Holiday fireworks banned

Mitchell County commissioners Tuesday agreed with Sheriff Patrick Toombs and representatives of two of the county's three volunteer fire departments: shooting skyrockets or Roman candles would be foolhardy this Fourth of July.

"This is a no-brainer," said Pct. 2 Commissioner Carl Guelker, referring to the county-wide dry conditions from months of drought.

The holiday is on Saturday, and the cities of Snyder and Big Spring have scheduled fireworks shows Saturday night.

Commissioners voted unanimously to enact an ordinance making it a Class C misdemeanor to use any type of aerial fireworks in the unincorporated areas of the county, meaning outside the city limits of Colorado City, Westbrook or Loraine.

Sheriff Toombs said that if someone disobeys the ordinance and accidentally starts a fire, he or she might be charged with reckless conduct or arson, a felony, and the perpetratror could also held financially liable for damages.

Accompanied to the 9 a.m. meeting by fire chiefs Tommy Guelker of Colorado City and Steve Rollins of Westbrook, the sheriff said his deputies will have the option of issuing a warning before a citation.

"Nine out of 10 of those people shooting them are not professional enough to handle them," Rollins said.

Pct. 1 Commissioner Ed Roach said he had been asked if celebrants could shoot skyrockets over the lakes but that he was dubious "because they don't always go in the lake."

Sheriff Toombs said the Loraine Volunteer Fire Department, led by Chief Donnie Phillips, also supports the action.

In a related announcement, City Manager Steve Shutt said Monday that city policemen are issuing citations for the use of any type of fireworks.

"There are not going to be any warnings," Shutt said. "It's too dry and too dangerous, too much of a chance of setting fires."

The city has an ordinance against fireworks use, but officers typically have issued warnings before citations in past years.

Fines can run as high as $200 in the city and $500, with Tuesday's action, in the county.

Plans continue for TDCJ multi-purpose building

Plans continue to be laid for a building to house religious meetings at the Wallace and Ware Unit prisons following an introductory meeting on the project last Wednesday night.

Warden Rodney Cooper told 48 people at the Charles C. Thompson Room downtown that Texas Department of Criminal Justice officials in Huntsville will decide if the building should be between the two units or inside the Wallace Unit.

Warden Cooper said during the two-hour meeting that TDCJ Chaplain Winston Hold of Huntsville is pleased with the plan and that Chaplain Hold "has seen them all," referring to similar buildings that have been built at units in Snyder, Gatesville and Beaumont.

Chaplain Hold visited Colorado City in early May to meet with organizers, including members of the Mitchell County Ministerial Alliance.

Old, unusual airplanes on their way to Fly-In

The 36th Annual Colorado City Fly-In, the longest-running such event in Texas, might well be a memorable one when the airplanes start landing early Saturday at Jetstrip Airport north of town.

Chairman J. O. Dockrey said Tuesday that townspeople have shown a lot of interest over the past week and he expects a strong turnout.

Breakfast will be served beginning at 7 a.m. Saturday by the City National Bank crew that has catered the event for many years.

Visitors will pay $3 each and pilots will eat for free at the airport 11 miles from town, west of Hwy. 208 and south of FM 1808.

"It looks like we're going to have a good fly-in if the weather holds, and that's what it all depends on," Dockrey said.

"We had a phone call this morning from Austin, and there is a lot of local interest with a lot of questions and comments."

Awards will be given at 9:30 a.m. Saturday for the oldest and most unusual airplanes, the oldest and youngest pilots and the pilot who has flown the greatest distance.

Dockrey said Mitchell County citizens have traditionally supported the fly-in better than residents at other Texas cities where he has flown to similar events -- largely because they are fascinated by the antique and sometimes exotic airplanes that come roar-

Hazards rise as lakes fall

Waters are down at Lake Colorado City and Champion Creek Reservoir, and Game Warden Randy Bullard said Monday that boaters, skiers and fishermen should be careful to avoid rocks, sandbars and tree stumps.

"I've seen a lot of skiers fall off in Lake Colorado City, stand up in waist-deep water and say, 'Wow!'" Warden Bullard said.

"You need to use extreme caution at night. If you have a depth finder, turn it on and use it."

Or better still, unless you know the lakes very well, stay off them after dark, he said.

The two lakes are full enough to use recreationally and to continue supplying the City of Colorado City and TU Electric Co.'s Morgan Creek

Officials say water plentiful

It's a lucky town that has two lakes to supply water during a drought.

Colorado City fits that category with Champion Creek Reservoir and Lake Colorado City, even though the lakes are at their lowest points in years.

TU Electric Co., which draws from Lake Colorado City to power its Morgan Creek Plant south of here, estimates that Champion is at 40 percent of its capacity and Lake Colorado City is at a little over 47 percent.

"We're doing fine," said City manager Steve Shutt Monday. "We have got the ability to keep up with the water demand.

"We don't have a short-term water problem, but if we don't get out of the drought, we will have."

Both the city and TU Electric estimate that the lakes will provide enough water until some time next year if no significant rain falls before then.

Shutt said he is working to develop a new field of water

Airline pilot has C-City memories

Don Vest wanted three things out of life when he was growing up in Colorado City, playing football and baseball and just being a teenager, "to fly, to have my own car business and to be like Mickey Mantle.

"Two out of three ain't bad."

The all-state running back at Colorado High School in 1961 got his chance at sports stardom when he and teammate Buddy Compton, now CHS principal, were given scholarships to play football at the University of Arkansas.

The football dream didn't pan out, and he was at the University of North Texas at Denton the next year, studying industrial arts.

Vest, 55, said he would have probably been a high school industrial arts teacher, but the Vietnam War was at its height and he was about to be drafted into the Army when he graduated in 1966.

His father, H. P. Vest, who owned Vest Body Shop on West Second Street in downtown Colorado City, was a pilot with about 200 hours of airtime. Don had often flown but had never piloted an airplane.

"I had always wanted to fly and the Navy gave me that opportunity, so I signed up," he said.

First completing 16 weeks of training to become an officer, he attended Naval aviators' school in Pensacola, Fla., and earned his wings in 1967.

He had already decided that he wanted to be an airline pilot, so he signed up for transport duty rather than combat missions to accumulate the maximum amount of airtime.

He was stationed in the Philippines and flew from there to the aircraft carrier Yankee Station off the coast of Vietnam, ferrying troops, officers and supplies.

The only time he was under fire was during a couple of rocket attacks when he was onshore.

Vest completed his military service in Alameda, Calif., flying high-ranking officers

Joiner to give up crown...

New rodeo queen to be crowned

Casi Jo Joiner wants three things in a barrel racing horse -- speed, beauty and heart, with emphasis on the "heart."

Miss Joiner, 19, daughter of Delbert and Karen Joiner of Cuthbert, will give her crown as queen of the High Plains Junior Rodeo to a new queen during the July 9-11 event at the Mitchell County Rodeo Arena southwest of Colorado City off Hwy. 80.

She has also been occupied lately with finding a new horse since selling her old one, Diamond, to a woman in Troy, Mich.

Diamond was good enough to win Miss Joiner fourth place at the National Barrel Horse Association Finals in Abilene last October with a fast time of 15.7 seconds.

Barrel racing is very competitive, though, and she is looking for a horse that's even faster.

"Speed is the first thing, and I like to have a pretty one," she said. "Then if they have heart, you have one that wants to do it, not one that just has to."

Miss Joiner is a 1997 graduate of Colorado High School who will go into her sophomore year at Western Texas College in Snyder this fall. She will be a pre-dental major at Texas Tech University in Lubbock after that.

She played guard on the CHS basketball team.

While most young people who are interested in rodeo come from ranching or rodeo families, she is the only member of her family who pursues it.

Her father and mother are heavily involved in the family business, Red Iron Tool well service company, although Casi Jo says they have been very supportive of her riding.

Her 20-year-old brother Drew is a WTC student and head lifeguard at the WTC pool while her sister Toni, 14, is a golfer.

"We have always lived on a farm and had horses," she explained. "We don't have any close neighbors, so that was one of the only things to do."

A barrel racer since the fifth grade, Casi Jo gets advice and a place to practice from two Mitchell County women with impressive barrel racing achievements of their own -- Mandy Terry of Loraine and Jeanne Bolin, who lives south of Colorado City.

Ms. Terry won the event at the San Antonio Stock Show Rodeo in 1994 and '95, and Ms. Bolin was a successful racer in high school and at Tarleton State University in Stephenville.

Miss Joiner often practices at Ms. Bolin's arena.

Barrel racing involves running through the middle of the bucking chutes area, around barrels on each side of the arena and then around one at the far end and back through the starting area.

Times under 16 seconds are considered very fast, although standards vary among indoor and outdoor arenas.

A Gail woman, Lisa Ogden, has recently been ranked fourth and fifth in the national Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA) standings, indicating that she will probably qualify for the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas, Nev., this December.

Casi Jo said she was asked to participate in last year's queen contest by chairwoman Shelby Shipp, and she was surprised after being first in the top age bracket here to finish second and win a college scholarship at the Miss West Texas Rodeo Teen Pageant in Abilene.

You can't be just a pretty girl with some western clothes and win, however. The contest is based on horsemanship, a western style show, a speech and an interview with the judges.

Girls who advance to the Miss West Texas Rodeo Teen contest must also submit a portfolio of photographs.

High Plains Junior Rodeo queen contestants compete in three divisions, 8 years old and under, 9 to 12 and 13 to 18. The winner in the oldest division is eligible to compete in Abilene.

This year's contestants are Kayley Hill and Sydney Shipp, 8 and under; Brittany Hill, 9-12; and Sunni Shipp, Laurie Miller and Ashley Hill, 13-18.

Casi said she was unsure of herself when first asked to compete, but when she finished the competition in Abilene, " I felt like I did good there."

The Rainstick clothing store at 1721 Vine St. sponsored her at the Abilene contest.

She is working at the Texas Department of Transportation office north of here off Hwy. 208 this summer in State Rep. Rob Junell's Summer Jobs for Youth Program.

"I hope more girls will try out next year," she said. "If any have any questions, they can give me a call and I will let them know about it."

Plant with water.

But Warden Bullard detailed a number of hazards in each of them.

The main problems at Champion Creek Reservoir, south of town off Hwy. 163, are tree stumps and brush and a rocky point that runs 300 feet south from the north end of the lake and is only about six inches under water.

"It's spooky looking at it in the daytime, much less at night," Bullard said. "If you're out there at night and you don't know what you're doing, it's going to get you."

He said a boater going west across Champion and heading south toward the dam should be careful to "swing wide" around the rocks and not try to cheat on the turn.

The tree stumps are worst on the north and east sides of the lake, he said.

Lake Colorado City sandbars have been trapping boats regularly and the game warden has had to pull several free.

He said a sandbar runs from the south side of the lake, near the dam, about 500 feet into the lake and is only two feet or less underwater.

There is another sandbar at the TU plant on the southwest side of the lake and a third on the north end near the mouth of Morgan Creek, he said.

"Because they're almost in the middle of the lake, people assume the water is naturally deep," Bullard said. "I have had to pull out several boats."

Power plant generating at near peak capacity

The TU Electric Co. system dispatcher in Dallas directs the 23 power plants under his control like an orchestra conductor, including the Morgan Creek Plant south of Colorado City.

Morgan Creek has 11 turbines, five steam-powered and six combustion, and the dispatcher specifically calls for various ones to be turned on to certain levels and then cut back when demand falls.

Its big Unit 6 steam turbine was restored to service on Memorial Day, May 25, just in time to help meet the summer demand. Unit 6 produces about 40 percent of the plant's electricity.

It "crashed" and shut down on Feb. 23 after an electrical short in a cable tray.

Plant Manager Dale Higginbotham said last Friday that the recent scorching-hot weather has kept the plant humming at near-peak capacity.

The plant provides about five percent of the company's power in this region, which includes Dallas-Fort Worth.

"It depends on what the load profile looks like on a particular day," Higginbotham said. "Our business is so dependent on the weather that a little cloud can pop up over the Metroplex and that can be enough to dramatically change the way our system operates that day.

"When you get right down to it, it's a pretty complex system."

Although Lake Colorado City and Champion Creek Reservoir are low, he said, they are not low enough to present any serious problems this year.

He said Lake Colorado City, from which the plant draws water to operate, is at 47.2 percent capacity and Lake Champion at 40 percent. The plant moves water from Champion through a pipeline to keep Lake Colorado City up.

"The lake levels are of concern to us -- no question about that," Higginbotham said. "We need rain. Our concern at this point is that we will have enough water primarily for next year.

"We feel that we have a sufficient quantity to get us by this year. If we don't get any significant rainfall, next year we are going to be in a bind."

The City of Colorado City also uses the lakes as its primary water supply.

Higginbotham said the plant's main concern lately has been to prevent overheating because lowered lake levels increase silt, moss and clams in the water it takes in.

"We have to stay pretty focused on keeping things flushed or we get into overheating situations," he said.

He said the TU region's record peak demand came last Aug. 20, when the 23 plants produced 20.4 million kilowats in one hour.

The Morgan Creek plant's maximum capacity is about 1.2 million kilowats per hour.

It shares the load with eight plants in Dallas-Fort Worth and one each at Monahans, Graham, Sherman, Denison, Waco, Rockdale, Mount Pleasant, Henderson, Trinidad and Fairfield.

There are two near Granbury.

Employee hours cut at Home Health Agency

Mitchell County Hospital board members Monday night approved administrator Rick Rickard's request to cut back on the hours worked by employees of the hospital's Home Health Agency because of a seasonal decrease in business.

Rickard said he had discussed the action with the agency's 28 employees and they were agreeable to working 32 hours per week each during the summertime.

Rickard said the employees will probably be restored to a full work load when business picks up this fall.

The 406 Walnut St. agency provides home health care for elderly and disabled people and for those who are recovering from illnesses.

"No positions will be lost," Rickard said.

Other business in the 6 p.m. meeting at the hospital included the approval of Mary Ellen Kennedy of 1644 Locust St. to join the hospital auxiliary, or "Pink Ladies."

Physician's assistant Joel Kvanli of Dallas was okayed to join PA Jake Dukes on Dr. Richard Hults' staff at the Ware Unit prison.

Rickard said Kvanli will stay in Colorado City to work here during the week.

The board made a $650 donation to help fund the annual TDCJ "Day in the Park" on Aug. 1 at Ruddick Park and approved a tax exemption request from People for Progress Inc. in Sweetwater for the new PPI-sponsored day care center on East Ninth Street.

A proposal from Transworld Systems of Albuquerque, N. M., to help collect the hospital's bills was tabled to allow Rickard more time to consider it.

An executive session was held from 6:50 to 7:20 p.m. to discuss personnel, after which no action was taken and the meeting was adjourned.

Board members Kent Boyd, Kenneth Rogers and Kenneth Beasley were absent.

ing in from out of the clouds.

The fly-in is held on the Fourth of July because the holiday's weather is usually clear.

Pilots leave by mid-day to avoid summertime hot air turbulence.

Referring to the city's runway and taxiway repaving and lighting project that was completed in January, Dockrey said, "I think people are going to be impressed when they go out and see what we've got at our airport now.

"The resurfacing job is real nice.

"People really like to come out and look at all the airplanes. That's the biggest attraction.

Loraine man charged with misdemeanor theft of auto parts

A 33-year-old Loraine man has been charged with misdemeanor theft in a complicated car parts theft case that was settled in Mitchell County justice court Monday.

Raymond Vasquez Jr. is accused of taking two front fenders, a hood and other front-end parts from a 1986 Ford Thunderbird that Juan Limones of Colorado City had left at a relative's house in Loraine.

Limones reported on April 24 that the parts were missing from the car, which he had parked after it broke down.

Sheriff Patrick Toombs said Monday that Limones later told him Vasquez was driving a 1983 Mercury Cougar that looked like it had the parts on it.

Motor vehicle theft officers from the Texas Department of Public Safety became involved, seized the car on May 21 and impounded it here.

The woman who was selling the car to Vasquez then called the sheriff to say he had not been making payments and she wanted it back.

Sheriff Toombs told her to attend the Monday morning hearing in the court of Justice of the Peace Kay Richmond, and an agreement was reached for the owner of the Cougar to compensate Limones for the parts.

The sheriff said Vasquez was charged with misdemeanor theft because the value of the parts was less than a felony amount.

He said the original paint had been removed and replaced with a primer, but the Thunderbird emblem was still visible on the hood.

missioners court meeting included a discussion of recent billing problems with county supplemental medical insurance to cover intensive care, cancer treatment and other situations.

County Treasurer Ann Hallmark said she had detected some billing errors and that the AFLAC Co. in Abilene has proposed establishing payroll deductions because some employees are failing to keep up with their payments.

"They either need to start tending to their business or we're going to drop it," Commissioner Guelker said.

"Unless I change my mind, personally, I'm going to drop it because I don't want to go through the hassle," Pct. 4 Commissioner Bill Preston said.

The County Child Welfare Board proposed replacing recently resigned member Janet Moore with Mary Rose Bowen of Loraine. The request was approved.

County Clerk Debby Carlock won approval to begin leasing a new Xerox 5845 copier from the Xerox office in Snyder for $308 per month.

The court members were in an executive session to discuss property from 9:30 to 9:40 a.m., after which they adjourned without taking any action.

Day care center financing finished

City council members Tuesday night approved paperwork to borrow $130,000 to complete work on the large new day center that is being constructed in the 1100 block of East Ninth Street.

Joe Smith of the First Southwest Co. in Abilene reviewed the terms of the City National Bank tax note, saying the first installment of $25,000 will be due next March 15.

He said the money will be available on July 15.

It is referred to as a tax note because the city is pledging future property tax revenues to pay it off.

The city is using $40,000 in reserves to go with $20,000 pledged by Mitchell County to complete the center, which is scheduled to be opened this fall.

BUILDING

The plan is for an 8,500-square-foot building with an area adequate for 300 to 350 inmates to be seated.

Jan Lemons of the sponsoring Multi-Purpose Building Project Committee said the building will cost about $350,000 if it is constructed between the units and $305,000 inside the Wallace Unit, with the difference being in the fencing that would be required.

Wallace-Ware Unit Chaplain Eddie Riley would have his office in the building, which would also be used for counseling.

A former TDCJ inmate gave an inspiring testimony to the planning group about his religious experiences while incarcerated, saying that he would not have been able to turn his life around without them.

Mrs. Lemons revealed that a currently anonymous donor has pledged to contribute half of the construction cost in return for the building being named after his family.

The rest of the money will have to be raised, and the project will be temporarily delayed while County Attorney Mark Piland seeks nonprofit, tax exempt status for it, Mrs. Lemons said.

Piland is expected to need two weeks to write the incorporation papers, and Mrs. Lemons said it will be about two months before donations will start being accepted, after the application is approved..

Churches, schools and governmental entities will be asked to contribute, she said.

wells to replace the field north of town, where five wells have shown a diminished capacity to produce.

The city manager he wants three or four new wells to produce 700 to 800 gallons of water per minute and that he is considering various possible locations.

"We believe that rain is not going to be sufficient over the next two or three years," he said.

"We're in no emergency, and we're not encouraging any kind of conservation."

Shutt said the city has been using about 1.4 million gallons of water a day, up from wintertime consumption of less than a million a day.

Although falling water levels at lakes may present a problem of contaminants like salt, he said, the city water treatment plant has not yet encountered such a problem.

Social promotion should be stopped

By Charles Stenholm,
Congressman, 17th District

The public school education that we provide to all children has always been fundamental to the American sense of equal opportunity.

In some countries, only the wealthy or the privileged have had access to a quality education.

Here in America, we have invested in a public school system that opens its doors to all children regardless of income, religion, disability or race.

Education has been the key to opening thousands of doors for people who started out with disadvantages but were willing to put forth the effort to succeed.

But the promise of opportunity is real only if children leave school having been provided the tools that genuinely prepare them for their future lives.

The 1997-98 school year has just ended, but if today's kids are like all the generations that preceded them, I suspect that when the final report cards were handed out, some kids were holding their breath to see whether or not they had been promoted to the next grade.

Most were, but sadly, some of those probably shouldn't have been.

"Social Promotion" is the phrase currently being used to describe the practice of advancing students from one grade to the next regardless of whether they are academically ready.

Social promotion may save some embarrassment in the short-run, but it doesn't do children any favors in the long-run.

Social promotion doesn't prepare a child to seize the potential opportunities of his or her future life.

This week, the House of Representatives passed a resolution calling on parents, teachers and governments to work together to end social promotion.

Americans want us to educate their kids, not hand them a diploma that certifies no skills or accomplishments.

Unfortunately, in this same week the House also passed another bill that I believe would take away some of the very tools that schools need to do the jobs we ask of them.

This second bill would shift money from public schools to private schools by creating education savings accounts, sometimes called Education IRA's, for elementary and secondary education.

Parents have every right to choose to send their children to private or religious schools. I defend their right to do so.

I simply believe that we should not provide taxpayer-funded vouchers to pay for that choice.

I'm glad to say that while this bill passed the House, it will not be signed into law this year.

Along with churches and hospitals, public schools are the heart of most of our rural communities, bringing people together.

We need to support our schools and educators so that they can do an even better job of preparing all of our children for the future -- not leak their vital funds into another system which cares only for the privileged few.

The Love of Country

By Tumbleweed Smith

On Memorial Day of this year I attended the dedication of a F-4 fighter lane at a Vietnam Memorial in Big Spring. A group of dedicated and determined Vietnam Veterans have worked tirelessly to create a significant tribute to those who served in that far away land.

They first located a piece of land at the foot of Scenic Mountain, got permission to use it for the monument, then they erected a black marble monument and surrounded it with flags, walkways and landscaping. That would have been enough for most people, but these guys are different. They want more. They some how got a Huey helicopter, then got the F-4 and mounted both of them on stands that make the aircraft appear to be in motion.

The ceremony was one of the most touching and meaningful patriotic events I've ever attended. Later that day, about 8:30 p.m., my wife and I went back to the memorial. Some Vietnam Vets were there, admiring the new addition and talking about what they were going to do next: get a tank and build a small chapel. We stayed there about an hour visiting with those vets and others who came by to see the F-4. At one point a man in a white pickup drove up, got out of his vehicle, saluted, got back in the pickup and drove away.

I like patriotic moments. At the dedication ceremony, a children's choir sang songs from each branch of the service. Men and women who served in the military stood up and saluted when their branch song was presented. I stood and saluted as the kids sang "When those caissons go rolling along."

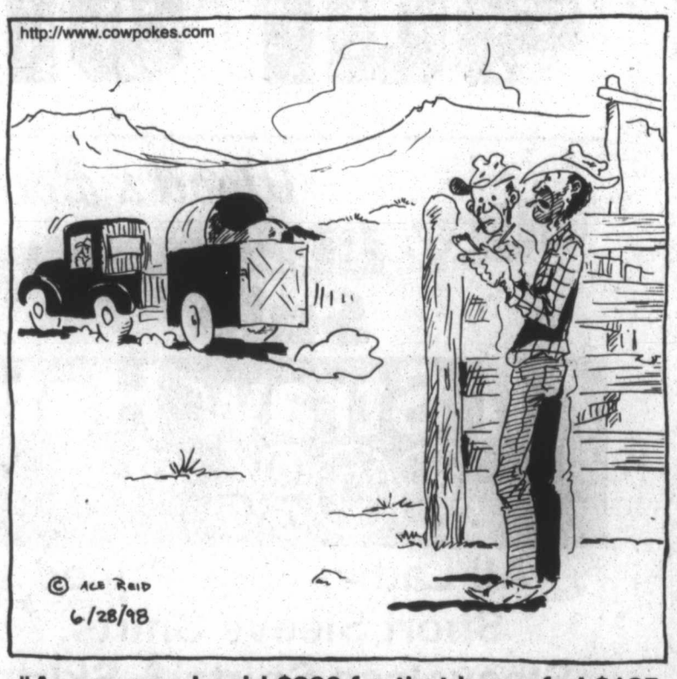

My Army years were worthwhile. It was peacetime, 1957-60. After basic training at Ft. Carson, Colorado I went to Ft. Devens, Massachusetts for six months to attend an Army school. New England was a place I had never been before and I got to see people actually enjoy cold weather. I went skiing for the first time and had some really good food. Then I went to Europe for two years.

When you are away from your country, you have a chance to get a better look at it. You compare. For me, those two years away gave me a whole new appreciation for America and what it represents. I fell in love with my country I guess for the very first time. The years abroad made me realize just what we have here. I became extremely proud to be an American.

I remember one night around midnight I was by myself driving along the coast of Spain listening to Armed Forced Radio. The station signed off with the Star Spangled Banner. I was so moved I stopped the car, got out, looked up at the stars and stood at attention, my hand over my heart. I'll never forget that moment.

I returned to the US by troop ship. As we approached New York City, guys were listening to their radios. The first thing we hear was a commercial for a meat market. Everybody cheered. The commercial represented America. We had not heard a commercial in two years. The commercial came in the middle of a newscast. I decided right then and there I wanted to spend my life working in the fields that best symbolized our great country; news and advertising. Nearly 40 years later, I can truthfully say I have been very happy.

Search drags on for missing woman

The two-month-long search for 27-year-old Daytina Hulslander of Greenwood has reached the discouraging stage, but her mother, Elfie Ratliff of Colorado City, is not giving up.

Ms. Ratliff, a 1961 graduate of Colorado High School who is living on disability benefits, said she will start her daughter's three sons to school here this fall.

Midland County Sheriff's Sgt. Terry Lowe said Tuesday that there had been no new developments in the case since officers from Midland and Martin counties and the Texas Rangers searched northwestern Martin County last week.

"There is no news, nary a peep," Sgt. Lowe said. "The longer it goes, the more concerned we are.

"There have been no sightings or contacts with friends or family, and she is not known for unexplained absences for this period of time.

"She has always stayed in contact with friends or family -- nothing like this."

Sgt. Lowe said there were no suspects "at this time" and no evidence yet to lead officers to conclude that Ms. Hulslander was the victim of a homicide.

Her silence has Ms. Ratliff very concerned because she had always been very gregarious and talkative.

She has been caring for Ms. Hulslander's three boys, 8, 7 and 5 years old, since her son-in-law, Alan Hulslander, called her at 4:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 28, to say that Daytina "didn't come home last night" and Ms. Ratliff needed to pick up the boys at school that day.

Ms. Hulslander, who attended Snyder High School before dropping out as a junior to get married, had the boys during a previous marriage.

The couple's two girls, 3 years and 18 months old, are with their father south of Greenwood.

"He's not interested in them," Ms. Ratliff said of her 40-year-old son-in-law's relationship with his step-sons.

"We'll have them from now on if their mother doesn't come back."

She said a Colorado City man, Benton Ward, has been taking the boys fishing and to the park and many people here have expressed their concern.

"They ask about her morning, noon and night, bless their hearts," she said.

"I don't think I'm going to find her alive. I really don't."

Ms. Ratliff said Daytina's friends and their friends have put up posters about her disappearance from here to Tennessee and back and in Alaska, California, Washington, Oregon, Utah, Arizona, New York City, New Mexico, Oklahoma, all over Texas and even in Germany.

They include Marie Ridenowr of Midland, Diane Nelson of Big Spring and Shay McKenzie of Odessa.

She said a Colorado City woman, Tina Compton, often picks the boys up for lunch and to take them to the park.

Ms. Ratliff has been busy lately with moving from an apartment at 1711 College Ave. to a house at 720 Locust St.

"There are a lot of good friends and kind people asking about her and working on it," she said.

She is convinced that something is very wrong because Daytina always stayed in close touch with her, sometimes calling as many as five or six times a day.

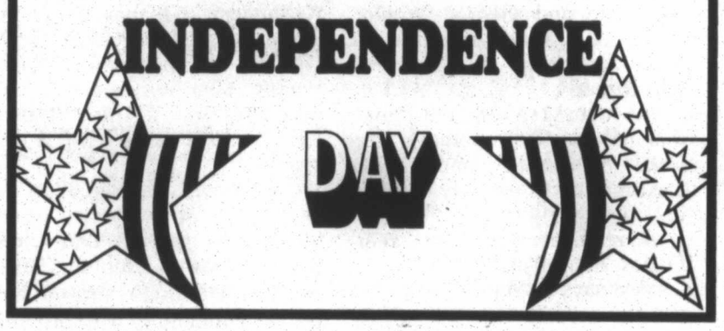

The woman was visiting her mother here on the weekend before she disappeared, leaving early on Monday, April 27, to put the boys in school.

around the country in a corporate-style Navy jet.

He mustered out of the Navy as a lieutenant commander.

Then he flew for Dallas millionaire Edwin L. Cox for six months and joined a fledgling airline company, Southwest Airlines, in August 1973, when the company had three airplanes.

Now Southwest Airlines is the third-largest airline company in the world with 270 Boeing 737's and 4,000 pilots, among whom Vest ranks No. 4 in seniority.

Vest has bought stock in the company since early in his career and has a substantial investment, makes a handsome salary and works three days a week on routes of his own choosing.

He will fly another five years until reaching the Federal Aviation Administration's mandatory retirement age of 60 and retire to Colorado City, where he and George Walker own Lone Wolf Autoplex, a Ford dealership on East Second Street.

He owned a 36-foot boat that he enjoyed operating on Lake Lewisville and Lake Texoma until recently selling it.

A resident of Plano, near Dallas, he is also a golfer.

Vest says he has been lucky to be in a profession he enjoys because no amount of money is worth as much as personal satisfaction.

"I still like to fly," he said. "It's something that I've never gotten tired of. It's the greatest job in the world.

"Money doesn't mean a whole lot. Satisfaction is more important."

His father, 81, and mother Juanita, 79, still live here. He has three children, Kacie Cupples of Comanche and Callie and Jon-Austin Vest, both of Rockwall, and two grandchildren.

Don was 13 years old when his brother Jimmy, 15, was shooting turtles with some other boys at a pond on the hill west of here when he was accidentally shot and killed. Jimmy was his only sibling.

In late 1996, Vest heard from his father that Dave Hutchins wanted to sell his dealership, Hutchins Ford. He contacted Walker, who was working at a dealership in Sweetwater, to see if he would be interested in a partnership.

It took eight months to secure the deal because "it's like getting a McDonald's franchise," he said. "It's very difficult to get a Ford franchise."

He said sales are up by 50 percent since the dealership opened last August, largely because he has persuaded a number of Southwest Airlines employees to buy vehicles here.

Vest said 80 to 85 percent of Lone Wolf Autoplex sales are of pickup trucks and utility vehicles.

Employees are salesman Jack Green, office workers Robyne Wheeler and Joanie Kelly, service manager Lonnie Wyrosdick, parts man Billy Upshaw and mechanics Johnny Forbes, Charlie Garrett, Mike McKerns and Tommy Baker, who handles state vehicle inspections.

Vest is in Colorado City on an average of every two weeks to see his parents and close friends Buddy Compton, Texas Motors owner Joe Weaver and retired elementary school principal Bobby "Red" Lemons.

He recommended Clay Browne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Browne of Colorado City, to the airline, and Browne is now a Southwest pilot.

Vest flies the West Coast because the weather is usually good and there are few delays at the airports like the ones pilots often encounter in the Midwest and Northeast.

He knows because he has flown practically every air route in the United States.

And he said West Texas is a favorite of Southwest Airlines pilots "because of the quality of people.

"People really appreciate what you do for them," he said. "They don't expect anything out of you."

Vest's work week takes him from Dallas to Houston, Phoenix, Ariz., Los Angeles and Oakland, Calif., and back to LA on Mondays, flying a full load of 137 passengers on each leg.

He flies from LA to Portland, Ore., Sacramento, Calif., Ontario, Canada, Oakland and back to Ontario on Tuesdays.

On Wednesdays he goes from Ontario to Oakland, Phoenix, Albuquerque, N. M., and Dallas, finishing between 3 and 4 p.m.

Vest and Walker are using the same principles in their dealership that San Antonio attorney Herb Kelleher used to build Southwest Airlines -- "treating people the same way you would want to be treated".

Vest said no airplane in the Southwest fleet is more than three years old and the company has the best maintenance policies in the industry.

He said the uniformity of flying only 737's is another secret of its success because parts are interchangable and pilots do not have to make adjustments from one plane to the next.

Southwest Airlines is the largest purchaser of Boeing 737's in the world.

Vest sometimes thinks back to aviation school, when he was competing with very intellectual pilots from the Naval Academy and other more prominent universities than he had attended.

"I found that I could do as well as they could in an airplane," he said. "Flying is the only thing I've ever done that I felt completely comfortable with."

TWO PICKUP TRUCKS collided at 11:17 a.m. Friday at the South Hwy. 208 by-pass and the south Interstate 20 service road in northeastern Colorado City. Jennifer H. Mireles, 19, of Hermleigh was driving the pickup shown south on 208 and Betty Baker, 50, of Colorado City the other vehicle east on the service road. Ms. Baker and a 3-year-old girl from the Mireles vehicle were treated and released at Mitchell County Hospital.

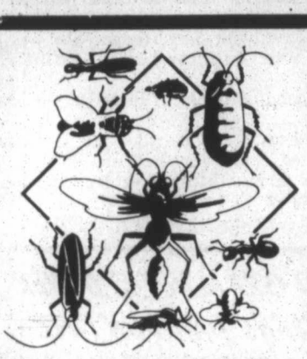

Marijuana seized on Interstate 20

State narcotics agents arrested a 19-year-old El Paso area man last Wednesday for possession of 125 pounds of marijuana after stopping him on Interstate 20 near Colorado City.

Adrian D. Aranda of Fabens was taken into custody at 2:55 p.m. after a West Central Texas Interlocal Crime Task Force team led by Agent Marc Fletcher of Abilene stopped him at 12:30.

Sheriff Patrick Toombs said Aranda's car was found to have the drugs hidden in both front fender wells in packages ranging from one to four pounds.

Aranda was released Saturday on a $5,000 bond.

Suntan tips given

By Mary McMullen CEA-FCS
Part 2 of 3 part Series

As the Fourth of July holiday approaches most Americans will be involved in an outdoor activity. Many will work on their tans. Here are a few facts about tanning:

1) A tan does not prevent skin damage, it is sun damage (American Academy of Dermatology, 1998).

Though many people believe a tan is a sign of good health and good looks, a tan is actually a sign of skin damage. Tanning results when UV rays penetrate the skin and injure the pigmented cells. Your skin remembers all damage; thus, with every burn or tan the skin becomes more damaged.

2) Use sunscreen

About a quarter of US White adults report frequent sunbathing, and only about a quarter of sunbathers use sunscreen (Koh, et. Al., 1997).

Sunscreen or sun block lotions, creams, ointments, gels, or wax sticks absorb, reflect, or scatter some or all of the sun's rays when applied to the skin.

Be sure to read labels. Some sunscreen products only protect against UVB rays, once thought to be the only dangerous rays. "Broad-spectrum" products, now available, protect against both UVA and UVB rays. Look for waterproof brands if you know you will be swimming or sweating. Buy a PABA free brand if you are sensitive to this ingredient, and, for oily skin, choose a water-based lotion. Keep in mind, more expensive products are not necessarily better.

Choose a broad-spectrum product with a sun protection factor (SPF) or at least 15 and apply liberally (about 1 oz. per application for an average size person) 15 to 30 minutes before going outdoors, reapplying every 2-3 hours. Apply evenly on all exposed areas of the skin, including lips, ears, nose, neck, hands, feet, eyelids, and to exposed areas of the scalp. Take special care not to get the product in the eye. If this occurs, rinse the eye thoroughly with water.

Sunscreen should not be used on babies younger than 6 months. Protect babies with hats, clothing, and other shading.

For children six months to 2 years, use a sunscreen with at least an SPC of 15.

3) Avoid artificial tanning

Many people believe tanning beds are safe because they emit only UVA rays, once thought to be safe. Studies now report that UVA can cause serious skin damage, and may be linked to the most serious form of skin cancer, melanoma.

Other tanning products claiming a safe alternative to the sun also carry risks. Tanning pills, for instance, contain carotenoid color additives, which are distributed through the body, especially in skin, making it orange. Although the FDA has approved such color additives for foods, it has not approved them for tanning products. At the high levels that are consumed in tanning pills, these additives may be harmful. Additionally, the main ingredient in tanning pills, canthaxanthin, can deposit in the eyes as crystals, which may cause injury and impaired vision.

Tanning accelerators, which claim to stimulate the body's own tanning process have been reported as ineffective and also may be dangerous. The FDA considers them unapproved drugs that have not been proven safe or effective.

Two other tanning products, bronzers and extenders, are considered cosmetic for external use, and do not provide any protection against the sun. These products can be washed off (bronzers) or wear off within a few days (extenders). The only color additive approved for extenders is dihydroxyacetone. Additionally, the chemicals in bronzers may react differently on various parts of the body, producing a tan of many shades.

Finally, don't assume you are safe in cloudy condensations or in the water. UV radiation can penetrate both clouds and water. Additionally, be particularly careful in sand, snown, and on concrete because they all reflect UV rays and increase exposure.

COOK'S CORNER

Everyone is looking forward to July 4th cook-outs and we have some suggestions which we hope will make your cook-out a success.

While enjoying your picnic, remember to keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Also, take precautions to stay safe in the heat. Drink lots of water and protect your skin from the sun.

We hope everyone has a safe and happy Independence Day.

Brisket

1 cup Kraft barbecue sauce
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon onion salt
1 teaspoon garlic salt
2 teaspoons liquid smoke

Mix and pour over brisket, keep in refrigerator overnight; cover with foil. Bake at 250° for one hour per pound of meat. Usually the briskets are about 10 pounds. A good clean up tip is to line the pan with foil before putting in the brisket.

Picnic Potatoes

2 pounds frozen has browns
1 can cream of chicken soup
2 cups sour cream
1 stick melted oleo
8 ounces shredded sharp cheddar
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup crushed corn flakes

Thaw hash browns. Mix potatoes, soup, sour cream, oleo, cheese and onion. Place in 9x13 pan. Sprinkle corn flakes on top. Bake at 375° for one hour.

Cornbread Salad

2 (6 oz) packages cornbread
8 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
1 bell pepper, chopped
salt and pepper to taste
1 onion, chopped
2 tomatoes, diced
1 cup mayonnaise

Cook cornbread as directed on package. Cool and crumble all ingredients and chill.

Football season around the corner!

By Carl Graham

With temperatures soaring in the 100's for the past two weeks, football is probably the last thing on most people's mind, but with Dave Campbell's Texas Football hitting the newsstands it's a signal to the avid football fan that football is just around the corner.

Since 1960 this annual publication has given football diehards an insight on district races throughout the states in every classification from six-man to class 5-A and including all the private schools.

Realignment has affected all three Mitchell County teams and for the first time since Westbrook instituted their football program they will not be in the same district as Loraine. The Wildcats remain in District 6 while Loraine moves to District 10. They have been replaced by the always tough Ackerly Sands Mustangs, and the Lenorah Grady Wildcats. Other conference members include Gail Borden County who is the defending State Champion and Hermleigh and Ira. This should be one of the strongest districts in six-man football.

Loraine's move to district 10 should be a blessing in disguise. This district looks to be much weaker than district 6. Loraine will field a young team but with the hiring of the highly respected Jerry Miller to head up the Bulldogs, the race could really be interesting. Other members of the conference will be Blackwell, Highland, Novice, Veribest, Trent, and Paint Rock. Though Blackwell has been picked as the favorite, my nod goes to Highland who returns five starters on both sides of the ball from a 6-4 team of a year ago. Novice is coached by former Loraine assistant Travis Walker. Veribest will be competing for the conference title for the first time. The only teams to have a winning season last year were Blackwell and Highland with both making the play-offs.

Gerald James takes over the helm this year from Bill Grissom who departed for Coleman in hopes of rebuilding yet another program in shambles.

Though James doesn't exactly inherit a bare cupboard, his work will definitely be cut out for him to repeat as district champions. The Wolves have been placed in District 3-3A with the likes of such powerhouses as Seminole, a regional finalist last year, and Denver City. The Wolves have been picked third behind those two. Others comprising the district will be Slaton, Lamesa, and Brownfield. Though Lamesa was winless in Class 4-A last year, the move to Class 3-A should really help the Golden Tornadoes. Their last winning season was in 1989 when they competed in Class 3-A.

So hold on to your horses football fans. Though the temperature may be in the 100's, now we can look forward to two-a-days in just a few short weeks. Think Fall!

Protect Your Bt Cotton Investment

With its built-in resistance to worms, Bt cotton has become one of the most exciting industry innovations since pyrethroids. But with growers being charged a $32 technology fee for every acre of Bt cotton planted, additional pest management tools have become a critically important way to protect the Bt investment.

Judy Collier
Zeneca Ag Products

Fill in the gaps in your Bt cotton insect control program by using a broad-spectrum pyrethroid, such as KARATE® insecticide. By mid-season, a wide variety of crop-damaging insects can destroy the bottom fruiting branches of the plant, which account for the most profitable yields. Bt cotton can handle the tobacco budworm on its own. It also suppresses the cotton bollworm. Therefore, that pest and others may escape its protection.

As for boll weevils and secondary pests, such as plant bugs, stinkbugs and fall armyworm, Bt cotton is as vulnerable as any other variety. In fact, Bt cotton may be more at risk since its control is aimed at budworm and bollworm.

Over time, resistance among worms to the Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt) toxin can develop. Uncontrolled secondary pests can significantly reduce yields and threaten profits. Karate can help you avoid Bt resistance by controlling any worms that come through the Bt cotton.

Karate comes from a class of insect control completely unlike the Bt toxin. It provides greater residual control than other pyrethroids and gives you the most performance for your dollar.

A summary of 18 evaluations from five different Zeneca field trials showed that Karate outperformed the competition by controlling nearly 99 percent of the worms after treatment.

Additionally, Karate shows greater ovicidal activity than any other insecticide, which means further reduction of insect populations. Also, the pest control Karate offers is so complete, tank mixing with other insecticides is often unnecessary.

The fewer pests your cotton crop has to battle, the more lint you'll put through the gin.

For more information about Karate from Zeneca Ag Products, contact your local ag chem dealer.

Also expected to appear at the overnight camp along with Webb is Randy White, the eighth pick by the Dallas Mavericks in the 1989 NBA Draft. White spent five years with the Mavericks and has experience playing overseas. He currently plays in Israel.

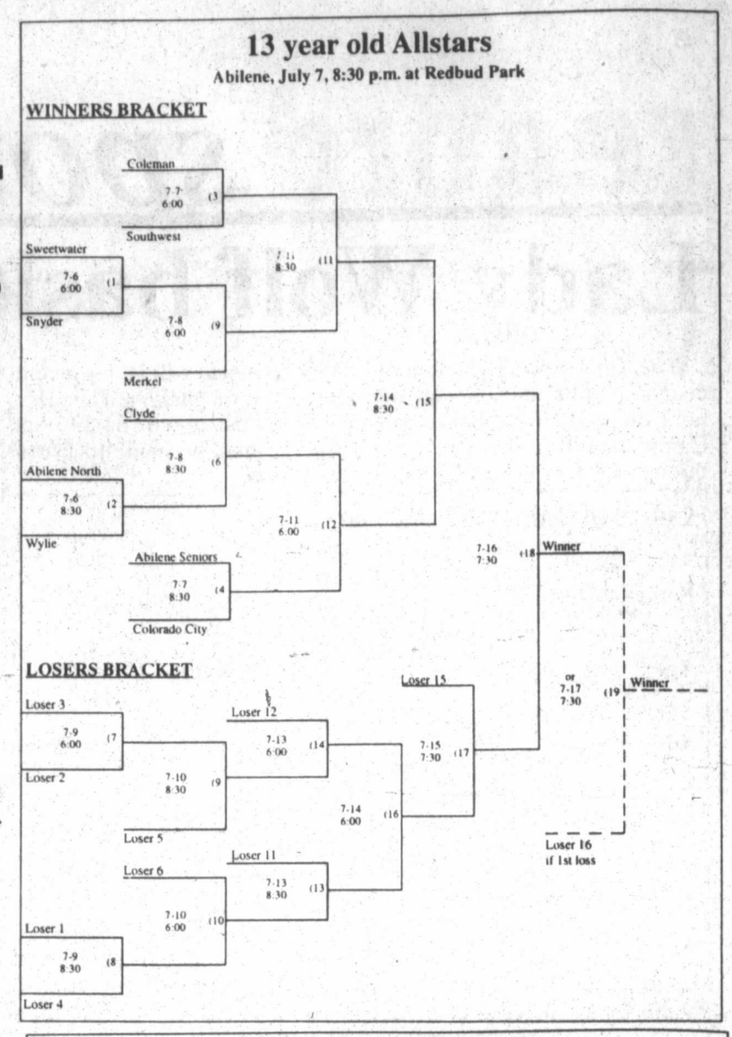

Cost of the overnight camp is $100 for commuters and $195 for overnight campers.

Wolves picked to finish 3rd in District

By Sandy McSpadden

The Dave Campbell 1988 edition of Texas Football is on the rack, and as usual there are three things about the book you can depend on.

First, a Texas Aggie or a Texas Longhorn will always be on the cover.

Second, the price of the book will increase annually. It's $8.95 this season.

Third, coaches write it the way they want you to read it.

Colorado's Wolf Pack is picked to finish third in new district 3-3A behind Seminole and Denver City.

Seminole returns 10 letterman from an 11-2 regional semifinalist. They have three starters coming back on offense and defense, but they lost all-state running back Toby Shain. The shifty quick and hard running Shain signed with Texas Tech after the 1997 season. The Indian gained over 1,000 yards in three play-off games including a 422 yard performance against Aledo.

Denver City brings back only eight letterman along with two offensive starters and four defensive first stringers.

Most of the districts teams were evidently senior loaded and lost heavy to graduation. Colorado City has the most offensive and defensive starters returning --- four on offense and four on defense.

New head coach Gerald James quotes his players to watch as senior quarterback Justin Hill (6-3, 185, 4.8) and Randy Byington (6-2, 180, 4,7).

Hill was second in 3-A passing statistics throwing for 1,692 yards. Only Kevin Branch form Fort Worth Carter-Riverside threw for more 1,716.

Byington is a great pass receiver with the speed to get open. He was Hill's favorite target last season and according to coaches is expected to fill that role again this term. Byington is straight and true with his leg, kicking eight of 13 field goals and 36 of 45 extra points.

Other returning starters are Terry Green, (6-2,165, 4.7) at a defensive back post, and probably a offensive back position. Frank Martinez is a strong defensive end and Armando Rocha will go at a defensive back. Rashad Walthall returns at defensive tackle and big Drew Potter (6-2,230) and Ricky Molina will have a go at offensive tackle

Other lettermen are wide receiver Philip Castro, linebacker Chris Valenzuela, defensive end Jeff Ellis and linebacker Abel Bonilla.

Slaton has 14 lettermen, but only three offensive and three defensive starters return from a 4-6 team in '97.

Lamesa was 0-10 in 4-A and moving into 3-A is a blessing for Golden Tornado supporters. Their last winning season was in 1989 at class 3-A level. They were 6-4 that year. Coach Tim James returns 12 lettermen.

Brownfield lost 23 letterman from a 1997 team that was 2-8. Nine lettermen come back, along with two starters on offense and three on defense.

If you want to gain football talking knowledge about the Big 12 then Texas Football is loaded with statistical information, but the real high school fan in Texas will learn very little about their respective teams on the high school level from this magazine.

Your best bet to learn about high school players and forecasts is your local or regional newspaper.

loraine news

By Bessie Ann Vaughn

Greetings. After viewing part of the coverage on China this past week, I am so thankful I don't have to slave over the New Great Wall that is being built there. Som of the workers may spend their entire lives on that huge project.

Some of the workers may spend their entire lives on that huge project.

It's too hot to work on a great or near great wall in any country. Perhaps it's fall weather there.

Sure hope they aren't using chop sticks to build the wonder wall. They would come in handy though if they have to eat on the job.

"Funny Bones"

Into town on his regular Saturday visit came a lanky Tennessee mountaineer and his young wife. In the crook of his right arm nestled a week old baby.

The dry goods merchant, who had not seen the couple in quite a long while, greeted them affably, "Come right in, folks, glad to see ya! Well, well, is that yore young 'un, Len?"

Len pondered for a spell and then replied, "Well, yeah, I recon it's mine. Leastaways, it was caught in my trap."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

The family of Jose Maria Paredes wishes to extend our sincere appreciation for the many hours spent by city leaders and the community to make the recent Paredes Park dedication wonderful success. We particularly thank you for the thoughtful stories published in the Colorado City Record.

We are deeply moved that so many people remembered our dad for his contributions and service in Colorado City.

The dedication gave us an opportunity to reflect on important things in life such as good memories of friends and a wonderful sense of serenity that is sometimes lost in the big city. If we have one regret, it is that we did not get to visit individually with so many friends who came to share this special occasion.

Our family hopes to continue periodic financial contributions to make Paredes Park a place the community can be proud to hold fiestas, games and other social events. With the help of the community, we can do it!

By this letter we wish to convey our gratitude and thanks to all who participated in this event.

Sincerely,
The family of Jose Maria Paredes:
Edward Paredes
