Notorious German Turncoat Returns To Western Powers

BONN, Germany (AP) — Dr. Otto John, the notorious German turncoat security chief, has returned to the West.

The West German government announced today that the debonair "man of a thousand secrets" who deserted to Communist East Germany 16 months ago had surrendered to West German security police.

German sources said he crossed into West Berlin yesterday and was flown secretly to West Germany the same afternoon.

He is being questioned by the prosecutor of the West German Supreme Court, a terse announcement added.

Where he is being held and how he eluded the Communist police was not revealed. It was known here that the East Germans suspected he might be planning to flee back to the West and had put him under constant surveillance.

His escape westward therefore may have involved considerable ingenuity on his part.

When Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told a meeting of his coalition government's parliamentary leaders that John was back in West Germany, they roared with laughter.

He bolted to the Communists on July 20, 1954, the 10th anniversary of the bomb plot putsch against Hitler in which he and his brother played prominent parts.

John's flight was postwar Germany's greatest security scandal. Rueful allied officials admitted that he had turned out to be Russia's master German spy.

Two months before he crossed by night into East Berlin he had dined in Washington with Allen Dulles, director of the United States' top-secret Central Intelligence Agency. For 10 years he had curried favor with the British secret service.

John had been director of West Germany's Office for Protection of Constitution. Its mission was to ferret out and expose Communist and Nazi plotters inside the Bonn republic, work directly connected not only with the security of the West German republic but also of the 400,000 Allied troops in the country.

After he joined the Communists publicly, John charged that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government was reviving Nazism and militarism. He said the "only forum" he could find to combat this trend was in the Communist East.

Before today's sensational announcement, he had been reported living in Potsdam, writing his memoirs and editorials for Communist publications.

Big Gifts Go To Hospitals And Colleges

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ford Foundation has showered half a billion dollars on the nation's privately supported colleges, universities and hospitals in history's greatest giveaway.

The huge gift, announced yesterday, was divided as follows:

To 615 regionally accredited, private colleges and universities, primarily to help raise teachers' pay — 210 million dollars;

To 3,500 privately supported hospitals located in all 48 states, plus Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico —200 million dollars;

To privately supported medical schools — 90 million dollars.

The grant to coleges and universities is in addition to 50 million dollars which the foundation announced last spring it would distribute to help raise teaching sallaries.

Thirty-six colleges and universities received more than one million dollars each. The largest gift —five million—went to New York University.

Other top gifts went to Harvard —$4,510,000; University of Chicago —$4,324,200; and Yale — $4,000,900. The smallest college grant was $31,900 for the California School of Fine Arts, San Francisco.

For hospitals, the gifts ranged from $250,000—a sum awarded to 57 institutions — to $10,000.

The 90 million dollars for medical schools has not yet been broken down into specific grants.

The gigantic program was given final approval by the foundation's Board of Trustees, headed by Henry Ford II, at a meeting last weekend. Recipients were notified by telegram and a number of institutions across the country at first though the good news was a hoax.

The foundation was quickly commended by medical and education leaders.

Harvard President Nathan Pusey called the grants a "splendid, imaginative effort to strengthen higher education in America . . . The special intent — to improve faculty salaries — is unreservedly praiseworthy."

Arctic Front Aims At State

By The Associated Press

An arctic cold front was due to move into the Panhandle Tuesday bringing subfreezing weather to a wide section of Texas.

Lows of 10-20 were forecast in the Panhandle by early Wednesday. The mercury was due to drop to 18-28 in the South Plains and 25-30 in North Central Texas. Freezing weather was forecast for the northern part of East Texas and most of West Texas.

The Weather Bureau said there was little likelihood of snow although scattered showers could be expected in East and South Central Texas.

Fair and warmer weather was forecast for Tuesday for the southern half of the state before the cold wave moves in.

Skies were clear early Tuesday. Temperatures ranged from 24 at Lufkin to 44 at Corpus Christi.

Mrs. Worden Is Cleared On Murder Count

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Sunny Canales Worden yesterday was freed by a county grand jury of charges she murdered her husband on lonely Padre Island in October.

The 42-year-old mother of three children said after learning of the grand jury action, "I have been fairly dealt with and vindicated . . . I am deeply grateful."

The body of her husband Don, 43-year-old San Antonio real estate man, was found Oct. 29 in a shallow grave on Padre Island, just off the Texas coast near here. Mrs. Worden several days later told Texas Rangers she killed him and buried his body after he had made her dig a grave and said he was going to force her to kill her 5-year-old daughter and herself.

Mrs. Worden told officers that Worden had beat her, shot at her and burned her with cigarettes during their brief marriage.

The grand jury told Judge Paul Martineau that "there are not sufficient facts to support a charge of murder against anyone."

Dist. Atty. Sam Burris declined comment.

Mrs. Worden told officers Worden got $90,000 cash and a $45,000 home from her by giving her drugs and hypnotizing her. She said she, Worden and her daughter, Maria; 5, went to Padre Island. After he threatened to force her to kill the child and herself, Mrs. Worden said she grabbed his pistol and shot him.

Concert By Rubinoff Slated Here Tonight

Rubinoff will be presented in a concert at the High School auditorium here tonight under sponsorship of the Snyder Kiwanis Club.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets, both for reserved seats and general admission, will be on sale at the box office.

Reserved seat tickets sell for $1.65 each, while general admission tickets are $1.10 each, tax included.

The Snyder Kiwanis Club will use its share of the receipts in the club's underprivileged children's fund. The club already has planned its annual Christmas activity, which will include distribution of food and toys to underprivileged families here.

Bond Election May Be Held

The city council decided last night that a city bond election should be called to pay for a long-range city improvement program which would include paving of streets, expansions to the sewer system, water system, and additional fire protection.

The firm of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper had been retained by the city to make a comprehensive study of the city's ability to handle such an improvement program, and to outline the immediate and long range improvements needed.

In four categories, the total bond issue to be voted on will be $300,000, with that divided $175,000 for street improvement, $50,000 for a fire substation to be located somewhere in southwest Snyder, and purchase of two additional fire trucks, $35,000 for water plant expansion, and $40,000 for sewer plant improvement and extensions.

In the street paving part of the program, the $175,000 would provide sufficient money to pay the city's one-third share in the cost of paving 150 blocks of city streets, and seal coating 220 blocks of presently paved streets.

The $50,000 for improvements to the fire department would cover cost of one ladder truck for the central fire station, another 750-gallon pumper truck, and a two-truck station for southwest Snyder. Plans for the station are not complete, but it has been decided it would be built to conform to the surrounding residential architecture and materials. One of the pumper trucks presently housed in the central fire station would be moved to the new sub station along with the one the city hopes to purchase under the bond issue.

The $35,000 expansion to the water plant would cover cost of construction of another 1,000,000-gallon sedimentation basin, similar to the one now in use. The filtration plant just completed has a capacity double that of the sedimentation basin, and the additional basin would balance the plant, and permit it to operate at full capacity.

Roy Dunlap, city manager, and engineers for the city have estimated that the additonal sedimentation basin would permit the city water plant to handle the city's water needs for seven to eight more years without further expansion after the basin is added, if city growth estimates are not exceeded.

The $40,000 sewer plant expansion program is necesary to handle the anticipated sewer disposal needs in the future.

The bonds would not all be issued at one time, but the program would be stretched to cover several years growth, with the street paving and improvements planned for the years of 1956-57, the fire substation and trucks for 1957-58, the water plant expansions for the years of 1958-59, and the sewer plant expansions for 1959-60.

The council plans to meet Jan. 9, and authroize the bond election. No date has been set for the election as yet.

K. O. Pitner, city office employe, was appointed acting city secretary to succeed Charlie Duckworth, city secretary, who has resigned to take a similar position with the city of Garland. Duckworth plans to leave Snyder about Jan. 1.

Rita Hayworth Gets Mail Order Divorce

RENO (AP) — Actress Rita Hayworth yesterday won a "mail order" divorce from Dick Haymes, her fourth husband.

Countian To Head Ag Workers Group

Henry G. Burchett, county office manager for the Scurry Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation committee, was elected president this morning of a new four-county Agriculture Workers Council at a meeting held in Sweetwater.

Organization of the council was completed at the breakfast meeting. The breakfast was sponsored by the National Bank of Sweetwater. Preliminary work on organization was done during the past month by Grady Elder, manager of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce; A. C. Bishop, manager of the Sweetwater Board of City Development; Frank Craddock, manager of the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce, who died a few days ago; and agriculture committee chairmen of each of those organizations, including Max West of Snyder.

The Agriculture Workers Council will be made up of professional and commercial agricultural workers from Scurry, Nolan, Mitchell, and Fisher Counties, as well as other persons interested in agriculture. It will have informal monthly breakfast meetings, will have no constitution and by-laws, and will meet for one hour only each time. The council will discuss agricultural problems and arrive at a satisfactory common answer to the problems.

Officers other than Burchett who were elected this morning were James S. Norman, Fisher County agricultural agent, first vice-president; Raymond Holt, Loraine vocational agriculture instructor, second vice-president; Jack Burkhalter, Mitchell County agricultural agent, secretary; and Randal Reeves, of the Soil Conservation Service at Sweetwater, program chairman. The officers were nominated by a committee headed by Kenneth Goforth, Snyder vocational agricultural instructor.

Nolan von Roeder made a bid for the next meeting, on the second Tuesday of January, to be held in Snyder, and the group voted for the bid. The meeting will be at the Hilander Restaurant. Meetings will be alternated, by bid, among the four counties.

Elder presided at this morning's meeting, which was attended by between 60 and 70 persons. The largest representation there was from Scurry County.

Guests attending the meeting included J. C. Porter, agricultural representative of the First National Bank of Wichita Falls and chairman of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce agriculture committee; Joe Birdwell, Wichita Falls oil operator and long-time farmer; Bob Cocker, Iowa Park ASC man who is president of the Archer-Clay-Wichita County Agriculture Workers Council; Earl Sargent, agricultural representative of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce; and Loyan Walker, agricultural representative of the WTCC.

The Wichita Falls men gave reports on organization six years ago of their AWC and progress made by the council since its organization. Theirs was the first in Texas. There have, since then, been seven more organized, three of which completed organization only a few days ago.

Birdwell said he had, in many years of farming, watched the productive capacity of Texas below the Caprock decline gradually during the past few years and that he backed organization of the council in his area to help co-ordinate the various agricultural agencies and to help bring the soil back to a better state of cultivation. Everything possible should be done, he said, to conserve the soil and to keep the water where it falls. He emphasized that the council members will find that, through co-ordinated efforts all agencies and all counties can do better jobs and that in doing so will create a spirit of clean competition among counties.

Porter pointed out that much can be accomplished in agriculture workers of four counties just becoming acquainted, that all will acquire a better knowledge of each other's problems and appreciate what other workers are trying to do, that exceptionally good jobs done by any agency or worker can be pointed out through the council, that the workers can decide on common goals and push seasonal projects together, that informal meeting make for plenty of discussion and assimilation of all ideas, that recommendations of such a council will represent the best thinking of all agencies of four counties and will be respected by agriculturists. He said that through their council, workers in his area pushed planting of summer and winter legumes and that planting actually increased. He named other successful projects of the council.

Cocker and Sargent both pointed out accomplishments of the council through their own experiences and that of their organizations.

Nation's Third Sex Increases In Number, Physician Claims

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN

CHICAGO (AP)—A St. Louis physician said today he is completely convinced a third sex—the neutral gender— is rapidly increasing in numbers.

Dr. William H. Masters said members of the third sex are "former males and females" whose sex glands fail to secrete adequate hormones during the aging process.

Although there is marked variation among individuals, he said, some women reach the stage before they are 50 and some men, not until after 70. Women average 15 years ahead of men, he said.

Dr. Masters said members of the neutral gender have passed the reproductive age and suffer from senile physical and mental symptoms.

Other investigators have described them as persons developing a distinct lack of the usual characteristics of their sex. They suffer from a loss of interest in their appearance and in cleanliness.

Dr. Masters said the injection of a combination of the male and female hormones, testosterone and estrogen, brought significant improvement among 75 per cent of a group treated.

Dr. Masters, of the department of obstetrics and gynecology of the Washington University School of Medicine, described the therapy in a prepared paper at the annual clinical meeting of the American Academy of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

He said a controversy exists among doctors whether the artificial administration of sex hormones is desirable as a general thing. He added, however, that the constantly increasing life span is placing more men and women into the third sex category.

Persons treated for the condition with sex hormones generally reach a plateau of improvement, but evidence of physical and mental senility returns when treatment is stopped, he said.

Mother, 3 Tots Shot And Killed In Dallas

Husband Hit In Capture

DALLAS (AP) — Buford Calhoun, 32, unemployed auto repairman who murdered his estranged wife and three infant children today, died shortly after noon.

He is believed to have shot himself when officers closed in on him at a neighborhood drug store on the east edge of Dallas about 9:30 a.m.

DALLAS (AP)—A mother and her three infant children were shot and killed in their east Dallas home early today by an estranged husband who was captured several hours later in a gunfight.

Buford V. Calhoun, 32, was shot through the temple by police Sgt. G. E. John in a telephone booth at a big new neighborhood drug store in the east edge of Dallas about 9:30 a.m.

John said Calhoun fired one shot from a .22 caliber pearl-handled revolver as officers closed in on him.

About 50 customers screamed and ran as bullets whined about the interior.

Killed about 4:30 a.m. were Mrs. Mary Calhoun, 33; Bobby Lynn, 19 months, and her twin daughters, about 6 months old. All had been shot through the head.

Critically wounded was John Warren, 19, Mrs. Calhoun's son-in-law by a previous marriage. He was unable to tell officers what happened.

Calhoun had telephoned his sister-in-law about 8:15 a.m. and told her about the slayings. She said he told of also using a saber on the bodies.

Officers found a "bayonet-type knife" in the front seat of Calhoun's car parked near the drug store.

Police Lt. G. M. Dowdy and other officers were waiting at the relative's home in hopes Calhoun might try to contact them. Dowdy talked to Calhoun for about 20 minutes while the telephone call was traced as originating from the drug store. Calhoun was still talking to Dowdy when the officers appeared outside the booth.

Sgt. John fired four times after Calhoun shot at him.

Viki Metcalf, 19, drug store cashier, said Calhoun's bullet narrowly missed her. She had given him change for a telephone call just a few minutes before.

"I was standing there by the phonograph records," she said. "That's about 25 feet from the phonograph booths. The police came in and told me to get out of the way. I moved over to my cashier's cage and that is where I was when he shot."

Police said she had been almost in line for the bullet.

Truce Team Pushes Probe

JERUSALEM (AP) — U. N. truce observers pressed their investigation today into Israel's raid on Syrian posts along the Sea of Galilee, one of the bloodiest Israeli-Arab battles since the 1948 Palestine War.

Reports of casualties in the attack Sunday night still conflicted. Israel claimed 55 Syrians killed and 29 captured and admitted 4 Israelis killed and 12 wounded. Syria said her losses were 25 dead and 28 missing, and the Damascus radio claimed 100 Israeli soldiers killed or wounded.

The U. N. investigators could report only a provisional figure of 41 Syrian dead, with Israeli casualties not yet determined.

A communique from the truce supervisory organization said its chief of staff, Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, "regrets this retaliatory action which brought about such heavy loss of life." Burns expressed his sympathy "to the wounded and the relatives of the dead."

Drugs Helping Mental Cases

AUSTIN (AP) — Shorter hospital stays for mental patients is possible because of new drugs, the State Hospital Board heard yesterday.

With the drugs the turnover in the state's institutions has brought a drop in the rolls despite a declining death rate among patients and a larger number of admissions, Dr. Rawley Chambers said.

The three has set a precedent because before, admissions outnumbered discharges. Chambers said the "future is quite encouraging but we still have lots of patients."

Chambers said 9,866 patients had been admitted during the past fiscal year ending Aug. 31. He said 10,149 were discharged, a drop of 283 in the mental institutions.

Chambers said figures from all institutions in the hospital system disclosed a decline of 106 patients.

The two new drugs mainly responsible are reserpine and chlorpromazine, he said.

Engagement To Four Men By Girl Backfires

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Miss Amadea Avanzado is being sued for $202,831.66 by four men, all of whom say she was engaged to marry them.

The suit charged she "was engaged in the practice of imposing upon men of Filipino ancestry, promising to marry them in exchange for favors, gifts and money."

Their attorney explained: There is but one woman for every 20 men in San Francisco's Filipino colony.

Pilot Of Interceptor Killed On State Line

KINGSTON, Okla. (AP)— An Air Force pilot was killed last night when his F-86D jet interceptor crashed in a wooded area six miles southeast of here on the Oklahoma-Texas line.

Wreckage was scattered over a half-mile area when the plane exploded as it hit the ground. Farmers joined state troopers and units from Kingston and Durant, 18 miles east, in fighting a grass fire which blazed out of control for two hours.

Program Of Savings For County Slated

The county commissioners court is making a move this month to save the county several thousand dollars in interest by refunding a number of four per cent warrants and issuing the same amount in two and one-half per cent bonds which will be retired much sooner than would have the warrants.

Being refunded this week are $122,000 in warrants dated July 1, 1949, which had been issued for improvements on the county courthouse. The four per cent warrants were due out to 1976, while the bonds to be issued will be due within seven years. C. M. Smith of Abilene of the First Southwest Co., which is representing the county in the transactions, said this would effect a saving of about $55,000 in interest.

Smith said that attempts are being made, as approved by the commissioners court, to refund $100,000 four per cent road and bridge warrants which are due out in 1979. The saving on the warrants now being refunded and on those which may be refunded would be some $96,000 in interest, he said.

Smith said that the commissioners court is attempting to arrange the county's program so that bonded indebtedness can be paid off while the oil is still here so no tax rate increase will be required in doing so. If the second transaction is carried through, that to refund the road and bridge warrants and turn them into short-term bonds, then the county's bonds and warrants will all be due to be retired by 1962.

Once these warrants are turned into bonds, they can be retired much quicker. In addition to a large amount of funds in the county's interest and sinking funds to pay on bonded indebtedness, the county has investment funds for each of the bond and warrant programs. These investments came from surplus tax collections. "Surplus" taxes are those collected over the percentage of expected collections. This county's budget, as well as the budget of any county in the state, is based on an estimate of approximately 90 per cent collection of tax assessments Scurry County's tax collections, however, have been from 95 to 98 per cent of assessments. Since something must be done with the surplus over the budget, the county places this surplus in securities. These funds, in addition to the interest and sinking funds, will eventually go into debt retirement at such time as debts can be paid off, according to County Judge Edgar Taylor.

Smith said that bond issues completely paid off during the past two to four years included $9,000 in 1951 road and bridge bonds, $30,000 in 1951 road bonds, $9,000 in general funding warrants of 1937 $62,000 in courthouse warrants of 1945, $16,500 in permanent improvement refunding warrents of 1937 and $35,000 in special road warrants of 1939. These are only those issues completely paid, and the figures do not include that paid on

Ike Plan Gets Nod By Demos

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower reviewed his foreign and defense programs with congressional leaders of both parties today, and won at least a partially favorable reaction from Democrats.

Details of the programs were not disclosed, but the White House said administration officials laid before the lawmakers a stepped up program of foreign aid and overseas information.

Chairman Russell (D-Ga) of the Senate Armed Services Committee told reporters: "I think the defense program looks fairly good."

But Russell added that congressional committees will want to go over the administration proposals in detail before committing themselves.

After the meeting, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President volunteerd the following comment to the senators and House members who met with him from 8:30 a.m. to 11:10 a.m.

"I want to give my thanks and my very real gratitude to the leaders on both sides of the aisle in the Senate and the House of Representatives for the very great contributions they have made and are making to true bipartisanship."

Hagerty also read a statement approved by all those at the meeting. It said:

"The President met today with the leaders of both political parties in the Senate and the House of Representatives for a bipartisan conference on the problems of foreign affairs and national defense which will be submitted to the 1956 Congress.

"Subjects under discussion included foreign affairs, the national defense budget, mutual security appropriations, the program of the U.S. Information Agency, policies on the question of disarmament and the organization for trade cooperation.

Pool Opener In Andrews Flows

Walter J. Ducease of Midland completed his No. 1 Superior-University as a flowing discovery from the upper Clear Fork, in Southwest Andrews County, 17 miles southwest of Andrews.

On the potential test the new pool opener flowed 251.09 barrels of 40 gravity oil, plus three per cent water in 24 hours, through a 3-1-64-inch choke. Casing pressure was 190 pounds and tubing pressure was 220 pounds.

The production was from perforaged sections at 5,606-26 feet and 5,632-46 feet. Thos. intervals had been fractured with 10,000 gallons of sand oil.

Total depth is 5,940 feet. The 5½ inch casing is cemented on bottom.

The well is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of the northwest quarter of section 25, block 11, Universith survey.

Ducease is now moving in rotary to drill his No. 1 Texas Co. University, a one-half mile south outpost to the discovery.

It will be 660 feet from south and east lines of section 26, block 11, Universtiy survey. Project destination is 6,000 feet or a test of the upper Clear Fork at a lesser depth.

Operator will request a new discovery allowable and a new field designation. The name Embar (5,600-Upper Clear Fork) will be suggested for the field.

Howard and Crane Counties have gained new wildcat sites.

N. P. Powell, Abilene, No. 1 E. E. O'Daniel will be drilled as an 8,000-foot exploration six miles southwest of Vincent in Northeast Howard County.

Drillsite is 330 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 28, block 27, H&TC survey.

Gulf Oil Cop. No. 28 W. A. Estes is and 8,000-foot wildcat 10 miles northeast of Grandfalls in Southwest Crane County.

Location is 1,989 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 3, block B-28, psl survey.

Brahaney Drilling Co. has completed two Devonian wells in the North Russell field of Northwest Gaines County.

No. 1 Andrew Fasken was finaled for a daily flow of 449 barrels of 40.2-gravity oil, through 18-64-inch choke and from open hole at 10,950-11,040 feet after 2,500 gallons of acid. Gas-oil ratio was 106-1.

Location is 990 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of Northwest quarter of section 450, block G, CCSD&RGHG survey.

Brahaney No. 2 Fasken, 330 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of same section, was finaled for a daily flow of 374.4 barrels of 40.2-gravity oil, through 18-64-inch choke, and from open hole at 10,927-11,030 feet, natural. Gas-oil ratio was 87-1.

other bond and warrant issues not yet retured.

In addition to the warrants now being retired and replaced by bonds and the $100,000 in warrants which may be retired and replaced by bonds, here are other figures on bond and warrant debts, with original amount of the bonds or warrants, amount still owed, date of scheduled retirement, amount of investments from surplus collections, and amount in the sinking funds:

Hospital bonds of 1951, originally $400,000, now $210,000, to be retired by 1961, $13,000 investments, $56,978.51 in sinking fund.

Special road bonds of 1951, originally $2,500,000, now $1,322,000, to be retired by 1961, $16,000 investments $278,824.95 in sinking fund.

Airport Bonds of 1950 originally $200,000 now $87,000, to be retired by 1960, $14,000 investments, $24,026.72 in sinking fund.

Special road bonds of 1949, originally $125,000, now $41,000, to be retired by 1959, $37,000 investments, $24,438.64 in sinking fund.

General funding warrants of 1937 originally $34,000, now $9,000, to be retired by 1960, $11,000 investment, $719.19 in sinking fund.

Park bonds of 1952, originally $350,000, now $220,000, to be retired by 1962, $15,000 investments, $44,424.51 in sinking fund.

Road and bridge warrants of 1941, originally $52,500, now $45,000, to be retired by 1966 but paid 100 per cent by state aid from state road tax.

There is also a total of $79,000 investments on the $100,000 road and bridge warrants which the county is attempting to refund, as well as $26,000 on the courthouse improvement warrants which are being refunded and turned into bonds.

Smith said that there will be $419,000 paid early in 1956 from the sinking fund on bonded indebtedness. He added that there is now a total of $255,000 of investments in interest and sinking funds as of Nov. 1.

Son Of Snyderites Arrives In Okinawa

Army Pvt. Irival E. Ham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Ham, 2405 Twenty - sixth Street, Snyder, recently arrived on Okinawa and is now a member of the 97th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Group.

A strong U. S. outpost in the Far East, Okinawa is located off the coast of China between Formosa and the southern tip of Japan.

Private Ham entered the Army in June 1955 and completed basic training at Fort Ord, Calif. He was last stationed at Fort Bliss, Tex.

The eighteen-year-old soldier attended Snyder High School.

New Memorial Is Rising In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10 (AP) — A dramatic memorial to American independence is rising amidst the faded elegance of historic Old Philadelphia.

The state of Pennsylvania and the federal government are building two parks in the area in which they hope to recapture some of the flavor, as well as the actual scenes, of Old Philadelphia.

Behind the project are years during which the historic site deteriorated as Philadelphia spread into the surrounding farmlands. Progress left Old Philadelphia a drab, run-down commercial district, almost forgotten and seldom visited.

Old Philadelphia is an area about one mile square along the Delaware River. It was the original city, the largest in the colonies during the revolutionary era. As such, and because of its central location in the colonies, it became the gathering point for early America's most eminent statesmen.

It was here, in Independence Hall on July 4, 1776, that a document written by Thomas Jefferson to express the thinking of these statesmen, called the Declaration of Independence, was adopted.

And some eleven years later, with the war won but the independence frayed, a convention met and drew up the Constitution.

The area played its role as the national capital and financial center of the new nation for a number of years. Then the pageant moved elsewhere.

Postoffice Issues Booklet On Parcels

Helpful facts about the wrappoing and shipping of packages are contained in an illustrated pamphlet, "Packaging and Wrapping Parcels for Mailing," which is available free at the Snyder post office, according to Postmaster Dawson Moreland.

The pamphlet, excerpted from the postal manual, describes types and sizes of cartons best suited for outer and inner shipping containers; gives details for internal protection of goods being shipped; lists hints on wrapping chinaware, stemware, framed pictures, books, and other goods; and gives instructions for making various parcels to insure quickest possible delivery.

Written instructions are accompained by numerous illustrations showing how to wrap and tie packages securely.

Another free pamphlet, "Domestic Postage Rates and Fees" will answer, along with the other pamplet, all questions any user of the mails might have on fees, rates, special services, and protection of parcels in transit, Morland said.

He emphasized that much of the delay in delivery of parcels, particularly during the Christmas season, and most of the damage enroute is due to lack of knowledge of basic rules to follow in mailing packages.

Bank Dividend Declared Here

The West Texas State Bank, in its regular December meeting declared a dividend of $1.50 per share to be paid to its more than 100 stockholders, Nolan Watson, president, announced today.

This is a total of $3 per share in dividends declared by the bank this year. Its other $1.50 dividend was in June.

The bank was opened in Snyder Jan. 14, 1950, with capital of $25,000. Capital was changed to $125,000 in 1952, and it now stands at $200,000, as does certified surplus.

Expansions and improvements made by the bank since its opening include addition one floor and addition of a two - window drive-in bank.

Two Special Groups Named

Two special committees were appointed by Nolan von Roeder, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in the chamber's regular board meeting last night.

One of those committes will make nominations for directors to be elected in 1956. The directors will be elected by ballots mailed members. Ed Bolger is chairman of that committee, which also includes H. W. Cargile and Bob Crowell.

The other committee will perform work toward selection of a speaker for the chamber's annual membership banquet. Members of that committee are Harold Bennett, J. T. Hughes, Herbert Feather, and Crowell.

The board heard a report from the agriculture committee on work toward forming a four-county Agriculture Workers Council, which was organized this morning, and a report from the highway and traffic committee on the chamber's representation at a hearing before the State Highway Commission concerning designation of several farm roads in this area as a state highways.

Santa Claus Plays Piano

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP)—The honorary mayor of Sherman Oaks is causing some of the worst traffic jams ever in this San Fernando Valley community.

The mayor is pianist Liberace, who went all out in decorating his $100,000 home for the Christmas season. The result is a steady stream of automobiles that has brought traffic police out the past two nights.

Personal appearances by the smiling pianist to greet some of the onlookers isn't helping to slow down things any.

Atop the modernistic showplace is a bamboo Santa Claus playing a baby grand piano. On the piano is the inevitable candelabra. Nearby is a bamboo-silhouetted reindeer and sleigh.

The whole creation, in modern design, was the brain child of Liberace.

From the piano comes high fidelity recordings of Liberace's Christmas album entitled "Christmas at the Liberaces'."

To Colorado City

Mrs. C. C. Baine and daughter, 3104 Avenue W, was carried to Root Memorial Hospital in Colorado City by Bell Ambulance. They were entered as medical patients.

HITLER'S PRIVATE LIFE

Hitler Calls His Generals Traitors

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in the series on the private life of Adolf Hitler as told by his personal valet.)

BY HEINZ LINGE
Hitler's Personal Valet

(WORLD COPYRIGHT 1955)

BERLIN. – When reports came in after D-Day that soldiers from all parts of the British Empire were in the invasion army, Hitler sneered:

"I expected that. England had always been able to get other people to fight and sweat for them. But our day will come when the German Reich will be in that position."

The Allied air raids on Germany were mounting. Night after night, Hitler waited at Ober Salzberg for the latest news. We knew from radar headquarters the minute Allied planes were taking off and in to Hitler came the latest details on number, height, speed and direction.

When there were raids there was no rest for Hitler. He could not sleep, and never went to bed until he knew the extent of the latest damage.

I can see him now, standing at the darkened window, looking into the night, watching the criss-cross of searchlights over Munich. Despondently he would turn away and say, "There are no German fighters in the air to stop them."

He would grit his teeth and his jaw muscles would twitch as he added: "They fly over our heads now like a parade. If only we had enough Duesen Jaegers, we could beat them yet."

Ober Salzberg itself was never attacked. An elaborate smokescreen apparatus had been installed over a wide area and when daytime attacks were expected the whole area was shrouded in smoke.

We were at Rastenburg when the news came in that the Eder dam had been blown up by the RAF. Hitler had not gone to bed when Bormann brought the news. He pressed his hands to his head and shouted in a raging fury: "There was not enough flak. It was not good enough. There were not enough balloons in position. My instructions were that the flak should be so intense that planes would have to keep too high to hit the dam. To do what they did tonight, they must have come in low." He was in a dreadful temper with Goering, who tried to explain away the disaster. He met with the blunt retort:

"You are lying. Your frightened men of the Luftwaffe should cut a slice off the cake of the RAF and see if it will help them start fighting again."

Goering was shaken. But his excuses were brushed aside again and again with "Lies, lies, lies. Nothing but lies."

In the privacy of the working room, Hitler said to me:

"This is catastrophic. The dams are our greatest catastrophe. If Berlin or Munich had been destroyed, our industries would have been hit, but not so badly as today. This is a blow at our arteries and now our chances of life begin to ebb."

He immediately began to worry about the effect the destruction of the dams would have on the population of the great industrial area which lay all around. When people have no work to do, he said, they begin to grumble and to complain of their masters.

Only 10 percent of all workers in that part of Germany reported for work the next day. In the following days, 30 percent reported. Then gradually, as the workmen fixed their damaged homes or found new ones, they began to come back, but it was more than a week before all those who had escaped drowning reported for duty.

I remember that Hitler sat down with pencil and paper and calculated the British losses on the two attacks and compared them with the damage they had caused.

"The English have done good business," he said. "They have caused more damage than their losses."

This calculating was a habit he followed with each military risk. He put a currency value on each of his plans for the conquest of Europe.

It became obvious from his remarks that he was coming to the conclusion that he would have to make a great offensive against the West before Stalin would be ready to attack in the East. On many occasions he had said he had complete confidence that General Guderian could hold the Russians in a stalemate while he had a showdown in the West.

We went to Butzbach near Bad Nauheim where another headquarters similar to Wolschanze, from which he conducted his operations against the Russians, had been set up. This one was called Adlerhorst, or Eagle's Nest.

Again he sent for the weather experts – this was December 1944 – and asked for the next period of bad weather "so the RAF will be grounded and not able to interfere with my plans."

Given the forecast, Hitler called a conference of senior officers from the Western front. On the day they assembled, each was searched by the police, and every general or colonel connected with the operations had to sign a document that they would not betray to anyone what was said at the conference.

Later, Hitler remarked, "Because I made them sign an oath not to betray my plans, this was the only time during the war when something was not given away to the enemy."

Hitler disclosed his plan to drive between the British and American armies to the coast of Holland. He told the officers he would send in his finest divisions, including his own Lifeguards under Sepp Dietrich and the division commanded by General Model in a blitz effort to bring a quick decision in favor of Germany. He told them the force should emulate the blitzkrieg on France in 1940 and go straight to the objective, ignoring towns and strongpoints on the way, so long as they could drive a wedge between the invading armies.

General Guderian, in charge of the Eastern front, begged Hitler to look at the situation in the East and not pull out any troops from the Russian front. Hitler brushed aside his objections and said, "My main object at the moment is in the West. If the operation I am planning is successful, this will be the end of the war. Russia will collapse when I have beaten the West." Hitler was promised bad weather and immediately ordered the attack. For the first few days, all went well and Hitler was in an extremely good mood. The RAF was grounded for all practical purposes and Hitler looked forward to the complete victory he had prophesied.

But on the fourth day the weather cleared and eventually Rumstedt came to Hitler and said that they could not go forward any more. The RAF were up en masse and no German planes were operating anywhere.

Once again Goering was summoned. "Where is your Luftwaffe?" Hitler screamed at him.

Goering replied he would scrape together everything he had to fight the RAF.

But Hitler was not appeased, and he again quoted Frederick the Great to him, that an enemy should be hit as hard and as often as possible so that they would be bound to ask for peace.

Now Hitler began to occupy himself with detail work which should have been dealt with by others. He was trying to allocate guns, tanks and soldiers on a personal basis. He was speaking to individual commanders about their problems and when he retired to his own rooms he turned to me wearily and said:

"The German people really should get to know my worries. I don't get any sleep any more, and yet all I am thinking of day and night is of the ultimate victory of the German Reich."

Several times he recalled the first war and how at the end the Kaiser was deserted by all his people.

"In that war," he said, "the German people went to fight joyfully and without thought of the immediate future. And after four years of war they had had enough.

"This time, my people entered the war with a clear mind and their eyes wide open. They knew what lay ahead and they trusted my plans for a greater German Reich. They are not weary, now that we are approaching the sixth year of the war. They are still behind me. There is no danger that the army will be stabbed in the back by the people.

"The people are loyal and faithful. It is only my generals who are the traitors. It is only the aristocrats who are against me. It was the great industrial magnates who opposed me in the days before the war who broug my first gray hairs. It was the people with the minds of cavalrymen who opposed me when I wanted to build tanks. It is only those people and their like who are opposing me today.

"It is not birth that makes a Russian soldier but what he does. My generals have forgotten how to look forward. They can only look back. They only come to ask me if they can retreat. No one ever asks me if he can go forward."

Of course, I am quoting from memory, but I think I have given Hitler's exact meaning to the strain I heard on so many occasions.

One period I will never forget was the turn of the year in December, 1944, when the bad news came from the East. Stalin had started a great Russian offensive.

Hitler had mentioned earlier that he had news that Churchill wrote to Stalin asking for an immediate Russian offensive to save disaster in the West. "But," Hitler added, 'the Russians cannot be ready for two or three months yet, and by that time we will have disposed of the West."

His first reaction, when he heard that the Russians were stirring on the Eastern front, was to think of the Siegried line. He sent me to find a document which he had prepared and sent to his general staff about the West Wall. Meanwhile, he ordered back the corps under Sepp Dietrich and General Model to bolster the Russian front. I think this was in January, and it meant that nearly a quarter of a million men were moved across Germany.

After I found the document, Hitler called a conference of his generals. He had come to the conclusion that if the worse came to worst, he would order his army in the West to retreat to the West Wall and there hold out while he dealt with the Russians in the East.

I had read the document and in it Hitler had given clear instructions on how the West Wall was to be strengthened and extended until it ran from the sea in the North to neutral Switzerland in the South. New and stronger guns were to be mounted there and all fortifications were to be strengthened.

This was one of the stormiest scenes of all.

One by one, Hitler asked the generals if the plans had been carried out. One by one, they reported that nothing had been done. The near-obsolete guns had not been replaced. The anti-tank guns Hilter ordered were not there. Nothing had been done about the concrete and steel reinforcements.

Hitler was stunned. But he was not silent. The general staff was blitzed as no other general staff in history on that day. He screamed at them!

"I should never had started a war with generals like you. As long as things were going well you came here to collect your medals. You basked in the honor and glory I bestowed on you. Now you are betraying me."

Soon he knew that the West Wall had been overcome, and, although he refused to admit the possibility of defeat, he began to prepare for the defense of Berlin itself.

He issued an order to the army and the general public alike. The tenor of it was: "We must put our claws into the earth and keep every yard of it. We must fight and fight and fight."

Hunt Started For Big Game By Sportsmen

By DION HENDERSON
The Associated Press

This is the season of the year when hunters, like hasty kids opening Christmas packages, throw away the most enduring and useful part of their big game trophies —the part that it came wrapped in.

From coast to coast and from Arctic Circle to the Gulf, several million hunters either had just finished, now are enjoying, or are preparing big game hunts.

And when they're through, hundreds of thousands of deer, antelope, elk, sheep, goat, bear and even moose and buffalo skins will be left on hand. What will happen to these items that in Hiawatha's time made raiment for the forest residents?

Well, most of them will be stored briefly in basements, then transferred outdoors and presently, at the urging of the neighbors, buried out behind the garage.

But they needn't be. Not any skin a hunter figures is worth its salt, literally. In these days when some big game trophies are getting scarcer—a famous deer state like Wisconsin, for instance, produced only one buck for each nine hunters this fall—a few mementos to freshen the recollection from year to year become considerably more desirable. And an average deerskin will make two pairs of moccasins, or two pairs of gloves and a vest.

Gun Flashed In Row Over Popcorn Eaters

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — David Gordon couldn't stand the crunching of three popcorn eaters in a Pasadena theater. In desperation, he pulled a gun on the nibblers.

There was some commotion in the theater and police took Gordon to jail and revoked, at least temporarily, his permit to carry a gun. He said he didn't pull the gun until one of the men jumped him and tried to wrestle it from his holster after he asked them to put aside their popcorn so he could hear what the hero and heroine were saying.

The show went right on, as if nothing had happened, and a janitor came around and swept up the littered popcorn.

Judge Doesn't Like His Fancy Office

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Dist. Judge F. B. Davenport doesn't think too much of his fancy offices in the new 2 million dollar county courthouse annex.

They leak.

Last week water dripped down on the bench, delaying a jury trial.

Yesterday water poured down from the ceiling in the judge's private office, drenching nearly everything and everyone. No one was sure where the water came from.

No Part Time Job

So long as there is any prospect that President Eisenhower will run again in 1956, his health is bound to be a subject for political discussion. But it is a kind or argument that ought to be weighed with extreme care.

There is considerable concern among Democrats that the President's advisers will persuade him to run by convincing him he can function successfully as a sort of part-time Chief Executive.

In that connection, some opposition men now are privately contending that Republican leaders and the President's inner circle are trying to create a "false image" indicating he is once more in control of the government.

The Democratic contention is that he is not, that the well-publicized goings and comings of administration officials, involving Gettysburg and Camp David, are just so much window dressing.

The argument of course, is that this "impression" of firm presidential control might be made to serve a double purpose. For one, it might sell Mr. Eisenhower on the idea he can run the office on a greatly reduced basis. And it might satisfy the millions who like him as President that it is wise and proper to keep him in the job.

Fair appraisal forces one to conclude, however, that this argument breaks on the rock of fact.

Admittedly many Republicans are thinking wishfully about the President's 1956 intentions, and certainly doing little to discourage the notion he is increasingly active in his job. But Mr. Eisenhower himself made plain the moment he landed in Washington Nov. 11 that he would be compelled to ease his way back to his duties rather than "bulldoze" his way.

The stories emanating from Gettysburg and Camp David relate quite frankly the limited hours the President still is spending at work. They talk of his bridge games and other recreational pursuits.

Secondly, the President's deep sense of duty and responsibility makes it highly unlikely he would allow himself to be persuaded to run again if he were not wholly satisfied in his own mind he is fit for the essentials of the job. Mr. Eisenhower is not exactly a pawn in the hands of his advisers and party leaders.

By now he should know what constitutes the substance of his job. One suspects the American people can trust him to say "no" if he believes himself incapable of doing what a President is elected to do.

Tax Exemptions

The joint (Senate-House) committee on the Economic Report opened hearings last week on taxation "readjustment" by Congress next year. The chairman, Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), says that he favors, among other things, increasing the exemption in the personal income tax to $700 from the present $600. This was part of the legislative program suggested on Nov. 22 by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.), Senate majority leader.

For a man with a wife and two other dependents the proposed increase in exemption would reduce taxable income by $400. For many families in lower income brackets it would mean no more federal income tax payment at all. The cost to the Treasury is put at $2.5 billion a year.

Sen. Douglas, long an economics teacher, maintains that the loss could be made up by "closing loopholes and eliminating favoritism" in the tax laws. He believes that federal tax collections should not decline in their net total. Any surplus in revenue, he says, should go for "additional military preparedness, social reforms, and to reduce the public debt."

The Treasury can probably count itself lucky if the personal income tax exemption goes no higher than $700 next year. In 1954, when the administration wanted tax relief only in "double taxation of dividends," the Democrats proposed to increase the exemption to $800 for 1954 and $1000 thereafter.

So much support accumulated for the proposal that President Eisenhower went on the air to condemn it as unsound, striking "a serious blow to your government" that would "endanger national defense." Even so, the House defeated by only six votes, and the Senate by only thee, a move to substitute a $100 exemption increase for the Administration proposal to give dividends some relief in the personal income tax.

Krushchev's Behavior Indicates Soviets Are Resuming Initiative In Cold War

By WALTER LIPPMANN

What, we cannot help wondering, is Khrushchev up to in his tour of India and Burma? He is violating all the rules of diplomatic intercourse among governments. He is treating the governments of India and of Burma as if they did not exist, as if he, not they, had the right to lead their peoples in their relations with the rest of the world. There seem to be no bounds whatever to the insults, and to the downright lies, which he is directing at the Western governments with whom he has so recently been talking peace.

What, then, is he up to? If the smiles of July were calculated, what is the calculation behind the venom now?

Or is there no calculation? Is Khrushchev, as Disraeli said of an opponent, "inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbosity?" If it is that, what has happened to Bulganin who, so close observers at Geneva have been saying, was a restraining influence on Khrushchev's exuberence?

Or is it both calculation and intoxication? It looks so to me—as if the Kremlin had reached a decision of high policy to take the initiative in resuming the offensive in the cold war and that Krushchev who is an uncouth and exuberant man, is following the new line in his uncouth and exuberant way.

* * *

We cannot be sure what were the reasons for the decision to take the offensive. It may well have been the display of the weakness of the Western governments, of the United States with a sick President and an election, of Germany with a sick and aging chancellor, of France paralyzed by its constitutional sickness. But of one importance, we can be sure. If the danger of the smiles in July was that we would "lower our guard," the danger of the Khrushchev agitation today is that it will provoke us to react unwisely.

In fact, it has, I am afraid, provoked Mr. Dulles into making a serious mistake in regard to the dispute between India and Portugal over Goa. This territory is legally a province of Portugal. Geographically it is an enclave on the western shore of India. Khrushchev has been making inflammatory speeches about India's right to annex Goa. Our position has been and, according to Mr. Dulles speaking on Tuesday our position still is, that we do not take "any position on the merits of the matter." Our interest, in other words, is to remain friends with both Portugal and India, not to be entangled in their dispute, and to do what we can to encourage a peaceable solution.

After Khrushchev's speech about Goa in which he backed India unreservedly, it might have been useful for Mr. Dulles, speaking for the United States, to re-state our position of disinterested friendship. Instead, he allowed himself to be provoked by Khrushchev's insults. Khrushchev having taken the Indian side, Mr. Dulles agreed to a joint communique which to all appearances placed him on the Portuguese side. That will do Portugal no particular good and it has angered India. The net result, it would seem will be to disqualify Mr. Dulles as a conciliator in the Portuguese-Indian dispute.

The incident—it should be no more than that—may be a useful little reminder that, like Prime Minister Nehru, we too have a policy of neutrality and non-alignment when it suits what we consider to be our interests. In disputes between the Communist orbit and non-Communist states, we are never neutral ourselves, and we dislike neutrality in others.

* * *

But in disputes between the Atlantic Powers and their dependencies—as in Goa—in disputes among the states within the non-Communist world—as in Palestine—we aim to be as neutral as possible. It is only fair to remember that in all the disputes of this character, India is not very neutral.

It would do good in Washington and in New Delhi if these paradoxes were recognized and regarded with charity. It will help us to avoid taking that high and mighty tone with one another which, when governments are speaking, is always in some measure hypocrisy. And thus, remembering our own confusions and mistakes, we may be able to bear lightly on the other man's.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Japanses Girls Learn Tea Service Ceremonies

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—In Japan the exquisite art of flower arrangement, along with the ritual of tea service, is a part of every girl's education, Mrs. Toshiro Shimanouchi, wife of the first secretary of the Japanese Embassy told me.

"They begin in early childhood," the charming lady in picturesque kimona-costume said. She and equally dainty Mrs. Hiroto Tanaka, wife of the attache, demonstrated one of the many schools in flower arrangement taught the future homemakers.

At the International Food Fair held at the YWCA Mrs. Shimanouchi and Mrs. Tanaka were showing an example of the "modern, free-style" school with red roses and Scotch broom. They also showed classical arrangements, the kind used in every Japanese home, in small alcoves before hanging scrolls. The ladies offered a tip on how to keep flowers fresh, "Cut the stems while they are under water."

Mrs. Tsing-yao Lea, wife of a member of the Chinese Technical Mission, had brought some spiced hard-boiled eggs to the fair. She had prepared them from a recipe sent to her by her mother-in-law from Formosa. They had been boiled first, then shelled and allowed to simmer in the "chicken pot."

We usually don't cook anything else in the chicken pot except chicken," Mrs. Lea told me. "It's a very special pot. We never use water to cook our chicken. With a three-pound fowl we use only one cup of cooking sherry and one cup of soy sauce. I added four different kinds of spices brought from China to the sauce in which I simmered the eggs."

I couldn't be positive but I thought I detected a taste of anise and a touch of curry in the eggs, which sliced make delicious cocktail tidbits.

Washingtonians seem obsessed with the subject of food of late. Every big shot from President and Mrs. Eisenhower on down is contributing favorite recipes to cook books and whipping up delectables for bazaars. Food actually caused a traffic jam on the YWCA corner when throngs turned out to "eat their way around the globe" at the fair which was for the benefit of the Y's World Fellowship Fund.

Wives of the ambassadors from eight countries, which had gaily decorated booths where food from their country was sold, were on hand to greet the visitors.

Fable Demonstrates All Over Again That Happiness Still Has Its Ups And Downs

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—A fable:

Once upon a time there was a horribly rich old man. He stacked money in towers and spread it around in wistful trees.

When the leaves had fallen, he replaced them with $1,000 bills.

This horribly rich old man was an heredity prince, whose father had been a king who had had his head lopped off by the common people.

Well, naturally, as the horribly rich prince survived and grew older and older he distrusted the common people more and more.

So he withdrew into a castle on a hilltop where he could enjoy his money trees undisturbed. But he had a daughter, the beauteous princess, Alva. She became lonely and wept, and the echo of her weeping floated down and in time disturbed the common people, so that they cried sternly:

"Our princess must have a husband."

The horribly rich old prince, remembering the guillotine fate of his father, figured it was time to throw a fig to popular demand.

He surrounded his mountain citadel with mirror glass, then announced that any man who climbed it would have his daughter's hand.

Well, knights and princes from far lands came and tried to surmount the hill of glass. But one after the other they only climbed until they were tired, paused to admire their reflection in the mirrored glass, then lost their strength and slid down hill to defeat, year after year.

And year after year Otis, the local milkman, came to the bottom of the hill and sent his wares to the top of the hill in a lowered silver bucket, and never tried to climb the hill at all. And after many years, when all the princes had failed, he looked up and saw the fair face of Alva, the golden princess, smiling down at him. She was a princess, but she was lonely, and the milkman was there to see.

One day Otis slipped a note among his milk bottles in the silver bucket, and the note said:

"I love you, dear princess. Slide down the hill to me tomorrow night and we will elope."

The message went up the hill in the silver bucket. There is some doubt about what happened afterward. Some say the princess slid voluntarily down the hill of glass to her waiting lover. Others say her father pushed her.

But they all lived happily ever after. Otis put Alva to work and quickly built the country's largest dairy with his slogan — "Princess-delivered milk." And the horribly rich old prince stayed solitary on the top of the hill, content to tend his money trees alone.

Moral: Happiness has its ups and downs.

'Porgy And Bess' Troupe Is Accustomed To Receptions

BY INEZ ROBB

Official state receptions, parties and junkets on three continents are old stuff to the distinguished troupe of American Negro artists who have been performing "Porgy and Bess," often under U.S. State Department aegis, for the past three and one-half years.

They have been half-killed with hospitality from Cairo to Buenos Aires, from Tel Aviv to London. But it is obvious, as the group heads for its historic debut behind the Iron Curtain in Leningrad on Dec. 26, that it ain't seen nothing yet.

"Is the cast in good physical condition?" was among the questions shot at Robert Breen, director and guiding spirit of the group, during negotiations with the Russian government. This query rather puzzled him. Mr. Breen said just before he flew back to Europe to join the troupe, until he grasped the Russian plans for the troupe's entertainment.

"Every minute has been planned by the Russian authorities," Mr. Breen, a balding, slight young man, said. "The cast will need its health to get through the scheduled hospitality.

"But by this time every member of the cast is a professional diplomat, shedding luster on his native land. They're really fantastic. Half of them speak both French and German, and the majority have masters' degrees. Wherever they have appeared in Europe, the Middle East or South America, you could actually see peoples' ideas about the United States turned upside down before your eyes."

There will be only one Russian performer in "Porgy and Bess." That will be a native Russian goat, yet to be recruited. In the beginning, the troup carried a Texas goat, gift of a Texas admirer, with it.

This may hurt the sensibilities of Texas, but what it did to Mr Breen was even more traumatic: in Vienna, the producer had to sign a long, solemn document, with official state seals, guaranteeing that the Texas goat would not be permitted to cohabit with any Austrian goat.

"I guess they didn't want to pollute the bloodlines, Mr. Breen surmised. Now, when the company enters a new metropolis, it either hires or buys a goat. This policy has worked just fine every place but in Cairo, where it purchased a goat but where the former owner came to the theatre daily to chaperone his former animal.

At curtain time, on the fourth day, Mr. Breen noticed that the goat was gone. To make a long story short, the former owner had absconded with his former goat to make a feast for his son's birthday anniversary. It took quick and frenzied work to acquire a stand-in goat before the curtain rose.

The fact that American Ambassador to Russia Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, is going to Leningrad for the "Porgy and Bess" debut, the first United States theatrical performance in Russia in the 20th Century, attests to the importance of the troupe's visit.

"Everyplace we have been, we've done our damnedest to be a credit to America," said Mr. Breen. And we'll do our damnedest in Russia, you can be sure."

San Marino Possibly Most Exclusive Town In Country

By GRAHAM BERRY

SAN MARINO, Calif., Dec. 13 (AP)—This wealthy, conservative Los Angeles suburb, home of executives whose annual take home pay averages $16,762, is possibly the most exclusive town in these United States.

The residential community of 13,000 has successfully kept out movie theaters, mortuaries, second-hand stores and bars.

Exclusion of bars does not mean that San Marino is dry. Fourteen San Marino liquor stores sell $600,000 worth of bottled goods yearly to replenish the bars which are said to be in 90 per cent of the San Marino homes.

But a tavern, the head of the PTA Council argued recently, "would encourage passersby to stop, and we're not interested in the riff raff that goes through town."

Indeed, it wasn't until 26 years after the city was incorporated that a church could gain admission. The town has five now.

Someone said the town—which covers 3 square miles — even tried to exclude Democrats. But they now number one to every eight Republicans.

Police Chief Robert Seares says there hasn't been one armed robbery since he became chief 14 months ago. Officers, there are two for every 1,000 population, ride heavy patrol. They also guard school crossings.

This swank city even has its more exclusive and less exclusive sections. The one business street, Huntington Drive, bisects the town. The hills to the north are called the "Gold Coast" section, where the biggest homes are located.

Residences south of Huntington may have as few as one to three servants.

San Marino is proud of its culture. It is the home of famed Huntington Library and Art Gallery, with a Gutenberg Bible and Gainsborough's "Blue Boy" among its treasures.

Now to meet some San Marinans: Thomas Pike, assistant secretary of defense; Herbert Hoover Jr., assistant secretary of state; Reese Taylor, president of Union Oil Co.; Dr. Robert Hutchins of the Ford Foundation; Harold C. McClellen, assistant secretary of commerce, and Preston Hotchkis, until recently with the United Nations.

If you have the money and would like to move here, you'd better hurry. Only 190 vacant lots are left.

There's one drawback you should know about, however. The town is in the heart of the Los Angeles area's smog belt. Besides being one of the richest, it has the distinction of being perhaps the smoggiest town anywhere.

Ike Has Reasons For Any Delay Of His Announcement

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Eisenhower has made up his mind not to run again, there are some practical political reasons to explain why he hasn't said so yet.

Any lame-duck president, which is what Eisenhower would be the moment he said he would not seek re-election, is bound to lose some influence in his own party and in Congress.

It's possible Eisenhower still hasn't made up his mind and won't until after the doctors tell him whether he has made a full recovery and can chance another term. That won't be until mid-February or later.

The weekend was not exactly cheering for anyone who thought Eisenhower would make quick and uninterrupted progress toward full recovery.

His doctors said he would have to slow down. After checking him over they said he had been fatigued by some of his conferences with government officials. He had been holding them at Gettysburg and at Camp David, 25 miles from there.

It's important for Eisenhower to retain his full influence as long as possible in Congress where, in January, he presents his 1956 program. No doubt he hopes it will, if passed, crown his four White House years.

Getting it through Congress will be no cinch anyway. But he would have at least a couple of months to push his program, while his influence was undiminished, if he waited until late February before saying this was his last term.

His delay is a roadblock to other Republicans who want to run if he doesn't. The longer he holds off announcing a decision, the less time they have to beat the bushes for themselves. He may not be enthusiastic about them anyway.

If in late February he finally says he won't run again and then endorses some individual he likes, that man will start off with an advantage over the other would-be presidents who had hesitated to speak until Eisenhower had spoken.

Since they know that, the pressure on Eisenhower to speak out may increase as the new year rolls around.

RADIO-TV REPORT

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"Too incredible, can't use it," a television producer probably would say if a writer submitted this drama plot:

Take an actor for the central character. Make him a Czech who was as popular in his country in the 1930s as Bob Hope is here. When the Nazis invade he knows they'll kill him because he's a caustic satirist of Hitler. He escapes to Switzerland and makes his way to the United States.

Here he goes to work for the Office of War Information, beaming more than 2,000 anti-Nazi broadcasts to his native Czechoslovakia. He applies for American citizenship and falls in love with an American girl and marries her. After the war he returns to Prague to work in the theater there. To the Czechs he's a great hero.

But suddenly—and more subtly than the Nazis—the Communists take over Czechoslovakia. Again the finger is on our guy, who's still a caustic satirist of totalitarianism in all its forms. He tries to leave the country and can't. Then, by a stroke of good fortune, he arranges a job for himself in Paris working for UNESCO. Since it's a United Nations organization, the Communists don't prevent him from leaving. He and his wife fly to Paris.

In 1950 he flies to New York to obtain his final American citizenship papers. He plans to make America his permanent home and become an actor here. When he steps of the plane in New York, an immigration official taps him on the shoulder. He's locked in a van and taken to Ellis Island.

"What's the charge?" he asks everyone. Nobody knows. Days creep into weeks and weeks into months. There are numerous hearings. Eventually he learns that someone has accused him of being a Communist. He can return to Paris. But he doesn't want to return. He is not and never was a Communist. He loves America; he wants to live here; he can't believe that this can happen here.

After 10 months of being held he is vindicated. He's freed and reunited with his wife, who has struggled to help him all this time. In the fadeout we see him as a happy, popular American actor.

Too incredible?

Well, it's true. The man's name is George Voskovec. Tonight the story of his 10 harrowing months on Ellis Island will be dramatized on NBC's Armstrong Circle Theater. George Voskovec, 50, now a successful actor on Broadway and television, will play himself.

GUIDEPOST LITERARY

MATHEW BRADY, Historian With A Camera. By James D. Horan. Crown.

Considering the indelible imprint which Mathew Brady left upon history, it is amazing that comparatively little is known about Brady as a personality. This is not a case where recognition of stature came in decades after death. Brady was known in his lifetime as a wizard with a camera; a request from him for a sitting was almost an order.

We know what Brady looked like. We have the priceless heritage of his photographs to demonstrate the merit of his work. We know when he was born, whom he married, where he lived, when he died—the statistical dimensions. We know he was fiercely dedicated to the tremendous task of photographing the Civil War—but we do not know the depths of emotion which impelled him. There are no memoirs, no journals, no letters.

It does not seem possible now that we ever will know. James Horan's search has been exhaustive. This, then, may be regarded as the last word on Mathew Brady.

With that said, it must be added that "Historian With A Camera" has its disappointing aspects. The quality of reproduction is not on a par with that in "Mr. Lincoln's Cameraman," a 1946 biography of Brady by Roy Meredity. There are duplications which establish that point beyond question. It seems also that Brady's monumental Civil War work is somewhat slighted. The desire to concentrate on unpublished material is understandable, but the omission of photos described glowingly in the text is inexcusable.

BUCKIN' THE LINE

By BUCK FRANCIS

IT CERTAINLY APPEARS that the Southwest Conference is giving Texas Tech the "run around."

We personally believe the SWC has never seriously considered taking Tech in and that it never will.

Yet the SWC officials keep leading Tech on, giving the Lubbock school added confidence each year that she'll be admitted and then at the last moment reject the Raiders' bid.

It used to be that no details were given on the voting at the annual SWC winter meeting, just that Tech's bid had been turned down.

So Tech, not knowing who voted for or against her, began blaming TCU, Texas A&M and Texas (in particular) for not gaining admission because of the fear of the Raiders landing all of the prize prospects in the huge West Texas area.

So now, these three schools along with Baylor, who also depends on West Texas for top notch athletes, go on record publicly that they voted "for" Tech.

That leaves SMU, Rice and Arkansas as the dissenters, none of which rely on drawing athletes from the area west of Fort Worth.

This poses a mysterious question: "why would these schools vote against Tech's admission when it should not make much difference with them one way or the other?"

Could it be that the SWC officials have it set up before the meetings are even held each year as to who is going to vote "for" and against" Tech coming into the conference?

And could it be that TCU, Texas, A&M and Baylor are selected to vote for Tech so they can stay on friendly terms with the Lubbock institution and be relieved of the guilt of "fearing that they would lose plenty of outstanding West Texas athletes to Tech (and they would) if the Raiders were admitted to the SWC?

35 Frogs Are West Texans

The reason that it looks suspicious is that the voting should be reversed, TCU, Texas, A&M and Baylor voting against and Rice, Arkansas and SMU for. By taking Tech in it would help the latter three since it would spread the material a little bit thinner.

Just take a look at the 1955 Southwest Conference rosters.

TCU, the '55 champion, lists 35 West Texas boys on its roster. The Frogs, if Tech were in the conference, possibly would have never lured many of these boys to their campus.

Texas lists 22 West Texans, Baylor 20 and Texas A&M 12. The latter generally draws in more West Texans than is shown on this year's roster but this seems to be rather a "dry year" for the Aggies so far as landing top players from the West Texas area is concerned.

We do not have an Arkansas or SMU roster available but Rice has only eight West Texans listed. We're sure Arkansas doesn't have any as most of her material comes from the state of Arkansas.

So, you can see that the schools who draw heaviest from the West Texas area are the ones who were "selected" to vote "for" Tech's admission when all the time these schools were sure that Tech wouldn't be voted in.

Yes sir, the SWC, we believe, is giving Texas Tech the "run around."

Our boss man, Wacil McNair, has another idea about the Tech-to-SWC deal that could very well be the answer.

McNair believes that the SWC is afraid that Tech will get together with some other major schools in the southwest area, such as University of Houston, Tulsa, Oklahoma A&M and another school or two and form a new conference that would be inducive enough for Tech to draw in West Texas' best athletes.

So, to keep Tech from getting such ideas, the SWC each year gives the Raiders enough confidence that she'll be voted in that the Lubbock school with holds any intentions of setting up a new conference.

And when the SWC votes "nay" each year, she makes Tech believe that "next year" will be the year. Consequently, Tech stands by for another year only to hear the same old story when another vote is taken.

Rigsby South Texas 'Coach Of Year'

We have before us a clipping from the Corpus Christi Caller-Times that says Theo Rigsby, a former Snyderite and whose parents still reside here, has been named "the Coach of the Year" for the South Texas schoolboy area. Rigsby, who coached Alice to an unbeaten season, was chosen over 69 other high school coaches in South Texas.

Rigsby, according to the Caller-Times, was chosen for the honor for two reasons:

First, he coached second-rated Alice to overcome a long-time jinx against Valley opponents, beating Harlingen for the 8-AAA crown. Alice went through a 10-game schedule unbeaten.

Second, Rigsby improved the attitude of his players. The "So what" outlook of some of them in 1954 was transformed in the apparently unamious "Let's go!" of 1955.

The story went on to say that even if Alice gets whipped 35-0 in the state semi-finals by strong Port Neches, and that could easily happen, Rigsby would still be the "Coach of the Year" for the improvements he made in his boys.

The outcome of the Port Neches game, as most of you know by now, was 14-7 for Port Neches. The winning tally came on a 59-yard run in the last two minutes by a Port Neches guard who was placed in the backfield for this particular play. The game was tied 7-7 at the time and Alice was leading in penetrations, 4-3.

Another bouquet of roses from this department to Theo Rigsby, another hometown boy who has "made good."

Phils' Roberts High Among NL Mound Men

NEW YORK (AP) — The storm of protest which kicked up in Philadelphia on the heels of the National League's Most Valuable Player announcement, is likely to brew again today with the release of the official pitching records for 1955.

The Phillies' followers, who thought Robin Roberts, not Roy Campanella, should have been given the MVP award, have some imposing statistics going for them.

Roberts, Philadelphia's one-man pitching gang, won the most games, 23. He also made the most starts, 38, pitched the most complete games, 26, hurled the most innings, 305 and faced the most batsmen, 1,256.

On the debit side, the durable righthander allowed the most hits, 292, the most runs, 111 and the most home runs, 41 for a major league record. He lost 14 games to wind up with a winning percentage of .622. Robin finished fifth in the MVP balloting.

Bob Friend of Pittsburgh and Don Newcombe of the world champion Brooklyn Dodgers shared pitching honors with Roberts.

SMU, Rice Quints In Big Victories

By The Associated Press

The Rice Owls and the Southern Methodist Mustangs, who have been making like champions ever since the basketball season started, added new luster to Southwest Conference prestige Monday night.

The Owls, undefeated this season, raced to their sixth straight victory in trouncing Louisiana State University, 85-60, while the Mustangs took their second Big Ten scalp by trimming Wisconsin, 75-62.

The Texas Aggies, who got off to a slow start with three straight losses, chalked up their second victory of the season and set an all-time school scoring record by defeating Tulane, 85-66, Monday night.

The Baylor Bears, the fourth Southwest Conference team to see action Monday night, didn't fare so well. They took a 59-48 beating from Oklahoma A&M, for a 1-5 season record.

Texas, which so far has broken even with two wins and two losses, meets Phillips at Austin in the only game involving Southwest Conference teams Tuesday night.

The victory over LSU represented the highest total scores produced by and against the Owls this season. Temple Tucker, Rice's 6 foot 10 sophomore center, scored 27 points to equal his previous individual high mark. Although they trailed for the first six minutes, the Owls put on steam to tally 42 points in the final 14 minutes of the first half to take command of the Houston game.

The artistic hook shot of SMU center Jim Krebs, the 6 foot 8 basket star, paced the Mustangs from a halftime deficit to their victory over the Badgers at Madison. Krebs, with 23 points, was high man of the game.

The Mustangs only loss of the season was an 80-62 beating at the hands of nationally ranked Iowa. They swirled back to take an overtime game, 82-81, from Minnesota.

A solid zone defense and a fast break were the factors favoring the Aggies in their fast and furious game with Tulane at College Station. The lead changed hands seven times but after the halftime the Cadets took command to lengthen their lead. Aggie guard John Fortenberry was high man with 23 points.

The hapless Baylor Bears couldn't compete with Coach Henry Iba's ball control specialists at Waco. Cowed 31-14 at the halftime, the Bears staged a fast driving attack that game them the scoring advantage in the second half but they couldn't overcome the Sooner lead. Louis Estes, Baylor center, with 16 points, took individual honors in the game.

Ward's Efforts Futile To Slate Game For Tiger 5

Tiger basketball coach J.P. Ward was unable to schedule a game for his charges tonight to replace the cancelled date with the Stamford Bulldogs.

Stamford withdrew because she is still playing football.

Ward spent most of Monday and this morning attempting to line up a game for tonight but his efforts went for naught since practically every school has already got a game for tonight.

The Tigers, thus, will go into the District 1-AAA race Friday with only two games under their belts of which they broke even, defeating Andrews, 54-44 and losing to Lubbock, 62-52. Both games were in last week's Canyon Reef Tournament here.

The Bengals will meet Sweetwater here Friday in their 1-AAA debut.

The 1-AAA schedule opens tonight with Lamesa at Vernon and Palo Duro at Big Spring.

Dons Continue As Nation's Top Five

By The Associated Press

The University of San Francisco Dons head eastward tomorrow rated the nation's No. 1 college basketball team.

In the first regular season poll of The Associated Press, San Francisco grabbed 60 first-place ballots and on the basis of 10 for first, 9 for second, etc., rolled up 910 points.

A total of 100 sports writers and sportscasters turned in ballots, and although North Carolina State received only four firsts, the Wolfpack got heavy support to take over second place with 640 points. N. C. State displaced Kentucky, second in the preseason balloting.

Kentucky, which was defeated by Temple Saturday 73-61, skidded from second to No. 12, while Temple moved into the No. 11 spot.

San Francisco, easy winner of three straight, and boasting a victory string of 29 games in a row, won the NCAA championship last season, and was voted the nation's No. 1 college team. The Dons fly to Chicago tomorrow and meet unbeaten Marquette Friday in the DePaul Invitation Tournament. Duquesne, No. 6 in this week's poll, plays DePaul Friday. The two winners meet for the championship Saturday.

Utah, winner of two games from Arizona, moved from fifth in the preseason calculations to third place this week.

Alabama is fifth, followed by Duquesne, Dayton, Brigham Young, Vanderbilt and Holy Cross.

The leaders, with first-place votes in parentheses:

1.	San Francisco (60)	910
2.	N. C. State (4)	640
3.	Utah (3)	520
4.	Iowa (3)	438
5.	Alabama (11)	404
6.	Duquesne (2)	335
7.	Dayton (1)	269
8.	Brigham Young	239
9.	Vanderbilt (6)	188
10.	Holy Cross (4)	168
	The Second 10:

Ira Sextet Wins 8 Straight; Two Tourney Titles

Ira's boys and girls basketball teams will take a week off this week after two successive weekends of tournament play.

In the two tournaments, at McCaulley and Aspermont, the Ira girls emerged as the champion in both while the boys captured the McCaulley tourney and reached the semi-finals in the Aspermont tournament.

Next on tap for the Ira teams will be against Roscoe at Roscoe, Dec. 20.

In the Aspermont tourney, held the past weekend, the Ira girls won over Rule, 55-34; Old Glory, 50-35; and Aspermont, 69-49, to win the tournament title. Valeira Eubanks led the Ira scoring in the Rule and Aspermont games with 22 and 34 points respectively. Peggy Taylor was high in the Old Glory game with 21 points.

For the tournament, Miss Eubanks scored 74 points in three games for a 24.9 average. Following her in the Aspermont tourney scoring were Miss Taylor with 59 and Joan Ford with 34.

The Ira boys defeated Rule, 41-29, in the first round at Aspermont but lost to host Aspermont in the semi-finals, 55-40. Jerry Ford led the Bulldogs against Rule with 14 points follwed by Billy Farmer with nine. In the Aspermont game, Farmer and Tommy Echols each had 10, Wayne Gullet nine and Ford eight.

No all-tournament team was picked at Aspermont but Ira put 3 girls and two boys on the all-tournament team at the McCaulley tournament.

Making the mythical teams at McCaulley were Misses Eubanks, Taylor and Nita Thomas while Gullett and Ford were the Ira boys' all-tourney players.

The Ira boys defeated Abilene B, 41-34, and Peacock, 33-31, to win the McCaulley tournament. The Ira girls won over Hobbs, 62-55, and McCaulley, 44-21, for the fem title.

For the season, the Ira girls are unbeaten in eight starts. The Ira Boys have won four and lost three.

Henry Kennedy and Selwyn Jones finished one-two in the Michigan AAU cross-county championships in 1955. They are Michigan Sate's standouts.

Browns, Redskins Dominate All-EC

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The champion Cleveland Browns and runner-up Washington Redskins dominate the Eastern Conference All-Star team which will meet the best of the West in the sixth annual Pro-Bowl football game here Jan. 15.

The Eastern squad, announced today by Game Director Paul J. Schissler, includes seven players each from the Browns and Redskins, five New York Giants, and four each from the Philadelphia Eagles, Chicago Cards and Pittsburgh Steeleers.

The Western squad will be announced Thursday. The West holds a 3-2 edge in the series.

Three players, end Pete Pihos of Philadelphia, tackle Lou Groza of Cleveland, and defensive back Emlen Tunnell of New York, made the pro bowl for the sixth straight year.

Laverne Torgeson, Redskin linebacker, will have a chance to play with the squad he helped to defeat in the pro-bowl game last year. Torgeson, playing with Detroit a year ago, ran back an intercepted pass to set up the winning touchdown for the West.

Joe Kuharich of Washington will coach the East Team. The West will be tutored by Sid Gillman of Los Angeles.

No Quarterback Club Meeting Set Tonight

There will be no meeting of the Snyder Quarterback Club tonight, J. B. Davidson, club president, has announced.

Davidson revealed that the next meeting probably would be held next Tuesday night but that the exact date would be announced later.

The largest crowd of the season turned out for last week's QB meeting despite the disheartening loss to Garland the previous Saturday.

Spikes, Baxter Top 1,000; Tigers Net 2 Miles Rushing

The Tiger footballers netted more than two miles on the ground during the 1955 season and had two players to top the 1,000 yard mark.

Jack Spikes, hard running halfback, rolled up 1,151 net yards for the individual rushing title among the Tigers followed by fullback Joe Baxter with 1,033 yards.

Both Spikes and Baxter averaged more than 100 yards per game during the season. Spikes averaged 104.6 yards in 11 games to Baxter's 103.3 yards in 10 games. Baxter missed one game because of an injury.

All told, the Tigers netted 3,696 yards on the ground in 492 tries, an average of 7.5 per carry.

The two leading Tiger ball carriers accounted for better than 200 yards against Garland in bi-district play, Spikes gaining 137 and Baxter 86 for 223 yards.

Powell Berry was the Tiger passing leader, completing 18 of 32 for .562 percentage. Berry's passing yardage was 328 yards. The junior quarterback tossed seven touchdown aerials. Only two of his passes were intercepted.

In team passing figures, the Tigers completed 30 of 70 for a .428 percentage. The Tigers gained 543 yards through the airlanes. Eight of the 30 completions were touchdown heaves.

Tiger opponents intercepted only five of the 70 Tiger aerials.

In total offense (rushing and passing) the Tigers gained 4,239 yards (2.41 miles) for an average of 384.7 per game. The Tigers averaged 336 yards per game rushing.

Milton Ham, junior end, led the Tigers in pass receiving. Ham caught 12 passes for 195 yards and three touchdowns.

Spikes had the best Tiger punting average but Alan Snead handled most of the kicking duties. Spikes averaged 36.6 yards on six kicks while Snead averaged 30.7 on 25 kicks.

Baxter captured the Tiger scoring title with 86 points, coming on 14 touchdowns, and two conversions. Spikes was second with 66 points.

Fourteen Tigers figured in the scoring over the 11-game slate that showed nine wins and two losses and the District 1-AAA championship.

NY May Be Nearing End Of Boxing Trail

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Will New York be a ghost town for boxing after Jan. 15 Or will the fight managers yield to Julius Helfand, hard-fisted chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission

The showdown promises to be interesting with a strong possibility of a court battle while the International Boxing Club and the television networks fidget on the sidelines.

Helfand gave the managers who belong to the Boxing Guild of New York a "yes" or "no" choice. His nine-page decision following a seven-month inquiry, in effect, outlawed the local guild, an affiliate of the International Boxing Guild.

Although Helfand phrased it in more legal terms, his message was clear:

"Give up your guild membership or lose your license."

If the 81 members of the Boxing Guild of New York refuse to turn in their cards before the Jan. 15 deadline, boxing may be dead in New York. One matchmaker said last night it would be impossible to put together more than one or two cards involving fighters whose managers now are nonguild members.

"This definitely will be the end of boxing in New York," said one prominent manager who didn't wish to be identified. "Helfand can't put the guild out of business. That would just turn us over to the mercy of the promoters. We fought hard to get the television money up from $212 to $4,000 and we're not going to walk away from al we fought for."

If the managers stand pat, the television fights that come out of New York (Friday from Madison Square Garden and Monday from St. Nicholas Arena) probably would be piped from other states.

Some managers, however, are understood to feel that New York is their home and they must make peace with the commission.

At the present time, it's hard to say what the attitude of other state commissions will be. In Chicago, Lou Radzienda, president of the National Boxing Assn., said, "I will have no comment until I receive the official directive from the New York State Athletic Commission."

Nobody connected with the International Boxing Club would comment about any such possibility as boxing moving out of the state. There was only one brief statement from the IBC after Helfand's announcement. It came from Harry Markson, managing director, and read like this:

"As a licensee of the New York State Athletic Commission we operate under the rules and regulations of that commission and the laws of New York state. Of course the commission decision today created a new problem for us in our negotiations each year on our televised commitments."

Helfand cut loose with both fists in blasting the guild for its "vague and shadowy" activities and its "Monopolistic practices." He called it a continuing menace to the integrity of boxing and said it would reduce the commission to an empty shell, subservient to the "whims and dictates of the guild" unless it was stopped.

Big 10 Cagers Taking Lumps: One Unbeaten

By BEN OLAN
The Associated Press

What's happened to the Big Ten basketbal teams?

The conference has only one undefeated school left in the pack today, a mere 13 days after the start of the college season.

And that unscarred team is Michigan State, which hasn't even played yet. The Spartans get under way tonight against Southern Illinois.

Ohio State, alone, did its share for the Big Ten reputation last night, knocking off Oklahoma 89-68. The Buckeyes are 3-1 on the year.

The rest was chaos.

Iowa, the nation's fourth-ranked team, and highly touted Indiana dropped from the unbeaten ranks and Wisconsin lost its third game in four.

The Hawkeyes, defending league champs, were tripped up by Colorado, 60-57. Indiana was set back by St. Louis 86-75 while Wisconsin bowed to Southern Methodist 75-62.

In other games last night, Kentucky started the long road back by edging DePaul 71-69. Rice, a Southwest Conference titan, rode to its sixth straight victory, 85-60 over Louisiana State. Wake Forest whipped Virginia 82-69 in an Atlantic Coast Conference get-together.

Wichita trampled Nebraska 71-46. Drake beat Kansas State 70-64. Texas A&M, under former LaSalle Coach Ken Loeffler, drubbed Tulane 85-66 and Oklahoma A&M defeated Baylor 59-48.

Colorado, leaders of the Big Seven last season, choked off a last-ditch Iowa rally to hang up its third straight victory. The Buffaloes led by 10 points midway in the second half, but needed three points in the final 15 seconds to sew it up. They got them from Bill Peterson and George Hannah.

SMU's Mustangs, who edged Minnesota 82-81 Saturday night, had little trouble with Wisconsin after halftime. They outscored the Badgers 42-27 in the final 20 minutes with Jim Krebs doing most of the damage.

Robin Freeman, as usual, ran off with the scoring honors in Ohio State's one-sided victory over Oklahoma. The All America guard hit for 40 points to bring his four-game average for the season to 36.8 points.

The American Bowling Congress during the last year certified 7,062 bowling establishments with 60,648 alley beds. The old mark was 6,911 establishments and 58,982 alleys.

The largest fish ever landed in Bermuda waters on rod and reel was a 345-pound blue marlin.

Pitcher Joe Nuxhall of Cincinnati batted only .198 but his 17 hits during the season drove in 11 runs. He hit three homers.

Alabama's football team includes nine seniors, 16 juniors and 19 sophomores.

Tatum Says Wilkinson 'Out-Substituted' Him

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Coach Jim Tatum felt that one of the biggest reasons Oklahoma beat his Maryland football team 7-0 in the 1954 Orange Bowl was that Coach Bud Wilkinson "out-substituted" him.

He doesn't expect to be caught that way again in their return match Jan. 2.

"Bud put his second team in midway in the first quarter with us on their 1-yard line," Tatum recalled today. "I kept our first team in and didn't score. I took them out at the start of the second period but then Oklahoma had its first team back and playing our second, so I had to put the regulars back in and they played all except a few minutes of the first half."

Vote To Oust Bell Ends In 6-6 Draw

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A secret vote to oust Bert Bell as commissioner of the National Football League ended in a 6-6 tie, the Examiner said today.

The paper said Los Angeles, San Francisco, Green Bay, Detroit, Cleveland and the Chicago Cardinals voted to fire Bell who has a 10-year contract at $40,000 annually.

It takes 10 of the 12 NFL members to remove a commissioner.

"Several National League owners have had differences with the commissioner," the story added.

Dick Prendergast, Homewood, Ill., sophomore end, led Notre Dame's squad in playing time in his first game. He played 46 minutes in the 1055 opener against SMU, the Irish winning 17-0.

One College, Professional Grid Coach Gets The 'Ax'

By JOHN CHANDLER

Northwestern University and the Philadelphia Eagles were shopping around today for head football coaches after a fresh round of hiring and firing in both college and professional ranks.

Getting the ax at Northwestern was Lou Saban, along with four assistants, while the pro Eagles handed walking papers to Jim Trimble and three aides. Kenneth (Jack) Mollenkopf, Purdue line coach, was promoted to head coach.

At the same time Maryland's Jim Tatum said that reports that he would leave College Park were getting to be a "damned joke."

Tatum has been mentioned as successor to Trimble, and another report had the Maryland head coach going to North Carolina to replace George Barclay.

Stu Holcomb, who left his job four days ago as Purdue University head coach to become athletic director at Northwestern, fired Saban, 34, on the first day in his new job yesterday.

Also released were line coaches Bud Svendsen and Nathan Johnson, end coach George Steinbrenner and backfield coach Al Pesek.

"I feel that it is in the best interests of the athletic department that we make a change in our football coaching staff and that the new coach be free to name his own staff," Holcomb said.

Northwestern, for the first time in history, failed to win a football game this season, but tied Illinois 7-7 in the final game.

Among those mentioned as successors to Saban were coaches Dal Ward of the University of Colorado and Ara Parseghian of Miami (Ohio) University.

Mollenkopf, 50, was a star end at Bowling Green (Ohio), and came to Purdue in 1947 with Holcomb.

Trimble, 37, said he was "stunned" at the action of the Philadelphia front office, although he had read recent reports that he would be fired.

"I can say with all honesty that I have worked harder in this past football season that at any other time in my coaching career," he said.

The Eagles won four games, lost seven and had one tie in the National Football League this year.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name *Preparation H. At your druggist. Money back guarantee.

Long Tests Show Flouridation Safe

NEW YORK (AP)— A New York health official says a 10-year comparison test in two New York communities showed that fluoridation of drinking water helps reduce tooth decay and loss in children without causing any physical harm.

Results of the test were made public last night by Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, New York state health commissioner, who described fluoridation as "safe and effective."

Such flouridation means adding one part of sodium fluoride to drinking water for every million parts of water. It has been a controversial subject in health and scientific circles.

The findings were based on the Newburgh-Kingston study The town of Newburgh, N.Y., 10 years ago began adding soldium fluoride to its public water while nearby Kingston did not. The towns have a population of some 30,000 each.

A similar test conducted in the town of Brantford in Canada also showed that fluoridation of water appears harmless and beneficial.

At a conference of the New York Institute of Clinical Oral Pathology here last night, Hilleboe and other health experts gave the following highlights of the New York test:

Children in Newburgh aged 6 to 9 have 58 per cent less tooth decay and missing teeth than youngsters in the same age group in Kingston.

The 10 to 12 age group in Newburgh has 52 to 53 per cent less decay while children aged 13 to 14 show 48 per cent. Sixteen-year-olds in Newburgh, whose first permanent molars were erupting when fluoridation began, have 41 per cent less tooth decay than their Kingston counterparts.

There was no evidence that fluoridated water contributed to gum inflammation or gingivitis; there was no effect on children's growth, weight and height; no changes in their bones, in blood composition, urinalysis, vision or hearing.

Hilleboe said 1,115 communities in the United States are now fluoridating water for more than 22 million persons.

Cafe Picketed By Disgruntled California Man

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — George Vassilopulous invited Domingo Valin, 38, yesterday to get out of his cafe.

George complained that Domingo never bought more than a cup of coffee when he dropped in and sat around with coffee-drinking friends.

Domingo, who said he once was a Joe Louis sparring mate and claims a 1939 knockout of Lee Savold, reacted in a manner unexpected of a retired pugilist.

He checked a point with a lawyer friend, Roy Pucci. Assured he had a constitutional right to picket George's place, he penciled on two of George's blank menu sheets:

"This place unfair to Domingo!"

A few minutes after he started marching in front of George's, two customers came out.

"Want a job?" asked Domingo. Arquimedes Dellar and Angelo Gonzales quickly took his offer of $1.35 an hour to take over the picketing.

With cheerful relish, Domingo gave all who passed a rundown on what was giving.

Vassilopulous' slow burn accelerated.

Arquimedes and Angelo were out of work, until Domingo hired them to picket George's place.

Vassilopulous had put their meals on the cuff.

Bus Driver Treats Kids

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Bus driver Harold Quire got the Christmas spirit yesterday to the delight of 43 Valley High School students — and the chagrin of their parents.

He not only bowed to pleas of his passengers to stop for refreshments, but said he would foot the bill.

When he was delayed, he invited the students to call home and relieve their parents. Some did and some didn't.

When the delay was extended, Quire, due to pick up some grade school students, had to take the high schoolers with him. More delay.

Frantic parents called police. An investigation finally revealed all students safely delivered.

School and police decided against disciplinary action. The cost to Quire was $17.34 for sandwiches and soft drinks.

LETTERS TO SANTA CLAUS

Dear Santa:
I am six years old. I have been a good boy this year. Please bring me a Davy Crockett suit, scabbard, knife and a double-barrel shotgun with bullets. I'll be looking for you Christmas morning.

Jackie Greene

P.S. Don't forget my schoolmates.

Dear Santa:
I am a little boy four years old. I have been real good this year. I would like to have a cowboy suit, cowboy hat and double holster and guns. Please bring my little cousins and friends some toys too.

Larry Paul Greene

Dear Santa:
My name is Bob Adams. I am five years old. I have been a very nice boy I think. For Christmas I would like to get a jack-in-the-box, a toy horn, a toy wagon, a pair of pajamas and if you have a doctor kit I would like to have one of those too. I will leave you some cookies and milk under the tree. Don't forget Carol's puppy.

Bob Adams

Dear Santa:
I would like to have a doctor set, a big cattle truck, a rifle and a service station. I would like to have some candy and fruit in my stocking. Please bring something to all the boys and girls.

Michael Gan

Dear Santa:
My name is Tony Suttle, age six years. I would appreciate it if you would bring me a Davy Crockett suit, superman suit, fire truck and some games, and Santa, don't forget the candy and all the other little boys and girls.

Tony Suttle

P.S. Also a boxing set.

Dear Santa:
My name is Marsha Suttle and I'm a good little girl three years old. I'd like to have a doll, doll bed, Davy Crockett suit, dishes and a doll stroller. Also some candy and don't forget all my little friends.

Marsha Suttle

Dear Santa:
I am a little boy five years old and I try to be good. Please bring me a little service station and a few little toys if you have them. Don't forget my brother Don and my sister Alma and also all the other little boys and girls everywhere.

Freddie Collier

P.S. Please bring Margie a watch for Christmas.

Dear Santa:
We are two little girls, ages two and five, and we have tried very hard to be good. We would like very much to have you bring us a walking doll, stove, refrigerator, bake set, a little suitcase, dishes and doll bed. Santa, we will leave you something to eat on the kitchen table as we know you'll be hungry.

Pam and Vicki Black

P.S. We would like to have some candy and nuts also.

Dear Santa:
Thank you for the tricycle you brought last year. Do you have my new train nearly finished? I would like some tinkertoys and some little dishes too. Would you bring my big brothers, Rollin and Chan, a B-B gun? We'll leave some cookies and a thermos of coffee on the table where you can find them. Merry Christmas to you and Mrs. Clause and all the elves.

Dog Bites Result From Auto Accident

REMBURG, Idaho (AP)—An auto accident has resulted in dog bites on the hand and leg for Mrs. Eileen Hunter.

Mrs. Hunter and her dog were riding in the back seat of a car that skidded into another at a traffic light here. The impact pinned the dog beneath the auto seat, and it bit Mrs. Hunter as she tried to calm the frightened pet.

Her injuries required medical treatment.

Lifeguard Design in the '56 Ford

Lifeguard steering wheel has a new deep-center construction designed to keep you safely away from the steering post in case of an accident. The rim of the wheel is mounted high above the recessed steering post . . . "cushions" your chest on impact. And Ford's new Lifeguard rear-view mirror "gives" on impact . . . resists shattering.

Lifeguard double-grip door locks help keep doors closed, even under severe impact. And statistics prove that if you stay inside the car in an accident, you're twice as safe! These new safety locks—the result of over two years of research—resist stress from two directions. (Conventional locks hold only in one direction.)

Optional nylon seat belts offer you 3-way security. They give your children far more protection in case of sudden stops in everyday driving . . . they help keep passengers in their seats in the event of an accident and make driving far less tiring. Ford seat belts can be adjusted with one hand . . . released with the flick of a finger.

Optional Lifeguard padding on instrument panel and sun visors not only reduces possibility of injuries, but in many cases prevents them altogether! It's five times as shock absorbent as foam rubber, and comes in colors that harmonize with the interior of your car. Come in and see all of the new Ford Lifeguard safety features, soon.

The fine car at half the fine-car price!

Family Bond Close In Italy On Christmas

By STAN SWINTON

ROME (AP)—Christmas in Italy is the day when the family bond is closest.

On Christmas Eve, before the eager eyes of the children, mother and father construct a model of the Nativity scene. This "presepio" is to Italian children what the Christmas tree is to Americans, although the foreign custom of Christmas trees is spreading even here.

Usually the presepio shows the Child in a wooden or rock manger. An ox and a donkey flank the manger. Around it, kings and shepherds kneel in veneration. Colored lights shine on the scene.

In poor homes the presepio may be of cardboard. Among rich nobles there may be expensive hand carvings. But always there is the presepio.

Babbo Natale (Father Christmas) is known in Italy but it is the Gesu Bambino (the infant Jesus) who lays presents beside the heads of sleeping children before they awaken Christmas morning.

Thus begins Christmas, the one day of the year in which every Italian is expected to rest at home with his family. Through the day the family group plays cards, talks and jokes, drinks coffee and eats candies or sweets.

Sweets vary from city to city but everyone must have panettone. This is a sweet bread with raisins and candied fruit which has spread from Milan across the world. Thousands are shipped to the United States for Italo-American Christmas celebrations there.

There is far less emphasis on gifts within the family than in the United States. However, tradition calls for presents to those who have done you services during the year. The postman, the telegraph boy, the policeman, the parking lot attendant—all call to pay their respects before Christmas and expect a panettone or cash present.

In home the great day of family gifts giving is Jan. 6, Epiphany.

Bois D'Arc Apple Proves To Be Useful

RENNER, Tex. (AP)—Texas Research Foundation's new chemical drama has for its star the fruit of the osage orange, or bois d'arc apple—that commonplace, heavy, pebble-grained, green apple that Texas youngsters traditionally have regarded as good ammunition for alley warfare.

Chemical research on the apple—which rots by the thousands of tons every year in almost every state of the midwest and south—by Dr. John R. Clopton at the foundation's Renner station in 1947-48 revealed that the fruit was composed of approximately 15 per cent resins, 15 per cent sugars, 10 per cent pigments, 45 per cent protein and 15 per cent oils.

In his research during the summers of 1952 and 1954, Dr. Clopton established that the pigments were a pair of yellow, salt-like substances which were remarkably effective in reducing rancidity in edible oils and fats. These two pigments, pomiferin and osajin, constitute 10 per cent by weight of the dehydrated fruit, with their greatest concentration in the pulp rather than in the seed and covering of the apple.

The most recent development in the story of the bois d'arc apple came when the foundation was granted a patent by the U.S. Patent Office which covers the use of the two substances as food preservatives.

"Advantages in using the anti-oxidant preservatives of bois d'arc lie in the fact that there is an abundant source of raw material throughout most of the Midwest and South, and that the extraction process is simple and inexpensive," Dr. C. L. Lundell, director of the foundation, said.

"Therefore processing the apples could be made a profitable adjunct for many existing industries."

'At-Home' Clothes Gaining In Popularity As Gift Items

BY DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Now that TV is keeping the family at home, the vogue of good-looking, colorful at-home clothes is sweeping the country, for all the family.

Mom, Pop and the kids can't get by with slopping around in old bathrobes any more, since so many more hours are spend lounging around the house. And designers have come up with many bright new ideas to smarten up the fireside family group.

For men there are handsome leisure clothes such as smoking jackets, slacks-and-shirt outfits, washable wool pajamas in dark or vivid colors, good looking robes of all varieties.

For women there are flattering but practical wooly housecoats of washable orlon fleece, tapered slacks of velvet or corduroy, decorative blouses, sweaters or jackets to wear with them, gay "curfew coats" in leopard printed corduroy, mandarin robes in rich fabrics.

Small fry have scaled-down versions of grown-up styles-skinny pants, jump suits, housecoats and duster, all doubly appealing in miniature.

The littlest members of the family now may have new warm cotton - knit sleepers in a wide range of solid colors, pin checks or rosebud prints, with built - in non-skid plastic soles which are entirely washable.

And for a baby boy nothing is cuter than a bright red velvet or corduroy "smoking jacket," just like Dad's.

All these make top - favorite Christmas gifts — the kind that get immediate use around the tree on Christmas morning.

Church Circle Meets With Mrs. Babcock

The Helen Clemmer circle of the Trinity Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. Cliff Babcock, Avenue J. There were six members present.

A program "Beneath the Shimmering Tinsels" was given by Mrs. Jack Cole. Mrs. Cliff Babcock and Mrs. C. J. Killgo assisted Mrs. Cole with the program.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Dale Clemmer. It was "The Story of the Nativity taken from St. Luke.

Church Sets Its Schedule

The First Presbyterian Church has a number of activities scheduled for this week.

On Tuesday, Mildred Kemm from headquarters of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education in Philadelphia, Pa., will work with the leaders of the church Sunday School.

Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m., the members of the Presbyterian Women's Organization are giving a Christmas party for all the women of the church. The Evening Circle is in charge of entertainment, the Afternoon Circle, decorations, and the Morning Circle, refreshments.

On Wednesday, the church annual Christmas party is scheduled, with Mrs. James Kincaid as chairman. At 6:30, there will be a covered dish supper, followed by the Christmas party. At this party, there will be a white Christmas gift offering for the Reynold's Presbyterian Home in Dallas. Clothing, toilet articles and candy would al make suitable offering gifts for the home.

Holiday Decorations Used In Open House

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Weyel and Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Roberts held an open house on Saturday evening in the home of the Roberts, 3749 Highland Drive.

Christmas decorations were used thoughout the house. Mrs. Weyel wore a beige champagne faille off-the-shoulder dress, and Mrs. Roberts wore a satin evening dress of the same color.

Holly Shortage Sparks New Ideas For Yule Decor

AP Newsfeatures

Now that the major portion of the nation's holly crop has been killed by an early freeze in the Pacific northwest, householders will have to use their ingenuity in holiday decorations.

Christmas trees also probably will be in short supply—at least the ones that are shipped from the West Coast, reports from growers indicate.

Although many other evergreens also have been damaged by the freeze, there are a number of other effects that my be used in Christmas decorations, according to Victor Stein, newly elected president of the association representing a majority of the nation's florists.

"While holly is as traditional as turkey at Christmas, there are other beautiful greens which will be in good supply. According to present indications there will be plenty of poinsettias, boxwood and other foliages grown in areas not hit by the freeze.

"Some florists's designers have done some effective modern designs using gilded branches and leaves such as arborvitae and magnolia."

Some other types of red berries which grow along the Atlantic Coast and in New England may substitute for holly this year. And of course there always is the good old standby, rhododendron leaves, to supply an effective arrangement of green in the home. These can be combined with Christmas tree balls for a colorful holiday display.

Although growers report almost a 100 per cent loss in the holly crop in the Northwest, there probably will be a small supply of holly from other regions available, which can be used as a focal point for arrangements of greenery.

The name "panther" is often used both for the leopard and for the puma.
