herself alone.

The real luxury of parenthood longs also to the poor. Big men of affairs, whose every hour has a thousand importunate calls upon it, whose every thought is absorbed in working out the plans for great enterprises; women who are leaders in society never even get acquainted with their children.

As soon as they are born they are turned over to trained nurses and to governesses and tutors, and then sent off to school. And between the youngsters and their fathers and mothers there is only a traditional bond of sentiment. There is no real feeling, none of the deathless devotion that springs from personal service and sacrifice on the one side and dependence on the other; from the memory of clinging little arms about one's neck and sticky little fingers holding one's hand in the dark; from the recollection of the softness of a mother's breast and a mother's kiss that could heal a hurt and make it well, and a father to whom one turned as instinctively for help and guidance as one did to God.

It is only the poor that know the luxury of having a real home. Those who have a dozen palaces, built by famous architects and furnished by artistic decorators, in which they spend a few weeks during the year, are as homeless as any nomad who wanders over the desert. Nobody else can make a home for you. You have to put yourself in it. You have to make it with your own hands, with your own work. You have to mix your own sweat with its brick and mortar. You must have sacrificed yourself on its altar before it becomes a real home.

And so the man and woman who have bought their house and are paying for it by the month, who have planted the vine about the door and gone without a new coat to buy a chair; the man who cuts the grass instead of playing golf and the woman who sweeps the floor and cooks the dinner—these get more thrill out of putting the key in the door of that little bungalow than any billionaire does out of having the portals of his mansion thrown open to him by a flunkey in plush britches and silk stockings and brass buttons.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Aaries.

Today's planetary aspects are in a somewhat modified degree, a continuation of those that prevailed yesterday. They are not quite so excellent but are distinctly favorable and presage success for all constructive effort, or for such changes as will lead to a betterment of present conditions. It is not a suitable opportunity for entering into financial commitments but all well directed moves for consolidation, co-operation or systemization must be prolific of good results. A buoyancy of spirit will be sensed as well as supreme confidence—and these two factors must necessarily prove of potential value in the day's work.

A child born today will reveal, at birth, evidences of excellent physical development and its ailments during infancy promise to be of an unimportant nature, all of which will quickly yield to ordinary methods. The character of a boy will be rather complex and occasionally baffling. He will for a time act along normal lines thereby enabling everyone to form a high opinion of his conduct. Without warning or premonition, he will be liable to go off at a tangent and become for the time being the despair of those that are near to him. A girl will be consistently sweet and attractive, not much addicted to study, but imitative and alert.

If today is your birthday, you are resourceful and cautious and possess more than average intelligence. You are nevertheless in a quandary as to how to capitalize your talents to the best advantage. Your "make-up" reveals no indication of aggressiveness or push, and you frequently see others, less gifted, thrust ahead of you. Salesmanship of your own wares is conspicuous by its absence and this is an asset very much needed in advancement of one's fortunes, not only by men but by women. The shrinking violet—although having a beauty and charm all its own—never attracts so much attention as the rose—flamboyant and gorgeous.

You are modest, sincere, and loyal, especially to your kith and kin. You depend, however, too much on "something turning up" than "turning up" something yourself.

You are mentally and morally equipped to become a powerful factor in your immediate circle of associates and friends but let the many opportunities slip of making them defer to you, by excessive difference to them.

Successful people born this date are:

BARBER ARRESTED

Willis Roberts, for the last six months an employee in a local barbershop, left early Sunday morning for Floydada in company with J. A. Grigsby, acting deputy sheriff of Floyd county. Roberts is wanted in Floyd county to answer an indictment of disposing of mortgaged property. A $25 reward for his arrest was received from Deputy Grigsby and diverted to the police relief fund Saturday night.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

HOME

Home's had many singers, and home's had many songs,
For home's a designation that to every land belongs.
Some say home's a cottage, and some say home's a hall,
And some will say a little home's the only home at all.
But I've a definition I guess will always do—
Home's a place that you are from you like to come back to.

Oh, some will say a castle a home can never be,
And yet I guess a king can love, can love as well as we.
He never owned a cottage, he never had a flat,
And yet I think a castle may look pretty good at that.
Yes, I've a sneaking notion that even that will do—
For home's a place that you are from you like to come back to.

If poverty's a blessing, or riches really fine,
That isn't what makes home a home, makes either yours or mine.
It's something down inside us that starts to beating fast
When we have been away awhile and then get back at last.
So here's a definition I guess will always do—
Home's a place that you are from you like to come back to!!

What Do You Know About It?

Daily Science Six.

1. How far away is the moon?
2. Do we always see the same side of the moon?
3. What makes the moon appear to grow and diminish through the month?
4. Is the moon larger than the earth?
5. Does the earth go around the moon as it goes around the sun?
6. If you were on the moon would the earth shine to you as the moon shines to us on the earth?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's paper.

Bombing the Moon.

When you look at the moon through even a small telescope you can see that its surface is made up of jagged mountains and deep pits that plainly have never been smoothed by any wind or water. How the mountains and pits that look like the craters of volcanoes came there, however, is difficult to explain. Some people have believed that the moon really did have volcanoes, and others that great gaseous bubbles from its interior burst through its crust, which would explain why the craters are so broad and shallow. But no one could explain why every crater has a little hill in the center. One scientist, however, has suggested that if you drop a stone in soft warm mud the splash will make a low ridge around abroad pit, with a little mole in the center, and from this he argues, and perhaps rightly, that the moon has received a terrific bombardment from a shower of heavy meteors.

Now what do you know about that?

THE EASTER STOCKING
By Sunny.

Not long ago it used to be
The Easter bonnet gay,
That captured every female heart
And lured our cash away,
But Madam Fashion has reversed
The style so it would seem,
And gone to quite the other end,—
The opposite extreme!

For, since my lady's dainty skirts
Alas! have shrunk so much,
Her slender ankles silken-clad
They long have ceased to touch,
In fact the bottom is so near
The top that it is shocking,
'Tis NOT the Easter hat that costs,
It is the Easter stocking!!

Ringing the Bell!

Little Niece was watching her Aunt Bell with great interest.
"What's that you are putting on your face!" she asked.
Aunt Bell, who is noted more for her goodness than beauty, answered: "Why, that's powder."
"Aunt Bell, what makes you put powder on your face!"
"Oh, to make me look pretty."
A scrutinizing survey, and then: "Well, why don't it do it!"

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

More Truth Than Poetry

TO A MOVIE ACTRESS
Gentle lady, when your weddings
Are so often multiplied
That they get but one-line headings
Back among the ads—inside;
When your subsequent divorces
Aren't exciting any more,
And no longer run their courses
From page one to twenty-four,
When the papers will not mention
Your love-exploits or your name,
How can you attract attention?
How can you preserve your fame?

Turn to crime? It's rather risky,
Though you might not go to jail—
Movie stars who grow too frisky
Get the censors on their trail.
From the careful observations
Mr. Hays has lately made,
It is learned rough reputations
Drive away the family trade.
And beside, you'd find the papers
Very likely would ignore
Your unseemly lawless capers,
Knowing what you cut them for.

Gentle lady, we advise you,
For we know the crying need
Of some means to advertise you
If you still are to succeed,
That you really take up acting—
Though of course you're going to find
It is really quite exacting
And most trying on the mind.
Then you may retain forever
Your supreme, unchallenged place—
For if you grow really clever
You will get abundant space.

STOCK-A-DAY

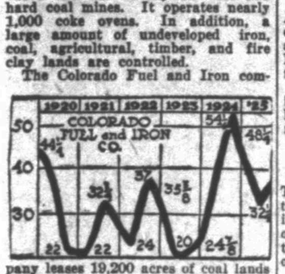

The Colorado Fuel and Iron company is the largest steel manufacturer west of the Mississippi river and has an annual capacity of 550,000 tons of finished steel products. It owns and operates extensive steel works at Pueblo, Colo., has iron mines in Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico, owns the only anthracite coal deposit west of Pennsylvania and has twenty-five soft and hard coal mines. It operates nearly 1,000 coke ovens. In addition, a large amount of undeveloped iron, coal, agricultural, timber, and fire clay lands are controlled.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron company leases 19,200 acres of coal lands from the Santa Fe railroad and furnishes the coal for that system. The lands are operated on a fixed rental with a royalty on tonnage. The concern spent large sums in 1925 in modernizing the equipment of the Pueblo steel plant.

Capital stock outstanding consists of $2,000,000 in 8 per cent cumulative preferred shares of $100 par and $34,235,500 in common shares of $100 par. Funded debt totals $36,912,000, the first bond maturity coming due in 1934. Earnings have fluctuated, with deficits in three of the last seven years. In 1924 earnings were equal to $1.05 a share as against $1.67 in 1923. In the first 9 months of 1925, earnings were equivalent to $2.77 a share on the common. As of Jan. 1, 1925 current assets exceeded current liabilities by $10,446,681.

Dividends have been paid on the preferred since 1916. Common dividends were paid from 1917 to 1921 but no payments have been made since the latter year.

Juarez Again Is Gay With Crowds As Gambling Opens

EL PASO, March 28.—(AP)—After several weeks of straight laced propriety and a 9 o'clock curfew that sends reluctant Americans scurrying across the international bridge, Juarez is beginning to shake off its apathy and show flashes of its former gaiety. For a while open gambling was abolished and even the slot machines were decorated with black covers in the rear rooms.

The retirement was but temporary. A gambling club now is in full operation with everything from chuck-a-luck to spinning roulette wheels. Membership is without restriction and free.

Many tourists, however, find their interest in Nuestra Senora de Guadalupe Mission, built in 1658, the jail, market and Fort Hidalgo.

AUSTIN, March 28.—(AP)—Four Texas towns were penalized today by the state fire insurance commission on insurance rates for bad fire records of the past three years. The penalties are applicable on the final rates on policies written after March 1.

Bloomington was penalized 15 per cent, Comanche 12 per cent, Bells and Omaha three per cent each. Claude was given a 12 per cent credit for a good fire record and Belton's rate was retained.

MAN, 86 ASKS DIVORCE

After 62 Years of Wedded Bliss, Marital Bark Hits Rocks.

OTTAWA, Ohio, March 28.—(AP)—Michael J. Burreway, 86, of Dupont, near here, has filed suit for divorce against Sarah F. Burreway, 82. They were married 62 years ago, but have been separated forty years. Seven children were reared by them.
Burreway charged gross neglect. After 22 years of wedded life, he said his wife left him to live with a daughter in Douglas county, Oregon and that she refused to return.

Sunday a Big Day At Christian Church

Large attendance in all services and 26 new members added to the church marked Sunday as a memorable day at the First Christian church. The Sunday school attendance hit a new high mark in spite of the threatening clouds, with over 600 in the classes.
Special evangelistic services will be held each night this week with the new paster, Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, preaching and R. E. Shepherd leading the large chorus choir. Tonight Rev. Mr. Bash will speak on "What Christ Means to Me." The meetings start at 7:45 and close at 9 o'clock.
"If God wrote the obituary for a lot of men it would be blank all the way from birth to death," said Dr. Bash in his sermon Sunday. "They have ben alive to a lot of worldly things but simply dead to God. The tragedy that makes Christ weep is not that men blunder and sin, but that they leave utterly unlived the life God planned for them and they leave undone all the things God planned for them to do. They go to the grave with a record just blank. They missed the trail. The man who is not where God wants him to be, is a lost man. If any man is too busy to be a Christian he has more business than any man needs."

Church Packed To Hear Osborne

Grace Methodist church was packed to overflowing Sunday night when hundreds of persons gathered there to hear Drummer Evangelist Theodore H. Osborn who is conducting a pre-Easter revival meeting. He took his sermon from the Book of Ruth and gave an illuminating comparison of the people of that day with the people of the present day. In a characteristic manner he impersonated the actions of those of whom he spoke.
Special music for the evening included a solo, "Repent Ye," (Scott) by Mr. Butterfield who recently came to this city from Pennsylvania; a number by the Methodist male quartet; and a solo, "Life Is Like a Crooked Railroad," by Evangelist Osborn.

BAR HOMECOMING.

Big Tim Fails Followers and Fools United States Marshal.

CHICAGO, March 28.—(AP)—The "Homecoming" planned for "Big Tim" Murphy's return after serving time in the Leavenworth penitentiary for complicity in the Dearborn station $2855,000 mail robbery in 1921, fell through when Mrs. Murphy arrived alone in Chicago today to disappoint a throng of Murphy's friends with the information that he had remained in Kansas City until a difficulty over payment of a $10,000 fine, levied in connection with his prison sentence, could be straightened out.
"Tim won't pay that fine," Mrs. Murphy said. "He says he doesn't have to pay it because it was written on the commitment papers, 'executed.'"

Woman Swimmer Spends 37 Minutes In Water of Freezing Temperature.

BOSTON, March 28.—(AP)—Eva Morrison, native of Pictou, N. S., where her father is chief of police, today swam about the icy water of Dorcester Bay for 37 minutes to show her imperviousness to cold. The temperature of the water was 32 degrees. Jimmy Wild, one of the many who take a daily plunge at the beach throughout the year was forced out of the water by the cold after fifteen minutes.
Miss Morrison scorned the protection of grease and took no stimulants while in the water. She will attempt to swim the English channel next summer.

Sight One of Greatest Blessings of Our World, Judge Kay Tells Class

Light is one of the greatest things in the world, Judge John C. Kay told his Bible class Sunday when he discussed that subject with the 367 persons who turned out for the morning lesson.
His address in full was as follows:
These signs you see along the road and sometimes in front of a man's place of business, they don't mean much, sometimes. Foolish, sometimes. My friend "Bull" Heydrick and I went fishing in the far reaches of the Rocky Mountains once, when we had money, and we came to a little one-horse, country store. The fellow had a big sign, seven or eight feet long, which said 'U. S. Post Office,' and 'Bull' says: "I see you have got a U. S. postoffice here, Mister," and he says: "That's the best kind there is." But coming down the street, I saw a sign marked: "Light and Power." You couldn't get more on a board than that. Isn't that a wonderful thing to put in three words, "light and power"?

Lesson About Light.

The lesson this morning is about light. Nobody knows too much about it. Most of us know very little about it. What a wonderful thing it is! And, the scientists teach us that light can't be destroyed, that nothing is ever lost. Those of you who know where to look in this springtime sky, in the northwest, at night, may see a little white spot, a little nebula, that is another universe, with its own milky way, and its own suns, and its own world revolving, and, perhaps, its own people. How far off is it? Although light travels nearly two hundred thousand miles in a second, it takes that little white gray light coming from there a million years to reach this world. How that light has been plunging with terrific speed through that awful abyss to reach you, is beyond the human imagination, beyond the power of the poet, beyond the reach of the thoughtful scientist. Yet, that light is not lost and, for some reason and for some purpose, comes at last, beating at our gates for admission.
It is a wonderful thing to think about. Light! The giver of life. If we could think of a being that lived in some other world, where they had another system, another plan of nature, who knew nothing about our system, if he could come here in the springtime, here in Texas, and see the streams flowing, and the flowers blooming, and the trees bursting with sap, and the green fields, and the sun shining, and all nature in tune, what a wonderful thing it must seem, or would seem to him. But, how would he feel when he saw the sun go down and darkness hide all this from his view, He would feel lost. Lost! Utterly lost, when the sun was blotted out from his vision. The only reason that it doesn't frighten us, when the sun goes down, is because we know that it is coming up again, and we watch the stars in the night and wait until it shall come again with its light giving beams.

Spiritual Light.

But, the lesson isn't about that kind of light. It is about spiritual light. The Savior says here, in this Book: "I am the light of the world." What does He mean by that? Does He mean the intellectual light of the world? Does He mean the moral light of the world? He tells us that He means the spiritual light of the world, and the spiritual light is that that makes the intellectual and the moral light.
I never took much stock in a religion of good morals or of charitable deeds I think they are the finest thing, almost, that there is in the world, but they are just simply the fruit that grows on the tree of religion. Religion makes morals and it makes honesty and good character.
Now, we have a lot of men in this country, some men in high stations, that are poking fun at religion and spiritual things. They say that it is out of date, that it is unscientific, that it is unnecessary, that it takes a second grade mind to believe in it. Now, a fellow like that has got a place to go. Russia is a good place for him. Or, some of these South Sea islands.
In some places on the coast of Australia, he can find people who thinks as he thinks, and live as he advises you to live, but, he doesn't go there. He wants to stay here with the white folks. Now, why is that? There can be but one answer to that, and that is, that the gentleman doesn't believe what he says. If I didn't like to live in Wichita Falls, I would leave here. Do you hear me? If I didn't like the way the people do things here, I know how to pack up and leave. Ah, well enough do such men know that Christianity is the light of the world. And, knowing it, they stay with the people that believe it.
We like to talk about our school system. Some of our schools have got so they are not overly religious, to put it mildly. They have outgrown religion. You ought to read the charter of Harvard University. Some of the most religious men in the world started it, and started it to teach religion. You ought to read the charter of Yale. Same thing. You ought to read the charter of Princeton. Church people started it and, no matter what sort of hands it is in now, it had its basis and foundation and its growth in religion. It is the light of the world. Our system of law, as well as our system of morals, come out of it. That is especially true of our English Bible. I would like for you to read some time what our Ambassador to Belgium said about it when the world got on fire over there. He said it looked like, with the throbbing abopt. Light! The giver of life. If cities an dthe world on fire, that there was nothing left to such as he for consolation, except our English Bible. That is what he said.

Savior the Light.

Now, the Savior is the light of the world, shining through His people, because He says in another place, that 'Ye are the light of the world,' and that: 'A city that is set on a hill can not be hid.' Therefore, it follows that the church people ought to be the light and the shining example for the world.
Now, what sort of a light are you making? How do you shine as a church member? I imagine most of you are church members, you that have come here this morning. You that are church people, you ought to know that the church is judged by the world looking at you. Now, you have got a different idea, and so have I, about the church. Your idea, and mine, of the church, is of a building, with hymn books, and a preacher, and a ritual, and a ceremony, and stained glass, and all those things. That is your idea of a church. That is my idea. But, the outsider looks at a church just as a building, and to the outside of the real church, is you! And, if you are not any better than the common sinner on the street he immediately concludes—nothing about you, but—he concludes that the church is no better than the world. Now, that kind of a light is not burning. It is not set upon a hill. It doesn't do any good. The light ought to be bruning seven days in a week. Do you do that? Or, is it your idea to put on a long-tail coat and go down on Sunday and look as sanctimonious as you can, and put two-bits in the plate, and go home and say: "I will put out my light until next Sunday." Now, is that the kind of a light that you have been letting shine?

Eternally Shining

If this little light that I spoke about, coming from the nebula for a million years, had stopped for a minute, and let the shaft be broken, it wouldn't come here yet. And, the sun that makes our crops, and makes our harvest, let us suppose it was about such a sun as you are a church member, or myself, some days shine, some days not come at all, maybe not come for six weeks, what kind of a world would this be? But, it comes eternally on time, shining ever, reliable, trustworthy, sure. We ought to live that way. People ought to be able to count on you, and say that this man is going to get up tomorrow morning a good man, and Tuesday morning, and Wednesday morning, and live it throughout the day, and live it until next Sunday, and on, and on.
That is the way the lights work, and that is the way the sun and the stars work. Even the Great Father. What would you think of Him and His religion if he just had a set time in which man could go to Him, and in which man could supplicate the throne?
I like to think of Heaven as a place that is always open and, God, as a God that is ever ready to hear, and I like to think of a Christian as one that is always conscious of his faith, and of his vows and of his promises.

BURY QUEEN MOTHER.

Kings and Princess Walk Behind Casket in Funeral March.

COPENHAGEN, March 28.—(AP)—The Danish people today paid last honors to the late Queen Mother Louise, who was laid to rest in Gluckburg Chapel of the Roskilde Cathedral, ancient burial place of Danish royalties. A great gathering of the Scandinavian royal families and representatives of foreign countries, including the members of the American legation, attended the ceremonies.
The kings and crown princes of Denmark and Norway, with the Crown Prince of Sweden, Prince Arthur of Connaught and other princes followed the hearse afoot, while the royal ladies, including the queens of Denmark and Norway were in carriages. Beautiful wreaths surrounded the coffin.

trusion into party primaries in a state other than their own.

Party On Trial

"The organization in Texas is always on trial before and subject to the will of the republican voters of Texas who created and alone control it. It is not subject to indictment by the gentlemen from Connecticut and Indiana. A press report states Tilson and Wood sent you a number of letters from Texas republicans asking for an investigation. On our desks are a large number of copies of letters written Messrs. Tilson and Wood by men of highest standing in this state, denouncing their source and testifying to high standing and repute of Texas organization. It is to be noted Messrs. Tilson and Wood did not send you these letters. It would be passing strange if out of a population of five million, and with scores of disappointed office seekers and other disgruntled letters condemning the organization, had not been received. We have a suspicion amounting to a conviction that letters condemning Mr. Tilson's and Mr. Wood's political conduct could be obtained from certain elements in the respective states. The object in making this suggestion for an investigation is obvious.

Take Up Cudgels

Messrs. Tilson and Wood, relying entirely upon representations made by Congressman Wurzbach and without the slightest investigation took up the cudgels in the latter's behalf in an effort to force into control of an unwilling organization in Texas. If through any character of public hearing they could give the disgruntled elements and would-be leaders of the organization in this state an opportunity to vent their spleen publicly a certain amount of injury would be done the organization which might be capitalised by Mr. Wurzbach. Messrs. Tilson and Wood would have all to gain and nothing to lose.
"We do not propose to be caught in so obvious a trap. Messrs. Tilson and Wood have shown no consideration for the welfare or good repute of the party in their efforts to aid their fellow congressman. They have done altogether too much talking. They have given so much unfavorable publicity to this controversy that the republican organization of this state now feels it necessary to publicly challenge them.
"We propose that a committee consisting of Senator William B. Butler, Hon. Charles D. Hilles, Alvin T. Hurt, Hon. Herbert Hoover, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Senator Coleman Dupont and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt or any three or more of them be requested to impartially investigate conditions in Texas. Committee to come to Texas and investigation upon the ground. Messrs. Tilson, Wood and Wurzbach to immediately place in your hands two thousand dollars, we an equal amount to cover expenses of trip to Texas by committee.

Will Pay $20,000

"If report of committee is not clearly and unequivocally to effect that established policy of organization and its responsible heads in Texas is clean and reputable and further that material strides in progress and advancement of party have been made under present leadership, then we will immediately pay to treasurer republican national committee as a campaign contribution $20,000 and in this connection will furnish committee evidence satisfactory to them that no part of this sum has been contributed directly or indirectly by any office holder. If report is clearly to above effect, Messrs. Tilson and Wood pay the $20,000. Satisfactory bank guarantees of payment to be given by each side. Question as to who makes payment to be determined solely and entirely by committee.
"We authorize and request you to submit this proposition to Messrs. Tilson, Wood and Wurzbach. Unless they will show their good faith and their confidence in the position they have taken by accepting this challenge we submit that their challenges and their suggestions are unworthy serious consideration. Yours for a decent and reputable republican party and for fair play to its humble adherents."

DENY PETITION.

PAWHUSKA, Okla., March 28.—(AP)—The application of W. K. Hale and John Ramsey for bail was denied by District Judge Jesse J. Worton of the district court after a hearing which lasted all day. District Judge Worton, in announcing his decision stated, in as much as the case would come up in his court for trial, he would make no comment on the evidence but would give his decision without comment. He then denied the application.

Mrs. E. S. Newcome of Fort Worth arrived here Sunday to be the guest of Miss Elizabeth Hamilton.

MEXICO BARES NEW LAND LAW

Uncertainty To Be Set At Rest By Publication Of Rulings

MEXICO CITY, March 28.—(AP) Terminating many months of uncertainty and speculation, the Mexican government will publish at an early date, possibly tomorrow, the regulations governing both the alien land law and the petroleum law. The foreign office today sent to Senor Telles, Mexican ambassador at Washington, for delivery to the department of state, Mexico's reply to the latest American note on these questions. Simultaneously the foreign office sent a copy to the American ambassador, James R. Sheffield.

The foreign office has expressed the hope that this will bring the correspondence to a conclusion and that an understanding will be reached.

It is learned on good authority that the regulations covering these laws do not deviate materially from the fundamental principles of the original measures, although they are supposed to embody some concessions to foreign interests.

The representatives of American oil companies, who have been in Mexico City conferring with the Mexican authorities are preparing to return to the United States. It is believed they failed to obtain any vital modification of the proposals, although they decline to discuss the matter.

Federal Court To Get Busy Again

Trial of criminal cases will start today in federal district court before Judge W. H. Atwell. Court will convene at 10 o'clock.

Criminal cases sufficient to keep the court busy for two or three days at most are on the docket. Included in these are a number of old cases, five liquor offenses, three narcotic violations, postoffice law violation, and a case of interstate transportation of a stolen automobile.

Federal prosecutor Randolph Caldwell is expected back from Dallas this morning in connection with the trial of the criminal docket.

HIGHWAY PAVED.

Colorado to Gulf Road Near Vernon Undergoing Surfacing.

VERNON, March 28.—Paving has been started on the Colorado-Gulf highway between Harrold and Electra, County Engineer John Nabers announced Friday. Traffic is forced to detour north at Harrold, although it was planned to allow the traffic to follow the route of the highway.

About three and a half miles of the highway between Harrold and Electra remains to be paved, a mile and eight-tenths having been paved last fall. It is expected to rush the work to completion now.
