Lost Searchers Find Lost Boy In Wichita Mountains

Wilmer Gibson, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gibson, lost 20 hours in the game preserve of the Wichita mountains around Elk mountain, was found at 6:20 o'clock Sunday morning unharmed.

Jim Turner, Burkburnett night policeman and Jingle Hayes were first to sight the youngster as he walked along the mountainside road near a tree where he had crawled up to spend the night. According to reports the searching party was lost at the time they encountered the Gibson boy. The report further stated the boy had o direct the searching party back to camp.

More than 2,000 persons, including military air and ground forces from Fort Sill, Okla., CCC youths and a large number of Burkburnett and nearby residents, had searched for the boy since he wandered away from a spot where several companions left him to rest while they continued to the top of the mountain on a hike Saturday morning.

The youngster had made his way through a tangle of cliffs and streams through an area infested with rattlesnakes before he went to sleep in the tree. A herd of buffalo grazing nearby awoke him and he climbed down and reached the road, plodding along until he was met by the searchers.

EDITORIAL

Political races are getting as "hot" as the summer temperature. This year's crop of local candidates is one of the most active, sincere and determined groups ever to toss their collective hats into the political arena. In view of the wide field of contestants in the major races for county and district offices, there is no possibility of naming favorites for any of the disputed offices.

HOWEVER, there are a number of office incumbents who have escaped opposition in the present race. Those in the truly important offices have maintained records and duties in such manner as to make their supporting public extend 100 per cent cooperation, thus killing any political bugs which may have lit in the bonnets of those who may have had ideas concerning those offices. Those officials, though unopposed, are waging active political campaigns. They recognize and appreciate the support of the voters and THEY THINK ENOUGH OF THEIR OFFICE TO SHOW THE PUBLIC THEY WILL APPRECIATE CONTINUED SUPPORT.

HOWEVER, there are an indifferent few—placed in offices because the offices could make no great difference in general operation of government—who are unopposed in the present campaign and DO NOT THINK ENOUGH OF THEIR OFFICES TO SHOW THE PUBLIC THEY WILL APPRECIATE CONTINUED SUPPORT. They have gained the impression that since no one else thinks enough of their jobs to run for same that their jobs are pensions and they can get back and watch the political pot boil in but faintly disguised glee. It might be a good tip at the present time to those few who are showing indifference to state that their lack of appreciation may be remembered in ballot contests in the future.

Getting back to the races in which the public is truly interested—may the men who get the most votes win.

Trio Captured After Taking Man's Car

Three men who held up Nile Benson and a companion at the outskirts of Randlett, Okla., at 1:30 this morning, took his car and left him bound to a tree on the north bank of the Red River, were captured in the woods about 15 miles southwest of Duncan this afternoon by a posse hunting for three highwaymen suspected of a series of southern Oklahoma bank robberies, according to Associated Press reports.

It was stated that one of the suspects, identified as Oscar Brown, 30, Ninnekah, Okla., was wounded and would probably live only a short time.

Both other suspects were wounded and were booked as Claude "Bud" Chambers. 34, Chickasha, peppered with buckshot in the face and body, and Haskell Loudermilk, 32, also of Chickasha, shot in the head.

The men were trailed for more than four hours through dense woods and were finally flushed into the open by the posse of about 125 officers from Wichita Falls, Jefferson, Cotton, Comanche, Grady, and Stephens counties, Okla., and state highway patrolmen.

Sheriff George Beach of Cotton county put the trio afoot when he shot the rear tires off their automobile.

Foster Dairy Industry

Burkburnett business firms, dependent on rural and oil people for their main source of income, should not be satisfied with what is derived from wheat and cotton and oil. They should foster, and work to the end that a dairy industry can be enlarged in this community. By so doing they will be assured of a sales volume satisfactory throughout the year, rather than a brief period in the Spring and during the Fall months.

Did you know this community could become one of the largest dairy centers i nthe country if work was directed to that end?

Did you know that if this community and nearby communities enlarged the industry, sufficient cream could be produced to supply a cheese plant in Burkburnett?

These are not far-fetched ideas. They are sound because they have been proven elsewhere, and in communities no larger than here.

Burkburnett business men, therefore, could well expend a part of their work, supported by the rural people, to place Burkburnett as one of the best dairy points in the country, relieving, thereby, to a great extent, the shortage of financial income during the period of time between marketing wheat and cotton.

This character of work is cut out for a Chamber of Commerce, and an organization of this kind should not hold back for fear some individuals "cuss" the chamber of commerce. It would be one way of dispelling such an erroneous belief held by these individuals.

Drunk Drivers Still Taking Heavy Toll

Twenty-two per cent of the automobile fatalities in the last reporting month in Texas were the result of driving by persons under the influence of intoxicating liquor. These are the statistics furnished by State agencies, and they tell a terrible story.

There is a law in Texas making it a felony to drive an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Why isn't this law deterring such driving?

The answer may be that in many cities, when arrests are made by police officers, the driver is charged in the city court with reckless driving, instead of being transferred to the county and tried in the District court for the real offense he committed—drving drunk.

There needs to be a tightening of enforcement of this law. The time is here when there can be no more temporizing with the matter. The drunken driver is a distinct and a positive menace to the safety of every person. It is the one offense for which there is absolutely no justification.

Our police and other officers must be told by citizens that drunken drivers should be charged in the District Courts with exactly that offense. Then if a jury decides a penitentiary sentence is the solution it can invoke such sentence. Trying such irresponsible people in the corporation courts and releasing them for a nominal fine will not solve the question.

Put them in the county jail for a term, or in the penitentiary and revoke their driver's license. In that manner we will be able to reduce this terrific toll being exacted by the irresponsible agents of John Barleycorn on our streets and highways.

Texas oil workers and Texas farmers and landowners receive over $403,000,000 a year from the Texas oil industry. This is nearly three-fourths of its total operating expenditures of $550,000,000.

Burkburnett .... History

As revealed by the files of The Star 10 years ago.

The most disasterous hail, wind and rain storm in years hit the settlers of the "Big Pasture" across the river from Burkburnett in southern Oklahoma, late Thursday afternoon, ruining crops as it went, covering a territory estimated at six miles wide and eight miles long, approximately 30,000 acres.

According to a radio report from the ringside of the world's championship contest between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling Thursday night, Schmeling is the champion boxer of the world.

Five firemen from the Burkburnett Fire Department with 1200 feet of hose played a big part in stopping a fire at Grandfield, Okla., Friday.

Miss Virgie West became the bride of N. P. (Coach) Craig at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Lewallen Sunday, June 8th.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lambert, Fred Boden, Neal Hall, A. L. Paschal and Miss Mildred Van Loh made a trip to Dallas Thursday by airplane. They drove new Fords back to Burkburnett.

I Give You Texas

By Boyce House

Abraham Lincoln said that when he was a boy, nobody liked ginger bread better than he did, or got less of it.

Nobody bestows more publicity than newspapermen, or get less of it themselves. So—what-a-yuh say! —being's as how the State Press convention over at Mineral Wells is on my mind, let's devote this go-round to the members of the Fourth Estate. Here goes:

Stanley Babb, courthouse reporter for the historic Galveston News, is press-agent for a pirate. Well, maybe not exactly, but he has written poems about old Jean LaFitte, and good ones, too.

Speaking of writing, W. B. Ruggles, before he became the profound head editorial writer for the Dallas News, used to be sports editor and, in those days, he wrote Grantland Rice-esque poems.

And Asa Patrick, city editor of the Weatherford Herald, used to write notable fiction—in fact, one of his short stories appeared in the same issue of a magazine with a story by O. Henry.

A few years ago this observer was handling publicity work in a state race and visited Lufkin where C. S. Boyles, Jr., editor of the News, reversed the usual procedure—he bought my lunch! And that is an even bigger piece of news than a man biting a dog.

Of course the oldest newspaper joke is the one about the cub reporter who was assigned to write up a big society wedding at a city church. He came back to the office and the city editor said, "Well, write the story." Dejectedly, the young news-gatherer said, "There ain't no story—the bridegroom didn't show up."

Dodging the brick-bats and ancient eggs for telling that one, let us continue on our stroll down Newspaper Row:

Word gradually getting around that newspapermen will make capable public officials—J. W. Clements is Stephenville's mayor and Wendell Mayes is mayor of Brownwood; other towns, "please copy." Of course, several presidents of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce were newspapermen: H. S. Hilburn, Plainview; Houston Harte, San Angelo; R. H. Nichols, Vernon, and the late Wilbur Hawk, Amarillo. And—probably a little late to be news—N. H. Pierce, Menard publisher, was strongly urged to run for Congress.

"Lo, the Poor Editor" from the pen of some unknown writer:

Consider the editor! A child is born unto the wife of a merchant in the town. The physician getteth 10 plunks. The editor writeth a stick and a half and telleth the multiutde that the child tippeth the beam at nine pounds. Yea, he lieth even as a centurion. And the proud father giveth him a five cent cigar.

Behold, the young one groweth up and graduateth. And the editor putteth into his paper a swell notice. Yes a peach of a notice. He telleth of the wisdom of the young woman and of her exceeding comeliness. Like unto the roses of Sharon is she and her gown is played up to beat the band. And the dressmaker getteth two score and four iron men. And the editor gets a note of thanks from the sweet girl graduate.

And the daughter goeth on a journey. And the editor throweth himself a story of the farewell party. It runneth a column solid. And the fair one remembereth him afar with a picture postal card that costeth six for a jitney.

Behold, she returneth, and the youth of the town fall down and worship. She picketh one and lo, she picketh a lemon. But the editor calleth him one of our promising young men and getteth away with it. And they send unto the editor a bid to the wedding, and behold the bids were printed in a far city.

Flowery and long is the wedding notice which the editor publisheth. The minister getteth 10 bones. The groom standeth the editor off for a 12-month subscription.

All flesh is grass and in time the wife is gathered unto the soil. The minister getteth his bit. The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry and a card of thanks. And he forgetteth to read proof on the head and the darned thing cometh out, "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place."

And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great jumps. And they pulleth out their ads and canceleth their subscriptions, and they swing the hammer even unto the third and fourth generations.

Can'st thou beat it?

He Remembers A Girl In An Orchard

By Martha Banning Thomas

(Reprinted from Good Housekeeping Magazine)

How could a heart forget
Her lovely, rounded throat?
The hollow at the base
Was deep enough to float
And apple seed, perhaps,
If tears were nicely shed
To brim that shadowed cup
Beneath her tilted head.
She stood behind a gate,
And leaves fell on her hair;
And though he said no word,
He'll always see her there.

South America Offers Many Business Openings

TWO ambitious Americans, a land of fabulous opportunity is beckoning. In the twenty republics to the south of us lie untold riches which have never been fully tapped. And now more than ever, South America offers to the United States a rich field for investment; it is a land crying out for the industrial development we can bring it.

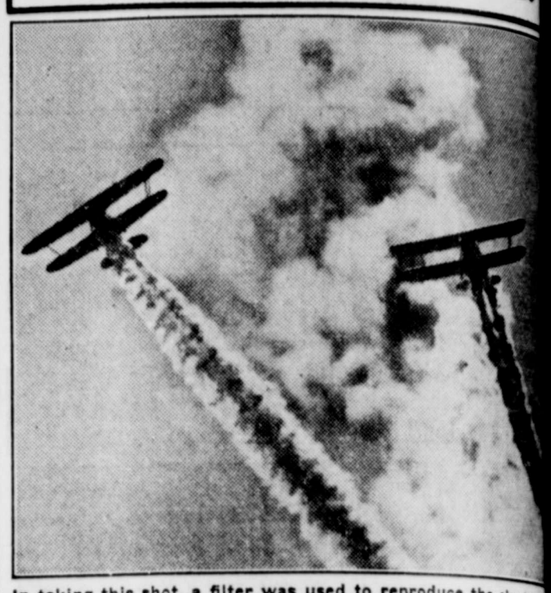

Writing in the July issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine, Desmond Holdridge points out that with German goods cut off by a blockade, and English interests centered on her war effort, the Latin-American countries, for the most practical of reasons, are looking to us as the sole market for exchanging raw materials for manufactured products. What, then, could be more timely than a financial invasion of this economically unexplored continent?

Though primarily agricultural, 90 per cent of South America's entire population is centered within a hundred miles of salt water, leaving the vast interior almost completely undeveloped. Such a condition could be relieved by American initiative, and the introduction of roads, planes, and communication would bring about commercial demands to be satisfied profitably by American investment.

Since the field has been cleared of our principal rivals and competitors, we have an almost completely free hand, Mr. Holdridge concludes; and if we move quickly, there is little doubt of a new day dawning for Pan-American business relations.

The SNAPSHOT GUIL

FILTERS FOR BETTER PICTURES

In taking this shot, a filter was used to reproduce the sky tone the white smoke would stand out. Try filters—they'll improve y tures, and add interest.

COLOR filters—simple little devices that slip on over your camera lens—can add a lot to the quality and value of your snapshots. If you've never used filters, now is a good time to start. All the experts use them, and they'll mark a big forward step in your own personal photography.

Slip a medium yellow K-2 filter on your lens, load the camera with any good "chrome" or "pan" film, and you get pictures with more natural tone values. Or, in technical phrase, more accurate rendering of relative brightnesses as seen by the eye. Which, briefly, means that your picture of any outdoor subject will come closer to showing things as you saw them when you snapped the shutter.

Slip a deep yellow G filter on your lens, and you'll get clearer, better pictures of distant scenes that would look hazy in an "unfiltered" shot. You'll also get skies that look deeper than normal in tone—very effective in some pictorial shots.

For spectacular effects, very dark skies, and exaggerated contrast, load the camera with "pan" film or infra-red film, and red "A" filter on the lens. D the red filter with other film than panchromatic red; it's for these only.

From the effects describ can see that filters open interesting new range of possibilities. The K-2 is all-round filter, so start w adding the G and A when ready to branch out into "effect" shots.

Every filter, of course, part of the light to which sensitive, so exposure mu creased accordingly. Each "exposure factor" is conv each film, and exposure adj is not hard to calculate; easiest method is to use a filter guide of the dial type cost but a few cents, and indicate the exact lens needed in a particular sit

If you would improve yo tography—make use of filt results will surprise you—b you'll probably want to "Why didn't somebody t about this before?"

...of a "Forum of Youth and Industry" held recently by General Motors to discuss questions on the ...Opportunity for Youth in Building the World of Tomorrow," as submitted by more than 300 college ...from various sections of the country. Seated (left to right) are members of the board: President Ernest ...ins of Dartmouth College, General Hugh S. Johnson, President Karl T. Compton of Massachusetts In... Technology, and Charles F. Kettering, Vice-President of General Motors in charge of research. Stand... the board are the dinner hosts, William S. Knudsen, President, and Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Chairman ...eneral Motors. In the inset is Clifton A. Fadiman, who served as the forum's master of ceremonies.

Recognizing that youth today faces serious problems of adjustment just as society does as a whole, these leaders nevertheless expressed the conviction that new inventions and new products, fanning out on an ever broadening industrial front, would open up frontiers far more limitless than those Horace Greeley had in mind when he said, "Go west, young man."

In his talk to the college students, Mr. Knudsen said that while he couldn't tell them specifically where to get a job, he could tell them that industry has room for them.

The program represented the first attempt by any large business group to sponsor a comprehensive consideration of the much-discussed youth problem.

An apt keynote of the dinner program was offered by Mr. Knudsen when he said to the youth present: "To me, you are the new models coming along. The rest of us are in the used car class."

Young John Ringling Self-Made Circus King

IN the gilded age that produced such characters as "Diamond Jim" Brady, John Ringling, the circus king, was not out of place. The fact that he actually outdid the former in his manner of living is not a well known fact, but his fortune of between 50 and 100 million dollars, and his fleet of cars numbering in the leanest of years, three Pierce-Arrows and two Rolls-Royces, are ample proof that this is true.

Richard Fuchs, once the personal secretary of the amazing circus impressario, tells the fascinating story of Ringling's life in one of a series of articles beginning in the July issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine. In 1919, when Mr. Fuchs first started to work for him, Ringling was already assembling an intricate and sprawling empire. In the West he had become an oil and railroad operator; in Florida a real estate plunger; and in New York a sports promoter. As a circus showman he was beginning to dwarf even Barnum.

At the tender age of 4, Fuchs says, an itinerant clown fixed Ringling's purpose in life, and started him on the career which made him monarch of circusdom. Though the youngest of four boys, he outsmarted them all from the very start. He was the one who engineered the deal combining Ringling Brothers with the Barnum and Bailey show, and signed up all the top European stars. Furious, Brother Otto once demanded of their publicity head when he discovered his orders disobeyed, "Do you know who's boss around here?" "Sure," was the quick reply, "Mr. John."

Gallico Takes Up Residence on Coast

PAUL GALLICO, famous writer and sports authority, has found a home.

With his wife, Gallico has decided to make his home in San Francisco and there he will continue his writings with only an occasional trip to New York for interviews with his publishers and visits with his friends.

Paul Gallico

Gallico has finished his latest serial, "The Strange War of Hiram Holliday," for Cosmopolitan Magazine and is working on others. He also plans a trip to Mexico where he has a house.

tracts are kept by your Clerk, as well as the records of the County Board of Equalization. Of course everyone knows that the Clerk issues all of the marriage licenses, but the greatest and most important of all of the duties is to keep a record of all property transactions which include deeds, leases, assignments deeds of trust, mechanic's and materialmen's liens, bills of sale, affidavits, homestead exemptions, judgments, landlord liens, power of attorney, trust agreements, plats of all subdivisions with their dedications and restrictions, discharge of soldiers and sailors, registrations of optometrists, and nurses; to compute, affix and cancel the state note tax on all instruments requiring the tax, to keep a trust fund for the settlement of Court cases, and for fees paid in advance for costs; also to keep an accurate account of all fees and make proper return to the County Treasurer and other officers and persons entitled to receive their fees and settlements.

In a recent audit by a Certified Public Accountant, your County Clerk's Records were checked for every detail and the report of the Auditor shows all accounts to have been properly balanced and accounted for.

Your Clerk was also complimented by the Auditor in keeping so many records in such a degree of accuracy.

Now, friends, I have been your county Clerk long enough to know how to handle the affairs of this important office and I hope that I have proven to you by my past service that I am sincerely interested in performing my duty conscientiously. Of course, the salary that is paid is interesting, but back of that, my primary interest is to serve well and earn this salary, not just receive it. The salary will be the same to any one serving as County Clerk unless changed by the legislature.

I shall earnestly endeavor to render the greatest service possible and effect every economy consistent with good business, and good business principles are just as desirable in politics as they are in business, and if I have proven my self worthy of your confidence and support, I will greatly appreciate your vote and influence to reelect me to this office.

New Flour Is Welcomed By Housewives

General Mills, Inc., largest flour producers in the United States, are rapidly completing distributions on the new improved all purpose flour to be sold under the trade name of "Purasnow."

"We wanted to offer home makers a modern, improved flour that was made to or der for their baking needs," an official of the organization said, "so we gave this flour the benefit of 50 years milling experience. The result, in our opinion, is the best flour that could be produced for that purpose."

The improved all purpose flour has been on the market less than three years, yet sales figures show that already it has won wide recognition from home makers.

Probably one of the most spectacular features about this improved all-purpose flour is that each sack is guaranteed to give satisfaction or the purchaser receives double-his-money-back. In other words, the Purasnow mills will pay double the cost of a sack of their flour to anyone who is not completely satisfied with its baking results. Such a guarantee certainly indicates the confidence the millers have in the quality of their flour. This "double-your-money-back" guarantee appears on every sack of Purasnow.

Aid To Game Fish

Fishing for gar not only give sportsmen much fun, but will directly improve fishing conditions in Texas waters because it will take much of the pressure off of game fish such as bass, the director of Inland fisheries reports.

"Most fishermen in the past have thought they could have no fun at all on a fishing trip unless they caught a bass, a crappie, or some other game fish," he said. "The result has been a heavy drain on the game fish supply, while gars multiplied unmolested. Today the picture is changing. Hundreds of fishermen are absolutely deserting bass fishing in favor of gar fishing, because they have found out they can have worlds of fun at it.

"This will ease the strain on the game fish species and we will have in time a more balanced condition among fishes in our waters."

Train Crew Helps Deer

There is one deer doe still alive in Llano county today due to the thoughtfulness of a train conductor, H. M. Hamilton, it is reported to the state game department. Mr. Hamilton stopped the Southern Pacific train running from Austin to Llano recently when a deer was seen entangled in a fence along the right-of-way of the railroad. The crew liberated the doe, which was not badly injured.

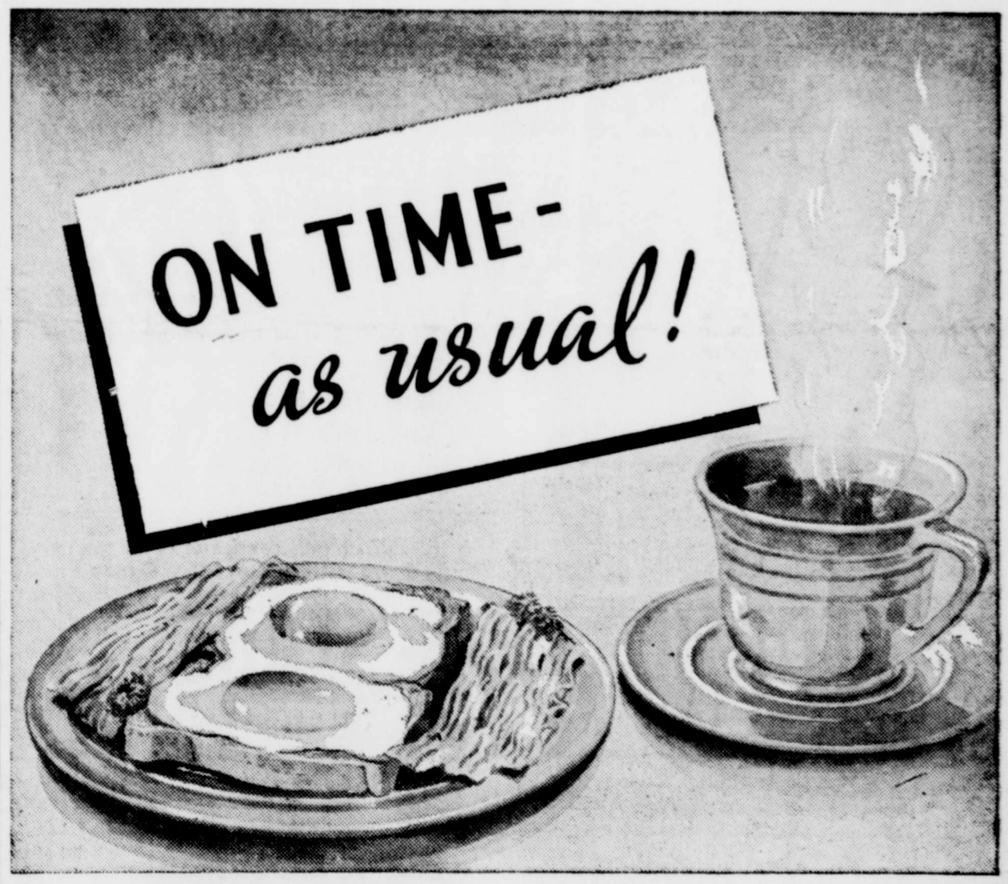

Train crews apparently often assist wildlife. Last year it was reported in Texas a freight crew forced tramps to sweep out grain cars at a spot where turkey congregate. Up in Montana a general order has gone out to all train crews to refrain from tramping around in the grass where a mallard hen had courage enough to build her nest within ten feet of the Great Northern tracks. Enginemen are ordered not to blow down boilers or open overflows in the vicinity of the nest.

To Streamline Bulgy Hips

EXERCISING to take off weight can be a dangerous practice unless the proper kind of exercising is followed to break down tissue at specific spots. Ann Delafield, well-known beauty expert, reveals in the July Cosmopolitan a helpful exercise to remove extra avoirdupois from heavy thighs and hips.

Lie flat on the back, arms outstretched at shoulder level, palms turned up. Bend knees, bringing heels near buttocks. Keeping knees together and relaxing waistline, drop legs to floor to right. Return to position, dropping legs to floor to left. Alternating sides, repeat exercise fifty times, spanking thighs on floor as hard as possible.

Bluebonnet Garden Club Closes Season With Luncheon Wednesday

A lovely luncheon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Fred Brookman closed the season for the Bluebonnet Garden Club and was also the last official meeting of that organization, since members have joined with the members of the Burkburnett Garden Club to form a new club.

Luncheon was served buffet style from the lace covered and beautifully appointed dining table. Centerpieces of flowers were placed on the small tables which were covered with white linen.

The house was decorated with a profusion of summer flowers which were brought by members. This custom of members' bringing bouquets has been observed throughout the year and Mrs. H. C. Gilbert, president of the club, presented gifts to Mrs. H. R. Hayes and Mrs. N. R. Allen who tied for first place in bringing flowers.

Mrs. Gilbert also read a paper prepared by Mrs. F. H. Harwell on 'Successive Summer Blooming.' Mrs. Brookman read a paper on the subject, 'Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Drouth?'

The club voted to have a lawn party in honor of their husbands Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Grace.

An Open Hearth is Easy to Make

An outdoor fireplace that will require a minimum of labor and expense. The cost will be a few bags of concrete, sand, some lengths of iron pipe for the grill, a couple of sections of flue lining and some husky help. In building the grill set the bars about 2" into the flanking walls. Foundations are not necessary in all parts of the country but should extend below winter frost level.

THE above design appears in the June House Beautiful. In connection with outdoor fireplaces and "outdoor rumpus rooms," the annual House Beautiful competition held for architects of the Beaux Arts Institute of Design was centered around those subjects. First prize winner was M. Grunenfelder of Notre Dame University; second prize went to Charles W. Sanders University of Illinois.

Candid Cameramen Are Also Surgeons

THAT there are tricks in every trade is a platitude which suffers badly from repetition, but nowhere is it so sublimely true as in the life of society's candid cameramen.

Czar of them all, Jerome Zerbe, lets fly a few off-the-record tales, and bares some hitherto unknown facts about his curious profession, in the July issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine. Experience has proven to him, he says, that charity, contrary to the old adage, begins in the dark room. Man can stand up to his own image in the mirror, but not in the rotogravure. That is why every woman wants to look like Brenda Frazier (pictured above wearing the famous Jonker diamond), and every man like Clark Gable, when the Sunday supplements appear.

Therefore, a little kindly retouching is a sacred obligation of a society photographer, and it entails the work of at least ten plastic surgeons. Dowdy frames are streamlined, high-riding bay windows removed, double chins erased, eye lashes supplied—all in a day's work.

Zerbe's days and nights with people of wealth and social consequence bring out sharply the fact that today is an Audubon age in which every man fancies the birdie—as long as it is attached to a camera.

Do You Know Texas?

A reader of this newspaper can get the answer to any question of fact by writing to A. Garland Adair, Curator of Patriotic Exhibits, Texas Memorial Museum, Austin, Texas.

Q. Where and when will the 1940 state convention of Texas Marshals and Policemen be held?

A. In Austin, June 17-20.

Q. What is the American Mastodon?

A. The American Mastodon was a close relative of the modern elephant. It was present in America until relatively late geologic time, and ranged over most of North America. Its fossilized remains have been found in several places in Texas and are exhibited in the Texas Memorial Museum, Austin, Texas.

Q. Who was the first settler on purchased school land west of the Pecos River?

A. This is indefinite, but is reported to Land Commissioner Bascom Giles that his friend Tom Riggs of Fort Stockton claims the distinction. Mr. Riggs is reported as saying that when he settled in the Barrilla Mountains the full moon was no larger than a lemon and there were no stars at all. (Commissioner Giles states he would like to hear from any other claimants.)

MEMORABLE Passage: "Let us remind ourselves that the horrors of war that threaten the world today are brought upon the nations that have turned away from God."—Ben H. Powell, Past President Texas Bar Association.

Q. What is the largest land grant in Texas?

EDITORIAL: "Notwithstanding the present interest in Latin-American culture, we shall never lose sight of the fact that the University of Texas is after all a state institution. Whatever we acquire on other countries and on other states, Texas must always come first and its own history and its own culture cannot be neglected without peril to those who are actively or passively responsible for that neglect." —Walter Prescott Webb.

Q. How did Honey Grove get its name?

A. Harry L. Thompson, editor of The Honey Grove Signal-Citizen, answers this question as follows: "It has been handed down from mouth to ear for generations that Davy Crockett and his men were on their way to the Alamo and camped in a grove where they found an abundance of honey in the grass—thus the name Honey Grove. It has also been handed down that the name "Davy Crockett" was carved on the trees. The citizenry of this town are very proud of the name given and more modern generations have given it a subtitle, 'The Sweetest Town in Texas.'"

"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 16.

The Golden text is: "The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower" (Psalms 18:2.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O Lord: let thy loving kindness and thy truth continually preserve me . . . Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: let such as love thy salvation say continually, The Lord be magnified" (Psalms 40:11, 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "'Work out your own salvation,' is the demand of Life and Love, for to this end God worketh with you." (page 22).

THE VOICE OF TEXAS

By Pierce Brooks

All over Texas for weeks young ladies dressed in white uniforms of the American Red Cross have been soliciting funds. These funds are being applied to the humane work of this great organization overseas. If you haven't already done so, assist this movement in a financial way to the limit of your ability.

It is true we have many unsolved problems of want and misery at home, and that these rightfully have first call upon us. But, facing this condition as a fact, there are enough resources in our great country for us to contribute our mite toward the alleviation of suffering abroad among women and children and dying and disabled soldiers. It is one of the highest calls to service.

Sunday will be "Father's Day" in America. "Mother's Day" was instituted many years ago by a Boston spinster in honor of her own mother. It caught on rapidly and now is observed not only in the United States but in many foreign countries.

But the day set aside for Dad hasn't somehow caught on so readily. One reason is that Dad perhaps wants no fuss made over him. After all his chief calling in life is to bring home the bacon. The kids are under mother's care most of their time and Dad becomes with them just a secondary matter, oftentimes just a nuisance who comes home tired and must be tolerated. Another reason is that Dad gladly foots the bills for Mother's Day, but he is likely to balk when confronted with the bills for Father's Day.

I recently visited South Texas and was impressed anew with the versatility of Texas as to climate and products. In the Yoakum country the tomatoes are being harvested. In South Texas the cotton is about ready to pick.

Just before my visit to Yoakum I was in the Lubbock country. That is a great cotton producing area, but the crop in South Texas will already have been harvested before picking even starts in the Lubbock area.

IT WAS NOT INHERITED

MRS. D. W. HINDS

Joyce Catharine is a young lady of fifteen. Whether she is at a picnic lunch on a beautiful river bank, or taking a trip to the fascinating desert, or merely working contentedly at home, she finds and delights is the beauty of nature. Healthy in mind and body, she unerringly finds the true and lasting joys of life. She is—well, lovely.

Cathy, as she is called by her friends, hasn't the slightest idea why she loves nature. She told her chum, "I don't know why I want to work so much in the garden. I just love it; it was inherited I suppose."

Her remark recalls pleasant memories of my first visit to Mrs. Shattuck, when Cathy was a 3-year-old. We were walking in the garden, and Cathy, who was in her mother's arms much of the time on such occasions, squirmed to be put down and reached pleadingly toward the flowers. Her mother placed her in reach of her prize beauties. To my surprise, the child buried her face in them.

"How did she learn not to pull them?" I asked.

Mrs. Shattuck watched the child fondly. "Oh, that wasn't difficult; children love living things. After we had enjoyed the pansies, one morning, we pulled one and left it where the sun's rays would strike it. Later, we returned to the spot, and I called her attention to the fact that the flower was now withered and had lost its sweetness and I impressed her with its uselessness by throwing it regretfully away. It was necessary to repeat the lesson but twice. She loves to touch the blossoms but is careful."

Although the child's instinct is to handle all that it sees, it has no inherent destructive tendencies. The mutilation which often occurs is due chiefly to lack of muscular coordination. The child merely intends to experiment; he wishes to see if the flower is tangible and how it feels, and wants to know what is inside of it. When he is satisfied regarding these points, he is no longer likely to harm it, unless the parent has caused him to develop a tendency to some unfortunate emotional reaction at the sight of it.

Mrs. Shattuck was helping her child to build up only pleasureable reactions. She carried her from flower to flower encouraging her to breathe deeply of their fragrance and repeating the name of each, distinctly. When Cathy was five she had "my own little garden," and knew the names of all flowers and plants not only in that, but in her mother's garden, too.

"I want my child to love nature," Mrs. Shattuck had said. "Why should I wait until she reaches the age of reason before teaching her, since successful advertisers appeal almost solely to the senses and emotions in order to secure attention of the adult? Surely children can be taught in the same way. Advertisers attract our attention by portraying action; force us to remember by employing repetition; by use of illustration, make us see, smell and taste the edibles advertised. In my teaching I am being a good advertiser: swaying branches and leaves attract Cathy's attention; beautifully arranged color scheme and pleasant odors create desire. I close the sale by creating confidence—my actions convince her that this beauty is worth while, and she accepts it."

We find Cathy at the age of 15 believing that her love for outdoor life is inherited, because it has grown upon her so naturally, really as a result of wise and careful guidance.

TEXAS OUT-O'-DOORS

Minnow Shortage Forecast

A shortage of minnows on some of the big lakes in North Central Texas has put a lot of people to thinking about something the executive secretary of the Texas game department has long been advocating—that being the controlling of the taking of minnows from the lakes and streams of Texas.

So acute is the shortage reported to be in North Central Texas that the prediction is being made that minnows will costs two cents each before the middle of the summer.

With seiners being allowed to take minnows from the lakes and streams of Texas and allowed to transport them out of the state, as they are under the present state-wide law, there is bound to be a shortage. Not only does that make it expensive for Texans to purchase minnows, but seining of minnows takes from the waters of Texas a badly-needed food supply for those bass and crappie you so heartily desire to catch, the executive secretary of the game department points out.

Other states have found it necessary to clamp restrictions on the seining of minnows and the answer to the problem in those states has been the operating of minnow hatcheries. Those hatcheries are producing excellent minnows, mostly steelbacks, which are the best for most types of fishing, and producing them as cheaply as they can be seined and sold to sportsmen.

8 POWERFUL ARGUMENTS FOR CHOOSING A FORD!

Built in Texas by Texas Workers

A few minutes in this year's Ford will open your eyes to a lot of good things! To roominess and a big-car ride that's a real discovery in low-priced money's worth. To economy that's really amazing. To hydraulic brakes that are the biggest ever used on a low-price car. To easy finger-tip gear shifting of the sort the fine cars use. To roadability and handling ease that make driving lots of fun.

But you'll find the mightiest arguments of all in the 8 fine cylinders under the hood. As 6 million Ford V-8 owners now know, only a Ford adds V-8 performance to low cost and thrift.

Drive a Ford V-8. Before you pick out your new car, let the world's most famous "8" tell you its own matchless story . . . on the road!

Your Ford Dealer wants your deal . . . See him today!

BEST GAS MILEAGE, TOO!

The 85 h.p. Ford V-8 gave most miles per gallon of all standard-equipped cars in its price class in the 1940 running of the famous official and impartial Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Run: Also . . . Ford owners are reporting that the efficient, precision-built Ford engine requires no oil added between regular changes!

In regard to our navy, General Johnson quotes Admiral H. R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, as saying, ". . . Our relative naval position is constantly becoming weaker." What of air bases in Puerto Rico, in the far Pacific, and in Alaska, our back door? They are all badly protected, General Johnson declares.

"Much of what has happened has been due to our excusable failure to keep abreast of the speed of fatal foreign developments," he says, and we are now more aware that a great deal has to be done, and done quickly for our defense. This defense cannot be accomplished, he contends, by helping England and France defeat Hitler, or by checking Japan in the Far East. Europe's double-crossing diplomacy has proved that only immediate self-interest in the Americas is important.

Our present policy of dabbling in the war, concludes General Johnson, cannot insure our own peace and safety. Daily occurrences abroad prove this inactivity to be scandalous and disgraceful.

... HAWKEYE'S NEWS ...

From Liberty Hill Community

This part of the county was visited again Saturday night with a very hard rain which lasted twenty minutes and was fine on gardens and young cotton.

Gordon Bone and his hired man came down to his farm where Hawkeye lives to see when his fine 140 acres of wheat will be ready to combine and so he will start it on Tuesday or Wednesday.

Hawkeye started shocking wheat for Mr. Lee Vogeleins Saturday. Brother Lee has got some fine wheat and oats. He has some wheat that will make 25 bushels to the acre and oats that will make 50 bushels and more and Brother Lee is doing the best job of cutting and tying that Hawkeye has seen in many moons.

Mrs. John Moose departed from her beautiful park home on Cache creek last Wednesday for Ardmore, Okla., to visit her sisters, Mrs. May Zellander and Mrs. Beulah Morthentine at Robey. Mrs. Moose arrived back home Saturday afternoon. She told Hawkeye that a few weeks past they had a terrible hail in that part of the country where she visted and that all crops were damaged. Her nephew, a Mr. Grit Blair, accompanied her home and will visit in the comunity for ten days or so.

Well, the time has come when any way you look you see combines and binders cutting and binding grain. There isn't much wheat and oats being sold on the local markets; just eough to pay the expenses of harvesting.

Mr. James Floyd, brother-in-law of L. B. Keeter, started in the middle of the past week with his tractor, hay baler and rake with a bunch of men to bale L. B.'s fine field of sudan grass. In a day's time he had 400 bales of sudan grass ready to haul and put in his barn loft.

Mrs. Ed Owens and her little daughter, Winnie June, and her brother-in-law, Johnny, motored up to Temple Saturday by horse power.

For some unknown reason very few of the candidates is coming out amongst the farmers to kiss the farmers' wives' babies in order to get women's votes. The time is drawing near and they will have to get busy.

Well, finally Hawkeye feels mighty fine this Sabbath day as he is mighty proud to know that his good Lord has been so good to him to let him live to see and celebrate another birthday and to keep him in good health so he could eat another fine birthday dinner which my wife prepares for me every birthday. Mrs. Martha Nails and Tobe Hardin and Mrs. Nail's son, Charlie, came over from Byers, Texas. Mrs. Nails assisted Hawkeye's better half in preparing Hawkeye's birthday dinner and as they are both fine cooks, say brother, talk about a dinner! It was swell. A large cake was set by Hawkeye's plate and decorated with little candles. There was three kinds of meat: catfish, fried chicken, and roast pork; pies, three different kinds of fruit and ice cream. Several others were here to attend and to help Hawkeye eat his birthday dinner.

There were also many kinds of fresh vegetables as the Owens family has the finest garden they have ever raised. After this grand dinner was served the afternoon was devoted to playing different games. Hawkeye surely did enjoy his birthday dinner with his friends who departed late in the afternoon wishing him many happy returns of the day.

Mrs. Lee Vogelien's brother from Chicago, Ill., arrived a few days ago to visit his sister and brother-in-law. He will go from here to California before returning to Chicago.

No Politician

"He would not kiss the babies as he went along his way;
He believed that public business should no more than others pay.
He insisted on economy in fact,
which for any politician,
Was a curious act.
"He said, '"I made a promise to the people of the town
If they voted me in office I would cut the taxes down,
And I mean to keep my pledges'"
So he fired a dozen clerks,
Saying: '"One is all that's needed
if he's honest and he works.'"
"He refused to pose for pictures
just to splash his name;
He was early at his office and upon the job he stayed.
He respected all the people but no favorites he played.
He tried running public business in a private tradesman's way.
"But the things they said about him filled his family with misery.
He was honest; he was truthful;
he was earnest and sincere,
But he was no politician—so he didn't last a year."

Young Couples Given Pre-marital Training

Of all human relationships, none is more enduring or satisfying than marriage. And now more than ever before, young people about to tie the marital knot, want to be fully prepared for this bold new adventure in life.

Writing in the July issue of Cosmopolitan, Ernest R. Groves says that although marriage is a difficult subject to discuss, there are certain essential questions that prospective couples want to know. The girl may ask, "Am I too young to marry?" Or possibly, "How can we manage the long waiting period before my fiance gets a start in business?" On the other hand the boy will query, "What is a good income for marriage?"

These and questions of a moral nature should be hashed out before the marriage takes place, Mr. Groves believes, and today provisions are being made for just this sort of guidance. Courses are now being given in college, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A. and church groups are also furnishing this necessary information so that today's young people will have the greatest chances of achieving success in marriage.

United Gas Pipe Line Company Lays Multiple Submarine Pipe Line In Crossing The Mississippi River

Shreveport, La., June 12—Officials of the United Gas Pipe Line Company announced this week the completion of a multiple submarine pipe line crossing of the Mississippi river. This crossing is a part of a pipe line construction project for this company to make natural gas from the Lirette, Lake Long and other fields in south Louisiana available to the New Orleans area.

Contract for construction of the Mississippi river crossing included the laying of two ¾-inch pipe lines on the bed of the river and the construction of the necessary headers to connect these two lines with the main line. The crossing was made at a point near St. Rose, La., twenty-two miles west of New Orleans. At this point the river has an approximate depth of 100 feet and is some 3000 feet in width.

The company uses the multiple type crossing consisting of not less than two lines as added assurance of an uninterrupted and dependable natural gas service to its city gate and industrial customers. If one line should become damaged and develop a leak the demand can usually be taken care of by the other line until the damage is repaired.

In the actual construction work two barges, two large tugs and a launch were required. Fifty foot sections of seamless pipe were welded together on a work barge. The necessary weights were clamped to the line, locking sleeves installed over the welds and the line fed into the river as the barge progressed across the river. For safety purposes the two lines are laid 400 feet apart.

The river was rising at the time construction was started on the project, but during the course of construction the crest passed and the river started falling. This increased the velocity to such an extent that it was necessary to suspend operations for four days due to the fact the barges could not be held in proper alignment.

Correction

It was reported last week that L. L. Harris, Wiley Browning had been appointed directors of the Lions club. The item should have read "Y. C. Harris and Wiley Browning."

There may be more significance to this than the eye since Mr. Harris is the largest Lion and Browning the smallest.
