SFN Is Destroying America, More Destructive Than LSD

"LSD, STP, and POT--the escape-from-reality drugs -- have attracted an enormous amount of attention because they are undermining the character of a small fraction of our young people.

"Unfortunately, the most prevalent, pernicious and destructive of all escape-from-reality drugs--SFN--is destroying American character on a much wider scale, almost unnoticed and unmentioned.

"The full name of SFN is Something-for-nothing. For most people, its temptation is almost irresistible. It is habit-forming to a frightening degree. In almost every human heart there is a spark of larceny which, fanned by the insidious influence of SFN, burns away the two cardinal virtues of man -- self-respect, and self-reliance. Psychologically, it has the guilt-producing impact of receiving stolen goods -- even if these goods are legally stolen.

"Nothing corrodes the human spirit as deeply as subsidized idleness. As proven by the rioting and looting, it leads to the desire for illegally stolen goods. The experts say that many people on SFN reach the point where they are virtually beyond rehabilitation.

"Dr. M. Harvey Brenner, a sociologist at Yale University, has just completed a statistical study of mental health in the United States, covering the period from 1910 to 1960. He reports that 'doctors can forecast the general state of mental health with a glance at society's unemployment figures'.

"Dr. Brenner's study deals, primarily, with people whose behavior requires them to be admitted to mental institutions, but common sense tells us that, for every case that reaches this extreme, there are hundreds that approach it.

"The use (acceptance) of SFN is encouraged by the world-wide fundamental weakness of the mass mind--ignorance of the simple fundamentals of how man produces and exchanges goods and services. There is no such thing as something for nothing. Every economic good has a source, a destination, and a cost that must be paid. And the man who pays nothing pays the highest price of all.

"The tragic irony of SFN is the humanitarian spirit in which it is dispensed. The truth is that nothing is more inhumane than destroying the fabric of character. To the normal man who wakes up in the morning with nothing useful to do, and nowhere to go where he is needed, life becomes a nightmare out of which he must make some sense or lose his senses.

"This 'sense' is that he is one of those special persons to whom the world owes a living. And if it is not a good living, or as good as he thinks he deserves, his resentment against society knows no bounds.

"LSD, STP, and POT are frightening, but SFN is worse.

"No economy, however strong, no system, however dynamic, can long avoid its deadening influence on the national character.

"In every society there is useful work for every able bodied citizen. For the mental health of the nation, it must be arranged and provided."

Registered Voters Assured Plenty Of Action In Texas

Texans who registered to vote before the January 31 deadline are assured plenty of action for their 1970 registration certificate.

One of the nation's hottest U. S. Senate races is due to rage on through the November 3 general election.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, 66, of Austin and former Congressman Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., 48, a Houston business executive, are major Democratic contenders for Yarborough's seat. Whoever wins will face Republican congressman George Bush, 45, of Houston, in November.

Republicans talk freely about million-dollar campaigns for Bush and Eggers.

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin will be opposed by District Judge David Brown of Sherman in the Democratic primary and Corpus Christi attorney Edward Yturri, 42, a Republican, in November.

Republicans came up with a surprising number of statewide candidates before the February 2 filing deadline.

In addition, there will be hard fought local contests in many Texas counties.

Long-time conservative leader Bard A. Logan of San Antonio said he was "tired and needed a rest" so he resigned as chairman of The American Party of Texas, Vice-Chairman H. W. Matthews of Conroe succeeds Logan until the election of a new leader at the state convention.

Chief chore of the American Party now is to get 30,000 to attend its May 2 precinct conventions, so it can qualify to place a gubernatorial candidate on the ballot.

And there will be a sizzling November 3 battle over the liquor-by-the-drink proposition on the constitutional amendments ballot. Lines are already forming and campaigns shaping up on that.

Gov. Preston Smith, 57, may have opposition from Sen. Ralph Hall, 46, of Rockwall, who made a last-minute announcement Monday as a candidate on the Democratic ticket. Hall's application was not accepted by the State Democratic Executive Committee for technical reasons and was referred to the Supreme Court for determination of his eligibility.

Paul Eggers, 50, of Wichita Falls, will be the Republican challenger for the office of Governor in the general election in November.

Husband Of Former Olton Girl Loses Life In Highway Mishap

A highway construction accident north of Dimmitt Wednesday claimed the life of Ronald L. Miller, 28, a resident of Littlefield.

Water Pollution To Be Topic Of Discussion At Conference

Water pollution -- and agriculture's responsibility in its control -- will be one of two top topics for consideration Feb. 6 during the eighth annual West Texas Water Conference in Lubbock.

Registration for the daylong meeting at the Red Raider Inn will begin at 8 a. m. The $8 registration fee covers a luncheon and the proceedings which are mailed following the conference.

Marvin J. Dvoracek, West Texas Water Institute vice president for education and program chairman for arrangements, said that the program emphasis would be on water pollution and on statewide water development.

"Pollution is, of course, a national problem," Dvoracek said, "but West Texas has tremendous source of potential pollution with the boom of cattle feedlots in this area.

"We are primarily concerned with nitrate buildups," he explained, "because high concentrations can lead to harmful effects on both plant and animal life, with some concentrations particularly harmful to children."

While commercial feedlot wastes will receive special emphasis, an overview of pollution by agriculture will be presented during the morning session by Cecil H. Wadleigh, director of the Soil and Water Conservation Research Division, Agricultural Research Service, USDA, Washington.

Three experts will discuss feedlot problems. They are: Hugh Yantis, executive direc-

Mass Immunization Program To Begin

A mass immunization plan is now underway under the sponsorship of the local Lions Club in an effort to stamp out German measles, commonly called three-day measles.

The Lions Club is sponsoring a clinic for children of ages one through four, while the state will provide one necessary vaccine for children five through 10.

Those who should receive the vaccination are children from one to ten years of age, who have not already received the vaccination, those who do not have a high temperature on the day of immunization, those who are not sensitive to chicken or ducks or eggs or feathers or neomycin, and those who do not have cancer or leukemia. Children who are under the care of a doctor should consult him before taking the vaccination.

The new vaccine is not to be confused with the vaccine which is required of first grade students before entering school.

German measles are the measles that causes birth defects in newborn infants. In an effort to break the chain of infection, it is necessary that every child in Olton receive the vaccine.

Every parent is urged to make every effort to see that their children participate in this German measles vaccine program to prevent birth defects in unborn children, when the next epidemic appears. It is expected in the spring of 1970.

The last epidemic caused 20,000 birth defects in unborn children in the United States in 1964.

Dates of the clinics will be announced at a later date.

Although there is no charge for the vaccination, donations will be taken to cover the cost of the vaccine which is $2 per inoculation. Any donation in any amount will be appreciated.

Parents who fail to register their children ages one through five Thursday, Feb. 5 for the clinic may register them in the school elementary building nurses offices, Monday, Feb. 9 between the hours of 12 and 4 p. m.

LT. GOV. BEN BARNES

1970 Man and Woman of the year.

ONE WAY TO DELAY THE MAIL -- Bailey Hair, rural mail carrier, almost got out of the way Friday but was hit just back of his pickup cab by a car driven by Mrs. Johnny L. Garrett of Clovis. Hair failed to see the approaching white car in bright sunlight and pulled onto Highway 70 in the path of Mrs. Garrett's car. She was treated and released at Community Hospital. Hair was unhurt.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

The progress the Southern states have made in the last three decades can be attributed in part to changing attitudes toward the region among people elsewhere in the nation. For many decades after the Civil War, the South was the poor relation of the rest of the country. It was treated in a discriminatory fashion. No "foreign aid" or anything of that sort was granted to the South in the late 19th and early 20th century as it struggled to regain its economic place in the nation. The benefits known by such defeated nations as Germany and Japan were never lavished on the part of the United States that had known civil war.

Pulling itself up by its own bootstraps, the South rebuilt its financial institutions and commercial organizations. It persuaded national manufacturing companies to invest in the region. It was a long, slow process, but in the 1940s the South began to surge ahead. The quality of its state government improved dramatically, and the Southern states, with their strengthened economies, started to devote a much larger share of their revenues to education, both basic and higher. The vexing problem of freight rates, which retarded commerce, was eased. The federal government paid more attention to Southern ports. Industrialists elsewhere in the country gained a new appreciation of the ability and responsibility of the region's labor force and recognized that Southern legislatures were industry-minded and eager for progress through investor-owned enterprises.

The result of all this has been a wonderful forward movement on the part of the Southern states continuing from the 1940s now into the 1970s. Patterns of Southern industrialization are changing, with more highly skilled and complex industries relocating in this region and making better use of the schools, colleges and universities of the South.

One reason the South has progressed is that its people believe strongly in local government and in other basics of the American political tradition. This region has few hippies and other dissenters from American ideals.

The universities are not factories of ideological unrest, which, tragically, is the case in some areas such as the Northeast. State governments are not dominated by the union bosses, who are virtual political czars in some Northern states. Thus opportunities for further advancement, through the free enterprise system, are extraordinarily good in the Southern states.

Unfortunately, there are elements in the nation with a profound sectional bias against the South. There are those who want to radicalize the South and to punish it for not taking the ultra-liberal tack espoused in some influential intellectual circles. These elements have urged a double standard of judgment and justice. They would make the South's lot far harder than the lot of any other area.

We see this today in the determination to impose on the Southern states requirements for teacher transfers and busing of school children that are not made elsewhere. We see Southern school districts ordered to meet disruptive and virtually impossible timetables which are not imposed elsewhere in the nation.

It is tragic, shocking and almost incredible that after so many years of Southern progress there should be an effort made to plunge Southern schools into chaos while the schools of other regions, with the same mix of students, should escape serious government interference.

Several Southern governors have made this point in recent days, and their appeal for equal justice should be heeded by fair-minded Americans in every state. The governors aren't refusing to alter school systems according to court order; they are simply saying that if one type of school system is to be made mandatory for the South, the same system should be ordered for Massachusetts, Illinois, California and the other states. If a time-table is set for Atlanta, it should be set for Boston and Pittsburgh.

The United States can't have two sets of federal laws -- one oppressive of the Southern states and one leaving the other states to do as they please in school arrangements. Constitutionally, the schools are the business of the states and local governments. But the federal courts have ruled otherwise. It is intolerable, however, to see court orders issued that deprive the Southern states of equal justice under the law -- that impose conditions of chaos on this region while leaving the schools in other areas virtually free of interference.

The unequal orders issued by the courts in recent weeks threaten to undo much of the progress made in the South over a period of many decades. The situation should offend the sense of fair play of the entire American people.

Sue's Views

Ramblin'

BY SUE CANNON

Oh, this is one of those times again!

Instead of being like Snoopy and writing myself into a corner, I can't get out of that corner to start with!

I do want to say that we received two more letters this week with Betty Crocker coupons -- one from Mother and another from Kay Copeland.

You know, people are just about the greatest, aren't they? Those General Mills people just didn't know what they were doing when they said they'd get a machine for Larry Parks if the people would get together 600,000 coupons!

That is, unless they wanted to buy that machine to start with. When people are in trouble, other people just have a way of coming across with what it takes to help out, seems like.

And I believe that's what life is all about, after all.

Anyway, I'm sure that everyone knows by now that they have more than enough coupons for Parks a kidney machine and are beginning a drive for another one for someone in Texas.

Know something? I believe they'll get it too!

No, not me!
Cooking, I mean.
Eating, yes. But not cooking.

When a cake is made around our house, the little kids want to know whose birthday it is!

But back to our "burning at the stake" ceremony.... That little red table is nothing but a witch, enticing me to take a bite of this little goodie and another bite of another little goodie.

Now back in the "older" days, witches were burned at the stake, so that seems a proper and fitting reward for that mean little red table!

I don't know whether I should comment on this or not...but ---

It seems like crew cuts are catching on -- at least for a few over at Olton High!

And I am 100 per cent FOR it.

I always have thought crew cuts were the greatest and of course I have four boys and that might be one reason. Or maybe four reasons.

No hair oil, no combing the little ones' hair, and just a good scrubbing with a wash cloth and you've had a shampoo!

Now, I ask you --- who could ask for more?

I think the boys look absolutely "squeaky-clean" when they have crew cuts and absolutely "hippie-filthy" with this ole long stuff.

But that's the "older generation" in me showing I suppose.

IN BROWNWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Carson Jr. visited last weekend in Brownwood with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Ross.

FAMILY GATHERS

Reverend and Mrs. R. H. Campbell visited in Amherst Sunday with their son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Campbell, Kay and Kammie. Other relatives there were daughter-in-law Mrs. Gertrude Campbell, Larry and Jan of Amarillo.

Superintendent Attends Meet

Superintendent Ray Schultz was one of 17 educators from eight schools who attended a follow-up workshop Wednesday, Jan. 28 on Economic Education at the Region XVII Education Service Center in Lubbock.

The workshop was a follow-up meeting for educators who attended a series of five conferences in the spring of 1969 on Economic Education.

Dr. William A. Luker, director of the Center of Economic Education at North Texas State University, conducted the workshop from 9:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. in the Arnett Room of Citizens Tower.

Emphasis was placed on methodology of integrating the teaching of economics into the present school curriculum in grades one through 12. These workshops are designed to provide key staff members in local schools with a familiarization of economic education materials and methodology for in-service sessions which may be conducted at the local level.

Dr. Weldon E. Day, director of planning and research for the ESC, is coordinating the project in Region XVII.

Whooping Cranes Now Number 56

There are 56 wild whooping cranes on the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge.

While birdlovers were already overjoyed with the record number of 55 whoopers which had reached their winter home on the Texas Gulf Coast, the belated arrival of the extra bird has been cause of more rejoicing among conservationists who have watched the big white birds gallant battle against extinction.

Refuge Manager Gordon Hansen, who supervises the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife refuge, had observed a total of 56 cranes on an aerial count in December. This new record high was not announced by the Department of Interior until it could be confirmed by second aerial census. Fog, rain and low visibility prevented the confirming count until today.

From a low of 15 birds in 1941, the flock has shown a slow but steady increase ever since the Aransas Refuge was set aside as their winter sanctuary. This year's count now shows 48 adults and 8 young in the wild flock, which makes a perilous 2,000 mile trip to Texas from their nesting grounds in northern Canada each year. In addition to the wild birds, there are now 23 whooping cranes in captivity, most of them at the Patuxent Research Center, operated by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife in Maryland.

The Rev. Frank Pollard, pastor of First Baptist Church, Tulsa introduced the program of the day which included a message of progress of Wayland College as given by Dr. Neil Record, vice president of that institution.

Answering Insurance Questions

"Are you now in good health?" read the question on Harold's application for life insurance. As it happened, he did have a cold in the head. Nonetheless, he wrote "YES."

Unhappily, Harold's cold developed into pneumonia, which finally took his life. Could his widow collect the insurance? In a court hearing, the insurance company said the policy was invalid because Harold had told a lie by answering "YES" on his application form.

But the court ruled in the widow's favor. The judge said a person could fairly be considered "in good health" even with a minor ailment like a head cold.

Filling in application forms for life insurance may often raise doubts about the meaning of words. Generally speaking, the law allows an applicant to interpret language the way any ordinary, reasonably intelligent person would interpret it.

However, that does not mean the law will condone dishonesty. One applicant, asked whether he had ever had liver trouble, said no—even though he had indeed suffered at one time from that ailment. When the truth came out after his death, the insurance company refused to pay off. The widow, going to court, argued:

"Of course my husband knew he had liver trouble, but he believed it had all cleared up. So he didn't think he had to mention it."

Unconvinced, the court rejected her claim, because this was not a case of doubtful language but of outright deception. The judge said that since the insurance company was taking the risk of insuring the man's life, it was entitled to know all the relevant facts—and then draw its own conclusions.

Not even a qualifying phrase like "to the best of my knowledge" can take the taint out of a wrong answer, if the evidence shows that the person must surely have known better.

In short, in case of doubt, an applicant will find it safer to tell more than to tell less. Otherwise, he may be leaving his family not insurance but only a lawsuit.

IDA MAE POWERS

Cook Of The Week

Our recipes this week are shared by a vivacious young woman, fresh out of college, with a song in her heart, on her lips and at her fingertips as she directs choirs in Olton schools - Miss Ida Mae Powers.

Ida Mae joined the Olton faculty just before school began. She will receive her B. A. degree in elementary education with a music specialization this summer from Texas Tech.

She began taking music lessons when she was only five years old and has been "playing or singing ever since". She served as organist for her home church, the First United Methodist Church in White Deer, for four years.

Currently she works with third, fourth and fifth grade elementary choir; sixth, seventh and eighth grade individual choirs and the OHS choir. Her high school choir students are busily preparing for UIL contest to be held March 18-19 on the Wayland Campus in Plainview.

Ida Mae's hobbies are poetry, snow skiing, art and "really, just about everything". Her first love is, of course, her music.

A farmer's daughter, Ida Mae grew up at White Deer. She has a younger brother, Ted, a seventh grader.

At Tech, she was a member of the Mu Phi Epsilon, international music sorority. She also served head of the office staff of her dormitory, Weeks Hall. Last summer, she was Legislator for the Conference Center.

March 31 Important Deadline For Medicare-Eligible Persons

John G. Hutton, Social Security Manager, reminds everyone that there is a very important deadline rapidly approaching for those persons born October, 1901 - September, 1902 and who have never enrolled for supplementary medical insurance part of Medicare. To be eligible for this coverage, a person must enroll during a General Enrollment Period. The General Enrollment Period this year ends on March 31, 1970. If those born between October 1, 1901, and the end of September, 1902, don't enroll in this one, they cannot enroll at all because this is the last opportunity which can be offered under the law.

The supplementary medical insurance, also referred to as the doctor bill part of Medicare, is very valuable, Hutton stated. It helps pay doctor bills, and the services which are ordinarily furnished in the doctor's office such as diagnostic tests, medical supplies, drugs which cannot be self-administered, etc.

Unless you have already discussed this with a social security representative, Hutton urges you to call or visit the social security office at 3428

Everything But The Kitchen Sink

BY MOZELLE TROTTER

Man has been wearing some form of necktie since the 1700's and I'd never understood why many of them complained! Now the light has dawned! I know one real good reason to fuss. I also know why some tie-wearing gentlemen invented the tie tack!

Now, this may not have the remotest connection with men's petty gripes but it's logical to me.

You know, ties have been high fashion for some time now and probably a lot of you have one or more and just maybe you've come up with these same observations.

For instance, you're all dolled up with one of those flowing "furbelows". Well, you're looking real snazzy -- but you're just for looks!

Have you ever tried working with one of those things on? No wonder men were always getting egg or gravy on theirs! 'Bout the most trouble I've had was in trying to scrub the bath tub while outfitted in one of the wide ties that reaches clear past my middle. Just try it sometime!

There I was -- don't like to scour bathrooms anyway! -- all leaned over, holding my tie with one hand and trying to sprinkle cleanser and rub grime with the other. Just as I'd really get going with the elbow grease and Josephine's cleanser, one end of that silly tie would slip loose and plopp right down in the middle of my way!

'Nother time they give you trouble is when you're washing dishes. I never had such a time! If I'd had a real sink full, I'd probably have ended up using one end of the thing as a dish-rag!

You can't evade the trouble when you wear them to the office, either!

I might interrupt my tale of woe right here and confess that I sweep, mop, hoe and all sorts of other chores in a hunch-back stance -- always have -- you'd think I was suffering from acute curvature of the spine! And, of course, put a waist length tie on a leaner and you can't help but have trouble.

But, back to the office. I almost got rid of all my trouble today when I was standing in my normal posture, cutting paper with one of those vicious paper cutters with the guillotine-like blade. Huh uh, I didn't -- but I nearly did.

And there's our "waxing machine" (if you don't know what that is, why don't ya come by some Monday and we'll give you a free tour of the Ladies Gazette). Well, the waxer works on the sort of the same principle as a wringer washing machine.

I'm here to tell you! That thing can be dangerous to a floppy tie wearer! A gal wouldn't get caught more'n once in that thing.

Thus, the scarf or tie fad has brought me a new understanding towards man and his necktie. Any of you guys want to adopt some of milady's wear and see our side?

'Raider' Star Picked By Draft

Springlake's Jerry Don Sanders was drafted by the Cleveland Browns last week, third Red Raider to be picked in the pro-grid draft.

KARRI LYNN RICHARDSON AND MOTHER

Birthday Party Honors Two Members Of Family

"Daddy is expected back sometime this month and so we saved him a big piece of the cake."

Miss Karri Lynn celebrated her first birthday last Friday. Among the many guests at the party one was missing -- her father, Sp/4 Ronnie Richardson who is serving in Vietnam. Richardson has never seen Karri.

Friends and relatives attending included uncles, Ricky Lynn Richardson (celebrating his 19th birthday), Gilbert Lane Richardson and Mark Richardson.

Friends included Betty, Billy and Debbie Jordan, Pam Hall, Todd Holt and Edisy Hackler.

Greetings were received from her maternal grandmother in Galveston and an aunt from Killeen.

The traditional cake, bearing one candle, and tea and milk were served.

Origin Of Words

By Mrs. Blanton Martin

Continuing in the same vein as that of our last column, that of proper names becoming generalized in meaning, consider the word 'Caesar'. The word is, of course, a title which came from the family name of Gaius Julius Caesar, who ruled Rome as a monarch without a crown.

The word was originally a nickname coined from the Latin verb 'caedo' meaning 'to cut'. It is popularly believed that the monarch was cut from his mother's womb by the operation still called 'Caesarian section'.

The name was adopted by Julius' nephew, Octavius, the first Roman emperor, and then by the subsequent emperors, so that it became a synonym for 'emperor'.

Both the German word 'Kaiser' and the Russian 'czar' or 'tsar' came from 'caesar'.

The origin of the word 'guy' is interesting. Guy Fawkes Day is celebrated each year in England. Fawkes was the leader of a group who tried to blow up King James I and Parliament early in the seventeenth century. Effigies of the traitor are carried and burned each November 5. These effigies are known as Guy Fawkes. The term 'guy' came to mean "a butt of scorn" and, as a verb, 'to poke fun at'. In America it has become a universal colloquial term for any male not held in high respect.

Conversely, it is also used in phrases like 'a nice guy'.

Some proper names that have assumed general meanings have undergone pronunciation changes. The adjective 'tawdry', meaning 'cheap and flashy' came about from a clipping or shortened form, of Saint Audrey. Presumably it was first used to describe a kind of cheap lace sold at Saint Audrey's Fair.

GIRL SCOUT Troop Talk

Brownie Troop 335, a newly organized Girl Scout Troop, met Jan. 28 in the Scout House and worked on place mats to be used in the annual Father-Daughter Banquet. The banquet is slated for Feb. 28 in the school cafeteria.

There are 18 members in the troop and adult leaders are Miss Helen Locke and Mmes. Dan Quigley and Jack Gullett. Tuesday afternoon, the troop visited the Enterprise for a tour. Especially interesting to the Brownies were the headline machine which is used in building ads and making headlines and the bound volumes of Enterprises in past years. Fifteen Brownies enjoyed the newspaper tour.

This week's meeting of the Brownie Troop was devoted to making name tags for the upcoming Father-daughter Banquet.

Members working on this project included Dusty Kennison, Marilyn Durham, Jan Spain, Benisa Nicholson, Nina Spruiell and Dee Wozencraft. Others were Sharla Nicholas, Cindy Lawyer, Carla McAlister, Jimmie Kay Sanders and Cynthia Sorley.

The Brownie Promise was given by Songleader Debra Blakely. Nina Spruiell provided refreshments.

IRS Offers Tax Booklet

A 160-page booklet on how to fill out your Federal income tax return is now available at most Internal Revenue Service offices throughout Texas, according to Ellis Campbell, District Director of Internal Revenue.

The booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax," Publication 17, contains many examples to illustrate how the laws apply to actual situations. A special feature of the booklet is the sample, filled-in return, Form 1040, keyed to pages in the booklet where explanations can be found for the entries on the return.

The material, written in laymen's language, is especially helpful to taxpayers who have unusual tax situations or new tax problems, Mr. Campbell said.

Examples of taxable and non-taxable income and of allowable and non-allowable deductions are included. A detailed index helps taxpayers find the answers to their tax problems.

The booklet may also be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402, at 60 cents a copy.

The girls didn't fare quite so well as they lost 47-58, though Myrle Givens, star player with 20 points and Connie Hall with 18 did their best.

Easter Seal Society Expands National Rehabilitation Service

Because of the steady growth in numbers of crippled children and adults in Texas, the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas has stepped up its rehabilitation services, it was announced today.

According to P. O. Settle Jr. of Fort Worth, Texas Society president, 20,378 crippled persons received Easter Seal treatment during 1969.

Nationwide, Easter Seal services were provided for almost a quarter million handicapped Americans last year, he pointed out. Quoting the annual report of the National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, of which the Texas Society is an affiliate, he said that almost all programs in operation across the nation are expanding. They include treatment and rehabilitation centers, sheltered workshops, camps, recreation and education programs and many others.

"Through these programs, persons with a wide variety of handicaps receive the help they need to lead normal lives," Settle said.

The Texas Easter Seal Society helps support 20 treatment facilities, where children and adults are treated regardless of their ability to pay. The Society has provided treatments for those suffering from arthritis, cerebral palsy, stroke, multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy, polio, speech disorders, hearing conditions, accidental injuries and other conditions.

The Easter Seal campaign, which provides funds for the continuation of these services, begins Feb. 23 and continues through March 29, Easter Sunday.

MUSHROOM STUDY

Mushrooms and home remedies are the two subjects that have taken two University of Texas College of Pharmacy researchers to Jamaica.

Dr. Gerald Sullivan, assistant professor of pharmacy, and Ernest D. Henry of Rockdale, a graduate student, took some free days between semesters to collect mushrooms and information in that island paradise. The mushroom they seek is found only in Australia, New Zealand, Central Africa and Jamaica.

"There is always a chance that we may find something used by these people for hundreds of years that may be useful to modern science," Dr. Sullivan said.
