Record Vote Predicted In Water Election Today

JUDGES GIVEN INSTRUCTIONS BY OFFICIALS

Voters Assured of Right To Prove Ownership Of Property

11 ELECTION BOXES

Supervisors for Both Sides To Stand Watch At Polls

Residents of Wichita Falls will vote Saturday for the second time on $1,000,000 worth of improvements in the city water system which will assure an adequate supply of soft water, free from all contamination and danger of epidemics.

The polls will open at 8 a. m. and close at 7 p. m. Eleven voting boxes have been provided for the election, and indications were Friday that the largest bond vote in the city's history would be polled.

Instructions Issued

Election judges met at the Memorial auditorium Friday night and received final instructions from City Attorney Thelbert Martin and City Clerk W. E. McBroom. Supervisors for the water improvements committee, favoring the bond issue, and the citizens committee, opposing the issue, were announced to the judges.

According to instructions issued, all persons who paid the 1930 poll tax, who have been residents of Wichita Falls for six months and who own property subject to taxation are entitled to vote in the election.

Judges were told that if a prospective voter's ownership of property is questioned, they may have the voter make affidavit to the ownership of certain property or to submit other proof to show that the person is entitled to vote.

In the first election held here Jan. 20, the bond issue was carried by a majority of 140 out of 3,000 votes cast. The election was set aside by Judge P. A. Martin, however, and a second vote called. Proponents of the issue said Friday night they were confident of a second victory if those favoring the issue keep their pledges to vote. A possible indication of the heavy vote expected was the polling of 53 absentee ballots in the second election, compared to eight ballots in the January election.

Work Can Start Immediately

If approved, work on the improvements is expected to start within two or three weeks after election day, according to City Manager George D. Fairtrace. The contemplated improvements include a closed conduit from Lake Wichita to the filtration plant, to cost $190,000; a ditch around the north side of the lake to divert drainage from salt wells and other sources of hard water, $75,000; improvements to the filtration plant, $429,000; and larger distribution mains, $315,000.

Of the total amount, it is expected that approximately $350,000 will be expended for labor in Wichita Falls. The city council has publicly pledged there will be no increase in the tax rate if the bonds are voted.

Jinx Day Brings Luck To Wily Apple Peddler

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13. (AP)—An apple peddler at Fourth and Market streets cast an eye at the calendar and then noted several ladders leaning against a theater at that corner.

"Nobody," mused the apple vendor, "is going to walk under a ladder on a day like this."

He arranged with the ladder man to set them so pedestrians would have to pass immediately before the apple box. Many apples were sold.

Landslides Bury Homes Of French Villagers

CHAMBERY, France, March 13. (US)—Landslides menaced small towns in this area tonight as rock continued to fall from the mountain sides in French Savoy. More than 125 persons have been made homeless through the destruction of the towns of Michaud and Berges. No casualties have been reported.

Engineers blamed torrential rainfall for starting the 6,000,000 cubic yards of rock and earth in motion near Michaud and Berges. Alpine guards took charge of the evacuation of the towns.

BARDSTOWN, Ky., March 13. (UP)—Frank Carson, Detroit, was found guilty today of murdering Carl B. James, railroad official from whom he "hitched" a ride. The penalty was fixed at death.

1,200 Give Approval To Water Program In Rally At Auditorium

Harris, Taylor, Fritz and Kell Plead for Decision on Merits Of Question; Opposition Scored for Efforts To Mislead Voters

More than 1,200 persons voiced unquestioned approval at the Memorial auditorium Friday night as four speakers pleaded that in Saturday's water bond election all the "slush and slime" of an opposition campaign be wiped from their minds, and that the bond issue be passed as the best possible means of reviving economic activity in Wichita Falls.

Constant introduction of "foreign issues" into the water improvements bond campaign by opposition speakers and publications was deplored by two of Friday night's four speakers; but particularly by Judge Harvey Harris, who concluded the speakers' forum on the question.

"This election tomorrow," Judge Harris said in opening his address, "is not on a political question. No political question should have been dragged into this campaign. The question which should be submitted tomorow is whether or not it would be to the best interests of this town to vote these bonds, and whether is is necessary to provide $1,000,000 for water improvements here."

Fair appraisal of the two sides to the campaign which has been waged during the past month can be made, Judge Harris said, by evaluating what each side has offered in case of success in obtaining its objective.

Vote on Merits of Issue

"Regardless of your calling in life," the speaker said, "each man and woman of you, before going to the polls tomorrow, should ask yourself, 'What has each offered to me? What have the proponents of this bond issue offered, and what does the opponents cause offer?' If any man or woman believes conscientiously that he should oppose this bond issue because it will make him pay too much for water, or will increase his taxes, I am willing to take off my hat to him or her. For my right to my own opinion is your right, too. But above all things, we should let the matter stand on its own merits, and be honest in our decisions."

Passage of the proposed bond issue will bring property owners here far greater benefits than the project will cost, Judge Harris declared. Denouncing the "wilfull introduction" of extraneous matters which are "entirely foreign to this matter of water improvements," the speaker said:

"Consider for a moment the 'issues' with which they have sought to divert your interest from the business which is before us. First it was the zoo. When our opponents first called a meeting at the courthouse, they jumped on the city for maintaining the zoo. Then it was the golf club which the city maintains so that young men and women of limited means may have an opportunity for recreation at a small cost.

"I did not believe that there were men in this town so small of mind, whose souls are so crimped, that they would begrudge the little money we spend on the zoo for the sake of giving some pleasure to children in this community. Nor did I conceive a Wichita Falls man whose soul had grown so warped that he would deny these young people a healthful outing, within their means, after long office hours.

"These speakers did not condemn maintenance of the zoo and the municipal golf course because they believed what they said: they made such charges because they thought you would respond to it. You didn't. Since then, you've heard no more of the zoo and the golf club. They dropped it like a hot rock, because you didn't bite on their bait."

Next, Judge Harris said, they decided to utilize a matter which has "been the cause of much public discontent," the question of gas rates.

NEW POLITICAL LINEUP SEEN

Progressives and Demos In Open Flirtation

WASHINGTON, March 13. (AP)—An open flirtation between Democratic leaders and Independent Republicans looking toward the 1932 presidential campaign developed today as an aftermath to the Progressives' conference.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, chairman and sponsor of the conference, said the Progressives' only hope for a liberal presidential candidate lies with the Democratic party.

This was followed by a statement from Senator Hull of Tennessee, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, pointing out what he described as similarities between the Progressive program and the policies of his party.

Third Party Belittled

Both belittled the possibility or practicability of a third party movement.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, joined in with a statement that he would like to see Governor Roosevelt of New York nominated by the Democrats if his colleague, Senator Robinson, is not.

Conceding the renomination of President Hoover by the Republicans, Norris said that would leave the Democratic party as the Progressives' only hope for a liberal candidate.

Showdown Coming

Meanwhile, members of the house Progressive group said a showdown on salient features of the program adopted at the Progressive conference ending yesterday would be demanded before house control is entrusted either to the Republican or Democratic party.

The Progressives will hold the balance of power in both houses of the congress if a well knit organization is effected.

STERLING RAPS RAIL BODY FOR ALLOWING FLOW

Governor Presents Bill To Create Oil Regulation Commission

DESCRIBES NEW POOL

Oil Delivered to Seaports Cheaper Than Cost Of Production

AUSTIN, March 13. (UP)—The Texas railroad commission either cannot or has not efficiently handled the oil situation, Gov. Ross Sterling said tonight, announcing that he has furnished legislators a draft of a proposed bill to establish a separate conservation commission which will handle oil.

Governor Sterling has also called upon both the railroad commission and the attorney general to stop gas waste in the Reagan county field. He said, but either they have not or cannot do it.

"I cannot order them to do anything. They are elected the same as I am," Governor Sterling said.

Mammoth Field

Failure to prorate East Texas oil production was blamed by the governor for the present situation of the oil industry.

"I am informed by men who should know that the East Texas field is the greatest yet found; that it has a billion barrels of oil. Oil is being shipped from it now into Houston, and Wichita Falls. It can be delivered cheaper at the boats than Oklahoma can produce it. It is being shipped into San Antonio with the Grayburg field right at San Antonio's edge.

"The proven field covers 75,000 acres. Wells can be put down in eight days. With that condition, you can see what its operation unprorated means to the oil industry. It is also costing the state millions of dollars in decreased gross receipts taxes."

Governor Sterling furnished a Draft of his proposed bill to Bailey Hardy of Breckenridge, chairman of the house committee on oil, gas and mining. Copies were furnished also to senators.

Commission of Three

It provides for a commission of three experienced oil men paid $7,500 each. One of them, the governor said, should be an attorney familiar with oil laws and one a

FIELD EXTENDED

Special to The Record News.

LONGVIEW, Texas, March 13.—Gregg county's Lathrop discovery area, extended two ways Thursday with substantial producers, bobbed into the limelight again tonight when the East Texas Refining company Foster-Bond No. 1 Fisher came in for an estimated daily production of 6,000 barels of oil and proved up the field three and one-half miles to the southwest.

The newest producer is located on a direct line with the Bateman pool in the Kilgore district and indicates the Gregg county oil vein will bear far enough in that direction to join the two fields.

Yount-Lee Co. Pays $3,270,000 For Etex Tract

TYLER, Texas, March 13. (AP)—Sale of 2,500 acres around the Lathrop well in Gregg county together with a half interest in the well and the 96-acre tract on which it is located to the Yount-Lee interests for $3,270,000 was announced here today by Gaylord H. Chizum of Fort Worth, attorneys for J. E. Farrell, W. A. Monerief, W. S. Noble, R. S. Baker, and E. A. Showers, the owners.

Chizum said over the telephone from Houston that $1,270,000 would be paid in cash, with the remainder to be paid from one-fourth of the oil as produced. The well is flowing about 5,000 barrels daily under choke.

WEST TEXANS PROTEST PRICE

San Angelo Asks Officials To Take Action

SAN ANGELO, Texas, March 13. (AP)—The support of Gov. Ross Sterling and of Attorney General James Allred "in correcting the existing price structure of crude oil at 25, 35, and 40 cents a barrel regardless of grade and gravity" was solicited by the petroleum committee of the San Angelo board of city development on behalf of West Texans in telegrams filed today.

Prices referred to are the lowest paid for oil of similar grade anywhere in the United States, it was said, despite four years of conscientious and stringent proration, and have brought appalling, irrecoverable economic and financial loss to thousands of land owners, the University of Texas, the public school fund and many small independent operators. Furthermore, the telegram said, the consuming public has not benefitted by these last drastic crude oil cuts which in West Texas amounted to practically 50 per cent.

"In spite of numerous crude oil price cuts during the last two years, the price of gasoline and lubricating oil to the consuming public has not been reduced proportionately but has remained at approximately the same price level with only minor fluctuations," the committee declared. "Citizens are asking why they are compelled to pay as much for one quart of lubricating oil as is paid for one barrel of crude oil which contains 168 quarts from which 30 to 50 per cent gasoline together with additional lubricating and fuel oils are recovered."

Fifteen independent oil operators telegraphed Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma their appreciation of his "concerted, unselfish constructive individual action in behalf of the independent oil men" and said that the voluntary agreement with the governor by major importing companies to reduce oil imports several million barrels yearly, announced by Secretary Wilbur, opens the avenue for the Oklahoma governor's proposed state legislation.

SOONER LEGISLATURE STUDIES OIL BILLS

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 13. (UP)—Impetus was given to legislation curbing oil importing companies doing business in Oklahoma as a result of Secretary Wilbur's announcement today that major companies had agreed to limit oil imports.

The announcement was signal for immediate consideration of various oil bills before the legislature.

Gov. W. H. Murray asked that these oil measures be acted upon soon. In conformity with the governor's announced policy of retaining proration, it was said the Jones bill, providing for repeal of proration, will be killed in the oil and gas committee tomorrow.

Churches Aghast At Oklahoma 'Reno' Law

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 13. (UP)—A proposed legislative measure that would make Oklahoma a "second Reno" drew a concerted attack from every church organization in Oklahoma City today.

Jimmy Wilson, Creek county, and L. E. Green, Murray county, introduced a bill in the Oklahoma house late yesterday that would legalize divorce after 45 days residence. Applicants must live here six months before a divorce can be obtained.

HOOVER CALLS ON PRODUCERS TO CUT OUTPUT

President Sees Salvation Of Industry in Rigid Conservation

IMPORTERS AGREE

Flood of Inquiries Moves Executive to Set Forth His Views

WASHINGTON, March 13. (UP)—The depressed oil industry can revive itself by going along with the government in the pending effort to prorate production and imports, President Hoover declared tonight.

His optimistic analysis of the situation came after Secretary of Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur announced successful conclusion of negotiations to prorate imports.

Only the Standard of Indiana among all the large concerns east of the Rocky mountains has failed to join the unofficial compact, said Wilbur.

The addition of this company is expected as soon as its negotiations with the Venezuelan government can be concluded. The company wants to protect its concessions before entering the import limitation compact.

The president's statement, coupled with Wilbur's indicated a possible early conclusion of the long and bitter struggle here to get a tariff or an embargo on oil.

Producers Seek Relief

Owners of wells in the mid-West have been busy at the capitol and the White House for months, seeking to keep the big companies from freely importing oil while their own production was being limited by the oil conservation board policy.

"The board considers that in the present situation a substantial reduction in imports can be brought about without disturbing the price of oil to the consumer," Mr. Hoover stated.

"These negotiations are making favorable progress.

"But such action should have little effect, unless the East Texas pool shall be prorated on the same basis as other new wells. It is believed that if these two results could be brought about the industry would soon readjust itself."

Mr. Hooves said he made his statement of the situation because he had received several hundred telegrams from the West and Southwest either inquiring or making suggestions as to the oil situation.

He reviewed the efforts of the government to get a limitation of pools in California, Oklahoma, Texas and elsewhere. He made clear that these efforts were purely voluntary among the oil men themselves and that the government was acting only in the role of unofficial peacemaker.

"The oil conservation board considers that in the present situation a substantial reduction in imports may be brought about without dis-harder than I have," the speaker declared. "It's a constant scrap, as their manager will tell you, so far as I am concerned. But with all that, the gas question is absolutely foreign to this water bond issue. It has been dragged in for the purpose of diverting your minds from the real issue of this campaign.

"They have told you about the cheap rates on gas now prevalent in Amarillo. But did they tell you that the Amarillo company's franchise had just recently expired and that the city council therefore was in a position to look across the table and say 'Now we'll do the talking.' That's what we shall be able to do here on Sept. 4, 1933. But they didn't tell you about that expiration up there."

"Your city council, and your city attorney, and hired counsel put up the best fight that could be put up against these rates," Judge Harris continued. "But the country's court held against us. Of course, as "Big" Fischer has told you so eloquently, you can 'raise the devil.' But that's all you will get out of it, and probably you're dealing closely enough with him as it is.

Facts on Your Drinking Water

"They have told you the water plant is retained at its present location because of deference to the Texas Electric Service company, and to give that concern free water. The electric company received free water until 1930 as part of the purchase price paid for the water system when it was bought by the city years ago. Since the expiration of that contract, in 1930, the electric company has paid for its water just like you and I do. I'm not an engineer, but good engineers have given three good reasons why it would be impractical to locate the water plant at Lake Wichita, as our opponent's speeches urge. The chief reason is the necessity of having the pumping equipment nearest the district to which the heaviest water load must be delivered,—which is our town section."

Judge Harris also refuted charges which he said opponents of the bonds have made that "the projects proposed are designed to benefit the Country Club Estates residents primarily." He also urged that economy demands that the improvement program be undertaken and completed now.

Publication of water analyses by the opposition was condemned severely because "all these four samples of water were taken from bottled drinking water brought into this town for sale." The figures quoted in an anonymous publication several days ago, the speaker said, were only the first four lines of the water report furnished March 2 by the Glover Laboratories. He read the remainder of the report which he said had been "deliberately omitted." While it showed a much higher bacterial count than the bottled drinking water, Judge Haris said, it still is "pretty good water." He continued his reading, but from reports taken in last July and August. Some of the analyses, as he quoted them, showed a bacterial count ranging from 48 to 600—25 being the maximum prescribed for safety.

"Opponents of this campaign for good water and much needed labor," the speaker said, "have been so rash as to declare that the report of our water system issued last Monday by a representative of the state health department was 'framed' and designed to lead the people into an evil trap. If I had no more faith than that in our state, its governor, its doctors, its engineers, its people, I would get up and out of this city before daylight tomorrow! That statement of their's is just about as honest as the one they gave you about the water tests. And here's another: they have said that if our $1,000,000 bond issue carries, we shall have to pay more than $4,000,000 to pay it off. If we retire the bonds annually, the total cost, principal, interest and all in the end will total about $1,900,000. If we didn't pay a cent on them until the end of their 40 years, it would cost us $2,800,000—that isn't $4,000,000."

Work for Needy Men

Provision immediately for the employment of local labor is the most important and imperative objective before the city, Judge Harris declared. Public works programs by cities for the employment of their own working men is the only means of tiding over the period of depression, he urged.

"If Wichita Falls should vote down this bond issue in tomorrow's election," said Judge R. E. Taylor, "it would give the city a black eye that would remain for many years. People who forge ahead in building a city are those who have energy and courage to carry more than their own share of the load. Until recently, you never found here the division, the fight against progress, that you find here now. There must be men who have some ulterior motive in this business. This town should be here tonight en masse. The men who are opposing this movement should be here tonight, working hand in hand with us to put it over."

Listen to This

"When a man once has had his mouth in the fountain of public finance," Judge Taylor continued, "it drives him crazy to be driven away. He knows the taste of it, and wants to stay there. I believe their purpose today is to get where they can drain on the public trough again, as possibly they have done before. I heard two men offer $10 each to this woman with six children who wrote so learnedly for the 'Independent Citizen' the other day if she would appear. There isn't any such woman, as you all know. That article sounds to me like the language of a fellow who came from 'Oklahomie,' and who sometime ago moved outside the city and built himself a brick mansion. Of course, I could be mistaken, but I say it sounds like his talk."

Discussing the men who have been leading the campaigns for and against the bond issue, Judge Taylor declared that close perusal of the community chest donors and chamber of commerce members "revealed a startling scarcity of those who are trying to beat this bond issue down." Participation in the programs of the two organizations, the speaker declared, provides a very accurate gauge on which to measure the civic worth of various individual citizens.

"Talking about salaries of city employes, as though that had anything to do with this water bond matter," Judge Taylor said, "with the men we have on that city council up there, no one on a pay roll is going to get more than he's worth. This salary matter, like a lot of others they've trumped up, has no more to do with the water bond issue than the first page of Hostettler's almanac."

Declaring that if the $1,000,000 bond issue carries in Saturday's election, approximately one-half of it will be paid to laboring men here for their work, the speaker deplored the blindness of "men in this city who would vote against that which means bread and meat to many of their own fellow citizens."

Kell Makes Talk

"If there were nothing more to this matter than feeding the hungry in this city, I pledge you my word of honor that I would be for this bond issue, just for that one thing alone," he concluded.

Need for immediate improvements and passage of the bond issue were urged by Frank Kell in a brief address. He emphasized the fact that $1,000,000 was named by citizens here, and the city council, as the maximum which would be allowed at this time for water improvements. If required corrections can be made for less than that amount, he said, such reductions in expenditure of funds will be made. While he "considers the closed conduit not so necessary now," Mr. Kell declared, "engineers and scientists believe it should be provided to insure healthy water, and they are to be trusted and followed."

Danger of serious conflagrations because of inadequate water pressure; discomfort and expense of losing vegetation through lack of water; and the danger of serious potential epidemics were named by D. L. Fritz, opening speaker of the evening as demanding completion of the proposed improvements project.

Judge R. E. Huff acted as chairman of the meeting, and added his plea that "every friend of the city's progress" do his utmost to register a decisive majority for the bond issue in Saturday's voting.

Music was furnished during the early part of the meeting by the Caballeros band, directed by Paul Seeds. Mr. Huff announced that this organization will present a public recital of solo and group numbers next Tuesday night in the Memorial auditorium.

STERLING SIGNS OIL TITLE BILL

Mineral Right Validation Becomes Law

AUSTIN, March 13. (AP)—Governor Sterling late today signed the Small land bill validating the title of owners of school mineral and grazing land to fifteen-sixteenths of the minerals and giving them all the bonus from oil leases and other mineral development.

Announcement that Sterling had signed the bill was made tonight. The bill was placed on the governor's desk shortly after lunch, and the chief executive signed it before leaving his office.

The bill was passed Wednesday by the house after the stormiest day of the session. It was made necessary through a decision of the supreme court in 1928 which held the state was entitled to one-half the bonus from leases on the land. Small, Representative Stevenson of Junction, Wagstaff of Abilene and other leaders of the West Texas delegation claimed the land was sold under the 1919 relinquinshment act to the West Texans on the understanding they would receive all the bonus from the mineral development.

When the bill was passed in the house, a gallery filled with West Texans cheered loudly, the scene resembling somewhat that when the Small bill, validating titles to river beds, was passed in the 41st session over the veto of former Gov. Dan Moody.

Little fear had been held by Small and others but that Sterling would sign the bill.

Sterling Urges Oil Commission

petroleum engineer. They should be appointive.

The railroad commission has too many other duties, Governor Sterling said, commenting further upon the plan to divorce oil control from the railroad commission, which is an elective body.

The governor's statement was brought forth by receipt of a telegram from San Angelo in which an oil man asked why he had to pay as much for a quart of lubricating oil for his automobile as oil companies paid him for a whole barrel of oil.

Explains "Spread"

The low price paid for crude oil the governor, who is former head of the Humble Oil company, said is due to the lack of firm proration. The high price for lubricating oil, he said, represents cost of service as well as the oil.

"There are too many filling stations," he said. "When you get a quart of oil for your car you not only pay for the oil but for numerous services."

The governor then cited prices at which lubricating oil was sold in car lots when he was in the oil business to show the spread between the wholesale and retail price.

Governor Sterling's announcement came a few hours after the state railroad commission had ordered a hearing for March 24 on the question of prorating oil production in the East Texas field.

It came also after a house committee had reported favorably on freeing marginal wells from proration.

"That oil also has to go somewhere," the governor remarked.

Married Man Describes Kidnaping of Sweetheart

CHICAGO, March 13. (AP)—Frank J. Murray, 47, married sales engineer, told the county highway police today robbers kidnaped his sweetheart in a county forest preserve 11 days ago, took his car and beat him into unconsciousness.

He submitted voluntarily, police said, to questioning, and supplemented his story of the robbery with the statement he had tried to break off his friendship with the woman after 17 years. She countered, he said, with threats to tell his wife.

The woman is Miss Norma Newby, 36. Her mother notified police. The woman still is missing. Murray was not held.

Discharged Worker Ends Life With Gun Shot

HOUSTON, March 13. (AP)—Faced with the prospect of unemployment, Harry Thorn, 44, warehouse foreman for an oil company at Pierce Junction, left his work today, went to his home and shot himself in the temple. He was dead when he was found.

Thorn was notified by mail Wednesday his services would not be required after April 1.

Justice C. R. Overstreet returned a verdict of suicide.

Sterling Takes Stand for State Regulation of Public Utilities

AUSTIN, March 13. (AP)—Gov. Ross S. Sterling said today in a message to the legislature he favored establishment of a state commission for the efficient regulation of public utilities.

"Less than a dozen companies control and own an investment in Texas of many, many millions of dollars yielding an annual income in excess of $200,000,000, the governor stated.

Governor Sterling said he looked with favor upon the Petsch or city attorneys' plan of regulation now pending before the house of representatives.

Governor Sterling stated in his opinion there was no subject now pending before the legislature of greater importance than utilities regulation.

He said the tremendous amount of business of the utilities, the extensiveness of their operations, the protecting of the rights of the people all require the establishment of an independent and well financed commission in order that effective regulation might be truly accomplished.

The governor said the utilities enjoyed, in addition to their privileges of natural monopoly, the rights of eminent domain, making them virtually unlimited in their power and privilege of operation.

He said there was no justification for contentions that utilities should operate unregulated.

"If there is anything in the contention of the persons opposed to the efficient regulation of our utilities, they might as well gracefully argue for the abolition of the Interstate Commerce commission, and every railroad commission in the United States," Governor Sterling said.

District Attorney Buron Fitts has ordered the bureau of investigation to cooperate with the police department's missing persons detail in a widespread investigation.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

ure in this state does not want for very much. "However, Mr. Spence stated, it is not so good that it cannot be remedied. The first thing I would do would be to pass a law which will permit the state to discuss the failure of the defendant to testify on the witness stand. There are cases in which the failure of the defendant to testify proves to be the feature of the trial. If a man is on trial for a crime and has a reasonable explanation for his connection with the charges he can get on the stand and testify without endangering himself in connection with the case.

The second reform listed by Mr. Spence was the repeal of all laws giving the defendants the right of severance. "This can cause more delay and more expense to the state than any other thing," the speaker said. "When we are forced to try three or four persons charged with the same crime, separately, it sometimes lags over two or three terms of court to take care of them all. This could be remedied to the benefit of the taxpayers and also bring about more speedy justice."

In closing his talk, Mr. Spence advocated the abolition of the jury wheel and the replacement of it with a jury commission. The first two points brought out by Mr. Spence were endorsed by the membership.

Judge J. T. Montgomery in his talk on "What Figure the 18th Amendment Will Cut in the Next Election" declared that "the Democratic party will write a platform to get in on and the Republican party will write one to stay in on but I don't think anything in either platform will have much to do with what goes on after the election. In the 18th amendment we have undertaken to make people moral by law. That is impossible, we can't even make them sober by law. I would not do away with the 18th amendment without replacing it with some other regulation but as it stands today I do not favor it," the speaker said.

Other speakers included J. W. Fischer, Orville Bullington, H. J. Bruce, A. H. Carrigan and Judge John C. Kay, who paid an impressive tribute to Fred Weeks for his splendid work during his year as president of the organization.

During the business session plans were made to meet once every two months instead of once each year, the meetings to be held in the form of a luncheon. Several guests from Henrietta were introduced. Approximately 65 members were present.

St. Patrick Suggestions

No one entertains during the first two weeks of March without in some way honoring St. Patrick, unless the entertaining be on some special occasion as a birthday or wedding anniversary. The three meals outlined above would not be served on the same day but would be suitable for a bridge luncheon, a dinner and an afternoon tea.

Green is the color used. The brilliant hued greens fit very gracefully into the decorative theme at this time of the year when the thought of approaching spring is an especially welcome one. The color not only bears tribute to the quaint patron saint of old Erin but also happily heralds the coming of verdant fields and budding foliage.

A St. Patrick tea table should be simply arranged. A polished table is attractive if it is covered with doilies of filet lace or with a handsome white embroidered cloth. A centerpiece of narcissus or Killarny roses and maiden hair fern would be attractive in a bowl of green glass or of silver with candlesticks to match; the tea and coffee services which gleam at each end of the table with bonbons and tiny cakes distributed between create an artistic setting in keeping with the spirit of the day. Shamrocks, hats, harps and pipes are suitable for favors at such an affair.

The menu may honsist of either a salad and an ice with a variety of sandwiches, cakes, nuts and candies or both. Particularly fragrant and appropriate for such an occasion is green Chinese tea served steaming hot with sections of sliced canned pineapple with slices of lime or lemon studded with cloves, with preserved ginger or with orange peel.

The following recipes are delectable as well as true St. Patrick in color.

RECIPES

Fruit Cocktail

Alligator pear cubes marinated in lime juice dressing and garnished with shredded sweet pickle.

Chicken Livers en Brochette With Olive Sauce

Clean the livers, removing all stringy membrane, and cut in halves. Wrap each half in a wafer-thin slice of bacon and thread on skewers alternately with mushroom caps, cleaned and dipped in melted butter or olive oil. Place the skewers across a dripping pan in a very hot oven or under the broiler flame, basting occasionally with the fat that will collect in the pan. Serve on the skewers and accompany with olive sauce made as follows: Brown two tablespoonfuls of butter with the same quantity of flour, add one cupful of hot water or stock, one-half teaspoonful of Worchestershire sauce, one tablespoonful lemon juice, with salt, pepper and paprika to taste. Cook until slightly thickened, then add a dozen stuffed olives thinly sliced.

Irish Icebergs

Make lemon sherbet, color with loaf green and freeze. Serve from cone-shaped ice cream scoop. Over each serving pour a tablespoonful of peppermint syrup, sprinkle with finely chopped, blanched pistachio nuts.

Peppermint Syrup

Boil one-half cupful of sugar and three tablespoonfuls water for five minutes. Flavor with three drops of oil of peppermint.

Meringue Shells With Mint Jelly Whip

Beat four egg whites until stiff, add gradually two-thirds of a cupful of granulated sugar and continue beating until mixture will hold its shape; fold in another third of a cup of sugar and one-half of a teaspoonful of vanilla. Shape with a spoon or pastry bag and tube on a wet board covered with letter paper. Bake 30 minutes in a very slow oven, remove from paper and put together in pairs, or if intending to fill with whipped cream or ice cream remove soft part with spoon and place in oven to dry.

For meringue shells with mint jelly whip, fill shells with an equal quantity of mint jelly and whipped cream. Place two shells together (bottoms) for serving.

Irish Delight

Soak four level tablespoonfuls gelatin in one cup cold water. Add one and one-half cupfuls boiling water. When dissolved add four cupfuls granulated sugar and boil for 15 minutes. Divide into equal parts, and when cool flavor one part with oil of peppermint and the other with oil of wintergreen (a few drops of each). Let stand until firm, then cut in squares with a wet knife. Roll in powdered sugar. This is a delicate candy similar to Turkish delight.

St. Patrick's d'OEuvres

Dill pickle slices with a sardine curled on the top.

Slices of Salami sausage with onion rings filled with chopped chives.

Squares of sweet pickled watermelon rind, garnished with a shamrock of green pepper.

Sweet Potato Hats With Apple Rings

Cook sweet potatoes until almost tender in boiling salted water. Remove skins and cut crosswise and trim to look like the crown of a tall hat. Cook for three minutes in a syrup made of one cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls butter and one-third cupful of water. Slice large green apples, remove the core and cook until almost tender in the same syrup. Place the apples in a baking dish, place potatoes on top, sprinkle with sugar and bake until heated through. Garnish with rings of green pepper and a sprig of parsley.

Olive and Celery Salad

Dissolve one package of lemon gelatin in one cupful of cold water; and one cup of boiling water. When almost cool add one cupful chopped celery, one cupful sliced stuffed olives, one-half cupful chopped green peppers and one large sweet pickle, chopped. Pour into individual molds and serve on watercress or lettuce with faintly colored mayonnaise, in which a few capers have been distributed.

Erwin's Mint Parfait

Cook one cup sugar and one cup water until it spins a thread; beat into it slowly the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs; when it cools add one tablespoonful vanilla. Beat again; when cold fold in one pint whipped cream. Put in the electric refrigerator pan and cover with oil paper for about five hours or pack in ice and salt. Fill sherbet glasses with the parfait and pour over each a spoonful of crystalized mint leaves, which are made by rolling fresh mint leaves in a thick sugar and water syrup, they drying them on buttered plates in an open oven. Sprinkle them every few moments with granulated sugar.

Festive Cup-Cakes

Make your favorite recipe for cup-cakes and bake in very small rings. Ice one-half of the cakes with plain white frosting and the other half with green frosting made by adding green coloring to the white icing. Sprinkle with chopped nuts or green cherries if desired.

Pickle and Olive Sandwiches

Put through the food-grinder the contents of one bottle of stuffed olives and several sweet pickles. Mix together with mayonnaise and spread between slices of buttered white bread. Cut in diamond or shamrock shapes.

St. Patrick Sandwiches

Cut four slices of sandwich bread, spread them with cream cheese and chopped walnuts, moistened with cream and seasoned with a little salt. Next cut four more slices of bread and spread these with chopped watercress and mayonnaise mixed together. Put the slices one on top of the other alternately and weight them down. Place them in the ice box and before serving slice the pile of sandwiches as one would a layer cake. The effect is very dainty and attractive, unusually so when each slice is "iced" on one end with some of the cream cheese mixture.

Irish Rolled Sandwiches

Trim the crusts off a sandwich loaf of bread; then cut it into thin slices lengthwise (use soft, fresh bread). When preparing a division of bread place it on a damp cloth, then spread it with creamed butter and then with mashed canned asparagus tips and chopped parsley mixed together with mayonnaise and seasoned with salt and paprika. Then beginning at the top or narrow end of the long slice roll in the opposite direction, making the first "bend" rather sharp. Moisten the edge with creamed butter and wrap until ready to use, at which time cut into three pieces, tying each in the center with a narrow piece of green-satin ribbon. If the sandwiches are to be served without the ribbon slice very thin as you would a jelly roll.

Shamrock Sandwiches

Chop very fine together one green peper, one peeled cucumber, and some firm lettuce hearts. Mix with mayonnaise and spread between thin slices of white bread, cut with a fancy shamrock cutter.

Mousse Pistachio

Pour boiling water over one cupful pistachio nuts; remove the skins after a few minutes and pound them to a paste, moistening them with a little cream. Add them to one pint of stiffly beaten cream, flavor with one tablespoonful orange flower-water, and color the desired shade of green. Fold in lightly four tablespoonfuls powdered sugar. Mold and place in the refrigerator (mechanical) pan for three hours or pack in ice and salt until frozen. Serve in sherbet glasses or in slices. The Scotch toots might be made a little larger than directed—and filled with the mousse at serving time.

Scotch Toots or Rolled Green Wafers

One-fourth cupful butter.
One-half cupful powdered sugar.
One-fourth cupful milk.
Seven-eighths cupful bread flour.
One-fourth teaspoonful almond extract.
One-half teaspoonful vanilla.
Green coloring.

Rub butter until creamy. Add gradually powdered sugar and then add drop by drop milk alternately with flour. Add almond extract and vanilla, beating until very light. Color delicately green. Spread dripping pan. Crease in three-inch squares. Bake in a very slow oven, turning frequently. They should retain their color. Place pan on oven door, cut squares apart with a sharp knife and roll upper side outside, while warm, in tubular or conical shapes. (Scotch toots are conical in shape). If they become too brittle to roll, place in the oven until they are softened.

St. Patrick Lime Mints

Three cupfuls sugar.
One-half cupful water.
One-fourth teaspoonful cream of tartar.
Few drops of liquid green coloring.
Ten drops of oil of lime.

Put the sugar, water, cream of tartar, and coloring in a saucepan on the stove. Stir until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Do not stir any more. Brush the sides of the kettle with a fondant brush that has been dampened with cold water four or five times during the cooking process to remove all crystals that may form. At 262 degrees Fahrenheit remove from the fire and your on slightly oiled marble or platter. Pour the oil of lime on the batch. When the edges are cold enough to handle pull until the candy is fluffy. Then, pull out in the shape shape of a long thin rope and cut with scissors in the even-sized pieces. Put in a cake tin that has an even amount of cornstarch and sugar on the bottom and sift some of the same mixture over the top. Let stand several days before using.

Drain and rinse stalks of canned asparagus. Cut narrow rings from green pepers, lay three or four stalks in each ring, arrange on lettuce leaves, and serve with French dressing, to which has been added one-half teaspoonful parsley, finely chopped, and one-half tablespoonful green pepper, finely chopped.

Mint Jelly and Banana Salad

Soak two tablespoonfuls gelatin in one-fourth cupful cold water; add to this one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water, one-half cupful confectioner's sugar, one-half cupful lemon juice and the pulp of four bananas, mashed fine. Cover one cupful finely chopped mint leaves with boiling water, let stand for 10 minutes, then strain the mixture into the gelatin. Stir together, adding one teaspoonful green coloring and one-half cupful sliced preserved green cherries. Pour into individual molds and chill. Serve on mint leaves with mayonnaise, to which a few drops of green coloring have been added.

HOOVER CALLS FOR PRORATION

President Has Hopes For Oil Improvement

turbing the price of oil to the consumer," Mr. Hoover stated.

President's Statement

"The Atlantic seaboard may be supplied from domestic storage."

The statement read:

"In order to prevent enormous waste of gas and oil and to prevent the ruin of the independent oil producers, the federal oil conservation board brought about over a year ago, under the leadership of Secretary Wilbur, an almost entire restriction of production from the newly discovered great oil pool at Kettleman Hills, Calif., a large part of which is the property of the federal government. The state authorities of Oklahoma have brought about similar restraint upon an enormous new pool discovered at Oklahoma City. Coincident with these efforts the state commissions working with other producers of California, Oklahoma and Texas brought about proration agreements among themselves. A third great pool has been recently developed in eastern Texas, upon which no proration has yet been brought about, but I am advised that the governor is making an effort to bring it about. The question of prorating of imports has been under agitation as also having a bearing upon the problem.

"We import approximately 105,000,000 barrels of petroleum and its products per annum and export about 156,000,000 barrels, the imports coming largely from certain South American and Mexican oil pools.

"The consumption of the United States is approximately 900,000,000 barrels per annum, the imports thus representing something over 11 per cent and the exports about 16 per cent of the total.

"On Jan. 29 the oil conservation board recommended to congress that authority be given to the federal trade commission to effect proration of imports, it being the board's hope that a proration of production in the foreign pools exporting to the United States could be brought about as well as a proration of imports into the United States. No action was taken by congress upon this recommendation nor upon other plans proposed by the independent oil producers.

"On March 5 therefore, the board, with my approval, requested that importers should each voluntarily prorate their production from foreign pools and their imports into the United States in order to give Mid-Continent and California fields an opportunity to further readjust their position. The board considers that in the present situation a substantial reduction in imports can be brought about without disturbing the price of oil to the consumer. The Atlantic seaboard can be supplied from domestic storage. These negotiations are making favorable progress, but such action would have little effect, however, unless the East Texas pool shall be prorated on the same basis as other new pools. It is believed that if these two results could be brought about, the industry will soon readjust itself."

Kimes Boys and Ray Terrell Freed From 'Solitary' by New Pen Warden

M'ALESTER, Okla., March 13. (AP)—Oklahoma's bad men are coming out of "solitary."

Under a policy of B. F. Van Dyke, who left a county law office to be warden, such notorious bandits as Matt and George Kimes, young bank robber-killers and Ray Terrell, bank looter, are being given employment at the state penitentiary.

Van Dyke recently began clearing solitary cells in which 40 convicts were kept when he took charge. The Kimes and Terrill had been "in the hole" since they tried to escape shortly after their incarceration several years ago.

The new warden, attorney and insurance man at Mangum before he was named by Gov. William Henry Murray to take charge of the prison, interprets the extreme punishment provided by law as meaning hard labor.

He personally talked with the men confined in the dark solitary cells. Then he ordered their daily admission to the prison yard for exercise—a privilege heretofore denied. Now he is making labor assignments.

Van Dyke hopes eventually to abolish "solitary."

The Kimes boys and Terrell, who perhaps were the worst of the more recent Oklahoma outlaws, now work in separate parts of the prison. The brothers were convicted of killing an officer in a bank raid at Beggs. Another bank robbery paved Terrell's way to the penitentiary. Matt Kimes was once sentenced to die but won a commutation.

Van Dyke's brief tenure as prison warden has caused a stir in political circles. Governor Murray sent him here without offering his name to the senate for confirmation. The attorney general ruled he must be confirmed. This the upper legislature body has declined to do, largely because of claims that the new warden once was a Socialist.

The Underworld on Top A Two-Cent Argument Lawyers Jump at It Raskob's Warning

By EMILE GAUVREAU

If you are following the investigation of the murder of Vivian Gordon, queen of New York racketeers, you are reconciled by this time to the fact that nothing will come of it. Nothing came of the investigation of the slaying of Arnold Rothstein, of the murder of Frankie Yale, of Frankie Marlow and countless others in power in the underworld. For the underworld is no longer "under" in New York, but on top.

The Gordon woman was taken for a ride because her revelations promised to spell ruin to a number of people in various rackets from bootlegging to dope selling. These parasites have flourished and increased to such a point that they can actually throttle the law. Nothing is clearer. Nothing, therefore, is more certain than that any legitimate effort by the police to discover the murderer will be blocked.

Governor Roosevelt, viewing the spectacle, expresses chagrin to his friends. He denies publicly that he will step in. If he shows any inclination to step in you will hear the cry of home rule from the political underworld. The mayor says he is "shocked, more or less." The police commissioner is experiencing the emotions of his predecessors. The circle remains vicious. The ramifications of vice have tangled themselves into a Gordian knot, but there is no Alexander big enough in New York to cut it.

A dispute over two cents' worth of cheese winds up before a New York magistrate. The proprietor and clerk of a Brooklyn delicatessen store who tried to sell 12c worth of cheese to a lawyer's chauffeur who came in to buy only 10c worth, are held in bail of $300 each. Both sides hire lawyers and will fight it out to the last ditch. Here is a good answer to the question, "Why are the court calendars so clogged up?"

Before the Democratic national committee in Washington, Chairman John J. Raskob speaks for an hour, chiefly in favor of a revision of the 18th amendment looking toward state control of individual liquor problems, but with the assistance of the national government. Mr. Raskob also warns his party that it must alter considerably its stand on current questions, such as anti-trust laws, farm relief, tariff, unemployment insurance, if it to meet the menace of a third party.

Objections, hisses and cat-calls that greet Mr. Raskob's suggestion indicate more than anything else the number of reactionary deadheads with which the Democratic party is still cluttered. Thanks to Alfred E. Smith, there were some cheers amid the booing, and some gleams of intelligence shining through the almost general opacity.

All these wranglings, disputes, minor collisions, are simply preludes to a fierce war which bids fair to overshadow every previous conflict that has divided the nation. Prohibition has made too many grafters rich to be relinquished without a bloody fight. Napoleon said: "There are two levers by which men may be moved—fear and interest." Both these levers are moving the underworld to an ominous preparedness in defense not only of their own tawdry domains, but of the more flashy and sumptuous domains of their overlords.

The agreement reached between India and England is nothing more than a compromise. Both sides, weary somewhat of the impasse, have decided to call a truce, the better to survey the scene and prepare for further hostilities. India will not be satisfied until it gets complete autonomy. And England will fight until that autonomy is won from her.

St. Patrick's Day

MANY people celebrate the birthday of St. Patrick, but beyond the fact that he was Irish, and asked the snakes to vacate Ireland, only a few of those who wear the shamrock in his honor know just who St. Patrick was.

St. Patrick is believed to have been born somewhere near the year 389. His birthday occurred around midnight on March 8. Whether it was before the clock struck 12, or just after, nobody ever knew. Therefore, when the birthday celebrations started, some kept one day and some another. Finally it was suggested that the eight and nine be added, and the 17th be kept as an anniversary. For nearly 1,500 years this has been done.

The Irish saint may have been born in Scotland or France or England. Nobody really knows. But when he was 16 a band af marauders carried him and held him in bondage in Ireland for six years. He escaped, landed in France, studied in a monastery near the Mediterranean, and a little later went back to Ireland as a missionary.

It was Easter eve, so they say, when he met the pagan priests and chieftains, who had gathered at Tara for a heathen celebration. King Laeghaire was to start the blaze on his pile of fagots after which the other fires would be kindled.

Patrick saw an opportunity to advance Christianity. He remembered that once upon a time Elijah had called down fire from Heaven on a night when another group of pagans needed converting. The legend says that he did the same thing.

King Laeghaire had been a devout pagan, so it took considerable teaching to Christianize him. Finally all the obstacles but one were removed. He couldn't understand the Trinity.

St. Patrick went strolling across the Irish braes as he tried to think of a way to make the king believe. He noticed a shamrock growing at his feet. He stooped, plucked the spray, and carried it back to the king. He asked the monarch if he couldn't see that the Trinity . . . the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost . . . were one, just as the three leaves on one stem were one. The king understood and became a Christian.

There are many legends told concerning St. Patrick's love of the Irish but one of the most interesting is laid in Heaven after the Irish patron's death.

St. Brigid, the mistress of poets and saints and soldiers, had died more than 430 years before Patrick. One night, after St. Patrick's death, the two Irish saints went walking. They couldn't keep their eyes on the golden walls and the crystal sea. They walked in Heaven, but they were homesick for Ireland.

They started to reminisce.

They remembered the Ben of Gulbain in the moonlight, the basket of lakes, and the Dingle peninsula in a storm.

They came to Rhadamanthus, the judge, who had never been to Ireland and never said he was sorry that he hadn't been. A terrible fear came to St. Brigid and St. Patrick. Rhadamanthus would send even an Irishman to hell!

St. Brigid went straight to the throne of Heaven and asked if St. Patrick could judge Irishmen from that on. The request was granted. Then a new worry confronted her. Maybe a bad Irishman might come along. St. Patrick solved the problem by vowing that if any did, he would convert him before passing sentence.

Science vs. History

AMBITIOUS biographers, by their relentless researches, are not the only ones bent on exposing the unreliability of traditions we have come to associate with the makers of American history. Science, it now appears, lends a helping hand.

At the University of Wisconsin the other day, Dr. J. H. Mathews, an expert in ballistics, announced that Daniel Boone, that hardy pioneer whose hair-raising exploits among the Indians thrilled us as youths, was really a terrible shot.

The smooth-bore guns they had in those days, the professor contends, weren't at all conducive to accurate shooting. So Dan'l couldn't possibly have done all those things attributed to him by the writers. Thus another tradition bites the dust.

If we must concede that this colorful Indian fighter was a bum shot, most of us will rightfully continue to regard him as a good scout. That is, unless additional research reveals anything to the contrary!

Pajamas and a Prince

DURING his stay at the presidential summer palace in Chile, so the story goes, the Prince of Wales arose daily at noon, sauntered into the open garden attired only in a pair of vivid blue pajamas and, oblivious to staring eyes, nonchalantly went through his daily dozen.

Somehow this news, shocking as it may appear to some, is refreshing. It is refreshing in the same way the news is that the king of Belgium dunks his toast in coffee at breakfast. Stories like these help dispel the illusion that world figures move about in an atmosphere of stiff dignity and stateliness. They show, rather, that they are human.

It is not difficult to understand why the finger of scorn has often been pointed at figures in public life for manner unbecoming to their station. The demands made upon them are most exacting. Few realize the strain required to show at all time in public the proper poise, attention, decorum. It must be indeed a great relief when the tension is relieved.

Big Business Girl . . By One of Them

Claire MacIntyre, known as "Mac," determines upon a business career upon being graduated from state university. At the university she has fallen in love with Johnny Goodman, who is to graduate a year later. Johnny is handsome and a talented musician, but a bit undependable. It is hard to withstand his protestations against her plan, but Mac goes to Chicago, leaving behind the memories of gay petting parties. Johnny is to have a summer engagement with his college musicians in Paris. Mac lives with her kindly Uncle Jerry in Chicago. She has had some experience in managing a dry cleaning business in college, so determines upon that as her field, though Uncle Jerry says racketeers have made a good deal of trouble in that line in Chicago.

INSTALMENT VI

Actually it was very quiet after Mac started to work.

She spent two weeks, almost, in a careful planning of the campaign to appeal to women by means of a direct mail effort. She wanted to popularize the idea of dying dark clothes lighter shades, a new process few customers realized was available. "Old R. J." as the office called him, looked at her presentation carefully and told her he would think it over. Winters explained that he probably liked it very much, but that he was slow and nobody knew if he would go ahead on it or not. Mac's duties were transferred to that of adjuster. She was complimented on her tactful letters.

The hours were long and the neighborhood could have been improved upon. Chicago's summer came early that year, and by mid-July the pavements sizzled.

She saw an occasional Saturday matinee of a Loop musical show with one of the girls in the office. On Sundays Uncle Jerry and she went places, if she didn't take a dip in the lake.

On the evenings when neither Old Minnie nor Uncle Jerry happened to be around, Mac ate a dollar dinner at a tea-room nearby and sat there by herself eating and thinking and reading a book which she propped up, to the waitress' annoyance, against the sugar bowl. It was usually too hot for quick exercise along the lake front, and so she would walk slowly home, pretending that life was full enough as it was.

She looked at the relics of university days. Her clothes had received hard wear. You could not go riding around in leaky cars and tramping over wet grass without a certain amount of damage to delicate frocks and light shoes.

Mac felt that perhaps disaster would overtake her before her salary check was doubled. Finally, she stopped looking at her clothes altogether.

Mac was very grateful for what Winters had done for her, and still more grateful to know that he wasn't too interested in her. He was engaged to be married in October and except for rare periods when his girl was out of town, he had eyes for nobody else. But somehow she felt that he would ask her for a date some time, and, after three weeks had gone by, he did.

The invitation came for a Sunday afternoon. Winters (his first name was Lucian and everybody called him "Luke") had a friend whose modest yacht was tied up at Belmont harbor.

"Hi, kid," came his voice over the telephone. "How're all your old suppressed desires? Say 'yes' to going for a little ride on the lake this afternoon."

"Yes," said Mac.

It was a hot day, with no breeze, but out on the deep blue of Lake Michigan, with a red-and-white striped awning overhead, it was vastly different. There were four couples aboard, all of them from Chicago except a man and wife from Detroit. There was an inviting frost on the cocktail shaker. The drinks that went around were ruby; the caviar was dished out by each guest, and the supply was very generous.

Far along the northern shore Mac saw the row of private beaches, with splendid homes perched high behind them. Down along the lovely expanse of dazzling sand the gay, colored parasols were great exotic blooms.

Luke Winters, beside her, was murmuring into her ear: "Swell day for a swim. I'll bet you look great in a six-piece bathing suit. You know, I could go for you myself."

"Is that right?" No emotion in her voice in response to this vocal honey.

Then the others joined them and there was a flicker of words. Although their host was so charming and so correct, and the liquor was grand, his taste in women was simply ghastly, decided Mac. A good part of the while he had his arm about a woman obviously in her forties and downright fat. She had a pretty face but, as Luke had said, she was "breaking ground for her third chin."

"I wonder," said Mac, partly to herself and partly to him, "if it isn't smarter for a girl just to be beautiful than to stick her nose into business."

He swung his eyes back to her. "Listen, if you're fishing for a compliment, you're working entirely too hard. You look knockout, and you know it."

"Well, even if I am fairly decent to look at, how long do you suppose I'll be that way if I stay in this cloak and suit business? Oh, I guess I'm tight. I never say things like that."

"Say, didn't I hear something about you being in love with some guy—crazy over him, and all that?"

"No," said Mac firmly, "you did not."

"Come on, kid, I'm getting older. Who's the boy-friend, and where is he?"

"I do have a boy-friend in Paris. He's a very good musician. Has his own orchestra, in fact. Now, is that what you wanted to know?"

"Oh, don't be so young and high waisted."

"I haven't seen him all summer. He probably hasn't even thought about me." Mac knew that was not true. She had a stack of his letters at home; they often came three at a time, catching the mail on the same boat. Johnny was a big success. The manager of the Parisian night club wanted him to renew his contract into the winter, but he had refused. He would be coming back in September. The letters were full of love. How could she forget him? And yet she had forgotten him, a good part of the time. Perhaps success would change him, give him that push he needed. If he would only be driven by something that demanded that money he made and things conquered, as she was!

"I never see you step out with anybody around the office, or make any rowdy-dow. You're surely socking away at your work—and getting by like a million."

"I wonder. Sometimes it seems awfully slow. They don't think a woman can do anything—they won't give her a chance."

"That sounds vaguely familiar," laughed Luke.

Mac swung around to Luke. "Say, I hear the federation has been bombing Horner again."

"Don't know if it is the federation or not. Probably not. Old R. J. said that just as he was getting into his car the other day a couple of men stepped up to him and propositioned him. 'Listen, fella,' one of them said to him, 'there are lots of tough eggs in this man's town and you need protection. Give us two hundred and we'll look out for you.'"

"How did he get away?"

"He just said nothing, as usual. Looked them up and down very carefully, and got into his car. They were fakes. You never know which are the racketeers and which are trying to make you believe they are. I think the crowd that has been making trouble for Horner is another bunch out to shake him down. Horner better watch out. They'll put him on the spot for a little slug-party one of these nights."

"Didn't he get some gangsters to protect himself a little while ago?"

"Yes, he took in the three Rice brothers, and plenty tough they were. They protected him for awhile but they soon saw there was no excitement around, so they started picking on some business agents of the federation. It stirred things all up again, so Horner had to let them go."

"Oh."

"They did put a crimp in the Blue Island gang, which was coming up fast. They were muscling into new territory and sewing up the suburban tailors in a fake union. The Rice brothers got two members of the outfit in a car, took them out to the sand dunes beyond Hammond and filled them up with shotgun slugs. That got around, and I think that's the reason Horner let them go."

"Are they the ones that go around to the little shops and throw acid on a tailor's clothes?"

"Yep. They take all the risks. The others higher up have swell offices downtown, have pink Rolls-Royces and a flock of women."

"Pink?" laughed Mac.

"Absolutely! Big Jim, boss of the Federation has a pink one so long it can hardly turn a corner. And a colored chauffeur. I think he'd smoke two cigars at once if anybody ever gave him the idea."

"I've heard Mr. Clayton talk about him."

"He worked for old R. J. about fifteen years ago, and he was a darned good man. If he'd spent as much time being straight as he did in figuring out how much he'd make by playing a deal the crooked way, he'd be worth a lot more money. Big Jim likes him, though."

He went on: "If there was another boss of that outfit—I mean the federation—he'd put the screws on R. J. more than Big Jim has. You see, Big Jim's got to make some kind of a showing to the others."

"I should think it would be easier for them to scare new outfits than the others, the older ones. We were the first large cleaners and we're still the biggest. That ought to have something to do with it."

They were past the entrance from the lake into Belmont harbor, jockeying for position near a buoy which was the anchoring place. Now a young lad in white came alongside in a tiny launch to take them off.

"You talked just then as if you were a member of the firm," said Luke.

"Maybe I expect to be!"

His laugh died away when he saw her serious gray eyes.

Electra Lions Hear Banker on Business

ELECTRA, Texas, March 13.—G. J. Gilles, presided at the luncheon of the Lions club Thursday. J. G. B. Totten, member of the Electra Rotary club, was introduced as a visitor and J. A. Wise, formerly connected with the First State bank, was the principal speaker. His subject was "Business Conditions and Credit."

The club decided not to hold the annual Easter egg hunt that they have sponsored the past few years for the children. H. T. S. Totten of the committee appointed to investigate plans for the annual Lions minstrel or similar entertainment, reported that the committee recommended that the minstrel be postponed indefinitely. Dr. R. R. Ramey spoke in regard to a pure food show for the club to sponsor to raise funds for local work, but no definite action was taken on the proposed project. G. J. Gilles will be the chairman of the program committee for next week.

Measure Would Limit Salaries of Officials

AUSTIN, March 13. (AP)—A bill to limit remuneration of all county and district officers to $5,000 per year was introduced today by Representatives Anderson of San Antonio and Howsley of Albany. Anderson said many justices of the peace were making three times the salary of the governor and $4,500 more than was paid justices of the supreme court.

All over $5,000 received by the justices would be paid into the county general fund.

Answers to Questions

Stop a minute and think about this fact." You can ask our information bureau any question of fact and get the answer back in a personal letter. It is a great educational idea introduced into the lives of the most intelligent people in the world —American newspaper readers. It is a part of the best purpose of a newspaper —service. There is no charge except two cents in coin or stamps for return postage. Get the habit of asking questions. Address your letter to The Record News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—What is the probability of a couple's celebrating the golden wedding anniversary?—H. R.

A.—The Metropolitan Life Insurance company says that it depends upon the ages of the husband and wife at the time of marriage. If the girl is 20 and the young man 25, the chances are one in six. If their marriage occurs 10 years later, the chances are one in 40.

Q.—How long has Gen. Smedley Butler been in the marine corps?—T. V.

A.—He was appointed to the marine corps in 1899, and promoted through the ranks to colonel. In 1921 he was made a brigadier general. During 1924 and 1925, he was given leave of absence from the corps to serve as director of safety in Philadelphia. During the world war he served in France with great distinction, and he is the only American officer to have been awarded two congressional medals of honor.

Q.—What is the size of the Cleveland airport?—J. E. F.

A.—Cleveland has 1,000 acres of hangars and landing field in her airport.

Q.—What is meant by the "will to power?"—J. S.

A.—Bertrand Russell says that the main urge of childhood is the "will to power," in other words the desire to become an adult. Although this is not the sole source of children's play, it shows in the play in two forms: the first, consists in learning to do things; the second, in fantasy or make believe.

Q.—Is the author of "The Divine Lady" living?—H. D.

A.—Mrs. L. Adams-Beck, who wrote under the name of E. Barrington, died in Japan recently.

Q.—How does a man become superintendent of a national cemetery?—W. D. B.

A.—The war department says that the superintendents of national cemeteries are chosen only from ex-service men who have been disabled, and that men who qualify in such a way for this position must first serve a probation service of six months in order to establish their fitness for the position.

Q.—What is Spencer's theory of evolution?—D. P.

A.—Spencer finds that throughout the universe there is an unceasing redistribution of matter and motion and that redistribution constitutes evolution when there is a predominant integration of matter and dissipation of motion, and constitutes dissolution where there is a predominant absorption of motion and disintegration of matter.

Q.—In what war was a Roman fleet destroyed by means of a mirror?—K. W.

A.—During the siege of Syracuse in the Second Punic war, Archimedes is said to have constructed a burning mirror which set the Roman ships on fire when they were within a bow-shot of the wall. It is probable that Archimedes had constructed some such burning instrument, but the connection of it with the destruction of the Roman fleet is more than doubtful.

Q.—How many districts are there in the lighthouse service?—P. A. S.

A.—The lighthouse service is divided into 19 marine districts and two airway districts.

Q.—Are children apt to get lead poisoning from putting their toys in their mouths?—D. B.

A.—The public health service has had occasional cases called to its attention. It is likely that more cases occur than become known. Children with perverted appetites would be particularly likely to encounter the hazard. Though lead paint has wide fields of usefulness, the painting of babies' toys and cribs is not one of them. Generally manufacturers of these articles are seeing to it that lead paint is not used for this purpose, but warning is necessary that parents, especially in repainting cribs, should use paints which are free from lead, namely, quick-drying lacquers or enamels sold for interior use.

Q.—Who is restoring Robert E. Lee's early home?—M. J. B.

A.—It is the intention of the Daughters of the Confederacy to restore Stratford-on-the-Potomac, the birthplace of Robert E. Lee. It is said to be the largest mansion in the state of Virginia, and the only example of this particular old English type of home in America. It was built in 1729 and 1730.

I'LL TELL YOU WHY I VOTE

"YES" ON THE WATER IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

WICHITA FALLS today faces a critical period in its further progress . . . As a citizen vitally interested in the growth of my community I realize that the present water situation now retards the growth of my city. In order for Wichita Falls to take its place in competition with other wide-awake, progressive Texas cities we must remedy the water problem here.

AS A FATHER of normal, growing children I consider the good health of my family to be of utmost importance. Thirty-five of my city's leading physicians tell me publicly that these improvements should be made and that the potential dangers of typhoid and other deadly diseases are now ever present.

As a BUSINESS MAN who tries to realize a substantial return from every business investment I believe the success of this WATER IMPROVEMENT CAMPAIGN will mean a substantial saving to me. Six of our leading Wichita Falls automobile dealers estimate that the damage done to automobile radiators in this section, alone amounts to $60,000.00 annually. Nor does this figue take into consideration the expense of radiator repair work, pump trouble and the damage done by hard water to automobile finishes.

AS THE MAN WHO FOOTS THE BILLS AT HOME I know that a considerable saving will be made in soaps and washing powders, estimated at $3.00 per person, by the passing of this program.

AS A SOLUTION TO PRESENT UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEMS I believe that passing this program will give work to hundreds of Wichita Falls citizens who need this work and that it will not mean additional financial hardships on me or my neighbors.

AS A TAXPAYER I believe that the committee favoring these improvements has worked out a plan which will NOT increase my tax payments and that it is a plan fair to everyone. As a water user I am more than willing to pay the small additional amount proposed on my monthly water bill to assure my family, my city, and myself of the benefits of good, soft water . . . The greatest possible safeguard I know of for the good health of this community.

AS A CITIZEN OF WICHITA FALLS who is proud of his city and who believes in its future I cannot conscientiously do otherwise than vote "YES" for this WATER IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM.

Follow the Lead of These Good Citizens of Wichita Falls

More than 1,000 bona fide voters who are publicly endorsing the water improvements.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Colonic Irrigations

Question—J. M. writes: "I would like your opinion on taking high colonic irrigations. You you think them beneficial? How often should they be taken?"

Answer—I advise the colonic irrigation in many cases. The number you should take would depend upon the condition of your colon and the opinion of the one giving the treatments. A treatment a day is often helpful for a short time, but usually one or two of these irrigations a week is sufficient, while you are changing your diet, increasing your exercise, and doing other things to bring about a normal state of health. The effects of internal bathing do not last much longer than the effects of taking an ordinary bath. You must, at the same time, correct the faulty habits which have produced the conditions for which you are taking the irrigations.

Color in Margarine

Question—Mrs. J. D. K. asks: "What is the coloring supplied with oleomargarine? Are butter substitutes injurious?"

Answer—Most margarine manufacturers use annatto for coloring their product. Capsules of this coloring matter are supplied with margarine so that the housewife may mix the coloring in, herself, as the margarine manufacturers are not allowed to artificially color their products the same as the butter people do. Another coloring matter used is Dandelion Butter Color. This is sometimes furnished in powder form along with the margarine you buy. Some margarine is naturally yellow, due to the natural yellow color of fats used in its manufacture. All butter substitutes now being sold are perfectly wholesome and have a high food value.

BRADBURY TO CAPTAIN 'REGULARS' IN SEASON'S FIRST GAME

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

The Melody Lingers On

When League President J. Alvin Gardner renounced all connection with the Wichita Falls Baseball club and became president of the league after the 1929 season he by no means obliterated the influence he had on the local organization. That influence is still felt in the ball players he assembled back in 1928 and 1929, many of whom are now budding into prospective Spudder stars of 1931. One other player developed under the Gardner system has already crashed the major leagues.

We refer particularly to the old Abilene club of 1929, the Spudder farm which Carl Williams managed. Five of the mainstays of the 1931 team, four of whom may be regarded as certain regulars, were together at Abilene—Arthur Bradbury, Ash Hillin, Bear Allday, Lester White and Debs Garms. The first four are already veterans and will be in the regular lineup this season, and the chances of Debs Garms joining their ranks are more than promising. Garms played shortstop for Abilene. Last year he tarried at Topeka for a while but finished with Augusta of the South Atlantic league, playing third base. His two years of lower classification experience have rounded off a wad of rough corners, and the youngster is one of the most promising infielders down at the lot today.

And then there was at Abilene one Lin Storti, who is purely and simply a discovery of J. Alvin Gardner. In 1929 Storti was cast off by Amarillo, then in the Western league, and was picked up by Lubbock. Towards mid-season Gardner snared him and used him at Abilene, later selling him to Tulsa. The rest of his history is too well known.

Another of Garner's discoveries was Garland Orr, who if he didn't show the stuff with the Spudders last year is still in the league, and with better days ahead of him.

Attention Pitchers

The news that Bill Terry, star first baseman with the Giants, has come to terms will be of particular interest to the Spudder mound-staff, for it means that chunky Sam Leslie, counted on as the Giants' first sacker in Terry's absence, likely will remain with the San Antonio Indians this year.

In case the Giants do leave Leslie at their San Antonio farm another year, pitchers on last year's Spudder staff will know quite well what to expect. For Leslie was one of the most dangerous hitters in the league last year, even if he was with a cellar place club. The Indians more than once knocked the cocked hat off the league leading Spudders, and generally Swatting Sam Leslie had a lot to do with it. With two or three more hitters of Leslie's caliber Homer Hammond wouldn't have been so disgusted with his club that he "traded" some of them off for a dozen doughnuts at the end of the season.

Leslie is also a clean fielder. On account of his all-around ability, the Giants may keep him on their roster. If they do there will be few tears shed among the Spudder pitchers.

A Major Leaguer's Daughter

They were seated in the parlor,
where the gas was burning low,
He squeezed her little hand and made it throb;
He looked at her and whispered:
"Kid, I love you so.
You've made more hits with me
than Ruth or Cobb;
You've got more curves than Dazzy
Vance—your speed is just my style"—
But here he stoped and sadly
bowed his head;
The decision was against him, he was out about a mile
When unto him these cruel words
she said:

Chorus:

"I am the only daughter of a major league phenom,
While you are just an unknown
bush league bloke;
My old man hits three fifty almost every season Tom,
While they tell me that your slugging is a joke;
Some day when you are drafted or you find a batting eye,
There's a chance your rookie love
won't be in vain;
But you'll never be my petter till you hit a curve ball better,
For I'm cooking no potatoes in Fort Wayne."

The years went by and Tom improved, his work began to shine,
Hit batting and his fielding were immense;
His hitting jumped from .083 beyond .449,
While every day he splintered up some fence;
And in the meantime Mame's old man began to lose his eye,
They canned him when his salary whip went dead;
So slugging Tom then passed her up, and now she wonders why
Them cruel words unto him once she said—

Chorus:

"I am the only daughter of a major league phenom," etc.

—Grantland Rice.

BRYANT WILL LEAD ROOKIES

Williams to Select Vets' Opposition Later

By FRED THOMPSON

After much thought and meditation, Skipper Carl Williams Friday announced the lineup of "regulars" who will play in Sunday's intra-squad game, and decided that it would be captained by Arthur Bradbury.

The "rookie" team he did not name, with the exception that Herbert Bryant would be its captain. The fact that Bryant and Bradbury are deadly rivals for the first string catching position should make the first game of the season a peppy one, if all other elements fail.

Kelly in Center Field

The majority of the regulars in camp are included on Bradbury's team, Herbert Kelly, Lester White, Ash Hillin and Debs Garms being listed in addition to the catcher. Williams placed Kelly in center field, an indication that the lanky hard-hitting fly-shagger from Topeka will, indeed, be called upon to succeed the mighty Howard Fitzgerald. In his workout Friday Kelly looked the part of the logical successor. Whether he is logical or whether he is the successor, he can at least wham that ball, as many a rail bird testified when he strolled to the plate for a swat or two.

Between bites at his favorite tobacco leaf, Skipper Carl announced that Scott Pullen, listed as shortstop, will be the lead-off man for the Bradbury crew. Then comes Debs Garms, who will play third base. Frank Allred, who will play second, comes third, and Kelly will be the clean-up hitter.

Lester White was detailed to play first base, and will hit fifth. Ash Hillin will play left field and bat sixth. Then follows Bradbury in the batting order, and the pitcher.

The starting pitcher, Williams said, will be Doyle Taylor, left-handed rookie.

No Home Runs Yet

There was plenty of activity in the training camp Friday, though it followed the same routine of pepper games, fly-shagging, running and batting drill. The hitters are getting their eye on the ball, and the bat cracks much more than it did the first two or three days, but as yet not a single prospect or regular has knocked one over the railing, although several have knocked a board or two loose. The players turned out for the first morning drill of the season Friday, and resumed the grind in the afternoon with the same vitality.

Scott Pullen is hitting his stride at shortstop. The under-sized flash apparently is determined to show everything he has before the veteran Hassler arrives, and there is no indication he will let down even after his formidable rival appears on the scene. He is finding his batting eye, also.

Garms is one of the peppiest of the infield crew. Yesterday he handled second base a good while during the batting drill and was stopping the fast ones with the agility of a traffic cop who knows his stuff. His speed on recovering slow rollers and letting 'em loose to first is attracting attention. He is giving evidence of his early training, for Garms was no less than a 10-second man with the Howard Payne sprinters back in 1928. In fact, it was his speed afoot that earned him a tryout with the Spudders that year. A place for him was not found at that time and after browsing in other pastures for a year he is back at the foot of Seventh street once more.

Veterans Loosen Up

Fred Vincent, Lester White, Ash Hillin, Dick Florrid, Catcher Bryant, and Roland Flinn continued the muscle-developing process, and with much fewer groans than were audible earlier in the week. Bryant kept an array of veteran pitchers busy on the feet in a brisk pepper game Friday. Florrid took his turn shagging fly balls, while Flinn devoted his first day in uniform to chasing his nose around the park.

The rail birds, ever increasing in numbers, agreed Friday that Kelly is their man for center field. They also banded together in agreeing that Bryant was a formidable catcher, and offered posthumous opinions on a score or more of other players. The old tradition lingers on, apparently, with every rail bird a manager, for the work in the training camp has reached that stage where the lookerson are already picking their team.

Everything, in fact, is looking rosy. There is only one wrinkle that Carl Williams wants to smooth out, and that is the timidity of the younger members of the squad, which still has a hold on them. The rookies were all separated from the regulars Friday. On one side of the diamond the vets sweated, on the other the rookies. Carl wants them to mix around more. It is caused, he believes, mainly by the timidity of the younger ones, who feel rather far removed from the men who have been on the firing line and who bear scars of many a bloody conflict. On the other hand, maybe the veterans feel the same way towards some of the rookies who are crammed to the brim with talent. Who knows? At any rate the two elements now separated by yards of space are going to have to blend sooner or later.

Two More Arrivals

There were two more arrivals Friday, E. M. Hambright of Lubbock, a right-handed pitcher, and Adrian Johnson, also a right-handed hurler, from Chillicothe. Both got into uniforms.

Hambright was a coach at Lubbock, and is anxious to show his wares to the Spunder powers. Johnson has been here before. It was in 1928, when he was just rounding 18 years old, but what he lacked in age he made up for in ambition. He toured down here from Chillicothe and took to the field, a lanky youth who n'er had felt the razor's keen edge. Carl Williams took the youth in his confidence and told him to go back home and grow up into a big man and then come back some day.

Johnson is now a big man, although only 18 years old, and he's back for more fatherly advice, although he hopes it is not for the same nature as that he received in 1928.

Training Camp Chatter

BOXERS GET COIN

NEW YORK, March 13. (AP)—The New York State Athletic commission today closed its investigation of the recent King Tut-Billy Petrolle fight and ordered that the purses of both fighters be paid. The purse had been held up pending an investigation of Petrolle's fourth round knockout of the boxer who had knocked him out but a few weeks before.

Dallas Steers

CORSICANA, Texas, March 13. (AP)—The Dallas Steers finished their second week's training today. Tomorrow they go to Dallas for exhibition games with the New York Giants. The players had light batting and infield practice today.

Manager Happ Morse released five men: T. Mize, outfielder; Ray Moore, catcher, and John Dale, John Frady and Gus Dozier, pitchers. Morse said intro-club games would be played next week with veteran pitchers working.

Brooklyn Robins

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 13. (AP)—With Earl Mattingly and Bill Greene, a pair of rookies up from Macon, Ga., dividing the hurling duties, the Brooklyn Dodgers second string men eked out a 10-9 decision over the House of David today. Max Rosenfeld, who was with Toledo last year, led the Brooklyn attack with four of the Dodgers' 15 hits. Murray Howell, a recruit from Birmingham, hit a home run, which was matched by Swaney and Herbst, starting battery for the House of David.

St. Louis Cardinals

BRADENTON, Fla., March 13. (AP)—Although Frankie Frisch, captain of the Cardinals finally has made his appearance here, it is unlikely he will join the squad for a week at least.

The second sacker said it would take only a few days for him to get in shape, but Manager Gabby Street has decided to let him take things easy for a while. In the meanwhile Bill Myers, the ex-Danville shortstop, will continue as second baseman.

Cincinnati Reds

TAMPA, Fla., March 13. (AP)—The Tampa Italian colony designated tomorrow as Cuccinello day and will pay tribute then to Tony Cuccinello, Cincinnati Reds second baseman when the latter play an exhibition game with the New York Yankees. Tony Lazzeri, Yank infielder, also will be included in the festivity. A long batting and infield practice featured today's training program.

Chicago White Sox

SAN ANTONIO, March 13. (AP)—Mel Simons, hustling rookie from Louisville, will be cleanup man for the White Sox when they engage in their first spring exhibition game with the New York Giants tomorrow.

Manager Donie Bush decided to use Simons in the cleanup position, using Carl Reynolds before him and Smead Jolley fifth in the batting order. Reynolds prefers to hit third.

St. Louis Browns

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 13. (AP)—Lindell Storti, stepchild among the young fielders from Wichita Falls, is gaining the respect of the Brownie officials and fans who are watching the workouts here.

Storti is called the step-child because he is up against the proposition of pushing Oscar Melillo to the bench, and ousting that courageous pepper pod from the regular squad is a man sized job.

Fort Worth Cats

FORT WORTH, March 13. (AP)—Without the help of census-taking machinery, no one can be sure just how many athletes are trying out with the Fort Worth Baseball club on any given day, but the latest official returns today placed the number at 43. Thirteen others will be due Monday, and its probable 20 will report.

The athletic population of the park jumped over the two score count Friday, when four arrivals were reported. They were: Larry Cox, Jimmy Dalrymple, Virgil Gilliland and Bill Simmeman.

Detroit Tigers

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13. (AP)—The San Francisco Seals celebrated the informal opening of their new $1,250,000 ball park here today by defeating Detroit's Tigers 5-2 before a crowd of 15,000. The Seals found Hoyt and Cantrell for 14 hits.

Philadelphia Phillies

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 14. (AP)—Lewis C. Ruch, president of the Phillies, arrived in camp today and after a conference with Manager Shotton expressed belief the three Philly holdouts, "Chuck" Klein, Phil Collins and John Sherlock, would sign their contracts.

"I have sent for Klein and expect him to reach here in a day or two," Ruch said. "We know we have offered him a contract that is more than fair.

"As for Collins and Sherlock, we have offered them both substantial increases."

RED SOX ADD POWER AT BAT

Gene Rye Bolsters Club's Swatting Strength

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 13. (AP)—A training roster that reads like a city directory is the answer of the Boston Red Sox to the pleas of their supporters for more punch. If Manager Shano Collins does not succeed in injecting more wallop into the American league entry, it will not be for want of material.

Forty-four athletes, including 15 pitchers and a half dozen youngsters who have attained fame around Boston, bear the club's hopes for a better fate than eighth place in the 1931 race. Collins, who succeeded Heine Wagner at the Sox helm, intends to give every one of them a thorough trial, let the feed bills fall where they may.

Seek Batting Strength

The mad quest for batting strength is explained by the fact that the Red Sox were perhaps the most punchless outfit in the known world last year. Only one regular, Outfielder Earl Webb, hit over .300. The club scored 139 fewer runs than the Browns, who were seventh in that respect in the American league.

Prospects for getting wallop in the outfield appear to lie in Gen "Half Pint" Rye, who smacked a .367 in the Texas league, and Albert Van Camp, who hit .344 for Collins at Des Moines. Rye, after a great start, cracked a wrist rounding first, but will be ready to go again in less than a month. Webb is a fixture, but Tom Oliver and Russell Scarritt, other holdovers, face the battle of their young lives. Lucas, Winsett and McSwain are other rookie prospects.

The infield, Collins admitted, presents a scramble. That Bill Sweeney, who clubbed .309 after succeeding the veteran Phil Todt last year will hold down first base, is the only certainty. Bob Reeves appears to have the inside track at second again, despite his weak hitting, but Hale Ryne and Otis Miller have some determined competition at short and third.

Infield Shifts

Marquardt, a .324 hitter for Nashville and Hal Warstler, acquired from Indianapolis, are pushing Rhyne in the short field, with Marquardt making a great impression. Jack Rothrock, a converted outfielder, is regarded as a good bet to displace Miller at the hot corner. Rothrock is one of the fastest men in the game.

Pitching is the least of Collins' worries. He has a fine quartet in Milt Gaston, Horace Lisenbee, Ed Morris, Jack Russell and the bespectacled Dan MacFayden. Gaston, Morris and MacFayden ranked well up in the earned run column last season, but found it tough to win without help from the offensive department. Ed Durham and Frank Bushey also are holdovers.

Chief additions to the mound staff are Wiley Moore, the "sinker ball" expert, who won 22 for Saint Paul last year, and James Brillheart, former Cub southpaw who enjoyed a big year with Minneapolis. Bob Kline, who won 23 for Erie, Pa., is a promising prospect.

Charles Berry, one of the lustiest hitters on the club last year, heads a capable catching staff. Herald "Muddy" Ruel, a transfer from Washington last season, and Ed Connolly are scheduled to do the relief work. Galvan and Storie are rookie backstops.

M'CARTHY IS VERY CAUTIOUS

Yank's New Skipper Makes No Snap Judgments

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 13. (AP)—When Joe McCarthy forsook his old National league stamping grounds for a hitch at the New York Yankee helm, he fell heir to a number of things, including the world's highest salaried performer and a fine, large pitching problem.

McCarthy is proceeding cautiously, making no snap judgment on his players or his chance at a pennant. Ask him what he thinks of this or that player and he comes right back at you:

"Well, what do you think of him? He looks good to me so far, but it will take time to get things lined up."

No Radical Changes Planned

There will be no radical alterations in the Yankee lineup. It will be pretty much the same slugging outfit that performed for Miller Huggins. There is a possibility of an infield shakeup, providing the veteran Joe Sewell continues to go at third base as he has in training.

That the question of a capable mound staff is the biggest thing on McCarthy's mind there can be little doubt. He has 17 pitchers in camp, including seven holdovers. Out of the lot he hopes to find a set of flingers who can hold the enemy while the wrecking crew—Ruth, Gehrig, Lazzeri, Combs, Dickey—does its stuff.

In Herb Pennock, Charles Ruffing, George Pipgras, Henry Johnson and Ed Wells, there is the nucleus of a fair to middling staff. Pipgras, however, just is recovering from an appendicitis operation and will not be ready to take his turn until the season is well along. Three others whom McCarthy is counting on to bolster the staff are Roy Sherid and Louis McEvery, both of whom were around last year, and Gordon Rhodes, who had a great season with Hollywood. Vernon Gomez, ill much of last year, is another prospect, as is Walter Brown, a big fellow who won 16 for Oklahoma City.

Other Possibilities

Paul Andrews from Birmingham, Ala., Frank Barnes from Toronto, George Miner from Jersey City, Jim Weaver from Baltimore and Philip Weinert from Louisville are possibilities.

Larruping Lou Gehrig at first and Lyn Lary at short are fixtures. If Sewell, picked up from Cleveland last year, continues to perform as he has in the exhibitions he has a swell chance to land at third base. In that event Tony Lazzeri will be sent back to his station at second, with James Reese holding the utility job. Bill Werber, who hit .347 for Albany last season, is the only other infield candidate.

The Babe, in better health than in years and flushed with determination to regain his home run leadership, will take care of right field, with Earle Combs in center.

The left field post appears to lie between Sam Byrd and Dusty Cooke, but Myrll Hoag, the Sacramento slugger, is giving them plenty of argument. Fred Walker is another prospect.

Bill Dickey, the club's clouting young catcher, can look for valuable help from Cy Perkins, the veteran acquired from the Athletics last year, and a trio of youngsters, Arndt Jorgens, last year's second string backstop, is getting spirited competition from a couple of rookies, Bill Karlon, with Springfield last season, and Tom Padden, purchased from Baltimore.

AROUND THE RADIO CLOCK

(Time Is Central Standard Throughout)

NEW YORK, March 13. (AP)—News and how it is obtained, photographically as well as for the printed word, is to be dramatically told in the broadcast tomorrow night from the general news room of the Associated Press in New York.

The listener, with the aid of the microphone and a coast to coast network of stations, is to be given an opportunity to feel the pulse of the world for half an hour just as the men and women whose jobs involve the gathering and transmission of constantly occurring events do every second of the day.

Besides a general tour of the great news room and its clicking automatic telegraph machines, the radio audience is to be taken into the news photo department, where A. L. Murphy, news editor of that division, will tell how pictures are obtained and distributed by every known means. Telephone, radio and cable transmission and even airplanes are called into service, and he will explain the part each plays.

The broadcast, starting at 6:30, is to include an address by Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, who will be introduced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company, which will transmit the program on its combined facilities.

Members of the staff are to relate their parts in the gathering of daily happenings, with J. M. Kendrick, executive news editor in charge of the report to morning newspapers, directing the tour of two announcers, George Hicks and James Wallington, through the AP headquarters.

The rumble of the great presses in the office of The New York Herald-Tribune will close the broadcast, which is to be carried by the following revised list of NBC stations: WEAF, WJZ, WJAR, WCSH, WLIT, WTAM, CKGW, CFCF, WRC, WFLA-WSUN, WHAM, WBAL, WIOD, WOC-WHO, KWK, WMC, WJDX, WBEN, WCAE, WENR, WTMJ, WRVA, WSMB, KTHS, WBAP, WEBD, WEEI, WGW, WOW, WJR, WPTF, WAPI, KOA, KSL, KFI, KGO, KHQ, KOMO, KPO, KFSD, KTAR, KGW, and probably others.

The Prince of Wales is to make another radio address tomorrow. Speaking from Buenos Aires, his voice will be brought to this country by short wave wireless telephone and rebroadcast by the combined WEAF and WJZ chains in a program to open at 12 noon. He will be speaking at the opening of the British exposition there.

Besides the prince, who now is touring South America, Sir Robert Gibson, president of the exposition committee, and Jose Uriburu, provisional president of Argentina, will make 10-minute talks.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 13. (AP)—An opening advance in cotton on trade buying and covering, promoted by steady cables and a higher Egyptian market, was followed by declines under a renewal of liquidation combined with local and southern selling today. May after selling up to 11.03 at the start, broke to 10.81 and closed at 10.82 compared with 10.93 at the close of yesterday. The final tone was barely steady with the market 6 @ 11 points net lower.

Liverpool cables reported continental, Bombay buying and covering in that market and said that contracts were scarce.

There was some bearish comment on the week-end figures in the late trading which according to the New York cotton exchange showed a decrease of 33,000 bales in the world's visible supply compared with 147,000 last year. Exports today 18,464, making 5,307,406 so far this season. Port receipts 19,824. U. S. port stocks 3,921,728.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 13. (AP)—Cotton developed a downward tendency in today's moderate trading despite extremely favorable cables. Following an early advance of 9 to 10 points, which was a poor response to the advance in Liverpool, the market turned easier on lack of support. There was little trade buying in evidence, and ring traders sold.

Near noon the market was further weakened by disappointing weekly statistics, particularly mill takings, which were not only smaller than last year, but also were below the previous week. By early afternoon prices showed losses of 21-23 points from the early highs and a loss of 12 to 13 points from yesterday's close. The market continued to rule easy in late trading, keeping mostly within the earlier range, but some of the near months made new lows near the end 21 to 24 points under the early highs. The close was steady at the bottom the general market showing net declines for the day of 12 to 15 points.

Final Hour Recovery Cuts Down Net Losses Under Pressure

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, March 13. (US)—Stocks closed lower today, but the net losses were reduced by a rally which set in during the final hour.

In the earlier trading many "pivotal" prices among the leaders had been broken through, thereby encouraging considerable short-selling by the professional talent. The rally, however, developed from these "technical" new lows.

Throughout most of the session, there was a continuance of the same quiet pressure against prices which has characterized the market throughout the past week. Dullness developed, however, during each period of weakness.

Possibly the only definite outcome of the day's trading was an expansion in the short interest, since it is very probable that a good part of the selling was of bear origin. Some additional liquidation may have come into the market because of the remaining effects of the unfavorable news of the week, but this selling was of relatively small proportions.

There is no doubt that the big bears were hard at work endeavoring to unsettle the list. They continued pounding at the recent speculative favorites in the hope of bringing out extensive liquidation. In International Telephone & Telegraph they succeeded in forcing the stock down a few points, but it rallied to close higher on the day.

Maintenance of the dividend encouraged some new buying by interests who are overlooking current income, in their faith in the long-term prospects for this company. Additional signs of slight betterment in various parts of the world were pointed to as positive evidence of more favorable outlook for this company.

American & Foreign Power bears were more successful than those in International Telephone but even in Foreign Power there was persistent demand on the setback. The stock closed 1½ points lower. Again the short interest in this stock was substantially increased, with commission houses joining the bear side.

Allied Chemical, Steel common and American Can provided leadership for the late recovery. They were among the first to show resistance to the slow decline of the first few hours. Allied Chemical again was bought by important interests who previously had been actively identified on the bear side of the stock. This buying seemingly is of covering character, although firmness of the stock the last two days probably has encouraged renewed buying of more lasting nature.

Steel was helped by reports of a huge contract about to be awarded. Bethlehem, however, was a persistent target for the bears who broke the stock under 60. This stock still has to face possibly unfavorable dividend action.

Westinghouse Electric was also under persistent pressure and some additional strong interests became identified with the bears in the stock. The short interest in Westinghouse is of large proportions. Case, which with Westinghouse and Bethlehem, constituted the particular triumvirate facing the brunt of bear attack for some time, was also under pressure. Case earnings this year have been materially below the 1930 rate, when over $9 a share was reported.

Columbia Graphophone provided the outstanding bull performance. The stock achieved a new high on exceedingly aggressive sponsorship originated with a prominent banker frequently identified with speculative activities in the issue. Its strength was accompanied by revival of the years-old talk of a merger with Radio Corporation. This time the story went so far as to mention share-for-share exchange, although Radio is selling about 40 per cent higher than Graphophone. In any event the stock was in persistent demand throughout the session.

Other recent favorites were generally lower. Electric Auto-Lite suffered a sharp break, but rallied from the low. The stock met support on the reaction from an aggressive bull clique. United Corporation closed fractionally higher, but the demand was described as somewhat less impressive than recent buying. American Machine & Foundry sold off with the list, but met increasing demand on its setback. This stock has powerful sponsorship.

Tobacco stock held firm throughout the general weakness, this strength being attributed to reports of a possible early advance in cigaret prices. It is understood that some of the most powerful figures in the industry favor such action. Lorillard continued to be actively bought and closed at its highest price of the year.

Railroad stocks on the average were lower, although New York Central rallied. This issue will meet investment demand on any sizeable reaction from current levels.

Oil stocks as a group were quiet. On small offerings, Shell-Union Oil preferred stock broke 7½ points to a new low, its price obviously reflecting uncertainty over the 5½ per cent dividend. Motor stocks closed lower. Chrysler attracted some renewed buying of speculative character.

Silver advanced ¾ of a cent.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, March 13. (AP)—Changes were negligible on the cash grain market here today. Demand was fair.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Wheat—No. 1 hard of any protein 77½@80½c.

Corn—No. 2 mixed 70½@71½c; No. 2 white 73½@74½c; No. 2 yellow 72½@73½c.

Oats—No. 2 red 42@42½c (No. 3 white delivered group one 41¾@42½c)

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per 100 pounds $1.22@1.24; No. 2 kaffir $1.19@1.20.

Cane Seed—Bulk country run red top per 100 pounds according to type, germination, origin and cleanout $2.25@2.45.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 13. (AP)—Buying support was suddenly withdrawn late today, and wheat underwent an abrupt tumble, dragging other grains along. An influx of selling orders from the East revealed that wheat had no adequate prop, and had apparently been overpurchased. World shipments of wheat this week promised to total big, and favorable weather prevailed throughout winter and spring wheat areas of the United States and Canada.

Wheat closed irregular, 1¼ cents lower to ⅛c advance, corn ½@1c down, oats ⅛@⅜c off, and provisions 5@22 cents up.

Strong factors in the corn supply situation had little influence beyond holding prices steady up to the last hour, when the market cracked. Slowness of shipping demand here for corn deterred buyers. Oats followed corn, notwithstanding continued dearth of receipts.

Provisions went up with hogs.

Closing indemnities—Wheat, May, bids, 81⅝c. July 62⅝@½c, 63⅝@½c; Sept. 62⅝c, 63⅝c. Corn, May 63½@¾c, 64⅛@¼c; July 65⅝@⅝c, 66⅝@⅝c; Sept. 63⅞c, 66⅝c.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, March 13. (U.S.D.A.)—Hog trade around the eleven market circuit was fairly active at strong to 25c higher prices. The day's extreme top of $8.50 was paid in Chicago. Total offerings were around 70,000 as compared with 54,508 a week ago.

Curtailed receipts stimulated demand for fat lambs, and most points outside of Chicago reported strong to mostly 25c higher values. A few loads of light weight lambs in Chicago brought $9.25, while at Omaha choice fed lambs realized $8.85. The supply numbering around 36,800 was 15,000 less than last Friday.

Aggregate receipts of cattle were estimated at 10,000 as compared with 9,175 a week ago. The most active centers was chiefly a cleanup affair with market conditions showing little change. Most killing classes of cattle this week except the better grades of strong weight steers have found a fairly broad demand at firm to unevenly higher prices. Numbers of South Texas grasses are expected to arrive. Range conditions in South Texas are excellent with cattle relatively well conditioned for this season of the year.

POWER RATE CUT PROMISED

Frederick to Reduce Price On July 1

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., March 13.—A cheaper rate for electricity was unanimously decided on at the regular meeting of the city council, to take effect July 1 if the city's revenue permits. The power company's reduced rate will save the city about $10,000 a year in the opinion of John Zumwalt, water and light superintendent.

A total of $41,933.69 was collected from customers from July 1, 1930, to Dec. 31, 1930, by the light department for 668,168 kilowatt hours metered to customers; 177,995 kilowatts were used by the city for street lighting, pumping water and plant lighting, and 13,860 kilowatts were used in the city hall, the six schools, the library, the American Legion hall and 10 residential street lighting loops, for all of which no charge is made. This leaves 66,324 kilowatts unaccounted for, a leakage of but 6.8 per cent of the total current delivered at the switchboard, which is believed to be a record.

The average price consumers paid for service during the six months' period was 6.275 cents per kilowatt.

The water and light committee, through its chairman, E. J. Cowen, recommended the reduction. Other members of the committee are W. H. Veidt and A. S. Reaves. The motion was made by J. A. Carr and seconded by Paul Hartwig, all members voting yea.

Western Oklahoma C.-C. Enlists New Members

The number of counties represented by the organizations is 12 and the remaining 11 counties in the west third of the state are expected to be represented by organizations that will take membership, as some of the chambers of commerce that have taken membership have volunteered to assist in organizing neighboring counties.

MOFFETT ASKS COTTON STUDY.

Chillicothe Man Proposes State Laboratory

AUSTIN, March 13. (AP)—A bill proposing establishment of a state laboratory for research in new uses for cotton and declaring a state agricultural policy, was introduced by Representative Moffett of Chillicothe today. Agricultural agencies would spend at least one-half their time searching for new market outlets for Texas products, Moffett saying increased consumption should be stressed as much as production.

Most of the present uses for cotton have been discovered by accident and numerous new uses should be determined by a research laboratory, Moffett said.

ABOLISH RENTALS

AUSTIN, March 13. (AP)—Representative Wagstaff of Abilene introduced a bill today to abolish the collection of annual rentals on public land where oil and gas has been developed and where the state received royalties.

KELL EXPRESSES FAITH IN RECOVERY OF CITY'S OIL INDUSTRY

'PEOPLE CAN'T BE WHIPPED'

J. S. Hargett Named Chairman of Business Council

Voicing the belief that the present business depression has about reached the bottom, Frank Kell, railroad man and capitalist, told members of the business council at its luncheon Friday noon at the Kemp hotel, that the pendulum of industry could be expected to start its swing back to normalcy within the next few weeks with the harvesting of the wheat crop. His address indicated his faith in the future of Wichita Falls as an oil city and predicted the ultimate stabilization of the oil industry here and over the nation.

Big Wheat Crop

J. S. Hargett was elected to head the business council as chairman during the year. Jimmy Williams was named vice chairman.

"We have approaching in a few weeks," Mr. Kell said, "probably the largest wheat crop ever produced in this section. While it is true that prices are low, it is also true that it will give an income to many. When the railroads begin hauling the wheat, employment will be given to trainmen and shipmen." Thus, he said, employment will be given to many of those now out of work, with a resultant increase in purchasing power. "Although I do not anticipate a sudden return to good times," he declared, "I believe that by the time the wheat crop begins to move we will have started to get back on our feet."

In speaking of a demoralized oil business being added to general depression, Mr. Kell asserted that with the application of intelligence and industry, notwithstanding the differences between independents and major concerns, that business will survive and return to normal. "If we will get together," he said, "and work it out, the oil business will become one of the chief assets to the Southwest." He predicted the enactment of legislation to regulate oil activities.

A favorable symptom that this section is not yet extinct as an oil producing territory, he said, is the present exploitation of deep stratas for oil.

"If we can establish the idea that there is oil at depth, we will redrill this county, and Archer county, Clay county, and all the counties of this section," he declared. "I have seen worse conditions here than now, and I am certain that we will get back on our feet. We will regain our people who have gone to East Texas and we will again be the old Wichita Falls."

Telling of the depressions of 1886-87 and 1893-96, Mr. Kell said that conditions are not as bad now as they were then. In the latter depression he said that he had bought grown yearlings for $5 a head and grown cows at $8, and that wheat sold for 35 cents and cotton at 5 cents.

"An orgy of speculation struck this country in 1927," it was said, "and continued through 1928 and part of 1929. The people in the "country" stuck too long. We will survive these conditions, but the time is come when we must stick together.

"Won't be Whipped"

"This country is not broke, the American people are not whipped. They cannot be whipped financially, in war, or in any other way. They are the greatest people in any age of this world, and we are not going to be whipped."

The speaker commended the manner in which dependents had been cared for here during the depression. "This part of Texas is better educated along those lines," he said.

J. L. Jackson Jr., president of the chamber of commerce, outlined the duties of the business council to its members. The council, he said, was organized three or four years ago to give the membership of the chamber a better opportunity to participate in the undertakings of the chamber of commerce. The council, it was said, is a clearing house of ideas, and is formed and functions for the purpose of discussion of ideas to be submitted to the chamber of commerce board of directors. The council is not empowered to act upon any idea. The success of the business council, Mr. Jackson said, depends upon its attendance and the ideas formed and discussed in its meetings. Attendance is not limited to members of the council, it was explained, and any citizen is welcome to attend the meetings.

J. S. Hargett, newly elected chairman, announced that he would begin the work of selecting committeemen immediately.

Max Junker submitted to the council the suggestion included in the chamber of commerce program of work that a new slogan be acquired for Wichita Falls expressing the continuation of progress in the city and that the slogan "The City That Faith Built" be discarded or amended as expressing Wichita Falls a completed city.

New Members Listed

An exceptionally large attendance was present for the meeting, which was the first and organization meeting of the year. Particular attention was paid to the date, Friday 13th, on which the gathering was held. Entrance was gained by those present by passing under a ladder on which was hung a broken mirror. After arriving in the meeting room a sleek, black cat in a cage was seen. A placard bearing the inscription "Leave Your Bad Luck Outside" was attached to the door.

MAJESTIC—George O'Brien in "Fair Warning." Short subjects and sound news.
GEM—"The Pueblo Terror" with Buffalo Bill Jr. Chapter four of "Fingerprints" and Talkartoon comedy.
FOLLY—Clara Smith Hamon in "Fate."

Doug and Mary belong to the heliotrope days of the silver, silent screen, when men are men by means of violent gestures, and women were feminine through pursing up their lips and looking appealing. Now they've reached the stage where they should retire to a nice little ranch and raise chickens or something.

As latest proof, see Mary Pickford try her Daddy-Long-Legs stuff (with a faulty oo-la-la and a strange new naughtiness, to be sure) with Reginald Denny in "Kiki." She's making a gallant fight, this veteran of the movies, but she'll never make it back as long as flappers young enough to be her daughters are endorsing Lux in full-page advertisements.

But, just to prove the law of compensation, Manager Fred Patterson at the Strand has managed to give value received by including a short-subject program that is really unusually good.

Farina, who has always been the outstanding actor on the screen for some of us, equally eloquent in the old silent films and in the new talkies, gets a break in Hal Roach's newest comedy, and manages to bring in a younger negro boy who just about finishes up that category.

And the news reel will prove especially interesting to those who heard the "tough-spot broadcast" over the radio last week, when Nathaniel Shilkret and Ruth Etting played and sang to a group in Mammoth cave and aviators in a plane.

Scenes at Last Services at Old Methodist Church

Views of the last services in the old First Methodist church, now being dismantled to make way for the new postoffice, are shown in the above pictures. Farewell services were held in the old church last Sunday. An interior view is shown in the top picture, with members of the congregation crowding every available pew and even occupying chairs in the aisles. Below is a portion of the crowd as it filed out of the church after the services.

Building Cycles of Methodist Church Reflect City's Growth

Three of First Members Still Living in Wichita Falls; Spirit Of Old Congregation Still Lives

By MRS. L. N. CASON
The Record News Staff

There's a sound of tearing away parts of the building in the old First Methodist church, and radiators, tables and other parts are stacked outside the doors. But one finds abroad a living spirit that went into its construction; one that will never be gone so long as one of the old members lives. From the time in 1881 when the First Methodist church in Wichita Falls,—a part of the Henrietta Mission, was established in March, 1881, in the home of A. H. Harris, corner of Fifth and Lee and through the years when they worshipped for a while in a tiny room built at Tenth and Scott on a lot given by the town site company those early members worshipped earnestly with an ideal of some day building a church for their children.

First Church Cost $300

That first little church home, built in 1885, cost $300 and there were additions made to it at different times that cost more than the original building. A little three or four room parsonage down on Holliday creek near the Denver railroad was moved to the church lot in 1892; in the church year 1890-91, the church was made a full station and the church report at the last quarterly meeting that year showed that 239 members had raised a total of $1,416.80 for all purposes.

Three of its first members are living in Wichita Falls today. Mrs. R. E. Humphrey who became a member in May, 1884; Nannie Gentry, now Mrs. W. H. Downing, who joined in August, 1885, and Mrs. Martha Bradley, whose name was added in September, 1885. W. H. Downing and Mrs. K. B. Dodge, then Miss Laura Ford, joined on the same day, Oct. 3, 1886.

W. H. Downing was always what is beautifully described as a "pillar of the church." Various old members of the church speaking of him, said that he rang the bell, rain or shine and he was always until his death at the door on the Sabbath morning to welcome members and strangers.

There had been 22 pastors before the dream of the congregation was realized and the new church was built,—that new church which has been known as the old church building for several years and which many members are giving up with sorrow. In this new building, the congregation felt they were building for their children a church that was all that would ever be needed. Men had promised subscriptions; women of the church had worked in the parsonage and aid society giving ice cream suppers, serving church dinners and taking pride in raising individually every cent possible. "My mother always made custard for the ice cream," said Mrs. W. H. Downing.

One rather novel method of financing was bringing in miles of nickels. Someone computed how many nickels it would take to make a mile, and the women of the church, divided into circles had a friendly rivalry to see who could bring in the most miles.

One member said she felt very proud of being able to save $1 per month by washing her own bath towels. "We wanted that church so badly," she said, "that we 'fit, bled and died' for it. Our pastor was hard headed. He insisted on all the gingerbread work in that church but he did one splendid thing; he insisted on the right sort of foundation and it was due to him that the first foundation had to be torn out and replaced."

Memorial Windows

The large window on Tenth street was purchased by the women of the church; the one opposite was given by the railroad men. Dr. S. S. McKenney has perpetuated love for himself by the sympathy shown pioneer church builders when he insisted on using the memorial windows in the new building.

"The old church members," one member said thoughtfully Thursday, "seemed to have a more general interest when it came to building. People were rather on an equality as to money and that leads to a most friendly feeling."

At any arte, the people of the church believed in it as the house of God. Parents demanded their children should show it proper respect. Mrs. W. H. Downing told of the day when they came home from church and ate dinner and then Mr. Downing took his son out on the back porch and gave him a "good warming" because he had giggled in church. And a very dignified little lady may possibly remember a little switching received when Mrs. E. B. Gorsline took her restless small daughter, Esther, out and switched her lightly for "fidgeting" while her adoring father wriggled with sympathy in the choir.

Oldest Member

All the members who have been there since the church was built agree on one thing,—the beautiful life of Mrs. Rebecca (R. E.) Humphrey, the oldest living member. "I believe," said one, "she teaches the finest lesson in the church, rich or poor; when I think of her, it makes my backbone get stiff." And anyone meeting the little old lady through whose wrinkled old face a beautiful spirit shines, can well believe this.

Rev. W. T. Morrow was pastor in charge when they went into the new building, feeling sure nothing better would ever be needed. The old church and parsonage on Scott and Tenth had been sold for $8,500, the lot No. 1, block 92 on the corner of Lamar and Tenth bought for $2,700 and the new building erected for about $34,000. The east half of lots nine and 10, block 92 on Tenth street, was bought for a parsonage for $2,500 and the parsonage, costing about $5,000 was built. In 1911, the church report showed a membership of 607 and $8,540 raised for all purposes.

There are 31 pastors registered in the church history as serving in charge of the little frame church and the one now being dismantled. Nine of them served for terms of one, two and three years in the old church. D r. McKenney is now pastor in his fifth year.

In the service held Sunday morning, March 8, Dr. McKenney asked all those present at the opening service in the church to stand and 8 or 10 per cent stood. When he requested all those received in membership at the church altar stand, a very great number responded.

TRUCK DRIVERS FINED

Fines of $1 each plus costs were imposed Friday morning in justice court here against six men charged with having operated motor trucks without mufflers and backview mirrors, according to County Attorney Louis V. Abernathy. The cases originated at Iowa Park, it was said, on complaints of State Highway Officers Ruth and Lowry.
