Reagan blames government for mess

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, summoning Congress to approve without delay his drastic anti-government remedy for an economy in crisis, is finding lawmakers willing to cooperate but already promising to change a program they have yet to see.

Growing government has allowed the economy to veer out of control, Reagan told the nation Thursday night. Now, he insisted, government must "chart a different course" of swift and stern cuts in spending, taxes and regulation.

Declaring the economy is in the "worst ... mess since the Great Depression," the president implored a Congress accustomed to slow deliberation to act now.

"We've stalled the judgment day ... We're out of time," Reagan declared in his first nationally broadcast address from the Oval Office.

The speech avoided specific solutions. Details will be delivered to Congress on Feb. 18, the president promised.

Reagan portrayed an economy at the brink of disaster and said: "We have come to a turning point. We're threatened with an economic calamity of tremendous proportions and the old business as usual treatment can't save us."

Warning that "we must not be timid," Reagan said reducing the government's bite on the economy "can create the incentives which take advantage of the genius of our economic system."

"Our aim is to increase our national wealth so all will have more, not just redistribute what we already have, which is just a sharing a scarcity," he said.

That buoyant view was in sharp contrast to the call for sacrifice that Jimmy Carter delivered four years ago.

But Reagan's policies will not be painless for millions of Americans who will be affected by the administration's proposed budget cuts. Dozens of social programs — including Social Security, unemployment benefits, Medicaid, farm subsidies, business loans, urban aid, food stamps and child nutrition — would be trimmed to cut up to $14 billion from the budget this year and $50 billion in 1982.

"Our spending cuts will not be at the expense of the truly needy," Reagan promised. "We will, however, seek to eliminate benefits to those who are not really qualified."

Reagan said his advisers had prepared a "comprehensive audit" that depicted the rise of inflation, regulation, taxes, spending and economic stagnation since World War II.

"You won't like it, I didn't like it, but we have to face the truth and then go to work to turn things around," he said.

Japanese steelworkers outproduce Americans by about 25 percent, he said. "This isn't because they are better workers. I'll match the American working man or woman against anyone in the world. But we have to give them the modern tools and equipment that workers in other industrial nations have."

"There are 7 million Americans caught up in the personal indignity and human tragedy of unemployment," he said. "If they stood in a line — allowing three feet for each person — the line would reach from the coast of Maine to California."

He produced a dollar bill in one hand and a quarter, dime and penny in the other, explaining that since 1960, inflation has reduced the value of the dollar to 36 cents.

A decade ago, the average family spent 27 percent of its income for a home; today, it takes 42 percent, he said.

Two more buildings going up at Petroleum Center

Two more office buildings in the Petroleum Center Office Complex will push the total amount of construction for that development past $25 million.

Seven Petroleum Center and Eight Petroleum Center will be the newest additions to the complex being developed by the I.D.P. Corporation.

The announcement was made Thursday by a spokesman.

These latter two buildings will be located east of One and Two. The complex is bordered by North A Street and Wadley Avenue.

The first two were started in 1979 and were built at a cost of about $3 million each. With inflation, said the spokesman, the new buildings will cost about $3.5 million each.

Construction on these last two buildings should start in March. Completion is planned for December, said the spokesman. Both buildings are about 30 percent leased.

Construction on buildings five and six will be delayed until August.

Each building is a two-story structure with white exterior and black glass. Interiors have marble walls and marble floors and feature an atrium in the center. Executive suites are located in the circular areas on each side of the buildings. Parking is provided.

Landscaping highlights the buildings' exteriors.

Declining demand checks oil prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Declining demand appears to be keeping world oil prices in check despite a sharp jump in fuel costs in the United States, industry sources say.

If the trend continues, American consumers could be in for a breather after watching fuel prices jump about 8 cents a gallon since President Reagan ended federal oil price controls last week.

But the sources say more cold weather — which can boost heating oil demand — or a sharp drop in oil exports from the Middle East could refuel the world oil price spiral.

Reagan's lifting of price controls pushed the average price of a 42 gallon barrel of domestic crude up $8 to about $37. The domestic increase came on top of a jump of 10 percent or $3 a barrel — since December in the average price of the foreign oil that supplies 40 percent of U.S. petroleum needs.

Although the Reagan administration has contended its decontrol move will boost fuel prices 3 to 5 cents a gallon, industry analysts have said the move could push prices as much as 12 cents higher.

On Thursday, Texaco Inc. raised wholesale and retail heating oil prices 3 cents a gallon nationwide following a wholesale boost of 2 to 3 cents a gallon in some areas Tuesday. The nation's third largest oil company also raised wholesale gasoline prices 4.5 cents a gallon in parts of the South and Southwest after boosts of 2 to 3 cents a gallon in other regions earlier in the week.

Wholesale prices of gasoline have risen about a dime to 12 cents a gallon, while those for heating oil have risen as much as 16 cents, refiners' tabulations show. Analysts say the increases apparently are being passed on to consumers.

Overseas, however, traders say oil can be bought for less than some exporters' official prices because petroleum demand has fallen so sharply following a better than 150 percent price boost since January 1979.

The International Energy Agency says oil use in the major industrial countries fell 7.5 percent last year, and is expected to drop as much as 2 percent more in 1981.

As a result, a world petroleum glut could develop "sometime in the summer of 1982," leaving prices "floating at a lower level," Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said.

Yamani said a world oil glut next year will be "very sizable" if Iran and Iraq end their war and resume shipping the 4 million barrels a day they were exporting before hostilities began last fall. If the two countries maintain their current 1 million barrels a day output, however, "the glut will be a small one," he said.

Yamani's country supplies 8 percent of U.S. oil needs and 20 percent of the oil used in the non-Communist world. He said Saudi Arabian oil output would remain at its current 10 million barrels a day level for now though petroleum demand "seems to be" soft.

It's 31st anniversary of his 39th birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan, the oldest man ever to become president, today is celebrating his 70th birthday — or as he puts it, "the 31st anniversary of my 39th birthday."

More than 100 people, including such long time California friends as Jimmy Stewart, are expected at Reagan's birthday party tonight at the White House. The well publicized "surprise party" will be held by four couples who have been hosts for Reagan's birthday parties for the last 20 years.

The birthday also was being marked with a congratulatory visit from congressional leaders today.

Perhaps because his age was a campaign issue last year, Reagan himself has been joking about the subject the past few days.

"I want to thank you for starting out the celebration of my 31st anniversary of my 39th birthday," the president quipped at a prayer breakfast Thursday.

And at a black tie congressional dinner Wednesday night, Reagan defined middle age as "when you're faced with two temptations and you choose the one that will get you home at nine o'clock."

Reagan won't receive most of his birthday gifts until tonight's party, but his wife, Nancy, said in advance that she would give him a tree for their ranch in Santa Barabara, Calif.

She said he gave her an olive tree when their daughter Patti was born and that she liked it so much she decided to give him one.

Michael Deaver, deputy chief of staff and a close personal friend, planned to give Reagan a plaque for his desk proclaiming, "The Buckaroo Stops Here," a take off on the Harry Truman motto favored by Jimmy Carter.

Nancy Reynolds, a 15 year friend of the Reagans, got the idea for her gift from the Bible that belonged to the president's mother. In it, Nellie Reagan had written: "A thought for the day. You can be too big for God to use but you can't be too small."

Ms. Reynolds, a vice president at Bendix, had Mrs. Reagan's handwritten message reproduced and encased in Lucite.

"He appreciates little things," she said. "He would would feel embarrassed if you ever gave him an expensive gift."

Jobless rate stays surprisingly stable

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the economy shows signs of staggering under the weight of persistently high interest rates, the nation's unemployment rate remained surprisingly stable in January.

The Labor Department reported today that last month's jobless rate stood at 7.4 percent overall, the same as in December, and "little different" from the level that has prevailed since May.

About 7.8 million Americans were out of work in January, the department said. In contrast, 97.7 million people were employed last month, an increase of more than 400,000.

"The gloom and doom predictions have been with us for a while, but so far they haven't materialized," said Sar Levitan, a labor economist.

January's stability is all the more impressive because the number of people entering the workforce increased by 475,000 last month, the first sizable increase since July. Most of this gain occurred among women, whose participation in the labor force now stands at an all-time high of nearly 52 percent.

In contrast, however, employment among adult men and teenagers was virtually unchanged in January and still was 150,000 and 500,000, respectively, below the levels of one year ago.

Industry employment, which had suffered heavily during last spring's recession, rose by nearly 400,000 in January.

Three jailers fired; May face charges

The Sheriff's Department this morning released the names of three jailers fired Thursday for alleged security violations involving female prisoners.

The men were identified as 19 year old Michael R. Sharp, 23 year old John Warren Dean Jr. and 21 year old Phillip M. Cook, all of Midland.

Sheriff Dallas Smith said today he is conferring with County Attorney Robert Rendall on the possibility of filing criminal charges of official misconduct in the matter, which came to light when the men were suspended Monday pending an investigation into reports they had allowed women prisoners special privileges in return for sexual favors during November and December of last year.

Smith has refused to confirm or deny that sex was involved in the case, saying Thursday, "They violated jail procedures. That's all I can say right now. Specifically, they were fired for opening and closing security doors."

Sources at the jail, however, say sex was a factor in the incidents, but that the women were "willing participants" and weren't forced into the situation.

The three fomer jailers were not certified police officers and had been employed by the department for less than a year.

Chief Deputy George Thompson said Thursday rumors had prompted an internal probe two or three months ago, but it "went dead" until a letter intercepted at the jail Monday caused the investigation to be reopened and the jailers suspended.

The letter was from a jail inmate and was intended for a former prisoner who is now in prison at Huntsville. Details of the letter were not revealed.

Smith said today he would likely hold a news conference on the matter after the county attorney has had time to decide whether or not criminal charges will be pursued.

Official misconduct is a Class A misdemeanor, with a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Texas area forecasts

West Texas: Sunny and warmer today except for some cloudiness to the southeast. Mostly fair tonight. Cloudy and colder Saturday. Lows tonight from the mid 20s to the mid 30s. Highs Saturday from the mid 40s in the Panhandle to the upper 60s in the extreme western region.

Fog to dissipate; Skies to be fair

The morning fog the Permian Basin has been getting lately should be dissipating soon as temperatures become warmer and skies turn fair, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Tonight's low should be a mild one in the mid-30s. This morning's low was 36 degrees — twice as warm as the record low for the date of 18 degrees set in 1979. Southerly winds at 10-15 mph should bring the warm breezes back for a while.

This weekend should begin with sunny skies and a high Saturday expected to be in the low 60s. Northerly winds will return at a slight 10-15 mph.

Thursday's high reached 51 degrees in a slow progression back to the spring like weather of last week. The record high for Feb. 5 was set in 1951 at 78 degrees.

Giffert Alstrin

Alstrin first candidate for council seat

Midland banker Giffert Alstrin, 46, today became the first candidate to file for the Place 1 City Council seat held by Doris Howbert since 1977.

Alstrin is president of Western State Bank and a 1953 graduate of Midland High School. He's also a graduate of Sam Houston State University.

He is past president of the Liberty Bank, Houston, and a past director of the Republic of Texas Savings Association, Houston.

"I believe I can contribute to the future growth and development of Midland in these times when our population is increasing at a rapid rate," Alstrin said Friday, adding:

"We must maintain city services at a high level (without an increase in taxes). Our citizens have always been progressive and forward-looking, but we simply cannot afford to pay higher taxes."

A member of the National Board of Trustees of the Palmer Drug Abuse Program, Alstrin said he is especially concerned about the growing drug problem throughout Texas.

Alstrin and his wife Beverly reside at 1207 Douglas St. They have three children and are members of Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

Farm workers boycott Texas juices

AUSTIN, Texas.(AP) — Texas Farm Workers Union leaders who emptied cans of orange and grapefruit juice into the garbage are urging consumers to avoid products made by two Texas citrus companies.

The boycott began Thursday with the ceremonial pouring out of Texsun and Big Tex juice. TFWU spokesman Jesus Moya said the union will picket "all the stores that carry the juices until we are able to clean them off the shelf."

A TFWU release said the boycott was called to "counteract the opposition launched against our HB 45 by the Farm Bureau, the Citrus and Vegetable Association and the National Right to Work Committee."

The bill creates a state mechanism to supervise collective bargaining elections for farmworkers and to enforce the results.

The farm workers were joined on the Capitol steps by Rep. Sam Hudson, D-Dallas, who is carrying the collective bargaining bill.

TFWU pickets have been posted at some South Texas citrus orchards since mid-January.

Ode says captors probably glad to see him go

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert Ode, oldest of the Americans held hostage in Iran, says his young captors probably were glad to see him go after 444 days of putting up with his demands.

"They accused me of treating them like servants, which I did," Ode said. "They accused me of being too demanding, which was true."

He said he constantly insisted on such things as soap, detergent, toothpaste and having windows open.

"I hounded them all the time. I insisted things had to be done and I wasn't about to back down. Usually it worked."

Ode, 65, and his wife, Rita, were released from National Orthopaedic and Rehabilitation Hospital in Arlington, Va., Thursday and said they plan to return home to Sun City West, Ariz., next week.

Ode was hospitalized for bronchitis and exhaustion and his wife was suffering from the flu. They were together in a double hospital room.

"We've always shared everything," Ode joked. "It was his and hers flu and bronchitis."

Ode said he was able to get out of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran when it was stormed, but was captured about a block and a half away and taken back.

"They behaved like children who had cornered a little wild animal and this was their prize for the day," he said. "They clustered around me, tried to push dates in my mouth. It was peculiar."

He said he was "never physically beaten," but there was "a lot of rough treatment." In particular, he noted being tied to chairs and sleeping on the floor.

Ode speculated that his age — his many years of experience in the foreign servide — may have helped him through the ordeal.

He said his militant captors relinquished the right to be called students once they came over the embassy wall. "I called them terrorists. It infuriated them."

Ode called criticism of President Carter's handling of the hostage negotiations "Monday morning quarterbacking" and said, "I don't think President Reagan or any member of his administration has the right to criticize what was done to get us out."

Motion filed to intervene Ector school desegregation

An Ector County minority organization Thursday filed a motion to intervene in Ector County Independent School District's battle with the U.S. government in desegregation plans in Federal Court in Midland.

CRUCIAL, an "unincorporated non-profit organization composed mainly of parents of Hispanic and black children who attend public schools within ECISD," attempted to file the intervention to speed up the desegregation. According to the motion, the group is "dedicated to improving the quality of education for Hispanics and blacks so that these children can offer their talents and skills for the betterment of the community."

The motion will first have to be approved by a federal judge before it can actually be filed as an intervention in the existing case, according to a federal court clerk.

CRUCIAL said in its motion to the court that it sought the intervention "to redress and enjoin" the school district's "violations of minority children's rights to equal eduacational opportunity."

In 1970, the U.S. government filed against Ector County and wanted the school district to begin desegregation of its "racially identifiable" schools.

ECISD school board members are still discussing the possible plans to begin the desegregation process.

Of the 23,869 students in the district, CRUCIAL says 25 percent are Hispanic and 6 percent are black. CRUCIAL alleges most of these students attend eight schools on the southside of the school district, including: Hays Elementary with 87 percent minorities; Milam Elementary with 94 percent minorities; Carver Elementary with 94 percent minorities; Rusk Elementary with 91 percent minorities; Zavala Elementary with 96 percent minorities; Travis Elementary with 100 percent minorities; Blackshear Junior High with 99 percent minorities; and Ector High with 99 percent minorities.

The greatest percentage of Anglo students in any of the cited schools was alleged to be 6 percent. Travis Elementary has only two Anglo students in its 532 population.

The suit further alleges, "Mexican-American students have been intentionally segregated by (the school district) in its policies and practices, including the assignment of Mexican-American students to Black schools for the purpose of 'desegregating' the black schools."

Also named in the suit as plaintiffs are some 29 parents and students who live in Ector County.

Plans OK'd for OC's gym-recreation center

ODESSA — The state's Coordinating Board for Colleges and Universities has approved plans for construction of Odessa College's new Community Recreation Center/Gymnasium, according to Dr. Philip Speegle, OC president.

OC trustees had authorized building the $5 million facility at a meeting in September, but the college needed approval from the Coordinating Board before the gym/recreation center could be built.

The facility is to be built on the site where W.T. Barrett Stadium, Ector County Public Schools' football stadium, now stands. It will be built after the public schools' new football complex is completed and the old stadium torn down.

The public schools own the old stadium, which is located on property owned by Odessa College. The college leases the land on which the stadium is located to the public schools on an annual basis for a token $1-per-year fee.

OC officials hope to proceed with a needs analysis involving physical education instructors, coaches, community recreation program planners and administrators in determining what facilities the new structure will actually house.

Then OC administrators plan to have the architectural firm of Peters and Fields, which already has been employed, to make final architectural plans for the facility.

The college plans to sell $4 million in self-liquidating revenue bonds to finance construction of the building. The bonds will be repaid with general use fees paid by Odessa College students.

The additonal $1 million to pay for the facility will be generated through interest earned on money from student fees and from interest on the bond funds.

The recreation center/gymnasium would be built on the west side of the campus. Tentative plans call for construction of the building to begin in 1982. Target date for completion is 1984.

The structure will house instructional programs in physical education, athletics and community recreation classes, which range from gymnastics and tennis classes for children to exercise classes for men and women. Tentative plans also call for the facility to include an outdoor track, tennis courts and a parking lot.

Officers elected

KERMIT — The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission met in Kermit Wednesday at its semi-annual membership meeting to elect officers and review plans for area cities' applications for community funds.

Following the general membership meeting and election of new officiers, the board members met in their regular monthly meeting.

Officers elected to serve until 1982 included Ector County Judge Gary Watkins, board chairman; Martin County Judge Jimmy Mathis, vice chairman; and Winkler County Judge Frances Clark, secretary-treasurer.

Newly elected representatives include Jack Y. Smith of Big Spring, representing cities of 50,000 or less; Dayton Elam of Seminole, hospital district representative; and Reagan Legg of Midland, college district representative.

Surviving Beatles to cut new record

LONDON (AP) - The three surviving members of the Beatles are planning to record together again, the Sun newspaper reported Friday.

In a dispatch from New York, a late edition of the newspaper said the three — Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr — will make a record in tribute to John Lennon, who was shot down outside his New York City apartment Dec. 8.

The Beatles split up in 1971.

The paper said the reunion was being organized by the group's long-time producer, George Martin.

It said Martin hoped to record an album featuring the three musicians at his $2.4 million studio on the Caribbean island of Montserrat.

McCartney is already on the island making a new record for his own group, Wings.

No spokesman at EMI, the Beatles' long-time record company, was immediately available for comment.

Man jailed on burglary with intent to commit rape

A Midland man was being held in city jail this morning under $25,000 bond on a charge of burglary with intent to commit rape.

Oscar Earl Pardue Jr., 22, of 407 S. Calhoun, was arrested on a warrant in connection with an incident at a North Madison Street address Jan. 21.

In other police activity during the past 24 hours, Mike Servatius of 2100 North H St. told officers Thursday a high school class ring was missing. Its value was listed at $118.

Chuck Jones of Stanton said four hydraulic jacks and a set of jumper cables were stolen Thursday. No value was placed on the items.

Annie Lathan, 1607 E. Hemlock, reported a cassette tape player and two pounds of hamburger were taken from her home between 6 a.m. and 4 p.m. Thursday. Entry was gained through a window on the north side of the residence.

The Gool Office Equipment Co. at 413 S. Baird St. was broken into, but nothing appeared to be missing. Entry was gained by kicking in a rear door of the building and a cash register was pried open.

In a delayed report, Ernest Garcia Jr. of 1111 N. Terrell told police a .25-caliber automatic pistol was taken from a residence at 510 W. Cowden Dec. 20. No value was placed on the weapon.

A 26-year-old Oeessa man, Jerrel Carmao, was being treated at Midland Memorial Hospital early this morning, following a two-vehicle accident at the entrance to the OIME plant on West Highway 80 shortly after 7 a.m. today.

The Department of Public Safety was working the wreck, details of which were sketchy by press time.

Meanwhile, Jose G. Suchil, 50, of 1300 S. Colorado, remained hospitalized at Midland Memorial Hospital today following an early morning traffic accident Thursday, just south of Interstate 20 on the Rankin Highway. His vehicle and one operated by Donald Ray Watters, Route 4, Midland, collided about 6:45 a.m. Thursday.

Watters escaped injury, while Suchil was listed in serious condition in the hospital's intensive care unit this morning. He suffered a back injury in the wreck. Police said fog was a factor in the mishap.

Sheriff's deputies today were investigating the reported theft of a crank pin assembly valued at $1,195. The apparatus was taken from the Lufkin Industries yard on West Highway 80 and belonged to the A.G. Kaspar Co., headquartered at the First National Bank Building in Midland. The theft occurred sometime between Jan. 12 and Feb. 5.

Soot buildup in the chimney of a residence at 1414 Sparks caught fire shortly after noon Thursday. The blaze was out when firemen arrived, and no damage was reported to the house, whose owner was listed as Mrs. Austine Crosby.

MMH plans to open more beds

Officials at Midland Memorial Hospital plan to open 10 additional beds Monday to increase the hospital's capacity to 161 beds of the 195 available, according to hospital sources.

The additional beds, which will be opened for ambulatory care patients are the result of the hospital's recent nurse-hiring campaign. The hospital has added eight new full-time RNs, a new full-time LVN, three new part time RNs and a few part-time LVNs in response to the cash incentive program begun Dec. 25 and additional advertising, according to Pat Dishman, public relations director for the hospital.

"We look forward to the time when we can have all 195 beds open so we can better serve the people of Midland and the Permian Basin," Miss Dishman said. "We appreciate people's patience with us" during the hospital's renovations and staff shortages in postponing and rescheduling their non-emergency surgeries, she added.

The cash incentive program offers new nurses immediate cash rewards, plus additional funds after a probationary period, as well as offering cash to current employees who recruit new personnel. The money was made available from Midland Memorial Foundation's Board of Governors.

Low potassium level can cause weakness

Dear Dr. Solomon: My mother went to see her doctor because her ankles had become puffy. He told her the condition was caused by an accumulation of fluids, and he prescribed a diuretic. However, he also prescribed potassium. I can understand the diuretic, but what is the reason for the potassium? — Edith

Dear Edith: Low serum potassium levels often are seen in older people for whom a diuretic has been prescribed. This can result in weakness and cardiac arrhythmias (variations from the normal rhythm of the heartbeat). In some of my patients, increasing the intake of oranges, bananas, and other foods with a high potassium content is sufficient to overcome the low levels. Other patients, however, do require a potassium supplement.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've had some trouble falling asleep lately, but I do not want to start with pills unless they become absolutely necessary. Would a glass of wine before bedtime be in order? — Kevin.

Dear Kevin: I would encourage you to continue to avoid the use of sleeping pills unless they are recommended by your physician. The human body tends to develop a tolerance to sedatives after a while, and a person often has to take increasingly larger doses in order to obtain the same effect. It is also possible to become psychologically dependent on these drugs, so that sleep becomes impossible without them.

As for alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, individuals differ a great deal in their reaction to them. However, some people find that when the alcohol they've consumed wears off during the night, they experience periods of wakefulness.

If you haven't seen your doctor lately, why not arrange for a physical examination? It is much easier to prescribe treatment for a condition once the case is known.

Dear Dr. Solomon: When my four-year-old son had some fever recently, my sister-in-law suggested I bathe him with ice water to help bring down his temperature. I did not do so because my doctor had never suggested it. I wonder, however, if it might not have been a good idea to follow her advice. Do you recommend bathing a child with ice water to help bring down a fever? — Mrs. F.L.P.

Dear Mrs. P.: A child should not be bathed in ice water except when this method is specifically recommended by a doctor. In almost every case, it is used only in an effort to bring down a very high fever. Many children are frightened or, at the least, made very uncomfortable by the procedure, and it should not be used indiscriminately.

However, it would be perfectly appropriate to sponge a child with cool to lukewarm water in an effort to reduce a fever. The child can be placed on a large bath towel which has been laid over a waterproof plastic or rubber sheet, or some similar material, and the entire body sponged. Here, too, if the child finds it uncomfortable and resists, don't force the issue.

Cohen, others disagree on raising minimum age

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Professor Wilbur Cohen of the University of Texas disagrees with other members of the National Commission on Social Security that the minimum age should be raised from 65 to 68.

Cohen, a former secretary of the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was a member of the commission which has completed two years of study of Social Security problems.

The commission's preliminary report recommended the minimum age for drawing full retirement benefits be increased gradually to 68 over the period from 2001 to 2012. The current minimum retirement retirement age of 62 would be increased to 65.

Cohen disagreed.

"Blacks, Hispanics and other who have worked at physically taxing jobs all their lives may encounter health problems in their 50s and early 60s and that would make it difficult for them to continue working past 62 or 65," he said. "And many women don't want to work until they are 65."

He said there should be some readjustment of Social Security financing this year, such as payroll taxes, shifting part of the financing burden to general revenue or a decrease in benefits. Also, he said, Congress whould allow inter-fund borrowing among the various trust funds.

Telegram sent in protest of military in Mideast

DALLAS (AP) — The president of the Arab-American Relations Committee said Tuesday he sent President Reagan a "strongly worded" telegram protesting his plan to maintain an American military presence in the Middle East.

Dr. M.T. Mehdi, head of the New York-based group, was here on part of a nationwide tour.

"Far from preventing Soviet expansionism, such a move will antagonize the people of the Middle East against America and will create a fertile ground for communism to grow," Mehdi said.

The presence of American troops in the region would be "the beginning of the Vietnamization of the area, with an unforeseeable danger to America and humanity," he added.

Mehdi said he warned Reagan it is easier to get into a problem than to pull out of one, and that he appealed to the president to reconsider his plan.

The organization, established in 1964, is committed to peace in the Middle East and better relations between Arabs and Americans, he said.

Moral group to help count profanity on TV

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Moral Majority of Texas is planning to help the Coalition for Better Television count the number of times profanity, violence and sex are shown on the air.

Fred Mason, state director for Moral Majority, said Wednesday television programs will be monitored in March, April and May.

"We simply intend to determine who is sponsoring sex, violence and profanity on prime-time television and then inform the public," Mason said.

"Last November we asked Americans to vote according to their convictions, this spring we will ask the public to spend personal income according to their convictions about prime-time television," he said.

School zone caution

Recently a Midland resident called The Reporter-Telegram to report that he had witnessed a child almost being struck by a vehicle in one of the Tall City's school zones.

There was no police officer available at the time, so this resident said he stopped the vehicle and verbally chastised the driver for speeding through the school zone.

This little episode raises an interesting point: Our laws weren't written to be obeyed only when an officer is around to enforce them.

As our own observations confirm, speeding in Midland's school zones is a problem — a dangerous one. To this point we have been fortunate; there have been relatively few car-pedestrian accidents in recent months.

But how long will our luck hold? Sooner or later it's bound to run out and some child will pay the price with his or her life or suffer serious injury. That's a high price to pay for our own inconsideration.

If the Midland Police Department saw fit to station a police officer at each school zone throughout the city during peak periods of pedestrian traffic, there's little doubt that no other officers would be available to patrol streets, work traffic, investigate traffic accidents and crime in the city. It just isn't possible.

The laws our society created to protect all people were not designed to only be obeyed when an enforcer was around. Rather, we all assumed and inherited a great degree of responsibility for self-enforcement.

It doesn't matter what business one is engaged in, what circumstances that person is operating under or how that person attempts to justify speeding in a school zone, none of the reasons are valid. School zones were created because a potentially hazardous situation exists within them. No reason for speeding is worth a human life.

As you travel through Midland on school days, remember the purpose of school zones and remember your responsibility. Slow down and drive cautiously, even when a police officer is not present. Your actions may save a child's life.

A bowl of jellybeans

Already, President Reagan has done as much for the jellybean as Jimmy Carter did for the peanut. And no sooner had Mr. Reagan moved into the Oval Office with his familiar bowl of jellybeans than the dentists and nutritionists were on his back.

Mr. Reagan should be aware that jellybeans are bad for the teeth. He should be aware that they are only empty calories with no nutritional value. Well, chances are he has known as much all along — and still likes to reach for a jellybean now and then. He has even urged his cabinet members to keep some around.

What's wrong with that? Mr. Reagan and his team are doing battle daily with a budget that won't balance, with a stubborn bureaucracy and a sensitive Congress. They must stay awake through tedious conferences and smile their way through stuffy receptions. They have to put up with the Washington weather.

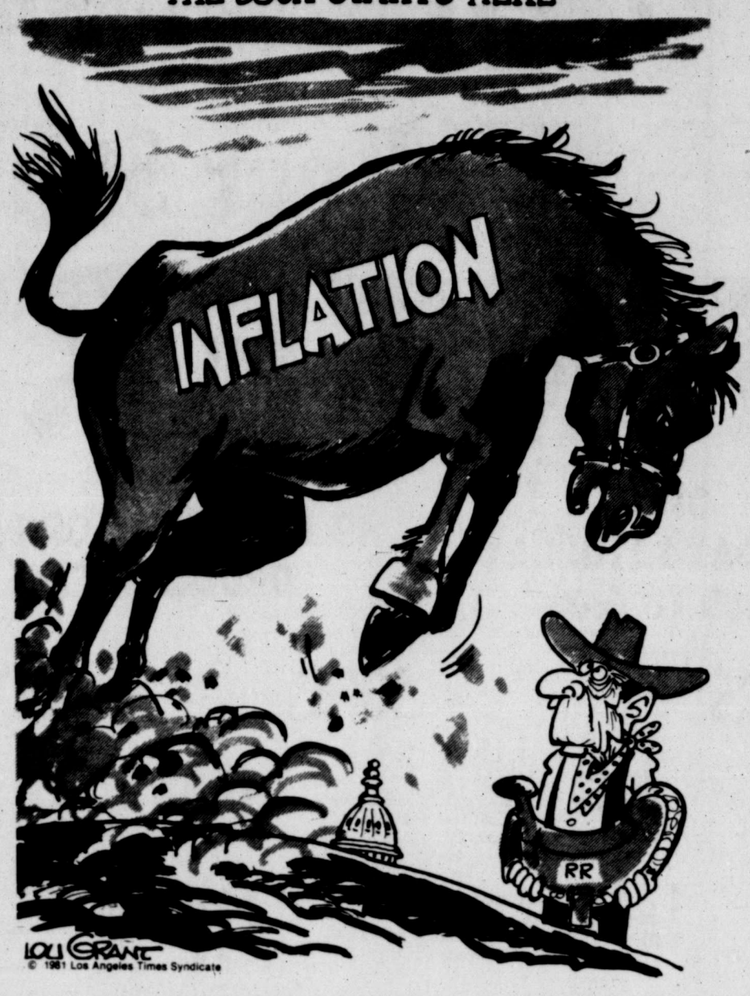

A jellybean promises a moment of sweet respite from the bitter necessities of power. Making decisions that will cost billions of dollars, or save billions, can be fatiguing. What better antidote than a bowl of jellybeans, where the only decision is whether to pick up a red one or a yellow one — or be daring and try the purple.

The nutritionists would like to see Mr. Reagan switch to raisins or grapes — to something that's good for you. They just don't understand jellybeans.

THE BUCK STARTS HERE

CHARLEY REESE

Sinatra's choice of friends evokes 'cheap journalism'

Charley Reese

Some commentators got excited about Frank Sinatra's friendship with President Reagan, but it was cheap shot journalism liberally laced with hyprocrisy.

The basic premise of the whole attack is that Sinatra has associated with members of the Mafia. That's unfair. Anyone who thinks any entertainer in the nightclub/recording fields can become famous without associating with members of the Mafia is naive. To single out Sinatra is to distort reality.

Besides, I thought that in this liberal age we did not convict people on the basis of guilt by association. If we are, however, then I can make a good case that Frank Sinatra has better taste in friends than may of his critics.

Mrs. Katherine Graham, publisher of the Washington Post; her editor, Ben Bradlee, and a number of other journalism stars accepted an invitation to a private dinner with Fidel Castro in New York City after one of his tirades against the United States at the United Nations.

Now, let's see, Castro is a liar, a killer, a communist, a warmonger, a psychopath, and a hater of the United States. I would much prefer to have a drink with a Mafia boss than with that louse.

I have no romantic illusions about the Mafia. It is an organization of outlaws who deal in illegal services. Still, they rarely kill anyone except their own people or outsiders who voluntarily mix in their affairs. They do not, as Castro does, routinely kill, imprison and torture people over political differences. They do not, as Castro does, threaten to destroy a third of this country.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, the great Republican moralist from Connecticut, who has such moral reservations about Secretary of State Alexander Haig, recently went junketing to Cuba and skin-diving with Castro. Then he made a fool of himself by telling the American people how much Castro has done for the Cubans. As any one of the 10,000 Cubans who fled to the Peruvian Embassy in Havana will tell him, Castro has destroyed the Cuban economy.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security advisor, bragged to the press that the visiting Red Chinese dictator was having dinner with him at his home. Brzezinski thought it quite a social coup to have a mass murderer for a dinner guest.

One of the more disgusting memories I have of former President Jerry Ford is watching him, glass of booze in one hand, put his arm around the communist party chief of Poland and lead him into the White House like a long lost brother. It is especially disgusting because Mr. Ford refused to invite Alexander Solzhenitsyn, one of the world's greatest spokesman for freedom, to the same White House.

Now let's be clear. In each of the instances I have cited, the people went beyond formal diplomatic or business protocol and engaged in a purely social relationship. It may be necessary to deal with tyrants and dictators, but it is not necessary to socialize with them and that's why I say Sinatra has better taste in friends than they do.

And better justification. If you want to be an entertainer, you'd better be sociable with the mob. Presidents, national security advisors, publishers, editors, senators, and television commentators do not have to go out of their way to be pleasant to dictators.

I've always admired Sinatra. He doesn't kow-tow to anybody or take any guff, he's a great performer, a patriot, and a philanthropist who never seeks publicity for his philanthropy. It doesn't bother me a bit if he's invited to the White House every Friday night; it would bother me if some of this critics were.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Things go better with — Republicans!

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The "Pepsi generation" is about to replace "the real thing" at the White House.

What the American voters probably didn't realize last November, when they chose Ronald Reagan over Jimmy Carter, was that they were also ending four years of Coca-Cola hegemony in the White House and paving the way for a return to Pepsi-Cola ascendancy at the highest levels of the federal government.

The soft-drink supremacy battle boils down to this: Pepsi is Republican; Coke, at least during the tenure of a president from Georgia, was Democratic.

When Carter took over four years ago, Pepsi was banished from the White House in favor of Atlanta-based Coca-Cola. And Carter did more than simply replace Pepsi with Coke in the Executive Mansion's beverage machines.

Coca-Cola people had been bubbly boosters of Carter ever since he was Georgia governor. Coke executive John Paul Austin provided his brand of cola for Carter's political barbecues — free — and gave other financial support to the native son's lofty ambitions.

Not one to forget his old friends, Carter as president acted to keep down the price of sugar — of which Coca-Cola was the nation's biggest single user. The president also took a well-publicized ride down the Mississippi on the Delta Queen riverboat, which is owned by the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of New York.

With its White House clout, Coca-Cola wangled an end to the 50-year ban on its product in Portugal, gained entree to the mainland China market and — until the embargo inspired by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan — cornered the concession on American soft drinks at last year's Moscow Olympics.

Now everything has changed. Coke is out; Pepsi is back in.

Pepsico Chairman Donald Kendall, who engineered the first big commercial exploitation of the Soviet market with a Pepsi-for-vodka trade deal under Richard Nixon, can be expected to use his Republican connections once more to further his company's interests.

J.C. Louis, author of "The Cola Wars," an account of the epic rivalry between Coke and Pepsi, explained it this way to my associate Howard Rosenberg: "Kendall will convince Reagan — as he did Nixon — that it will better serve the United States' interests to treat the Russians and the Chinese as potential consumer markets rather than adversaries."

Indeed, Kendall wasted no time moving in. He hosted a lavish pre-inaugural bash at the Pan-American Union in Washington for the foreign diplomatic corps. As Louis said: "The party was intended to renew the soft-drink psychology of the Nixon era: Foreign leaders who wish to please the White House might do so by treating Pepsi well."

Guests at the Pepsi party included Vice President-elect George Bush, Defense Secretary-designate Caspar Weinberger, GOP contributor W. Clement Stone, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and the ambassadors of China, Poland, Chile, Zaire, Bangladesh and several dozen other potential Pepsi markets.

Weinberger was once a director of Pepsico. Bush was a banking partner of two members of Pepsi's board of directors.

At the Pepsi freeload, Bush assured the guests pointedly that "the day of apologizing for U.S. private interests abroad is over." Weinberger went even further and said that "Pepsico has always been a supporter of good governments, and for that reason we can assume that they'd be supporters of the (Reagan) administration."

A HELPFUL BANKER: In general, American bankers probably did more to hinder the negotiations for release of our hostages in Iran than they did to help. Their insistence on hanging onto Iranian assets they had control of was a substantial roadblock to the State Department's efforts to get the 52 Americans out of Iran.

But there was a laudable exception. Citibank of New York and its lawyer, John Hoffman, contributed to a breakthrough in the agonizing negotiations for the hostages' release.

When Jimmy Carter froze all Iranian assets in the United States, Citibank, like other American banks, was stuck with some outstanding loans to Iran — almost $120 million worth. And like other American banks, Citibank had Iranian assets in its overseas branches that could have been used to cover the frozen loans in the United States.

Unlike some other American banks, however, Citibank wasn't at all sure its overseas Iranian assets could in fact be used to cover the outstanding Iranian loans in this country. Legal action was blocked by administration pressure to delay court moves until the hostages were freed. So Citibank — and Hoffman — decided to work things out by negotiating with the Iranians.

And the channels that Hoffman opened up in France and West Germany seven months ago for the transfer of money were later used successfully for the transfer of the American hostages.

WATCH ON WASTE: The federal government's liberal early-retirement policy was intended to give older employees an incentive to quit and make way for younger workers. According to the General Accounting Office, the program cost the taxpayers at least $109 million last year. (The Office of Personnel Management claims it was "only" $78.5 million.) But instead of cutting down on the overall payroll, as was intended, the early retirements allowed the agencies to hire new people to take up the supposed slack. So the taxpayer gets stuck with the bonuses for early retirees — and the cost of their replacements as well.

INSIDE REPORT

Lehman nomination assures that Meese is no puppeteer

Evans

Novak

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's nomination of John F. Lehman Jr. as secretary of the Navy after weeks of backstage battling showed that presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, while Reagan's most influential adviser, is not the de facto president who pulls the strings of the puppet in the Oval Office.

That notion is so strong that even Lehman's supporters assumed that opposition faded only because the all-powerful Meese had a change of heart. In truth, Meese never dropped his preference for Lehman's competitor. The heart that changed was Reagan's, overruling the advice of his oldest aides.

There are enough such instances to refute the notion that Meese manipulates Reagan as the mayors of the palace controlled long-haired Merovingian kings in medieval France. Reagan's passion to delegate details and Meese's joy in accepting them is building a perception of a puppet president, a notion whose falsity makes it no less dangerous to the new administration.

More than anybody else, Reagan included, it was the cool, cautious Meese who set the tone of the administration by selecting a Cabinet more noted for stolidity and respectability than intimations of greatness. Yet, on personnel and policy alike, Reagan has frequently asserted himself. The battle over secretary of the Navy is not the most important example, just the most recent.

Lehman, 38, a rare combination of Ph.D. and naval jet fighter pilot, was unusually qualified. The Ford administration's deputy director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), he had the past four years promoted hard-line defense as Republican policy. His rival: Robert Nesen, a 62-year-old Cadillac dealer from Thousand Oaks, Calif., once assistant secretary of the Navy for management but generally unknown in defense circles.

Nesen did have one unique asset: second-tier membership in Reagan's "kitchen cabinet." He appears to have been promised the Navy job (perhaps by Reagan himself) and was backed not only by the kitchen cabinet but by Reagan's closest advisers: Mike Deaver, Lyn Nofziger — and Ed Meese. On inauguration eve, Lehman's chances were slim.

But Reagan decided Lehman's qualifications, coupled with his backing on Capitol Hill and in the Pentagon, overrode any political promise to Nesen. "Can't we find out if Bob isn't interested in something else?" Reagan asked. That ended the debate. The "something else" turned out to be ambassador to Australia.

This is the latest in a modest list of cases in which Reagan has overruled Meese. Many were in the Lehman mold: Reagan taking the route of principle over political expediency. This was routine during the campaign when Reagan rejected policy recommendations of Meese and his campaign staff.

In the other general category in which the two old friends disagreed, Reagan has accepted risky initiatives and Meese has opted for caution. Reagan probably would not have persisted in uncompromising support for the Kemp-Roth tax bill, which was seemingly weak in public support and derided by the economic establishment, had it been up to Meese. Yet, this was the energizing core of the Reagan campaign.

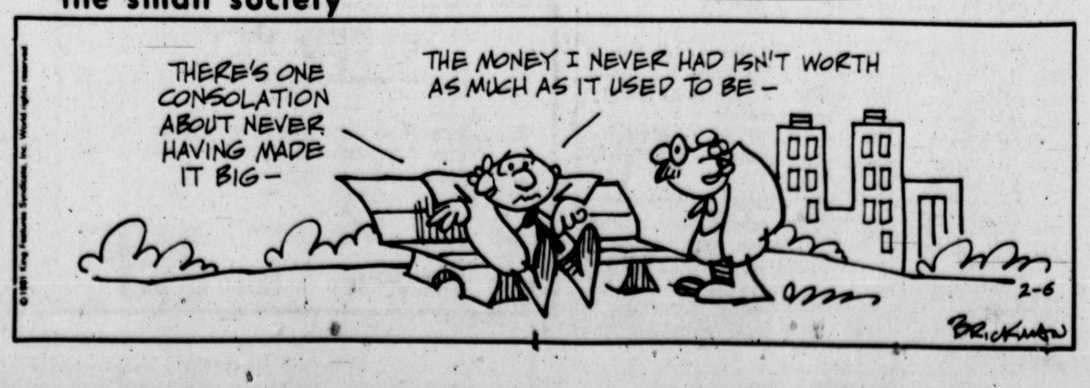

Similarly, the director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) surely would not be David Stockman today if Meese had controlled this as he did other Cabinet appointments. Impressed by Stockman's brilliant impersonation of John Anderson and Jimmy Carter in presidential debate rehearsals, Reagan intervened for him. The result is risk-taker Stockman in a Cabinet generally as cautious as Meese.

While Meese is today's dominant figure in the administration, his authority has limits. Knowing Meese's limitations as Reagan's chief of staff in Sacramento, old friends urged Reagan to split the functions Meese envisioned for himself: policy direction would stay with Meese, but James Baker (George Bush's campaign manager) would run the White House staff. Reagan agreed, to Meese's temporary discomfiture.

Meese did not sulk for long. That would be out of character for a man who combines great good humor (common in politics) with an unwillingness to speak ill of anybody (almost unheard of in politics). Add to this a quick mind, ability to absorb huge doses of information and sound judgment, and it is no wonder this is the man Reagan trusts most.

A 70-year-old president who shuns details needs somebody playing prime minister. For a president whose remarkable career from sports announcer to actor to political polemicist shows an entrepreneurial flair, a chief aide endowed with lawyerly caution is desirable. The worry is whether that relationship should ever reverse itself so that the safety-first aide dominates the risk-taking president. That is why the nomination of John Lehman, reflecting the limitations of Ed Meese's power, is reassuring.

Props, pauses effective in Reagan's first talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president read his lines smoothly and punctuated them with proper pauses and props.

It was Ronald Reagan the former movie actor's first television performance as president talking to the nation. And in the style of a friendly college professor he offered a sharp contrast to his predecessor.

Reagan didn't stumble as he went through the text displayed in front of him on a TelePrompTer. He had no trouble making eye contact with the camera.

And unlike Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan paused in just the right places to give his words the desired emphasis.

He pursed his lips. He tilted his head. He didn't shout. At times he lowered his voice dramatically to a whisper.

Unlike Carter, who made his first major televised speech in the White House library, seated before a roaring fire and wearing a cardigan sweater, Reagan took a formal approach.

He wore a dark blue suit, with white handkerchief tucked just-so in the breast pocket, and a red tie. The American flag was in its place to the right behind his desk. The presidential flag was behind him to his left.

And in between, in front of beige draperies, were family pictures.

As for props, there were a few.

He unfolded his hands briefly to hold out a dollar bill. It was part of his effort to illustrate the shrinking dollar.

Waving the bill in his left hand, he said, "Here is a dollar such as you earned, spent or saved in 1960."

Then, picking up a quarter, a dime, and a penny from his desk, he said, "Thirty-six cents is what this 1960 dollar is worth today."

It was, in the words the president used earlier in the day, "a simple lesson in economics."

There were no details of a comprehensive economic proposal, although the speech was peppered with numbers. The details, he said, will come Feb. 18 when he addresses Congress.

Instead, Professor Reagan told the nation about "those golden years" that followed World War II, when "some government programs seemed so worthwhile that borrowing to fund them didn't bother us."

And he kept his lesson in human terms, offering tidbits of miscellaneous information:

—"Fewer than one out of 11 families can afford to buy their first new home."

—"Regulations adopted by government with the best of intentions added $666 to the cost of an automobile."

—"$20 billion is spent by government handling the paperwork" created by government regulations.

He offered no sources for his figures.

The speech, of course, was not written to be read by the American public. It was written to be heard.

"It loses a lot in the printed word," said one senior Reagan aide. "It depends a lot on him. The magic ingredient is the man."

Test is in delivery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress agree: Delivering a good speech is one thing, but delivering on what it said will be harder. That, they say, will be the true test of President Reagan's efforts to revitalize the economy.

"President Reagan again demonstrated his highly developed skills as a communicator," Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said after Reagan's nationally broadcast address to the nation Thursday night.

BUT HE ADDED: "It will take all of his communications abilities, coupled with dedication and determination on the part of both the president and the Congress, to successfully build the public support required to restrain federal spending. This was a good start."

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said Reagan's "diagnosis is right. But I'd like to see the numbers he is proposing."

Domenici said Congress should cut spending first and then worry about tax cuts. Reagan said he wants both now.

"I personally want to see Congress take the hard medicine first," Domenici said.

"Mr. Reagan is a good speech maker. It's difficult to disagree with his delivery," said Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas, a member of the House Budget Committee. "It's one thing to deliver a good speech; it's another to deliver on it."

MATTOX SUGGESTED the president's plan for broad and deep cuts in the federal budget may not get far after he submits it to Congress Feb. 18.

"I think it's going to fall apart before it ever gets started because you'll find the special interest groups are going to be protecting their programs," Mattox said.

Other legislators agreed that Reagan's plans may be too ambitious.

"I am still waiting for the other shoe to drop," said Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio. He said he wants to know specifically how Reagan intends to increase the defense budget, cut personal income taxes by 10 percent annually over three years and balance the budget all at the same time.

"It will be a miracle if he can do it," he said.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the Senate Finance Committee chairman, said Congress probably will change Reagan's tax cut plan.

DOLE SAID IT was important that Reagan couple any tax reduction with substantial cuts in federal spending. The "$64 question," he said, is whether a Congress subjected to intense lobbying by special interests will make the required budget cuts.

"It may be a game of chicken," Dole commented. "But I've got to be optimistic at the start."

Rep. Larry Winn, R-Kan., said he was surprised Reagan clung to his campaign pledge for the massive, long-term personal tax reduction.

"I'd gotten the idea he was only going to go for the 10 percent cut in the first year," Winn said. "We'll act on it (a tax cut) one year at a time."

Some other Republicans were less skeptical.

"I thought it was the most direct and candid speeches that I have ever heard a president give since I have been in public office," praised Sen. Jack Garn, R-Utah. "He did not overstate the nature of the problem. The budget is in a runaway situation, and we must enact severe budget cuts and tax cuts that he will call for on the 18th of February."

FRESHMAN REP. John Le Boutillier, R-N.Y., noted that Reagan "alluded to cutting off a child's allowance to curtail extravegance" and added: "The children he was referring to are the liberal Democrats who have spent our country into bankruptcy."

But Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, said Reagan spoke in such generalities, it was "hard to get any meaningful idea" what he expects Congress or the American people to do.

Public backs Reagan's goals; No faith they'll be accomplished

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation-weary Americans back Ronald Reagan's economic goals but doubt he can accomplish them and rate tax cuts less important than balancing the budget, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

In his economic pep talk to the nation Thursday night, Reagan called for both tax and spending cuts now to balance the budget in the next few years. "We must act and act now," he said. "We are out of time."

The AP-NBC News poll taken before Reagan's speech found general support for those moves but some disagreement over which steps should be taken first.

When asked to choose, 64 percent picked balancing the federal budget and only 29 percent named a tax cut.

And increasing defense spending, which Reagan has said he favors but didn't mention Thursday night, was rated more important still. Given a choice between a balanced budget and higher defense spending, 52 percent chose defense spending and 40 percent a balanced budget.

The AP-NBC poll was based on telephone interviews between Jan. 21 and Jan. 23 with 2,407 adults across the country. The margin of error was 3 percent either way.

By almost a 3-to-1 margin — 67 percent to 20 percent — the public backed balancing the federal budget.

By 65 percent to 29 percent, Americans supported increased defense spending.

And they supported — 53 percent to 33 percent — a cut in federal income taxes.

Nevertheless, the public is skeptical about whether Reagan actually will be able to balance the budget or control inflation.

Forty-four percent of those questioned said Reagan will be able to control inflation, while 45 percent disagreed. Eleven percent were not sure.

Forty-two said Reagan will be able to balance the budget, while 47 percent disagreed, with the rest unsure.

The public doubt about Reagan's ability to cut inflation or balance the budget is, in part, a reflection of the belief that the problems are largely intractable.

Americans split on whether an effective president would be able to control inflation — 48 percent said yes, 44 percent no.

And an essentially even split developed over whether the federal budget can be balanced in the next few years. Forty-eight percent said it could be balanced, with 43 percent saying it couldn't.

The skepticism didn't reflect on Reagan.

Nearly three-quarters of those interviewed — 72 percent — said Reagan is the kind of person who can get things done, while only 14 percent disagreed. Another 14 percent were not sure.

Texas solons disagree on Reagan economic evaluation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Texas congressmen who will be in the thick of budget wrangling disagreed sharply on President Reagan's evaluation of the economy as being in its worst shape since the Great Depression.

"I think it's if anything an understatement," Rep. Phil Gramm, a College Station Democrat, said after Reagan's televised speech Thursday night. "I think if we fail to gain control that we may never get another chance."

Rep. Jim Mattox, a Dallas Democrat, said he and the president definitely view the nation through different eyes.

"I disagree with the painting of such a dark picture of this country," Mattox said. "I think most Americans agree they're living better now than they were 10 years ago or 20 years."

Both Texans, along with House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth, are members of the House Budget Committee.

Gramm, a former economics professor at Texas A&M University, said Reagan's economics were the best heard from a president in 20 years.

"I think he did well," the College Station conservative said. "I think he pointed out to the American people what's got to be done and I think his communications skills will serve this country well."

Mattox, however, said Reagan may not be able to translate his skill at making a speech into a carried-through economic program.

"It's one thing to deliver a good speech; it's another to deliver on it," the Dallas congressman said.

Mattox predicted that following Reagan's basic economic theory would increase inflation and probaby increase the budget deficit as well.

He said the plan to make drastic cuts in federal spending may not get far, although he said he would go along with as many of the program cutback proposals as possible.

Gramm said Congress in its present mood may give Reagan more support than presidents have received in the past on any proposals to cut spending.

The College Station conservative recalled what happened last year when he and former Rep. David Stockman, now the director of the Office of Management and Budget, proposed a $26.4 billion program of budget cuts.

Gramm said he received a flood of mail, each letter congratulating him on the overall program but pointing out one mistake.

Harris' testimony tearfully ends

Jean Harris leaves the Westchester County Court House in White Plains, N.Y., after testifying for the eighth day in the Dr. Herman Tarnower murder trial. Harris is accused of shooting the Scarsdale Diet Doctor to death last March in his Harrison, New York home. (AP Laserphoto)

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Former headmistress Jean Harris, in a tearful conclusion of eight days in the witness box, insisted she couldn't have killed Scarsdale Diet developer Dr. Herman Tarnower and that "fourteen years of my life bore testimony to that."

But the 57-year-old defendant left unexplained the multiple gunshot wounds caused by her revolver in the body of her lover.

She testified Thursday she only remembered shooting Tarnower in the hand last March 10, the night the millionaire cardiologist was fatally wounded in the bedroom of his Purchase, N.Y., estate.

Mrs. Harris, the former headmistress of The Madeira School for girls in McLean, Va., is charged with murder in Tarnower's death.

She has maintained Tarnower, 69, was shot accidentally during a struggle over her gun as he tried to stop her from killing herself.

The prosecution contends she deliberately shot him to death in a jealous rage over his affair with Lynne Tryforos, 37.

"Isn't it a fact, Mrs. Harris, that on March 10, 1980, you intended to kill Dr. Tarnower and then kill yourself because if you couldn't have him, no woman could?" Assistant District Attorney George Bolen asked during his four-day cross-examination.

"No, it isn't Mr. Bolen," Mrs. Harris replied calmly.

During redirect examination by her lawyer, Joel Aurnou, Mrs. Harris said Bolen had subjected her to "trial by humiliation" and begged Aurnou not to reread her last letter to Tarnower.

The letter, among other things, denounced Mrs. Tryforos as a "thieving slut" for trying to push her out of Tarnower's life and will.

"Please don't read that letter, please," she cried.

She wept openly several times, and once left the courtroom leaning on Aurnou's shoulder after she collapsed in tears on the witness stand.

She was asked by Aurnou if some of the more touching passages of the letter accurately described her feelings last March.

"When you wrote that the diamond ring he gave you meant 'more than life itself,' was that true?" Aurnou said.

"Yes, but we've all read it. Do we have to do it again, Joel, please?" she pleaded, again in tears.

In her account of what happened in Tarnower's bedroom on the fatal night, Mrs. Harris said Tarnower hit her twice, told her she was crazy and grappled with her for the .32-caliber revolver she pulled out of her handbag to use on herself.

Mrs. Harris said she could account only for the shot to Tarnower's hand, one shot she thought went into her stomach and one shot she fired into a cabinet to see if the gun was working. She could not "feel or hear" two other shots that killed Tarnower, she said.

She also spoke about the failure of her administration at Madeira and her lack of identity as a woman, which she said led to her decision to commit suicide at the side of a pond in front of Tarnower's house.

Striking teachers arrested in Guam

AGANA, Guam (AP) — Several dozen people were arrested today when striking teachers in Guam formed a human chain around the island's Legislature, where senators were meeting, police said.

Forty-six people, including leaders of the island's two largest labor unions, were being held at a fenced parking lot complex at police headquarters in Agana, Guam Director of Public Safety Jose Mariano said.

Several of the demonstrators resisted police efforts to remove them from the Legislature grounds, authorities said. Some showed torn clothing and scratches as they were held in the parking lot.

The senators, who were holding session inside the building at the time, peered through windows as police were called to break up the demonstration.

Abscam operative suggested Williams be given marijuana

NEW YORK (AP) — Key Abscam operative Mel Weinberg once suggested that Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., be given marijuana "to pep him up" before meeting with a fake Arab sheik, an FBI agent says. The agent said he assumed the remark was a joke.

Weinberg, a convicted confidence man who helped the FBI set up the undercover FBI investigation, reportedly proposed the marijuana at a meeting on June 27, 1979, with three men who were subsequently indicted with Williams on Abscam bribery-conspiracy charges.

The three men were Mayor Angelo Errichetti of Camden, N.J.; George Katz, a Fort Lee, N.J., contractor; and Alexander Feinberg, a Cherry Hill, N.J., lawyer. The idea was rejected.

The meeting came the day before a meeting among Weinberg, Errichetti and Williams that has come under fire by some Justice Department lawyers from New Jersey — as well some Abscam defendants — who contend Weinberg "put words in people's mouths" during the session.

The marijuana suggestion was revealed Thursday at a due process hearing before U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt in Brooklyn for seven Abscam defendants seeking to have convictions overturned on the grounds of governmental misconduct.

Defense attorney John Duffy, who represents Philadelphia City Councilman Louis Johanson, had asked FBI agent John Good if he ever heard about Weinberg suggesting Williams be drugged.

When Good, the FBI's supervising case agent for Abscam, acknowledged he had "heard about it," Duffy began to read from a transcript of the meeting.

"Maybe we ought to give him some marijuana to pep him up," Weinberg suggested to the others.

Garwood facing life imprisonment

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Garwood of Adams, Ind., say they were hurt when they discovered their son had been convicted of collaboration with the enemy while he was in Vietnam. The elder Garwood said his son didn't expect complete exoneration but didn't expect conviction either. (AP Laserphoto)

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, who said last summer that "an American prison is better than a Vietnamese one" today faces the possibility of life imprisonment for collaborating with the enemy during his years in a prisoner of war camp.

His lawyers will be trying to whittle down the sentence.

Garwood, 34, blinked back tears but otherwise was composed as the verdict was read Thursday afternoon. He was found innocent on a charge of maltreatment, but guilty on a lesser charge of assaulting a fellow American prisoner.

See related story, Page 4B

The Indiana native, whose attorneys had tried to establish mental illness, made no comment as he was led away.

The Marine was a 19-year-old jeep driver when he was captured near Da Nang in 1965. He returned to the United States in 1979 — unable to tie his shoes or speak English without a heavy accent — after slipping a note to a Finnish businessman in Hanoi.

His was the first case of collaboration by a Vietnam POW to go to a jury.

A five-man panel of Vietnam veterans spent two days deliberating before finding Garwood guilty of collaboration during two of the 14 years he was in captivity.

Collaboration carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment. The assault charge, which involved the striking of a fellow POW, carries a maximum six months.

In the military judicial system, sentence is determined in further court hearings, and defense lawyers said they would discuss today the possibility of bringing more witnesses to appear for Garwood.

The jury remains on call to decide the sentence.

Dwyer's husband says Iranians entrapped wife in bogus plot

By MEL REISNER
Associated Press Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A bogus plot for freeing five Americans cut off from the other U.S. Embassy hostages was concocted by Iranian agents to entrap freelance writer Cynthia Dwyer, her husband says.

"I think what happened was that she was set up and then her phone was tapped ... it was a clear-cut case of entrapment," John F. Dwyer charged Thursday.

The same pro-Khomeini security agents who told Mrs. Dwyer about the plan were the ones who arrested her, he said.

Mrs. Dwyer, 49, of Amherst, N.Y., was arrested in Tehran last May on espionage charges. She had gone to Iran to write about the 53 Americans who were then being held captive.

She denied at her trial this week in an Iranian court that she was a spy for the CIA. A diplomat from the Swiss Foreign Ministry who observed the proceedings said a verdict was expected soon.

The Iranian newspaper Ettelat reported that Mrs. Dwyer denied the spy charges and that the prosecutor outlined the trap laid for her.

Dwyer said his wife first was contacted about an escape plan after the aborted hostage rescue mission April 25, 1980, in which eight U.S. commandos died in the south Iran desert.

Mrs. Dwyer had been told "she could help the five hostages in the Mashad area (of northeastern Iran) that had been dispersed there after the rescue attempt; that there were some dissidents — she was told — who were going to try and free them and they wanted her simply to tell somebody about it," he said.

"They wanted the 'spy' to contact her government."

In the scheme, the nuclear aircraft carrier USS Nimitz was supposed to send helicopters to rescue the five. Mrs. Dwyer was supposed to contact someone in the federal government about it.

"I think this is where her humanitarianism maybe crossed over her journalistic sense," Dwyer said.

Two days before her arrest May 5, 1980, Mrs. Dwyer telephoned Max McCarthy, Washington bureau chief of the Buffalo Evening News, to describe the bogus plot to free the hostages.

In a story published two weeks later, McCarthy wrote the Iranians hoped to lure U.S. military personnel or pro-Iranian forces into Iran and further embarrass the United States or uncover pro-American sympathizers.

Travelers Insurance will pay $46 million refund

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Travelers Insurance Co. has agreed to pay an estimated $46 million in malpractice insurance refunds to 5,500 Southern California doctors over the next 10 years, officials say.

As part of the agreement, announced Thursday by Dr. Jack E. McLeary, president of the Southern California Physicians Council, Travelers turned over an initial refund payment of $18.6 million to the medical group.

The council filed suit against the company, based in Hartford, Conn., to get the refunds, charging the firm grossly overcharged doctors when it boosted malpratice premiums 327 percent in 1976.

The money will be distributed among doctors in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Ventura, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties who were insured by Travelers from 1976 to 1978.

McLeary said some specialists, such as anesthesiologists, obstetricians, gynecologists and orthopedic surgeons, were paying more than $30,000 a year for malpractice insurance during those years.

Dr. Edward Zalta, president of the Los Angeles County Medical Association, said the high insurance rates came after Travelers lost money on its malpractice insurance program in 1974 and 1975, and as a result raised its premiums.

Zalta said that because of the higher rates, Travelers collected $90 million in premiums between 1976 and 1979.

But Travelers' legal counsel, George McKeon, responded: "At the time the rates were make, based on experience and underwriting projections of that time, it looked like the medical malpractice problem was going to be very serious. Then it plateaued, though now it's on the rise again.

The council negotiated unsuccessfully with Travelers for three years to have the excess premiums refunded, then in 1979 filed suit against the insurance company in state and federal courts.

The settlement was reached out of court.

Stress caused by disasters may last for years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stress caused by natural disasters such as the floods caused by Hurricane Agnes in Pennsylvania in 1972 may endure for years and be to blame for higher illness rates among survivors, medical investigators reported Thursday.

They came to that conclusion in a follow-up study of more than 400 families whose homes in the Wilkes-Barre area of Pennsylvania were flooded on June 23-24, 1972, by the devastating hurricane.

Their report was published in Public Health Reports, the bimonthly journal of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Pennsylvania and six other states were declared major disaster areas because of floods triggered by Agnes, which a Commerce Department report later called "the worst natural disaster in the history of the Republic."

The study was based on health questionnaires filled out by women from 407 flood families in the town of Kingston and 155 families in surrounding towns that were not flooded.

In the five years after the disaster, the flood families suffered higher rates of a variety of ailments, including cardiovascular and gastrointestinal problems, gastritis, frequent constipation, severe headaches, bladder trouble and disease of the bone or cartilage, the study said.

The incidence of many of these diseases was low, but the investigators emphasized that the rates were significantly higher among the flood families.

They said underlying economic problems in the Wyoming Valley that preceded the flood — high unemployment, an aging population and a migration of young people to seek jobs elsewhere — may have made it harder for residents to cope with the flood.

Although doctors have long blamed stress for the onset of other illnesses, the researchers said, "Little is known about the long-term effects on health of natural disasters."

The investigators said their findings from Hurricane Agnes "suggest that stress associated with disasters may endure for many years and be responsible for excess long-term morbidity."

They called for the medical community to pay more attention after natural disasters to the threat of long-term, non-infectious diseases.

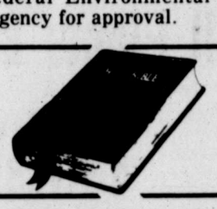

Board OKs waste plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Board of Health said Wednesday it has approved a solid waste management plan that should encourage small communities to coordinate their efforts.

"The Solid Waste Management Plan has provisions for helping communities coordinate and implement regional and countywide systems. If several communities pool their resources, they can operate a good solid waste disposal facility," said Jack Carmichael of the health department.

The state plan will be sent to the federal Environmental Protection Agency for approval.

The Newspaper BIBLE

HOW WELL DO YOU MEASURE UP?

John (the Baptist) went from place to place on both sides of the Jordan River, preaching that people should be baptized to show that they had turned to God and away from their sins, in order to be forgiven.

In the words of Isaiah the prophet, John was "a voice shouting from the barren wilderness, 'Prepare a road for the Lord to travel on! Widen the pathway before Him! Level the mountains! Fill up the valleys! Straighten the curves! Smooth out the ruts! And then all mankind shall see the Savior sent from God.'"

Here is a sample of John's preaching to the crowds that came for baptism: "You brood of snakes! You are trying to escape hell without truly turning to God! That is why you want to be baptized!

"First go and prove by the way you live that you really have repented. And don't think you are safe because you are descendants of Abraham. That isn't enough. God can produce children of Abraham from these desert stones!

"The axe of His judgment is poised over you, ready to sever your roots and cut you down. Yes, every tree that does not produce good fruit will be chopped down and thrown into the fire."

The crowd replied, "What do you want us to do?"

"If you have two coats, he replied, "give one to the poor. If you have extra food, give it away to those who are hungry."

Even tax collectors--notorious for their corruption--came to be baptized and asked, "How shall we prove to you that we have abandoned our sins?"

"By your honesty," he replied. "Make sure you collect no more taxes than the Roman government requires you to."

"And us, asked some soldiers, "what about us?" John replied, "Don't extort money by threats and violence; don't accuse anyone of what you know he didn't do; and be content with your pay!"

YMCAs will begin winter session soon

Upcoming programs for the winter session at Park Center and Washington YMCAs will begin soon, according to Y officials.

The Kiddie Dump — a program for parents who want one night a month away from the kids — will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 14. Children, aged 9-12, will participate in movies, games, basketball and even have a snack. Parents can pick up their children at 7:30 a.m. Feb. 15. The fee for members is $4 and for non-members, $6. Children need to bring a sleeping bag or covers. The group is limited to 40 kids.

On Feb. 16, the Y will be having a fun club which includes games, movies and swimming at a cost of $3 for members and $4 for non-members.

Baton lessons for beginners only begin Feb. 21 from 10 to 11 a.m. The lessons continue each Saturday through March 21. The fee for members is $6, while the non-member fee is $8.

A trampoline class offers skills in tumbling, body awareness and small stunts only. The class, which will meet on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 3:45 to 4:15, will begin Feb. 10 and last through March 5 at a cost of $8 for members and $10 for non-members.

A youth weightlifting program for boys in grades five and six will encompass an introduction to weights and the proper way to use them. The class will meet on Thursday afternoons from 3:45 to 4:30 and begins Feb. 12 and lasts through March 19. Fee for members is $6 and for non-members is $8.

A karate class for people with little or no experience will begin Feb. 12 and last through March 7. The class meets Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 and on Saturday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fee for members is $12 and for non-members is $16.

An adult coed volleyball league will begin with an organizational meeting Feb. 16 at 7 p.m. at Park Center Y. A power volleyball league, the program will begin sessions on Feb. 26 and last through April 16. Fees are $35 a team.

A western dance class for beginners only will help participants stay in shape while learning how to dance and have fun. The class meets Thursday nights from 7:30 to 8:30 and beginning Feb. 26 and lasting through March 19. Members' fee is $7.50, while non-members can participate for $15.

For further information on these Y programs, contact Park Center Y at 682-0533, or Washington Y at 682-6294.

Rhodes appointed chairman

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State Rep. Leroy J. Wieting, D-Portland, chairman of the Texas Coastal and Marine Council, said Tuesday that George Fred Rhodes, Port Lavaca, would be chairman of the executive committee.

Others appointed to the executive committee were George Hawn, Corpus Christi; Rep. E. Douglas McLeod, D-Galveston; Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, and Dr. Charles P. Turco, Beaumont.

Former Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso, the first woman in U.S. history to be elected governor without following her husband into office, died Thursday night of complications due to cancer. She was 61. (AP Laserphoto)

Grasso loses battle with cancer

By LISE STONE
Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Ella Grasso won national attention and the admiration of feminists when she became the first woman ever elected governor of a state in her own right, but to her it was nothing special.

"All my friends in the women's movement get angry at me for saying this, but I never thought that being a woman gave me any special political problems," she once said.

Mrs. Grasso, who resigned in December after six years in office because she was bedridden by cancer, died Thursday of cardiac arrest caused by multiple organ failure, a Hartford Hospital spokesman said.

She was 61.

Flags in Connecticut were flying at half-staff today and a full state funeral was set for noon Monday at St. Joseph's Cathedral. She will lie in state at the Capitol from 11 a.m. Sunday until 11 a.m. Monday.

Mrs. Grasso's husband, Thomas, and their children, James and Susane, were at her bedside when she was pronounced dead at 6:03 p.m. She had gone into a coma at 7 a.m. after several days in a semi-comatose state.

Mrs. Grasso's election as governor in 1974 made her the first woman to be elected a governor who was not the wife or widow of a governor.

"It was only when my friends from the foreign press, in New York, kept coming here and writing about me as a woman candidate that I began to think I was doing something unusual," she said during her first term.

One of her mentors, former President Jimmy Carter, said in a statement from Atlanta that Mrs. Grasso "represented all that is good and promising about politics and public service.

"As one of the most prominent women in this country, she had great strength, skill, and, when required, toughness," he said.

Cancer was discovered in her uterus in April. Last fall, doctors determined that the cancer had spread to her liver and intestines. She was operated on twice and received chemotherapy.

The illness restricted her activities, and she turned over much of her work to Lt. Gov. Bill O'Neill, who became governor when she resigned effective Dec. 31.

"My heart goes out to all the governor's family and friends around the state. My own personal heart is breaking," O'Neill said.

Mrs. Grasso struck a frugal image during her 1½ terms as governor. One of her first actions was to sell the state plane, and her casual, homey manner of dressing became a trademark around the Capitol.

As promised, the state did not enact an income tax during her tenure.

She strengthened the Department of Public Utilities Control and championed a freedom-of-information law that gave journalists and the public increased access to information about government.

She also created a task force on government organization which led to the consolidation of 200 state agencies and departments into two dozen umbrella agencies.

Mrs. Grasso drew the opposition of many feminists when she prohibited the state financing of abortions under Medicaid.

"I do not wish to be a party to killing the children of the poor," she said.

Feminist Betty Friedan praised her, however.

"She was one of the few women who had risen to leadership and responsibility. I didn't agree with her on all things and she may or may not have called herself a feminist, but that doesn't matter. She was good in many things, she showed great leadership."

"Ella," as she once proudly told reporters her constituents called her, was born May 10, 1919, in the mill town of Windsor Locks. Her parents, James and Maria Tambussi, were Italian immigrants and her father could barely speak English. But Ella Tambussi went on to win a scholarship to Mount Holyoke College and graduate magna cum laude and as a Phi Beta Kappa.

Ten years after her marriage to Thomas Grasso in 1942, Mrs. Grasso set out on her first campaign, for the Democratic state House of Representatives seat from Windsor Locks. She never lost a political race.

Neutron bomb statement prompts Haig message

By KEVIN M. COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stung by hostile reaction from U.S. allies, the Reagan administration is hastily retreating from a suggestion by its own defense secretary that the United States "very probably" will want to deploy the neutron weapon in Western Europe.

State Department officials said Thursday night they were trying to put out "a brushfire" caused by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger's remarks earlier this week.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, blamed the allies' concern on what they called incomplete news accounts of Weinberger's statement.

They said the Reagan administration is providing the allies with a full text of the defense chief's comments Tuesday at his first Pentagon news conference.

State Department spokesman William Dyess emphasized Thursday there has been no change in U.S. policy and no zecision has been made on whether to revive the plan shelved by former President Carter to deploy the neutron warhead.

Any such decision would be made only after close consultation with U.S. allies, Dyess said.

The New York Times reported in today's editions, meanwhile, that Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. sent the allies a message on Wednesday, advising them to disregard Weinberger's comments.

Weinberger, responding to reporters' questions, said: "I think that the opportunity that this weapon gives to strengthen tactical nuclear forces is one that we very probably would want to make use of.

"Obviously, with the locations involved and other relationships involved, we certainly would want to consult with all of our allies and friends and try to persuade them that we have a greater degree of constancy this time," he said.

After Weinberger's statement, West German government officials suggested publicly they were no longer willing as they were two years ago to allow deployment of the weapon there.

Swedish Foreign Minister Ola Ullsten on Thursday called Weinberger's comments "extremely disturbing."

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said her government had not been asked to look at any new U.S. proposal and it was "very unlikely" the neutron warhead would have to be based on British soil.

And the representatives of the Dutch parliament's two largest political parties signed a statement this week opposing deployment of the neutron weapon anywhere in Europe.

Weinberger's remarks, coming after he'd been on the job for two weeks, also drew strong reaction from the Soviet Union, which said the possibility of reviving the proposal "cannot but cause alarm."

The neutron warhead has become controversial because of its ability to kill human beings while leaving surrounding buildings intact. Carter deferred development of the weapon in 1978 and then said some of its key elements should be developed by the Energy Department in case the project ever went forward.

Jordan's charge d'affaires kidnapped in Beirut battle

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A band of men firing automatic weapons stormed a Beirut apartment house today and snatched Jordan's charge d'affaires from his bed after killing his Jordanian bodyguard and a Lebanese bystander and wounding a Lebanese police guard, police said.

A police spokesman said Hisham Muhaissen and his house maid were kidnapped at gunpoint from his apartment in the Jinah district, a luxury residential neighborhood in predominantly Moslem West Beirut.

Reports said the gunmen escaped in four cars, firing into the air to head off pursuers.

It was not immediately known who carried out the kidnapping or what was the motive.

Police said they they did not know whether it was related to the Persian Gulf war between Iran and Iraq, which has prompted numerous clashes between pro-Iranian and pro-Iraqi factions in the Lebanese capital.

Jordan's King Hussein is the staunchest Arab supporter of Iraq in its 138-day-old war with Iran. He also is locked in a cold war with neighboring Syria, which claims Jordan supports the outlawed Moslem Brotherhood in its two-year terror campaign against Syrian President Hafez Assad's regime.

The Lebanese police spokesman also said security measures were stepped up around the French Embassy in Beirut following anonymous threats of attacks to protest the recent delivery of French-made Mirage F-1 jet fighters to Iraq.

He said an increased number of Lebanese policemen were posted outside the embassy at Rue Clemenceau and that French marine guards were reinforced inside the compound.

The spokesman declined to elaborate on the threats and embassy spokesmen refused comment.

Since the Persian Gulf war broke out on Sept. 22, the French, American, and Saudi Arabian embassies have been hit by rocket or bomb attacks claimed by groups supporting Iran in the war against Iraq.

Lebanon's Shiite Moslem community, the largest single sect among this Mediterranean nation's 3 million inhabitants, is generally aligned with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic revolution in Iran. In addition there are more than 30 private leftist armies and Palestinian guerrilla groups based in the Lebanese capital.

Reagan gets lesson in major league political negotiating

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats have given President Reagan a little lesson on how major league politics can be a lot like show biz: it's all in the timing.

What gave them the chance was a Republican fund-raising letter that went out over Reagan's signature the day after he was sworn in as president.

The letter's message — that ousting Democrats from the House was the party's No. 1 priority — was hardly a shocking secret.

But the timing, coming as Reagan was making well-publicized attempts to curry the favor of Democratic leaders, was not exactly propitious.

And the resulting Democratic hoopla, tongue-in-cheek though it may be, brought a quick public apology from the White House and may have given the new president a better understanding of what House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill meant in his earlier admonition to Reagan that "you're in the big leagues now."

The letter, sent by the National Republican Congressional Committee and signed with a facsimile of Reagan's signature, notes the Senate is now in Republican hands but the House "is still controlled by a liberal Democratic majority."

"That is why I consider winning Republican control of the House in the next election to be our party's No. 1 priority," the letter says.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said he was told by a White House staffer that Reagan was "aghast" at the letter, which is dated Jan. 21, the day after he took office.

Wright quoted Max Friedersdorf, Reagan's chief congressional liaison officer, as telling him Reagan "did not intend anything like this."

FBI files cast doubt on Lindbergh kidnap case

FLEMINGTON, N.J. (AP) — Information from FBI files casts doubt on the testimony of several key witnesses in the 1935 trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted and executed in the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby, according to published reports.

The information was obtained under the federal Freedom of Information Act and published jointly in Thursday's editions of the Hunterdon County Democrat and the New Brunswick Home News.

It contradicts testimony by the prosecution's fingerprint expert and handwriting analysts — as well as the identification of Hauptmann's voice by the victim's father, aviation hero Col. Charles Lindbergh, the newspapers reported.

The files also raise questions about statements by the go-between in ransom negotiations and the identification of Hauptmann by a taxicab driver who carried a ransom message, the newspapers said.

The kidnapping case was one of the most famous in American court history. On March 1, 1932, 19-month-old Charles Lindberg Jr. disappeared from his second-story bedroom at the Lindberghs' Hopewell, N.J., home.

Lindbergh and hundreds of policemen across the country searched for the baby until May 12, when a workman stumbled over the body in a shallow grave just five miles from the Lindbergh home.

Two years later, on Sept. 14, 1934, police arrested Hauptmann, a 35-year-old Bronx carpenter. The day after his arrest, police found $15,000 of the $50,000 ransom Lindbergh had paid in a shoebox in Hauptmann's garage.

Hauptmann had said the money had been given to him years earlier by a friend and business partner leaving for Germany.

After a highly publicized five-week trial, based almost entirely on circumstantial evidence, Hauptmann was convicted of murder. He protested his innocence until his electrocution April 3, 1936.

Kidnapping was not made a federal offense until after what came to be called "The Lindbergh Case."

The FBI records were not used during the trial for reasons never made clear. The newspapers said material from the files clearly indicate hostility between state investigators and federal agents.

Copies of the FBI files were turned over to The Hunterdon County Democrat by two Philadelphia-area researchers, Thomas Kelly and his nephew, James Kelly, who filed the FOI request and who have been studying the Lindbergh case for almost 30 years.

Included in the materials are copies of investigatory reports, memos from field agents, copies of ransom notes and the ransom money, and other evidence used against Hauptmann, the newspapers said.

The FBI documents, the newspaper said, spell out these contradictions:

—FBI tests indicated there were fingerprints on ransom notes although the state's expert testified none existed.

—Handwriting experts did not positively identify Hauptmann as the man who penned the ransom notes until they learned that money had been found in Hauptmann's garage, according to an agent's memo.

—A cab driver's "positive" identification of Hauptmann as the man who asked him to deliver a ransom note came 2½ years after the event and after a "pep talk" by a police inspector.

—The go-between who handed over the ransom money in a New York City cemetery told FBI agents after Hauptmann's arrest that Hauptmann couldn't be the man he dealt with. But at the trial, he said Hauptmann was the man.

—Lindbergh's own identification of Hauptmann's voice was questionable because the famed aviator only heard Hauptmann speak two words from a distance of 50 feet, some 2½ years after hearing a voice from behind a hedge during a ransom drop-off April 2, 1932.

A memo from then-FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover raises doubts about Lindbergh's ability to positively identify the voice he heard at the ransom drop-off as that of Hauptmann, the newspaper said.

Larry Flynt sues Los Angeles police

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt has sued the Los Angeles Police Deparment for more than $3 million alleging that police broke into his mansion, invaded his privacy, physically abused his security guards and put him in fear of his life.

Flynt, shot by an unknown assailant in 1978 outside a rural Georgia courthouse while on trial on obscenity charges, filed the suit Thursday in federal court here.

In it, he claimed that police deprived him of his civil rights and intentionally and negligently inflicted emotional distress and damaged property.

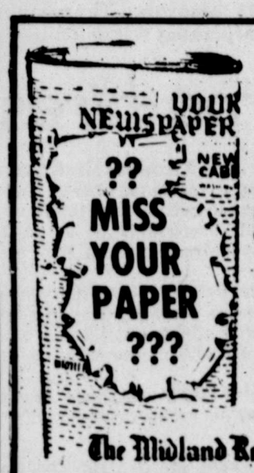

A police department spokesman said a special weapons unit was dispatched to Flynt's Bel-Air home last Oct. 14 because "we had information that led us to believe his life was in jeopardy."

The spokesman said the officers had a warrant, "so the information we acted on was sufficient to convince a judge there was a reason to believe his life was in danger."

But Flynt's complaint says police acted on information known by one of the officers involved to be false.

"The raid was conducted by officers carrying automatic weapons and wearing dark clothing not clearly identifiable as police uniforms," the suit said.

It alleged the officers then "battered in the front door" and "proceeded to threaten everybody in view with numerous rifles, shotguns and other firearms."

Photographer-skydiver drowns

LAKE ELSINORE, Calif. (AP) — A photographer-skydiver who was filming another parachutist for a TV news program apparently drowned after he fell in Lake Elsinore and became entangled in his lines, Riverside County authorities said.

A spokesman for KFMB-TV in San Diego said Mike Jenkins, 40, of Whittier, was filming a skydiver using a new type of parachute for a news feature show.

As Jenkins was falling Thursday, he apparently had problems opening his main parachute, said Riverside County sheriff's spokeswoman Lorri Baca. He opened the auxiliary parachute and was able to open the main chute moments later, she said.

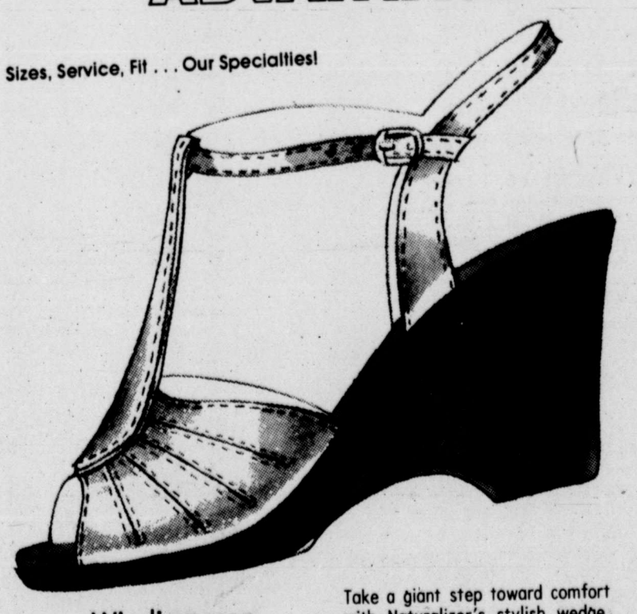

However, Jenkins then landed in the lake, about 65 miles southeast of Los Angeles, became entangled in the lines and apparently drowned, she said.

A spokesman for the television station said Jenkins was not wearing a floatation device.

The special features of the chute could not be determined immediately.

Police move the body of 14-year-old Lubie "Chuck" Geter, at left, after it was discovered Thursday on abandoned farmland in unincorporated Fulton County south of Atlanta. Geter is the 15th black youngster who has been found dead in the Atlanta area in the past 19 months. (AP Laserphoto)

15th child found slain in pine thicket southwest of Atlanta

By WILLIAM E. SCHULZ
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Young Lubie Geter hoped to make a little extra money selling car deodorizers at a shopping center on Jan. 2, the day he was last seen alive. Instead, he became the 15th victim in a string of child killings here.

The 14-year-old boy's nearly naked body was found Thursday in a pine thicket southwest of the city, about 10 miles from where he disappeared.

The cause of Geter's death could not be determined immediately, according to Fulton County Police Maj. Louis Graham. Other victims have been strangled, stabbed, beaten or shot.

Fifteen black children between the ages of 7 and 15 have been found dead in the Atlanta area since the body of Edward Hope Smith, 14, was found July 28, 1979. Two other children are missing.

None of the deaths or disappearances has been solved, despite months of work by a special 35-member police task force aided by numerous FBI agents.

Geter's body was found by Frank Potts, caretaker of the farmland where it was discovered. Potts said he was looking for illegal rabbit traps and found the body in a clearing about 40 to 60 feet from a road, "the main drag to Westwood High School," located about a mile away.

THE BODY WAS taken to the Fulton County Medical Examiner's Office, where Geter's parents made the identification.

Fulton County police called in the Atlanta task force, which has been investigating the cases.

Eleven of the bodies were found in the southwest part of Atlanta or the suburban areas just outside of the city. Four of the nine were found in the city of East Point. One was found on the southeast side, two on the northwest side and one about 20 miles east of the city.

All but one of the victims lived in Atlanta.

Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson has asked the federal government for help in solving the cases and has been told that Vice President George Bush will coordinate the federal effort to assist the city.

DEPUTY U.S. Attorney General Charles B. Renfrew told Jackson this week it has not been determined exactly what the federal government could do in the case, but he said Bush's involvement "shows it's being handled at the highest levels of government."

Jackson met last week with Renfrew and Ken Starr, counsel to Attorney General William French Smith, to ask for federal and state help in three areas: investigation; a crime prevention program to educate children and their parents; and mental health programs to reduce anxiety caused by the cases.

Tower to travel abroad on 'fact-finding mission'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, the new chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, is scheduled to travel to nine European and Middle Eastern countries on a 17-day tour that starts today.

Aides described the Texas Republican's trip as a "fact-finding mission" to learn about NATO defense capabilities and Middle Eastern security and stability.

The itinerary called for stops in the United Kingdom, Greece, Turkey, Israel, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Oman, Tunisia and West Germany.

Two staff members from the armed services committee and one military escort were scheduled to accompany the senator.

Jane Byrne hires aide to promote image

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Jane Byrne has hired a $35,000-a-year etiquette aide to coordinate dress requirements and party arrangements as Chicago seeks to become an "international city."

Critics charge the hiring of Noreen McBride is a waste of funds, but the mayor's office says Mrs. Byrne is hot "padding the payroll."

"We're becoming more involved in international events where protocol is required," said press secretary Ray McCarthy.

Mrs. Byrne hopes the "international city" image will polish up Chicago's image, still stained with memories of the days of Al Capone.

She has launched plans for a 1982 International Music Festival, but her attempt to bring some top racing drivers here for a Fourth of July race fell flat.

Mrs. McBride, a widow, said she has run the North Shore Etiquette School for six years and served as a consultant to private industry.

In naming her an administrative assistant Wednesday, the mayor said Mrs. McBride, who assumes her duties Monday, "... will help coordinate the proper etiquette, dress requirements and seating arrangements at formal city ceremonies and dinners."

One of Mrs. McBride's first assignments will be to arrange a formal dinner for Mrs. Jehan Sadat, wife of the president of Egypt, when she visits March 29.

The mayor has two other administrative aides, salaried at $30,000 each, also with responsibilities in hosting foreign dignitaries.

Alderman Martin Oberman, an outspoken critic of the mayor, said Mrs. McBride "may be the most graceful lady in the world, but the position is unnecessary."

"It's a complete waste of money," he said.

Libby Lamb, a former classmate of Kathy Byrne, the mayor's daughter, arranges lunches and dinners for such dignitaries. Rosalie Clark, wife of state Supreme Court Justice William Clark, heads the "international desk."

The mayor's chief of special events, at a $45,000 salary, is Karen Conner, wife of one of the mayor's paid political advisers.

Asked why she wasn't handling such duties, she said: "I don't do luncheons and dinners. I only do the big events."

Blacks said more likely to ignore cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Black Americans may be more likely than whites to ignore the early symptoms of cancer and neglect treatment, a new survey by the American Cancer Society says.

The survey, conducted by a black-run opinion research firm, indicated that only 30 percent of blacks survive five years after their cancer is diagnosed, compared with 41 percent of whites. Doctors believe early diagnosis improves the chances for survival.

The survey was released Thursday as the society announced a new cancer education program aimed at members of minority groups.

Dr. LaSalle Leffall Jr., chief of surgery at Howard University in Washington and a former president of the society, said the survey helps explain why blacks tend to seek treatment for cancer later than whites, a major factor in the high cancer death rate among blacks.

Cancer society officials said they believed the differences had to do with economic and social factors rather than race since blacks with incomes above $15,000 a year had much the same attitudes and beliefs as whites.

"When people are concerned with other priorities, such as housing, food and avoidance of crime, they will put asymptomatic examinations far down the list," said Dr. Harold P. Freeman, director of surgery at Harlem Hospital in New York.

The survey was conducted by Evaxx Inc. and was based on hour-long interviews with 750 blacks in the 20 major American cities that contain 85 percent of the black population.

Figures for whites were drawn from a similar national survey three years ago in which 95 percent of those interviewed were white.

The survey said that only 25 percent of black people, compared with 54 percent of whites, could correctly identify at least five of the society's seven warning signals of cancer: a lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere, unusual bleeding, unhealing sores, persistent cough, persistent indigestion or difficulty swallowing, a change in bowel or bladder habits, a change in a wart or mole.

In each case, blacks were less likely to see a doctor: only 40 percent of blacks would seek medical advice for a changing mole, for example, compared to 64 percent of whites.

Fifty-one percent of blacks "believe incorrectly that surgery can expose cancer to the air and cause it to spread," said John Cardwell, president of Evaxx. Leffall said this myth maybe based on cases when surgery is done in a late-stage cancer patient, where the cancer has already spread but is not detected until after surgery.

In general, blacks are more pessimistic than whites about the outcome of cancer, the survey said. Only 77 percent, as compared with 90 percent of whites, said they believed there was a "good chance" of a cure after early diagnosis. And 22 percent of blacks, as compared with 9 percent of whites, said they thought there was little if any chance of surviving.

Repair work on buses gives Grumman Corp. record tax write-off

BETHPAG, N.Y. (AP) — Structural failurs in its Flxible-870 buses dealt setbacksto mass transitin several major cities but prouced a $7 million tax write-off for the Grumman Corp., which rported sharply igher earnings for the last three months of 198 and the entireyear.

The company said the $7million was spent to repair theweak understructure of its modern buses, designed by the aerospce manufacturerto meet federalrequiremnts of lighter weight and higher mileage. The buses were put into service last year in 27 municipalities aross the nation.

Since md-December, Flxible fleets havebeen removed from service in New York, New Haven, Conn., Chicago and Los Angeles because of metl failure in th A-framessupporting the rear ends and in trunnions tyingthe frames to amassive fuel tank.

Grummansaid Thursday it earned a recor $30.67 million, or $2.35 a share, last year, up from $19.57 million, or $206 a share, in 1979. Sales incrased to $1.759 billion from $1.493 billion a year earlier.

For the fourth quarter, the company said profits rose to $10.22 million, or 78 cents a share from $7.08 million, or 66 cents a share, in the same 1979 period. Sales climbed to $497.34 million from $428.26 million in the year-earlier quarter.

Production of Flxible-870 buses by the Grumman Flxible Division at its plant in Delaware, Ohio, has been slowed to produce stronger frame elements, the company said.

The write-off covers "all 2,600 buses in 27 municipalities," said Steve Kerekes, manager of press and investor relations for the company, which is based in Bethpage, N.Y.

Second opinion group offers advice to patients considering surgery

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
Hearst Special News Service

NEW YORK — Five days before Christmas, a woman telephoned the Park Avenue offices of The Hecht Group: Second Surgical Opinions.

She began to spill out her story. Her seven-month-old baby had been born with an orthopedic problem, and now a pediatrician said he must have shoulder surgery.

The sympathetic operator quickly summoned The Group's founder — "Mary Ellen, talk to this lady. There are tears in her voice!"

Dr. Mary Ellen Hecht, a vibrant, verbal 51-year-old orthopedic surgeon, instantly picked up the phone. And, as she recalled this week, "This poor woman didn't understand the technicalities of the child's problem, but of course she was troubled at the prospect of surgery. Finally she mentioned 'wing scapula' — that's an involvement of the shoulder girdle. I thought that was odd, because you don't usually operate on that condition at such an early age. It tends to improve with growth. I said, 'Don't commit yourself until we see your baby.'"

"I'm on Medicaid," the woman said tentatively.

"Come on in," Hecht replied. The fee is $175 for examination and consultation by The Hecht Group, the first and thus far, the only consortium of surgical specialists offering second opinions before elective surgery. "But I'd hate to tell you how many exceptions we make."

Two days before Christmas, Pediatric Orthopedic Surgeon Richard Ulin examined the child and told the mother, "I'm delighted to tell you your child doesn't need surgery." It was, remembers Dr. Hecht, "one of those lovely, gratifying moments in life. As that woman said, 'the best Christmas present imaginable'."

It was also a relatively rare moment. Only 15 percent of The Group's patients are given absolute "no-go" second opinions on recommended surgical procedures. An equal percentage, however, are advised to postpone their operations until other avenues of relief or cure are explored. Example:

"A lady in her late 70s came to us, in pain and with a dreadfully deteriorated hip. Her doctor had proposed a total hip replacement and, God knows, anyone looking only at her x-rays — and not at her — would have proposed the same thing," says Hecht. "But we sat down together, and we talked. Turns out she had diabetes, had suffered two coronaries. She lived in an apartment with her daughter, and said she could manage in that environment very well. She could live with that. Whether she could live through the surgery was, in my mind, very questionable." Hecht advised treatment for the pain and inflammation. But no surgery. "The lady's doctor was going strictly by the book, without considering the whole person. We call it 'cook-booking,' and it's a dumb, gross way to commit surgery."

Government and health-insurance companies have recently urged paients to seek second opinions, after studies concluded that some 30 percent of surgical procedures were unnecessary. The operations most suspect, Hecht finds, are hysterectomies, children's tonsillectomies, gall bladder and hernia, vein stripping and back and knee surgery. "Of course, there is some capricious surgery," she says. But what the second-opinion movement has shown even more clearly is that surgeons often prescribe the knife without considering "the whole person, the lifestyles, the sensitivities, the other options."

Some of these doctors may be incompetent, some greedy, "but most just don't take time, or have the personality — they don't teach verbal skills in med school — to understand and communicate with patients."

Her group is comprised of 30 active surgeons covering 18 medical specialties, chosen not only for their expertise but their ability to educate, reassure and advise patients. The majority of second opinions, after all, are not contradictory. "The thrust of our group is not to say 'no' to surgery — unfortunately, that's not usually possible. The objective is to sympathetically prepare patients for what's ahead. I don't care what age or sex a person is, being told he faces surgery is like a kick in the gut. He wants to question it, but doesn't want to offend the guy who wields the knife. So what he needs most is objectivity and warmth and that's what we stand for."

Because of the "warmth," patients constantly ask their consultants to perform the required surgery, but that is not permitted. "Rule one," says Hecht, "is never to operate on other surgeons' patients — nor refer them away. There is too much 'pelvic piracy' already," she chuckles, "and it robs the objectivity." Admitting her group's $175 is costly for anyone without major medical coverage, Hecht points to the cost of directing the first second-opinion organization in the land. She still practices surgery at Mt. Sinai Hospital.

"I keep my hand in, if you'll excuse the pun," to keep The Group going...

AT WIT'S END

Parents need revolving door

By ERMA BOMBECK

All of you know there is no one in this wide world who has more affection for her children than I do.

I also have affection for Miss Piggy, but I don't want to pick up her wet towels off the bed for the next 30 years.

Parents of grown children tell me their children don't need door keys anymore . . . they need a revolving door. They're in when they're out of work, out of money, out of socks, out of food and in debt.

They're out when they're in love, in the bucks, in transit, in school and have outgrown their need for milk.

When I launched all my children I rewarded myself with a celery green carpet in the spare bedroom. It was my Olympic Gold Medal, my Oscar, my Emmy, my Reader's Digest Sweepstakes. I had done it and this was my reward.

Three months later, one of my children moved back with, among other things, a set of drums that leaked oil. My celery green carpet looked like a leftover.

When he left we had it cleaned and began again. The next prodigal son brought a dog that had a sofa wish, a car that was not garage trained and leaked oil all over it when it stopped and used towels like they were nose tissue that popped up automatically in a box to be disposed of.

The next one to return let me use my own phone but kept hours like a fireman.

One night my husband and I sat down and tried to figure out what the attraction of living at home is — other than free laundry, free rent, free toiletries, security, love, a permanent address for mail, unlimited storage, financing and loans, convention rooms for private parties and entertaining, and guest privileges. I snapped my fingers. "I've got it! It's the refrigerator that beckons and calls them home. Without it, nothing else would keep them here."

We decided to stop treating the kids as guests and go back to eating the way we wanted to eat. We stocked the refrigerator with cottage cheese, fresh green vegetables, plain yogurt, unsalted butter and blue milk. We bought bran cereal, wheat germ, dietary fruit and did away with the sugar bowl.

As the last one left we heard him mumble, "I'm going anywhere, just so long as they don't refrigerate their bread!"

We haven't seen them since.

Removing stain from wood

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I feel very frustrated because I just finished removing the varnish finish from an old bedroom bureau, only to find that there are traces of reddish stain in the wood. I have seen questions and answers about that kind of problem in the past, but I guess I just didn't pay too much attention to the replies because I had never run into that trouble before. I used a remover I bought in a hardware store. It came in a can and I used it according to directions. What did I do wrong?

A.— Nothing. When stain is deeply embedded in wood, it cannot be eliminated with a varnish remover. What you have to do now is to bleach the wood. The type that comes in two parts is very effective. Ask your hardware or paint dealer to recommend the bleach you require after explaining what your particular problem is. Follow the instructions carefully, especially about the manner in which the wood should be wiped or rinsed after the stain has been removed. This bleach should produce a whitish, uniform surface. If it doesn't do so the first time, give the wood a second application. When you are satisfied with the result, apply a thin coat of sealer. Allow it to dry thoroughly, then go ahead with the refinishing of the bureau.

Q.— We are getting new carpeting in our living room soon. In our former house, we had trouble once in a while when our dog forgot himself and left a liquid spot on our rug. We never were quite sure how to remove such stains. If it happens again, what's the best way to handle it?

A.— Clean the soiled area as quickly as possible with a carpet shampoo. Next, rub with some white vinegar diluted with water. It's a help, too, to apply an air freshner, used lightly, to the general area.

Hotel to use body heat

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A hotel here will use body heat to make its guests more comfortable.

The 505-room Claridge Hotel and Casino, slated to open this spring, will use a heat-recovery system to transfer excess heat generated by people, lights, equipment and the restaurant kitchens to less active areas of the complex as needed, says V. R. McCloskey of Borg-Warner, manufacturer of the system.

The system will supply 100 percent of the winter heat and about 22 percent of the summer air conditioning needed in the hotel's public areas.

Steps to prevent depression

By The Associated Press

Depression is an illness, but there is no simple explanation for its causes and no vaccine you can take to beat it. Nevertheless, experts say, you can take precautions to try to prevent it.

Approach depression as you would the flu season. You know the flu's around, so you do what you can to ward it off — you get a flu shot, stay warm, dry, well-rested. Then you hope for the best.

"We've committed a lot of research funding to identifying risk factors in depression and coming up with strategies to prevent episodes," said psychiatrist Robert Hirschfeld, chief of the National Institute for Mental Health Center for the Study of Affective Disorders.

The research data isn't in yet, so there are no pat answers. But Hirschfeld offers some fundamental tips.

You may be especally vulnerable to depression:

—If you've just experienced a personal loss — the death of someone you love, a divorce, the departure of children for college.

—If you live a stressful life — especially if you're a woman, unemployed, with small children and no one to confide in.

—If anyone in your family — parents, grandparents, aunts or uncles — was once diagnosed as depressed.

So, say your mother was once depressed and you just lost your job. You're vulnerable to depression. What can you do about it?

"Talk to somebody," said Hirschfeld. "You need people close who care, so you know somebody cares about you. Have people around and talk to them about it. Try to deal with it."

A passing case of the blues is one thing — and normal enough when life gets rough — but the blues can slide into depression. When they do, it's imperative to get professional help.

So watch for symptoms of depression. The key symptom is a feeling of deep, pervasive sadness or unhappiness that clings for longer than two weeks. Other typical symptoms are loss of appetite and insomnia.

One thing is sure, said Hirschfeld: If you seek professional help as soon as you recognize depression in yourself, then the episode won't be as debilitating or as enduring as it would be if you ignored it and tried to ride it out alone.

Women bankers

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — American women are having increasingly successful careers in banking, according to the International Labor Organization.

The ILO report indicates that in the United States more than 30 percent of all bank officials and managers are now women.

DEAR ABBY

Gloomy aunt thinks world is no place for children

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My great-niece is pregnant with her first child. She is ecstatic, her husband is ecstatic and her parents are ecstatic. But I am NOT ecstatic.

Tell me, how many babies are born blind every year? How many babies are born deaf, retarded, or with some other birth defect? And how many die of cancer in childhood?

And supposing a child is normal at birth, how many grow up to be teenage dope addicts? And, Abby, what is our present prison population? — AUNT LUCILLE

DEAR AUNT LUCILLE: The statistics are not relevant. Most children are born healthy and normal. But are those who are born less than perfect, less lovable? And is their worth diminished?

Your problem is far more serious than the possibility of another imperfect child. It's your penchant for wallowing in gloom and doom.

Please get professional help, Auntie. If not for your sake, for the sake of those around you. You need to develop a more positive and hopeful outlook.

DEAR ABBY: There used to be a law (at least I heard there was) stating that if you have lost one son in war and have only one remaining son, he is exempted from being drafted. Also, if you have only one and his father was killed in war, the son doesn't have to go.

My son is about to register for the draft, and I would like to know if this is true because his father was killed in battle. Thank you. — TIRED OF WARS

DEAR TIRED: There is no law at the present time to "draft" anyone; there is only a law stating that those born in 1960 and 1961 must REGISTER — in order to determine how many are available in that age group.

And until there is actual drafting, there are no laws stating who is exempt and who isn't.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to whether one should tell a friend that her husband is cheating.

When I was 20 (and still a virgin), I married a man who had me completely fooled. In the 3 1/2 years that we were married, he slept with everyone he could get his hands on, including his underage cousin! No one wanted to tell me. I was, indeed, the last to know.

I will be eternally grateful to the friend who finally gathered the courage to tell me what everyone who lived in our apartment building knew. And all the while I had been beating my brains out trying to make a marriage work with a husband who had been lying and cheating from the day we were married.

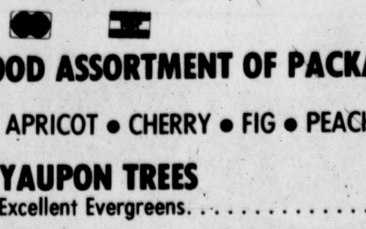

Today I am divorced and 1,000 times happier. And I'm still young enough to meet someone decent and have a good life. — GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: Not all wives are grateful. How's this for a new twist?

Six Jaycee-Ettes honored for projects

Six Jaycee-Ettes were recently honored for their club projects.

For their work on the Yellow Ribbon Day project, Connie Campbell, chairman of the project and Karran Martin, co-chairman, were announced as Jaycee-Ettes of the month for October.

The two women were also invoved in six fund raising, civic and support projects during the quarter, and acted as committee leaders for the Arts and Crafts in November. For these efforts and their Yellow Ribbon Day project, they were announced as Jaycee-Ettes of the quarter for over one year members.

Karen Kalisek, chairperson of the 8th Annual Arts and Crafts Fair, was awarded Jaycee-Ette of the month for November. The fair is the chapter's biggest project and the funds are used for the chapter's yearly operating budget and for all civic projects.

For being chairman of the MerriBelles, a fund-raising project, Grace Burfeind was named Jaycee-Ette of the month for December. The funds will be sent to Jaycee Campus, a college campus in Gonzales, supported by Texas Jaycees for parapalegic and quadraplegic students.

Leah Lambert and Vicki Rymal tied for Jaycee-Ettes of the quarter for under one year for their roles in various activities. Ms. Lambert worked in six Jaycee support projects, acting as chairperson for four of them, and helped with one civic project. She also attended the Regional Convention as a member of less than 60 days, and walked away with three first place awards and four second place awards in written and speaking competitions.

Ms. Rymal worked in seven Jaycee support projects, acting as chairperson of the football popcorn project. She also participated in two chapter fund-raising projects and in the Yellow Ribbon Day project.

Midland Jaycee-Ettes is open to all women ages 18 to 36. Next meeting is at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Flame Room at Pioneer Natural Gas Co., 511 W. Missouri.

How to live longer, healthier

To live a longer, healthier life, here's what leading medical researchers recommend in a current Family Circle magazine, "Here's To Your Health":

Keep socially active. After studying the ages and socialization habits of 7,000 people, Dr. Lisa Berkman, of the University of California at Berkeley, concluded that people who take an active role in socializing are more likely to live longer. Those who stay at home are more apt to be overweight and to drink and smoke excessively, says Family Circle.

Reduce two emotional aging factors, loneliness and repressed anger, and you can add up to 15 years to your life. So says Dr. Samuel Silverman associate clinical professor of psychiatry at Harvard University.

Make sure you get sufficient protein. "Protein deficiency after 50," says longevity researcher Dr. Lillian Troll in the magazine, can cause weight loss, fatigue and premature old age, as the body responds by consuming its protein reserves and loses valuable muscle." One-third of the older men and women surveyed in her University of Wisconsin nutritional study were found to have protein deficiencies.

Keeping warm is essential as we age. "Many older people lose the ability to sense cold," says Nicholas Rango of Columbia University, "and become victims of accidental hypotermia because the body's mechanism for conserving heat works less efficiently with the passing years."

Swim for your life. "Swimming is the closest thing we have to an anti-aging pill," notes Dr. Paul Hutinger of Western Illinois University. By regularly training older swimmers, Dr. Hutinger helped them develop the physical abilities of untrained persons 20 to 30 years younger, says the article.

Other health experts advise running. "Recent studies have shown that dedicated runners in their 50s are physically superior to sedentary men in their 20s," says science writer George Leonard.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Gifts for special occasions

DEAR HELOISE:

With Christmas just a memory, and all the exchanges and refunds made, we begin to wonder what we'll buy our loved ones for the other special occasions throughout the year.

Children are fairly easy to buy for — they leave plenty of clues around — but when it comes to our elderly parents and grandparents, they seem to already have most of the "necessities of life" after 30 or so years of housekeeping.

A few years back, at Christmas time, I came up with an idea that would work well for any gift-giving occasion. It made an appropriate gift for my elderly mother who lives alone — one she was able to appreciate and enjoy the whole year through.

My particular gift was a certificate for a year's subscription to the "Surprise of the Month Club."

I wrote up my own fun rules and regulations for a member to be able to participate in this club, two of which were: She must open the gift herself and the membership was non-transferable.

The certificate was signed by me, and stated that around the 10th of each month she would receive a package in the mail containing a "surprise" just for her. Sometimes the package contained a book I thought she would enjoy or a kitchen gadget, a new dress, scarf, jigsaw puzzle, or anything that seemed different or amusing.

Each year she receives a renewal certificate.

The gifts can be only small, dollar items if that's all your budget will allow, but it's the fun the recipient gets when a package arrives each month that's the real value of the gift.

Sometimes the mailman even waits while Mom opens her package. — Barbara Ford

+ + +

What a sweet way to brighten someone's day. Can't you just see the smiles around the 10th of the month (especially after bill paying time)! Thanks for sharing your love. — Heloise

SOAP SAVER

Dear Heloise: When my children were tots and managed to drop the soap bar into the water — there to let it melt — I would cut the bar in half.

Now that they've grown, it still seems a thrifty way to make that disappearing bar last a little longer. — Mrs. David Lippman

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: Our 8-year-old granddaughter, who loves to come and help me wash dishes and do other kitchen duties, said yesterday:

"Never fear — nylon net is always here!" — Mrs. George Q.

P.S. I love your column and have learned so much from it. I DO use nylon net all the time for many things and, of course, she uses it and loves it too!

+ + +

And I love both of you! — Heloise

BATHTUB BLUES

Dear Heloise: Cleaning the bathtub is one of my least favorite chores, but I make it a little easier on the old back by using a child's mop.

I spray on my cleaner, then swish around the wet mop. A quick rinse leaves the old tub sparkling.

It's so much easier for us older citizens and, believe it or not, children will even use it — boys too! — Maye Camp

CRAFTY IDEA

Dear Heloise: Clip ideas for sewing, knitting, and various crafts from different magazines and newspapers, then glue them over the advertisements in your favorite instruction books. — Dixie Haase

+ + +

Before the New Year grows old, send Heloise your favorite household hint by writing her care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but she will use the best ideas received in her column.

Consumers save on tires

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Retreaded tires saved American consumers more than $3.5 billion in 1980, a tire-industry association reports.

The 50 million retreaded tires sold last year cost motorists $3 billion less than comparable new tires, the Tire Retread Information Bureau said. Retreading also conserved 400 million gallons of oil, at a savings of $260 million.

Tax savings totaled $276 million: $176 million in Federal excise taxes and $100 million in state sales taxes.

Couple taking slow raft down the Mississippi

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — Like modern-day Tom Sawyers, Glen and Cathy Alborn are floating down the Mississippi River on a homemade raft, searching for adventure.

Alborn, a jack-of-all-trades from New Zealand, and Mrs. Alborn, a dark-haired Californian, are headed for New Orleans and its Mardi Gras, set for the end of this month.

For the past few weeks, however, the Alborns have docked their 21-foot raft — consisting of welded barrels supporting a wooden deck and a $30 shack — below the levee at Vicksburg while they build up their cash supply and meet new friends.

"We've met a lot of people on this trip, but the people in Vicksburg are friendlier than any place we've encountered," Mrs. Alborn said as she prepared to saw up another limb for the raft's wood-fired heater and oven.

"We ran out of money in Greenville, like a lot of others rafting or canoeing down the river for Mardi Gras, and pulled in here Dec. 19," she said. "We liked it so well we've stayed."

The Alborns have taken jobs in Vicksburg but plan to resume their journey Feb. 14.

The couple drove from California to Wisconsin, where Alborn purchased the barrels and lumber and constructed the raft in about a month.

"We started the trip on the St. Croix River in Wisconsin and entered the Mississippi River at Prescott," Mrs. Alborn said. "We've been headed south ever since."

The raft had only a tarpaulin-covered lean-to when the trip started last September, and "by the time we got this far down, it was really cold and looked like it was going to snow, so we stopped," she said.

During the stopover in Vicksburg, Alborn constructed an enclosed living area, which includes bunks, a table and chairs and a heating and cooking system made from two five-gallon drums, she said.

The heater is fitted with copper tubing to warm water for washing dishes and the drum that serves as the oven has a hinged lid and a row of fire bricks.

"You can cook just about anything you want," she said. "We sometimes have our new friends in for a meal."

The Alborns, who formerly lived aboard a sailboat in California, plan to sell their raft once they reach New Orleans, and then return home.

Pauper laid to rest in Hillsboro

HILLSBORO, Texas (AP) — As a steady drizzle turned to rain, six people huddled around a freshly dug grave to bury a stranger.

The Rev. Paul Owens read from the 23rd Psalm, prayed over the remains and said, "God knows everything about this woman, her past, her family, her soul. Rest assured He has made no mistake in taking her, even if we cannot understand," as Eileen Mary Belliveou was lowered into the ground.

The way investigators recount the story, Hillsboro was her last stop, after drifting away from her home in Montreal, Canada. She reached Texas, traveling from Odessa to Conroe to Corpus Christi — cadging handouts and rides to keep her going.

Her wanderings came to an end at 3 a.m. Tuesday when she wandered into the middle of Interstate 35 and was hit by a truck as she was trying to flag a ride. The truck drove on.

She got a pauper's funeral Thursday.

The only attendants were Owens, pastor of the Walnut Street Baptist Church, Keith Edens, conducting only his second funeral since opening the Edens Funeral Home two months ago, Department of Public Safety trooper Rick Dobbins, who investigated the accident, Files Daniel, Edens' father-in-law and a gravedigger, Mrs. Edens and one of her friends who just came along.

When the body of Ms. Belliveou, 42, lay unclaimed until Thursday, Edens got county permission to conduct the pauper's funeral for her.

There were no flowers, no shelter from the weather, no tears.

Garwood found changed military life upon return

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — The United States' armed services have changed in the 16 years since Robert Garwood went to Vietnam. But the collaboration verdict against him shows the military brass still holds to the high standards of the code of conduct.

Garwood, 34, was found guilty Thursday of collaborating with his Vietnamese captors before he returned to this country in 1979, the last American POW to come home.

Other American prisoners who had seen Garwood in captivity had complained of his behavior, and he was immediately slapped with serious charges of desertion, collaboration and maltreatment of fellow prisoners.

But a lot had happened in America since the then-19-year-old Marine jeep driver from Adams, Ind., disappeared in 1965 south of Da Nang. The Vietnam war had been lost, and the military draft ended. For the first time, women were enrolled in the nation's service academies.

The military code of conduct, adopted in 1955 after many Americans captured in the Korean War succumbed to sophisticated brainwashing techniques, had undergone change.

This was because many Vietnam-era POWs had similarly been broken by their captors, making anti-war broadcasts, writing statements and cooperating in other ways.

Acknowledging that some pressures are irresistible, the rewritten code has a "bounce-back" provision that in effect allows a captured American to cooperate when the pressure is overwhelming but to resist when the pressure is lifted.

But even this provision is considered too stringent by some in an age when coercive persuasion and torture have become standard operating procedures from Hanoi to Tehran. And for young people joining the military, the commitment to high patriotic principle as laid out in the code of conduct seems out of date.

The final article of the code states: "I will never forget that I am an American fighting man, responsible for my actions, and dedicated to the principles which made my country free. I will trust in my God and the United States of America."

The military decided to drop charges against Americans accused of being in a "peace committee" in the Hanoi Hilton prison during the Vietnam War. That was expected to work in Garwood's favor.

But that decision had been made during the Vietnam hangover, and the U.S. Marine Corps pressed against Garwood even though he seemed an unlikely subject for retribution.

Star-crossed since birth, Garwood was dropped on his head and injured as a baby, deserted by his mother at age 4, often at odds with his father, recruited by the Marines from a home for wayward boys, accident-prone on duty on Okinawa, captured and tortured by the Vietnamese. He currently suffers from at least two and possibly three mental diseases, according to both government and defense psychiatrists.

Three prominent forensic psychiatrists testified at his court-martial that Garwood was pushed "100 percent" into insanity by the coercive persuasion of his captors. This resulted in regressive behavior that turned him into a "pet monkey" of his captors, or as another fellow POW testified, a "white Vietnamese" who giggled, squatted on the ground and ate insects and rats.

There has been an increasing feeling in some branches of the military that the first responsibility of a POW today is to keep himself alive. But the chief prosecutor, Maj. Werner Hellmer, alluded to this behavior as being dishonorable.

Meningitis kills four in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Anxious parents crowded into a south Houston elementary school where doctors swabbed throats, drew blood and administered antibiotics in an effort to find and stem the source of a deadly meningitis outbreak.

Four people in Houston have died of meningitis in the past month and 29 others have confirmed or suspected cases of the contagious disease, health officials say.

Six of the cases were from one sixth-grade classroom at a Dodson Elementary School where physicians tested families, teachers and 336 students Thursday.

"Through these tests, we hope to trace the source of the disease and then try to knock it out. We also hope to determine if others have come in contact with the disease," said Dr. Ralph D. Feigin, chairman of pediatrics at Baylor College of Medicine.

"This is unusual because six cases were clustered in one classroom, but this is not a panic situation by any means. It can be treated so there should be no cause for alarm," Feigin said.

Meningitis is an inflamation of the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord and is caused by bacteria or viruses. Meningococcal meningitis, the bacterial infection causing the Houston illnesses, is considered the most serious with a death rate of at least 50 percent.

Houston Independent School District health services director Pat Schell said health officials took throat cultures from about 1,300 people Thursday and blood samples from about 115 people.

Feigin said the preventative antibiotic treatment is the most effective method to hald the spread of meningitis, but he said health officials are not urging widespread preventative treatment.

However, he said Dodson teachers, students and their families should visit a doctor.

A 12-year-old boy, a 4-year-old boy, a 2-year-old girl and a 20-year-old woman have died of the disease here this year, said Shirlene Bridgewater of the Houston Health Department.

Ms. Bridgewater declined to identify the victims, but Feigin confirmed the 12-year-old was a student at Dodson.

A Baylor spokesman said there is a "possibility, but not a probability" that officials will close Dodson. The spokesman said several parents said they will keep their children out of the school for the time being.

A team from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta will meet with Baylor officials Friday to discuss methods of dealing with the outbreak. However, the spokesman said doctors probably would need another week to fully examine all the tests and information they have gathered.

Feigin said all the reported cases occurred within a few days of each other and that there is no evidence indicating the disease is spreading.

Colds, sore throats, muscle aches, fever and pink rash are common symptoms of meningitis, Feigin said.

The fever may rise as the bacterial infection progresses, often accompanied by intense headaches, stiff neck and nausea, he said.

Health officials estimated about 17 percent of the population carries meningococcal bacteria but are immune to the illness. Outbreaks of the deadly disease often occur after serious influenza problems, which struck the Houston area in the latter months of 1980, Feigin said.

He said the meningococcal bacteria causing the meningitis is a group C strain that is uncommon in the Houston area.

Feigin said doctors were testing to see if Houston residents are more susceptible to the infection because the strain is so uncommon in the area.

The last meningitis outbreak in Houston was in early 1978, when health officials reported 12 cases and four deaths.

A Baylor University doctor takes a throat culture from Marquttee Prince, 12, at Dodson Elementary School in Southeast Houston Thursday. Six cases of meningococcal meningitis or a similar infection, including four fatalities have been reported. (AP Laserphoto)

Sandiford convicted on manslaughter charge

HOUSTON (AP) — Kathleen Sandiford, who said she shot her husband five times in a frenzy of terror and from a will to live, faces a possible 20-year prison term following her conviction on a reduced charge of voluntary manslaugher.

Mrs. Sandiford, 41, had been charged with murder in the Jan. 29, 1980, slaying of her husband Dr. Frank Sandiford, a prominent Houston heart surgeon.

The jury deliberated six hours over two days before returning the verdict Thursday, then began hearing testimony in the punishment phase of the trial.

Defense attorneys called 26 character witnesses to the stand Thursday, many of them from the same wealthy River Oaks neighborhood where Sandiford lived and died.

Mrs. Sandiford displayed no emotion when the verdict was read, but embraced her son afterwards.

"I wanted them to find her guilty of something because I believed she is guilty of something," said prosecutor Mack Arnold, who asked that Mrs. Sandiford be denied probation. "They said voluntary manslaughter, and I can certainly live with that."

Defense attorneys portrayed Mrs. Sandiford as a battered wife who pumped five bullets from a .357-magnum into the man who beat and tormented her and was threatening her with a tennis racket when she fired.

Prosecutors argued the defense strategy wast to draw attention away from the crime by attacking the character of her husband.

Mrs. Sandiford testified her husband had beat her, forced her to have two abortions and, she is convinced, killed her mother by prescribing and administering poison.

"He was as talented at terrorizing and brutalizing as he was at wielding a scapel to save lives," said defense attorney Marian Rosen.

Sandiford moved to Houston from the East Coast to work with Dr. Michael DeBakey and a year later became an associate of another noted heart surgeon, Dr. Denton Cooley.

Mrs. Sandiford told jurors that her husband once plotted to advance his own career by killing Cooley and threatened to have a hired killer "take care of her" if she told Cooley about the plan.

Cooley testified that he believed Sandiford made the threat in an attempt to scare Mrs. Sandiford and not out of any genuine desire to destroy him.

"She assassinated him," said prosecutor Jessie Rodriguez. "Frank Sandiford was a human being, with human weaknesses. Certainly not a saint, but certainly not the demon they make him out to be."

Hospital besieged by calls after Jane Doe story printed

PEMBROKE PINES, Fla. (AP) — Hundreds of people, anxious to find their missing wives or daughters or mothers, have besieged police and a state hospital with calls since a story was published about "Jane Doe," a young woman with amnesia.

One man drove from Brunswick, Ga., arriving Thursday only to be shown a photograph of Jane Doe that didn't resemble his missing niece, authorities said.

"Starting Tuesday night, we've had about 400 calls," said Jackie Dale of South Florida State Hospital, where Jane Doe is living. "Everyone's certain this is their Jane."

A story distributed nationally Tuesday by The Associated Press told how a forest ranger discovered the woman — nude, covered with dirt and so weak she couldn't call for help — at Birch State Park in Fort Lauderdale last Sept. 19.

Apparently traumatized by the events that caused her to end up in the park, the woman has no memory about who she is, where she's from or who her relatives are.

Mrs. Dale said the hospital has kept staffers working overtime to screen calls, which are coming from all over the United States.

Hostage's Persian rugs replaced by ex-Iranian

TAMALPAIS VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Donald Hohman left seven Persian rugs behind when he was freed from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. But he's received a partial replacement — a gift from an Iranian-born rug dealer.

"I thought it was great," said the Sacramento man after picking up the gift this week from Taghi Rezaian's shop north of San Francisco. "I thought I'd never get another one. This is delightful. It's taken the edge off the bitterness."

Rezaian, an American citizen, had his shop vandalized and received threats during the 14 months the hostages were held. He offered rugs to all 52 hostages as a goodwill gesture shortly before they were released.

Hohman, 38, is an Army medical corpsman who was on temporary assignment in Tehran at the time the embassy was seized.

He picked up three rugs, two for himself and one for another former hostage Joseph Hall. The total value was about $2,600.

Rezaian greeted Hohman with a hug and told him, "I'm sorry about what happened."

"You had no control over this," Hohman replied. "I never felt it was the Iranian people's fault. It was just a certain faction."

He refused to discuss his captivity with reporters, because he has signed an exclusive contract for his story with a German magazine.

But he had written in a letter before his release: "The longer I am held, the more I've come to despise my captors and what harm they've done myself and all my family by taking my freedom without me ever having done an Iranian any harm."

Hohman, who bought seven rugs in Iran, was the first of the former hostages to pick up rugs at the store, but Rezaian said others had contacted him and thanked him for the offer.

Hinson admitted into hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jon C. Hinson, a Mississippi congressman accused of attempted sodomy, is undergoing hospital treatment "for professional care, counseling and treatment."

Hinson's administrative assistant said the second-term Republican checked into a Washington-area hospital Thursday shortly after pleading innocent to a reduced charge of attempted sodomy.

The assistant, Marshall Hanbury, said he was told by Hinson's physician the treatment was "necessitated by the onset of an episode which he termed a dissociative reaction attributed to a two-year period of intense emotional and physical exertion."

The name of the hospital was not disclosed.

Capitol Police arrested Hinson and another man Wednesday in a men's room in the Longworth House Office Building. Two other men were arrested in the same restroom earlier that day.

Hinson was silent Thursday at his arraignment in District of Columbia Superior Court. His plea was entered by his lawyer, Joseph Clancy. Trial was scheduled May 4.

Hinson, 38, who lives with his wife, Cynthia, in suburban Alexandria, Va., has not been available for comment since his arrest.

The congressman initially was held in lieu of $2,000 bond and was charged with committing oral sodomy, a felony carrying a maximum fine of $10,000 and septence of 10 years in prison. The U.S. attorney's office reduced the charge to a misdemeanor, which carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Percy H. Russell, deputy director of Superior Court operations for the U.S. attorney's office, said it was office policy that homosexual acts between consenting adults be prosecuted as misdemeanors.

Arrested with Hinson was Harold Moore, 28, of suburban Oxon Hill, Md., an assistant at the Library of Congress. Moore, who was ordered to stand trial with Hinson, also was released on personal recogizance Thursday after pleading innocent to attempted sodomy.

The two other men arrested Wednesday in the men's room were Jetton S. Douglas, 28, a lobbyist for Children's Rights Inc., and Kerry L. Jones, 36, a staff member of the Democratic Study Group, an organization of liberal congressmen.

Douglas and Jones, originally charged with oral and rectal sodomy, pleaded innocent Thursday to attempted sodomy charges and were released pending trial.

Hinson was re-elected last fall despite admissions during the campaign that he had visited two homosexual hangouts in the Washington area.

Rep. Jon C. Hinson, R-Miss., followed by newsmen, leaves the District of Columbia Superior Court Thrusday in Washington after being charged with attempted oral sodomy. Hinson pleaded innocent to the charge and was released on his personal recognizance. (AP Laserphoto)

New York man charged with killing two in 1952

GOSHEN, N.Y. (AP) — A 54-year-old man was indicted on murder charges after his sister, sworn to secrecy by her mother about the killings of two hunters 28 years ago, broke her vow and turned her brother in to police, authorities say.

State Police arrested John Louis Youmans, 54, of Newburgh, on Thursday after his indictment on two counts of first-degree murder and two of second-degree murder, state police and Orange County District Attorney Robert Meyer announced.

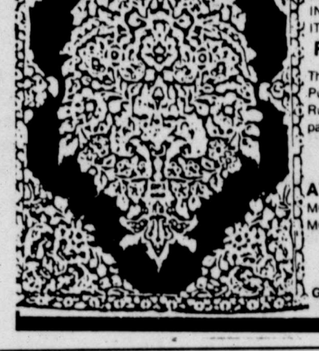

Frank Dailey, police chief of Sloatsburg, N.Y., said Youman's sister had contacted him last July and "informed me of the fact that she had been sworn to secrecy by her mother, who had passed away a year or two ago, and that she herself was suffering failing health."

Dailey refused to identify the woman but described her as in her late 40s, married and a mother.

The charges against Youmans stem from the deaths of Robert Nugent and Charles Simpson, whose bodies were found along a woodland trail on Oct. 26, 1952. State police said the pair had been killed by shotgun blasts at close range.

Bradley recovering from viral infection

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -- Army officials say they expect five-star General Omar Bradley to be released soon from the Beaumont Army Medical Center where he is suffering from a "mild viral infection."

Bradley, 87, the nation's only living five-star officer, was hospitalized at Fort Bliss Wednesday night and "his stay is expected to be short," said Army spokesman Ed Starnes.

Starnes said Bradley's condition was satisfactory and said he was undergoing routine tests.

"The doctors say General Bradley was running a low fever.

Major drought predicted this summer in cornbelt

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Last weekend's snowfall in Iowa was only a dusting compared to what's needed to head off a serious drought in the nation's breadbasket this summer, weather experts say.

The storm left up to 6 inches of snow in some areas but less than 2 inches in others.

Although it provided a snow cover that will keep powdery topsoil from blowing away, it amounted to less than a half-inch of moisture.

"It just isn't doing that much," said Paul Waite, a climatologist for the state, now midway through one of the warmest and driest winters on record. "We need a good spring rain."

Waite believes the Midwest is heading into the second half of a 24-month dry spell that will last through 1981. It is a pattern seen earlier this century, he said.

The National Weather Service, whose extended forecasts cover only 90 days, also predicts continued warmer and drier-than-normal weather.

That could mean serious trouble for the five Midwestern states that typically produce one-third to one-half the total U.S. harvest of corn, soybeans, grain sorghum and wheat. Beside Iowa, those states are Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois and Missouri.

An extended dry spell could mean reduced yields and higher food prices.

One-third of Iowa's farmlands reportedly has below-adequate subsoil moisture needed to nourish plants. Some farmers already are hauling water for livestock. Applications for irrigation permits have jumped and more are expected as farmers worry about getting water to their fields this summer.

The cause of the dry weather is a high pressure ridge that has hung over the Rocky Mountains for months, preventing moist air from reaching the Plains states.

Elwynn Taylor, extension climatologist at Iowa State University, said the state could face severe soil erosion problems if the snow cover from the weekend storm doesn't last.

Even if there is increased snowfall, it won't do much to alleviate low ground water supplies and inadequate soil moisture, she said.

Beside farmers, government officials also are worried about adequate water supplies this summer and fall.

A prolonged dry spell could cause water shortages in the state's towns and cities, possibly close the Mississippi River south of Iowa to navigation or force the Army Corps of Engineers to lower the four large reservoirs it controls in the state.

The corps already is debating whether to lower Red Rock Reservoir south of Des Moines to help open a new power plant downstream at Ottumwa. The Des Moines River presently is so low it does not provide enough water for the power plant's cooling system.

Corps officials say they must decide whether to provide the water needed for the plant, or save it in case of a severe drought this summer.

But heavy, spring rains could head off these problems. And many officials remain optimistic.

"In Iowa, it always rains five minutes before it's too late," joked Louis Gieskek, the state water commissioner.

New Orleans police raid well-stocked head shop

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police, testing a new state law, raided a French Quarter "head shop" and seized an estimated $200,000 worth of alleged narcotics paraphernalia.

"This doesn't bother me in the least," said Matthew Cooperman, 22, manager of the Mad Mad World T-shirt Shop. "I sell all novelty items used for tobacco only."

"Whatever a purchaser wants to do with this stuff is his business," he added.

Cooperman lounged against a counter munching on a hamburger Thursday as he watched police clean out the store, loading a truck with water pipes, roach clips, carburetors, hashish pipes and about 100 pounds of manitola, a white power sometimes used to cut cocaine and heroin.

"It's a lot more than we thought," said Detective David Peralta, who headed the raid. "This is a test case, but it should not interfere with other arrests in coming days."

"Mary Had A Little Lamb", a new child care center, located at 3125 Travis Street, is now accepting applications of worker and children. "We are shooting for Mon. Feb . 9th as our actual "starting of operations date," reports Glen & Betty McMerlin, Pastors of Assembly In Christ under whose sponsership the Center will operate. "Mary Had A Little Lamb," will be managed and supervised by Gordon and Bonnie Lamburt of Midland. For Information Call 699-5048 or come by 3125 Travis street.

Can President Reagan Put AMERICA FIRST?

For years our leaders have not put America first! Ronald Reagan has promised a change, and Conservative Americans who voted for him recognize correctly that his campaign promises must be carried out immediately.

With Reagan in the White House and more Conservatives in Congress, can we now expect a change for the better? The answer depends greatly on how many Americans decide to "get involved." We must stand behind those elected officials who are worthy of support, and hold to the fire the feet of those who are not. Hear Patricia Hurley on why there can be —

BLACKMAIL!

Because of U.S. government policies that for years have undermined America's interests, we have been held for blackmail by our enemies. Money, concessions and even human lives have been extorted as payment.

- Under a threat of violence, we have been blackmailed into handing the Panama Canal over to our enemies. However, this shameful tribute will not purchase "peace," but will instead strengthen the enemies of America.

- Fanatical despots in Iran have held Americans for ransom — literally blackmailing the United States of America.

- Behind a pretense of "human rights," our own policy makers have blackmailed one Free World country after another into making dangerous concessions with Marxist and Communist terrorists. Yet, these concessions have helped to proliferate terrorist killings and enslavement.

- Through detente, we have strengthened the bloody Soviet tyrants. Because of a "threat" we've created, will we now be blackmailed into strengthening the equally tyrannical Red Chinese?

Conservative Americans rightly demand an end to this blackmail. But what must President Reagan and the new Congress do to achieve this goal? You'll not want to miss the answer in Patricia Hurley's dynamic and fact-filled speech!

Settlements reached in federal suits

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Texaco and another company have reached out-of-court settlements totaling in the millions of dollars in 10 negligence suits filed in federal district court in Beaumont since 1977.

A federal civil trial was scheduled to begin Wednesday, but U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher dismissed a 12-member jury after agreements were reached on the final three suits, filed in the aftermath of a March 17, 1977 blast at Texaco's refinery in Port Arthur that killed eight people and injured 15.

Amounts of the settlements were not disclosed. Attorneys said they could not release specific amounts without their clients' approval.

"The families are very pleased with the settlement," said another attorney, who asked not to be identified.

The suits had sought a total of $15 million to $20 million in damages.

One attorney, who asked not to be identified, said the total of a few of the 10 cases netted "in excess of several million dollars."

Another attorney, who also requested anonymity, said a co-defendant with Texaco — Kraut-Kramer-Branson, Inc., of Los Angeles — bore the biggest share of the settlement burden in the suit brought by his client.

Kraut Kramer-Branson manufactures an ultrasonic detection device used to check for corrosion in refinery pipes, .

The blast occurred shortly after 7 a.m. According to depositions of witnesses, a pipe near a refinery stabilizer unit ruptured, releasing a cloud of vapor that exploded in a short series of fire balls. The rupture was eventually attributed to corrosion in the 43-year-old pipe.

Texaco spokesman Charles Rentz said the company would have no immediate comment.

One Safe Place owner Frank Campbell displays a safe-deposit box at his new business in a Dallas suburb. The business is accessible 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Campbell said the closest comparable service he knows is in the East, "but they don't have the security level, and they don't have armed guards on duty 24 hours a day." (AP Laserphoto)

Burglary victim devises 'safest place in town'

DALLAS (AP) — All Frank Campbell wanted was a safe place to store his valuables after burglars ransacked his home. What he wound up with was a thriving business and possibly the "safest" safe-deposit boxes around.

Campbell, a realtor, scouted for more than a year before he picked a spot in a local shopping center and opened his own safe depository called "One Safe Place."

"I put in every type of security system Honeywell had," says Campbell. "They said, 'you don't need that on top of that,' but I said all things mechanical can fail."

"And if every system in the place fails, there is an armed guard behind bullet-proof glass.."

Campbell doesn't visualize himself as a man with a mania for security. He says he's just a homeowner who got burglarized and decided to do something about it.

After a burglary last year, Campbell and his wife decided to store their valuables in a safe-deposit box. But they soon found that not only were the boxes already rented, but their many of their valuables wouldn't fit in the boxes.

Worse still, they began to read about major banks in Boston, Virginia and California where millions of dollars in cash and valuables were stolen from the locked boxes.

To enter Campbell's private safe-deposit box haven, you must have an appointment or a card — actually a tiny radio transmitter — with a photograph and a special number.

The number flashes on a computer watched by the guard, while another computer makes a permanent record of the visit. The customer must sign in and out.

The guard also watches a bank of television sets, one for each of the three vaults, and a TV scan of the street outside.

If that isn't enough, Lt. Richard D. Baker — a veteran of 34 years in police and security work — stands watch during the day and totes a loaded police special.

"We scared the hell out of some poor guy from the beauty shop next door the other day," he said. "He just went up there to fix his air conditioning, but he happened to step on our roof and found himself looking at a shotgun and a .45."

One Safe Place is accessible 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Campbell said the closest comparable service he knows of is in the East, "but they don't have the security level, and they don't have armed guards on duty 24 hours a day."

The boxes aren't cheap — the range in price from $200 to $1,400 a year — but Campbell says that his service is really a bargain, since silver spoon and fork would go for about $200 these days.

10-day general strike ends in southern Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The 10-day general strike in Bielsko-Biala ended today with the Polish government agreeing to consider the resignations of the provincial governor and his deputies. But union officials in another southern industrial center threatened to strike Monday if their demands are not met.

The end of the Bielsko-Biala strike was announced by Warsaw Radio, which said the accord called for disciplinary action against any official found guilty of crimes, and charges to be referred to the public prosecutor's office and a government watchdog agency for further action.

It said the strikers will not be penalized for the walkout, called to support union demands for the resignations of officials it accused of corruption, and that the workers will be back in more than 120 factories Saturday at holiday pay because the day is supposed to be work-free.

The radio said Josef Kepa, minister for local administration, headed the government team that signed the agreement in the textile center near the Czechoslovak border. Lech Walesa, head of the independent union Solidarity, headed the workers' delegation.

The resignations of the former governor and his deputies were submitted Tuesday under pressure from the Bielsko-Biala Solidarity committee, which accused them of corruption in office. The talks broke off Wednesday and Walesa told Solidarity's 10 million members at that time:

"In case there is use of force in Bielsko-Biala and a breakdown in communications occurs, organize Solidarity occupation strikes without putting forward new demands. Use passive resistance only."

On Thursday, Walesa told a rally in the textile factory that served as the headquarters for the Bielsko-Biala strike, "I will stay with you until victory."

Meanwhile, talks broke off in Jelenia Gora, 200 miles west of Bielsko-Biala, over the local Solidarity committee's demand that a private sanitorium used exclusively by the Interior Ministry be turned into a public hospital.

"In order to give the government, political authorities and the Ministry of the Interior time to reconsider their decision, we proclaim a general strike starting Feb. 9 calling for realization of our demands and at the same time of our demand for (full) during the strike," the Jelenia Gora committee said.

Dollar posts new gains

LONDON (AP) — The dollar posted news gains today on world money markets as foreign traders reacted favorably to President Reagan's promises in his first speech on the ailing U.S. economy. Gold prices rose in London.

"It's short on details and full of promises," said one London dealer commenting on Reagan's nationally-broadcast speech Thursday night. But he said the president's commitment to tackle inflation and the budget deficit gave a "psychological" boost to the dollar.

Today's mid-morning European dollar rates compared to late Thursday:

4.9625 French francs, up from 4.9475.

1,025.50 Italian lire, up from 1,011.50.

The British pound was trading for $2.3365 as compared to $2.3417 on Thursday.

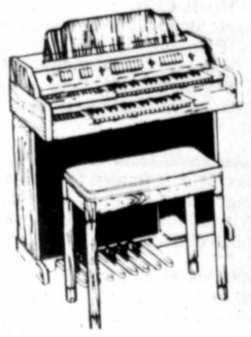

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar closed at 204.40 yen, up from from 202.85 Thursday.

London's five major bullion houses fixed the morning gold price at $506.50 an ounce, up from $492. late Thursday. In Zurich the metal traded at $499.50, unchanged from Thursday's close.

Gold finished at $501.50 an ounce in New York Thursday. The Hong Kong market was closed today for the Chinese New Year.

Silver was quoted in London at $13.40 an ounce, up from $13.05.

"The Ninth Tee" Townhomes

Due to rising construction costs, "The Ninth Tee" Townhomes will have a price increase effective February 9, 1981. Until that time all contracts made will be at the old rate. So hurry and purchase your townhome.

"The Ninth Tee" Townhomes are located in one of Midland's most desirable areas. These quality constructed twonhomes feature wood burning fire places, wall to wall carpeting, vaulted or beamed ceilings in living area, double car garages and walk-in closets.

Come choose the floor plan that best suits your lifestyle, but hurry, only a short time left before the price increase. Drop by during our open house on Sunday February 8 or call for more information.

Can Permian Panthers repeat District 5-5A cage history?

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

When the 24-3 and No. 9 state ranked Midland High Bulldogs take on the Odessa Permian Panthers today at 8 p.m. at Chaparral Center to open second half District 5-5A basketball play, it will be time to find out just how long or short the memory is for the Purple Pack.

It was at this juncture of the season a year ago when Permian pulled off an overtime cage heist against the Bulldogs and went on to win the loop's playoff berth. Do the Bulldogs remember?

MIDLAND HIGH won the first half championship with a perfect 7-0 record with a two-game margin over the rest of the field. But the Bulldogs had some close calls along the way and defeated Permian by nine points in the first half. It wasn't their most impressive victory, but they did win on foreign hardwood.

This time Permian has to invade the confines of the Chap and that can be a little hostle at times. Also, MHS is coming off what coach Jack Stephenson says was "our best game of the year," an 80-57 win over cross town rival Midland Lee.

"I think we were very close to looking awesome at times against Lee, and we are playing very good basketball. I don't think any team in the league could have beaten us that night (against Lee)," Stephenson said. "I wish we were not playing in halves at this point because I think it would be hard to catch us with a two-game lead. But everybody is even with us again and we lose that two-game advantage. But I'm really for playing in halves because I think it is great for the fans as well as the teams who didn't win in the first half. It certianly keeps things interesting."

The Permian-MHS contest may be heard locally on KBAT-FM radio.

PERMIAN TIED San Angelo for second place in the first half with a 5-2 record, and both teams appear to be the major challengers to MHS in the second half. San Angelo had three overtime games in the first half, including a triple overtime loss to MHS at the Chap. San Angelo has MHS at home in this half.

Meanwhile, the Midland Lee Rebels need a quick victory tonight to keep hopes burning. The Rebels, hit by two narrow losses and a flu bug, finished with a 2-5 first half record. The Rebels travel to Odessa High, winless in district, tonight. The Rebs defeated the Bronchos by 10 points in the first half.

If the Rebels could win their first two second half outings, Lee might be a second half contender also. Lee travels to San Angelo Tuesday and follows with Big Spring at home. A Lee upset over San Angelo could possibly give the Rebs a 3-0 start in the second half. The San Angelo game could be the pivotal game of the year for the young Rebels. And that's providing they win tonight against a weaker team.

IN VIEW of Lee's first half record, the Rebels will have to mount an upset express through the second half and they have four road trips to endure.

In another 5-5A game tonight, San Angelo will host Abilene Cooper in a key contest. Cooper upset San Angelo in the first half, but ended up losing three of its last four first half games. The Bobcats must win this time around to keep real title hopes.

In the other game, Big Spring travels to Abilene High. AHS was the pre-district pick to make the strongest run at Midland High, but had a 4-3 record in the first half. Big Spring seems to be improving despite the fact that they won only one game in the first half. The Steers took San Angelo to overtime in their last outing and in two previous contests, Big Spring defeated OHS and lost to Cooper by four points after a disastrous eight point fourth quarter. The Steers could be the biggest surprise of the second half.

Lee girls set up Bobcat showdown

By BOB DILLON
Sports Writer

Maudie Akins and Shun Harris paved the way Thursday night to trigger the Midland Lee Rebel girls to an easy 63-35 basketball victory over the Odessa High Bronchos in Chaparral Center.

Playing without the services of starters Gale Wilson and Wathena Henry, Coach Shirley Stephenson's Rebels appeared a little nervous, but they finally calmed down and went about their night's work.

It was an important win, because San Angelo Central, first half winner in the District 5-5A race, barley got past Abilene Cooper, 53-51. Lee and Central are both 4-0 going into their big shootout in the Chap Center next Monday. "That's one game we really need to win if we want a chance to win the second half," said Stephenson afterwards. "Gale could have played if we needed her, but I thought the team did a good job without both Wilson and Henry," she added. Wilson and Henry have been slowed down with the flu.

LEE STARTED slowly in picking up its 17th victory of the year against 10 losses by posting a first period lead of 12-6. It was 27-16 at halftime as the Rebels went to the free throw line 15 times in the first half, hitting nine of them.

The Tall City girls led 39-23 going into the final period and that was when they erupted for 24 big points to OHS' 12, to win going away.

The second unit for Lee hit five of five field goal attempts put up and it was the rebounding of Rozena McCabe, that stood out for the winners. Miss McCabe came down with three offensive and four defensive rebounds during the evening.

Lee connected on 19 of 28 free tosses and that was the difference in the game.

OHS' attack, such as it was, was led by Valetria Jernigan's eight points as the Red Hosses had nobody in the double figures.

With the loss, Odessa stands 7-19 on the year and sports a 1-3 5-5A mark in the second half of the race.

LEE ALSO won the preliminary junior varsity game, 35-32, with Pam Roberts scoring 12 points for the winners.

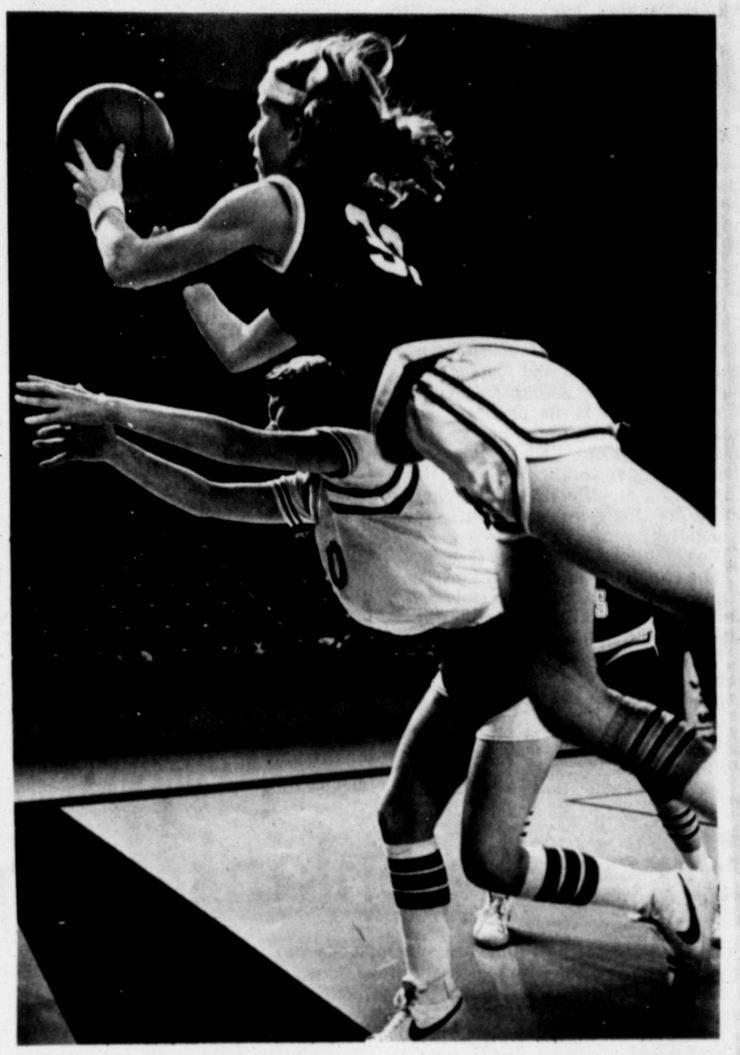

Midland Christian School downed the Lee Sophomore in the early game. Strickland and Akins were the big guns for the Mustangs with 13 and 10 points while Ellen Watson netted nine for the Lee Sophs.

Virginia's Cavs keep on rolling, 76-69

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no reason Virginia should lose another game this season, says guard Jeff Lamp, "but our primary goal right now is to win the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"If we can do that and still go undefeated, it would be great," said Lamp, one of the best shooters in college basketball.

Lamp, accustomed to sharing if not giving up the limelight entirely to teammate Ralph Sampson, scored 26 points Thursday night and sparked a rally that carried top-ranked and undefeated Virginia over Wagner, 76-69.

THE VICTORY improved Virginia's record to 20-0 and extended the Cavaliers' winning streak to 25, the longest current string of victories by any Division I college basketball team.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams Thursday night, No. 14 Michigan edged Michigan State in overtime 79-77; No. 15 Iowa stopped Northwestern 76-65; 17th-ranked Indiana routed Wisconsin 89-64; No. 18 Illinois whipped Ohio State 82-63 and No. 20 South Alabama turned back South Florida 54-50.

Virginia's victory, for one, did not come without some nervous moments.

With less than two minutes gone in the second half, Wagner ran off 16 points to only two — free throws by freshmen Othell Wilson and Sampson — for Virginia. That erased a 39-28 deficit and put Wagner up by three, 44-41, with 12:42 left.

"I was concerned about it," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said. "We were sluggish and tired from our travel. Wagner played a great basketball game and caused us to make a lot of mistakes."

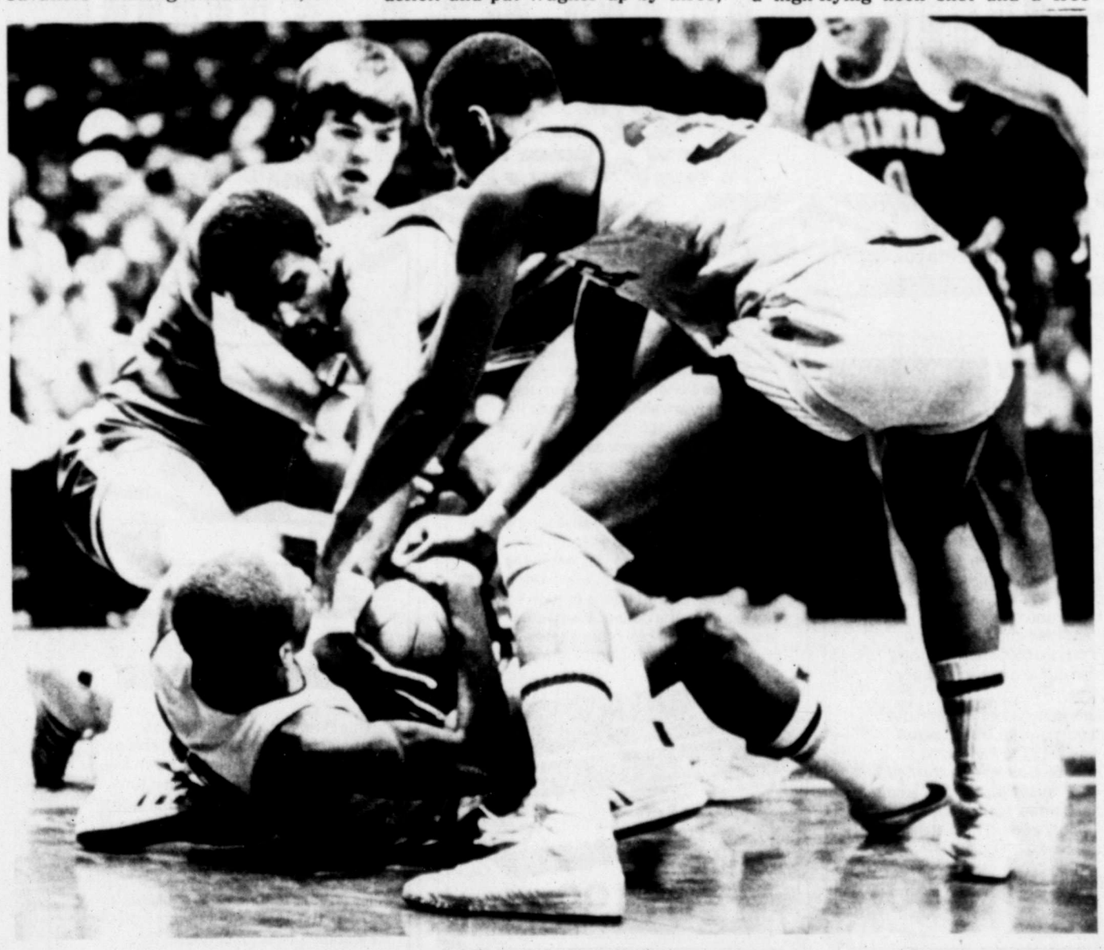

OVER THE next 5½ minutes, however, Virginia outscored Wagner 18-6. Lamp scored six points in that string, and Lee Raker capped it with an 18-foot jump shot that gave Virginia a 59-50 lead.

Then it was time for Sampson, a 7-foot-4 sophomore center, to go to work. He hit a one-handed stuff shot that capped a six-point run, putting the Cavaliers up by 13 at 65-52. Later, he hit a five-foot turnaround jumper, a high-flying hook shot and a free throw, giving him 12 of his 19 points in the second half. Sampson also grabbed 18 rebounds and added a pair of blocked shots.

"The team showed a lot of poise," Sampson said. "We didn't get our heads down. We fought back, and we knew it would open up inside sooner or later, as soon as Jeff started hitting some jumpers."

The high scorer for Wagner was Mike Nelson with 14 points, including eight in a span of 5:41 during which the Seahawks, 11-7, outscored Virginia 16-2 to take a 44-41 lead.

"It was a combination of Virginia playing well and us doing some things we didn't want to do," Wagner Coach P.J. Carlesimo said, "like making some not-so-intelligent fouls. We didn't keep our composure and poise when we fell behind."

MARTY BODNAR hit on a driving layup in the final seconds of overtime to lead Michigan over Michigan State. In the overtime, Michigan forward Mike McGee hit a pair of free throws and converted a steal into an easy layup basket to give the Wolverines a four-point cushion. But Michigan State countered with a pair of free throws by Vincent and a Kevin Smith jump shot to tie the game 77-77. Bodnar's final basket followed a Michigan stall that lasted about a minute.

"We're not as talented as other Big Ten teams," said Michigan Coach Bill Frieder. "But we did a good job in the second half of taking advantage of their mistakes to build a lead," which at one time was as high as eight points.

Vince Brookins scored 27 points to equal his career high and Kevin Boyle added 16 to lead Iowa over Northwestern. The Hawkeyes never trailed in the game and moved to a 20-point lead in the second half with about eight minutes left when Coach Lute Olson cleared his bench.

"That was one of the best games Brookins has had in a long time," said Olson. "He not only shot well but he did a great job defending and rebounding."

Olson was so pleased with the zone defense the Hawkeyes started with that he went with it the entire game.

"The zone was effective so we stuck with it," said Olson. "I think we confused them with the zone and it came to where they had to foul. By the time they made their adjustments we had too big a lead."

Sophomore Tony Brown made his first five shots and scored 12 of his career-high 18 points in the first half to spark Indiana over Wisconsin.

Chaparrals sting NMJC, 107-97

HOBBS, N.M. — Six Chaparrals scored in double figures here Thursday night to lead the Midland College Chaparrals to a 107-97 Western Junior College Conference basketball win over New Mexico Junior College.

The victory kept the nationally ranked Chaps at the top of the WJCC standings with a 10-2 record with Howard College, who defeated Western Texas, 72-62 Thursday.

Charles Johnson turned in his usual performance with 22 points to pace the high octane attack of the Chaps, but he had plenty of help. Scotty Tutwiler ripped the cords for 18 points, Derek Wilson flipped in 15, Ernie Tate slammed home 13 and both Lance McCain and Virgil Slay hit for 12 points.

Kevin Willingham just missed double figures with nine points. Puntus Wilson, still suffering from the flu, scored only two points but played very little.

NMJC tried to stay in the high scoring chase as Jeff Roberson led all scorers with 26 points and Charles Prescott added 21 more. Ricky Green had 18 and Mike Smith 12 for the losers.

The Chaps led by as many as 12 points in the first half, but held only a 51-48 lead at the half. It wasn't until the last 10 minutes of the game that the No. 8 Chaps began to pull away.

MC had one of its best nights at the charity line, hitting 13 of 14 free throws.

MC coach Jerry Stone said it was a very physical contest and was pleased with the play of Tate and Wilson in that area. Stone was also happy with the scoring performances of McCain and Tutwiler.

The Chaps return home Monday against New Mexico Military Institute for an 8 p.m. game at Chaparral Center.

In another WJCC game Thursday, Frank Phillips, 9-3 in conference play, defeated Odessa College in a low scoring 48-41 contest in Odessa.

MHS girls rip past Panthers

ODESSA — Janice Littlefield and Connie Caton led the Midland High Bulldog girls to an easy 52-33 romp over the Odessa Permian Panthers in a District 5-5A basketball game in the Permian Fieldhouse Thursday night.

The victory for Coach Jane Young's Bulldogs, gives them a 2-2 record in the second half of the season while Mojo falls to 1-3. On the year, MHS stands 13-16 and Permian is now 10-18 with the loss.

Permian started off quickly in posting a 13-6 first period lead, but MHS outscored the Panthers, 14-2 in the second period for a 20-15 halftime lead. The Bulldogs had another big period in the third, taking a 33-21 lead into the final quarter.

Jana Davis was the big gun for Permian in scoring 15 points. She was the only Panther in double figures.

Midlans also won the junior varsity game, 42-31 with Lisa Bowers and Rebecca Caton paving the way with 12 and nine points, respectively.

Midland travels to Big Spring Monday for a 7 p.m. tipoff.

MIDLAND (52) — Littlefield 4-3-3-11; Parke 0-2-0-2; Parker 0-2-4-2; Besic 0-0-1-0; Christian 2-1-4-5; Larrimore 2-2-5-6; Burton 0-0-1-0; Miller 3-3-1-9; Hogan 3-1-4-7; Caton 4-2-2-10. Totals: 16-16-25-52.

Coaches to converge on Midland

Football, basketball and track coaches from all over the northwestern portion of Texas will descend Saturday on Midland Lee for the annual winter meeting of the Region IV Texas High School Coaches Association, and the group has a busy schedule awaiting them, according to Lee basketball coach Paul Stueckler, who is one of three directors of the Region IV board.

"We are pleased to host the coaches of Region IV in our city, and we have a lot of things planned for them," Stueckler stated. "We will be voting on the football and basketball nominees from our region for the North-South All-Star football and basketball games which will be held in July in Dallas at the annual state-wide coaches' meeting. Also many of our top coaches in the region will be giving talks concerning their sports programs."

Other members of the Region IV board of directors serving as hosts at the meeting are John Blocker of Fort Stockton and David Bornstein of Seminole.

Registration for the event will begin at 8 a.m. and Gil Bartosh, Midland athletic director, will welcome the group at 8:45 a.m.

Rankin's Dwayne Turner, who guided his Red Devils to the Class A football finals, will kick the meeting off at 9 a.m. with a presentation on Rankin football.

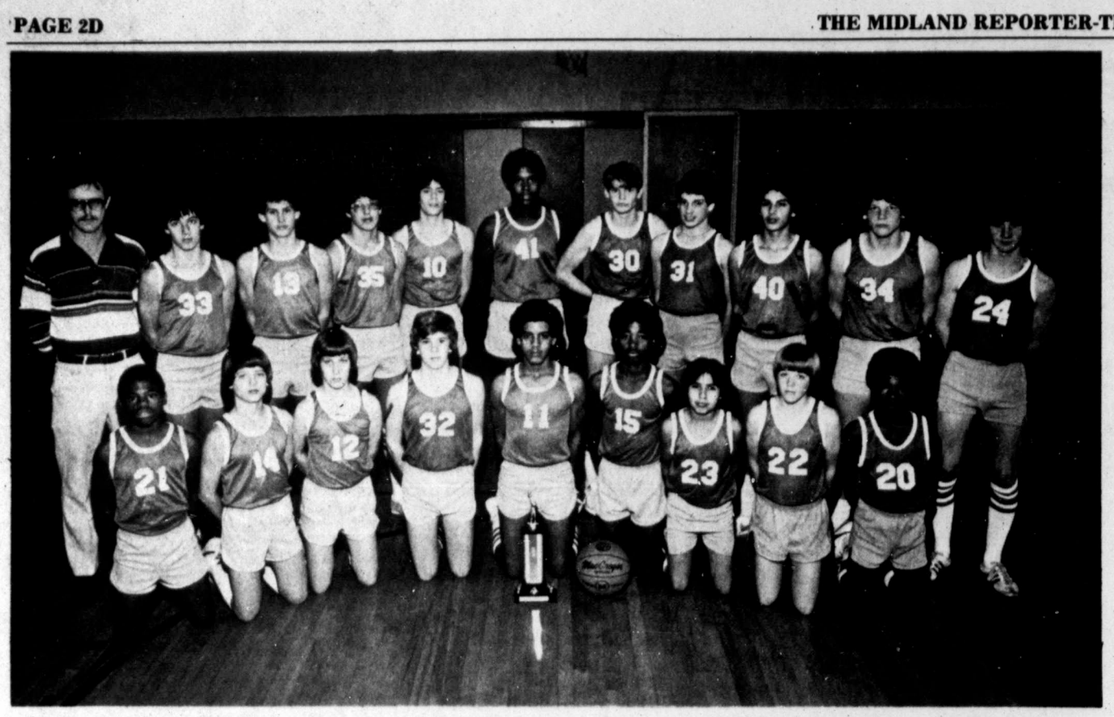

Three coaches will give talks at 10 a.m. John Wilkins, who led Odessa Permian to the 5A state football championship, will talk on Permian football and Waymond Griggs, who led Permian to the District 5-5A track title last spring, will talk on Permian track. Andrews' Frank Bice will speak on Andrews basketball.

Three coaches will also speak at 11 a.m. Midland High's Jack Stephenson, who led his Bulldogs to a district co-championship last year and is currently leading the district race this season, will speak on MHS basketball while Lane Tannehill, track coach at Post, will speak on the Post track program.

Also at 11 a.m., new Texas Tech head football coach Jerry Moore will address the football coaches.

A business meeting will be held at noon.

All Region IV coaches who are members of the THSCA are invited to attend.

Alamo recently won the eight grade city basketball championship. They are, front row from left, Carl McClendon, Steve Shepheard, Bill Purcell, Matt Haddock, Marcus Hurd, Raymond Morney, Albert Perales, Jack McCranie, Roger Henderson. Back Row: Coach Benson, Jimmy Phillips, Derek Westbrook, Vance Thurmon, Richard Roberts, Joe Taylor, Norris Cowles, Lance Greer, Steven Quiroz, Tom Cowles and Eric Ezell. (Staff Photo)

Chicago signs Dennis Lamp

By The Associated Press

Major League baseball teams were active Thursday in signing players to contracts as the 1981 spring training grind gets closer to kickoff.

The Chicago Cubs have signed catcher Tim Blackwell and former Midland Cubs pitcher Dennis Lamp to 1981 contracts.

Blackwell, a switch-hitter, batted .272 with five home runs and 30 runs batted in during 1980 with the Cubs.

Lamp, a right-hander, had a 10-14 record with a 5.19 earned run average for the Cubs last year.

Ace relief pitcher Joe Sambito signed a five-year, $3 million contract with the Houston Astros, only one day before he was scheduled to take his contract dispute to arbitration.

Sambito, 28, had 17 saves last year when the Astros won the West Division title for the first time.

The signing left nine players unsigned from the Astros' 40-man major league roster and no players scheduled for arbitration.

The Milwaukee Brewers announced the signing of Paul Molitor, who led the American League in hitting at the All-Star break last season with a .358 average and finished at .304.

The club said it was a one-year contract, but other details were not disclosed.

MOLITOR, WHO missed 40 games at mid-season during 1980 with a rib cage injury, was one of four Brewers who had filed for arbitration. He had been scheduled to meet with an arbitrator Tuesday.

The Chicago White Sox announced the signing of outfielder Bob Molinaro.

Molinaro, who batted .291 for the Sox last season, had opted for arbitration but decided to sign a 1981 contract after new ownership of the club was established.

Bob Welch, Steve Howe and Robert Castillo, three young pitchers, have signed new contracts with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Welch, 24, and Howe 22, each signed two-year contracts, and the 25-year-old Castillo signed a one-year pact. No other terms were announced for the three, all of whom were represented in negotiations by Robert Fenton.

Welch finished the 1980 season with a 14-9 record and 3.28 earned run average.

Howe, the National League Rookie of the Year last season, had a 7-9 record, 2.65 ERA and a club-leading 17 saves.

Castillo was the workhorse of Los Angeles' bullpen, toiling 98.1 innings while appearing in 61 games. Castillo finished the campaign with an 8-6 record, 2.76 ERA and five saves.

The Atlanta Braves will sign centerfielder Dale Murphy to a one-year contract today, according to Murphy's agent. The deal is reported to be worth $400,000.

The agent, Bruce Church, and Braves Executive Vice President Al Thornwell confirmed that an agreement had been reached and that the contract would be signed Friday.

Thursday, the Atlanta Journal quoted sources as saying Murphy was guaranteed $400,000, the largest one-season contract in the club's history. Neither Church nor Thornwell confirmed the figure.

Murphy, 24, who batted .281 and had 33 home runs and 89 runs batted in last season, will be eligible for free agency after the 1983 season, his sixth year in the major leagues.

In other baseball action Thursday, the New York Mets asked waivers on veteran infielder-outfielder Elliott Maddox for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

If no team claims him by Feb. 11, Maddox, who batted .246 with four home runs and 34 runs batted in as the Mets' regular third baseman last season, will become a free agent.

The Mets are expected to turn over their third base job to rookie Hubie Brooks, who batted .309 in a trial last September, and Mike Cubbage, who signed as a free agent.

Free agent Joe Morgan says he'll decide by early next week whether to play baseball for the San Francisco Giants or one of four other teams with offers, including one in Japan.

An offer by the unidentified Japanese team is "one even Dave Winfield would have trouble turning down," Morgan said Wednesday.

The 37-year-old second baseman, who recently rejected Houston's offer of a new contract, said he also is looking at offers from the Detroit Tigers, Chicago White Sox and the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Kansas hit with violations

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — University of Kansas athletic officials and boosters have violated several NCAA recruiting guidelines, including assuring one prospect of a job and flying the mother of one basketball star to KU sporting events, the Kansas City Times reported today.

In the last of a five-part copyright series investigating athletics at Kansas State, Wichita State and Kansas, the Times said KU had violated National Collegiate Athletics Association guidelines in its dealings with three athletes: basketball stars Donnie Von Moore and Ricky Ross and football player Jeff Schleicher.

KU athletic officials said emphatically that there was no truth to the allegations.

Von Moore, who played on three Big Eight championship teams, told The Times that KU athletic officials promised him a summer job while they were recruiting him in Chicago.

"It was guaranteed," he said of the job.

Von Moore said the officials kept their promise and landed him a job in Lawrence mowing grass and painting storage tanks.

Von Moore added that he kept Basic Educational Opportunity Grant money during his senior year in violation of NCAA rules. The NCAA prohibits its athletes from keeping more than a certain percentage of the federal BEOG aid while they are on scholarships.

He said he did it on his own and without the knowledge of the coaches or others in the athletic department.

"I had to wait 'till my senior year," he said. "I took it 'cause there wasn't nothing the NCAA can do about it then."

In a related copyright story, Von Moore told The Times that many college athletes, especially marginal students, often are guided into classes that require little work and don't further their academic goals.

The Times Ross' mother was flown to KU games by a KU athletic scholarship fund contributor. The NCAA prohibits a university and its representatives from providing transportation for players' relatives.

Ross' mother, Rosa Smith, told The Times that she had flown to KU many times, but that each time she was the guest of Dr. Thomas Hays, whom she knew from her employment at a Wichita medical center.

The Times said Hays is listed as a contributor to the Williams Educational Fund, which finances athletic scholarships and is administered by the KU athletic department.

Under the broad NCAA guidelines, "it's possible," Hays could be viewed as a KU representative, said David Berst, the NCAA's director of enforcement.

Under NCAA guidelines it also is illegal for coaches or university representatives to entertain recruits off-campus. However, Schleicher, a sophomore tight end, told The Times that the night before he signed a letter of intent two years ago, he and his parents were the dinner guests of assistant KU coach John Hadl at a Kansas City restaurant.

Hadl said Schleicher's father paid for the dinner.

"We didn't go the night before he signed," Hadl said. "His dad said he wanted to take me out to dinner sometime, that night or the next night. We went to some restaurant ... But I didn't take anybody to dinner. We don't operate that way."

Wind hurts LPGA tourney

NORTH MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A wind gusting from all directions and slick greens were among the complaints heard on the Turnberry Isle Country Club course as just 13 players broke par in the first round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association's $125,000 Elizabeth Arden Classic.

It took an 8-foot birdie putt on the 16th by Sandra Post to pull a leader out of a pack of six players tied for first at two under.

Post's 3-under-par 69 gave her a one-stroke lead over five golfers in the second LPGA stop of the year.

Post bogeyed the first hole in the 6,211-yard course, and shot three birdies on the front nine.

"It was a good, solid round," she said. "But I guess it could have been two or three shots better. I missed a couple of eight-footers that had a chance."

Tied at 70 were Pat Bradley, Carolyn Hill, JoAnne Carner, Mindy Moore and Amelia Rorer. The latter two players are seeking their first tour victories. Rorer's major distinction thus far is that she is, at 4 feet, 11 inches, the shortest player on the tour, and Moore, from nearby Boca Raton, Fla., is playing in only her second pro tournament. Midland's Judy Rankin had a 71.

Post, 32, was 10th on the LPGA money list last year. She has won seven tournaments in her career. While other players complained about the stiff breezes Thursday, Post said they go along with the game in the Sunshine State.

"If you want to play golf in Florida, you have to get used to the winds," Post said.

Streck, Jenkins own lead

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ron Streck completely dominated the par-5 holes for a share of the first round lead in the $250,000 Wickes-Andy Williams San Diego Open Golf Tournament but was far from confident he'd be able to retain that lofty position in today's second round.

He has to change from the very easy North course at Torrey Pines to the more difficult South.

"The South is much, much harder," Streck said after posting a 7-under-par 65 that tied him for the lead with Tom Jenkins.

"The difference is in the par-5's," Streck said.

And it was on those long holes at the North course that he made most of his round. He chipped in for an eagle on one of them, reached the others using a 2-iron for his second shots, and birdied them with two putts.

"They're a lot tougher on the South," Streck said.

The scoreboard supported his analysis. The first 17 scorers in Thursday's first round all played the 6,667-yard North course. Of the first 59 scorers, only seven played at the South, a 7,002-yard layout stretching along ravines and gullies and bluffs overlooking the Pacific.

The players switch courses today and, after the field is cut at the end of 36 holes, will play the last two rounds at the South.

A single stroke off the first round pace at 66 were Bill Britton, Wayne Levi and Keith Fergus. Tied at 67 were Johnny Miller, who won the Tucson Open earlier this year, Cesar Sanudo and Gary Hallberg.

Bruce Lietzke, winner of the Bob Hope Desert Classic, shot a 68 and stretched his string of consecutive subpar rounds to 12.

The best scores on the South were 69s by veteran Gene Littler, George Burns and Jim Simons.

Tom Watson, the 1980 San Diego champion and the outstanding player in the game over the past four seasons, managed a 71 on the tough South course but takes his title defense to the more yielding North course where, according to Miller "it didn't take a whole big bunch to shoot 5 under."

Streck got that much just on the long holes.

And Jenkins, a 10-year journeyman with one victory to his credit, got his share of the top spot with a fast finish, then produced an even faster getaway.

He birdied his last four holes, two with long putts and two with relatively short ones, then declined to be interviewed and hurried away.

"I broke a club out there and I've got to get it fixed," he said.

BOWLING BEAT

King paces city bowlers

BY RANDY ISENBERG

Dwayne King cracked a 678 series while bowling in the Oil Stars League, stringing together gems of 234-221-223 to reign over Midland's bowlers last week.

For the women, 600 series abounded with Anne Masterson rolling 246-604 and Wanda Robertson 215-605 in the High Sky Ladies did well, but it was Sally Castleberry's 247-610 in the Mop and Broom that showed the way...

In the Pro Am at Super Bowl Jan. 24, a good response from city bowlers, joining pros Jim Winklepleck, Gil Sliker, John Handegard, Paul Moser, Steve Cook, Steve Westberg, Rick Vitone, John Denton and Charley Lacy, insured a successful event.

Tom Alexander of Andrews took first place money of $600 while Eddie Krupa, Midland Bowling Association president, won $400. Jim Newton was third for $300 followed by Bob Purcell, $200; Mike Hill, $100; Ross Graham, $70; Mike Kreidel, $60; and Joe Truelove, $50....

Upcoming events—The Million Dollar Team tournament National Team Championship continues at Air Park and Dellwood Lanes with finals June 20 when one team from each center will represent the area in competing for the $100,000 first place money and $1,000,000 in all...

Hats off to Julie Wolf, Big Brothers and Big Sisters, who is doing an outstanding job of promoting the Bowl for Millions campaign to assist the organization. Bowlers interested in helping raise funds for this program should aske for sponsor forms at their bowling centers. The week of Feb. 22-28 will kickoff the fund raising campaign.

on a Major Video Talent

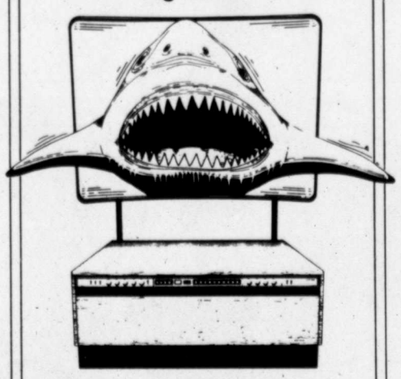

It's the RCA SelectaVision, the country's best seller! You can be out of town for as long as 14 days and actually record as many as 8 different programs on different channels. That's up to 6 hours of shows altogether. Or set the tuner-timer to record the same program at the same time every day — automatically, for as long as the tape lasts.

The RCA 650 knows some very fancy special effects, too. It'll pause so you can edit, high speed picture search in forward or reverse, let you watch the action in double speed, slow motion at variable speed and freeze motion so you can examine the details. Even more remarkable, you can orchestrate all these great tricks by push-button remote control.

Roth leads pin meet

HOUSTON (AP) — Mark Roth finished the fifth round with five straight match-play victories and boosted his lead to 270 pins Thursday night in the $131,000 U.S. Open of professional bowling.

Roth, 29, winner of $34,500 this year, has led the chase for the Open's $21,000 first prize since the opening frame.

Roth averaged 235 in round five, losing his first match to Sam Zurich, 265-233. But after that, Roth bowled scores of 204, 203, 259, 238, 258, 268 and 221 for an 1,883 series for eight games. His total pinfall stood at 9,318.

Larry Laub, 35, the 1974 U.S. Open winner,ordved from 10th place to second as he posted a perfect 8-0 record and averaged 228. He totals 9,048 pins.

Marshall Holman was third after winning six of eight matches and collecting 8,960 pins, followed by Ernie Schlegel, with 8,879, and defending champion Steve Martin, with 8,870.

Zurich, the only bowler to defeat Roth, had a poor fifth round otherwise and dropped to seventh place with an 8,841 total.

Duran clings to his story

NEW YORK (AP) — Roberto Duran still insists he quit in his title fight against Sugar Ray Leonard last Nov. 25 because of stomach cramps and would do it again, but the former welterweight champion's manager says Duran quit because he was being embarrassed.

In a copyrighted story in Friday's New York Daily News, Duran is quoted as saying that "in the eighth round, I felt I could have fainted if I had continued. Just before I quit, I thought, 'I can't move.' Then I thought, 'Before Leonard cuts me or makes me look worse, I'll just quit.'"

However, the News, which interviewed Duran in his native Panama, quoted Carlos Eleta, Duran's longtime manager, as saying:

"He was so angry with himself because he was impotent to do what he does every day and because Sugar Ray was making fun of him. So, at that instance, in the eighth round, he said, 'To hell with this fellow. He's making fun of me and I'm not going to fight any more.'

"The stomach cramps? Maybe that's true, maybe it's not. But Duran didn't quit because of stomach cramps. He quit because he was embarrassed. I know this. Roberto was crying after the fight when I took him to the hospital for a checkup. In the car, he said to me, 'I'm ashamed of myself. I never should have done that. That's not me. I am not proud of myself.'"

Duran was quoted by the News as saying that he "actually wanted to stop the fight in the fifth round because my whole body was feeling paralyzed because I had these stomach cramps. I was sick, but nobody wants to believe me. The truth is, beginning in the fifth round, I repeatedly told my Panamanian trainer, Plomo Espinosa, that I wanted to quit. But Plomo doesn't speak much English, so he never told Ray Arcel and Freddie Brown (Duran's head trainers) that I wanted to quit.

"Plomo told me in the fifth round, 'Keep on, keep on. The pain is going to vanish.' But it didn't. I wanted to pressure Leonard, but my body was paralyzed. I was a dead man. I felt slow and tired and I wasn't sweating. And I wasn't breathing enough.

"If you don't believe me, what can I do? If I had to do it over, I'd do the same thing because it was me who was risking my body. Suppose I died in the ring because I hadn't stopped. What would have happened? I would've been dead just because I wanted to be a hero. I'm serious. That could've happened. I could've died. Then, if I would've died, people would've said, 'Oh, Roberto Duran's stupid. He should've stopped the fight.' What to do? Can't win. Can't win."

Nitschke, Berra lead AA tourney

HONOLULU (AP) — Hall of Famers Ray Nitschke and Yogi Berra led their team to the first-round lead Thursday in the American Airlines Golf Classic, firing an 11-under-par 61 in the scramble format.

Nitschke, former Green Bay Packers linebacker, and Berra, ex-New York Yankee catcher and now coach, were teamed with Jack Simmon of Los Angeles, president of Arco Petroleum, and Jack Hanselman, president of Genesco, Inc. of Nashville, Tenn.

The format of the 54-hole tournament at the Makaha Resort course uses the best drive of the foursome, the best second shot and finally the shot closest to the pin.

Each foursome includes one football player, one baseball player and two business executives.

In second place, two strokes back was a team headed by Yankee shortshop Bucky Dent and Miami Dolphin linebacker Bob Matheson, who shot a 9-under-par 63.

Tied for third at 64 were a team led by Milwaukee Brewer infielder Sal Bando and Minnesota Viking tight end Bob Tucker and a team headed by Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles and New York Jets lineman Randy Rasmussen.

Olympic hockey hero may be sent to minors

BOSTON (AP) — Goalie Jim Craig, a hero one year ago in leading the United States to the Olympic Gold Medal, faced an uncertain future today after being benched for the first time by the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Craig, a 23-year-old former Boston University star from nearby North Easton, planned to meet with Bruins General Manager Harry Sinden to discuss his position with the club.

"We don't have an actual appointment, but we'll talk a little bit either before or after (morning) practice," Sinden said Thursday night after the Bruins whipped the New York Rangers 6-3 with Craig watching from a corner runway outside the Boston dressing room.

Both Sinden and Coach Gerry Cheevers talked guardedly, but there were indications that Craig might be sent to Springfield of the American Hockey League.

Craig, who has a 3.68 goals against average in 23 games while sharing goaltending duties with veteran Rogie Vachon, was benched less than 24 hours after the Bruins blew a two-goal lead and had to settle for a 3-3 tie with the Whalers in Hartford Wednesday night.

"I don't know why they sat me down," Craig said. "They just told me not to dress. They didn't give any reason, but I'm going to see Harry tomorrow."

Asked if the Bruins were unhappy with Craig's performance, Sinden said:

"Aw, I don't know about unhappy. I wished awful hard it could be a little better. I really didn't know what I expected. I think I was just hoping that he could play on an equal basis with Rogie."

"He's played well for us and I don't blame him for any of our losses," Cheevers said. "However, I think Jimmy needs work and I think he knows he needs work."

Craig got the bad news a few hours before the Rangers game when the Bruins recalled 21-year-old goalie Marco Baron from Springfield as backup for Vachon.

Mandlikova downs Bonder

DETROIT (AP) — Top-seeded Hana Mandlikova eased past unseeded Lisa Bonder, 6-1, 6-2, in the third round Thursday of the Avon women's tennis tournament stop in Detroit.

In other singles matches, unseeded Bettina Bunge relied on steady ground strokes to upset an error-plagued No. 7 seed Sue Barker, 6-4, 6-2; No. 6 seed Mima Jausovec overwhelmed unseeded Paula Smith 6-1, 6-2; and No. 3 seed Pam Shriver took a 7-4 tie-breaker in the third set to defeat unseeded Anne Smith 1-6, 6-1, 7-6.

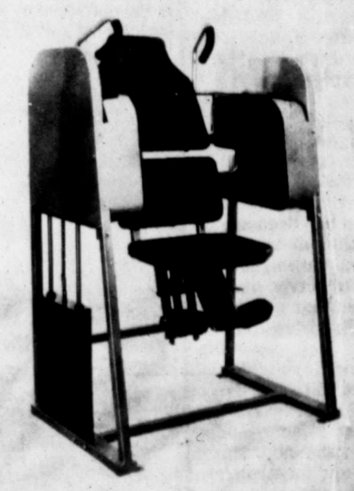

Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia at times seem to play with Bonder of Saline, Mich., who was far overmatched. In the fifth game of the second set, the Czech even seemed to give away two final points to allow Bonder to win the game.

Barker of England tried to get back in the match in the second set with some fine drop shots.

Nastase steals light from top players

TORONTO (AP) — Ilie Nastase was at his best, or worst, again Thursday night.

The antics of the veteran Romanian, ranked only 77th on the Association of Tennis Professionals' list, have stolen the spotlight from the performance of world-class players attracted to the $500,000 Molson tennis challenge.

Nastase was disqualified Wednesday night after a dispute with the umpire about a call that had little or no bearing on the outcome of a match. He did an about-face Thursday night.

"He was trying to be so nice it was sickening," a disgruntled fan said after Nastase was drubbed 6-1, 6-2 by Vitas Gerulaitis. "He did everything but throw the ball up for Gerulaitis to serve."

It was a much different exhibition from the one Nastase played Wednesday when he taunted the umpire to the point where the official, Carl Allison, disqualified the fiery veteran and awarded the match to John McEnroe.

Gerulaitis, rated ninth in the world, was upset by Nastase's exhibition Thursday, and refused to attend a postmatch news conference. He told tournament organizers he was "too embarrassed" to talk about it.

In the other Thursday night matches, top-ranked Bjorn Borg of Sweden clinched a berth in the semifinals Saturday with Americans Gerulaitis, Jimmy Connors and McEnroe, all with 2-0 won-lost records.

Borg, rated No.1 in the world, struggled through a 6-3, 5-7, 6-3 victory over Wojtek Fibak of Poland.

Connors and McEnroe secured their semifinal berths in the afternoon when Connors whipped Sandy Mayer 6-4, 6-2 and McEnroe defeated South African Johan Kriek 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

All that remains is to determine the matchups for the semifinals. The berths will be aligned tonight at the conclusion of round-robin play in the eight-man tournament when McEnroe meets Gerulaitis and Borg plays Connors to decide first and second places in their respective divisions.

First place in one division plays second in the other division, the winners advancing to final Sunday with $175,000 going to the winner, $100,000 to second place.

Borg, who won the Masters Grand Prix two weeks ago in New York then rested for his matches here, said he was confident for his matchup with Connors.

"I'll be ready, but then so will he. Neither one of us likes to lose. I haven't lost to him lately, and there's no way I can continue to win.

"But even if I

Elmore lights spark over faltering Celts

MILWAUKEE (AP) — For Len Elmore, the National Basketball Association season has been one of mostly predictable cycles, all spiraling downward.

Third-string center and 11th man for the talent-loaded Milwaukee Bucks, Elmore had played little of late. When he had played, more often than not it had been poorly. And as his play declined, so did his minutes.

But Elmore played 24 minutes Thursday night, the most for him since Oct. 18, and his statistics don't begin to reflect his contributions to the Bucks' 113-103 victory over the powerful Boston Celtics.

Elmore had seven points and five rebounds. More important, he blocked four shots and neutralized Boston's 7-foot center Robert Parish.

That took away much of Boston's strength — its inside game — and sparked the Bucks after the Celtics had scored the game's first 12 points.

"When we needed him, Lenny Elmore came through — almost every time I needed him," Bucks' Coach Don Nelson said. "He knocked down a couple of shots and his defense was tremendous. And he got a lot of nice boards in heavy traffic."

The Bucks needed Elmore because their regular center, Bob Lanier, missed a second consecutve game because of a knee injury and because Lanier's backup, Harvey Catchings, sat out the last 17:10 of the first half because of three fouls.

Parish scored six points against Catchings during Boston's 12-0 spurt, but managed only 12 after that. Parish committed his third foul with 11:02 left in the second quarter and was benched for the rest of the half.

The Bucks trailed 34-26 at that point, then rallied by using various combinations of small lineups to counter the Celtics' size with speed.

At times they used Elmore or forward Mickey Johnson at center, and over one span used a lineup including forwards Pat Cummings and Marques Johnson and guards Brian Winters, Junior Bridgeman and Sidney Moncrief.

Assistant coach testifies in trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A former Arizona State assistant football coach said ex-Sun Devil punter Kevin Rutledge "was choking under pressure," was "like a rebel" and took "an awful lot of abuse" before quitting the team in 1979, Rutledge's high school coach testified Thursday.

Rutledge is suing the assistant, Bill Maskill, ex-Arizona State head Coach Frank Kush, the university and other parties for $2.2 million in damages — claiming Kush split his lip with a "knuckle-punch" after a 27-yard punt in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978 in Seattle.

He also contends Kush and Maskill subsequently harassed him into quitting the team and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush has testified that he "can't ever recall touching" Rutledge in the game and admitted telling other people he "did not strike the young man."

However, two former campus acquaintances of Rutledge testified Thursday that they had seen Rutledge with "a cut lip" and that Rutledge said he "was going to get Kush back."

Dan Dunn, Rutledge's former football coach at Gilbert (Ariz.) High School, testified Thursday that Maskill "wondered why Kevin was still out there" after being subjected to "abuse from everybody."

Dunn told the court his conversation with Maskill occured in the spring of 1979 when Maskill came to Gilbert High on "a routine recruiting visit."

"We had won the state championship that year and Maskill talked to some of our top players. After that, he and I went into my office," Dunn said. "I have pictures on the wall of all my players that were all-stars and Maskill saw Kevin's picture.

"He said Kevin was an outstanding athlete but he was very, very difficult to coach. He said he was like a rebel and didn't do what you told him to do. That was a surprise to me," said Dunn. "Maskill said they (ASU) were being very, very hard on Kevin — trying to get him to perform."

While at Gilbert High, Dunn said Rutledge was a hard-working player who "quite often put in a lot of extra time both before and after practice."

After Rutledge played in the state's high school all-star game in 1977, Dunn said he had tried to persaude to accept a football scholarship to the University of Arizona in Tucson instead of going to Arizona State.

Tourists flock to steal bogus California gravestones

By TAMARA JONES
Associated Press Writer

CALICO, Calif. (AP) — A century ago, this rocky plot of Mojave Desert was just a cemetery for a silver town — the place to bury miners caught in a cave-in or fools caught cheating at poker, the ones dealt their final hand by the snout of a revolver.

As the West was tamed, the Calico Graveyard, like the mining town, became a tourist attraction.

But over the years, most of the wooden markers — and even some of the concrete ones — began to disappear. They ended up on tavern walls, in tourists' living rooms, in campfires and in splinters.

Without the entertaining epitaphs to read, tourists lost interest. And the graveyard, by then a state park, soon lost credibility.

Troubled by the lack of business, but not by lack of imagination, a couple of enterprising San Bernardino County rangers decided to take matters into their own hands in the 1950s. They made up new markers and epitaphs and placed them at random across the barren hillside graveyard.

Legends who had never even been to Calico suddenly were buried there. Wyatt Earp, Diamond Lil and other Wild West celebrities were among the imposter remains.

The epitaph of non-existent floozy Daisy Dooley was one example of the improvising used to lure visitors: "Daisy Dooley 1887. Came to town one day and wasn't long before she was led astray. She's in a better place today we pray."

Then, under new management, new rangers were assigned the task of recreating the original Calico Graveyard and turning it from something of a gigantic jigsaw puzzle into a legitimate historical site.

After spending the last decade trying to find out who's who and who's where in the graveyard, rangers and local historians now say they have exhausted their clues.

"We may never know who's down there — and I don't want to go down and dig 'em up," said Ranger Bill Heegel, assistant park superintendent.

Infrared aerial photographs pinpointed actual gravesites, and rangers drew up a map, using worn snapshots of the original cemetery, yellowed clippings and the memories of local old-timers to determine who was buried in the Calico Graveyard, when and where.

So far, they are certain of the whereabouts and identities of only 49 of the 100 corpses beneath the piles of rocks marking each grave. The rocks were there from the beginning, the rangers say, to prevent coyotes from digging up the shallow graves.

"I don't think we can even hope to pinpoint an average of one a year now," Heegel said.

At least three graveyard residents gave researchers a surprise.

Bruce Wallin, whose headstone was intact, died at the age of 8. It was generally believed that Bruce succumbed to diptheria in his childhood.

Actually, research showed, Bruce died of old age. He was the Wallin family dog, buried in the cemetery by his bereaved owners more than half a century ago.

Then there's the grave of Tom Kate and Tom Kate Jr. Father and son killed in a mining accident?

No, a pair of tom cats who used up their spare lives sometime around the turn of the century.

But the rangers don't plan to evict anyone — or anything — from the Calico Graveyard, Heegel assured.

"We think we've got (the victims of) one hanging, three knife fights and three gunfights," Heegel said. Most buried in Calico died natural deaths — pneumonia, childbirth, old age.

Some of the weathered tombstones that survived vandals hint of more colorful, not-so-natural deaths, though.

"Wes Wescott, hung in his youth," explains a marker believed to date back some 130 years, "'twas a sad mistake when found the truth."

A marker dated 1882 serves as a grim warning to the greedy: "Blackie Scroggins — claim-jumpers take note." The rangers say a corpse does indeed rot beneath the faded marker, but research has turned up no evidence of a Blackie Scroggins. They may never know who is actually buried there, Heegel said.

Heegel said the missing or ruined markers will be replaced by wooden replicas of the originals, and a gate now discourages people from racing dirt bikes and dunebuggies up the hillside.

Signs ask campers to find their firewood elsewhere. (One known culprit was a Boy Scout leader and his chilly troop, authorities say).

In the long run, though, Calico may not be as interesting as the mischievous rangers hinted it was with the bogus headstones some 30 years ago.

"Skeptics. We're dealing with the public standard thing," Heegel said. "People believe what they want to. You tell them the truth and they call you a liar.

"But tell them a lie and they love it."

'Central High' drawing criticism

By LINDA FRANKLIN
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A TV movie about the desegregation controversy that enveloped Central High School in violence 24 years ago has stunned some young viewers and drawn criticism from former students who say it focused unduly on "troublemakers."

"It was hard for me to watch it and think that some people could be so cruel," said Leah Filiatreau, a white Central High senior who saw a special preview of the film.

"It was kind of shocking," said sophomore Lori Llewellyn.

The made-for-television movie, "Crisis At Central High," about the admission of nine blacks to the all-white Little Rock school, was broadcast nationally Wednesday night by CBS.

Then-Gov. Orval E. Faubus called out the Arkansas National Guard to keep the blacks out, and President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent in federal troops to make sure the students were admitted.

On Sept. 25, 1957, a crowd of more than 1,000 whites tried to break through a ring that 350 paratroopers formed around the school, but were kept back by a wall of rifle butts and bayonets.

The film showed parents picketing in front of the school, soldiers ringing the campus, blacks being taunted and threatened and teachers and others being badgered by segregationists who wanted to keep the school "pure."

But Craig Rains, who was a senior class representative on the student council in 1957 and who supported the blacks, said "the students who caused the trouble could be counted on the fingers of two hands."

Rains, now 40 and an advertising executive, said the film was a "good portrayal of part of what went on."

"The sad thing to me is that it just showed the negative aspects of the things we went through. For every negative incident that was shown in the movie tonight (Wednesday), there were 100 positive things ... But the general public isn't going to know that now."

One of Rains' complaints was that a scene showing black student Ernest Green eating by himself implied that he always ate alone. But Rains said he and others sometimes ate with Green, who became a Labor Department official in the Carter administration.

Rains said only about 10 percent of the student body agitated: "The other 90 percent accepted what was going on as the law of the land."

An epilogue told viewers that the situation in 1980, when the movie was filmed, was different and that 50 percent of the school's students were black.

But Marcia Webb Lecky, a Central High senior at the time, said she wished "they had had something visual to show Central in 1981 for those persons who might be thinking something negative" about present conditions.

Flower day wanted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A newspaperman turned seed salesman wants the Legislature to designate the fourth Saturday of each April as Texas Wildflower Day.

Carroll Abbott of Kerrville said today he will return to Austin in a few months to push for the day. He hopes to come back with thousands of letters from Texans who support the idea.

"I am really serious about a Texas Wildflower Day. I think it is appropriate that Texas do it first," he said, adding Texas has more wildflowers than any other state.

"This is not a pun. The interest in wildflowers is really growing," he said.

Texas boasts 5,479 native plants, including 379 that grow nowhere else, according to Abbott.

Health committee postpones action

Austin Bureau

The Texas Health Facilities Commission has postponed until February 25 a public hearing on an application by Medical Center Hospital, Odessa, to purchase new equipment.

The hospital has asked authorization to buy a linear accelerator with a fixed beam stopper. The accelerator would replace an AECL Theratron 80 cobalt unit.

Midland County Hospital District has become a formal party to the application, as have individuals Charles C. Aldridge and Reagan H. Legg.

Four freed from prison

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Gov. Bill Clements has authorized the release from the Texas Department of Corrections of four persons convicted of crimes in the Midland area.

Clements acted upon the recommendation of the State Board of Paroles and Pardons.

Jimmy D. Dennis was paroled to Tarrant County officials after serving and earning one year and six months of a three-year term. Dennis was convicted in April, 1979, in Midland County of burglary of a building. He was also convicted in May, 1979, of burglary in Hill County.

Albert Earl Ross was paroled to Nueces County officials after serving and earning six years and five months of a 10-year sentence. Ross was convicted in July, 1977, in Ector County of burglary with intent to commit theft and aggravated robbery with a deadly weapon.

Joe Manuel Vela was paroled to Dawson County officials after serving and earning three years and seven months of a five-year sentence. Vela was convicted in January, 1979, in Ector County of burglary of a habitation. He also was convicted in 1978 and 1979 in Dawson County of robbery and burglary with intent to commit theft.

Robert Davis was released on mandatory supervision to the Sheriff's office in Tulsa, Okla., after serving and earning all of a three-year sentence. Davis was convicted in August, 1979, of forgery by passing.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, February 7, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Buster Crabbe—the original "Buck Rogers" and winner of the 1932 Olympic Swimming Medal—was born on this date. Exercise greater self-discipline in the months ahead and 1981 can be a banner year for you where both money and love are concerned. You are able to conquer a fear of the unknown, moving ahead with new confidence at place of employment. A student of the mind, you are interested in philosophy, religion and psychology. Career shift is highly likely in late spring or early summer. Change of scenery provides the opportunity you need to think through a difficult romantic choice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Distant interests could suddenly become quite lucrative. Your ability to adapt quickly to new situations wins you many admirers. Take advantage of friend's offer to supply important information.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone may be trying to play you for a fool. Try not to be so gullible! Secret agreement benefits everyone involved. A financial incentive boosts your spirits. Romance adds spice to your social plans.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take a farsighted approach to real estate matters. Mate or partner makes valuable suggestion. Give credit where it is due. Loved one may withdraw needed support if denied a share of the limelight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Casual contact with important person could result in future business gains. Look for new ways to reduce everyday expenses. Family members will prove cooperative if you set a good example.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep a safe distance from prying neighbors. Small fry may want to help with home improvement project. Catch up on household repairs. Love may indeed look lovelier the second time around.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some new friends may come to your rescue at crucial moment. Talk things over with trusted confidant. Family obligations should take precedence over social plans, hobbies. Romance gets unexpected boost from relative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Entertaining at home holds special appeal. Small groups prove more enjoyable than large gatherings. Be selective when making your guest list. Discretion is needed when talking with sensitive member of the opposite sex.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your sympathy, understanding will help a young person sort out a difficult problem. Life is much more rewarding when you look on the light side. Share your strength with those who need it most.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check your bank account before going shopping. A bargain is not a bargain if you cannot afford it! Do not air family arguments in public. Young person deserves chance to explain his/her actions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A short trip can provide a welcome change of pace, scenery. Invite loved one to accompany you. The next few weeks could be a transitional period for romance. Know your own heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone makes a special effort to give you a happy weekend. Show your appreciation! Your intuition should be right on target in most personal matters. Do what you can to reassure troubled friend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You find intellectual games more fun than those requiring physical dexterity. Be careful not to sacrifice that which you value most when arguing with loved one. Words said in anger can leave lasting scars.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♡.

Before playing from dummy to the first trick, pause to consider your line of play. You don't get a bonus for finishing the hand quickly.

South was almost too strong for a one no trump opening bid. However, there was no arguing with the final contract, which probably would have been reached no matter what the opening bid had been.

West led a low heart, and declarer, seeing the possibility of scoring three tricks in the suit, immediately played low from dummy. East won the king and paused to take stock. Unless West held both the queen and jack of hearts—unlikely in view of the opening bid—that suit offered few prospects. The diamond suit looked much more inviting, so at trick two East shifted to the jack of diamonds.

South finessed the queen of diamonds, West won the king and returned the suit, forcing out South's stopper. Declarer was unable to come to nine tricks without setting up the club suit. West took the ace of clubs on the first lead of the suit and returned a diamond, and East reeled off three tricks in the suit for a two-trick set.

There are those who would commiserate with declarer because both red-suit finesses lost. Others would blame him for a thoughtless play at the first trick!

South could have assured his contract against even a tidal wave of distributional quirks by winning the ace of hearts at trick one. The heart finesse was not an essential ingredient of a winning campaign; establishing four clubs was.

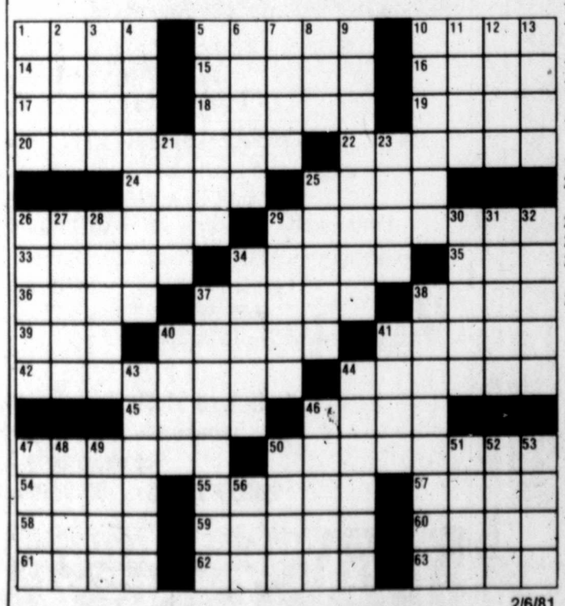

Once the club suit is set up, declarer has at least nine tricks—three spades, one heart, one diamond and four clubs. The play of the ace of hearts might cost a trick or two if West has the king, but it provides absolute assurance against East gaining the lead for a shot through the queen of diamonds before the ace of clubs is driven out.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!"
