

Road District Plans Put Before The Landowners

Open meetings were held at Dozier and Samnorwood Wednesday and Thursday nights, August 11 and 12, to acquaint the people of the Collingsworth County Road District No. 1, composing all of Precinct 4 north of Salt Fork River, with the proposed bond election for improvement of certain roads in the district. Cortez Barnett, Commissioner of Precinct 4, presided.

The Commissioners Court will meet with the State Highway Commission in a hearing August 24 relative to securing 10 miles of surfaced roads. If approval is granted, the $75,000 bond election will be called. This amount will be supplemented by $25,000 in state funds.

The purpose of these two meetings was to get people of the road district to state their opinions, and County Judge R. L. Templeton reported that a majority of those present favored the bond issue. A few have not taken sides.

The increase in taxes in the road district provided the bond issue passes, will not be as large as might be expected, it was brought out, and as an example, Judge Templeton said that a landowner whose farm was valued for taxes at $10,000 would pay about 27 additional taxes.

SECOND ANNIVERSARY IN BUSINESS HERE

L. B. Bratten, owner of the Bratten Jewelry in Wellington this week is observing his second anniversary here. Although he lived away for a number of years, Mr. Bratten was born in Wellington and lived here as a child. He returned after receiving his degree from Southwestern Tech, teaching four years, aircraft work, and service in the Navy.

Memphis Is the Team to Beat

Rockets Open Fall Training With Four Regulars Back on Roster

August heat didn't cut down the enthusiasm August 15, when 30 potential Skyrockets reported to Coach John Bray and assistant Maxey McKnight Monday, August 15 for fall training.

The boys are working out on Powell field this week and will leave Saturday, August 20, for Kerrville, for a week in training camp there.

Coach Bray is conservative on this year's prospects. "Let's wait till we get back from camp. We can tell more about it then."

He is building this year's team around four of last year's first string players, although they are reinforced by eight other lettermen.

Regulars who have reported are Jerry Strickland, Jimmy Brock, Pat Riley and Bobby McCutchen. Other returning lettermen are Terry, Cooper, Tarter, Melton, Ingram, Copeland, Hite and Beam.

Fifteen men, most of whom were members of last year's squad have been out for practice, Joe McCutchen, Ireland Finley, Joe Raburn, Earl Lynn Bartlett, Farrel Kent, Jimmy Graves, Garland Turner, James Agee, Don Baird, Kenneth Covey, Bill Jones, Tommy Beam, Wilbur Earl Smith, John Gibson, Moore, Lindel Norman, and Don Lacy.

Coach Bray rates Memphis and Shamrock as the teams to beat this year for the district championship. McLean should offer some stiff competition, too, he says. Each one of these has two or three players that would be outstanding on any Class A team, and they will be hard to beat. Memphis has been one of the weaker teams of the district for several seasons, but the return of a number of experienced men should change the picture this time, the Rocket Coach believes.

His Rockets have plenty of enthusiasm and fight, and what they may lack in finish and co-ordination he hopes to iron out in football camp at Kerrville.

The Rockets will play their first game September 2, a non-conference contest with Dumas.

Bratten Observes 2nd Anniversary

L. B. Bratten, owner of the Bratten Jewelry, this week is observing his second anniversary in Wellington.

"My family and I have been happy in Wellington, and we are glad we chose this place for our home and our business," Mr. Bratten declared.

Mr. Bratten is a native of Wellington, although he lived away from here a number of years before returning to enter business. The family lives in town, at Buck Creek and Loco before moving to Custer County, Okla., in 1929. He lived there until he married.

He attended Southwestern Tech at Weatherford and received his bachelor of science degree in 1938. He taught four years at Elk City, Okla., then entered instrument work with an aircraft plant.

Mr. Bratten served a year and a half in the Navy, at Great Lakes, San Diego, and Norman. Upon being discharged, he returned to the watch school at Southwestern Tech. Altogether, he has had a year of schooling, four years experience with instrument work, and two years experience here.

Mr. and Mrs. Bratten have two sons, Billy Wayne, age 11, and Stanley Eugene, one and one-half years old.

Mr. Bratten is secretary of the Kiwanis Club, active in the Methodist Church, and a member of the Masonic Lodge, with membership in Oklahoma. Mrs. Bratten is den mother for the Cub Scouts.

Budget Hearing Set Aug. 23

The Commissioners Court met Monday, August 15, to work on the county budget for the year 1950, and before adjourning set Thursday, August 25, as the date for the hearing on the budget.

This is an open meeting, and any person interested in what the county is going to spend its money for in 1950 is invited by the court to attend the hearing, which will be held in the Commissioners Court room.

"The court has already worked out a plan to put a larger share of money on the roads than in the past. Almost the entire amount that will be received from the recent increase in tax valuation will be used on road improvement in 1950," Judge R. L. Templeton said.

And at Sundown Wellington was still colorful with cowboys, cowgirls and cow ponies.

Rodeo performances will be held Wednesday and Thursday nights. The old settlers reunion, a sep-

Rye Plantings Give Two Crops a Year

Peas Grown on Commercial Basis in Quail Area Also Enrich Sandy Soil

Peas as a cash crop as well as a soil builder are being raised by three Quail men, who are confident that they have a program by which they can raise two crops a year, both excellently adapted to their type land.

The three are Fred Bourland, Osa Black and Jim Langley, who together have approximately 1,000 acres of peas this year. Seed from 800 acres is already contracted. That from the remaining acreage will be sold at market price when harvested.

The seed was contracted early in the year to the Black Eye Peas, Inc., of Lubbock. This firm is backed by T. W. Benham of Mineola, one of the largest bean and pea seed dealers in Texas. Peas will be delivered to Lubbock or some designated point by October 30.

Three varieties are being grown by the Quail men, Brown Crowders, West Texas cream and Lady Cream peas.

This is the second year they have grown peas on a commercial basis. Last year the three had around 300 acres, which they sold under individual contracts at 11 cents per pound. The yields ranged from 2550 pounds to 400 pounds per acre.

This year the contract price is just half: five, six and six and one-half cents per pound depending on the variety.

"$10 would be a good profit on the peas considering the land they grow on will produce the next year," Mr. Black remarked recently, and Mr. Bourland and Mr. Langley agree.

In fact, the original purpose in planting the peas was purely for soil building.

"They're a real land builder,"

Mr. Bourland commented. Most of these peas have been planted in rye stubble, and the land will be put back in rye as soon as the peas are off.

"We harvest the peas with a combine then drill the rye in just as soon as there's enough moisture," Mr. Bourland explained. Most years weather conditions are such that both rye and pea crops can be grown.

Like all crops, however, peas are not foolproof. A sand storm in the sandy Quail country can change prospects for a good crop into no prospects at all, overnight. That happens just once in a blue moon, though, the growers say optimistically.

Part of the acreage has been fertilized with 16-20-0, a nitrogen and phosphorus fertilizer with the planting seed. The growers bought this at $90 per ton this year and used around 30 pounds per acre. They feel it is paying them.

Right now, it looks as if they'll have a good yield, particularly on the fertilized acreage. They agree the weeks have improved just as much as the peas have.

"Osa Black the pea man," Mr. Bourland said, giving his neighbor credit for starting the venture. "He's grown them for years and years. All of that land he's bought around Quail he's built up with (Continued on Page Eight)

Sidelights of Wellington's Big Days

Parade Opens Celebration, Rodeo Keeps Up the Pace

The biggest parade Wellington has seen in years marched down its streets and around the square to open this southwestern Panhandle town's four-day rodeo and reunion, which ends Friday.

Almost 200 horses and their riders took the eye of spectators, but just as colorful were modern misses wearing their great grandmothers' dresses. There were horses and buggies: A replica of the wagons in which many of the pioneers made the long drive to Collingsworth. The National Guard rode in its motorized equipment; and in the parade were pioneers who still remember miles of open grassland without a fence. Floats entered by business firms; and dozens of the newest cars and power farming machinery completed the parade lineup.

Leading the parade were representatives of the state highway patrol, followed by Mr. and Mrs. Mish Dukeminier and Sheriff Claude McKinney riding prize winning Palomino horses. Color bearers were Horace Small and Fleet Pruden. The Skyrocket Band set the tempo.

County and city officials rode in decorated cars. Floats represented some of the city's oldest business firms and others just in the process of organization.

The horses coming last formed what is probably the largest aggregation of horseflesh Wellington has seen at one time since its pioneer days.

Many of these were in from Collingsworth County ranches. All day, they had given Wellington western color.

Some of their riders wore pink and blue satin shirts, but more of them were wearing the less colorful but more authentic levis and blue shirts they will wear the next time they brand a calf.

Children had a prominent place in the horseback section. Some of the youngest hadn't graduated from diapers, but they wore miniature 10-gallon hats, and rode contentedly in front of their fathers.

Cowgirl sponsors who will compete in the rodeo events in a group, were led by Miss Mary Ann Richards, Wellington sponsor.

Approximately 50 youngsters formed the bicycle brigade, riding colorfully decorated bikes.

And at Sundown Wellington was still colorful with cowboys, cowgirls and cow ponies.

Rodeo performances will be held Wednesday and Thursday nights. The old settlers reunion, a sep-

Tops in Performance and Appearance

Buick Ready With New "Special Series" Cars

Flint, Mich., — Featured by a bumper and radiator grille design entirely new to the automobile industry, Buick's Special Series was introduced today with complete new styling and many engineering innovations. Long and sleek in appearance, the new Special is three inches shorter in over-all length on a wheelbase virtually the same as its predecessor which went out of production last December.

The new car retains the same solid, substantial appearance of its running mates — the Super and Roadmaster Series — with fundamental characteristics of Buick design presented in brand new dresses Dynaflo, Buick's torque converter transmission, is available as optional equipment.

The new series is presented in two body styles and three models — a six-passenger four-door sedan, a six-passenger two-door sedan, and a three-passenger two-door business coupe with added utility space in addition to ample luggage room in the trunk compartment.

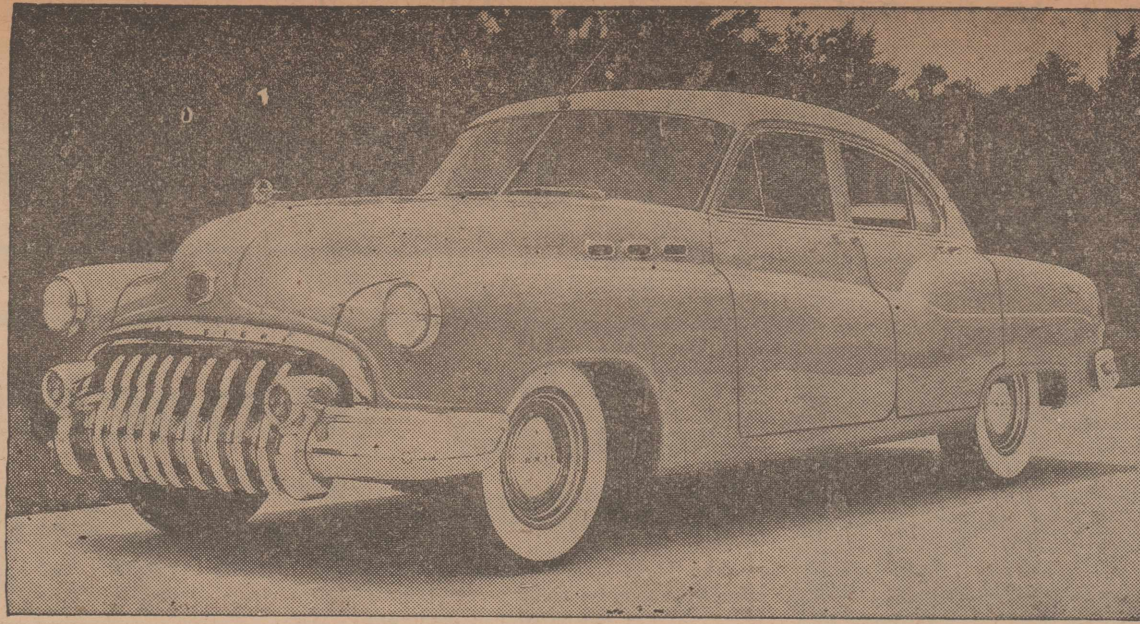

High on the list of engineering achievements is the design of the combined bumper and grille. Developed by Buick and offered on the Special for the first time, this innovation was accomplished by placing the vertical bumper grille bars forward of the single piece bumper. Two bomb-shaped bumper guards, which also house the parking lamps, are mounted on the bumper.

New also are sweeping fender and body contours which individualize the Special from a styling standpoint.

The Buick ventiports, a Buick development of last year which has been widely copied are relocated in the Special and are ovals rather than circles. They are mounted in the hood instead of in the fenders as on the Super and Roadmaster Series.

Although the car is lower than its predecessor, Buick engineers accomplished this without sacrificing ground clearance or head room. Entrance room and Leg room remain the same despite the rear seat being moved still further forward of the rear axle, providing added riding comfort for rear seat passengers. Easier parking and maneuverability are made possible by the reduced over-all length.

Many changes are incorporated in the interior of the body, most important of which is the 12 inches additional width at hip level in the rear seat. Interior appointments have been refined and the beauty

NEW BUICK SPECIAL ON DISPLAY

New styling throughout, many engineering improvements and a complete new grille and bumper design are incorporated in the new Buick Special. With Dynaflo offered as optional equipment, the low-priced Buick is long sleek in appearance but three inches shorter over-all. Shown above is the four door six-passenger sedan.

enhanced by the selection of a grey stripe upholstery cloth which blends with matching colors used on the instrument panel, door trim and other painted panels.

Another important contribution to passenger comfort and safety is the introduction of a new principle in heating, ventilating and de-frosting, with intake of available air being increased 83 per cent. It incorporates a double method of heating outside air which enters through a duct behind the grille, passes through the defroster core, a water heated unit, then enters the car interior at the base of the windshield. An underseat heater warms the air after it has cooled and redistributes it at floor level.

All instruments and gauges have been rearranged and are grouped on the left side of the panel with the speedometer above the steering column directly under the driver's eyes.

Underneath the lower hood is the Fireball valve-in-head straight eight engine which delivers 110 horsepower with conventional synchro mesh gearshift and 120 horsepower with Dynaflo. The former has a compression ratio of 6.3 to 1 while the latter is 6.9 to 1.

The fenders themselves are one piece and blend into the contours of the door and body in a graceful sweep to form a modernized version of the traditional full-tapered fender.

An all new body has been designed for the Special Series with structural strength and rigidity increased by the incorporation of latest improvements in body building. The all-welded steel body by Fisher features the unisteel turret construction, channel type reinforcements, "double walled" sections, and sturdy box section construction of the body frame in every location where such structural sections can be used.

Parade Opens -

Merchants Windows

Several Wellington merchants have entered fully into the spirit of the rodeo and reunion with decorations in their display windows. Famous brands of the Lower Panhandle are painted on the windows of The Hub, and part of the goods on display is of a western nature.

A rail fence, manequins in cowgirl dress — even a little one — and the traditional levis and cowboy shirts decorate the window of The Leader Store.

Wagon wheels are used effectively by F. A. Hatch Dry Goods, and around these are displayed western type clothing.

Pictures of the 1948 rodeo-reunion parade are being shown in the window of the Nowlin Wholesale. These include close-up views of many of the participants. Centering the display is one of Janette Bell, the little rodeo queen.

Other items displayed are a gun used by Mr. Nowlin's grandfather, a Texas Ranger; spurs used in the Spanish American War, a hand-made covered wagon that is a replica of the one in which Mrs. Nowlin's parents came to Oklahoma, and several of photographs belonging to Ben Hurst dating back to 1903.

A display of bronze horses, cows and cowboys are being shown by Pruden Drug, along with the saddle and boots to be given as prizes during the rodeo.

Pioneer Clothes

Two out of state visitors here for the rodeo and reunion, took part in the parade Tuesday wearing dresses and bonnets of their great-grandmother. They are Mrs. Harold Berry of La Junta, Colo., and Mrs. Frank Behmer of Folsom, N. M., who are guests of their great-grandmother, Mrs. Flora Russell, during the celebration.

The dresses and one bonnet belonged to Mrs. Russell's mother, Mrs. Jamima Lavine Drake, who died at Nocona more than 60 years ago. The other bonnet belonged to the mother-in-law of Mrs. Russell, who made it.

The dresses are of calico, and except for the length, are of a design worn by many a Wellington girl during the last few years — tightly fitted waist and full skirt, with fitted sleeves and tiny stand-up collar. But the bonnets were something else again. They, too, are of calico. One, of black, was quilted in an intricate flower design.

"The design came from a design on a quilted boot top. Women chose their designs that way then," Mrs. Russell explained. The other is a split bonnet, with a tail that it almost cape-like in proportions, designed to give ample protection to the wearer.

"Now a split bonnet is the kind I like," Mrs. Russell declared. "They don't scratch your ears or fall down in your face."

Mrs. Russell and her family came to Collingsworth County half a century ago and settled at Aberdeen. Later they lived at Shamrock, then moved to Loco, then to the South Part of Childress County before she returned to Wellington to live. She is the mother of Robert Russell and Mrs. Carson Irwin, who live with her, and Mrs. John Bevers.

Wearers of these heirloom clothes Tuesday had lots of fun, and looked surprisingly like pictures from their grandmothers day. But when asked to pose for their pictures sitting in a buggy, Mrs. Berry and Mrs. Behmer laughed.

"We've ridden in wagons, but never in a buggy," they said.

Rodeo

Two more rodeo performances will offer southwestern Panhandle enthusiasts some of the fastest action on horseback to be seen in the area this season, judging from the opening performance Tuesday night.

Winners in the first go-round of three divisions, bronc riding, bulldogging and wild horse riding, were announced by Mrs. Eddie Smith, bookkeeper, Wednesday.

Best time in the cowgirl sponsors contest went to Norma Dorsey on Prairie Dog, riding for the Dorsey Ranch. Her time was 22.5 seconds. Second place went to Marquita Harlan on Rhonie, riding for the Harlan Ranch, 25 seconds; and third went to June Bull of the Lazy D Ranch, also riding Prairie Dog, 25.2 seconds.

Winners in the Wild Horse race were first, Ike Keesee, Memphis; second, Billy Graham, Wellington; third, David McNamara, Vernon; Bronc riding: first, Jay Hendricks, Wichita Falls; second, George Durfee, Logan, Oklahoma; third, C. M. Coffee of Pampa; fourth, Don Gilmore of Tulsa.

Bulldogging: first, C. M. Coffee, Pampa; second, Bob Sheridan, McLean; third, Howard Tatum of Breckenridge; and fourth, V. K. Orr Jr., Vinson.

Sponsors participating in the rodeo this year are Jean Hassell, Kirkland, Delois Holland, Childress; June Bull, Lefors; Beverly McConnell, Childress; Camilla Coleman, Dozier; Jodie Sims, Hull Ranch; Norma Dorsey, Lazy D Ranch; Marquita Harlan, Harlan Ranch, Kellerville; and Marjorie Wilson, Wilson Ranch, Quail.

District Farm Bureau to Meet

A Bi-District Farm Bureau meeting will be held in Wellington Saturday, September 10, Alex Coleman, chairman of the Collingsworth County unit, announced this week.

Among the guest speakers for the meeting are due to be Congressman Eugene Worley of this district; Walter Hammond, President of the Farm Bureau, and Marvin Carter, secretary.

An entertainment feature will be the Farm Bureau Queen's Contest. Any girl who is the daughter of a Farm Bureau member, and who is between the ages of 16 and 20, is eligible to enter. The young woman designated as Farm Bureau Queen here will have her way paid to participate in the contest at the state convention, and the winner there will go to the national convention at Atlantic City, N. J.

The meeting is due to begin at 10:00 a.m. and end about 3:30 p.m. Complete details will be announced within a short time.

Mrs. Ed Ward left last week for a three week vacation in Houston, Whitney and Sherman.

Dr. Kinkeade to Hold McLean Meet

Dr. Henry H. Kinkeade, former pastor of the First Baptist Church, Wellington, will conduct a revival meeting at the First Baptist Church at McLean from August 21 through 28.

A number of local residents and members of the Baptist Church here are making plans to attend the McLean meeting and hear their former pastor.

Dr. Kinkeade received his doctor of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Seminary at Fort Worth this spring. During the time he studied there, and at present, he is serving as pastor of the First Baptist Church at Carrollton, in Dallas County. He recently completed an addition to the church, and a new parsonage at Carrollton.

Upon leaving Wellington, the Kinkeade family went to New Orleans, where he studied at the New Orleans Bible Institute.

He and Rev. Day, pastor of the McLean Church, were schoolmates.

Mrs. Kinkeade and their children will be with him at McLean, and the entire family will be in Wellington August 29 and 30 to visit

SCS Gets New Seed Drill

The Salt Fork Soil Conservation District has received delivery on the combination grass and alfalfa seed drill which it has been working to secure for more than a year, Jake Tarter, chairman, announced Tuesday.

This piece of machinery was bought at the request of a number of farmers, and will be rented to those seeking to plant small seed. It is pointed out that this will be cheaper than rigging up a farmer's own equipment.

The drill is for rent to anyone at a minimum charge of 40 cents per acre, and it is on a specially built trailer for moving.

The drill is at present located at Mr. Tarter's farm near Wellington, and any person wishing to rent it should contact him or any other member of the soil conservation board.

Mrs. Ruth Cochran visited last week with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Cochran in Norman, Okla.

friends, Rufus Sweat, a close friend, said.

Alfalfa Harvest Begins Soon

The alfalfa seed harvest is due to get under way here within a few days, as well as the inspection of alfalfa seed for certification, County Agent J. W. Thomas said this week.

Mr. Thomas requests that farmers wanting their seed inspected for certification to give him four or five days notice. He will be assisted in the inspection by M. D. Lacy, state seed inspector.

Alfalfa growers have made application for certification of approximately 3,000 acres of alfalfa for seed purposes, Mr. Thomas said. This is approximately the acreage last year, when Collingsworth County alone grew 62 per cent of the all certified alfalfa in the state last year.

A considerable amount of alfalfa hay is going out of the county, and it looks as if there will be a good demand through the winter months, Mr. Thomas said. The current price ranges from $15.00 to $30 per ton, depending on the quality.

Dukes -

Mangum and Memphis were tied for second place and Altus stood third. As previously decided in case of a tie, a coin flip gave second place to Mangum and third to Memphis. Altus had entered a sandlot tournament in Oklahoma City and forfeited a makeup game with Memphis for this week. This dropped Altus out of the running and boosted Childress up to fourth place.

Childress and Mangum will play a three game series at the same time the Wellington-Memphis games are under way, and the winners of these two series will meet for a five-game-playoff, to begin Thursday, August 25. The other games will be played Sunday, August 28; Tuesday, August 30; Thursday, September 1; and Sunday, September 4.

In the league game with Childress, the Dukes scored twice in the first inning, once in the third, four times in the fourth, once in the fifth, three times in the sixth, six times in the seventh and three times in the eighth innings.

The Dukes got 15 hits off Cliff Jones, considered the top pitcher in the league.

Childress got their one run in the fourth inning, and were able to get only four hits off Lefty Mc-Donald throughout the game. The Dukes got by with only one error.

In the Sunday game with Mangum, things started going badly with the Dukes from the beginning. The Red Sox scored seven times in the first inning; twice in the fourth, five times in the fifth and once in the ninth. The Dukes scored once in the sixth and once in the eighth innings. Upton pitched six innings, allowing Mangum nine hits. Scrappy Whitman finished the game and let the Sox take four of his hits.

One of the high points of the game was a home run by Bobby McAllister for Mangum. McAllister played part of last season with the Dukes and started with them this season. He was released by the local club when he went to Mangum to work.

Murphy and Estes, first two men up for Mangum, should have been easy outs, but to base on errors. Duvall sacrificed, Jansen and Dial singled, Deavers struck out and Plew got a two-bagger. Abbott went to first on an error by the Duke centerfielder. Murphy got a two base hit and Estes went out.

In the fourth, Murphy, lead-off man, went out, second to first; and Estes went out third to first. Duvall went to first on balls and Jansen was out first to right field, but an error by Johnson kept him in. Dial was hit by the pitcher, but on the next play he was thrown out at third.

In the fifth, Plew went to base on balls, then McAllister hit the home run, bringing Plew in ahead of him. Abbott flew out to Francis, Murphy went to base on an error, then a few minutes later went in from third on a wild pitch. Estes went to base on balls, Duvall struck out; Jansen got his third hit of the afternoon, and Dial struck out.

Abbott flew out to centerfielder to open the ninth, Murphy singled, Estes went to base on balls, Duvall singled, Jansen flew out to right field, and Estes got picked off of second to end their part of the game.

Scoreless to the sixth inning, Francis got a two base hit first up, Jones flew out to left field, Eldridge went out third to first, and Francis stole from second to third, then from third home. Son Strong popped out to first to end the period.

The other run came in the eighth, when Upton singled, Henrich, batting for Thompson, went out; Francis got on first by an error to short stop; Jones went out; Eldridge singled and Upton scored. Francis was caught stealing third to close that inning.

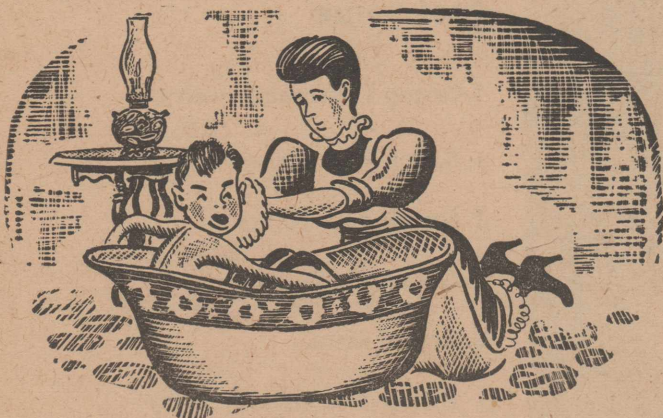

Of course - it's Electric!

LADIES... is your kitchen a "Turkish Bath"? The kitchen in many an otherwise modern home is often turned into a regular "steam-bath" by the use of old-fashioned cooking stoves. However, many housewives are finding these hot August days that Electric Cooking makes their kitchen work cooler, easier, faster, and cleaner.

And when it comes to that important item of economy, the cost of Electric Cooking is amazingly small, considering the marvelous conveniences and the extra leisure time it brings.

Stop in at the West Texas Utilities Company... see a demonstration of modern electric ranges. Ask questions, look them over thoroughly... then you, too, will prefer electric cooking.

MISSION COMES TO LIFE

An empty ruin for many years, the mission of San Antonio de Padua in southern California is in the process of restoration by brown-frocked Franciscan padres and brothers. The mission was founded in 1771, but the ravages of time forced the monks to abandon it years ago. A recent donation by a generous American enabled the Franciscans to begin reconstruction, using adobe brick and old-time building methods.

Our 2nd.

Dear Friends:

Thanks to you friends and customers for making my first two years in Wellington successful.

It is often said that if a new business is able to stay the first year it can succeed. That is the theory I have followed in establishing my business. My first year was devoted to watch repair and I was received so graciously that I definitely knew that I wanted to establish a jewelry business and home here.

I opened my retail jewelry shop just one year ago this month, and in that year's time I have been able to secure Franchises for the three leading watches in America. I am indeed grateful for the careful consideration these companies have given me, and am pleased to offer you a complete line of Bulova, Elgin, and Hamilton watches.

We are also deeply indebted to Mr. Epps of Wel-Tex Electric for space to locate our shop. No one but another veteran can appreciate what a struggle it is to acquire space and quality merchandise for a business.

It is often asked of me by customers, "Do you plan to stay in Wellington?" My answer to this is, "I haven't had time to look for greener pastures." As long as that fact remains I will certainly be here.

I appreciate the fine repair business I have had these past two years and I am building to my stock and fixtures with one goal in mind, to bring to Wellington a jewelry stock and service unequalled in the Panhandle for a town of this size.

I wish to again thank you for your friendship. For it is my sincere belief that a man's friends are his greatest asset no matter what his earthly possessions are.

My desire is to be of service to you.

Hail Damages Cotton in North Part of County

Hail severely damaged cotton in a strip up to two miles wide and extending from north to south approximately 8 miles in the north part of the county Friday afternoon, August 12. Accompanying the hail was high wind which blew down two barns and rain estimated as high as four inches.

The damage occurred in the north central portion of the county, and on some of the cotton, loss is estimated up to 90 per cent.

Growers in that section suffering damage were reported by Alfred Knoll, Commissioner of Precinct II, living at Nicholson, to include himself and his brothers, Frank Knoll Jr., Bill Knoll, Herbert Knoll, Joe Knoll, also Carl Yarborough, Edgar Wischkaemper, Fred Braxton, R. C. Bryant, Julius Deger, Hubert Tindall, Orville Glover, Gerald Thompson, Commissioner W. C. Barnett of Precinct 4, Harry Jones and W. C. Cook.

The wind blew down barns for Mr. Barnett and Frank Knoll Jr.

J. P. Rippetoe -

James Perry Rippetoe was born November 30, 1869, in Carlton, Missouri. He came to Oklahoma and Texas in early life and came to Collingsworth County from Hollis 46 years ago.

A retired farmer, he and Mrs. Rippetoe had made their home in Wellington for several years.

At the time of his death, he was 79 years, 8 months and 7 days of age.

Pall bearers were three sons-in-law and three grandsons: Benny Sheeley, Albert Christoph, Manning Christoph, Andrew Honeycutt, Lewis Christoph, and Fred Rippetoe. Hymns included "Sweet Bye and Bye," and "Shall We Gather at the River."

There was also considerable damage to roofs of houses and outbuildings over the area.

Cotton in this vicinity was good this year, with the growers anticipating yields of around half a bale per acre, Mr. Knoll said.

Although the feed acreage was not nearly so large as the cotton, most of it is late and much of it was badly washed.

Mr. Rippetoe is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alice Rippetoe; five sons and six daughters: Bearl Rippetoe of Model, Colorado; Royal Rippetoe of Villigreen, Colo.; Lawrence Rippetoe of Kline, Colo.; Charlie Rippetoe of Cortez, Colo.; Farrel Rippetoe of Costa Mesa, Calif.; Mrs. A. L. Honeycutt of Dozier; Mrs. A. H. Honeycutt of Bellflower, Calif.; Mrs. Myrtle Brown of Louisiana; Mrs. Lewis Christoph of Manzola, Colo.; Mrs. Benny Sheeley of Costa Mesa, California; and Miss Vonceil Rippetoe of Costa Mesa, Calif.

Also surviving are 38 grandchildren, 26 great grandchildren, and three sisters and a brother, Mrs. Ella Mize of Fort Worth; Mrs. Hattie Young of Oklahoma City; Mrs. Lela Little of Quannah; and Will Rippetoe of Hedley.

Two sons preceded him in death, Luther Rippetoe, who was killed in an acetylene explosion at Hagerman, N. M., two years ago; and Jack Rippetoe, who died while serving with the 5th Army in Italy, only a few days before the war in Europe ended.

doing all he can to translate to others the deep experience he himself has had with God. It explains why, perhaps at this very moment, he is packing his brief case to make a trip hundreds of miles away for a speaking engagement, to return next morning to the heavy responsibilities he bears in the business and professional world. He is literally giving 'wings to the word' as a lay preacher of the Gospel.

"We are most fortunate in having Mr. Brannon in our Church. This is not a meeting for Baptists only. It is for everyone in Wellington. I think it will be a revelation and an inspiration to everyone of us to hear Mr. Brannon, who has shown what one business man can do for Christ," Rev. Jones said.

Persons who have lived in the county 25 years, or who lived here more than 25 years ago, and their families are eligible to attend.

Several persons have already registered and received badges. The first party, which registered Monday, included Mr. and Mrs. Grant Jolley, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dodson and Mr. and Mrs. Arvel Schoonover.

A special trip for a small group of the pioneers is being planned by Carey Dysart of Mobetie, whose family was among the first to settle Collingsworth County.

This is a visit back to the Fresno community, where the group lived, and where they attended the first school taught in the county, taught by Mrs. W. O. Richards.

Mr. Dysart reported that he has talked to Mrs. Lela Atteberry Cocke, Mrs. Gettie Dysart Loter, Mrs. Richards and Tom Elliott of Altus, and they all want to go. Several others who were too young to go to school, and a few of the men who were then grown, are being invited to go along. Complete details of the trip will be worked out before Friday.

This reunion will follow closely the pattern set by earlier ones. The men and women who were instrumental in the formation and development of the county will simply meet for a day of visiting, not unlike gatherings that they knew in a Collingsworth 50 years ago.

Road District -

be borne by the road district and not the county.

It was also pointed out that the $100,000 from state and bond issue sources is allowing $10,000 per mile for construction, although it is possible that the cost will be less, even as low as $7,000.

If this is the case, the road district will be enabled to build 14 miles of surfaced roads instead of the proposed 10 miles, Judge Templeton explained.

Mr. Barnett, in talking with his constituents at this meeting, pointed out that this is the last year which the state will provide 25 per cent of the cost of construction of surfaced rural roads, and if any are to be built, now is the time to vote the bonds.

"The bond issue will be beneficial to those living off the pavement, as well as those on it," he continued, since the surfaced roads will be maintained by the state and there will be that much more money for the maintenance of the remaining county roads from county revenue."

"It is true that the people who live off the pavement will help pay for the bond issue and pavement, but it is also true that those who live on the pavement will continue to pay axes which go to the maintenance of the roads that are not paved."

Lawrence Welk -

ation can best be told by himself:

"Champagne Music" is made up of an original beat that is emphasized in its music plus a medium tempo tone with a little lift and bounce, smooth and at the same time light, which I whip into shape mostly with clarinets, considerable organ, a touch of accordion, and a faint background of saxes.

"I personally like violins and use two of my bass men and pianist as doubles. I employ the strings occasionally to lend a fine touch to the slow and sentimental ballads. Featuring individual men, such as the trumpet, neva-chord, organ, and clarinet, produces more showmanship and lifts the outfit out of the ordinary dance band type. Great care, however, must be given to keep a style distinction and yet remain commercial. Vocals are good and I employ them generously. Two men and a girl singer, in addition to three musicians who double with straight and novelty voices, are carried with the band at all times. They spice the tunes considerably. "I find that my style has appeal to both old and young and lends itself nicely to most tunes. We have had quite a bit of luck playing better types of standard and old favorites that are of particular appeal to every crowd. However, we have in stock all the popular numbers and anything new that looks like a coming hit is immediately arranged in "Champagne" manner for our instrumentation, for, primarily, we must please the public and be prepared to play different types of engagements."

peas." As an example of what peas will do for the land they grow on, Mr. Bourland said that last year when he planted peas one corner of the field was left unplanted. This year's rye crop showed approximately six inches difference in the height of grain where peas were and were not grown, and the yield was in proportion.

In addition to the crowder and cream peas, the approximately 200 acres of stock peas will be sold at the market price at time of combining to Mr. Benham. Last year the Quail men got 5 cents per pound, but the price was up to seven and one-half cents this spring.

These three forward looking Quail farmers think they've hit the jack pot. They have a regular money crop in rye, and both a money crop and soil building crop in peas.

Creeping Taxation Breeds Creeping Socialism

Creeping taxation from Washington has deprived millions of Americans of their rent money. It has put food prices beyond reach. It has impoverished the towns and cities until they can't scrape up enough money to educate their children. Those of us past 65 years of age find our savings all confiscated and spent by the government. Now we learn the taxpayers generally are so impoverished that they will be unable to pay sufficient taxes to make good the losses of our savings for old age pensions. And we can't live on the printed money we are getting, worth only 50 cents on the dollars we paid in.

At last we see what ails us. It's the withholding taxes, excise taxes, income taxes, corporation taxes, inheritance taxes, stamp taxes, transportation taxes, taxes of all kinds. For years most taxes were hidden from us. We were fooled into thinking the rich man or corporation paid them. But now we feel them right down to the bone. Now we see them plainly in every item we buy. When we get sick nothing is left to pay the hospital bills.

So the people complain and petition the Congress to reduce the burdens of taxation and free them from the government itself. For example, millions of tenants are on the Government's back complaining about the 20 per cent withholding tax. That tax they say would just about pay their rents. But instead of repealing the tax and reducing its costs, the Government shifts the tenants onto the backs of little property owners and forces them to reduce the tenants' rent by 40 per cent. That 40 per cent tax is the destruction of private property on the road of socialization.

Thus individuals and old properties are being liquidated, used up or taken over by the government as mortgagor in foreclosure. The government now owns one-fourth of all land in the 48 states. It holds a fourth of all mortgages outstanding on the farms of the country. It has loaned 70 per cent of all the money used in building houses since the war. All this is being done by taxation. In the next depression as our mortgagor it can take us over or crack the whip and make us all vote for mercy.

About half of all American families or one adult person out of six are now on their knees depending on Washington for help to balance their family budgets—in whole or part. That means that half of our families are no longer a free people with the means to provide for themselves housing, food, clothing, education and health. That also means that only half our families are still left partly free and still able to produce enough surplus to support the other half in whole or in part by paying the government taxes now collected for their support. That overworked oppressed remaining half are being further reduced in numbers every day. There is developing a smaller group in production that must inevitably earn less income and create smaller surpluses. From them alone can government seize or tax for the benefit of the wards it has already made of half our population.

Obviously private property is the only source from which socialized houses and food and clothing, health and education can be taken for less than cost and donated to others. It is equally obvious that when private property is exhausted by the robbery of one group for the benefit of another group the latter group will surely then have to pay the whole cost of everything. They will pay in sweat to the army of entrenched one-party bureaucrats and commissars for whom they must work and from whom there can be no escape. It is all brought about in every land as Marx directed by creeping progressive taxation. We've got it. Many Congressmen would like to have the people's support in a rebellion against taxation—a rebellion against an incomprehensible, unmanageable corrupt government which is our own brand of world socialism.

Cotton Fires Play Havoc Growers Warned

Announcing an industry-wide campaign to prevent costly cotton fires, the National Cotton Council is warning cotton farmers, ginners, warehousemen and others who handle cotton that unless effective fire prevention measures are exercised, unusually high losses may be expected during the 1949-50 season.

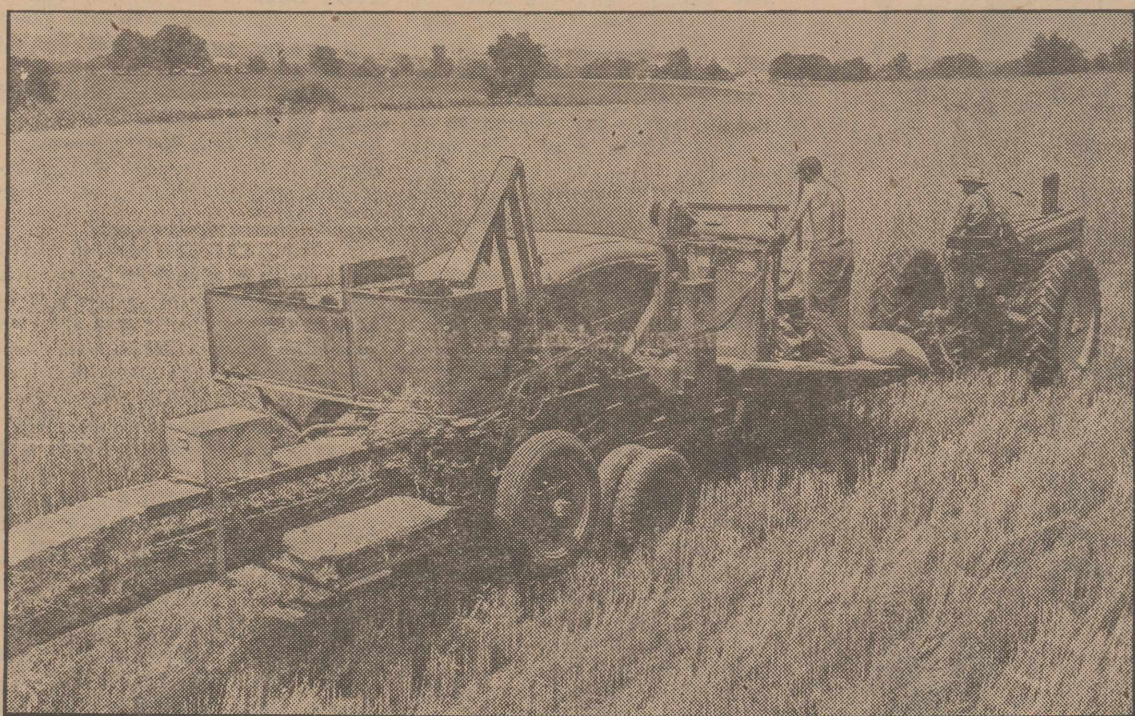

Prospects of a big 1949-50 cotton crop, plus a carryover of an estimated 5,650,000 bales (more than double that on hand August 1, 1947), indicate that processing, handling and storage facilities may be strained, the Council points out. In such cases, the Council adds, where it is necessary to speed up the various operations, likelihood of fires is increased.

A large number of cotton fires originate in the cotton field, during the hauling of cotton to the gin, or at the gin itself, the Cotton Council explains.

Metals, rocks and matches in seed cotton, and careless smoking near cotton are major causes of cotton fires, the Council emphasizes. Sparks may be caused by metals and rocks striking machinery during the ginning process or a flame may result when a match is struck in the same manner. Lint, thus ignited, may smolder and be packed unnoticed into the finished bale. Such "firepacked" bales cause four out of five warehouse fires.

Some cotton fires are believed to have been started by exhaust sparks, either from tractor, truck or gin engines. This hazard has been pointed out particularly in cases where tractors are used to pull trailer loads of seed cotton to the gin.

Mrs. Prebble Russell and sons Dale and Neal returned home last week from Hot Springs, New Mexico, where the boys have been for several weeks and Mrs. Russell vacationed with them for the past two weeks.

COMBINE COMBINES OPERATIONS

This machine is the latest idea in speeding up the harvesting of the nation's biggest peacetime wheat crops. A standard automatic twine-tying baler was joined with a combine to do several jobs at once. With the arrangement, a two-man crew can cut the ripe wheat, thresh it, bag it, and bale the leftover wheat straw in one continuous operation. At the left an automatically twine-tied bale is shown ready to drop from the baling chamber.

"The Red Pony" Film to Delight Entire Family

A refreshing theme, coupled with an outstanding cast and a fine script are only a few of the factors which help to make Republic's "The Red Pony," opening Wednesday, August 24, at the Ritz Theatre, a motion picture to delight the tastes of sophisticated moviegoers. A Charles K. Feldman presentation, the Technicolor version of John Steinbeck's best selling novel stars Myrna Loy and Robert Mitchum with Louis Calhern, Shepperd Strudwick and Peter Miles playing other top roles.

There is conflict in this story, as in the usual movie plot. This time, however, it is not a triangle of two men and a girl, or two girls and a man. "The Red Pony" depicts the antagonism which grows up between a nine-year-old boy, his father and the hired man. The father, having "married into" a ranch family, is unable to adjust himself to ranch life after leaving the teaching profession. Hard as he tries, the wistful man cannot grow closer to his family. He is deeply grateful to his serene wife for her skillful efforts to bring him into the family circle, but takes out his nervous resentment of the situation on his old father-in-law.

Then, when his only son turns to the hired man for training, affection and guidance in all things the father's unhappiness reaches its poignant crest. How he works his way out of despair to contentment, with the indirect aid of a small red pony, makes for one of the most dramatic and memorable climaxes seen upon the screen.

Myrna Loy, famed for her "ideal wife" portrayals plays the mother while Shepperd Strudwick is seen as the father. Robert Mitchum has the role of the hired man, Louis Calhern plays the grandfather, and Peter Miles is seen as the boy.

Farmers were put on notice recently that compliance with wheat acreage allotments will be necessary if they want the protection of government price supports on their 1950 wheat crop.

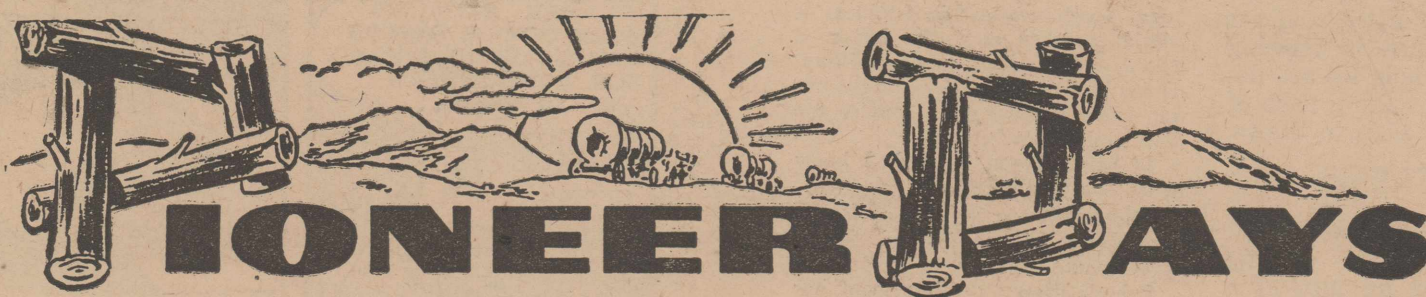

According to Millard Brown, secretary of the county agricultural conservation committee, an "eligible" producer for price support on the 1950 wheat crop — generally — will be "any individual, partnership, association, corporation, or other legal entity that has an interest as landowner, landlord, tenant, or sharecropper in a farm on which the acreage planted to wheat for harvest in 1950 is not in excess of the farm acreage allotment."

If such a producer has an interest in more than one farm in a county, he will be eligible for wheat price supports if the total of his share of the 1950 wheat acreage seeded for harvest on all of the farms does not exceed his total share of the wheat allotments or "permitted" acreages.

If the producer has an interest in more than one county or state, he would not be eligible for wheat price supports if the total of his share of the 1950 wheat acreage seeded for harvest on all of the farms exceeds his total share of such allotments or permitted acreages, regardless of where such farms are situated.

A "permitted" acreage, Mr. Brown said, will be used only for those farms for which a 1950 wheat allotment of less than 15 acres is established and the wheat acreage seeded for harvest is in excess of the allotment. In those cases, the permitted acreage is the smaller of the wheat acreage seeded for harvest or 15 acres.

EDITORIAL COMMENT — THE WELLINGTON LEADER

Friendship and Five Per-Centers

President Truman's remark, reported by the AP, concerning former President Hoover's statement that the nation is "on the last mile" of the back road to collectivism sounds funny to him and he doesn't think it is so, does not sound so funny to many thinking Americans. Although the remark was softened by a chuckle, there are those whose respect for the former president has grown with the years, and who feel that in him the United States has its nearest approach to an elder statesman.

The recent Hoover Report, a practical recommendation for cutting down government expense, makes more sense than most of the other things that have come out of Washington, recently, and the man who left retirement to spend months of hard work at this thankless job is to be more admired. If this report is the vanguard of public opinion to cut down needless and extravagant spending, it will have been invaluable.

The same press conference that gave the president's remark concerning the thinking of a predecessor in his high office, also brought out rise to President Truman's attitude toward Maj. Gen. Hary H. Vaughan, his military aid, which he says has not changed in the light of testimony brought out in the senate investigation of those who help businessmen get government contracts for a fee.

Now loyal friendship is one of the finest things in this world, and there is far, far too little of it. But the president's continuing attitude toward some of his friends who are high office holders in Washington and whose records under scrutiny are open to question, is apt to be a moral blind spot.

The Gen. Vaughan case is the latest. No veteran that has tried to build a house in the face of material shortages is going to appreciate the fact that the general, who is also veterans affairs co-ordinator, helped a race track get scarce building materials. No one is going to like the idea of what else might be going on.

The high offices of this nation are not the places to pay off political debts or reward political or personal friendships. The prestige that they bring is not to be peddled for a fee, like any common commodity or service. The men who hold them should expect their public lives to be open to the scrutiny of a congressional investigating committee, or to the eyes of the lowest citizen.

The affairs of General Vaughan is not finished, and before it is, there needs to be some sober thinking on the ways of Washington, and on high office holders who are willing to sell their position for a five-per cent fee.

Old Settlers to Gather Friday

The Wellington Leader again extends a hearty welcome to the old-timers of Collingsworth who Friday will gather for their annual reunion at the LeHue grove.

This reunion is a traditional event of the late summer, something that pioneers as well as late-comers look forward to alike, the first to enjoy again the early days, the latter to see together so many of the people who were influential in this county's building.

The pioneer stories will be predominant in the telling again this year. Those years are far enough away to thrill the imaginations of those who have come on later, but they are brought near when the people lived them tell, in everyday language, what it was like to settle a country.

There is a bond of friendship between those early settlers that is not found elsewhere, a special brand of friendship that will die when those who settled the frontiers are gone.

To each of you who will be at the reunion this year, we extend our congratulations.

The Buck Creek Philosopher

Editor's notes: The Buck Creek Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek probably is letting himself in for a lot of trouble in his letter this week, but it's his worry, not ours. Any woman reader who disagrees with him can take it up with him, not us. Dear editor:

While talk of things tightening down a little hasn't bothered me much, after you've been tightened down on most of your life you get to where you don't notice it so much. It's like my cow, as long as she's confined all her life to Johnson grass she don't miss alfalfa, as far as she knows Johnson grass is all there is, and I notice people especially up north have been worrying a little over the fact people ain't spending money as fast as they used to and business has fallen off a little.

Also, I notice the experts and the thinkers have been working on the problem and there seems to be as many explanations as there are experts. One of em claims the fault lies in the fact we are under a natural readjustment followin the war, another says big business is timid, another says the buyer is timid, another says the cost of living is too high, another says wages are too high, another says they're too low, and so forth.

If you ask me, I think I know what the trouble is.

The trouble is, we got a woman in charge of the United States Treasury.

I don't know anything about her personally, but my experience has been a woman likes to spend money, is free and easy with it as long as you hand it out to her, but once you put her in charge of the purse strings she clamps down like a vice and prosperity is over. Puttin a woman in charge of your money is an open invitation to shut the door on comfortable living.

I ain't never seen a banker so tight-fisted I hadn't rather hit him up for a loan than to ask my wife for some of her egg money.

Women handlin money ain't even satisfied to give you a simple no, they got to go into a long discussion of why you're triflin and no account for wantin a little spare money in your pocket when you go to town on Saturday. They'd deny you the necessities of life, cut you off from pipe tobacco, and then turn around and send off twice as much as you asked for to a hungry European.

If you ask me, times is gonna be pretty difficult, money is gonna be hard to get hold of, as long as we got a woman runnin the United States Treasury. It just won't work. But I would appreciate you not sending a copy of your paper out this way the week you publish this letter, as I blamed sure don't want my wife to get hold of it.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

BIBLE COMMENT FOR AUG. 21

Christ Showed Glories of God In Beauties of Nature

The German poet, Goethe, called nature "the living garment of God."

One cannot read the story of Jesus in the Gospels without realizing how essentially the divine ministry was of earth, as well as of heaven. It was not in classrooms, nor even in synagogues or temple, that the most distinctive teachings of Jesus were given. He talked with His disciples as they went through the fields, speaking of the flowers, the grain, the harvest; He discoursed of worship in spirit, and even announced His messiahship, as He sat talking with a woman at Jacob's Well.

This was all as it should have been in that time and place, in the genial outdoor atmosphere of that little land of Palestine, in an age that had not yet developed the equipment, gadgets, and ways that have made life, religion, and education more confined to walls.

Two things were very real to the Psalmists and Prophets—one was the law of God and His providence in nature, the universe a manifestation of law and order.

And the other reality, corresponding to this, but deeper, was the law of God in the heart, the assurance of right and wrong in life and conduct.

It must be evident to any careful observer that in all, or most, of this we have departed far from the essential Hebrew and Christian view of God and nature.

It is not the religion of the out-of-doors, but the irreligion of so much of the out-of-door, that mostly characterizes our modern way.

How much in this, as in other things, we need to learn from those who found a joy in God, and a pleasure in His world, that few today attain. So much of our life is an escape, rather than a discovery and attainment.

Most Important Person Is the Individual

America is the country with a heart for the man who is caught in a jam, and his life is threatened.

Over in Russia the individual means nothing. He is just another man, potentially a soldier, who may have lost his life in the service of his country.

Who was the fellow who was caught on a rock in a flood?

Only his friends and neighbors, and his family knew the man before the flood threatened his life.

Millions of Americans became sympathetic when word was flashed that his life was in danger. Just another man? No, indeed, he became a very prominent and important man to the future upbuilding of this nation.

A little girl fell into a hole a few months ago. Just another little girl? No, indeed, she was a potential individual in the growth and building of civilization in America. She was important.

Hundreds of men rushed to offer aid. They risked their lives in order that her life might be saved. They lost the battle, but they were not discouraged by their efforts. They would do the same thing today or tomorrow if they found another small girl in distress.

America was founded on the theory that man—yes any man—big or small—was the keynote to the future of this nation. We give to the individual the opportunity to make himself the most that there is in him. We give him a chance, but at the same time expect from his a true devotion and fidelity in order to repay society for what it has done for him.

America will not fail or fall so long as we maintain this high standard for the individual. Naturally a lot of folks are missing their opportunities, and are throwing away their lives in chasing butterflies, but on the whole we are doing a pretty good job of taking care of the future America—The Canyon News.

Follow Directions When Using a 2,4-D Solution

COLLEGE STATION — Reports continue to come in from different sections of the state that show proper precautions are not being followed in the use of 2, 4-D. Orchards have been defoliated, tomato and other truck crops have been and are being hurt, and cotton is being damaged in almost every section of the state says M. K. Thornton, extension agricultural chemist of Texas A. & M. College. The users of 2, 4-D must remember, he adds, it will not only kill the weeds that are objectional but may also damage desirable plants around the house and farm.

Here are some precautions that should be followed by every user of 2, 4-D, as worked out by a committee of Texas A. & M. College research and extension workers for your protection. They say don't use 2, 4-D dusts under any conditions. They drift easily and far. Ester forms of 2, 4-D are not recommended because they give off fumes readily. Small liquid spray particles may drift in air currents and delayed drift effects may occur following changes in direction of the wind. For ground sprayers, use nozzles producing coarse spray particles and use pressures below 40 pounds per square inch. Do not apply 2, 4-D with ground equipment in wind velocity greater than 5 miles per hour when susceptible crops are within 1-2 mile downwind or 1-8 mile upwind.

No 2, 4-D, says the committee, should be released from an airplane at altitudes higher than 10 feet above the ground when wind velocities are greater than 5 miles per hour and susceptible crops are within one mile downwind or 1-4 mile upwind from the application area. In winds of 6 to 10 mile per hour velocity, it should not be released if susceptible crops are susceptible crops are within 2 miles downwind and 1-8 mile upwind.

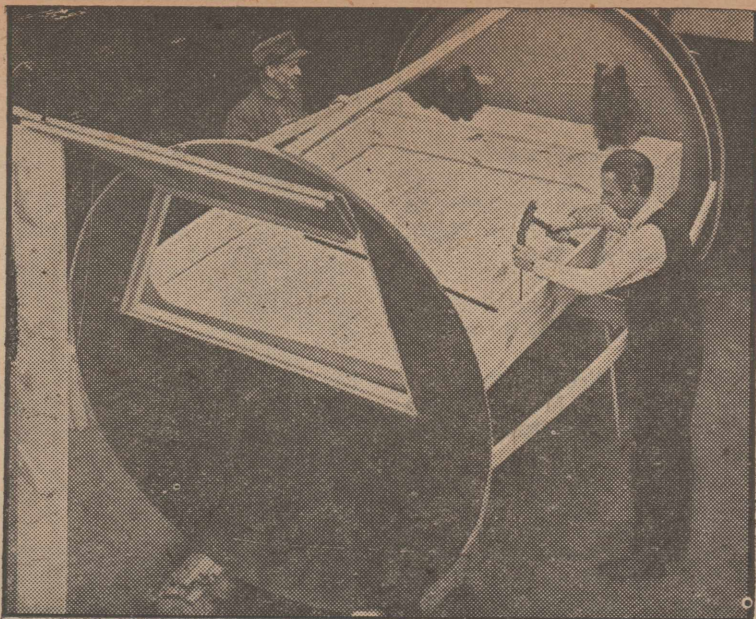

In communities having intermixed small fields of susceptible and nonsusceptible crops, it is difficult to meet the above conditions and in such areas airplanes should probably not be used for applying 2, 4-D.

Thornton advises using separate equipment for 2, 4-D. It is practically impossible, he says, to clean 2, 4-D from a sprayer that may be used for applying fungicides or insecticides. Don't store 2, 4-D in a building where seeds, fertilizer, fungicides or insecticides are stored or handled because of the danger of contamination.

Employ only qualified airplane operators who have properly functioning equipment and who will apply the spray only when the conditions set forth above can be met, he says.

Among the most susceptible plants are: cotton, tomatoes, okra; vine crops such as cucumbers, sweet potatoes; legumes such as blackeye peas, peanuts, snapbeans; fruit trees, grapes, pecan trees and many ornamentals.

Before you use 2, 4-D Thornton suggests that you consult your county agent or other competent authorities as to the best stage of

Sodium Arsenite Will Kill Moss, Weeds in Ponds

COLLEGE STATION — Moss and other underwater growth can be controlled and killed by using sodium arsenite, says R. E. Callender, extension specialist in wildlife management, Texas A. & M. College.

Members of the Sommerfield Lake Club asked county agent J. W. Stufflebume, Jr., Washington county, to help them clean up their lake. The moss and weed growth was so thick in the lake that fishing and boating was next to impossible and heavy applications of fertilizer had no effect on the water vegetation. Callender says the lake was carefully measured and they figured it contained 400,000 cubic feet of water. Ten gallons of sodium arsenite was mixed with about the same amount of water and the entire surface of the lake was sprayed. Complete coverage is very important, he adds.

The moss and above water growths were killed within 24 hours and four days later the moss began to change color and started floating to the surface. By the end of a week, says Callender, open patches of water began to appear and fishing was resumed. At the end of two weeks, the surface was still covered with dead moss and most of the underwater growth seemed to be dead. Latest reports indicate that one more application of the spray may be necessary to get complete control of the vegetation.

Callender concludes with this warning, measure the lake or pond very carefully and figure its contents before using sodium arsenite. Too heavy an application can prove growth and correct dosage for use with any specific crop. Any crop treated with 2, 4-D sprays may be damaged by improper applications.

Children Should Have Medical Check for School

AUSTIN, TEXAS—The month of September brings a return of school days, and thousands of Texas boys and girls will be returning to classrooms for the next nine months. Every one of these children, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, should be as free as possible from all physical defects that can be corrected, and protected against other diseases which frequently spread through classrooms.

A complete medical and dental pre-school check-up is of the utmost importance in getting the child ready for school. Eyes, ears, nose, throat, and teeth should be carefully examined, and all remediable defects corrected or placed under treatment. Such defects can lead to serious impairment of growth and progress academically, socially, and emotionally.

Defects of hearing and vision handicap a child in his class work, and often result in the false impression that he is backward and unable to learn. Such defects can often be corrected, and the child is not only more progressive in his school work, but is a happier, better balanced individual as a result of being more socially acceptable. Dental defects should be corrected not only for cosmetic reasons, but because good teeth enable a child to chew his food properly and thus promote digestion and bodily nourishment.

"In addition to correcting such defects as already exist, young children should be protected by immunization against disease, when possible," Dr. Cox said. "Immunization is safe and dependable, and every child is entitled to this protection against disease."

that gets caught between the paper and the butter. Then it's ready to pack in wax cartons.

The regular general purpose paper that's used in the kitchens isn't as good as the wax cartons because it allows air to get to the butter. And when that happens, you've got a pound of rancid butter you can't use.

Storage good quality butter at zero degrees or lower will help the Texas homemaker keep a supply of butter handy when it's needed, says Miss Jackson.

Store Good Butter In Home Freezer

COLLEGE STATION — Good spring pasture means lots of milk. And that leads to lots of butter. But dry pastures later on this summer may cut butter production.

So, here's a suggestion from Margaret Jackson, assistant foods and nutrition specialist of Texas A. & M. College. You can freeze your butter at home and store it in the home freezer for as long as six months if it is good quality. This way, you'll have plenty of butter when the milk production drops off during the later part of the summer.

Miss Jackson says it's best not to even try to freeze poorly made butter. It doesn't keep well, even in the freezer.

Before freezing the butter, wash it well to get all the milk out. Mold it and wrap it in parchment paper. Then press all the air out

Cotton Laboratory To Aid Merchants

AUSTIN — Texas cotton merchants may get help in improving merchandising methods from a cotton research laboratory scheduled for completion at the University of Texas this fall.

That laboratory, to be equipped with the latest scientific instruments, is part of a broad program of the Cotton Research Committee of Texas, composed of presidents of Texas A&M College, Texas Technological College and the University of Texas. The merchandising portion of the research program is carried on at the University.

Research under way is designed to help merchants make economical use of instruments now available for determining qualities of the cotton fiber important in merchandising, such as length, uniformity of length, strength, fineness and maturity.

By using instruments as aids in classing cotton, researchers believe, it should be possible to produce rejections and arbitrations, both costly to merchants and mills. Scientifically-selected lists of cotton are more uniform, resulting in better yard strength and fewer "breaks" on the spinning frame.

Temperature and humidity affect cotton fibers, so the laboratory will be air-conditioned for control of both, 70 degrees Fahrenheit and 65 per cent relative humidity being considered the experimental standard.

Maybe Your Shrubs Need a Tonic

COLLEGE STATION — If your green-leaved shrubs have turned yellow about this time of year, give them a little tonic — tonic in the form of a quarter to a half a pound of copperas and one pound of sulphur for every large shrub or small tree.

That's the advice of Sadie Hatfield, extension landscape gardening specialist of Texas A. and M. College. This copperas-sulphur tonic will turn the leaves green again, like they should be. Fertilizers mixed with the soil at the same time also help prevent further yellowing of leaves.

Here's something else that will help keep the plants going this summer. Spread a vegetable mulch around the shrubs to keep the roots from drying out when the summer temperatures soar. Mulch holds moisture in the soil, making it available to plant roots, Miss Hatfield says. The mulch, spread over several square feet several inches thick, will gradually work itself into the ground.

NOTES

Thanks, Duard Scott, for that "Literary Gem" last week. It's amazing to learn about the talent that is connected with The Kiwanis Club. I make a motion that Duard take over this column. He has an excellent vocabulary, and I might add, dole out much flattery.

Guests: Mr. Townsend, Ernie Able and Miss Ella Hill (attractive daughter of Rev. Lester Hill).

While I think of it; be sure to attend next meeting. Our esteemed friend, Lester Hill, is going to give us a verbal picture of The Holy Land, next Friday. Fortunately, I have had the pleasure of hearing a portion of his experiences in that area and his ability to describe this area where Jesus traveled is gratifying, as well as educational.

The essential factor of the church committee was stressed last Friday. Too many of us, through neglect, fail to attend Sunday School or Church Services.

It was a pleasure to have Mrs. Kathleen Gray to serve as pianist last meeting. She is very efficient. Thanks Kathleen and come again. We appreciate your articulations.

Well, Tom Bryant sold out again. R. L. Porter is his successor. The Kiwanis Club is happy to have R. L. as the newest member.

Harley Bulls — a typical Irishman — (and I do mean Irish) rendered several solos, accompanied by Bennie Karnes. Numbers are as follows: "Without a Song," "Fish Seller," "He Wins The Girl," "Green Eyed Dragon With Thirteen Tails," "Were You There" (a Negro spiritual) "Blue Are Her Eyes" and "Lady Moon." As you can plainly see, many of the songs were Irish, Scotch and English origin.

Please . . . please . . . Please—please—please—do not forget to buy your ticket to the rodeo.

Hold on a minute, be sure and not miss what Lester Hill will have to say next Friday. Come One! Come All-

Plan the Kitchen With Care; Its The Work Center

COLLEGE - STATION The kitchen is the main work center of the house. The efficiency of the entire household depends to a large extent upon how well the kitchen is planned and arranged, says Mrs. Bernice Clayton, extension specialist in home management of Texas A. & M. College.

There is no one model or ideal kitchen plan, she adds. Any kitchen, to be convenient, should be planned according to the needs of the family who will use it. Those needs vary with the size and ages of the members of the family, the principle industry of the farm or ranch and the kinds and amount of work done in the kitchen. Consideration must also be given to the amount of entertaining that is done, the standards for preparing and serving meals, the amount of food purchased ready-prepared, the amount of outside help used and the utilities available.

Essential kitchen equipment, says Mrs. Clayton, includes a range, water supply — and this is usually combined with a sink and drainage facilities — work tables or work surfaces at comfortable heights for the worker, provision for refrigeration and adequate storage space for everything used in the kitchen. The storage space, continues Mrs. Clayton, should be located as near as possible to the place where these articles will be used.

Kitchen equipment is available in various prices, variety of sizes, qualities and finishes. Wise and careful selection of equipment is always an important factor in kitchen efficiency, concludes Mrs. Clayton.

HOT AND BOTHERED

New York summer temperatures are just too much for two-year-old Oleh Danielewicz, right, as his twin brother Wladimir mops his brow on their arrival from European DP camp. They will settle with their parents in the Bronx — and hope that fall rolls around in a hurry.

Summer Care for Poultry Important

pretty hard to say that one thing is more important than another when it comes to properly taking care of the pullets that will be the egg producers this fall, says W. J. Moore, associate extension poultry husbandman of Texas A. & M. College, but plenty of tender green feed on the summer range is one of them.

Good range furnishes the growing pullets with a supply of vitamins, minerals and other growth factors that just can't be supplied fully from any other source, continues Moore. Pullets should not be pushed too fast. It can cause trouble later on. They develop sexually before they develop physically and actually begin laying before they are mature. So it's best, says Moore, to keep the pullets growing in body and gaining weight as fast as possible before their combs and wattles develop. These kind make better egg producers.

Trim Shrubs Now Or Wait till Winter

COLLEGE STATION — If you plan to cut back overgrown trees or shrubs, do it now or wait until winter. Large limbs removed later may lead to winter injury.

Sadie Hatfield, extension specialist in landscape gardening of Texas A. & M. College, says cutting back a plant during the growing season starts new growth and this new growth does not have time to harden before frost. Then the tree or shrub is killed back. Heavy frost often kills large shrubs or even trees.

Fertilizing and watering in late summer stimulates new growth, adds Miss Hatfield, and this growth may also be damaged by cold weather if it doesn't have time to harden before the cold weather hits.

Badly injured plants may not die but they will look sick for a year or more. Blooms and fruit may be light on the injured plants next year.

Miss Hatfield says cut the limbs off smoothly. Don't leave stubs. A tree or shrub will heal quickly if the cut is smooth but a stub will not. That may take years and it leaves ugly lumps along the trunk branches.

Investigate thoroughly anyone who represents himself as an expert and wants to trim your trees and shrubs in late summer or early fall. She says some plants can survive such rough treatment but all of them will not.

Dead limbs may be cut off at any time without risk. Injured or diseased limbs may need to come off even at a risk but, she cautions, always use a sharp pruning saw and if the wounds are covered with clear shellac, they'll heal faster.

Feeds containing soybean meal and cottonseed meal for protein, with small amounts of fish meal and meat scraps seem to be the best. The growing pullet should get this feed along with liberal amounts of grain and the best tender green range that you can give them. The addition of choice alfalfa leaf meal to the mash you're feeding is a good substitute when good range is not available.

It is important to supply the growing birds with plenty of shade, pure, cool water and keep them clean. Moore says, if the pullets are developed properly, they will be ready to produce next fall and winter when egg prices are best. The kind of birds that go into the laying house this fall will be largely determined by the treatment they get this summer, and concludes Moore, now is the time to practice proper poultry range management.

Learn to Use FM Highways Safely, Drivers Warned

AUSTIN — Hundreds of Texans are likely to be killed or injured because of the farm-to-market road program in Texas.

This will happen, the Texas Safety Association and the Texas Highway Patrol said today in a joint statement, unless rural people learn quickly to use these roads properly and to police themselves. Last year 221 persons were killed in county road accidents in Texas. For the first half of this year, only 77 were killed, for a 37 per cent reduction in the death rate.

"As rural roads are improved, rural people must remember that a good farm road is a sub-standard highway, likely to be narrower and to have sharper turns and grades," Miller said. "Another dangerous factor is the tendency people have to think that they have the road all to themselves. This is revealed especially in failure to observe proper precautions at intersections, coming to a full stop and proceeding cautiously when entering a highway."

W. J. Elliott, chief of the Highway Patrol, said his force has more than it can do to patrol 31,000 miles of principal highways and can not possibly patrol additional miles of farm roads. "We're praying that rural people won't start making racehorses out of plowhorses on these roads," Elliott said. "Our only hope is that the people will be their own safety patrol, a red stripe down the center of

Comfort Needed For Better Cows

COLLEGE STATION — If cow comforts could be put up in the form of a mixture and fed from a sack, many Texas dairy herds would increase their production. A cow's production is influenced by the kind and amount of feed she eats but it's not generally recognized that providing conditions which make a cow comfortable and contented also have an effect on her daily milk flow. According to R. E. Burleson, assistant extension dairy husbandman of Texas A. & M. College, this factor is most important during hot, dry weather.

The high producing cow, he says, is the result of many years of breeding and selection. She is a highly developed animal and like a delicate machine requires careful handling. She is a sensitive creature and must be given special attention during the hot summer if she is to produce at her best.

Here are some suggestions that may help keep "Bossy" contented and comfortable this summer. The herd, he says, should be protected from the sun during the hottest part of the day. The pasture without shade should be used at night. Some dairymen are using brush arbors or a darkened shed to provide shade during the hottest hours of the day.

Burleson says two waterings a day are not enough. High producing cows need plenty of clean, cool water for digestion and milk production and they should have free access to water at all times. Good green grazing, accessible during the cool of the day or night, is necessary for maintaining production during the summer months. Succulent silage, along with plenty of high quality hay, will do much toward maintaining high production when the pastures are poor. Supplement the roughage with a proper grain ration.

Cows, like humans, are not comfortable when they are annoyed by flies. Burleson recommends the use of suitable fly sprays along with the elimination of fly breeding places to solve this problem. Dairymen have reported good results from the use of a methoxychlor fly spray.

Last, he says, the cow must receive kind treatment. Hurrying the herd on a hot day is a costly way to save time. The failure to milk at regular hours not only affects the milk flow, but it also makes high producers restless. A well-bred, high producing cow deserves good feeding, kind treatment and comfortable surroundings. Provide these essentials and she'll do her duty, concludes Burleson.

The largest North American rodent is the Beaver.

A & M Bulletin Gives New Ideas On Grain Storage

College Station, — The new bulletin, C-266, Grain Storage for Texas, is new and chuck full of helpful ideas on grain storage structures for Texas. The publication was prepared by W. S. Allen, extension agricultural engineer-buildings of Texas A. & M. College.

On-the-farm grain storage is due to be very important part of every Texas grain producer's farming operations for a long time and Allen says storage structures should be built with this fact in mind. Build them to last. The cheapest structure you can build is the one that will still be usable and safe ten or fifteen years from now, he adds.

Here are a few things you should remember, Allen says. Low moisture content is necessary for prolonged, safe storage of grain. Construct a strong, durable building. Eliminate entrance points for moisture and insects. Provide for fumigation, if necessary. Rat proof your grain structure, locate it for convenience on a firm, dry site and don't forget to plan an easy way to get the grain in and out of it.

If you need grain storage on your farm, Allen suggests that you visit your local county agricultural agent — talk over the situation with him — and get a copy of the new bulletin. You can probably find the answer to a lot of the questions that you'd like to know in C-266, Grain Storage for Texas.

AN EXPERT KNOWS MORE ABOUT LESS

★ Good health for every citizen, every family, is the chief concern of medicine and pharmacy.

To accomplish this objective in the best way, the vast field of medical science has been divided into specialized groups. The physician is thoroughly schooled in diagnosis and treatment. As pharmacists, we are experts in the preparation and dispensing of drugs. We do not pretend to be able to diagnose your ills. But we are qualified, and gladly accept the responsibility of filling your prescription exactly as your doctor specifies.
