WEST TEXAS—Fair tonight and Friday, cooler in Panhandle tonight.

Japan, it is reported, will denounce the nine-power treaty, the other eight signers having already denounced Japan.

SENATORS ARE BLAMED FOR TAX FAILURE

AUSTIN, Oct. 28.—Failure of the second called session of the Texas legislature to raise money for social security was blamed on "some of the senators" today by Speaker Robert W. Calvert of the House of Representatives.

"Everybody is asking who killed Cock Robin. I say some of the senators did, with a little bow and much arrogance," Calvert's statement said.

"On the last evening that house bill 23, the omnibus tax bill, was before the senate state affairs committee for hearing, I was told confidentially by a member of the third house, the lobby, that one of the senate leaders had the matter in such shape as to force, eventually, the house to take the bill, as he wished it written, or get nothing at all. This fact was borne out by later developments."

Bulldogs Will Get Rest After Friday Sweetwater Game

The Ranger Bulldogs will take the field against the Sweetwater Mustangs at Newman Field, in Sweetwater Friday night in the last engagement of the Bulldogs before the annual clash with the Cisco Lobos.

The Bulldogs are rated as being due for another defeat at Sweetwater Friday, as comparative scores for the season show that they average almost airtight defense, having defeated Snyder 49 to 0, Breckenridge 14 to 0, San Angelo 20 to 0 and losing to Stephenville 20 to 0 and Abilene 7 to 0, Stephenville and Abilene being the only teams the Mustangs have met this season who have managed to score against them.

After the Sweetwater clash the Bulldogs get a two-weeks layoff, taking on the Lobos on Thursday, Nov. 11. All season Ranger has been pointing toward the Cisco game, but the Lobos' recent defeat of the Brownwood Lions, and several new players who are now eligible, make the Lobos loom as a formidable foe for the Bulldogs.

Other games in the district include Cisco at Abilene Friday afternoon, Breckenridge at San Angelo Friday night, and Big Spring at Stephenville Saturday night.

Japan's Good Will Delegates Boosed

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—Japan's good-will mission, sent out to explain to the world about the warfare in China, proceeded without comment today after being rescued from a screaming, booing crowd on the San Francisco waterfront, the first part of call after leaving the homeland.

For two hours last night the five Japanese scholars, industrialists, publishers and diplomats, were besieged aboard their ship while a crowd of 600 waged an anti-Japanese demonstration.

Ranger Church to Conduct Singing

Announcement was made this morning that a singing would be held tonight at Gospel Center Church of Ranger of which Rev. J. A. Lovell is pastor and that all singers and music lovers are given an urgent invitation to attend.

The program is sponsored by Carl Hunt who is well known in Eastland and adjoining counties.

The announcement states that such singers as Clyde Fisher, Judge Rust and R. C. Ribble will have part on the program. Several family quartettes will be heard along with string instruments and quartettes.

The meeting will open promptly at 7 o'clock at the church. The public is invited to attend.

Miller is survived by his widow and two sons.

Virginia Will Wed Director

Virginia Bruce, top, who for more than a year since the death of Actor John Gilbert has been Hollywood's most popular widow, will marry at Christmas-time her director, Jack Walter Ruben, below. Miss Bruce began her theatrical career in the Follies and is considered one of Hollywood's loveliest blonds.

Crowley Says The People Still Like Pres. Roosevelt

KILGORE, Oct. 28.—Karl Crowley of Fort Worth, solicitor for the postoffice department in Washington, said today he was convinced, after touring the state for a week, that the Roosevelt administration was more popular than ever in Texas.

Crowley, mentioned as a possible candidate for governor next year, was guest at a dinner here last night, and will address a banquet in Gladewater tonight. He will return to Washington Sunday.

Descendant From Texas Patriot to Attend Interment

Rev. Philip W. Walker, pastor of the First Methodist church at Eastland, will attend Sunday ceremony at Austin, which calls for the burial of his great-grandfather, Philip Walker, in the state cemetery.

The body of the senior Philip Walker has been in a Johnson county cemetery and is being reburied to honor him for his work as a soldier in the Texas War for Independence.

He arrived at San Jacinto among the reinforcements the day following the battle. He was born in 1815 in South Carolina and later moved to Texas and resided in Johnson county near Grandview until his death in 1897. The pioneer was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church.

His only surviving son, J. H. Walker of Austin, general land commissioner who retired last year, is assisting in the removal of his father's remains to Austin.

The present Philip Walker, pastor of the Eastland Methodist church, represents the fifth generation to bear the name of his great-great-grandfather, a man called "Philip." Apparently only this name of one generation only, this name goes back two generations prior to this beginning again, which would take it back to the early part of the century 1700 and thereafter.

Red Cross Day Is Set by Governor

AUSTIN, Oct. 28.—Gov. Allred today set aside Nov. 19 as Red Cross Day in Texas and called upon citizens to contribute to the annual drive for funds.

Oct. 31 to Nov. 6 was designated as State Health Week and Allred urged attention to the convention of the Texas Public Health association, starting Monday at Dallas.

Stephenville Game Date Is Changed

Word was received here today from J. E. Burnett, superintendent of schools at Stephenville, that the date for the Big Spring-Stephenville game had been changed from Friday night, Oct. 29, to Saturday night, Oct. 30.

The announcement, which was received here Thursday morning, did not state why the date of the game had been changed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Buying orders flooded the stock market today as traders, big and little, fought to get aboard a market advance, set off by the federal reserve action in lowering margin requirements.

Final Rites For Mrs. J. D. Barton Held at Eastland

Rev. P. W. Walker, pastor, officiated Wednesday afternoon at the First Methodist church, Eastland, at the funeral of Mrs. Sallie Adline Barton, 63, wife of J. D. Barton, former county jailer and sheriff. Burial was at the Gorman cemetery.

Mrs. Barton, who died Tuesday, was born Feb. 3, 1874, in Arkansas, and came to Texas with her parents when she was nine months of age. The family settled at DeLeon.

Mrs. Barton had been a member of the Methodist church since childhood. Mr. and Mrs. Barton had been married over 44 years.

Survivors are three sons, Terrance Barton of Eastland, Johnnie Barton of Breckenridge and Lee Barton of Kilgore. There are three grandchildren, one who was born the day of her funeral, to Mr. and Mrs. Terrance Barton, also survive.

Nieces and nephews who attended the services were Willie Edmondson of Carbon, Ira Edmondson of Eastland, Dr. E. W. Jones of Wellington, Mrs. Lee C. O'Neil of Wellington, Mrs. C. R. Wood of Paducah and Mrs. W. F. Clark of Gorman.

Funeral services were P. L. Crossley, Loss Woods, John White, Carl Johnson, T. J. Haley and C. S. Eldridge.

Hammer Undertaking company, Eastland, planned arrangements.

District Governor Of Lions Clubs to Visit Ranger Club

No noon meeting of the Ranger Lions club will be held next Thursday, it was announced at the meeting today, but an evening session will be held, with District Governor Tom Dilus, governor of district 2-E, as the principal speaker of the evening.

Five clubs will be represented at the meeting, with Ranger, Eastland, Cisco, Breckenridge and Graham each having a part on the program.

Lester Crossley had charge of the program of the Ranger club today and presented C. E. May, who gave a talk on "Things to Think About."

O. S. Lattimore Is Buried In Austin

AUSTIN, Oct. 28.—The body of Associate Justice O. S. Lattimore of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, was moved today to the University Baptist Church here to lay in state for funeral services at 2 p. m.

Judge Lattimore, 72, died after a brief illness. He was one of Texas' best known public figures in the political world and Baptist Church.

Red Cross Day Is Set by Governor

AUSTIN, Oct. 28.—Gov. Allred today set aside Nov. 19 as Red Cross Day in Texas and called upon citizens to contribute to the annual drive for funds.

Oct. 31 to Nov. 6 was designated as State Health Week and Allred urged attention to the convention of the Texas Public Health association, starting Monday at Dallas.

Stephenville Game Date Is Changed

Word was received here today from J. E. Burnett, superintendent of schools at Stephenville, that the date for the Big Spring-Stephenville game had been changed from Friday night, Oct. 29, to Saturday night, Oct. 30.

The announcement, which was received here Thursday morning, did not state why the date of the game had been changed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Buying orders flooded the stock market today as traders, big and little, fought to get aboard a market advance, set off by the federal reserve action in lowering margin requirements.

Prescription Fatal to Six

Already six of the patients to whom Dr. A. S. Calhoun, above, county health officer at Mount Olive, Miss., has administered the deadly elixir of sulfanilamide have died, and he battles gallantly to save the lives of seven others whom he treated with the drug, which, until the deaths, was believed to be a powerful agent against infection. Dr. Calhoun is seen examining a bottle of the fluid.

Result of Vote On Removal W. T. C. C. Headquarters to Be Known Nov. 3 After Canvass of Votes in Eastland

The view of 176 local directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce upon the approval or disapproval of the action of the executive committee accepting the Abilene proposition for removal of general headquarters to Abilene from Stamford will be made known for the first time Wednesday, Nov. 3, at Eastland.

Milburn McCarty, president of the WTCC, has appointed a committee to canvass the votes, advising them to meet at 9:30 a. m. Nov. 3, in the Connelley hotel to go over the ballots.

Members of the committee appointed are B. L. Russell of Baird, W. P. Hallmark of Dublin and J. E. Meroney of Ranger.

October 15, Abilene offered the WTCC the old federal building rent free for five years and $3000 cash for renovation if headquarters were moved. The proposition was accepted but blocked by litigation of Stamford.

The referendum being conducted by the 12 district directors will close Saturday. Reports of districts are to be in the hands of McCarty on or before Nov. 2.

Also eligible to vote on the removal proposition are 10 past presidents of the WTCC who are ex-officio local directors.

Teachers Urged To Continue With Retirement Funds

AUSTIN, Oct. 28.—Teachers in Texas were urged today to continue payments to their voluntary retirement fund, despite failure of the legislature to provide matching funds by Claude D. Teer, chairman of the board of trustees in charge of the system.

"Every proper effort was made by those interested and those who wished the carry out what they thought to be the will of the people with reference to providing sufficient funds for teacher retirement," Teer said.

HOUSTON, Oct. 28.—Paul Thomas McBride, 20-year-old unemployed clerk, was charged with robbery today in connection with a $225 holdup of a loan company yesterday.

Police said he made a statement admitting that he pointed a pistol at Mrs. Agnes Marlette, cashier, and took the money from an open safe.

Morton Valley to Have Halloween Carnival Friday

Committees for a Halloween carnival Friday night were appointed Tuesday by Mrs. Josie K. Nix, finance chairman, at a meeting of the Morton Valley Parent-Teacher association at the schoolhouse.

The carnival, it was decided, is to be in the gymnasium on the school ground.

Program for the association was composed mainly of questioning of members by Mrs. W. E. Hensley on their manual of rules and by-laws.

Mrs. W. C. Wheat, publication chairman, reported 10 subscriptions registered for the national P-T-A publication.

Mrs. Nix was chosen delegate to the state convention and Mrs. N. E. Jensen alternate.

Miss Inez Pickett's room registered the greatest number of student mothers present for the October meetings of the association, it was stated.

Mrs. Cecile Eubanks, president, opened the meeting with songs, led by Mrs. George Robinson. Another feature was a safety program by students of Mrs. Florence Davis' second grade.

Minutes approved were read by Mrs. T. L. Wheat, secretary, and the treasurer's report delivered by Mrs. O. N. Ramsower.

Attending were Miss Inez Pickett, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. D. M. King, Miss Opal Hearn, Miss Melba Gamble, Mrs. Robinson, Miss Ruth Carter and Mmes. Luella Stoker, Nix, Eubanks, Wheat, J. B. Harbin, H. FOREIGNERS IN SHANGHAI ARE ENDANGERED

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28.—Danger to American and British troops guarding the International Settlement increased hourly tonight after Japanese forces mopping up Northern Shanghai, fired on one British detachment from a tank.

American and British commanders stiffened their barricades. It was understood the Japanese had given warning that they planned an intensive assault along the Soochow Creek front on the edge of the position manned by the foreign defenders of the settlement.

The Japanese warned that they planned to attempt to cross the Soochow Creek near the western boundary of the foreign concession, where Chinese from Chapei had withdrawn to the Chiang Kai-Shek second line of defense.

Both British and American troops have been authorized to open fire in self defense if attacks by either side occur.

Tension was brought near the breaking point by the Japanese tank attack on a party of British led by Brig. A. P. D. Telfer-Smollett, British army commander-in-chief.

Local Boy Is Made Assistant Manager Of Childress Store

Edward Bishop, who has been connected with the local Woolworth store for the past 15 months, is being transferred to the Childress store, it was announced here today. Bishop will become assistant manager of the store in Childress.

The Cat, the Monkey and Uncle Sam

Before we go very much farther with this international co-operation idea, it might be a good thing for us to review the old fable of the cat, the monkey, and the roasted chestnuts.

You may recall that the cat and the monkey agreed on a little co-operation to get the chestnut out of a hot bed of coals. It worked out so that the monkey pulled the chestnuts out and got his paws burned, while the cat, quite unburned, enjoyed the meat of the chestnuts after they had cooled.

And while no one would question the high purposes or the integrity of the great nations which we are associating ourselves, the fact does remain that some well-roasted chestnuts are now resting on an exceedingly hot fire, and that a great many statesmen overseas would be quite happy if Uncle Sam would see his way clear to pull them out.

Specifically, the danger arises from the fact that while our government is concentrating its attention on the aggression which is going on in China, the great democracies of Europe are much more worried about the aggression which is going on in Spain.

Spain is much nearer to France and England than China is. The military machines of Italy and Germany look worse, in London and Paris, than the military machine of Japan. It can be taken for granted that neither France nor England will get more than knee-deep in any oriental commitment until the affair of Hitler, Mussolini, and Franco is straightened out.

There is another fact to consider. The Japanese campaign in China hits the British purse much harder than the American. America has something like $340,000,000 invested in China; Britain's investment is well above a billion. Every shell that bursts in Shanghai knocks a chip off some British investment. From a dollar and cents standpoint, Britain has much more reason to wish the Japanese conquest stopped than we have.

So it is quite possible that America would be encouraged to take the lead in action to restrain the Japanese and then be left all alone, way out in front, while England and France concentrated their attention on affairs nearer home.

Our statesmen at Washington can avoid that danger, if they are sufficiently easy. They can swing this country's weight on the side of decency and fair play and against international gangsterism without getting into a spot where we have to send out the fleet to make their words good—but they will have to be cautious.

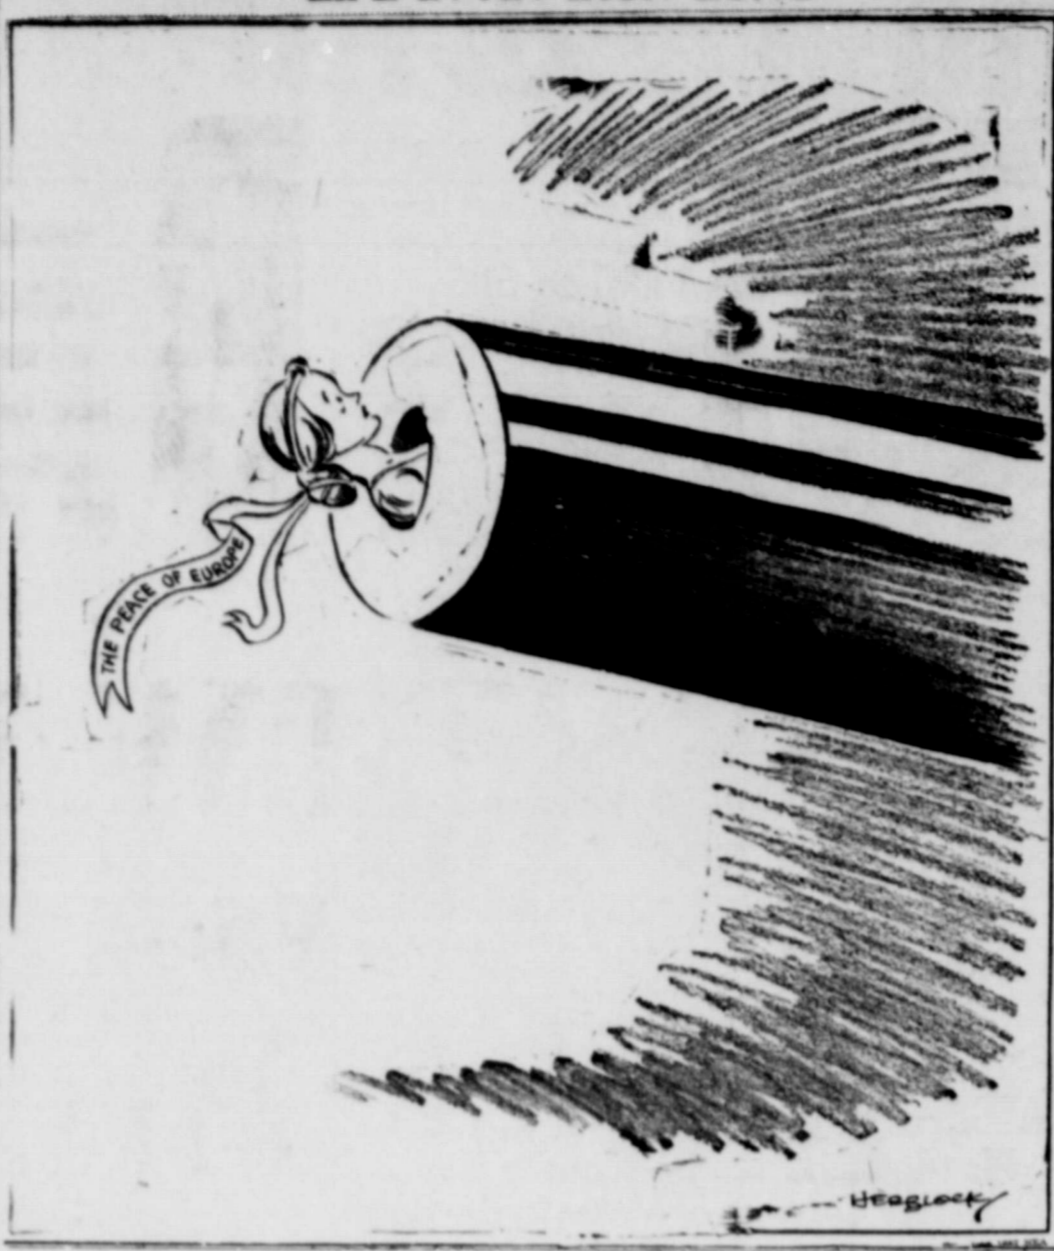

The point to bear in mind is that the danger does exist. The chestnuts are on the fire, and there are plenty of people who would enjoy seeing Uncle Sam play the role of monkey. Caution ought to be the watchword in Washington from now on.

LIFE IN AN IRON LUNG

Sport Glances. By Grayson

BY HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service

CALIFORNIA talks of another wonder team. The Golden Bears under the late Andy Smith were unbeaten from 1929 until mid-1925.

They were remarkable outfits year in and year out, but THE wonder team was the one which included the phenomenal sophomores, the immortal Brick Muller and Bob Berkeley, ends; an exceptional kicker in Archie Nesbit, and Charley Erb, quarterback.

California scored 340 points as against 14 that trip, and trimmed Ohio State in the Pasadena Rose Bowl, 28-0.

It requires considerable courage to compare the current Berkeley brigade with THE wonder team, but even the renowned Muller—Dr. Harold P. Muller now—asserts that the Bears of 1937 have every possibility of being just as good before the campaign comes to a close.

Muller clears up some of the mystery in connection with the much discussed herculean pass he tossed over the goal line to Brodie Stephens against Ohio State in the Rose Bowl, by the way.

"I've heard that pass went all the way from 70 to 100 yards," he chuckles. "I don't know how far I threw it, but it couldn't have been more than 65 yards."

MULLER considers the most unusual thing about that exceptional feat to have been the fact that Stephens, the other end who sprouted by Pete Stinecomb, famous Buckeye quarterback and safety man, to catch the ball, wasn't a regular at all in 1929.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox, NEA Service Staff Writer

FANCY BAKING usually means a party. If it's just a few friends for the cocktail or tea hour, then you'll like this recipe for unusual biscuit appetizers.

Biscuit Appetizers (6 to 8 servings)

Two cups flour, 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 2-3 teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons shortening, 2-3 cup milk, cocktail sausages.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening with two silver knives. Add enough milk to make soft dough.

Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently. Roll very thin and cut small with biscuit cutter. Brush with melted butter. Place 4 biscuits, together with a thin slice of sausage between each two. Place on end in muffin pans.

Old-fashioned Gingerbread (16 portions)

One-half cup butter, 1-2 cup granulated sugar, 1 egg, 2 1/2 cups sifted flour, 1-2 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup New Orleans molasses.

Cream shortening and sugar. Beat egg and add. Measure and sift all dry ingredients. Add hot water to molasses. Combine dry ingredients alternately with liquid, a small amount at a time, and beat after each addition until smooth. Bake in paper lined pan (9 by 9 inches and 2 inches deep). Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees F.).

For the "good neighbor" policy, there's nothing like coffee and cake in the afternoon.

Poultry and Eggs Shipments Are Low

AUSTIN, Texas—Shipments of poultry and eggs from Texas to interstate points during September

reached a seasonal low, it has been reported by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Poultry shipments totaled only 33 cars, but this total was substantially above the eighteen cars shipped during September last year.

Egg shipments of 26 cars were exactly equal to those of September last year. Receipts of eggs at Texas markets from out-of-state points amounted to only five cars, compared with 26 cars last year. This year two cars originated in Kansas and three cars in Missouri. A year ago nine cars were received from Kansas, nine from Missouri, one from Oklahoma, and seven from Nebraska.

JILL

BY MARY RAYMOND
Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

CASE OF CHARACTERS
JILL WENTWORTH, heroine, attractive debutante.
ALAN JEFFERY, hero, rising young artist.
HARRY WENTWORTH, Jill's stepfather.
JACK WENTWORTH, Jill's mother.
SYLVIA SUTTON, oil heiress.

Yesterday, Alan declares his love for Jill. The event is in the hands of Fate now.

CHAPTER VIII
DATTY had dropped by Alan's studio for a cheering word and so with a practical suggestion. Had he ever done illustrating? There was a chance her publisher might be interested in having him submit some sketches.

Alan thanked her. But color was his forte. He would feel as helpless as an amputee man trying to express himself through any medium but paint.

"I've had some good fortune since I saw you," Alan said. "A man—I haven't been able to discover who he was—bought one of my pictures through a dealer. He paid the unbelievable sum of $500 for it."

"What a break!" Patty cried. She was genuinely pleased and bewildered. Here, she had been the old town's black name for coldness and callousness. And straightway it had taken this newcomer to its heart.

The bewilderment lasted all the way round the corner to her apartment, where she found Ardash Holm stretched out on one of the cots, the flowered cover in a wrinkled heap on the floor.

"Come to life," she said to Ardash. "Wonders do happen. That mister fellow has just sold a picture for $3000. What do you think of that for a nice piece of luck?"

Ardash sat up and stared at Patty out of her strange eyes, which now had an excited glow in them.

"Tell me about it," she said in a low, throaty voice.

"Not much to tell," Patty replied. "I don't think he knows so very much about it either. He said someone—he didn't know the man's name—had bought a picture through a dealer."

"He must have some big friends," Ardash drawled. She reached for a cigaret and began to smoke, lazily regarding the circling smoke through half-closed eyes.

DATTY was digesting the remark. She rejected it scornfully. "He doesn't know anybody. The best crew of people you could imagine have been coming to see his pictures. Except for a lot of browsing down and outs, he knows only you and me—and Jill."

She stopped. There was a queer smile in Ardash's eyes.

"Her voice sounds rich," Ardash drawled.

Patty stared. This Ardash wasn't dumb after all. Jill's voice did sound rich. Well-bred, beautifully modulated. The voice of a thoroughbred, who had had thoroughbred training. What did you know about that?

"Well, it should," Patty replied. "Her father's John H. Wentworth, the millionaire."

"Then, she's Jacqueline Wentworth," Ardash gasped.

"Of course. Her friends call her Jill."

"If you think Jill had anything to do with this, you're mistaken," Patty continued, crossly. "Jill was wild for him to sell something. But even a rich man's daughter doesn't go around throwing money away on pictures."

"Maybe she wouldn't be throwing it away—on a picture," Ardash's voice sounded wise.

Thinking it over, Patty came to the conclusion that Jill must have interested some of her wealthy friends in Alan's picture—if she had not been, as Ardash had hinted, the actual purchaser. It wasn't likely that a purchaser had dropped out of the skies and left such tangible evidence of his visit.

But she would not tell Ardash Holm this. She wished fiercely that she had not said a word about it. Though, she couldn't see how Jill could be hurt by Ardash's sly insinuations.

THE last of Alan's pictures had been boxed.

He had paid cash for a three-months' lease of his new, furnished quarters. A location which was very different from the rooms he was leaving.

The new place was not luxurious. But it had dignity and good taste. Even the most fastidious of visitors would not be able to find fault with its atmosphere.

During the next few days, Alan was a man with two minds. One functioned calmly, rationally for practical purposes. The other was filled with dreams. With tender phrases, tender pictures. With one mind he drove a shrewd financial bargain about the lease.

Alan opened the door of the dismantled living room and faced Ardash.

"Hello," Ardash said.

"How are you?" Alan spoke more formally.

Ardash held out a long, slim hand. "Perhaps you don't remember me. I'm Ardash Holm."

"I remember you quite well," Alan said. Which was true. There was something dangerously arresting about this girl. You might not admire her type. But you would never overlook her in a crowd.

"I'm afraid I must appear in-hospitable. I can't ask you, Miss Holm. I'm moving. In fact, I have moved. I'm waiting now for a cab."

"I heard you were going away," Ardash spoke, slowly, "and that you had sold a picture."

"I'm afraid I sounded boastful. Spreading the news. But it was hard to keep. It's pretty great, isn't it?"

"I should say so," Ardash still stood, looking up at him. She made no move to go. Alan, restless, eager to be on his way, wondered what more there was to be said.

"Jacqueline Wentworth must be pleased," Ardash said.

"Who—oh Jill."

"Her real name is Jacqueline. All her millionaire friends call her Jill, I believe."

Color surged to Alan's face, but he said nothing.

After a moment, Ardash continued. "Patty said she was wild for you to sell a picture. And you did. It's wonderful what rich people can accomplish, isn't it? But, naturally, the daughter of John Wentworth could do pretty much what she started out to do. You were lucky to pick a friend like this Wentworth girl. I guess you know that."

It's Their Coming Out Party

On shaky, incredibly awkward feet, these two South African ostrich chicks waddle calmly about after bursting their shells in the zoo at Bedfordshire. They are believed to be the first ever born in England. The hen egg in the foreground gives a comparison for the size of the shells from which the chicks just emerged.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—It is interesting to watch the growth of an incipient war psychology in Washington. In fact, it is so interesting to some persons who are especially sensitive on the subject of war that it gives them cold chills.

No one thinks we are really going to war, of course. But so many of both the best and most indifferent minds here are talking about what it would be like if we did, that it would be holding out on the reader not to mention it.

In no time at all, Washington—high and low—has come to be teeming with people who turn out to be military-naval strategists of the most articulate order.

Senator M. M. Logan of Kentucky, who ranks well up on the Senate Military Affairs Committee, proposes a naval blockade of Japan which he thinks would make the Japanese behave.

Mr. Roosevelt, a peaceful man, has reminded the country that he learned a lot as assistant secretary of the navy before, during and after the World War.

The most definite thing he ever wrote about Japan, following this period in which he was "fairly close to world events," was in a magazine article in 1923. In this article he sought to discourage what he said was rather a common idea among both Japanese and Americans—that their two countries inevitably some day would go to war.

Mr. Roosevelt then made no bones about the fact that the Navy and Army agreed that the United States couldn't even hold the Philippines against Japan without a navy twice as large as hers.

Today one hears protection of the Philippines would require a navy the size of Japan's.

The Nine Power Treaty and Japan's promise therein to respect Chinese sovereignty were then hailed by the future President as one of the most excellent reasons for scouting the "inevitability" theory. All of which, although proving nothing, makes interesting reading today when, as Logan says, "dealing with foreign nations at war is a matter of improvisation from day to day."

Mr. Roosevelt, seated at the piano, expects to do the improvising.

last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Reports from 35 Texas cities give total receipts in these localities of $2,181,000 during September and $6,836,000 during the three months, July-September, increases of 5 per cent and 4 1-2 per cent respectively over the like periods last year.

All but five of the reporting cities showed increases in postal receipts over both September and the third quarter last year.

Oldest Cowboy Is Resident of Brenham

By United Press
BRENHAM, Texas—Hiram G. Craig, a resident of this section is believed by friends to be the oldest active cowboy in the country.

Craig, at 82, still rides and ropes. As a boy he helped drive cattle from Texas over the famed Chisholm Trail, and when he was 21 he was a boss trailer.

The beaver must be able to work with ease under water, since he stores much of his winter's food supply there, safe beneath the ice that would prevent him from leaving his winter prison. Logs covered in green, nourishing bark are weighted down until they become water-logged.

Act or no act, somebody stands to get hurt when a couple of rascals get mad at each other. La Verne Baxter and Daniel Boone Savage neglected to confine their activity to the ring in Los Angeles and at a very opportune moment Baxter grabbed a stool and started to commit general mayhem. At that, he lost the decision.

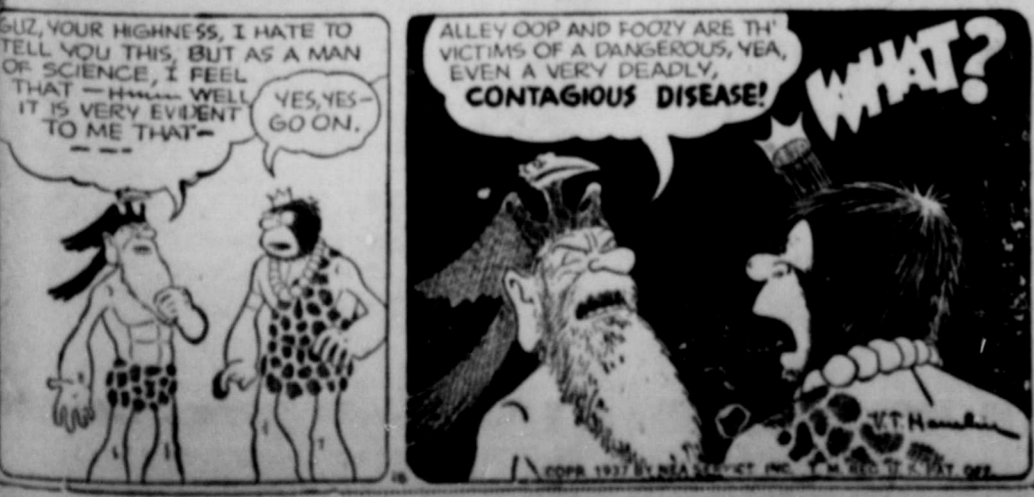

Postal Receipts of Texas Still Grow

AUSTIN, Texas—Postal receipts in Texas during September and during the entire third-quarter of the year were well above those of the corresponding periods
