Missionaries, Kin Hacked To Death

UMTALI, Rhodesia (AP)-Black nationalist guerrillas bludgeoned to death 12 white missionaries and members of their families at a mission near Rhodesia's border with Mozambique, it was reported today. Church and other officials said the dead included a 3-week-old infant and several other children.

Reporters who reached the isolated mountain mission of the Elim Church - 10 miles south of this border town - said 12 persons were beaten to death with logs. Earlier, the Rhodesian military command said 13 persons had been hacked to death.

One white woman reportedly survived the Friday night attack, though she was badly beaten.

The Rev. John Smith of the Elim Church in Cheltenham, England, said all the victims were British.

The military command declined to identify the victims but church officials in England said they were:

The Rev. Peter McCann, his wife, Sandra, daughter Joy and son Phillip , both under 5 years of age; the Rev. Philip Evans, his wife, Susan, and daughter Rebecca; the Rev. Roy Joyce, his wife, Lynn, and their 3-week-old baby, Pamela, and Wendy White and Catherine Pickens.

The sole survivor was identified as Mary Fisher. Authorities said Miss Fisher's body was found by troops today about 50 yards from the bodies of her colleagues. She was taken to a hospital at Umtali. There was no immediate word on her condition.

No further details were immediately available on the victims.

A Rhodesian military spokesman said there were no casualties among the blacks at the mission. Reports from the scene contradicted earlier ac-

Return Home

NASH (AP)-An estimated 1,200 persons forced from their homes by fears of leaking chlorine gas were allowed to return home early today after firemen extinguished a fire at a chemical plant.

No one was injured and there were no immediate damage estimate. A fireman said the cause of the blaze could not be immediately established.

The about 1,200 residents of this Northeast Texas town were ordered evacuated when a fire erupted at the Fremar chemical plant.

The fire was extinguished several hours later when firemen doused the plant with water, an action they had avoided taking earlier for fear that the chlorine gas might escape.

Troops Kill 19

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP)-Invading Rhodesian troops killed 19 persons in a two-pronged raid in southwestern Mozambique and one of the battles is still raging, the Mozambique army says.

The troops, ferried in by helicopters and backed by jet fighter-bombers, also kidnapped a group of women and children from a research station where the 19 were slain, the army said.

Universal Politics

LONDON (AP)-Prime Minister James Callaghan says the late Hubert H. Humphrey evolved his own special brand of politics - "the politics of hope" - which became universal.

Callaghan flies to Washington today to explore possibilities for a long-term British-American partnership in the aviation industry.

Recount Delayed

ABILENE (AP)-A recount of Taylor County's local liquor sale election has been delayed for 30 days while county commissioners seek a formal opinion from the attorney general on the legality of the canvass.

Taylor County Commissioners voted 3-2 Friday to postpone their originally ordered recount of the balloting last Saturday that gave pro-liquor forces a 11,591 to 11,460 vote victory.

Four Hurt In Mishap

A two-vehicle collision Saturday morning at the traffic Y southeast of town sent four persons to Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Among those taken to the hospital was 6½-month-pregnant Helen Robles, 18, of Snyder. She was not thought to have been seriously hurt.

Mrs. Robles was a passenger in a 1970 Chevrolet pickup driven by Celia Lara, 40, who was also taken to Cogdell. Both women were treated for lacerations.

Their vehicle was in collision with a 1970 Cadillac driven by Gladys Hicks, 55, of Grand Prairie. Injured in the Hicks vehicle were Mrs. Hicks' daughter, Joan, 26, and mother, Sallie Postert, 76, of Cisco. They, too, were treated for lacerations.

The mishap resulted in heavy damage to the vehicles. The collision occurred about 10:25 a.m. Saturday.

City firemen were called to the scene to wash down the streets at the mishap site after gasoline spilled from the tanks of the two vehicles involved in the crash. City police investigate.

FOUR INJURED - Four persons were injured in a Saturday morning collision of two vehicles at the traffic Y southeast of Snyder. City firemen were called to the scene to wash away oil and debris from the wreck. (SDN Staff Photo)

The SDN Column

We just learned that Mildred Smith, a former Snyder teacher, has been named Teacher-of-the-Year in the Hurst-Euless-Bedford School District, which is located just northeast of Fort Worth.

She was selected for the honor from a field of nominees representing two high schools, five junior high schools and 16 elementary schools in that district. She taught for 15 years in Snyder Public Schools before moving to HEB Public Schools 12 years ago when her husband was named assistant principal at L.D. Bell High School there. In all, she has taught 32 years, most of it with first graders, which was her assignment here at West Elementary School.

She is the mother of Carolyn Bowden, a teacher at Alpine, and Dr. Ronald Smith of Lubock, an oral surgeon who is married to the former Toni Best, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Best and sister of Dr. John Best of Snyder.

We were especially interested in this because Mildred Smith got a couple of our youngsters started off in the first grade, and despite obstacles from other sources, both made it through high school and college without undue difficulty.

Also, we learned at the same time that her husband, Bob, retired this year after 12 years as the assistant principal at L.D. Bell. We are inclined to question that he is that old. He served as principal of Travis Junior High School in Snyder before moving to HEB.

Some interesting "spinoff" information has accrued from Proposition 13 in California.

For example, 57 tax offices assess all property for tax purposes in California and all taxing jurisdictions use their figures. A state agency reviews these assessments for accuracy and keeps track of all taxes levied by local jurisdictions. In contrast, some 2,240 tax offices in Texas administer property taxes, and a single piece of property may have three or four different values placed on it for tax purposes, with boundary lines of the taxing agencies often overlapping in myriad confusion.

New Contest For Scurry Residents

A new contest open to all Scurry County residents has been added to the list of events for the annual July 4th Celebration here.

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce and the Scurry County Farm Bureau are sonsors of the contest in which entrants are asked to list reasons why they like to live in Scurry County.

Entry blanks, with space for listing three reasons which make Scurry County a desirable place to live, are being made available at both Snyder banks and at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce office.

The entries must be in by July 4. There is no entry fee and anyone residing in Scurry County is eligible to enter.

A first prize of $100, a second prize of $50 and a third prize of $25 will be awarded.

There will be a drawing from all entries on July 4 to determine the winners of the prizes. The top 10 reasons for living in Scurry County will be published at a later date.

Chamber's New Manager Due Monday

Bill Warner, new manager of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, is scheduled to begin his duties here Monday.

Warner, 34, has been industrial development director of the San Angelo Chamber of Commerce for the past six years.

He succeeds Bill Henry, who resigned the local post in May to accept a position with the City of Grand Prairie. Warner is married and he and his wife have two children.

Appraisal Of Conservation Program Set

Public views on the future of conservation, protection and enhancement of Texas' soil, water and related natural resources will be sought here in the council room of Snyder City Hall, 1925 24th Street, at 1:30 p.m. on Monday, June 26.

W.L. Wilson Jr., chairman of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District, said the meeting is in response to President Carter's signing of the Resources Conservation Act last November, an act which requires an appraisal and evaluation of the state and national soil and water conservation program.

This meeting will primarily deal wth soil and water resources in the district and will be an opportunity for the citizens of Borden and Scurry Counties to have their input as to the resource conservation needs.

Q - How does the game warden dispose of dogs he picks up that are unwanted?

A - The Snyder animal officer impounds stray animals and those that are not claimed within 72 hours are disposed of in a small gas chamber. The city animal officer should not be confused with the game warden, who is an employee of the state Parks and Wildlife Dept. and enforces fish and game laws in the area.

New Course To Begin In Fall...

WTC's Construction Program Instructor Got An Early Start

Danny Pounds, instructor for the new Residential Construction program at Western Texas College, got his start in the construction three days after he graduated from high school in Bovina 25 years ago.

He began as a laborer, working in the construction of a high school building to replace one which had burned a few days after the beginning of his senior year. Since that time, has worked in all phases of construction and he came to Snyder from Lubbock where he had been self-employed as a building contractor. One of his latest major projects there was the engineering layout for the Lubbock Civic Center.

The construction course at WTC will teach all phases of building, Pounds said.

"I think this program is great," he said. "One year of training here can be the equivalent of three years of hit and miss training on jobs. The construction industry isn't attracting and holding the young people it needs and this type of specialized training can help the industry and give the people a good start. We intend to train students to earn a living and to do a good job."

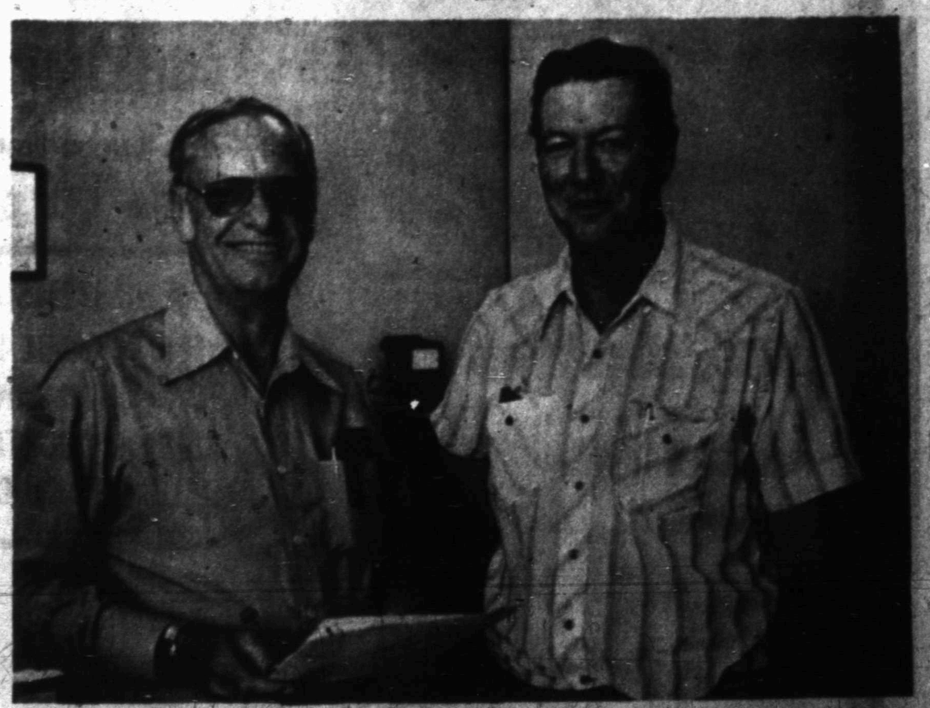

Pounds also feels that matching people with jobs is important, and that students at WTC will have the opportunity to find what they do best and enjoy most in construction work. They may then choose to specialize in that area or those areas.

Looking back over his own career, Pounds recalls three years that were especially valuable. During that time he worked for a contractor who helped him get started on his own. In recent years, Pounds has given this same kind of assistance to at least seven young men, each interested in becoming contractors, and they have now begun working as contractors on a small scale with prospects for moving up.

WTC will begin accepting students in the building program when the fall semester opens on Sept.7. Pounds has already moved to Snyder to begin preparing the shop and classroom the students will use. His wife and two of their three children, Dwayne and Dusty, will join him shortly. Another daughter, Denise, is employed by Methodist Hospital and plans to remain in Lubbock.

Safety will be emphasized as the construction course opens, and will

UNSCHEDULED PRACTICE - When their bus broke down in Snyder Friday, these softball players aboard spilled out onto the vacant lot behind the Westside Phillips 66 Station and got in some extra practice time. The bus was enroute from California to Irving when the trouble occurred. After playing in Irving the group will head back to their home in Memphis, Tennessee. (SDN Staff Photo)

Area Students Are Initiated

AUSTIN--Two students from the Snyder area are among 336 new members initiated by the University of Texas chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta, scholastic honorary society for freshman men and women.

The nation organization chooses freshmen women and men who have attained a scholastic average of 3.5 grade points (4.0 is A) in 15 hours of course work or 4.0 in 12 hours of work.

Initiated were Terri Kay Eaton, 4505 Galveston, Snyder, and Lisa Ann Hale, Route 2, Rotan.

continue to be emphasized. Pounds said. In all his years in the construction industry, he has had no time lost due to accidents on the job. He believes that new safety regulations introduced into the industry recently were needed and that every worker should be familiar with safety rules and safe working practices.

The beginning students will be working on the construction of the first of 16 duplexes to be built on the southeast corner of the WTC campus. This will involve staking the building from the blueprints, completing the paper work required, and then construction. Each building will contain about 2,000 square feet and will provide student housing. Each apartment will contain a living room, dining area, bath and two bedrooms.

The students will work first with hand tools and later with power equipment. That's part of learning the construction business from start to finish, Pounds said.

Pounds doesn't feel like a newcomer to Snyder. He and his father, Farris (Fats) Pounds, hauled hay here in the summer of 1952 when the longest recorded drought in Texas history was getting underway. The elder Pounds had lived here in the late 1920s.

Mr. and Mrs. Pounds are planning to build a home in Snyder in the future. They are considering an adobe, and have visted an adobe home containing about 3,000 square feet completed recently in Lubbock. Pounds likes stucco for an exterior finish and says it is now becoming popular again because of its low maintenance cost and other desirable qualities.

Persons interested in the new program are invited to contact Pounds at the college or to call him at 573-8511, extension 222.

Rotan Youths Earn Honors

ROTAN - Several local students achieved academic honors during the spring semester at their respective universities.

Those making the dean's list at Texas Tech University in Lubbock were Timothy Allen, Clay Helms, Kathy McCombs, Teri McKinney and Delbert Helms.

To qualify for the honor roll at Tech a student must have a minimum grade point average of 3.0 on a 4.0 scale and carry a minimum course load of 12 semester hours.

Wes Morrow of Rotan was among the students at Tarleton listed on the B honor roll. He had to maintain a grade point average of not less than 3.0 with no grade lower than C.

Carter: Holding Line On Fed Spending Essential

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) - President Carter said today holding the line on federal spending is essential in fighting inflation "and I am willing to do so even if it means I have to take the political consequences."

In his text for delivery at the dedication of a 44-year-old federal building and post office being renamed for Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, Carter declared:

"Short-sighted selfishness can lead to a spiral of inflation that nobody will be able to stop. Only self-discipline in the public interest can slow that spiral."

Saying he can "only do a small part of the job," the president told his East Texas audience: "I call on each of you today, and I call on each member of Congress to help create the climate of mutual sacrifice so we can curb inflation."

The president told the Texas Democrats, who paid $500 each to hear him, that his administration will beat inflation "without sacrificing our steady growth and expansion ... without throwing people out of work."

Conceding that the task won't be easy, he said he and Congress "will have to resist every heavy pressure from strong interest groups - highway and defense contractors, home builders and dam builders, even from farmers, educators, veterans, and local and state officials."

Saying "It is never pleasant or popular to say 'no' to a useful program," Carter added, "there comes a time when the nation must draw the line."

He went on:

"That time has come. I am ready to draw that line, I ask for your support - even when you have to make a sacrifice."

In this state where oil and gas producers and cattle growers are critical of many administration policies, the president concluded by discussing his long-debated energy program, saying that his audience's indulgence in hearing the discourse would be considered "the moral equivalent of hospitality."

Looking ahead to the international economic summit he will attend in West Germany next month, Carter said, "We are embarrassed in the eyes of our friends and weakened in the eyes of our enemies without a program to encourage greater use of our more available fuels" other than oil.

The president said the United States has to rely on the petroleum reserves of the OPEC nations and cannot avoid "the inescapable linkage of international politics with the oil trade."

"We lose credibility with our allies," he said, "when our national energy policies do not reflect this reality."

Carter, making his first visit to Texas as president, was winding up his two-day visit today by dedicating a 1934 federal building in Beaumont in the name of Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, and attending a $2 million firepower demonstration at Ford Hood.

At his first Texas stop in Fort Worth, Carter held a question and answer session at a civic luncheon where he was asked first about apparent "differing views" of U.S.-Soviet relations held by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's assistant for national security affairs.

Insisting there is "overwhelming cooperation and compatibility" among Vance, Brzezinski and Defense Secretary Harold Brown, Carter said:

"In our country quite often special interest groups who don't like what I decide - and I'm president, and I make the final decision - always look for a scapegoat or someone they can attack without attacking me personally. I don't think it's fair; it's certainly not right for the Soviet Union and Cuba to jump on Dr. Brzezinski when I'm the one who shapes the policy after getting advice from him and others."

counts that said all 250 black children attending the mission school were rounded up by the guerrillas and marched across the Mozambique border, five miles from the mission.

Some of the children said they were rounded up from their dormitories by the guerrillas and then ordered to return to bed. It was not immediately known whether they had witnessed the massacre.

It was the most serious attack yet on missions, which have become a prime target for raids by black nationalists stepping up their six-year-old war to topple the Rhodesian government. It came as Mozambique reported invading Rhodesian troops killed 19 persons in southwest Mozambique.

A Rhodesian military spokesman said the Guerrillas raided the mission at about 9 p.m. Friday and rounded up black children at the school there.

"The terrorists then slaughtered white missionaries and their families," a military spokesman said.

The mission attacked is in the Vumba Mountains about 10 miles east of the border garrison town of Umtali and four miles from the border with Mozambique where black nationalist guerrillas of Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union operate.

Nathan's Fast In Seventh Week

TEL AVIV (AP) - Depressed and tired, Abie Nathan vows to die unless the Israeli government heeds his plea.

Nathan said Friday that he is only 10 days from death as he entered the seventh week of a fast he's sustaining until Prime Minister Menachim Begin and the Israeli Parliament agree to halt settlement of occupied Arab territory while Mideast peace efforts continue.

Nathan gained fame by his 1966 unauthorized flight to Egypt, where he presented a "peace plan" to the late Gamal Abdel Nasser.

"It isn't important whether I live or die," Nathan said Friday.

Disaster Areas Are Requested

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture Friday to declare Deaf Smith, Coke, Upton and Baylor counties as disaster areas because of adverse weather conditions.

The application covers the period May 1, 1977 to through June 1, 1977.

Briscoe also said the Small Business Administration had been asked to declare Coke and Upton counties as disaster areas.

Pair Injured In Knifing Incident Here

An argument erupted into a Friday night knifing at Snyder Lanes that involved four men, police said. None, however, was seriously injured.

Treated as outpatients at Cogdell Memorial Hospital were David Herrera, 19, and Rudy Perez, 15. Two other men, who police said fled the scene, were located and questioned Saturday morning.

The incident occurred shortly after 10 p.m. So far, officers said, no charges have been filed in the case.

Two traffic accidents and a theft were also investigated by the police department.

Rickie Lynn Kasparek told officers Saturday morning that her lawn chair was missing from her 1902 Coleman St. residence. The chair, she said, disappeared between 9 a.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday.

At 12:47 a.m. Saturday police were alerted to a hit and run mishap in the 3100 block of Ave. I. Reports show that a parked 1967 Chevrolet pickup owned by Johnny Elledge was struck by a vehicle which left the scene.

Moderate damage was reported to two cars that collided Friday at 6 p.m. at the College Ave. Dairy Queen.

Involved in it were a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Linda Mason and a 1976 Chevrolet pickup driven by James Littlepage.

In 1977, Oklahoma's football team made 174 first downs by rushing and only 23 by passing.

Are there safeguards against heart attack and stroke? Certainly - they are:
1. Have your blood pressure checked. High blood pressure, if untreated, can lead to stroke or heart attack.
2. Give up smoling cigarettes.
3. Avoid foods high in saturated fats and cholesterol.
4. Reduce if you are overweight.
5. Get regular physical exercise.

C-City 'Frogmen' Trained By Traveling Instructor

By JOHN DUNNAM

COLORADO CITY-Seven frogmen returned to their homes here early last week. They were not frogmen when they left, at least officially. When they departed for Lake Amistad near Del Rio the day before about the only thing the group had in common was a weeks work in the swimming pool and an interest in scuba diving.

Two weeks ago a traveling dive instructor was recruited to quench their thirst for the deep. After a week of intensive training in the pool and classroom on how to survive in the wet world using self-tained underwater breathing-apparatus (scuba), the group went to Amistad for their final test. There they became certified divers.

But first they had to prove to the instructor that they could handle themselves and the equipment well enough to be safe divers. This included such underwater tasks as flooding the face mask with water and then clearing it. They had to take off and then don their tanks and gear underwater. Their proficiency at buddy breathing was also tested-a feat where two or more divers share the same air supply.

Their instructor was Jerry Bell from Fort Worth. He is 40, bearded, tatooed and salty as sea water. He leaves his dive shop in the hands of his wife for weeks at a time while he roams the dusty roads of West Texas teaching the inhabitants of an arid land about the joys to be found in an underwater world.

"The hardest thing to teach people is that they can breathe underwater. You're not supposed to be able to do that and even though they know the equipment will provide the air it is hard for them to get their bodies to cooperate at first," he said.

For a fee of $75 per student, Bell will teach any group of eight or more people how to become certified scuba divers. He supplies most of the gear, including the tanks, for the duration of the course.

One of his regular customers is Western Texas College in Snyder. There he teams up with P.E. instructor Lee Burke and shows collegiate types how to explore the watery three quarters of the planet.

They receive college credit for their efforts. Classes at WTC are also offered for the community.

Two of his students at WTC were C-Citians Robert Ramage and David Myers. They organized the class here and recruited Bell to teach it. A cross section of people were attracted to the first scuba diving class ever to be held in Colorado City.

Even a local politician got in on the action. Rick Perkins, city councilman and pharmacist, at 35 was also the oldest member of the class. Stephen Kimbell, was the youngest at 17. Other members of the class were Matt Sheppard, Blake Bodine, Jimmy Forbes, Noel Martinez and Mark Brooks.

Talk of a club for area divers is in the wind. Another certification class is slated for July.

Bell says that scuba diving is the most fascinating sport ever devised.

"You are submerged in an environment so strange and so different that you can't even breathe without special equipment. Movement is accomplished in a horizonal position instead of a vertical one and you may go up, down or just hover like a bird in the air."

Natural vision is blurry underwater but a facemask brings everything into focus and makes it seem bigger than life..literally. The magnifying properties of water cause everything to appear one-third larger and one-fourth closer. "That makes things tricky for spearfishers and photographers," said Bell.

It is paradoxical that in a medium 30 times as dense as air where sound travels much farther, that divers have to resort to sign language to communicate. But that is the case. Since the ear is not conditioned to distinguish sounds underwater Bell teaches his students an abbreviated version of the sign language used by the deaf.

Bell insists that scuba diving is one of the safest sports around.

"But the rules must be followed," he said. "Mother nature punishes the violators and her penalties can be pretty stiff."

Some of the rules are simple, such as always diving with a partner. Most have to do with air in the body and how it reacts when subjected to pressure.

"The deeper one dives the more the pressure," he said. "The air in the ears and sinuses cause few problems. Most people learned how to equalize the pressure in their ears by holding their noses and blowing against a closed mouth when they were a kid."

But there are a few things a diver must know about the effects of pressure on the air in his lungs. Basically, he has to remember that after breathing air out of his Scuba tank at depth, he must exhale continually when he rises to the surface.

He explained: "If you took an air-filled balloon 33 feet underwater it would only be half as large as it was at the surface due to the water pressing against it. If you let it go it would expand as it rose to the top reaching its original size at the surface. The same thing applies to the lungs. If a diver does not exhale the air he breathed at depth as he returns to the surfaces his lungs may burst like over inflated balloons."

Another thing the diver must constantly be aware of is length of time spent at any particular depth. Due to breathing air under pressure a higher amount of oxygen and nitrogen (the elements that comprise air) are absorbed into the body.

Too high a concentration of oxygen can cause convulsions. No damage usually results from these temporary seizures but convulsing under water makes drowning imminent unless the buddy makes sure that the diver does not lose his air supply.

This situation can be avoided by not diving deeper than 130 feet without a special mixture of air. That is much deeper than the suggested 60 to 100 feet limits recommended for sport divers.

PREPARING FOR THE DEEP - Pictured on the top left is instructor Jerry Bell (standing) watching over his class as they prepare their gear for another pool session. A week of training in the pool and in the classroom was provided before the final test, known as the open water check-out dive, was conducted at Lake Amistad. Shown with him are Matt Sheppard (with tank) and Stephen Kimbell. In the water are Noel Martinez and Mark Brooks. In the above picture, Bell has entered the water himself. He says he does not ask his students to do anything he will not do himself. Also shown are Blake Bodine, Kimbell and Sheppard. On the lower left picture Bodine jumps into the water clutching his gear. He must put it on underwater before surfacing. Kimbell observes in the water. Robert Ramage, a diver who assisted Bell with the class, is resting on the side of the pool.

trations of nitrogen poses two problems. First it causes the diver to feel a sense of euphoria . This "high," comparable to being drunk or drugged, has caused divers to lose their judgment and drown for such diverse reasons as offering their mouthpieces to passing fish or simply declining to return to the surface.

Again, this may be avoided by not diving beyond the recommended depth limits.

The other problem caused by nitrogen is that it builds up in the blood when breathed at depth. If a diver surfaces without making stops at predetermined depths for certain lengths of time he may get air bubbles in the blood. This could cause embolism or a case of the bends.

Bell teaches his divers how to avoid the necessity of making decompression stops but says they will know how if they ever have to.

He says it is part of his job to teach students the kind of hazardous situations a diver can get into a how to avoid them. But just in case, first aid is taught as a standard part of the training.

"Scuba diving has a good safety record and most of the accidents happen to uncertified divers," said Bell. "those are the people who just bought the gear and learned on their own."

One must be 15 years of age to become a certified diver. Those 12 and over may receive a junior rating that permits them to dive if they are accompanied by a certified diver.

There is no outside age limit. "I once taught a 66-year-old man to dive. It is not how old one is but what kind of shape he is in," said Bell.

Since diving with a friend is the cardinal rule of diving, Bell says it is an ideal activity for married couples. "It is not just a sport for daring young adventure seekers any more. It is a way for almost anyone who can swim to explore a piece of man's last frontier on earth."

Plea Is Heard

A guilty plea Friday in county court netted one man a $100 fine and a 30-day jail term, probated for six months.

The plea was entered by Laredo Hernandez to a misdemeanor charge of driving while intoxicated.

Holiday Is Set At WTC

Classes at Western Texas College will be dismissed July 3 and 4 in observance of the holiday.

Administrative offices will be open on July 3.

Registration for the second summer session at WTC wil be held July 12, with classes beginning July 13. This will be a six-week session with day classes only. The first session of day classes will close on July 7, while the 9-week session of evening classes will close July 28. Fall registration is scheduled for Sept. 5-6.

Two Probated Terms Levied

Two probated terms were issued Friday in 132nd District Court.

Tommy Baker, 17, pleaded guilty to a charge of retaliation and received a probated two-year jail sentence.

Baker was accused of making a verbal threat against the complainant in a sex case in whicn his brother, Robert Baker, was charged with aggravated sexual abuse. Baker was alleged to have directed the threat at the complainant March 30.

A guilty plea to a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle netted Rojelio Pesina a probated two-year jail term.

Pesina was charged with taking without permission a 1972 Javelin owned by Guy Allen. The incident occurred May 30.

Tony Randall Back To Tulsa

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Tony Randall is returning to the Tulsa stage for the first time since he appeared in "If I Were King" at Tulsa Central High in the 1930s.

Randall will have the lead in "The Music Man," which opens Tuesday for a six day run. He just wishes that Allen Dexter, who had the lead in the high school play, could join him on "The Music Man" tour as the anvil salesman.

Dexter has played the salesman in several productions of the musical. "It's a very, very funny part," Randall says. "He walks around with a sachel which he keeps dropping. You realize he has got an anvil in it."

But Randall didn't ask that his high school chum be cast because Randall himself wasn't sure if he could do "The Music Man." That hinged on whether his television series, "The Tony Randall Show," would be cancelled for next season. It was, and Randall was free to start a 10-city tour that started June 19 in Kansas City.

After Tulsa, "The Music Man" will play Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, Ind.; Atlanta; St. Louis; Chicago; Toronto; Vienna, Va., and Baltimore, where it will run Sept. 4-23.

Marian the Librarian is the only character in "The Music Man" who has to sing beautifully, Randall says. But Harold Hill, the salesman of marching band instruments, has to do something harder - talk fast and syncopated. And he doesn't have a melody to carry him.

"It goes at 120. That's a metronome marking, 120 quarter notes to a minute. I'll never forget it. It's what we marched to in the Army.

"If you do Gilbert and Sullivan, it may be fast but it is always right on the beat. You can hardly go wrong.

"This is full of syncopations and tiny dotted 16th notes. If you don't do it with perfect accuracy, you'll be hopelessly lost," Randall thumps a table with a finger, at 120, and recites from "Trouble": "...or you are not aware of the caliber of disaster indicated by the presence of a pool table in your community."

"Hear those triplets" he says, after proving those words definitely are not delivered on the beat.

Randall worked with a coach in New York, learning his part, before going to St. Louis for two weeks' rehearsal with the tour's chorus. He could never have learned the part from the original cast recording, he says. It's too tricky.

Randall has taken voice lessons for 30 years, daily when he's at home in New York. That's good for an actor, even if he never sings, Randall says. "You can hear those who do.

"You can hear those who do, for one thing. They also have some range and some tone."

Maddox To Auction Momentos

ATLANTA (AP) - No more autographed pick handles for sale, says former Gov. Lester Maddox. But he does plan to auction other mementos of his colorful career, including three bicycles he rode backwards around the state capitol.

Maddox, recovering from a heart attack suffered in September, is selling memorabilia today to help pay off $125,000 in campaign debts from his unsuccessful race for a second term as Georgia governor in 1974.

Last summer, Maddox, who once refused to serve blacks in his restaurant, began a nightclub act with a black man, Bobby Lee Fears, a former convict and dishwasher. The act ended after a reported falling out between them.

Custer's Unpaid Bill Discovered

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Gen. George Armstrong Custer was in hot water over unpaid telegraph bills about the time he got into a lot more serious trouble at the Little Big Horn, a document discovered in a private museum reveals.

"He is indebted to the company at Fargo, N.D. over $100 for messages ... which he had charged to him and now neglects to pay," Charles H. Haskins said in the letter, which also described Custer as "utterly lawless in all his transactions with us."

Haskins was general superintendent of Northwest Telegraph Co. at the time, and he later served as one of the founders and as first president of Wisconsin Telephone Co.

The duplicate copy of the letter sent by Haskins to Gen. A.H. Terry in St. Paul, Minn., was found last month in a museum operated by long-time employees at Wisconsin Telephone headquarters here.

"I was a little stunned when I found it," James Masters of the Wisconsin Telephone legal staff said Friday. "I'm kind of a military historian. You might say it really made my day."

The letter was dated April 26, 1876, which was two months to the day before Custer and his 264 men of the 7th Cavalry were massacred by Indians at the Little Big Horn River.

"This company issued to General Custer a complimentary frank for the current year," Haskins' letter said. "As formerly, he has always been lawless in its use, but we hope that he would do better by and by.

"But he is growing worse each month. During March his ... messages from two offices alone were as follows: Fort Lincoln, $26.67, and Fargo, $43.85. One message alone, at tariff rate, was about $20.00.

Masters said the letter was found in a volume of communications sent out by Haskins.

He said there was no way of determining if Custer received the letter, but "by the time they tracked him down, he was probably dead."

Texan To Head SEA

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Texas educator has been named to head the Science and Education Administration in the Agriculture Department, an agency recently originated under a departmental reorganization plan.

Dr. Anson R. Bertrand, dean of the college of agricultural sciences at Texas Tech University, Lubbock, will begin his new duties as director of the agency on July 10, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Friday.

The agency, called SEA, includes about 8,000 employees in agricultural research, extension and higher education.

In a statement issued by his office, Bergland said that Bertrand's selection "is the result of an exhaustive nationwide search for a highly qualified person" to direct SEA.

Bertrand was chosen from among more than 130 nominees and 40 applicants for the $47,500-a-year job, the announcement said.

Bertrand, 54, was born in Gatesville, Tex., and holds degrees from Texas A&M University and Purdue University where he obtained a doctorate in agronomy.

Linked To Dealers' Options...

Gulf Says Varying Gas Prices Not Unusual

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Customers of Gulf Oil Corp. have been advised there is nothing unusual about several gasoline prices appearing at different service stations at a single traffic intersection.

Besides differences in gasoline cost, Gulf says, a variety of prices may reflect the varying business methods the dealers have adopted to operate their stations.

"The first dealer may opt for low prices and large volume; the second, for higher prices and smaller volumn," Guld reports.

"Another retailer may offer full service, with considerably greater operating costs than a fourth dealer who chooses self service."

Gulf presented its views on gasoline prices in a consumer news digest brochure distributed to its credit card customers and a spokesman said the response was about 100-to-1 favorable.

The brochure said the pump price elected by a dealer will depend to a large extent on how he interprets the needs of his customers and what marketing practices he employes.

"It is interesting to note that, on an average, dealers are setting current gasoline prices 2 to 5 cents below ceiling," Gulf added.

The price of gasoline has been subject to federal price controls since the early 1970s and there also are government-mandated price ceilings establishing the maximum price a dealer may charge.

The ceilings date back to the Arab oil embargoes of 1973-74.

Gulf said pump prices also have differed from one retailer to another because of variations in dealer margins which existed in May 1973.

"If one dealer's margin for a certain grade of gasoline was 8 cents per gallon on that date, he could retain that margin under price controls," Golf explained.

"If another dealer had a 5-cent per gallon margin on that day for the same grade of gasoline, he could only retain that 5 cent margin. Once controls were in effect, subsequent adjustments were made to the ceiling price to accommodate increased dealer operating costs."

To remain competitive, Gulf said, few dealers have charged the maximum allowable price.

The Gulf brochure also includes an estimated cost breakdown for a typical gallon of regular grade gasoline that carried a national average full service pump price of 63.8 cents last Nov. 1.

The crude oil used in processing the gallon of gasoline cost 28.9 cents or 45.3 percent of the selling price.

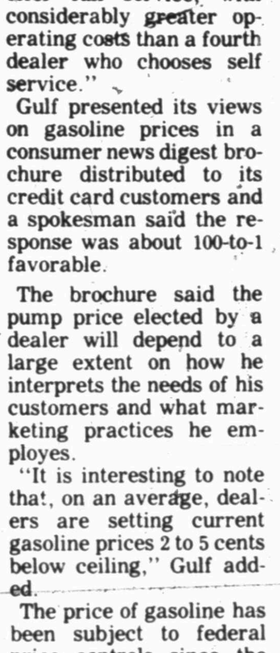

The cost of crude just a year earlier, Gulf said, was 24 cents or 40.7 percent of the cost of a gallon of regular grade.

Federal, state, and local taxes represented 19.6 percent of the November gallon. On the national average, the combined taxes total about 12.5 cents a gallon, with Mississippi, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and New York also imposing an additional sales tax on gasoline.

In addition to the 4-cent federal tax, state tax rates range from 5 cents in Texas to 11 cents in Connecticut, Delaware, and Washington. Also, 26 states have city, county or transit taxes which range from 0.5 to 4 cents a gallon.

The dealer's margin or mark-up amounts to 8.5 cents a gallon or 13.3 percent of the selling price. This covers the difference between what the dealer pays for the gasoline and what it sells it for, and, in addition to profit, covers such operating expenses as rent, utilities, and labor.

The combined cost of crude oil transportation, refining, product transportation and product storage accounts for 7.4 cents or 11.6 percent of the selling price.

Wildcat Tests Staked In Scurry And Borden

Jack L. Kirby of Midland announced location for a 7,300-foot wildcat in Borden County, 16 miles southeast of Gail.

It is No. 1 Montgomery, 1,200 feet from south and 2,100 feet from west lines of section 49, block 25, H&TC survey. It is one location northwest of a 7,230-foot dry hole. Elevation is 2,396 feet.

Tejas Production Co., Houston, No. 1 Royce K. Summers is a new 8,300-foot wildcat in Scurry County, three miles southeast of Fluvanna.

Drillsite is 3,207 feet from south and 3,000 feet from east lines of section 429, block 97, H&TC survey and $^{5}/_{8}$ mile northwest of an 8,365-foot failure.

It also is 1.5 miles south and slightly west of a Mississippian discovery and 1.5 miles south of the Strawn discovery of the Fluvanna multipay pool. Elevation is 2,656 feet.

Shell Oil Co. will re-enter its No. 1-B Slaughter, depleted Ellenburger discovery of the U Lazy S field of Borden County and attempt completion in the Strawn.

If completed in the Strawn, it will be assigned to the Dunigan (Strawn) field.

Location is one and one-half miles northeast of Dunigan (Strawn) production and 665 feet from north and 662 feet from east lines of section 16, block 30, T-6-N, T&P survey. It will be plugged back to 8,102 feet.

William L. Rodgers of Fort Worth No. 1-D Thelma J. Cole will be drilled one and five-eights miles south of production in the Vincent (lower Clear Fork) field of Howard County.

The Clear Fork test will be drilled to 4,500 feet.

The drillsite is 2.5 miles southeast of Vincent and 1,787 feet from south and west lines of section 35, block 26, H&TC survey.

The Varel, North (San Andres) pool of Scurry County gained a new producer, its fourth, with the recompletion of T.F. Hodge of Midland No. 2 N.G. Landrum.

A former Glorieta oiler, the project was recompleted from the San Andres for a daily pumping potential of 17 barrels of 37-gravity oil and 15 barrels of water, through perforations from 2,102 to 2,257 feet.

The pay section was acidized with 1,500 gallons and fractured with 44,000 gallons.

Total depth is 2,816 feet.

Location is 1,484 feet from north and 2,006 feet from east lines of section 487, block 97, H&TC survey and three miles east of Fluvanna.

It is one location southwest of other production.

Hamilton Brothers Oil Co. of Midland No. 1 Oldham has been spotted in Howard County as a 9,400-foot wildcat.

Location is 660 feet from north and 760 feet from west lines of section 39, block 27, H&TC survey and 15 miles northwest of Big Spring.

There is no nearby production but there are several dry holes in the area.

Sayers Operating Co. of Midland No. 1 W.C. Winters is to be drilled as a ¾-mile east stepout to the Sara Mag (Canyon reef) pool of Howard County, $^{1}/_{2}$ mile east of Vincent.

The 7,500-foot operation is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 6, block 25, H&TC survey.

Cross-addiction

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

Former First Lady Betty Ford's distress was evident the night she narrated the television version of the "Nutcracker" ballet. As she stumbled gamely, but without expression, through her lines, one could only assume she had been over-medicated — or had over-medicated herself.

Five months later, she announced she was entering a hospital to overcome a dependency on pills and alcohol. Courageously shedding light on a problem shared by more than two million American women, the former first lady broke through the pattern of denial by asserting in a very personal way the insidious and destructive nature of addiction.

In this excerpt from a hot-line call, a counselor tries to help a worried son face the reality of his mother's cross-addiction to alcohol and pills. (Personal information in all hot-line excerpts has been altered to protect the caller's confidentiality).

HOT LINE

AL: I'm not calling for myself. I'm worried about my mother. Is it all right if I talk even though it isn't an emergency?

COUNSELOR: Certainly.

AL: At least, I don't think it's an emergency. I'm confused by her behavior. I can't put my finger on anything specific, but she has changed over the past three years. She used to be alert and fun; now she's quiet and preoccupied. Maybe my marriage caused her to change ....

I got married about the time all this started. But maybe this is all my imagination. No one else in the family seems to notice anything unusual.

COUNSELOR: What prompted your call today?

AL: She has a habit of drinking too much at social gatherings. When we were at her house last night, she got pretty drunk. I offered to take her to her room. As I was helping her down the hall, she kept saying, "Give me my little white darlings." Do you think she was talking about pills?

COUNSELOR: She could have been talking about pills. If so, she might be mixing them with alcohol. That is really dangerous.

AL: Even when you take something as common as Valium?

COUNSELOR: Yes, Valium and some other tranquilizers, when used with alcohol, increase the possibility of developing an addiction.

AL: That must be why the doctor advised her not to drink when she had Valium in her system.

COUNSELOR: Does she take Valium?

AL: I don't really know. About three years ago, she had trouble relaxing and the doctor gave her a prescription. She hasn't talked about the pills since then, so I just assumed she stopped taking them.

COUNSELOR: You mean she hasn't talked about the pills until last night?

AL: Maybe she was just acting crazy because of the alcohol. Maybe she didn't know what she was saying. Maybe she meant something else. Maybe ...

COUNSELOR: Now you are starting to rationalize your mother's behavior just as we are trying to establish whether she has a serious problem.

AL: That's right. I just can't face it. What would I say to her?

COUNSELOR: Could you talk to her just to clarify whether or not she is still taking Valium?

AL: No. I don't really want to talk about this anymore. I never should have called. You're no help.

COUNSELOR: You sound so angry.

AL: Well, nobody is going to accuse my mother of being a drug addict or an alcoholic.

COUNSELOR: I am not accusing her of anything. You have picked up some clues that suggest something is seriously wrong. If you investigate a little further, you may find you are mistaken. Or you may find you need to help your mother.

AL: I don't think I want to pry into her business. I'll wait until next time.

This hot-line call illustrates a common theme. Loved ones often prefer denial to facing the reality of a painful situation. The counselor could not be very helpful at this time.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Willie's Picnic Date Is Changed

DALLAS-Promoters for the upcoming Texas World Music Festival have announced that the Willie Nelson Picnic, originally scheduled for Monday, July 3, is being moved up a day to Sunday, July 2.

According to David Krebs of Contemporary Communications Corporation and Louis Messina of Pace Concerts, the change comes in response to the expressed wishes of thousands of Nelson fans and after a personal request by Nelson himself.

"Willie's fans are working people," stated Messina, "and for too many of them, Monday is simply not a holiday."

"We've been getting reports from ticket outlets throughout the southwest that people wanted the Nelson concert on Sunday," added Messina. "It's been a grassroots movement, and when Willie heard about it, he asked if the change could be made."

The Willie Nelson Picnic offers a lineup of progressive country superstars including Kris Kristofferson and Rita Collidge, Waylon Jennings and Jessi Colter, Emmylou Harris, The Charlie Daniels Band, Ray Wylie Hubbard and Billy Swan. Cotton Bowl Gates will open at noon on Sunday with showtime set for 2 p.m.

Advance tickets are priced at $12.50, with a $15.00 charge for those sold the day of the event. Tickets may be purchased at all Rainbow Ticket outlets. Those previously sold for the July 3 date will be honored on July 2. Further ticket information is available by calling, toll free in Texas, 800-392-3794.

Golfers Are Teed Off

ATLANTA (AP)-Golfers using the public course in Piedmont Park have more obstacles than treacherous greens or sand traps - a group of young people who meet regularly at the fourth hole to drink wine and beer, toss Frisbees and enjoy the fairway sunshine.

Carl Seldon, assistant golf pro at the course, says golfers are being harassed and forced to play elsewhere.

"It's ridiculous that people pay their money to play and have to put up with someone out there drinking wine," he said.

A mounted patrolman at the park said the group has been gathering for several months, although he has regularly run them off.

One female golfer says she was chased down the fairway one day this week as she tried to play through.

Other golfers say they encounter youths sprawled on blankets in the fairway who grab golf balls and keep up a stream of comments that disturbs chip-shop concentration.

In 1977, Dutch growers produced some two billion tulip bulbs, and 142 million of them were shipped to the United States.

Only Females Bite...

Mosquitoes Come With Warm Summer Days

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The mosquitoes are coming! The mosquitoes are coming!

Yes, with the first really warm summer days, comes that almost imperceptible hum, followed by the seemingly inevitable bite.

The mosquito - maddening on a summer evening, dangerous when carrying disease - but really little known by its scratching victims.

Consider this: only the females bite.

The male is the Ferdinand the Bull of the insect world, eating only the nectar of flowers, the sap of plants, fruit juices.

The female bites because she needs a "Blood meal" to provide protein to nourish her eggs. After her first batch of 50 to 200 eggs, she must have blood for each successive batch. She will lay perhaps 10 batches in her lifetime of several weeks.

Attempts to control mosquitoes have been going on for years. The latest research is on use of hormones, bacteria and predator mosquitoes, all of which would interfere with growth before the mosquito emerges from its tiny shell as a full-grown insect.

Mosquitoes live in water, and each type has its own preference for flesh, salt or brackish water. They don't swim well, so the water must be relatively still.

The ones that bother people the most generally live around houses - in the old days in the rain barrel, now in tin cans or old tires, in an unused toilet tank in a spare bathroom, in a basement sump pump, even ivy placed in a jar of water to root.

So one of the best protections is to eliminate these breeding places. If you live near a salt marsh, that may be difficult.

And that can be more than just a question of controlling a nuisance that stings and makes you itch - if the mosquito is carrying the infectious agent for such diseases as malaria, yellow fever or sleeping sickness, which is an inflammaion of the brain.

Actually, only a few types of mosquitoes prefer to feed on man, according to Alice Gray, scientific assistant in the department of entymology at the American Museum of Natural History. They prefer birds, dogs, horses, all sorts of animals.

"There are a few females who have the bad taste to prefer frogs," says Miss Gray.

As for the male, he has extremely bushy antennae used for hearing. These resonate in response to the wing beat of the female. The wing beat causes the mosquito's hum, and the female's slower - and lower pitched - wing beat is recognizable to the male.

From the eggs, which the female lays in the water, hatch mosquitoes that go through metamorphosis, from egg to larva to pupa to adult. Like all insects, the mosquito grows by changing the external portion of the skin. This is called molting.

In the final stage, the outer shell splits a last time and the adult steps out onto the surace of the shell, as if on a raft, and is ready to fly - and, if female, to bite.

Do mosquitoes really attack certain people? Yes.

"Human beings differ markedly from one another in their attractiveness to mosquitoes," is the textbook explanation in "The Physiology of Mosquitoes."

"This is a great mystery," says Miss Gray.

A number of factors appear to play a part in making one person a favorite on the mosquito menu. The insect seems to follow the scent of the person until coming within sight; then colors that contrast with the background seem to attract.

When the mosquito gets closer, body temperature helps it locate the exposed skin. Some people exude carbon dioxide from their bodies rather than just exhale it, and they may be more attractive. The odor of sweat and of blood circulating through capillaries of the skin also may be important.

One other thing, the textbook says: "Certain observations suggest that the presence of mosquitoes on the skin of a host may make it more attractive to other mosquitoes."

And when the mosquito bites, it can drink its weight in blood at a single meal, National Geographic notes.

The remarkable structure of the insect's mouth allows her to pierce and draw blood and at the same time inject salivary secretion. The secretion produces that allergic reaction that cuases the itching.

The proboscis consists of six blade-like objects that do the piercing, sucking of blood and injection from the salivary glands.

So what good are mosquitoes. Well, they constitute a major part of the diet of some animals, such as fish and birds, Miss Gray says.

"Yes, they have their place in the economy of nature," she says. "Of all the animals, the one I would willingly consign to extinction is the mosquito, but I'm not sure that's a good idea."

Although its origin is controversial, the hamburger is thought to have been inspired by Tartar invaders inhabiting the Baltic region in the Middle Ages, according to National Geographic. Sailors from Hamburg, Germany, who saw the Tartars eating the raw, chopped meat took the idea home.

Special Session Still Pondered

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he is giving "serious consideration" to a special session for tax relief but it will be next week, "at the earliest," before he decides.

Briscoe made the statement Friday after conferences with House Speaker Bill Clayton, who had talked with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Briscoe was in Houston Friday night for the Democratic fund-raising dinner honoring President Jimmy Carter.

"Members of my staff have been meeting with representatives of the lieutenant governor and the House speaker and will continue their discussion of the various approaches through which meaningful tax relief could be provided the citizens of Texas and limits placed on future taxes and spending by governmental entities," Briscoe.

"It's still an 80-20 chance we will have an extra session, but they are thinking twice about it now," said a prominent lobbyist who did not want to be named.

Comptroller Bob Bullock said in Amarillo he thought Briscoe would call a special session. He said Briscoe told him three weeks ago he was planning one and "asked us for a study on the various combinations he might use, and my people are still working on it."

Clayton, who had predicted that Briscoe would call the special session on Friday, had to roll back his forecast after meeting with Hobby and then with Briscoe.

IT'S HARD FOR a Boy Scout to live up to his promise of remaining "brave, clean and reverent" when a rabbit hops into the washtub. Especially when a friend is urging him to keep the visitor in the bath water until a camera can be found. But thanks to the patience of bather and bunny, Rusty Olson of Burnsville, Minn., won a merit certificate for this shot in the annual Scout Photo Scholarship Awards, sponsored by Kodak.

Competition Stimulates Trap Shooter Interest

By JOHN LONG

"Pull," shouts a voice, and a clay bird darts into the sky. The air recoils from the blast of a 12-gauge shotgun, and the clay projectile is blown to bits. It was a good break.

The sport is trap shooting, and the quarry is an elusive, if brittle, clay trap 4½ inches in diameter. It is hurled into the air at approximately 65 miles an hour, and shooting the spinning disk presents a real challenge, said trap shooter Garland Bishop.

"It's just self control and practice," said Bishop. "I don't know how to put it. It's just trying to get better and shoot more birds."

About 25 local trap shooters meet every Thursday behind Bishop's rural Snyder home. They are the nucleus of the Snyder Trap Club, a loosely formed group of men who are interested in "breaking a few."

"All trap shooters have one thing in mind," explained Bishop, "and that's breaking targets. You get to where you want to break that clay bird more than you want to shoot a real bird."

Bishop used to hunt real birds, and still does. But he finds trap shooting more to his liking. He was first exposed to he sport nearly a decade ago while a member of the Canyon Reef Gun Club.

Another line of trap shooters has marched forward and assumed their positions. The air is rent by their shotgun explosions. Most of the clay traps are blown to pieces, some few escape. The percussions from the shotguns kick the scent of gunpowder into the air.

"It doesn't satisfy a good trap shooter to just chip the bird. You want all of it. You want a black puff of smoke, a good break," said Bishop.

Competition is a natural part of the sport, Bishop continued. But the toughest competition comes from within each man.

"Actually, you're competing against yourself. If you don't like competition, you don't like to shoot trap. The only way to get better is to better yourself," he said.

The equipment for the competition is simple. All that is needed, Bishop said, is a full chock, 12-gauge, earplugs, and eyeglasses. With that equipment in hand, the trap shooter can then work on the mechanics of the sport.

Once the mechanics are mastered, the accuracy of trap shooters can be astounding. Bishop said that at a recent tournament he attended, he scored 98 out of 100 traps. Four men, however, scored a full 100.

"You like to pulverize the trap," Bishop said. "Because then you know that you got right in the middle of it.

"The idea of the game is make the trap a puff of smoke. That's what you want."

PREPARING TO SHOOT - The target in trap shooting is a clay disc 4½ inches in diameter that is hurled skyward about 65 miles an hour. Shooting it, said Garland Bishop, (shown below) is what makes the sport interesting. The Snyder range (above) is a five-trap course, and is located behind Bishop's rural Snyder home. Sheriff Sentenced...

Law Enforcement Integrity Questioned

TYLER (AP) - Suspended Fannin County Sheriff Raymond Taylor has been sentenced to 29 years in prison and fined $25,000 by a federal judge who says Taylor has brought the integrity of law enforcement into question.

Taylor was sentenced Friday for racketeering violations in his Northeast Texas county, and his lawyer said there would be no appeal.

Taylor stopped his own trial in its 6th day June 13 and changed his plea to guilty to three counts of a 16-count indictment accusing him of accepting bribes to allow prostitution, drug traffic and gambling in Fannin County.

U.S. District Judge William M. Steger said, "as I heard this six-day trial I couldn't believe what I was hearing. He (Taylor) has committed in my opinion a very serious crime. He has brought to question the honesty and the integrity of what I consider an honorable profession - law enforcement.

Taylor was whisked away by federal marshals after sentencing and placed in custody in the federal section of the Smith County Jail. His attorney said he will be assigned a federal prison in 10 days to two weeks.

Taylor declined an opportunity to make a statement before the judge passed sentence, but defense attorney F.R. "Buck" Files Jr. pleaded for mercy in Taylor's behalf.

"He has been removed from office. He has lost the standing he had in the community. He has brought shame to his family. This is not a defendant who refused to admit guilt. I ask the court to consider the deterrent effect which has already been achieved," Files said.

"I have no mercy in my heart for anyone who would do this sort of thing," the judge said.

Steger sentenced Taylor to 20 years and fined him $25,000 on the first count, four years on Count 5 and five years on Count 11, ordering the sentences to run concurrently. The combined 29-year sentence was the maximum under federal law. But since Steger allowed the smaller terms to be served simultaneously with the 20-year term it amounted to an actual sentence of 20 years behind bars.

Taylor negotiated a plea-bargaining deal when the trial was in its second week, admitting to three of the accusations.

Prosecutors said they agreed to drop the other 13 charges against Taylor 10 days after sentencing in exchange for the guilty plea.

Tons Of Gold In Star

By BOB KUESTERMAN
Associated Press Writer

PARK CITY, Utah (AP)- One hundred billion tons of gold has been discovered in a star one quadrillion million miles away.

It is the first time gold has been discovered in a star and it was announced by space agency astronomer William Heacox at the concluding session Friday of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific annual meeting.

The three-day conference, drawing astronomers from throughout the United States and other countries, was high-lighted by Princeton researcher Ronald S. Polidan's announcement Thursday a second possible black hole had been discovered.

Heacox and David Leckrone, both with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration working at the Goddard Space Center in Maryland, located the gold in the blue-white star Kappa Cancrii, which is visible with the naked eye in the constellation Cancer.

The discovery was made through observations Leckrone made in April using the International Ultraviolet Explorer satellite and by Heacox's spectrographic analyses in May of Leckrone's observations.

Elements can be identified by lines in spectrums - light broken into its component colors, like rainbows. But ultraviolet light is so absorbed by the atmosphere, finding lines in that part of the spectrum requires observations outside the atmosphere.

Kappa Cancrii was the first one studied using the satellite that belongs to a group of about 100 known peculiar stars of the same size and temperature known to have additional elements on the surface. The reason is not known.

Heacox found Kappa Cancrii has gold in the proportion one part per 100,000. This is one million times the proportion of gold in the sun. Gold on Earth is one part per 200 million.

He calculated on an envelope Friday that the amount of gold in the star would be 100 billion tons.

Heacox said the fact gold was discovered in the first star of this class that was observed by the satellite makes it likely - but not certain - gold will be found in other stars of the class.

Kappa Cancrii is 175 light years away. A light year is the distance light travels in a year and is six million million or six trillion miles.

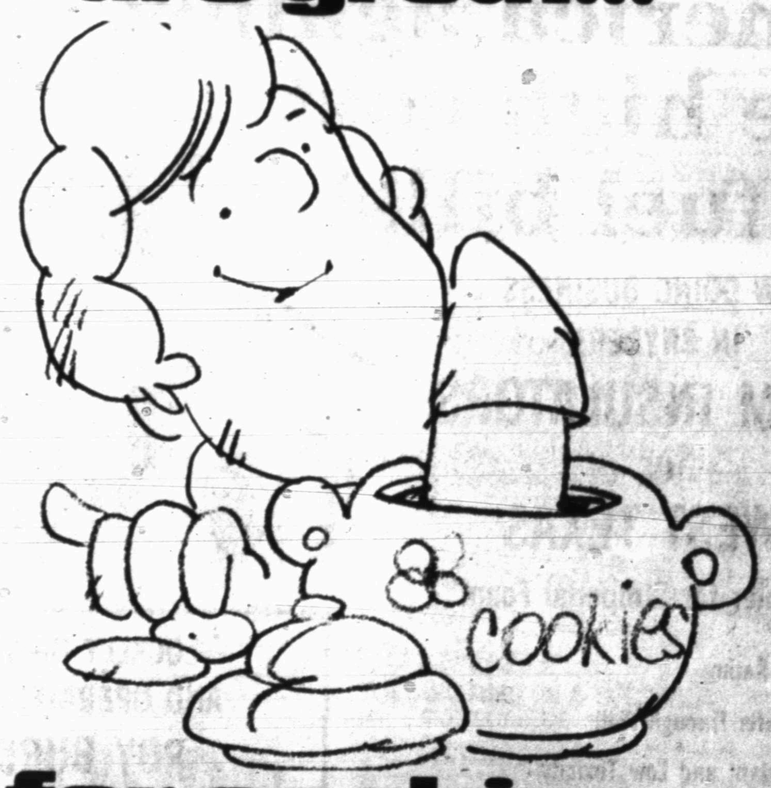

Science fiction writers would be hard pressed to contrive a method of mining gold from Kappa Cancrii. The laws of physics appear to limit speed to that of light - making it a long trip to the star. The star is three times as large as our sun and is brighter and hotter than the sun.

And one part per 100,000 is still very thin. While gold is only one part per 200 million on this planet, its found concentrated in a few areas instead of evenly dispersed.

LITTLE LEAGUE
Giants 12, Braves 2

Winning pitcher Pat Kohl handed out only four hits as the Giants ripped the Braves Friday night. Teammate Charles Bollinger powered a two-run homer in the first inning to get the Giants started. Billy Ziske added a double and Fred Fleming and Kohl added two singles each. Jon Zoda, Marty Gutierrez and Tony Merritt collected one apiece.

John David Smith popped two of the Braves' singles. Ricky Gomez and Jerry Haley added one each. Eddie McClure was the losing pitcher.

Cardinals 12, Cubs 0

Darren Jackson's third inning single amounted to all the hits the Cubs could muster under the tough pitching of Cardinal Paul Tate Friday night. Meanwhile, the Cards picked up five hits; two from Eddie Collins and one each from Chris Wiman, Raymond Valadez and Todd Odom.

Tate collected six strike outs in four innings. Jackson was the losing pitcher.

FARM LEAGUE
Giants 11, Braves 8

Winning pitcher Bill Sherrard relinquished 10 walks but awarded only four hits as the Giants edged the Braves Friday evening. Sherrard picked up one single for himself from the batter's box and Brad Gambrell, Brent McFarland and Mike McKinney added one each. Robert Espinosa grabbed a pair.

Carlos Hernandez knocked a double and a single for the Braves. Jammie McCravey and Ricky Romero gathered the only other Brave hits. Oscar Hernandez was the losing pitcher.

Cubs 10, Cardinals 9

No hits were indicated in the contest played Friday night, according to the statistics. Chad Sellers was the winning pitcher while Abel Saenz took the loss.

GIRL'S LEAGUE
Bears 7, Snyder Sparklers 4

Brenda Zalicek powered a pair of doubles and Jani Murph and winning pitcher Becky Natividad knocked two singles each as the Bears edged the Sparklers in a hard-fought Friday game. Shea Finton added one single for the Bears.

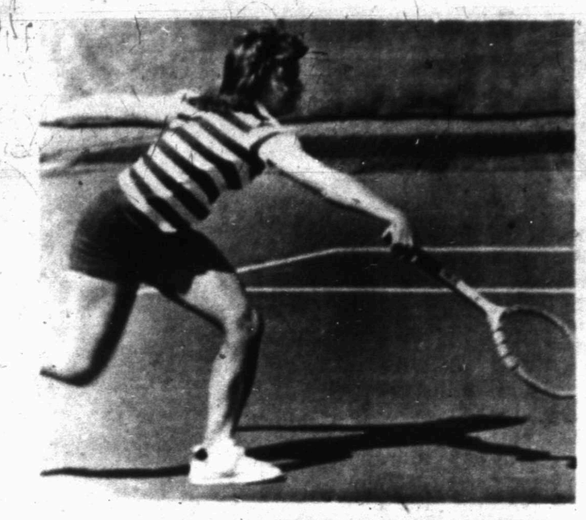

Michelle Osborn, pitcher, slapped a double and a single for the Sparklers while Rosie Pena added two singles and Terry Bowlin, Shanda Wiman and Jennifer Goodwin grabbed one.

Raiders 28, Blazing Red Hots 19

Fifty-two hits, including eight for multiple bases, were accounted for in this slugfest Friday night.

Kelly Warren whapped a home run and two singles, winning pitcher Theresa Ashworth knocked a double and four singles, Shana Hart added a double and three singles and Teresa Treadway knocked a double and two singles as the Raiders pulled off the win. Others collecting singles for the Raiders included Debbie Summers 5, Debra Pace 3, Jeana Fox and Wendy Hodge 2, and Kim Burton 1.

Red Hots pitcher Mary Warren blasted a home run, a double and two singles, Renee Fulford knocked a double and two singles and Dora Hernandez added a double and a single. Others grabbing one-base hits

PREPARES FOR TOURNEY - Donna McGee prepares for the upcoming Snyder Players' Tennis Tournament to be held here June 30 through July 2. A large field of tennis enthusiasts are expected to participate in the meet which will headquarter at the high school courts. Male and female singles, doubles, mixed doubles and other classes will be staged during the three-day annual tournament. For entry information, contact Bill Boles at the high school courts each weekday morning from 9-12 or at the Scurry County Boy's Club in the afternoons. Check this week's edition of The Snyder Daily News for further details. Miss McGee was the first Snyderite to enter the tournament, earlier last week. (SDN STAFF PHOTOS)

Schaefer 500 Issues Invites

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP)-Even with nearly $400,000 in prize money at stake, organizers had to invite cars in to fill the field for Sunday's eighth annual Schaefer 500.

The 11th row in the 33-car-field is comprised of Bill Vukovich, Phil Threshie and Lee Kunzman, all invited starters because not enough able cars were on hand to fill the field through qualifying Thursday and Friday.

Twenty-six cars qualified during the opening day of time trials, and four successfully completed runs Friday. Officials extended qualifying for an extra 30 minutes to give any of the four cars still sputtering around in various states of disrepair a chance to get their acts together. But none answered the bell.

So Dr. Joseph Mattioli, president of Pocono International Raceway, opted for a drawing to fill the remaining spots. None of the invites is expected to be a factor in the race.

Heading the list of competitors are pole position starter Danny Ongais, whose qualifying speed of 190.335 mph was the fastest speed recorded at the track in six years, defending champion Tom Sneva, and Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser.

Other contenders are two-time winner A.J. Foyt, Johnny Rutherford, Gordon Johncock, Mario Andretti, Bobby Unser, Pancho Carter, Johnny Parsons, Wally Dallenbach and Steve Krisiloff.

Nearly $100,000 goes to the winner of this, the second of the U.S. Auto Club Triple Crown events.

Youth Challenges UIL Training Camp Rule

HOUSTON (AP) - A Madison High School basketball player is asking a federal court to grant an injunction against the University Interscholastic League which says he will lose his eligibility if he attends a summer training camp.

A suit filed Thursday by Robert Kite, father of 6-foot-11 Greg Kite, seeks to have the UIL disbanded because it unconstitutionally deprives the youth, considered top basketball material, of the legitimate opportunity to better himself professionally. The suit also claims the UIL practice discriminates against basketball and football players.

A companion suit is expected to be filed Monday on behalf of National Basketball Association stars Rudy Tomjanovich of the Houston Rockets and Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics. The players, who plan summer clinics in Texas, will allege restraint of trade because UIL rules prohibit varsity basketball and football players from attending training camps. The suit claims there is no restriction against such training for junior varsity of B-team players or participants in baseball, tennis, and golf.

It is the second time this year a high school athlete has sought court action against UIL restrictions.

U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals granted Wheatley High School senior Linda Williams the right to play on the school's previously all-male baseball team. UIL rules do not permit co-educational athletic teams.

World Cup Pits Dutch-Argentines

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - The stars will be out when the soccer teams of Holland and Argentina meet in the World Cup final at Buenos Aires' River Plate Stadium Sunday afternoon.

The Dutch, some of the most talented and disciplined professionals in the world, are in the final for the second time in a row. The Dutch lost 2-1 to West Germany in the 1974 final at Munich.

The members of that great Dutch team are still playing - except for the legendary Johann Cruyff, who has retired. The Dutch are coached by Ernst Happel, an Austrian.

Argentina, less polished and less experienced, has ridden to the final on a wave of fanatical patriotic enthusiasm. The Dutch must face 11 men plus 77,000 ardent, flag-waving, trumpet-blowing fans.

Argentina has had little success in the World Cup since World War II, and made the final only once before, in the inaugural Cup of 1930. The team has been reshaped and given a new image by Coach Luis Cesar Menotti.

Mantle Is Improving

DALLAS (AP) - Former New York Yankees great and Hall of Fame member Mickey Mantle said "it was not quite that bad," after he was taken off the critical list at a hospital here Friday.

Mantle, 47, was hospitalized in critical condition Wednesday suffering from bleeding ulcers. But Friday the former star outfielder said he was "feeling pretty good."

Dr. Frank Altick said Mantle could be released from Dallas' Brookhaven Medical Center "in a few days," but said he could not be more specific at this time.

Rangers Double-Deal California; Idle Up Close To Kansas City

ARLINGTON (AP)-Brad Corbett's millions paid some blue chips dividends Friday night.

The controversial free-spending majority owner of the Texas Rangers purchased Furgeson Jenkins from the Boston Red Sox in the off season for the bargain basement price of $50,000.

Then he traded Claudell Washington to the Chicago White Sox for Bobby Bonds and signed the slugger to a $2 million 5-year contract. Chicago is still hollering "damaged merchandise" because Washington had an injured ankle, but American League President Lee MacPhail ruled the trade okay.

And it was certainly okay Friday night as Bonds blasted two three-run homers and Jenkins registered his 41st career shutout as the Rangers defeated the California Angels 7-0 in the first game of a double-header.

In the second game, Bonds delivered a two-run double in 8-4 Ranger victory to up his RBI count to 8 for the evening.

Texas strapped the loss on Tom Griffen, who is now 3.

Doyle Alexander collected his sixth victory against four losses although he needed relief held from Reggie Cleveland, who gained his seventh save.

The sweep brought the Rangers to within one game of Western Division leader Kansas City.

It was Texas' fourth straight victory.

"When you have a relaxed mind you can perform. I didn't know whether I was going back to Chicago and I didn't have a contract. I went 0 for 18 in one stretch because I had a mental lapse," Bonds said.

"The fans here have been great. I have said it before and I still mean it. I was surprised I didn't get stoned I was playing so poorly."

Both of Bonds' homeruns came off Angels' starter and loser Chris Knapp, who is now 7-6.

Jenkins, who is 8-3, yeilded only five hits and struck out six batters. He now has 2,509 strikeouts, which is 12th on the all-time list - three ahead of Christy Mathewson.

"My home run ratio has been super," said Jenkins, who has only yield five homers in 105 innings.

"I can't understand why I'm not giving up any. I keep shaking my head. I can't figure out what is wrong. I will probably give up nine in some game."

Jenkins added. "I've always won big here. I love this park and the fans are great. I feel happy and it's the environment that makes the athlete perform."

Knapp, a former teammate of Bonds said, "Bondsie just killed me. I usually pitch him inside and I think he knew that. He seemed to turn on both balls."

Wrestling Set Here June 27

Wrestling returns to Scurry County Coliseum with three main events June 27 at 8:30 p.m.

The first main event is scheduled to pit The Lawman against Noel Jones for the World's Chain Fighting Championship. The Lawman won the belt after defeating World's Wrestling Champion Harley Race in a chain match. Each man will be strapped together with a 10 foot chain.

"Anything is legal and to win a man must pull his opponent around the ring one time touching all four corner turnbuckles," according to a spokesman. "Noel Jones is a rugged beach wrestler who came to Texas for one reason and that is to take the championship from the Lawman. He says he has never been defeated in a chain match."

The second main event will be a $5,000 Golden Challenge Match. Adrain Adonis will be going against Dory Funk Jr. Adonis will give any man $5,000 who can pin him in 10 minutes, the spokesman noted.

A third main event will pit Roger Kirley against Scott Casey for the Western States Championship.

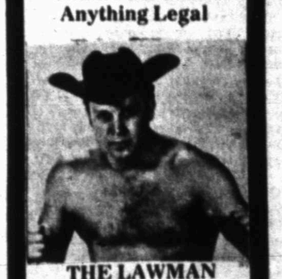

The opening match will be Tom Chetwood versus Ted Heath.

Reservations may be made by calling the coliseum box office. Tickets are $3.50 ringside, $2.50 general admission and $1.50 for children ages 3-11.

Adamack PR For Mariners

SEATTLE (AP) - Randy Adamack has been named director of public relations for the Seattle Mariners, the American League baseball club announced Friday.

Adamack has served in the same capacity with the Cleveland Indians for the past three seasons. He resigned that position Friday to accept the Mariners' post. He will begin work in Seattle prior to the All-Star break next month.

Adamack succeeds Hal Childs, who held the job with the Mariners since the club's inception in 1976.

Medical Attention Not Best

ROCKPORT, Maine (AP) - The medical attention given to high school athletes is better than it once was, but not as good as it should be, says the team physician for the Kansas City Chiefs of the National Football League.

Albert Miller said 50 percent of high school athletes aren't getting the medical attention they should.

Miller said some pro football prospects report to the Chief's training camp "without ever having had an electrocardiogram or without ever having blood drawn."

More high school and college athletes should be receiving blood tests and a urinalysis, at least, Miller told the annual convention of the Maine Osteopathic Association Friday.

Miller did say, however, that the medical attention being given young athletes is "much better than it was 15 years ago."

Sideline Glances Get Rich...

Those Shows Gotta Go

by BILL McCLELLAN

IT'S GETTING downright ignorant!

Did you notice, perhaps in Thursday's Snyder Daily News, that CBS "Sports Spectacular" has planned to gather players from the famous 1958 NFL championship football game (Colts-Giants) to play tag in Central Park? Sure, they've already "signed" such greats as Kyle Rote, Johnny Unitas, Pat Summerall and Frank Gifford. CBS will throw in film clips of the original game and talk to the players about what business is like in 1978. A keg of beer will sit in the middle of the field, supposedly to add color and show us that these former idols are as human as the rest of us.

IT'S GOT to reach a limit. Just how far are CBS, NBC and ABC prepared to go to bring us the "Wide World of Sports?" No doubt, advertising for the thing will make more than a few folks wealthier than you and I, but CBS also points out that the game will be a charity affair for Big Brothers of America. Somehow, I refuse to believe that the network is doing all of this for the good of mankind.

Look, we've been subjected to the superstars competition, which pitted man against man, woman against woman and team against team. Then we had the network stars - "athletes" like Cabe Kaplin, Suzanne Sommers and Kristy McNichols - competing for their respective networks. And, somebody came up with the idea of battle of the sexes and we saw Farrah Faucett-Majors battling Dick Van Patten in tennis. That led into musicians competing in athletics for our enjoyment and, if you'll excuse the pun, it was rock bottom.

AND NOW, we're going to have 40-50 year-old men playing tag football in Central Park. Okay for a family picnic...but for national television!?!

No doubt somebody out there at CBS, NBC and ABC is cashing in big. Somebody, SOMEWHERE must watch these things, otherwise the networks would stiffle it, right? Well, I've been thinking about that and I've decided that this is where I get my big break. I'll send a few ideas for super shows to the networks and become rich overnight. It can't miss. I figure if folks will watch tag football in Central Park (Remember now, you can actually drink along with old' Johnny U.), they'll droll over these greats.

AS A SNEAK preview, and to let you know in advance when to turn your TV on, here's the Agenda:

CELEBRITY CLOD-OFF

Twenty or 30 would-be congressmen jog down Bourbon Street in New Orleans. Bars, massage parlors and shady deals will be used as obstacles. The winner - if any - will get to publicly air his non-views and slander the opposition with no fear of rebutal. However, the public representative who indulges in the "obstacles" without being caught will immediately gain office. A running total of expenses to the taxpayer will be accented in red flashing lights so that viewers will feel more a part of the show. Charity funds will be awarded to "Study of the Brazilian Marsh Mallow's Mating Call."

SUAVE SWATTERS

Tennis celebrities will compete in three of five events, including hardest backhand, hardest forehand, placement of shots, tantrum throwing and vulgar gesturing to spectators. Winner receives three-way self viewing mirror and Harlingen's book, "Horrors of Humility." As a bonus, Howard Cosell will be called in to interview spectators and further belittle them. Charitable organization: Waste Watchers.

THE FUTILITY

Famous race horses are assembled to stage re-enactment of 1934 Futurity. Action to be held on sandlot next to Racing Hall of Fame. Horses lumber across sandlot with winner to be stuffed for all time in Fame reception room. Alpo and Elmer's receive equal amounts of charity proceeds.

were Michelle Killian 5, Sabrina Robinson 3, Becky Hernandez and Cindy Hanzalik 2, and Sherri Bobo, Lisa Thompson and Kristi Allen 1.

Grape Apes 10, Tigers 8

Tonetta Wood handed out only four hits as the Grape Apes defeated the Tigers Friday. Teammate Tracy Hicks knocked a double and Karen Cowen added three singles from the bat-box. Cheresse Reeves and Terese Beuerlein slammed two singles each and Miss Wood, Tammy Gray and Rebekah Powell noted one each.

Susan Bollinger drilled a double for the Tigers and Angie Franklin added two singles. Vicki Fletcher noted one. Yolanda Anderson was the losing pitcher.

TEENAGE LEAGUE

Oilers 12, Dodgers 2

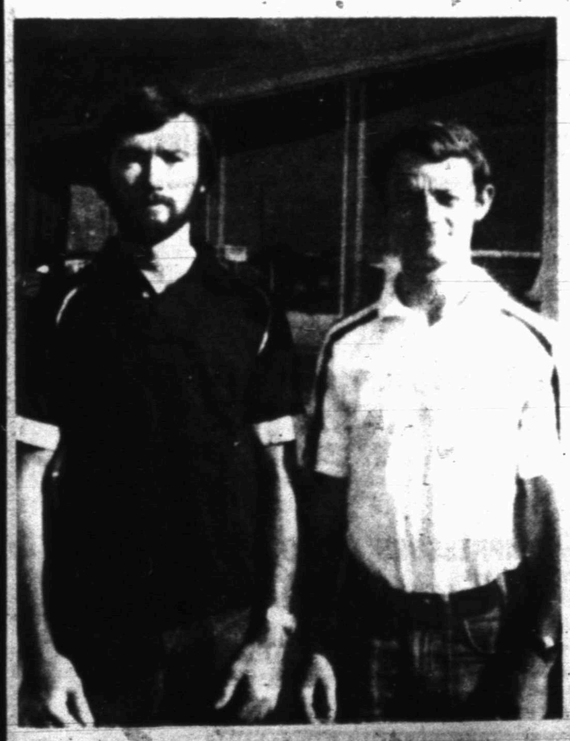

John Wilson awarded the opposing team seven hits Friday night but the Oiler outfield, coupled with 12 strike outs, kept the Dodgers from doing anything with them. Meanwhile, Wilson and company collected 11 of their own.

Wilson drilled a double and two singles and teammate Mike Roemisch added a double as the Oilers took the lead in the third stanza and never looked back. Dwain Hicks and Keith McClain knocked two singles each and Paul Schaufele, Perry Echols and Brent Roemisch collected one each.

John Bloom powered a double and a single for the Dodgers and Rob Young knocked two singles. Pitcher Neil Evans grabbed a single as did Trey Harlin and Cliff Payne.

PUBLIC NOTICES

SUBJECT: Non Discrimination POLICY

Midwest Electric Cooperative, Inc. has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued thereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, to be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of its facilities. Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color or national origin in its policies and practices relating to applications for service or any other policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions and extension of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization.

Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals, to be subjected by this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and the Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative, file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, the Rural Electrification Administration, Washington, D.C. 20250, or this organization, or all, a written complaint. Such complaint must be filed not later than 180 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complainants will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the Rules and Regulations.

CARD OF THANKS A-3

We, the family of Martin L. Benitez wish to express our sincerest gratitude to all of our kind friends, family and Bell-Seale Funeral Home who helped share our great loss and aided us during his lengthy illness. We would especially like to thank Fr. Thomas Jordan for his services and dedication which he so willingly gave to our beloved husband and father. To the many families who brought food, sent flowers and helped in any manner, your considerate gestures will always be remembered and appreciated. May God bless you and you will be remembered in our prayers.

TV Trade Ruling May Have Saved Billions

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-The Supreme Court's decision on a trade complaint against Japanese imports may have averted price increases in the United States amounting to billions of dollars.

According to the Commerce Department's estimates, some $50 billion worth of imports - or about half of the current annual volume - comes from countries which exempt their exports from indirect sales or value-added taxes.

Zenith Radio Corp., in a suit it lost this past week, argued that Japanese exporters of radios, television's and other electronic goods were receiving an unfair subsidy from the Japanese government because the exports were exempt from a Japanese commodity tax.

But the court rejected the U.S. manufacturer's plea that duties equal to the tax break should be imposed by the U.S. Treasury.

The amount at stake in the Zenith case was minor compared to the billions in additional duties which might have been imposed if a precedent meant a new policy on all goods from Canada, Germany, France and other countries with a similar tax breaks.

Treasury officials argued successfully that such exemptions from taxes in Japan didn't result in an unfair advantage because the products were still subject to the same state sales tax that U.S. products are. If Japan didn't rebate the commodity tax to exporters, the Treasury argued, the goods would be subject to double taxation.

The court's unanimous decision in the Zenith case was considered significant both for the electronics industry and for steel companies who have similar complaints in litigation.

But it does not spell the end to a long-standing debate over government subsidies to export products and how they effect trade.

The question is a major focus of talks in Geneva aimed at rewriting sections of an international trade law, The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT.

Under GATT rules, the definition of what is a subsidy, subject to counterveiling duties by the importing country, is "a grey area" said Peter Kenen, a professor of international finance at Princeton University.

The result has been a scramble of interpretations and some bitter negotiations on what and how rules should apply.

The process is complicated by the fact that in many countries the ties between government and industry are far closer than in this country.

The United States' trade statute governing the Zenith case, for instance, allows the U.S. Treasury to levy an equal counterveiling duty when any foreign government pays a "bounty or grant" to an exporting manufacturer.

The U.S. steel industry, which has blamed lagging sales on increased imports of foreign steel in the past few years, complains that governments in Japan and Europe don't necessarily pay "bounties." But they argue that foreign governments are so integrally involved in their steel industries that they can afford to produce steel at profit levels which would be impossible for a private U.S. company.

President Carter renewed his threat to raise oil prices through administrative action if Congress doesn't act on his proposed tax on crude oil. Although the President didn't set a deadline, he told Congressmen that he was considering making such a proposal a formal pledge at an international summit in Bonn July 16.

Administration officials say Carter isn't eager to impose import fees but is concerned that his energy tax proposal has been stalled too long in Congress. The president wants to raise oil prices in an effort to reduce energy consumption, which international leaders see as crucial to restoring the United States balance of trade position and combating inflation.

LTV Corp. and financially troubled Lykes Corp. were given federal approval to merge in a ruling by the Justice Department. Attorney General Griffin Bell rejected advice from his antitrust staff and said the merger would be acceptable because Lykes is a failing company that can be exempted from antitrust laws. If stockholders also approve the merger, the combined operations would create the third or fourth largest steel company in the nation.

LTV's subsidiary, Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., is the nation's seventh largest steel producer. And Lyke's subsidary, Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., is the eighth.

A standby gasoline rationing plan for use in a national emergency was announced by the White House. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said it was unlikely the program will have to be used. It would ration gasoline on the basis of motor vehicle registration, with buses and trucks getting more gasoline than passenger cars.

Just how much gasoline someone would get depends on how serious the shortage. But Schlesinger said a repeat of the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo would result in a ratio of about two gallons of gasoline per day for every vehicle in the nation.

Kennecott Copper Corp. and Curtiss-Wright continued to fight for control of the nation's largest copper company. At a reconvened annual meeting to announce results of the May 2 vote, Kennecott declared its incumbent board had been re-elected by a margin of 1.6 million votes. But Curtiss-Wright, a minority shareholder which nominated a rival slate of Kennecott directors, challenged the election inspector's report and is seeking a new election.

Proposed labor law revisions were sent back to committee, after a 19-day Senate filibuster led by Republicans. Although supporters of the measure declared the bill would be back and was not dead, the move was seen as a major setback for the Carter administration and labor leaders who support it.

The bill calls for stiffer penalties against labor law violators and would give unions additional leverage in drives to organize workers.

Panel Votes To Abolish Home Agency

AUSTIN (AP) - The state nursing home administrator regulatory agency should be abolished and its duties transferred to another agency, the Texas Sunset Advisory Commission recommended Friday.

The vote came after commission learned the agency has not investigated 660 punitive actions against nursing homes and that the board never has revoked a license if the licensee objected.

The Texas Board of Licensure for Nursing Home Administrators will be phased out with 25 other agencies Sept. 1, 1979, unless extended by the 1979 Legislature.

The sunset commission also recommended abolishment of the Texas Structural Pest Control Board and transfer its duties to the Texas Agriculture Department. The panel voted to retain the Board of Public Accountancy.

No recommendation was made on the Texas Good Neighbor Commission or the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission.

Votes on the Texas Board of Barber Examiners and the Texas Cosmetology Commission were postponed.

Kidney stone control

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband had surgery for kidney and bladder stones 10 months ago. Now he has formed another stone which is in the bladder and the doctors are planning to crush it and try to remove it.

He eliminated all dairy products with the exception of six ounces of milk in bran cereal. He drinks plenty of water and juices. Now I'm starting to get suspicious of the minerals in the water. He also takes hydrochlorothiazide. Out of a family of eight children, four have had this problem. Is there anything else that can be done to eliminate the formation of stones?

DEAR READER — There is a great deal which can be done to control most problems of kidney stones. It is important to know what kind of stone is present before one decides what treatment should be used, but the growth of most stones can be controlled and the formation of new stones can be prevented.

If your husband has calcium oxalate stones, which is a common form of stones, then limiting calcium may not really be the answer. It may be more important to limit the oxalate which is found in fruit juices and tea. Many people erroneously think that if you have kidney stones you have to eliminate milk or other sources of calcium intake and that's not always the case.

The one universal rule that applies to all the different types of stones is to drink enough water to cause the person to eliminate at least three quarts (three liters) of urine each 24-hour period. The fluid intake, which should be mostly water, should be taken day and night so that the kidneys are keeping the urine diluted through the entire 24-hour period and not just during the daytime.

Beyond that there are many technicalities on whether the urine should be kept acid or alkaline and whether or not oxalate or calcium or both should be restricted and what type of medicine should be used.

The family history that you gave is interesting and raises the question of whether there might not be a familial problem called primary hyperoxaluria, which means that these individuals would be prone to having excess amounts of oxalate and oxalate stones.

Because this subject is somewhat complex due to the many different kinds of stones people can have, I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-2 on Renal Stones which reviews these aspects of stone formation and management. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

I would like to add that if a person has a kidney infection or the stone formation is related to infectious processes then it may be necessary to limit the calcium intake. These are called struvite calculi and are the type that are more commonly found in women. Women are prone to these because they are more apt to have urinary tract infections than are men. The calcium oxalate type stones are more commonly seen in men.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about the heart that beats too fast. What about a heart that skips a beat regularly? How serious is that? Can anything be done for it? Is it common? Is this something that gets progressively worse, skipping more beats more frequently? I am 55 and have this problem and would really appreciate some information about it.

DEAR READER — Yes, it's common and it often occurs in individuals who do not have any significant heart disease. In fact, the heart doesn't usually skip a beat. Actually, one beat occurs too soon or prematurely. That's where the term premature beats comes from. Since it beats early and the next beat occurs nearly on time there is a long pause between the two beats. This pause is what gives people the sensation that their heart skipped a beat.

We all probably have a skipped or premature beat now and then and are not even aware of it. If you took a record of the heart beat continuously for several days you would see this. I have done this on a number of healthy people, such as astronaut candidates and pilots, and have observed premature beats in almost all of them. Some individuals do have symptoms with these, particularly if they are more frequent and the pauses are longer. These symptoms may be the awareness that the irregularity occurs or sometimes a person may feel a twinge in the chest. If they're frequent the person may actually complain of faintness and other symptoms.

In individuals without heart disease they can be triggered by nervousness, excess use of coffee because of its caffeine content, cigarettes and various digestive disturbances. Individuals who have these frequently and have symptoms from them are commonly advised by their physician to stop smoking and decrease or entirely eliminate coffee, tea, colas and beverages which contain caffeine.

Many people who don't get much exercise and are otherwise in pretty good health will improve and stop having so many premature beats if they improve their level of physical fitness. This of course should be done gradually and consistently over a long period of time. It's not a crash project.

Not all premature beats are innocuous. They can occur for the first time in the presence of a heart attack and if they're frequent may be the preliminary signs of a serious irregularity of the heart. Because the premature beats are a finding and not a diagnosis it's important that people who have symptoms from them or notice them have an evaluation by their doctor. He can more accurately tell them whether they are of real significance or not in their case.

But I do want to reassure you that most healthy people have these once in a while and even people who have symptoms from them often have no heart disease at all.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias to give you more information about these problems. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Fireworks To Cause More Accidents

AUSTIN (AP) - There will be a record number of fireworks-related accidents this July 4th, State Fire Marshal Ernest Emerson predicts.

"Even though the Bicentennial celebrations are over, indications are that fireworks-related incidents will be substantially greater this year than last year," he said in a statement.

He predicted almost 200 persons would be injured in fireworks accidents this year, plus about 2,000 fires caused by fireworks.

"Unfortunately, some of these injuries could be fatal," he said. Many may result in impairment or loss of vision, loss of limbs and severe burns; all too often to innocent by standers."

Emerson said there is "no such thing as 'safe' fireworks. Only when everyone knows this fact and takes it seriously will there be and end to Independence Day tragedies from these items."

Rio Flight Application Unopposed

AUSTIN (AP) - Rio Airways Inc.'s application for authority to fly between Dallas and Huntsville was unopposed Wednesday in a Texas Aeronautics Commission hearing.

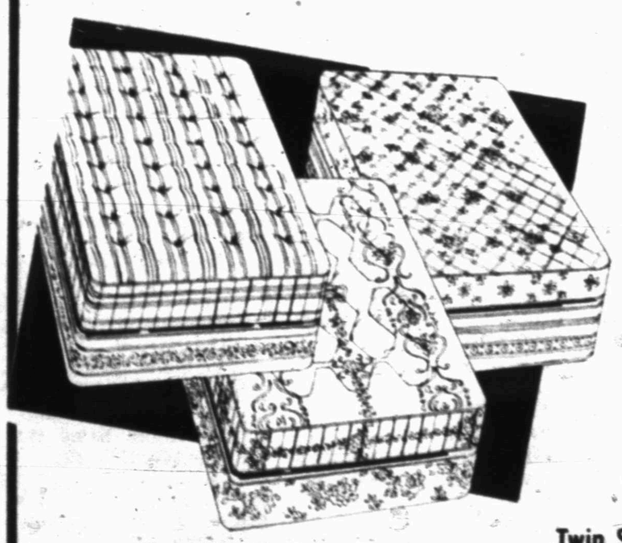

Gwen Webb, commission hearing examiner, will recommend action on the case to the full commission later this year.

Supporters of the proposed included Huntsville Mayor Pro Tem Larry Dickens; Leonard George of the Huntsville Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Victor Strecker of the Texas Criminal Justice Center; and representatives of Sam Houston State University, the Texas Department of Correction and local developers.

Rio has proposed nonstop service between Huntsville and Dallas-Fort Worth Airport. The route is not served by other carriers.

Dummar Says Hurt Deeper Than Wallet

OGDEN, Utah (AP) - To Melvin Dummar, the hurt goes deeper than his wallet.

"It's not the money, it's the principle of the thing," says the man who stood to gain plenty from the so-called Mormon will of the late Howard Hughes.

A jury recently refused to accept the will's veracity and the Hughes fortune is still up for grabs.

Dummar, who drives a beer truck while trying to make it big as a musician, said Friday he wants his story of befriending a bedraggled Hughes proven true.

"My attorneys haven't given up yet and they're doing a lot of checking to see if new evidence can be found. I think the case is far from over," he said.

C-City Seeking Superintendent

COLORADO CITY - Lloyd McKee, superintendent of Colorado City Public Schools for the past eight years, has resigned to accept the position of deputy superintendent of Ector County (Odessa) Public Schools.

The school board accepted with regret the resignation, which will become effective Aug. 4.

The board indicated that efforts would be made to name a successor to McKee as soon as possible. July 7 has been set as the deadline for accepting applications and the entire board will serve as a screening committee to interview applicants. They hope to conduct interviews from July 8-20 and name a new superientendent by July 20.

McKee told the board that he would be assuming a newly-created position at Odessa. In his new position he will receive a salary of $36,000 per year, a $6,000 increase over his salary at Colorado City. The school system at Odessa has 26,000 students.

MODEL BCX1350
1350 SQ FT OF LIVING AREA

Hillside Beauty

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

This interesting three-bedroom house makes the most of any size lot by capitalizing on the space-saving techniques of the traditional two-story home. Yet it also offers the selective homeowner the advantages of all-in-one-floor living areas, plus room for future expansion adjacent to the ground-level garage.

The attractive entrance stairs behind the distinctive tall planter lead to a compact, wrought-iron-trimmed front porch.

Inside, a generous entry insures both privacy and a smooth traffic flow pattern to the living areas and the garage level as well.

The well conceived living room is fully separate, yet the floor plan allows it to derive extra dimension from the adjacent dining room. And an ingenious offset arrangement gives the dining room an equal feeling of separateness, although it is actually combined with the kitchen in an open plan which adds spaciousness to each area.

The L-shaped kitchen work area and an adjacent laundry-storage utility room with an outside exit are added dividends for the efficiency-minded homemaker.

Cost conscious builders will recognize and appreciate the budget minded back-to-back placement of the main and master baths, and comfort lovers will approve the double lavatories in the former and the latter's full bath, a feature all too seldom found in the master bath of a medium size home.

Bedroom size and bedroom closet size are also calculated to please the discriminating home planner.

The exterior of this plan, with its interesting gables and happy blend of brick and vertical siding, has an air of dignity and substance which is universally appealing.

The homebuilder who selects this model selects a home plan which provides in every way for comfortable living, both in the present and — through its potential for expansion — in the future as well.

Satellite Medical Program Success

EDITOR'S NOTE-Four states joined forces seven years ago to provide medical training for aspiring physicians and to make specialists and the latest technology available to small-town doctors. It's the only program of its kind and is proving highly successful.

By JIM KLAHN
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP)-Dr. Ed Barker studied the microscopic slide intently before giving his verdict - a rare kind of tumor. Barker was in Seattle. The slide he was viewing via satellite was in Fairbanks, Alaska.

Susan Kellett of Ketchum, Idaho, went to Seattle to give birth to quadruplets to make sure she had the best medical care possible. She credits the regional medical effort with giving her four healthy infants.

Medical student Leslie McGalliard Inouye attends the University of Washington, but classes may originate in towns such as Great Falls, Mont., Kodiak, Alaska, or Pocatello, Idaho, under the direction of local doctors. The doctors say they get as much from it as the students.

From the Alaskan arctic to the Montana plains - a distance greater than that separating New York and Los Angeles - 7,000 doctors in private practice and more than 250 medical students are linked to a medical program covering four states and using the latest satellite technology.

The program, based at University Hospital in Seattle, is called WAMI, an acronym from the member states of Washington, Alaska, Montana and Idaho.

Its working and financing are complex, but its purpose is simple - to provide quality medical service while keeping down the costs of training new physicians.

Many students who took part in WAMI have set up practices in small towns, where quality, readily available medical care is scarce.

The regional program, the only one in the nation to cross state lines, began in 1971. Alaska, Montana and Idaho had no medical schools, and students from those states had trouble gaining entry elsewhere.

Small towns throughout the region had trouble getting doctors, and doctors who did settle in had too little access to the latest medical technology.

Physicians, politicians and others molded a system with the University of Washington's medical school as the hub and dozens of teaching threads to the hinterlands. At the UW school alone, more than 600 faculty members are available to students - and to physicians throughout the region.

The program is so successful that Dr. Robert Hunter, chairman of the American Medical Association trustees, says there hasn't been one complaint.

Dr. M. Roy Schwarz, director of WAMI, says the project can touch every resident of the region, because doctors within its borders have access to its specialists, facilities and data-banks. For example, a doctor treating a person badly burned in Popular, Mont., would have quick access to the Harborview Medical Center burn unit in Seattle and its specialists.

-To increase medical student admissions from member states. In the five years before WAMI 22 Alaska, Montana and Idaho students were enrolled in the UW School of Medicine. In the first five years after WAMI, 151 students from those states were enrolled, while the number of Washington students also went up.

-To attempt to get more doctors to practice in rural areas. Schwarz says that of the 70 residents who have completed WAMI training and opened practices, 33 percent are practicing in towns of less than 10,000 population.

-To increase admissions without increasing physical plant facilities. This has required a decentralization of the UW medical school, bringing into play doctors in private practice who serve as educators in the field. Students and doctors alike applaud this aspect.

Only $50,000 has been spent on physical plant improvements since 1971, and greater use is made of teaching facilities at the universities of Washington, Alaska and Idaho and Montana State and Washington State.

First-year med students may study at any one of the universities, and third- and fourth-year students observe and assist doctors at any of the 14 Community Clinical Units in the four states. UW specialists also go to the clinics where they conduct classes for doctors on the latest techniques and findings. While there, the specialists act as consultants and assist local doctors with patient care.

In exchange, doctors from the clinics and small towns and rural areas go to Seattle for classes and updates on treatment.

"There is a continuing dialogue all the way along, not only for the educational aspects, but also for patient care," says Dr. David Barton of Boise, who went to Seattle to deliver Mrs. Kellett's quadruplets.

Per-student costs are slightly higher than normal medical training, according to WAMI officials, but some of the money is returned to the states to help pay for the local clinics.

And overall savings to the states is considerable. Schwarz says it would cost $100 million to build a medical school for 100 students and another $5 million to $6 million to operate it each year.

TV-Publisher Bonds Stronger

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The bonds between television and the book publishing industry are growing stronger.

Novels and nonfiction, which once automatically went to the movie people, are now being snatched up for the networks as soon as they come off the press - and sometimes before.

Best sellers like "Blood and Money," "Scruples," "Shogan," "Centennial" and "Friendly Fire" are headed for television in versions ranging from three to 25 hours.

Stretching the plots over several hours has allowed TV producers to offer big money - more than $500,000 for Thomas Thompson's "Blood and Money" - for film rights.

"Roots" was a perfect blending of the two media. TV rights were bought even before Alex Haley finished writing the history of his family from Africa to America. The book was published shortly before the 12-hour mini series arrived at ABC in January 1977 - and both became big hits.

Now, Haley is at work on "Search," about his 12-year quest for his ancestry. Parts of that book, about Haley's own life, are being incorporated in "Roots: The Next Generations," in production for release next year.

"Holocaust," an NBC mini series based on Gerald Green's screenplay, became a best-selling paperback before the first episode aired in April.

Following the trend set by motion pictures, other TV movies and series are being turned into books.

The newest twist is hiring authors to write books to be adapted for television. This follows in the footsteps of Robert Evans, who commissioned Mario Puzo to write "The Godfather."

Producer David Gerber of Columbia Pictures Television is deeply involved in this new development.

He flew to Little Rock, Ark., last year to persuade author Dee Brown to postpone retirement long enough to write one more book. He hired Brown, author of "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee," to write a novel tracing an Indian family through four or five generations to about 1900.

"I was also looking for a book about a dynastic Texas ranching family from the turn of the century to the Nieman-Marcus society," he says. He came upon such a book, Mathew Braun's "Lord of the Land," but it ended in 1900. He purchased that book for television then commissioned Braun to write a sequel.

Gerber is negotiating for a third novel, a police drama to be made into a feature motion picture, and is considering a fourth, a spy thriller.

"You're betting on the future," says Gerber. "It has merchandising value. And it's a property that could become a best seller. It has that kind of value."

Gerber pays the authors out of his network advance funds. "It's enough money to get the author going," he says. "Then he can take the network deal to a publisher. It appeals to a paperback publisher to know there's a network deal. They'll put up the money and gamble - and it is a gamble."

Father Joins Navy With Son

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Retired Chief Petty Officer Norman Montgomery took his 17-year-old son, Kevin, to the St. Louis recruiting office and wound up back in the Navy himself.

The 43-year-old man resumes his 20-year career, interrupted by a four-year retirement, at his old rank of CPO at the San Diego Navy Base.

"I told the recruiter I envied my son because I knew what he was going to be seeing. He said, "Why don't you join him?' It took me about 30 seconds to make up my mind," he said.

THE HUDDLESTONS 50 YEARS AGO

In Holy Orders

TULAROSA, N.M. (AP)- Five sisters - all nuns - recently visited their brother, the Rev. Jerry Ahles of St. Francis de Paula Catholic Church here. A sixth sister, also a nun, was unable to make the trip.

The visitors included Sisters Assumpta, Lucina, Dolores, Theophane and Antoinette, all of the Franciscan Order of Little Falls, Minn.

Formal Ceremony Weds Couple

Miss Carla Sue Hicks and David Wayne Marlar were united in marriage Saturday, May 20, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in the chapel of the First Baptist Church. Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerals Hicks of 3727 Ave. U and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Marlar of 3110 40th St. The bride's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hicks of Eldorado and Mrs. Ace Erwin of Portland, Ore., and the groom's grandparents are Mr. A.C. Duket and Mr. and Mrs. R.F. Marlar, all of Pampa.

The candlelight ceremony was performed before a lattice work archway topped with two turtledoves and entwined with English ivy and yellow chrysanthemums. On each side of the archway were pots of English ivy resting on bamboo pedestals. The center of the archway featured the unity candle flower arrangement, designed by Mrs. Roy Bailey.

Music was provided by Mrs. Trissa Green and Mrs. Terri Wilson. Mrs. Green played "Annie's Song," "Love Story," and "Time In A Bottle" on the piano as Dwain Hicks, brother of the bride, and Ronnie Payne of San Angelo seated the guests. Lindia Allen presided at the registry table. As Gerals Don Hicks, brother of the bride lit the candles, Mrs. Green played "Nadia's Theme." Mrs. Wilson sang "More" as the mothers were seated, and during the ceremony "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," "The Lord's Prayer," and "You Light Up My Life."

MR. AND MRS. DAVID WAYNE MARLAR

Matron of honor was Mrs. Karen Daves of Ira. She was attired in a yellow gown with cap sleeves and a soft flowing circular skirt. She carried a single long stemmed yellow silk rose with streamers of yellow and blue.

Scott Marlar, brother of the groom, was best man. The groom and best man wore light blue tuxedos trimmed in a dark blue and their boutonnieres, were a yellow rosebud and daisy. The best man escorted the matron of honor down the aisle and each lit the two single tapers of the unity candle.

The bride given in marriage by her father chose a gown of white Qiana fashioned with a stand-up neckline of Venician lace rising from an English net bodice trimmed with cut-out Venician lace. The shoulders and upper sleeves were of English net inserts trimmed in cut-out Venician lace. The long straight sleeves had English net inserts and were edged in cut-out lace trim. The high rise waistline above a fully pleated skirt and chapel train were also trimmed in Venician lace. The fingertip veil, made for the bride by her mother, was of cut-out Venician lace, silk flowers and velvet ribbon.

Her bridal bouquet was a nosegay of yellow sweetheart roses and white daisies intermingled with baby's breath, greenery and white satin streamers. It rested upon a white Bible borrowed from Mrs. Christy Marlar, the groom's sister-in-law. The bride also carried two long stemmed yellow silk roses which she gave to her mother and the groom's mother.

The bride carried out the tradition of something old, new, borrowed and blue. She carried pennies minted in the years of the couple's birthdates in her shoes. She wore a ruby ring belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Earl Hicks, and a lavalier belonging to the groom's late grandmother, Mrs. A.C. Duket. Her wedding dress was new. She wore diamond earrings belonging to the groom's mother and a blue garter, made by her mother.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts for a reception held in the garden room of the chapel. Patricia Pate registered guests. The bride's table was covered with a white eyelet skirt with a yellow overlay. The centerpiece was an arrangement of yellow daisies, greenery and five yellow votive candles. The three tiered cake, made by the bride's mother, rested upon a fountain flowing blue water. The cake was trimmed with satin ribbon inserts, topped with two cherubs among white silk daisies. Punch, mints and nuts were served. Crystal and silver appointments graced the table. Serving were Mrs. Tammie Kelley, the bride's sister, and Mrs. Pam Gibson of Denton.

The groom's table was covered with a blue gingham check skirt and a white eyelet overlay. The centerpiece was a three-votive candelabrum decorated with white daisies and greenery. A silver coffee service and silver tableware were used. The groom's cake was a three layered German chocolate cake. Serving were Mrs. Christy Marlar of Abilene, the groom's sister-in-law, and Jean Ann Payne of San Angelo.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Snyder High School and attended WTC and Angelo State University. She is employed with West Side National Bank in San Angelo. The groom graduated from SHS in 1975. He attended WTC and is a senior accounting major at Angelo State University where he is a member of the Alpha Chi honor society. He is employed with Eckert, Story, Ingrum and Co. CPA as a junior accountant in San Angelo.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Friday night at the Spanish Inn.

Out of town guests included guests from San Angelo, Pampa, Eldorado, Arlington, Ozona, Odessa, Rotan, Pecos, Sweetwater and Artesia, N.M., Midland and Denton.

After a wedding trip to Six Flags, the couple will make their home at 20 North Monroe in San Angelo.

JULY WEDDING PLANNED - Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Braziel announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Della, to Earl Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hasten Earl Nelson of Monrovia, Calif. A July 7 wedding is planned.

When purchasing ordinary life insurance, consider taking out several small policies rather than a single large policy, suggests Dr. Carolyn McKinney, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is a nice problem for you readers. After West leads the four of spades against South's three diamonds can you find a way to defeat the contract?

We'll give you a hint. Australian internationalist Tim Seres did at the table and declarer had no chance against Tim's play.

Tim won the first trick with the jack of spades. Then he led back his 10 of trumps.

After this fine lead South had to lose two clubs and one trick in each other suit.

He made a valiant effort. He won that first diamond and proceeded to lead a high diamond back. Now Tim was in with the ace and made the proper shift to the 10 of clubs. Declarer ducked. But it was no problem at all for Roelof Smilde, sitting West, to take his queen and lead back the king to smother dummy's jack so that Tim's nine of clubs and Roelof's king of hearts were good for the last two decisive tricks.

Good play looks easy, but it sure pays off.

Dealer Found Out In Own Tax Revolt

TIFTON, Ga. (AP)-A tombstone dealer has been found out in his own tax revolt, refusing to collect or pay sales taxes as a protest against what he considers governments' wasteful spending habits and forced desegregation.

A state Superior Court judge assessed E.L. Fowler, 68, more than $14,000 in back taxes and penalties Tuesday for his refusal to collect sales levies since 1968. The IRS also charges that he failed to file federal income taxes from 1971 to 1975. Fowler contends it is "involuntary servitude" to collect taxes and he objects to "social laws" that require "forced mixing of races."

Dowdy, Martin Married

Elizabeth Ann Dowdy and William Donald Martin II were united in marriage in the Christian Student Center at Western Texas College June 1, at 3 p.m. Sam Kitching, minister of East Side Church of Christ officiated the double ring ceremony.

The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Don Martin of 1003 Ave. E and Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Dowdy of Rt. 1.

The father of the bride gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory nylon chiffon over polyester taffeta. The scooped neckline was accented with a deep ruffle trimmed with lace with long puffed sleeves. The empire waist fell into a tiered skirt trimmed in lace. She wore an ivory wide-brimmed hat adorned with an apricot bow with streamers falling down the back.

In keeping with tradition, she wore pearl earrings for something old, something new was her dress. She borrowed a pearl choker necklace from Elizabeth Cornell, aunt of the bride. Her blue garter was made by Ms. Peggy English.

The bride carried a bouquet of glamelias with English ivy and baby's breath and ivory streamers on an ivory Bible.

MR. AND MRS. BILL MARTIN
(Studio Royal)

Matron of honor was Karen English, the groom's sister. She was attired in a high empire gown accented with a cummberbund trimmed in ivory lace. She carried a single glamelia with apricot streamers. On her head she wore a apricot wide-brimmed hat with an ivory bow falling into long streamers.

Dennis McMennamy of Dunn was best man. Gary Martin, brother of the groom was usher.

Vows were exchanged before a brass archway entwined with greenery. Baskets containing white flowers and apricot ribbons flanked the arch.

Musical selections "Wedding Song," "By My Side" from "Godspell," were presented by Dennis Mc Mennamy and Jane Ann Womack.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Student Center. Individual tables were centered with brandy sniffers containing floating apricot carnations trimmed with apricot ribbons.

The bride's table was covered with an ivory cloth with an overlay of ivory net. The two tiered cake was decorated with apricot trim and was topped by three satin bells. The centerpiece was an apricot and ivory carnation arrangement with three burning tapers. Valerie Burney and Lesa Wilkinson served.

The groom's table was covered with an apricot gingham checked cloth. The table was centered with a single candle encircled in ivy. A German chocolate pound cake and coffee were served. Deanna Williams served at the groom's table.

Members of the houseparty were Vera Baize, JoAnn McCormick, Diane Scott and Elizabeth Cornell.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at The Shack. The bride's colors of apricot and ivy were carried out in the table decorations.

After a wedding trip to San Marcos, the couple will reside at Rt. 1, Box 910, Snyder. The groom is employed by Southwestern Brick and the bride is employed at Art Style Beauty Shop.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of SHS and attended WTC and Texas Tech. The bridegroom is a 1971 graduate of SHS and also attended WTC and Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos.

Out of town guests registered from Lubbock, San Antonio, Fluvanna, and Clovis, N.M.

BLANCHE'S BLABS

By BLANCHE CHISUM
Scurry County Extension Agent

Parents, would you like to form a partnership with your youngster? Thousands are doing this every day in the 4-H program.

Through 4-H, parents get involved with their youngsters by helping them with one or more of over 40 projects. By getting involved with projects, parents help their youngsters learn the basic skills and information and help them to fulfill an obligation. The "partners" then build on these successes in areas of project work, leadership, community service and many other character-building experiences.

By spending time with your son or daughter, you can overcome the problems commonly referred to today as "communications gap" or "generation gap." The 4-H project serves as a beginning to start the "partnership" - it grows through mutual understanding and trust between parent and child.

Parents and 4-H'ers learn to share the joys of winning and the disappointment of losing and to jointly work out solutions to problems as they arise.

By becoming active 4-H parents, you can develop closer family ties and become better "partners" in working toward common goals. Contact the county Extension office for additional details on the 4-H program.

BASS PROJECT FOR SCURRY COUNTY 4-H

The Scurry County 4-H-ers are now interested in forming a Bass Club for all youth between 9 and 19. This project will be fun and exciting for both youngsters and adults and the beginning meeting will be held in the Scurry County Coliseum Annex at 7:30 on Wednesday, June 28. Any youth between 9 and 19 is urged to contact the extension office at 573-5423 if he is interested in the Bass Project but will be unable to attend this first meeting. All of the project meetings will be scheduled after June 28. Come go "fishing" with us!

DRESS REVUE:

The Scurry County 4-H Dress Revue is to be held in the Ira Community Center on June 29 at 7:00 p.m. The Scurry County 4-H'ers have worked hard to complete their clothing projects and will be displaying them at this upcoming event. The winners of the junior, intermediate and senior divisions will advance to the District 2 competition to be held in Lubbock on July 6.

Unique Jams And Jellies

COLLEGE STATION--Use rose petals, mahaws, cacti or pyracantha berries to make unique jellies this summer.

Texans, with their affinity for making jelly out of any and every thing, may want to try one of the following recipes, suggests Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

PYRACANTHA JELLY

2 cups pyracantha juice
2 cups sugar

Using about one-third ripe berries, place equal parts of washed fruit and water in a non-metal container. Let stand overnight.

Boil for five minutes. Then, mash, strain and squeeze to remove juice.

If fruit is very ripe, use commercial pectin.

Place juice over heat and let come to boil. Add sugar and boil about five minutes until it gives the sheet test.

Remove from heat, skim off foam and pour into hot sterilized jars and seal.

ROSE PETAL JAM

18 pink or red scented roses
4 lemons
3 pounds sugar
4 cups water

Put sugar and water in a pan and boil gently for one-half hour to make a syrup.

Gather roses. Pull petals off roses and cut off all white at their bases. This part of the petal is bitter.

Put petals in a pan and pour one cup boiling water over them keeping them pressed down with a wooden spoon.

When petals are thoroughly wet, pour both water and petals into the syrup. Stir mixture constantly.

Let boil one-half hour. When petals become transparent and tender, add juice of four strained lemons or one-half teaspoon citric acid crystals.

Boil jam for 10 of 15 minutes more and pour into sterilized jars and seal.

CACTUS JELLY

2 quarts cactus juice
½ cup lemon juice
3 boxes powdered pectin
5 pounds sugar

To make cactus juice, gather tunas and singe spines over gas flame with a two tine fork. Scrub with a stiff brush in cold water.

Use three cups water to 30 tunas. Cut tunas in half and add the three cups of water, and cook in a pressure cooker for 15 minutes.

Strain juice through white cloth.

Mix together cactus juice, lemon juice and pectin. Bring to a boil.

Add sugar. Bring to rolling boil for one to three minutes or until it slips off the spoon.

Pour into hot sterilized jars or glasses and seal.

MAHAW JAM

1 gallon mahaws
1 cup water
2-3 to ¾ cup of sugar to each pound of fruit

Wash fruit and remove stems. Add water to fruit. Crush and heat to simmer.

Add sugar and cook until jam remains in a heap when piled on a plate.

Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal.

talking up a crisis

Most people have an understanding of what is meant when informed that certain people, or sometimes a single individual, is talking up a storm. Readers of news dispatches during the last few weeks could hardly escape a feeling that is something in the nature of an international crisis doesn't develop in the near future it will not be the fault of our national leaders.

The point is underscored by some recent events. President Carter told Naval Academy graduates leaders of the Soviet Union can help write an arms limitation agreement acceptable to this country or face a confrontation. That sounds ominously like an ultimatum.

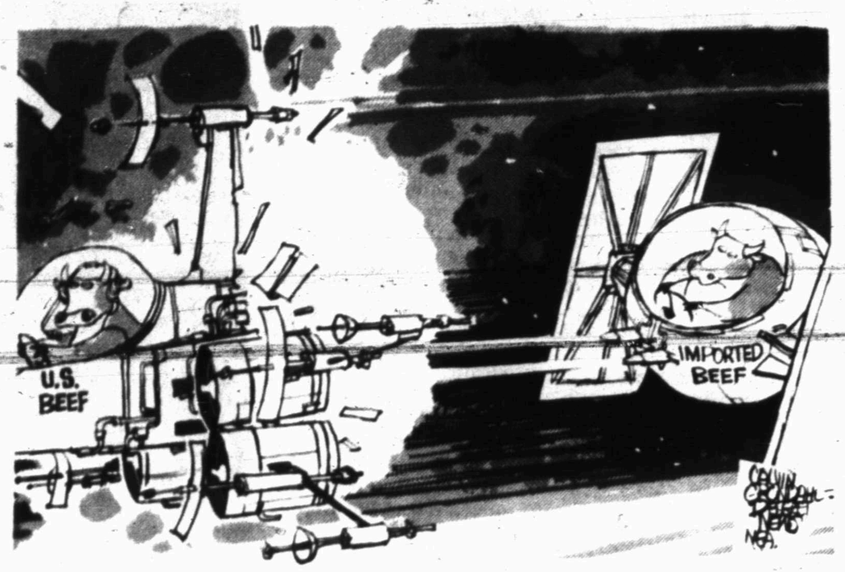

Later in press conferences and speeches on barnstorming trips around the Western Hemisphere the President put the world on notice he is giving priority to human rights, even behind the iron curtain, regardless of what Soviet leaders have to say about the matter.

Soviet President Brezhnev could hardly ignore these declarations. He retorted that Carter is all wrong in his thinking about life behind the iron curtain. Arms limitations talks can begin any time Carter is ready to leave off lecturing on moral righteousness and get down to bargaining. He finally implied that if Carter wants a cold war with confrontation at the end he can have it.

It has become apparent, except to the persons most concerned, that discussion of delicate international situations in political speeches, press conferences and lectures on national morality more often than not prove counter-productive.

Overlooked is that men tough enough to rise to the top in the governments based on use of force and repression are not particularly interested in what the President of the United States, members of his hatchet squad or anybody else in this country thinks in the area of morals and ethics.

Also forgotten is that these men have feelings and a sense of pride. We must deal with them on the basis of their sense of values, not ours. Our job is to sell them on our ideas by demonstrating their superiority in actual practice.

STEER WARS

favored criminals

Something is wrong with this picture: You are locked up and criminals run loose.

You law-abiding Americans are barring your windows and bolting your doors and huddling, frightened, inside. Meanwhile, outside the sickies and the malicious and the vicious take over the street your taxes paid for.

There's something bad wrong with that!

Now there is a doorknob for your house which howls like a siren if somebody tries to break in.

That, as they say, is a Band-Aid on a cancer.

Have you heard what hotels and motels are having to do to keep their rooms safe from rapists and robbers?

The American Hotel in New York City tried a system in which you were given a key to the door and a coded card for the TV set at the time of check-in.

When you opened your door you had to run to the TV set and insert that coded card--within 20 seconds--or else an alarm would go off and police would converge.

That system was abandoned after too many false alarms. But it indicates the frightful problem of trying to make public accomodations safe for private guests.

Keys never were good enough. One New York hotel has only 1,500 rooms-but loses 10,000 keys every year. Some are taken for souvenirs. Some are taken innocently by mistake. But how do we know? And how do you justify it to the insurance company when you have 15 keys for every room floating around out there somewhere?

And despite the best efforts by hotels to insure your safety and to shush up their failures--there was no way to hide it when singer Connie Francis was raped in her motel room. Or when a Brazilian businessman was murdered in his hotel room. Nobody has an accurate tally on how many of the some two million hotel and motel rooms in this country are robbed each day, but judging from soaring insurance rates the total exceeds a thousand a day.

The luxury Fontainbleau Hotel on Miami Beach employs a full-time security force of 36 guards, 6 detectives and 4 supervisors.

Burns Security Services reports its "hotel security business" increased 44 percent last year.

Guardsmark, Inc.--another security company--reports demand for investigators up 122 percent in nine months.

All of this security inevitably adds to the higher prices of hotel rooms.

Similarly, the now conspicuous and the additional inconspicuous guards stationed in most department stores add to the prices of everything we purchase.

Americans are trying to rescue themselves. There are now 2,000 crime prevention programs in operation across our nation helping to safeguard citizens against burglars and muggers.

Stanford University coeds are attending classes in which they are taught to "gouge, kick, crush and render senseless."

Though you girls may be sued if you do.

Our recent years' preoccupation with the rights of wrongdoers has tended to put the law on the side of the lawless.

stick grows shorter

No matter how rapidly business and industry expand, they are hard-pressed to keep pace with Uncle Sam. The Wall Street Journal reports that government regulation just keeps on growing. It cites figures showing that the fiscal 1979 federal budget to operate 41 regulatory agencies is $4.8 billion, up 115 percent in five years.

Moreoever, it will cost industry $134.8 billion next year just to comply with the rules set down by these agencies. Thus, the consumer is paying at both ends.

Closer to home, one major Texas industry which plans to spend over $200 million for expansion and improvement to its facilities in the coming year reported that 20 percent, or $1 in every $5, it spends will go to comply with federal regulations that only came into existence in recent years and which are expanding faster than the company itself.

And then there's the report of a new plant required to install millions of dollars worth of anti-pollution equipment despite the fact that the transportation of supplies for operating the equipment daily will put more pollution in the air than the plant itself would without the high-priced equipment.

Business, industry and the consumer are fighting their economic battles with a stick that grows shorter year by year.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Now-a-days things that aren't worth saying are sung."

The approval of Proposition 13 in California has sent shock waves through the establishments of government. Our trusty government "professionals" or bureaucrats are so concerned that they are resorting to scare tactics in an effort to keep government growing.

There is plenty of nonsense to cut without getting to the basics of education, fire and police protection and sanitation.

Even in the so-called basics, there is plenty of fat. We're not saying it's not nice, but it is only nice and often not a necessity. Take matching federal grants for example. Often local governments take them only because they are available and "because if we don't someone else will."

We've never seen the logic of that statement since fiscal responsibility must start at the local level. Also matching grants mean that local money must be appropriated in order to qualify for those feds funds, so therefore the local taxpayer is paying at both ends.

We remember in our hometown during the oil boom days of the 1950's, when there were few paved streets. Neighbors got together and decided that paving with curb and gutter would be nice. However, if the fellow down the street decided he didn't want to pave his portion, then it was just left unpaved. Then somebody got the idea that it would be done anyway and everybody could share in the cost. We doubt that it was the start of getting a free ride, but we can remember those cases vividly.

We have now reared a generation that looks directly to some kind of government to solve each and every problem. If the neighborhood kids fuss, then the appropriate agency is called. Somebody is organizing the kids 24 hours a day.

As one local official put it last week, 20 percent of the citizens demand 80 percent of the services. That's right and Proposition 13 is the first time in many years that the majority has finally spoken up and said, "Hey, we're not going to stand for that." But we suspect those same people will also demand and get quality education, and other basic services. They've always provided funds for it and they still will, just cut out the foolishness.

Maybe Jarvis will run for President!

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Embarrassed members of the House of Representatives are quietly seeking to terminate an auditing program designed to insure the financial integrity of political campaigns for seats in Congress.

The Federal Election Commission (FEC) initiated the project less than a year ago, but it already has produced discomfort among House members whose campaign records have been subjected to audits conducted by FEC investigators.

"I can't go to the (House) floor without being stopped by one of them," said Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J., chairman of the House Administration Committee, whose jurisdiction includes authority over the FEC.

As a result, the routine bill authorizing the commission to spend $8.6 million for its operations in the next fiscal year includes a Thompson amendment that prohibits the expenditure of any money for what the FEC calls "random audits."

The Administration Committee, in a little-noticed move, recently voted 19-2 in favor of the amendment. The legislation is expected to be approved by the full House, although the Senate may resist efforts to suspend the audit program.

When the new program was initiated last July, the commission randomly selected 44 races for House seats and 4 contests for Senate seats held in 1976. Required to open their financial records for a thorough review were 98 candidates for House seats and 8 seeking Senate seats.

By last October, only three months after the surprise audits began, representatives began complaining about the practice. "A number of members are extremely upset about it," Thompson revealed at an Administration Committee hearing.

"As soon as a member of Congress is being audited, back home the newspaper play it up," said Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich. "The public says, 'aha, something is wrong.' "

The FEC has a firm policy of not divulging any information about its investigations until they are completed, but Rep. Ted Risenhoover, D-Okla., griped that the news leaks out "and that alerts anyone who might want to seek a little vengeance."

Rep. William L. Dickinson, R-Ala., sharply criticized FEC officials for "going off on some adventures of your own and thinking up grandoise ideas such as random audits."

When the bill came before the House Rules Committee last month, Thompson claimed that "in nearly every case, the commission's audit disclosed nothing but technical violations."

The chairman of that committee, Rep. James J. Delaney, D-N.Y., was one of those whose campaign finances were subjected to an audit - and one of the few to suffer the humiliation of having substantive violations.

Delaney questioned the wisdom of members of Congress authorizing the expenditure of funds "for the purpose of investigating yourself," then complained that the FEC officials who audited his books "didn't know one thing about the law."

Rep. John Joseph Moakley, D-Mass., chimed in: "It is demeaning for an incumbent to have to go through these things."

Thompson promised that FEC officials "will be told...indeed directed that only on what is the equivalent of probable cause of a civil or criminal violation will there be an audit" of any legislator in the future.

The Administration Committee will go further, Thompson added, requiring the commission to notify apparent violators of federal law before any audit is initiated and even allow them to make necessary changes before the probe begins.

The legislators would be aghast if any other government law enforcement agency offered advance warning of its investigations and extended special privileges to suspected violators of federal statutes.

But, as Dickinson aptly noted, Congress wants an FEC that can "understand and appreciate the problems" of the Solons. Members of Congress have a long tradition of exempting themselves from the standards they apply to mere mortals.

Students Spy Film Missing

SEATTLE (AP) - Not only did elementary school students here indulge in cloak-and-dagger intrigue, but now they're victims of a burglary.

Fifty fourth, fifth and sixth graders from three local schools wrote, directed and produced a 15-minute film, "The Deadly Documents," describing the exploits of Agent Double-O Nothing. At May's Puget Sound Film Festival, the project won a $25 prize.

Now, however, the spy film is missing - spirited away from their adviser's home in an apparent burglary.

In an open letter, the students appealed for return of their film saying "it has no value to anyone else, but is of great sentimental value to us." They're offering their $25-prize money as a reward.

Teachers Suffer 'Battle Fatigue'

NEW YORK (AP)-Some New York public school teachers are suffering "battle fatigue" as a result of student violence and abuse, a City Council committee report says.

The report Tuesday recommended criminal prosecution for assaults on teachers, more explusions and longer suspensions. During the 1976-77 school year, there were 2,420 assaults, 617 robberies, 2,420 larcenies, 858 bomb threats and arson-type fires, 83 sex crimes and 682 narcotics-related offenses in city schools, the committee reported.

it's possible

Welcome problems! Regard every problem as an opportunity. The chairman of a large publishing house says, "We have no problems in our organization, only opportunities."

A problem may be the push you needed to remodel, retool, reorganize, restructure, rearrange, or relocate. Persons, traditions, organizations, and institutions, firmly ingrained in their well-worn systematic ways, must usually come face to face with enormous problems before they think of changing. Every problem is an opportunity to see something.

How do you sell an idea? First, you call attention to a problem either existing or forthcoming. Second, you dramatize the problem. Third, you emotionalize the problem. Fourth, you enlarge the problem, pointing out that the problem will not go away if ignored, but will only become more serious. Next you offer all possible solutions saving the best alternative for the last. Then you point out that the solution will never be easier, or cheaper (that really gets results) than right now.

Be patient, and you will sell a pair of pants instead of a patch! Every leader, every salesman, every idea person knows that without a real problem, you will never be able to move ahead!

I recently read an article by a prominent ophthalmologist. Addressing a group of young medical students about to graduate, he said, "Students, when I was your age I could only conclude that no one knew about God. And therefore atheism was the only tenable position. Now, I know whether or not there is a God; the patients that know they have a God are much better off than those who do not believe in God.

"There is no question about it. There is an enormous difference! So what do we physicians do about that fact? Let me illustrate by comparing physicians to stone workers. "Three stone workers might, depending upon their viewpoint or their perspective or their mental attitude, look upon their job in different ways. One stone worker sees his job as carrying stone; another stone worker sees it as building a wall; and another sees his job as creating a cathedral to the glory of God. As doctors, you have the same attitude. If you see your job as carrying stones, you will then see your patients as complaining crocks, indigent invalids, sick scoundrels and poor protoplasm. And with that view you will soon start seeking the solace of alcohol or drugs.

"A second attitude is you can see your work as the construction of an endless wall. The futile patching up of worn out bodies. The whole endeavor becomes senseless because you know, ultimately, that the body cannot be patched up anymore. Now with that attitude you welcome the ultimate escape from your profession because you'll think that at the end you're a loser and you'll welcome death.

"But if you are as fortunate as I am to come to believe that there is a God and every human being is one of his unique and special creatures, however frail and faulted they might be, then you will look upon each patient as a little cathedral. As an individual that you can build to the glory of God. I am now able to see each patient as a very special person — a child of God deserving my best skill and attention as I rebuild that cathedral!

"What I am doing is very important, and of course, my patients sense my new attitude. They are so grateful. And any doctor is going to be happy when he is dealing with appreciative patients.

"Finally, the most important thing that I can say to you is: 'Live your lives, doctors, as if there was a God, even if you don't believe in Him!' Live your life and your practice as if there was a God of love that cares for you, too, even as He cares for every patient that comes in! And you know what? With that attitude you'll someday be an old silver-haired and wrinkle-faced doctor and you will still have a twinkle in your eye and love in your life!"

That's sound advice for all of us!

Reverend Schuller, pastor of the Garden Grove, Calif., Community Church, can be seen weekly on his nationally syndicated TV program, "Hour of Power."

Your Birthday

June 25, 1978

The year ahead will not be one of your run-of-the-mill, routine periods. There are many surprises ahead. Most of them will be pleasant.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you've got something you'd like to push, today offers a prime opportunity to do it. You've got your act together and your approach would be dramatic. Find out to whom you're romantically suited by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You can unobtrusively take charge of situations important to those you care for, and put them in the proper context today. Your adept handling will amaze others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) One of the reasons you'll be so warmly received today is your flair for making contemporaries think that the better ideas you supply them with really are theirs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Although this may not be a normal work day for you, unusual opportunities may arise to enable you to turn a profit. Relax with one eye open.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In social settings you are extremely magnetic today. A little group will quickly cluster about you, like moths attracted to a flame.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your methods may not be readily apparent to others today, but they will get results. Their unorthodox nature will not make them any less effective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A splendid day for brainstorming with confidants. In the process you will come up with marvelous, workable concepts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A commercial idea you've been toying with should not be left to gather dust. It might provide you with that desirable second source of income.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avail yourself of any opportunity to go somewhere and meet new people. One you're introduced to could prove very important to your future.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't try to assume the mantle of leadership today. You'll realize a greater share of the booty by being a follower.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) New projects are especialjy favored for you today. They can be rewarding, and will be more so if there's some type of unique twist involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be intimidated today by situations measured in large figures. Approach things with logic and forthrightness and you'll come out on top.

Your Birthday

June 26, 1978

Interesting, glamorous opportunities could present themselves to you this coming year, adding zest and excitement. Just remember: Real promise and rewards lie with things that can stand the test of time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take a little extra cash with you today. Unexpected expenses are apt to pop up. You could be caught embarrassingly short. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you change your mind about a course of action you know is right in order to pacify another, you'll wind up serving neither of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's possible you'll be the one to let the cat out of the bag regarding something you wanted kept secret, by talking without thinking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unusually high expenses relating to an outside activity could put a considerable dent in your wallet today. Live within your income.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) You're not normally a quitter, but today because of something emotional you won't be as persistent as necessary to achieve your aims.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Impatience could cause you to repeat a tactic that's proven unsuccessful. Profit from experience. Give yourself time to work things out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A friend's offer of aid may be suddenly withdrawn today. Before passing judgment and getting upset, find out why he backed off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) More time is required to work out an arrangement involving another. Nothing will come off as you hoped if you plan impetuously.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Projects you're working on today will not have the full attention they need. Don't expect good results for half effort.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone you meet socially today could initially make a strong impression, but the image will fade just as quickly under closer scrutiny.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Family-related issues must be watched very closely today so that they don't get out of hand emotionally. Supress your impatience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You could have difficulty working something out today because you didn't listen closely enough to instructions.

Housing Boom In Texas

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas' new construction soared to $2.2 billion through April, with $3 out of every $5 going for homes, a University of Texas researcher reported Saturday.

Janet Tandy of the Bureau of Business Research said Austin, with 3,056 residential units authorized in the first four months of 1978, was experiencing a "housing boom."

Total new construction values are up 39 percent over the January-April period of 1977, Ms. Tandy said, with 48,779 new dwelling units registered since Jan. 1.

Of that total, 50 percent were for single-family residences, 3 percent for duplexes and 47 percent for apartment units.

Of the $2 out of every $5 that went for new non-residential construction in the first four-months, the largest pecentage - 26.8 - was for stores and mercantile buildings.

Using "crude estimators" such as population, civilian employment and personal income estimates, Ms. Tandy said, "so far in 1978 only six metropolitan areas in Texas have had levels of construction activity well above the hypotehtical potential; Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, Austin, Amarillo, Bryan-College Station and Midland."

During the first four months of 1978, she said, the Midland metropolitan area had the highest adjusted per capita new construction valuation - $557 - of any Texas metropolitan area.

The other five metropolitan areas with levels of new construction activity exceeding expectations had the following per capita valuation estimates: Bryan-College Station $351, Amarillo $330, Austin $310, Houston $309 and Dallas-Fort Worth $285.

Tandy noted that a $21.4 million construction permit has been issued for Dallas to build a special events center, and Neiman-Marcus will build a $2.5 million store in Dallas. The largest non-residential permit for the Dallas-Fort Worth area was $5.6 million for a new high school in Plano.

In the Houston area, the pace of new apartment buildings was up 50 percent in numbers and 122 percent in total construction valuation, with $145 million authorized.

Ms. Tandy said the 3,056 new residential units authorized in the Austin area is almost 2½ times greater than the total for the first four months of 1977; the 1,584 single-family houses authorized is nearly double the total for last year through April; and the 1,218 new apartment units is nearly four times higher than in the same period of 1977.

Over the past five years, she said, a significantly higher proportion of new housing stock in the Austin area has been in duplexes, and the 254 authorized through April represents 16 percent of the statewide total. Only Dallas-Fort Worth, with 20 percent of the duplexes, had a higher percentage.

The largest non-residential permit issued in Austin this year was for the $6 million Southwestern Bell Telephone building.

In the Amarillo area, a 24 percent increase in residential units resulted from a sizeable gain in new apartment building units.

New construction valuation of $23 million in Bryan-College Station was 28 percent higher than in the first months of last year, but the gain came totally from non-residential building as new residential valuation drcpped 24 percent.

The number of new apartment units dropped from 852 in the first four months of 1977 to 336 during the same period this year.

New non-residential construction also accounted for the doubling of new construction valuation in the Midland area, Ms. Tandy said, with four of the five largest permits for non-residential structures. The largest was a $8.75 million hospital addition.

The number of new housting units in Midland fell 39 percent.

Also, Ms. Tandy noted, the average cost of construction for a new single-family residence in the Midland area reached a record $55,628 this year, a 20 percent increase over 1977.

TOMATO DISEASES:

The most widely grown vegetable in Texas gardens is the tomato. However, this popular vegetable is also subject to a number of diseases.

The first disease problem that most homeowners face with tomatoes is damping off. Planting tomatoes in warm, well-drained soil and spraying with the fungicide Captan when the disease occurs will help.

Fusarium wilt is another common disease problem in tomatoes. The only control is the use of wilt resistant varieties. These include Spring Giant, Spring Set, Terrific, Better Boy, Big Set, Homestead 24, Homestead Elite, Small Fry and Monte Grande. Small Fry is a cherry type tomato.

Root knot nematodes also attack tomatoes. Resistant varieties are the most effective means of reducing losses to these microscopic pests. Such varieties include Nematex, Terrific, Big Set, Better Boy and Small Fry.

Among common foliage diseases attacking tomatoes are early blight, late blight, Septoria leaf spot, gray leaf spot and Anthracnose. These can best be controlled by foliar sprays of an acceptable fungicide such as Maneb, Captan or Zineb. Begin applications when the disease first appears and continue at 7-to-10-day intervals for three to four applications.

Fruit decay may also set in as tomatoes near maturity. The effective control of this condition is to use a cage or mulch or some type to keep fruit from touching the soil. Foliar fungicides will also aid in controlling various fruit rots.

Blossom end rot is another condition that occurs often, the result of improper watering or lack of uniform moisture conditions. This is identified by a brown to black area on the bottom of the fruit.

As is readily evident, a great deal of time and effort are required to produce beautiful, delicious tomatoes with particular attention needed to control of diseases.

POTATO HARVEST

Fresh potatoes can be harvested any time for immediate consumption once the tubers are of sufficient size.

However, yield is reduced and storage quality is lowered by harvesting potatoes before tops begin to dry down. Potatoes harvested early (immature tubers) have thin skins which allow fairly rapid water loss, causing them to shrivel and become soft shortly after storage.

Once harvested, proper storage is important to maintain the quality of the fresh potatoes. Store the potatoes in complete darkness in moist air at about 60 degrees F. for several weeks. Lower temperatures to 38-40 degrees F. for long-term storage. Colder temperatures prevent sprouting while warmer temperatures encourage it. Whatever the storage temperature, keep potatoes in complete darkness. Exposure to light causes freshly dug potatoes to turn green and to develop an undersirable bitter flavor.

Digging potatoes at the right time and storing them properly can mean a supply of top quality potatoes for some time.

Class Of '58 Still Seeks Addresses

The Snyder High School graduating class of 1958 is making plans to have a reunion and is still trying to locate several classmates for whom they have no addresses.

Anyone who knows the whereabouts of any of the following is asked to contact Janelle Pollard at 573-9076 or Mary Williams at 573-7567: Wilda Livingston Montgomery, Rosa Clark Brooks, Leon Reed, John Maize, Jean Little, William Mobley, Billie June Newman Sawyer, Joyce Taylor, Joyce Townsend May, Joe Hawthorne Eiland.

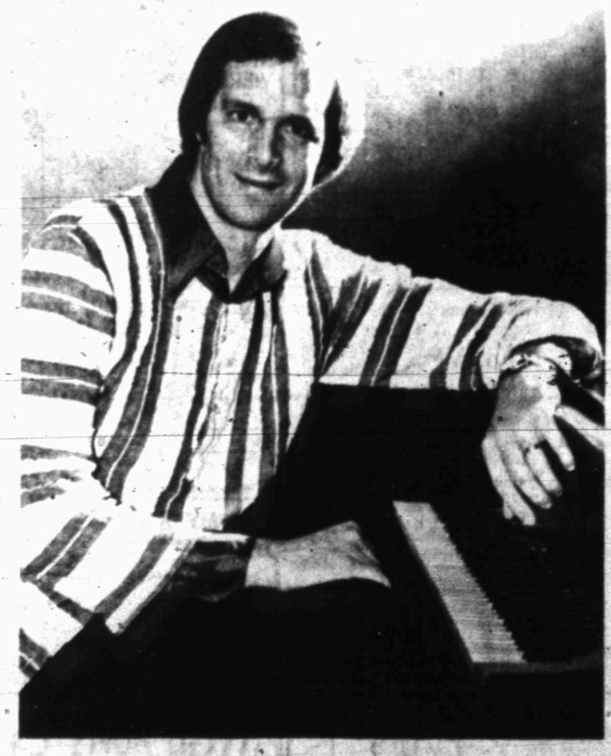

Also, Louise Cates Eaton, John Beall, Lucy Blacksher Merrill, Myrtle Craig, David Hale, Barbara Mahan Holder, David McIntosh, Tim Pixley, Nelda Thomas, Pat Busby, Homer Nelson, Linda Cauble Jenkins and Mary Green Eady.

Work Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Children aged 10 and 11 will be allowed to hand harvest some crops as part of new Labor Department regulations. Previously children under 12 could not engage in farm labor.

The new regulations, which take effect immediately, limit the childrens' work to five hours a day with a maximum 30-hour week. The employer also must meet a number of other requirements and must show that no other labor is available, the Labor Department said.

Meet Foster of the singing Sylvers group

Foster Sylvers, age 16, says he is no different from other kids.

Except for one thing.

"I am busy all the time," he told the Mini Page.

Foster is busy practicing, singing, traveling, being on TV and cutting records.

He and his two sisters and four brothers make up a popular family singing group.

"My mom's the group's critic. She travels with us and gives us advice," he said.

Foster goes to a regular school. On the road, he has a tutor.

Foster has made two albums. Two singles, "Hey Little Girl" and "Misdemeanor," have been hits.

"It's crazy on the road," he told us.

"We often whip up things to eat in our room," he added.

With such a large family, the group "triples up a lot."

Japan is his favorite place to travel. He was in his first gig (show) there when he was 7.

The Sylvers are known for their dancing while singing. The youngest brother, Chris, 11, might someday join the group.

Many kids take to tennis

Beep, beep.

Here comes the tennis truck into many neighborhoods.

Out come the nets.

Out come rackets and balls.

Here comes the teacher.

He or she will give you tips on how to play.

All of this is free.

Sometimes the courts are set up in school parking lots or in city streets.

In many cities, parks and recreation departments are introducing kids to tennis.

They are bringing the courts to the kids.

In 40 cities, the mobile tennis program is sponsored by Pepsi-Cola.

Look at the pictures and find:

Arthur Ashe helps beginning players

This past summer, two NJTL kids got to play tennis against football star Rosey Grier, and movie star and weight-lifter Arnold Schwarzenegger at a pro-celebrity tournament in Forest Hills, New York.

Arthur Ashe is Mr. Tennis to many people.

To kids, he is the man who helped start the National Junior Tennis League. This is a program that offers more free lessons and the use of rackets and balls than any other tennis program.

Hundreds of cities and towns across the country have NJTL summer programs for kids from 8 to 18.

The NJTL also gives free T-shirts. Coca-Cola USA has helped sponsor it for the past nine years.

The idea is not to turn kids into pros . . . but to let them try tennis. They might love it for life.

Arthur Ashe was the first black man to win the U.S. Open. He has also won Wimbledon. He has just written a book for youngsters, "Getting Started in Tennis."

To find out if they have the program in your city, check with the parks and recreation department.

Each year the U.S. Tennis Association ranks the best players in the country according to age group. The youngest group is the 12-and-unders.

Meet Andrea Jaeger

Lincolnshire, Ill.— Andrea Jaeger didn't pick up a tennis racket until she was 8 years old. Now, she has over 80 trophies to show for four years of play.

"My dad threw balls to me in the driveway," she told The Mini Page.

Her dad is a tennis pro. Her older sister is an excellent tennis player, too.

Andrea lives just a few minutes from the courts where she practices two hours a day in the winter and four hours in the summer.

Not only is Andrea good at singles, she is also ranked number one in doubles, too.

She also finds time to play soccer.

Evonne Goolagong Cawley is the player she admires the most.

Andrea is tiny. She is 4 feet, 8 inches tall and weighs only 75 pounds. She is very BIG on the tennis courts. She is now 13. ©UPS

Rick is now 13 years old and in the seventh grade. Most of the time he practices with his dad.

Meet Rick Leach

Laguna Beach, Ca. — Rick Leach started playing tennis when he was 5 years old. He won his first tournament at the age of 7 . . . in the boys' 14-and-under division.

"I like tournaments. I like competition," Rick told us.

Rick's dad is a tennis pro. Rick has seen top tennis played. He plays it, too.

Rick is known for his sportsmanship as well as super playing.

He has other interests besides tennis. He collects coins and plays the piano and clarinet. He's also good at basketball.

Rick practices three hours a day during the summer and one to two hours a day during the winter.

Someday he would like to be a tennis pro.

The players he admires the most are Stan Smith and Bjorn Borg.

It's Wimbledon Time Again

This picture was taken when Tracy Austin, of Rolling Hills, California, was much younger. She still keeps that "little girl" look.

Photos courtesy U.S. Tennis Association

Soon it will be Wimbledon time again.

Wimbledon is the most famous tennis tournament in the world. This is the tournament where the best players meet to compete each July in Wimbledon, England.

Last year, Tracy Austin, then 14, didn't win . . . but she got a lot of attention.

She is one of the youngest players to ever play in this event.

Tracy is known for her style. She is also known for her little-girl pigtails, braces and pinafore tennis dresses.

But don't let all that fool you. She doesn't play like a little girl. Some experts say that she is the next Chris Evert.

1977 Wimbledon Winners

Virginia Wade had played in 15 Wimbledons before her first win last year.

The crowd sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" when England's own "Ginny" Wade, 31, won the women's singles. The Queen gave her the trophy. All England was very proud.

Bjorn Borg won his second straight men's singles title by beating America's Jimmy Connors. The beard that the shy, 21-year-old Swede grew for good luck worked for the second time.

Psoriasis Treatment Is Tested At Texas Tech

A new photochemotherapy treatment for psoriasis is being tested at Texas Tech University School of Medicine.

The treatment, combining oral doses of a psoralen drug with exposure to longwave ultraviolet light radiation, is relieving the red skin patches, itching and flaking of the disease for many patients.

The Department of Dermatology is one of several sites across the country testing the PUVA (psoralen-ultraviolet-A) treatment. To date, 86 percent of the TTUSM test patients have shown total clearance of skin symptoms. Clearance was achieved in from 13 to 27 treatments. Half the individuals (43 percent) remained clear of symptoms after halting treatment. Half require periodic maintenance treatments to manage symptoms recurring after five to six months.

"The PUVA treatment does not cure psoriasis," said Barbara H. Way, M.D., associate professor and chairperson of dermatology. "The disease cannot be cured by any known treatment. But, for many patients, the treatment seems to offer an effective means of clearance and control of symptoms."

Psoriasis is caused by a rapid production of skin cells. Imperfectly formed cells build up on the skin surface in unsightly red patches which itch and flake off. The red blotches on exposed skin surfaces and the itching can be very distressing to the patient.

The PUVA treatment includes taking a dose of a psoralen drug which makes the skin extra sensitive to ultraviolet longwave radiation (UV-A). After taking the drug, patients expose their total skin surface to ultraviolet light radiation.

An array of 48 special fluorescent light tubes mounted in a cabinet about the size of a shower stall provides the light. Drug dosage and exposure time are regulated for the individual patient until the desired results are achieved.

During exposure, the patient wears protective goggles to prevent possible eye damage. For several hours after the treatment, the patient must wear protective clothing and glasses to prevent harm from exposure to natural sunlight.

Traditional treatments for psoriasis include regiments of colloid baths, coal tar creams, corticosteroid creams and exposure to ultraviolet light.

"The PUVA treatment can provide relief for many patients," said Way. "But it is not the answer for everyone. Some people do not respond to the treatment. Others may have additional medical problems which make the treatment inadvisable."

Patients used for the test all are volunteers with involvement of 30 percent or more of the skin. Each patient is screened medically before beginning the treatment, and periodic tests are made on the patient's condition during the series.

"Our results have been encouraging, at least on the first group of test patients," Way said. "Our findings appear to be consistent with those of other centers testing the PUVA treatment."

The PUVA program at TTUSM is conducted by Way in collaboration with Bruce A. Bartholomew, M.D., and David M. Mills, M.D., of the department of medicine.

Jockey Owes Over Million In Back Taxes

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)-Jockey Bill Hartack, five-time winner of the Kentucky Derby, owes more than $1 million in back income taxes, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Howell Melton issued a summary judgment Tuesday in favor of the Internal Revenue Service for $1,065,822, including $325,413 interest on overdue taxes dating back to 1954.

The 45-year-old Hartack was reportedly riding in Hong Kong and was unavailable for comment.

The jockey failed to show for a hearing scheduled here June 1.

One of the nation's most successful jockeys, Hartack won derbies on Iron Liege in 1957, Venetian Way in 1960, Decidedly in 1962, Northern Dancer in 1964 and Majestic Prince in 1969.

Do Women Cause Male Impotence?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I read that there is a growing problem of male impotence in America, and no one seems to have the answer. I'm a male, and a fellow I work with may have put his finger on the reason. He says he is turned off by women in slacks, boots and mannish haircuts.

I agree with him. Nothing turns me on like a woman with long, soft, fragrant hair and a frilly, feminine dress.

Clothes make the woman, too. If more men are becoming impotent, it just might be that the mannish look of some women is the cause.

LOVES LAVENDER AND LACE

DEAR LOVES: If male impotence seems to be on the rise, it could be because (a) it has never before been as thoroughly recorded, or (b) male sexuality suffers from the revved up pace and intensified pressures of modern life.

Plenty of men are panting over women in long pants and short haircuts.

DEAR ABBY: I am 24, single and have been dating the same man for two years. Neither of us has dated anyone else since we met.

About a year ago, friends and relatives (especially aunts) began asking us (separately, of course), "When are you two going to get married?"

I must admit that when the questions first started I felt as if I had to come up with some kind of answer in order to satisfy people's curiosity. I think we'll eventually marry, but I want to live on my own awhile and not go directly from my parents' home to living with another person. My boyfriend feels the same way, and we're both happy with things as they are, but we can't seem to get this across to some people.

Some friends of mine recently broke up because of repeated questioning from her parents. He wasn't ready for marriage, and she started to pressure him to set a date.

I wish well-meaning friends would leave the decision and timing up to the people involved. Thanks for letting me air my gripe. Is there anything I can say to stop these questions and still be polite?

NOT YET

DEAR NOT: You can't stop insensitive and nosy people from asking questions that are none of their business unless you put it just that way. An appropriate reply would be, "When we decide, we'll let you know."

DEAR ABBY: Through a very reliable source, we found out that our son has been peeping into various neighbors' windows. He is an average teen-age boy, brought up in a respectable home. We have no idea why he does this.

Because of the humiliation that would be brought upon the family, we do not wish to consult a doctor. Can you help us?

VERY SMALL TOWN

DEAR VERY: Yes. I can "help" you by assuring you that you would suffer no "humiliation" whatsoever by consulting a doctor.

If you son had a "kink" in his back, you'd seek medical advice in order to correct it, wouldn't you? So why, when he has an obvious "kink" in his thinking, do you choose to ignore it?

Window peeping is usually a symptom of a deeper emotional problem and should be neither hushed up nor ignored. You owe it to your son (and to society) to get him to a doctor.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Electronic Arms Being Developed

SEATTLE (AP)-Ken South was a lineman for the city when the aerial boom he was riding touched a 26,000-volt powerline.

The 33-year-old former Seattle City Light employee lost both arms and shoulders to amputation. Now his former employers are working with doctors to design electronic arms for South.

A pair of the 27-volt limbs now being developed could change South's life - and life for many amputees.

Most artificial limbs have no motors. They are dependant on muscles in the upper arm or shoulder for movement. But South no longer has those muscles, and doctors told him he could never be fitted with artificial limbs.

But six months ago, a crew of City Light mechanical engineers began developing "the impossible arm" for their former employee.

"We have - in house - some of the finest engineers around," said City Light Superintendent Gordon Vickery. "We do a million dollars worth of research and development a year. Why not use the resources for Ken?"

The engineers' prototype arm - 3½ pounds of motors, batteries, wire and metal - would attach electrodes to the back muscles to run four motorized joints: a shoulder, elbow, wrist and hand. It is powered by transistor-sized batteries.

"I'd have to come home and plug the things in every night," South jokes.

"If successful, it would be a world-wide breakthrough for amputees," said Bernard Simons, a University of Washington prosthetist.

Economy Of Texas Aided By Penney's

DALLAS - Marvin L. Tanner, regional vice presient of JCPenney Company, Inc., announced that the company contributed more than $312.2 million to Texas' economy during 1977.

Purchases from state manufacturers accounted for $216.9 million in merchandise which was distributed throughout the company's 2,090 JCPenney, the Treasury and Thrift Drug stores in the U.S., he said.

Combined payrolls in Texas amounted to more than $89 million, going to approximately 28,544 full and part-time associates. The company employs 186,000 full-time nationally and oversears.

Tanner said the retailer paid about $5.7 million in corporate, property, use and unemployment insurance taxes in Texas.

"Additionally, our retail stores collected many millions of dollars in sales taxes for state and local governments," he said.

A termite queen is able to lay between 5,000 and 30,000 eggs daily. In her 20-year life span, she can produce more than 200 million eggs.
