Armour Announcement Lifts Local Mood

By JIM STEIERT
Managing Editor

The announcement by the Greyhound Corporation Tuesday that its decision to close its Armour and Co. beef slaughtering plant in Hereford Oct. 31 had been reversed prompted instant optimism in this community, where some bright economic news has been sorely needed since the original Armour closing announcement on April 29.

Officials from both the local cattle industry and city businesses were unanimous in their enthusiastic response to the announcement, which means that a major employer will remain on the scene in Hereford.

According to Ed Spear of the Armour & Co. public relations office in Phoenix, the announcement will mean that the work force at Armour will remain near the 450 level noted at the time of the shutdown announcement in April.

"I can't say if Armour will employ 499 or 501, but it will be somewhere close to the regular number of workers," said Spear.

At the time of the April 29 announcement on the closing, Armour officials reported that the Hereford plant had a payroll of $8-$9 million with fringe benefits included.

According to Tom Hamlett, former manager of the Hereford Armour plant and now vice president for the beef and lamb division with Armour's Phoenix office, the Hereford plant averages purchasing 400,000 head of finished cattle yearly and provides a $260 million market for finished cattle, most of which come from the Texas Panhandle.

Armour reported in April of this year that it would close the Hereford plant plus plants in Nampa, Idaho and Green Bay, Wisconsin.

All of the plants were operating under a master agreement with the United Food and Commercial Workers unions, and Armour officials reported that the closing plans were due to a non-competitive labor agreement.

According to an announcement made Tuesday by Spear, the decision to lift the closing notice at the Hereford and Nampa plants resulted from the development of a pending program, which, with union support, would involve improvement of productivity at the two facilities.

"This is probably some of the strongest and best economic news that has come to our community in a long time," commented Mike Carr, executive vice president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

"This will alleviate a lot of uncertainty in people's minds here. It will cause improvement in the attitudes of a lot of Hereford people who were really down about the prospect of Armour closing," he continued.

Carr pointed out that the Armour plant's remaining open will prove "good not only for Armour employees but for residents of Hereford, the county and the business community as well."

"The employees and families of Armour have always been a tremendous asset to Deaf Smith County and I feel we'll find that the continued operation of the plant will strengthen the economic base that we currently have," stated Carr.

Dave Hopper, manager of Champion Feeders Inc. commented on Armour's remaining here:

"I think not only the local cattle industry will benefit from this decision, but retaining the plant will prove a big asset to the community. The employment and the money Armour brings into our community are big assets," stated Hopper.

"One more competitive buyer for fat cattle will have its advantages for the feedyard industry too, but the whole comunity will benefit, and that's the big thing," he continued.

Johnny Price, chairman of the retail business committee of the Chamber of Commerce commented that the announcement helps put an end to a long period of uncertainty.

"People have been wondering what was gonna' happen and concerned if there was a possibility for Armour to stay. Armour's staying will help the community in a lot of ways. The whole community has been down in anticipation of Armour's leaving and this has to be a shot in the arm," stated Price.

Butch White, a member of the Chamber's board of directors remarked that the announcement that Armour will remain open here eases some concern in the local business community.

"My thinking is that Armour's closing would have hurt local businesses not only with initial sales losses, but with indirect losses as well. I'm very relieved and pleased that Armour has worked things out. I was pleased that both sides were open-minded enough to work things out. I think this will help both the community and both parties involved at Armour," stated White.

"We're tickled to death to see Armour announce that they will continue to operate. The announcement reinforces an opinion voiced by the Chamber months ago that either Armour or some other firm would likely continue to operate the plant," said Rogers.

"To me, this represents a tremendous effort on the part of the employees of the Hereford plant to keep the facility operating by sitting down and negotiating. It shows that we have just a darn good bunch of people in this community," Rogers related.

"I think this announcement will make a tremendous difference in the attitude of individuals form both business and personal aspects. Apparently a problem has been solved and I think we can look for a tremendous turnaround," he concluded.

President Balking Over Joint Debate with Reagan, Anderson

By The Associated Press

As of today, the presidential debates of 1980 will not include the president.

As of today, Republican nominee Ronald Reagan will appear in the debates along with independent candidate John B. Anderson. But he will not be in any separate debate with President Carter, which is what Carter insists on before he'll take part in a three-way debate.

But, no matter how it stands today, it could all change. There are hints of further negotiations, and either Carter, Reagan or the debate sponsors could change the rules.

First of all, the League of Women Voters, sponsor of the debates, has invited representatives of the three candidates to meet today to discuss groundrules for its first debate, tentatively scheduled Sept. 21 in Baltimore.

The basic shape of the debates took form Tuesday as the league announced that Anderson had, in its opinion, "clearly demonstrated voter interest and support, as indicated in a number of nationwide public opinion polls."

Thus, it invited Anderson to the first debate and Anderson, of course, accepted. "I eagerly look forward to the opportunity to meet two opponents face-to-face and discuss the major issues of the election before the American people," he said.

But Robert Strauss, Carter's campaign chairman, had other ideas about that first debate, regarded as most important because it draws the biggest television audience.

Strauss said the president was sticking by his demand that he must first debate Reagan head-to-head before taking part in a three-man contest. Reagan insisted Anderson be included in any debate.

That left the presidential debate sans president as the big political news of the day, and the networks deciding what they should do with the first contest. Only CBS said for sure it would broadcast the debate live, with NBC and ABC saying they would decide later.

Most of the rest of the campaign consisted of charges and countercharges over the Reagan and Carter economic programs.

Reagan did move to revive the hostage situation as a

Videotape Shown in Abscam Trial Proceedings Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) -An FBI videotape shows John B. Stowe, the alleged bagman for Rep. John W. Jenrette, take $50,000 from an undercover agent and put it in a paper bag. "I'm just a delivery boy," Stowe tells the agent.

Ninety minutes later, the FBI says, Jenrette phoned the agent to say he had the money.

"You got the package?" the agent asked.

"Everything," Jenrette replied.

"From John?" the agent asked.

"Everything's fine," Jenrette said.

Both the videotape and the tape of the telephone conversation were played Tuesday at the trial of Jenrette, a three-term South Carolina Democrat charged with taking the money as a bribe in exchange for promising to introduce a bill granting citizenship to wealthy Arabs.

Jenrette contends Stowe, a Richmond, Va., businessman, was really taking the money for himself, not for Jenrette. All he saw of the $50,000, the congressman mainains, was $10,000 as a loan from Stowe, a longtime friend.

But the government alleges Stowe's share was $10,000 to $15,000 and the rest was passed on to Jenrette.

Jurors were also shown a videotape the FBI made Jan. 7, a month after the alleged payoff, in which the undercover agent asked Jenrette if he was "satisfied with the way the 50 ($50,000) was split up between you and him (Stowe)?"

On the tape, Jenrette shook his head affirmatively. At the defense table, Jenrette, chin in hand, watched and television monitor, marking a transcript of the tape.

Local Armour Employees Approve Proposed Plan

Employees of the Armour Foods beef processing plant in Hereford met here last night and approved a program which would improve productivity here, according to word received from the office of Ed Spear, public relations officer with Armour's Phoenix office.

According to Spear, the contract at the local plant will remain unchanged and the pay scale will remain the same.

Spear reported that Hereford employees "agreed to go ahead with the program," which evolved following efforts by Armour and the United Food and Commercial Workers Union over the past several months to hammer out a program.

Asked if the pending program and arrangements for the retention of Armour will remain a permanent thing, Spear commented, "We hope it's going to be a continuing type thing. We're pleased to be able to continue to operate the Hereford plant. We don't anticipate recurring problems. We're talking about a major investment, people and their attitudes. At least for now, we expect this to be a good move toward solving our problem."

Drizzle Soaks County

By JIM STEIERT

A cold front moved into the Panhandle Tuesday, bringing a refreshingly brisk night to break the monotony of a long summer of heat, and touching off afternoon rainshowers that continued into this morning.

Rain fell over the majority of West Texas during the night, and on the local scene accumulations of up to .30 inches were recorded, helping to set the stage for the big push of winter wheat planting that will come shortly.

As much as six inches of rain fell during the night in the mountains of southwest Texas, just north of the Big Bend National Park and the southern half of West Texas remained under a flash flood watch today.

Although rainfall accumulations here were considerably below the six inch levels recorded in the Big Bend country, the slow, soaking nature of the local moisture could well mean that the smaller amount will do more good for local agriculture than a hard driving rain that drains off rapidly.

Hearteningly, some of the better rainfall accumulations for the past 24 hour period were reported from the dryland wheat country to the west of Hereford, where farmers have been waitig for sufficient moisture to allow them to start a new crop.

Current rainfall should help in sprouting volunteer wheat and allow farm operators to kill it out before planting their winter crop.

Many sections of the dryland country to the west have been critically short of moisture throughout the long summer of 1980 and additional, deep-soaking moisture will be vital to getting a new wheat crop off to a good start.

In a freak occurance last week, an isolated thundercloud dumped heavy moisture on a small area in the far northwestern portion of the county.

The Clint Homfeld farm received over two inches of rain in that small pocket of moisture last week while the Elmo Hall farm nearby received nearly three inches.

The Homfeld farm reported only a trace of moisture from last night's rainfall.

At Bootleg Corner, Bill Page reported that .25 inches of rain fell last night with light mist continuing intermittently this morning.

Page reported that many farmers in that area had been forced to delay their wheat planting while awaiting moisture.

Rainfall of about .10 inches was reported from the Johnny Jesko farm at the Westway community and Calvin Mitts of Northwest Grain, west of Farmer's Corner reported that .20 inches of rain had fallen in that location, as well as in the Simms area.

H.L. Hershey reported the morning's best local rainfall accumulation at his farm 13 miles northeast of Hereford where .30 inches of moisture fell, with light mist continuing this morning.

The city of Hereford received .10 inches of rainfall according to a measurement by KPAN radio while to the south of Hereford at Easter, only a trace was reported.

East of Hereford, a total of .16 inches was reported from Dawn Co-Op.

Early morning temperatures in the local area dropped to the 50's and the cold front extended from near Wichita Falls to near Wink at Dawn.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected over much of the state today with locally heavy rain and flash flooding expected in the southern half of West Texas.

All Girl Rodeo Slated To Get Underway Friday

By ALLISON RYAN
Staff Writer

The Hall of Fame All Girl Rodeo gets underway here Friday and bareback riding, steer undecorating, barrel racing, and team roping to a barbecue dinner, dances and special exhibits this weekend.

The annual rodeo, which will kick off Friday morning, features events open to all girls wishing to participate instead of limiting entries to members of the Girls Rodeo Association.

According to Sue Pirtle, this year's GRA director and last year's All-Around Cowgirl, the rodeo was opened to all girls so more local girls would be able to participate.

Friday morning the first slack will be run consisting of 47 girls with each having two gos.

Because of the number of girls entered in the rodeo each one must draw to see who will ride that morning or at the rodeo. Only 10 girls in each event will ride in the rodeo.

The Friday night rodeo will begin at 7:30 at the Riders Club Arena, with a dance following at 9 p.m.

The dance will be held two miles north on Highway 385. Entertainment will be provided by Doug Collins and the West Texas Express.

Saturday another slack will be run at 9:30 a.m. at the areana. Each girl will have two gos with their time being averaged for a score.

A chuck wagon barbecue has been set for 4:30 p.m. Saturday at the arena.

Tickets will be $5 for adults and $2 for children. These tickets also include the rodeo that night, which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Another dance will be held that night featuring Daton Todd, disk jockey. The dance will be 2 miles north on highway 385 beginning at 9 p.m.

The Sunday rodeo will begin at 2 p.m. Girls who averaged the best time during the Friday and Saturday competition will compete. Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for children.

A special exhibit and art show will be conducted at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame, in the basement of the county library. The shows will be open Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 1-5 p.m.

Ms. Pirtle said this rodeo is one of the largest rodeos to precede the National finals in November.

"This rodeo offers more added money. The national champion cowgirl is chosen by who has won the most money during the year," she said.

This years 10 girls have entered bareback riding, 34 steer undecorating; 27 goat tying; 40 barrel racing, 39 calf roping; 57 team roping and 10 bull riding.

An added purse of $7,000 is a feature of this year's rodeo, which is sponsored by the Hereford Riders Club.

Syria, Libya Announce Merger

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) - Syria and Libya today proclaimed the merger of their two countries into an 11 million strong Arab state pledged to renewing the fight against Israel.

Damascus Radio broadcast a joint communique saying Syrian President Hafez Assad and Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy agreed to form a unified government for the merged nations within one month.

A "Revolutionary Congress" will assume legislative powers in the unified state which will have a single international entity, according to the communique came only hours after Assad returned to Damascus from a two-day visit to Tripoli for talks with khadafy.

"The two leaderships have agreed to proclaim the two countries a unified state and to bring about a total economic, political and military merger," the communique said.

"The unified state will have the democratic institutions that will insure that power will be in the hands of the peo-

Jury Doesn't Indict Wayne

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - On the advice of District Attorney Ronnie Earle - who said he did not have enough evidence - the Travis County grand jury has refused to indict Ralph Wayne of Brownwood for allegedly using state employees and equipment for personal business.

Wayne was State Comptroller Bob Bullock's top assistant until he resigned in 1979. Bullock said he quit because of a pancreas illness.

Earle said Tuesday he told the grand jury his office "could not approve under all circumstances" that Wayne's use of a special typewriter "was done with the specific intent to secure benefits" for Wayne.

Earle told a news conference tests on four typewriter tapes seized from Wayne's state office showed the tapes had been partially used for private business, with one used 80 percent of the time for such business.

However, Earle said, the tapes "were not a representative sample."

Kidnapping Suspect Sought

DALLAS (AP) - Police are pursuing an "extremely good" lead and a new suspect today in the abduction of 7-year-old Matthew Mueller, officers said.

The suspect, described as a black male in his mid-20s, was "somewhat schizoid," Capt. R.P. Horn said. Officers were watching at least eight areas of the city after failing to determine the suspect's permanent address.

Horn said the lead was developed as a result of leads provided Monday in interviews with the boy.

Matthew was held for 28 hours before escaping from his captor Saturday night while his mother and stepfather, John and Beth Smith, were trying to follow the kidnapper's rapidly changing plans for delivery of $20,000.

The "prime suspect" sought by officers superseded previous leads developed by the FBI and police, officers said.

"We do feel there was someone out there who saw something, and maybe more than one person," added Youth Division Capt. William Gentry.

The abductor lured the North Dallas second-grader into his car by asking him to help find the owner of a small white dog, police said. The man referred to the dog as Heidi and Snow.

Possible Prison Sites Examined

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A prison board committee trying to find a suitable place to build a new state prison has inspected land near Coutulla in Southwest Texas and now plans to look at acreage near Clarksville in Northeast Texas on Saturday.

Austin lawyer Harry Whittington confirmed the developments Tuesday.

He said a group of county and city officials had invited the board's site selection committee to check out 5,000 acres near Cotulla, in LaSalle County.

Whittington said a number of local citizens and officials in Cotulla "appeared in general support" of locating the prison there.

It was local pressure on May 22 that caused the board to back down on plans to buy a 5,292-acre Starr County farm for $7.5 million for a new prison.

Dell City in far West Texas also was mentioned as a possible prison site but local support apparently faded.

Plans to purchase land in Hidalgo County fell through in 1978.

Board Chairman James Windham of Livingston has said the board has $8 million to spend for a maximum security prison that would house up to 3,000 prisoners.

Whittington said locations other than Cotulla and Clarksville, which is between Paris and Texarkana, are being considered but he refused to identify them.

He said a final decision on a new prison site would be made within a month.

White's Speech Draws Protestors

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - A recent ruling providing free education to children of illegal aliens should not place the financial burden on the state of Texas, Attorney General Mark White said Tuesday night.

White spoke to the South Plains Association of Government's general assembly as a group of about 30 persons representing Hispanic groups picketed outside.

The demonstrators said they opposed White's stance on the education of illegal alien children.

The attorney general blamed the U.S. Justice Department for not enforcing laws to keep illegal aliens out of the country for the problem.

"It (the Justice Department) is in charge of immigration laws and its failure to enforce those law has resulted in these people being here in the first place. Now they're asking us to make up for their failure," White said.

White said if the federal government wants the illegal alien children educated, the government should be ready to pay the cost.

White was originally scheduled to speak on anti-crime legislation he plans to introduce in the next session of the legislature, but apparently changed his topic when he saw the demonstrators outside the meeting hall.

August Unemployment Down

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged down to 7.6 percent in August, signaling a slowing of the recession, but wholesale food prices surged upward for a second straight month to forewarn sharply higher supermarket costs, the government reported today.

In companion reports, the Labor Department said significant improvements in manufacturing for the first time this year helped lower the jobless rate from July's 7.8 percent rate.

Department analysts interpreted the unemployment dip as a positive sign that economic activity is improving following a sharp drop in output earlier this year.

At the same time, however, the department said wholesale, or producer, food prices at the finished-goods level spurted 4.4 percent last month, the steepest increase in seven years. That jump followed a 3.8 percent rise in July. Government analysts attributed the large increase to the unusually hot and dry weather that has devastated crops and livestock throughout much of the country.

Overall, wholesale prices jumped 1.5 percent in August, following a 1.7 percent increase in July. Last month's increase, if compounded over 12 months, would equal an annual rate of 20.2 percent. That compares with an actual increase of 14.6 percent increase in wholesale prices for the past year.

Department analysts said the higher food prices would be passed on to consumers at the retail level quite soon.

And further increases may be coming later this year, the department said, because wholesale food prices at an intermediate level of production jumped 9.7 percent in August, the largest rise in nearly six years. That increase will take longer to work its way up to the consumer level.

If there were a good sign in the producer price report, it would be that prices for non-food items continued to moderate, suggesting an easing of inflation outside of the food sector.

Producer prices for non-food goods rose 0.7 percent in August, compared with a 1.1 percent increase in July.

The number of unemployed people in the country dropped by nearly 200,000 in August to 8 million, while non-farm employment as reported by businesses rose by 200,000, the first increase since February.

The jobless rate among workers in manufacturing industries, which were hit hardest by the economic slump, fell a full percentage point to 9.3 percent after rising steadily throughout the year.

In another sign of economic improvement, the government said the average work week in the manufacturing sector rose by 30 minutes, the first increase since January. "As best as we can tell, this is some kind of an indication that things seem to be looking up," said Deborah Klein, a Labor Department employment analyst.

The improvement did not seem to extend across the entire economy, however.

In the construction industry, also in a severe slump, the unemployment rate rose 2.2 percentage points in August to 18.3 percent.

Overall, 97 million people held jobs in August, unchanged from a year ago. The number of unemployed people, however, was up 1.9 million from August 1979, when the jobless rate was 5.9 percent.

The unemployment rate shot up from 6 percent to 7.8 percent between February and May, as the full force of the recession took its toll on the labor force. But joblessness has shown little change since then, confirming other economic indications that the worst of the economic downturn recession may be over.

The Carter administration has predicted that the unemployment rate will peak at 8.5 percent by the end of this year. But one administration official said privately that recent favorable economic indicators suggest the jobless rate may not climb that high, although officials are not prepared to lower the forecast at this point.

The Labor Department said that over the past two months, the number of people on layoffs has declined by 425,000, with two-thirds of this reduction occurring in August. About one in five jobless people is on layoff.

The department also gave the following breakdown of seasonally adjusted unemployment rates for August, compared with July:

—Adult men: 6.6 percent in August, down from 6.7 percent in July.

—Adult women: 6.5 percent, down from 6.7 percent.

—Teen-agers: 19.1 percent, up from 19 percent.

—Minority teen-agers: 37.4 percent, up from 36.6 percent.

—Whites: 6.8 percent, down from 6.9 percent.

—Minorities: 13.6 percent, down from 14.2 percent.

—Hispanics: 10.6 percent, down from 10.9 percent.

—Full-time workers 7.4 percent, down from 7.6 percent.

Travel Cheaper; Prices Confusing

DALLAS (AP) — You can fly to Houston from Dallas for "Love," "Kisses" or "Peanuts," but finding the cheapest fare may not always be easy, a consumer spokesman says.

Air Florida's "Kiss Miss" promotion is the latest entry in the intrastate fare war, competing with established Dallas-Houston routes offered by Southwest and Texas International airlines.

The first passenger to show up in the "Kiss Miss" line on certain Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport flights gets a kiss and a free ride to Houston. Company officials say the purpose of the campaign is to promote their Houston-Miami service.

The statement said Syrian and Libyan leaders will meet again within a month to complete the physical structure of the new state.

It did not say who will be the president of the new nation, nor what it will be called. Informed sources said there will probably be a joint presiding council that will be headed by Assad and Khadafy on a rotating basis.

Khadafy proposed merging his oil-rich North African nation with Syria last week to build a united front for a new offensive against Israel. Syria presumbly would be the base for such an offensive since it shares a border with the Jewish state.

Assad arrived in Tripoli Monday to a welcome by thousands of Libyans shouting "unity, unity." He and Assad held extensive discussions on the merger plan, the official Syrian news agency said.

The agency also reported that Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddem left for the Saudi Arabian capital of Riyadh, the first stop on a tour of six Arab capitals where he will explain the merger.

Some observers have expressed skepticism about the chances for success of the merger, noting that the two nations are 800 miles apart. Libya has never supplied troops to fight Israel, and earlier plans by Khadafy to merge with Syria, Egypt and Tunisia ended in failure.

campaign issue, accusing Carter of only "grandstanding" in his efforts to free the 52 Americans held in Iran.

The hostages were seized more than 10 months ago and Reagan said: "All of the moves we've made since to try to get them out, I think, were kind of grandstanding."

The comment came as the State Department released the text of a message from Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie so the new Iranian prime minister asking Iran to take another look at the hostage situation. The message was released after Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai responded by saying Iran would be willing to talk if the United States had "repented" of its sins.

As for the debate issue, Reagan himself left open the possibility that things could change.

While he first issued a flat "no" when asked if he'd debate Carter without Anderson, he later hedged. He was asked what he'd do if the league came up with a one-on-one debate offer to him and the president, and he replied he'd have to wait until then to decide.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale said, at the same time, that the Carter side is still open to negotiations, though he continued to insist on a Carter-Reagan debate first.

"Traditionally, we often see this pre-debate dance where the person who's ahead doesn't want to debate and the person who's behind does," Mondale observed. "The only difference here is the person who's ahead is willing to debate and I'm not at all sure that these issues may not be resolved."

The league also said that if Anderson falls below the 15 percent level in public opinion polls - the standard it said qualified him for the first debate - he could be excluded from the two contests tentatively scheduled later.

Carter was campaigning Tuesday in Perth Amboy, N.J., and said nothing about the debates. However, he did say that "Anderson is primarily a creation of the press" who has "never won a primary even in his home state."

Before he learned of Carter's refusal to debate, Anderson said: "I simply cannot believe the president of the United States would decline the opportunity he has now been given."

Told of Carter's action, Anderson said: "I am incredulous. ... He has fixed on the idea that I must be read out of the picture and just be totally ignored."

Reagan noted that in the primary campaign he himself had taken a beating in Iowa after refusing to join a Republican debate in Des Moines in January, and he said of Carter: "Maybe, he's got to learn ... the hard way."

offered but a day before Stowe picked up the $50,000, Jenrette asked the undercover agent: "And all the documents that you have are clean as far as numbers and all?"

"Oh, yeah," the agent replied.

Jenrette sa.. "Okay," and the agent added: "Yeah, yeah, there's no problem about that whatsoever. No numbers will ever appear."

On the same day, Dec. 5, Jenrette repeatedly refused the agent's bid to pick up the money himself. "We've got these ethic rules about the amounts of money that we can make," he said.

Anthony Amoroso, the undercover agent who posed as "Tony DeVito," the representative of the wealthy Arabs, was taking the stand today for cross-examination by Jenrette's attorney, Kenneth M. Robinson.

The wealthy Arabs were creations of the FBI's 14-month Abscam operation, which has led to the indictment of six congressman. One, Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., has been convicted of bribery and conspiracy.

In all Tuesday, the jury listened to tapes of eight phone conversations and watched two videotapes, both recorded in a Georgetown house the FBI rented for its dealings on behalf of the mythical Arabs.

Lance Must Answer Queries

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate's Billy Carter subcommittee says former Budget Director Bert Lance must answer questions in private like any other witness. Lance refused Tuesday for fear government "powercrats" would deliberately distort his story.

Lance, who maintains he really couldn't add much to the investigation anyway, says he'll talk only in public, where he can't "be abused and smeared and vilified by well-orchestrated leaks."

The subcommittee countered that all other prospective witnesses had given statements in private, usually by sworn deposition, and that Lance was no different.

"It is not the purpose of the subcommittee to harass or otherwise embarrass Mr. Lance, but rather to proceed in the same manner as the subcommittee proceeded with other witnesses," the panel's statement said.

Meanwhile, The Washington Post today quoted the Libyan official who arranged $220,000 in payments to Billy Carter as saying another $280,000 is his for the asking.

Ahmed Shahati, head of the Libyan Foreign Liaison Bureau, said the money already given President Carter's brother was, as the younger Carter has testified, part of a $500,000 loan.

"If he wants the rest, he can have it," Shahati told the Post. "It all depends on his wishes."

The Billy Carter-Libyan affair was at issue in both the House and the Senate today.

The Senate subcommittee summoned White House counsel Lloyd N. Cutler to an open session to ask whether the president's brother received special treatment in the matter, and the House scheduled debate on a resolution that would direct the president to provide more information about the case.

Auto Theft Under Investigation

City police are investigating the theft of an automobile from a local business and substantial vandalism damage at a second firm here following incidents Tuesday.

Billy Wilson of Murry's Tire Service reported to police Tuesday that a 1973-model Chevy Nova was taken at that business sometime Tuesday.

The stolen two door car is yellow and carries Texas license tag PCH 26, according to a police department spokesman.

Hereford Parts & Supply at 702 West First was the scene of an attack by vandals who sent projectiles through windows at the business, causing $250 in damage.

A television valued at $100 was also stolen from an apartment in the 100 block of Ave. H.

Police officers backed up an ambulance following a vehicle-pedestrian accident at 304 Cherokee yesterday.

According to the police spokesman, Phyllis Baker Rhodes, 39, was struck by a pickup and suffered leg injuries in the accident.

Police issued 11 traffic citations Tuesday and answered eight police-related calls.

Bullock Worker To Be Here

AUSTIN – A representative of State Comptroller Bob Bullock will be in Hereford on Sept. 17 to assist area taxpayers and answer tax questions.

According to Claudia Stravato, manager of the Comptrollr's Amarillo office, Silvestre Bonilla will meet with Deaf Smith and Oldham County taxpayers at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse from 10 to noon that day.

Taxpayers who are not able to meet with the Comptroller's representative on Sept. 17 can still get their tax questions answered quickly by calling from anywhere in Texas toll-free 1-800-252-5555.

Questions about taxes, the filing of tax returns or assistance on returns can be answered quickly and efficiently in these face-to-face meetings, Bullock said.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

On Aug. 13, I took my sons to Amarillo for a dental appointment, when an Amarillo policeman stopped us and issued a ticket for driving with an expired safety sticker. The sticker had expired two weeks before on July 31 and I had not noticed it. On our way back home to Friona we were stopped just outside Hereford by a member of the Highway Patrol and given another ticket for the same thing. I had every intention of getting the new safety inspection done on the car as soon as we got back to Friona.

I called the Amarillo City Office and told them I would rather not make the 150 mile round trip back into Amarillo to pay the ticket. They said "mail in your $12" which I did.

Then I wrote to Judge O.K. Neal at the Courthouse in Hereford and told him about getting the two tickets on the same day for the same expired sticker, which I did not think was fair, and I enclosed a xeroxed copy of both tickets. Rather than the excusing the ticket, he told me to mail in my $20 or post $80 bond if I wanted to take it to court.

Why is an expired safety sticker worth $12 in Amarillo and the same sticker is worth $20 in Hereford? The Judge asks all out-of-town people to write their fine checks to him personally rather than to the county, and I question this practice. Why does one have to post $80 bond in order to plead not guilty? Why such a high bond for a non-moving violation?

Of course most folks are going to go ahead and pay the ticket rather than be out the added expense. Why are all these patrolmen so uptight about two-week-old expired safety stickers anyway? Aren't there some criminals out there they could be persuing? I thought there were some murders, rapes and robberies going on that they could attend to.

Hereford is getting a bad reputation for being a "ticket trap" and I have heard that Deaf Smith County has the highest incidence of traffic tickets in the state of Texas. A lot of our people in Friona and Bovina come to Hereford to shop in your stores, eat at your restaurants, go to your movies and support your organizations. A lot of our people have to come through Hereford to go to medical specialists in Amarillo. We are paying a very high price for the privilege of coming to and through Hereford.

The Friona Star and the Bovina Blade are now urging people to stay home as much as possible and when they must shop out-of-town or go to a doctor, they are urged to go in the other direction from Hereford. Clovis has fine movies and restaurants and Lubbock has fine doctors.

Perhaps the businessmen and the merchants of Hereford need to look into this problem.

Sincerely,
Carol Ellis
Friona, Tx 79035

Succeeding in Selling

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What is your opinion of a road salesman who tells his wife that the best way to succeed in selling is to get past the secretary? This means wining and dining her, giving her gifts and sending flowers.

He also tips waitresses lavishly and exceeds his expense account allotment to impress clients. Do other salesmen give waitresses big tips and send cards and gifts on their birthdays?

My husband says he can't take me to those fancy restaurants because I wouldn't be able to handle it if a waitress gave him a little rub on the leg to be assured of the usual big tip. Can this be true?–Confused in D.C. Area

DEAR CONFUSED: Either your husband has popcorn where his brains belong or he is hallucinating.

Yes, it's helpful to have a good relationship with the secretaries of customers, but wining and dining and gifts? Nonsense! All that is necessary is to behave decently.

Tell your husband he insults your intelligence by expecting you to believe such garbage. Moreover, he does a disservice to the waitresses. Most of them would give him a bop on the skull instead of a rub on the leg for being so crude.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother and his wife (they live in California) have invited us to their home for a week's visit. We would love to go but we fear for our seven-month-old baby.

R and G have a 2½-year-old son who is a holy terror. He hits people in the face without warning and throws things. You have to be on your guard every living minute. R and G have two older children who were poorly behaved when they were little, but they weren't half as bad as this kid.

When we visited R and G a few years ago, we were shocked at the way they let their children run wild. We commented on it, and they said, "The little devils want attention–Ignore them." It's pretty hard to ignore kids when they are throwing food at you and smacking you in the face.

Do you feel we should make this trip? If we don't, shall we tell them why?–Stymied In Illinois

DEAR STY: I don't think you'd have a very pleasant time if you had to stand guard over your baby every living minute. If you decide not to go, tell R and G the reason. If, on the other hand, you do decide to make the trip and the boy behaves in a dangerously destructive manner, suggest that they have him evaluated. He may be hyperkinetic or have a neurological problem that needs looking into.

DEAR ANN: After 24 years of marriage my husband became jealous and started to make accusations. I have never been unfaithful and agreed to take a lie detector test to put his mind at rest.

To my astonishment, the test showed me to be lying. Now my husband has it hanging over my head that I had an affair with a kid young enough to be my son.

By trying to prove my honesty to him, I came out looking like a liar. Is there an explanation for this?–Honest But "Proven" Guilty

DEAR HONEST: A polygraph test measures the blood pressure, breathing and skin resistance. (Certain changes occur in the skin when a person is lying, according to the people who sell the equpiment. Frankly, I have some reservations about this.) My legal consultants tell me these tests are not 100 percent foolproof, and in many states they are not admisible as evidence.

Local Residents Named On SWT's Dean's List

Two Deaf Smith County residents, Glenn G. Brooke and Michele J. Scott, were among the 3,606 students whose spring semester grades earned them places on Southwest Texas State University's Dean's List.

Brooke resides at 240 Centre and Scott resides at 236 Centre.

To make the regular Dean's List, a student must be enrolled for a minimum of 12 semester hours of coursework, excluding physical education activities, and achieve at least an overall "B" average.

Making the Superior Honors List requires grades of "A" in at least 12 of the required 15 semester hours of coursework, excluding physical education activities, and no lower than a "B" in the other three-hour course. This translates into a 3.8 grade-point average or better on a 4.0 scale.

Undergraduate courses only are considered in tabulating the list. Incomplete, or "I" grades earned during the spring semester disqualify students from the Dean's List.

Public Doing Own Thing

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Although it might seem so at times, the financial decisions of people aren't always governed by what Washington says or what well-known money men advise or what the stock market is doing.

Some of the most widespread advise being offered today, for example, is to balance your finances in order to ride out the latest recession, and millions seem to follow that advice. Consumer credit is down.

But to the publisher of the Financial Freedom Report, a publication "designed for the highly motivated individual who is seeking to establish his own financial freedom," borrowing is in vogue.

In a "bulletin" in the latest issue, publisher Mark O. Haroldsen, who founded the magazine in Salt Lake City several years ago, advises "You should be borrowing money now from your local bank."

The suggestion is consistent with Haroldsen's philosophy of continued inflation, using other people's money and paying as little income tax as you can. Borrowed money, he says repeatedly, is yours tax-free. And during chronic inflation, he points out, you repay in cheaper dollars.

How widely this advice is followed is hard to say, but Haroldsen and others like him have mailing lists in the thousands, which is evidence that the practices of many people are contrary to conventional wisdom.

Conventional wisdom also promotes the notion that there isn't much you can do to lower your income taxes other than to hope, pray and cajole Congress into granting a tax reduction. Many people don't believe that.

The evidence comes from the popularity of tax avoidance seminars, in which attendees are taught how to take every possible deduction and how to set up businesses in which assets can be quickly depreciated.

Tax avoidance seminars now seem to be sweeping the country. In Mill Valley, Calif., Bill Greene uses his front lawn to tell people how it's done. He says his privately printed book, "Welcome to The Tax Revolt," is selling well, even though most sales are by mail order.

Tax avoidance, of course, is not tax evasion, but it really isn't tax avoidance either. More accurately it is tax deferment because, at least in theory, the taxes eventually are going to come due and collectible.

Even the elderly are doing their own thing. Have you heard of "desaving?" Perhaps not, but you probably have heard of the reverse mortgage, and the two terms mean roughly the same thing.

The reverse mortgage, in which the elderly would mortgage their fully paid home, receiving monthly payments on an annuity basis related to their expected lifespan, have the endorsement even of regulators.

One more: Has your neighbor told you about the latest stock he bought? It's going on all over: People buy shares for under a dollar and hope they'll rise to $2 or so, reasoning that the downside risk is minimal, the upside unlimited.

Moral: For good or for bad, many people today seem to be doing their own financial thing, not waiting for someone to give them the official line but, out of necessity, experimenting and sometimes winning.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 10, the 254th day of 1980. There are 112 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 10, 1813, an American naval force under Oliver Perry defeated the British in the Battle of Lake Erie in the War of 1812.

On this date:

In 1608, John Smith was elected governor of the Jamestown colony of Virginia.

Ten years ago, Vice President Spiro Agnew denounced the Democratic Congress as reactionary, derelict and dominated by "cave-dwelling leftists."

Five years ago, a federal appeals court reinstated the Army court-martial conviction of William Calley in the murder of 22 civilians at My Lai in Vietnam.

Last year, British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington formally opened the Zimbabwe-Rhodesia peace talks in London.

Today's birthdays: Golfer Arnold Palmer is 51. Former baseball star Roger Maris is 46.

Thought for today: A little learning is not a dangerous thing to one who does not mistake it for a great deal. — William Allen White, (1868-1944).

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN

Lara, Alvin and Richie Reinauer, the children of the Jim Reinauers, have returned to their home at Falls Church, Va., and to school a little late, after a vacation that should certainly have satisfied them all.

They spent a month here as house guests of their grandparents, Peaches and Joe Sr. of the Reinauer clan, who were abetted by families of three uncles including assorted cousins, in entertaining the visitors.

They went to see the musical show, Texas, in Palo Duro Canyon and found that it had enough cowboys and indians to keep them interested. An amusement park at Amarillo was another spot they approved, and so was the Ranch Museum at Texas Tech where the old Escarbada Ranch headquarters, given to the museum by the Reinauer family, has been restored as a major exhibit.

They went out to the ranch where that building was once located, and had a picnic lunch with their Uncle Art as host, and they also flew over the ranch with Uncle Joe and went swimming at the Hereford Country Club pool with Uncle Bob and some cousins.

Besides the nearby attractions, they enjoyed a trip to Colorado, through Santa Fe to the southwestern mountains around Durango including a stop to fish at Chama where their father fished as a boy, and a ride on the narrow gauge railroad.

For a climax, they celebrated Alvin's sixth birthday before they left, after already helping Big Joe observe his 82nd.

Their 60th wedding anniversary was marked on the weekend by Margaret and Arch Conklin, who used to live here but are now residents of Fort Smith, Ark.

Mrs. Conklin is the former Margaret Hershey, one of the family of Ray Hershey who came to Deaf Smith County in 1909, while Conklin is a son of the George R. Conklins who moved here in 1906 and farmed in Deaf Smith and Castro Counties.

Two of her brothers, Horace and Howard, still live here. Relatives from Hereford were among guests at the anniversary celebration in Fort Smith.

Every time I drive up Miles Street I notice the house at 710 and admire again the efforts of someone, I don't know who, that resulted in restoring that building from a dilapidated state to an attractive residence.

It is typical of a number of places, in all parts of the older sections of Hereford, that have been occupied by people who may not be able to own a new brick ranch-style with all the latest built-ins, but who don't want to live in a mess.

Many of them have moved into the older houses–not the more imposing old homes which have been retored at considerable expense, but just ordinary small houses that had been allowed to go to rack.

While they are living in the house, they first clean up the premises and then gradually repair, redecorate and do what is necessary to make it livable.

Some have taken years to complete their work, and maybe will never really stop working on the place (isn't that the story of any house. old or new?) but they are now living in good, comfortable, attractive homes that are assets to the community.

Often they have encouraged others in the neighborhood to upgrade their places too, or keep them from going to pieces.

And of course we all know some of the sad opposite stories, where trashy families move into decent homes in good neighborhoods, contribute to the deterioration of an older house that just needs a little care, and scatter junk over the place so the whole block looks bad. Less said about them the better.

Help for Hearing Loss

A word goes unheard, sounds are muted or another's speech is slurred...

These are the signs of hearing loss, and hearing loss can be a blow to self-esteem and the pocketbook. However, the Food and Drug Administration says help is available. Depending on the cause and type of hearing loss, the treatment may require drugs or surgery, or a combination that includes a hearing aid.

About 16 million people in this country suffer from some kind of hearing impairment. The nature and extent of hearing difficulty varies considerably among individuals. Since hearing loss is only a symptom of disease, it is important that a physician diagnose the cause and determine appropriate treatment.

First, however, it is essential to recognize that a hearing loss has actually occurred. This is not always easy to detect. Telltale signs include words become difficult to distinguish, sounds appear to be subdued, someone else's speech seems mumbled or slurred.

Also certain sounds such as the ticking of a watch, the dripping of a faucet, or the high notes of a violin are difficult or impossible to hear. Another sign could be a continual hissing or ringing background noise heard against normal sounds.

Some people because of fear, vanity, or lack of information are reluctant to admit that they have a hearing problem. They do not want to be seen wearing a hearing aid. Others do not want to face the prospect of surgery.

Unfortunately, many are still under the impression that most hearing problems cannot be helped or that getting that help will be too expensive. But in this day of modern medical science, such fears are usually unfounded.

Hearing aids have become vastly improved over the years and can be purchased, leased or rented. A hearing aid is actually a miniature amplifying system that comes in four types

For more detailed information about hearing and hearing aids, there's a booklet entitled: "Facts About Hearing and Hearing Aids." A joint publication of the National Bureau of Standards and FDA, a copy may be obtained free by writing to: FDA-Hearing Aids, 8757 Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring, MD 20910.

Allsup Assn. Managers Take Training Course

Three local residents recently received their diplomas from Ray Stewart, instructor of the Allsup's Assistant Store Managers Training Course held at the company's home offices in Clovis, N.M.

Those receiving diplomas were Carol Hester, assistant manager of the Allsup's store at 529 Ave. H; Raul Garza, assistant manager of 910 Park Avenue Allsup's Store; and Cherral Washburn, assistant manager of the store at 400 N. 25 Mile Avenue.

The class is a requirement for all Allsup Assistant Managers. Ultimately, we provide customers with a professional who can better serve them, while at the same time preparing the employee for future advancement."

Cub, Boy Scout Roundup Scheduled for Thursday

The Tierra Blanca District and the Llano Estacado Council will be conducting a Cub Scout and Boy Scout Roundup Thursday at 7:00 p.m.

Any boy who is not actively involved in Scouting may join the Scouting program by going to his respective school Thursday night.

All the elementary schools will be open to give each boy the opportunity to join Cub Scouts or Boy Scouts.

To join Cub Scouts boys must be at least 8 years of age, or have completed the 2nd grade, and not be older than 11 years of age. To join the Boy Scouts boys must be at least 11 years of age, or have completed the 5th grade, and not be older than 18 years of age.

Thursday night's meeting will be a short, fast moving session where boys and parents gather to hear a brief enthusiastic outline of Scouting. Boys will talk with unit leaders, make out applications, pay their fees (which will be $6.20 for an entire year) and get needed information about unit meetings.

A parent should attend with their son.

All unit leaders will report at the Community center Lobby area after their respective Roundup is completed for refreshments.

For more information about Scouting and Thursday's meeting, call David Cortez, District Executive, at 364-1965.

Car Safety Important

By AGNES TAYLOR
County Extension Agent

The greatest threat to a child's life is not disease or poison, but traffic accidents. Once the critical early months have passed, car crashes account for more children's injuries and deaths than any other cause. A 1974 survey of car occupants by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety found that only 7 percent of children under 10 years of age were properly restrained.

Many parents believe that holding a child in their lap will be enough protection. However, in an accident the impact increases the child's weight 10 to 20 times. In a head-on accident at only 10 miles per hour, a newborn will reach a peak weight of 200 pounds. The impact will tear the child from his parent's arms and slam him into the doors, dashboard, windshield and seats.

Parents can prevent many deaths and reduce the severity of injuries by simply using a child restraint system at the beginning of every car ride. Ironically, many car buyers spend hundreds of dollars for options like stereo systems, electric door locks and luxury upholstery and neglect to buy a safe child restraint system for less than $50.

The most important fact to know before buying a child restraint system is that not all of them are safe. Although the federal government has developed standards for safety, crash testing is not required. Consequently, even the restraints that meet or exceed government standards may not hold up in a crash. The only way to tell if a child restraint is safe is to look for the "dynamically tested" label. This means the seat has been tested and proven effective in simulated crash tests.

Safety features to look for in a "car seat" type of restraint include high backs to prevent whiplash; padded wings at eye level to provide protection in a side collision; a five point harness; "five-point" means the harness crosses over each shoulder, comes around each hip and through the crotch.

Many of the "car seat" types of restraints require an anchorage strap that holds the top of the restraint against the seat back. When the restraint is used in the front seat, the anchorage strap simply snaps onto a rear seat belt. When used in the back seat, the strap must be attached to a permanent anchor in the rear package shelf or rear floor in a station wagon.

It is important that the anchor be attached to metal and not just cardboard or plastic. The restraints that have an anchorage strap allow less forward and side movement in a crash than those that depend only on the adult lap belt to hold them in place. Generaly, those models with an anchorage strap are rated safer than those without one.

Adult seat belts are not designed for a child's developing bone structure. In a crash, the adult belt can slip up onto the abdomen and cause severe internal injuries. This is why infants and small children need a specially designed restraint that will distribute the force of the crash over a large body area. However, if a child safety restraint is not available, it is safer to use the adult seat belt than no restraint at all.

Children who have outgrown their child restraints, because they are over 40-45 pounds, but are still less than 55 inches tall, need special attention. They can use an adult lap belt when seated on a firm two inch pillow. The pillow helps raise the child so that the lap belt falls across the hips. If a combination shoulder and lap belt is used, be sure the shoulder strap does not cross the face or neck; if it does, place the shoulder strap behind the child.

Parents try hard to protect their children from the many dangers they encounter. Injuries and deaths due to traffic accidents are dangers children should not have to face. Parents can be assured they have protected their child to the best of their ability only by using a crash-tested child safety restraint every time their child rides in a car.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Hereford Drill Team: Long Hours Spent in Building School Spirit

By ALLISON RYAN
Women's Editor

The unsung heroes of many football games appear to be those people on the sidelines such as cheerleaders, band members and the drill team.

Ten years ago Hereford High School organized a drill team which has grown to a 36-member team this year.

Under the direction of Barbara Dickerson and four officers, the group has performed at school pep rallies and their first football game Friday, Sept. 5.

Each week the group practices an estimated 10 hours while the officrs Karen Compton, Karol Shook, Lisa Snyder and Kim West practice an addtional five hours.

"After a performance, you feel like you have accomplished something and that makes all the work worthwhile," said Miss West, co-lieutenant of the group and a senior at high school.

Miss West said the standards of the group make the girls work harder in their school work. "Because you have to maintain a C average, a girl will work harder in school in order to stay in the group," she said.

"The group is well thought of," said Miss Snyder, corporal of the team and a high school junior, "and it is the thing to be in. The best thing is, we are all friends. After the Pampa game (Sept. 5) we all spent the night at one house."

Miss Snyder was a twirler for the high school band last year. As a requirement each girl must be a member of the pep squad or band her sophomore year before trying out for the drill team in the spring. Once a girl is selected for the team she remains a member her junior and senior years of high school.

Miss Shook is the captain of the team and is, in part, responsible for teaching routines to the team. She and her officers traveled to Portales, N.M. this summer for a four-day camp.

"We learned seven routines at the camp which we will teach the girls in addition to creating our own routines," she said.

According to Miss Shook, the officers practice each day after school so that they will be able to teach the group more effectively.

"We have a class period each day at school and because each officer knows the routines, we can put the team into four groups making the steps easier to learn," she said.

Mrs. Dickerson who teaches sophomore English at the high school said her job as sponsor is made easier because of the officers and her manager, Beth Owen.

"We have 28 girls who have never performed before this year, so without the help of the officers, the manager and the great support from their mothers we would not have been able to make it," she said.

In addition to performing during football season, the drill team will perform at several school assemblies, serve as hostesses at the basketball games and sponsor a consession stand for track meets.

The team is trying a new approach this year to get fans more involved with the spirit of games by selling spirit towels. The towels which sell for $3 are maroon and white and are used to wave at the game to show "Herd Spirit."

From practice to selling towels the drill team appears to work hard. They may spend a full hour on one routine to insure arms and legs move in harmony to create an effective routine.

"They are a great group of girls, and they work hard to do the best they can each time they perform," Mrs. Dickerson said.

DSC Republican Women's Organization Focuses on Fall Elections at Meeting

Deaf Smith County Republican Women's Organization at its meeting Monday focused on definite action related to fall elections, and set an extra meeting for Sept. 22 to launch a telephone and door-to-door campaign.

Plans were begun to secure the votes of political conservatives, whether party members or independents, for Republican nominees.

The RWO effort will coincide with the opening of a county GOP headquarters office next week in the Marie Griffin Real Estate building, 508 S. 25 Mile Ave. The office will be manned five days a week, in afternoons only at the start, according to County GOP Chairman Garth Thomas.

Election campaigning by the women will be for the party's Reagan-Bush ticket in the presidential race, and also for Bob Price, seeking reelection to the Texas Senate.

Price, a Pampa rancher, will be the guest speaker for the county RWO at the next regular meeting, Oct. 13. Jane White, president, announced that men will be invited to hear him, as well as women who are not RWO members.

Telephone campaigns and other personal contacts to support Republican nominees were strongly urged at the state GOP convention in San Antonio last weekend, Garth and Edwina Thomas reported at the Monday meeting in Hereford State Bank Community Room. They were delegates from this county.

Mrs. Thomas said election of Republicans to congress and all political offices, state and local, was emphasized by speakers while they concentrated on the Reagan-for-president race.

She noted that there was a strong representation of the Mexican-American Republicans of Texas, and said party leaders here will attempt to bring a speaker from the organization to Hereford.

Thomas, who served on the Rules Committee at the convention brought out two major goals of the Republican party in Texas: To convince cynical independents that there is a marked difference in the national parties, and to convince conservative Democrats that their party has changed, and is controlled by liberals whose views are not those of most Texans.

The Newspaper Bible

GOLD, GLITTER AND GLAD-RAGS ARE AN ILLUSION

Look here, you rich men, now is the time to cry and groan with anguished grief because of all the terrible troubles ahead of you.

Your wealth is even now rotting away, and your fine clothes are becoming mere moth-eaten rags.

The value of your gold and silver is dropping fast, yet it will stand as evidence against you, and eat your flesh like fire. That is what you have stored up for yourselves, to receive on that coming day of judgment.

For listen! Hear the cries of the field workers whom you have cheated of their pay. Their cries have reached the ears of the Lord of Hosts.

You have spent your years here on earth having fun, satisfying your every whim, and now your fat hearts are ready for the slaughter.

You have condemned and killed good men who had no power to defend themselves against you.

Now as for you, dear brothers who are waiting for the Lord's return, be patient, like a farmer who waits until the autumn for his precious harvest to ripen.

Yes, be patient. And take courage, for the coming of the Lord is near.

Don't grumble about each other, brothers. Are you yourselves above criticism? For see! the great Judge is coming. He is almost here (let Him do whatever criticizing must be done).

For examples of patience in suffering, look at the Lord's prophets.

We know how happy they are now because they stayed true to Him then, even though they suffered greatly for it. Job is an example of a man who continued to trust the Lord in sorrow; from his experiences we can see how the Lord's plan finally ended in good, for He is full of tenderness and mercy.

But most of all, dear brothers, do not swear either by heaven or earth or anything else; just say a simple yes or no, so that you will not sin and receive God's curse.

Hereford Beats Pampa, Borger in Tennis Matches

By Mauri Montgomery
Brand Sports Editor

The victories would have been all the more sweet had they fallen somewhere among Monterey, Coronado or any other district advesary, but the Hereford Whiteface tennis team wasn't going to toss aside even one of the duel-match wins it capped over Borger and Pampa this past weekend in Pampa.

The HHS squad surged into its season debut with resounding 6-3,5-4 wins over Borger and then followed with equally devasting 6-3,7-2 tallies in competition against Pampa to make the Saturday affair complete.

And after the first taste of success, head coach Robert Cox boasted a smile as big as Ille Nastase after watching a line-judge fall prey to heat stroke – a dastardly smile.

"I was very pleased with (this) our first play of the year because it showd we hadn't lost too much ground over the summer," Cox said. "But that still doesn't mean we don't need more work before district gets underway. Pampa and Borger were pretty good teams, but nothing like what we'll face against some of our district opponents."

The Hereford net squad is scheduled to pair off against Plainview and Lubbock High in a triangular practice meet Saturday, and then will play a tournament with Lubbock Estacado and Dunbar before making its first delve into the district throughfare against top-billed Monterey and Coronado.

"We've got a lot of good depth this year right down the line on both the boy's and girl's squad, and that experience payed off for us in some of the close matches," the mentor said. "When we played Borger we got really fired up and handled them fairly easy, but when we played Pampa we got a little tired and slacked off our previous pace a bit.

"Even with that slow start, we still managed to play well in the end. In fact we won 6-6 in doubles play over Pampa which let us coast a little in singles competition. And in light of that fact, I was pleased with the effort our kids put forth, especially since it was our first outing.

Ramon Duncan, Robert Castro, Danny Perez and Eddy Lindeman were a few of the reasons Cox was pleased, as each overwhelmed their competition in early going singles play with Borger to start the Herd's dominance of the day's matches.

Duncan nipped David Finely 7-5,6-4. Castro upended Richard Van Kluyve 7-5, 7-5 Perez crunched Billy Price 6-1,6-2 while Lindeman unraveled 6-2,6-2 wins over Daren Allen.

In girl's singles competition, HHS netter Kim Sims defeated Dana Erwin 6-3,6-2 to lead the way to a string of singles wins in that segment of the tourney.

The other winning margins notched up by the girl's squad came after Borger's Stacy Ervin fell victim to a Lisa Snyder barrage of 6-3,6-1 and Dolly Montemayor downed Karen Hagburg 6-2,6-1.

In doubles play, Hereford duo Claire Montemayor and Snyder enabled the Borger team to add up its only win of the day in that portion of the match with a loss to Becky Mckay-Jill Nielson 6-2,6-2.

Kims Sims and Carol Zinser beat Borger's Erwin-Spector squad 7-6,5-7, 6-2 while Dolly Montemayor and Shelly Gentry overrode BHS's Hagburg-Tront duo.

HHS duo Adolfo Garcia-Thomas cranked out a 7-5,6-2 victory over David Finely-Clint Murley while doubles team Eddy Lindeman-Perez capped their match with Clint Murley-Daren Allen by a margin of 6-2,6-2.

In net play with Pampa, the Hereford squad remained as determined before as Trent Thomas, Robert Castro Danny Perez grasped wins in their singles matches for a 3-3 tie in that competition. And in addition to those wins, every HHS doubles team advanced over its opponent.

The Garcia-Thomas squad whipped the Spence-Elliot duo 6-4, 6-4; Ramon Duncan and Castro edged past the PHS squad of Trollinger-Van Kluyve 6-7,6-3,7-5; and HHS's Lindeman-Perez pair outbid Price-Neils 6-3,2-6,7-6.

The girl's team slid past Pampa by a margin of 6-4 in singles play as Claire Montemayor, Kim Sims, Lisa Snyder and Dolly Monteymayor vaulted over opponents in that portion of the tournament.

The girl's netted a 3-0 advantage in doubles play also as Montemayor-Snyder cleated Hawkins-Kirksey 2-6,7-5,7-5; Zinser-Sims took straight set wins over Eddins-Hafacket; and D. Montemayor-Gentry defeated Marcan-Starnes 4-6,6-4,6-3.

In junior high competition, Hereford's Vanessa Sims drummed Andrea Elliott 6-2,6-2 as a leader of winning play in the singles bracket. Connie Zinser blitzed Lisa Butler 6-0,6-0 and Robin Hopper turned a 7-6,6-3 victory over Carol Morgan.

Then in doubles action, the Sim-Zinser squad routed Pampa's Elliot-Butler pair to complete a 4-2 overall advantage for the Hereford team.

Blair Rogers cinched a win over his singles opponent Sailil Mohan 6-1,6-0 in boy's singles competition. Donny anderson unleashed a 6-0, 6-4 volley at Mike Wheeler, while Doug Evans and Greg Reinauer skunked repective advesaries Halliburton and Laner 6-0,6-0.

In doubles play Rogers-Reinauer clipped Wheeler-Mohan 6-1,6-2 and Evans-Anderson shaved Halliburton-Laner 6-0,6-0 for a perfect mark of 6-0 over Pampa for the day.

Winning Return

Whiteface netter Eddie Lindeman bites his lip while returning a shot to Borger's Daren Allen Tuesday as the Hereford varsity tennis team paired off against the preseason opponent in its first competition of the new school year. Lindeman creamed Allen by a margin of 6-2,6-2 to help set the pace for the Herd's eventual dominance over the Borger squad (the Whitefaces beat Borger by an overall tally of 6-3) and later added up a 6-3 advantage over Pampa's net squad.

Landry Ranks Win Among Best

DALLAS (AP) - "Tom, It's Hard to be Humble,' crowded the marquee outside the hotel where Tom Landry has his weekly press luncheons.

A smiling Landry, who can keep sense of perspective even with two hours' sleep, took note of the sign Tuesday, saying "Regardless of what the marquee says, it's nothard to be humble in the National Football League. We've still got 15 more to go."

Dallas' surprise 17-3 victory over the Washington Redskins Monday night ranked as one of Landry's most satisfying.

He had worked almost exclusively with the defense during training camp, letting assistant Danny Reeves handle the offense in the preseason. Then cornerback Benny Barnes had to undergo an emergency appendectomy Sunday night, forcing green but gritty Steve Wilson into the fray.

The Cowboys found themselves in the unaccustomed role of underdogs to the Redskins.

"Our defense did what it had to do which was prevent the big play," said Landry. "We were plagued by the big play all last year.

"We controlled both lines of scrimmage against the Redskins.

HHS offensive linemen come off the line of scrimmage in a shower of rain and mud Wednesday in what head coach Don Cumpton related was the Herd's best workout of the week. Cumpton noted that the rain and cool weather had something to do with players' attitudes in preparation for the Palo Duro clash Thursday night in Amarillo. The Whitefaces will be going into the contest looking for their first win of the season after faltering against Pampa 20-7 a week ago in the squad's season opener.

Herd To Play Palo Duro

By Mauri Montgomery
Brand Sports Editor

The Palo Duro Dons and Hereford Whitefaces were like two peas in a pod – the only thing was they didn't like each other very much.

Both were the underwritten favorites to present considerable havoc among their respective 3-5A and 4-5A district lineups, each had posted infinite possiblities in churning out successful seasons a year ago (Palo Duro had accumulated a 2-8 campaign following four losses in the final minute of play – Hereford had marked a 5-5 trail in equally close decisions). And both had an impressive amount of returning veterans coming back for another stint (Palo Duro returned 14 while the Whitefaces enlisted 25 vets off last year's squad).

There was one difference worth noting however, the Palo Duro squad had already incorporated a preseason win under its belt with a 20-8 victory over the Clovis Wildcats while Hereford had succumbed to a similar defeat of 20-7 at the hands of the Pampa Harvesters.

And when the two squads pair off Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in Dick Bivens Stadium, both will have something to say about whether or not their preseason starts continue or end.

We're going to try an establish ourselves more on the ground at first against Palo Duro, but I think we're going to put the ball in the air a lot more than we did in the Pampa game,"said head Whiteface coach Don Cumpton.

"I don't know, I guess that 80-yard touchdown drive the other night against Pampa kinda spoiled me," said Don Cumpton of the Herd's dissappointing season opener with Pampa. "I thought that since we had ground out the yardage successfully on the ground during that period, that we could continue to do so without having to pass that much – that wasn't the main reason we didn't pass more than we did, but it held considerable weight in the factor.

That 80-yard first quarter thrust the Whitefaces mounted against Pampa and the one Cumpton was refering took up a six minute chunk in that period of play and composed what later became the Herd's only successful score drive out of three other possible attempts.

"We just didn't captilize on our advantages in order to make the big plays – that almost just doesn't cut it, and that's what we're looking to do this week against Palo Duro – to make those big plays we missed against the Harveter's,"he said.

"And Palo Duro is a very capable ball club. They're a big play team – too impatient to grind out long drives on the ground, yet they love to go for the big gaining pass and running plays,"he added. "That's why we've still got to establish ourselves on the ground in order that we can control the ball, eat up the clock, and keep the ball when we get it on offense."

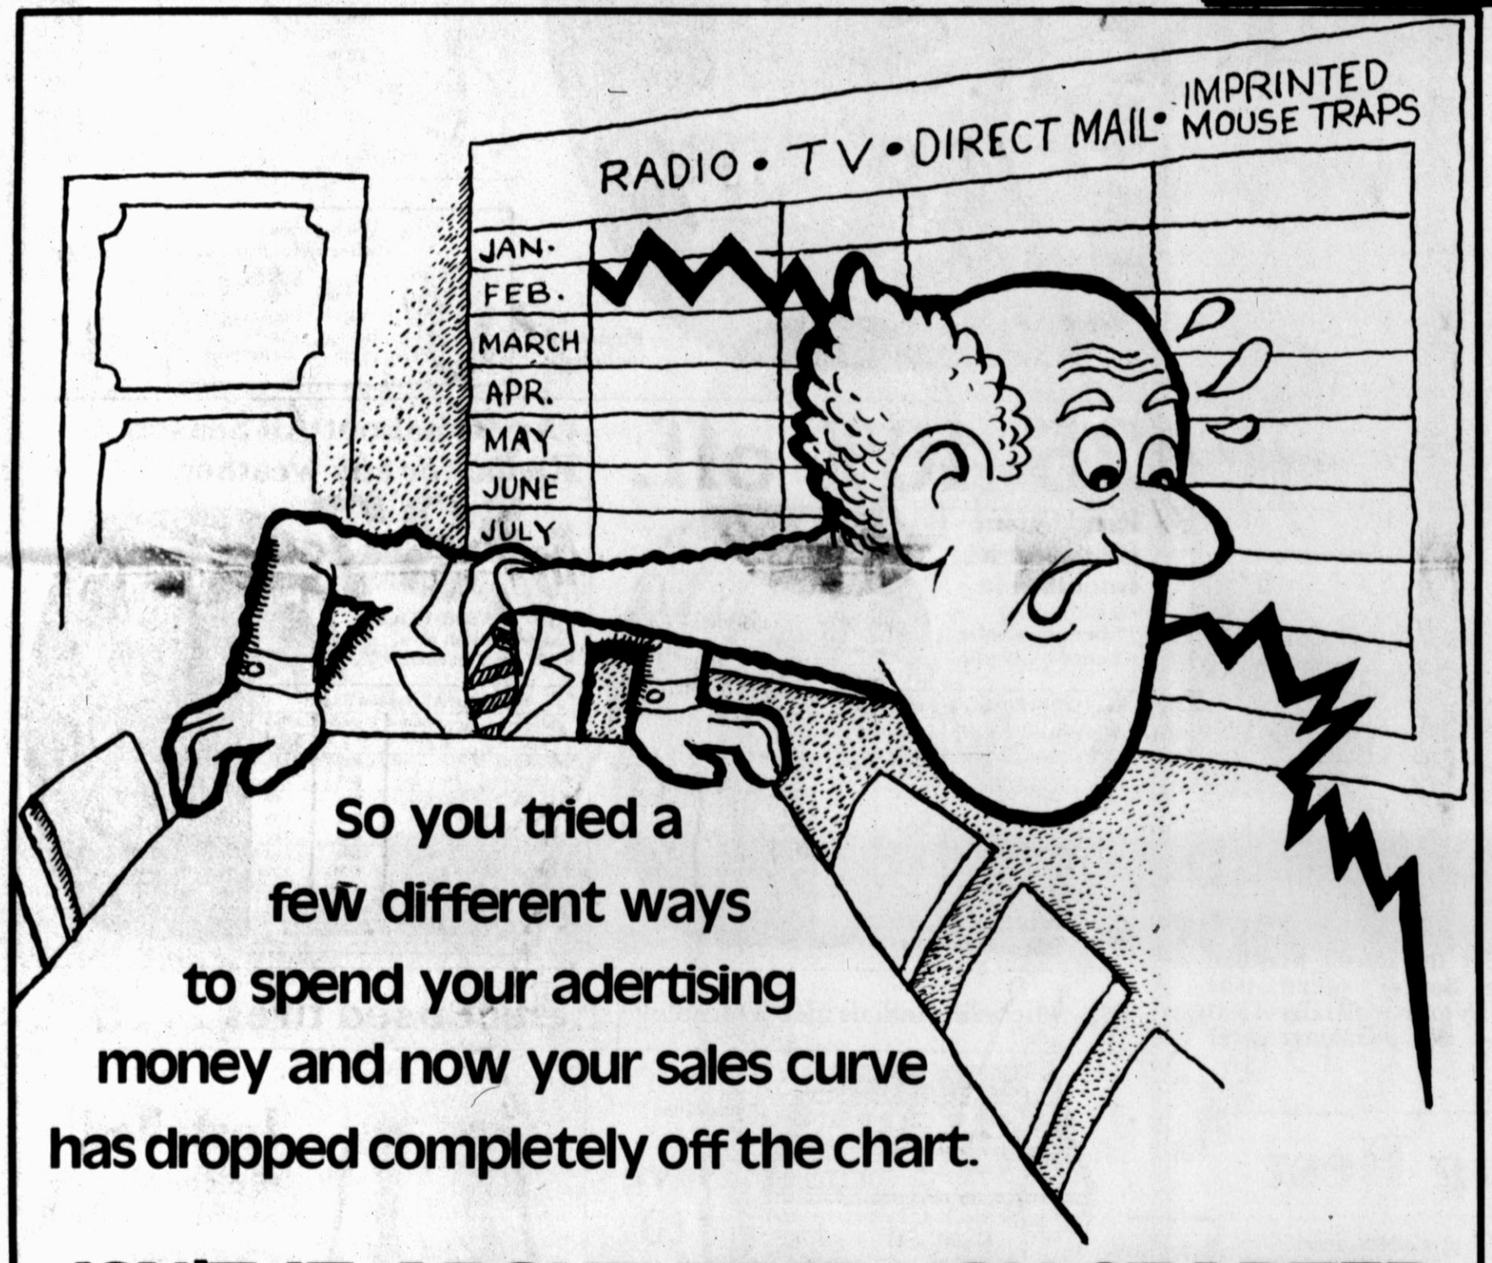

And the two most prominent PHS players Cumpton would like to keep the ball away from Thurday night come in the form of all-district wide receiver Troy Smith and second-team all-district receiver selection Mike Wafford. Both of the Dons accounted for 39 receptions a year past for more than 900 yards through the duration of the campaign.

"Those two guys are exceptional wide receivers and we can't let the Palo Duro offense get a hold of the ball too much or they can hurt us in that area,"Cumpton said. "They've also got an oustanding place kicker in Ken Ozee that's a three-point threat from anywhere inside the 40-yard line.

We've got our work cut out for us on defense, but that aspect of our game is one of our strongest points I feel like,"he said. "There may be some people that think that can't be considering the Pampa game, but after watching the films of the game last week, I'm convinced we're a good team defensively. We made some costly mistakes and did some arm-tackling last Friday night, but overall we really played pretty well. The effort was there."

"Basically as a team, we've just got to learn to overcome adversity and to capitalize on the other team's mistakes. I think we saw that we weren't quite as great as we thought against Pampa and I believe we're going to get after Palo Duro in this next go-around with a different frame of mind – looking for the big play,"Cumpton added.

The pod just wasn't big enough for the two squads. One of them was going to become an extension of Campbell's pea soup line following the conclusion of the Thursday night conflict. And somehow Cumpton figured it would be the Herd who would be asking, "Is it soup yet?"

Baltimore Shaves Detroit, 2-0

AL East Race Heats Up

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

The race in the American League East that seemed so cool only a few days ago, heated up again Tuesday night in the unlikely cities of Detroit and Toronto.

Scott McGregor, continuing his mastery over the Tigers, fired a three-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles beat Detroit 2-0 and moved within three games of the division-leading New York Yankees, who were in the process of dropping a 6-4 decision to the Blue Jays at Toronto.

In other AL action Tuesday, Boston beat Cleveland 4-3; California stopped Kansas City 4-3; Oakland beat Texas 6-3; Minnesota crushed Milwaukee 15-2, and Seattle tipped Chicago 4-1.

Doug DeCinces belted a home run and doubled and scored the other run on Lee May's pinch sacrifice fly, while McGregor, 17-7, flirted with a no-hitter until Dave Stegman and Jim Lentine both singled in the sixth. The only other hit was a two-out single by John Wockenfuss in the ninth.

Young Jackson Todd, elevated to the Blue Jays staff from Syracuse in early August, earned his fourth victory against one loss in Toronto's victory over the Yankees.

Todd limited the Yankees to seven hits over 6 2-3 innings, walked six and struck out three. Mike Willis pitched hitless relief the rest of the way to earn his first save.

The Yankees, who led Baltimore by 4½-games on Sunday, drew nine walks but stranded 13 baserunners.

Meanwhile, Mayberry's two-run homer, his 22nd of the season, keyed a our-run third-inning that got the Blue Jays off and running.

Red Sox 4, Indians 3

Gary Hancock's ninth-inning single scored Jim Dwyer from second base, giving Dennis Eckersley, 10-12, a victory over his former teammates. Dwyer was walked by loser Victor Cruz, 5-7, and moved into scoring position on a sacrifice bunt by Glenn Hoffman.

Eckersley scattered 10 hits, struck out four and walked three in eight innings.Tom Burgmeier pitched the ninth and earned his 22nd save.

Angels 4, Royals 3

Dan Ford slammed his seventh homer of the year and Frank Tanana gained the victory with one inning of relief help from Mark Clear. Tanana, 8-10, beat the Royals for only the fifth time in 17 career decisions, while Clear picked up his ninth save.

Despite the loss, however, the Royals saw their magic number in the American League West reduced to seven over the second-place Rangers. Kansas City played without George Brett for the third consecutive game and now is 19-19 in games without the .396 hitter in the lineup.

A's 6, Rangers 3

Mitchell Page slugged a pair of homers and Matt Keough, 2-17 a year ago, raised his current record to 15-12. Keough beat the Rangers for the first time after losing seven straight to them. However, he left in the eighth with a sore back, and Jeff Jones, the A's second reliever, earned his fifth save.

Page keyed a four-run fourth with a solo homer, his 13th, and added a two-run shot in the seventh to give the A's a 6-0 lead. Al Oliver hit his 17th homer in the eighth for the first Texas run and Jim Sundberg added a two-run double for the Rangers.

Mickey Rivers, with two hits, extended his hitting streak to 24 games for the Rangers, while Oliver has hit in 21 in a row.

Booster Club Begins Fan-of-Week Program

The Whiteface Booster Club has begun a new Fan-of-the-Week program which is designed to accomplish two things according to Booster Club President Bob Josserand (also the first delegate named in the Hereford-Pampa game).

"The main reason this program was designed comes two-fold in that it honors a Hereford fan's support (not for just those involved in football, but other sports as well), and secondly it gives the fans and people not directly involved in athletics the opportunity to see how athletics shapes and molds young people's lives in the community,"Josserand said.

The booster club fan-of-the-week is selected at each week's Tuesday night meeting by the executive board of the Booster Club along with the coaching staff and Hereford Athletic Director Don Cumpton.

"We think it is a very good idea for parents as well as fans to get the opportunity to see what goes on behind the scene – in the lockeroom before, after and at halftime through the duration of a game,"Josserand said.

"The fan-of-the-week also goes down on the sidelines during the game with the team and gets to see what goes on down there, and I was really impressed with how little I knew about the amount of emotions and intensity prevalent before and after a game. It's something you just don't see up in the stands – you have to experience it first hand and that's why we started it."

This week's fan-of-the-week honor was given to Wayne Amstutz of 134 Ironwood for his vigorous backing of the Hereford squad s over the years.

"Our only hope is that we can bolster the backing of the town for the Herd this year because it's an important ingredient in a team's success,"Josserand added. This program was designed to get more people out to the booster club meetings and to reward fans that show a great amount of interest in the endeavors these athletes exhibit throughout the year."

Computer Age Arrives for Cattle Marketing

COLLEGE STATION – The day has arrived when a producer can sell a load of feeder cattle without lifting a hand other than telling a machine what he's got to sell.

That machine is a computer and the system is called "Cattlex" (for Cattle Exchange).

Cattlex is currently in the demonstration and experimental stage in Texas for the purpose of developing trading techniques and operating procedures for computerized cattle marketing, point out Dr. Ernest Davis and Dr. Tom Sporleder. Davis and Sporleder are economists in livestock marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, respectively, Texas A&M University System.

"The project will run daily for nine months as a joint effort between the Extension Service, the Experiment Station and the U.S. Department of Agriculture," say Davis and Sporleder. "During this period we hope that those involved will develop the expertise to develop a commercial system similar to this test project."

Computer terminals have been set up at 18 different locations over the state to link together feedlots, order buyers and auction markets. According to the economists, locations were selected based on cattle volumes and density as well as economy of operation. Local county Extension agents can assist producers in contacting computer terminals in their area.

Just how does the system work?

"To begin, a producer requests a grader from a computer terminal location to list and describe the cattle he wants to sell," explain Davis and Sporleder. "The description and listing fee is about $1 per head payable before the lot is offered over the computer system. Included in the description are such things as sex of the cattle, age, grade, breed, weight and flesh condition. A seller may also put a 'no-sale price' on the lot which means that he does not want to sell for less than a certain price."

This information is then consolidated and transmitted by way of a cathode ray tube (CRT), a television-like screen which is a part of the computer terminal. The information can also be copied on paper by a printer accompanying the CRT.

Each day before the sale begins, buyers gather at the terminal site to review the day's listings on lots of cattle offered for auction. When a sale is made, a printout at both the buying and selling terminals will present a confirmation of sale.

Both buyer and seller will also receive a copy of the individual description of the lot. Title transfer is at the time of official weighing for ranch cattle and after the sale for delivered cattle.

What are the advantages of such a system of electronic marketing?

"The basics of marketing cattle are not changed by Cattlex," emphasize Davis and Sporleder. "Buyers still bid competitively and sellers still seek the highest possible price. However, the system expands the scope of trading and reduces transportation and stress through more direct movement.

"With the Cattlex system, sellers have the advantage of more purchasers while buyers have more lots of cattle from which to choose without scurrying over the countryside," add the marketing economists.

The trend in recent years toward more local auction sales as well as direct selling on farms and ranches has resulted in more dispersed, low-volume markets too small to attract large numbers of buyers, contend Davis and Sporleder. However, Cattlex centralizes the price negotiation process in marketing livestock without the costs involved in physically centralizing buyers, sellers and livestock.

An added benefit of Cattlex is that it provides fast, up-to-date market information. Interested parties can watch the market as it occurs over the state or nation by simply viewing the CRT at the terminal site.

"Cattlex can greatly improve cattle marketing in Texas if both producers and buyers will give the system a try," believe Davis and Sporleder. "Once both parties gain confidence in Cattlex, cattle marketing can become much more efficient."

To see Cattlex in auction, the economists encourage producers to visit a market in their area that is participating in this experimental system of computerized cattle marketing.

Need for Feed Energy Factor in Rations

COLLEGE STATION – Would dairymen pay an extremely high price for feed without knowing how well the feed can be digested or the concentration of important nutrients in the feed?

Sounds absurd – like throwing away money.

Dr. Carl E. Coppock, researcher with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and dairy specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said that besides water, energy as a nutrient is required in the greatest amount for dairy cattle. Cost for energy far exceeds all other nutrients and yet, no direct laboratory analysis for digestible, metabolizable or net energy is available to farmers.

Dairymen are masters in selecting programs that increase genetic trend, are using advanced milk systems and are able to control mastitis and other infectious diseases through sanitation and management. These advances, in turn, focus attention on nutritional constraints for higher milk production.

Coppock said it is important to prevent gross nutrient excesses that will increase metabolic stress. Metabolism of some feeds causes stress in excretion and contributes to soil and environmental pollution.

So, how will forage and feedstuffs be analyzed and their value determined?

Dr. Chris Woelfel, a cooperator in Coppock's research and a dairy specialist with the Extension Service, said during the past five years, there has been a large increase in the number of forages and feeds submitted to laboratories for chemical analysis. This indicates an interest in and need for forage nutrient testing and application of results.

He said the majority of testing is done by land-grant universities. Charges for the testing range from $6 to $35 with an average of $12.45 per sample. Farmers and county Extension agents were responsible for submitting most of the feed samples for analysis.

Besides an increase in samples submitted for testing, there has also been an increase in the array of tests available to dairymen.

A small reduction in turnaround time for completion of results has also helped the testing programs.

However, even though there has been an increased number of samples submitted for testing, many states have no specific program to help farmers use the results of the forage tests.

Coppock said there is not enough interpretive information available on report forms for special analyses.

So, even though farmers get test results, they may have little idea as to how the results can be applied to their management and feeding practices. Greater precision in estimating disgestibility and net energy value of forages would be helpful, but Coppock said it seems unlikely that this is feasible using simple, fast wet chemistry methods.

A promixing development in the field of forage and feedstuff analysis is infrared reflectance (IR) technology. Its advantage lies in the speed of analysis. He said a finely ground sample of grain or forage can be analyzed for multiple nutrients in less than two minutes. It is now being used commercially for determining protein in grains.

He said the application of IR to forage evaluation is more complex and requires expensive instrumentations and data processing. However, even more significant is the evidence that IR can be used to predict animal response factors. These include digestibility and possibly estimates of feed intake.

IR technology will replace wet chemistry as the method for determining nutrient composition plus giving estimates of animal response, said Coppock. Technology is not the limiting factor for more effective use of forage testing. Rather, more effort needs to be directed toward use of the results already being generated by forage testing in feed programming and diet formulation.

Fertilize Lawns Now To Boost Fall Growth

COLLEGE STATION – Fertilizing lawns now will boost fall growth and get them in shape for next spring, says a turfgrass specialist.

"A fall application of fertilizer not only prolongs green color in lawns but also stimulates root growth, reduces winter injury and promotes early spring recovery," points out Dr. Richard L. Duble with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Fall fertilization also increases turf density and reduces weeds."

Warm fall days and cool nights provide conditions favorable for grass to accumulate carbohydrates that promote root growth and help the grass survive winter months. Leaf growth is also less during the shorter fall days, says Duble.

The specialist recommends applying a fertilizer high in nitrogen and potassium and low in phosphorus. "Both nitrogen and potassium are important to leaf growth and color and root growth. Potassium is also important to winter survival, disease resistance and drouth tolerance. While phosphorus is essential, it is required in much lesser amounts than the other nutrients," points out Duble.

"Use a fertilizer with a 15-5-10, 12-4-8 or similar analysis for the fall application," suggests the specialist.

Base the rate of application on the nitrogen content, the first number in the fertilizer analysis. Apply 1 to 2 pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn. So, with a 12-4-8 fertilizer, use 10 to 15 pounds per 1,000 square feet, depending on when the last fertilizer application was made. If the lawn has not been fertilized for the past six weeks or longer, use the higher rate.

"Lawns can be fertilized through October in most areas of the state," points out Duble. "In South Texas lawns can be fertilized through November without adverse effects.

"For the homeowner interested in an attractive lawn this fall and early recovery next spring, fall fertilization is a must," contends Duble.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Advantage to less sodium?

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have no problem with salt except that I do like a normal amount and I would hate to be on a salt-free diet. Is there any advantage in having half the sodium removed? Is there any advantage to using Morton's Lite Salt? It's half sodium salt and half potassium salt. I've been using this. Would I be better off having the full amount of sodium as in regular salt?

DEAR READER — For normal, healthy people who use a moderate amount of salt, it probably doesn't make a lot of difference. There are a number of well-qualified investigators who think that the high sodium intake many apparently normal people use may cause a person to develop kidney damage and high blood pressure in the course of time. However, there are large numbers of people who use a lot of salt throughout their life and it never affects their blood pressure or has any other bad effects whatever.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance. It will give you some of the thoughts of different investigators on the problem as well as those foods which are rich in sodium and those foods that are rich in potassium. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The truth is your kidney is designed normally to eliminate the sodium salt that your body doesn't need. That, of course, only happens if you drink an adequate amount of water. A person trying to survive on sea water can't do it because there's too much sodium salt in relationship to the water available. Our body is a wonderful machine which is able to maintain a very delicate chemical balance in terms of acid base balance and in terms of how much sodium and potassium is retained in the body.

There's nothing wrong with normal people using Morton's Lite Salt. As you said, only about half of it is sodium salt. Individuals who are required to be on a severe sodium restricted diet cannot use it as a salt substitute. If it's really true that high sodium intakes do cause some people to develop high blood pressure in a period of years, then using such a preparation should offer some advantages.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Everyone seems to have a health hint and some are right and some are not. Will a person feel better if at age 60 he or she takes a couple of tablespoons of lemon juice and a tablespoon of honey in a glass of warm water each morning? Or are they wasting their time? Is it harmful?

DEAR READER — Some of these hints are a bit like beauty. The effect is in the eye of the beholder. Strictly from a medical and chemical aspect, it doesn't make a particle of difference. It's neither harmful nor helpful. If a person happened to be low on vitamin C, the amount in the lemon juice might be helpful but for normal people on a normal diet, it doesn't make any difference.

Some people feel better when they do things of this sort but that's a psychological effect. And I'm not against that if people do things that don't harm them and they feel better because they've done them. Why not? I only get upset when people think that such folk cures are going to prevent cancer or cure arthritis and thereby omit getting good proper medical attention for important disorders.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read one of your columns about the husband who wrote and complained because his wife was losing her memory. My husband has had two strokes and his memory is very poor. You mentioned that the lack of vitamin B-12 can sometimes cause this problem. Does that mean that everyone should take B-12 to help prevent a loss of memory? I'm in good health now but I sure would like to know what I could do to help prevent this problem. I have had a lot of trouble with my husband after his second stroke because of this. He also has a cholesterol problem.

DEAR READER — We all need B-12. It's an important, essential vitamin for the body. People on a normal balanced diet ought to be getting enough in the foods they eat. Of course, if you have a medical problem such as an inability to absorb B-12 then you may have pernicious anemia. This can lead to personality changes, memory problems and many other findings.

If you're healthy and are eating a balanced diet, taking additional B-12 is not likely to help your memory. The point I'd like to make is that anyone who starts having unexplained memory problems and is labeled as 'senile' deserves a complete medical examination because there are many medical problems that cause such symptoms. It's wrong to just decide that this is aging and can't be corrected. That's true in a high percentage of the cases but that's no excuse for allowing the people with medical problems to stay in this condition without helping them.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-2, The Aging Brain. It will discuss this in more detail for you. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the medical problems that can affect memory is a stroke or changes in the circulation to the brain. Anything that damages the brain can affect the memory. This can include physical injury to the brain as can occur from head injury.

There is one thing I believe everyone can do to help prevent memory loss. They can learn to train their memory. In our society we know a lot about training muscles. That's because of the great emphasis on athletics. The public at large knows a lot less about training the memory. Training the mind has a number of similarities to training the muscles. If you don't use it, you lose it. If you train your mind, you will increase your chances that it will be working adequately for you for a much longer period of your life.

You might want to stop by your library or bookstore and see what books they have available on memory training. There are a number of good ones that could help you in this department. Once you start training your memory, keep at it regularly year after year and it will help.

Such techniques are often helpful even in people who already have significant problems with their memory. Obviously, it's no cure-all and there are some people who will get little if any benefit from it but it certainly can help all those people who never bothered to train their memory or keep it in top shape.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

=Pillows can be cleaned=

DEAR POLLY — I wuld like some suggestions for cleaning up old down and goose feather pillows. The ticking is at least 35 years old, but in good condition. — LILLIAN

DEAR LILLIAN — The following method for washing down and feather pillows is recommended by a leading laundry bureau. Pillow ticking is so thick that sudsy water will not get through to the feathers, so rip open about five inches of the seam of each short end. Sew these openings with big loose stitches (using heavy thread) to keep the stuffing from falling out.

Two average-size pillows should not be too crowded in the machine. If only one is being washed, add a few towels. Use a bit more soap or detergent than for a regular washload, as the pillows hold a lot of dirt and oil.

When washing by hand, put the pillow in a deep tub, half full of warm water and enough suds so they "stand up." A plumber's plunger can be used to push suds and water in and out rather than using the hands. When the water is dirty, remove the pillow and repeat procedure. Rinse thoroughly and squeeze out as dry as possible. Sew ripped seams. Set dryer on low or hang outdoors on a breezy day; either way, shake and punch pillows as they dry so they are fluffy. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When tomato plants are about six inches high, I cut old nylon hose into strips about an inch wide, and then slip them over the plants and stakes. They do not show, they hold the plants in place and stretch when needed.

Do tell Mrs. R.P. that when I have a pot with food stuck to it I put in about two tablespoons of WASHING soda with water and boil for a few minutes. This has worked for me for 35 years. — CORNELIA

DEAR POLLY — Since starting to use a recipe file and cards for our personal telephone directory, I find it is easy to keep neat and up to date. If there is a change in a phone number or address I simply remove the old card and fill out a new one. — JANICE.

THOUGHTS

It is difficult for us to have an objective view of ourselves and our actions. We tend to rationalize and think whatever we do is right. Some criminals consider themselves innocent and try to justify their deeds.

"All the ways of a man are clean in his own eyes; but the Lord weigheth the spirits." — Prov. 16:2

The South Texas hailstones the size of baseballs and grapefruit, and weighing several pounds, are small compared with those mentioned by St. John the Divine. (The biblical talent varied from 58 to 100 pounds.)

"And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent..." — Rev. 16:21

The ark was transported on a cart from Gibeah to Jerusalem, although the journey was interrupted when Uzzah took hold of the ark when the oxen shook it and was slain by the Lord. A new cart was used out of respect for the ark.

"And they set the ark of God upon a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was in Gibeah: and Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drave the new cart." — II Sam. 6:3

Esau was understandably angry when he found out that Jacob had cheated him out of his father's blessing, but he went too far when he planned to kill him. Years later he atoned for that when he went to meet Jacob. Jacob with reason feared his brother's wrath when he heard he was coming with four hundred men to meet him. Esau, however, seemed to have only kind feelings toward him. He had forgiven him.

"And Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him, and fell on his neck, and kissed him: and they wept." — Gen. 33:4

Measure of Inflation

If you think U.S inflation is bad, consider Germany in 1923. Early that summer, a hotel room cost 375,000 marks a day and a ride on the street car 5,000 marks. Three weeks later, the same room cost 18 million marks and the street car ride 60,000 marks. Store prices were determined day by day by multiplying the basic price by a constantly rising index.
