How's That? Spelling

Q. What is the correct spelling of St. Lawrence?

A. The correct spelling of the community of St. Lawrence is, St. Lawrence not St. Laurence, according to Barbara Halfman of the community. However it's spelled, the sausage should taste great Sunday during the annual festival.

Motels and hotels face new law for hearing impaired

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

Owners of some 25 to 30 motels and hotels located inside the Big Spring city limits must comply with a new state law requiring them to provide smoke detectors for the hearing impaired, according to Assistant Fire Chief Burr Lee Settles.

State House Bill 162 — which went into effect Sept. 21 — requires hotel and motel owners to maintain one smoke detector for the hearing impaired for each 60 or a fraction of 60 rooms of the hotel that are regularly used for sleeping, the assistant fire chief said.

However, Settles said he is not aware of a single hotel or motel in Big Spring that has complied with the new law.

"So far as I know, the hotel and motel owners here are just not aware" that the new law is now in effect, he said.

The law requires hotel and motel operators to install a portable audible-visual smoke detector in the room of any customers who requests such a device, or assign the hearing impaired person to a room where an audible-visible smoke detector has been permanently installed, according to Settles.

All portable audible-visual must be installed so they can not be controlled by a wall switch, the law states.

Wording contained in House Bill 162 defines a smoke detector for the hearing impaired as: "an audible visual smoke detector utilizing a strobe light of xenon design with a visible effective intensity of not less than 100 candelas."

The law further states that the detectors must have a flash rate of not less than 60 flashes per minute and not more than 120 flashes per minute.

Hotel and motel owners could be charged with a Class B misdemeanor — punishable by up to a $1,000 fine and one year in the county jail, Settles said.

The law does not apply to hospitals, sanitariums or nursing homes. Also exempt are buildings which all or substantially all of the occupants have access to sleeping accommodations for at least 28 consecutive days.

The Big Spring Fire Department will not perform inspections of local motels and hotels to determine if they are in compliance with the new law, according to Settles.

"We will act only if we receive a complaint that a motel or hotel doesn't have a smoke detector for the hearing impaired," he said.

Copies of House Bill 162 are available at the Big Spring Fire Department and can be obtained by all interested motel and hotel operators, Settles said.

Betting opponents deny outsider help

AUSTIN (AP) — A group opposing the pari-mutuel betting proposition on Tuesday's election ballot says a legislator is wrong in claiming it has received money from surrounding states that don't want Texas to start horse and dog racing.

"We receive no money from out-of-state interests. We oppose pari-mutuel gambling whether it's in Hong Kong, Louisiana or Texas," said spokesman Gary McNeil of the group Texans Who Care.

McNeil was responding to Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, who made the charge at a news conference Thursday.

"We know what pari-mutuel will do to our surrounding states. They're not going to like it — that's tough. They've been drawing off our population base all these years. It's our turn," Harris said.

Harris said surrounding states that already allow pari-mutuel wagering are obviously spending money in Texas to defeat the proposition, although he didn't have any specific instances.

"We've just seen it over the years. ... I can't swear to you under oath ... we feel comfortable that the money's coming from across (the border)," he said.

McNeil called the accusation "a slanderous charge."

"The only out-of-state interests that we know are involved in this campaign are the Kentucky breeders who are interested in promoting pari-mutuel gambling in Texas so they can sell their horses," McNeil said.

"Our money has come from citizens, it's come from churches, it's come from Sunday school groups," he said. "We've been very up front. There's no hidden money."

At the legislators' news conference, Rep. Lloyd Criss, D-

Constitutional amendments

LaMarque, challenged assertions by Texans Who Care that horse racing is a dying business. Criss said the total amount wagered at tracks had risen 49 percent over the past decade.

Attendance at horse tracks last year totaled 70.5 million, making it the nation's No. 2 spectator sport, Criss said.

"That doesn't sound like an unhealthy industry to me," he said.

Also, he said, greyhound attendance has increased 131 percent in the past 20 years, and the amount wagered has gone up 511 percent.

"No greyhound track in the United States is having economic trouble," Criss said.

Also Thursday:

• The West and South Texas Chambers of Commerce endorsed the pari-mutuel proposition.

The chambers also backed Referendum 1 on Tuesday's ballot, which would keep the State Board of Education an appointed body rather than having it revert to an elected panel in 1989.

The chambers endorsed the combined package of proposed constitutional amendments known by their sponsors as "Build Texas," which involve several bond issues and other proposals related to economic development.

Throngs honor tot's rescuers

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
MIDLAND — Led by a squadron of police cars and Winnie the Pooh, home-grown heroes — the volunteers who rescued Jessica McClure from an abandoned water well — paraded through Midland's streets Thursday before thousands of cheering residents.

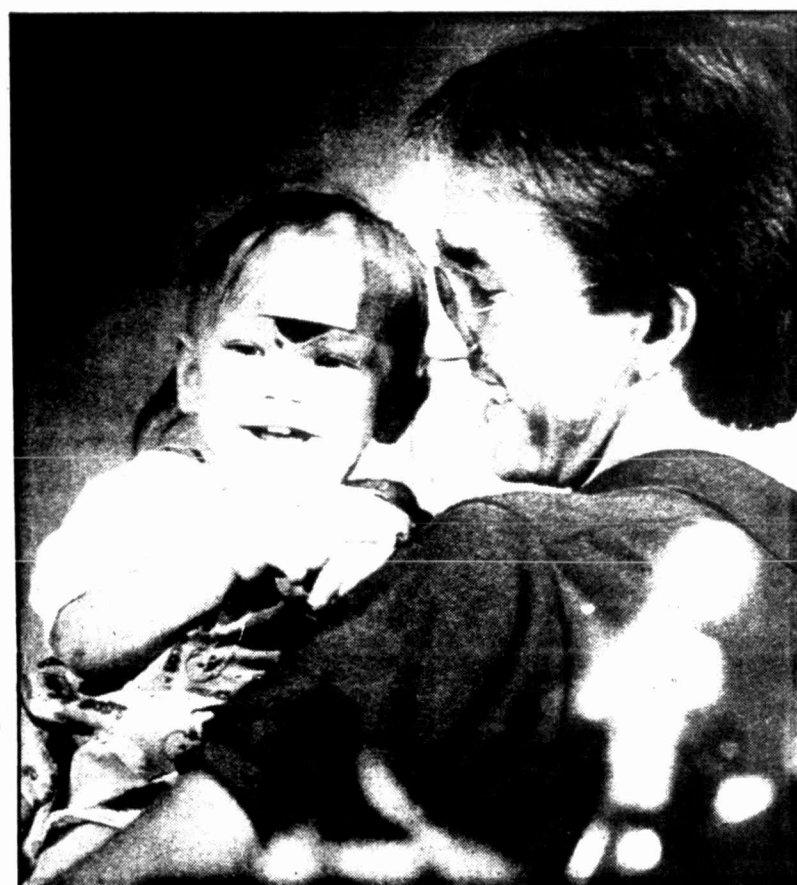

The crowds were heaviest outside Midland Memorial Hospital, where the 19-month-old child, perched on her mother's shoulders, smiled and waved from her hospital window at the 400-plus volunteers who helped save her life Oct. 16.

"I've never seen so many people so proud before in my life," said Donna Friday, a neighbor of the Tanner Street residence where Jessica was trapped 22 feet down in the well shaft for 58 hours. "That little girl is going to have a wonderful memory of this day forever."

Hundreds of Midlanders marched or rode in the mile-long parade to the city's civic center, where there were free hot dogs and cake for all. Truckloads of grinning oilfield roughnecks who drilled the tunnel to free the toddler blew kisses and tossed candy to children along the route. Paramedics rode atop ambulances, and hospital workers were perched atop hay bales loaded on a flatbed truck.

"This is a celebration of life," said Robert O'Donnell, the fire department paramedic who freed Jessica from the shaft. "None of us could have done it alone. It took every one of us."

Police Chief Richard Czech, who served as the primary spokesman during the rescue operation two weeks ago, estimated that up to 40,000 people turned out for the celebration.

Schools and businesses closed early to watch or participate in the parade. One truck carried twin port-a-potties painted with the legend, "B & W Toilets wishes you a speedy recovery."

Along the parade route, trees and street signs were festooned with pink ribbons and balloons honoring Jessica's rescuers.

The parade ended with speeches honoring the volunteers outside the civic center, where thousands of onlookers pressed forward to cheer and snap photos.

Jessica's the focus of two national television shows

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Two nationally televised shows today feature interviews with rescuers and parents of 19-month-old Jessica McClure, the toddler that captured the nation's attention when she fell down an abandoned Midland well Oct. 14.

The syndicated Oprah Winfrey Show was broadcast live from 9 to 10 a.m. Central Standard Time from the Midland Center, 105 N. Main St. and 20/20 is scheduled to broadcast a segment about Jessica during its 9 p.m. show.

Chicago, where the Winfrey show usually originates, called the live Winfrey broadcast, but the majority of markets will air the show this afternoon, according to spokeswoman Alice McGee.

About 200 volunteers were expected to be seated in the 1,258-seat center, McGee said Thursday evening during a news media reception at the Midland

Hilton.

The six telephone exchanges in the Midland-Odessa area received more than 900,000 calls between 9 and 11 a.m. Wednesday from people attempting to get tickets, the Associated Press reported.

The child's parents, Chip and Cissy McClure, appeared on the show, along with Keisha Knight Pulliam, the young star of the "Cosby Show." Pulliam sent Jessica a teddy bear after her rescue.

The tot was rescued after spending 58½ hours in a 22-foot deep well.

The rescue effort involved the combined effort of an estimated 450 people who helped drill the rescue hole, control crowds and provide refreshments during the ordeal.

Thousands thronged Midland streets Thursday to watch a parade honoring the volunteers.

Big Spring, Forsan school enrollments up, Coahoma down

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

One of the more pleasant aspects of Big Spring school district's increased enrollment is that state support won't decline this school year.

Sixty-four more students are enrolled in school in Big Spring this school year, and Assistant Superintendent for Personnel and Instruction Murphy said attendance has increased accordingly.

Local schools have 4,545 students enrolled this year, an increase from 4,481 the previous year. Of that figure, the local district is averaging 96 percent daily attendance — a large enough count to ensure the same state funding as last year, Murphy said.

Elementary schools have an enrollment of 2,202 students and secondary schools have 2,216 students enrolled, he added.

The assistant superintendent credits district student and parents for the large attendance figures.

"The students and their parents understand the importance of good attendance to the district," he said. "They know that the more state funding we have, the less likely it is that we'd have to raise local taxes."

"We're very happy with the 96 percent figure," he continued. "We'd like to have 100 percent attendance, but anything over 96 would just be a plus."

While not necessarily meaning more state revenues, the increased attendance will result in a "loosening up" of the local district's budget. The district is now less likely to have to increase taxes, Murphy added.

The Coahoma school district is facing a possible loss of between $10,000 and $20,000 because of decreased attendance figures, according to Superintendent Gary Rotan.

He said the district would have had to average 97.5 percent attendance this month to retain its full entitlement from the state. Estimates for October places the student count at between 96 percent and 97 percent.

Rotan stressed, however, that Coahoma didn't figure the full state entitlement into its current budget, so he doesn't foresee any increase in local taxes.

"The actual dollars in the budget will be sufficient to cover our needs. We're still in good shape," he said.

State aid amounts to about $1,388 per student, or approximately one-third of Coahoma's per-pupil expenses, Rotan added.

Forsan Superintendent J.F. Poyner said attendance at his schools are increased from the previous year and, as a result, he isn't expecting any loss of state revenue.

Two teens charged in policeman murder

MIDLOTHIAN, Texas (AP) — A teen-ager charged with capital murder in the shooting death of an undercover policeman was appointed a lawyer at a preliminary hearing today, while police in Arizona say they want to question the youth further about an attack on another teen-ager there.

Authorities investigating the June beating of a Williams, Ariz., youth said they want to question again Richard Goeglein Jr., 17, who has told police he was only a witness to the baseball-bat beating incident. The Dallas Morning News reported today.

In Midlothian, Goeglein and a 16-year-old have been charged with the shooting death of George Raffield, a 21-year-old undercover narcotics officer, whose body was found Saturday. Goeglein has told police he was only a witness to the Raffield shooting, according to the teen-ager's attorney, Brad Lollar.

Raffield had been posing as a student at Midlothian High School, where both suspects attend school, to investigate drug trafficking. The name of the 16-year-old suspect has not been released because he is a juvenile.

Goeglein, whose family moved from Williams to Midlothian less than a month after the Arizona beating, was not charged in that incident. But Coconino County, Ariz., law enforcement officials have acknowledged that Goeglein changed his story at least twice when he implicated another youth in the beating.

Investigators in the Midlothian killing and the attempted homicide in Arizona said both incidents involved "occult activities."

In a pretrial hearing on the Arizona beating in July, Goeglein testified that he had been involved in occult activities, which he considered religious.

"Sometimes I have seen the occult. I have checked it out before," Goeglein testified, according to a court transcript.

Meanwhile, an affidavit given by Texas Ranger George Turner said that another Midlothian High School student told investigators he saw the two suspects drive away in a pickup last Friday with Raffield. The youth later picked up the two suspects near where searchers found Raffield's body.

Turner's affidavit said the teen-ager told him the 16-year-old suspect "had shown him a pistol and told him that he and Richard Goeglein were going to kill officer Raffield," according to a story in the Dallas Times Herald.

Goeglein also implicated the third teen-ager in his statement to police following his arrest, said his attorney.

Condo concept is nothing new

You don't think of the early Pueblo Indians as having lived in condos, but that's what they did. In New Mexico are the remains of same, now abandoned. Market fell out for them, too.

because Julius Caesar had been delivered that way, why was it called that?

A. Because in Roman law — lex cesare — one statute stipulated such an operation could be performed to try to save the fetus, if a woman died in her last months of pregnancy. But that law wasn't written until about 600 years after Caesar was born.

Langley death under investigation

The death of a 68-year-old Fairview man — pinned beneath a tractor in a cotton field eight miles north of Big Spring on Highway 87 Thursday — was still being investigated by Howard County authorities this morning.

Vernon Wilson Langley was declared dead at the scene at 1:58 p.m. Thursday by Justice of the Peace Bill Shankles.

Shankles said Langley was using a farm tractor to grade a silo pit in the field when the tractor overturned, pinning Langley underneath. Cause of Langley's death is being withheld until further investigation, Shankles said.

However, Sheriff A.N. Standard said heart failure may have contributed to the death.

Langley's body was found about 1:30 p.m., according to authorities.

The Big Spring fire department was summoned and used the "Jaws of Life" to lift the tractor and remove Langley's body, according to fire reports.

Deaths

Vernon Langley

Vernon Langley, 68, died Thursday Oct. 29, 1987 at his home after a sudden illness.

Services are at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel with Rev. Leslie Kelley, a Baptist minister, officiating, assisted by Rev. Larry Tarver, pastor of Prairieview Baptist Church. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

He was born December 5, 1918, in Clyde. He married Emma Jean Haggard November 29, 1946 in Big Spring. He came to the community of Fairview in Howard County with his parents the late Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Langley in 1923. He was raised here and attended area schools, and graduated from Big Spring High School in 1936.

He was a farmer all of his life and made his home in the Fairview Community. He also worked in Civil Service at Webb AFB, in automobile maintenance from 1952 to 1961. He retired from farming in 1971. He was a member of Prairieview Baptist Church and A.F.G.E. Local NO. 1926.

He served in the Army in the 36th Infantry Division for four½ years during World War II. He was part of the invasions of North Africa, Salerno, Italy, and D-Day in France. He also saw action in Germany and was discharged while in Austria. He received five Battle Stars, Indianhead Arrow, and other medals.

Survivors include his wife, Jean, of the Fairview Community; one daughter, Mary Elaine Salyer, of Lubbock; one brother, J.T., of Big Spring; and one sister, Geneva Reagan, of Big Spring; and two grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by four brothers, Leonard, Louie, W.B., and Cleatus, and one sister Clara Smith.

Police beat

Herald staff report

A robbery, a theft and three burglaries were reported to Big Spring police Thursday.

• Garland McMahon, 57 1400 Nolan, told police that he was assaulted and robbed of a wallet containing $8 and credit cards. The incident occurred at Sheppard Lane and East Fifteenth St., according to police reports.

• James Labrew, 1105 North Gregg St., reported the theft of a portable air tank. The tank was valued at $38.

• Dennis Heffington, Jr., 906 Nolan St., told police that someone entered his vehicle and stole a cassette tape player valued at $140.

• E.S. Dawson, 311 Northeast Tenth St., reported the theft of a cassette tape player, a .22 caliber pistol and two rods and reels. The items, valued at $352, were stolen by someone who burglarized Dawson's vehicle, police reports said.

• Hattie Owens, 2505 Ann Drive, told police that someone entered her home and stole a billfold and purse.

Big Spring police also made five arrests Thursday.

• Geraldine Flores Lopez, 39, 1708 Johnson St., was arrested on a charge of DWI.

• Troy Yules Barrett, 21, 1503 State St., was arrested on charges of failure to have automobile liability insurance and DWI.

• Stanley Victor Taylor, 23, 709 East Twelfth St., was arrested for failure to appear on an original DWI charge and public intoxication.

• Ricky Wayne Patterson, 27, 609 Linda Lane, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

• Albert Aguilar, 42, 1010 South Nolan St., was arrested on a charge of resisting arrest. Aguilar was transferred to the Howard County Jail and released on $500 bond.

He is estimating an average daily attendance of 518 students this month, an increase of 14 from October 1986. This represents approximately 96 percent of the 540 enrolled, he added.

Poyner stressed, however, that his district is not as dependent on state aid as other districts may be. "We're not that drastically afected by state funds as others are," he said. "Every school district gets a different percentage of state funding, and we aren't as dependent on it as some other districts."

Forsan schools receive an average of $220 per student, so any decrease in state financing would not have a significant adverse effect on the district's budget, he added.

McGee said, but said "we wanted to get to the heart of the matter."

It wasn't just the McClure's involvement that contributed to the national spotlight, but the hundreds of volunteers who assisted and the thousands of area residents who prayed and kept vigil, she said. "There's no greater beauty than triumph over tragedy."

McGee said today's show was only the second time that Winfrey and her crew produced a live, on-location show.

The other instance was a controversial program taped in all-white Forsyth County — a community thrust into the spotlight when it was labeled racist. The news magazine show 20/20, to air this evening, has interviewed many different people involved in the rescue effort, including Midland Police officials, Jeff McDonald, promotion assistant at Midland's KMID Channel 2, said.

The show will present a segment on Jessica during Friday's 9 p.m. program.

The show's Oct. 16 broadcast contained footage of Jessica being brought out of the well and being transported to the hospital, McDonald said, adding that the show's co-host, Barbara Walters, called Midland Memorial Hospital for information on the child's condition.

Snakes alive! Gramm — 'Conchos enough'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Initial findings by biologists suggest the Concho River water snake is thriving in West Texas instead of dying and should not be responsible for stalling construction of Stacy Dam, officials said Thursday.

The findings by biologists for the Colorado River Municipal Water District contradict fears expressed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that the snake may face extinction if the dam is built.

Fish and Wildlife Service officials earlier this year ordered the district to study the snake's environment and to construct an alternative habitat for it at an estimated cost of $3.5 million, according to Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

"Recent reports from biologists working for the local water district have concluded that the snakes thrive in areas both in and around the Stacy Reservoir water basin and that they will continue to thrive regardless of the new reservoir," Gramm said.

"The evidence is now overwhelming and it clearly demonstrates that the Concho River water snake is alive and well in the Permian Basin. For this reason, local ratepayers should not be required to foot the bill for creating new habitats for the snake," he said.

Gramm outlined his concerns in a letter to Fish and Wildlife Service Director Frank Dunkle, questioning whether the current plan is fair to local residents and urging Dunkle to reconsider the stringent permit requirements.

O.H. Ivie, general manager for the water district, said more than 500 snakes have been found in the vicinity of the reservoir and living in nearby lakes and reservoirs.

"We have made a study and we have been delighted with our initial findings," he said, adding that the district will continue its work on the snakes' habitat, study of its food sources and hibernation conditions.

"But if the senator feels like there's been enough snakes found to go back to Fish and Wildlife, more power to him. We're with him," Ivie said.

The Stacy Reservoir is expected to cost $70 million to build and would provide water to West Texas communities. If the project proceeds as planned, the reservoir will begin to accept impounded water in 1990.

Police reassure worried West Texans

LEVELLAND (AP) — Police are reassuring townspeople worried about reports of devil worshippers that Halloween will be no more dangerous than any other night.

For weeks, rumors have circulated about a group of devil worshippers who held satanic rituals that included the sacrificing of animals.

Authorities even found an abandoned farmhouse where the satanists purportedly met. But there was nary a drop of blood at the scene — only red paint and empty beer cans, said police investigator Tom McCain.

He said the walls were splattered with hand prints, upside-down crosses, pentagrams and 666, a biblical symbol for the Antichrist. McCain said phrases such as "Satan will forever be your savior" also adorned the walls.

But no dead animals or blood were found at the house, he said.

"The house had been shot up with guns and there were beer cans everywhere, but that's about the extent of it," McCain said.

He said the fire department later burned down the house at the request of the owner, who was concerned about liability problems.

Cisneros child's surgery delayed

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros' 4-month-old son won't need surgery to correct his deformed heart for up to three years, doctors at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia say.

The mayor and his wife, Mary Alice, brought John Paul Anthony to Philadelphia for a second opinion on a diagnosis provided by Texas doctors. The child suffers from the congenital defect asplenic syndrome, an abnormality that includes complex heart defects.

Dr. John D. Murphy, a child heart specialist, performed a cardiac catheterization Thursday.

Murphy said no decision has been made on when or where the child will undergo surgery. But he said he believes the Cisneroses want Dr. John D. Norwood, who invented surgical procedures used to treat children with severe heart deformities, to perform the operation at Children's Hospital.

"The procedure went well and we found that the physiology of the heart was remarkably good," Murphy said. "We are optimistic that reconstructive surgery can be done for him."

Only the rescue tops feeling of a parade

MIDLAND (AP) — Almost nothing can beat a parade held in your honor, one of Jessica McClure's rescuers says.

Almost. "It was super," said Bruce Peeler, who helped rescue the 10-month-old toddler from a well two weeks ago. "It makes you feel good — not quite as good as when she came out of the well."

Participating in the parade were Peeler and about 400 other volunteers who helped drill

Jessica's rescue shaft, control crowds and serve refreshments during the 58-hour ordeal.

"It was kind of a dream come true," said Kragg Robinson, who donated a large drilling rig called a ratholer to help drill the rescue shaft.

"You know when you're a kid you see those movies where you see people get a ticker-tape parade, you never believe it can happen to you," Robinson said. "I still can't believe it."

When the Robinson's contraption rolled past crowds at Thursday's parade, people roared their approval. The only float that got more applause was a flatbed trailer covered by men who spent 45-minute shifts hand-drilling through solid rock to reach Jessica.

Police Chief Richard Cizek estimated 35,000 people lined the streets to watch the parade. Jessica watched from a window in Midland Memorial Hospital, where she is recovering from a foot injury.

Not all of the workers who were honored Thursday were hole-drillers. Also taking part in the parade were directory assistance operators who handled a deluge of calls from well-wishers; Red Cross and Salvation Army volunteers who handed out refreshments at the scene.

Bringing world to U.S. children

Eleanor M. Johnson passed away recently in a nursing home in Gaithersburg, Md. Although her name may not be familiar, her works were read by an estimated two thirds of all the adults living in the United States today.

She was the founder of My Weekly Reader, the brightly colored periodical that's been helping put generations of American elementary school children in touch with the news for almost six decades.

An elementary schoolteacher herself, she first conceived of the Weekly Reader as an alternative to the fairy tales and fantasy that children in those days read in abundance. Her genius, as the current editor of the paper observes, consisted in the fact that, "She knew how to connect kids to the world."

She knew some other things as well. The first issue, published Sept. 21, 1928, perfectly encapsulated Johnson's sense of how current events could be translated into terms that she thought would interest young people.

It also illustrated the relentlessly upbeat approach that successfully insulated the Weekly Reader from controversy and thereby ensured its acceptance by school administrators across the country.

The cover story that first time out dealt with the presidential campaigns of Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith by focusing on their childhood under the heading, "Two Poor Boys Who Made Good Are Now Running for the Highest Office in the World."

As the years passed and the paper's circulation swelled to a high of 13 million at the crest of the baby boom in the late 1960s, Johnson continued to explain in simple prose the ebb and flow of wars around the world, the Great Depression, assassinations, breakthroughs in science and sports and the struggle for civil rights.

The objective of Weekly Reader, according to its publisher, is the same today as when Johnson created it: "To present selected, well-written news of interest and value to children with accuracy and fairness, colorful but uncolored."

Johnson pursued that objective for half a century until her retirement at the age of 85. And she leaves behind an institution that's drawn numerous competitors but still is striving to open the eyes and expand the horizons of 9 million children every week, and all for only $2 a year.

'Unsung heroes' praised for efforts

To the editor: Unsung heroes! I was on a regular visit at Scenic Mountain Center yesterday.

What I experienced did not really shoot my mind until later that evening when I read that (New York) Gov. (Mario) Cuomo declared a "Midland Day" in New York State.

We are familiar with that story. I was called to the Emergency Room at the hospital. There I witnessed a scene that for me equaled the Jessica (McClure) scene.

It involved a group of people:

doctors, technicians and nurses giving every ounce of strength, every nerve of skill, every iota of knowledge they possessed, to save a life. Such an event takes place often in many areas.

Just as in Midland in the case of Jessica and yesterday at the Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a great number of people, "unsung heroes," are continually giving everything they have to assist their fellow human beings.

Praised be God, REV. STEPHEN WHITE, M.S.C. Pastor

Resident scolds criticizer of police

To the editor: I'm writing this letter in rebuttal to the letter titled "Driver dislikes police patrol tactics."

Dear Mr. Proctor, I'm so tired of hearing people like yourself bad mouthing our local police department. You should go to a bigger city and see how other police department personnel handle their citizens.

For those speed traps, as you so called it, are an effective way of handling speeding motorists — in order to stop speeding motorists such as yourself and curb motor vehicle accidents and personal injury.

If you obeyed the speed limit you would not have a need to watch out for police and you could watch out for our children like you should be doing anyway. As a good defensive driver should.

And while you were busy bad mouthing the police department and decided to bad mouth our city government, you should know that speed zones are set and governed by this state's legislature. In the Texas traffic law book it states that all municipal residential zones should be kept at a speed of not more than 30 miles per hour, for the safety of those who reside in those neighborhoods.

I don't know where you arrived at the $2,000 to $5,000 in fines but I can assure you that your figures are exaggerated.

It would do this city a lot of good to start standing behind your local police department, as so many other cities do, instead of bad mouthing them.

In the future, Mr. Proctor, should you ever fall victim to a crime, who do think you'll call for help? Yes, the Big Spring Police Department. And they will help you regardless of the fact that you've tried to run the good people of the police department through the mud.

So, in the meantime while you drive your car, watch out for the children we all want to protect and obey the speed limit posted.

Convicted U.S. official claims boss endorsed illegal action

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — A former Health and Human Services Department official who pleaded guilty to conflict of interest how claims that then-Secretary Margaret Heckler not only knew about the situation but encouraged the activities that led to the charges against him, according to court documents.

C. McClain Haddow, Heckler's former chief of staff, was sentenced to a year in prison after he acknowledged that he arranged for his wife, Alice, to accept payment through a phony contractor for speeches she had written for Heckler.

But Haddow insists he didn't know he was breaking the law, and says that when he realized it almost a year later and discussed the matter with Heckler, she told him not to worry about it.

A spokesman for Heckler, who is now ambassador to Ireland, said, "The case is still in litigation and it would be inappropriate to comment."

On Oct. 2, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell stayed Haddow's prison sentence without explanation. Neither the prosecutor nor the defense attorney would comment. HHS press secretary Chuck Line said he is unaware of any investigation into Heckler's possible involvement in the case.

"As far as the allegations against Secretary Heckler, that's exactly what they are — allegations," he told our reporter Tanya Isch.

In a letter that is part of the court records, Haddow's attorney, Brian Gettings, wrote to HHS general counsel Ronald Robertson last month that Heckler had told Haddow she wanted his wife to work as a subcontractor for a speech writing firm used by the department.

"It was also Mr. Haddow's understanding," Gettings wrote, "that she wanted the relationship to be undertaken in a manner so that Mrs. Haddow's role as one of her speech writers would not be open and obvious."

"Secretary Heckler was concerned, among other things, about criticism which could result from yet another husband-wife team performing critical functions at the upper echelons of the department."

Two such teams Gettings mentioned were Juan del Real, former assistant general counsel, and Claire del Real, former deputy assistant secretary for public affairs, and Phillip Hawkes, former director of the Office of Refugee Resettlement, and Theresa Hawkes, former deputy assistant secretary for legislation.

"There's something else. You promised me a mink coat for winter and it's already October and we can't afford it because Samuel Gompers here is on strike from a job that pays him more than the president makes."

"But, sweetie. It's a matter of principle."

"Don't sweetie, me. It's a matter of debt is what it's a matter of. I didn't marry an autoworker. I married an NFL quarterback who makes an obscene amount of money and then refuses to take it so he can walk around all day dressed in a sandwich board."

"Twenty-nine, but that's close. Don't you think you and those thicknecked teammates of yours are acting like little boys?"

"You're out shoving people around and breaking things and playing cry baby to the press, and I'm stuck here with all these bills to pay."

"Bills?"

"Bills, Mr. Touchdown. The house payment is due. Do you know what it costs to live in a $500,000 house?"

"That's not all. There's payment on my Mercedes and that silly truck you drive with the big wheels."

According to Gettings' letter, when Haddow first realized there was a possible conflict-of-interest problem, in January 1985, he mentioned it to Heckler. Gettings wrote:

"Secretary Heckler ... advised Mr. Haddow at that time that she was the official in the department that was making the decisions regarding Mrs. Haddow's speech-writing efforts; that Mr. Haddow had no role in the matter other than as a conduit for executing her decisions. In the conversation about the (conflict-of-interest) statute, Secretary Heckler stated that Mr. Haddow would 'never have to worry about this.'"

Also included in the court records are the results of a polygraph test Haddow took on Sept. 10, 1987, indicating that he was not lying when he made the allegation about Heckler.

In another letter in the court record, former Heckler speech writer William Nixon wrote to Judge Gesell that there was nothing suspicious or unusual in the lack of evidence that Heckler ever used any of the speech material Mrs. Haddow was paid for writing.

Nixon, now a speech writer for Sen. William Roth Jr., R-Del., wrote that Heckler rejected or ignored as much as 90 percent of the speeches written in-house, reassigning them to outside contractors. Even then, he added, she often didn't use any of the speeches, but improvised from the various drafts in front of her.

FREE COAL FROM UNCLE SAM — Sloppy management of the federal government's coal leases has cost the taxpayers $187 million to royalties and rent payments that were never collected on long-term leases, congressional investigators have found.

The reason, according to the General Accounting Office, is that Bureau of Land Management administrators simply failed to recalculate the higher rates ordered by a 1976 amendment to the Federal Coal Leasing Act when long-term leases came up for renewal.

The auditors said that improvements in the bureau's accounting systems resulted in only one lease being improperly renegotiated last year.

Relatives force down chicken soup

By ALISHA GOLDMAN
Copy Editor

I recently contracted an unusual illness that brought upon me a classic "chicken soup" experience.

My grandmother and great-aunt happened to be spending the night with me on their return trip to South Texas when I contracted the sickness.

Otherwise, I might have been ill in peace.

Instead, my grandmother predicted my imminent departure into the next world when she looked at me and ordered me to the doctor.

A visit to my physician produced the appropriate "um-hm," and "aha's," before he admitted he wasn't sure what I had or whether he could help.

I begged him not to return me to my kin empty-handed. They weren't about to allow me to heal in solitude without medical approval.

I cried: "Give me sugar pills, a shot, anything, but I can't go home without proof I won't die! They'll give me every home remedy in the book!"

He obliged me, and I felt triumphant as I gravely told them I had a "facial infection" and showed them the prescription for antibiotics.

Alas, my effort was futile.

Grandmother was back on the phone with my mother, saying I needed a second opinion. But I wasn't about to spend another afternoon in a waiting room just to convince them I didn't face immediate extinction.

As I popped antibiotics to smother any bacteria in my system, I assured them all was under control.

But the next morning I felt worse than a ship of sailors after a weekend leave. At the same time I informed my colleagues I'd not be in the office, I insisted that my relatives continue their trip home. Truthfully, I was eager to cry and moan with no audience.

My grandmother, however, again called the institution she was convinced I needed most: my mother.

As a 27-year-old woman making her own way in the world, it is rather embarrassing to have mom called and advised to miss work and travel 130 miles to care for me over the weekend.

The real problem was that nobody knew what to give me. The adage "starve a cold, feed a fever" was inapplicable. The vaporizer was useless.

But leave it to a caring grandmother and great-aunt to seek a remedy.

First, an ice pack was made. They were hysterical at finding I was running low on ice for packs on my face — I might die!

Then vitamin E pills were produced. I had to frequently open a capsule and apply the oozy liquid to my blistered lip.

My great-aunt practiced reflexology (massaging of the feet) to cure my headache and perhaps scare away the infection, she claimed. I must admit it produced some relief.

My grandmother did go on her way finally and I slept soundly through the day — until she called to see how I was doing.

The next morning, my parents arrived at my doorstep — they hadn't been convinced the grim reaper was on his way.

I had not seen the last of the home remedies.

A bottle of multi-vitamins was the first one, and it was accompanied by a lecture from my father.

Next, the refrigerator was filled with yogurt. "I've heard it helps against viruses," my mother proclaimed.

Dad contributed a bottle of Milk of Magnesia, which I was forced to gargle for the cankers — this was an ugly infection.

Finally, my Tylenol was replaced with Advil. "The latest thing going in non-aspirin medicine," declared dad.

I was surrounded by bottles of aspirin (two brands), sleeping pills, pain pills, antibiotics, Milk of Magnesia, Vitamin E pills, yogurt (all flavors), and multi-vitamins.

The next day, I was coming out of the infection and feeling better.

As a medical experiment, I was a failure — we'll never know if it was the antibiotics or all the "chicken soup" that scared away the infection.

But if loving care played a role, there's no doubt where the cure — whatever it was — originated.

U.S.-Soviet talks begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze re-opened talks today with Secretary of State George P. Shultz amid indications plans for another superpower summit may finally have jelled.

"I think they are going to set a date. Everything is going smoothly," Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh said.

More cautious, Shevardnadze told reporters "just wait a few hours" as he shook hands and posed for pictures with Shultz in the Treaty Room of the State Department.

Meese before grand jury

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edwin Meese III was whisked into an underground garage today at the U.S. Courthouse and ushered before a federal grand jury for what was expected to be several hours of questioning about his involvement with scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp.

The nation's top law enforcement officer was accompanied by two private attorneys representing him in a criminal investigation of the attorney general that began last May 11.

Meese was driven into the courthouse sub-basement through a side entrance, bypassing a clutch of photographers at the front door. He said hello to reporters before entering the grand jury room, but otherwise made no comment.

Threatening letters fake

SAN FRANCISCO — Two threatening letters sent to newspapers by someone claiming to be the Zodiac serial killer were declared fakes by crime experts familiar with the case.

Many San Francisco Bay area residents remained fearful, however, that Halloween night could bring more bizarre action. There were reports that a symbol used by the killer was left outside the home of the sister of one of the Zodiac's victims.

Police say Zodiac killed at least five people, apparently starting Dec. 20, 1968, with two shootings in Vallejo, 40 miles northeast of San Francisco. The killer, in bizarre, rambling letters to newspapers from 1968-74, claimed he killed at least 37 times since 1966.

Band leader Herman dies

LOS ANGELES — Big Band leader Woody Herman, who hit the charts in 1939 with "Woodchoppers' Ball" and kept in tune with America for much of the next half-century playing bebop, funk, jazz and rock, is dead at 74.

The clarinetist died Thursday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center of cardiac arrest.

He had suffered for weeks from heart failure, emphysema and pneumonia, had been confined to a wheelchair and had fallen on hard times, narrowly averting eviction from his home with help from Hollywood's entertainment community.

On the rebound

Dow Jones average nearing 2,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street's broad advance continued today with the Dow Jones industrial average climbing 59 points following strong gains on overseas exchanges.

The strong rise in the Dow average put the market's best-known barometer at about 1,997. Prices rose for 11 out of every 12 issues on the New York Stock Exchange, and were also broadly higher on the American Stock Exchange and on the over-the-counter market.

On Thursday, the closely-watched index closed up 91.51 points — its third-largest one-day point gain ever — to close at 1,938.33 after being up more than 110 points in late trading. The advance represented 5 percent of its value and followed a 0.33-point gain Wednesday.

The broader market, which had trailed the blue-chip issues represented in the Dow average, also improved Thursday, with four stocks making money for every one that lost.

Analysts said the market was up today because it was oversold following its $500 billion collapse a week ago Monday.

Wall Street's ability to shake off developments such as the dollar's decline on Thursday, "indicates an oversold market won't go down on bad news anymore," said Robert Colby, an analyst with Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co.

The dollar moved higher overseas today but fell in New York trading.

In London today, stocks rose sharply, with the Financial Times-Stock Exchange index of 100 leading shares up about 5 percent in early afternoon. The government decided late Thursday to go ahead with selling shares in British Petroleum Co., the government-owned oil giant, despite the depressed market.

The government promised to buy back any shares that could not be sold, a move that helps the brokerage firms underwriting the stock offering.

Prices also soared today on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, sending its best-known market indicator up 731.15 points in its third-biggest single-day point gain on record. The 225-stock Nikkei average closed at 22,765.04, up 3.3 percent.

On the Hong Kong Stock Exchange today, stock prices shot up over 200 points before the market began a daylong retreat. The market's blue-chip indicator, the Hang Seng index, closed at 2240.13, up 35.61 points or 1.5 percent from Thursday.

Gordon Robertson of Goldman Sachs gets a sample of the antacid Maalox near the back entrance of the New York Stock Exchange Thursday. Various antacids were probably much consumed during the recent stock crisis.

The market value of American stocks, as measured by Wilshire Associates, rose $106.57 billion, or 4.73 percent Thursday, to $2.36 trillion. On Wednesday, stocks fell $12 billion.

NYSE volume came to 258.14 million shares as trading again ended at 2 p.m. Markets have been closing two hours early to allow people to catch up on paperwork, and will have shortened hours again today.

Officials will announce later today whether the NYSE will return to its normal closing time next week, said Richard Torrenzano, an exchange spokesman.

As it did last week, the NYSE will work into the weekend to clean up orders from heavy trading. But officials said they plan to work Saturday only. Last weekend, exchange workers were pressed into service Sunday as well.

The stock market rose steadily Thursday although the dollar fell and stock prices dipped on Far East exchanges. In early European trading today, the dollar benefited from massive central bank intervention and rallied against all key currencies.

The dollar sank Thursday to its lowest level since the late 1940s against the Japanese yen and also reached lows against the major European currencies.

Traders said the dollar fell because of a market conviction that the Reagan administration was not firmly committed to

Missile strikes Iraq

BAGHDAD, Iraq — An Iranian missile slammed into a residential neighborhood of this capital today. The military said it killed civilians, but did not say how many.

Iran said the missile was aimed at Iraq's air force command.

A column of smoke rose from the site of impact, witnesses said.

An Iraqi military spokesman said "a number of citizens were martyred and another number wounded." The unidentified spokesman read a communique on Baghdad radio.

The missile demolished a number of civilian residences and damaged others, he said.

Man seized at Vatican

VATICAN CITY — Vatican security officers grabbed an American man today as he ran toward Pope John Paul II screaming during a Mass in St. Peter's Basilica, a Vatican spokesman reported.

The man, identified as Thomas Siemer, 57, of Columbus, Ohio, charged down the center aisle of the massive basilica at the end of a Mass closing the monthlong synod of bishops and was stopped about 20 yards from the pope, said spokesman Giovanni D'Ercole.

The spokesman said the man was not armed and appeared to be mentally disturbed, adding that it was not clear what he was screaming.

Fertilizer fire doused

NANTES, France — About 25,000 residents were allowed to return to their homes today after firefighters doused a burning fertilizer silo that spewed tons of irritating chemicals into the air, officials said.

The blaze, which broke out Thursday morning and burned for nearly 24 hours, slightly injured two dozen people. Eight were hospitalized for further tests, officials said.

Authorities in this western port city announced today that atmospheric analysis throughout the night indicated the fumes had dissipated.

GIs turn farm hands

INGELHEIM AM RHEIN, West Germany — American troops in West Germany are best known for guarding missiles and manning radar stations, but during harvest time some soldiers turn farm hands, and in this town the crops are grapes.

Amid complaints of aching backs and knees, about 120 U.S. soldiers toiled in Reinhold Saalwaechter's vineyards near the Rhine in a three-week program that ended Thursday.

Like other American soldiers, they volunteered, as a good-will gesture.

"After a while, most of them didn't even bother to squat down to cut the grapes," said Staff Sgt. Marion Neff of Oak Hill, W.Va. "They just sat down on the ground and dragged themselves along."

CHILDREN'S HALLOWEEN FUN REMINDS US TO MEND OUR WAYS

We'll see them coming down the street
And hear the patter of their feet,
As voices holler, "Trick or treat!"

To liven up the scene;
Remembering our childhood days,
Before we had outgrown this phase
And taken up some evil ways

That soon became routine.
But some day we will feel the need
To learn the lessons of our creed;
And thus to help our lives succeed,

The Lord must intervene.
So let's resolve to do what's right,
Since evil's just a great delight
For children, on this spooky night
That's known as Halloween.

God has lessons to teach

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I've just had a CAT scan which shows I probably have cancer. I don't know what to do because I'm in total shock. Yes, I know I'll go to heaven if I die because I committed my life to Christ some years ago, but I never thought this would happen. I'm still relatively young and have lots of plans for the future. Why would God allow this to happen to me? — Mrs. P.Y.

DEAR MRS. P.Y.: Have you honestly asked Him this question? Have you asked God to teach you whatever lessons He wants to teach you through this experience? Don't be angry or bitter, and don't be bewildered; we may not understand all the reasons why certain things happen to us, but God knows our situation, and He can use anything that comes our way to draw us closer to Himself. "And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love him" (Romans 8:28).

I don't know, of course, what God has planned for you in the future. By the time you read this, for example, you may have discovered the cancer is not as bad as you thought, or that it can be treated. But whatever your situation, God has lessons to teach you. For example, we all need to learn how brief life is — and how important it is to live for Christ right now. Have you perhaps made the mistake of making plans without really asking if they were God's will? No matter how long or short the rest of your life may be, make it your goal to live for Christ.

Representatives attend function

Representatives from St. Mary's Episcopal School and St. Mary's Episcopal Church attended the annual diocesan functions in Odessa and Amarillo this month, according to a news release.

Faculty members participated in workshops presented by the Commission on Episcopal Schools at St. John's School, Odessa.

Attending the all-day session were LaVerne Eckley, second grade; JoAnne Bonnington, third grade; Joyce Hamlin and Kim Jones, kindergarten; Karen Fraser and Sherry Newton, pre-kindergarten; Ruth Edmonson, librarian; Sheryl Cox, teaching assistant and art appreciation.

Also attending were Bebe McCasland, administrator; Rev. R.L. Bonnington, headmaster; and Rose von Hassell, school board member.

A reception for the seven-member schools was attended by Cynthia Weeks, Rose von Hassell, Bette McKenzie and Orville Shapland.

At the diocesan convention in Amarillo, conducted at the Civic Center, St. Mary's Church was represented by delegates, Gene Adkins, Cynthia Weeks and JoAnne Guitart; wardens, Bebe McCasland and Roe Fulgham; Rev. Robert L. Bonnington, Rev. George von Hassell, JoAnne Bonnington; and vestry members, Bette McKenzie and Orville Shapland.

The convention includes elections to various diocesan offices, reports, and adoption of the yearly budget.

Appointed by the Bishop, Rev. R.L. Bonnington will serve as vice president of the Executive Council; Rev. George von Hassell will serve as chairman of the Commission on Living and Education, Bebe McCasland will serve a three-year term on the Commission on Episcopal Schools.

Worship event slated for Nov. 6

World Community Day, an annual worship event, will be observed at Nov. 6 at 10 a.m. at First Church of God, 2009 Main St., according to a news release.

Rev. Clayton Hicks, College Baptist Church pastor, will be the guest speaker. The public is invited to participate.

This event brings Christian women together to affirm their mutual commitment to work for a world that is peaceful and just for all persons regardless of race, religion or national origin.

Church Women United, sponsor, acts as the catalyst for this ecumenical gathering which takes place in some 1,800 communities across the country.

The theme of this year's service is "Sojourners for Justice," written by an ecumenical group of women and men who live and work in the South Texas border area of the United States.

They are United Methodist, Roman Catholic and Lutheran, both lay and ordained, who share a ministry to refugees as a part of their daily experience. Inspiration for this service has been drawn from the reality and stories of the many "sojourners for justice," the release stated.

World Community Day 1987 provides an opportunity for Christian women of faith to open their eyes and sensitivities to persons who come as stranger to their communities, according to the release, noting that it issues the challenge to become "human bridges" for those who seek safety and sanctuary from persecution in their own countries.

Church Women United is the national ecumenical movement that brings Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women together into one community of prayer, advocacy and service.

It represents a broad spectrum of religious tradition, race, age, economic status and ethnic background and functions through a national unit.

Unified by a common faith in Christ, the women work for the elimination of poverty of women and children and issues of peace and justice.

Offerings from this day make possible in part the mission of Church Women United through programs for spiritual and personal enrichment, development of ecumenical community, the celebratory days, networking with Christian women all over the world, according to the release.

A century of presence celebrated

St. Thomas Catholic Church celebrated 100 years of Catholic presence in Big Spring Oct. 20.

The Most Reverend Michael D. Pfeifer OMI, Bishop of the San Angelo Diocese, celebrated Holy Mass.

After Mass, a reception was conducted at St. John Hall.

Rev. Frank Beazley and Rev. Alan Brelivet, former pastors of St.

Thomas Church, joined present pastor Rev. Robert Vreteau in the celebration.

Jesuita Marquez Gonzales, who will observe her 100th birthday Dec. 24, was an honored guest.

Other members of the San Angelo, Midland and Odessa diocese, and several Big Spring officials were in attendance.

Catholic church hosts Fall Festival

St. Lawrence Catholic Church will host the St. Lawrence Fall Festival Sunday from 10:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. at the St. Lawrence Parish Hall, 10 miles south of Garden City on Highway 33, then five miles west of Highway 2401.

Homemade German sausage, barbecue, all the trimmings, and cakes and pies will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Meal tickets for adults are $5, and $3 for children under 12. Sausage sandwiches, dessert, and beverages will be served from 5 to 7 p.m.

Booths will be open from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. with spin-a-wheel, grab bag, balloons, coke ring toss, dig for gold, religious booth, and a Kountry Kitchen/Hobby Shop, featuring handcrafted items, homemade breads, jellies, pickles, relishes, and other canned items.

Bingo will be from noon to 4 p.m. Auctioneer Herb Henderson will auction items at 2 p.m.

Raffle tickets will be sold for a handmade queen-size quilt, a Remington 700 deer rifle and a vented rib 870 Remington Shotgun. Drawings will be conducted at the dance, which will be from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., featuring The Cavaliers from San Angelo. The dance is $5 per person.

Proceeds will go to the church.

ST. CHARLES, Ill. (AP) — Bishops of the Episcopal Church say that either expressing faith without acting on it, or acting on faith without expressing it lacks the "fullness of our gospel."

"Words and action are two sides of the same coin," the bishops said in a pastoral letter. "So are justice and proclamation, witness and service."

"There is no evangelism that does not work for justice and no work for justice that is not evangelism. The heart of the gospel cannot be divided."

The bishops, at their meeting, also reaffirmed that they would "ordain women as bishops as soon as they are duly elected and approved," but took steps to keep peace with a minority of bishops who oppose it.

The report, adopted by a vote of 113-17, urged Episcopalians to "work assiduously to avoid any division or dissension which such action might cause."

NEW YORK (AP) — Patriarch Vasken I, supreme Catholicos of the Armenian Church, says Armenians in the Soviet Union and America "welcome with open hearts" East-West steps toward reducing nuclear weapons.

Vasken, visiting the Armenian Church of America from his see at Etchmiadzin in Soviet Armenia, says, "We are well aware that unless there is peaceful cooperation between nations, it will be impossible to go on living in the world today."

To bee or not to bee

Max Beck, a 23-year-old television production manager from Arcola, Pa., is immersed in a sea of bees while breaking his own Guinness record for covering his body with more than 100,000 bees on "The Spectacular World of Guinness Records," scheduled to air Nov. 3 on syndicated television. His previous record was 70,000.

Thieves unlikely to have policy of return

DEAR ABBY: Some woman wrote to say she got "ripped off" when a thief stole her purse. It contained her wallet, driver's license, credit cards, irreplaceable pictures of her children when they were babies, prescription glasses, address book, bank book, etc. And you suggested that maybe the thief will be decent enough to keep the cash and return the other items that are of use only to the owner. Get real, Abby.

The last decent thief was the one that hanged on the cross beside Christ. He repented. The other thief didn't.

Dear Abby

This woman is crying about losing baby pictures, the only ones she had of her children. (good! They grew up faster than she did.)

Smart people don't carry anything of value around with them anymore. Lunch money should be the limit.

When will people get wise?

CITY WISE, CARRIES NOTHING

DEAR CITY WISE: The letter from "Ripped Off" prompted many letters from readers who had this valuable message to thieves: "Keep the cash, but drop the purse and wallet into any postal box. It will be delivered to the owner who will be more than happy to pay the postage due."

DEAR ABBY: I always read your column and I will continue to, but I notice more and more of a tendency to "help" your readers too much and entertain them too little. Example: Today's column contained three worthwhile items — don't let strangers know your travel plans, the Red Cross lawn mower safety classes, and Alice Faye's free exercise plan for the elderly. All very good information and likely to benefit a lot of people. Abby, I won't belabor the point. But if you become just another column of "safety advice," you might bore readers to the point where they won't read it — and then who benefits?

CAROLE R., ITASCA, ILL.
DEAR CAROLE: Thanks for writing. I can always learn, and appreciate the nudge.

Readers' drop me a line and let me know what you like and what you don't like about my column.

DEAR ABBY: "Going Crazy" will be relieved to learn that the author is Charles E. Hollingsworth, M.D. — a Los Angeles psychiatrist. I found the poem in "The Family in Mourning" — a guide for health professionals, published in 1977. It was read at the funeral of a friend of mine. REGINA THOMPSON, WALHALLA, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: I read in The Sacramento Bee that you are searching for the author of a poem recited as a eulogy for John Wayne.

I have a tattered copy of that poem and the author is Clare Harner Lyon. PEGGY GRIEVE, ELK GROVE, CALIF.

Ginsburg considered 'long way from Bork'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Douglas H. Ginsburg, a youthful federal judge and former professor, is an open-minded conservative whose record poses few obstacles to Supreme Court confirmation, friends and colleagues said Thursday.

"He's a long way from Bork," said Richard Stewart, a Harvard University law professor and former colleague of Ginsburg. "I don't think he has an established track record" of controversial views, Stewart added.

Ginsburg, 41, was nominated to replace retired Justice Lewis F. Powell by President Reagan after the Senate defeated Robert H. Bork, the president's first choice who was portrayed as a rigid, right-wing ideologue.

There has been some speculation that Ginsburg's nomination, urged by Attorney General Edwin Meese III, could touch off another Senate fight. Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., is said to have warned Reagan administration officials that Ginsburg has expressed controversial views.

But publicized evidence of such controversy is lacking. Unlike Bork, Ginsburg has not written extensive and provocative criticism of key Supreme Court rulings on civil rights and individual liberties.

If confirmed, Ginsburg would be one of the youngest justices in history and would be the first Jewish member of the court in 18 years.

Like Bork, Ginsburg is a judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here, an antitrust expert with a similar conservative academic background. And he has a beard.

But the similarities may stop there. "He's open-minded" in dealing with the issues, said Michael Botein, a professor at New York Law School who is helping update a casebook Ginsburg wrote on communications law.

Botein said Ginsburg is "a believer in the marketplace" who favors limited government regulation but is willing to change his mind when presented new evidence.

David M. Rice, assistant professor at Touro Law College in Huntington, N.Y., who also is collaborating on the casebook, said Ginsburg is a staunch supporter of free-speech rights.

"He thinks the government should stay away" from regulation of broadcasters, Rice said.

Another law school professor, John H. Donohue of Northwestern, predicted that Ginsburg will face smoother sailing in the Senate because he is unburdened by a controversial past.

"He doesn't have the baggage of being involved in a major government scandal," Donohue said.

Bork was a key figure in the so-called Saturday Night Massacre of 1973, carrying out President Nixon's order to fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Donohue also noted that Ginsburg's youth could mean he will have an influence on the high court for decades.

He added that Ginsburg, slim and athletic looking, is "much more health conscious than Bork," a burly cigarette smoker who is 19 years older than Ginsburg.

Friends describe Ginsburg as low-key, witty and self-effacing.

"He takes what he does seriously, but he doesn't take himself seriously," said John Carley, a New York lawyer who knows Ginsburg from their days in the Reagan administration.

Carley said he and Ginsburg traveled overseas several times when they were working on antitrust matters. "He's a good traveling companion," Carley said, citing one occasion when the two men and Ginsburg's wife were in Hong Kong.

President Reagan escorts Douglas H. Ginsburg, bearded, his nominee for the Supreme Court, from a ceremony in the East Room of the White House Thursday.

Change in strategy, tactics detected in new nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — In using an ornate East Room setting to present his newest Supreme Court nominee, President Reagan displayed what could be the first of several changes in strategy to get a conservative confirmed.

Reagan, on July 1, had brought appeals court judge Robert H. Bork to the White House press room to announce his nomination to reporters, then left with Bork in tow. The nominee was given no opportunity to speak.

On Thursday, Reagan escorted Douglas H. Ginsburg into the chandeliered East Room, to a pre-arranged welcoming committee and hearty applause. Instead of having his announcement followed by questions shouted by reporters, Reagan had Ginsburg say a few words, then they walked off stage.

When Bork was displayed before the White House press corps, no members of Congress were there to applaud the announcement and send the nominee off to a flying start. But when the announcement was moved from the press room to the East Room on Thursday, several leading Republican senators were present.

A senior official, discussing the not-so-subtle changes on condition he not be identified publicly, said, "The East Room was an attempt to dignify the process."

Not only that, Reagan and Ginsburg had barely concluded the announcement when several Republicans took to the floor of the Senate to extol the nominee's virtues — in marked contrast to the scene that followed the Bork announcement, when the nominee was immediately criticized by Democratic senators.

While the East Room setting was intended to lend dignity, and the cheering-section was aimed at getting things off to an upbeat start, the introduction of Ginsburg's wife, Hallee, and his 2-year-old daughter, also named Hallee, seemed an effort to humanize the process.

DON'T LET THE GOBLINS GET YOU!

Take the "Tricks" Out of Trick or Treat!

Make this Halloween a fun and safe one.

Avoid any Halloween scares by following these simple, but important, safety tips.

- Keep children away from lit jack-o'-lanterns if their costumes are flammable.
- Make sure costumes are not so long that your child could trip on them. Reflective tape should be put on all costumes — especially dark-colored ones. Also, painted faces are better than masks since masks almost always affect vision.
- Instruct children not to eat any treats before you have inspected them carefully. You may want to feed them a good meal and give them several treats before they go trick or treating to help avoid temptation.

- Trick or treat only in well-lighted neighborhoods — preferably only at homes where you know the occupants personally.
- Accompany all small children while trick or treating. Older children, if unchaperoned, should follow a pre-determined route and have a set curfew time.
- Carry a flashlight and walk on sidewalks, not on streets. Do not run between parked cars to cross the streets — cross at corners only after looking both ways for cars. (If there are no sidewalks, walk on the left side of the road facing traffic.)
- Inspect all candy and other treats closely. Candy with torn wrappers or any packaging that looks like it has been tampered with should be immediately thrown away. Fruit should be washed and cut into small pieces before eating.

Don't let the goblins get you — follow these Halloween safety tips!

Big Spring (4-3, 3-2) at Monahans (6-1, 4-1)

This is the biggest game of the season for the Steers. A loss would end all state playoff hopes. The Lobos are aching for revenge: last year's 28-27 loss stuck under their skins.

On paper, it seems the Steers don't have a chance; Monahans should simply corral the Steers.

But games aren't won on paper, and Monahans hasn't played the toughest schedule in the world up to this date. The Steers aren't Hobbs, N.M. or Crane.

The Steers are a frightened team, ready to scrap with everything they've got.

It will be power football at its best: Charles White and Bruce Jones running dive plays, and Kenneth Banks and Matt Burrow putting nasty licks on Charles Thompson.

Call it an upset if you like.

BIG SPRING 14, MONAHANS 12

Eldorado (1-2, 3-5) at Forsan (2-1, 6-2)

A very important game for the Buffaloes, a game they can't be looking past.

Eldorado is better than its record indicates. The Eagles have a good passing attack and will put the Forsan secondary to the test. But the Buffaloes also have a good passing attack, and an equally good running attack.

It will be enough to give Forsan the edge.

FORSAN 21, ELDORADO 14

Stanton (1-2, 3-5) at Reagan County (3-0, 7-1)

Those poor Buffaloes. Last week they had to play the district's second best team, Forsan. This week they must play the district's best team.

Stanton is a scrappy crew, and like last week against Forsan, the Buffs will play the Owls hard. But it won't be enough.

REAGAN COUNTY 27, STANTON 7

Colorado City (4-1, 6-2) at Abilene Wylie (4-1, 5-3)

This is definitely the game of the week.

The Colorado City Wolves are looking to get back into the state playoffs after a three-year absence. Both teams are locked in a tie for first with Ballinger.

The game will pit Wylie's air attack against Colorado City's rushing duo of Beau Rees and Patrick Tillis. The Wolves have some talented people in their secondary. Mark Russell and Cary Ritchey will hold that secondary together, and it's playoff city for Colorado City.

COLORADO CITY 21, WYLIE 20

Grady (2-6, 1-3) at Klondike (3-5, 1-3)

Five weeks ago this would boil down to a Klondike blowout. But

Hearns adds title to record

By TIM DAHLBERG
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Thomas Hearns may have become the first fighter ever to win championships in four different weight classes, but he may never get a chance to fulfill another of his dreams.

Hearns weathered some vicious punches from Juan Domingo Roldan before knocking the Argentine out in the fourth round Thursday night to win the World Boxing Council middleweight title vacated by Sugar Ray Leonard after his April victory over Marvelous Marvin Hagler.

"I'm a very proud young man right now," said Hearns, who revealed that he had set a goal of four titles seven years ago.

Leonard and Hagler looked on at the outdoor arena at the Las Vegas Hilton as Hearns knocked Roldan down four times while nearly hitting the canvas himself in a wild brawl that delighted a crowd of more than 10,000.

Hearns then issued a challenge to Leonard and Hagler — the only fighters to whom he has lost in a career that has spanned a decade — to fight him again.

"I hope this brings not only Ray Leonard but also Marvin Hagler out of retirement," Hearns said. "I think the public deserves a rematch between me and Ray Leonard and Marvin Hagler."

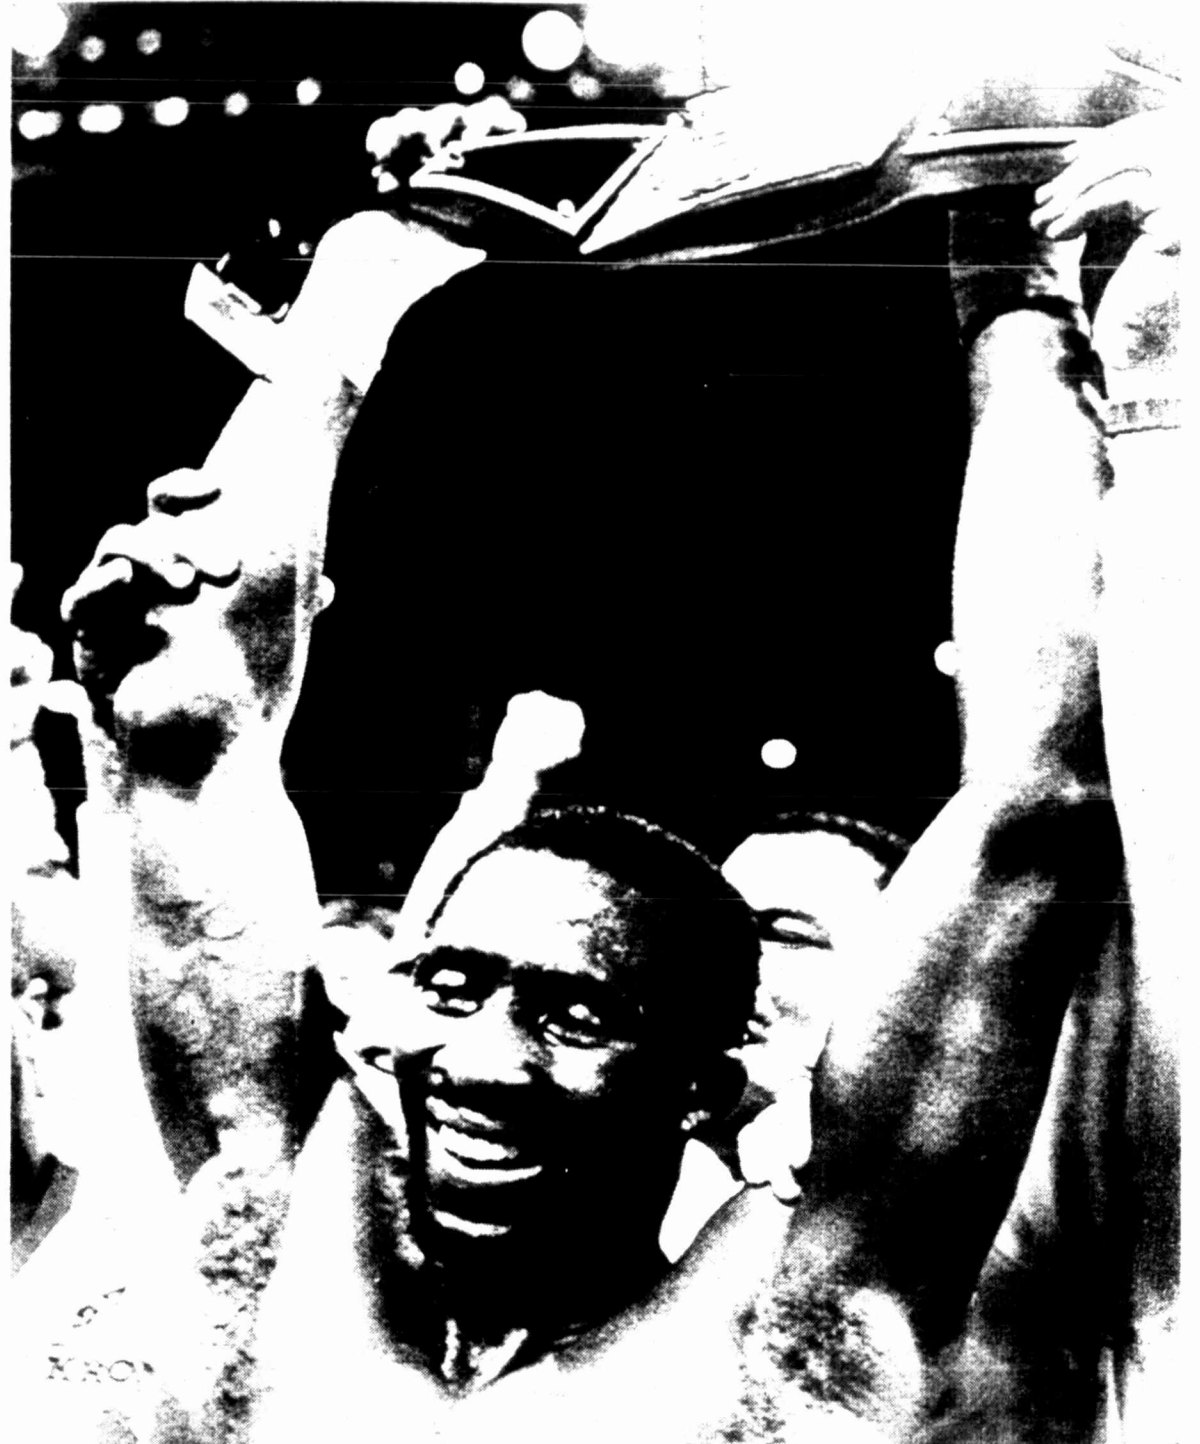

But Hagler and Leonard weren't impressed by the challenge.

"The only reason I would come out of retirement is for Ray," said Hagler, who was a color commentator for the closed-circuit television broadcast.

"I don't have any interest in Tommy," Leonard said. "I'm happy for him, but that's all."

Leonard said Hearns' preoccupation with the rematches nearly cost him the fight when he was hurt on several occasions by the powerful and wild-swinging Roldan.

"I figure he was trying to be impressive with Marvin and my being HEARNS page 2-B

Sparky again

Anderson cops AL honor

By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Sparky Anderson, whose gospel of character and chemistry guided the Detroit Tigers to the best regular-season record in baseball, is the American League Manager of the Year for the second time in four years.

"This is the most special one to me," Anderson said Thursday after learning of his selection by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

He is the only manager to be named twice since the BBWAA began voting on the award in 1983. Prior to that, Anderson won National League honors, in 1972 and 1975, as skipper of the Cincinnati Reds.

"I don't have to do one other thing in my career," Anderson, whose mother was undergoing surgery on the West Coast, said in a statement released by the Tigers. "I've had it all."

Anderson, who also was named AL Manager of the Year in 1984 when the Tigers won the World Series, received 11 first-place votes and a total of 90 points in balloting by a panel of two BBWAA members from each AL city.

Tom Trebelhorn of the Milwaukee Brewers was second with 78 points and seven first-place votes, followed by Tom Kelly of the World Series champion Twins with 74 points and 10 first-place votes.

Balloting was done on the basis of regular-season performance only. Each panel member was asked to vote for three managers with five points awarded for a first-place vote, three for second and one for third.

Tony LaRussa of the Oakland Athletics finished a distant fourth with eight points, followed by Doc Edwards of Cleveland and Lou Piniella of New York with one point apiece.

John McNamara of Boston won the award last year.

The Tigers were 9-20 in spring training and were picked to finish no better than third. But Anderson, because he had good pitching, felt this was a better team than the 1984 club that won 104 games.

He was almost right. The 1987 Tigers won 98 games, including five of their last six to nip the Toronto Blue Jays by two games in one of the most stirring stretch drives in recent years.

"Maybe we weren't that good," said pitcher Dan Petry, whom Anderson relegated to the bullpen. "But he was making those bold statements. He felt we had the chemistry. He believed in us."

The chemistry was no accident. The Tigers have been carefully put together by General Manager Bill Lajoie with Anderson's tastes in mind.

"He says, 'I'm not going to put up with any crud.' You've got to be a good guy and a good ballplayer," Petry said. "We had 24 guys on that club that truly liked each other. There was no back-biting."

"Sparky was the one that kept that going."

Lajoie did his share by signing free agent Bill Madlock and swinging a crucial Aug. 12 deal for veteran pitcher Doyle Alexander who went 9-0 down the stretch for the Tigers.

"He got the most out of his players," Lajoie said of Anderson. "The first thing he has is the respect of the players."

"They're a very well-disciplined group of people."

The Tigers lost the AL playoffs in five games to the Minnesota Twins, but in many ways that series was anticlimactic to the one that got them there. Trailing Toronto by one game going into a season-ending series with the Blue Jays, the Tigers swept three to win the division.

Queens beaten

WACO — The Howard College Queens lost their second game of the season, a 63-56 decision to McLennan Community College, in the MCC tournament.

Wednesday night the Queens dropped a 71-54 decision to Cisco Junior College.

Unlike Wednesday night, when the Queens faltered in the second half, Howard faltered in the first half this time, falling behind 33-20 at intermission, and 44-22 early in the second half.

But using a man-to-man defense, Coach Don Stevens' crew battled to narrow the lead to 56-50.

"We kept picking at 'em in our man-to-man defense," said Stevens.

"We had been playing a zone, trying to conserve our energy. We bit the bullet and kept putting in our reserves, so our starters could get some rest."

Stefanie Massie led Howard with 21 points and 10 rebounds. Renee Crooks added 13 points.

"We only shot 49 times, which is not enough," said Stevens. "To win, we must shoot the ball 70 times. We couldn't do that because we turned the ball over 29 times."

Howard will play Temple Junior College today at 6 p.m.

Oilers' veteran files suit in free agency quarrel

By JOHN NADEL
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Holdout offensive tackle Bruce Matthews has made what he believes to be the only move he could in order to play football this season — he's filed suit against the Houston Oilers and the National Football League.

"I never thought it would go this far," Matthews said after his suit was filed Thursday in U.S. District Court.

"Basically, I don't feel like I have any other recourse. This is really the last option open to me, other than sitting out the year, which I don't want to do."

Matthews is seeking the right to negotiate with other teams.

A first-round draft choice by Houston in 1983 after completing his college career at the University of Southern California, his four-year contract with the Oilers expired after the 1986 season.

"We've asked the court to enjoin the NFL and the Oilers on interfering with Bruce's contracting with

Cowboys shelving Scott

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys safety Victor Scott has been placed on reserve for what team officials called "personal reasons," and published reports point to drug problems for the four-year backup.

"Scott has been placed on 'reserve-non football illness' for an undetermined period for personal reasons," Cowboys president Tex Schramm said in a prepared statement released Thursday by team spokesman Doug Todd.

"Due to the collective bargaining agreement, I am not permitted to say anything further," Schramm said.

Todd said he also could not elaborate on the statement.

really no hold that Houston has on him."

The collective bargaining agreement between the league and the NFL Players Association expired on Aug. 31.

The players went on strike Sept. 22 and came back Oct. 15, without a new contract.

Earlier this month, former Miami Fla., fullback

Alonzo Highsmith, the Oilers' first pick in the 1987 draft, filed a similar suit in Florida.

Highsmith and the team came to terms Wednesday night and he reported Thursday.

Matthews said he thought he had reached agreement with the Oilers shortly before the season started, but negotiations broke down.

"We thought we had an agreement, but Houston pulled that off the table and basically since then, nothing's happened," he said.

"Apparently they didn't think that I was worth that (amount of money) to them. I guess that's the obvious reason, they made an offer and then withdrew it, reneged."

Matthews said he would not mind playing with the Oilers if an agreement could be reached.

"I'm happy playing with Houston, I like it down there," he said.

"The only problem or difference I've had with the situation down there has been the contractual dealings with Ladd Herzog, the general manager."

Broncos may buy Dorsett

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos might be interested in acquiring Dallas running back Tony Dorsett, but only if the price is right, Broncos owner Patrick Bowlen says.

Dorsett's availability became known earlier in the week when Dallas President Tex Schramm indicated the Cowboys "would entertain offers" to eliminate the problem of having both Dorsett and Herschel Walker on the same roster.

But Schramm declined to tell The Denver Post Thursday if he had contacted the Broncos.

"I wouldn't answer that question even if I had (contacted the Broncos)," Schramm said.

Both Bowlen and Broncos Coach Dan Reeves said they have not heard from the Cowboys.

The Broncos are in need of another running back.

Runnels defeats Monahans — twice

The Runnels Junior High football teams defeated Monahans Junior High School in a doubleheader at home Thursday.

The A squad knocked off Monahans' previously undefeated A team 21-6, bringing the Runnels record to 7-1 this year.

Joe Cobos had a two-yard touchdown on a quarterback sneak; Travis Sinclair had two TDs on runs of one yard and 30 yards; extra point credits go to Court Petterson's kicking and Fernando Alvarez's rushing.

Sinclair carried 14 times for 105 yards, Kevin Rodgers amassed 68 yards in 16 carries and Joe Cobos went four of eight for 59 yards passing. The team racked up 178 rushing yards and 59 passing for a total offense of 237 yards.

Defensive standouts were Donnie Cervantez, Fernando Alvarez, Josh Downey, Lance Reeves and Abel Hilario.

The B team ran its '87 record to 5-2-1 by defeating Monahans 18-14.

Rod White had a five-yard touchdown run and Billy Bob Sumpter carried 20 yards for another TD. Sumpter carried one extra point conversion and Jason Pearson another. Sumpter also scored a safety to round out the total at 18 points.

there," said Leonard, who knocked Hearns out in their welterweight title fight in September 1981. "Thomas was hurt bad, but Roldan didn't have the kind of ring generalship he needed to put him away."

Roldan, who never slowed his powerful attack even after being knocked down twice by Hearns in the first round and again in the second, won the third and was on the verge of getting back into the fight as the fourth began.

Only seconds into the round, a Roldan left hook buckled Hearns' legs and almost dropped him. He managed to hold on, however, and quickly regained his senses.

"I was hurt bad enough to know what I had to do," Hearns said. "I knew I had to hold on."

Less than a minute later, Hearns came back with a hard right to the side of Roldan's face that backed him up. Hearns continued pressing the attack, finally landing another huge right that sent Roldan down face first. He was counted out at 2:01.

"I was conscious that I was down, but I was really hurt," Roldan said through an interpreter. "It didn't make any sense to get up."

A weary Hearns erupted in jubilation after seeing that the dangerous Roldan had finally had enough.

"This man is an animal," Hearns said. "I've been in fights before, but I've never been in a fight where I come out with bruises on my shoulder, bruises on my back, bruises on my chest. He was very strong. I landed some good shots and he shook them off."

Hearns, who first won a portion of the welterweight title with an August 1980 knockout of Pipino Cuevas, later won a 154-pound crown and added a third title in March when he took the WBC light heavyweight crown from Dennis Andries.

The B team racked up 120 ground yards and 35 in the air for 155 total offensive yards.

Defensive standouts were Charles Dominguez, Mike McCormick, Paul Ustead and Michael Gamboa.

Garden City overcomes Robert Lee

The Garden City Junior High team defeated Robert Lee in Garden City 30-8 Thursday night.

Tony Aragon opened the scoring with a 13-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. James Soles joined him with a 55-yard run to score in the first quarter and added a second touchdown on an 80-yard kickoff return in the third period. Mario Aguilar closed out the G-City TDs with a 43-yarder.

Garden City's point after attempt failed following the first touchdown, but successful conversions were run by David Rodriguez, Mario Aguilar and Tony Aragon following the remaining touchdowns.

The defense held Robert Lee scoreless through the first three periods. Outstanding performances came from James Soles and Eric Seidenberger.

Hearns, who weighed in at 159½ pounds, was the fourth fighter to try to win four titles.

"My dream has been accomplished," the 29-year-old Hearns said. "One thing for sure, I have something Ray Leonard doesn't have and I have something Marvin Hagler doesn't have. I have something no other man in the history of boxing has ever had."

Roldan, meanwhile, said he is calling it quits after failing to become the third Argentine since 1970 to win the middleweight title.

Roldan, also 159½, whose last loss was a March 1984 10th-round knockout at the hands of Hagler in their middleweight title fight, said he will retire after a career that saw him win 63 fights, 41 by knockout, while suffering four losses and two draws.

"I think my career stopped here in Las Vegas," he said.

In another title fight on the card, Charles Williams of Philadelphia shocked Bobby Czyz to take his International Boxing Federation light heavyweight crown with a ninth-round knockout.

Czyz, making his fourth title defense, knocked Williams down in the second and third rounds. But Williams used a stinging left jab and stiff uppercuts to close the champion's right eye and force the fight to be stopped.

"Tonight, it seemed like he was the better man," Czyz said.

now, after Klondike injuries, and with Grady maturity, it will be a close contest.

Klondike will win this one because of the home field advantage.

Ballinger (4-1, 7-1) at

Coahoma (0-5, 2-6)

The Ballinger Bearcats are prowling for another state playoff berth. The Coahoma Bulldogs are trying to salvage a respectable season.

This is a must win for Ballinger, since the 'Cats are locked in a three-way tie for first. Coahoma has a lot to prove after last week's dismal performance against Brady.

The Bulldogs will prove they are a much better team, but they are playing one of the best teams in the state.

BALLINGER 28, COAHOMA 12

Loop (5-2-1, 4-1) at

Sands (7-1, 5-0)

The winners will be the zone champions; this is for all the marbles. Sands plays well at home, has an explosive offense and an aggressive defense. Loop has a power offense and a nasty defense.

But Sands has too much Jay Fryar, and the home field advantage. It's party time in Ackerly.

Borden County (3-5, 2-3)

at Rule (3-2, 4-4)

This will be an interesting game because it was scheduled after the season began. Therefore neither team knows much about the other. But the Coyotes are finding out there is life after Shannon Bond, responding with two victories in the last three games. Tonight they'll make it three out of the last four.

Stadium not sold

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Rangers owner Eddie Chiles says the team's purchase of Arlington Stadium has been delayed indefinitely and may not happen at all.

Chiles said Thursday that the uncertainty in the financial markets and rapidly changing interest rates have put the American League team's plans on hold.

"We've just got to wait until the situation settles," he said. "If we can get to the point where we can make a reasonable deal, we'll buy the property."

The Rangers announced two weeks ago they intended to buy out their 30-year lease at the city-owned stadium. The lease requires the Rangers to pay an amount the city can invest at market interest rates. The resulting return, coupled with the base payment, should be enough to retire the $22 million in outstanding stadium construction and improvement bonds.

When the buyout was announced, Arlington finance director Lynn Hampton said the Rangers' payment would be about $18.1 million. She said that amount may have increased another $500,000 with the changes in the market.

A purchase option in the lease requires that certain documents be provided and approved within 25 days after the team notified the city it intends to exercise the buyout option. Closing is scheduled for 30 days after that, but the option doesn't address what happens if the Rangers elect not to close at that time.

"It's not clear in the document what happens if they go beyond 30 days, or if they say, 'Forget it, we'll try it again later,'" City Attorney Jay Doegey said.

Chiles asked for a closing delay of seven to 10 days, but he said Thursday he could not predict when the market might settle enough to make the purchase financially viable. Closing had been set for Thursday.

"It's moving so fast we're just sitting here," he said. "If the (stock market) will sit still, we might be able to figure something out. Right now, we can't make a decision."

Interest Rates Up 1%; Buy Now To SAVE THOUSANDS!

The uncertain fluctuations in interest rates beginning in mid-April indicate that homebuyers who purchase now will be saving themselves thousands of dollars over the course of their mortgages.

U.S. League of Savings Institutions Director of Research Dennis Farnley was quoted as saying, "We have seen the bottoming of interest rates. In the future, they will be very volatile but basically on the way up."

Rising interest rates truly make buying your home now a wise decision. Rates continue to be stable, and even though the rate has risen, it's still affordable when compared to the rates offered the last three years.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a Saturday to have a good time, but don't let your ideas run away with you. Try to bring your plans down to a realistic and workable level. Shopping and other errands should be done now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Put a little more effort than usual into finishing private matters. Come to an understanding with your mate, and have a nice evening together.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use your intuition when dealing with people today; you'll know exactly what they want. Keep any promises which you've made.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You would be wise to plan out the week ahead now, as you probably won't have time tomorrow. Handle your correspondence wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Be alert to new opportunities and advice from others. Both could be quite lucrative to you, and also very interesting.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) If you're in doubt about your financial status, consult an expert or some other person who has been successful. Listen to your mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Come to an agreement with an associate who you'd like to have more dealings with in the future. Obey all regulations carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Chat with a co-worker today about the week's activities, and you can both be more efficient and productive — if you work together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Someone may be trying to disrupt your domestic harmony by coming between you and your mate, but don't be paranoid about this.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You'll need to pay special attention to property matters today. Guests from a different social background would be much fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take as much time as necessary to compose that important letter, then get it in the mail — today! Get out and visit some friends tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may need to do some property repair, but be sure to get two or three estimates first. Newspaper ads can help you with this.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you're not happy with the direction your life is taking, make plans to change it. Pay attention to what your friends have to say.

If Your Child Is Born Today He or she will have the ability to develop a plan of action in minute detail and then to put it into action. Be sure your progeny has a strong ethical sense so that his or her life will not go awry. Your child will be very skillful and successful at detailed and exacting work.
