Simpson weathers stormy session

O.J. remains calm under pressure but cannot explain key points

Associated Press

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Confronted with the toughest physical evidence against him, O.J. Simpson couldn't explain Monday how blood believed to be the victims' got into his Bronco or how he suffered hand cuts that plaintiffs claim were fingernail gouges from a death struggle.

Showing Simpson a close-up photograph taken three days after the slayings of a crescent-shaped cut on his finger, attorney Daniel Petrocelli charged: "It was a fingernail mark, wasn't it, sir?"

"I seriously doubt that," Simpson replied.

"It was somebody's fingernails ripping into your skin, wasn't it?" Petrocelli asked.

Simpson suggested his then-5-year-old son, Justin, could have cut his finger while they were "rassling" in the days after the killings of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

"Unless it was Justin's, I really don't know," Simpson said with a hint of exasperation.

"Are you saying it was your son's fingernail?" the lawyer asked.

"I'm not saying it was Justin's. I was saying he was the only one I was any heavy physical ... wrestling."

Petrocelli, pacing sometimes within inches of the witness, challenged Simpson to explain virtually every move he made during 86 minutes on the night of the June 12, 1994, slayings when his whereabouts are unknown.

Simpson maintained he was resting in bed or showering at the time, and also said he was chipping golf balls and taking his dog out for a walk during those unaccounted-for minutes.

Petrocelli clearly tried to get a rise out of Simpson, but it didn't work. Once, the attorney paced so close to Simpson they were nearly nose to nose. At another instant, Petrocelli pointed a pen in Simpson's face and demanded, "Answer the question, sir!"

Petrocelli quizzed the defendant about blood, noting there was blood in his Bronco, on a driveway at his home and on a kitchen counter. The defense has said the Bronco blood was planted by overzealous police.

Simpson said he remembered seeing some blood on his pinky finger and on the

New Amsterdam, Guyana

Midland may get new sister city

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Ten years after a sister-city relationship was created with Dongying, China, Midland officials are bringing New Amsterdam, Guyana into the family.

The City Council is expected to approve the relationship at its regular meeting today. The New Amsterdam council gave its blessing to the union last month.

"It really fits what some of us were thinking about, having another sister city in Europe and South America," Mayor Bobby Burns said.

The idea of enlarging the family has been talked about in the last year. And when a delegation of Midlanders traveled to Dongying in June for the 10-year anniversary of that relationship, the mayor discussed the possibility with some fellow travelers.

"I just casually mentioned my hometown. We dropped it then. It was just guys talking," said Midland physician Tulsi Singh, who was born and raised just outside of New Amsterdam.

A couple of months later in Midland, the mayor met the Guyana attorney general and the subject was revived. Burns, who met the president of Guyana two years ago, subsequently met other prominent residents of the South American country.

County won't investigate school district

■ Ector County Attorney looks into allegations against MISD regarding school bond campaign, finds no grounds for prosecution.

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

The Midland County Attorney's office will not be pursuing allegations against the Midland Independent School District made by members of the group Citizens for Fiscal Responsibility, according to County Attorney Mark Dettman.

Members of that group took exception to the school district's involvement in the failed $110 million school bond election held earlier this year to repair and upgrade facilities throughout the district.

CFR members came out in opposition to the bond issue and worked for its eventual defeat by Midland voters.

During a bond election, the district is responsible for providing information about the election to the voters, but CFR members objected to what they perceived as MISD officials presenting that information in the form of illegal advocacy for the bond at taxpayers expense, according to Richard Bowdon, a spokesman for CFR.

"They were lobbying in favor of the bond with taxpayer's money," Bowdon alleges.

But the Ector County Attorney's Office, which looked into the matter at the request of the Midland County Attorney's Office, indicated prosecution of the allegations would not be appropriate, according to Dettman, who added that since the Ector County office made that determination, his office would not pursue the matter.

Bowdon had sent out an open letter prior to the May election outlining objections from the CFR. The allegations in that letter read:

■ Knowing that the ballot would be worded "for" and "against," MISD designed a graphic logo specifically for this election that repeats the word "for" three times. There is no way that anyone seeking this "for" logo could fail to understand that a vote for the bond is being advocated.

■ a four-color poster printed and mailed at taxpayer expense and prominently displaying their "for" logo includes a typical mixture of fact and opinion. Under the heading "The Facts" we find "Year 'round school is not the answer!" The poster also included an open letter from the trustees calling the $110 million bond "an absolute necessity

Group needs parents, sponsors for gun drop to succeed

Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Corporate sponsors and concerned parents are needed if Midland is to adequately respond to a challenge from an Odessa parents group trying to get weapons off the streets.

The group, Parents Taking Control, had six firearms turned in during its Nov. 7 Gun Drop program in Odessa. As part of the program, weapons can be turned in with "no questions asked" and traded for prizes supplied by local merchants, explained coordinator Lydia Peña, incoming president of Odessa Hispanic Heritage organization.

A "weapons drop" is scheduled in Midland from 3:30 p.m. to 6:30 Dec. 7 at the Albertsons Food Store at 3317 N. Midland Drive and at Community National Bank at 601 E. Florida Ave. A second drive in Odessa will run on the same day as the Midland effort, Ms. Pena said.

"It is a guns and weapons drop. They have Albertsons as a sponsor in Midland but are looking for more," Ms. Peña said, adding that the group is seeking a sponsor who will offer free jeans or shoes.

"Some of these kids never had a brand name pair of jeans or tennis shoes," she said.

The winner between Odessa and Midland will have a plaque placed on the Friendship Marker on State Highway 191.

In Odessa, the gun and weapon drop off will be from 12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Albertsons on Eighth Street and Albertsons at 42nd and Parkway.

"There will be no questions or hassles," Ms. Peña said.

In Odessa, sponsors include Rosa's Cafe, Coca-Cola, Peter Piper Pizza, all of which will be giving away gift certificates. Also in Odessa, radio station KMRK will be giving out free CD's and have a live remote.

The Albertsons food stores are involved in both cities and have provided $10 gift certificates to be passed out as part of the rewards, she said.

"Albertsons is giving as many certificates as we need," Ms. Peña said.

She wants to include weapons — and not just guns — in the "drop" because parents have complained about children having brass knuckles, crowbars and baseball bats.

"I used to play with a baseball bat, not beat on someone with it," she said.

"Crime is hitting us hard and I don't know if the kids are lacking tender loving care, understanding or what, but we need to get these guns and weapons off the street by the holidays," she said.

The group hopes to continue the gun and weapon event, having one every month. And in the future, the group hopes to challenge even larger cities such as Amarillo and Corpus Christi.

"These are our leaders of tomorrow and how can they lead when they have this kind of attitude?" Ms. Peña said. "There are so many other kind of things they can do without guns," she said.

For more information on the upcoming event, contact Rachel Stone at the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce at 682-2960. Ms. Peña can be reached at 530-3328.

WEATHER WATCH

Today to be cool, partly cloudy

Staff Report

Temperatures reached 56 degrees Monday after falling to a low of 25 early in the morning. The record high for November 25 was 85 degrees, set in 1965; the record low was 18 degrees, set in 1938.

Sunrise is expected at 7:27 a.m. and sunset at 5:45 p.m.

The National Weather Service expects today to be partly cloudy with temperatures in the lower 60s and a light east wind becoming westerly at 5 to 10 miles per hour by this afternoon.

The forecast for Wednesday is mostly cloudy with temperatures in the mid-50s.

For Thanksgiving Day, the forecast is party cloudy with lows around 30 and highs in the mid-50s to 60 degrees.

STATE

Winter's frosty grip on North Texas eased slightly Monday afternoon as temperatures rebounded into the 40s in western areas. Eastern areas remained cloudy with temperatures only in the 30s. Strong winds helped push wind chill readings down to the single digits and teens. At 3 p.m., temperatures ranged from 32 degrees at Paris and Sherman to 48 degrees at Fort Hood.

The forecast included a freeze warning for East Texas with lows from 24 to 29 degrees. Tuesday will be partly cloudy and warmer with a high from 46 to 53.

Skies were clear across much of west and south Texas with some clouds lingering in the southeastern portion of the state. Temperatures were generally in the 40s and 50s.

The forecast for south Texas called for sunny skies Tuesday with highs ranging from the mid 50s in northern areas to near 70 in the Valley.

West Texas will become partly to mostly cloudy, with a chance of rain, sleet and snow beginning in the Panhandle Tuesday afternoon and spreading southward through the Permian Basin Tuesday night through Wednesday.

NATION

A strong low pressure system spread ice across the southern Plains and Mississippi Valley on Monday and strong thunderstorms across the South. Temperatures hit record lows from North Dakota to Texas.

Freezing rain fell in the cold air flowing around the north and west of the low-pressure system, coating roads and power lines from Texas across Oklahoma and Arkansas into eastern Missouri.

The accumulating ice cut power to thousands of customers, made highways hazardous and closed schools. At Mineral Wells, Texas, sleet accumulated 2 inches thick and the city had to spread 80 tons of sand on the streets.

The icy weather was heading toward the northeast and mixed rain and snow were likely during the night across Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio.

The flow around the low pressure system combined with high pressure over the northern Plains to pump arctic air from the Dakotas all the way into Texas.

Williston, N.D., chilled to a morning low of 26 below zero, tying a record that has stood since 1898 and just one degree warmer than Sunday's record low.

Other record lows were 18 below at Devils Lake, N.D.; 13 below at Minot, N.D.; 12 below at Sioux Falls, S.D.; and 19 above at San Angelo, Texas.

East of the low pressure area's center, a line of thunderstorms spread from Mississippi through Alabama into Georgia and the Florida Panhandle, moving eastward at about 30 mph.

On Sunday, the thunderstorms generated tornadoes in Louisiana.

In the Northwest, light showers were scattered from Washington into Montana and northern Utah, with mountain snowfall confined to higher elevations as warm air pushed into the region.

Elsewhere, showers were scattered over parts of New England, with occasional light snow, and scattered snow was possible over northern Michigan.

Monday's temperatures around the Lower 48 states ranged from the low of 26 below at Williston, N.D., to an early afternoon reading of 86 at Fort Myers, Fla. The lowest wind chill was 54 below zero at Minot, N.D.

MISD: County attorneys find no grounds for prosecution

at this time."

■ MISD has admitted to giving the original artwork for their "for" logo to CARE at no charge. CARE, the political action committee of the teacher's union, then reproduced the logo in the form of yard signs. By saving CARE the expense of designing and drafting artwork, MISD directly subsidized the making of these signs. Although they may be willing to give the artwork to anyone, it would only be of value to bond supporters.

■ The yard signs were assembled onto stakes inside the MISD administration building during the business day, probably by MISD employees, then handed out to every employee in the building as they left work for the day.

■ Newspaper ads placed by MISD claim that not passing the bond "will cost taxpayers more in the long run" than passing it. This is certainly not an objective fact. Repayment on the bond will total $222 million. Cheaper alternatives do exist.

■ Parental invitation to polling places are printed on MISD letterhead, including wording such as "we are in hopes that you will show support of our District" and "we are sure you are aware that all our schools are in need of renovation." Question: does that include the newly-built Abell Junior High?

■ Some schools set up computers to call parents and play a message asking them to support the bond. At Lee High School, the principle himself recorded the message.

■ Also at LHS, the school-wide morning announcements for May 13 included a message to 18-year-old students "go to room 202 ... to vote for the bond issue." The large outdoor sign at LHS contained similar wording.

■ Employees stationed at the MISD bus barn were transported to vote at district expense during the working day.

■ After over a week of rampant electioneering at the various schools holding "mobile voting," Elections Administrator Pat Eastup finally had to insist that MISD put a stop to it.

Following the election, CFR members took their concerns to Dettman and asked for an investigation into the possibility of illegal activity in the campaign on the part of MISD officials, Bowdon said.

As is traditional when a public entity like the school district is involved, Dettman deferred the investigation to his counterpart in Ector County — County Attorney Tracey Bright.

After reviewing the data, Ms. Bright said that in her opinion, the matter was not appropriate for prosecution, Dettman explained.

If there was inappropriate use of tax funds, Ms. Bright responded that it would be very difficult to determine who ordered the use of those funds and the "money trail" could not be proven, Dettman said.

Because of that, Ms. Bright believed the matter was "not prosecutable," Dettman said.

Meanwhile, MISD Superintendent Dr. Joseph Barresi said local school officials had believed all along that they had done nothing wrong during the course of the election.

Ms. Bright also explained that if proof were to materialize in the future, she could not prosecute the matter since she has a relative in MISD.

CFR members are continuing to urge Dettman to proceed with the investigation, even with Ms. Bright's findings on the matter.

But Dettman said, "If she's already made that determination — that's the end of it."

CITY: Mayor travels to prospective new sister city

(From 1A)

The key to adopting a sister city is finding a city that's interested and someone locally who can act as an initial liaison, Burns said. Guyana representatives were enthusiastic and Singh was a receptive coordinator.

Toward the end of last month, Burns and Singh traveled to Guyana to look into the possibility. The trip was privately funded, as would be the sister-city relationship, Burns said.

It didn't take long for the Midland mayor to determine that New Amsterdam officials were eager to form the relationship. Burns was welcomed with open arms from the citizens, New Amsterdam Mayor Errol Alphonso and Guyana President Cheddi Jagan.

"They didn't treat me like a mayor. They treated me more like a head of state," Burns said.

Burns said he found the residents of the third-world country "extremely hospitable" and "very much like Midlanders."

While in New Amsterdam, Burns met with city officials and visited more than a half-dozen schools and several industries including a bauxite ore plant and a sugar cane factory.

New Amsterdam — about 100 miles southeast of the capital of Georgetown — is flat and bordered by the Berbice and Canje rivers and the Atlantic Ocean. It has a population of 30,000 and is located in Berbice County, which has a population of 225,000.

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Dr. Tulsi Singh, left, and Mayor Bobby Burns have spearheaded the New Amsterdam, Guyana, sister-city project.

New Amsterdam's economy is based on bauxite ore (aluminum), rice, sugar, gold, hardwoods, lumber, fishing and fresh fruits.

The city is managed by a mayor, who's elected by the city council, and 14 council members. The city's motto is "From a glorious past to a dynamic future."

Guyana — which became independent from Great Britain in 1966 — is a parliamentary democracy.

The country's population is 800,000. The people speak English and its ethnic make-up consists of descendants of immigrants from India (52 percent), blacks (33 percent), American Indians (2 percent) and the remainder of Chinese, Portuguese and European origin.

Now that a sister-city relationship is being formed, Burns said, he expects visitors from the South American city within the next six months.

The city of New Amsterdam already has plans to name a ball field after Midland, and Midland officials are looking at naming a small multi-use field at the future southwest community park after New Amsterdam.

This past summer, Midland celebrated its 10 year sister-city anniversary with Dongying, China. That relationship developed from a March 1985 cultural tour of the Thouvenal String Quartet and several Midland residents.

Since that sister-city relationship began, five large delegations and several smaller groups from Midland have traveled to Dongying, located in the Shandong Province about 225 miles south of Peking. Likewise, Midland has welcomed several groups from Dongying.

The relationship has served as a cultural, business, education and friendship exchange. That has included sharing an interest in the oil and gas industry; Dongying is located in the Shengli oilfield, the second-largest oil producing region in China.

SIMPSON: O.J. stays calm, doesn't answer all points counter before he left for Chicago late the night of the slayings.

"I assumed at the time it was my blood. I don't know. Like I said, I didn't feel the cut," he said.

He said he had no idea why or when he bled.

He recounted how a glass broke in his Chicago hotel room and perhaps injured his hand. But he couldn't remember how the glass broke or when he was cut, suggesting it was perhaps when he was "sweeping" broken pieces into the sink.

Under questioning about when he changed his clothes in Chicago the day after the killings, Simpson said he knew he had some blood on his clothes and "at some point I threw up."

Petrocelli asked if he knew how blood traces that experts have linked to Ms. Simpson and Goldman came to be in his Bronco. Simpson said he didn't know.

"You have no explanation for this jury?" Petrocelli asked incredulously.

"None," Simpson replied.

He also said he didn't know how blood matching his and Ms. Simpson's got on socks in his bedroom, or how blood matching his was found on the pathway of his ex-wife's house, on the path of his Brentwood estate and on the floor of his bathroom there, "except that's where I shave."

Fighting back persistent challenges to his alibi, Simpson maintained he was on his bed resting or in the shower between 10:35 p.m. and 10:40 p.m., when the plaintiffs say the killings took place.

Simpson said he was running late for a limousine ride to the airport, and hurried into the shower during those five minutes. Plaintiffs say Ms. Simpson and Goldman were slashed to death between 10:35 and 10:45.

While showering, Simpson said, he thought he heard a phone ringing. He said his security system causes the phone to ring when a visitor buzzes at the gate.

Limousine driver Allan Park testified that he rang the intercom from 10:40 to 10:49. House guest Brian "Kato" Kaelin arrived at the front of the estate at 10:55, checking out mysterious thumps, and Simpson came out of his house at 11:01.

In his second day on the stand, Simpson was an island of calm in a stormy court scene marked by accusations between battling attorneys Petrocelli and Robert Baker who accused each other of "showboating."

As the morning wore on and the questions became more accusatory, Simpson appeared to tire. He sighed a few times, shook his head and began offering more elaborate answers, including the supposition about Justin that he quickly tried to retract.

Later, Petrocelli confronted Simpson with the allegation he took a polygraph test and scored a minus 22, showing "extreme deception."

Simpson, who denied in his deposition ever taking a lie-detector test, acknowledged under questioning that he was hooked up to a polygraph machine at a private office so he could see how the device worked before taking a test from police. Police never made Simpson submit to a lie-detector test.

Simpson started the day by denying he had ever listened to a "Dear John" phone message left for him by his girlfriend, Paula Barbieri. The plaintiffs contend the message helped push him into a murderous rage the night of the killings.

Petrocelli suggested Simpson was lonely that night and repeatedly called Barbieri for companionship.

And, Petrocelli suggested, Simpson was upset at his ex-wife for causing the alleged breakup with Barbieri.

"You blamed Nicole because your relationship with Paula was now almost up, true?" Petrocelli asked.

"I can't answer that."

"You blame Nicole because your relationship with Paula was over?" Petrocelli asked.

"No, I didn't do that," Simpson said.

But Simpson did later acknowledge that "Nicole was a problem with Paula."

Two men held as suspected hijackers may be released

MORONI, Comoros Islands (AP) — Two men held for hijacking an Ethiopian Airlines plane that crashed, killing more than 120 people, may have been innocent passengers and could be released, the government said today.

The two were arrested at a hospital Saturday but government spokesman Dgouma Ibrahim said when the suspects were shown to the plane's co-pilot, he told police they weren't the hijackers.

Ibrahim said the men could be set free as early as Tuesday if authorities determine the flight officer, Yonas Mekuria, is correct.

If the two arrested men are determined not to have been Ethiopian hijackers as was previously thought, and instead were passengers from Congo and Djibouti, it would mean all three hijackers died in Saturday's crash just off the Comoros Islands, Ibrahim added.

Earlier today, recovery workers dragged a large section of the wreckage of the hijacked jet out of the azure waters of this beach resort.

Ethiopian Airlines said today that four of the 52 people pulled alive from the wreckage have died, raising the death toll to 127. The survivors include the pilot.

Flight 961, which left the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa en route to the Ivory Coast, crash-landed in the Indian Ocean on Saturday. It was one of history's deadliest air hijackings.

The motive behind the hijacking remains unclear.

The two men were arrested at the central Moroni hospital, where survivors of the crash were initially taken. They remained in police custody today.

A third hijacker died in the crash, and officials have identified his body, Ibrahim said. His identity has not been disclosed.

The remains of some of the victims could be seen in the section of fuselage pulled onto the beach. Workers wore masks to fend off the smell in the tropical heat. Recovered bodies were zipped into dark bags and hauled to a makeshift morgue set up in a former meat warehouse.

Police said 101 bodies had been recovered by late today.

Survivors have been flown to hospitals across the region, including 25 who were taken to Nairobi, Kenya. Ethiopian Airlines did not specify where the four who had died had been taken.

The three hijackers who stormed into the cockpit soon after the plane took off had demanded they be taken to Australia and refused to allow the pilot to stop to refuel.

As the Boeing 767's fuel tanks emptied, the pilot, Capt. Leul Abate, pleaded with the hijackers to let him land the jet safely at an airport in Moroni, capital of the Comoros Islands east of Mozambique.

"He wanted to go there, but they wouldn't let him," the co-pilot Mekuria told The Associated Press from his hospital bed, where he was being treated for cuts and bruises.

"I guess they understood it," he said of the fuel shortage. "But they didn't give a damn."

Armed with an ax, a fire extinguisher and a device they claimed was a bomb, they had pushed past flight attendants and into the cockpit, beating the co-pilot and forcing him out.

One hijacker seemed drunk, the co-pilot said, and waved a bottle of whiskey that he apparently had taken from a beverage cart on the plane. As passengers listened in terror, the air pirates spewed threats over the jet's public address system.

"They said, 'We escaped from prison. We are against the government. We are hijacking the plane. We have an explosive. If anybody moves, we'll explode it,'" Ethiopian passenger Bisrat Alemu said.

Rekha Mirchandani, a 29-year-old Indian woman who survived along with her 4-year-old daughter, said the hijackers had warned they were prepared to kill all on board.

Finally, the pilot went on the public address system himself to announce that the jet was running out of fuel.

One engine had stopped, and the other would shortly, the pilot told the passengers. He was going to try to ditch the plane in the sea.

Survivors said a wing clipped the water. Then the body of the plane slammed into the sea, bouncing and flipping at least once before it broke apart.

"The first bump was really gentle. Then the second one was really hard," said passenger Frank Huddle, the U.S. consul-general in Bombay.

"The third one was even harder, like a 70-mph auto accident," he said. "The last one was like an earthquake."

Huddle's wife, Shania, also survived, as did another American whose name was not released. The identity of a fourth American who was killed also was not available.

Foreign embassies and Ethiopian Airlines said the passenger list included people from Europe, Asia and Africa. Antal Annus, the Hungarian ambassador to Kenya, was among those aboard. It was not clear whether he survived.

In 1990 128 people died when a hijacked plane crashed at the airport in Guangzhou, China.

North Korea releases American held on spy charge

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea has agreed to release an American arrested as a spy three months ago when he crossed into the communist country.

Evan C. Hunziker will arrive in Tokyo today, escorted by the congressman who helped secure his freedom, the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo said in a statement Monday.

Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., arrived in North Korea on Monday to seek the release of Hunziker, who was arrested and charged with spying when he entered North Korea from China on Aug. 24.

The United States had demanded his release, and the State Department called the espionage charges against him "absolutely ludicrous."

North Korea accused Hunziker, 26, of spying for its capitalist rival, South Korea. Hunziker's relatives say he probably crossed the border to try to convert North Koreans to Christianity.

Hunziker converted last year while serving 90 days in an Alaskan jail for drunken driving, according to his father, Edwin Hunziker of Tacoma, Wash.

Evan Hunziker's mother and his former wife are South Korean, and he left for that country in August to preach the Gospel, his parents say. Hunziker "doesn't know the first thing about spying," his father has said.

Edwin Hunziker said Monday he had had no word of his son's imminent release.

"Until he's out of that place, [illegible] that will be good news," he said by telephone from Tacoma. "When he gets into Tokyo, then that will be good news."

A Swedish diplomat visited Hunziker in jail this month and reported he was in good health but was disconsolate. Swedish diplomats have been acting as intermediaries between North Korea and the United States.

Assistant Secretary of State for Asian Affairs Winston Lord refused to confirm that Hunziker's release was imminent, but he said that if he were freed, it would help improve ties between Washington and North Korea.

"On the other hand, Mr. Hunziker never should have been held in the first place," Lord said in Manila, where he attended the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation forum with President Clinton. "But we would welcome his release."

Hunziker's detention had been a sore point between the communist country and the United States, which also has demanded that North Korea apologize for sending a submarine into South Korean waters in September.

South Korea also demanded an apology, although South Korean President Kim Young-Sam and Clinton appeared to soften their demands in sideline talks Sunday at the Pacific Rim summit.

In a joint statement later, Clinton and Kim said only that North Korea must "take acceptable steps to resolve the submarine incident, reduce tension and avoid such provocation in the future."

The statement made no mention of Kim's earlier insistence on an apology, when he threatened to boycott any peace talks with North Korea and stall work on a pair of nuclear reactors promised the country.

Impoverished North Korea, suffering from food shortages caused by devastating floods, needs the help of South Korea and the United States to build the reactors under a 1994 agreement.

Doctors weigh health risks for Mother Teresa

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Doctors were considering Monday whether to perform a delicate, invasive procedure on Mother Teresa to check on the functioning of her arteries.

The 86-year-old Roman Catholic nun has been in a Calcutta hospital's intensive care ward since Friday, when one of the four chambers of her heart failed to perform properly. A Woodlands Nursing Home statement late Monday described her condition as "unchanged."

"She is not out of danger," said S.K. Sen, the hospital's medical director.

Mother Teresa's medical team was considering performing an angiogram to determine whether an angioplasty is necessary, Sen said.

An angiogram involves puncturing an artery, usually in the groin, and inserting a tube up into the chest arteries that feed the heart. X-ray dye is then injected into the arteries and pictures are taken.

That could be followed up by an angioplasty, in which the arteries are dilated to increase blood flow.

Because the angiogram is unpleasant for the patient, Mother Teresa's doctors will wait a few more days before making a final decision to see if she improves on medication alone.

Doctors often are reluctant to recommend such invasive tests for frail, elderly patients because there is a risk of infection.

Mother Teresa, recipient of the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize, has suffered two heart attacks since 1983 and has a pacemaker. So far this year, she has been hospitalized four times — twice with heart problems and twice with injuries sustained during falls.

Over the weekend, she suffered chest pain and breathing problems.

About 100 nuns at the Calcutta headquarters of the order she founded 50 years ago, Missionaries of Charity, prayed for her recovery at their regular morning Mass on Monday.

> Doctors often are reluctant to recommend... invasive tests for frail, elderly patients

It was unclear how her latest health problems will affect plans to elect a successor as head of the order. The nuns were to hold elections within the next few months. The order's constitutional requires a vote every six years.

In 1990, Mother Teresa announced that she wanted to retire, and her name was not on the ballot. She reluctantly agreed to stay on after all the sisters wrote her name in anyway.

Sister Priscilla Lewis, a senior administrator of the order, was quoted over the weekend as saying the election will go ahead as planned "if Mother's health and other factors permit."

The Missionaries of Charity operates 517 centers around the world, including 169 in India. Aides have taken over more and more day-to-day responsibilities since Mother Teresa's health began to decline.

Chinese names confuse census

BEIJING (AP) — The popularity of simple, short — and often identical — names in China is confusing the country's bureaucracy, leading police to chase down the wrong suspects and callers to dial the wrong numbers.

So complain China's census takers, who in their last survey discovered more than 4,600 people in Beijing named Zhang Li and a similar number of Zhang Yings, the official newspaper China Business Times reported Monday.

The problem stemmed from families choosing short, two-character names for their children, which combine with common surnames including Wang, Zhang and Chen. Parents now are being encouraged to select more complicated, less common names.

Rwanda rejects international force, claims U.N refugee figures too high

GOMA, Zaire (AP) — The leader of a rebel movement in eastern Zaire and the Rwandan government that is accused of supporting him both rejected a proposed international humanitarian force Monday.

Twenty-five nations met in Germany over the weekend and announced they were considering sending forces to protect humanitarian aid deliveries, but in central Africa, their help was not wanted.

"We object to their presence in Rwanda," Ephraim Kabayija, an adviser to President Pasteur Bizimungu, said in Kigali, Rwanda's capital.

In Goma, rebel leader Laurent Desire Kabila told reporters that U.N. aid agency figures on refugees were "totally false" and included local Zairians who fled fighting in the region.

"We do not need (an international) force here," he said, adding that he was preparing for a substantial clash with his foes — Zairian government troops and Rwandan Hutu militias — soon in Walikale, 90 miles west of the border city of Goma.

Last week, Rwanda claimed nearly all Rwandan refugees had returned home from eastern Zaire, but Kabayija acknowledged Monday that "about 150,000" refugees remain, apparently moving westward into Zaire.

A spokesman for the United Nations, however, insisted Monday that the number of refugees still in Zaire was much higher.

Kabayija said the refugees in Zaire are under the control of Rwandan Hutu militiamen, and the only role the international troops could play was to fight the militiamen and free the refugees.

> 'We do not need (an international force) here'
> —Rebel leader Laurent Desire Kabila in Goma, Zaire

The nations who met in Germany agreed that at least 250,000 refugees were in eastern Zaire and as many as 300,000 more could be, said Canadian Lt. Gen. Maurice Baril, who is to lead the proposed force.

Rebel leaders have refused to let aid workers and journalists enter eastern Zaire, where returning refugees say their hungry and exhausted compatriots are dying.

In a chilling statistic, aid agency figures indicate that twice as many women as men are coming out of the forests of eastern Zaire. Nothing is known about the men's fate.

Hundreds of Rwandan refugees emerged from the forest Monday, many with gunshot and machete wounds from attacks received while walking toward Rwanda.

"In the forest we saw soldiers, and they started to shoot at us, I was shot six times. I thought I was going to die," said refugee Emmanuel Nahimana.

Kabila, leader of the uprising against Zairian President Mobutu Sese Seko, said Monday that a local militia known as Mai Mai had joined the rebellion and was probably responsible for the attacks on refugees.

Refugees also said the Mai Mai have taken adult male refugees into the forest and that they have since disappeared.

"(Mai Mai forces) have joined us, and we are training them, but there are undisciplined men in these groups and a few can be the cause of that," Kabila said of the attacks.

Kabila spoke to reporters after meeting with Peter Whaley of the U.S. Embassy in Kigali. Neither would comment on the meeting.

Last week, 500,000 Rwandan refugees suddenly poured out of eastern Zaire and back across the border, after rebel attacks drove out the Hutu militias that had been holding them hostage.

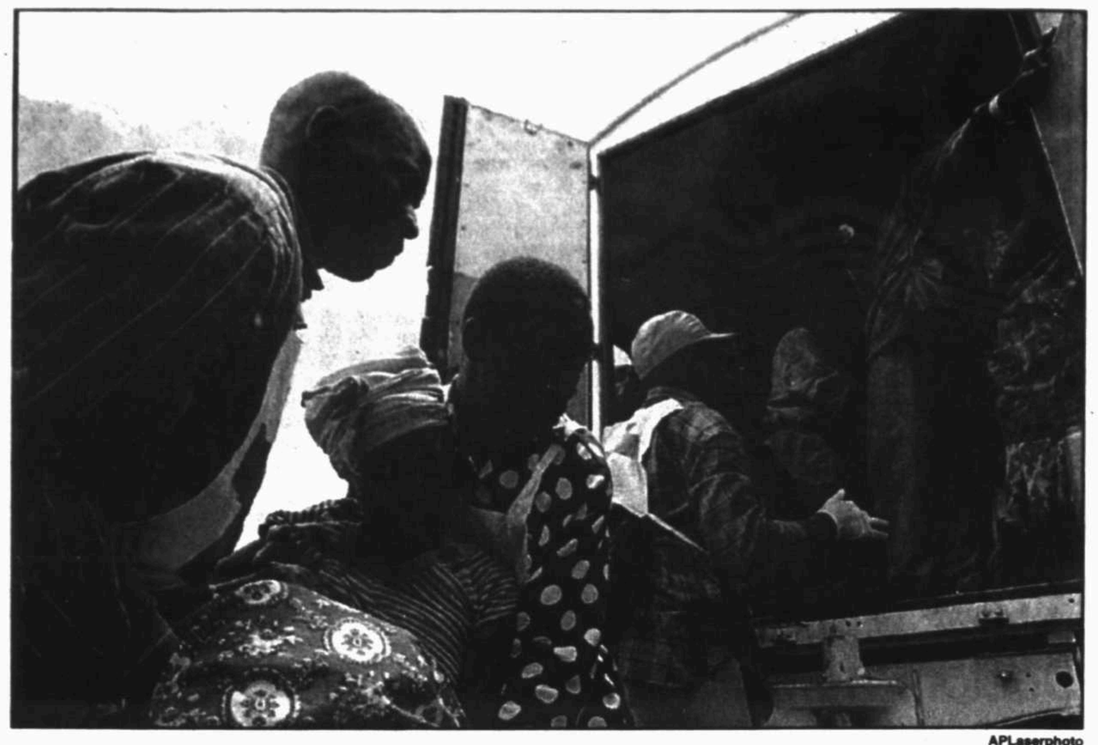

The refugees had fled Rwanda in 1994 to escape retaliation for a Hutu-led massacre of at least 500,000 minority Tutsis.

Rwanda wants money to help rebuild the country and resettle returned refugees, but rejects foreign troops.

U.N. spokesman Peter Kessler defended his agency's figures Monday, saying the original count of 1.24 million refugees — of which 1.1 million were Rwandans and 140,000 were Burundians — was based on censuses at the U.N. camps.

Kessler said the U.N.'s most recent assessment, based on field reports and reconnaissance photos, is that there are several new concentrations of Rwandan refugees in a 140-mile long section of eastern Zaire.

He said that includes 100,000 refugees south of the city of Uvira, more than 200,000 southwest of Bukavu, 100,000 northwest of Bukavu, 200,000 between Bukavu and Goma, and more than 100,000 northwest of Goma.

U.S. expert says Soviet sub's plutonium spill not dangerous

MOSCOW (AP) — A newly revealed plutonium spill from a Soviet nuclear sub that sank a decade ago probably contaminated the sea floor, but did not endanger marine life, a U.S. expert said Monday.

Soviet authorities denied there was any radioactive contamination after the nuclear-armed submarine caught fire and sank 600 miles east of Bermuda in October 1986. U.S. and British authorities said at the time that they failed to detect any traces of a spill.

But a top Russian nuclear scientist, Stanislav Vesnovsky, told his U.S. counterparts much later that nuclear warheads on the sub broke open, spewing plutonium-239 into the Atlantic. The San Francisco Examiner, which first reported Vesnovsky's comments on Sunday, said it was not known how much weapons-grade plutonium had spilled.

However, Hugh Livingston, a U.S. scientist familiar with the Russian's account, said Monday that the amount spilled was a few pounds, which he called the single biggest loss of weapons-grade plutonium into the ocean.

Livingston, a senior research specialist at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute on Cape Cod, Mass., told The Associated Press by telephone that he and his colleagues were told about the spill in the spring of 1995.

He said it would not have been dangerous to humans because of the site's isolation and the fact it sank in 18,000 feet of water.

"I don't really believe that the surface ocean and the food chain in the ocean would have been seriously contaminated with plutonium," he said. "Plutonium is extremely heavy ... and would have extremely rapidly dropped into the deep ocean."

Plutonium is so radioactive that ingesting as little as a few billionths of an ounce can cause serious injury.

Because the accident presents a rare opportunity to study the consequences of a plutonium spill, the Americans and Vesnovsky are trying to launch a U.S.-Russian project to survey the sunken sub with deep-sea cameras and to gather sea-floor samples.

Attempts to contact Russian nuclear authorities and Vesnovsky for comment Monday were unsuccessful.

The Examiner report said four crew members and 32 nuclear warheads sank along with the sub known as K-219 in one of the deepest parts of the North Atlantic. One warhead was destroyed by an explosion and others were destroyed by high pressure as the sub sank into deep water, Vesnovsky said.

Livingston said the Americans have no other confirmation of the spill but were sufficiently persuaded by Vesnovsky's account to try to organize an expedition.

The proposal's status remains uncertain. Livingston acknowledged that it may encounter resistance in Russia because of its cost — at least $1 million — and the chance it would give U.S. officials to examine Soviet nuclear technology.

Hearing proposal rates approval

A Republican legislator's bill which would mandate a hearing before the Board of Pardons and Paroles prior to release of all prisoners in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice seems like only common sense.

If the bill by Rep. Peggy Hamric, R-Houston, were to be approved in the upcoming legislative session, it would require a meeting before the prison board for every prisoner. A 1995 law requires such a hearing before mandatory releases, but that measure applies only to prisoners sentenced on or after Sept. 1. And there are plenty of rapists, murderers and child molesters who were in prison prior to that date. Are we going to turn them loose regardless of the threat to society they represent?

The flaw in the mandatory release law was revealed earlier this year when child molester Larry Don McQuay was turned out of prison onto the streets even though he had vowed to molest more children.

Gov. George W. Bush has embraced Hamric's proposal, saying, "The parole board, not some mathematical formula, should decide whether a prisoner is still a threat to society."

But Jim Harrington, executive director of the Texas Civil Rights Project, has already served notice that the proposal will be closely scrutinized. Harrington said, "I think anybody sentenced under that (mandatory release) statute has the right to that statute."

That's fine, as long as they are not still a threat to society. If they are, however, and like McQuay profess to returning to a life on the outside preying on innocent people, we think Texas society will want them to stay behind bars regardless when their sentence is supposed to end.

Hamric's bill is entirely reasonable and should be approved quickly in the coming legislative session.

ANOTHER VIEW

U.S. soldiers aren't world social workers

Will it be a Somalian deja vu all over again with Clinton's decision to send up to 4,000 U.S. troops as part of a Canadian-led force trying to help a million malnourished refugees in the war-ravaged country of Zaire in Central Africa?

Let's hope not, but the trouble with these "humanitarian missions" is that no one really knows how they will end.

... Clinton administration officials say they will go to great lengths to see to it that the Zaire mission is clear, and they will not send our troops into combat situations. But they acknowledge that American troops may have to fight to defend themselves while securing the Goma airport so humanitarian-relief supplies can be distributed.

... It's hard not to feel compassion for the refugees, as their suffering is televised nightly into American homes ...

The problem with getting involved with these regional conflicts, Bosnia included, is that there is no clear strategic American interest in stepping into the fray.

... What has happened to the concept to our military's mission being the armed protection of American interests? By temperament and training, American soldiers are simply not meant to be the world's social workers.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 26, the 331st day of 1996. There are 35 days left in the year.

November 26, 1789 was a day of thanksgiving set aside by President Washington to observe the adoption of the Constitution of the United States.

On this date:

In 1832, public streetcar service began in New York City. The fare: 12 1/2 cents.

In 1825, the first college social fraternity, Kappa Alpha, was formed at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y.

In 1940, the half-million Jews of Warsaw, Poland, were forced by the Nazis to live within a walled ghetto.

In 1942, the motion picture "Casablanca," starring Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman, had its world premiere at the Hollywood Theater in New York City.

In 1942, President Roosevelt ordered nationwide gasoline rationing, beginning December 1.

In 1949, India adopted a constitution as a republic within the British Commonwealth.

In 1950, China entered the Korean conflict, launching a counteroffensive against soldiers from the United Nations, the United States and South Korea.

In 1965, France launched its first satellite, sending a 92-pound capsule into orbit.

In 1973, President Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, told a federal court that she'd accidentally caused part of the 18 1/2 minute gap in a key Watergate tape.

In 1975, a federal jury in Sacramento, Calif., found Lynette Fromme, a follower of Charles Manson, guilty of trying to assassinate President Ford.

In 1990, Japanese business giant Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. agreed to acquire MCA Inc. for $6.6 billion.

Ten years ago: President Reagan appointed a commission headed by former Sen. John Tower to investigate his National Security Council staff in the wake of the Iran-Contra affair.

Five years ago: The Stars and Stripes were lowered for the last time at Clark Air Base in the Philippines as the United States abandoned one of its oldest and largest overseas installations, which was damaged by a volcano.

One year ago: Senior U.S. officials declared the Dayton accord treaty on Bosnia was final, rejecting demands from Bosnian Serbs that provisions relating to the future of Sarajevo be changed. Two men set fire to a subway token booth in Brooklyn borough of New York City, fatally burning the clerk inside.

Roasting top political turkeys of 1996

WASHINGTON — At the risk of spoiling your holiday dinner, we want to take this time to hand out our annual turkey awards.

This is our salute to the most feather-brained, over-stuffed public officials in the nation's capital: those who've done the most in the last 12 months to make Americans think that Washington is for the birds.

Anderson

■ One very overcooked turkey goes out to the Pentagon, for waiting five years before admitting that thousands of American soldiers were exposed to chemical weapons during the Gulf War.

For five years, Pentagon officials steadfastly denied that there was any evidence of American soldiers being exposed to chemicals. All along, however, they had in their vaults a 1991 United Nations report revealing that chemical residue was found in a bunker that U.S. soldiers blew up shortly after the war.

The Pentagon sheepishly released this information only after receiving an ultimatum from a commission investigating the cause of the mysterious Gulf War Syndrome — and after inquiries from ourselves and others.

■ To House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., we issue not a turkey but a duck, in honor of the "duckmobile" that chased him around his Georgia district during the fall campaign. The duckmobile — a bright yellow Ford with a wooden duck and a loudspeaker affixed to the roof — was the brainchild of Michael Coles, a millionaire cookie salesman who ran unsuccessfully against Gingrich. It was meant to symbolize Gingrich's failure to debate his well-funded challenger.

One Saturday, Gingrich became so frustrated by the duckmobile's hot pursuit that he pulled over at a local police station, where a U.S. Park Police officer who was chauffeuring the speaker asked the duckmobile to back off, calling the yellow Ford a "security risk."

■ To Vice President Al Gore we bequeath a smoked ham, for his shameless performance at the Democratic National Convention. The man who's often denounced as a stiff used his convention speech to graphically describe his sister's death from cigarette smoking — and to highlight the administration's election-year war on tobacco.

Gore's heartfelt remarks would have seemed more sincere had he not taken campaign money from the tobacco lobby while serving in Congress and after the death of his sister. And maybe he should have told the audience that his own family — when not involved in politics — used to grow tobacco on its Tennessee farm.

■ A half-baked turkey with some sour grapes on the side go out to Rep. Bob Dornan, R-Calif., who kept thousands of C-SPAN viewers alert and appalled (and sometimes entertained) with his intemperate diatribes against the Clinton administration.

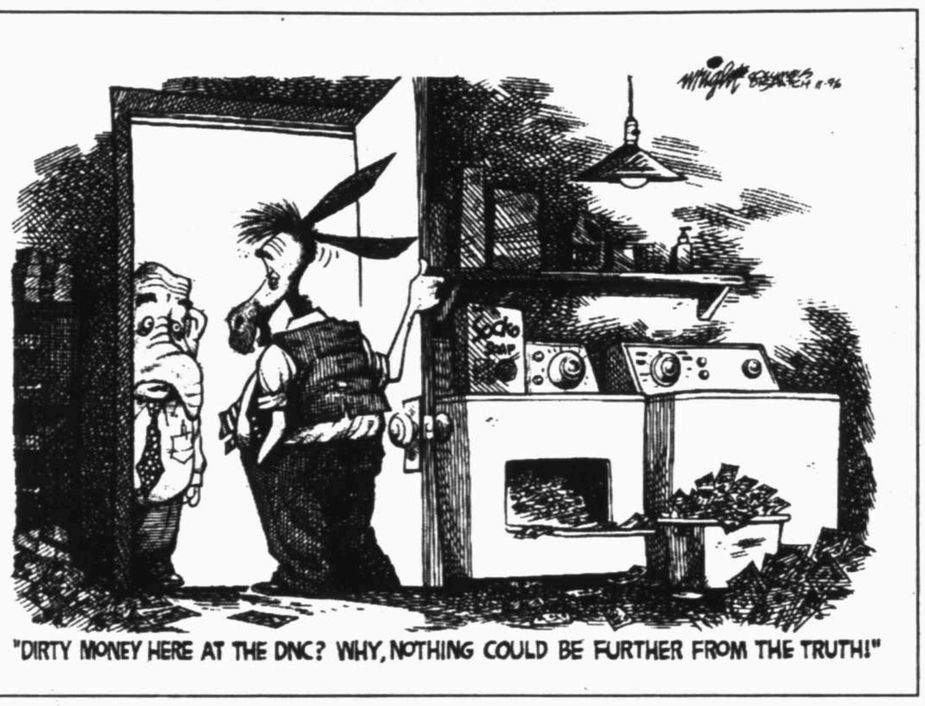

In typical fashion, Dornan reacted to his Election Day defeat at the hands of unknown Loretta Sanchez by denouncing the victor as a "liar" and by floating unsubstantiated allegations of voter fraud. Adios, Mr. Dornan.

■ In lieu of a turkey, one sumptuous Far Eastern feast is given to President Clinton and the Democratic National Committee, whose shameless solicitation of foreign dollars is certain to mar Clinton's second term the way Whitewater and other scandals intruded on his first four years in office.

■ For Rep. Gerry Solomon, R-N.Y., we issue a plate of steamed vegetables in honor of his outburst last spring against freshman Rep. Patrick Kennedy, D-R.I.

■ And finally a heartfelt and a good after-dinner cigar to the three employees of the Department of Health and Human Services who resigned after President Clinton betrayed his principles to sign a welfare bill that could plunge 1 million innocent children into poverty. We give thanks to the fact that some public officials still put principle ahead of expediency and self-preservation.

CHARLEY REESE

Isolation is not answer for post-Cold War U.S.

There's a new push to claim the United States "won" the Cold War, in the sense of causing the collapse of the Soviet Union. But the fact is, we didn't do it.

Cold warriors and internationalists like to argue the opposite, but they have no evidence to support their argument. Did the United States undermine the economy of the Soviet Union? No. In fact, the United States and other Western powers often lent the Soviet Union billions. Did the United States instigate political revolts within the Soviet Union? No. We did not even do a very good job of spying on the Soviet Union.

Reese

So if the United States "caused" the Soviet Union to collapse, what specifically was done? I have yet to see anyone supply an answer. The truth is, we simply outlasted the Soviet Union, which collapsed as result of its own internal weaknesses.

Socialism, regardless of where it is practiced or under what name, simply does not perform well in the long run. For one thing, as Ludwig von Mises pointed out long ago, socialism has no rational way of pricing and of determining economic priorities. For another, it has a built-in self-destruct mechanism, in that it eventually destroys productivity and ambition. Socialism always ends up with more people wanting to receive than wanting to produce.

What the internationalists, including neoconservatives, have in mind, in claiming victory over the Soviet Union, is to push the idea that the United States has a responsibility to lead the world.

This notion, first of all, is racist. It is just a new form of the old Oxford-bred imperialism, the notion that without American help the people in the rest of the world are just too incompetent to develop their own countries and far too dumb to know what is good for them. That dog didn't hunt when the British owned him, and it won't hunt for us either.

Second, we will be darned lucky if we can muster the political will and competence to stave off our own collapse. Any reasonable observer would be hard pressed to name any American politician or diplomat in the last 36 years who would come anywhere close to being a statesman.

Let's examine our prospects for leadership. We are a big market. We have still lots of nuclear weapons. But it goes downhill from there on. We are down to 10 Army divisions, and some of our enlisted people qualify for welfare and food stamps. Navy and Marine Corps pilots are flying aircraft that were old during Vietnam War. We can't control our own borders. We are losing the war on drugs, if you can call it a war.

Do we set a good example for high culture? No. Our culture is decadent — a cheap, commercialized decadence. Do we set a good example for fiscal responsibility? Hardly. Our government is $5 trillion in debt, runs a chronic deficit and runs a chronic trade deficit. Our standard of living is falling, not rising.

How about foreign policy? Ours is, to put the best possible face on it, confused and full of contradictions. We bully little countries and kowtow to big ones. We claim to be in favor of international law, but we abuse the United Nations.

Furthermore, we don't pay our bills. We are $1.2 billion in arrears to the United Nations. Sometimes we claim to be for human rights, and sometimes we ignore flagrant human-rights violations.

I think we can do without the delusions of grandeur of those internationalists who, like British imperialists of old, just can't stand to face change.

"Isolationist" is a term first used by internationalists when they were trying to get America into a war, but isolation is not possible or desirable. What is possible and desirable is a reduction of America's international obligations and a redirection of those resources to rebuild our own strength. The alternative for the United States is not leadership or isolationism. It's rejuvenation or collapse.

Rioters' logic: Loot if you do, loot if you don't

The burning, looting, shooting and other unpleasantness in St. Petersburg, Fla., have ended, and now things are taking their predictable course.

That means community leaders are talking about healing wounds, reaching out and trying to get to the root causes of the recent riots.

Royko

And the political leaders say they will ask the federal government for money to undo the damage and encourage business development that will create jobs and stimulate the economy.

All of which makes me wonder if I have misunderstood what the riots were all about.

As I understood it —or thought I did — it all began when a couple of cops stopped a car for a traffic violation.

As it turned out, the young man driving the car didn't much like being stopped, with good reason.

The car had very recently been stolen, presumably by one or both of the young men who were in it.

Also, there was crack cocaine in the car.

So there you have two possible serious violations of the law that could create major problems for the two young men — being arrested, booked, put on trial and possibly going to prison.

The driver of the car apparently decided that he didn't like his options, such as opening his car door or rolling down the window and discussing the matter with the cops.

So he kept the car door locked. Which created a problem for the cops, since the windows were heavily tinted, which isn't uncommon in a sunny, hot climate.

The police officers tried to see into the car. One of them peered in through the windshield.

According to the cops, the driver of the car lurched it forward at least four times.

The last time he did it, the cop who had been trying to look in through the windshield ended up on the car's hood.

So the police officer shot the person driving the car. And, unfortunately, the bullets killed the young man.

Did the officer do wrong? Did he violate the law?

These questions were put to a grand jury by the prosecutors' office.

Kaboom, there were suddenly riots. More than 30 buildings were burned, and a couple of cops were wounded, including the co-pilot of a police helicopter.

And a black militant group called for the execution of the cop, the police chief, the mayor and anyone else who irked them.

So I don't know how all of that translates into a request for federal funds and the kind of soul-searching and reaching out that is said to be happening in St. Pete.

In recent days, I've heard people on the inevitable TV talk shows say that this is just another example of white cops being overly harsh to young black men.

No doubt about it, shooting someone dead is kind of harsh. And the police officer and his chief and the mayor and everyone else in town probably wish the cop hadn't done it.

On the other hand, if you steal a car and then try to run over a cop with it, you have to assume that something bad might happen.

One can argue that the cop did what anyone might have been justified in doing under the circumstances.

But what I find interesting about this case is that this is an example of, to use a common phrase, "having it both ways."

But in Florida — as well as on the same TV talk shows — we have an entirely different attitude toward the justice system.

A grand jury looked at evidence and decided there wasn't sufficient reason to bring criminal charges against a cop.

In the Simpson case, we're told the system worked and we should accept the outcome. In the case of the cop on the hood of the car, we're told the system didn't work and rioting is to be expected.

Following this logic, I dread the possible repercussions if O.J. gets off the hook in the civil trial currently going on.

Will women who have been the victims of abuse by their husbands take to the streets and set fire to buildings, crack the heads of male passersby? Will waiters take such a verdict as an insult to the memory of Ron Goldman, trash their restaurants and engage in riotous food fights?

Does anyone have a net big enough to toss over our nutty society?

Clinton's 'wide net' snaring few Republicans; Kessler resigns FDA post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton promised to "cast a wide net" to install Republicans in his second-term Cabinet. So far, the net has landed few names.

The White House transition team, three weeks into the search process, has few GOP candidates for the lengthy list of vacancies. Republican prospects include:

■ Retiring Sen. William Cohen of Maine, a leading candidate for defense secretary.

■ John Young, former head of Hewlett-Packard Co., mentioned for the Commerce seat being vacated by Mickey Kantor.

■ Edward McCracken, chief executive of Silicon Graphics Inc., also a Commerce prospect.

■ Former New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean, now president of Drew University. His name surfaces for several vacancies.

■ Massachusetts Gov. William Weld, whose name pops up in Cabinet conversations but is not yet considered a strong candidate.

Indeed, the most notable characteristic about Clinton's list of Republicans is the one name that's not on it: Colin Powell. The retired Army general is seen as a threat to Vice President Al Gore's prospects in 2000, and is not being considered.

And the administration lost a key GOP appointee Monday with the resignation of Food and Drug Administration chief David A. Kessler. The former Republican congressional aide was appointed by President Bush.

Some senior Clinton advisers are beginning to fret about the dearth of GOP hopefuls and wonder out loud about whether Clinton raised expectations too high.

"We need more names," said an administration official involved in the transition process. "That's a short list. We need more names."

Clinton promised in 1992 to put a Republican in his Cabinet but never did so. This year, he stopped just short of making the same promise but said voters demanded bipartisanship when they chose a Democratic president and a Republican Congress.

"With all these places where we have vacancies, I want to cast a wide net," he said.

Few presidents fill precious Cabinet seats with members of the opposite party. Richard Nixon had a Democratic treasury secretary, John Connally, and John Kennedy had a Republican defense secretary, Robert McNamara.

Republicans and Democrats agree that Clinton will have a tough time finding topflight GOP officials willing to serve a Democrat.

"Woe be the Republican who does sit in his Cabinet," said commentator Mary Matalin, who was a strategist for Bush. "He or she must not want a future career in the Republican Party. Republicans do not feel neutral about this guy."

That may be why Cohen suddenly emerged as a strong candidate at Defense. He is leaving Congress with no plans to seek elective office, a moderate who can afford to sever ties with the GOP establishment.

But aides say Cohen's stock in the Cabinet sweepstakes dimmed somewhat since Clinton left for a 12-day overseas trip. They say the president's passion for the Cohen candidacy cooled after he nearly settled on the senator the night before the trip.

But Cohen is still a contender, along with CIA Director John Deutch, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., Deputy Defense Secretary John White and Deputy Attorney General Jamie Gorelick. Aides expect Clinton to name his foreign policy team no sooner than next week.

Young and McCracken, prospects for commerce secretary, are relative unknowns in Washington. Though longtime Republicans, they supported Clinton's candidacy in 1992 and 1996 — the core of a small group of GOP businessmen who bolstered Clinton's claim as a moderate.

Bill Daley, a Democratic activist and Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's brother, was considered the early front-runner. But in recent days, the White House started considering Commerce a good spot to put a Republican.

Political aides believe the move would blunt accusations that the department was used to reward Democratic donors with trade missions, contracts and other benefits.

Still, many aides predict the Republican Commerce campaign will be short-lived. Daley, whose family helped Clinton to an enormous Illinois victory in 1996, badly wants to be commerce secretary.

Kean's name crops up most in conversations about replacing Education Secretary Richard Riley. The problem: Riley can stay at Education if he wants, and may not leave. There also are a host of Democratic governors who [illegible] ring for the post.

It's unclear how seriously Weld is being considered. The popular governor told local reporters that he might get an administration post, but Clinton would face the wrath of Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who just defeated Weld after a tough campaign.

Astronauts go after satellite, avoid being hit by telescope

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — In a risky maneuver requiring precision flying, space shuttle Columbia's astronauts went after one satellite Monday while trying to avoid being rear-ended by another.

The crew slowly closed in on the speeding, saucer-shaped satellite in preparation for Monday night's retrieval. The rendezvous was moved up three hours because a telescope in orbit was gaining on the satellite faster than expected.

The two satellites were dropped off by Columbia's astronauts last week. The two-ton saucer was used to grow semiconductor film in the ultra-clean vacuum of space; the 3.5-ton ultraviolet telescope is looking at stars and galaxies.

As of late Monday afternoon, the satellites were trailing Columbia 220 miles above Earth. It was a 25-mile-long procession and shrinking: Columbia, followed 8 miles behind by the saucer, followed 17 miles behind by the telescope. The satellites were expected to be 16 miles apart at the time of retrieval.

The plan called for Columbia to leapfrog backward over the saucer to a point nine miles behind the craft and seven miles ahead of the telescope. Then commander Kenneth Cockrell was to guide the shuttle in for the capture.

Concerned about the possibility of a catastrophic collision, Mission Control considered sending the astronauts after the saucer a full day early to give them a wider margin of safety.

But after recalculating the projected distances, NASA concluded the speeding telescope would be far enough back.

This was the first mission in which a shuttle flew in formation with two satellites.

Columbia's five astronauts released the saucer, called a Wake Shield, on Friday. That night, Mission Control and the astronauts watched nervously as the steel disc drifted to within 10 feet of Columbia's cockpit. But it backed off, and the danger passed.

Semiconductor film just one-tenth the thickness of a human hair was grown atom by atom on the back of the Wake Shield in the super-pure vacuum created in its wake.

Scientists grew seven wafers of film — the first time they accomplished all their objectives. The first two flights of the Wake Shield, in 1994 and 1995, were marred by satellite malfunctions.

Researchers won't know the purity of the samples until after Columbia lands on Dec. 5, but they said the film should be superior to that produced on Earth. It will be tested in transistors and other electronics.

The telescope, meanwhile, will be retrieved by the astronauts on Dec. 3.

Source says, FBI considering sabotage in Flight 800 crash

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The FBI is pursuing the possibility that TWA Flight 800 was brought down by a saboteur who tampered with the jet's electronic or mechanical systems, a law enforcement source said Monday.

Also being considered is the possibility someone strategically placed a small explosive inside the center fuel tank, leading to the blast.

"All these things are definitely up on the board," said the source, who spoke on the condition of anonymity. "These are things that we don't necessarily have evidence of but we are interested in and are pursuing as possibilities."

James Kallstrom, the FBI assistant director who is leading the criminal investigation of the crash, said only that the bureau is pursuing every scenario.

"We would not being doing our job if we didn't look into all these things even though some may seem farfetched or remote," he said.

The Paris-bound 747 exploded minutes after taking off from Kennedy Airport on July 17, killing all 230 people on board.

For months, investigators said the plane may have brought down by a missile, a bomb or some kind of catastrophic mechanical malfunction. But so far, they have found no evidence to support any of those theories.

Investigators are examining debris being brought to shore by trawlers raking the ocean bottom about 10 miles off Long Island where the splintered plane plunged into the water.

Kallstrom said he asked agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to look at the evidence again to make sure nothing was overlooked. Agents are also reinterviewing "anyone who touched that airplane."

CIA officer Nicholson denied bail; prosecutors reveal Swiss bank account

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — CIA officer Harold J. Nicholson, charged with spying for Russia, was denied bail Monday at a hearing in which prosecutors revealed he has a Swiss bank account with $61,000 he did not report on financial disclosure forms.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Thomas Rawles Jones, Jr., concluded there is "a serious risk of flight" by the former CIA station chief and that he could pose a danger if released. "If the government's case is taken at face value, the defendant may very well possess information still untransmitted to foreign powers," Jones said.

Nicholson will plead innocent Dec. 2, his court-appointed lawyers reaffirmed.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Rob Chesnut used the bail hearing to introduce evidence about the Swiss bank account that the government discovered in searching Nicholson's wallet and home after his arrest at Dulles Airport Nov. 16.

FBI agent Steven Hooper, one of two agents disguised as American Airlines baggage handlers to arrest Nicholson on the tarmac en route to an airplane, said a card in his wallet and a bank statement at his home showed he had $61,000 in Bank Leu in Switzerland. Hooper said Swiss authorities have frozen the account.

When the government indicted Nicholson last Thursday on one count of conspiracy to commit espionage, it increased its allegations of Nicholson's Russian payoffs from $120,000 to $180,000 without saying why.

Chesnut said promises that Nicholson wouldn't flee could not be believed, in part because he had "a record of deception of the CIA and this court." Chesnut said Nicholson failed to list the Swiss account on his CIA financial disclosure forms or in describing his assets to the court's pretrial services officer before swearing in an affidavit that he was impoverished and could not afford a lawyer.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Connolly suggested in other questioning that Nicholson had not reported this money on his income taxes.

One of Nicholson's lawyers, Liam O'Grady, said, "We have a legitimate explanation for the $61,000 in the Swiss account," but he declined to reveal it in court or afterward. "Why would a spy use his own name" on a Swiss account if he were trying to hide it? O'Grady asked.

"We see huge holes in this case," O'Grady said, but would not elaborate.

The defense called Nicholson's younger brother and sister, his mother and a friend of 32 years, all from Eugene, Ore., to testify that the 46-year-old divorced father of three was devoted to his children and would never abandon them.

His mother, Betty Nicholson, said that in his most recent telephone conversation with her he asked her to "be sure his kids get plenty of hugs, because they are going to need them."

The family members described a man whose love of country led him to become an Army airborne Ranger after obtaining a Reserve Officers Training Corps college scholarship during the Vietnam War when many students were hostile to the military. They said they were certain he would not flee and the charges must be mistakes or have an innocent explanation.

In cross-examination, Connolly brought out that, despite vouching for Nicholson, neither his brother, Rob Nicholson, nor longtime friend, Leonard Beystrum, knew that Nicholson had told the CIA he has a fiancee from Thailand he plans to marry.

His mother, who was not cross-examined, said after court she had met the woman but the engagement was not official yet.

Nicholson's attorneys obtained a hearing set for Wednesday on their bid for a court order barring public statements about the case by the government.

In a series of news media interviews FBI Director Louis J. Freeh and CIA Director John Deutch have gone "way over the line" of permitted pretrial comment, said attorney Jonathan Shapiro.

Army settles Aberdeen sexual harassment case

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Army agreed to pay $60,000 to a woman who claimed fellow security guards subjected her to crude sexual comments and refused to let her take bathroom breaks, forcing her once to wet herself.

Cecilia Marie Port, a 42-year-old former civilian employee at the Aberdeen Proving Ground, said that when she complained, the Army retaliated by assigning her to a trailer.

The Army agreed with an Equal Employment Opportunity Commission finding of sexual harassment and retaliation against Port. One guard was fired and others, including supervisors, were reprimanded.

"It is obvious some people made bad decisions and did not respond the way the Army wants them to. As a result, this escalated and escalated and eventually ended up in court," Aberdeen spokesman George Mercer said.

The settlement is unrelated to the recent scandal at Aberdeen in which soldiers have been accused of raping or sexually harassing women recruits.

Port worked as a civilian guard at Aberdeen in 1992 and 1993 and was the only woman on the day shift. She quit in 1994.

She said the male guards repeatedly made lewd comments about masturbation, and one guard said he wanted to "get naked" with her. She said the guards refused to fill her post if she needed a bathroom break.

Port sued in 1995 for $300,000. Her trial was set to begin Monday before being settled Friday.

Culver expansion slated for '97

■ Construction to begin after Commissioners award contract. Sealed bids to be opened Dec.4

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The renovation-expansion of the 1968-built Culver Youth Home from a 20-bed facility to a 44-bed unit likely will begin early-next year after the Midland County Commissioners' Court awards the construction contract.

"It has grown from a youth center to where it is a serious detention facility now," said Midland County Court-at-Law Judge Al Walvoord, who is the county's juvenile-court judge.

Culver Youth Home initially was constructed at a cost of $125,000 when Justice Barbara Culver, now Barbara Culver Clack, was Midland County's juvenile judge, county judge and, accordingly, presiding officer of the Midland County Commissioners' Court.

The upgraded facility is to be renamed the Barbara Culver Juvenile Justice Center in honor of Justice Culver, who became a Texas district-court judge and then a Texas Supreme Court justice. She is retired now.

In 1988, following a period of dramatic inflation, the facility was expanded to a 20-bed detention center for about $830,000, which was part of a $3-million-bond issue for renovation of the old Midland County Jail.

Willie DuBose, who is a Texas district-court judge, was the Midland County juvenile judge and a county court-at-law judge during the 1980s expansion.

Bids on construction of Culver Youth Home are to be opened at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 4, in the Midland County Courthouse.

Walvoord noted that Justice Culver and DuBose are to be honored at the project's ground-breaking for their leadership involving Culver Youth Home.

Midland County Judge Jeff Norwood said on Monday that he is anticipating "getting the project underway.

"It is very important that we add detention space," Norwood said. "We need the space to lock up juveniles when they get in trouble and pose a threat to the community."

Under Texas law, juveniles include

BASIN BRIEFING

Annual celebration

The annual Midland College Merry Christmas celebration is set for Dec. 5. The schedule is:

6 p.m.: Carillon music begins.

6:30 p.m.: Lighting of the carillon tower and carolling led by Midland College's performance group, Chaparral Singers. Also, the student art sale opens.

7 p.m.: Opening reception for the student art show in the McCormick Gallery of the Fine Arts Building.

8 p.m.: Chaparral Singers concert.

Marching bands

KOCV-TV will air the 1996 American Southwest Tournament of Marching Bands from 1-1:30 Friday. The Midland High School Band competed in the tournament in Las Cruces, N.M. Nov. 2 and received its fifth consecutive Division I in marching, placed second out of 36 bands in the preliminary competition and earned third place in the finals. The MHS drummers were named Outstanding Percussion Line in Class 5A of the tournament.

Donation inovation

The Midland H-E-B store and the Salvation Army have teamed for a new way to make donations to the Salvation Army this Christmas season. People interested in donating to the Salvation Army can pick up a "Ring In a Miracle" coupon at checkstands at any H-E-B store. The "progressive bell-ringing of the 90s" features bar-coded coupons with values of 50 cents or $1; customers can tear off a coupon or several coupons depending on the donation and have them scanned at the checkstand. Larger donations require only one coupon and the actual amount is keyed in. That will allow Midlanders to donate to the Salvation Army 24 hours a day and not wait for a bell-ringing Santa to be on duty.

Officers honor

Three officers and a sergeant with the Midland Police Department will be honored at the beginning of this morning's City Council meeting at 10 a.m. Officers Paul Bourquin, Henry Minton and Ed Marker, along with Sgt. Dale Seago, "went beyond the call of duty to help save the life of an elderly Midland man," according to city officials. On Sunday, Oct. 13, Bourquin noticed smoke coming from the area of Best Buy on Loop 250. Receiving no reports of a fire, he continued to look for the fire along with Minton. When they discovered the fire at 2571 Emerson, the entire rear of the home was well involved. The fire department and Sgt. Seago were then notified. Marker arrived with a crow bar and the officers tried to make a forced entry into the residence, knowing it was occupied and no one was answering, city officials said. They helped the elderly resident out of the house and searched the rest of the residence. The officers found a large cache of guns and ammunition in a room used as an office and gun room. They made several trips to remove the ammunition because the fire was on the outside of the wall of the room and the ammunition would put the firefighters on the scene in danger. They were treated for smoke inhalation at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Police struggle with trouble at complex

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

An apartment complex that was once a dream venture for out-of-town investors has turned into a nightmare of problems for police, fire and code-enforcement officials.

After residents of Summer Place Apartments were forced to move in July because the owners couldn't keep up with utility bills, conditions at the 3000 W. Kansas Ave. complex have deteriorated steadily.

"It's got bad potential if we don't get something done with it," Midland Police Sgt. Mike Reed said.

A week after the 52-unit complex was abandoned by tenants, a fire ravaged three apartments. Arson was suspected.

Subsequent inspections revealed several small fires have been set at the complex, according to Midland Fire Marshal Jerry Petree. "It's typical. People who hang out in these old buildings will set small fires for whatever reason," he said.

Summer Place has provided cover for delinquents and poses a safety hazard with the appeal of a playground for children, police and fire officials said.

Students use auto-repair class as outlet for imagination, skills

By Emily Elsen

PASADENA — On a given day, what you'll find in Joe Martinez's class at Pasadena High School is a couple of boys, their cars and their dreams.

Chrome wheels and bright purple, green and metallic paints blazing, Martinez's students huddle over the bumpers of their cars that have, in some cases, seen better days.

But these boys are on a mission.

As the crew huddles over the top of a bright purple Oldsmobile in the middle of an attempted refinishing job, they tease each other in Spanish.

What makes these low-riders so special? Rubin Leal, a student in class, just shrugs his shoulders.

"He just likes it like that,' a friend says, as the group goes back to work.

Gone are the days when hot-rods were the most hip cars to cruise Pasadena streets.

Now, it's hot to be seen in your father's Buick or Olds — with a killer paint job, added hydraulics, a stereo with industrial-strength bass, and enough chrome to cover five white-bread sedans.

"The emphasis not is on appearance — not speed," Martinez said.

This low-rider tradition, which began back in the late 1940s, has taken hold in the imaginations of many students in his class, he said.

He's seen it evolve into a cultural and social icon for these young, mostly Hispanic males.

GARY OTT

Most of us really thrive on compliments from others

More rambling thoughts ...

— All things considered, I am glad there are absolutely no circumstances under which I would feel compelled to utter the words, "Let's boogie."

— OK, let me see if I have this straight. O.J. Simpson, under oath yet, swears that he not only did not kill his ex-wife, he never even hit her. And more incredibly, those ugly scars on her face must surely be the result of her — get this — "picking at her blemishes," an unfortunate habit she acquired when she was still alive, according to O.J.

Ott

— Is this man, and I use that term loosely, in big-time denial or what?

— Terrific name for a musician: Stevie Ray Vaughan.

— It was, as I recall, George Bernard Shaw who once observed, "Virtue consists, not in abstaining from vice, but in not desiring it."

— No matter how indifferent and nonchalant we may try to act about ourselves and our work, most of us truly thrive on being complimented by others.

— Knowing that, however, few of us take the opportunity to compliment others.

— Rather unfortunate, isn't it?

— Call me old-fashioned if you must, but after I wash my hands in a public restroom I prefer paper towels over those new-fangled machines that blow hot air on your dripping hands.

— Sometimes hearing an old Rolling Stones song on the radio is all that is needed to put a person in a toe-tapping party mood.

— I never have been a big fan of parades.

— Maybe it is because I'm getting older, but more and more I'm hearing individuals say they — and I quote — "hate" the holidays.

— Come on, people, "hate" seems awfully strong. How about "dislike"? Or "don't really care for"? Or "bored with"? But HATE?

— I'm not sure why, but I'm glad that when I was a teen-ager we had better places to hang out than shopping malls.

— Overheard: "I wish I were as good a person as my dog thinks I am."

— Why is it called "playing" the stock market when one wrong move could cost you your life's savings?

— I never double-check my change after making a purchase.

— Anything that is described as "Cajun-style" just sounds like it should be hot, spicy and fun ... and usually is.

— Is it just me, or do you not hear about kids getting stung by bees as often as you used to?

— No matter how much of a cliche it might be, the season's first snowfall is going to cause at least a half a dozen people to ooh and aah and then exclaim, "It looks just like a Christmas card, doesn't it?"

— What kind of perverse pleasure does a person derive from writing nasty messages on a bathroom wall? And why can't I resist the temptation to read those nasty messages?

— I've never had a good luck charm.

— And today's final quote comes from Billy Joel, who once sang, "They're sharing a drink they call loneliness, but it is better than drinking alone."

Guy Bradley

Services for Guy Bradley of Midland are pending with Jackie Warren Funeral Home.

Bradley died Monday in his home.

POLICE REPORTS

■ Robbery

Police were hunting for three young males suspected of robbing Mr. Gattis restaurant, 3205 Cuthbert, shortly after 9 p.m. Monday evening.

The three, wearing black ski masks and armed with knives, entered the restaurant through a back door after confronting two employees. The three then took an undetermined amount of money from the cash register and fled the building, heading south.

■ Five arrests

Five Midlanders were arrested at 10:45 a.m. Monday morning by Midland police serving five federal indictments for conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute a controlled substance.

Arrested were Filiberto Garcia Vidal, 41; Estefana Vidal, 36; Martin Vidal, 31; Dominga Ybarra Perez, 40; and Juan Miguel Perez, 38.

The arrests were made at 701 N. Dallas, 917 N. Dallas and 1303 S. Dallas. The indictments followed a lengthy investigation by the Midland office of the Drug Enforcement Agency and the Midland Police Department's Narcotic and Patrol divisions.

■ Marijuana found

Two women were arrested at 7:15 a.m. Monday when a Permian Basin Drug Task Force Criminal Interdiction Unit stopped a car in Jeff Davis County for a traffic violation. Approximately 216 pounds of marijuana, valued at $260,000, was found concealed within the walls of the vehicle.

Arrested were Clementina Trejo de Lopez, 30, and Rosa Santaillana de Lechuga, 25, both of Fabens. The two were charged with possession of marijuana over 50 pounds but less than 2,000 pounds.

The Jeff Davis County Sheriff's Department assisted in the arrest.

Midland Police Department Sunday

Burglary of a vehicle: John Blevins, 310 Oxford, reported at 1:41 p.m. the theft of a man's wallet from a vehicle at his house. Entry was made through a passengers' side vent window.

Burglary of a building: Village Car Wash, 604 Andrews Highway, was burglarized. It is believed the suspects were in a one-ton blue GM wreckler pickup with a white wench and dual wheels. Entry was made by breaking out a window. Taken was a mail box with "tips" written on it and $150 in cash.

Vandlism: A bedroom window at 2438 Whitmire was broken.

Midland County Sheriff's Office Sunday

Burglary: Albert Baze, 4006 South County Road 1135, reported the theft of a firearm.

Burglary: Arthur Stewart reported the theft of a stainless steel propeller boat from 2010 Market St.

HOME: Renovation to begin in '97

from age 10 through age 16. On "the 17th birthday," a teenager in Texas "becomes an adult" and is subject to prosecution as an adult, Walvoord said.

Funds for the expansion and renovation of Culver Youth Home, which is in northeast Midland at 3800 Lamesa Road, were authorized earlier this year when the five-member Commissioners' Court unanimously agreed to seek $3.4 million in certificates-of-obligation to pay for the work and other county projects.

Expansion of Culver Youth Home is in response to the rising rate and severity of juvenile crime.

"It (crime) sure hasn't leveled off yet," Walvoord noted.

Walvoord said that he and Court-at-Law Judge Marvin Moore, who assists him in adjudicating juvenile-crime cases, "are looking forward to the building (project)" since it will provide the judges "an extremely valuable tool to impress upon the kid that he has got to live a different life now that he is on probation.

"We will have plenty of room in which to hold all the kids that violate their probation. Before," Walvoord said, "they have been able to walk out after a few days of detention. Now, we will be able to hold them for the whole period of detention, thereby beginning to catch their attention."

By law, a juvenile may detained in a youth home for a maximum of 10 working days.

"He ought to have the opportunity to have a long period of time out there at Culver to reflect upon what he did and to try to determine to do better next time," Walvoord said. "If you are going to be on probation, then we want you to start toeing the line and acting like an appropriate and proper young man."

More and more, the "run-of-the-mill crime" among juveniles in Midland County "is probably a burglary or a car theft," Walvoord said.

"Juvenile crime has elevated to where your average crime is much more serious that it ever was 10, 15, 20 years ago. What is common place now is what you and I would consider being very serious crime."

Common crimes also include possession of marijuana.

"And even though that's a misdemeanor, we view that pretty seriously," Walvoord said, "because we are talking about a kid."

The Spanish-style Culver Youth Home is "not a country club," Walvoord said. "But, by law I am obligated to treat that child a whole lot nicer when he is in my facility than an adult gets treated in Sheriff Painter's facility" - the Midland County Jail.

The juvenile must "not go to bed hungry," Walvoord said. "I have to feed him ever so many hours" and am "supposed" to create "a home-like environment.

"We are very careful with the things we do because we are obligated by state law to be careful with regard to how we house them and how we manage them. Still, it is not a pleasant facility."

Judge Norwood said earlier this year that when Culver Youth Home was "first constructed" in the late 1960s, "it was a place to put runaways and truants and disturbed kids who had committed crimes such as that. They even had house parents living out there with the children.

"But times have changed," Norwood observed, "and the type of child we are putting out there now really requires a maximum-security lockup."

Increasingly, youths - apparently angry, vengeful, and desperate - are "committing dangerous, violent, vicious acts," he said earlier. "And we need a place to put those offenders.

"Drive-by shooting are on the increase," Norwood said. "Drug-dealing is on the increase. Burglaries are on the increase for the juvenile offender. And we need to respond to juvenile crime. This (expansion) is a giant step for the county to take in meeting the needs of the community."

have found a way to harness their creativity and turn it into a way to learn teamwork, he said.

In Martinez's collision, repair and refinishing class, students are encouraged to bring in special projects.

Then, they turn them into exhibits worthy of prizes at their annual fall automotive show, he said.

"I just get a kick out of watching them," Martinez said. "They tell me all the things they want to do with their cars."

'It amazes me that they'll take a car like this, which most people would just say 'junk it,' and perhaps it should have been junked," he said.

The students collaborate in the projects — colors, stereo system, hydraulics — which will give the car its ultimate personality, he said.

And in the process the boys learn something about their heritage, about teamwork, and about their own identities, Martinez said.

Students often categorized as troublemakers enter his classroom doors. By the time they graduate they're ready to go into a vocational or college career, he said.

The real value comes in seeing the boys put money into a positive venture, he said.

"I'd rather see them spend on that (cars) than alcohol," Martinez said.

"No one in the vocational program works harder than these kids," he said. "We're the hardest working, cleanest and prettiest class."

League's Charity Ball features Victorian Village

By Elizabeth Edwin Lifestyle Editor

Midland Center was transformed into a twinkling Victorian Christmas village Friday evening for the 46th annual Junior League of Midland's Charity Ball.

The ball was part of Festival of Trees, a four-day fund-raising event presented by the League which grossed $160,000 this year. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Junior League of Midland's community projects.

"We were very pleased with everything this year. We did very well on sponsors," said Denise Burns, Festival of Trees chairman. "There were lots of people from the community involved this year, too. We had trees decorated by Casa de Amigos, the Camp Fire Boys and Girls, and the Boys and Girls Club (of Midland) and many others. It was nice to see more of the community involved.

"I think the biggest thing that happened this year is that people are beginning to understand what Festival of Trees is all about," Mrs. Burns said. "We had groups come in early the first day. A day care brought some children, and there were some patients from Memorial West ... MARC brought some of their people and we even had a few school classes come.

"It was really special to get to see the children looking at the gingerbread houses and watching their faces light up," she said.

Of course, there were numerous designer-decorated Christmas trees, wreaths and gingerbread houses interspersed with the community items, all available to the highest silent bidder. In all, there were 28 large trees that ranged in theme from "From the Garden," with a variety of gourds intertwined with grapevines; to "Reflections," which was a spiral staircase-shaped tree decorated with ornaments such as porch swings, antique beds and dressers — all in miniature sizes. Another tree featured wild animals and animal print garlands, while another was bedecked in handmade ornaments.

One tree that caught the eye of many passersby was the "Celebrity Autograph" tree which featured autographed photographs of Dan Akroyd, Tom Cruise, Clint Eastwood, Charley Pride, Kenny Rogers, F. Lee Bailey, Steven Spielberg, and Vice President Al Gore, as well as numerous autograph cards from other celebrities.

The 21 table-top trees featured themes such as "Toy Story," from Disney's first computerized movie hit; "Cookie Cutter Christmas," and "Tea Time," complete with teddy bears sitting in wicker chairs having tea.

The trees were enhanced by wall murals painted on tarps that covered the walls of Midland Center, making the room look a little like a Victorian village. There was the village post office, Brown's Books, the bank, the hardware store, Green's Ice House and the Law Office. And hanging from the "village" walls were wreaths decorated in Snow Babies, angels, magnolias, teddy bears and blocks, Santas golfing and golf balls, vegetables (perfect for a holiday kitchen), and ceramic crosses.

In addition, there was a gingerbread village with 10 individual gingerbread structures arranged in a winter setting. One of the gingerbread houses even had a chimney that appeared to have smoke coming from it.

To add to the "Elegance" of the black tie affair, glittering gowns and formal tuxedos were the attire for the approximate 600 guests who attended the Charity Ball.

Guests danced to the sounds of "The Big Time" of Austin which had a new band member who was no stranger to Midland.

"Julieanne Banks is the new lead singer with the band. She used to sing with 'Rotel and the Hot Tomatoes' which did several shows here in Midland," said Dennis Grubb of Wemus Entertainment, producer for the band. "The band needed a new female lead and we thought of Julieanne. So we called her up and she has fit right in."

And from the crowd's comments, it must have been a good addition. In fact, as the band announced its last song for the evening, a woman on the dance floor said, "No, not yet. You can't stop now. You guys are good."

The buffet dinner also was a hit with guests. Catered by Murray & the Frenchman, the "Christmas feast" included Caesar Salad, Mushrooms and Cucumber Salad, Green Salad, Roasted Beef Tenderloin Marsala, Chicken Christiansen with Artichoke Hearts & Mushrooms in a Dijon Vermouth Sauce, Salmon Victoria Marinated in Pesto Sauce wrapped in Fillo Crust, Gratin Dauphinois, Green Bean Quiche and Tomato Medley — and for dessert, decadent Royale Fantasy Crepes.

"A Dickens of a Holiday" was the theme for the four-day event, and holiday atmosphere it was. The four-day event began Thursday with the "Dickens & Diversions" preview party, and ended Sunday with two showings of "A Fashionable Afternoon Tea" with the American Girls Collection® and shopping in the 28 merchants shops, with some merchants coming from as far away as Illinois. Sandwiched in the middle on Saturday was a special children's concert presented by singer Joe Scruggs of Austin, a four-time winner of the Parent's Choice Awards.

Proceeds from the four-day event will benefit the League's community projects which include Bedside Buddies, Casa de Amigos Dental Clinic, Done in a Day, Funds for Community Assistance, the Haley Library, Hearthstone, Kids on the Block, Next To New Shop, Prime Time Partners, Rainbows/Spectrum, Teen Court and Texas Scholars.

All Christmas trees that were not picked up by their buyers are being delivered today by the donated services of ABC Moving & Storage.

Festival of Trees Committee members were Mrs. Burns, chairman; Anne McKinnon, assistant chairman; Sharon Michie, Charity Ball; Linda Watson and Barbara Jowell, sponsors; Andrea Freeman, decorations; Bonney Mulloy, assistant decorations; Iris Foster, program and Thursday night; Suzanne Gulick, volunteers; Kelly Hullender, assistant volunteers; Susan Duffey, marketing; Roxanne Murphy, merchants; Amy Savage, family event; Christa Boler and Jane Kauffman, Saturday events; Deborah Baldridge, treasurer; Holly Cswaykus, computer representative; Jan Baker, designer; Judi Fisher, designer assistant and raffle; Stephanie Feagan, invitations; Sharla Hotchkiss, sustaining advisor; Jess Ann Thomason, Charity Ball sustaining advisor, and Debra Westmoreland, executive liaison.

Sponsor for Saturday's Children's Event was Helen Greathouse. H.E.B. sponsored Sunday's Fashionable Tea. Underwriters for the event were Abell-Hanger Foundation, Frances and Jack Brown, and Lissa and Cy Wagner. Benefactors were Amoco Production Company and a special contributor.

The event program also listed 36 patron sponsors, and more than 20 other sponsors.

BLIGHT: Abandoned apartments create problems

(From 1B)

— were picked up for curfew violation. On one occasion in November, a 17-year-old was arrested for possession of drug paraphernalia and a 15-year-old for possession of marijuana. A few days later, two 16 year-old boys and a 15-year-old girl were charged with criminal trespass and criminal mischief.

More have been run off or evaded police.

"Right now it's an open haven for anyone to go in there," Senior Patrol Officer Dale Garner said.

Attempts to secure the complex have been half-hearted. Doors on nearly all the units are ajar and can't be locked.

There's gang graffiti, broken out windows, an abandoned car and a pool filled with a couple of feet of water and debris. The charred frame work from the August fire remains and some stairways at the two-story complex are rusted through.

Inside many apartments are refrigerators that can trap and kill unsuspecting children; some of the appliances still store the rotting food of former tenants.

In other apartments, the refrigerators have been taken, apparently by scavengers. Also missing are air conditioners and copper wiring.

Beer cans and a plastic bag with silver paint — used for sniffing — litter one graffiti-ridden apartment.

The ceiling of another apartment sags and a steady drip of water from Monday's snow soaked the carpet below. "All this is just a major accident waiting to happen," Officer Garner said while looking over the apartments.

Since police discovered what's going on at the complex, the property is patroled several times every day and night. The incidence of visitors is begining to subside as word gets around that the police are watching.

"If we back off there for a few days, they'll be back," Sgt. Reed said.

Meanwhile, there is still ample opportunity for disaster. The police can't watch for people around the clock.

Senior Patrol Officer Greg Thompson said each time he has been out to the complex, there is something different in the way of vandalism or items missing.

Because the layout of the apartments would make it difficult to seal off, the most obvious long-term solution would be for the complex to be renovated or destroyed.

The property — owned by Colonial Court Investments Inc. of Bethesda, Md. — currently is undergoing foreclosure.

A Midland man, who identified himself as a lien holder to police last week, said Monday he has washed his hands of any involvement in the property.

Representatives with Amresco — a Dallas-based asset-management company reportedly foreclosing on the property — did not return repeated telephone calls Monday.

Code enforcement administrator David Wayland said foreclosure procedures have put working with or against an owner in limbo.

If problems persist, the City Council could declare the complex a public nuisance — requiring a public hearing and other procedures — and order the hazards rectified, he said.

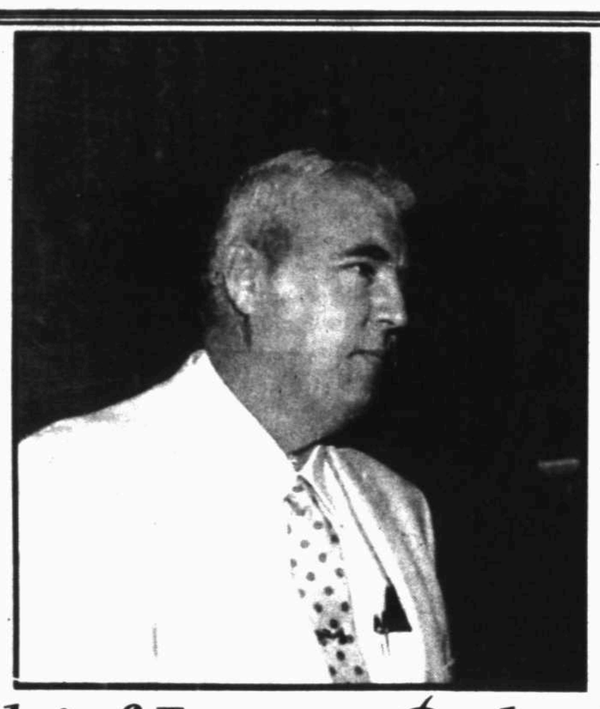

As for condemning the building, for removal, the structure would have to be found unsound. Even then, the city doesn't have the funds to take on such a demolition project.

Attempts to contact one of the owners was unsuccessful Monday. In July, Frederick Richardson said he and about a half-dozen investors purchased the property last year but didn't have the necessary funds to maintain the business.

Tenants left after water, gas and electricity bills went unpaid and necessary repairs were not being made.

In addition to any outstanding utility bills, the owners are delinquent $7,303 in property taxes for 1995, and have until Jan. 31 to pay $10,500 in taxes for 1996. The property is valued at $441,200 by the Midland Central Appraisal District.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Aim for long-term financial security. Developing a piece of property or building a home is best left to the experts. Polish your public relations skills and update your image. Taking a partner for granted would be a mistake. Be open to new ideas early in 1997. Vacation travel is best postponed until late next summer. A trip to the seashore or mountains sounds great! Learn from a relative's mistakes. Romance will become more fulfilling if you adopt a healthier lifestyle.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: singer Tina Turner, football player Art Shell, tennis player Wendy Turnbull, "Peanuts" cartoonist Charles Schulz.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Something you hear on television or read in the newspaper inspires you to take a chance. Romance may have to wait while you focus on platonic relationships.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Try not to let a family problem intrude during work hours. Patience and self-discipline help you win a battle. A sibling or child shows new affection.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Resist the temptation to set a speed record at work. Accuracy is the name of the game! Double-check information that seems odd. Higher-ups are impressed by your zeal and productivity. Give worries the boot!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Feedback from family or friends helps you launch a project. One-on-one encounters build emotional bridges. Romance intensifies. Are you ready for a real commitment?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The news from those at a distance is great. Follow up a tip immediately. With or without a partner, you can score big in business. Bargain-hunting will pay off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be prepared to give in on minor issues. Your cooperative attitude impresses influential people and pleases your partners. Cupid's arrow is aimed right at you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Someone influential is impressed by your long-range plans. A new alliance is possible. Double-check credit transactions. Your intuition serves you well in domestic situations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pool efforts with a co-worker for mutual advantage. Financial negotiations go your way. Creative ideas will bring new gains. Be certain you get the credit you deserve.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Launching a new project gives you a chance to show your expertise. Get several bids if planning a renovation. Talks behind closed doors set the stage for a lucrative deal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Networking helps advance your goals. Align yourself with professional groups. Vital information is supplied by someone at a distance. A loving attitude will end a stalemate on the domestic front. Nurture a parent-child relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Alliances formed today will bring good luck in the near future. A partner's input changes the tide at work. Investments need careful handling; consult an accountant or broker.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Up-to-date information gives you a whole new outlook on long-term assignments. Old friends are willing to back you up. Have faith in yourself and others will, too. Showcase your special talents.

The 1966 European Schools Team Championship, played in July in Cardiff, Wales, was convincingly won by Germany, with Israel second and Britain third. The youngsters showed a remarkable degree of sophistication and skill, as this deal from the Germany-Italy encounter proves.

The bidding shown is by the German pair. North's three clubs asked about five-card major suits, three diamonds denied one, and three spades promised four hearts. The normal three-no-trump contract was reached.

The Italian West made an effective lead of a low spade, won in the closed hand. Declarer cashed the king of hearts, then led a club to the jack and king. East returned a spade, declarer winning. After cashing the ace of hearts, declarer led another heart, West taking the queen. The defender exited safely with the jack of spades, won in hand. Declarer promptly put West back on lead with the low spade.

Declarer now was on the verge of scoring nine tricks. Club ace and another would obviously be fatal, as would a diamond shift. And a heart exit would force West to guess when to win the ace of clubs, after declarer discards a diamond from hand. If South held three cards in each minor, West would have to win the ace immediately and get out with a club. West eliminated all guesswork by exiting with a low club.

Declarer captured East's ten with the queen and returned a club to West's ace. Now West got off play with the remaining heart, locking declarer in dummy. No matter what declarer did, West would have to score the king of diamonds for the setting trick.

On book tour, former Lone Ranger says he always believed in creed

LOS ANGELES — The spirit of "The Lone Ranger" lives on in Clayton Moore.

"I believe, truly and always, in the Lone Ranger's Creed," the 82-year-old actor said recently while promoting his memoirs, "I Was That Masked Man."

Clayton Moore says he has always been careful not to mock his former alter ego.

The Creed includes lines such as "I believe that to have a friend, a man must be one," and "I believe that all men are created equal and that everyone has within himself the power to make this a better world."

Moore portrayed the masked Western hero, who fired silver bullets at evildoers while riding the frontier with his friend Tonto, on ABC from 1949 to 1957.

After the series ended, Moore appeared around the country for years, telling stories and handing out copies of the Lone Ranger Creed and silver bullets.

"I have always been careful not to mock the character of the Lone Ranger or demean the image in any way," Moore wrote in his book.

Bantam Books said Monday it will publish the memoirs of the comedienne, who created the genderless character Pat for "Saturday Night Live" and is appearing in her one-woman, autobiographical play "God Said, Ha!"

Sweeney has much to tell. "God Said, Ha!" describes the nightmarish year in which her terminally ill brother and their parents moved in with her, while she — newly divorced — developed cancer herself.

"One of the things I learned during this awful year was how great my family is," Sweeney said. "Writing about our experiences and being able to laugh in the face of such adversity has been incredibly healing."

The hardcover book will come out in May 1997, Bantam Books said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.) — Country singer Mark Collie is spreading his joy after receiving an anonymous $100,000 donation for diabetes research.

Collie, an insulin-dependent diabetic since he was 17, runs an annual fund-raising campaign for the cause.

"I don't know who (the donor) is ... so I'm just going around hugging everybody," he said last week.

He already had raised more than $400,000 with a celebrity car race that drew more than 10,000 fans to the Nashville Speedway in October. The annual races have raised more than $1 million in three years.

Collie's hits include "Three Words, Two Hearts, One Night" and "Even the Man in the Moon Is Crying."

ARLINGTON, Va. — Dave Thomas had no choice but to write a book about his days on the classic Canadian TV comedy series "Second City TV."

"I had to," Thomas, now a co-star on ABC's "Grace Under Fire," told USA Today. "One, I was there when it happened, and two, I have all the material."

SCTV ran for eight years in Canada and appeared in the United States in syndication and on NBC and Cinemax. Other alumni include John Candy, Martin Short, Rick Moranis, Catherine O'Hara and Harold Ramis.

Thomas says the book, "SCTV: Behind the Scenes," is not a "literary opus. Just an attempt to collect my memorabilia and have all of us reconstruct our point of view about what the show was about."

NEW YORK — Julia Sweeney looked death in the face and gleaned a one-woman Broadway show from the experience. Now she's turning it into a book.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Earl Scruggs doesn't even have to go to the Grand Ole Opry to be a part of the show.

The pioneering banjo picker was saluted by Marty Stuart and Travis Tritt on the radio-TV broadcast of the long-running weekly country music fest.

The two dedicated "Honky Tonkin's What I Do Best" to Scruggs, 72, who is recovering from hip replacement and coronary bypass surgery.

"Earl, if you feel like it, grab Louise and cut across the floor with her," Stuart said. Louise is Scruggs' wife.

Stuart and Tritt completed their "Double Trouble" tour Friday.

STORM TRACKER FACTS

The Permian Basin has seen all four season over the past few days, starting last week when the temperature reached 90 degrees on Wednesday, the highest on record in November. Ahead of an arctic front, severe thunderstorms dropped hail up to an inch in diameter Saturday night. Finally switching to winter, two to five inches of snow fell Sunday with temperatures reaching 25 degrees and a wind chill factor in the single digits.

DEAR ABBY

Friendly handshake in hospital can unleash unfriendly germs

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen this subject in your column — shaking hands with patients in hospitals. There has been a lot of information to the effect that we transmit germs when we shake hands with, hug or otherwise touch others.

Van Buren

When I visit patients in a hospital, I refuse to shake hands with them. I tell them they have enough troubles now and they do not need me bringing new and different germs to complicate their problems.

It would seem to me that hospitals would discourage the practice of shaking hands with patients. I would hope that the doctors would support this policy.

Thank you for listening to me. You may use my name. —HARRY C. WILLIAMS JR., NASHVILLE, TENN.

DEAR MR. WILLIAMS: The doctors do support you in that policy. I recall an infection awareness campaign that was sponsored by the Mayo Clinic (that medical mecca in Minnesota) in which posters were displayed throughout the hospital corridors. Upon each was illustrated a pair of hands, and beneath, the terse message: "The 10 Most Common Causes of Infection."

As a reminder to doctors, nurses and employees of the Mayo Clinic to wash their hands frequently, other posters were displayed bearing this catchy message: "A milligram of handwashing is worth a kilogram of antibiotics." Obviously, the same goes for visitors.

DEAR ABBY: When a very dear relative died several years ago, she left me a small inheritance that I shared with my family and church.

I also bought my closest friend a simple, yet beautiful piece of jewelry, which I have seen her wear only three times over the years. This makes me very sad. I would like to offer to buy it back from my friend. I would wear it often and it would mean a lot to me, as it was originally purchased with my loved one's money.

Abby, is this reasonable, or do you think it would be resented? My friend and I are still close, and I wouldn't hurt her feelings for the world. — SAD IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR SAD: Yes, offer to buy it back from your friend. I cannot imagine her being resentful or hurt; she probably would be delighted to give it to you. But you have nothing to lose by offering to buy it.

DEAR ABBY: A possible solution to "AFloridian" who wants his remains to remain in Florida while his adult children want him buried next to their mother, his first wife:

Request cremation, and have half the ashes buried in Florida and the other half with the children's mother.

Abby, believe it or not, where to put the remains can be a painful issue. I've got three places I "need to be" after I'm dead (just like in life, huh?), and this is a great solution.

Also, ashes do not have to be scattered. They can be buried, kept on a mantel or subdivided like real estate. —TRULY SCATTERED IN OREGON

DEAR TRULY SCATTERED: There's wisdom in what you suggest. Better a half-ashed interment than none at all.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Gene may help unravel breast cancer mystery

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have discovered a gene that may help solve a mystery about the biology of breast cancer.

In 1994, researchers identified a gene called BRCA1 that causes some inherited cases of breast and ovarian cancer when it is defective. In its normal form, it suppresses those cancers, but scientists don't know how.

The newfound gene may help answer that question, said microbiologist Richard Baer of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas. And as with BRCA1, defects in this gene may also promote breast and ovarian cancer, he said.

Further study might lead to a better understanding of those types of cancer and point the way to new treatments, he said.

Baer, Anne Bowcock and colleagues at the medical center report their findings in the December issue of the journal Nature Genetics.

It's important work, commented Jeff Holt, a professor of cell biology and BRCA1 researcher at the Vanderbilt Cancer Center in Nashville, Tenn.

The gene is called BARD1. Like BRCA1 and other genes, it instructs cells to make a particular protein.

This BARD1 protein grabs onto one end of the BRCA1 protein, Baer and his colleagues found in test-tube experiments. In fact, it might be this linked pair that suppresses cancer, rather than the BRCA1 protein itself, Baer said.

One piece of evidence: Some defects in BRCA1 that keep it from suppressing breast cancer also prevent the two proteins from teaming up, the researchers found. No teamwork, no protection.

That suggests that defects in BARD1 could also promote cancer by preventing the proteins from linking up, Baer said. He and his colleagues are now examining breast and ovarian tumors to see if they can find defects in the BARD1 gene.

Nobody knows yet just what the two proteins do after they join together. Baer and colleagues suspect that they might latch onto DNA and turn on certain genes, and maybe that's the crucial step in protecting against cancer.

Jordan invited

BRENHAM — Blinn College second baseman Kevin Jordan of Midland, who recently signed a letter of intent to play baseball at Texas Tech, has been invited to participate in the 1997 USA Baseball National Trials in Tampa, Fla., in January.

Jordan, a graduate of Midland Lee, is the only junior college player on the roster of the top 66 players in the country. His .313 batting average last season, with eight home runs, 16 doubles and 39 RBIs, helped lead the Blinn Bucs to a Texas Junior College Athletic Conference title and a trip to the state tournament.

The national trials will be held Jan. 8-12 at Legends Field, spring training home of the New York Yankees. In preparation for competition in the summer of 1997, the trials will serve as the first step in USA Baseball's player evaluation and development process.

The USA team will play in the Intercontinental Cup, Aug. 1-10, in Barcelona, Spain, under coach Bob Milano, head coach at the University of California. The team will also play a domestic tour with Cuba, Nicaragua, Korea and Australia.

Odessa hockey team no longer on thin ice

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

ODESSA — Professional hockey for the Permian Basin took another step closer toward reality Monday when the Ector County Commissioners' Court gave their permission to establish a team.

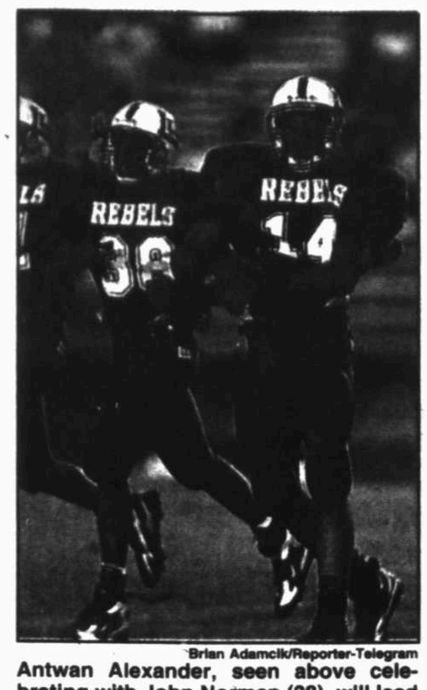

The proposed team still needs approval from the city of Odessa and league approval from the Western Professional Hockey League (WPHL).

"It's not a done deal, but the action by the Commissioners' Court in Odessa Monday was certainly a big step," said Monty Hoppel, manager of the Midland Angels, the organization that will own the new hockey team. "Hopefully, we will get full support from the city of Odessa and then it's just a matter of getting the paper work done for league approval. We're getting there."

Ownership of the hockey team would be the same as the Midland Angels. Midland Sports, Inc. (E. Miles Prentice III and Bob Richmond) would own and operate both the Angels and the new hockey franchise.

The Angels baseball staff, headed by Hoppel, would also operate the hockey club. Additional staffing would be added once the franchise is officially award-

Small School region playoffs

If Midland Lee is fortunate enough to get an early first half lead against Flower Mound Marcus Saturday in the Class 5A Small School region playoff game, don't get too smug.

The Marauders know how to fashion the comeback. Marcus trailed Arlington Lamar by a 21-3 margin at the half last Friday in the area matchup, only to come back for a 39-32 victory, scoring 36 second half points.

Three touchdowns (two by Marcus and one by Lamar) were scored in the final six minutes of play.

And none of this should come as a surprise. After all, the Flower Mound Marcus team has become one of the state's elite in a rather short time span. Marcus only began playing varsity football 11 years ago. Last year, the Marauders posted a 15-1 record, going all the way to the state Small School finals where they lost 17-10 in the statewide televised game.

Last year's cruise through the playoffs was on the shoulders of highly touted passing quarterback Chris Sanders, who now toils for SMU. It seems, however, that coach Que Brittain's quarterback stock never runs low.

Report: Lett suspended for a year, could finish season due to appeal

■ The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reports that the Cowboys' All-Pro defensive tackle again violated the NFL drug policy.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

NFL Policy

IRVING — Leon Lett may be in trouble again for substance abuse, although the Dallas Cowboys' star defensive tackle could finish out the 1996 NFL season.

Lett avoided reporters at the team's training facility Monday, and league and team officials had no comment.

But the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported that Lett, suspended for four games last season, has been suspended for a year and is appealing.

If that's true, league sources said, Lett still could finish the season while his appeal is being considered and, if he loses, miss the 1997 season.

Under the NFL's collective bargaining agreement, substance-abuse testing is undertaken by league drug adviser Dr. Lawrence Brown, who isn't an NFL employee.

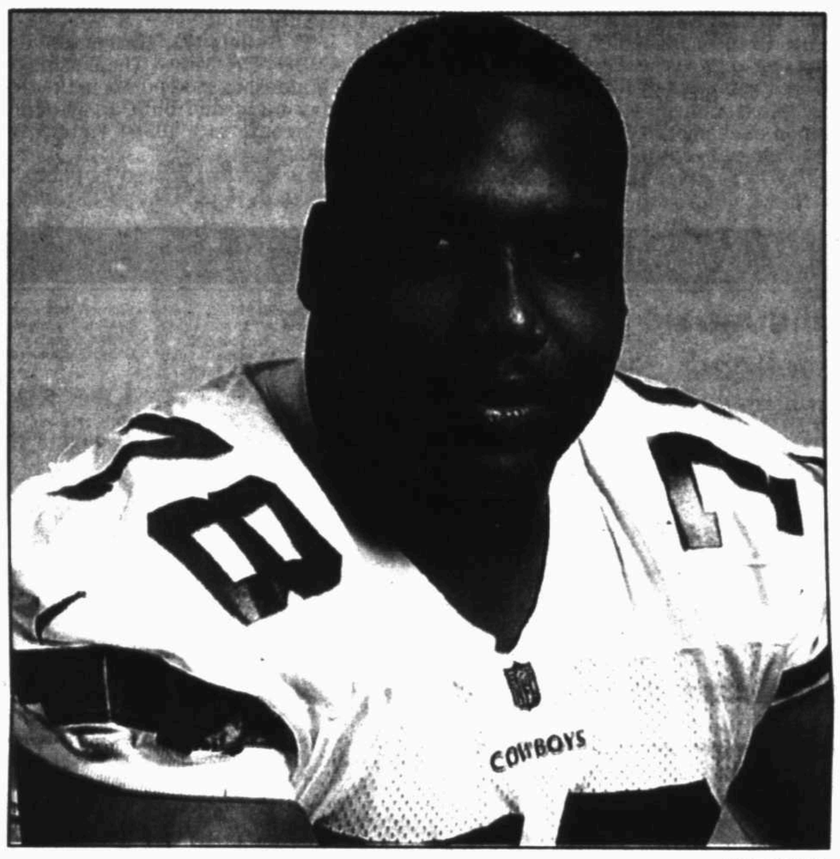

A first offense is not reported to the team or the league office, and a player is enrolled in the league's drug treatment program, which involves random testing.

A second test on a player who is cooperating usually means a fine, but not suspension. But if the player hasn't been cooperating, he then gets a four-game suspension.

It then escalates to six games and finally, a year.

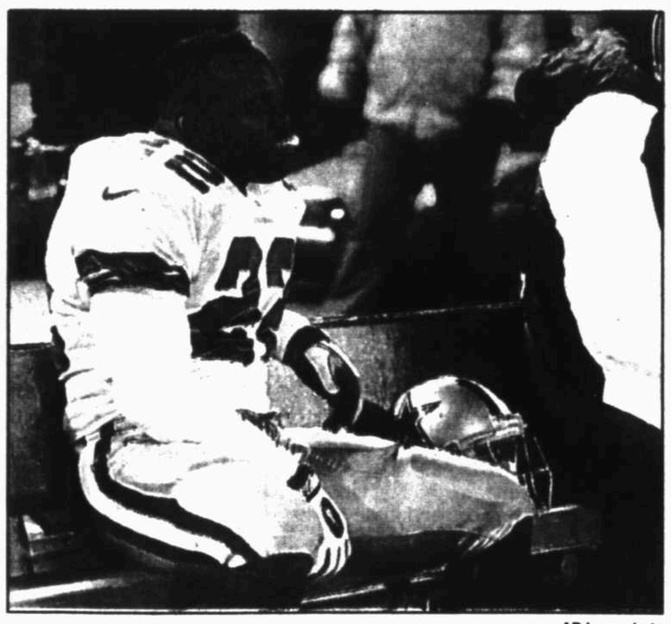

The exception is when a player is convicted of a drug offense, as with Lett's teammate, wide receiver Michael Irvin, who was suspended for six games at the beginning of this season after

The Cowboys' Emmitt Smith watches his team's losing effort against the New York Giants during the fourth quarter Sunday evening . Smith gained 18 yards on eleven carries as the Giants won 20-6.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Emmitt Smith isn't producing and the four-time NFL rushing champion is searching for answers.

He gained just 18 yards on 11 carries in a 20-6 loss to the New York Gia]nts on Sunday and was benched in the fourth quarter in favor of Sherman Williams.

"He (Smith) doesn't have the quickness he had has in the past," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said on Monday. "He's obviously bothered by something. His ankle has been hurting."

Smith had an MRI on his right ankle Monday although he wasn't complaining about being hurt after the game.

"I've seen him look a lot better," Switzer said. "I've seen him hit holes and ricochet up in there."

Switzer said he doesn't have any problem with Smith's running style which includes going out of bounds to avoid hits.

"There's no need for him to try to be Tarzan," Switzer said. "I've seen a lot of smart backs do that."

The Cowboys have not scored a touchdown on 24 consecutive possessions. One of the reasons is that the running game has been stopped.

"Emmitt got stung during the game but didn't want to say anything to me about it," Switzer said. "He requested the MRI because he wanted things checked out."

Smith has averaged a career low 3.6 yards per carry and has only three 100-yard games. The Cowboys were ranked 21st in the NFL in rushing.

Last year Smith rushed for a league-high 1,773 yards. He had 11 games of 100 yards or more rushing and scored an NFL-record 25 touchdowns.

"It's disappointing," Smith said. "But I'll try to put this behind me. There's always the first time for everything."

Switzer said Smith would start Thanksgiving Day against the Washington Redskins barring injury. The MRI results were still to be released, although Smith was walking without problems Monday.

"If he's full speed he will play and start," Switzer said. "We just wanted Sherman in there to change things up and give us a spark."

Texas, Texas A&M in showdown with Big 12 South ramifications

By Chip Brown
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — The Big 12 South will be decided by Texas and Texas A&M, just like everyone predicted.

Well, not exactly.

The forecast was for the Longhorns (6-4, 5-2 Big 12) and Aggies (6-5, 4-3) to battle for a berth in the Big 12 championship game against either Nebraska or Colorado in St. Louis on Dec. 7.

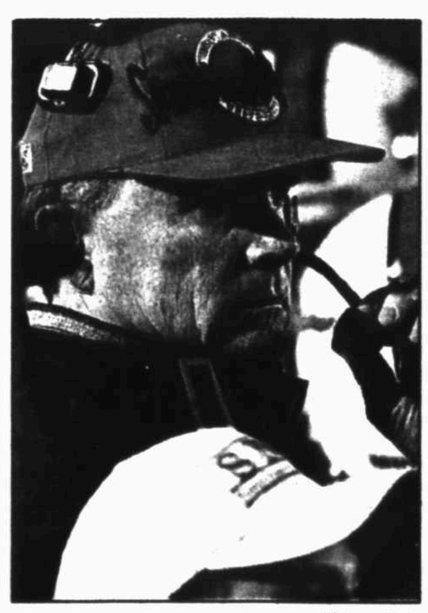

While it's true that A&M will help decide the southern division representative, the Aggies themselves are out of contention. And few predicted that Texas and A&M would both have records barely over .500.

So, it was a stumble more than a race, but the Big 12 South comes down to this:

If Texas beats A&M on Friday — kickoff is scheduled for 10 a.m. CST — the Longhorns will represent the southern division in the inaugural Big 12 title game.

If the Aggies win, Texas Tech (7-

SMU fires football coach following 6th straight losing record

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Southern Methodist coach Tom Rossley, hired to revive a program ruined by the NCAA death penalty, was fired Monday after his sixth consecutive losing season.

Rossley matched his best year by going 5-6 this season, but it wasn't enough. The Mustangs had their eighth consecutive losing season since their 1989 return from the NCAA's first — and still only — death penalty.

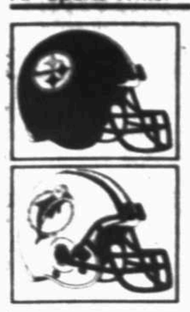

Competing in the Western Athletic Conference for the first time, SMU finished fourth in the eight-team Mountain Division.

Yet, the overall lack of progress under Rossley

Tomczak passes Pittsburgh to key score

By Steven Wine
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI — Mike Tomczak outpassed Dan Marino, and the Pittsburgh Steelers overtook the Miami Dolphins.

Tomczak threw for 252 yards, including a 20-yard touchdown to Ernie Mills with 2:10 remaining, and Pittsburgh rallied from an 11-point second-quarter deficit to win 24-17 Monday night.

Marino moved Miami 73 yards in the final two minutes to the 7-yard line, but his pass to Scott Miller on fourth-and-1 with 25 seconds left fell incomplete.

The Steelers (9-3) increased their lead to three games over second-place Houston in the AFC Central. The Dolphins (6-6) suffered a blow in their bid for a wild-card berth.

With the outcome, AFC West leader Denver (11-1) became the first team to clinch a postseason berth.

Miami scored only one touchdown against the Steelers' defense, which has allowed the fewest yards and points in the AFC.

Marino's 38-yard pass to Troy Drayton set up a 41-yard field goal by Joe Nedney to tie the game 17-17 late in the third quarter. But Nedney missed a 48-yarder with 8 1/2 minutes left.

Pittsburgh's second sack of Marino backed up the Dolphins, and a punt gave the Steelers the ball at the Miami 45 with six minutes to go.

Tomczak's touchdown pass came eight plays later on third-and-8. Mills broke free in the end zone when cornerback Terrell Buckley collided with a teammate.

Tomczak, who also hit completions of 34, 36 and 38 yards, was 16-for-29 and overcame two early turnovers. He lost a fumble to end a scoring threat, then threw an interception that Calvin Jackson returned 61 yards for a touchdown.

Marino completed 22 of 37 passes for 254 yards. He had two passes dropped, spoiling apparent first downs.

The Dolphins took the opening kickoff and drove 76 yards in 15 plays for a 7-0 lead. Marino completed all six of his attempts, including a 2-yarder to O.J. McDuffie on third down for the score.

Midway through the second quarter, Tomczak tried to hit Andre Hastings on short sideline route, but Jackson stepped between them to make the interception. He juggled the ball, then took off and scored untouched for a 14-3 Miami lead.

The Steelers' comeback began on their next possession with an 80-yard drive. Tomczak hit Mark Bruener for 37 yards, and at the 5-yard line reserve quarterback Kordell Stewart fooled the defense with an option and pitched to Tim Lester, who scored untouched.

AP Laserphoto

Pittsburgh Steelers' Jerome Bettis (36) breaks through the tackle of Miami Dolphins' Dwight Hollier (50) and Zach Thomas (54).

Tomczak threw long again early in the third quarter, hitting Andre Hastings for 38 yards on third-and-8. That set up a 1-yard touchdown run by Stewart to give the Steelers their first lead, 17-14.

Frank Phillips College gives Lady Chaps few problems

Staff Report

BORGER — Midland College coach Ron Jones was concerned about how his Lady Chaps would play on a road trip just prior to the Thanksgiving break, but there was little worry during a 92-66 win over Frank Phillips College here Monday night.

The Lady Chaps pounded FPC as Jill Davis led the way with 14 points. Fatou Cisse chimed in with 13 points and Mamie Ndoye had 10 points.

The win gives Midland College a 3-0 start to the Western Junior College Athletic Conference race and a 9-1 record overall. FPC fell to 0-2 and 1-9.

"I think we played well at times," Jones said. "I'm just glad we took care of business on the road, which is something you have to do, but I was concerned about this game, coming just before Thanksgiving. The girls did what they had to do."

Lawless had 15 points while Crutcher and Harney both had 14 for FPC.

The Lady Chaps still have conference business to take care of in the near future, but at least after Thanksgiving. MC will host New Mexico Junior College at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Chaparral Center.

LETT: Lett tested 10 times a month

pleading no contest to cocaine possession. Bam Morris, formerly with Pittsburgh and now with the Baltimore Ravens, was suspended for four games after pleading guilty to marijuana possession.

Lett, the Cowboys' star tackle and arguably the best defensive player on the team, had no comment Sunday after the Cowboys' 20-6 loss to the New York Giants at the Meadowlands.

"We deny anything has happened," said his agent, Michael Claiborne.

Coach Barry Switzer said Monday that he had no knowledge of Lett's status.

"I don't know, I don't want to know and I never want to know," Switzer said. "These are rumors about Leon. NFL policy is they don't tell me. So I can't speculate or comment. Sure, if I knew he had done something wrong I'd want to get him out of here. I don't know."

Cowboys' owner Jerry Jones Lett had been "exemplary" in the months since his first suspension.

"We know nothing of what's been reported," he said of the latest report.

The Star-Telegram said the appeal process had begun last Friday in New York.

One NFL source said, however, that Lett was not in the league office that day. Another source said that his knowledge of any appeals process was that it could take long enough for Lett to finish the season, which has four games plus the playoffs remaining.

"We don't have any information to believe he won't be playing for every game for the rest of the year," Cowboys spokesman Rich Dalrymple said. "We have no information to confirm any of those rumors."

Lett was suspended without pay for four games in November 1995 after he tested positive for drug use.

Under the terms of the drug policy, Lett is to be tested a maximum of 10 times a month. During the appeal process, officials will try to determine if Lett's positive sample came on the 11th test, which could be thrown out, the Star Telegram reported.

Lett, who is in his sixth year in the league, signed a four-year, $12 million contract extension in 1995.

His loss would be another blow to the Cowboys, who are coming of their third Super Bowl victory in four years, but are just 7-5 after Sunday's loss to the Giants. It is even more important now because the defense has been carrying an offense that hasn't scored a touchdown in two games.

Lett did not have one of his better games Sunday — only three tackles and no sacks.

Malone racks up double-double in win over slumping Nets

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Karl Malone had 27 points and 16 rebounds as the Utah Jazz won their seventh straight game, beating the New Jersey Nets 108-92 Monday night.

Jeff Hornacek added 19 points for the Jazz, who handed the Nets their worst loss of the season.

Utah used an 18-7 run at the start of the second half to take an 83-53 lead. Malone scored 10 points in the run, which he completed by making one of two free throws following a flagrant foul by Jayson Williams.

Tony Massenburg, Kerry Kittles and Ed O'Bannon each scored 12 points for New Jersey, which never threatened after falling behind by 19 points in the first half.

The Nets are 0-3 on the road this season, and 2-7 overall. Utah is 9-2.

Leading 30-27, the Jazz outscored the Nets 24-8 over the next 6:35 for a 54-39 lead. Adam Keefe scored eight points during the spurt.

Reggie Williams' jumper with 2:32 left in the first half cut Utah's lead to 56-43, but the Jazz then scored nine straight points for a 65-43 advantage.

Bullets 105, Timberwolves 98

LANDOVER, Md. — The Washington Bullets held Minnesota to 12 points in the first quarter Monday night and built an 18-point halftime lead en route to a 105-98 victory, their third straight.

Juwan Howard scored 24 points and Chris Webber had 16 points and 15 rebounds as the Bullets moved over .500 for the first time since opening night. Washington (7-6) never trailed in beating the Timberwolves for the fourth consecutive time since December 1994.

Tom Gugliotta had 25 points and 12 rebounds for Minnesota, which has lost four of five overall and six straight on the road. Rookie Stephon Marbury, playing with a sprained right ankle, had 13 points in 21 minutes.

Bucks 100, Magic 88

ORLANDO, Fla. — Armon Gilliam scored 15 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter and Milwaukee shot 77 percent in the period.

The Bucks only took 13 shots from the field in the last quarter, and made 10 of them. Gilliam scored 11 of his team's first 17 points, then made five free throws in the final 2:34 to help put the game away.

Two from Alamo win tourney

A pair of seventh-grade tennis players from Alamo Junior High won their A bracket competitions Saturday at the Big Tootsie Thanksgiving Invitational Tournament at Midland College.

Boys: A bracket: 1, Aaron Trimble; 2, Jon-Aaron House; 3, Marcelo Aguilar; 4, Kenneth Fletcher.

Girls: A bracket: 1, Alisha Phillips; 2, Jillian Wisdom; 3, Joann Tercero; 4, Lara Jamin. B bracket: 1, Jennifer Tercero; 2, Adela Martinez; 3, Ashley Newport; 4, Gaby Valdez. C bracket: 1, Anna Aguilar; 2, Addie Smith; 3, Chanda Roberson; 4, Lauren Young; 5, Cristina Tercero.

Lee sophomores beat Odessa High

The Midland Lee sophomores defeated Odessa High's sophomores, 72-65 Monday night with four players hitting in double figures.

The Lee sophs, 6-0 on the year, were led by Justin Gibson's 25 points and was followed by Orlando Castillo 16, Tony Smith 15 and Ray Chatham 10. Casey Maxwell had 14 points for OHS. The Lee sophs play at Lubbock Monterey today at 4 p.m.

MBA downs Ranger Sophs

Midland Baptist Academy defeated the Greenwood sophomores 59-20 Monday night to climb to 3-3 for the season.

MBA got 15 points each from Chris and Mike Zidamic and 13 more from Jason Oden. Mike Zidamic had 13 rebounds while Oden had seven steals and 12 rebounds.

MBA will play the Midland Christian JV next Monday.

MC junior high splits games

The Midland Christian seventh and eighth grade basketball teams split games with Greenwood Monday.

The MC seventh grade B team lost to Greenwood 27-20 to fall to 0-3 as Andrew McGuire and James Vallee had six points each while the MC seventh grade A team beat Greenwood 38-35 to climb to 1-3 as Garrett Hellums had 12 points.

In eighth grade action, MC's A team won 30-17 as David and Stephen Koss had eight points each and the 8th grade B team fell 22-18.

In the ninth grade, Rankin took a 60-50 win over Midland Christian. Shaun Rickey had 16 points for MC while Chon Brown had 10.

Local Basketball Today

BOYS

Midland Lee at Lubbock Monterey

When: 7:30 p.m.
Where: at Lubbock Monterey.
Records: Midland Lee is 4-0 overall. Monterey is 2-2

Coaches: Midland Lee — Jon House. Monterey — Vic Self.

Opponent: Monterey is on a two-game winning streak (Estacado and Plainview), but opened the season with two losses to District 4-5A teams, Odessa Permian and Abilene Cooper. Dee Wilson is the leading player for the Plainsmen, hitting 14 points in his last game against Plainview. He averaged 11 points and seven rebounds per game last year. Also returning is Jesus Arenas, who averaged four points and three rebounds per game last season.

Injuries: None.

Notes: Lee is fresh off a home weekend sweep of the El Paso teams of Bel Air and Hanks where the Rebels have hit 13 treys in the past two games. Guard Amron Washington hit a season high 24 points against Hanks Saturday while John Purves had 15 and Matt Meyer 12. Lee won that game 71-63.

Next game: Lee will next play in the 18th annual Jack Frost tournament in Georgetown Friday and Saturday, meeting Austin Anderson at 10:30 a.m. Friday in the first round. Anderson was a Final Four team two years ago.

GIRLS

Midland Lee at Lubbock Monterey

When: 8 p.m.
Where: at Lubbock Monterey.
Records: Midland Lee is 2-2 overall. Monterey is 2-1

Coaches: Midland Lee — Elise Kail. Monterey — Melynn Hunt.

Opponent: Monterey went into the season ranked No. 8 in the state. The Lady Plainsmen are coming off a loss to Plainview, a team ranked No. 5 in Class 4A and which has also beaten Lee. Monterey's two wins have come against Brownfield and No. 3 Georgetown. Alison Cudnoski, a 6-1 post, is coming off a 20-point game against Plainview.

Injuries: None.

Notes: Lee is coming off a one-point (45-44) loss to Ozona, the state's two time defending Class 2A champion. Nisha Washington had 13 points in that game. Lee has a long line of ranked teams on the schedule this year and Monterey is the next.

Next game: Lee will next play in the 18th annual Jack Frost tournament in Georgetown Friday and Saturday, meeting Austin Anderson at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the first round.

Midland High at Sweetwater

When: 7:30 p.m.
Where: at Sweetwater.
Records: Midland High is 5-2 overall. Sweetwater is 2-2.

Coaches: Midland High — Jim Raughton.

Opponent: Sweetwater is a District 2-4A team that has hopes of making the state playoffs this year as a third place team, the first time Class 4A has been allowed to send three teams to the playoffs.

Injuries: None.

Notes: Midland High is coming off a 63-29 win over Class 3A Seminole. Both MHS losses this year have been at the hands of Class 5A Lubbock Coronado. Against Seminole, Talitha Belcher had 16 points.

Next game: The Lady Dawgs will leave at 3 p.m. Thanksgiving Day for the Harlingen Classic and will play Brownsville Pace at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the first round.

LEE: Marcus RB Ennis has 1,160 rushing son with Michael Odum as the man under center, but he broke a leg in the seventh game of the season against Trinity. No problem. In steps left-handed Spencer Stack, the current quarterback who has led Marcus through two playoff victories thus far.

Flower Mound Marcus is 9-3 this season, losing two district games to Big School entry Lewisville, an undefeated team that is also alive in the state playoffs, and Keller by a 26-6 margin.

Stack likes to throw to wide receiver Tad York when things get tough, but running back Steven Ennis, who had 1,160 yards rushing and 26 touchdowns in 1995, is also back as a major threat. Tight end Miles Koop (245), offensive guard Bryan Gaither (270 and an all-state selection last year) and offensive tackle Kevin Gober (240) return in the line. Marcus is a huge team.

Defensively, the Marauders have four key people back, including junior linebacker David Ellen (235), who was voted Sophomore of the Year in District 5-5A last season with 198 tackles and two interceptions. Linebacker Chris Prater (189) has good speed. Defensive back Reggie Gillem (191) is a great hitter while defensive tackle Chris Bellows (248) runs to the ball well and can tackle when he arrives.

Lee is unbeaten at 11-0 and ranked No. 4 in the state, but the playoff preliminaries are officially over. The Rebels will be meeting a great team from here on out as long as they keep playing. It's roll the dice time.

REBEL CRIES: This is the step District 4-5A has been waiting on. If Abilene Cooper and Lee both win this week, they would play for the second time this season next week. Neither team has an easy task, but both do own the home field advantage this weekend. The Cougars (9-3) of Randy Allen host Irving Nimitz (8-4) at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Shotwell Stadium in Abilene. It will be the second week in a row at home for Cooper. Lee and Cooper faced this same opportunity a year ago, but both lost at this playoff stage. Lee defeated Cooper 27-22 in a wild District 4-5A game this year at Memorial Stadium. It will be interesting this week to find out where these two teams might play if they both do advance. If both Lee and Cooper win in the region round, it would guarantee that one 4-5A team will make it as far as the state semifinals where No. 1 ranked North Mesquite won't be waiting. Tyler John Tyler pulled off the biggest coup of the second round over the weekend, beating North Mesquite, 17-6... Waco High, a team Lee slaughtered, 56-26, entered the playoffs with a 3-7 record. Well, Waco is alive in the third round, beating A&M Consolidated, 27-14, in the second round and is now 5-7 on the season. Waco plays Richardson Lake Highlands (11-1) this week at Texas Stadium. Lake Highlands eliminated unbeaten Marshall, 35-21, as another state power bites the dust...

SMITH: Dallas trails Redskins by one game

(From 1C)

The Cowboys face a must win over the Washington Redskins on Thursday. Dallas trails the Redskins by a game with four to play, including the season-closer at Washington on Sunday, Dec. 22.

"We've got to get going with the running game," Switzer said. "We're having no success now and that's why our offense is struggling."

ICE: Odessa could be 10th WPHL team

ed.

The proposal is for the hockey team to play its games in the Ector County Coliseum with a 68-game schedule, 34 at home, running October through March.

The WPHL is operating with six teams this year with Albuquerque, N.M., Amarillo, Austin, Central Texas (Belton), El Paso and Waco. The league has already approved three expansion teams for next year with San Angelo, Shreveport, La., and Lake Charles, La. Odessa would be the 10th league entry for the 1997-98 season.

If the franchise becomes reality, the team would open an office at the Ector County Coliseum, but ticket information is available now at Christensen Stadium in Midland under the Angels (683-4251 or 570-7489).

Season ticket prices for 34 home games range from $08 to $204 per seat.

The primary difference between the Angels and the new hockey club is that the Angels players are employed by the "parent" California Angels while the hockey players (as well as the coaches and athletic trainer) would be employed by the hockey club itself. The WPHL has extensive scouting contacts to help clubs find top talent.

The hockey players, like the Angels, are professionals, most of them in their 20's. Virtually every player has experience in collegiate or junior hockey.

The WPHL started its initial season of play in October and is enjoying an average attendance of 4,800 fans per game.

Don't buy a furnace without a second opinion

By Lee Thompson

My goal here is not to sell you something, but to keep you from buying something you don't need. I am offering to give you an honest observation, a clear caution and an offer that could save you some money. The observation is that winter cold causes your heating system to work hard and eventually break. When it does break, you will call a service contractor to have it fixed. No rocket science here.

My caution is as simple as my observation. You see, most heating contractors are honest business people and employ competent technicians. However, just as in any profession, there are those who want your money, not your loyalty. It is common practice for this type of contractor to do whatever it takes to sell you a new furnace . These contractors will tell you the heat exchanger is "cracked" and you have to buy a new unit. What they tell you may be true, but if you want to keep them honest you need to get a second opinion. That second opinion could save you hundreds of dollars.

"If a contractor tells you that your heat exchanger is cracked and you need a new furnace, get another dealer to check it for you.
Lee Thompson, owner
Air Care

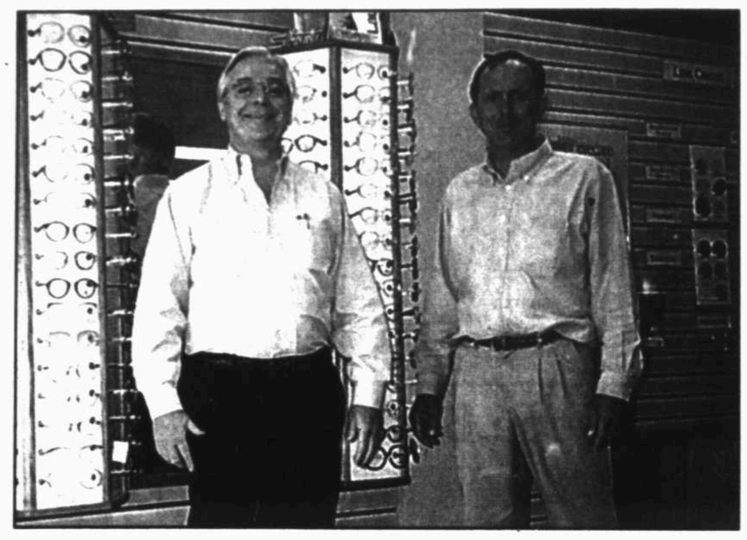

If a contractor tells you that your heat exchanger is cracked and you need a new furnace, get another dealer to check it for you. No reputable contractor or doctor gets upset at second opinions.

My offer is for second opinions. If you find yourself in the position of needing a second opinion, then Air Care by Lee Thompson, Inc. will provide you one free of charge. Often, when we check a unit that has been condemned, we find that it can be repaired for much less than a new one. Other times we find that the heat exchanger is indeed "cracked" and you do need a new furnace. Either way, it costs you nothing to find out.

Air Care by Lee Thompson, Inc. is a full line heating contractor. I have been in this industry for 26 years, all of them here in Midland. My company specializes in residential service work and we install high efficiency Carrier equipment. We have radio dispatched trucks and our trained technicians are on call seven (7) days a week. We are willing to provide you with references from our many loyal customers. We encourage you to call the Better Business Bureau and check us out.

Remember, before you are forced to buy a furnace...get a second opinion.

Air Care is locally owned and operated by Lee Thompson. The company sells Carrier and other units and offers complete service on all brands. The phone number is 570-5265.

Land a squadron of Christmas gifts at the CAF Gift Shop

"For someone interested in World War II or historic aviation in general, there's probably not a better place to come gift shopping than right here." So offers Dave Watson, manager of the Confederate Air Force Gift Shop.

From WW II veterans to Junior Airmen, there is something for everyone. Their range of books is really something to dive into, from histories and first-hand accounts to coffee-table photo collections. For kids there are activity and coloring books.

T-shirts are always popular and the CAF gift shop's selection covers many planes, in sizes to fit any wing span, plus caps and kids' bomber jackets.

Model airplane kits range from the very simple to those that would challenge Rosie the Riveter.

Come out to recon the rest yourself-you are sure to take off with a cargohold full of exciting Christmas gifts for everyone. The CAF Gift Shop can really help you earn your wings!

And when the family comes in for the holidays, let them tour the hangar and ride the flight simulator at the CAF museum.

The Confederate Air Force Gift Shop is located near Midland International Airport, in the main CAF building. A plethora of signs offer directions from I-20, Business 20, SH 151 and FM 1788. Hours are 9-5 Monday through Saturday, and 12-5 p.m. Sunday. The phone number is 563-1000.

New shop specializes in European auto repair

"There weren't many places in this area to get European cars repaired," says Tex Stoner, explaining why he and partner Sean Kendrick recently opened Classic Automotive in downtown Midland. The two combine for almost 30 years repair experience, much of that in European cars.

Stoner, a longtime Permian Basin resident, specializes in Jaguar, MG Volvo and BMW repair. Kendrick's expertise and training are in Mercedes and Porsche. Kendrick is back in town after a stint as shop foreman for a large independent shop in Austin.

"We understand that owners of these kinds of cars are very particular about the service they receive," acknowledges Stoner. "We set a very high standard for what we do." That explains why they use Original Equipment Manufacturer (OEM) parts on everything including oil changes. "OEM parts are usually engineered to tighter specifications and tolerances than are aftermarket parts," Kendrick explains. "We want to make sure our repairs last as long as possible."

Even using OEM parts, most work is completed the same day or by the next day, thanks to a supplier who can overnight almost any part.

Superior customer service also means giving a complete estimate before starting any work. Their electronic diagnostic equipment lets them detect most problems quickly and very accurately. "We want to make sure the work we do will fix the problem," says Stoner.

One customer who is particularly impressed with the service at Classic Automotive is Cleve Adams, who owns several Mercedes. "We had spent a lot of money over several weeks trying to get my wife's 1987 Mercedes fixed," says Adams. "Sean had it fixed in five minutes. Now it runs like new."

While they can't promise a five-minute diagnosis on every problem, Stoner says they expedite all work because they understand how much West Texans depend on their cars.

Classic Automotive offers pickup service to and from work or home from anywhere in Midland or Odessa. They work with customers to schedule work. "If we get a day or two behind we'll tell you, so you don't have to be without the car until right when we can start working on it," says Kendrick.

Classic Automotive owners Tex Stoner (left) and Sean Kendrick check over a Mercedes before beginning repairs. The downtown shop specializes in repair of European cars, but also repairs domestic vehicles.

They will soon be authorized to do state inspections. "We want to be the one shop a European car owner needs," agree Kendrick and Stoner.

Classic Automotive is located downtown at 108 North Weatherford in the former Vern's Automotive location. Owned and operated by Sean Kendrick and Tex Stoner, they can do any repairs from an oil change to an overhaul on European and domestic automobiles. They accept Visa and Master Card and soon will accept Discover and American Express. The shop's phone number is 570-6470.

Make travel easier

Stop making all those phone calls

When you're planning a trip, you usually have to make a few phone calls. For a business trip, you'll call the airline, the hotel and the rental car company.

A pleasure trip, on the other hand, can be even more involved. You also call about tickets to shows, sports events and theme parks. Where's the pleasure in all that? Especially when you can get it all done in one phone call to Great Destinations.

"It's not unusual for us to save our clients 10 to 12 phone calls and many hours," says co-owner Peggy Brown. She and partner Linda Deaver recently bought Great Destinations, Midland's oldest travel agency (founded in 1951 by Marie Lones), from the retiring George and Marjorie Edwards. The staff has combined experience of over 40 years.

"We can not only set up the best travel schedule, we can arrange for tickets to just about anything, if they're available," says Linda.

For a business meeting, they can schedule airline, hotel and car reservations for any number of attendees and take care of meeting room arrangements and meals.

Why do all this yourself? It does not cost anything to let the trained staff at Great Destinations find you the very best rates and the very best schedules available. By knowing the industry thoroughly, Great Destinations can find rates that may be unknown to the general public.

"Besides business and individual travel, we have a lot of exciting tr packages," says Peggy. "Spring Break Cancun" (yes, now is the time to plan for spring break) brings the promise of a sunny welcome in warm Old Mexico while the cold winds will still be blowing here. Packages with fine hotels and plenty of time to work on your tan begin at just $349.

"We would like to put together groups for river rafting in Lajitas (at Big Bend), shopping in San Antonio, or any destination of your choice—anything that's FUN," says Peggy. "Group travel can be great fun because someone else is taking care of everything for you."

The Great Destinations staff gets in the mood to send you to Cancun for spring break. Starting at just $349, these packages are a great deal.

Fun travel ideas

Need an excuse to travel? Great Destinations can help you plan any of the following trips.

- Honeymoon (ask about their gift registry)
- Wedding (they can even get you a minister at your destination)
- Mother's Day Cruise
- Anniversary (not just 25th)
- Vacation
- Spring Break
- Family reunion
- School trip
- Sports trip
- Adventure (skiing, rafting)
- Branson
- New York

Great Destinations is a full service travel agency owned by Linda Deaver and Peggy Brown. They are members of the American Society of Travel Agents, Cruise Lines International Association and GEM—Worldwide Preferred Supplier Consortium. Located at 400 West Texas, on the corner of Texas and Big Spring, the phone number is 682-8645.

Alpine Industries' air purification systems offer relief from indoor air pollutants. Gene and Eddie Lue Hunter display units capable of purifying up to 5,000 square feet.

Indoor air can make you sick

Alpine offers healthier air for everyone

Today's energy efficient homes trap pollutants and illness-caus ing bacteria as well as energy. These pollutants can total as many as 300 according to a recent Environmental Protection Agency study, and can be devastating to everyone.

We breathe 34 pounds of air each day, providing 60 percent of our energy. We keep our food clean and germ-free—shouldn't we do the same with our air?

Recently, Gene and Eddie Lue Hunter discovered how to bring fresh, pure air indoors. Alpine air purifiers, which they distribute, clean the air naturally using oxygenation and ionization.

"Ninety percent of colds are caught indoors because of germ-laden dust particles," says Gene Hunter. "Alpine eliminates both dust and germs."

Others offer machines which use either oxygenation or ionization. Alpine's uniquely powerful technology combination was developed in the mid 1980s.

So you can experience this yourself, the Hunters offer a no-obligation three-day trial. Many people, especially allergy sufferers, notice immediate improvement.

Alpine has purifiers designed to bring sparkling clean air to anywhere from 500 to 5000 square feet, making them ideal for home, vehicle or office.

Gene and Eddie Lue Hunter are independent distributors of Alpine Industries' air purification systems. Call them at 683-9253 for details about their no-obligation three-day trial.

Delinquent taxpayer: you don't have to face the I.R.S. alone

Everyone knows that failure to file income tax can lead to legal problems. Fewer people know there is help for those who want to get back into the good graces of the Internal Revenue Service. This is true even for those facing possible civil or criminal action.

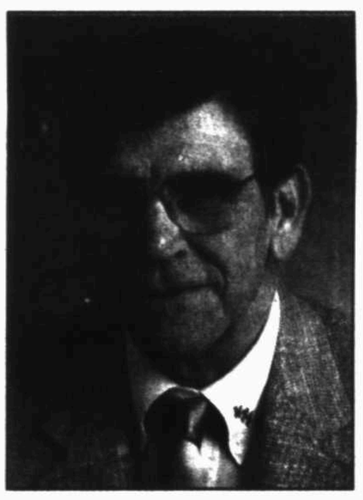

Charles Frost, a former Internal Revenue Service officer, founded Federal Tax Consultants to rescue just such people. His local consultant is William F. Judd.

Frost said, "The IRS can criminally prosecute individuals and businesses that do not file income tax or employment tax returns. The law is very specific when it comes to willingly failing to file tax returns."

"While IRS policies and practices are somewhat vague," Judd said, "the Internal Revenue Code (IRC), the law which the IRS abides by, is specific.

For example, IRC section 7203 states that any person required to pay any estimated tax or make a return, keep any records or supply information to the IRS who willfully fails to do so could be convicted of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $25,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

Even if a taxpayer is not in danger of criminal penalties the civil penalties are usually astronomical. These penalties can lead to great financial strain or even ruin.

Federal Tax Consultants has a variety of ways to help tax payers resolve problems with the Internal Revenue Service. Call Bill Judd at 682-7004 or 1-800-382-6337 for a free initial consultation.

"Unfortunately, rather than seeking qualified tax help, some taxpayers file premature bankruptcy. Even worse, others let the IRS prepare and compute the tax for them," Judd lamented. Neither action usually solves the problem.

Since 1988 FTC professionals have helped hundreds of taxpayers in dire circumstances re-enter "tax society."

Frost said, "It's what we call voluntary compliance. We use several little-known IRS policies to help troubled taxpayers. We help them file an Offer in Compromise. This gives the IRS something instead of nothing and it gets the taxpayer out of deep water."

FTC helped one client who owed the IRS $300,000. Judd said that with the Offer in Compromise the client only paid the IRS $10,000.

Frost said there are two main criteria for submitting an Offer in Compromise:

1. The tax, penalty and interest must exceed a taxpayer's net realizable equity and
2. Ability to make a monthly installment agreement with the IRS is minimal.

For anyone facing these or other crushing tax burdens Bill Judd is available for consultation.

A Self Examination

"Do I need help with the IRS?"

- o The IRS is claiming a large tax deficiency.
- o There is a possibility of criminal charges.
- o Dealing with the IRS is so stressful I can't even open a letter from them, much less respond to it.
- o I have received a "30-day" or "90-day" letter from the IRS.
- o I owe taxes but cannot pay.

If you answered yes to the first two questions or face any of the circumstances listed, call FTC agent Bill Judd at 682-7004 or 1-800-382-6337 for a consultation.

Federal Tax Consultants is a tax consulting firm which was founded in 1988 by Charles Frost. Contact local FTC representative Bill Judd at 682-7004 or 1-800-382-6337. The office is open all year to assist with tax matters.

Q. Where will my retirement income come from?
A. Social Security will provide only some of your income needs in retirement. It was designed to be a financial safety cushion for those who had no retirement plan whatsoever. A company retirement plan will also contribute a portion of your income during retirement. And your personal savings are likely to have to make up the remainder. The key question, of course, is, will there be enough?

Majors, Henning out in big day of coaching changes

Associated Press

And the coaching hits just keep on coming ...

Dan Henning resigned at Boston College, Johnny Majors stepped down at Pittsburgh, Jerry Pettibone quit at Oregon State, and Maryland's Mark Duffner and SMU's Tom Rossley were fired Monday in the latest round of coaching changes.

With two weeks left in the regular season, 20 of 111 Division I-A coaches have either resigned, retired or been fired.

Some schools have already lined up replacements.

On Tuesday, Indiana will hire Cam Cameron, an assistant with the Washington Redskins, to replace Bill Mallory, who was fired Oct. 31.

Notre Dame defensive coordinator Bob Davie was hired to replace Lou Holtz, while Joe Tiller resigned at Wyoming last week to replace Jim Colletto at Purdue.

And in I-AA, Glenn McNeely was fired at Idaho State.

Got it so far? There's more.

Since the NCAA went to I-A and I-AA schools in 1978, the record for most coaching changes in a season is 27 in 1980, when there were 139 schools in I-A.

At Chestnut Hill, Mass., Henning resigned two days after another losing season, this one rocked by a gambling scandal.

"This has been a difficult year," said Henning, 16-19-1 in his three seasons at BC. "There have been a number of distractions that have hurt the focus and clouded the overall issue."

On Nov. 6, 13 players were suspended for gambling. Two bet against Boston College in the Syracuse game, and Henning said they would never return to the team. The Eagles finished 5-7.

At Pittsburgh, the 61-year-old Majors leaves after Saturday's game against Rutgers. In his second stint with the Panthers, Majors is 11-32 in four seasons.

Majors will take a new job at Pitt as special assistant to the chancellor and athletic director.

"The final whistle Saturday will be my final whistle as the football coach at the University of Pittsburgh," said Majors, 184-137-10 in 28 seasons at Iowa State, Pitt and Tennessee.

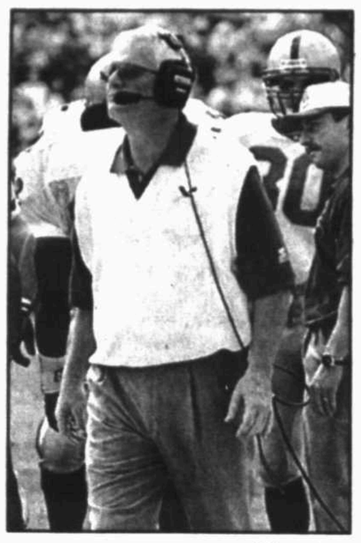

At College Park, Md., the 43-year-old Duffner finished his five years at Maryland with a 20-35 record, including 5-6 this season. Duffner, however, could be a candidate to replace Yale's Carm Cozza, who retired after 32 years of coaching the Elis.

Also Monday, Baylor athletic director Tom Stanton said former Colorado coach Bill McCartney turned down an offer to replace Chuck Reedy, who was fired on Sunday.

"His feeling is that God's direction for his life is to be in charge of Promise Keepers," Stanton said. "We're saddened by the fact he's chosen that direction, but we certainly respect his decision."

At Bloomington, Ind., Cameron, 35, has spent three seasons as the Redskins quarterbacks coach. He played football and basketball at Indiana.

Mallory, who departs with a 69-77-3 record in 13 seasons with the Hoosiers, was one of four Big Ten coaches dismissed in the past month. Also dismissed in the Big Ten were Illinois' Lou Tepper, Minnesota's Jim Wacker and Purdue's Colletto.

GAME: A&M win puts Tech in title game

(From 1C)

4, 5-3), whose regular season is over, would go to St. Louis. A&M also has to win to qualify for a bowl bid.

The fact that both teams hate each other more than the Hatfields and McCoys almost guarantees some decent post-Thanksgiving football. The Aggies make a bonfire three stories high for the Texas game. Texas holds a hex rally to call on mystical ghouls and goblins to help them beat the Aggies.

"We were both picked to do a lot more than we did this season," said Texas fullback Ricky Williams. "But I think we have more to lose. We had high goals and let everyone down. We can redeem ourselves with a win."

Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum said Monday that his team has to overcome the disappointment of not being in the Big 12 title game hunt. That chance was taken away when Tech beat Oklahoma 22-12 on Saturday.

"I thought there was a real potential for problems if we put all our emphasis on the Big 12 game when it could be taken away from us," Slocum said.

"We took the approach that we were playing Texas, a big rivalry game. That in itself is motivation enough. And we have the added motivation of needing to win to go to a bowl game," Slocum said.

Texas coach John Mackovic said Friday's game "will be our toughest test because of the emotion." The A&M game is the only matchup the normally reserved Texas coach has ever painted his face for.

"They'd probably like to knock us out of the Big 12 championship game," Mackovic said. "I'm sure that will be a big thing with them, to rain on our parade. I know if it were reversed, we'd be saying, 'Let's knock them out of the Big 12 title game.'"

Texas linebacker Tyson King, one of 27 Longhorn seniors playing their final home game, said he wants to be able to reflect positively on Friday's outcome.

"They say you're only as good as your last game, so if I go out there and lose this game, I'll hear about it and remember it for the rest of my life, and I can't handle that," King said.

SMU: Rossley 15-48-3 since 1991 convinced athletic director Jim Copeland it was time for a change.

(From 1C)

"This year's record was only one factor in my decision," Copeland said. "If I thought we were headed in the right direction, and I thought he was the right person to take us to the next level, I would not have made this decision."

Rossley didn't attend Copeland's news conference, and could not immediately be reached.

Rossley's overall SMU record was 15-48-3, including 1-10 seasons in his first year and in 1995. He has two years left on a five-year contract extension he received after the 1993 season.

"It's been an evolutionary process in this rebuilding," Copeland said. "He's taken us through some hard times. ... He obviously did some things well and some things I feel could've been done better."

Copeland said he and three other school administrators would immediately begin searching for a replacement. He said he already has a short list in mind but declined to be specific.

One possible candidate is Rick Lantz, the defensive coordinator at Virginia, where Copeland was athletic director before coming to SMU in January 1995.

Rossley's enduring legacy may be of a coach who could get his team close to victory, but couldn't get over the hump.

In 18 of his last 32 losses, the Mustangs either led or were within seven points in the fourth quarter.

Just this season, SMU wasted four shots at the end zone in the final seconds to lose 21-17 to Utah, saw Navy kick a last-second field goal for a 19-17 win, and fell 27-26 to Missouri when a late SMU field goal attempt bounced off an upright. All three losses came during a five-game skid.

Rossley, 50, was Forrest Gregg's offensive coordinator in the school's first two years off probation, then he spent a season as the Atlanta Falcons' quarterbacks coach before returning in 1991 as Gregg's replacement. It was his first head coaching job at any level.

Rossley almost lost his job after going 1-10 last season, but Copeland decided to let him lead SMU into the WAC.

There was plenty of reason to believe the Mustangs could click this year: quarterback Ramon Flanigan and star linebacker Chris Bordano were returning from injuries that kept them out all of 1995, and — for the first time since the death penalty — SMU had 10 fifth-year seniors.

Lose now and forget national title

By Richard Rosenblatt
AP Football Writer

For Florida and Florida State, it's simple.

For Arizona State, Nebraska and Colorado, it's possible.

For Ohio State, it's implausible.

That's the way the national championship picture shapes up with two of the season's biggest games set for Thanksgiving weekend — No. 1 Florida at No. 2 Florida State on Saturday, preceded by No. 5 Colorado at No. 4 Nebraska on Friday.

And just like that, the list of contenders will be trimmed to three.

"Everyone's going to watch this game and everyone's going to say whoever wins is going to the national championship," Seminoles defensive end Reinard Wilson said of the Florida-FSU game. "But once it's over, we still have another one left."

As Ohio State coach John Cooper knows, not everything goes according to plan. On Saturday, Michigan beat the Buckeyes 13-9, spoiling Ohio State's bid for a perfect season and all but ending its title chances for the second year in a row.

A team-by-team look outlining the national title prospects of the top six teams in the rankings.

FLORIDA (10-0): Since the Gators are No. 1, there's no mystery — win the next three games and coach Steve Spurrier brings Florida its first national title. The task only sounds simple.

The Gators must beat Florida State in Tallahassee for the first time since 1986 and then beat No. 15 Alabama in the SEC title game a week later in St. Louis.

The Sugar Bowl would be next, with the probable opponent two-time national champion Nebraska, which clobbered the Gators 62-24 in last year's title game.

"Other teams need to win two games this time of the year, maybe even one," Spurrier said. "The Gators have got to win three big ones in a row."

FLORIDA STATE (10-0): The Seminoles, who moved up to No. 2 after Ohio State lost, also have a clear path — beat Florida and win the Sugar Bowl.

Should Arizona State also finish undefeated, the Seminoles would still have best shot at the title since they presumably would be ranked No. 1 entering the bowl games.

ARIZONA STATE (11-0): To claim their first title, the No. 3 Sun Devils have to win the Rose Bowl and hope Florida and Florida State both lose. If that happens, Arizona State would be the nation's only undefeated team.

NEBRASKA (9-1): The No. 4 Cornhuskers still have a shot at an unprecedented third straight title, but they need help.

Nebraska has to win out and hope Ohio State beats Arizona State in the Rose Bowl and Florida and Florida State both lose.

The Huskers play Colorado, then Texas or Texas Tech in the Big 12 title game Dec. 7 before claiming a Sugar Bowl spot.

COLORADO (9-1): The No. 5 Buffaloes have been creeping up on the leaders and coach Rick Neuheisel says his team has been "banished as an under-achieving team ever since we lost to Michigan.

"I tell our team we're going to crash this party. We didn't get an invitation, but we're going to come anyway."

Colorado's route it similar to Nebraska's — win out, while Florida, Florida State and Arizona State all lose. Even then, the Buffaloes would not be a sure bet for the title.

OHIO STATE: The Buckeyes (10-1) have almost no chance of winning it all, but there's a glimmer of hope.

The best case scenario is for Ohio State to beat Arizona State and have Florida, Florida State, Nebraska and Colorado all lose. Even then, the champion would not be clear cut, but the Buckeyes could be in the picture.

Red Raiders just slip by Nichols St., 80-73

Associated Press

THIBODAUX, La. — Tony Battie scored 24 points, pulled down 15 rebounds and had four blocks Monday to lead Texas Tech to a 80-73 victory over Nicholls State.

Cory Carr helped Texas Tech (2-0) gain an early lead by hitting a jump shot, followed by a 3-pointer to give the Red Raiders a 14-4 lead 5:35 into the game.

Texas Tech went on a 14-6 run over the next 8:00 minutes and led 46-24 at halftime.

Nicholls State (0-1) rallied behind Kendrick Franklin's 15 second half points as the Colonels outscored Texas Tech 28-14 over the first 10 minutes of the second half.

Taurus Howard scored 10 of the points during that time and hit a three-pointer with 9:59 left to cut the score to 60-52.

Texas Tech converted 8-of-12 free throws in the last 1:07 to help seal the victory.

Texas Christian 118, Centenary 87

FORT WORTH — Damion Walker scored 27 points while James Penny and Malcolm Johnson each added 20 Monday night in Texas Christian's 118-87 victory over Centenary.

The Horned Frogs (2-0) shot 56 percent while mounting a 59-36 halftime lead. They stretched that to 91-50 with 11:56 remaining on their way to the fourth-highest point total in school history.

Duncan doubly huge in Wake Forest's victory

Associated Press

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Tim Duncan had 21 points, 12 rebounds and did just about whatever he wanted as No. 3 Wake Forest blew past The Citadel 86-52 on Monday night.

Duncan, Wake's do-everything center, actually did against the Bulldogs (0-1). He scored two of the first three baskets for the Demon Deacons (2-0), hit 8 of 9 from the floor for the half, pulled down rebounds and coached his teammates.

Jamie Jenkins had 16 points to lead The Citadel, which chose to play Duncan one-on-one most of the first half. Big mistake.

No. 14 North Carolina 86, Richmond 75

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Shammond Williams scored eight points in a key second-half run and Antawn Jamison added 12 in the final 7:22 as No. 14 North Carolina struggled to beat Richmond for the second straight season.

The Tar Heels (1-1) were in jeopardy of their first home-opening loss since 1929. They trailed 61-55 with 10 minutes left and the Spiders (0-1), who almost beat North Carolina at the Smith Center last season, seemed to be wearing the Tar Heels down with their depth and experience.

No. 15 Massachusetts 59, Chaminade 48

LAHAINA, Hawaii — James Flint didn't know who was more nervous — he or his players — for 15th-ranked Massachusetts' season-opener.

Flint, making his debut as coach of the Minutemen after replacing John Calipari, got a win, over Chaminade in the Maui Invitational opener.

No. 23 Boston College 82, New Hampshire 40

BOSTON — Danya Abrams scored 16 points Monday night before leaving with a bruised knee and No. 23 Boston College coasted to an victory over New Hampshire.

Abrams, the Big East preseason player of the year, left the game with 11:47 left in the second half and had his left knee wrapped with ice and a bandage.

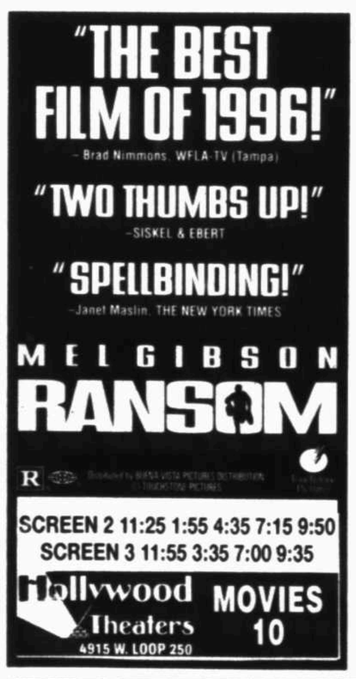

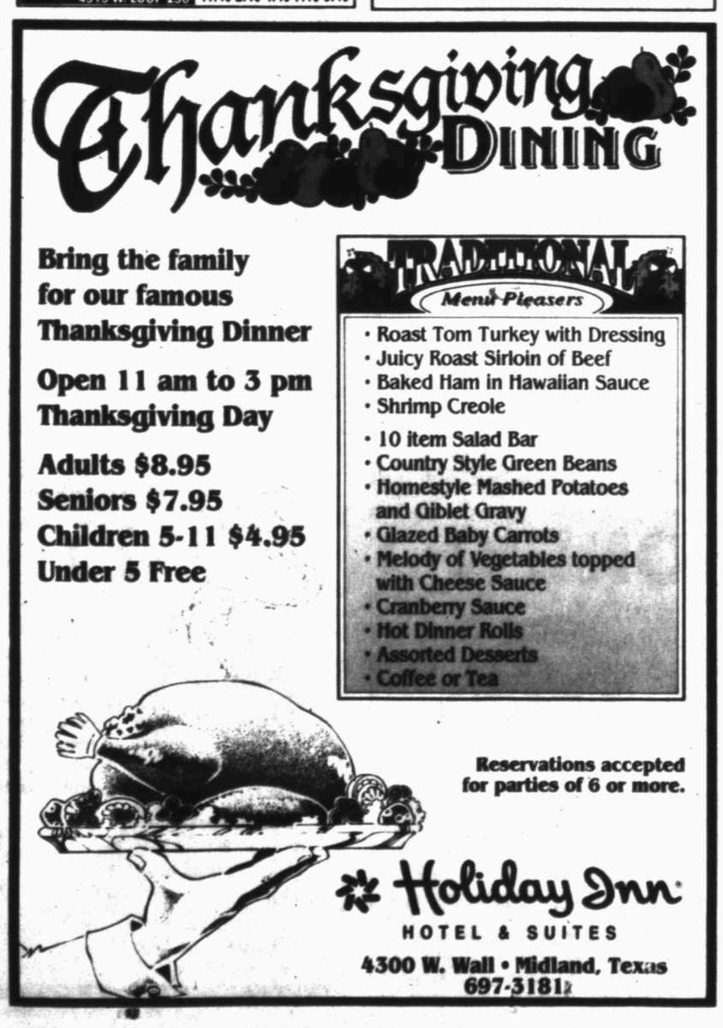

Midland Reporter-Telegram

Dear Reader:

We believe your daily newspaper should provide information that is pertinent and useful and that while it must emphasize local news it should provide news on state, national and world levels as well.

We also realize the newspaper should do more than just inform. It should entertain and bring enjoyment to the lives of our readers. For that reason we augment our news with a variety of local and syndicated features.

The resulting product must be continuously improved. Areas of strong interest should be expanded and subjects that have larger followings should probably appear more often. Perhaps those that are not as well received should be discontinued.

To give us a better idea of how we can do a better job, we need your help in providing feedback to us. We think that the reader survey that follows is one way to obtain that.

It will serve not only as an evaluation of our performance but be an important tool for us to ensure that we stay on target.

In addition to the survey, I invite any comments you would like to make. My telephone numbers are 687-8875 and, at home, 699-0428. I also can be reached by mail at P.O. Box 1650, Midland, TX 79702, by Cityline, 560-2400, category 3344, by fax to 682-6173, or by BasinLink, our online service caspence@basinlink.com.

Thank you in advance for your help in making your newspaper, the Midland Reporter-Telegram, a better and more useful one.

Sincerely,

Charles A. Spence

Prices dip

Crude and heating oil futures retreated Monday after Iraq agreed to all terms of a $2 billion oil-for-aid deal that will bring about 750,000 barrels of crude a day to world markets.

Natural gas futures prices continued their sharp gains, while unleaded gasoline also rose. On other markets, wheat futures rose, as did copper.

West Texas Intermediate for January delivery fell 26 cents on the New York Mercantile Exchange to $23.49 a barrel

January natural gas rose 5.7 cents to $3.494 for each 1,000 cubic feet.

Nizar Hamdoon, Iraq's ambassador to the United Nations, in a letter to U.N. officials confirmed reports that it no longer objects to some terms of the deal, originally reached on May 20.

The United States had insisted all ilraq, which has been suffering from an oil embargo since its 1990 invasion of Kuwait, estimated oil would be flowing by mid-December. Oil analysts estimated it will be mid-January before oil reaches the market.

Natural gas futures advanced for the eighth consecutive session as temperatures much below normal gripped much of the country.

Gradual warming was expect by midweek, but temperatures were expected to remain as much as 9 degrees below normal in the northern half of the country.

The active unleaded gasoline contract rose amid continued supply tightness going into the second strongest U.S. demand period.

Dollar rallies

NEW YORK — The dollar rallied to a five-week high against the mark and nearly two-year high against the Swiss franc Monday, reflecting widespread selling of European currencies for dollars in the aftermath of Italy's readmission to Europe's exchange-rate system.

The dollar also was helped by widespread weakness in the yen after a top Bank of Japan official acknowledged deep-seated concern about more possible Japanese bank failures due to an overhang of bad debt. Japan's government closed the regional Hanwa bank last week because it was insolvent, the first time that's happened in postwar Japan.

In New York, the dollar cost 1.5230 marks, up from 1.5065 Friday and the highest level since Oct. 22. Against the Swiss franc the dollar's advance was even more pronounced, rising from 1.2708 to 1.2877, the highest level since mid-January 1995.

The dollar cost yen, 112.63 yen, up from 111.46 yen Friday and the highest level since Nov. 6.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Friday: 5.1550 French francs, up from 5.1095; 1.3426 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3399; 1,510.75 Italian lire, up from 1,496.00.

TV programs sold

ARLINGTON, Va. — Gannett Co. is selling its syndicated TV programs, including the talk shows "Sally Jessy Raphael" and "Jerry Springer," to Universal Studios parent MCA Inc.

The value of the deal, announced Monday, was not disclosed. A spokeswoman for Gannett Broadcasting said the company decided to sell the shows to concentrate on its main businesses.

OPEC ministers like jump in oil prices

Energy prices fall as Iraq accepts United Nations terms for humanitarian aid

N.Y. Times News Service

Vienna -- OPEC oil ministers, arriving in Vienna for their winter meeting, say they're happy with the 25 percent jump in oil prices since they last met in June. And with $30 billion in extra revenue, they don't want to mess it up.

"We've been trying to lift the price for a long time, and we hope everybody will try to protect this price," said Abdalla Salem El-Badri, Libya's oil minister. The best way to protect it, El-Badri said, is to avoid producing too much oil.

El-Badri's comments add to a chorus of oil ministers urging the 11-member group to keep its self-imposed production target unchanged, at least until the end of June.

Nigeria's Dan Etete said none of the members will seek a higher quota. Rakadh Bin Salem Bin Hamed Bin Rakadh, the acting oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, said he wants OPEC to keep its quotas unchanged, though he didn't say for how long.

That's why analysts expect OPEC to keep its production quota unchanged at 25.033 million barrels a day in an effort to keep prices near highs not seen since 1990. The group meets Nov. 27 in Vienna to discuss 1997 production targets.

While OPEC members ignore their quotas and pump almost 1 million barrels a day more than the target, it hasn't mattered much recently. Oil prices jumped 25 percent since OPEC last met in June because of robust demand and shrinking inventories.

OPEC oil revenue is up $30 billion this year to $154 billion. That's made many cash-strapped producers eager to avoid increased output that could send prices lower. Iran oil minister, Gholamreza Aghazadeh, said today he's happy with prices.

"They're all earning a lot more money, so everyone is fairly happy, and they don't want to rock the boat and upset the market," Leo Drollas, chief economist and deputy director of the Centre for Global Energy Studies, said last week.

Not even rekindled speculation about a resumption in oil exports from Iraq after a six-year ban have damped the group's determination to stand pat.

Crude oil prices fell in New York and London Monday after an Iraqi diplomat said in the New York that Baghdad dropped its final objections to a United Nations plan that would let Iraq sell oil to raise money for humanitarian aid.

In New York, West Texas Intermediate was down 21 cents at $23.54 a barrel. Brent crude oil in London fell 42 cents a barrel to $22.61, which is still higher than the $16.79 it was a year ago. It was about $18 in June.

The U.N. oil-sale agreement would allow Iraq to export $2 billion of oil during a six-month period -- about 750,000 barrels a day, or 1 percent of the world's supply -- to finance humanitarian aid.

"The Iraqi quantity is not that much," El-Badri said. "The market can absorb this additional supply from Iraq."

Prices rose in recent months, in part because a potential flood of oil exports from Iraq were delayed. Analysts said it could be awhile before exports resume.

"I don't think they are going to sell oil anytime soon," said Hug Zagaria, a trader at Cargill Northeast Petroleum in Beverly, Massachusetts.

Traders expect prices to remain strong compared with a few months ago because inventories held by refiners are low going into the winter heating season. Refiners have cut back stockpiles to reduce capital costs and improve operating efficiency.

NEW YORK (AP) — Blue-chip shares soared again Monday, defying expectations for a Thanksgiving week slowdown, to boost the Dow Jones industrial average above 6,500 just six weeks after its first close above 6,000.

The Dow industrials rose 76.03 to 6,547.79, its 12th record close in the last 14 sessions. It was the best one-day gain for the blue-chip barometer since a 96-point rally on Nov. 6, the day after Election Day. The Dow has now gained 8.6 percent in November, bringing the year's advance to 28 percent.

Broader measures also set new highs, led by banks and other financial concerns that would benefit from the improving interest rate environment.

The session's liveliness surprised many observers who had expected money managers to use a light calendar of economic releases and an impending holiday, which often slows trading, as an opportunity to pause and assess this month's rally. Stock markets will close for Thanksgiving on Thursday, and plan an abbreviated session on Friday.

"The stock market is acting as if we are in a perpetual state of bliss, but we all know nothing is perpetual in the financial markets," said Jeffrey Applegate, chief investment strategist at Lehman Brothers. He said the market isn't as overpriced as some people fear, but added that "one way or another, we're going to have to take a breather and maybe retrench a bit."

Stocks started the day weak, but quickly turned higher, padding Friday's late rally, as bonds rose on the latest indication that the economy has slowed from the robust — and potentially inflationary — pace of earlier this year.

As bond prices rose, the yield on the 30-year Treasury bond — a key determinant of corporate and consumer borrowing costs — touched last week's eight-month low at 6.40 percent before settling at about 6.42 percent, down from 6.44 percent late Friday.

The National Association of Realtors reported that sales of existing homes fell 1.5 percent in October, the fifth consecutive monthly decline.

Since late summer, investors have been heartened by a stream of similarly mild readings, which has helped persuade the Federal Reserve not to slow the economy with an increase in the central bank's key lending rates.

Higher inflation or interest rates would make the fixed payoff on bonds less attractive, forcing down prices to improve yields.

The Standard & Poor's 500 list moved above 750 for the first time, jumping 8.30, or 1.1 percent, to 757.03. The New York Stock Exchange composite index neared the 400-mark, rising 4.20 to 398.86. Both measures, dominated by blue-chip and other large companies, have risen about 7 percent in November's run to numerous record highs.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by an 11-to-6 margin on the NYSE, where volume was heavy at 475.28 million shares, but down from 525.20 million in Friday's session.

The Nasdaq composite index, which has a large constituency of technology and smaller company shares, set a new high, rising 6.01 to 1,280.37. And the similarly composed American Stock Exchange market value index fell 2.61 to 588.16.

Home sales report fifth straight drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of existing homes dropped for a fifth straigh' month in October as housing demand, one of the stars of this economic expansion, showed further signs of slowing.

The National Association of Realtors said that resales of single-family homes dipped 1.5 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted 3.97 million units.

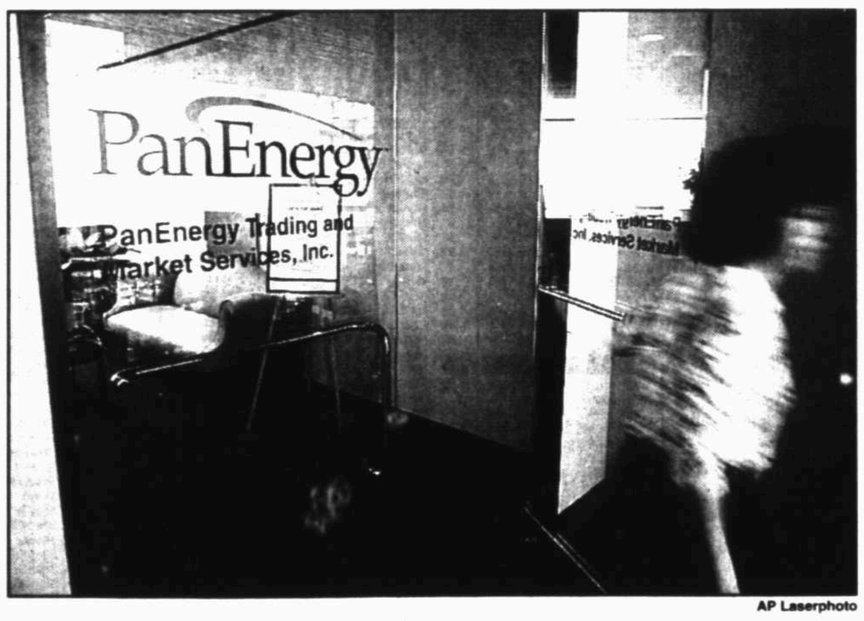

Private economists said the decrease provided further evidence that the economy was slowing from its sizzling springtime pace. But in its latest quarterly outlook, the nation's business economists said there appeared to be no danger that the slowdown could weaken into a recession.

In fact, the National Association of Business Economists survey predicted that the performance over the next five years should look much like the past five years — moderate growth averaging 2.5 percent and inflation just under 2.9 percent.

"Moderate economic growth and low inflation will continue throughout 1997 and probably much longer," the association said in a survey compiled from responses from 44 top forecasters.

The Realtors reported that the 1.5 percent decline in existing home sales followed an even bigger 2.7 percent drop in September. Existing home sales have been declining steadily since May.

But housing industry officials noted that sales had hit a record high in May and even with the declines have remained at strong levels.

An employee of PanEnergy Corp. leaves the company's trading and market services office in Houston, Monday. Duke Power Co. will aquire the natural gas distributor PanEnergy Corp. for $7.7 billion in stock. The combined comany will be known as Duke Energy and have a market value of about $23 billion.

Duke Power to buy PanEnergy in $7.7 billion stock acquisition

HOUSTON (AP) — Electric utility Duke Power Co. of North Carolina is merging with Houston-based natural gas distributor PanEnergy Corp. in a $7.7 billion deal that will create one of the nation's largest gas and electric companies.

The agreement, which will form a $23 billion integrated energy company to be called Duke Energy Corp., is the most recent of several mergers involving electric and gas pipeline firms. The accords are seen as driven partly by the easing of government regulation.

"As we envision expanding our electric business nationally, we need a platform on which to do that," Richard Priory, Duke president and chief operating officer, said Monday.

"Clearly, PanEnergy has a very extensive platform in 30 states where they have gas positions. This clearly leaves us with a platform to geographically expand our business and create a national presence in the delivery of energy."

Charlotte-based Duke Power, which provides electric service in a 20,000-square-mile-area roughly along the Interstate 85 corridor in North and South Carolina, has $13.4 billion in assets and employs 17,000 people.

PanEnergy, which supplies 15 percent of the natural gas consumed in the nation through 37,000 miles of pipeline, has 5,000 employees and $7.6 billion in assets.

Company officials said the new $23 billion firm would become among the top two or three marketers of both electricity and natural gas.

Duke will pay 1.0444 shares of its stock for each PanEnergy share. Duke Power closed at $47.87 1/2 a share Friday on the New York Stock Exchange, making the value of its offer about $50 a share.

"It's a good price," said Raymond Moore, a utilities analyst with New York-based Dillon Read. "You can't blame PanEnergy. I don't think they're doing investors any harm by being acquired by management of superb reputation. It's probably something they could not afford to pass up."

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Gift assets with little or no appreciation in value

By Eric Tyson

Q: If parents transfer title to their home to their children prior to the parents' death, is the cost basis of the house equal to its original purchase price, thus requiring the children to pay a capital gains tax on any profit from the sale?

Tyson

A: Yes, that is correct. If a non-retirement account asset, such as a home, investment real estate, stocks, bonds or mutual funds, is gifted before your death, the recipient of your gift "inherits" your cost basis.

If, on the other hand, such an asset is transferred to an heir after your death, then the cost basis "steps up" to its value at the time of your death -- which can mean huge capital gains tax savings for your heir.

So if you are going to gift assets, start with ones that have not appreciated, or have appreciated very little, in value.

Don't transfer an investment that is worth less than you originally paid, however. If you do so, the Internal Revenue Service "steps down" the cost basis for the recipient to the value of the investment on the date of transfer. If you possess any investments that have declined in value, you could sell those investments, take the tax loss and then transfer cash to your desired recipients.

Q: My mother bought a house five years ago for $155,000. It is now worth $175,000 and completely paid for. She wants to transfer this house to my fiancee and me. Can my mother transfer her house to us?

A lawyer I spoke with a few years back said she could transfer only up to $100,000 of the house and then would have to gift $10,000 per year in successive years until the house is fully transferred. Is that correct?

We don't care about having to pay capital gains tax when we sell her house in the future.

A: Unless your mother has already used up $500,000 of her $600,000 lifetime limit of money that can be transferred to her heirs free of federal estate tax, it would appear the lawyer is wrong.

Your mother, if she desires, should be able to transfer the entire house now. The value of the gift that is in excess of $20,000 -- $10,000 each to you and your fiancee -- would be taken against her lifetime $600,000 limit.

You might want to reassess your lack of concern about capital gains tax. If a person has been rolling her capital gains from one property to another over the course of her life, then the cost basis on her current home goes all the way back to the first home she ever purchased. Suppose, for example, that prior to the home your mother bought five years ago, she owned just one other home, for which she paid $25,000 way back when and to which she made $10,000 in improvements over time, giving her a cost basis of $35,000 on that home.

Later in life, she sold that home for $125,000 and rolled her capital gain and $35,000 cost basis into the purchase of her current home, now worth $175,000, which she wants to transfer to you. If she transfers the home to you, your cost basis would be $35,000 should you decide to sell.

If your mother is older than 55, she could take a once-in-a-lifetime tax exclusion on up to $125,000 of homeowner capital gains. However, that would involve selling the house.

Rate & Credit Policies

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classified categories require payment in advance. Credit applications are also required for business accounts. Yearly contract agreements are available. The Midland Reporter-Telegram reserves the right to correctly classify and edit all copy or to reject or cancel any advertisement at any time.

Cancellations

The price of your ad will be based on the number of days published according to our rate structure. Call (915) 682-6222 - ask for your cancellation number. This is your record of cancellation and it is important that you have it in the event of any misunderstanding or adjustment. "Super Seller" and "Real Wheel Deal" ads may be cancelled, but are non-adjustable and non-refundable.

Errors and Adjustments

Please check your ad the first day that it appears to be sure that all of the information is correct. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. Call us the first day if you find an error at 915-682-6222. To report an error in Saturday's edition call Saturday morning between 8a.m. and 10a.m. Errors in Sunday's edition should be reported on Monday morning after 8:00 a.m. We must limit our financial responsiblity, if any, to the charge for the word or space, and cannot be held responsible for incorrect ads after the first day of publication.

Omissions of Ads

The Midland Reporter-Telegram assumes no financial responsiblity in an ad beyond the cost of the ad itself, and no responsiblity for the omission of an ad.

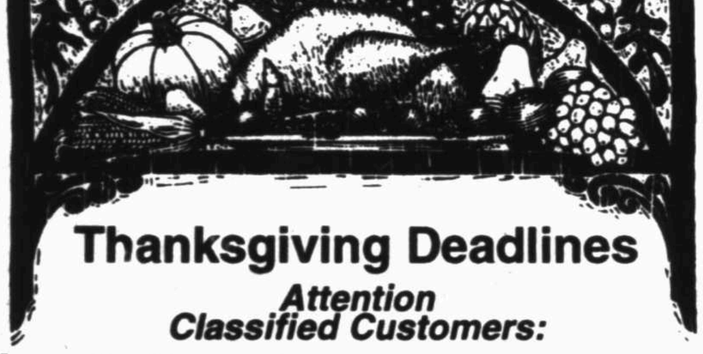

FREE BEE

FREE CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING
If your are a private individual selling one item for $50 or less you can place a 3 line classified advertisement for 4 days absolutely FREE in the Midland Reporter-Telegram.
Other restrictions apply.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations will conduct an accreditation survey of this organization on December 4 -5 - 6, 1996. The purpose of the survey will be to evaluate the organization's compliance with nationally established Joint Commission standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether, and the conditions under which accreditation should be awarded the organization.

Joint Commission standards deal with organizational quality of care issues and the safety of the environment in which care is provided. Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about such matters may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representatives at the time of the survey. Information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance to the accreditation process. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing and should be sent to the Joint Commission no later than five working days before the survey begins. The request must also indicate the nature of the information to be provided at the interview. Such requests should be addressed to:

Division of Accreditation Operations,
Organization Liaison
Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations
One Renaissance Boulevard
Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181

The Joint Commission will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform the organization of the request for any interview. The organization will, in turn, notify the interviewee of the date, time, and place of the meeting.

This notice is posted in accordance with the Joint Commission's requirements and may not be removed before the survey is completed.
