Gas costs could follow planned oil price drops

North Sea nations' actions won't affect pump prices greatly

By The Associated Press

Britain and Norway offered to reduce their North Sea oil prices by $3 a barrel Friday, and an Arab oil minister said two OPEC members were planning to cut their prices by larger amounts.

While the British and Norwegian actions alone will have slight impact on retail gasoline prices in the United States, the cuts are evidence of pressures which are likely to drive gasoline and heating oil prices down.

The price reductions by the state oil companies of Britain and Norway to $30.50 a barrel made it increasingly likely that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would soon be forced to reduce its base price of $34 a barrel.

Each $1 drop in the price of crude oil translates to a drop of 2½ cents per gallon in gasoline prices. But since only 6 percent of U.S. oil comes from the North Sea, Friday's cuts would work out to about half a penny at the pump.

Recent cuts in U.S. crude oil prices — plus likely reductions by other big producers — raise the possibility that gasoline prices could fall even more sharply.

In Kuwait, oil minister Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah said two OPEC members who produce oil grades competitive with North Sea oil were discussing plans to undercut Britain's and Norway's prices by 50 cents a barrel.

Although he did not name them, the two countries are believed to be Nigeria and Libya, whose official selling price is $35.50 a barrel.

Nigeria had told the companies that produce its oil that its national oil company would announce a price cut of between $4.50 and $5.50 a barrel this weekend, according to industry sources in London who did not want to be identified. There was no public confirmation by Nigeria.

Nigeria is particularly pressed to match a cut in the North Sea price because its oil competes with North Sea oil in European markets. Also, Nigeria's faltering economy has been hurt already by a recent plunge in oil exports. Nigerian production is estimated to have fallen to about 600,000 barrels a day, compared with 900,000 in January and about 1.3 million in December.

"The Nigerians have got to come down" in price, said Dillard Spriggs, president of Petroleum Analysis Ltd., an oil consulting firm in New York.

Apparently anticipating a price cut by Nigeria, the price of Nigerian crude dropped more than $5 a barrel in the open market Friday, to about $24.50. The prices of other crudes, including those from the North Sea, were lit changed.

North Sea oil sold for $29 a barrel the open market Friday.

Prices have been edging lower months, mainly because of excess s plies and weak demand for oil pr ucts.

Analysts in the United States ha said in recent days they see an incre ing chance that OPEC will be forced reduce its base price to $30 or low Any cut would be the first in the year history of the organization.

After two weeks, judge approves PSA-Braniff deal

FORT WORTH (AP) — A federal judge and the Civil Aeronautics Board approved a plan Friday to return some of grounded Braniff International's planes and employees to the air as part of Pacific Southwest Airlines.

U.S. District Judge Eldon Mahon had been reviewing the plan for two weeks. U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers approved it Jan. 31.

Braniff, faced with debts of about $1 billion, ceased operations May 12 and filed for protection from its creditors the next day in Flowers' court.

Under the proposal, PSA would hire about 2,000 former Braniff employees and lease 30 Braniff jets for a division based at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

"I am convinced this is the best that can be achieved under the circumstances," Flowers said in approving the plan. "The PSA agreement offers Braniff, its estate and its creditors a deal at least 25 percent better than liquidation and would eliminate lengthy and costly" court proceedings.

He said creditors could expect 9 cents on the dollar if Braniff were liquidated. Under the PSA agreement, creditors could be paid 12 cents for each dollar, even if no profit was made by PSA, Flowers said.

Following Mahon's ruling, American Airlines, one of the deal's most active opponents, said it would appeal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

American filed a motion asking Mahon to delay implementation of his ruling until the appeals court acts. The 5th Circuit has 10 days to rule on Mahon's decision.

In addition to American, five other airlines — Delta, Continental, Northwest, Southwest and Muse — oppose the agreement, as do unions representing Braniff machinists, pilots and flight attendants.

Flowers also said PSA qualified as a successor airline to Braniff — and therefore was entitled to Braniff's landing slots, which were given to competing airlines after Braniff shut down last spring.

Mahon ordered the Federal Aviation Administration to turn over some of Braniff's old landing slots to PSA.

The FAA opposed Flowers' finding, maintaining that PSA is not entitled to the slots because the San Diego-based carrier is not a successor airline.

Flowers and Braniff officials have said the FAA could create additional slots to accommodate both PSA and competing airlines.

The CAB, which had been asked by both Braniff and American for its opinion on the agreement, said in Washington that the deal would enhance competition at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, where PSA wants to base a new Texas division.

"If we assume that all of the slots PSA's Texas division would gain came at the expense of other carriers — the worst case assumption — we could not conclude that competition would be substantially harmed," the board said.

The CAB also found that the agreement may provide "significant public benefits in the form of employement of former Braniff workers, the utilization of idle aircraft, and the possibility of substantial new services for the D-FW hub."

PSA wants to hire about 2,000 former Braniff employees and lease 30 Braniff jets for the operation.

Dr. Juan Perez Valladarez

Monahans physician acquitted

MONAHANS (AP) — A jury Friday acquitted a popular small-town physician accused of trying to hasten the death of a mortally wounded patient by injecting air into the victim's vein.

"Justice took place," declared Dr. Juan Perez Valladarez, believed to be the first physician to stand trial for attempted murder by air injection. "I was always innocent."

Perez, 57, was charged with attempting to kill Michael S. Hoffman by injecting a 20-cubic-centimeter syringe full of air into the victim while Hoffman was being treated at Ward Memorial Hospital Nov. 4, 1981.

Hoffman, 28, died 40 minutes after he was shot once through his forehead, but a pathologist testified that the injection was not the cause of death.

Administration agrees to let investigators see EPA papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House and congressional negotiators agreed Friday night that investigators for the House of Representatives could see documents withheld under a claim of executive privilege. That could resolve a constitutional dispute that has bedeviled the administration for months.

A key part of the agreement provides that the House of Representatives must vote that Anne M. Gorsuch, head of the Environmental Protection Administration, has complied with a subpoena demanding the documents and thus is no longer in contempt of Congress.

Her refusal on orders of President Reagan to give up the documents led to a vote by the House in December that found her in contempt.

The agreement was announced on Capitol Hill by White House counsel Fred Fielding, Deputy Attorney General Edward C. Schmults and Rep. Elliott H. Levitas, D-Ga., chairman of the subcommittee seeking the documents.

Levitas called the agreement, reached after a four-hour meeting Friday night, an "historic document resolving a historic constitutional confrontation."

Levitas said the documents would be shown to the subcommittee members, and Fielding said executive privilege was not compromised because the security of the documents would be assured.

The five-page agreement lays out an intricate procedu for getting the documents to Congress, particularly t so-called "enforcement-sensitive" papers the administrati had refused to yield — documents whose disclosure t administration contended could jeopardize lawsuits again polluters.

Under the agreement, the committee would be give edited copies of the documents and be briefed on the co tent of what was being withheld.

If the subcommittee desired, it could then review the un dited versions in closed session. Two committee staf experts also could review the unedited versions if Levitas o the ranking Republican member of the panel desired.

The question of actually giving unedited copies to th subcommittee to keep was left open. The agreement pro vides only that the subcommittee would "have the right t pursue all lawful efforts to obtain the documents in ques tion."

The agreement provides that an "essential and nonsepar able condition" of the compromise is passage by the Hous of a resolution voiding the contempt action with a findin that Mrs. Gorsuch had complied with the House subpoena.

For his part, Levitas promised to "undertake and use hi best efforts to introduce appropriate resolutions for consid eration by the commitee and the House of Representatives."

EPA money unaccounted for

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency, already embroiled in charges of conflict of interest and political favoritism, cannot account for how $53.6 million of its "superfund" hazardous waste money was spent last year, according to an audit report released Friday.

The EPA inspector general's report said the agency's records could not verify that the money — nearly 30 percent of the total spending from the $1.6 billion superfund in 1982 — actually went to intended purposes.

Rep. James Scheuer of New York, who released the report along with fellow Democrat Rep. Mike Synar of Oklahoma, said the figures showed "unbelievably amateurish, incompetent management that has been going on for well over a year."

The report did not charge the $53.6 million has been misspent, but it said the agency's records were so poorly kept it was not possible to tell whether the money had gone to superfund activities or other agency work, or if some of it had simply gone awry.

"At best, EPA officials have been sloppy and incompetent," Scheuer said. "At worst, they may have been knowingly looting superfund" for other EPA activities.

An EPA statement telephoned to news organizations early Friday evening said "Irresponsible charges of 'looting' the superfund...are not based on fact but are driven by the prevailing hysteria coming from a small number of politically opportunistic members o Congress."

The agency said the auditors las year found a possible $369,000, less than 1 percent of the total, and the compara ble figure in this year's report is $177,000, less than 0.1 percent.

The $53.6 million represents simply inadequately documented expenditures, and will be adjusted according to "standard accounting procedures," the agency said.

Synar said the audit does not confirm wrongdoing by the agency, but raises serious questions. He said it would be "unfair and premature to accuse the administration of anything" until investigators look deeper.

Ex-CIA agent Wilson sentenced to jail

Judge denies he's 'dangerous, special offender'

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge sentenced former CIA agent Edwin Wilson to 17 years in prison Friday for smuggling plastic explosives to Libya, but denied prosecutors' request to declare him a "dangerous, special offender" that could have meant an additional eight years.

The judge also fined Wilson $145,000, the maximum allowed.

Wilson has already been sentenced to 15 years for smuggling weapons and was indicted this week on charges of trying to hire a hit man to kill prosecutors and witnesses.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling told prosecutors at the outset of the sentencing hearing that he was not inclined to grant the special designation. "I really feel that the sentencing alternatives are quite adequate," he said.

At the hearing, Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Powers presented three witnesses who testified on Wilson's previous record.

The 17-year sentence was the maximum Wilson could have received on the four counts of smuggling explosives.

"In one way we're disappointed, but pleased that the judge recognized that the 'dangerous, special offender' was not applicable," defense attorney Marian Rosen said.

Ms. Rosen said the case would be appealed.

Wilson was convicted Feb. 6 of smuggling 21 tons of the plastic explosive C-4, disguised as a petroleum drilling ingredient, from Houston to Tripoli in October 1977.

Wilson and his 22-year-old son, Erik, were indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury in New York on charges they plotted to pay $1.25 million for the killings of two prosecutors and six witnesses while the elder Wilson was being held in the federal jail in New York.

Wilson, 54, also faces trial in Washington, D.C., on charges of conspiring to murder a Libyan defector and to train terrorists for Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

Wilson was convicted in November in Alexandria, Va., of smuggling weapons. He was sentenced to 15 years and a $200,000 fine.

Charges against the Wilsons include conspiracy to murder, attempted murder, criminal solicitation, obstruction of justice, witness tampering and retaliation against witnesses.

Quake experts disagree

Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — Earthquake experts from around the world were told earthquakes can't be predicted, but one disbeliever promptly said the next major quake will be along the San Andreas fault in Southern California.

Despite an abundance of theories about the next "big one," Clarence Allen, director of the Southern California Seismographic Network, cautioned the International Earthquake Conference here:

"Our progress is not as rapid as we would have hoped five years ago... Routine earthquake prediction remains a goal, not a reality."

BUT another leading geologist, Caltech professor Kerry Sieh, predicted the next big quake is likely to hit along the southern leg of the San Andreas Fault between Palmdale and the Mexican border within the next 20 years.

"We've entered a 'window of vulnerability' in terms of earthquakes in Southern California," Sieh said following the opening session.

And Koshi Yamaura, deputy director of Earthquake Disaster Countermeasures Division for the Japanese government, said earthquake forecasting is widely respected in his country.

"We know more about predicting earthquakes than (in the United States)," Yamaura said through an interpreter. He said laws have been enacted on the basis of scientists' predictions.

Allen, Sieh and Yamaura presented differing views of the state of the art in forecasting at the weeklong earthquake conference, sponsored by the city of Los Angeles.

ABOUT 350 scientists and government planners from 26 countries are attending the conference, aimed at updating officials on the latest in earthquake phenomena.

Seismologists agree the Los Angeles area is particularly vulnerable to a major quake. The southern part of the San Andreas Fault hasn't suffered a major temblor since 1857, and there's evidence of increasing pressure along the fault line.

But Allen, a professor of geology and geophysics at CalTech, thinks it's impossible to pinpoint exactly where the quake might hit. He said techniques that looked promising five years ago, everything from changes in seismic wave patterns to the homing instinct in pigeons, had proved "disappointing."

RECENT rumblings along the San Andreas fault were not necessarily precursors of a major quake, according to Allen. Earthquake swarms that have hit the Mammoth Lakes area in the last month probably were more related to movement of underground lava flows, rather than along the fault line, he said.

Sieh, however, believes geologists can narrow the odds in predicting the next major event.

If, as some scientists theorize, earthquakes occur along the San Andreas Fault every 145 years, Southern California stands a 1 percent to 2 percent chance of suffering a great quake, 7.5 or above, in the next year, and a roughly 25 percent chance by the year 2000.

SIEH TOLD the conference that a smaller quake, registering less than 6 on the Richter scale, was likely to hit sometime in the next 25 years, triggering a major event. That event may occur in central California, in the remote coastal mountain ranges near San Luis Obispo.

In a later session, Mexican architect Mario Soso warned of the dangers presented by earthquake forecasting. He pointed out that a prediction of an earthquake in the town of Pinotepa near Acapulco in April 1978 led to widespread panic, including rumors of a tidal wave and mass destruction.

Boy's attempted rescue fails

Brothers, sisters die in Sugar Land fire

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) — A 13-year-old boy was described as a "valiant little kid" after his unsuccessful effort to save two brothers and a sister from a mobile home fire Friday.

The three dead youngsters, all of whom died of smoke inhalation, were Gilbert, 11, Anthony, 7, and Matilda, 9, all children of Lucy Rangel, 29, said Lt. Tiny Gaston of the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Department.

The mother and her 5-year-old son, Mickey, escaped uninjured from the 4 a.m. fire. The 13-year-old, Erasmo, was burned on the arms and chest and was listed in stable condition at Alief General Hospital.

Also Friday, a woman and her daughter died in a fire at a sixth floor condominium in southwest Houston. Other homes in the 16-floor building suffered little or no damage, fire officials said.

Temple Gail Warner, 94, and Janice Woosley, 63, who had moved to the building two weeks ago, apparently died of smoke inhalation in the Houston fire which occurred about 12:20 a.m., officials said.

In the Sugar Land fire, Erasmo awoke his mother and fled with her but then tried to go back to save the others, Gaston said.

"He tried to get back in and he just couldn't. The flames were rolling out of the house pretty good then," he said. "He's a valiant little kid."

"He's in a lot of pain, but he looks like he's going to be all right," Gaston said.

Pete Pavlovsky, deputy fire marshal for Fort Bend County, said Erasmo told him that he woke up when he heard his sister screaming.

The mother and 5-year-old were in one bedroom and the others in another bedroom. Pavlovsky said the fire began in the room where the four children were sleeping around a heater.

"This is pending the autopsy and further investigation, but we're looking real hard at an electric space heater too close to bedding material" as the cause of the fire, Pavlovsky said.

The fire melted the mobile home, which was about three miles from Sugar Land and 25 miles southwest of downtown Houston.

Harrelson ruling delayed

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — After hearing a construction worker testify about a murder cult, a federal judge delayed his ruling on a new trial for Charles Harrelson, convicted of killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions delayed his formal ruling on Harrelson's motion after Thursday's hearing. But he said he wasn't convinced a new trial was in order for Harrelson, who was convicted last December of killing Wood for a $250,000 fee.

The testimony about a professional murder ring known as the "Black Wings" came from 31-year-old James E. Benskin of Austin, who said he saw a man and two women discuss the cult at a Victoria restaurant on Halloween 1978.

He identified one of the women as local attorney Chrys Lambros, who testified at Harrelson's trial that she saw Harrelson outside Wood's San Antonio townhouse the morning the judge was shot to death.

"I've seen her in this courtroom and I've seen her in Victoria," said Benskin, who testified he worked in Victoria in 1978.

Ms. Lambros did not testify Thursday, but has said she was in San Antonio the day Benskin said he saw her in Victoria with another woman and a man he identified as Charles Brazil. She has denied knowing anyone named Brazil.

The construction worker said Brazil talked of joining the "Black Wings," which he described as a mysterious murder ring specializing in killing important people. Brazil often wore a green fatigue jacket of the type Ms. Lambros testified Harrelson wore on the day the judge was shot, Benskin said.

Benskin said prosecutors never believed his story that Brazil and a friend named "Tom" killed Wood, and that he wrote to President Reagan trying to find a receptive forum.

Harrelson's motion for a new trial was based on the premise that prosecutors did not tell Harrelson's attorney of Benskin's contention that Brazil had killed the judge.

Benskin said a crane operator dropped him to the ground while at a Victoria construction site six days after the judge was shot and he believes he was "brainwashed" while at the hospital recovering from his injuries.

Pretrial hearing for Sharp put off at prosecutors' reque

KERMIT (AP) — A pretrial hearing for convicted killer Michael Eugene Sharp was postponed Friday after prosecutors said they needed more time to prepare objections to a motion to move his capital murder trial.

Kermit County District Attorney Mike Fostel said he did not know until he read the newspaper Thursday night who had signed the affidavits for a change of venue.

State District Judge James delayed the pretrial hearing fro day to March 7.

Sharp is charged with capital m in the June 1982 stabbing dea Brenda Kay Broadway of Kermit.

He was convicted in Lubboc November in the murder of her ter, 8-year-old Christi, and senten life in prison.

Nuclear waste site sought

AUSTIN (AP) — The search for a permanent storage place in Texas for low-level radioactive waste was under way Friday.

The state hired Dames and Moore, a Houston-based environmental consulting firm, on Thursday to find five potential sites. The Houston company signed a $589,000 contract with the Texas Low-Level Waste Disposal Authority, winning out over 21 other firms.

Rick Jacobi, general manager of the authority, said Dames and Moore will propose the sites after surveying geological and environmental data gathered by groups such as the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas.

"It will probably be the spring of 1984 before a final site is designated," Jacobi said. "These sites are always controversial, so we want to keep the public involved. We plan to have a citizen's advisory panel.'

Urban areas, flood-prone coastal plains and recharge zones for aquifers can be ruled out almost automatically, Jacobi said.

By the time the dump opens in 1988, Texas is expected to be generating more than five times as much nuclear waste, he said. Most comes from hospitals and research facilities operated by the University of Texas system. Four nuclear power plant units may be operating by 1988, boosting the state's waste production from 25,000 cubic feet a year to 137,000 cubic feet, he said.

Low-level waste includes such materials as X-ray film and contaminated garments or tools. It does not include spent nuclear fuel.

Nuclear waste from Texas is shipped to a dump in Hanford, Wash., but that state will stop accepting Texas waste in a few years.

Quake experts disagree

Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — Earthquake experts from around the world were told earthquakes can't be predicted, but one disbeliever promptly said the next major quake will be along the San Andreas fault in Southern California.

Despite an abundance of theories about the next "big one," Clarence Allen, director of the Southern California Seismographic Network, cautioned the International Earthquake Conference here:

"Our progress is not as rapid as we would have hoped five years ago... Routine earthquake prediction remains a goal, not a reality."

BUT another leading geologist, Caltech professor Kerry Sieh, predicted the next big quake is likely to hit along the southern leg of the San Andreas Fault between Palmdale and the Mexican border within the next 20 years.

"We've entered a 'window of vulnerability' in terms of earthquakes in Southern California," Sieh said following the opening session.

And Koshi Yamaura, deputy director of Earthquake Disaster Countermeasures Division for the Japanese government, said earthquake forecasting is widely respected in his country.

"We know more about predicting earthquakes than (in the United States)," Yamaura said through an interpreter. He said laws have been enacted on the basis of scientists' predictions.

Allen, Sieh and Yamaura presented differing views of the state of the art in forecasting at the weeklong earthquake conference, sponsored by the city of Los Angeles.

ABOUT 350 scientists and government planners from 26 countries are attending the conference, aimed at updating officials on the latest in earthquake phenomena.

Seismologists agree the Los Angeles area is particularly vulnerable to a major quake. The southern part of the San Andreas Fault hasn't suffered a major temblor since 1857, and there's evidence of increasing pressure along the fault line.

But Allen, a professor of geology and geophysics at CalTech, thinks it's impossible to pinpoint exactly where the quake might hit. He said techniques that looked promising five years ago, everything from changes in seismic wave patterns to the homing instinct in pigeons, had proved "disappointing."

RECENT rumblings along the San Andreas fault were not necessarily precursors of a major quake, according to Allen. Earthquake swarms that have hit the Mammoth Lakes area in the last month probably were more related to movement of underground lava flows, rather than along the fault line, he said.

Sieh, however, believes geologists can narrow the odds in predicting the next major event.

If, as some scientists theorize, earthquakes occur along the San Andreas Fault every 145 years, Southern California stands a 1 percent to 2 percent chance of suffering a great quake, 7.5 or above, in the next year, and a roughly 25 percent chance by the year 2000.

SIEH TOLD the conference that a smaller quake, registering less than 6 on the Richter scale, was likely to hit sometime in the next 25 years, triggering a major event. That event may occur in central California, in the remote coastal mountain ranges near San Luis Obispo.

In a later session, Mexican architect Mario Soso warned of the dangers presented by earthquake forecasting. He pointed out that a prediction of an earthquake in the town of Pinotepa near Acapulco in April 1978 led to widespread panic, including rumors of a tidal wave and mass destruction.

Boy's attempted rescue fails

Brothers, sisters die in Sugar Land fire

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) — A 13-year-old boy was described as a "valiant little kid" after his unsuccessful effort to save two brothers and a sister from a mobile home fire Friday.

The three dead youngsters, all of whom died of smoke inhalation, were Gilbert, 11, Anthony, 7, and Matilda, 9, all children of Lucy Rangel, 29, said Lt. Tiny Gaston of the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Department.

The mother and her 5-year-old son, Mickey, escaped uninjured from the 4 a.m. fire. The 13-year-old, Erasmo, was burned on the arms and chest and was listed in stable condition at Alief General Hospital.

Also Friday, a woman and her daughter died in a fire at a sixth floor condominium in southwest Houston. Other homes in the 16-floor building suffered little or no damage, fire officials said.

Temple Gail Warner, 94, and Janice Woosley, 63, who had moved to the building two weeks ago, apparently died of smoke inhalation in the Houston fire which occurred about 12:20 a.m., officials said.

In the Sugar Land fire, Erasmo awoke his mother and fled with her but then tried to go back to save the others, Gaston said.

"He tried to get back in and he just couldn't. The flames were rolling out of the house pretty good then," he said. "He's a valiant little kid."

"He's in a lot of pain, but he looks like he's going to be all right," Gaston said.

Pete Pavlovsky, deputy fire marshal for Fort Bend County, said Erasmo told him that he woke up when he heard his sister screaming.

The mother and 5-year-old were in one bedroom and the others in another bedroom. Pavlovsky said the fire began in the room where the four children were sleeping around a heater.

"This is pending the autopsy and further investigation, but we're looking real hard at an electric space heater too close to bedding material" as the cause of the fire, Pavlovsky said.

The fire melted the mobile home, which was about three miles from Sugar Land and 25 miles southwest of downtown Houston.

Harrelson ruling delayed

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — After hearing a construction worker testify about a murder cult, a federal judge delayed his ruling on a new trial for Charles Harrelson, convicted of killing U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions delayed his formal ruling on Harrelson's motion after Thursday's hearing. But he said he wasn't convinced a new trial was in order for Harrelson, who was convicted last December of killing Wood for a $250,000 fee.

The testimony about a professional murder ring known as the "Black Wings" came from 31-year-old James E. Benskin of Austin, who said he saw a man and two women discuss the cult at a Victoria restaurant on Halloween 1978.

He identified one of the women as local attorney Chrys Lambros, who testified at Harrelson's trial that she saw Harrelson outside Wood's San Antonio townhouse the morning the judge was shot to death.

"I've seen her in this courtroom and I've seen her in Victoria," said Benskin, who testified he worked in Victoria in 1978.

Ms. Lambros did not testify Thursday, but has said she was in San Antonio the day Benskin said he saw her in Victoria with another woman and a man he identified as Charles Brazil. She has denied knowing anyone named Brazil.

The construction worker said Brazil talked of joining the "Black Wings," which he described as a mysterious murder ring specializing in killing important people. Brazil often wore a green fatigue jacket of the type Ms. Lambros testified Harrelson wore on the day the judge was shot, Benskin said.

Benskin said prosecutors never believed his story that Brazil and a friend named "Tom" killed Wood, and that he wrote to President Reagan trying to find a receptive forum.

Harrelson's motion for a new trial was based on the premise that prosecutors did not tell Harrelson's attorney of Benskin's contention that Brazil had killed the judge.

Benskin said a crane operator dropped him to the ground while at a Victoria construction site six days after the judge was shot and he believes he was "brainwashed" while at the hospital recovering from his injuries.

Pretrial hearing for Michael Eugene Sharp, left, was postponed Fri

Pretrial hearing for Sharp put off at prosecutors' reque

KERMIT (AP) — A pretrial hearing for convicted killer Michael Eugene Sharp was postponed Friday after prosecutors said they needed more time to prepare objections to a motion to move his capital murder trial.

Kermit County District Attorney Mike Fostel said he did not know until he read the newspaper Thursday night who had signed the affidavits for a change of venue.

State District Judge James delayed the pretrial hearing fr day to March 7.

Sharp is charged with capital m in the June 1982 stabbing de Brenda Kay Broadway of Kermit

He was convicted in Lubbo November in the murder of her ter, 8-year-old Christi, and sente life in prison.

Nuclear waste site sought

AUSTIN (AP) — The search for a permanent storage place in Texas for low-level radioactive waste was under way Friday.

The state hired Dames and Moore, a Houston-based environmental consulting firm, on Thursday to find five potential sites. The Houston company signed a $589,000 contract with the Texas Low-Level Waste Disposal Authority, winning out over 21 other firms.

Rick Jacobi, general manager of the authority, said Dames and Moore will propose the sites after surveying geological and environmental data gathered by groups such as the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas.

"It will probably be the spring of 1984 before a final site is designated," Jacobi said. "These sites are always controversial, so we want to keep the public involved. We plan to have a citizen's advisory panel.'

Urban areas, flood-prone coastal plains and recharge zones for aquifers can be ruled out almost automatically, Jacobi said.

By the time the dump opens in 1988, Texas is expected to be generating more than five times as much nuclear waste, he said. Most comes from hospitals and research facilities operated by the University of Texas system. Four nuclear power plant units may be operating by 1988, boosting the state's waste production from 25,000 cubic feet a year to 137,000 cubic feet, he said.

Low-level waste includes such materials as X-ray film and contaminated garments or tools. It does not include spent nuclear fuel.

Nuclear waste from Texas is shipped to a dump in Hanford, Wash., but that state will stop accepting Texas waste in a few years.

Jury of patients acquits doctor

The jurors, eight of whom were Perez's patients, deliberated two hours before returning the verdict at 1:15 p.m. CST.

Perez stood up and clasped his hands to his chest as the verdict was announced. His wife, Argelia, wept.

After the verdict was announced, a crowd of about 30 of Perez's friends lined up to shake the physician's hand and hug his wife. Cars streamed past the courthouse honking their horns as news of the acquittal spread.

Jury foreman Edna Hopkins Bragg said the acquittal was a "tough decision," and juror Beatrice Reyes Martinez, whose family has been treated by Perez, said the verdict was reached on the second jury vote.

Juror Lee Ann Edwards said jurors decided to acquit Perez because "there was not enough evidence" against him.

The Cuban-born doctor said he plans to remain in Monahans, where he has practiced medicine for 15 years, and return to the hospital where the patient died.

Special prosecutor Dennis Cadra said the trial "was an uphill battle all the way." He said he did not plan to pursue the case.

In final arguments Friday morning, Cadra said Perez wanted "to speed along the death of" Hoffman, a Bloomington, Ind., truckdriver shot during a barroom brawl in this West Texas town of 9,000.

James Ralph Echols of El Paso is charged with murder in the Hoffman killing, and is being held on a 1982 robbery charge in Riverside, Calif.

"There is no other reason to inject air" into a human than to cause a fatal embolism, Cadra told jurors.

Defense attorney Warren Burnett told jurors in closing arguments that 20 cubic centimeters of air could not "reasonably be calculated to cause death, or even serious bodily injury."

He concluded his statements by telling jurors, "Isn't that the end of it?"

The trial attracted national attention because of several aspects.

Of the 12 jurors who heard the case, 10 were patients of Perez or had family members treated by him. District Attorney Mike Wade and State District Judge Lawrence Fuller disqualified themselves because they had been treated by Perez.

No change of venue was sought, Cadra said, because he thought the motion would be denied.

Presiding Judge Joe Connally of nearby Odessa said he would have overruled a change of venue, pointing out that one jury member was the son of the grand jury foreman who indicted the doctor.

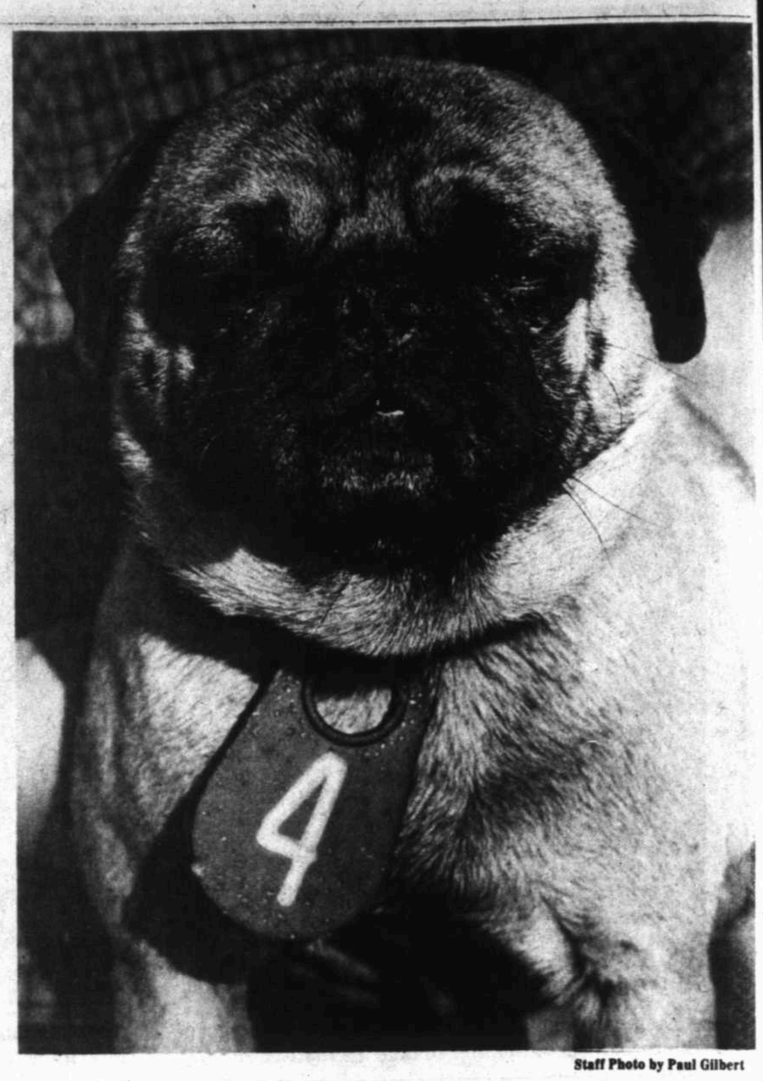

Connally also announced Thursday this was "the first trial on murder by air ejection in Texas, and as far as I have discovered, the first in the nation."

The American Medical Association in Chicago said no physician ever has been convicted of attempted murder or murder for injecting air into a patient's bloodstream.

In oil-rich Monahans, "where everybody knows everybody" Cadra said he doubted anyone wanted to convict Perez.

Cadra even suggested in closing arguments that Connally not sentence Perez to a day in jail.

"I'm not saying (Perez) was evil. I'm saying he was wrong...Hoffman was still alive. I don't think this act should be allowed, but in this community you set your own standards."

Bell protests PUC handling of refunds

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell on Friday asked a district court here to throw out the $243.9 million rate increase that the Public Utility Commission granted the company.

Bell had sought a $471.5 million increase in the 1982 rate case.

Company officials said their lawsuit seeks a temporary injunction to halt refunds the PUC ordered them to make to customers and restoration of an additional $61.5 million rate increase they had requested to pay fees to Bell's parent company, AT&T.

The company also complains of the way the rate hearing was handled last year by PUC hearing examiners.

Bell had gone ahead and put higher rates into effect in anticipation of the rate increase. But the rate that the PUC granted was lower than the rates Bell had begun charging, so the PUC ordered refunds paid.

Bell does not dispute the refunds, but does dispute the way the PUC calculated them. Bell contends it owes customers $8 million. Under the PUC system of figuring refunds, Bell must pay back $29.4 million.

The company was given until May 17 to repay the overcharge.

Last fall, the company and the PUC agreed to settle court appeals Bell filed over the 1980 and 1981 rates granted by the PUC.

The 1980 case had gone all the way to the Texas Supreme Court, which refused to halt the refunds Bell had been ordered to pay that year. Bell had lost the first round in the 1981 case when a district judge refused to grant a temporary injunction to block the refunds, but the settlement halted court proceedings.

In the current case, Bell also wants the court to allow it to charge Texas customers an additional $61.5 million which would go to its parent company, AT&T for "license contract" services it says are required under a federal divestiture order.

Craddick bill provides owner security

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, has introduced legislation providing for oil and gas producers and royalty owners to retain a security interest in their production after an initial sale.

HB 846 provides that an interest owner has a "continuing purchase money security interest in and a lien on" such production, and the proceeds from the sale of such production by the first purchaser, "until the purchase price, royalty owned to the state and taxes have been paid to the person entitled to receive those payments."

Such legislation was recommended last year by former Gov. Bill Clements and some oil and gas groups to assure payment to producers and royalty owners.

The bill also sets out provisions regarding termination of liens in cases where disputes arise, the manner of perfecting and enforcing liens and related matters.

The bill would take effect Sept. 1, 1983.

Also included in the bill are provisions for bringing suits to recover funds claimed to be owed and for consolidation of such suits.

Hatfield to seek re-election

Jesse Hatfield announced Friday he will run for re-election to Place 1 on Midland City Council.

He was elected to his first term two years ago. Hatfield recalled that when he first decided to seek the post, he wanted to commit himself to four years, if he could get re-elected.

"We've got a lot to do in Midland," he said of the council's work, mentioning the difficulty of keeping up with street paving and pothole repairs.

His business experience has helped, said Hatfield, who is with Taylor Sporting Goods.

Hatfield noted that most people don't realize how city government works, and the first two years on the council have been a learning experience for him.

"I've thoroughly enjoyed it," he said. "It's been a pleasure for me to work with the rest of the council and the department heads.

"It take four years to contribute and do something."

Deadline to file for the April 2 election is March 2.

'Customers' surprise store

HUMBLE, Texas (AP) — Three deer crashed through the plate glass windows of a supermarket in this community north of Houston, injuring a worker before employees herded and tugged the animals out of the store.

Betty Ross, a 29-year-old checker, was treated at a local hospital for bruises she suffered when the deer, all does, crashed through the window and landed on her about 10 a.m. Thursday, store director Steve James said.

Employees herded two deer out the door and dragged another one that was stunned by the impact.

Police Lt. D.O. McArthur said he heard one report that a man stopped and loaded two animals in a truck after they came out of the store, but said the account was not confirmed.

'Tintypes' member of competition in Odessa festival

ODESSA — "Tintypes" is among the three productions competing in today's 1983 Festival of American Community Theatres. Showtime is 7 p.m. at Permian Playhouse of Odessa.

Sponsored by Texas Non-Profit Theatres, Inc., the Odessa festival is one of four area competitions held throughout Texas during February and March. The Odessa competition covers performing groups from the western quadrant of Texas.

Other entries in addition to Midland Community Theatre are Permian Playhouse's "The Elephant Man" and El Paso's "My Island Home." Two of the entries will advance to the state competitions slated for Houston's Nine Vance Alley Theatre April 1-3.

One state representative will then gain entry in the five-state regional FACT competition, held April 22-24 in Denton, and the regional winner will compete in the national Festival of Community Theatres in Haines, Alaska, June 8-12. The winner in Alaska will then be sent to the international competition in Japan.

Judge for Saturday's competition is Maurice Berger of Southern University in New Orleans. Each one-hour production will be judged on acting and technical expertise. An oral critique will be given at the end of each of the three plays.

"Elephant Man" will be onstage beginning at 7 p.m., followed by "Tintypes" at 8:20 p.m. and "My Island Home" at 9:40 p.m. Following all three, Berger will announce which two will go on to the Houston competition.

Tickets, priced at $7, may be purchased at the door.

Friday night fire damages house trailer south of town

A trailer house just off County Road 132 East south of Midland sustained heavy smoke damage in a Friday night fire.

"We were packing some things to move earlier this evening, and I had a cigarette on an ashtray and it fell off on some trash sacks," said owner R.C. Miller of Route 4, Box 460, who resides next to the trailer house. "I doused it with water, but we never could get rid of the smoke smell."

Miller added that embers "evidently got inside the walls," but went unnoticed until smoke was observed billowing out of the unoccupied house about 10:40 p.m.

The trailer contained only "a few things," said the owner. "I was planning on selling it or renting it out, but now I'll have to rebuild (it) before I can do anything."

Two firetrucks carrying water and two additional vehicles transporting firemen responded to the call.

California to receive short-term loan next week

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The state will get a $428 million short-term loan to tide it over its current cash crunch, meaning IOUs for income tax refunds will be cashable immediately, Treasurer Jesse Unruh said Friday.

The loan will come through by Wednesday, the day the state is expected to run out of cash, he said. The state printed 103,665 IOUs for income tax refunds Friday.

Unruh's office said the 14-day loan by Morgan Guarantee, Security Pacific, Wells Fargo and Citibank, at 6 percent interest, will tide the state over until it can obtain a longer-term $850 million loan early next month.

"This agreement has taken place in less time than it would take most people to get a used car loan for $1,500, primarily because of the support and cooperation that the banks have lent to the state," said Unruh aide Michael Gagan.

The longer-term loan will enable the state to pay its bills through the end of the fiscal year, Unruh said in a statement.

The interim loan was necessary because the Legislature and Gov. George Deukmejian were late in approving a compromise to deal with the state's $1.5 billion deficit.

The compromise reduced the deficit to $900 million and carried the rest over to next year, to be repaid through spending cuts, increased revenues if the economy improves or a standby 1-cent increase in the 6-cent sales tax.

But the agreement, after 2½ months of battles, was too late to prevent Controller Ken Cory from having to print the registered warrants, which are IOUs that can't be cashed until the state has the money.

Cory will decide by early next week whether to send out the 103,665 IOUs or replace them with regular checks, said aide John Jervis.

He said the controller's office has to print other checks in the next week and might not have time to reprint the 103,665 refunds.

If the registered warrants are mailed Wednesday, they'll be accompanied by a notice saying they can be "cashed at full face value immediately," Jervis said.

Overseas bankers pump billions into Brazil to keep it afloa

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Overseas bankers are pumping billions of dollars in loans into Brazil despite its debt to them and other foreign institutiions and countries of nearly $90 billion. Foreign economists here say it has to be done to keep afloat a nation they consider important in the Western scheme.

"From an economic point of view it may be risky, but from a political point of view, most of us here would like banks to continue lending," said one of the economists attached to foreign embassies in this capital.

The economists agreed to discuss Brazil's financial crisis in separate interviews on the condition that they remain anonymous because of their diplomatic status and the delicacy of their missions here.

After two decades of rapid and progressive moves from a mainly agricultural exporter into a semi-industrialized country, Brazil found itself tangled in the mire of worldwide recession. It faced depressed export markets, dwindling loan dollars and a mounting foreign debt.

BRAZIL'S MILITARY-backed government in October proposed tight fiscal policies based on increased exports, decreased imports and cuts in federal spending. It also has vowed to cut inflation from 99.7 percent in 1982 to 70 percent this year.

The embassy economists termed the plans "overly optimistic."

In December, the country's financial leaders appealed to the representatives of more than 120 foreign banks for a $16.8 billion loan package to meet this year's needs.

Bankers, in many cases at the urging of their governments, are agreeing to the loans. Among the reasons offered by the embassy economists:

— Foreign banks, especially in the United States, have loaned Brazil so much money so far that they cannot afford to pull out and take the loss.

— Brazil is the fith largest country in the world in size and has the ninth largest economy with a $285 billion gross national product.

— IT IS STRONGLY anti-communist, has taken a role as a Third World leader, and has been moving to return the country of 125 million people to civilian rule after almost 19 years of military-backed governments.

— Brazil has a diversified economy and is abundant in untapped natural resources, with a potential ability to pay its debts.

"It is in the interest of the Western world, with the political system that we hope will develop in Brazil, that we demonstrate our support," a West European embassy official said.

Another economist said that the bankers are backing Brazil because they have "a fair amount of confidence in the management ability of the Brazilians."

Finance Minister Ernane Galveas blames the country's economic crisis on three outside factors: the world recession, high U.S. interest rates and the financial problems that struck other countries.

He said the recession was a result of the sharp rise in oil prices in the 1970s. Brazil was hit particularly hard because it must import close to 70 percent of its oil. The prospect of further declines in oil prices this year could be helpful to Brazil.

THE HIGH interest rates led to reductions in inventories, a depression in prices of primary goods and a drop in exports.

"We are living in a crisis that is not ours," the finance minister maintained.

Some of the economists contended, however, that Brazil has failed to assume its share of the respons

"They had over-ambitious ment projects and lacked the that external indebtedness w ing," an embassy official said.

"Brazil based its growth o said another embassy economi borrowed heavily and hoped t economy would improve."

The new fiscal policy, which an increase in the trade surpl last year's $775 million to $6 b 1983, is viewed by some of the mists as difficult and by other of the question.

"A LOT OF people are sk because it assumes some pic world trade," said one of the e officials.

Candidate drawn into scandal

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The name of the head of Brazil's intelligence agency — a leading candidate to become the nation's next president — has been drawn into a scandal involving the apparent murder of a journalist and the secret financing of a magazine he owned.

Gen. Octavio de Aguiar Medeiros, a prospect to succeed President Joao Figueiredo in 1985, was drawn into the case with the recent publication of a dossier allegedly compiled by Alexandre von Baumgarten, implicating him and his service in an alleged plan to revive Cruzeiro magazine apparently as an intelligence agency vehicle.

Medeiros claims he never knew Baumgarten and the intelligence service has formally denied any involvement with him or the magazine.

Figueiredo himself led the intelligence service before becoming president in 1979, although he is not implicated in the case.

THE SCANDAL broke three months after a body was found on the Atlantic shore about 20 miles south of Rio de Janeiro's Ipanema beach. The victim, whose body was badly deteriorated, had been shot twice in the head and once in the abdomen, police said. It was identified by relatives as Baumgarten.

Baumgarten was a rightist journalist reputed to have close ties with the intelligence community, and who friends say participated in the planning of Brazil's 1964 military coup.

His undertaking with the once-popular magazine Cruzeiro, which specialized in photos and news coverage, failed and he left the publication.

Last October, he and his wife disappeared on a fishing trip in Rio's Guanabara Bay, along with the fishing boat captain and his craft.

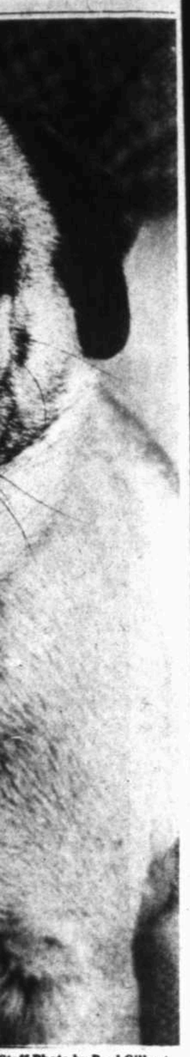

Then on Jan. 30, the news magazine Veja published a dossier it said Baumgarten had prepared with the instruction: "To be opened in case there should occur the death of, or any violence to, Alexandre von Baumgarten."

IN THE dossier as published by Veja, Baumgarten claimed that, starting in 1979, the intelligence service had financed, arranged for paid government publicity, and provided mandatory editorial copy for Cruzeiro. But after promising the equivalent of $4 million in financial aid, the intelligence service soured on Baumgarten's management, and forced him to turn over effective control of the magazine to a company run by ex-military officers.

In the published version of the dossier, Baumgarten said the intelligence service persuaded the company to take over the failing magazine by arranging a lucrative timber exploitation contract with another government agency.

He added that the intelligence service threatened him while forcing him out of the magazine, and he implied he knew of other shady activities involving the intelligence agency. He said he began to fear for his life.

THE document published by Veja adds: "On this date (Jan. 28, 1981) it is certain that my physical extinction has already been decided by the SNI (the intelligence service).

Happiness eludes Soviet defector

CHICAGO (AP) — Andrei Frolov, who starved himself to get out of the Soviet Union, still searches for the America he came to know through contraband books and Moscow movie houses.

Andrei Frolov

"I was full of such great hopes when I first came to this country, and now I am uncertain whether those hopes will ever come true," Frolov said.

Just eight months ago, as Frolov stepped off a jumbo jet at O'Hare International Airport into the arms of his American-born wife, he had declared: "This is the luckiest day of my life."

Today, happiness — and luck — elude him.

A freelance journalist in the Soviet Union, Frolov has been promised a job as an auto mechanic when his fluency in English increases. A book he wrote about his quest to get to America — "The Game Without Rules" — has not attracted much interest from publishers.

But the biggest shock in this new culture is an almost overwhelming freedom of choice.

"In the Soviet Union, I never had a car. I always wanted one, any kind. Even an old one," he said in a recent interview. "Finally, I stopped thinking about it because, for me, it was totally impossible. I never was a rich man."

He knows that in America he doesn't have to be rich to have a car.

"I see that it's real, that I can have a car here. Maybe not tomorrow or next month. But maybe in six months," he said in his quiet voice. "The problem now is how to deal with what I will choose.

"But a very strange thing has happened, and it's a surprising feeling," Frolov said. "For some reason, I have become indifferent to them. I could care less."

He blames it on "the simple law of satiety, as when you're full, stuffed after a big meal."

For 25 days last year, Frolov, 51, and his 28-year-old wife, Lois, joined a hunger strike to win his release. He was one of six Soviets with spouses abroad who participated in the protest fast, and the first of three permitted to leave.

The couple met when she was a graduate exchange student in Moscow from Stanford University. Their affair blossomed in defiance of official warnings and KGB harassment, but her visa expired soon after their wedding in May 1981. Soviet officials twice rejected his applications to emigrate and join her in the United States.

He finally arrived last June 20, 10 days after their hunger strike ended.

Frolov's image of life in the United States came from American literature from his college days — works of William Faulkner, Jack London and others, whose books became available for a short time during the Khrushchev thaw.

"Russians of my generation always dreamed of a very free life in the United States," he explained. "If you wanted to go into business, there was always a way, even if you didn't have money.

"If you wanted to be a cowboy or live in the wilderness...that was possible too. We thought of America as a place where people not only lived in comfort, but managed to satisfy all their hopes and passions as well."

Almost immediately there were problems.

"There were so many stores, more than necessary," Frolov said. "It seems to me that half the city occupied itself with selling things. And judging from TV, it seems the other half did nothing but eat."

When he was sold a pair of glasses that did not fit and when his wife became ill after a restaurant meal, he found himself arguing for stricter government controls. And he grew angry when his wife reminded him that was the very reason he dreamed of leaving the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Frolov, who works as a waitress in a downtown hotel lounge, laments her husband's difficulties, but was planning a trip around the country to help snap him out of his emotional decline.

"The big problem is he's so impatient," she said. "Because of his age, he wants things to happen right away. I think he's really afraid that he's not going to make it, that he's going to be a failure and look like a fool throwing his old life over at his age."

The Frolovs planned their tour around Andrei's first images of America: Faulkner's Mississippi, Jack London's home in Oakland, Calif., a ranch in Montana.

"That's my biggest dream, to look at the places about which I have read from the books and films of the 30s," he said. "Perhaps this dream is greater than my decision to have a car or a nice camera. Those common things have moved back to second place. There are too many interesting things to me in America."

'E.T'. film editor jubilant over Oscar nomination

MIAMI, Okla. (AP) — It was in September 1981 that director Steven Spielberg hired former Miamian Carol Littleton to work as film editor on what he described as a "little, personal film" he was planning, tentatively titled "A Boy's Life."

What has happened in the months since is the stuff of Hollywood dreams: "A Boy's Life" became "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial," Spielberg's "little film" became a box office blockbuster and — on Thursday — Ms. Littleton became an Academy Award nominee for Outstanding Achievement in Film Editing.

"I'm still pinching myself," she said in a telephone interview, several hours after learning of her nomination for the film industry's ultimate accolade. Hers is one of nine Oscar nominations garnered by Spielberg's joyous fable of interplanetary friendship, including Best Picture and Best Director.

Ms. Littleton is the daughter of Mildred Littleton. Her previous credits include the feature films "French Postcards," "Roadie" and "Body Heat." As a film editor she has the job of assembling and piecing together the thousands of feet of film as a movie is shot and then shaping it into a complete motion picture.

It was while doing just such post-production work Thursday morning that Ms. Littleton learned of the honor bestowed upon her. One of her assistants left the editing room to call the offices of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and came back yelling "I can't believe it! I can't believe it!"

The jubilant nominee celebrated by ordering breakfast for her colleagues. As they ate, flowers and congratulatory messages began to pour in.

"It was like Christmas and New Year's rolled into one," she recalled. The congratulations included a phone call from Spielberg, whom she described as "crazed" with joy over his film's triumph.

Although she definitely plans to attend the April 11 Oscar presentations, Ms. Littleton was more than a little hesitant to assess her chances of winning against the editors of "Tootsie," "An Officer and a Gentleman," "Gandhi" and "Das Boot." She was particulary impressed with "Das Boot," describing it as "brilliantly crafted."

"I would consider that to be the competition," she said of the West German film, which depicts the exploits of a U-boat crew in World War II.

Ms. Littleton is currently busy in post-production work on "The Big Chill," a comedy that reunited her with "Body Heat" writer-director Lawrence Kasdan. It also provided her first chance to work on a feature film with her husband, cinematographer John Bailey.

The only thing clouding her excitement over her Oscar nomination is that the Academy failed to nominate Bailey for his work on "Cat People" or "That Championship Season."

Shot on location in South Carolina, "The Big Chill" stars William Hurt, Jobeth Williams, Jeff Goldblum and Mary Kay Place and is shaping up as a possible Christmas release.

Asked if she anticipated the stratospheric success of "E.T.," Ms. Littleton replied, "I knew it would be very popular (but) I didn't know people would love this movie that much, or that it would become a phenomenon...I sure didn't know that all this was going to happen."

Stuffed dog goes home

SHELBURNE, Vt. (AP) — A stuffed sled dog was shipped Friday from a museum here back to Alaska where he will receive a hero's welcome for saving lives more than half a century ago.

Togo, a Siberian Husky, earned that respect in 1925 after leading a team of sled dogs bringing diphtheria serum to Nome, Alaska.

For the past few years, his stuffed and mounted remains have been gathering dust at the Shelburne Museum. But when an article telling his whereabouts appeared on the front page of an Alaska newspaper, citizens there as well as politicians clamored for Togo's return.

"All were saying Togo should be in their historical society," said Shelburne Museum Director Ben Mason.

Former museum employee Ed Blechner said he was glad to see the dog sent to his home state. "I felt the dog had played a part in the history of modern-day Alaska," Blechner said.

Andrew coy about Koo

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Britain's Prince Andrew sailed in Friday on a Royal Navy warship, but there was no sign of actress Koo Stark, who reportedly had planned to visit him over his birthday weekend.

"I don't have any plans. And I wouldn't tell all of you even if I did," the smiling prince said during a brief photo session on the flight deck of the anti-submarine carrier HMS Invincible, which docked at Mayport Naval Station.

"I'm not getting any leave here. Some of us have to work," said Andrew, a helicopter pilot.

More than 40 reporters and photographers, some of them from British papers, gathered to get a glimpse of the prince. The Sun of London reported last month that he would meet Miss Stark, whose mother lives in Venice in Southwest Florida, during his four-day visit here.

Asked how he would celebrate his 23rd birthday today, he said: "It's difficult with you guys around."

Andrew and Miss Stark, 26, created a sensation last fall when they vacationed together in the Caribbean and British newspapers revealed she had once starred in erotic films.

The Invincible is one of 10 ships in the Second Flotilla, which is headed for the Caribbean Tuesday for maneuvers with American and other NATO forces.

Kissinger meets with head of Haiti

Henry Kissinger

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger reports having "warm and friendly" talks with Haitian President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier.

Kissinger and his wife Nancy arrived in Haiti on Thursday for a four-day visit.

Although Kissinger said his visit was private, he held a long meeting with Duvalier, whose family has maintained a 26-year dictatorship in this black Caribbean republic.

"My meeting here was warm and friendly and everyone went out of their way to make me and Nancy comfortable," he said.

Kissinger said he was "pleased with the decision to hold free municipal elections in Haiti."

Duvalier has promised "free and honest" elections, but so far no firm date has been set.

Duvalier rules the island by decree, his initiatives receiving rubber stamp approval by a hand-picked legislature.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Bob Keeshan, creator and host of the children's television show "Captain Kangaroo," has pocketed the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission's highest award.

Keeshan was honored Thursday with the group's Distinguished Communications Recognition Award at the 14th annual Abe Lincoln Awards program here.

"Mr. Keeshan's programs have strengthened the best that is in each of us because they have forged the universal values of the spirit, family and parenting," said Jimmy R. Allen, president of the group.

The distinguished service award is not presented annually and is only awarded "when people of exceptional merit are found," Allen said.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An 11-year-old girl who could become the nation's youngest heart transplant patient has enlisted Gov. Robert D. Orr in her search for a donor.

Orr appeared at a news conference Thursday with Sharon Stohler of Anderson who has been accepted for surgery at Stanford University Medical Center.

"I hope we might be able to help Sharon in her quest for a new heart," he said.

Sharon, a sixth grader at Anderson's Robinson Elementary School, has cardiomyopathy, a degenerative disease of the major heart muscles.

The girl must use a wheelchair to conserve her strength.

Stanford doctors have said the average wait for a donor is between two and four months.

"This is a situation where we need to have some help," the governor told reporters.

Stanford has agreed to perform the operation, expected to cost between $130,000 and $140,000. The cost will be borne by Indiana's Medicaid program.

However, as part of the Stanford approach to heart transplants, the entire family must accompany Sharon to Palo Alto, Calif. A fund has been started to raise money for the Stohler family to live in California for at least six months.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — French author and philosopher Simone de Beauvoir was named Friday as the 1983 recipient of the $23,500 Sonning Prize for European culture.

The award, which is announced by a faculty committee at the University of Copenhagen, goes every two years to a person who has been judged to have made "a great contribution to European culture and civilization."

The committee announced it selected Ms. de Beauvoir, 74, because of her "significance in European cultural life — partly as an author, partly as a philosopher and humanist, and not least as an inspirator of the modern feminist movement."

Rural hospital allows patients to work off bills

GEORGETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Frontier doctors sometimes took livestock in pay. In this southern Ohio town of 2,900, a hospital is helping patients to work off some of their bills by hiring them.

"We've been doing it for 20 years or so," said David Haines, personnel director at Brown County Hospital. "It's not a large-scale program, and it's not really very formally structured, either.

"What it involves is that in some instances people who have a hospital bill they're unable to pay otherwise are employed (by the hospital)...but they are screened and interviewed just like any other applicant."

Patients accepted for the program perform semi-skilled jobs, such as custodian, nurse's aide or dietary aide, and receive regular paychecks. They must agree to payroll deductions that are applied to their hospital bills.

"It's worked out very well. We've been able to collect some charges that otherwise we wouldn't have gotten," Haines said. "The people in these situations are not people with employable job skills, by and large. Generally speaking, they are people who are not working otherwise, or maybe don't have hospitalization insurance."

Haines said agreeing to work for the 132-bed hospital is not a condition to treatment, and that usually the patient requests the arrangement.

"Maybe the bill is delinquent, and they've exhausted other possibilities of getting the bill paid," Haines said. "Word of mouth refers them to us if there's someone else in the area who has done this...who had a bill and was able to work it off."

Haines said two people among the hospital's 300 full- and part-time employees are involved in the payback program. At times, there have been half a dozen patient-employees.

"People who are working in the program are handled like any other employee — only they and the personnel office and the accounting office know they're paying off a bill, so there's that anonymity," he said.

Current economic conditions haven't brought any additional requests to participate or any expansion of the program, Haines said. If anything, it's harder to place people.

"We're using less because we have less turnover and fewer jobs available," Haines said.

He doesn't think the jobs program would be practical everywhere.

"I think it probably works better in a more rural community, in a smaller institution than it might in a larger one," he said. "There are a lot of people who are quite willing and anxious to do that to get their bill worked off, but we can only do it on a rather limited basis. We don't have that many job openings."

Jobless Americans losing health care

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Unemployed and uninsured, a growing number of Americans are turning to clinics and public hospitals to provide the care they can't afford.

Many are postponing non-emergency treatment. Some are ignoring minor ailments; by the time they seek help, they are seriously ill.

Hospitals are writing off more unpaid bills as bad debts. Most report they will not turn away anyone who needs care — regardless of the ability to pay. But they warn that the problem is getting worse and predict that future decisions on treatment may have to be linked to money.

Numbers and specific statistics are scarce. The situation is worst where unemployment is the highest and where the recession is most deeply entrenched.

The Congressional Budget Office said recently that the number of people without health insurance rose by about 11 million in 1982, partly because workers lost protection when they lost their jobs.

"The high cost of private coverage to individuals and the limited availability of public coverage such as Medicaid make it difficult for those without group policies to obtain protection against high medical care expenses," said Alice Rivlin, director of the office, in testimony before Congress.

JOHN ROBERSON, 36, was laid off by U.S. Steel in Chicago more than a year ago. His unemployment benefits ran out in November; his medical insurance ended long before.

When Roberson's ulcerated stomach acted up last month, he went to Cook County Hospital, where care and medicine are free. "Praise the Lord for County," said Roberson, who had worked for U.S. Steel for 13 years before he was laid off. "I was sick. I didn't have any alternative."

Ron Wise, spokesman for the hospital, said Roberson's case is not unusual. "People in the emergency room say they're seeing an increasing number of people who've lost their jobs and don't have any medical insurance," Wise said. "We're experiencing a very sharp increase in emergency room cases, up from 15,000 a month to 17,000 a month." The number of referrals by private hospitals to County also is up — from 100 a month in 1981 to 450 a month today.

Wise said officials are concerned that some of the newly unprotected — most of whom are not poor enough to qualify for welfare programs like Medicaid — may neglect their health because they do not know how to get free or low-cost care. "People who've been in and out of the welfare system for a while know," he said. "Your middle class is completely inexperienced and they fall through the cracks."

THERE HAVE BEEN scattered efforts to fill those cracks.

About 40 percent of the members of the King County Medical Society in Seattle agreed to take patients who could not pay or could pay only a limited amount as part of a referral service started almost a year ago.

A private, non-profit group called the Migrant and Rural Community Health Association announced plans to open a clinic in Benton Harbor, Mich., to serve inner city residents and the unemployed. E. Roberta Ryder, director of the group, which already operates clinics in the Michigan cities of Holland, Bangor and Eau Claire, said fees would be based on th

Individual health-care options expensive

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

You've lost your job. That means your paycheck is gone — and your health insurance policy is probably gone along with it.

The unemployed don't have many choices when it comes to health-care coverage, but there are a few things you can do to try to protect yourself.

"There are a number of steps you can take. Unfortunately, they all cost money," said Jennifer Stockdale, deputy director of public affairs for the Health Insurance Association of America, a trade group.

Mrs. Stockdale said an estimated 80 percent of the people covered by private health insurance are protected by group policies, generally linked to their jobs.

When workers lose those jobs, the main health insurance option is some type of individual coverage and the cost is high.

The Congressional Budget Office says employers pay an average of 80 percent of the cost of premiums for group policies. And those premiums already are as much as 50 percent lower than the ones for individual policies.

Both Mrs. Stockdale and Herbert Denenberg, the former insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania, said a laid-off worker who is looking for protection should first check his existing group policy to see if it can be converted to an individual one.

You won't save money by converting an existing policy instead of buying a new one, Mrs. Stockdale said. But you may get protection you couldn't otherwise get.

That's because insurance companies generally require a medical exam for a new individual policy. "An employee with a chronic health problem would have trouble getting a (new) individual policy," Mrs. Stockdale said.

Denenberg also noted that a new policy — even if you can get one — will not cover you for an existing illness or condition.

No matter what you decide to do, you'll have to move quickly. Denenberg, now a consumer advocate for WCAU-TV in Philadelphia, said protection under the typical group policy will last only 30 days after you leave your job.

Mrs. Stockdale said some employers offer what is called a "continuation-of-benefits option." You may be able to continue participation in your company's group policy even if you are no longer working. You will have to pay the entire premium yourself, but it will be lower than the cost of an individual policy.

There are some cases where continuation in the group policy is not the best deal, however. If your company offers a very wide range of benefits and you don't need them all, you might be able to find a trimmed-down individual policy that provides less coverage at a lower cost.

If you think you will be unemployed for only a short period of time, you might want to look for an interim insurance policy. Mrs. Stockdale said this type of policy is good for a limited time only — usually six months — and is not renewable or is renewable only once.

An interim policy is cheaper than a regular, individual policy, Mrs. Stockdale said. A hypothetical couple in their 30s, for example, could buy a six-month interim policy with a $100 deductible for between $300 and $400, she said. The premium for a similar couple buying a regular policy would be about twice as much.

Denenberg said individual policies — short or long-term — may be difficult to find. "There isn't a good individual market," he said, adding that many companies have stopped offering protection for individuals.

"It's almost hopeless," Denenberg said, when asked about the plight of the worker who loses health insurance.

Mrs. Stockdale agreed that the problem is getting worse because of rising unemployment, and she said there are no easy solutions. She said the association estimated that providing health insurance for all the workers who are currently laid off for 12 months would cost $4 billion.

Michigan's unemployment strains system

DETROIT (AP) — Until two years ago, Dan Holland didn't worry too much about going to the doctor.

As an employee of General Motors Corp.'s Chevrolet plant in Flint, he was covered by the company's health insurance. If he or a member of his family got sick, he just went to a doctor. The insurance paid.

But Holland was laid off three years ago and the benefits ran out a year later.

Now, the $80 a week he makes working in a grocery store keeps him from getting Medicaid.

He is among some 47,900 unemployed residents of Flint, where the unemployment rate in December was the second-highest in Michigan at 22 percent, after the Upper Peninsula's 22.8 percent. The statewide jobless rate in January was 15.5 percent.

Holland's 14-month-old daughter, Cori, has a bronchial condition, allergies and a heart murmur, but "we don't have the money or the insurance to take her and have her checked."

"We just tried to get on Medicaid, and they told me I'm making too much money," Holland said. "Last year, she was pretty sick and we took her to the hospital and I was working at this one part-time job and had limited coverage."

"I'm just getting sick of it. I've worked ever since I was 15, paying taxes, and I can't get anything, and somebody who comes up here from out of state can just get right on welfare," Holland said.

Michigan hospitals, meanwhile, are providing more free care.

Ken Raske, senior vice president of the Michigan Hospital Association, said hospitals provided $142 million worth of care in 1982 without compensation, up 29 percent from 1981.

"Michigan hospitals are running the second welfare system in the state right now," Raske said. "We can't continue to provide that level of free care."

Raske said Medicaid and Medicare programs are "grossly underfunded" and warned of a "collision course" because of the cost of providing treatment for those who cannot pay and the lack of government aid.

Families in need of care

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Health care professionals say that thousands of families in West Virginia, and across the country, are in desperate straits. About 35,000 miners in West Virginia are out of work; the state unemployment rate was 16.4 percent in November, the latest figures available.

"A lot of coal miners in this area have lost their health care insurance," said Craig Robinson, administrator of the New River Health Center at Scarbro in Fayette County, population 49,300, where 20 percent of the work force is unemployed.

Investigators examining site of crash that killed four

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Federal investigators on Friday began examining the wreckage of a light plane that crashed in a department store parking lot, killing four people and leaving a fifth near death.

The pilot, Marden Dixon, 41, a Provo, Utah, attorney and father of six, suffered second- and third-degree burns over 83 percent of his body, a hospital spokesman said Friday.

Dixon, treated at University Hospital after Thursday night's crash, was flown Friday to the University of Utah Medical Center's Intermountain Burn Center in Salt Lake City. He was listed in very critical condition, said burn center spokesman Mark Sands.

Meanwhile, inspectors from the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board made a piece-by-piece examination of the wreckage.

"We're looking for anything that might tell us what caused the accident," said FAA inspector Roy Billings, "all the instrument systems and control equipment — we'll be looking at every piece of the aircraft that's left."

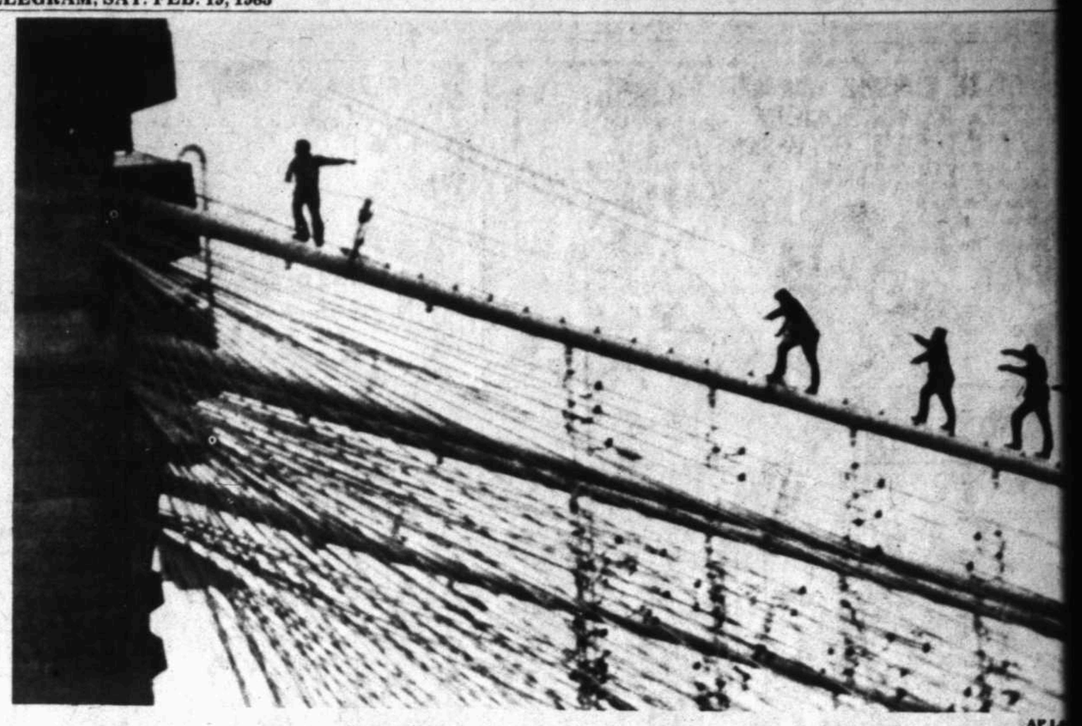

Don Llorente, an NTSB inspector, said, "We were able to interview the pilot, who told us that the aircraft was not developing full power."

The twin-engine Piper Aerostar, fully loaded with fuel, crashed shortly after takeoff from Montgomery Field at 7:19 p.m., igniting a blaze that consumed the craft and three cars parked near a Gemco store in the busy Clairemont commercial area.

The plane was on its way to Provo.

All the dead were on the plane. The coroner's office said three people were dead at the scene. They were identified as Linda Austin, 23, of Provo, Utah; her 3½-month-old son Alex, and David B. Jones, 27, of Silver Spring, Md. He was a student at Brigham Young University.

Dixon and passenger Ed Hastings, their clothes on fire, escaped the flaming cockpit and were flown to University Hospital.

Foat extradiction OK'd by California governor

No date set for move to Louisiana

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Feminist leader Ginny Foat, accused of the 1965 bludgeoning murder of a South American businessman near New Orleans, was ordered Friday to be extradited to Louisiana to stand trial.

Gov. George Deukmejian, denying a request by Ms. Foat's attorney for a special hearing, signed the extradition papers, citing a state attorney general's opinion that "all the legal prerequisites for extradition have been met."

Ms. Foat, 41, on leave from her post as president of the California chapter of the National Organization for Women, is in custody at Sybil Brand prison in Los Angeles.

There was no immediate word on when she would be transferred to Jefferson Parish in Louisiana.

Ms. Foat, known in Louisiana as Virginia Galluzzo, a barmaid, was indicted in January in Louisiana for the tire iron slaying of Moises Chayo, 62, who was killed during a robbery. The indictment was returned after jurors heard testimony from Ms. Foat's ex-husband, John Sidote.

She was arrested Jan. 11 in Burbank and has remained in custody.

Assistant District Attorney Tom Porteous Jr. of Jefferson Parish said Louisiana authorities had not set a date on when to take Ms. Foat into custody. He said a further extradition hearing may be set, but California authorities said there were no plans for another hearing.

Her arrest rocked California's feminist community, and reportedly took even Ms. Foat's closest associates by surprise.

Ginny Foat

The extradition statement, quoting an opinion by state Attorney General John Van de Kamp, said that since "Virginia Galluzzo has been charged with murder in the state of Louisiana, and since Virginia Galluzzo has not disputed that she is the same person wanted by Louisiana authorities, the legal prerequisites for extradition have been met."

Ms. Foat, shortly after her arrest, said "a political climate of violence and degradation of women is in a test stage with me as its first victim."

In a 1977 statement to authorities at Albany, N.Y., Sidote said Ms. Foat lured Chayo out of a bar and into an automobile, where Sidote was hiding in the trunk. Sidote said he attacked Chayo, but that Chayo resisted so fiercely Ms. Foat clubbed him repeatedly on the head with a tire iron, killing him.

Possible radioactive water leak no worry to nuke plant officials

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Up to 200,000 gallons of radioactive water a day may be leaking from a basin holding spent fuel rods from a reactor at the Hanford nuclear reservation, but officials say it poses no threat to the general public.

The storage basin, a series of concrete pools containing more than 1 million gallons of water, has leaked since 1973 because of a "failed construction joint," said Ronn Rohe, a spokesman for UNC Nuclear Industries.

UNC operates the reactor for the Department of Energy. The reactor produces plutonium for military weapons and steam which is used to generate electricity.

"We haven't been ignoring the problem, but it hasn't produced any personnel, safety or environmental problems," Rohe said Friday. "We are confident the (leaked) water is being contained."

Rohe said the leaking water feeds into a drain, which goes to a "crib," or liquid waste disposal trench filled with layers of sand that contain and filter the radioactive water. Later, water from the trench "with hardly detectable amounts of contamination" flows into the Columbia River in a controlled manner, Rohe said.

Tests show that the water entering the Columbia is well within federal limits covering radioactivity, he said. There is also no evidence that the water enters the soil, he said.

There is no specific water or air standard for releases from the Hanford Reservation, said Department of Energy spokesman Tom Bauman.

A cumulative standard requires that the average member of the off-site public be exposed to less than 170 millirems of radiation from the reservation, he said.

Bauman said the average discharge from all Hanford activities is one-tenth of a millirem. The normal background level in the area is 100 millirem; a chest x-ray causes a 25-millirem exposure.

Within the past year, a supervisor has been assigned full time to find the source of the leak and repairs should begin in April or May, said Rohe, adding that the source of the leak has not been pinpointed.

Bauman said the leak needs to be fixed now because a new recirculating system for the basin is going to be installed.

The basin is leaking at a rate of 140 gallons per minute, said Bob Ness, director of reactor plant operations for UNC. While seepage varies, it could amount to 200,000 gallons a day, he said.

Rohe said the volume of the leaking water is affected by the level of the basin, which is 20 to 30 feet deep.

"We have found if we reduce the level of the basin by two feet, the leak slows to about four gallons a minute," he said. But under operating guidelines, the basin has to be full.

It has taken more than 10 years to narrow the search for the leak, Rohe said, "because we're talking about a big pool. You have to put it in perspective."

Bauman said the leak is "obviously serious and something we are concerned about," but it is "not life-threatening or threatening to the environment at this point in time."

Bauman said the water in the basin and that which was leaking had only low levels of radioactivity.

Water in the storage basin cools spent radioactive fuel and shields workers from the radioactivity, said Rohe.

No uncontrolled radioactive water leaks into the river, said Bauman and Rohe. "Even if a small amount went into the river, the dilution is so great, it would be inconsequential," Bauman said.

Ness said that water in the basin with radioactive cesium, strontium and plutonium is routinely sampled.

Ship's condition worried mate

Panel told sunken ship's hatches questioned

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A former crewman on a cargo ship that sank off Virginia, killing at least 31 people, said Friday the chief mate had been worried about weak hatches sealing the vessel's holds.

William Long of Virginia Beach, a semi-retired seaman who helped load the Marine Electric in Norfolk for its final voyage last week, said Chief Mate Robert M. Cusick was concerned about running the ship in heavy weather.

"He told me he didn't want to run the North Atlantic anymore, go to Europe, with those old hatch covers," Long told a panel investigating the cause of the sinking.

But a maintenance supervisor for the ship's owner, later testified that the hatch covers were "safe and serviceable," contradicting the testimony of Long and two of the three survivors.

Cusick and crewman Paul C. Dewey told the board earlier this week that the covers were warped and riddled with holes.

Dewey also said that the chief engineer reported the hatch cover on the first cargo hold had broken open shortly before the ship capsized.

The 605-foot Marine Electric had in the past carried grain and other cargo across the Atlantic. It was loaded with 24,800 tons of coal for an electric generating plant in Somerset, Mass., when it capsized and sank 30 miles off Chincoteague, Va., early Saturday.

Joseph Thelgie, fleet director for Marine Transport Lines Inc., said, "I was under the impression that we had safe and serviceable hatch covers."

Japanese get low interest rates if they're considered good risks

TOKYO (AP) — Toshio Watanabe, 30, is not an artist or an actor. Nor is he seriously ill. Thanks to these circumstances, he now owns a $150,000 condominium apartment acquired at astonishingly low interest rates.

He bought his "3-DK apartment" (3 rooms, dinette-kitchen) last year through a series of loans ranging from 3 to 6 percent, which will permit him to own it free and clear by the time he is 65.

The generous terms were available because Watanabe is considered a good investment by Japanese credit terms. He is one of the millions on the big business escalator, a "salaryman" identifiable by his blue suit, button-down shirt and conservative tie.

Access to such credit is a factor that enables many Japanese to own their own house or apartments, despite astronomical costs of land and dwellings.

Having chosen a career in a leading bank and not in the arts, Watanabe is reasonably certain to remain with that employer for the rest of his working life. Such assurance of stability made him a good risk for low-interest loans from his company (3 percent for 30 years), the Public Housing Corp. (5.5 percent for 35 years) and a pension-backed loan from another bank (6 percent, 30 years).

WITH NO SIZEABLE assets except a lifetime job, the young banker was able to put down a deposit of 3 million yen ($12,800 at last year's exchange rate) deposit and get 16 million yen ($68,300) from his employers, 8.4 million yen ($35,800) from the public housing organization and the rest through the pension fund.

"Unless you are healthy, however," says Hideo Kobayashi, section chief of the huge Mitsui Real Estate firm, "you aren't likely to get credit so readily, even though you are a salaryman. You have to pass a medical exam. If you've got diabetes, any major internal illness or mental problems, the lending agencies won't take a chance.

"What's more, you have to be married, to have been employed for at least three years and be earning at least 3 million yen (about $12,500 at current exchange rates) a year. Naturally, you have to demonstrate by hard work and regular habits that you deserve the credit people's confidence."

Automatic monthly deductions from his paycheck will insure that Watanabe doesn't default. And in case of an emergency such as illness, the property can always be attached.

"THE COMPANY," Kobayashi said in an interview, "regards this kind of credit as a fringe benefit. It also is one of the secrets of how to keep an employee loyal up to the last moment. The loans are nicely calculated to last until retirement, usually 56 or 57 years of age."

> "Unless you are healthy, however, you aren't likely to get credit so readily, even though you are a salaryman. You have to pass a medical exam. If you've got diabetes, any major internal illness or mental problems, the lending agencies won't take a chance."

Less fortunate are people with no steady, long-term employment, such as actors, writers, artists or entertainers. Though some may be comparatively well temporarily, credit organizations classify them as engaged in "unstable" occupations. People afflicted with crippling diseases fall into the same category.

They, and the unlucky few who fail to pass the health test, can apply for standard loans from banks where interest is around 9 percent a year. All loan applications are scrutinized with a steely eye, and require generous collateral.

Employees of small businesses and farm workers can get low interest loans through cooperative insurance arrangements and farm unions at rates close to 6 percent.

HOUSES ARE SCARCE in the big cities, but condominiums are available and popular. If a Japanese white-collar worker wants a house and modest garden he must move to the suburbs, sometimes an hour or two from work.

Kamakura, a resort city 35 miles south of Tokyo, is one of the highly desirable areas where houses — many of them old but grand — sell for considerably less than the cost of a city apartment.

Yoshio Nakajima, an electrical engineer at Mitsubishi, was unable to buy a house when he was young because the company kept him on the move. But fifteen years ago, however, when prices were still within reach, he bought a home in Kamakura. The house and garden cost the yen equivalent then of $16,600 and $25,000 now.

Mitsubishi advanced the equivalent of $8,300 at 6 percent and Nakajima's Kamakura neighborhood association guaranteed a bank loan of the same amount at 9 percent. When he retires next year he will have paid off the whole thing.

Colombia campaigns to readmit Cuba into hemispheric organizatio

An Analysis

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — A new campaign in favor of taking Cuba back into the hemisphere's family of nations is being launched in Latin America.

Colombia, one of the few recognized democracies in the southern continent, is heading the effort.

It comes as no surprise to the United States. Colombian President Belisario Betancur broached the subject to President Reagan in Bogota, Colombia, in December. The United States is inclined to dismiss it as part of Colombia's effort to prove the independence of its foreign policy, one administration source commented.

However, Colombian Foreign Minister Rodrigo Lloreda Caicedo has suggested in several recent speeches and interviews in Colombia that Cuba's readmission to the Organization of American States could ease the crisis in Central America.

Lloreda argues that Cuba is a "protagonist" in Central America and that the OAS would have a better chance of solving the crisis if Cuba were within, rather than outside, the inter-American system.

The United States and some of the Central American countries — notably El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras — have charged that Cuba and the Soviet Union, working through Nicaragua, are responsible for supplying and encouraging guerrilla and terrorist groups within their borders.

Cuba has been something of a hemispheric outcast for the last 21 years.

In 1962 Cuba was excluded from participation in the inter-American system by a vote of the majority of the members of the OAS. That meeting, held in Punta del Este, Uruguay, was called at the request of Colombia for "consideration of the threats to peace and political independence of the American states" that the government of Fidel Castro was posing.

In the 1960s Castro was accused, first by Colombia and later by Venezuela and other countries, of backing relatively small-scale guerrilla operations, with landings from small boats and, in the case of landlocked Bolivia, with spiriting the famed Ernesto "Che" Guevara into the target country. None of those attempts were successful.

Now the tactics employed are different. To judge by the success achieved in Nicaragua, the Cubans limit themselves primarily to training guerrilla nuclei and supplying weapons, money and advice. In Nicaragua, at least, it was not until the Sandinistas, armed in part by Cuba, had triumphed over the Somoza dynasty that Cuban advisers appeared in Managua.

In El Salvador, and Guatemala, too, much the same pattern seems to be unfolding. At least, thus far, the guerrilla bands include only natives, some of whom were trained in Cuba, but no Cuban nationals.

Colombia is not alone in working for Cuba's readmission.

There is evidence that a growing number of Latin American countries, including those that at one time or another have been targets of Cuban-sponsored guerrilla bands, are seeking to improve relations with the Castro government.

In addition to Colombia, they include Argentina, Bolivia, Peru and Venezuela.

Castro's stewardship of the Non-Aligned Movement since September 1979 seems to have won him solid Latin support, although the majority of the Latin countries consider themselves "democratic" rather than Marxist.

To judge by what the Colombian foreign minister has said, readmission of Cuba, along with admission of Canada, Belize and Guyana, to the Organization of American States is also thought of as a means of diminishing influence of the United States in hemispheric affairs.

Unlike the United Nations, in the OAS there is no veto power. Each country has an equal voice and vo

Soldier takes tank for ride

BASINGSTOKE, England (AP) — A soldier taking a night-driving course at the Royal Armored Corps School took his 50-ton tank for a joyride along 80 miles of quiet country lanes early Friday.

"Everybody else on the course had gone to bed, flaked out. This man decided to go for a ride," said an army official.

Villagers at Basingstoke, 50 miles southwest of London, were awakened as the modified Chieftain tank rumbled to a stop in the yard of the Cranbourne Comprehensive School. But a few crushed curbstones were the chief casualty.

The Basingstoke police said they were questioning the soldier, who they refused to identify. They said they had not decided whether to press charges.

Policeman killed in South Africa

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas killed a 19-year-old policeman Friday in a skirmish in South-West Africa (Namibia), national police headquarters announced.

An official statement said Andre Delport was killed "in the operational area," a reference to northern Namibia, where South African forces for 17 years have been fighting insurgents seeking an end to South African rule over the territory.

The territorial military headquarters announced Thursday that 17 guerrillas were killed in a clash Tuesday. It said there were signs that the insurgents planned to step up the military campaign.

Japan plans to continue dumping

TOKYO (AP) — Japan will continue with plans to dump nuclear waste in the Pacific Ocean despite an international resolution calling for the suspension of the dumping of all radioactive waste at sea, an official said Friday.

The London Dumping Convention, set up in 1972 to control marine pollution, adopted the resolution Thursday by a vote of 19-6 with 5 abstentions. Japan, the United States and Britain were among the dissenting nations.

Japan, with 24 nuclear power stations, plans to dump low-level radioactive wastes 500 miles south of Tokyo in the Marianas Trench, which is 32,000 feet down at its deepest.

Fiji, Tonga, Tuvulu and Nauru have expressed opposition.

Turkish newspaper ban lifted

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Martial-law authorities have lifted a ban on the leftist Istanbul newspaper Cumhuriyet, one of Turkey's six major dailies, and it will resume publication today after being closed for 26 days, editors of the paper said.

The government has given no reason for the shutdown. But Nadir Nadi, the chief editorial writer, and managing editor Oaky Gonensin were charged with "provoking the public to commit a crime" because of a column by Nadi criticizing Turkey's military rulers. They go on trial March 7.

Soviets name new ambassador

MOSCOW (AP) — Sergei Pavlov, former head of Soviet sports, has been named ambassador to Mongolia, Tass reported.

Pavlov, 54, was fired as chief of the state sports committee last month after nearly 15 years in the post.

Australians make first charge relating to fires

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — An unemployed 19-year-old was charged Friday with setting one of the fires that ravaged southeast Australia while firefighters in Victoria state battled two blazes still burning out of control. More fire weather was predicted for the weekend.

The casualty toll stood at 70 dead, an addition of one in 24 hours, in the fires that 60-mile winds drove across more than 2,600 square miles of drought-parched farms, forests and brushlands on the southeast coast.

In South Australia state, where 26 people died, all fires were being held in check. But in Victoria, where 44 were killed, fires were still out of control Friday night at Mount Buffalo, in the northeast part of the state, and at Warburton, 40 miles east of Melbourne, Australia's second largest city.

More high winds and high summer temperatures were predicted for the weekend, raising fears that smoldering embers would be fanned back into flame. Officials appealed to people in the ravaged areas to clear any flammable debris and scrub bush from near houses still standing.

The first arson charge growing out of the disaster was filed against Andrew Mervyn Davey, who was charged with unlawfully and maliciously setting fire to scrub Wednesday at Kersbrook, about 22 miles northeast of Adelaide, the coastal capital of South Australia.

Magistrate Andrew Moss ordered the youth held in custody for his own protection, saying, "He will not be the most popular person in Adelaide." Davey's lawyer said he believed he would be found innocent.

Kersbrook is in the Adelaide Hills, where officials said nine people were killed and 100 homes destroyed Wednesday. But it was not known whether the fire that Davey was accused of starting was responsible for all the deaths.

Authorities said the fires, which began Wednesday, consumed about 3,000 homes and burned out seven towns in South Australia and Victoria. The Victoria agricultural department reported 750 farms in the state were burned over and at least 15,000 sheep and 8,000 cattle were killed. Workers from the department were shooting badly burned animals.

John Lakey, a reporter for a Melbourne newspaper, said he was one of 83 people who squeezed into a concrete drainage tunnel Thursday night to escape a firestorm that consumed houses and trees in the Upper Yarra Valley, 50 miles north of Melbourne.

Lakey said the group included three pregnant women and 20 children, and many of the children brought their pets with them.

"It's a miracle they survived," said a fire official.

In 1931, Australia's worst brushfire killed 71 people.

Mongrel tops with peacekeepers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Arf, a trusting black-and-brown dog with a pencil-thin white streak down her snout, has snuggled into the hearts of the American soldiers helping to keep the peace here.

The young female, white-pawed mongrel wandered up to a beach where U.S. troops were landing a few months ago. She became so popular that the Marines and Navy men plan to use profits from selling beer and soda to pay to fly the dog to the United States.

"Arf is the friendliest dog I think I've ever seen," said Marine Maj. Al Shively, 35, of Easton, Pa. "She's partial to anyone with camouflage utilities."

Shively was talking about the mottled green outfits of the 1,200 Americans among the multinational force in and around Beirut.

It was Shively, coming ashore, who spotted Arf. He decided the beach, only a few yards from the heavy traffic of the four-lane coast highway, was too dangerous for the gentle dog.

Arf now sleeps in the room of two Marines from North Carolina: Capt. Glen Hausold, 32, of Sneads Ferry, and 1st Sgt. Leonard Heath, 40, of Jacksonville.

Hausold is executive officer of a Marine amphibious unit support group.

Lee girls challenge Monterey

Yshun King

Felicia Farias

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

LAMESA — The Midland Lee Rebels vault into the Class 5A girls' state basketball playoffs at 2 p.m. here today against the playoff tradition rich Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen.

Midland Lee has won one bi-district title in six years the school has played while Monterey is known state-wide for its girls' program under Tim Tasker.

Monterey won the state championship in 1981 and had a string of four straight District 3-5A titles from 1979 through 1982. The team knows about playoff pressure.

BUT IF this all sounds bleak for Coach Shirley Stephenson's Rebels, another look is needed. There is a true feeling that this Lee team is capable of historic achievements this year.

First of all, there appears to be a crack in the Monterey domination. Monterey finished second this year in 3-5A with an 18-7 season record, losing the championship to Plainview.

On the other hand, Lee is on a 12 game winning streak and owns an impressive 24-5 season mark, the best ever in Rebelland.

The two teams have not faced each other this season, but Monterey scored over 100 points against Lee last year and the Rebels remember that one.

"They were awesome in the past, but I think we match up with them well this year," said Stephenson, who has guided the Rebels to six straight winning seasons. "I feel good about this game because our bench has played so well this year and the kids just don't quit on you. We have had to come from behind a lot this year, but we always seem to do it.

"Monterey is quick and press you all over the place, but we really haven't been hurt by anyone's press this year."

LEE does hold a win over Plainview, the District 3-5A winner, this year and Monterey split two games with Plainview.

Tasker also sees a good matchup. "We aren't the same team as in years past, but we have a high scoring team that can win. Lee is an excellent ball team from what I can see. It's going to be one great game."

Monterey is averaging 67.6 points per game this year and have two big guns to throw at Lee in seniors Angela Phea and Jill Marshall, both 5-foot-7. Marshall averages 16.0 points per game while Phea owns a 15.3 average.

Other starters, post Nancy George owns an 8.8 average while guards Beth Howard stands at 6.5 for the season and Torri Crowe at 5.4. Phea and Marshall hold down the wing positions.

Lee, averaging over 50 points a game, has some firepower of its own. Forward Felicia Farias is averaging 13.9 points and has had six games with 20 points or more. She gets a lot of help from post Yshun King, 12.6, and forward Stacy Harmon, 10.1.

Post Queen Sanders averages 6.4 and point guard Faye Oudems has a 3.0 average. However, Oudems is the quarterback and will be important in breaking the Monterey press.

Midlanders suffer losses of GG bouts

ODESSA — Two Midland Boxing Club fighters made their exit from the 37th annual Regional Golden Gloves Boxing tournament at Ector County Coliseum Friday night.

Benny Long, 145-pound Open Division, was looking for a rematch with last year's champion Mike Deanda and a possible trip to Fort Worth for the State competition when he ran into a problem, namely Jamie Garcia of Pecos.

Long came out quick and looked to be moving well when suddenly he took a shot to the nose that sent blood pouring into his mouth. He tried covering up and Garcia came in with everything he had forcing the ref to call for a standing eight-count and eventually stop the fight, 2:13 in the first round.

In the only other MBC fight of the night, Edward Bara lost a decision to Rene Pauillo of San Angelo in the Junior Olympic division.

Of the 10 MBC boxers to begin Golden Gloves competition this week, more than half have been eliminated. Tonight, Ruben Tagle will face David Rios of San Angelo with the winner going into Monday's finals.

Jordan sets 2 4-5A records

DISTRICT SWIMMING

By CHAD PUERLING
Sports Writer

Midland High's Andrew Jordan was the star on the opening day of the District 4-5A meet at Mabee Memorial Swim Center.

Jordan set two district records in his two individual events and helped the medley relay team post the fastest qualifying time.

An understated MHS coach Jesse Marsh said, "He looked pretty good and he's a nice kid to have around," obviously referring to the fact Jordan is a sophomore and will be around another two years.

Jordan's records came in the 100 backstroke and 50 freestyle, establishing him as the one to beat in today's finals. He was one of five double-qualifiers for the Bulldogs.

IN THE diving finals completed Friday, Keith Cox and Sandra Malone of Midland Lee were crowned district champions.

Cox outpointed San Angelo's Todd Nochols 325.75-293.00 while Bryan Ameel of MHS was third at 246.85.

In taking top honors Malone defeated Jennifer Brightwell of San Angelo 258.55-223.95. Robin Black and Jeanne Jones of MHS finished third and fifth, respectively.

"Our divers did a terrific job," Lee swim coach Charles Guthrie said. "All the credit for their success goes to assistant coach Neoma Melson. She's in complete control and has done a great job."

THE OTHER dual finalists for MHS are Mike Seay, David Hartman, Pat Rhamey and John Brenner.

Seay qualified first in the 100 butterfly, more than two and a half seconds faster than the second qualifier, and second in the 200 free.

Hartman had the fastest preliminary time in the 200 individual medley and finished second in 500 free.

Rhamey also qualified for the finals of the 200 IM with the sixth fastest time and finished fourth in the 100 breaststroke.

"Pat just had a cast taken off his right leg Wednesday," Marsh said. "He was seeded first in his events but his leg was stiff, weak and had no power."

John Brenner took sixth in the 100 fly and fifth in the 200 IM.

Steve Davis gave the Bulldogs four of the eight finalist in the 200 IM with the fourth fastest qualifying time.

The 400 free relay team had the fifth best time entering the finals.

Odessa Permian and Abilene Cooper have an edge going into the boys' finals with 17 qualifiers. San Angelo and Midland High have 13 each but the Bulldogs have four of the fastest qualifting times, more than any other team.

"We're in a lot better shape than I thought we would be," Marsh said of both his teams. "I'm especially pleased with the way our relay teams came through."

THE MIDLAND High girls also have more top qualifiers than any squad with three. But the San Angelo Bobcats outnumber the Bulldogs 20-13 for the most finalist.

Midland Lee has 11 in the finals, two with the best times. Odessa Permian has 14 finalist but no top qualifiers.

"I hope our top qualifiers can make the diffference," Marsh said. "I think we're sitting pretty good."

Suzi Simpson led the Bulldogs qualifiers posting the best time in the 200 free and 100 fly. In the butterfly event Simpson was more than eight seconds faster the next finisher and in the 100 free she was four seconds ahead of the pack.

Debbie Fleeger and Rachael Fink joined Simpson in the 200 free finals, finishing third and fourth. The freestyle duo came back to take second and third in the 500 free behind San Angelo's Burdine Cassidy.

JANA HOUSMAN established herself as the best short distance freestyler in district, taking the top spot in the 50 and 100 free.

Kelly Simmons and Karen Eberly were also dual qualifiers for the Rebels.

Simmons finished second in the 100 fly and third in the 200 IM while Eberly was seventh in the 200 free and fifth in the 500 free.

Both Midland Lee and Midland high qualified teams in the 200 medlay and 400 free relays.

"I'm surprised we did so well," Guthrie said. "When I came here I was told I wouldn't have a team this year. I think the kids have really proved them wrong."

The Lee boys team qualified sixth in the 200 medley and 400 free relays.

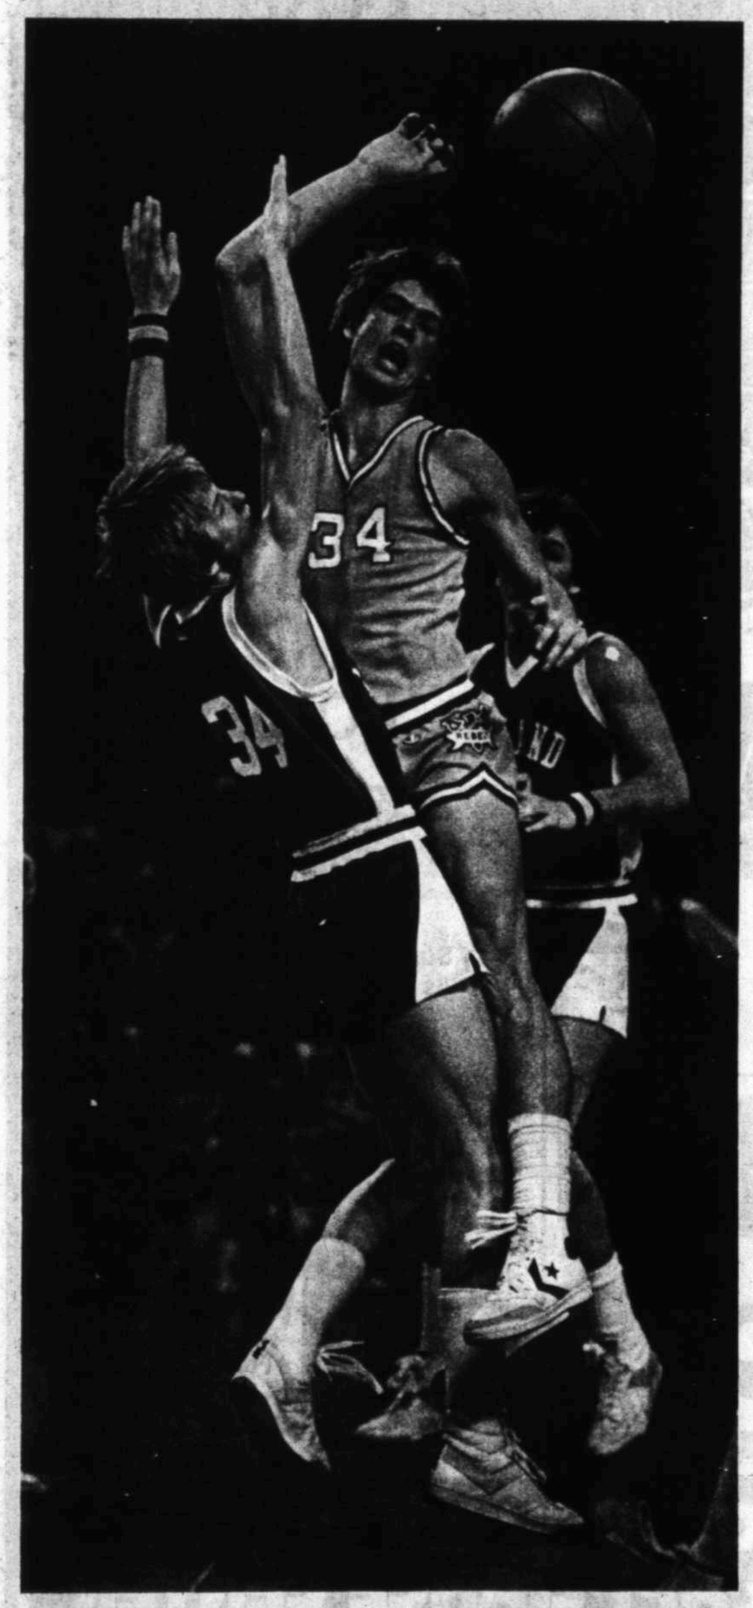

David Kimberly in the 200 free and Chris White in the 100 back were the only individual qualifiers for the Rebels.

Finals begin at 2 p.m. today.

Bulldogs beat Rebels, 70-64

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Just as Midland High was about to knock the nails out of its District 4-5A basketball coffin during a 70-64 victory over Midland Lee Friday night, the bad news filtered into Chaparral Center from San Angelo.

Midland High entered the last regular season game with Lee needing a three-part miracle — a win over Lee and losses by Abilene High and San Angelo — to get back in the state playoff hunt. With 2:28 left in the game against Lee, MHS held an 18-point lead, 68-50, on a David McFarland layup.

It was then that word from Abilene came rolling in that Cooper had upset Abilene High. MHS was two-thirds of the way back in the hunt.

The Midland reserves hit the floor and Lee made an unthreatening comeback to pull to within the final six point margin. But before the game was over, MHS coach Jack Stephenson had learned that San Angelo had beaten Big Spring, 60-58, with a last second shot. The Bulldog season had ended.

"I really didn't think both Abilene High and San Angelo would lose, but I was surprised that Abilene High lost. I thought it would have been the other way around. I thought Big Spring had the best chance," Stephenson said.

As far as the season ending Lee-MHS matchup, it was a good game — if you like free throw shooting exhibitions.

A total of 49 fouls was called in the game, and more time was spent at the free throw line than shooting the ball. But there was an exhibition at the line.

Lee hit 22 of 30 free throw attempts while MHS countered with 28 of 38. MHS' Doug Hixon put on the best show, connecting on 12 free throws without a miss and Lee's Tyrone Thurman was seven of eight at the charity line, despite some nasty and uncalled for catcalls from the Bulldog student body.

Hixon was five of five from the field for a 22-point effort in his last game for the Bulldogs. Over a two game span, Hixon hit 12 of 13 from the field and 14 of 14 from the free throw line to end the season. It's too bad he won't get to show his wares in a playoff.

Lee senior Tod Brown also left the court in a blaze of glory with a 22-point night also. Brown hit nine of 10 shots from the field and was four of four at the charity line. It was by far his best district outing.

MHS ends the season with 16-14 season mark while Lee finishes with a miserable 3-27 record.

Lee played the Bulldogs headup for one half, but hit only 15 of 38 shots in the second half as MHS ran to a huge lead before Stephenson cleared his bench.

Lee coach Paul Stueckler and Stephenson spent a lot of time with their squads in the postgame lockerrooms and were not available for comment.

Lee never led in the game as MHS took a 10-4 first quarter lead. Lee trailed only by a 30-25 at the half after hitting 13 of 15 free throws in the second period.

Thurman ended up with 15 points on the night and Alvin Henry had 11 for Lee. The only other Bulldog in double figures was Blake Liberty with 10, but 11 of the 15 Bulldogs got in on the scoring act.

Lee was unable to control the slowdown tempo they like in this one and that hurt them in the second half. Also the MHS bench always seemed to have fresh faces to send in while Lee went with eight players all the way. The lack of depth has hurt Lee all year.

In the junior varsity battle, Midland High's Bullpups captured a narrow 60-58 win over Lee as Dennis Cano paved the way with 15 points. Willis Ratliff had 14 and Richard Kazee added 10. Ricky Jackson led Lee with 12 points and Willie Long had nine.

Ashford breaks record in 50

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Evelyn Ashford broke her four-week-old world indoor record in the 50-yard dash with a clocking of 5.74 seconds Friday night in the Michelob Invitational track meet at San Diego Sports Arena.

Ashford, whose world record in the 60-yard dash here a year ago was disallowed after several weeks of controversy, out-dueled Alice Brown, who was clocked in 5.79, the third-fastest indoor time recorded in the event. Jennifer Innis was third in 5.88 seconds.

Ashford's previous world mark was 5.77. She is the current world record holder in the 60-yard dash at 6.54.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Defenseman Phil Housley scored one goal and assisted on another, helping the Buffalo Sabres defeat the Calgary Flames 5-1 in the National Hockey League Friday night.

Housley gave the Sabres a 1-0 lead early in the first period during a power play when he blasted a 35-footer past Flames goaltender and ex-Sabre, Don Edwards.

Housley then set up Mal Davis, recently brought up from the minors, for his first goal with the team on a pass out to the point. Davis' shot beat Edwards from 50 feet away to the stick side.

McNamara walks in with eyes open

Los Angeles Times and Washington Post News Service
(c) 1983, Los Angeles Times

News item: "John F. McNamara, fresh from stints as Manager of the Oakland A's, San Diego Padres and Cincinnati Reds, is invited to take over the California Angels and accepts."

The managership of the California Angels is no job for a man with his feet on the ground and his eyes wide open. It's not a job, it's a sentence. You picture John McNamara walking up to this castle in the Balkans in a thunderstorm and he tries not to notice the butler has blue lips and holes for eyes and has this pet bat on his shoulders, or that the blood is leaking off the teeth as he makes up the count's coffin for the night.

You wonder what in history could compare with an invitation to take over this haunted house? "Congratulations! You and your family have just won an all-expense trip in an outside stateroom on the SS Titanic. Fun-filled nights, high excitement on the high seas. Bring your bathing suits! Free ice for all!"

OR, "RESERVATIONS in your name have just been made on the spring voyage of the airship Hindenberg to Lakewood, N.J. Spectacular fireworks show included in the price." Or, how about "Dear Gen. Custer, Bureau of Indian Affairs has the honor to inform you you have been chosen to lead an expedition into the Indian Territory of the Northwest. No hurry. Any time after the officers' ball at the fort. Little Big Horn is lovely this time of the year and the Indians are there to help. Bring a camera."

How about "You and your guest are cordially invited to a night at Gestapo headquarters for an evening of home movies and parlor games like 'Hey, that's my fingernail!' Or the popular new game, or new ways to play 'I Got a Secret'?"

Maybe it's just a box at Ford's Theater, a cottage on Krakatoa, a warm friendship with Leon Trotsky. Maybe it's just like owing Al Capone money.

THERE ARE certain things you could do to fit yourself for the Angels' job. Pick a nice stretch of icy highway, much traveled by trucks with scored brake drums. Find a railroad trestle weakened by floods with the express due. Get a room at Johnstown and pray for rain. Study a whole bunch of Laurel and Hardy movies so you can see something funny in a whole bunch of car crashes and pratfalls. Get somebody to hit you in the face with a cream pie from time to time.

The Angels, you see, are Gene Autry's hex. The man who never made a mistake in 50 years in show business cannot do anything right in the American League. Every player he buys comes up with a busted leg, bad back, torn cartilage or worse. Whenever the team comes within sniffing distance of the pennant, it hits a banana peel. It makes "The Curse of the Cat People" look like a temporary run of good luck. The Angels' fortunes would have to improve for them to be considered merely snake-bit.

SO, WHAT do you do when you take over this traveling jinx, the team with the permanent cloud over its head, the joke of sports? Carry a vial of cyanide in your ring? Hire people who pull you off ledges or hide the knives and take off your belt before you go to bed at night?

If anyone is ready to manage the Angels, John McNamara is. Contrary to popular opinion, he did not just draw the short straw for the job. As a matter of fact, at the time it came up, he was weighing jobs in Baltimore, Milwaukee and Oakland, no less. "I thought I'd wind up in Baltimore when Earl Weaver resigned. But, while I was talking to Hank Peters and Edward Bennett Williams, Harry Dalton called from Milwaukee and said that 'If Harvey Kuenn resigns, we'll want to talk to you.' Then, Oakland called and wanted me to go there and Buzzie (Bavasi, general manager of the Angels) called."

WOULDN'T HE be better off spending the summer riding sharks off the Great Barrier Reef? Hadn't he heard the chains rattling in the Angels' closets late at night? Hadn't he heard the moans coming from the attic or seen the curtain catch fire in the west wing?

"I'll tell you," says John McNamara, "I wanted the Angels' job. I'd rather go to a team that's coming off a pressure year, missing the pennant by a ground ball, than go to a team that's coming off 100 losses. You talk about pressure. Pressure is sitting in a dugout a hundred and five times a year and looking at a team lose. Pressure is not being in the thick of things."

McNamara's credentials therefore are impeccable. A journeyman ball player who never even got a cup of coffee in the big leagues, he has been a manager of one sort or another since he has been 26 years old. He was only 36 when he got his first major league job – the head job at Oakland.

John McNamara got the manager's job at Oakland just as the A's were emerging from the status of prospects to prosperous. But, just as they were about to win five consecutive division pennants and three world championships, owner Finley turned the team over to Dick Williams. McNamara went to San Diego where the team lost 282 games in three years.

John went to Cincinnati then where all his team did was compile the best record in all of baseball. Before you throw your hat in the air, be advised that was a strike year. He might as well have been in the second division.

John got fired after Cincinnati let a hall of fame infield (Pete Rose, Joe Morgan) go, to say nothing of an All-Star outfield (George Foster, Ken Griffey).

HAPPILY, "BURNOUT" is a psychological malady which affects mainly football mentors, not baseball. McNamara sees his band as the finest in the land. Never mind that it frustrated such registered geniuses of the dugout as Dick Williams, Gene Mauch or Bill Rigney, till they ran screaming for the exit. "Listen," says McNamara, "I'm not going to teach Rod Carew how to play baseball, Reggie Jackson how to hit home runs, Fred Lynn how to play line drives. I'm going to try to help a bunch of gifted ball players find the one game or two they need to make them world champions."

All well and good, but if I were John McNamara, and I saw the eyes move in the portraits, or ground balls on the way to the outfield suddenly veer into the gloves of shortstops for two, or saw Reggie Jackson home runs bend backward at the last minute out over the seats and come back toward the outfielder – well, I'd keep a bag packed, and a blunt stake and a mirror in my pocket just in case.

Boxing not going away, but it can be controlled

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The American Medical Association held a one day conference on the medical aspects of the sport Friday, and Dr. William D. Dolan of Chicago said, "Boxing is not going away but it can be controlled."

The seminar was sponsored by the AMA Council on Scientific Affairs of which Dolan is chairman and by the Association of Ringside Physicians.

About 200 physicians and people involved in boxing attended at Caesars Palace.

Dr. Jack E. Battalia, a physician from Portland, Ore., pointed out that the conference had been planned befor the death of Duk-Koo Kim of Korea.

"We are anxious to keep up the momentum of interest (in boxing safety)," Dolan said. The AMA Journal has editorally called for the abolishment of boxing but the Council of Scientific Affairs has said banning the sport is not realistic and that "the sport does not seem anymore dangerous than other sports.

The Advisory Panel on Brain Injury in Boxing does see a need for specific improvements in administration and medical standards.

Ex-Cub Lamp loses out in arbitration

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Midland Cubs pitcher Dennis Lamp, shooting for a whopping $750,000 contract, was turned down by arbitrator Marvin Feldman and will have to settle for the $312,500 offered by the Chicago White Sox.

Lamp, 30, had an 11-8 record last yeav with a 3.93 earned run average. He also had five saves while doing double duty as a starter and reliever.

Red Sox rift

BOSTON — Boston Red Sox part-owner Buddy LeRoux onfirmed a rift between him and the baseball team's two other general partners and says he won't sell his interest in the club to them.

The Boston Herald on Friday quoted the former Red Sox' and Boston Celtics' trainer as saying, "I will not be intimidated, and I will not be bought out."

He referred to a recent Boston Globe story that said he and Rogers Badgett of Kentucky are asking $14 million for the 14 limited shares in the team which they bought for $7 million in 1978.

Mets sign pair

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The New York Mets signed pitchers Tom Gorman and Jesse Orosco and shortstop Ron Gardenhmre on Friday and may have lost returning star Tom Seaver for a little while.

Seaver, who has returned to the Mets after spending 5½ years with the Cincinnati Reds, suffered a slight pull in his right calf and had to cut short his wind sprints.

Seaver, 38, was acquired by the Mets in December for pitcher Charlie Puleo, outfielder Jason Felice and catcher Lloyd McClendon. He was 5-13 for the Reds in 1982, his first losing season.

"There will be one emotional day, if I come back and pitch opening day. It will bring back a lot of memories of another era. If I don't pitch the opener the emotion will come whenever I pitch."

Gardenhire hit .240 as the Mets' starting shortstop for most of last season. Orosco, a left-handed reliever, led the staff in appearances with 54, all but two in relief. He was 4-10 with a 2.72 ERA and four saves.

Power joins Reds

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds said Friday that pitchers Ted Power and Bill Dawley have signed 1983 contracts. Power, 28, was acquired from Los Angeles after compiling a 5-4 record and 5.18 ERA in 14 games last season with the Dodgers' Class AAA club in Albuquerque, and was 1-1 with a 6.68 ERA in 12 games with the Dodgers.

SPRING TRAINING

Parker denies report

BRADENTON, Fla. — Pittsburgh outfielder Dave Parker claims reports that he skipped out of the final weeks of his contract with the Magallanes club in the Venezuelan winter league are not true.

"My contract was up on Feb. 7," Parker said. "I asked them if they wanted me to stay beyond that and they kept telling me they'd let me know. They never did and I left. Do you think I could have gotten out of the country if I had violated my contract? No way."

Parker batted .270 in about 25 games in Venezuela, the same average he had during an injury-shortened 1982 season with the Pirates.

Braves open camp

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.–Atlanta manager Joe Torre, opening spring training camp Friday for the defending NL West champions, said he plans to keep hard-throwing right-hander Steve Bedrosian in the bullpen this season.

Twenty-three pitchers and eight catchers were on hand for a morning workout, along with three regulars — outfielder Dale Murphy, the NL's Most Valuable Player last season, second baseman Glenn Hubbard and outfielder Brett Butler.

All other regulars are scheduled to report to camp next Thursday.

The 25-year-old reliever had 11 saves and the NL's best strikeouts-innings pitched ratio with 123 in 137 2/3 innings. Bedrosian had an 8-6 record last year.

The major problem facing Torre in training camp is decided on a starting rotation, with only 43-year-old knuckleballer Phil Niekro assured of a spot. Niekro had the best won-loss record of his career when he logged a 17-4 mark last season.

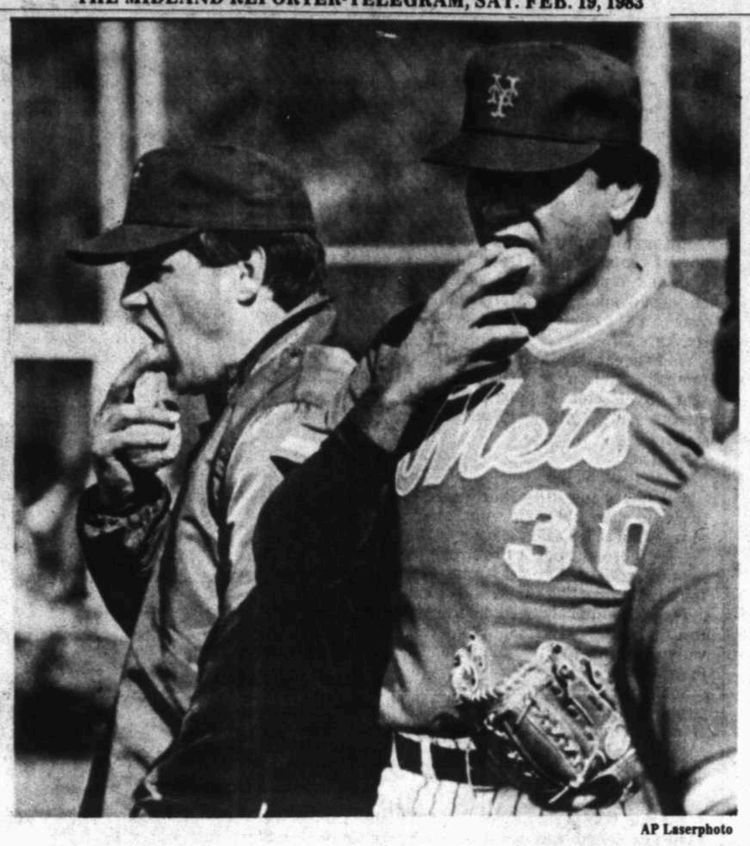

Orioles work out

MIAMI — Joe Altobelli conducted his first workout as Baltimore manager Friday, but the club's main news came out of New York, where General Manager Hank Peters and outfielder Gary Roenicke avoided an arbitration hearing at the last minute.

It is believed the compromise will net Roenicke about $300,000 for the coming season. He had asked for $350,000.

Roenicke, a veteran of almost five years in the major leagues, hit 21 home runs and drove in 74 runs while playing in 133 games for the Orioles last year.

Meanwhile, at Miami Stadium, Altobelli had a group of 27, including 17 pitchers and six catchers, on hand for his first spring training session as Earl Weaver's successor.

BOWLING BEAT

Masoner's 712 leads bowlers

By RANDY ISENBERG

Steve Masoner, rolling in the TGIF Mixed League, paced bowlers this week in Midland with a 255 game and 712 series. Jackie Brownfield again led the women with an 803 four-game series in the Ladies Scratch Trio while Karen Jordan rolled a 600 and 789 four-game set in the same league.

JoAnn Jackson rolled a 246-593 and Gaye Reed a 234-593 in the High Sky Ladies while Betty Seay had a good week with a 596-772 in the Ladies Scratch League, a 211-570 in the Mop & Broom and a 216-575 in the His & Hers Mixed.

Rebels in bi-district today

THE LEE bench of Shelly Armstrong (3.7), Chris Bigler (3.1), Denise Hatch (2.2), Lori Haney (2.2), Jeanne McFadden (2.1), Janetta Eaden (0.8) has been the big plus for Lee. All have played in at least 23 games this year.

Lee has won or tied for the 4-5A championship in all six years the league has had girls' basketball, but has been in the playoffs only three previous times. In 1978, Lee lost a bi-district matchup to El Paso Parkland. In 1979, the Rebels defeated Carrolton-Turner of Ft. Worth in bi-district before losing to Plainview in the regional meeting. Lee lost to Lewisville in a bi-district game in 1980, the last time the Rebels were playoff bound.

Today's winner will face El Paso Bel Air Tuesday at a site still to be determined. Bel Air ripped El Paso Jefferson 68-46 in a bi-district meeting Wednesday.

According to Gil Bartosh, Midland athletic director, the Area matchup has already been set for Tuesday, and if Lee wins, there will be a flip for a home-and-home playoff. Lee lost to Bel Air at Chaparral Center by a narrow 66-65 margin earlier this season.

Tickets for today's bi-district clash are $3 for adults and $2 for students and may be purchased at the door of the Lamesa Middle School gym.

Super scout spots talent early early

TED BATTLES

BATTLE SCENE

Ed "Too Tall" Jones was 5-10 and Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson was an introvert when Gil Brandt first spotted them, which may be one reason for the Dallas Cowboys' long-running success story.

Gil's job is to spot football talent for the Cowboys, which means the one-time baby photographer who almost missed his calling, doesn't call it a season with the final bowl or post season all-star game.

He doesn't scout basketball games for the NBA or track meets for the U.S. Olympic committee, where his success at finding football talent has been such that even other NFL teams are doing it.

PRESUMABLY, Gil's philosophy is that, just as he wandered into the wrong profession, athletes, successful in another sport, could also have made a more rewarding choice.

Probably, his most successful conversions were Bob Hayes, billed as the world's fastest human in track, and Pete Gent, the Michigan State basketball player, who became a productive wide receiver for the Cowboys.

Some don't necessarily agree with Brandt's assessment. Too Tall Jones decided he was the logical successor to Muhammad Ali and had to convince himself that Gil knew best.

Mercury Morris drew the raves during the successful Joe Kerbel years at West Texas State, but "the other running back" helped put the Cowboys into their first Super Bowl. Anybody remember Duane Thomas?

WHILE IN Midland recently, Gil took the view of that parity has made pro football dynasties, although one is heralded annually following the Super Bowl game, a thing of the past. "Today rules legislate against success."

He credits the Cowboys' continued success to Coach Tom Landry. "The ability to change is what keeps Landry at the top. Look back and see how many coaches have managed to remain on top through four decades. Bear Bryant, Landry... As successful as he was at Oklahoma, Bud Wilkinson eventually was the victim of a changing game.

"Football is always changing. Back in the 1940s, Missouri was running the Split-T and it was the rage. Then, along came the Oklahoma defense and the Split-T was passe. In the late 1960s and early 1970s, the Wishbone was the offense, but then they defensed that."

"Right now, because of rules changes that have benefited offensive linemen and prevent defensive backs from more than one karate chop on the receiver, the offense rules. But the defense will think of something."

ON THE subject of the strike last season, Brandt still isn't convinced that the NFL won't feel the effects next season. "Everybody points to baseball and the record attendance following the strike. They expect the same thing to happen in the NFL next season. Pro football draws from a different clientele and I'm not at all sure they will forgive and forget. Baseball draws the blue collar fan. The pro football fan is more affluent. He may not react the same way. I think the pro football fan still holds a lot of animosity."

Brandt also feels that some franchises, in all sports, face problems, problems of geography. With free agency, the teams in the cold weather climates are in trouble. "Minnesota might be able to compete for players because of the indoor stadium, but places like Milwaukee, Green Bay, Cleveland, Buffalo..." he shakes his head.

"The cities in the warmer climates or the media centers, like New York, are the places that will get the better players."

But getting back to Landry, Gil points out that once in game, "Tom's concentration is such that he doesn't know where he is and he even forgets names. In one game last year, he wanted to send in a play and called for 'Golden'. Golden Richards hadn't been with us for years."

"The guy we wanted was Doug Donley, the wide receiver who been drafted out of Ohio State in 1981."

Ben Crenshaw tied for second.

Kite reels off nine birdie

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Tom Kite, convinced his golf game has never been better, ripped off nine birdies for a 7-under-par 65 to take a three-stroke lead in Friday's second round of the $300,000 Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open.

"I feel like I'm swinging as well as I ever have in my life," said Kite, whose 11-under 133 total was one shy of the tournament's 36-hole record set last year by Johnny Miller, the eventual winner.

Ben Crenshaw, winless since 1980, was tied for second with John Cook and Gary Hallberg at 136.

Four strokes back, tied with a half dozen others, was Dr. Gil Morgan, whose 66 put him in position to challenge for his third victory of the year. He won the first two events of 1983, the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open and the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open.

Kite, with a chance to win his second consecutive tournament for the first time in his 11-year career, toured the easier Torrey Pines North Course in 32-33, with four birdies on the front nine.

Winner of the Bing Crosby Pro-Am two weeks ago, Kite sat out the Hawaiian Open last week and did not plan to play the San Diego event.

"I'm glad I changed my mind," he said.

Kite started the day three strokes behind first-round leader Jon Chaffee, who shot a 75 after an opening-day 65.

In Kite's threesome were Morgan and Dave Eichelberger and they combined for 21 birdies.

"The lady keeping score couldn't keep up. It was a pinball machine lighting up," said Kite.

Eichelberger matched Kite's 65 and was alone in a group at 137.

One of the tour's most consistent players but a winner, Kite said a cured flaw has been a key to his streak.

"I got in some bad habits last year," said Kite, who corrected the problems by studying video tapes and seeking counsel from well-known teaching pro Dave Toske.

"I had too much flex in my knees," said the 33-year-old Texan, a tour workaholic who competed in 29 events last year, 26 in the United States. The leading money champion was almost as spectacular in 1981 when had 21 top 10 finishes in 26 starts, a remarkable feat of consistency.

Kite capped his searing round with an 18-foot birdie putt on No. 18, a par-5, 490-yard hole. Prior to that he had bunkered his second shot and blasted to within the pin.

"I'm kind of riding a wave right now and hope it lasts the rest of my life," he said. "I feel like I'm on the verge of starting to win more and more."

He has only five tour victories during his career. He finished with the No. 1 scoring average the past two years.

Tom Watson, Barry Jaeckel and Jim Boore were among a group at 138, five strokes off the pace.

Lions' Blackledge to pass up last year for pros

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Quarterback Todd Blackledge will pass up his final year of eligibility with national champion Penn State and take a shot with the National Football League.

"I saw it as a decision with two good choices," said Blackledge, rated among the top five pro quarterback prospects in the nation by major scouting outfits. "At this point in my career, I'm both mentally and physically ready to play pro football."

Blackledge, who will graduate with his class in the spring and is thus eligible for the NFL draft in April, was left with the extra year of eligibility because a broken bone in his hand caused him to be redshirted in his freshman season.

Blackledge said winning the national championship was a factor in his leaving. "As I reflect back on the significance of that game and the championship, it did have a lot of bearing on my decision," he said of the victory over Georgia in the Sugar Bowl.

Coach Joe Paterno said he was sorry to see Blackledge but wished him well. "As we have discussed him on many occasions, he had absolutely no obligation to stay, but was only obliged to do what would be best for him."

Arkansas, Houston win SWC track

FORT WORTH (AP) - Scott Lofquist's career best in the shot put and Frank O'Mara's iron man stint in the distance races propelled the Arkansas Razorbacks to their third consecutive Southwest Conference Indoor Track championship Friday night.

The Lady Houston Cougars, led by Carol Lewis' three first places, captured the first women's division championship in the 10th annual meet. Houston scored 158 points to 88 for Texas and 69 for the Lady Razorbacks.

Lofquist, a senior from Overland Park, Kan., stunned the crowd in Tarrant County convention center by defeating heavily favored Michael Carter of Southern Methodist.

Lofquist's toss of 66-feet, 6 1/2 inches was 16 inches better than he had ever done indoors. Carter was second with 66-2 3/4.

O'Mara anchored Arkansas' victory in the distance medley relay with a 4;02 mile then came back to outlast Gawain Guy of Rice to win the mile in 4:08.8.

"I never felt like I would lose that mile run," said O'Mara, a senior from Lierick, Ireland. "I was surprised Guy was leading me with to laps to go, but I was confident all the way. I didn't care about my time."

Finally, O'Mara ran a half mile on Arkansas' two-mile relay team and his brilliant anchor brought the Razorbacks a second place just behind the Texas Longhorns.

He was nipped by Texas freshman Carlos Quinones of Killeen. Texas was clocked in 7:37.51 to 7:37.55 for Arkansas. Quinones had earlier won the 1000-yard rush in 2:09.17.

The 19-year-old Lewis, sister of world indoor long jump and 60 holder Carl Lewi the long jump, high and the 60-yard hur 7.88.

Federals show USFL at best and worst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Federals may serve as a good example of all that is good and all that is bad in the new United States Football League.

The Federals open the season at home on March 6 against a man who won as many games as anyone in this town, former Washington Redskins coach and now a USFL coach with the Chicago Blitz, George Allen.

Season ticket sales, hyped by an agressive marketing campaign, will reach about 18,000 by the opener. Slightly below the Feds' own expectations, the season ticket sales should serve as a solid base for future box office success.

On the field, top-quality coaching, the untested quality of a high-priced rookie combining with a score of former National Football League players will give the Federals an interesting, if not especially talented, look in its inaugural season.

The Federals are coached by Ray Jauch, a veteran of 12 years of head coaching in the Canadian Football League. On offense, Jauch's teams have traditionally been pass oriented. This year, however, Jauch may find more success moving on the ground.

Led by No. 1 draft choice Craig James of Southern Methodist, the Feds seem set at running back. James, one of the top running backs in the Southwest Conference, signed a four-year, $1.5 million contract.

James figures to become one of the stars of the new league and should play a pivotal role in determining just how fast the Federals will climb in the standings and in the minds of local fans, spoiled by the success of the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins.

At fullback, the Federals will probably start James Mayberry. Playing behind William Andrews in Atlanta for the past three years, Mayberry has averaged 4.3 yards a carry in his NFL career.

The team's passing game is suspect at best. Kim McQuilken, who spent seven undistinguished years with the Falcons and Redskins, has seen most of the preseason action at quarterback. Mike Hohensee, the team's No. 5 draft choice from Minnesota, arrived late after playing in the Hula Bowl and has a sore foot.

The receivers, the weakest spot on the team, according to general manager Dick Myers, are led by three players who failed to stick with the Redskins. Wide receivers Chy Davidson, Rodney Goosby and tight end Phil DuBois are the ex-Redskins.

The offensive line is unsettled with two rookies, Dave Parcella (Maryland) and Brian Musselman (Virginia), making the best impression at left tackle and guard, respectively.

On defense, the Federals will feature two ends who have made a career of making life miserable for opposing quarterbacks. Coy Bacon, who has celebrated 15 of his 40 birthdays in the NFL, and Robert Barber, who gave the Green Bay Packers four solid years.

Odessa, San Angelo earn 4-5A playoff spots

Odessa High and San Angelo won the two District 4-5A state basketball playoff berths Friday night with wins over Odessa Permian and Big Spring.

Odessa High won its first district title and first playoff berth since 1969 with a 52-46 win over Permian. Joe Terry led the way with 18 points and Howard Harris had 14. OHS finished the league race with a 10-4 record, two losses coming against Midland High.

Permian's Rodney Hendrix had 11 points and Paul Logan 10.

San Angelo captured sole possession of second place and the remaining playoff berth with a 60-58 win over Big Spring.

Jack Carsner, who had 12 points, won the game with two seconds left when he canned two free throws after being fouled under the Big Spring basket by Jimmy Brown with the game tied at 58. Jeff Kasner led the Bobcats with 20 points and Henry Green had 12.

Big Spring was led by Jerald Wrightsil with 17 and Tony Randle with 14. Jinx Valenzuela had 11 points.

The high scoring Lorand White was benched until the fourth quarter after a dispute with his coach before the game.

Indira Gandhi has India moving

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — One industrial firm is gearing up to produce India's first new model car in nearly 30 years. A "Palace on Wheels" luxury train whisks travellers around. Indian scientists are establishing a permanent base in Antarctica's ice. Color television is here at last.

All this has come to bullock-powered India, where millions still live in abject poverty without electricity, drinkable water or a roof over their heads.

In her second, separate term as prime minister, Indira Gandhi has India moving.

There is dispute on the direction, but it is moving, nonetheless — this nation of contrasts.

India is steeped in poverty, but it also has nuclear power plants.

It has one of the world's worst telephone systems, yet it is one of only seven nations that has orbited a satellite.

India has always aspired to greatness. Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first prime minister and Mrs. Gandhi's father, spoke of a "tryst with destiny" after it won independence from Britain in 1947. He subsequently was active on the international scene. So was his daughter in her first term, which began in 1966 and ended in the voting booths in 1977 after she assumed authoritarian powers by declaring emergency rule.

The voters reversed their decision in January 1980 and Mrs. Gandhi returned to the leadership. Since then, India has basked in an international limelight. It remains there as she embarks on the fourth year of her return.

CRITICS HAVE CALLED some of this mere image building at the expense of the country's impoverished masses. The harshest ones suggest it was Mrs. Gandhi's image that was being gilded more than India's.

Supporters maintain that even the more extravagant exercises, such as hosting the Asian Games last November, were "nation building" — necessary to give Indians a sense of country and India its rightful place in the world.

Regardless, the world began taking a much closer look at India when Mrs. Gandhi returned as prime minister for the second time. A major reason was the changed geopolitical situation.

The month before, Soviet armies had rolled into Afghanistan. Outside interest focused on India, the largest non-aligned power in the area and a friend of Moscow. Government leaders raced to New Delhi to exchange views with Mrs. Gandhi.

Soon Mrs. Gandhi began traveling. She talked with the late Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Soviet Union, Margaret Thatcher of Britain and Presidents Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Francois Mitterand of France — in both their capitals and hers.

She met President Reagan in Washington and Pope John Paul II in Rome.

SHE MET WITH LEADERS of the world's rich nations in Cancun, Mexico, in October 1981, and invited leaders of the poor ones to New Delhi the following February.

In October 1980, she hosted the regional meeting of the Commonwealth heads of government. The Non-Aligned Foreign Ministers Conference convened here four months later. Then last November, the Asian Games came to New Delhi.

Mrs. Gandhi has tried to open up India and reach out to the world in other ways, too.

Last year India sent its first scientific expedition to Antarctica. Its second expedition is there now, preparing a permanent camp.

The government lately has tried to attract more foreign business collaboration. Its success has been limited because of still strict currency and investment controls. One standout exception, however, is Maruti Industries Ltd., which is tooling up with Japanese help to produce the first new model car in nearly three decades.

India also has embarked on an ambitious program to increase tourism, which grew by a disappointing 1.9 percent last year, by adding more hotels, both private and government-managed.

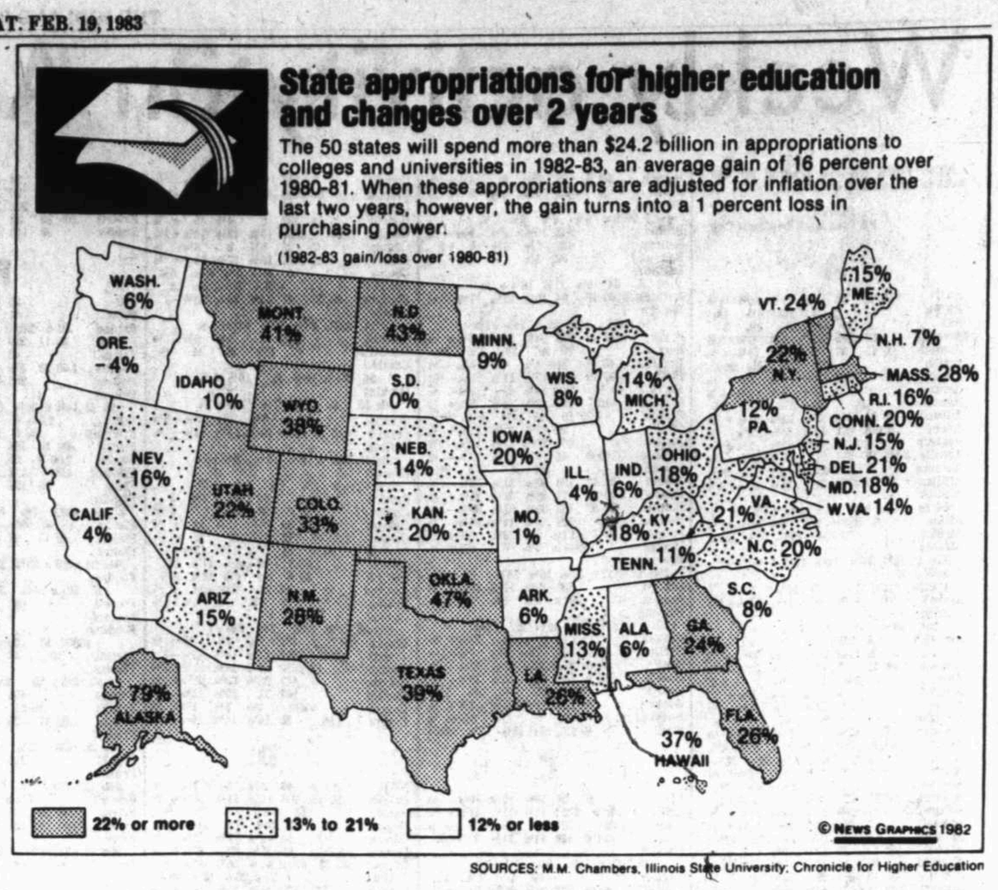

AIR INDIA, THE government's international airline, recently computerized its reservations. After years of delay, Indian Airlines, the main domestic carrier, plans to do so in 1984. Airports large and small across the country are undergoing renovation and expansion.

Last year the India Tourism and Development Corp. inaugurated the "Palace on Wheels," a special train that take travellers in splendor around the "tourist triangle" from New Delhi to Agra (the Taj Mahal) to Jaipur (the Pink City) and back.

This year it plans to christen the "Buddha Express," a Calcutta-based train (complete with prayer room and bar) that will take pilgrims to the holiest of Buddhist shrines.

Western goods and technology also have been easing into the Indian market recently.

A temporary reduction of import fees brought in 56,000 color television sets for the Asian Games, when India inaugurated color telecasting. It was the last nation in the region to do so.

Analysts: Mexican tourism will rebound

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Banking analysts estimate that tourism, an industry that virtually disappeared here because of high prices, will rebound with the devalued peso to bring in as much as $750 million in foreign exchange this year.

A report from the National Bank of Mexico said, "The surplus between investment and exit of foreign exchange from tourism will reach its highest level of the past five years."

WA3HUP waits for royal J-Y-1

YORK HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — Mary Ann Crider counts Jordan's King Hussein among her friends.

"I always call him 'Your Majesty,'" said the York County woman, who is a veteran shortwave, or "ham," radio operator.

She and her late husband, Charlie, even traveled to Jordan on four occasions as guests of the monarch.

"Amateur radio is about the finest hobby a person can have," said Mrs. Crider. "It keeps you at home, but you can be anywhere in the world at any given time."

Although she's made hundreds of friends since joining the ham community in 1967, no other ham is as important to her as "J-Y-1."

"The most rewarding part has been meeting His Majesty, J-Y-1," she said, referring to Hussein's radio call sign.

Mrs. Crider, whose call sign is WA3HUP, first made contact with the monarch in 1969. "I was so doggone excited. What can you say, a nobody talking to a king?" she recalled.

Since it was their hobby that introduced them, that topic is the staple of their conversations.

"Amateur radio puts you on the same plane," she explained. "It's easy to talk to another amateur."

Hams like to talk about the quality of signal being received, radio equipment, weather, family, hobbies and likes and dislikes, she said.

"The only thing we keep clear of is politics and religion," said Mrs. Crider, who added that Hussein includes her on his annual Christmas card list.

"When he comes on the air, it's sheer bedlam," she said, because his transmissions create an effect like that of dropping bread crumbs in a goldfish pond.

As soon as other shortwave operators recognize his voice or call letters, they frantically jam the airwaves, all soliciting a royal acknowledgement.

"He can't get on the air and chat," she said. "He comes on only a little while, then leaves."

Mrs. Crider is Hussein's "QSL" manager, someone who keeps written confirmation of a two-way radio contact.

Operators who have spoken with Hussein contact her to receive the king's QSL. Before sending a card, however, she verifies the encounter in Hussein's logs, which he sends her for that purpose.

She's also a QSL manager for about 50 other ham operators around the world, including a priest on Easter Island, 2,000 miles west of Chile in the southeastern Pacific Ocean.

Over the years, Mrs. Crider has talked with fellow hams in 332 countries or political subdivisions of countries.

Energy usage monitored

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Energy usage may be reduced 15 to 30 percent when homes are equipped with integrated energy management systems, says Dr. Margaret Weber, associate professor of housing, design and consumer resources at Oklahoma State University.

Even though energy management systems have been used successfully in commercial areas for about 10 years, there is much skepticism about the cost effectiveness of such systems for home use, Mrs. Weber explains.

She and two graduate students are testing six different energy management systems available on the market to determine energy use, consumer acceptance, and practicality for home use.

Homes in subdivisions within and outside Stillwater, built by the same builder and insulated much the same way, are included in the study.

Scientists probe Northern Lights

LOS ALAMOS (AP) — A group of scientists from Los Alamos National Laboratories blew a hole in the upper atmosphere as part of an international experiment to learn what causes the Northern Lights.

The Northern Lights' aerial colors occur in a magnetic field of an atmospheric layer 25 to 250 miles high. The phenomenon has been observed for hundreds of years, but scientists are not sure why it occurs.

On Feb. 6, American and Canadian researchers participated in Waterhole III, an experiment designed to study the causes of the aurora.

Researchers fired a two-stage rocket from Manitoba, Canada, above the aurora to blow a hole in it. The second stage then passed through the hole and relayed data back to researchers on the ground.

Can make tax deductions if have office at home

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Your home may be more than your castle when you're filing your federal income tax return. It could be a money-saving deduction.

One way to get that deduction is with an office at home.

Sidney Kess, director of tax planning and policy for the international accounting firm of Main Hurdman, said that recent tax court rulings, combined with a little-noticed change in the law late in 1981, make more people eligible for the break.

Before 1976, Kess explained, deductions for home offices were common. But problems also were common. Exactly what constituted a home office? Was a desk in the corner enough? If you brought work home at night, did that make part of your house a formal office?

In 1976, Congress tightened the rules, Kess said, and the home-office deduction disappeared for many people.

Under the new law, you could deduct expenses only if a portion of your home was used exclusively and regularly as your principal place of business; if it was used for meeting and dealing with clients, customers or patients on a regular basis; or if it was set up for the convenience of your employer.

The spare bedroom that did double duty as an occasional office didn't count if it also was used for non-work purposes. Nor could you deduct your home office if you did most of your work someplace else.

The 1976 law didn't eliminate all of the questions, however.

What if you had a second job and worked from home? Suppose you had an office job during the week, for example, and picked up extra money as a salesman in the evenings and on weekends? Could you claim a deduction?

The Tax Court said you could. It ruled in the case of a doctor who also managed rental properties and set aside a portion of his house for his part-time work. The court said that the doctor could deduct the expenses of his home office — even though medicine was his principal business.

The Internal Revenue Service, however, had issued proposed regulations that said you couldn't claim a home-office deduction in connection with a second job; the deduction was allowed only if you used the office for your principal business.

Congress clarified the situation with the Black Lung Benefits Revenue Act which was passed during the final week of the 1981 session and signed by President Reagan on Dec. 29, 1981. (The law deals primarily with benefits for coal miners; the home-office deduction was one of several amendments.)

The new law says you can claim a deduction as long as your home office is the principal place of business for any trade or business you're involved in. "The law codified the court ruling," said Kess.

Not only may you be able to claim a deduction this year, you may qualify for a refund for past years. Kess said you generally have three years to seek a refund for a deduction you were entitled to but didn't claim.

The rules are still strict. A teacher, for example, who uses a home office to prepare lessons generally cannot claim a deduction if he or she is provided with space at school where the same work could be done.

You should keep careful records of all home-office expenses to substantiate your deduction. You cannot claim a deduction unless you show gross income from the business you operate from home. And you can have only one main office for any single job.

You also have to be careful when you sell your house if you have an office at home, Kess said.

As a general rule, you do not have to pay capital gains on the profit you make from selling your house if you invest the money in another house that will serve as your principal residence within 24 months.

Louisiana school rejects desegregation plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration dropped its prime attempt Friday to replace an existing court-ordered school busing plan after the East Baton Rouge, La., school board rejected the Justice Department's voluntary desegregation proposal.

The decision marked the second recent setback for the Reagan administration's high-priority effort to find alternatives to mandatory busing. On Jan. 24, the U.S. Supreme Court turned down an administration request that it review a mandatory busing plan for Nashville, Tenn., schools.

Reagan officials had billed the case in East Baton Rouge Parish as the best example of their school desegregation policy. Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, head of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, had taken the unusual step of personally arguing for the plan at a school board meeting on Feb.7.

The board, however, voted 10-2 on Feb. 10 to reject the Justice plan, which would have phased in a voluntary desegregation system over three years as a replacement for court-ordered busing which began in 1981.

The school board said its rejection was based on the cost of the plan and the fact that it would actually increase busing, although on a voluntary basis.

On Friday, Reynolds advised U.S. District Judge John V. Parker in Baton Rouge to cancel his planned hearing on revisions to the mandatory plan. "We have insisted from the outset that a school board's commitment is the vital ingredient in implementing an educational incentive plan, and, further, that we would decline to proceed in court without such a commitment," Raynolds said, citing the board's rejection.

Reynolds offered to continue discussions with the board, which also has expressed some interest in further talks, but Justice Department spokesman John V. Wilson said no such talks are scheduled at this time.

Reynolds said the government would return to court only if it could agree with the school board on a plan "that realistically promises to desegregate parish schools."

"Today's action is certainly no endorsement of the mandatory transportation in the court order," Reynolds said. He said the Justice Department still estimates that mandatory busing could increase white flight from the schools and cause almost a 10 percent drop in white enrollment over the next five years. Whites currently comprise 52.1 percent of the system's students.

The Reagan administration plan would have set up 15 magnet schools at a cost of about $2 million, with special programs designed to draw an integrated student body. It also would have redrawn school attendance zones around neighborhood schools and authorized voluntary student transfers wherever the transfer would promote desegregation.

All busing under the Reagan proposal would have been either voluntary or to neighborhood schools. The magnet schools would have had racial limits of 55 percent white and 45 percent black, plus or minus 2.5 percent.

Arms control nominee denies he said talks were sham

WASHINGTON (AP) — A journalist who quoted arms control nominee Kenneth L. Adelman as calling arms reduction talks a sham said on Friday he has no doubt about the accuracy of the quotation, although Adelman denies any recollection of it.

"In effect, he is calling me a liar, and that causes me to want to set the record straight," said Ken Auletta, a columnist for the New York Daily News, in a telephone interview.

"I have no doubt" that Adelman spoke the words attributed to him, Auletta said. He said he still has his notes of the interview, and they show that the quotation is correct.

Auletta quoted Adelman as saying that arms control negotiations were a "sham" but that his policy "would be to do it for political reasons."

At a new conference in New York Thursday, Adelman said, "I have no recollection of making any such a statement at any time."

Two Democratic senators who have helped stall Adelman's nomination in the Foreign Relations Committee expressed doubts of his denial.

"Anybody who has been around this town long enough knows the difference between saying, 'I don't recollect' and saying, 'I've never said it'," said Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said, "I am very skeptical about the statements by Mr. Adelman that he can't recollect ever making such statements.

"I will do what I can to see that Mr. Adelman is brought before the committee and placed under oath so that we can examine him."

Murray Flander, Cranston's press secretary, said Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., agreed Friday to call a hearing for next Thursday. However Alan Safren, a spokesman for the committee, said no hearing had been scheduled.

Reagan asserts negotiating stance

Norwegian official told of arms reduction stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told Norwegian Prime Minister Kare Willoch Friday that the United States is sincerely committed to negotiating arms reductions with the Soviet Union and will explore any serious Soviet proposal.

Willoch told reporters later that while a recent arms control proposal by Soviet party leader Yuri Andropov is unacceptable, he hopes the White House will consider it as "kind of an opening bid" that could lead to a compromise solution.

In a departure statement following two hours of White House meetings, Reagan said: "I assured the prime minister of a firm American commitment to the preservation of peace and freedom and our continuing efforts in coordination with our allies in the North Atlantic community to achieve reductions in the military arsenals of both the East and the West."

"I was absolutely satisfied with his underlining of their dedication to these negotiations and the (U.S.) will to achieve a result with the minimum forces on both sides," Willoch told reporters at a news conference later.

At the White House, he said he favors Reagan's zero-option proposal under which, he said, "no intermediate nuclear weapons on either side would be the optimum outcome."

"We know the United States will make all possible efforts to get an agreement with the Soviet Union as close to this optimum as possible," Willoch said.

At a news conference later at the Norwegian Embassy in Washington, Willoch said that he should have added that a zero-option outcome eliminating all intermediate range weapons is "the really only satisfactory outcome."

"But as has been stated several times by NATO governments, this is not an ultimatum, and one should be prepared also to accept other solutions provided they imply a balance of forces between East and West," he said.

Kare Willoch, Norwegian prime minister, speaks to reporters after a Friday meeting with President Reagan.

Willoch said the Andropov proposal is unclear and insufficient and would leave the Soviets with a monopoly on intermediate range weapons and would not achieve a balance of forces in Europe.

He expressed optimism, however, that the Soviets "will come up with something better if the (West) stands united and it's made clear to the Soviets that the alternative to a better proposal will be the deployment of new (U.S.) weapons in the West."

Willoch said he is convinced that the United States would display flexibility in striking a compromise bargain with Moscow "provided there is flexibility on the other side."

"One shouldn't be too frustrated that they haven't come up with something more acceptable," Willoch said. "And one should not make the inference that the situation is hopeless. We believe that they will have to come up with something better."

A senior administration official who spoke to reporters on the condition he not be identified said Reagan told Willoch the United States "does not have a take-it-or-leave-it approach to the negotiations."

At the same time, he said, the president wants "to make the Soviets understand that the zero-option is a realistic goal."

Reagan was said to have told Willoch that chief U.S. negotiator Paul Nitze "has been instructed to explore any serious Soviet proposal."

The two leaders met first in the Oval Office and then continued their talks over lunch.

Arms sale to Lebanon proposed

Sale second in effort to rebuild Lebanese army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon told Congress Friday it plans to sell Lebanon 107 armored troop carriers to equip two brigades as part of the U.S. effort to strengthen the Lebanese Army.

The M-113A2 armored personnel carriers, together with .50 caliber machine guns and other equipment, will cost about $25 million, the Pentagon said.

This is the second such arms sale to Lebanon announced by the Pentagon since last fall, when the Reagan administration decided a major U.S. objective is to rebuild the ragtag Lebanese Army so it can assure the country's security without the help of troops from other countries, such as the multinational peacekeeping force now deployed in and around Beirut.

Last November, the United States sold Lebanon 34 upgraded M-48 tanks, plus ammunition and spare parts, for $32 million.

Lt. Gen. Philip C. Gast, the Pentagon's arms sales chief, told Congress earlier this week that the administration wants to provide Lebanon $100 million in arms sales credits in the new budget.

"It would help Lebanon recover from the...destruction of the past year by helping the armed forces restore law and order," Gast said.

Indian elections may see no winner

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The violence-ridden elections in Assam state — perhaps the bloodiest in India's history — have cost hundreds of lives and may result in a legislature handicapped by enduring ethnic and religious conflict.

The outcome is a sure mathematical victory for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party. But the price in blood, bitterness and future problems could prove too high even for such a powerful politician.

Reports from the once-peaceful tea-growing state in India's far northeast spoke of lasting wounds inflicted in two weeks of killings, bombings, looting and village burnings. The death toll since Feb. 2 neared 400 Friday, with the final round of the three-stage voting not due until Sunday.

The outcome is a sure mathematical victory for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party. But the price in blood, bitterness and future problems could prove too high even for such a powerful politician.

At issue are the rights of hundreds of thousands of Bengali-speaking Moslem settlers who have been branded illegal immigrants by the Assamese-speaking "natives" — mostly Hindus and nearly 80 percent of the state's 20 million people.

Assamese are boycotting the election to back demands that the settlers be expelled, or at least removed from the voters' lists. Since 1961, the settlers have been moving across the border from Bangladesh — formerly East Pakistan. Assam is almost completely cut off from the rest of India by Bangladesh. Only a 30-mile-wide bridge of territory connects Assam with Bihar, the nearest Indian state.

Also pitted against the Assamese in the current strife are thousands of tribespeople who — like American Indians in the United States — point out that they are the original inhabitants.

The federal Central Reserve Police were among more than 55,000 paramilitary troops brought into Assam.

The Thinker... and Believer

The sculptor was right. Our ability to think — our determination to think — this is the key to human progress.

But the same God who endowed man with the ability to think also gave him the sense of spiritual destiny. To be thinkers is only a beginning in the quest for our purpose, our mission, the meaning of our existence.

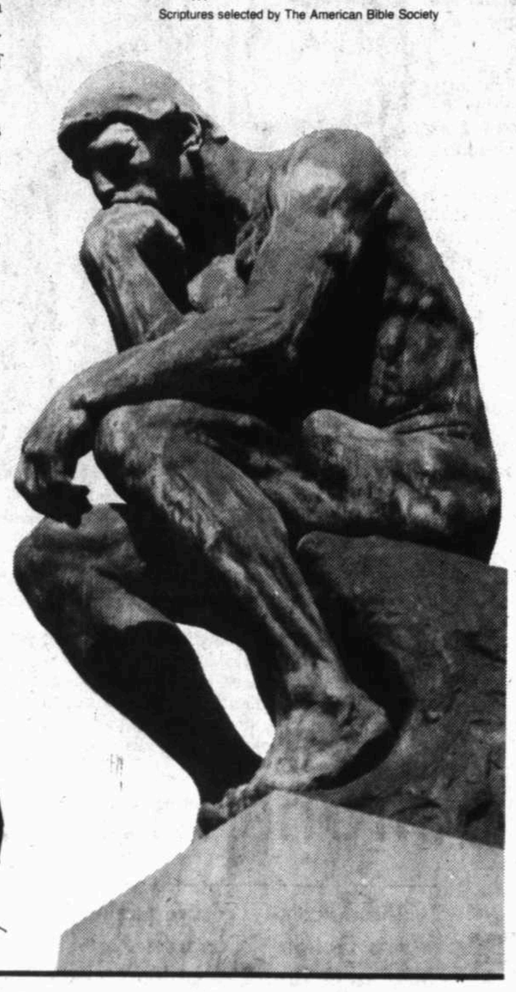

The message of Christianity has always been directed toward men and women and youth who have the God-given zest for thinking. Week after week in our churches the thinker is challenged to become a believer.

The most exciting and promising of man's endowments is not his capacity for thought . . . rather his yearning for faith. And faith is never content with human progress. Faith is determined to commit our intelligence to the achievement of Divine Progress.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DOCTOR, HEAL YOURSELF!

Jesus said, "Probably you will quote Me that proverb, 'Physician, heal yourself'--meaning, 'Why don't you do miracles here in your home town like those you did in Capernaum?'

"But I solemnly declare to you that no prophet is accepted in his own home town!

"For example, remember how Elijah the prophet used a miracle to help the widow of Zarephath--a foreigner from the land of Sidon. There were many Jewish widows needing help in those days of famine, for there had been no rain for three and one-half years, and hunger stalked the land; yet Elijah was not sent to them.

"Or think of the prophet Elisha, who healed Naaman, a Syrian, rather than the many Jewish lepers needing help."

These remarks stung them to fury; and jumping up, they mobbed Him and took Him to the edge of the hill on which the city was built, to push Him over the cliff.

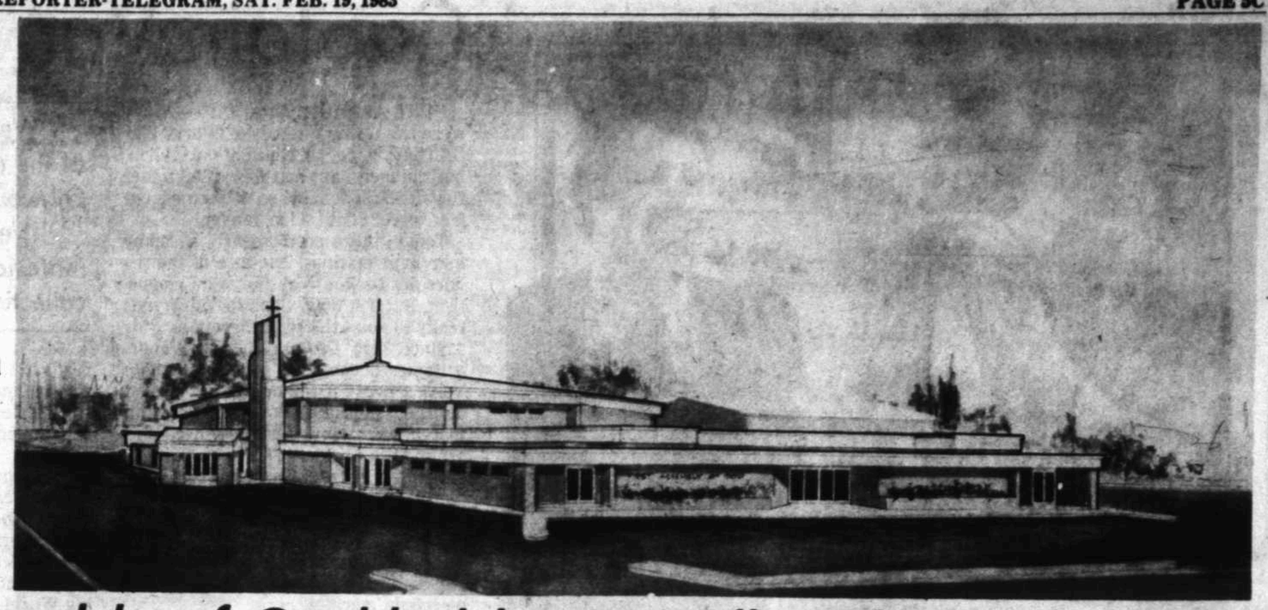

But He walked away through the crowd and left them.

Then He returned to Capernaum, a city in Galilee, and preached there in the synagogue every Saturday.

Here, too, the people were amazed at the things He said. For He spoke as one who knew the truth, instead of merely quoting the opinions of others as His authority.

This architect's rendering for Midland's First Assembly of God Church depicts additional educational and office space as well as a 1,500-seat auditorium.

First Assembly of God holds groundbreaking

Midland's First Assembly of God Church, 100 W. Wadley Ave., is having a 4 p.m. groundbreaking for its new 1,500-seat auditorium Sunday.

The church's minister, the Rev. Raymond Schaeffer, will speak at the service. Schaeffer has been pastor since June of 1979 when he moved here from Fort Worth. Mayor G. Thane Akins will be present for the groundbreaking.

The church, which has more than doubled in size in the past 3½ years, has purchased 10 adjoining lots for parking and will remodel its current building while the auditorium is being constructed. The remodeling will make room for an educational wing and new offices. Construction will begin immediately.

Midland's First Assembly of God Church had its beginnings in 1930 in a rented house on the south side of town. At that time, there were 24 members. Some of those 24-charter members are still active members.

When the church had approximately 35 in Sunday School, the church was moved to 606 S. Terrell. When the Rev. M.E. Stubblefield was able to acquire the property at New York and Baird streets by paying the back taxes, construction began on a new church building. The first service was held in November of 1936 with only the walls and ceiling finished. There were no floors and an old oil barrel was used for heating.

In the early 1950s, under the leadership of the Rev. R.I. Stewart, the property at Wadley and Main streets was purchased for a future site, the same property where the first baptismal service was held for First Assembly in the early 1930s.

In 1961 construction began on the new facilities in north Midland and the first service was held in that building in December.

The public is invited to attend.

CWU, association hold service

Church Women United and the Midland Association of Churches are holding a special service March 4 at 7:30 p.m. at First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave.

The service is in conjunction with the World Day of Prayer, observed worldwide since the International Committee for the World Day of Prayer was established in 1967. Prior to that time, the observance was done on a denominational basis. Now it is celebrated worldwide on the first Friday in March, with CWU recognized as this celebration's official sponsor in the United States.

This year marks the first time the 18 churches of the Midland Association of Churches have combined with CWU in sponsoring and performing this service.

This year's message, delivered worldwide, was written by Women of the Caribbean.

The public is invited to attend.

In spite of economic slump, people increasing donations

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the economic slump, giving to churches is going up, and doing so ahead of the inflation rate.

That's the finding of a survey by the National Council of Churches of 10 major Protestant denominations, and it squares with the theory that religious involvement increases in hard times.

Average per capita giving rose 13.2 percent in those church bodies in the latest year of available statistics, 1981, and total giving increased 12.5 percent, both well ahead of that year's inflation rate of 8.9 percent.

Members averaged giving $230.51 apiece, compared to $203.70 the year before.

In this country, overall religious giving amounts to about $22.1 billion annually, according to the latest 1980 figure, and its growth for several years has lagged considerably behind the inflation rate.

That de facto sag in religious budgets came at a time when greater pressure is being put on churches to step up welfare programs to fill the gap left by government cutbacks.

While leaders insist churches won't be able to take up all the slack, the new figures indicate they're making some financial headway in a shaky economic climate.

Even though total membership in the 10 studied denominations was down slightly, less than a percent, they showed a "real increase in giving," says the council's researcher, Constant H. Jacquet Jr.

RELIGION

He says the somewhat fewer members simply gave more and beyond the inflation rate.

Denominations in the survey were:

American Baptist Churches, American Lutheran Church, Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Episcopal Church, Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (Suthern), United Church of Christ, United Methodist Church, Lutheran Church in America, Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and United Presbyterian Church.

All 10 registered increased giving, the Episcopal Church the most, up 37.5 percent, mainly because of a special Venture in Mission fund drive, and the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. the least, up 5.8 percent.

The figures were given in a booklet on church finances, which also shows total giving for 45 denominations totalling $9.9 billion, but previous comparative figures for them all were not available.

Jaquet notes that the total represents about 40 percent of all religious giving.

The statistics offer a rough picture of the financial growth of the larger group, however, with per capita giving in 40 denoiminations averaging $213.41 in 1980 and averaging $239.71 in 45 denominations in 1981, up 12.3 percent.

Agencies want corporate commitment

NEW YORK (AP) — Shareholder resolutions submitted by religious agencies to seven major U.S. corporations ask them to examine and reaffirm their commitment to equal opportunity in employment.

The seven companies are American Telephone and Telegraph, Westinghouse Electric, J. P. Morgan, Exxon, International Telephone and Telegraph, Sears, and Dart and Craft.

The resolutions were filed by Protestant and Roman Catholic organizations participating in the Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility, a unit of the National Council of Churches.

Dara Demmings, director of the agency's domestic equality program, says the action is particularly important now "because the economic plight of racial minorities is worsening disporportionately to the economic plight of the general population."

Evangelist asks for forgiveness

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Evangelist James Robison has asked forgiveness from Southern Baptist leaders, Baylor University professors and others whom he has criticized in the past.

The Hurst television evangelist sent a letter to Southern Baptist leaders and met with Baylor professors this week to apologize for his actions.

"In seeking forgiveness, I stand convicted by the Holy Spirit through the Word of God," he said in the letter.

"Although pure in motive throughout 21 years ministry, I was, on occasion, unChristlike in method and approach.

"That which I believed to be God-given conviction often came across as personal attack, prejudice, unkind, poorly thought-out, defensive, abrasive, too general; casting many unecessarily into the same pot and possibly damaging the very body of Jesus, rather than smashing the works of Satan.

"There is a deepening of conviction concerning my own sin of which I gladly repent and ask forgiveness from all."

Robison has attacked liberal theology, homosexual rights, the Equal Rights Amendment and other targets of the religious right through his ministry.

He said he has not become "soft on sin," but added that a return to morality in America "will never happen unless Christians start loving each other.

McCamey church begins Bible study

McCAMEY — A program of disciplined Bible study begins March 13 at First United Methodist Church at McCamey.

The Trinity Bible Study is sectioned into 10 week courses. The first session is a survey of the Old Testament followed by a survey of the New Testament. These are followed by in-depth studies that address every section of the Bible.

Each participant is expected to register for the course, attend weekly classes, complete daily assignments and prepare for an examination; however, the approach is neither heavy nor scholastic. It is a systematic approach to studying the Bible.

The registration fee of $10, which covers the cost of materials, needs to be sent by March 9 to P.O. Box 964, McCamey, Texas 79752. Registration is necessary to ensure that enough materials will be available for each participant.

For more information call the First UMC in McCamey at 1-652-8824.

Scholar says text in error

NEW YORK (AP) — A religious archaeology and language scholar suggests that the Bible says woman was created as a "power equal to man," not just as a helpmate.

David Freedman of the University of California writes in the Biblical Archeology Review that the age-old Scriptural image of woman being made subordinate to man may be the result of a translation error.

IT MATTERS WHAT WE BELIEVE

Our beliefs are expensive...opening wide vistas for exploration...blessing children with the warmth of happiness...encouraging universal bonds with all peoples...nurturing self-confidence and enriching personal worth...ever growing with the upward thrust of life. (adapted from Sophia L. Fahs).

These are the beliefs our religious education program seeks to foster. Your children are welcome to join us in this adventure.

Captain Van embodies merchant marine

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — They were the unsung heroes of World War II. They wore no country's uniform, but the merchant marines sailed under flags of freedom when it seemed the free world might be in danger.

Today, there aren't nearly so many merchant marines. The lure of the sea does not beckon with the same magnetism. But if it does, Captain Van stands ready to point the right direction.

Since 1948, Captain John F. Vandegrift has been at the helm of Captain Van's school for sailors. He has turned out thousands of sailors, navigators and merchant marines for work here and around the world.

Vandegrift, who recently celebrated his 71st birthday, is himself a master mariner, licensed to sail as captain of any type of vessel. He still runs Captain Van Inc., offering navigational charts and equipment, as well as his school for merchant marines.

"We've been here since the late 1940s," he says, turning away from the most modern of computer screens. "At one time, if all of the men educated in the school here stayed ashore, Gulf Oil wouldn't have been able to move a ship."

> "We've been here since the late 1940s. At one time, if all of the men educated in the school here stayed ashore, Gulf Oil wouldn't have been able to move a ship."
>
> "I've written a few books...I began to write my own study material for the school. Right now, I'm thinking about collecting all of it to put into some new books," he says.

His ledger dates back to 1948, and it reads like a who's who in sailing circles and refinery management. His little store is decorated with the certification of Vandegrift's place in the seaman's world.

Vandegrift began sailing when he was 17 years old. He went to work in 1942 on the William C.C. Claiborne, the first Liberty ship built in New Orleans. The Liberty ships were built to ferry supplies and materiel to the Allies during World War II.

"We set out with 9,600 tons of TNT, 300 tons of nitro starch and about 50 pounds of blasting caps," recalls Capt. Vandergrift.

"We sailed right into an area off the coast of Florida where many ships had been sunk (by enemy submarines). Suddenly, an airplane dropped a white flare, which meant that he'd seen a submarine.

"But nothing happened. We maneuvered into shallow water and when day broke, we saw the masts of other ships that had been sunk. But nothing happened to us."

That was the closest to enemy action Vandegrift ever came. Throughout the war years, he sailed to the Caribbean, to South America and to Europe, helping ferry millions of tons of equipment to the war effort.

"I don't know know how I managed to live to be 71 years old," he says. "I've been to every hot spot in the world."

One glittering moment in Vandegrift's career came during the war, when he captained a ship to a Greek port in Africa.

"They had just run the Germans out of Greece. And the people in the port wanted us to take relief to people in Athens, in the form of clothes and food. We piled everything on the ship that we could carry," he recalls.

"Then they brought a big box of gold on board, so big it took two men to carry it. They didn't know me from Adam, but they trusted us to carry this gold to Greece. And we did.

"When we arrived in Athens, a delegation came aboard to accept the box. I will never forget their gratitude."

After the war, Vandegrift devoted his time to his school and writing technical books on navigation and sailing. He wrote one book in 1950, an explanation of the British Nautical Almanac.

The book was so well received that the Superintendent of the Queen's office of the Nautical Almanac wrote Vandegrift and requested a copy. The captain still proudly displays the letter today.

"I've written a few books...I began to write my own study material for the school. Right now, I'm thinking about collecting all of it to put into some new books," he says.

He lives in Groves, and still runs the business in downtown Port Arthur.

Lustron owners need sense of humor for structures called 'lunch boxes'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — You need a sense of humor to live in a Lustron house.

The prefabricated porcelain steel structures are teasingly named "tanks," or "lunch boxes." They've been likened to gasoline service stations and White Castle hamburger stands because of the 2-foot-by-2-foot enameled square panels covering the outside.

But the Columbus-based company that manufactured the houses was to use tons of steel, offer cheap housing during the national shortage that followed World War II and hire workers for production that was modeled after automobile assembly lines.

And like the Edsel, Lustron flopped. Three years after production began, the federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation called in more than $37.5 million in loans. That was 1950. People like William J. Levitt of Levittown fame had done a better job of providing shelter for returning servicemen and their families.

Defenders of the Lustron house say it suffered for being ahead of its time.

Joseph Karpowicz, who was a Lustron production supervisor, blames the demise on lobbying by construction unions and makers of traditional building materials.

Some neighborhoods opposed the diminutive buildings, which had less than 1,000 square feet of living space. Groups went to court to block their construction, and the people had to act fast because building one took just three days.

In the Columbus suburb of Eastmoore, people feared the houses would destroy the value of more expensive ones nearby. And they feared a mass-housing development.

The Lustron gradually lost its price edge over other small starter houses. In 1947, a price of about $7,000 was being quoted. By February 1950, as the end neared, prices were $11,000 to $14,000.

Downsized and practically maintenance-free if in good shape, the Lustron has some contemporary appeal, says Columbus real estate agent Sally Coady.

"Mostly the approach has been from the comfort standpoint, the maintenance-free aspect," she said.

Mary Fleck, a Lustron owner for seven yers, swears by hers.

"What's so sad about them is that they were so much before their time," she said. The house feels roomy even if it is small, and the original steel door is highly burglar-resistant. Her only real complaint is that it's hard to hang things on the walls because the special hooks come unglued in colder sections of the walls.

Insurance agents and real estate listing services have problems classifying the Lustron. There's no place on insurance and multiple listing forms for 20-gauge steel panels, screwed to a frame and made weathertight with gaskets. The building is virtually fireproof and termite-proof.
