FIFTEEN BODIES ARE REMOVED AS RESCUERS START

BUILDINGS WRECKED AND BURNED IN DISASTER EARLY WEDNESDAY

(By the Associated Press)
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 17. (AP)—At noon fifteen had been taken from the ruins of several buildings, including the Methodist church, which were buried under a snowslide in Sap Gulch, in the Highland Boy mining district near Bingham, 1 miles Southwest of here this morning.

Estimates of those entombed in the avalanche of snow, rock and brush, that slid down the mountain side range between fifty and one hundred. Little hope is held out for their rescue alive.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 17. (AP)—Three persons are reported killed and between fifty and one hundred entombed in a snow slide in the Highland Boy Canyon near Bingham, Utah, 18 miles Southwest of this city.

Fire is reported ranging in the ruins. The snow, the heaviest fall in this section in several years gave way without warning and swept everything in its path, including the Methodist church, two large boarding houses and several homes.

Buildings Catch Fire
The buildings, all of which were heated by stoves, soon caught fire from live embers as they were crushed under the avalanche of snow, rock and small trees, which started several hundred feet above on the mountain side. Most of the buildings destroyed were at the foot of the canyon.

Search of the debris for bodies and also survivors, if there are any, is being carried on by miners and others summoned to the scene, while the hospital at Bingham has cared for 14 injured brought there.

TWO MORE FLIERS TO BE SPANKED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. (AP)—Necessary disciplinary action, as a result of the War Department's investigation in reported army air service propaganda activities has been to Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the service.

The findings resulted from an investigation ordered by Secretary of War Davis following distribution of circulars urging support for air service legislation favor by Major General M. Patrick, chief of the army air service. Major Arnold is information officer and General Patrick's, and the general who has been given the authority to administer the punishment has found him most capable.

In announcing his finding, General Patrick issued a statement replying to the investigation in congress and elsewhere that the investigation was really intended by the War Department to force him out of the service. In his belief, he said, "there was absolutely no foundation of fact for any such nonsensical statements."

THE END OF THE COAL STRIKE

Lubbock Boosters Will Invade Littlefield

TECH FIVE SET DOWN A. C. C.

Matadors Lose Second Battle On Abilene Court by Final Score of 31 to 13

(Special to Daily Journal)
ABILENE, Feb. 17.—The inability to shoot goals when the opportunity offered itself lost the second straight game for the Texas Tech Matadors here last night with the Abilene Christian College Wildcats 31 to 13. The Matadors started off with an offensive attack that kept the ball in their possession the greater part of the time, but they could not find the basket, missing many shots that apparently were exceptionally easy. They maintained this pace through the greater part of the game, but in the latter stages, after the Wildcats had amassed such a lead, slackened in their speed somewhat.

Made But 3 Goals
Tech made only three field goals during the game, the balance of their points coming from free tosses when members of the Wildcat quintet were fouled for various reasons. Both clubs used many substitutes.

Hill, center, and Brown, guard, of the Wildcat machine were put out of the game toward the latter stages on personal fouls. A total of twenty one personal fouls were registered against both clubs.

The Matadors meet the Simmons Cowboys tonight on the Simmons gym in the first game of a two game series, and Friday night meet the McMurry College Indians in their last game on this foreign invasion.

U. S. REVIEWS CASE

SAN YSIDRO, Calif., Feb. 17. (AP)—Results of an investigation into events leading up to the suicide of the Peete family in San Diego and the resulting national investigation were sent to Secretary Kellogg last night by the San Ysidro chamber of commerce.

Many matters of great importance were brought up and given final disposition at the regular meeting of the directors of the Board of City Development here Wednesday morning, the most important of which at this time probably was the appointment of a committee to work up a delegation to the district meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce that meets at Littlefield next Monday, and endorsement of Arthur P. Duggan, of Littlefield, as president of the West Texas organization.

A committee, composed of J. A. Rix, Walter W. Royalty and Roscoe Wilson, was named to take the matter in charge, and secure all representation possible for Lubbock at the meeting. One of the local bands, either the high school or Tech, will make the trip with the delegation. It was the consensus of the directors that no better man could be found as President of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce than Arthur P. Duggan, of Littlefield, and he will be given hearty endorsement of Lubbock.

Heavy endorsement was given to the suggestion of Dr. Paul W. Horn, President of the Tech College that a get-together meeting of the college faculty and citizens of the city be held in the near future, and a committee composed of F. A. Norman, H. D. Woods, and Spencer A. Wells was appointed to take over this matter and assist Tech officials in working out plans for the meeting. The Board of City Development also will co-operate with the college in entertaining R. B. Walthall, member of the State Board of Control, who is expected to arrive here any day for an inspection of the college and its work. The entire Board will meet the distinguished visitor when he arrives here.

The installation of a radio broadcasting station at the Tech college, which has been under discussion here for some time between Dr. Horn and A. B. Davis, manager of the Board of City Development was discussed, and it is believed that the station probably will be established here in the near future, but no definite action was taken at the meeting today.

The Board also gave unanimous endorsement to the Spring Music Festival as a result of a letter from Miss Mary Dunn, President of the South Plains Music Teachers Association, which organization is fostering the movement, and pledged support in every way to the festival.

LARGE BUILDING IS SAVED AS FIRE RAGES

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Forty stories above Broadway, firemen yesterday waged a successful and spectacular battle against fire in the $20,000,000 Equitable Building, one of the largest office structures in the world. Most of the damage, estimated at $50,000, was in the 24th and 25th floor offices of Daniel Guggenheim and the American Smelting and Refining Company. The blaze originated in the basement of the skyscraper, which is located in the heart of the financial district near Wall Street and leaped a shaft containing steam pipes and electric cables to the eleventh, sixteenth, twenty-fourth, and thirty-fourth floor, skipping those that intervened.

Four engineers and repairmen were trapped in the pent house, a three-story superstructure on the roof, chiefly containing elevator machinery, and were found by firemen on a narrow ledge, 43 stories above street level, nearly 400 feet up.

The only ladder available was a short one, which was placed on the shoulders of the tallest fireman reached the men.

Alabama Prison System Probe Is Ordered After Mysterious Death of Convict; 1924 Case Will Also Be Immediately Gone Into

(By the Associated Press)
TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 17.—A general investigation into recent deaths of convicts at Alabama mines operated by convict labor is being conducted by Attorney General Davis, following the filing of complaints. J. W. Taylor yesterday asked that an investigation be conducted into the death of his son "Pete," who died at a convict farm after serving eight days of a ten year sentence. An announcement by the Attorney General also indicated a grand jury would be asked into the death of James Knox, West Virginian, who died in a convict camp in August 1924. He said efforts had been made to frustrate his inquiry into the case. Mr. Taylor in his complaint filed with Sheriff Henry Cobb of Colbert County, charged that his son was beaten to death by two negro trustees, who had been ordered to punish him. Prison records showed Taylor died of heart trouble but Mr. Taylor said his son had never been troubled with his heart. He requested exhumation of the body to determine if possible what caused his death.

The Taylor case is similar to that of Knox, who reports said was scalded to death when he failed to dig his share of coal. Prisoners records state that Knox died of poison self administered.

GLOBE CIRCLERS TO TAKE PLANES INTO FAR NORTH

LIEUTS. WADE AND OGDEN RESIGN ARMY POSTS TO MAKE JAUNT

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Lieutenant Leigh Wade and H. H. Ogden, crack American flyers who circled the globe for the army, now are to undertake a civilian trans-polar flight seeking new territory to claim for the United States.

Co-incidental with the resignations from the arm of Lt. Ogden yesterday, Lt. Wade also announced he was to resign. Lieutenant Wade will lead the expedition and Lieutenant Ogden will be his assistant. Other army flyers are expected to join but their names are withheld until their resignations become certain.

In University Flight.
The flight is to be known as the American university alumni expedition and is backed by alumni of Harvard, Yale, Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania.

It was first suggested by Robert Anderson Pope, New York engineer, and Harvard graduate, who has spent five years in the Arctic. One of its primary objects will be the location of land near the pole as a possible airplane base for the United States.

Another Trip Scheduled.
To some extent this object parallels that of another trans-polar expedition sponsored by the Detroit Aviation society, and now mobilizing in Alaska under the direction of Captain Geo. Wilkins.

Four polar expeditions were now scheduled, including the Wade and Ogden flights. The others are the Roscoe Amundsen and Byrd expedition. The latter is backed by a group of wealthy men, including John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford.

Combine with bread crumbs, butter, celery, salt and pepper and egg slightly beaten. Heat milk and add enough to make moist, but not sticky. Fill crown of pork with stuffing and put into roaster. Roast 2 1/2 hours in a hot oven, basting frequently with the drippings in the pan. Remove to hot platter when done and cut away the cord. The meat will keep its shape after cooking. Letters Received By Lorene Waldrop, Who Will Survive Loss of Blood, Urge Every Kind of Cure, Attending Physician Says

With letters urging the use of every-thing from Christian Science to a low-er climate, with bottles of medicine and pills arriving and with telegrams coming from every section of the United States offering blood to be used in saving her life, the case of Miss Lorene Waldrop, the 15 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Waldrop, is suffering from purpura hem-orrhagica, an unusual blood disease, at the home of her parents, 1161 8th Street.

Miss Waldrop received a telegram this week from California in which she was urged to wire a man in Missouri about her condition. The wire stated that she would be healed within one minute after the Missouri man, a faith healer, heard of her condition. Her physician, Dr. M. C. Overton, has re-ceived several bottles of medicine and pills which the senders felt sure would cure her. Mr. and Mrs. Waldrop have received a number of letters from sec-tions of the country. Some of these were encouraging, telling of the oc-currence of similar cases. One man wrote that he had seen two similar cases at Mayo Brothers and that in each instance they had been cured with the removal of the spleen.

Miss Waldrop is better now than she was a week ago, Dr. Overton said, and it is probable that it will be nec-essary to remove her spleen. In that case, the doctors are prepared to transfuse some blood to her in order that she may be stronger for the op-eration, he said.

MOVE TO RECONDITION MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSE MEETS WITH SUCCESS WITH 39 MEMBERS ALREADY IN

The Lubbock Municipal Golf Association recently organized for the purpose of reclaiming and reconditioning the golf course located in the canyon just east of the fair grounds reports that its membership drive has met with more immediate success than anticipated. Thirty-nine memberships have been secured and the yearly fee of ten dollars paid in.

The president of the association reports that the support being given this movement by the many golf enthusiasts living in Lubbock is making possible what is hoped will be one of the best golf courses in West Texas when completed. Men started work on the ground Monday leveling the greens preparatory to sowing and surfacing with cotton seed hulls. All greens will be rebuilt in their present location but it is planned to relocate a number of the tee boxes in order to lengthen the course and make it more difficult. Hazards will be thrown up around several of the greens in order to develop accuracy and eliminate luck.

The purpose of the association is to maintain the course throughout the year and furnish a real golf course to the Lubbock golf players at a minimum cost. Memberships may be secured before March 1st for $10.00 and membership cards will be issued at that time good for one year. Playing privileges for one lady are included in each membership. The association plans to furnish benches at each tee and provide other conveniences that will make their play enjoyable.

Memberships may be secured by making your check payable to Lubbock Municipal Golf Association for $10.00 and may be dated March 1st if desired at which time membership cards will be delivered. Leave your check with Buddie Stewart at the Citizens National Bank, with E. B. Adcock, Wooten Grocery Company, at Bowen's Drug Company or with V. E. Wilson, Temple Ellis Bldg., and membership cards will be issued promptly.

LOCAL QUINTETS READY FOR GAME TOMORROW

Leaders in basketball circles of both the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs are amassing their forces in gallant array for the coming clash here tomorrow night when eager proponents of the two organizations will go into combat.

In an exhibition arranged to aid in caring for the deficit now existing in the Tech College athletic department.

J. A. (Judge) Raley, well known local sports adherent, has general supervision over team arrangements for the Rotary club, and Jas. H. Goodman, Corporation Court Judge and one of the most widely read sports enthusiasts on the South Plains will have charge of the opposing ranks.

Such material is available for both clubs, the managers report, or that is to say much that at one time was material, for in the two clubs are men who in former years performed with much glory for various schools and colleges in the Southwest.

Manager Goodman, of the Kiwanis Club quintet, boasts of the fact that he has two of the fastest and shiftest manipulators on the basketball team ever seen in action here, and these two carry plenty of weight to enable them to promulgate themselves into almost any kind of rapid fire action, once they get underway. These two are Pink L. Parrish and Edgar (Tiny) Hall. In these two Goodman says he will offer two all-star guards, and to match these in the other extreme of performance he has H. A. (Hay) Davidson, whom he proposes to play at center.

Raley, for the Rotary, while not boasting such an array of skill and activity, says that he expects to spring a surprise that will be worth while to all who are in the least interested, and so strong does he believe in this statement, that he asserts if there are any who believe they are not interested, or could not be interested, he guarantees that upon appearance on the scene of action tomorrow night at the Stock Judging pavilion of the College, they will see a few things to bring chuckles to their cheeks.

The game was matched in an effort of the clubs to assist in raising the deficit in the athletic department of the college, and aside from helping this worthy cause, every attendant at the game is absolutely guaranteed his money's worth in fun, for the latter will be there galore, one interested member of the Rotary club said today. The game will get under way about 7:30 at the Tech gym Thursday night.

Dave Danforth's Release To Minors Recalls Interesting Sidelights

IS the power of psychology almost as great an asset for success in sport as natural ability?

The passing of Southpaw Dave Danforth from the St. Louis Browns to the minors brings up that question.

For years Dave Danforth has been the stormy petrel of the American League. Rival clubs snatched him from the ball, while Danforth said it was all imagination on their part.

Concentration in sport is most essential. The good batsman must have a keen eye, the ability to follow the ball. Incidentally he must have his mind on the making of base hits.

Whenever Dave Danforth was announced as the pitcher, the opposition instead of playing its usual role turned detective. Instead of trying to hit the ball that Danforth was pitching, they attempted to discover what Danforth was doing to the ball.

As a result Danforth pitched the opposition lacked much of the poise that was usually a part of its baseball repertoire.

TRICK DELIVERIES

"If a ball club thinks you are doctoring the ball, make them feel sure of it by resorting to unusual mannerisms that savor of trickery," was a remark Danforth once made to me.

"You can't make base hits arguing that the pitcher is cheating," the batter must swing at the ball. The belief on the part of the opposition that I doctor the ball means much.

"Instead of tending to their knitting, the hitting of the ball, the batters play right into my hands by fussing about my delivery."

There you have Danforth's side of the question. Players and umpires in rebuttal would probably offer a much different version.

Of one thing I am positive, Dave Danforth could get an even more deceptive break to his fast ball than Walter Johnson, even though some of Walter's terrific speed was lacking.

WHITE SOX SYSTEM

While scores of solutions have been offered to explain how Danforth got the break on his fast one, none of them has as yet received the official O. K. of the pitchers' union.

It is a rather interesting fact that the Chicago White Sox took more liberties with Danforth last year than any other team in the American League. In this connection it is well to recall that Eddie Collins as a teammate of Danforth at both Philadelphia and Chicago.

Danforth had his troubles beating Chicago, something invariably came up that called for his removal before the close of the game. Usually it was an abundance of base hits or a streak of wildness.

"Don't take any good ones, what- away at every ball that is close to the plate, keep him on the defensive." That's the way Eddie Collins explained the success of his club in fathoming Danforth's delivery.

"Forget about the trick stuff and

LONGHORN TRACK SQUAD HAS 3 RECORD MEN

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 17. (AP)—Three Southwest conference record-holders are members of the 1926 Texas university track and field squad, and their prowess is one of the major reasons many sport followers are predicting Coach Clyde Littlefield will be successful in the quest of the fourth successive conference championship.

The men who in 1925 smashed record are: Rufus Haggard, Quindine, high jump record-holder; Stuart Wright, Dallas, champion in the 220 yards low hurdles; Sandi Esquivel, El Paso, champion in the two mile run and conceded to be the greatest two-miler of conference history.

Wright and Esquivel, by the way, are co-captains of the 1926 Longhorn track and field aggregation. Last spring their mates could not decide between them, and for the first time in history of the school two captains were elected for a team. Wright also was captain of the 1925 football eleven, and Esquivel is captain of the basketball quintet which has experienced a disastrous season.

Haggard's record in the high jump is 6 feet and 5.8 of an inch. This mark, as well as Wright's and Esquivel's, was set in the conference meet held last spring at College Station. A week before the conference meet, Haggard in a dual meet leaped 6 feet 2 1/2 inches, but marks set in dual meets do not count as conference records, which must be set in the big meet of each season—the one that decides the conference title.

Wright skipped over the low hurdles in 24.4 seconds to set his conference record. He is showing excellent form in early workouts, and hopes to lower the record this season to 24 seconds. Wright is also a star in the 120 yards high hurdles event, and can toss the javelin around 175 feet.

Last season, Esquivel was 10 seconds faster in the two miles than any other Southwest Conference performer. His time of 9 minutes 32.4 seconds in the two miles is likely to stand for some time, unless Esquivel himself lowers it this spring—his last season of intercollegiate competition.

Esquivel is also probably the best miler in school this year, and may concentrate on this event, replacing "Long Jim" Reese, the 1925 captain, who holds the national collegiate championship in the mile.

Don't bother the umpire was another rule of our club." Looks as if Collins had the right system.

In addition to his trick deliveries, Danforth had a move to first that caused as many disputes as his pitching. It was always a balk, according to the opposition.

IDEA LAGE TO MARRY

What is the ideal age to marry? The recently issued British statistical review of the registrar shows that 21 for girls and 24 for men are the years at which the largest number of marriages take place in England. These are the average ages for both sexes but the report indicates that marriage among the middle and professional classes generally occurs later in life. The fact that the laboring class is in the majority explains the low average. Authorities generally seem to regard these ages, 21 and 24, as the most suitable for marriage. Commenting upon the official report, Dr. Marie Stopes, of London says: "I think it is the misfortune of the middle classes that, owing to their professional duties, and training, they cannot marry at the right and proper age."

The same conditions, without doubt, exists in America. It is among the working population here, as in England, that early marriages, resulting in the largest families, occur. This is owing, to a great extent, to the longer educational training needed for the professions and for business. College statistics, gathered from alumni reports, have for years shown a tendency among graduates to wed late in life. Youths who enter the trades, after a brief apprenticeship, are in a much better position to wed early. They are earning a wage, often from the beginning and what is of more importance in reaching a decision, feel that their status in life is fixed, while the young doctor, or young attorney, must spend several years in building up a practice.

During the barrage raised in congress over the alleged aluminum trust the public refused to become excited and there is some question whether even the buyers of aluminum cooking utensils took time to see what the noise was about.

No more disturbed is the public over the proposed formation of the Ward Food Products corporation "food trust" and the suit filed by the federal government for the purpose of preventing this merger of several large baking companies. And yet this combination is of nation-wide effect and concerns a food in universal and daily demand.

Obviously the American public has experienced a change of heart on the trust issue. It was only a relatively few years ago that Roosevelt was canonized by the multitudes for rescuing them from the crushing clutch of big business through the Sherman anti-trust law, but today a $2,000,000,000 monopoly fails to arch an eyebrow.

The reason is self-evident. This age recognizes certain advantages to the ultimate consumer from the monopoly and "big combine" in the form of lower cost of production, improved products and better service. The danger from the trust is not its monopolistic character but its power to fix prices, and there are now government agencies which make this danger remote. Public opinion would have the anti-trust laws enforced after the enterprise has taken advantage of its rather than before the monopoly exists.

The woman who "doesn't care how she looks" is yet to be born.

STEWART'S
WASHINGTON
LETTERSENATOR COUZENS RILED BY A PUBLIC "SPANKING"By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.WASHINGTON.—No man as big as Senator James Couzens of Michigan likes being spanked, particularly in public.True, it was a parliamentary, not a physical spanking.It all began with a speech Couzens wanted to make in the senate in favor of continued income tax publicity.Senator Smoot of Utah wanted income tax publicity abolished. Couzens was in a hurry, too. He was anxious for a vote, without waiting for any of Couzens's oratory.Somehow or other, as a result of some parliamentary hokus-pokus that Couzens didn't get onto until too late, a vote actually was forced before he'd had a chance to express himself, and income tax publicity was knocked out, leaving his speech seething inside him.Couzens is a plain, blunt man, and the way he voiced his dissatisfaction left nothing to the imagination.Vice President Dawes, as all the world knows, isn't a bit friendly to speech making, except his own, and probably he was very well pleased that Couzens had been ejected out of his chance to indulge in some.Senator Reed of Missouri gave him a chance to rub it in. Reed's stickler for the upper house rules, which don't permit one senator to roast another one in anything but the most diplomatic language. Scandalized at the boldness with which Couzens was breaking them, he made the point of order that the latter must quit it.Dawes joyfully agreed and told Couzens to subside immediately.How mad Couzens was may be judged from his answer, a little later, when Dawes offered to let him go ahead again, if he'd behave."In the contemptuous mood I'm in at present, I couldn't do it," he rejoined, and that was the last word out of him in that number of the Congressional Record.

HENRY RAND, 35, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in GRAFTON. Police find a woman's handkerchief and a yellow ticket stub from a theater in CLEVELAND.

JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Cleveland. The stub is traced to a THOMAS FOGARTY, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga Maynard, and she faints when he tells her she is suspected of murder.

Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga is arrested. She tells police the ticket stub and handkerchief might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. She doesn't know who he was and police scoff at her. Jimmy believes her and goes back to Grafton to persuade the district attorney to release her. He receives several mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland and on his way home one evening discovers he is being followed.

Olga tells police the ticket stub and handkerchief were hers but might have got into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder.

Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland. He is followed one evening and escapes from his two shadowers after wrestling a blackjack from one of them. He tells POLICE LIEUTENANT O'DAY that it was a blackjack or something similar that caused his father's death.

He was on his feet, gesturing gracefully with his arms to add emphasis to his words. "Mrs. Lowell, all Mary has to do is say the word."

"Have you said anything to Mary?" Mrs. Lowell's voice fluttered.

"That is another thing I am old-fashioned about, Mrs. Lowell." He bowed slightly. "I am speaking first to

Mrs. Lowell sighed. "We try to like it, but it is rather trying, this apartment life, after so many years in a big home. Oh well, things of course have been different since Mr. Lowell died. It almost breaks my heart to see Mary work, but she seems to like it. I'm afraid I'll never get used to it." There was a suspicion of tears in her voice.

Church smiled. "The modern girl, Mrs. Lowell, and I'm not sure that I agree with all her theories. I rather cling to the old-fashioned idea of woman's place being in the home and that sort of thing. This striving for equality and economic independence is all very well, but after all there are certain inevitable contacts the girl in business has to make that are not—well, I don't like to see it."

"And now, Mrs. Lowell, I'm taking the liberty of saying something that has been on my mind for some time. It is about Mary."

"Yes?" Mrs. Lowell was all eager attention.

"I love her. I want to marry her. Now just a minute, please. May I finish?" He waved away her interruption. "I can offer her and you, too—a wonderful home. While I am not exactly a millionaire, still most people would call me wealthy."

"Yes, of course," breathed Mrs. Lowell, "very wealthy."

"And," he went on smoothly, "I think I am, hold a certain position in the community that cannot be bought with money."

He was on his feet, gesturing gracefully with his arms to add emphasis to his words. "Mrs. Lowell, all Mary has to do is say the word."

"Have you said anything to Mary?" Mrs. Lowell's voice fluttered.

"That is another thing I am old-fashioned about, Mrs. Lowell." He bowed slightly. "I am speaking first to ful poverty. I don't think I could stand to go on with it."

She dabbed at her eyes with her handkerchief and left the room, and Mary, strangely white faced, stood staring out of the window for some time before she followed.

On the drive downtown and during the concert Church was attentiveness itself to Mary. He made no allusion to his conversation with her mother, but on the way home he quite casually brought up the topic.

"That," he said, with a graceful wave of the hand toward the imposing looking home they were passing, "is the kind of house you should be living in. You were born to things like that. There's no reason why you shouldn't have them."

Mary biting her lips, said, "I am happy where I am, Mr. Church."

"You say that because it isn't in you to be selfish. You think too much of others, Mary, and not enough of yourself. Think how wonderful it would be for your mother and you—a home like that."

"Mary," he continued impetuously, "I can give you all that and more. I love you and want you to marry me."

"Don't. Don't," she protested, her face buried in her hands.

"I don't want your answer now, Mary. I want you to think it over. Will you?"

"Yes, I will. Please take me in."

In her room once more, she flung herself face down on the bed, still fully dressed. "Selfish!" she cried in a strangled voice. "Is that what I am—selfish?"

Through the open window came the purr of an automobile engine starting. It faded away in the distance.

In front of Jimmy stand was a letter, the ink on it hardly dry. It began, "Dear Mary."

"Mary," he continued impetuously, "I can give you all that and more."

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XIX

"SURE. Who knows?" agreed O'Day. "But," he added hastily, "you're jumping at conclusions. Rand. Agreed that it was a blackjack or something that was used on your father—God rest his soul—you're a little hasty in trying to put the two together."

O'Day rose. "I'll be running along, lad. I'm detailing a man to keep watch on this house from now on. And take care of yourself. Don't be taking any unnecessary chances." The door closed behind his massive figure.

Jimmy sat for a long time after O'Day's departure, his knees hunched up before him on the bed, a frown wrinkling his forehead. Then he jumped up, took some writing paper from a drawer and wrote a letter to Barry Colvin.

He wrote page after page, describing in full the events of that exciting evening. "And not a word to the family, Barry," he wrote. "You know what they'd say if they found out. You might however say something to detective Mooney if you get the chance. He was one who said we were fools to believe Olga Maynard's story. This might get him a new slant."

The low sport-model roadster belonged to Mr. Samuel Church came silently to a stop in front of the modest looking apartment building and Mr. Church stepped out. In the vestibule of the apartment he rang the bell opposite the name Lowell.

"Good evening, Mr. Church," she stepped to one side as he came in the door. "Let me take your hat, and your coat—Mary has not finished dressing yet and you won't want to sit indoors with your overcoat on. One takes cold so easily as it is. I told Mary to hurry. I hope she won't make you late for the concert."

"Thank you. We have plenty of time," his manner was easy, and assured as he handed her his hat and removed his loose-fitting black coat. He stood immaculate in his dinner clothes his way, gray-tinged black hair sleek with pomade.

He drew a silver bound leather cigar case from his pocket as Mrs. Lowell returned from hanging up his coat and hat. "Mind if I smoke?" he smiled.

"Of course not, Mr. Church. I'd rather you would, in fact, I like to see men smoke—especially cigars," she said as he finished lighting his. "It is so masculine and Mr. Lowell used to be so fond of them—but please sit down. Shall I tell Mary to hurry?"

"I find it rather pleasant waiting," he flashed her a smile. "You are comfortable here, aren't you?" He glanced around the living room.

"Mrs. Lowell's welcome was radiant," Mrs. Lowell's welcome was radiant.

you. I have dropped an occasional hint, which is only natural for a man in love. I had gathered that she was somewhat interested in a young man named—let me see—Rand."

"Oh, that?" She smiled deprecatingly. "I did my best to discourage that. They met in a rather romantic way and he was here a few times, but that was all. She never mentions his name any more."

"These wise mothers!" he exclaimed softly. "It must have been—let us call it intuition—that led you to discourage that. I haven't had the opportunity to observe the young man very much, but the first time I saw him he was standing on the street with a notorious woman in his arms. Right in front of the Mayfair Hotel, with dozens of people passing."

"Brazen!" Mrs. Lowell exclaimed. "Oh, both of them must have been drunk. There's no other way of accounting for it. Mary saw it, too. Perhaps that's why she hasn't mentioned his name since."

"Mary hasn't been quite herself lately," she admitted. "I wonder if she's been thinking about that—that is, believe Olga Maynard's story. This might get him a new slant."

"A little talk with her," he suggested, "might—"

"She shall have it."

"Without, of course, bringing me in to it. Things might be misunderstood, you know, and I have a certain delicacy about suggesting—"

"I understand perfectly, Mr. Church. I think it quite noble of you to let me know."

"It was quite distasteful, I assure you, Mrs. Lowell."

"I know, I know. But there's Mary calling. Some last minute help with her dress, I suppose. Excuse me."

Aldine Church smiled a self-satisfied smile. With his left hand he carefully flicked his cigar ashes into a nearby receiver. With his right he smoothed down his flawlessly combed hair. He walked over to the wall mirror and adjusted his black bow tie. Then he sat down and waited.

Mrs. Lowell, in Mary's room, said as she helped her daughter into her coat, "Mr. Church asked my permission tonight to propose to you."

"Mother?"

"Mrs. Lowell went on, unheeding. 'That's such a rare and admirable trait to find in a man today. Not very many of them think of us mothers—'

"Mother, don't talk like that. Did he say—"

"He has wealth," Mrs. Lowell interrupted, "refinement, position—everything a girl could ask. Not many girls get such a chance. If he says anything to you tonight I want you to think of what it means to me—both of us. No more of this—this aw-

Jimmy slowly read it through—several pages, that had taken him hours to write. He read it again. Then he pushed his chair back from the table and slowly crumpled the letter in his hand.

Rising, he tore it into tiny fragments and threw them in the waste basket.

Rochester has been handicapped heretofore in entertaining tourists of the highways, because we offered them no comfortable and convenient camping place. Now that is all to be changed, and it won't be long until we can offer the transient motorist the kind of a park to stop in that he has been looking for. Plans are on foot looking to the construction of a modern tourist park near the city limits with all conveniences to be had, and the installation of a white way from the park to the business district.—Rochester Reporter.

GERMANY ENTERS

Germany is the latest nation to accept full membership in the league of nations.

Only the United States, Mexico and Soviet Russia and one or two minor nations are now on the outside, looking in.

However, the United States has inserted an inquisitive boot-toe into the open door of the league, with a view to keeping open the gateway for quick entrance when the time arrives. The boot-toe is otherwise known as the world court, to which the United States has voted to adhere.

It is a curious fact that the country which originated the league of nations is the only important country still left outside it.—Abilene Reporter.

Newspaper scribes declared that the operators and miners were "cool toward each other," but it's a safe bet that they are not half as cool as the poor public.—Wilmington Every Evening.

IS THIS THE HIGHER EDUCATION?

Student Says Universities Are Only "Varnishing Plants"

EDITOR'S NOTE: Thomas W. Duncan, a senior at Drake university, Des Moines, Ia., recently elected "student philosopher" of the school, has aroused much comment recently by writing for his college paper, The Delphi, a biting criticism of university life. Accordingly, NEA Service asked him to summarize his views on modern college life in a special article, and that article is herewith presented.

To show that Mr. Duncan is not a student who has been soured by being left out of those college activities that he criticizes, the following excerpt from a letter from him is printed:

"This story is not written by an outsider looking in; rather, by an insider looking out. For, here at Drake, I have been connected with the radical group, also with four fraternities—one of them a local social, one a local dramatic, and two national professional. This is not a sour-grapes attack!

"I have represented my college on the varsity debating squad. I have served as Delphi editor for over a year, and now I am Delphi columnist. I have known four o'clock dates, hot dances, etc. In other words, I am just the ordinary college student."

By THOMAS W. DUNCAN
Written Exclusively for NEA Service and The Journal.

If William Shakespeare were a student in a modern American college he would be politely snubbed.

If Shelley were to enroll tomorrow at any one of our middlewestern universities, every fraternity would pass him up as "queer."

Lord Byron would be booted from the campus before a week had passed and I doubt very much if Swift or Voltaire would be allowed to attend classes more than three days.

The self-term "ideal college student" of today must not be unusual or extraordinary if he expects to remain in the favor of his fellow students. He must be ordinary to the nth degree; he must be excruciatingly normal. Indeed, if he is just trifle subnormal he is much more likely to "make" a good fraternity.

He must believe implicitly that the varsity football squad is composed of young gods, that the half-baked opinions of his instructors are final, that the "old school spirit" is "great stuff" and, above all, that his fraternity, his group, his university are above criticism.

The university of today is an immense varnishing works where one learns to dance, play bridge and poker, carry a load of alcohol gracefully and incidentally, to invent clever excuses for undue work. It is a convenient place to which John and Mary may go from East Butteville in order to have the rough edges and sharp corners smoothed down and sandpapered.

John dons a pair of wide pants, a checked necktie and becomes "collegiate." Mary learns from the "actives" the proper "line" of her sorority, the proper fork to use, the technique of a moonlight date, and her education is complete.

When She "Puts."

If her sorority "puts," she "puts," and the male half of the campus knows her as "a hot little number"; if her group refrains from "putting" for policy's sake, she remains slightly aloof when her boy friend crowds a bit too close, and she is known in fraternity halls as "a dam good all-round girl." Of course she smokes and now and then sips a bit of throat-scorching hooch from a silver hip flask—it is a very ordinary procedure and, in fact, expected.

Now, to the sophisticated mind, these things are not a bit shocking. But here is the hitch: Mary considers herself a "college student" and is so considered by others. John readily admits that he is a "college student."

Back in East Butteville papa and mama are proud to refer to their offspring as "college students."

The term is a misnomer. John and Mary are no more students than Henry the Eighth was a woman hater. John and Mary are merely collegiates, certainly not "students."

John can tell you all about the works of Zane Grey, and Mary is well acquainted with the current "confessional" literature, but neither knows nor cares a whit about Henry Mencksen, Carl Van Vechten, Edgar Lee Masters, Joseph Conrad, Sinclair Lewis, Rabalais, Ben Jonson, James Branch Cabell, John Keats, Robert Herrick, Rupert Brooke, etc., etc. To speak of Grief Wagner or Chopin is to open oneself to the danger of being classed a "highbrow." Rodin, Aubrey Beardsley and Sargent are unknown.

There are, of course, the outcasts, the thinking minority. Circumstances force them together. Invariably they are known as "the radicals." Sometimes they are rebels. It is true, but the college rebel is not possessed with a nefarious heart. He merely wants to poke into things for himself—cut-and-dried pedantry is obnoxious to him.

Degrees Are Easy.

It is not at all difficult to obtain a degree from the universities in Middle America—on the contrary it is almost unbelievably easy. Like stray curs into the sausage machine our young people are tossed into the college atmosphere; like the dogs they must needs conform to the steel lines of the machine; and, like the dogs also, they emerge from the machine at the end of four years in strings of nice little link sausage, all alike, hopelessly alike.

Courses in a modern middle western university are designed for the dumbbell. The obvious is always insisted upon. Simple, patient, facts are emphasized. And these glibly youngsters, these Johns and Marys, labor under the delusion that they are becoming educated, cultured.

One can hardly blame the poor professors. It is what John and Mary wish, what their parents wish. Classes are meant to be only slight, unpleasant interruptions in the social whirl.

Over half of the people in our colleges should not be there. They have neither the inclination nor the capacity for a rigorous course of study.

Our universities need a general house-cleaning. They should be cleared of the rubbish of athletics, fraternities and sororities, and four o'clock dates. Then, perhaps, we should have educational institutions comparable to such old world universities as Cambridge, Oxford and Heidelberg. Until then, the modern college student will remain a dolt.

I want to mention a remark once made by Bob Ingersoll. He said, in substance, that colleges were places where pebbles were polished and diamonds were dimmed. And, as usual, he was right! (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

CLOTURE RULE REQUEST MADE

Vote On Anti-Lynching Bill Wanted and Cloture Rule Will Gain the End

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. (AP)—A cloture rule so that the senate may vote on the McKelley Dyer Anti Lynching bill, was asked before the senate judiciary committee today by James Weldon Johnson, secretary of the national association for the advancement of colored people.

The senate lately passed a cloture rule in order to reach a vote on United States adherence to the World Court. Johnson said, "If such a step could be taken for an external question evading which there is much difference in opinion." If the cloture is obtainable, the anti-lynching bill will pass the senate as it would have in 1922 had there not been a filibuster.

Johnson said that although lynching had declined, they had not been ceased adding that an insane man was taken from the state asylum at Milledgeville, Va., within the last year and beaten to death; that two human beings were burned to death in 1925 and that on December 19 last, Lindsey Coleman at Clarkesdale, Miss., was lynched after he had been acquitted of murder by a jury. He denied the anti-lynching bill was a "force bill," asserting it merely operated where states were unable or unwilling to act.

Harkey and Clapp Return From Scout Council Meeting

L. S. Harkey, area commissioner of the South Plains scout council, and K. M. Clapp, vice president, returned to their homes here Wednesday at noon from Dallas, where they had been to attend a meeting of council officers of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico which was held Monday and Tuesday. Rev. John E. Eldridge, scout executive of Tahoka, also attended the meeting, the local men said.

Prominent among the speakers at the council meeting was Dr. Geo. W. Fisher, of New York, Deputy Chief Scout Executive of the United States, who made a series of addresses on various phases of scouting, and much valuable information was gained that will be used in connection with the work on the South Plains. Mr. Harkey said.

In connection with the visit of the two local men, it was announced here Wednesday that J. P. Fitch, regional executive of Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico, had been induced to come to the South Plains next week for a series of addresses on scouting.

CHURCHMAN FOR BIRTH CONTROL

English Bishop Says He's In Favor of Repressing Unfit Breeding

LONDON, Feb. 17. (AP)—The reverend Dr. E. W. Baines, Bishop of Birmingham, made an outspoken declaration last night in advocacy of repressive measures against breeding of the unfit. Such repression, he maintained, would be "in accordance with the plan by which God has brought humanity thus far on its road."

The occasion for the address was meeting of the Eugenics Educational Society. The Bishop contended that the socially unfit were an impediment to what Christians call the "Kingdom of God" and when the people realized this truth, objections to repressive actions against degenerates would cease.

Strong arguments could be submitted, the Bishop declared, for the sterilization of mental defectives, but religious sentiment was opposed to it. This opposition might be permanent.

"The human," said the speaker, "as a consequence of his religious instinct desires environment for all born into the world, and he is learning that he cannot get this desire unless his social organization is such that degenerates leave no offspring."

FIVE MEN TAKEN ON MURDER COUNTS

MOB THREATENS TO KILL MEN WHO SHOT TWO POLICEMEN

(By The Associated Press)
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 17.—Officers today rushed five men held in connection yesterday of the killing of Patrolman Bud Jackson and George Dodson at Pulaski, Tenn., here for safe keeping following the gathering of a mob of 500 persons at the Pulaski courthouse last night.

Several stops were made enroute for officers to scout the road to make sure citizens were not lying in wait. Four of the men were rounded up in the surrounding hills after Manuel West, 25, captured yesterday, confessed to taking part in the killing and named the men as accomplices. They are Dave Johnson, Anthony Johns, John Bryner and Joe Atkins.

"We just ran into the policemen and the shooting commenced," was the reason given by West for the killing of the two officers in a gun battle in which more than 150 shots were fired. Blood hounds led officers to West's home. When the door was opened one of the dogs dashed into the house and jumped upon a bed where he was sleeping.

FOOD SUIT PLAN TO FORESTAL MONOPLY

GOVERNMENT'S MOVE FOR FOOD PROTECTION IS EXPLAINED.

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The Department of Justice's anti-trust suit against the National Food Products New York, is in line with a purpose to forestall "tendencies toward auto-monopolies, rather than to combat a monopoly already formed," is explained here.

It is made clear that the Department did not hold in the petition for a restraining order that the corporation has acquired actual control of a number of chain groceries and other food stores reported. It was set forth rather that the corporation had obtained stock in such organizations, the amount of which was not specified, and this stock should be relinquished.

Concerns Are Listed
Among concerns listed, in which the Department said stock had been acquired by the National Food Products Corporation, were the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, National Dairy Products Company, James Butler Grocery Company, First National Stores, Inc., Abbotts Aldermany Dairies Inc., The Borden Company, Reid Ice Cream Company, United States Dairy Products Corporation and the Detroit Creamery Company.

The National Food Products Corporation was organized as a holding company, the government contended, with the purpose of acquiring stock in food companies throughout the United States. The suit was filed against to make known the proceedings before Monday, when receipt for stock subscriptions were to have been issued in New York by the corporation's bankers.

40 Attend B. Y. P. U. Training Classes

About 40 persons have been attending the B. Y. P. U. training school which is being conducted at the First Baptist Church this week, according to M. L. Shepherd, one of the teachers of the course. Those who may still wish to enter the classes will find that it is not too late to join provided they will study the lesson already covered, he said. Examinations will be given on the work Saturday evening.

The classes open each evening at 8:30 o'clock for one hour of study. Dinner is then served at the church and another class period is held from 9 until 9 o'clock. The second class and the serving of dinner will be omitted Wednesday evening on account of the regular prayer-meeting of the church, he said.

L. E. Payne is teaching a book, "Advanced B. Y. P. U. Methods," and Mr. Shepherd has the course, "The Senior B. Y. P. U. Manual."

BRIDE IS SLAIN AND PARENTS HELD

WEWOKA, Okla., Feb. 17. (AP)—Erman Higdon, 22, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Higdon, are in jail here today pending investigation into the mysterious slaying of his 17 year old fiancée, Rita May Gosa, two hours before they were to have been married.

Miss Gosa was found shot to death in a ravine 200 yards from her home near Seminole Sunday afternoon. Higdon had left the Gosa home a short time before with a second man who made his home there. Higdon's story to County Attorney Billingsley, was that on his return he found the girl missing and started a search which resulted in the finding of the body by other persons.

Higdon's parents were taken into custody yesterday. Officials were informed that his mother had said two months ago that she would poison her son rather than see him marry the Gosa girl.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 17. (AP)—Roadways were blocked today in an effort to apprehend fugitives who shot two policemen to death within sixty yards of headquarters at Pulaski, Tenn., 81 miles away, shortly after one o'clock this morning.

Approximately 150 shots wakened the little hamlet. Three white men were seen to dash away and the two officers were found lying in an alleyway.

The policemen, George Dodson and Bud Jackson, comprised the entire night force. One of them had emptied his gun while the other's pistol had not been taken from its holster.

BRITISH PAYMENT ON DEBT SHOWN

LONDON, Feb. 17. (AP)—Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer led a questioner in the House of Commons today that Great Britain's net payment to the United States on account of her war debt would amount to £2,062,000 (about $160,000,000), and interest during 1925, assuming sterling at par value.

Against this, he said, Great Britain would receive about £14,000,000 (about $68,000,000) from German reparations and payments on the allied war debt already funded.

Mr. Churchill added that negotiations were pending for settlement of the remaining allied war debt.

"The situation in Syria has not improved," the Emir said. "A new infomented by agitators, but results from non-recognition of Syria's right

TODAY'S MARKETSCotton Markets*NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. (AP)—The cotton market opened at a decline of one to four points, but the lower prices brought in renewed covering by near month shorts and some trade buying in later deliveries.

After selling off to 19.95c at the start, March rallied to 20.04c while October sold up from 18.11c to 18.15c, the market showing net advances of about one to three points at the end of the first hour. Selling of new crop months developed at the opening on the weekly weather bureau indicating good progress with plowing and their preparation for seeding cotton and corn in the Southwest.

The market was comparatively quiet but generally steady later in the morning. Demand for March around the twenty cent level at the opening made a favorable impression on sentiment and that delivery sold up to 20.07c during the middle of the morning on covering while October advanced 18.17c, representing net gains of 3 to 6 points.
Prices held within a point or two of these figures at midday.

Mid afternoon trading continued very quiet, prices holding around 20.05c for March and 18.15c for October at 2 o'clock, or about 2 to 5 points net higher.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17. (AP)—The cotton market opened easy in readjustment with the parity of the Northern markets which declined during the holiday in the market here. Liverpool cables were favorable and first trades showed losses of 3 to 5 points.
Prices eased off slightly after the call,
March trading down to 19.39c, May to 18.32c, July to 18.32c and October to 17.52c, or 4 to 7 points under Monday's close. Prices rallied at the end of the first half hour and practically recovered the opening losses.

The market, while comparatively quiet during the morning, developed a steadier tone owing to a resumption of covering of near month shorts rendered uneasy by the small certificated stock, March traded up 19.49c, May 18.39c or 19 to 11 points above the early lows and 4 to 7 points above the previous close. October rallied 11.95c or 7 points up from the low, and 3 points above Monday's close. Around noon the market was steady and practically at the highs. The better under-tone was helped by rains in the western belt and promise of bad weather for the belt generally.

The market was steadier with a little more trading during the afternoon and prices stiffened somewhat, old crop months making new highs. The main stimulating influence was the promise of rain and unsettled weather in the belt accompanied by a cold wave.
March traded up to 19.50c, May 18.34c,
July 18.44c and October to 17.52c or 7
to 12 points above the lows.

Stocks And MoneyWALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. (AP)—Under the impetus of continued short covering stock prices worked to higher levels at the opening of trading today.

Restoration of speculative confidence to some extent was indicated by renewed bidding for the steel, oil and motor shares. Initial gains of one to two points were recorded by Atlantic Coast Line, General Motors, Otis Steel preferred, General Asphalt and Devoe and Reynolds.

The initial upward movement was abruptly halted before the end of the first half hour when heavy selling broke out in Baldwin Locomotive, Postum Cereal and Dodge.

Disappointment over Baldwin's poor annual earnings accounted for a further drop of more than 2 points in the stock. Baldwin and Postum touched new 1926 low figures. Rail shares, including Atchafalpa and Seaboard, were in demand while General Electric and Consolidated Gas again headed upward. Strength of the Scandinavian currencies favored the foreign exchange market with demand sterling holding firm at 4.86.

GERMANS WATCH
BERGDOL CASE
CAREFULLY*AUTHORITIES GIVING IT
EVERY CONSIDERATION, REPORTS SAY

(By the Associated Press)

MOSBACH, Germany, Feb. 17. (AP)— German officials in charge of the prosecution of Grover C. Bergdoll, accused of sedition, are proceeding with great care in sifting the material on which their case will be based. This is because of the apparently unusual motives behind the case and the personal enmity between Bergdoll and the instigator of his arrest, Robert P.
Sachs, a detective.

Bergdoll Was Armed

Sachs has denied that he is acting as an agent of the American Legion seeking to force the draft evader's expulsion from Germany, and describes himself as a representative of American newspapers. He also is credited with the statement that he is a deputy sheriff of Alameda county, California.
It is learned that Bergdoll was armed when taken into custody. He was summoned to the mayor's office last Friday and placed under arrest for preliminary examination. A revolver was taken from him before the journey to the city hall. During the trip, in the state attorney's car, he talked excitedly about Sachs whom he immediately suspected as the instigator of the action.

Carried Weapons.
A more thorough search at the city hall revealed that he was carrying a second revolver and a dagger. Acquaintances say he had gone heavily armed of late, growing suspicious over the frequent visits of Americans to the hotel where he was staying.

The daughter of the hotel proprietor is said to have gone to America recently and obtained $5,000 from Berg-doll's mother for the draft dodger.

Bergdoll's habits have been very eccentric. On occasions, acquaintances say, he spent liberally and engaged in all night drinking bouts, while at other times he lived a spartan life, holding his expenditures down to the last possible penny.

9 PRISONERS ARE HURT IN RIOTS

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 17. (AP)—Nine convicts are on the injured list at the Oregon state penitentiary here as a result of a riot between 150 convicts in the prison dining room late yesterday.

The riot is believed to have been caused by a general tightening of discipline, a new ruling having been inaugurated yesterday requiring prisoners to fold their arms when marching into the dining room and maintaining absolute silence during meal time.
No prisoners escaped.

REGIONAL SCOUT EXECUTIVE FOR TEXAS, OKLAHOMA AND NEW MEXICO WILL COME HERE ON PLAINS TOUR

J. P. Fitch, regional executive of the Boy Scouts of America for Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, is due to arrive in Lubbock next Wednesday for a five day speaking tour of the South Plains area. It was announced at scout headquarters here Wednesday following receipt of information from L. S. Harvey and K. N. Clapp, scout executives from here who attended a meeting of council officers Monday and Tuesday in Dallas.

Mr. Fitch, who has had fifteen years experience in work with boys, the greater part of which time has been in scout work, is recognized as one of the best scout executives in the south-west, and according to local officers will have much of interest for followers of the scouting program.

Tour Is Given.

A tentative schedule for the tour that he will make over the South Plains, which is subject to changes if such becomes necessary, was given out this morning as follows:

Mr. Fitch will give an address at Wilson Wednesday morning, February 24, and Wednesday at noon will meet with the Kiwanis club at Tachoka at the noon luncheon, Wednesday evening he will be at Lubbock.

Thursday morning he will address interested citizens and scouts at O'Donnell, returning here to speak before the Kiwanis club at noon, and as far as present plans provide will spend the night here, possibly addressing a mass meeting of local citizens in the evening. Scout officials here explained, however, that at least a little time will be required for the speaker to rest, and that he may be allowed this privilege Thursday night.

Friday morning he will address a mass meeting of citizens of Idalou, Lorenzo, Ball and Crosbyton at Ball, and Friday at noon will speak before the Rotary luncheon at Slaton, which meeting the Rotary club of Post will be invited to.

Saturday morning, he will close his speaking tour with an address at one of the larger churches of this city, further announcements on which are expected to be made in a day or two.

An effort has been made to arrange the route of the speaker so that he may cover the greatest amount of territory and reach the largest number of people possible. Scout Executive H. H. Palmer said here Wednesday in urging that Mr. Fitch be given capacity crowds at the various places. His talks, Mr. Palmer said, will be purely educational in nature as related to Scout work, and his wide experience in the work places him in such position that he will be able to bring many new thoughts that will be valuable in the program of scouting.

Small Daughter Of District Prosecutor Ill In Hospital Here

Mary Elaine Witcher, daughter of district prosecutor Walter C. Witcher, is in the Elwood hospital suffering from an attack of appendicitis, but reports from the hospital Wednesday morning said she was resting well.

Mary Elaine was stricken with the attack late Tuesday, and was rushed to the hospital, where it was thought an immediate operation would be necessary, but she rallied and pending further developments and investigation of her case by attending physicians, the operation has not yet been performed.

The patient rested well Tuesday night, and was much better Wednesday, physicians said.

MISSIONARY SCHOOLS IN MEXICO LOSE IN TILT TO FORCE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO PERMIT TEACHING

(By the Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 17.—A court test of the Mexican government's right to close religious and educational institutions has resulted in victory for the government.

The officials of the Franciscan asylum filed a petition for an injunction in an endeavor to prevent execution of an order to close the institution. The court rejected the application on the ground that the government's course was permitted under the constitution.

The Colegio Huetra Senor del Pilar, an educational institution, was closed yesterday without incident or arrests.

One American Involved.
Only one American has been involved in the government's plans to close all religious and educational institutions and churches where foreign born priests officiate. She is Margarita M. Temple, Mother Superior of the Catholic Academy at Coyacan. Last week she informed James R. Sheffield, American ambassador, that she anticipated the closing of her school, which apprehension proved correct. She is being allowed to remain in the academy, although 15 of the nuns there have been rejected.

There apparently is no intention to cease literal enforcement of the constitution which prohibits the functioning of foreign born priests and the operation of foreign religious schools. Some Spanish priests already have been deported.

She May Leave.
It is understood that "Madame Temple," as she described herself to the American Embassy, is considering leaving Mexico, regardless of whether her deportation is being considered. The government has not announced whether it intends to deport foreign nuns.

Article three of the constitution under which religious schools are being closed, says: "The government may give higher instruction imparted in both official and private must be laical and that no religious body of the minister of any religious sect will be allowed to direct schools of primary education.

Sheffield is silent.

Ambassador Sheffield will remain silent until the Washington government instructs him concerning "Madame Temple." It is known that the ambassador several days ago in conversation with foreign Minister Saenz, who at present is on a tour in Monterey with President Calles, acquainted the minister with the temple situation, although he made no official representation.

American Comes Home.

Dispatches from Eagle Pass, Texas, say that the Rev. J. L. Phillips, president of the People's Institute of Piedras Negras, just across the Rio Grande and seven women teachers, who were given 24 hours to leave Mexico have arrived in Eagle Pass.

The school has been supported by the Methodist Episcopal church South. Mr. Phillips said the school was ordered closed.

The officers of the Mexican Department of the Methodist church South, are to start an investigation of religious laws in Mexico. Bishop James Cannon of Richmond, Va., has been informed of the expulsion of the Rev. Mr. Phillips and his teachers.

Inquiry Is Ordered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Officials of the Methodist church South, have called at the State Department to make inquiries regarding the Mexican church situation but as yet no formal protest against conditions in that country has been filed with the department.

As a result of the informal inquiry, the churchmen were advised that properties in Mexico acquired by them in accordance with Mexican law, are entitled to the same possession as to those similarly acquired by private interests.

Methodist officials so far have been the only church to take up question with the department, despite expulsion of Catholic priests and members of orders of that church.

JOE INMAN, OKLAHOMA OUTLAW, IS TO FIGHT EXTRADITION; PAPERS ASKED BY SOONER STATE POLICE

Joe Inman, notorious Oklahoma gunman who has been held in the Lubbock county jail here since last Sunday following his arrest on Saturday night in Reagan County by Lubbock county officers today refused to return home in the custody of Sooner State officers who had come here for him, saying that requisition papers approved by Texas authorities must be supplied before he can be legally removed from the state.

Luther Bishop and Lee Pollock, of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation of Oklahoma, which corresponds to the Texas Ranger service, D. Arthur Wilson, Sheriff of Grady county, where Inman was convicted and given ten years on a charge of assault with intent to kill, and Dave Hill, of Chickasha, one of Inman's bondsmen, arrived here Tuesday morning to accompany the prisoner to the Oklahoma penitentiary, but returned late this afternoon unsuccessful in their attempt.

They will seek requisition papers through Governor Trapp of Oklahoma which will be forwarded to Texas for approval of Governor Ferguson in an effort to return Inman to his home state, Mr. Bishop said just before the party left here.

Inman is wanted to serve out a ten year sentence imposed upon him in connection with an attack made upon J. P. Collins, deputy sheriff at Alex, Okla., in 1921, and as far as is known this is the only charge pending against him. Mr. Bishop said, in discounting reports for the Sooner state setting out that the prisoner is wanted on a number of charges, inclusive of bank robberies. Inman jumped a $10,000 bond following his conviction, and for the last three years has been sought in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico by federal, state and county officers.

He will remain in the county jail here pending further developments in the case. Sheriff H. L. Johnston, one of the party who arrested Inman, said Wednesday.

Mandamus Petition On Marrs Grafted

AUSTIN, Feb. 17. (AP)—Permission to file petition for mandamus compelling S. N. M. Marrs, to recognize the $550,000 American Book Company contract, was granted today by the Supreme Court.

The application was filed by the American Book company last week through its attorney, former Attorney General W. A. Keeling.

Marrs contends the contract is not valid, and is supported in this contention by Attorney General Dan Moody, who ruled the company did not file with its bid certain affidavits required by law. The Attorney General's department will represent Marrs in the litigation before the Supreme Court.

Last week the state text book commission ratified by a vote of 4 to 3 the act of its sub-committee in recognizing the contract.

W. A. Keeling, former Texas attorney general, is representing the American Book company.
