McNamara Says No Extensions Of Viet Duty

DONG HA, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert McNamara gave thousands of American servicemen a morale boost today by announcing "under no circumstances" would they be required to extend their one-year tour of duty in Viet Nam.

McNamara made the announcement aboard the carrier USS Oriskany in the Tonkin Gulf before flying off on a helicopter tour of Marine positions along the demilitarized zone where he watched U.S. fighter planes blast Communist positions.

In Saigon, police uncovered Viet Cong documents saying McNamara should be assassinated, but said there were no attempts to carry out the assassination.

Nobody Arrested

A spokesman said nobody had been arrested and only normal security precautions were taken.

The helicopter carrying McNamara and Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt, commander of the Marine force in Viet Nam, stayed above range of small arms fire as it toured some of the densest jungle in the world.

Down below two Marine divisions were digging in for an expected North Vietnamese attack across the zone with the arrival in a few days of the monsoon rains.

Only once did the helicopter come below 2,500 feet and that was over the "rockpile," a granite hulk commanding a view of several valleys used as infiltration routes. The Leathernecks secured it last week after

Johnson Warns Against GOP Vote

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — President Johnson, wearing the politician's fedora he loves so well, told the voters today their choice in the Nov. 8 elections would be a "fateful one" and warned that if they elected Republicans "we could falter and fall back and fail."

The Chief Executive resumed his role as the leader of the Democratic Party after briefly donning the hat of the statesman for a morning meeting in New York City with Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma on Southeast Asian problems. Laos borders Viet Nam.

He flew here for a hard-hitting political speech at a rally to promote the candidacies of Democrat's Rep. Harris McDowell and James M. Tunnell Jr., who is running for the Senate against Republican Sen. J. Caleb Boggs.

In a prepared speech before returning to Washington after an overnight political swing into New York City, the President told his audience he knew their choice "will be the right one."

He charged that Republicans "spread fears about inflation" and asserted they are "experts on both fear and inflation."

Johnson had a 3:30 p.m. EDT televised news conference scheduled from the East Room of the White House, a final quiz session before he leaves Monday on a 17-day Asian peace-seeking tour.

The President had been stressing the social gains under the 89th Congress, but in his address today he also talked to voters about their pocketbooks.

"The money people have to spend and to save increased approximately 10 times as much under the Democrats," the Chief Executive said. "In the final 67 months of the Republican administration, prices increased 11 per cent. In the 67 months of the Kennedy-Johnson administration, prices have increased only 9 per cent."

He said in a similar period real, disposable, personal income rose a little more than 2 per cent under the Republicans but went up more than 21 per cent in the Kennedy-Johnson years.

a week of bloody fighting. Off in the distance a tactical air strike hammered an enemy target sending gray smoke boiling up over the jungle. Newsmen in a plane accompanying McNamara saw Air Force transports dumping chemicals to defoliate the jungle just south of the buffer zone.

There had been reports the tour of servicemen here would be extended for 14 or more months with the tours of key pilots and staff officers extended to 18 months or longer. But McNamara squelched the reports.

"We are asking an awful lot of these men and under no circumstances would we ask them to spend more than 12 months away from their families," he said.

"We definitely will not extend tours beyond the one-year period."

Sheppard Venue Plea Considered by Judge

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Judge Francis S. Taitly today weighed accused wife-slayer Dr. Samuel Sheppard's plea to move his second trial from the courtroom where "bedlam reigned" when he was convicted 12 years ago.

If no change of venue is granted, Sheppard will go on trial next Tuesday in a courtroom across the hall from the one used at his first trial for the bludgeoned death of his pregnant wife, Marilyn, 30.

Sheppard and his attorneys took a stack of newspaper clippings 15 inches high into Wednesday's brief hearing in an attempt to prove local prejudice would prevent the 42-year-old osteopath from receiving a fair trial in Cleveland.

The judge will announce his decision Friday. Sheppard was convicted of second degree murder and served nine years of a life sentence before the U.S. Supreme Court set aside the verdict on the grounds his trial had been a "circus" where "bedlam reigned at the courthouse."

In addition to the newspaper clippings, which covered the period from the time of the murder in July, 1954, to Sheppard's conviction in December of the same year, his attorneys also introduced copies of the Cleveland Press from Jan. 4, 1966 to Jan. 7. They contained interviews with jurors in the original trial.

Prosecutor John T. Corrigan objected to the exhibits. Taitly noted the objection but accepted the material.

Jets And Cruiser Bombard Communist Forces in DMZ

McNamara Watches Heavy Air Strikes

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B52 strategic bombers, jet fighters and the heavy cruiser USS St. Paul heavily bombarded Communist forces in the demilitarized zone (DMZ). Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, touring areas just south of the zone, could see some of the air strikes.

No major ground fighting was reported but a band of Viet Cong guerrillas in the central highlands used civilian hostages as human shields to escape a fight with American paratroopers. In an action along the coast a defector helped air cavalry units kill or capture an 18-man band.

With the Communists threatening a major offensive across the DMZ once the oncoming monsoon rains blunt American airpower, U.S. planes struck North Viet Nam from the Hanoi-Haiphong areas to Dien Bien Phu. They blew up oil storage depots, a vast underground storage area and destroyed four Russian-built surface-to-air missiles (SAMs).

Three American planes were reported lost in raids Wednesday — a Navy A4 Skyhawk and its pilot over North Viet Nam and two F4U Corsairs in South Viet Nam. The two pilots and a combat photographer were shot down in the south were rescued.

The most spectacular raid of the day was by Navy pilots from the carrier USS Intrepid who struck a cave storage area southwest of Than Hoa about midway between the DMZ and Hanoi. Their direct hits touched off a series of massive explosions.

Planes attacking the lower panhandle hit a missile site 13 miles from Dong Hoi — the furthest south the SAM bases have been reported. A flight led by Capt. Richard R. Cole Jr., 38, of Daytona Beach, Fla., said the huge SAMs burned "with a pulsating flame" on the ground. He reported the site protected.

Fear-Struck Citizens Purchase Guns After Fourth Cincinnati Rape-Killing

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The pattern for the four slayings is the same. A woman in her 50s is knocked unconscious, raped and strangled. All have happened within a year.

At least partially in result, hardware stores have sold out of chain locks. Gun sales are far above average and ammunition is almost impossible to get. There is fear in this Ohio River city.

Mrs. Alice Hochhauser, 51, wife of a surgeon and mother of nine, was the latest victim. She was bludgeoned, raped and strangled in her garage about midnight Tuesday.

The city council Wednesday authorized Safety Director Henry Sandman to put the entire 900-man police force on an unlimited overtime. Policemen have been given the authority to stop and question anyone in suspicious circumstances.

Mrs. Hochhauser, whose children ranged in age from 8 to 22, was slain after returning home from picking up her daughter, Beth, at Good Samaritan Hospital where she is a student nurse, and driving her to her apartment.

Beth provided police with what Col. Jacob Schott, chief of detectives, called "the most solid lead we've received yet to the strangler."

San Francisco Bank Mobbed By Withdrawers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Hundreds of customers stormed the Chinatown branch of the San Francisco Federal Savings and Loan Association Wednesday before officials could discount rumors "the institution is folding."

Bank officials said the rumors were spread by persons angry with J. K. Choy, vice president and general manager of the branch bank, because of his stand on the war on poverty.

Nearly a thousand depositors withdrew more than $1 million during the run. The bank had to stay open past the 3 p.m. closing to accommodate the customers.

At times, lines of customers extended outside the sidewalk.

Bank Vice President Kingsley E. Thomas used a bullhorn to exhort depositors to leave their money in the bank.

"This soundly-operated institution has no problems whatsoever," he said as he paraded outside the six-story building on Grant Avenue.

Federal President Donald W. Mitchell said the run was touched off by malicious rumors "of a political nature to get J. K. Choy." One rumor, he said, was that "the president had skipped to Mexico."

Choy, a one-time "soldier of fortune" who came to the United States in 1911 as a protégé of Sun Yat Sen, has been the center of a swirling Chinatown controversy lately over the federal war on poverty.

Choy said: "The gangs that live off the poor were out to get me. I tried to stop them from exploiting the helpless poor of Chinatown. I attacked corrupt procedures in the war on poverty such as huge payrolls."

I also attacked filthy conditions in the Chinese hospital. I have been a crusader to clean up Chinatown and in doing this I have made a lot of enemies. This is a vicious plot."

Nobel Prize Awarded To Cancer Experts

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — The 1966 Nobel Prize for medicine was awarded today to two American cancer experts who have devoted their lives to combating the dread disease — Francis Peyton Rous and Charles B. Huggins.

Rous, 87, of Rockefeller University in New York City and Huggins, 65, of the University of Chicago, will split the $60,000 prize which will be presented Dec. 10 in Stockholm by King Gustaf VI Adolf.

It was Rous, the "grand old man of cancer research," who discovered as early as 1911 that cancer could be induced by a virus, a discovery that led to the award today. At 87, he is one of the "oldest men to receive the Nobel prize. Huggins is called the father of the modern era of cancer chemotherapy. It was Huggins who discovered that the introduction of certain chemicals could cause regression of some tumors. He was honored for his discoveries concerning three treatments of prostate cancer.

Rous, who has received countless international awards throughout his long period of research, gave his name to two different kinds of cancer producing virus — Rous chicken sarcoma virus (RSV) and Rous associated virus (RAV). Subsequent research by Swedish Russian scientists discovered that RSV inoculated into a mammal created cancer.

Rockefeller University where Rous conducts his research formerly was known as the Rockefeller Institute.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Life is no bed of roses for a chief of the Annuak tribe in East Africa.

An Annuak headman, called Father of the Land, is one of countless African chiefs who are specifically responsible for maintaining good relations with the life-giving earth, says the National Geographic Society. So, if crops fail, these leaders may be put to death.

80,000 Wives To Boycott Five Denver Groceries

DENVER (UPI) — Denver-area housewives, determined to put an end to their spiraling food costs, today began putting final touches on their planned mass boycott of five major supermarket chains.

Politicians on all levels were flocking to jump on the "breadwagon," but a spokesman for the wives, reportedly numbering in the thousands, said they weren't needed.

"We are a non-partisan organization," said Mrs. Paul West, a spokesman for Housewives for Lower Food Prices. "This is strictly a housewives' project and we want to keep it that way."

"As far as our asking for or needing the support of politicians, we have not and we don't," she said.

Nevertheless, Colorado's four Democratic congressmen already have jumped in to support the ladies in their self-proclaimed battle. Republican officials also leaped into the fray and accused the Democrats of a "political about-face."

Democratic Senate candidate Roy Romer of Denver Wednesday urged farmers to join in the fight because they "have a stake in this battle also."

Frank F. Matyka of Denver, a state legislative candidate and a former coordinator for the housewives organization, said 80,000 area women already had pledged to support the move. "I believe there now will be as many as 200,000 signatures on the petitions," he said.

The boycott gets under way next Monday and will be aimed at the Safeway, King Super's, Red Owl, Miller's and Furr's grocery chains.

Sewage Plant Open House Set Friday

Open house ceremonies have been scheduled for Friday forenoon at Pampa's new half-million-dollar sewage treatment plant.

City Manager Jim White said today the public is invited to a coffee at 10 a.m. in the chamber of commerce offices in the Hughes Bldg. for those wishing to visit the plant.

At 10:30 a.m., White said, the group will leave for the sewage plant site where a short ceremony will be highlighted with a brief dedicatory talk by ex-Mayor H. R. Thompson, under whose administration the treatment plant was started.

Guides on the tour of the installation, which has been in full operation for about 30 days, will be the city manager, R. B. Cooke, public works director, and E. S. Lowry, water superintendent.

Construction of the $508,000 sewage treatment plant was started in May of 1965 and completed in the spring of the year. Since that time, special tests have been run and operation has been on a partial basis while needed changes were made.

"The plant is now ship-shape and in full operation," the city manager said.

Students Create Amazing 'N Amusing Artistry With Rocks

GLAMOROUS PAPERWEIGHTS — Bits of fluffy, bright feathers, trusty glue and a vivid imagination transforms an ordinary rock into a practical, but glamorous paperweight for a mom's or dad's desk. From the left, Maria Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Johnson, created a perky peacock; Greg Hobbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hobbs, a sagacious owl; and Roy Lenning, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Lenning Jr., a helpful hen. They are students in Mrs. D. V. Biggers' fifth grade class at Travis.

By DORIS E. WILSON
News-Staff Writer

The lowly rock has assumed a role of unusual importance in the art world. At least it has in the art world of Mrs. Marilyn Page's sixth grade students at Stephen F. Austin and fifth grade students of Mrs. D. V. Biggers at Travis School.

The common rock, a scuffler of shoes when kicked along the way to and from school, has been picked up and brought into the classroom. And there, it has been used to create amusing and amazing objects d'art.

It's a simple, imaginative art, when you stop to think of it... and only imaginative people would.

The rock art idea was introduced by Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Biggers, who came upon the idea while visiting a rock shop this summer.

An introduction was all the students needed for a start. They picked up the idea and "went with it," according to their teachers.

Foraging alleys and along country roads, students found interesting shaped rocks, which they transformed with the aid of a little Elmer's glue into a picture of the teacher, a giraffe, an Indian, a jersey cow, a duck, a moat with a workable drawbridge... all emanating from the beautiful imagination of a child. Bits of feathers... a touch of fur... a toothpick were added for notes of realism.

UNIQUELY SHAPED — Rocks inspired Barbara Craig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craig, to create a mother and baby duck, and Skipper Hiatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Hiatt, an Indian. They are students of Mrs. Joe Page's sixth grade class at Stephen F. Austin School. The Creative Rock Art will be on display this weekend at the Canadian Gem and Mineral Show in Bunavista Cafeteria in Borger.

The Art Rock collection will Family Night Friday, Oct. 21, not be without viewers. The two schools have also been invited to bring the display to Austin collection will be on display at Family Night on Friday, the Canadian River Gem and Mineral Show to be held in the Travis parents and Bunavista Cafeteria in Borger while Travis parents and friends will have an opportunity to see that collection at this weekend.

Price Questions Johnson's Policy

AMARILLO — "A question that is coming to many people's minds these days is: Who is the Johnson administration more worried about — foreign countries or the American people?" Congressional candidate Bob Price said Wednesday.

Speaking to the Panhandle Home Builders Association in Amarillo, the 18th District candidate pointed out that the present administration recently made a 20 million dollar loan to Brazil, for the purchase of fertilizer, at an interest rate of one per cent annually.

"The rest of us pay six or seven per cent for our money, but then we are just taxpayers, and maybe not too smart either," Price quipped.

"It is without partisanship that I simply state the obvious," he added. "With his recent five-point program to slow down inflation the President is admitting the administration has played a major role in touching off inflation and the high interest rates which now plague the economy.

"We call this the 'High Cost of London,'" the Pampa rancher-businessman said.

"It has taken Mr. Johnson a long time to 'get off the dime' as the saying goes. I personally believe the country has suffered as a result."

"To put it another way," Price stated, "I believe we wouldn't be talking about a general tax increase if the Johnson administration had laid down wartime priorities for government spending."

Physicist Enrico Fermi was born on this day in 1901.

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

Students have the responsibility to attend school in proper attire as well as with acceptable makeup and hair styles. Although, in some cases the courts have ruled against schools mandatory dress, there still remains an educational responsibility on the part of parents and schools.

The first problem is to determine standards which are generally acceptable. Parents, students, and school authorities should work together to arrive at a reasonable decision. The participation of students will depend upon the grade level which is being considered.

The PTA, a citizens' committee or other similar group might take the basic responsibility for developing a mutually acceptable code. The emphasis on cooperation is particularly important if the standards are going to be effectively followed.

What considerations are important in developing such a code? Care should be taken to avoid unreasonable restrictions. There is a need for flexibility so that students can satisfy their own as well as their parents' individual tastes.

Any restrictions should be aimed at avoiding situations which might cause a disturbance or interfere with the normal operation of the school. Program. Any type of attire, makeup or hair style which is so unusual or represents a "way-out" standard would seem to be unacceptable in a school situation.

There is a feeling held by many educators, psychologists and parents that certain types of dress help to support improper behavior on the part of students. Such items of clothing as short skirts, tight sweaters and tight pants fall into this category.

Serious consideration should be given to the activities in which students participate. The clothing should be such that it is comfortable and does not interfere with the student's performance.

Perhaps the most important factor which should be considered is the educational value of learning to dress properly for various situations. School to a student is very much like a job is to a parent. A bank teller would probably not hold his position very long if he came to work with long hair and dungarees. On the other hand, a brick layer is not expected to wear a tie and white shirt.

STREET TRADE
LONDON (UPI) — When street repairs forced the closing of a sidewalk, police asked Nathan Leaman to open his building as a thoroughfare so pedestrians would not have to walk in traffic. He readily agreed and now reports his clothing business has never been better, what with thousands and thousands of people filing through.

In 1959, Russia claimed to have taken pictures of the far side of the moon for the first time.

RE-ENTRY VEHICLE for future astronauts returning to earth from space could resemble this model rotor craft now undergoing wind-tunnel tests at NASA's Ames Research Center, Mountain View, Calif. It's designed to enter the atmosphere with partially extended rotor blades, angled back, to slow it down from the high speed of orbital flight. Once in the atmosphere, the craft would extend rotors fully, as shown on the model, for descent to earth much as a conventional helicopter makes an unpowered landing.

A U.S. spokesman said about 10 Communists clutched the civilians to themselves and fired submachine guns and rifles at the approaching 101st Division troops in the Central Highlands about 230 miles northeast of Saigon.

The paratroopers fired back and wounded two civilians who were evacuated for treatment, the spokesman said.

The Americans held their fire when they realized the situation and the guerrillas escaped. The spokesman said the paratroopers suffered no casualties. Guerrilla casualties were not reported immediately.

The spokesman said 1,471 Communists were killed in action and another 650 captured. This was about five times the losses of South Vietnamese, American and other free world casualties combined.

The Americans lost 91 men killed, 604 wounded and 17 missing during the same seven-day period ending Saturday.

The Americans held their fire when they realized the situation and the guerrillas escaped. The spokesman said the paratroopers suffered no casualties. Guerrilla casualties were not reported immediately.

The incident occurred near the hamlet of My Phu as the paratroopers swept the area in Operation Seward. Since the operation began Sept. 5, 201 Viet Cong have been killed, 64 captured and 753 suspected guerrillas arrested, the spokesman said. U.S. losses have been light.

Spokesmen also disclosed that Communist casualties last week were one of the highest of the war, reflecting losses to the combined American, South Vietnamese and South Korean operation on the central coast which trapped and chopped up the North Vietnamese 610 Division.

The spokesman said 1,471 Communists were killed in action and another 650 captured. This was about five times the losses of South Vietnamese, American and other free world casualties combined.

U.S. Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, in Viet Nam on a four-day tour to determine what sort of American buildup is needed to win the war, spent the night on the carrier USS Oriskany in the Tonkin Gulf off the coast of North Viet Nam and toured Marine positions just south of the demilitarized zone today along with Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt, U.S. Marine commander in Viet Nam.

The Marines reported killing 19 North Vietnamese in a five-hour fight Wednesday just hours before McNamara flew over the sector in a helicopter well out of range of small arms fire.

The battle took place between elements of the 5th Marine Regiment and a company of Communists probing Marine positions along the northern frontier. Intelligence officials believe the North Vietnamese plan to launch a major attack across the demilitarized zone within a few days after the monsoon rains arrive.

McNamara announced there were no plans for extending the one-year tour of U.S. service men fighting in Viet Nam, boosting the morale of thousands of GIs and officers.

Package of Bills Await Senate OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A package of bills to provide election-year gifts for doctors, lawyers, the nation's elderly and an assortment of other interests was ready today for Senate approval.

The benefits were all part of a measure some have labeled the "Christmas tree package." More than 40 provisions, many of them highly controversial, have been tacked on to a House-passed bill originally designed to attract foreigners to invest in U.S. securities.

But when Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., and the other members of the Senate Finance Committee got through with the bill, their riders dwarfed the importance of the original measure.

One of the more important of the committee's amendments would provide a $200 million federal program to pay all the drug costs of those 65 and over who enrolled in Medicare's voluntary insurance plan to pay doctor bills.

The original Medicare law provided that the insurance be financed through $3 monthly premiums with the government paying the rest of the cost.

Under the committee's drug cost plan, sponsored by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., the premium would be increased by 50 cents and the government would chip in an equal amount.

The plan would require, however, that patients buy the drugs they need only under the "generic," or technical, name rather than purchasing the more expensive trade name products. It was estimated that if trade name buying was permitted the cost of the program would jump from $200 million to $500 million.

Rotary Club Hears Talk On McClellan

Forest ranger John McLemore described Lake McClellan as "the lake of 1,000 trees" in his talk before the Pampa Rotary Club yesterday in the Coronado Inn.

He said that the lake covers 376 surface acres and was noted for its excellent fishing this past summer. Since the spillway was reconstructed last year many new improvements have been made in the picnic and camping areas, he added.

In other business, Billy Hawkins was introduced as the Junior Rotarian for the month of October. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hawkins, he is vice president of the Pampa High School student council.

McNamara announced there were no plans for extending the one-year tour of U.S. service men fighting in Viet Nam, boosting the morale of thousands of GIs and officers.

Circulation Manager Named For The News

Tommie Nichols will take over new duties as acting circulation manager for The Pampa Daily News effective Oct. 15, it was announced today by Bill Power, general manager.

Miss Nichols, assistant circulation manager since 1958, began employment with The News in May, 1955, on a motor newspaper route in the country. In 1956, she was promoted to country district manager in charge of rural newspaper carriers. In 1957, city carrier routes were added to her list of duties. In 1958, she was promoted to assistant circulation manager.

Miss Nichols will be in charge of 64 city carriers, 22 country carriers and seven route-room and office personnel. Larry C. Wingert, former News circulation manager, has been transferred to Brownsville, where he will become circulation manager for a sister paper of The News, The Brownsville Herald.

Miss Nichols makes her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Nichols, 2300 Mary Ellen.

Knights Columbus Honor Homer As 'Knight of the Year'

At the annual Columbus Day Banquet held yesterday at Jim's Steak House, Hub-Homer was named "Knight of the Year" by the Frank Keim Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Father Charles J. Welter, in presenting the award, stated that Mr. Homer most exemplified what a Knight should be.

Speaker for the evening was Father William V. Brennan, C.M., pastor of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church.

"The true Knight stands characterized by mercy, humility, goodness, by constant patience and that all his life's activity is ennobled by Christian charity," Brennan said.

Chairmen for the evening, Dwain Urbanczyk, Larry Hemphill and Jack D. Edwards presided over the social hour preceding the banquet and the dance following.

Lumbermen Slate Monday Meeting

A special meeting, sponsored by the Lumbermen's Association of Texas, will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, at the Coronado Inn in Amarillo, according to J. B. Woodington, White House Lumber Co. The session has been called to discuss proposed legislation to be submitted to the State Legislature and outline the activities of the association's legislative committee of which Woodington is the chairman.

Gene Klein, Star Lumber Co., Amarillo, will be toastmaster and is handling reservations for the meeting which is open to all retail lumber dealers and building material suppliers. A dutch treat dinner will precede the program.

Other speakers will be Wm. B. Carrow, vice president and legal counsel of the Lumbermen's Association of Texas, and Joe W. Butler, association manager. Both are from Austin.

In 1958, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harold Burton retired after 13 years because of poor health.

Two Famed Thunderbird Jets Collide

INDIAN SPRINGS, Nev.

(UPI) —Two Super Saber jet fighters—members of the Air Force's proud Thunderbirds exhibition flying team—collided in flight Wednesday over this small desert community.

Killed in the flaming crash of their two-seat F100s were Capt. Robert H. Morgan, 32, Pendleton, S.C., and Maj. Frank E. Liethen, 36, Appleton, Wis. Liethen was executive officer of the Thunderbirds.

Capt. Robert E. Beckel, 29, Walla Walla, Wash., the pilot of the other plane, an F100, brought his crippled aircraft in for a landing at Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

The two planes had been practicing a "Half Cuban Eight" maneuver, in which they raced at each other at a closing speed of about 1,000 miles an hour, made a close pass, and then shot almost straight upward.

At about 6,000 feet they made a loop, flying for a moment upside down before a planned roll out in opposite directions.

The Air Force said the two planes must have touched at the top of the loop at an estimated altitude of 6,000 feet. Each plane would have been traveling at about 500 m.p.h. at the point of impact.

Morgan ejected successfully, but his parachute failed to open. His ejection seat and crumpled parachute were found several hundred yards from the main wreckage near a bright yellow weather sock.

Liethen, perhaps unconscious or perhaps because his ejection seat was damaged too severely, remained in the jet.

The Thunderbirds, four aerobically fliers, were volunteers for the precision flying duty. They were to have held a demonstration this weekend.

Commissioners Authorize Pay For Road Work

Gray County Commissioners in session yesterday in Gray County Courthouse, authorized payment of $5,737.87 to the Humble Pipeline Co. as reimbursement for casing and lowering of 10-inch pipeline on the Lake McClelland Rd. and payment of $1,069.83 authorized to the Jagnolia Pipeline Co. for casing and lowering pipeline across US 60, west of Pampa.

County Commissioners also approved $1,425 to be paid Roy Boswell for laying a concrete drive on Kentucky Street. Mrs. Jess Graves was appointed justice of peace for Precinct One in Leffers to fill the unexpired term of her deceased husband, Mrs. J. E. Smith was named assistant election judge for Precinct 7 in other business transacted by the commission.

County Republican Headquarters to Open Here Soon

Formal opening of Gray County Republican headquarters is scheduled for 12 noon Saturday in the old Montgomery-Ward store building, 217 N. Cuyler, according to George Cree Jr., GOP county chairman.

Cree said Republican candidates, headed by congressional candidate Bob Price and his wife, will be on hand to greet visitors at the headquarters opening. There will be music and refreshments, Cree stated.

Boy Scout Training Schedule to Begin

The fall training schedule for leaders working with Boy Scout Troops will begin at 7:30 p.m., today at the Scout Service Center, 815 N. Sumner, in Pampa. Under leadership of Scouters Conner Hicks and Bill Felter, the training schedule will include:

Today: The Boy Scout Program; Oct. 20: The Patrol Method; Oct. 22-23: The Outdoor Program; Nov. 10: Troop Program Planning; and Nov. 17: Advancement, Troop Finance and Boy Behavior.

All sessions will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Scout Service Center, with the exception of Oct. 22-23, which will be an actual overnight at Camp Kiowa. All men interested in Boy Scouting are invited to the leader training sessions.

House Burglarized Of Jewelry, Bills

Four pairs of cufflinks, three necklaces and approximately $3 were taken in a house burglary Saturday, according to Pampa police.

Police said L. T. Jones, 619 Carr, reported today that the burglary occurred while he and his wife were away from their home, between 2-4 p.m., Saturday.

In 1792, George Washington laid the cornerstone of the President's House, the first public building to be built in Washington, D.C.

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My husband sneers at me in front of other people. I've tried and tried to tell him that the mean way he snaps at me reflects on him but he goes on using it. Our two children are upset by it, too, especially my 9-year-old boy. I've tried to avoid these sneering cracks by keeping quiet when people are around but my husband sneers at this, too. I don't know how much longer I can take this treatment. Maybe divorce is my only answer as I am very nervous.

ANSWER: I don't know what your answer is. For some women the answer is the decision to endure this kind of mistreatment. And for very realistic reasons, too. They remain with the mistreatment for financial security, for their social status as wives, to insure their children's support and education. They can even bring themselves to tolerate infidelities.

They know what they're doing. They've matched their expectations of their husbands to what their husbands are. So they don't get nervous when the husbands behave in accordance with what they are. They don't live in a constant state of embittered and disappointed resentment because the husbands fail to come up with considerate treatment.

But you don't sound like such a realistic woman. Everything you say suggests that you think you should be able to alter husband's contempt to affection. As you say yourself, you have tried and tried to make him different and persuade him to act in accordance with what he is not. So maybe separation is your answer. And you'll have to stop taking his mistreatment for the sake of your health.

Unlike you, the realistic woman doesn't take it. She just shrugs it off as expected experience. And sometimes, after 30 years, she wins, too. Her mistreating husband begins to respect her indifference, her endurance and starts to like her better than he ever did before.

The point is, we cannot change arrogant, sneering people into kind ones. They're crazy about themselves as they are. They think of themselves as fearless, strong and honest. Because they are not scared to be sneering and nasty, they think they are wonderful. So, as long as they admire their own arrogance, there's no way to change them.

They're exactly like those gang kids who believe that we would all get a big charge out of beating up old people sunning themselves in parks and that the only reason we don't do it is that we're a bunch of hypocritical, preachy scare-cats.

So your question would seem to be, "Can I or can't I shrug off my husband's unkindness?" Use cups, coasters or other protectors under heavy furniture to avoid damage to floor surfaces or carpeting.

Dear Abby.... Germ-Free Romeo Is Simply Unkissable

DEAR ABBY: I have met a remarkable man who does not believe in the delightful practice of kissing for the simple reason that it spreads germs. He is sincere and practices his belief to the fullest. How can a normal man resist the urge to kiss someone he cares deeply for? Surely there must be some temptation!

Or do you think this is a characteristic to be admired. A victory of intelligence over the emotions? Personally I would risk a few delicious germs, but he doesn't feel that way about it. What do you think? Sign this:

KISSABLE BUT UNKISSABLE
DEAR UNKISSABLE: I'm all for a clean relationship, but this is ridiculous! A kissless romance, as I see it, is not likely to hatch into anything as intimate as marriage, where it's share and share alike, germs included. So if that's what you had in mind, kiss this germ-conscious Romeo good-bye. And be careful not to breathe on him.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law problem is different from any I have ever seen in your column. She can't do enough for me. When I call and invite her and dad here for dinner she says, "It's too much work for you — come here instead." And she won't take no for an answer. So we go, and she always sends us home loaded with tasty leftovers. She is constantly sending my husband and me gifts.

She sounds perfect, doesn't she? Well, she's far from it. On two occasions I've bought her gifts. She returned both of them and credited them to my account. She's the most ungracious guest I have ever known.

When I finally got her to come over one afternoon, she sat with her coat on and stayed only a few minutes. She wouldn't even have a cup of tea because she didn't want to put me to any trouble. What on earth is wrong with her?

DEAR BEWILDERED: She means well, but she has never learned how to accept anything graciously. The burden of gratitude is too heavy for her to say "thank you." I doubt if she will ever change. So try to understand her.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who would entertain her sewing club by reading them the letters her son received from his girl friend? The son was away fighting a war at the time, and the girl friend happened to be my daughter!

When I heard this, my blood just boiled. It was back in 1943, but every time I think about it I get upset all over again.

My daughter is married and I don't know what happened to the boy, but I still think that mother had her nerve. Every so often I get the strongest urge to call this woman up and give her a piece of my mind. Should I?

STILL MAD
DEAR STILL: No.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "UNHAPPY" IN ENGLEWOOD: Your unhappiness appears to be caused not so much by what you don't have as by what your neighbor has. Reflect on it.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Chapter Members Enjoy Social

Members and pledges of Phi Epsilon Beta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi were entertained at a "Come-As-You-Are" social held recently in the home of Mrs. Max Patton, 2136 N. Russell.

Hostesses, Mrs. Patton, and Mrs. Calvin McConnell, served refreshments of soft drinks and cookies.

Pledges attending included Mmes. Jim Brashears, Bill Caswell, Gary Clark, Don Hufstetler, John Lyle, Calvin McConnell and Jerry Rockwell.

Members present were Mmes. David Duffy, Randy Giesler, Ted Givens, Sonny Golden, Max Patton and Coyle Winborn.

Pound Pirates Hold Regular Weekly Meet

Pampa Pound Pirates TOPS Club met Monday evening for a regular meeting. The meeting was called to order with the reciting of the TOS Pledge. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Stacey Stubbs. A thank you note was read from the Borger Weight Watchers TOPS Club, for the salad supper held Sept. 26.

The club reported a loss of 27½ pounds and a gain of 12 pounds.

Mrs. Anna Towry was crowned monthly queen for September, with a loss of 16 pounds. Mrs. Fran White was awarded the fruit bowl for being weekly queen.

New members are Mmes. Vicki Geunther, Pasty Slavick, Vi Harris, Linda Futcher and Gerry Dahl. Mmes. Mary Smart and Cora Lee Baer were visitors for the week.

Following the meeting, Mmes. Peggy Fisher and Fran White were hostesses to a surprise baby shower given to Mrs. Stacey Stubbs, Stork Club member.

Anyone interested in joining TOPS can call Mrs. Mary

COOK'S TOUR

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Would you believe that the Pilgrims stopped at Plymouth Rock instead of Virginia because they'd run out of beer?

Or that the original diet drink may have been spiced wine distilled and mixed with sugar?

Or that raw cabbage seasoned with vinegar is a hangover remedy and fried owl eggs, a cure for alcoholism?

Fact or folklore, all these stories are part of the remarkable history of wine and food that is described in a recently published encyclopedic volume by William Younger. He was a Scottish poet-novelist who may be best known to the reading public as William, Mole, author of five thrillers, including the best-selling "Hammersmith Maggot."

Younger's posthumously published "Gods, Men and Wine" is a thriller of sorts itself. But the amusing and sometimes outrageous stories like the aforementioned must be dug out of a mass of scholarly detail and speculation about wine's early development and progress through the centuries. The Pilgrim report is contained in the brief final chapter on American wines that was written by John Hutchison, who attributes it to the Pilgrims themselves.

Younger theorizes that wine was discovered by a woman and tells one mythological version of its origin.

In ancient Persia, a member of King Jamshid's harem supposedly sneaked a drink from a jar labeled poison because she preferred a death to an incessant headache. The jar contained grapes that had fermented accidentally.

The myth continues that the lady, who didn't even suffer a hangover, liked the wine so well that she polished off the remainder before confessing her secret to the king, who promptly ordered more of it made.

The book, which is handsomely and profusely illustrated, is as much a history of eating habits as it is of drinking. It is published by The Wine and Food Society, Ltd., in associ-with the World Publishing Co. Among the well-documented food facts the author includes are:

TASTING BEE — Mrs. E. N. Franklin, Mrs. W. C. Newlin and Mrs. R. A. Newton, left to right, are shown sampling dishes to be prepared for the Tasting Bee to be held from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. tomorrow. The event, sponsored by St. Paul Methodist Church WSCS, will be held in Fellowship Hall of the church at 511 N. Hobart. Tickets for the event, at which recipes for all dishes entered will be available, may be purchased from any WSCS member or at the door.

Cheese cake was popular as long ago as ancient Greece.

Skimpy breakfasts date back at least to early Rome. Coffee and doughnut-dunkers take note.

The Roman breakfast, the jentaculum, was little more than the barest satisfaction of hunger. A piece of bread, with perhaps a few olives or raisins, seems to have been usual, though boys might eat a pastry, but in general, it was a meal of no importance, eaten in haste, and quite without ceremony.

Remember the old nursery rhyme about "four-and-twenty blackbirds baked in a pie?"

That was no joke in the Middle Ages. Younger writes that medieval men were big meat-eaters who preferred tame or game meat to fish and that the dinner table was often graced by "small birds," among which were partridges, quail, larks, pigeons, swifts and blackbirds.

He fixes the beginning of gastronomy (the art or science of good eating) in Elizabethan times, when those who could afford lived largely on "meat and game, geese and chickens and a certain amount of fish."

Their more formal meals might include sweets such as "marzipaine" (marzipan, a ground almond confection), jellies, fruit conserves and marmalades.

He added that they rarely ate vegetables but did consume lots of fruit.

Younger establishes the real start of France's reputation "as a nation of gourmets" (connoisseurs in eating and drinking) at the end of the 17th century, after the founding of one of western Europe's first wine and food societies, the Ordre des Coteaux.

Eggs Florentine Special Treat at Sunday Brunch
By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Enjoy these two special Sunday recipes, one for brunch, the other for dessert. Enriched crumbs from bread to which valuable "B" vitamins and iron have been added give you extra food value with no extra calories or cost.

BAKED EGGS FLORENTINE
1 (10-oz.) package frozen, chopped spinach
1 (11-oz.) can Mandarin orange sections, drained
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon marjoram
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
4 eggs
Cook spinach in boiling, salted water just until thawed; spread out in 4 individual heat-proof casseroles. Arrange 8-9 orange sections around the edge of each casserole. Sprinkle cheese over oranges and spinach. Combine enriched bread crumbs, salt, pepper, marjoram and melted butter. Spread to make an indentation. Bake at 325 degrees 15 minutes. Remove from oven and break one egg into center of each casserole. Return to oven and continue baking for 15 minutes longer, or until egg is set. Serves four.

CHEDDAR APPLE PUDDING
2 quarts (1/2-inch) peeled apple slices
3/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
3 tablespoons fine, dry enriched bread crumbs
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
3/4 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 quart (1/2-inch) enriched bread cubes, toasted
2 tablespoons butter or margarine melted
1/4 cup orange juice
1/2 cup soft, tiny enriched bread crumbs
Arrange 1-3 of apple slices in a buttered (2-quart) casserole. Combine brown sugar, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and dry bread crumbs; cut in butter. Add orange peel and cheese. Sprinkle 1-3 of cheese mixture over apple layer. Combine toasted bread cubes with melted butter; spread 1/2 of cubes over cheese-topped apples. Repeat layers, using a layer of apple slices, then cheese mixture on top. Press down firmly and pour orange juice over all. Sprinkle soft bread crumbs over top. Butter the inside of a tight-fitting cover and place it over pudding. Bake at 425 degrees 30 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking until apples are tender. Serve warm or cold with cinnamon ice cream or whipped cream.

Meat Ring Made Sweet and Saucy With Cranberries
A ruby-topped meat ring is an invitation to dining that's hard to resist. When it's as good looking as this, most folks will figure it's good to eat, too!

Certainly, it's true, also, that Sweet Saucy Meat Ring is good to eat with its unusual combination of ground beef and ham topped with whole cranberry sauce.

1 1/2 pounds ground beef
SWEET SAUCY MEAT RING
1/4 pound ground smoked ham
1/4 cup dry bread crumbs
1/4 cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup brown sugar
1 cup drained, whole cranberry sauce
Combine beef and ham. Mix bread crumbs, milk, eggs, onions, salt and pepper and add to meat. Mix thoroughly. Pack firmly into a 2-quart greased ring mold. Combine brown sugar and cranberry sauce. Pour half of mixture over meat loaf. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) 1 hour. Heat remaining cranberry mixture slowly until hot throughout. Spoon over loaf. 6 to 8 servings.

Try Igloo Oatmeal Cookies

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Food and Women's Page Editors Will Be Holly's Guests
HEREFORD — Some 20 food and women's page editors from dailies, weeklies and television stations throughout Central and West Texas and Eastern New Mexico will gather in Hereford Friday and Saturday for a concentrated review of the latest techniques in food technology.

Holly's Food Editors' Tour will begin Friday evening, with a talk and demonstration of "Desserts as a Basic Part in Well-Rounded Menu Planning" by Carol Truax of New York City, author of "The Ladies Home Journal Dessert Cookbook" and "Father Was a Gourmet."

On Saturday, the editors will breakfast with Raymond E. Hassett of the public affairs office, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Houston, who will discuss "Dining in Outer Space." A highlight of the morning will be the reconstruction of some actual space food capsules. During the remainder of the morning, the editors will tour the Merrill E. Shoup Plant of Holly Sugar Corp., the only beet sugar factory in Texas.

At the concluding luncheon at the Hereford Community Center, the editors will bet a few tips on food content judging from Betty Lou Henry, food editor of the "Farm Journal," Philadelphia, Penn. After the luncheon, the editors will assist in the selection and awarding of prizes to some of the best cooks on the High Plains.

Why Not Barbecue Pot-Roast

When outdoor chefs turn in their tall hats and are ready to clean up their smoky, ash-crusted grills, it's time to turn to the range for barbecuing.

Start with a slow-cooking pot-roast that carries a barbecue flavor. This is contributed by catsup, vinegar, brown sugar and onion. A good cut of meat to use comes from the beef chuck or shoulder, advises meat expert, Reba Staggs. It's an arm pot-roast, identified by the small round bone. Or, choose blade pot-roast with a slender "seven" shaped bone.

Should there be any of this pot roast left, slice the beef thin for some of the best barbecued sandwiches you've tasted.

BARBECUED POT-ROAST

3 to 4-pound beef arm or blade pot-roast
3 tablespoons lard or

Lemon Slices Add Tart Note To Veal Chops

Lemon slices baked on top of veal chops add a pleasantly piquant note to this delicate meat. At the same time, they give a "built-in" garnish!

This recipe calling for four veal chops is ideal for that small intimate luncheon you may be having for the committee on which you're active or for a group of friends returning from vacation.

Four chops will weigh one to one and one-half pounds. Those selected may be either loin rib chops, advises meat expert, Reba Staggs.

BRAISED VEAL CHOPS WITH LEMON

4 veal loin or rib chops, cut 3/4 to 1-inch thick
1 clove garlic (onion may be substituted)
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon thyme, if desired
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
4 lemon slices
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 cup water

Rub frying-pan with cut clove of garlic before melting lard or adding drippings in pan. Season flour with thyme and cayenne pepper. Dredge chops in seasoned flour and brown. Place a slice of lemon on each chop. Add bay leaf, Worcestershire sauce and 1/2 cup water. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1 hour or until done. 4 servings.

Enriched Bread Helps Keep Family Healthy

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
The recent jump in the price of bread has put "the staff of life" back in the headlines. Actually, for the past several years most of us have been eating less and less bread, flour and cereals. Nonetheless, because bread, like milk and mother-love, has emotional significance, any price jump raises a storm among consumers and nonconsumers alike.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of enrichment of bread, flour and cereals, a milestone in raising nutrition generally. The enrichment formula adds a number of vitamins including the B group (thiamine, niacin and riboflavin), plus iron, to bread, flour and cereals.

Today, therefore, despite small increase in price, bread is a family food value bargain. Don't waste a crumb of it. Rediscover ways to use it in combination with other foods.

LAMB BREAST WITH CARROT STUFFING

2 1/2 tablespoons melted drippings or shortening
2 1/4 cups (1 1/2-inch) enriched soft bread cubes
1/2 cup finely shredded raw carrots
2 eggs, beaten
6 tablespoons finely chopped onion
6 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup hot bouillon
1 lamb breast with pocket and cracked bones (About 2 pounds)

Combine drippings, soft bread cubes, carrots, onion, beaten eggs and salt. Add bouillon and mix well. Fill pocket in lamb breast with stuffing. Place in a shallow pan, with breast ribs down, and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) until meat is tender, or about one hour and forty-five minutes. Serves four.

When preparing potatoes for baking or boiling with the skins on, use a nylon net ball as a scrubber. It also is excellent for cleaning the hands after preparing bread or pie crust.

Food Buying Guide Enriched Rolls Boost Food Value

EDITORS NOTE: The following guide to the nation's food shopping buys for this coming week was prepared by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior for United Press International.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The food shopping notes for this weekend are somewhat brighter. Beef and pork supplies are increasing and many vegetables and fruits are, eighth coming into harvest or still in good supply.

Roast beef and steak cuts are reasonably priced this weekend so you might plan to stock up or buy larger amounts. Also, in the pork section, chops, steak and roast cuts are good finds for the economy-minded shopper.

In many areas, egg prices are reported dropping. Check for specials. And broiler-fryers and turkeys remain good protein buys.

On the vegetable counter, carrots, celery, onions, peppers and tomatoes are in bountiful supply in most areas of the country.

And look for apples, grapes, pears and bananas when you are out shopping for fruits. All are good weekend buys.

Fish sticks and canned tuna are the national fish plentiful for weekend shopping.

Television Will Accompany First 3-Man Space Crew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Television cameras will accompany the first three-man crew aboard the Apollo spaceship to give American home viewers their first live pictures from space, the federal space agency said today.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said the crew would take along a small, hand-held camera on the first Apollo flight, scheduled for a mission of up to 14 days tentatively in early December. Subsequent missions — including the first American landing on the moon — also call for the use of television.

The Russians have had live television on several of their manned space flights. But the United States, in the Mercury and Gemini programs leading up to Apollo, has not had boosters powerful enough to handle the extra weight of a television camera.

Named to fly the first manned Apollo mission are Lt. Col. Virgil (Gus) Grissom and Lt. Col. Edward White, both of the Air Force, and Navy Lt. Roger B. Chaffee. Their flight will be the first in the series leading up to a landing by two astronauts on the moon.

The NASA spokesman said that not only would the small camera be used to take pictures of earth from the spacecraft's window, but would be used to help ground controllers keep tabs on the flight by photographing the cabin's instrument panel.

"If all works well, everything checks out, we hope we'll have some pictures for the networks on the first flight," the spokesman said.

Plans Complete for State Bar of Texas Convention

AMARILLO—Plans were completed Wednesday for a regional meeting of the State Bar of Texas — the Northwest Texas Regional Convention — to be held here Friday and Saturday, Nov. 4-5, at Holiday Inn West.

Jack Hazlewood of Amarillo is convention general chairman. The host organization is the Amarillo Bar Association. Host Bar directors are Floyd H. Richards, Dalhart, and Travis D. Shelton, Lubbock.

The largest bar meeting ever to be held in the Panhandle, it will attract lawyers of 57 area counties. Highlights of the two-day meeting will include a panel discussion, titled: "Recent Significant Developments in Criminal-Constitutional Law." Panelists will include: U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, Dallas; John D. Cofer, Austin and Percy Foreman, Houston, noted criminal defense attorneys; John F. Onion Jr., Democratic nominee for judge of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, San Antonio and William Alexander, first assistant district attorney, Dallas. Justice T. Gilbert Sharpe, Corpus Christi Court of Civil Appeals, Brownsville, will be the moderator.

State Bar officers, to preside over the various sessions, are: W. O. Shafer, Odessa, president; Thomas M. Phillips, Houston, president-elect; Ralph W. Brite, San Antonio, vice-president and Howard G. Barker, Fort Worth, chairman of the board of directors.

The meeting will open with a session on various aspects of economic research and professional efficiency. "Shop - talk" sessions will concern tort and compensation law and real estate, probate and trust law.

Ben H. Stone Jr., president of the Amarillo Bar Association, will preside over the Saturday luncheon at which judges of Northwest Texas will be honored.

A thought for the day—President James Monroe said: "National honor is national property of the highest value."

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst President Johnson's recent conciliatory gesture toward Communist East Europe appears to have had two interesting and perhaps unexpected results.

The almost instant Soviet response and a subsequent statement by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko that both sides honestly were seeking agreement on non-proliferation of nuclear weapons.

The negative West German response which seems to forecast more trouble for Chancellor Ludwig Erhard who already has troubles enough.

Whether the results came as a surprise to the President depends upon what he may or may not have known in advance. And that he may leave to future historians such as those who now delve so profitably into the mind of the late President Kennedy.

Changes Posture

In any event, the Soviet reaction bore little resemblance to its position only a few months ago when Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin coolly let it be known that no agreement between the Soviet Union and the United States could be possible without U.S. withdrawal from South Viet Nam.

The natural question is why? The question raised by the Germans after the presidential speech may or may not have been planted deliberately.

Every chancellor has on its payroll men whose job it is to look beneath every phrase of any world leader, no matter how innocent it may appear or however casually it may have been tossed off.

In this case it was the President's remarks that the United States respects world frontiers.

Television in Review

By RICK D UBROW
United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jean Arthur, that grand comedienne of the past who was badly advised in doing her new CBS-TV situation humor series about a lady lawyer, is being canceled out of the network schedule.

Her final broadcast will be Dec. 5. Starting Dec. 12, her Monday lot will be filled by the old panel program, "To Tell the Truth," which is being brought back as a night-time entry.

Miss Arthur is the second major performer to be canceled this new season. The first was Tammy Grimes, who also had a situation comedy, and also was badly advised in her project about a madcap heiress.

Both shows did poorly in the ratings that were issued Monday and received poor notices as well. While CBS-TV was canceling Miss Arthur's program formally on Wednesday, it also was announcing that Carol Burnett will have her own one-hour musical-variety series beginning next September.

And over at NBC-TV, it was finally confirmed officially that the police series called "Dragnet," once television's most popular show, will be revived next year, with Jack Webb returning in the star role.

"Never in this country's history has there been more interest in law enforcement and its problems," said an NBC-TV announcement.

Another series about police officers, ABC-TV's new "Felon Squad," finished high in the ratings. One of its stars is Ben Alexander, who used to be Webb's sidekick on "Dragnet." Webb's new sidekick will be veteran actor Harry Morgan. CBS-TV, meanwhile, is also

Second and Third Quarters are Bad Ones for Pampa

By RON CROSS
Sports Editor

When Pampa and Monterey met at 2 p.m. Saturday in Lowery Field at Lubbock, it would be safe to assume if the Harvesters play a better second and third quarter they have a good chance of winning.

Statistics show the Harvesters are at their worst in these two quarters and have been outscored, 54-20 in these two periods.

Through five games the fourth quarter has been the best for Pampa, followed by the first, second and third periods.

Pampa has tallied 34 points in the fourth quarter, 20 in the first, 14 in the second and only six in the third.

The opposition has 12 first period points, 32 in the second, 22 in the third and 16 in the final quarter.

Although they are 3-2 for the season Pampa has been outscored, 82-74 in the five games.

Ted Heiskell took over the rushing leadership last week. The Harvester fullback gained 50 yards for a total of 326. But halfback Gary McCarrell, who carried only seven times against Palo Duro, still leads in average with 310 yards on 52 carries for an average of 5.9 per carry.

Heiskell has carried 72 times and has a 4.5 average, same as halfback L. D. Rowden who has carried 49 times for 223 yards.

Doc Cornutt, who really is a tackle, has moved to third place in the pass receiving department with two catches for 45 yards. McCarrell still leads with 92 yards on three catches and James Matney is second with three catches for 45 yards.

Matney, who has missed two games, still leads in punting with eight kicks for 323 yards for an average of 41.4 per game.

The Harvesters will have their hands full this week with the Plainsmen.

Monterey is the pre-conference favorite, but like Pampa, has not played up to snuff and has a 3-2 record themselves.

Monterey has a wealth of talent at its disposal, especially in the backfield of tailback Randy Surratt, a 170-pound senior; Scott Cassell, a 160-pound junior wingback; Randy Franks, a tackle turned fullback, who is a senior and weighs 195 and quarterback Jimmy Stiles. A 164-pound senior.

Monterey is a good football team, not afraid to throw the ball and run out of the I formation almost all of the time.

Pampa coach Eural Ramsey calls 'em, "Probably the best team we've faced so far."

Bowling Breaks By Gil

GIL BURGUND

Some things just naturally brighter up the place and make this an easy task such as Bobbie Light practicing and Dwayne Bright with a million questions, Virginia Pettit beaming all over at her first all spare game and in Traveling League too. Incidentally she makes a fine waitress too.

Marilyn Wright thrilled at her first league 200, Emmet Watkins all aglow at his first 200 and Vickie Epperson making a beautiful pickup of the 6-7-10.

And how about this one, five teams on a Tuesday morning league tied for first place with the sixth just one point out. Wouldn't that be a thriller at the end of a league season?

Talking about brightening up the place Hoyt La Rue was so proud of his fancy bonnet that he wore it all thru the league and claimed he had one of his best series anybody else want to buy a hat?

Ann Best couldn't believe it possible to have a 173 and then a 98 but she found it wasn't too hard to do after all.

Lots of splits picked up the past couple of weeks and mentioning a few, we have Viola Bullard 6-7-10, Nancy Skinner 6-7-10, Hank Gruben 3-7-10, Pauline Redman 5-7-9, Florence Mounce 3-7, Linda Deatherage 6-7, Jane Skinner 5-10, Tiny Harmon 2-4-10 and Joyce Masters had five splits in six frames and didn't pick a one. At the same time Juanita Bell came up with a 180 game on 106 average.

These gals are getting to be such sharpies that I expect to see the Big Four picked up any day.

Linda Jordan, Linda Grimsley, Achsa Duncan and Candice Merrell were all lucky and only missed one night of bowling after being involved in a wreck shortly after leaving the lanes.

Agnes Robbins was probably thinking more about her bowling scores than she should have been and the darned parked truck just wouldn't get out of the way.

Jo Ann Cansler had a real gripe the other night, she bowled the best series ever and they still lost four points, better luck next time.

Bob Johnson insists the big R.E.A. on the back of his bowling shirt means Railway Express Agency and not Rural Electrification as it sometimes does.

But Pampa will be at full strength for the first time in two weeks with ends David Martindale and James Matney and quarterback Gary Hyatt ready to go.

Floyd Leading Sahara Golf

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Whether you like it or not, weather was the prime topic of discussion today going into the second round of the 72-hole $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf Tournament with young Ray Floyd leading the pack by one stroke.

Floyd got an early start in Wednesday's first round — before gusty winds up to 25 miles an hour swept the Paradise Valley Country Club course — and fired a three-under-par 34-68.

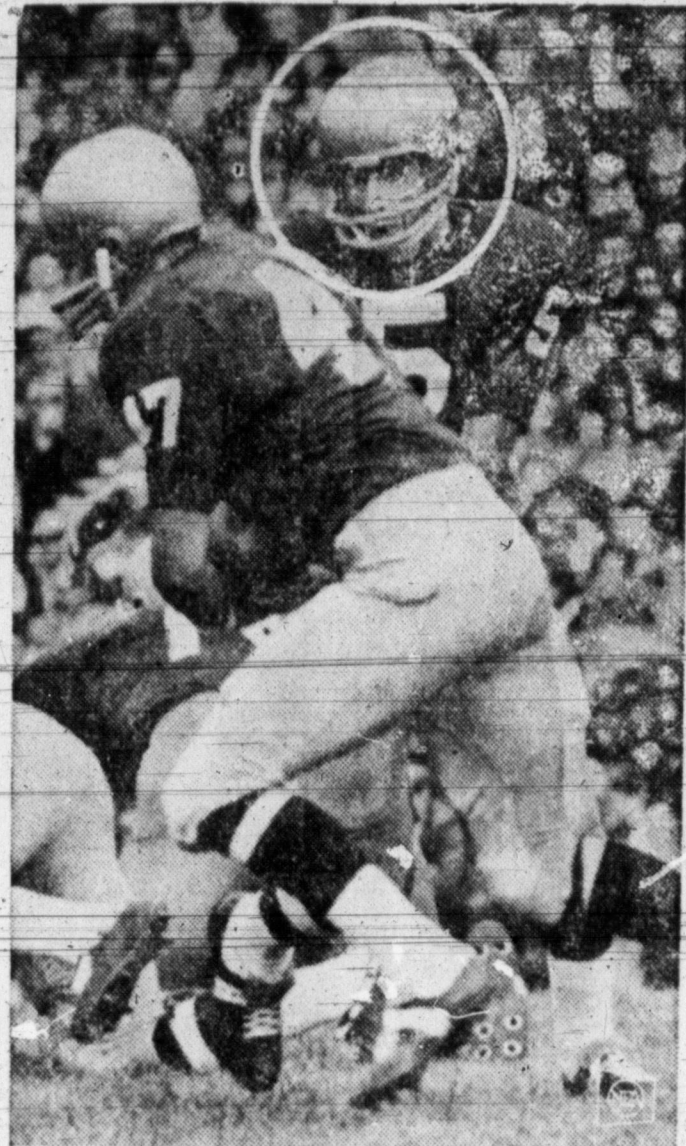

Defending champion Billy Casper, the year's leading money-winner win $133,000 in his kick, had putter trouble in the first round and carded a 37-36 73.

Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus both matched par 71 and seemed content with that figure because of their difficulties with the wind.

The U.S. Weather Bureau forecast continued winds for today with 'no possibility of showers in this desert oasis.'

Only eight golfers, shooting for the top prize of $20,000, broke par in the first round.

One stroke behind Floyd at 69 were the veteran Mike Souchak, Corona, Calif., and George Archer the Lanky Gilroy, Calif., who had identical cards of 35-34.

HANRATTY goes from Notre Dame's sophomore quarterback Terry Hanratty (5) to halfback Nick Eddy (47). Hanratty and Eddy are two of the Irish players who will carry much of the burden of maintaining Notre Dame's position in the top 10 this season.

SAN ANGELO TOPS AAAA

Bucks Dropped To Second Place

By United Press International
Forney replaced White Deer as Class A's No. 1 Texas schoolboy football team this week, while Galena Park High Spring Branch Spring Woods, Angleton and Honey Grove climbed into the United Press International's Top 10 ratings.

White Deer's week of idleness coupled with Forney's rocking 46-0 defeat of Class AA Rockwall brought on the switch of places by the two Class A powers, while the defeats of Brazosport, Marshall, El Campo and Clifton made room for the newcomers.

San Angelo in AAAA, McKinney in AAA and Sweeny in AA retained their No. 1 ratings and Class A's Top 10 remained intact without a single shift in positions as all clubs won impressively.

Some Favorites Thrown
Brazosport, ranked No. 8, was beaten 15-14 by Baytown Lee, and 10th-ranked Marshall lost 27-13 to Shreveport Fair Park. El Campo, rated No. 3 in AAAA, was telled 7-0 by Lamar Consolidate, and Clifton, rated No. 8 in A, was beaten 26-14 by Hillsboro.

Galena Park and Spring Woods wound up in the No. 9 and 10 spots in AAAA, Angleton and Honey Grove in the No. 10 slots in AAA and A, respectively.

There were quite a few changes in position in all but AAA. In AAAA, for instance, Wichita Falls-Rider slid from fifth to eighth after being tied 0-0 by Wichita Falls High, paving the way for San Antonio McCulloch and Garland High each to move up one notch. Abilene Cooper climbed two to seventh. Amarillo-Tascosa, Nederland and Austin McCallum held firmly to the No. 2-3-4 spots.

Dumas Advances
In AAA, former No. 1 Dumas climbed from fifth to third with a 27-7 defeat of Borger, Brownwood—also another former No. 1 holder—stayed in No. 4, San Marcos climbed from seventh to fifth, Bridge City and Odessa Ector each climbed three notches to sixth and seventh. Gainesville remained eighth and Lockhart— which lost three games by ineffectuality last week—skidded three places to ninth.

Crowell, which beat Throckmorton 14-0, fell from third to fifth in Class A and Sonora and Spur each moved up one notch to third and fourth. Keller and Dublin held to sixth and seventh and Sudan to ninth, while Hallsville climbed from 10th to eighth.

None of the ranking teams meet each other this week, but Minola in AA and Sonora in A will face undefeated-untied opposition in Chapel Hill and Rankin, respectively. And, Abilene Cooper must face defending state AAAA champ Odessa Permian.

Currently the assistant to baseball commissioner William Eckert, MacPhail was general manager of the Orioles before accepting his present post and built the current Oriole team. He also did the spade work for the trade that brought Frank Robinson to the Orioles from Cincinnati and virtually won everything for the Orioles this season.

INJURED RETURN TO AGGIES

Broyles Pleased Coach

By United Press International
Texas A&M's Aggies, cheered by the return to drills of several injured players, got a pat on the back from Coach Gene Stallings Wednesday.

"They looked pretty good," Stallings conceded, preparing the Ags for their game with TCU at Kyle Field Saturday night.

But Stallings said he was holding off naming starting lineups this early.

"With our assortment of minor, harassing injuries, there are a number of positions where the starters are still doubtful."

Sales Brisk
Ticket sales were brisk and school officials said a turnout of 35,000 was possible for the A&M-TCU game.

The Aggies' opponents—Texas Christian—missed Norman Bulach at drills Wednesday.

But Coach Abe Martin said it wasn't an injury. Bulach just had a lab he had to attend.

Martin said Bulach would start at fullback against A&M. He said junior Norman Reeves of Port Arthur would start at No. 1 left guard, for Reeves' first starting assignment.

At Fayetteville, the Arkansas Razorbacks worked out for an hour and a half in pads and Coach Frank Broyles pronounced it a good practice.

Broyles said he was grooming sophomore Don McIlvogue for Terry Don Phillips' defensive right tackle spot.

Broyles said McIlvogue would probably start against Texas in Austin Saturday. McIlvogue is from Marshall, Tex.

"We've had two good, hard practices this week," Broyles said.

He had good news, too, from Mike Maroney, who is over his hip injury and will play against Texas.

Cepeda Awarded Comeback Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — When a hitter improves from one year to the next by 19 homers, 68 runs batted in and 125 percentage points he shapes up pretty well as the comeback player of the year.

And that's exactly what Orlando Cepeda of the St. Louis National League comeback player of 1966—by the United Press International's baseball experts.

The 29-year-old native of Ponce, P.R., was named by nine of the 24 writers who post-season survey. Relief pitcher Phil Regan of the Los Angeles Dodgers had six votes and Matty Alou of the Pittsburgh Pirates had four.

Gaylord Perry and Lindy McDaniel of the San Francisco Giants, Felipe Alou of the Atlanta Braves and Don Drysdale of the Dodgers were the other players who got one vote each. Manager Billy Hitchcock of the Braves also received a vote.

After averaging 31 homers and 109 runs batted in with an average consistently over .300 for seven years, Cepeda suffered a severe knee ailment in 1965 and finished the year with a .176 average, one homer and five runs batted in.

Alexander and reserve tackle Tony Labay will be out of the Owls' lineup against Southern Methodist Saturday night in Dallas.

Both hurt their knees in the UCLA game last week.

The Owls ran against SMU offensive plays and defensive patterns Wednesday and polished kicking.

The Texas Tech Red Raiders got a warning from Coach J.T. King that their goal line offense and defense was ragged.

"There are a lot of kinks to be worked out," King said. "But Thursday, we will have a general review of the game plan and hope to have our passes kicking. We were dropping too many today."

The Raiders meet Florida State Saturday night in Lubbock.

Baylor's Bears got down to work Wednesday after a two-day layoff as a prize for beating Arkansas.

The Bears actually have nothing but time until Oct. 22 when they play Texas A&M. Saturday is an open date.

Coach John Bridgers said three of the four players who injured ankles against Arkansas were back.

One did not last long, though. Halfback Richard DeFee, center Calvin Kirkham and defensive tackle Mike Thomas were back, although DeFee got the flu and was sent to the hospital.

lost a tough 6-3 game to seventh-ranked Georgia Tech last weekend but battled the Crimson Tide to a 7-7 tie last year. Alabama is given a six-point nod in this game which should decide the favorite for the Southeastern Conference title.

Seek Easier Games
Fourth-ranked UCLA and fifth-ranked Southern California are hoping to have it easier than last weekend when both narrowly avoided defeat. The Bruins are a 22-point choice to handle Penn State while the Trojans are an eight-point pick over Stanford.

Nebraska, No. 6 in the nation, is given a 22-point edge over Kansas State while Georgia Tech is tabbed an eight-point choice over Auburn.

Two of the nation's top quarterbacks will play important roles in eighth-ranked Purdue's fortunes this Saturday. The Gators, relying on Steve Spurrier's arm, are a nine-point choice to beat North Carolina State and the Boilers makers, banking on the passing of Bob Griese, are a five-point choice to defeat Michigan.

Tenth-ranked Oklahoma is a 10-point favorite to defeat Kansas in a Big Eight clash. In other action, Georgia and LSU are rated a toss-up in a Friday night contest, Clemson is a 1-point choice over Duke, Coigate one over Princeton, Army 11 over Rutgers, Maryland eight over West Virginia, Arkansas three over Texas, Minnesota 10 over Iowa and Illinois six over Indiana.

Coaches Give 100 Per Cent for Team

By BUD WILKINSON
With about one-third of the football season over, it is now easy to identify, in varying degrees, the relative strengths of the different teams.

Football teams fall into three general categories — inconsistent teams, winners and losers. I have been associated with all three, and each presents different coaching problems. Strangely, the losers are the easiest to coach. Ridiculed or, at best, pointedly ignored by fans and press, in self-protection, they develop a unique closeness. It's as if the homeland has been invaded. The players band together to defend themselves from their critical public.

Thus, the coaching staff rarely has a morale problem.

No squad wants to win more than a consistent loser. The coaches' problem is one of building confidence. The players must continue to believe in their coaches, and above all, in themselves.

In 1961, our Oklahoma squad lost its first five games, then won its last five. Many people thought our staff had done a remarkable job. Actually, we felt it was among the easiest seasons we had experienced. No squad ever tried harder, and as their skills increased, they became a fine team.

The key was their ability to maintain confidence even though they began the year by setting school records in reverse.

Winning teams present different, if more pleasant problems. Their coaches must maintain the high edge and momentum which has enabled them to win. It is human nature for the successful to be inclined to relax. Then too, the glad-handing, well-wishers who enjoy associating with winners divert and dilute the players' attention from the immediate task at hand.

It is also axiomatic that every opponent plays hardest against an unbeaten foe. There are two factors — the tendency to relax and the maximum effort of all opponents — explains why there are so few unbeaten teams at the end of each season.

Duffy Daugherty, Tommy Prothro, Paul Bryant and other presently unbeaten coaches know full well these problems. Their difficult task is to explain it to their teams so dramatically that the players believe it.

Vince Lombardi, one of the all-time great coaches, was unable to do it last Sunday when his Packers lost to the 49ers, who had not won a single game. The inconsistent team may be the product of injuries, but more often it is the result of inconsistent attitude which leads to indifferent practice. Such teams are "up" for the crucial game, but then fail to reach the same physical and mental peak against the next opponent. The coaching problem here is to convince the squad that there are no "easy" opponents, and that the only important game on the schedule is the "next one."

Winning teams come in two varieties — those winning as expected, like Alabama, and those winning unexpectedly, like Oklahoma this year.

Bucks To See First Conference Action Friday

Area teams start conference warfare Friday with White Deer in 1-A seeing league action for the first time this season and McLean and Wheeler getting the jump on 2-A teams.

White will go into its game with Sunray with a perfect record (4-0) and should emerge the same way.

Sunray is in a rebuilding stage and has won but two of five games. Last year Sunray had a 5-5 record and returned but three starters and five other lettermen in 1966.

Dwayne Cleveland is in his first year as coach, same as Sherill Bottoms of the Bucks.

But Bottoms has come up with a wealth of talent, both offensively and defensively. His crew is the best scoring and thus far has the best defensive records of any Panhandle team.

Wheeler (4-1) plays its first class A conference game even when the Mustangs travel to Silverton Friday night.

The Mustangs bounced back last week to down previously unbeaten Canadian, after being upset the week before.

Wheeler has the two highest scoring backs in the area in fullback Fred Goad and halfback Bobby Vanpool. Goad scored four times last week.

Silverton was picked last in the conference but has been something of a surprise and managed a 3-1 record.

Coach Tom Thornburgh welcomed back five offensive and six defensive starters, plays 15 lettermen from a team that finished 1-9 in '65.

McLean (4-1) and losers only to White Deer, host Jerry Cannon's Claude Mustang's.

McLean has been the surprise team of the area and has a good balanced ball club, topped by fullback Robert Baker with six touchdowns.

Claude has had just a so-so season and returned only four starters, off its 1965 club that finished 3-6-1.

In other area games, non-conference ones, Canadian (4-1) will be trying to shake off last week's defeat and journey to Clarendon.

Leofr's (1-4) will shoot for their second straight victory and should make it when they host Erick, Okla.

WEAVER TO SUNS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Jacksonville Suns, a farm affiliate of the New York Mets, announced Wednesday the acquisition of pitcher Floyd Weaver from the Cleveland Indians' Portland, Ore. club in exchange for infielders Ernie Bowman and Lou Klimchuck and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Weaver was 8-11 with a 4.38 earned run average while Bowman hit .250 in 128 games and Klimchuck batted .230 in 120 games.

UP FOR AIR briefly and stroking his way to another water record is Don Scholander, the young Yale student and multiple Olympic Gold Medal winner, who continues to be the outstanding swimmer in this country, if not the world.

Let's see why Newspaperboys have an advantage over other boys

Only in life newspaperboys get a lot of good business experience. They are taught salesmanship and they develop self-assurance. It becomes easy for them to meet and talk to people.

As independent merchants, they learn the American way of Free Enterprise. They buy at wholesale, sell at retail. Their profits depend upon working hard, building up their routes and satisfying customers.

They must handle money and keep accurate records. Many of them are learning the value of insurance through participation in our "CHAMPION" Accident Insurance Program which covers them 24 hours a day.

The Pampa Daily News

Note to Subscribers: Please have your money ready when your Newspaperboy makes his collections. It will save him time and will also help him maintain his profits.

There's no doubt that newspaperboys get a well-rounded experience that gives them a head-start on the other boys. It's no wonder that they will be among tomorrow's most successful businessmen.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities. We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

An Idea on Freedom

Few oppose freedom when it happens to agree with their immediate advantage; too few favor freedom when it goes contrary to such advantage. The true lover of freedom is the man who is willing to take the temporary lumps along with the long-range good.

James R. Hoffa, general president of the Teamsters Union, pointed this out in the September issue of the organization magazine. Referring to the recent airline strike, he stated:

"It was not an emergency created when the U.S. Senate passed a resolution which, if acted upon by the House and signed by the President, would have forced free men to return to their jobs."

"Whenever sentiment exists among men who make laws in a free country to force that country's citizens to work against their will, truly a national emergency does exist."

"A lesson that seems never to have been learned in this country is that inconvenience is a small price to pay for freedom. Because once freedom is swept away by a law that forces free men to work against their will, the price of buying back freedom is seldom available to those who make the purchase."

The News concurs with Mr. Hoffa on this point. He has accurately discerned that force, even legal force, has no justifiable function in compelling men to work. The reader has only to apply this one great principle to discover the truly exciting possibilities that inhere in the

Parents Set the Example

Sometimes parents forget how important their example at home is to impressionable children. Occasionally adults are torn between the desire to put their youngsters in the school's care so Mom may enjoy a few hours of quiet peace in the day time, and the thoughts of how adults might set a better example on how to benefit their offspring.

Evidently Dorothy Law Nolte pondered this problem when she wrote an eloquent message to both parents and teachers. Briefly summarized, it is:

- "If a child lives with criticism, he learns to condemn."
- "If a child lives with hostility, he learns to fight."
- "If a child lives with fear, he learns to be apprehensive."
- "If a child lives with ridicule, he learns to be shy."
- "If a child lives with jealousy, he learns what envy is."
- "If a child lives with shame, he learns to feel guilty."
- "If a child lives with encouragement, he learns to be confident."
- "If a child lives with tolerance, he learns to be patient."
- "If a child lives with praise, he learns to be appreciative."
- "If a child lives with approval, he learns to like himself."

No Color Problem in Foxholes

Tens of millions of American men have found a home in the Army in the past 50 years. Or so the reluctant draftee is usually told by his drill sergeant. In the past 18 years, millions of American men of darker hue found not only a home in the Army but a "new sense of dignity and awareness of personal worth."

The conclusion is that of Dr. Charles C. Moskos, University of Michigan sociologist, writing in Army magazine. He adds that this feeling of the Negro soldier should carry over as a responsible contribution toward the attainment of inherent rights for all when he returns to civilian life.

The U.S. Army was ordered desegregated by President Truman in 1948. The program of integration was successfully accomplished long before the current wave of racial unrest in the nation.

This has robbed the Communists of any chance to divide our

Sensing The News

By THURMAN SENSING

There was four times as much illumination in the U.S. from electric lights in 1965 than there was in 1948 due to better lamps and lower power costs. New York Stock Exchange researchers attribute this to the development of special lighting equipment and the increasing use of miniature high-intensity lamps for reading. Fluorescent lamps, they say, now grow tomatoes, radishes, lettuce and other vegetables in such unlikely places as Alaska. By 1970, most major buildings will have lights that heat as well as illuminate. Infrared lamps now bake bread, dry paint and hatch chickens but in the not too distant future they will also be used to heat bus stops, patios, hotel marquees and similar places. Ultraviolet lamps have a variety of uses. Within the next 10 years sales of all classes of lamps will top $3 billion a year. That's reason enough to buy stock as an investment in any of the large electric utility companies.

Today's smile: The young son of a lawyer, starting his first year of school, tripped and fell as he was leaving the school building. A teacher saw the accident and hastened to his assistance, saying: "Remember, big boys don't cry when they fall down." "Of course they don't," said the youngster, "they sue."

You seldom see a truck making a delivery or pick-up at New York's Rockefeller Center because the architects included in the original plans a subterranean truck space that accommodates as many as 1,000 trucks per day. Exhaust fumes that would kill those working there are sucked up through grilles and pipes and blown out of ducts high above the surrounding streets. That's planning!

Thoughts while shaving: The wonders of the electronic age will never cease. One of the nation's largest lumber companies uses a computer to keep an hour-by-hour inventory of more than 5,000 different basic products from 26 field offices.

For example, the machine can forecast 30 days in advance what the demand will be for 2 x 4 hemlock in Baltimore. It even tells how many board feet of timber are growing on every one of the firm's tree farms.

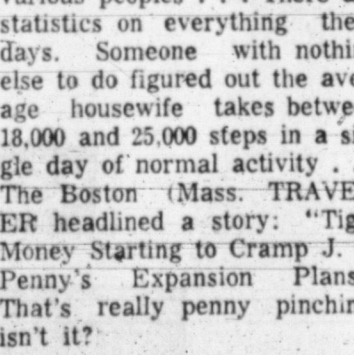

The favorite liquor in Soviet Russia is naturally vodka, but the proletariat flavor it with everything from anise to garlic and honey. Incidentally, very little vodka is imported to this country from the U.S.S.R.

One of the newer developments in business is employee profit sharing. A survey revealed that many U.S. firms with 50 or more workers now have such profit-sharing plans. Payouts as high as 15 per cent, which gives the average worker an added inducement to see that the company prospers.

Milk is one of the most popular and varied refreshments in the world. At least 10 different animals give milk that's drunk by various peoples. There are statistics on everything these days. Someone with nothing else to do figured out the average housewife takes between 18,000 and 25,000 steps in a single day of normal activity.

The Boston (Mass.) TRAVELER headlined a story: "Tight Money Starting to Cramp J.C. Penney's Expansion Plans." That's really penny pinching, isn't it?

Country Editor speaking: The best proof the younger generation is creative is to watch a teen-ager build a sand-fact

The asp, which Cleopatra used to kill herself with, is an extremely venomous Egyptian cobra. It is so poisonous that this species was often used to administer a merciful death simply with a bite on the breast.

It was sacred to the Egyptians and was used as a symbol of their royalty. Today the asp is used by Egyptian snake charmers.

How to develop this color blindness, teamwork and loyalty in civilian life is the social challenge of the century. One thing can be said, however. Those civil rights spokesmen who attack the drafting of Negroes as humiliating and discriminatory couldn't be more wrong.

Is National Debt Necessary?

By OSCAR W. COOLEY
Assoc. Prof. of Economics,
Ohio Northern Univ.

The American people have a strong suspicion that the federal government's unbalanced budgets and ever-mounting debt are the underlying cause of today's inflation. And they are right.

Money, like houses, corn or other commodity, declines in value when over-plentiful. Modern money is based on debt. It becomes over-plentiful when debt is greatly increased. Thus, Washington's increase of the national debt by some $60,000,000 in the last two decades is the root cause of our inflation.

Was this debt unavoidable? Has it been necessary for the Washington establishment to pile up this mountain of debt?

Let's go further and ask: Is it necessary for the national government to go into debt at all? My answer to these questions is no.

Assume that each year the government spends a hundred billion dollars. This means that the government lays claim to, or takes, a hundred billion dollars' worth of goods and services from the people and uses them in carrying out the many projects voted by Congress. Just how it pays for them—whether with tax dollars, or borrowed dollars—is really unimportant. The central fact is that government takes this bundle of goods and services and uses them, and hence the people—the private sector—do not have them to use.

It is just as easy for the people to give up this bundle of goods and services when the government pays for them with tax dollars as when it pays for them with borrowed dollars. The burden is not lightened one iota by having the government borrow part or all of the hundred billion dollars rather than raise it by taxation. (I am assuming the government borrows only at home, not abroad.)

Admittedly, the burden is distributed differently in the two cases. Tax dollars are taken from people and firms according to formulas written into the tax laws, while borrowed dollars are given up by people and firms in the act of voluntarily purchasing government bonds.

However, looked at from the standpoint of the whole nation of people, it costs the nation just as much when the money is raised by borrowing as when it is raised by taxing. This is because the real cost is not the money at all but the bundle of goods and services relinquished, and this is the same bundle regardless of how it is paid for.

One may argue that the cost is greater when the money is borrowed, not collected in taxes, because of the interest. However, the interest does not actually increase the cost to the nation as a whole, for it is paid by one part of the nation (the taxpayers) to another part (the bondholders). The interest is simply the fee that the taxpayer group pays, periodically, to the bondholder group for carrying an extra share of the burden now.

If, then, there is no economic gain to the nation when the government, as the nation's agent, borrows instead of taxes, why does it borrow? Especially, why does it borrow when borrowing has the admittedly bad side-effect of generating inflation?

In short, nothing is gained when a government borrows from its own people, the cost not being lightened. On the other hand, much is lost, the dollar being depreciated. Conclusion: Government borrowing is bad public policy and should be discontinued.

(Borrowing from other countries might be advantageous, just as it is sometimes profitable for a firm to borrow from other firms, but under present conditions the United States government does not and cannot borrow more than a negligible amount from other countries.)

If Washington has gained nothing by borrowing, why does it continue? Why has it incurred $320,000,000,000.00 of debt? And why does Congress every now and then raise the "debt limit" to make room for more borrowing?

The reason, I think, is mainly the desire of the bureaucrat to spend. Colbert, finance minister of Louis XIV, is reputed to have said the way for governments to raise money was to "pluck the goose in such a way as to get the most feathers and arouse the least squawking."

Acting on this principle, our bureaucrats pluck all the tax feathers they can get, and when they feel the goose is about to squawk they resort to borrowing, which they can do because they have persuaded the people that borrowing is a kind of painless way by which the government gets money. Thus they are enabled to spend considerably more than the tax revenue each year. And so, big government gets ever bigger and the socialist state ever closer.

Some say government debt is necessary because without it we wouldn't have enough money. As the debt gravitates into the banks and the Federal Reserve, more and more checkbook money is created to pay for it.

However, checkbook money can be, and is, based on private debt. If government borrowing were halted, there would still be ample checkbook money, generated by private borrowing. It is absurd to assume we must go on loading future generations with more national debt in order that today's economy may have ample checkbook money. The debt is NOT necessary.

Cortisone Treatments Must Continue in Chronic Cases
Q—Will cortisone, if started early in the course of an inflammatory disease, cure it or will the disease come back on discontinuing the drug?

A—A short course of one of the cortisone-like drugs will greatly hasten the cure of some acute inflammations such as bursitis and sprains but when taken for chronic arthritis, rheumatism and other diseases of this type it must be taken continuously or the symptoms will return. The disadvantages of such prolonged treatment include the development of "moon face," peptic ulcers and softening of the bones.

Q—My wife has taken cortisone for over a year. She is hungry all the time and has gained 45 pounds. Would cortisone cause this?

A—Yes.
Q—My internist says I have low blood sugar. He put me on a high-calorie diet with food every two hours but I still have occasional blackouts. Is there anything else I should do?

A—The treatment of low blood sugar depends in part on whether the condition is due to an inborn error of metabolism, acquired by overindulgence in sugars and starches or caused by alcohol or certain drugs. Attacks may be triggered by such emotions as worry, grief or fear. In most victims the condition can't be cured but can be controlled with skillful treatment.

Your high-calorie diet should not permit sugar, pie, cake, starchy vegetables, foods of the macaroni family, dates, raisins, coffee, tea or alcohol. The most difficult requirement in such a diet is to omit wheat products. Foods allowed include meat, fish, fowl, eggs, milk, margarine or butter, cheese, nuts, decaffeinated coffee, very weak tea, sugar-free soft drinks, vegetables and fruits not on the prescribed list and soybean products.

A recent study indicates that injections of glucagon into the hip muscles stimulate a release into the blood of the sugar stored in the liver. This could be taught to do for yourself in an emergency.

Q—My doctor says I have blood sediment. My count is 64 and it should be around 10. What could cause this and what can be done about it?

A—Your doctor determined your sedimentation rate which normally is less than 15 (or less than eight, depending on the technique used). In some persons the cause of an increased rate cannot be determined. More often than not, however, it indicates rheumatic fever or rheumatic heart disease and is a valuable guide to the effectiveness of the treatment used.

Editor:

This country arithmetic of mine leaves me skittish in the face of the new math. Also, there are the computers. And if I am wrong about the cost to Pampa taxpayers of Lake Meredith, I want a hole to crawl in. Is the cost of construction really $12,145,000? To write it down so even I can understand it, let us call it out in A B C, which I learned after some effort long ago. The amount seems to be Twelve Million One Hundred Forty-five thousand dollars.

This may be found on page 3 of the contract between the City of Pampa and the Canadian River Authority.

This cost, however, is not all—Let us examine page IV-3 of the Engineers estimate Section 4-02. This has to do with the upkeep of Pampa's part of the lake and facility.

The engineer says it will cost $60,000 per year for maintenance, including sewage, so let's dump the sewage thing off and say $50,000 per year. This will add up to $2,500,000, so I made it read Two Million Five Hundred thousand dollars.

If we then add this adjusted figure to the first cost I get a total of $14,645,000, or same in letters—Fourteen Million Six Hundred Forty-five thousand dollars. And as for water, we have no promise at all.

The majority of Pampa voters wanted to dance. So, we have begun to pay the Piper.

It is sincerely hoped that I am wrong about this. Won't some bright person feed a handful of scum-pills into a good computer, and come up with a cost of hardly nothing at all?

I was discussing this with a friend who has a boat on Lake Meredith and he said these figures left him with mixed emotions. I asked what he meant by mixed emotions, and he said he was glad to have a place to put his boat but dreaded the cost. He added it was kinda like seeing his Mother-in-law drive his new car over a cliff.

Wallace 1968 Goal Is the Presidency

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent
BIRMINGHAM, ALA. (NEA) Gov. George C. Wallace is using the 1966 Alabama governorship race as a warmup exercise for his nearly certain entry into the 1968 presidential contest.

Hardly the faintest lip service is paid any more to the fact that not he but his wife, Lurleen, is the official Democratic nominee in the battle against the Republican contender, Rep. James Martin.

At a county fair in northern Alabama, nobody bothered to correct a local figure when he introduced Lurleen as not only the present first lady but also "the next first lady" of Alabama.

The governor takes a handsome Wallace victory almost for granted, though the attractive, aggressive Martin—one of GOP's bright new hopes for the South—is struggling valiantly.

Democratic leaders say their random polls, taken in widely scattered sectors, show Wallace ahead by an average 2-to-1 margin. This is said to be so even in the Birmingham area (Jefferson County) where Wallace heretofore has not been strong.

Jim Martin's claims that he is closing an admittedly wide gap are not accepted by independent appraisers. There is some feeling the Wallace lead may be widening.

Obviously convinced of this, the governor is thinking ahead.

At every platform opportunity, he verbally annihilates all Democrats and Republicans (except California's Ronald Reagan) who might conceivably gain major party presidential nomination in 1968. Not even Richard Nixon, supposedly the new darling of the South, escapes his fire.

Wallace already has defined Alabama's and the South's presidential needs so narrowly that they fit no one but himself. He is spoiling for big combat, coast to coast.

"We're not going to win this battle talking to ourselves in Alabama," he tells listeners at a rally. "We've got to do it in New York and California and Indiana and Wisconsin."

Top Alabama Democrats insist that he is "not playing this thing just for laughs," that he would love not only to exceed Barry Goldwater's five-state victory in the South but to pick off some key northern states as well.

One leader even says Wallace thinks he can take the White House. Whether or not Wallace does think so, Arkansas' Gov. Orval Faubus, speaking at the Southern Governors' Conference, thought Wallace could.

Others argue that the bantamweight Alabama segregationist is too realistic to imagine he can achieve so much. But there is no doubt he is bent on wounding his powerful northern adversaries as much as possible. Says the governor often:

"They say if I run I'll hurt the major parties. Well, I want to hurt them. If we hurt them enough, maybe they'll give us a candidate we can take."

This summer's Negro riots, plus pressure for open housing, seem to have strengthened Wallace's hand materially. Thousands of northern whites who see him as "Mr. Backlash" are pouring mail into his office at Montgomery. Encouraged, he is taking more militant positions than ever—as with his legislative assault upon HEW's school desegregation guidelines.

One politician says that, given existing state election laws, it would be surprising if Wallace, as an independent, could get on presidential ballots in more than 15 states. Even if this is so, he is unmistakably a hard fact of life for presidential 1968.

Hunt for Truth

NEGROES WANT
POLICE PROTECTION

It has been obvious for some time that the automatic cry of "police brutality" arising at every riot and street demonstration is simply a propaganda slogan bearing little or no relation to any real grievances. Now there is positive proof that what most members of minority groups, particularly Negroes, really want is better police protection.

The proof is a survey conducted by a professional firm, John F. Kraft Inc., and released to the public by the United States Senate subcommittee on executive reorganization. This survey was taken not by outside pollsters but by actual residents of Negro communities, including Watts.

The survey findings show that neither "civil rights" laws nor school integration are highly regarded by most Negroes. They show that welfare programs are widely and bitterly disliked, and that far from objecting to "police brutality," most residents of Negro communities desperately desire more police protection.

Professional criminals and political gangsters now prey almost unrestrained upon our Negro citizens. Every kind of crime and riot among them is instantly excused by fashionable talk of "cultural deprivation." Agitation, rebellion and crime are actually rewarded, while potentially productive Negroes are discouraged from seeking to better themselves through their own efforts. They are the chief victims of the collapse of law and order brought about by agitators and propaganda sympathetic to the riots they start.

Those who think that racial discrimination is the source of all the Negro's problems and are that integration will solve them all are becoming farther and farther removed from reality. Decent people of every race need protection against crime above all else.

Condemned Man Hanged by Mistake But Still Considered a Murderer

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI) — A judicial report into the famed British crime riddle of the murders of Notting Hill Gate concluded today that Timothy Evans died on the scaffold 16 years ago for a crime he probably did not commit. But he was a murderer just the same.

Evans, 25, an illiterate truck driver, was hanged in 1950 for the murder of his baby daughter, Geraldine. The judicial inquiry—the second into the case—expressed belief to-day the murder was committed in fact by mass strangler John Reginald Halliday Christie.

The summing up by Judge Daniel Brabin reflected his own perplexity but, said Evans apparently strangled his 19-year-old wife Beryl—one of the crimes for which Christie, a former policeman, was hanged. Both were pathological liars, both were strangles, and both lived in the same house.

It was Christie who became known as the murderer of Notting Hill Gate, for at his house at No. 10 Rillington Place he murdered person after person and sealed them in a wall. When that place became full he buried them in the backyard under an elderberry bush.

Mystery Compounded
The inquiry was ordered last year in hopes it would clear up once and for all the doubts that Evans, execution may have been a miscarriage of justice. Instead it added to the mystery and left unsolved, perhaps forever the true story of the crime within a crime.

"I have come to the conclusion that it is more probable than not that Evans killed Beryl Evans," Justice Brabin reported. "I have come to the conclusion that it is more probable than not that Evans did not kill Geraldine."

think it more probable that Christie did."

This contradicts the findings of the original official inquiry in 1953 that found Evans guilty of both murders.

Evans confessed and denied at various times that he killed his wife and daughter whose bodies were found in 1949 in an outhouse at the back of 10 Rillington Place.

He was hanged on March 9, 1950, in Pentonville Prison for the daughter's murder, largely on the evidence of Christie. The prosecution claimed that Evans also killed his wife but it did not prosecute on this charge.

Bodies Discovered

The doubts came three years later when police found body after body hidden at Rillington Place and arrested Christie. He confessed he strangled his own wife, Evans' wife and four other women. He confessed he killed the baby, Geraldine, but later denied this murder.

"One fact which is not in dispute and which has hampered all efforts to find the truth is that both Evans and Christie were liars," Justice Brabin said. "They lied to each other. They lied about themselves."

Dealing with the coincidence of finding two stranglers of women in the same house he said, "I think it is no solution to the problem to ignore the evidence which points to the coincidence being a fact."

"I think that it is likely that Geraldine was killed because she was constantly crying and was in the way," Brabin said. "I am not satisfied that Evans himself killed Geraldine. I think it more probable that Christie did. It was a killing in cold blood which, Christie would be more likely to do."

In 1940, Adolf Hitler postponed his planned invasion of Britain.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — We have in this country probably a thousand or more national associations of various sorts. But only one that I know of can trace its origin back to the Garden of Eden.

That distinction belongs to the National Association of Suggestion Systems, which is holding its annual convention here this week.

NASS, as I shall call it, is composed of executives who operate employee suggestion programs. They have come a long way since Eve started it all with her suggestion to Adam.

For one thing, they know better than to put a suggestion box near an apple tree.

Has Become Outmoded

Even the old suggestion box itself has become outmoded. It served mainly as a depository for nasty, anonymous notes composed by the office sorcerer.

Nowadays, employees get paid for their suggestions—at least the acceptable ones. This makes them less reticent about identifying themselves.

Last year, according to NASS, workers in business, education and government submitted 2,477,539 suggestions, give or take a few that suggested where the boss could go.

Of these, 575,062 were adopted, for which the employees were paid nearly $25 million. They resulted in money-saving measures estimated at $800 million.

However, as I learned when I paid a visit to the NASS convention, some of the suggestions still do credit to Eve.

A lady who works for an airline received a $10 award for suggesting that venetian blinds be put up in the office.

Occasional Subterfuge

A NASS official told me that management has become so responsive to employee suggestions, it occasionally leads to subterfuge.

Suppose a junior vice president gets a bright idea and runs it up the flagpole. Nobody salutes. He then persuades a rank-and-file worker to submit the same proposal through the employee suggestion program. This time it is received with ruffles and flourishes.

In one case, a railroad president got so carried away with the program he began putting suggestions in his own suggestion box. He found that got faster action than when he issued orders.

Nobody, however, is likely to match the enthusiasm of an employee who suggested that his job be eliminated. He received a $1,300 award for good thinking and is now in the process of being retired.

Bench-leveling and contouring of sloping land are being compared as to yield, water usage and returns at the High Plains Research Foundation at Halfway. A five year study comparing bench-leveling to rows directly down a 1 percent to 3 percent slope definitely showed bench-leveling to be superior.

Bench-leveling increased grain sorghum yields 1225 pounds per acre and returned $25.49 per acre more with 6.1 inches per acre less irrigation water. Cotton yields were increased 55 pounds of lint per acre and returns increased $24.41 per acre when benched leveled.
