Drouth Is Not Broken Because Of Spring Rains

How big a boost toward recovery have spring rains given Texas farm and ranch lands, ravaged by seven lean years of drouth?

Here are answers from the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research:

Range and pasture conditions over the state are greatly improved. Dryland wheat, corn, grain sorghum and vegetables have received germinating moisture. Storage in major reservoir increased 5 percent in February (but was still at only 46 per cent of potential usable capacity). Ground water levels are not up appreciably.

Most observers are hestitant in declaring that the state is out of the woods.

It will take years to replinish our lost underground water resources and without these resources, we are still in a state of drouth, State Agriculture Commissioner John C. White stressed

With their herds no longer on feed, cattlemen have stopped their rush to the market. But most are not restocking yet. An attitude of watchful waiting prevails. Farmers, too are watching the skies for assurance of more rain before they start making crop predictions.

James H. Keahey, Bureau of Business Research staff writer, surveys the state's agriculture and rainfall picture in the current issue of Texas Business Review, the Bureau's monthly publication.

While it is difficult for a Texan to suppress his natural optimism, those who have been teased before are not rushing headlong into farming and ranching operations, Keahey says.

Richard Clark New Owner Of Texas Hardware

Mr. Richard Clark of Electra has recently purchased the Texas Hardware and Furniture Co. here from Mrs. Luther Hatch. He plans to add new stock to the store and rearrange the present stock. A formal opening is planned for the first of May. Mr. Clark is experienced in the hardware business and also owns a hardware store in Electra.

Mrs. Clara Jenkins will be manager of this store.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

BONIFAY, FLA., Advertiser: "And there was the man who only took a drink to steady his nerves and who sometimes got so steady he couldn't move."

ELSINORE, CALIF., Leader-Press: "Regulation of gas prices at the well head makes no more economic sense than regulation of coal prices at the mine. It is to be hoped that with the President recently restated endorsement, Congress will see fit to restore this segment of our industrial structure its basic freedom to risk, in the hope of profit."

CORNELL, ILL., Journal: "We owe a great deal to our Government. The question is, how are we ever going to get the money to pay it?

WILMINGTON, N. C., Morning Star: "For example, higher taxes, a deep slash in government spending, tighter control of credit, the spreading of business expansion programs over a longer range, plus a limit on wages—these are the things that would bring an abrupt halt to inflation.

"So abrupt would be the end of inflation, a chain reaction which eventually leads to a depression is not beyond reason.

"Yet, unless some steps are taken in the immediate future to curb the inflationary trend in the United States, the 'boom and bust' cycle can evolve simply because some form of control is not forthcoming.

DUBLIN, GA., Courier-Herald: "The opponents of the American profit and loss system are advocates of some form of Socialism—whether it be the Soviet-type Communism, the Swedish type 'Welfare State,' or the present English style 'Conservative-Socialism.' The irony is that after 40 years of operation, the Soviet type Communism has produced a living standard only one tenth as high as ours; in the so-called Swedish 'Welfare State,' the living standard is about one third as high as ours; and in England where nationalization' of basic industries has operated 12 years, the living standard is not quite half as good as ours."

BOOMING FOREIGN TRADE

"This country is selling more goods abroad than ever before," says U. S. News and World Report. Last year, our exports of goods and services came to $26 billion—a rise of $4 billion in one year. A still higher figure, for another new record, is expected this year.

The situation in the field imports is comparable. Our 1956 imports from abroad were valued to $20 billion—a gain of 2 billion over 1955.

What this means to the American economy, to American employment and production and to American incomes and living standards hardly needs much elaboration. Workers on farms and in factories in every state of the nation, including those farthest from our borders and our seaports, are to some extent dependent on export trade for their jobs and their livelihoods. And the same thing is true of the people in the friendly nations which sell to us as well as buy from us.

Finally, another point needs mentioning. Much of our foreign trade is conducted with nations which are separated from us by seas and oceans. The goods can move in only one way, by merchant ship. Here is why this country must have a merchant marine which is tops in both quanity and quality, and why our government is pursuing policies designed to assure us that kind of merchant marine. In the current state of the world, to depend on foreign flag merchant marines to carry our vast cargos would represent a height of folly.

LIVE AMMO

As if the atom bomb isn't enough to worry about, there's the medicine cabinet! Every household has one, and most of them are potentially deadly. Look in your own, for example, and see how many remnants of long-forgotten prescriptions there are, how many bottles and jars that are by now unidentifiable, and how many ancient drugs that have become ineffective, or downright dangerous.

Perhaps there are unwrapped, unsterile bandages, half-a dozen items that will be out of supply after one more use. How about the basic items that aren't there, for which you'd be searching frantically in the emergency of sudden illness or accident.

What brings to mind the medicine chest and its condition is the annual sickroom needs drive of the Lysol people to help the druggist help you to put the family's "arsenal of health" in shape to resist most any sort of unexpected attack, and to take advantage of the fabulous medicinal advances of modern science. For instance, the druggist can give you a medicine chest check list that will greatly simplify the task of making inventory, and, if you'll accept it, some "healthy" advice.

Did you realize, for instance, that vitamins and "wonder" drugs such as penicillin, streptomycin, aureomycin, etc, should be kept in the refrigerator? Have you pasted the name and phone number of your doctor and the number of the durggist on the inside of the medicine cabinet door? Do you keep poisons under lock and key so the kids can't get at them? Do you know the signs of deterioration in tablets, solutions, suspensions, germicides and salves?

There's live ammunition in that family arsenal. The druggist can help you keep it safe.

SEVEN YEARS IS TOO LONG

Why President Eisenhower has asked Congress to approve a moratorium of seven years on the British debt is hard to understand. How does the President know that the United States is not going to desperately need the money during these seven years?

If a recession occurred, the United States would need the money.

Why not postpone the debt payments on a year-to-year basis, if Britain is experiencing financial difficulties? It seems foolish to commit the United States to such a long period.

Money, bled from the taxpayers, seems to mean nothing to the spenders in Washington.

The Houston Chronicle

Grade School News

We are having a lot of fun and enjoying this fine weather that we have been having the last several days. We have had ball games all over the play ground. We have found that it is not neccessary to have ten players on each side to have a very interesting ball game.

Our Fifth grade rooms have been reading about our Latin American neighbors. We have found out many interesting stories about the way they earn a living in Mexico and the South American countries. We were very fortunate in seeing a film about the school in Mexico. It is true that some schools are very small and attended by a very small number of children, but we also learned that they have some very modern elementary and technical high schools housed in some of the very finest buildings that are to be found in Mexico or any other country.

The Wichita Valley DHIA Association ranked second in the state in average pounds of milk which was 820 pounds, and tied for first place in the state in average pounds of butterfat, which was 31 pounds for this month.

5. House members investigating bribery charges questioned the former executive secretary of the Texas Naturopathic Association. But Albert D. Brown, who was with the organization back in 1955, could give only estimates and guesses on how TNA had spent some $20,000 raised during the last session for "legislative education."

6. John McCully, labor union employee had a difficult time accounting for his expenditures of union funds. In his operation of the union's publicity office, the Action Agency in Austin, he accidentally dropped a few political advertising bills into ICT files.

Big Push—

Legislators face a killing pace for the next few weeks if they are to finish session in 120 days

After that point, their pay ceases. Time is almost two-thirds gone. Multiple investigations have diverted a lot of time and energy. Important bills are stacked up.

But a major milestone, passage of the general appropriations bill, is in sight. Senate committee approved it for floor action this week. House already has passed it.

Senate committee's version differs slightly. It includes a 10 percent raise for lower bracket state employes, 15 percent for college teachers.

Wrapping up the big money bill will put the session over the hump in the minds of most members. Meanwhile, both houses are hacking at the small stuff. Special sessions have turned out local and uncontested bills at the rate of one a minute.

Code of Ethics —

Scandals and investigations put new impetus behind the administration-backed drive for a code of ethics and lobby registration act.

But it hasn't made the subject much easier to agree on than in previous sessions. Objectors claimed it isn't possible to pass a law making people honest.

House, nevertheless, passed a bill to third reading. It would require registration of persons paid to appear before state agencies. Officials would be prohibited from using their public office for private gain, accepting gifts, favors or services that might influence official action.

Sponsors fought off an attempted amendment requiring officials to file a written statement of their earning from all sources.

Delay Granted —

Physicians Life and Accident Ins. Co. has until April 11th to present a more favorable picture to the Insurance Commission.

Commission's show cause order alleged the firm's capital was impaired. Former Gov. Coke Stevenson, head of the Company said the management is making progress toward recovery of needed funds. He asked and was granted more time to prepare the case before the Commission.

Depositors Denied Preference—

U. S. Trust and Guaranty Co. creditors will have to share and share alike.

At least that is the decision of Austin Dist. Judge Charles O. Betts. Depositors had brought suit asking for first claim. Several contended the company's advertising by Drew Pearson, led them to believe their funds were being held in trust.

U. S. Trust went bankrupt more than a year ago. Assets salvaged by the liquidator total a little more than $2,000,000. Claims against it add up to nearly $7,000,000.

Distribution of these assets may be held up further if depositors decide to appeal.

Utilities Contest —

Private and cooperative utilities have moved the arena of their chronic combat from courts to Legislature.

A recent Supreme Court decision held that a co-op could continue to serve customers in an area annexed by a city but could not add customers in that area.

Co-ops are working for passage of a bill that would give them this right of expansion. It provoked hot debate before a Senate committee.

Private power company spokesman said the co-ops were trying to go far beyond the original concept of the rural electrification program. Co-op attorney contended present restriction would mean slow death to REA.

Bill was sent to subcommittee to work out compromise.

Water Bills Move —

Piece by piece, the mammoth water conservation program is moving forward.

Key feature, the $200,000,000 bond program to help finance local conservation projects, went to joint conference committee for final adjustments.

Senate committee gave approval to the next big item, another $200,000,000 bond issue. This would be used to buy water storage space in federal dams. Committee also approved a bill which would allow use of public storm and flood waters to recharge underground reservoirs.

New Youth Agency —

Creation of a state youth authority has received Senate committee approval.

New authority would have charge of the state's three training schools at Gatesville, Gainesville and Crockett. It would replace the present State Youth Development Council.

The school teacher who sparked the first community-wide Spring Clean-Up campaign 47 years ago, Miss Bertha M. Chapman, of Cleveland, Ohio, reminisces with Junior Fire Marshals Linda and Rollie Wells, also of Cleveland. The story of how a good deed by Miss Chapman touched off nationwide observance of Spring Clean-Up is told in the Spring issue of the Junior Fire Marshal magazine, now being distributed to 3,000,000 elementary-age school children. The magazine is part of the year-round Junior Fire Marshal program sponsored as a public service by the Hartford Fire Insurance Company. Now 82 years old and retired, Miss Chapman "accidentally" started Spring Clean-Up Week in 1909 when she presented a blue pinafore to an unkempt little girl in her class at Miles Park School. The child's mother was so impressed, she started tidying up around the house—removing trash and other combustibles. Soon, the neighbors and ultimately thousands of communities followed her example. Junior Fire Marshals are cooperating in Clean-Up campaigns from coast to coast.

In its 1956 annual report, Humble Oil and Refining Company looks back on forty years of progress since its organization in 1917.

Humble's operations began in March, 1917, with the consolidation of properties largely owned by its organizers and first directors, including R. S. Sterling, F. P. Sterling, W. S. Farish, R. L. Blaffer, W. W. Fondren, H. C. Wiess and C. B. Goddard.

During 1917 the company produced 8,800 barrels daily of net crude oil. Its first pipeline deliveries were in 1919 and its first runs to stills at the Bayton refinery were 1920.

In 1956, Humble produced 405,500 barrels daily of net crude oil and natural gas liquids, refined 261,800 barrels daily and delivered 699,700 barrels daily through trunk pipelines.

Since it started operations in 1917, Humble has produced about 2.5 billion barrels of petroleum liquids, refined some 2 billion barrels into products, and transported 5.2 billion barrels through its trunk pipelines. About half of this business has been done in the past 10 years, the report states.

At the end of 1956, the Company had about 8,900 shareholders and 19,000 employees. The shareholder's investment stood at $1,257,582,000. This investment includes large sums retained from earnings and risked in expansion of the business.

An increased volume of business operating revenues by about 10 percent over the previous year to $1,189,031,000 Rising costs, expenses, and taxes reduced profit margins per unit of production, however and caused the rate of return on investment to decline.

Humble's net income in 1956 was $178,961,100 or $4.99 a share. The increase of 2.3 per cent over 1955 was smaller than the rate of gain in volume of operations and in capital investments.

Capital expenditures were $183,908,000, a decrease from the previous year because expenditures for refining facilities were reduced by about the amount spent for the Bayton Butyl rubber and budadiene units in 1955. Of the total capital expenditures, oil and gas production facilities accounted for $155,460,000, or about 85 percent. In addition, the cost of dry holes and other current exploration expenses of $98,089,200 brought the total amount risked in searching for and developing oil and gas production to $253,549,200.

Expansion of exploratory activities resulted in a 30 percent increase in the number of rank wildcats drilled. Nearly one-third of Humble's exploratory wells proved to be discoveries and 21 of the 48 successful wells were gas producers.

Humble completed 905 wells in 1956 at an average cost of $131,600 compared with 857 wells completed in 1955 at an average cost of $130,500. Offshore drilling operations were accelerated in 1956 with the completion of 41 wells at an average cost of 580,400 per well. The cost of drilling wells in 1956 was $127,520,700, including $48,085,400 for dry holes.

At the end of 1956, the Company was operating 13,145 producing wells, an increase of 313 during the year. West Texas accounted for more than half of the net gain in wells.

Crude oil sales for export, which averaged 11,000 barrels daily in 1955, reached a peak of 156,300 barrels daily in December, 1956. Humble supplied 7,611,000 barrels for emergency export to Europe in November and December. Total sales of crude oil were the highest since 1948.

Humble is making additional investments in petrochemical units to meet demands for benzene and ethylene in the Gulf coast area. Its benzene and ethlyene units, now under construction will rank with the largest plants now making these chemical feed stocks.

The letter to shareholders and employees pointed out that during the four decades of its existence, Humble has contributed to the tremendous progress that has transformed petroleum from an art to a science, and to the supply of petroleum products vital to our national defense, our industrial expansion, and our general welfare.

News From The Congress

By Congressman Frank Ikard

The most important reason that we must win the current "battle of the Budget" is to be able to bring some real tax relief in the annual oppressive tax levies which are now imposed on the people of the country. We here in Congress must accept the responsibility of materially reducing the expenditures proposed in the President's budget. The reductions that we make must be sufficient to enable us to commence a program of general tax reduction and still keep the operation of our Government on a sound fiscal basis. Tax relief must be given both to individuals and to business, but it must be given in a responsible way. We cannot with any seriousness speak of tax reduction unless our expenditures are substantially reduced. It seems to me that now is the time, this year, to make the reductions that are necessary for us to start a general program of tax reduction. We cannot expect either individuals or business to endure for much longer the highly oppressive tax rates with which we are now saddled. People cannot be expected to continue to pay high special taxes that were imposed during World War II and the Korean war for an indefinite period. As far as the budget receipts are concerned, we have been in a dangerous upward trend. The total Budget receipts for the fiscal year 1956 were 68.1 Billion Dollars. The estimate for 1957 is 70.6 Billion Dollars, and the 1958 estimate is 73.6 Billion Dollars. These vast sums taken in taxes from the earnings of the American people have generated many inequities and hardships. There can be no question but what tax relief is necessary. Almost any segment of our economy can make an excellent case for tax relief and point to hardships that are worked on them by the present tax laws however, there can be little argument but what the first tax relief granted by Congress should be for the benefit of the individual tax payer.

A visitor from Wichita Falls this week was Mr. R. Marvin Pierce.

Teacher Shortage Looms In Texas

More than 100,000 Texas school children are in classrooms without a qualified teacher, Dana Williams, Texas teachers Association president, said today.

Williams pointed out that Texas education agency this school year has issued 3,062 emergency certificates to persons who could not qualify for a regular certificate.

The education agency is now issuing "teaching permits" at the rate of more than 125 each week, Williams said. These are granted to persons who are the best available, and many have only a high school diploma.

I think the people of Texas ought to have this information," the TSTA leader said, because it is an alarming situation."

Now pending before the 55th Legislature is an emergency teacher pay raise bill which would help solve the problem by keeping experienced teachers in the classrooms and attracting new, qualified ones, he explained. It would provide $399 increase to $3,204 in the state base minimum, plus $180 in increments.

It now appears that only $200 per teacher will be available for increased teachers salaries, if all the money remaining after the General Appropriations Bill is used for this purpose. This will not do the job; this will not solve the problem.

More money must be provided by the Legislature if Texas citizens are to keep qualified teachers for Texas boys and girls, Williams declared.

At least $50 million more is needed, not only for teachers salaries, but for increased state services now pending for solution before the Legislature, the TSTA spokesman maintained.

This is a problem not for school teachers alone, Williams pointed out. It is a problem for parents.

These emergency teachers are attempting to teach 100,000 Texas boys and girls today, ed. If the Legislature do provide increased teache aries, the situation will even worse and tens of ands of additional Texas will be directly affected time for parents to alarmed.

Dr. Robert M. Sims Named Chairman Correct Posture We'k

Appointment of Dr. Robert M. Sims of Burkburnett as city-county correct Posture Week chairman for this area was announced today.

His appointment was made by Dr. G. G. Bronson, Sr., of Fort worth, regional chairman for this area.

He is one of several hundred chairmen who have been named to direct Posture Week activities, May 1-7th in nearly 300 Texas cities and towns.

This will make the seventh straight year that the Texas State Chiropractic Association has sponsored the observance of Posture Week in Texas.

The purpose of Correct Posture Week, the sponsors said, was to stress to the public the importance of good posture and good health and the relationship of the spine to good posture.

A survey recently completed shows that at least 75 percent of the people have imperfect distribution of weight between the right and left sides, the regional chairman said.

"Imperfect body balance is conducive to many nerve irritations and strains, he said. For correct body balance the spinal column must be a straight line between the base of the skull and the pelvis, and true body balance must be preserved in order to avoid unnecessary nerve irritations.

Mrs. Wofford closed the prayers by offering thanks to the Heavenly Father for his ten der mercies and blessings poured out on the men giving them courage and strength to provide this lovely structure, realizing the fact that many of them had made many sacrifices.

The worthy matron expressed a deep appreciation to each protem for their service.

Delicious home made cookies, cakes and coffee were served by Bro. Gerald Tyler, past patron and his little daughter, Nancy, to twenty-two members and one visitor.

How is the television affecting your family life? To take stock, Mrs. Eloise Johnson, extension family life specialist, suggests a family conference on the matter. Consider the amount of read ing being done by each family member, the quality of school ork done by the children, the v and sleeping habits of the fan ly, and the amount of time the family spends talking together.

The US Childrens bureau lists six ways that you can use television to help the members of your family.

Study the programs that your children like best and notice how they react to them. There may be clues to emotional needs that parents can help fill, such as new experiences in actual life and more active normal friendships.

Share the programs with your older children. Discuss the stories and help them realize the difference between phoney and real life situations.

Guard against radio and television as a child's only outlet for natural impulses for aggressiveness.

Notice if your children seem to fall back on TV because there is nothing better to do.

Encourage children to choose programs that sharpen their curoisity about imporatnt things the lives of worthwhile people such as science, travel and the lives of worthwhile people.

Use television to bring your family together. When members must choose programs, share some and give up some, they learn to appreciate each others interests and rights.

The rabid dog is a constant threat to all children, asserts B. T. Haws, county agent, especially on warm spring days when large groups of youngsters congregate in play areas. Rabies is currently a serious problem in several sections of the state, he adds, and should be a subject of real concern to pet owners everywhere.

Haws says any warm-blooded animal is susceptible to rabies, but that it is most likely to be spread by the predator type. Symptoms are hard to define, explains the County Agent, but its a good practice to suspect any animal if it loses the fear of man

Keep under observation any suspicious animal should it bite a human, advises Haws. If the animal is not available, the person should be placed under competent medical supervision at once.

Texas law now empowers commissioners courts to declare the county a rabies control area. Haws says. This should extend more efficient control programs into the state's rural areas. Vaccination of all pets and strict im poundment of every stray dog are essential features of a good control program, he adds.

Wild animals sometimes carry the danger of rabies to farm and ranches, endangering livestock as well as farmers. Haws warns rural people to be on the lookout for strange-acting animals, particularly foxes, coyotes skunks and civet cats. Pets coming in contact with any suspicious domestic or wild animal should be given a booster shot, he warns, even if already protected by a standard rabies shot.

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health.
HENRY A. HOLLE, M.D., Commissioner

People who suffer with hypertension, or high blood pressure, nowadays have more reason for optimism than they would have had a generation ago.

In itself hypertension is not a disease. It's a sign of something wrong, like the stuffy feeling that comes with a cold. The dangeraccrues because of the possibility of serious heart or kidney damage when blood pressure is consistently high.

It isn't true that the higher the blood pressure the more reason to fear heart damage. Research has shown that temporary increases in pressure do not really make much difference. But even mild elevations in the blood pressure considered normal for the person involved, if the increase persists, may cause the walls of blood vessels to toughen, exactly as callouses are formed on hands by regular use of an axe or hoe.

In the most common type of high blood pressure, called essential hypertension," the tiny branches of arteries which carry blood to all body tissues (called arterioles) begin to tighten up. Blood passageways become smaller and smaller, and the heart has to work harder to push the blood through. After a time the blood vessels lose their elasticity and the heart muscles thicken with the extra work load. Result, high blood pressure, and ultimately heart damage.

What causes the arterioles to tighten and constrict? No one knows.

High blood pressure sometimes goes for a period of days or weeks, or even longer, and then drops back to normal. Sometimes it may jump from pure nervousness while your physician is examining you. Perhaps there is a connection between hypertension and the strain of modern life. People who work under constant stress, who worry too much, are often susceptible. Heredity is a probable factor and the condition occurs most often in persons between 30 and 50.

Low blood pressure seldom causes trouble. Afflicting relatively few people to a serious extent, the condition is usually a symptom of a specific disease which can frequently be treated successfully.

The thing which will count most in adding years to the life of hypertension suffers is the willingness to change their living habits, following the rules of moderation in everything. By getting under a doctor's care and following a few simple rules for moderate living, they can probably work and enjoy life as long or longer than their next door neighbors without high blood pressure.

There is nothing to gain from worry about your chances of developing hypertension. Just make it a point to have a physical examination at least once a year. And worry and argue as little as possible.

Farm Suggestions

Hungary cows grazing on rank clover are subject to bloat, states B. T. Haws, county agent. Feeding hay before turning cows on such pastures will not only help prevent this trouble, but will also provide an aid to more efficient digestion.

Silage is the best and cheapest supplement for good pasture Make plans now to put up at least 3 tons per cow. Six tons per cow will insure an adequate reserve.

Start fly control early. Eliminate breeding places by keeping manure hauled to the fields and by providing good drainage.

Poultry scientists have discovered that the addition of an ounce of molybdenum, a trace mineral, to 2,000,000 pounds of poultry feed can increase the market weight of the 200,000 birds produced on this amount of feed by 15 percent. This, they say, can add an additional $18,000 to the market value of the birds produced.

American families are continually changing their tastes and habits in eating, and these changes affect the markets for various types of farm products B. T. Haws said this week that these changes reflect a number of influences such as a general rise in family incomes and new marketing methods which make new and more foods generally available.

Alden Smith Wins 4-H Story Contest

Alden Smith, a national winner last year in the 4-H community Relations program and for several years an outstanding member of the Burkburnett 4-H club has been named as one of 10 winners in the "Time of your Life" story contest. The story covers his experiences at last year's National 4-H Club Congress.

The contest sponsored by the Elgin Watch company was open to more than 1,300 delegates who attended 4-H Congress. He will receive a 19 jewel wrist watch. The stories were judged by representatives of the Cooperative Extension Service and the National Committee on Boys and Girls club work, Chicago.

Young Smith has long been recognized for his ability to speak and write. In his story, he said, "4-H Congress with all its honor and excitment does not mean we have reached a medium in 4-H work, but it incites us to work for greater goals and achievements in the years of 4-H work we have remaining. Yes, rural American youth, you have the opportunity of being members of the world's greatest youth organization, the 4-H club.
