Officers recover stolen goods Monday

By BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

An apparent fencing operation for stolen goods was broken up late Monday as area law enforcement officers confiscated between $70,000-$100,000 worth of items ranging from deodorant to deadly weapons from the farm of Robert Strain of Hereford.

According to Deaf Smith County Chief Sheriff's Deputy Dean Butcher, the officers were acting on a search warrant issued by Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal around 4:30 p.m. Monday as they collected the items from two barns on the Strain farm located about 12 miles northeast of town.

"The search warrant was issued Monday afternoon, and was executed immediately upon being issued," Butcher said. "We've cleared up some burglaries here tonight that have been occurring over the past year-and-a-half."

Strain has not been officially charged in the incident, and was described as "being cooperative" in the investigation by Butcher.

"No charges have been filed yet, but we intend to take the case to the next Grand Jury," Butcher said. He added that there are four or five local suspects in the case and "numerous suspects from the surrounding area."

Butcher said that at least three of the items confiscated had been identified as being stolen out of Lubbock County. He added that items were also suspected as being stolen from Hereford, Plainview, Littlefield, and Levelland.

Officers from as many as 20 Panhandle counties, the Texas Rangers, and the Southwest Cattle Raisers Association were sifting through the items at the Little Bull Barn this morning.

Included in the items confiscated Monday was a computer, a large group of farm equipment, welders, air compressors, three-wheeled vehicles, tools, hardware, typewriters, a sewing machine, a microwave oven, several color televisions, radios, tape recorders, and shotguns, rifles, and handguns.

"A total of 35 rifles and shotguns, as well as several handguns, some antiques, were confiscated," Butcher said.

Strain also voluntarily brought in 35 more weapons this morning as he visited with Butcher about the matter.

He also brought in another computer and a tape recorder, Butcher said.

Butcher said he had been working on the apparent fencing operation for over two years, adding that the big break came last week when a man in Lubbock told Texas Rangers there that he had sold some stolen items to a person in Deaf Smith County.

"I started on this case about two years ago when I arrested a burglar," Butcher said. "He told me that he had been selling some items...from there I received information from some other informants that stuff was being sold out there, was being bought there, and was out there."

Butcher later got a "reputable citizen" to get inside one of the barns. "He looked around and told me what he had seen," Butcher said.

"About two weeks ago I found out that he (Strain) and another man had some air conditioners for sale," Butcher added. "I asked him if he'd sell me one and he said, yes, so I went out there. At this time I noticed some of the things that were in the barn and began trying to figure out where they were coming from to establish that they were stolen."

The deputy said that the Rangers from Lubbock called him last Friday informing him of their informant.

"The Rangers described some of the items that their informant claimed he'd sold here, and I said I know those items are there because I've seen them," Butcher said.

Butcher requested that the Rangers come to Hereford to "pool their information" for possible action depending upon a recommendation from Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul.

"We told Roland what we had and he said he thought we had grounds for a search warrant," Butcher said.

This morning Butcher estimated that "at least 75 percent" of the confiscated items had been identified as stolen.

Included in the action Monday evening in addition to local sheriff's deputies and the Rangers from Lubbock were two other Rangers from Amarillo, investigators from Saul's office, members of the Hereford Police Department, and county Sheriff's Reserves.

"I would especially like to thank the precinct boys (county employees) who came out and helped us haul this stuff in," Butcher said.

He added that the Rangers from Lubbock had "cultivated their informant" through the Crime Line program there.

Thieves busy over weekend

A stereo, speakers and five frozen chickens, worth an combined estimate of $1,015, were stolen from Vichit Padith late last week, Hereford police reported this morning.

Police said the theft occurred between 3 p.m. Friday and 1:45 a.m. Saturday at Padith's 311 W. Second residence.

Consumer's Fuel Co-op Association Inc., 116 New York, had a $500 welder stolen sometime between 6 p.m. Monday and 3:41 this morning. Entry was gained by prying the front door away from its dead bolt, according to the police report.

At approximately 3 p.m. Thursday, a air-impact gun and rocket, valued at $385, were taken from Shook Tire Company of 600 W. First.

Police also reported the theft of several wheels, tires and a battery from Walker's Used Cars, 400 W. First. The crime, given a $345 value, occurred between 6:30 p.m. Saturday and 9:28 a.m. Sunday.

Lorenzo F. Gonzales, who police say lives near the Tower Drive Inn Theatre on W. Highway 60, was arrested at 10:30 a.m. Monday for driving with a suspended license. He was also apprehended for a warrant from the police department at Canyon, where Gonzales was wanted for issuance of a bad check. He was booked and placed in the Deaf Smith County Jail.

Over the weekend there were three arrests for DWI, two each for drunk in control of a motor vehicle and shoplifting and one each for driving while license suspended and public intoxication.

Among reported incidents were four for criminal mischief, two each for family disturbance and harassing phone calls and one apiece for burglary, child custody dispute, disorderly conduct, minor theft, open door, poisoned dog, prowler and simple assault.

SIN channel to be off air Wednesday

SIN, the all-Spanish Channel 13 on the Hereford Cablevision system, will be off the air for most of Wednesday, according to company manager Lloyd Ames.

The temporary halt of transmission is due to SIN changing its signal from one satellite (Satcom Four) to another (Galaxy One), Ames explained. Programming, he guessed, would resume by Wednesday evening.

Ames also said he has heard nothing further from the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) concerning Hereford Cablevision's attempt to begin offering KTXT-Lubbock on the local system. A decision should be made within a couple of weeks, he said.

Intense heat, malfunctioning conditioner blamed in deaths

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities here say that the deaths of two elderly women whose bodies were found in separate units of a retirement complex here could be attributed to temperatures of more than 100 degrees and a malfunctioning air conditioner.

The official cause of their deaths probably will not be determined until the completion of autopsies scheduled today, said a spokesman for the Dallas County medical examiner's office.

Police said the windows of both apartments were closed and the doors were locked. They said Violet Carver, 76, and Oma Yost, 80, both semi-bedridden, apparently died of heat stroke.

"They died of nothing more than pure heat prostration," said Sgt. A.R. Brooks. "When we went inside (apartment) 206, it was like a furnace, like a heat blast. It had to be 110, 120 degrees."

Their bodies were discovered shortly after noon Monday when a private nurse found Mrs. Yost in apartment No. 206. Firefighters who checked other units in the complex then found Mrs. Carver's body in apartment No. 202.

"It was very hot inside those apartments," said Don B. Kirby, medical examiner's field agent. "Heat stroke is certainly one of the things we will be looking at. It probably got up to 115 degrees" inside the apartments.

One investigator said it appeared that the two women died sometime Sunday afternoon.

Both police and elderly residents of the 43-unit Cornerstone Retirement Village said that neither the owner of the complex nor its manager had made a concerted effort to make all the residents aware of the air conditioning problem. The air conditioner went unrepaired for three days.

Some residents said they were unaware of a problem until their apartments began heating up at mid-morning last Friday. The high temperature for Dallas was 100 on Friday, 99 on Saturday, 99 on Sunday and 101 on Monday.

After the air conditioning failed, some residents opened their front windows and were using fans. Many lived in constant fear of burglars and had "shut themselves up," said police Cpl. J.K. Hull.

Officials said they could not determine how high that temperatures may have risen in the apartments over the weekend. But field agents from the medical examiner's office said measurements taken 45 minutes after the doors had been opened showed the temperature in Mrs. Yost's apartment at 97 degrees and in Mrs. Carver's at 90.

"To me, this borders on almost being total negligence," Brooks said. "These people (the owner and manager) knew there was nothing but old people on fixed incomes living here, I couldn't last 15 or 20 minutes in these apartments with them shut up."

Gene Slivka, The owner of the complex, arrived at the complex about an hour after the police. He said the repairs on the air conditioner were being made as quickly as possible, and that he had depended upon his manager to inform the tenants of the difficulty.

Weather blamed for maladies

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO
Associated Press Writer

Unusual weather patterns that hurled storms, floods and record-breaking heat at the nation are now being blamed for more suffering: rattlesnake bites, surfing accidents, death-dealing mosquitoes, hay fever and even the plague.

Dry weather coaxed rattlers out of the Rockies and damp heat made a perfect breeding ground for encephalitis-carrying mosquitoes in the East.

Storms and high tides changed the shape of beaches in California, sending surfers crashing into newly formed sandbars, resulting in broken backs. And wet, cool weather in New Mexico fostered plague-carrying rodents.

El Nino, a recurring phenomenon involving Pacific sea temperatures, currents and trade winds, has been blamed for the unusual weather.

Long known to South American fishermen, El Nino refers to the Christ child, because it usually occurs around Christmas time. This year, the child stayed until July, spreading unseasonal rains, killing heat and storms across the land.

Meteorologists declared the 1983 edition of El Nino dead last month, but the aftermath continues.

In the East, hay fever sufferers will face higher pollen counts and a longer season of wheezing, sneezing and sniffling.

"People are really going to get it around Labor Day," said Walter Jinotti, a medical technologist at Middlesex General Hospital in New Brunswick, N.J., and president of the National Association of Allergies. "In an average year, you'll get three weeks of irritating pollen levels and it'll peak at 150. This year, the irritation should go on longer and the count will peak at 200."

The bad news is blamed on a moist spring which encouraged a large crop of

Several Jubilee winners listed

Several area residents were lucky enough to win prizes offered by various organizations during the Town and Country Jubilee festivities this weekend.

A smartly decorated playhouse donated by the Hereford Board of Realtors was won by Dan Warrick and a colorful quilt and matching pillows made by members of the Hereford Senior Citizens Association were won by Labry Ballard.

During the Jubilee of Arts held at the Community Center, the Hereford Fine Arts Association held a drawing for an original Western oil painting by Charles Lyles. Winner of the painting was Mike Zirkle.

A resident of Happy, Texas, Jimmy Payne, was the winner of another painting given away during the All-Girls Rodeo by the Hereford Riders Club, sponsors of the rodeo.

City to continue insurance

Hereford City Commissioners decided Monday to continue having workmen's compensation insurance for city employees provided by Texas Employee's Insurance, a division of the Texas Municipal League.

According to Dudley Bayne, Hereford city manager, the agreement will cost around $11,000 than the bid given by Property Enterprises, a local insurance company.

Commissioners set their next regular meeting for Monday, Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

School days begin soon

The summer vacation will soon be over and thousands of youngsters will be starting back to school, many of those for the first time. Last year in Texas the pedestrian fatalities accounted for 732 traffic deaths according to Major Vernon Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"Motorists need to slow down as they drive through school zones and in and around school areas," Cawthon said.

"Those big yellow buses will also be back on our streets and highways, and Texas law requires the driver of a vehicle meeting or overtaking a school bus displaying red flashing warning lights that is in the process of loading or unloading passengers to stop until the school bus starts moving, the red lights are no longer flashing, or the bus driver directs motorist to proceed," he added.

Cawthon said, "It is most important that drivers observe speed limits in school zones and the school bus loading laws for the protection of our children, because no one wants to be responsible for the death or injury of a young child."

Purse found at park

County Judge Glen Nelson has reported that a small change purse containing a small amount of money was found at Dameron Park Saturday during the Town & Country Jubilee. Nelson said that the purse may be claimed at his office in the courthouse, provided the claimant gives an accurate description of the lost item.

Inventory Time

Dean Butcher, Deaf Smith County Chief Sheriff's Deputy, was busy late Monday and early Tuesday inventorying some of the items confiscated at a farm northeast of town. The items were recovered after officers acted on a tip from the Lubbock Clue Line and a two-year-long investigation by Butcher into the apparent fencing operation. (Brand Photo by Bob Nigh).

Widow files petition opposing will

DALLAS (AP) — Settlement of the estimated $22 million will of slain Dallas multimillionaire Henry Harrison Kyle was delayed indefinitely when his widow filed an opposition petition to the 1978 document.

Vicki Yang Tu Kyle, a Taiwanese real estate developer and the fifth wife of the 60-year-old lawyer-developer, also asked in the petition filed Monday that the case be transferred to Los Angeles, where she lives and where Kyle had been residing for two months before he was found shot to death last month.

An opposition petition is a legal procedure in which someone gives notice he probably will contest a will but needs more time to review the facts. No new court date was set for a hearing on the will.

Kyle was shot to death and his son Rick was wounded in the left arm about 4 a.m. on July 22 by a small-caliber gun, Los Angeles police said. According to police reports, two small-caliber guns were found at the Bel-Air mansion in Los Angeles and no forced entry was evident.

At the time of the shooting, the mansion was occupied by Kyle; his two sons, Rick and Scott; and two other men who were helping to renovate the residence, Los Angeles police reported.

Kyle's latest wedding, last November in San Diego, Calif., was not well known among his friends, Los Angeles homicide detective Bob Grogan said.

In Kyle's briefcase at the mansion, police found a copy of his will, filed in Dallas in 1978, police said. The will had been altered substantially, but had not been legally filed, Grogan told the Dallas Morning News Monday.

The 1978 will leaves $100,000 to Kyle's daughter, Paula Holtzclaw, 34, and $10,000 to his second daughter, Jackie Lynn Philips. The rest of his estate, including two homes, five automobiles, jewelry and household goods go to his sons.

The News said both of Kyle's sons have been questioned by police concerning the shooting and have retained lawyers. They were at the probate hearing Monday but refused to comment.

A self-made millionaire, Kyle was a Marine pilot and received the Distinguished Flying Cross in World War II and Korea. He later received a law degree from Southern Methodist University and began investing in the 1960s in apartments, country clubs, restaurants and shopping centers.

In 1970, he became a director of Four Star International Inc., a television production firm. He bought 30 percent of the firm last year and became president of the company.

Canada hearings begin

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) — The five crew members of an Air Canada airliner that burned June 2, killing 23 passengers, are expected to testify today in a federal hearing to pinpoint the fire's cause.

Pilot Donald Cameron, co-pilot Claude Ouimet, three flight attendants and two passengers were scheduled to testify today, the first day of hearings arranged by the National Transportation Safety Board.

Gregory Karam, an air traffic controller at the Greater Cincinnati International Airport, also is expected to tell investigators how he helped Cameron land the burning DC-9 through radio instructions.

The plane made an emergency landing at the Greater Cincinnati airport after fire was discovered in the area of the rear lavatory. The four days of testimony are expected to focus on the plane's electrical system.

The cause of the fire hasn't been determined. The National Transportation Safety Board is expected to announce the probable cause later this year or early next year.

Archbishop plans meeting with Pope

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Archbishop Patrick Flores and Pope John Paul II plan a private meeting in Rome next week to discuss what role the Catholic church should play in the future of South and Central America.

Flores, the president of the U.S. Bishops' Committee for Latin America, plans to leave here Monday for a three-month visit to Italy.

The archbishop will meet privately with the pope on Aug. 24, and also will join other bishops from around the world at top-level church meetings.

The discussion between the two men probably will revolve around the economic role of the church in South and Central America, along with what role church personnel should play, Flores said Sunday.

"(The pope) wants to see what our priorities are in helping there," he said. "Also, he wants us to make recommendations about funding priorities."

Flores said he has allotted high priority to giving young men in Third World countries some financial assistance to enter the priesthood.

The archbishop also will join 100 U.S. bishops in a four-week session to discuss new developments in theology, scripture and canon law.

Emotional stess-physical distress

My research files are pretty well organized - except one.

It's a file I tend myself; a single drawer-shelf in my office desk.

Any day that some person of prominence is in trouble - perhaps a public official exposed for misfeasance - I slip his name into that special file.

Experience says that very soon his or her name will be in the news again as he or she is stricken with some physical illness.

The file is overflowing. Let's examine some of these "case histories."

New Hampshire's Governor Hugh Gallen was defeated for a third term as Governor, promptly contracted "a blood infection," died.

Comic Jerry Lewis, after divorce and bankruptcy, required a double-heart bypass.

British carmarker Colin Chapman, under vigorous criticism by stockholders, died of a heart attack at 54.

Bear Bryant, retired from football, lasted less than 28 days.

The Tampa Bay ship's captain who rammed his ship into the Sunshine Skyway Bridge, within six months developed Multiple Scelerosis.

Research at the Universities of Colorado and Denver affirm that "inability to cope with stress may weaken the body's immune system" altogether as surely as AIDS does.

Chicago's Cardinal Cody, under investigation for diverting church money to a woman, lived less than a year.

Dr. Thomas Hackett, Chief of Psychiatry at Massachusetts General, says, "There are now more than enough studies to demonstrate that people who worry or are stressful have an increased risk of developing a disease."

For many years doctors have considered the word "stress" too unscientific, for one reason because the word was ill-defined.

Today the physiology of stress is defined to the degree that we can measure the biochemical results of even subtle psychological influences.

Stated simply, "a man is likely to catch cold when his mother-in-law comes to visit."

Less simply, among tuberculosis victims the onset of the disease generally follows a cluster of disruptive events.

The University of North Carolina studied 225 doctors who had been tested 25 years earlier when they were 25 year old medical students.

Those who, at age 25, were "high in hostility" subsequently had significantly higher rates of heart disease; "were six times more likely to die by fifty."

Next: Increasing evidence that the absence of stress promotes mental health.

Chili burns are occupational hazard

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Scientists are trying to figure out whether any of granny's home remedies soothe fingers burned by chili after a round of roasting the pungent pods.

"We were kind of shopping around, trying to see what works," said Dr. William Troutman, director of the University of New Mexico Poison, Drug Information and Medical Crisis Center.

"The bulk of chili burn calls come in the fall" when the harvest comes in and people begin roasting the vegetable, he said.

Green chili harvesting in New Mexico is under way. Red chili gathering begins about Oct. 1.

Chili pepper pungency is determined by the amount of capsaicin, an alkaloid that burns people with sensitive skin.

People who have roasted chili pods sometimes have fire in their eyes — and mouth and nose — with a touch from their contaminated hands.

"Fortunately, most of the burns are confined to the hands, though occasionally there are some eye burns," Troutman said. "So far, the burns are more painful than destructive.

"Certainly, pain can take away the enjoyment of (roasting) chili," he said. "It's an occupational, or recreational, hazard for most people in the state."

In 1982, 67 people contacted the poison center with chili burns, Troutman said.

"We think that although we had 67 cases last year, we fully suspect that we have hundreds more that we haven't heard about," he said.

The center sought suggestions last year on how to deal with chili burns, and scientists are evaluating the proposed remedies, Troutman said.

Suggestions included dousing hands with cold water and smearing vegetable oil or mayonnaise on affected areas, he said.

"The first thing we recommend (is to) immerse your hands in cold water; whether anything else works better, we don't know," Troutman said. "It provides some temporary relief ordinarily."

Others have suggested that vinegar or bleach might help.

"We also had a fair number of one suggestion this year of taking a pinch of salt orally before handling chilies," Troutman said. "People also used milk. Some people coat their hands with lard before handling chili."

The poison center and UNM's emergency medicine department are talking with 200 elderly women "who have worked a lot with chili," he said.

The women have been asked to come to the department and work with chili in an attempt to determine which home remedies perform best, Troutman said.

The center currently suggests sticking contaminated hands in cold water or using rubber gloves when handling chili, he said.

"Simply providing a physical barrier (like gloves) is good, but some people find it very cumbersome to do that and some of the veterans find that uncomfortable and do that bare-handed," Troutman said.

"We still have a lot of work to do before we can reach a conclusion on what would work," he said. "The ideal remedy would be something that works quickly and that can be used at home."

Amnesty program reaches peasants

SUCHITOTO, El Salvador (AP) — A three-month-long amnesty program has aided hungry peasants who wanted to leave rebel-held areas, but failed to reach many of those it was meant to help — leftist guerrillas battling the government.

Supporters of the program which ended Monday said it concluded too soon, leaving hundreds more peasants on their isolated farms with little hope of relocation and no choice but to give food and other support to the rebels.

Policarpo Escobar, a 33-year-old itinerant farmer, was among those who took advantage of the program to escape his impoverished native village of Guadalupe with his wife and six children.

"There was no food, no salt, no soap, no water," said Escobar.

The village, 28 miles northeast of San Salvador and a few miles from this refugee center near the rebel-held Guazapa volcano, was swept up in the movement to topple the U.S.-backed rightist government three years ago.

Since then, Escobar said, guerrillas operating from nearby camps insisted on food in exchange for protection from marauding troops who sometimes killed suspected peasant collaborators.

State employees picket capitol

SANTA FE (AP) — State employees, disgruntled because they weren't granted a pay increase this year, are asking Gov. Toney Anaya to call a special session of the Legislature to give them raises.

To get their point across, about 40 of the workers picketed the state Capitol Monday.

Chris Eichwald, a spokesman for the group, said state employees are living on less money this year than they did last year.

The 1983 Legislature did not include a pay raise for state employees in its appropriations bill and Eichwald said that coupled with higher insurance premiums have "us living on less."

The employees carried hand-lettered signs that read, among other things, "State Workers Have Rights Too," and chanted "More Money, Give Us A Raise" as they marched on the east side of the Capitol.

Eichwald, past president of the New Mexico State Employees Coalition, said the state now has the money needed to increase the salaries of state employees.

He said a federal government windfall given to New Mexico in April could be used to pay for the raises.

"There was a question of money in January (when the Legislature met), but there's no question now. The money is there," he said.

Eichwald currently is the business representative for the New Mexico Correctional Workers Association and many of those picketing Monday were prison guards.

The Corrections officers held a similar demonstration outside the Capitol a few months ago. At that time, they also sought a special session to increase their salary levels.

One worker carried a sign that read: "Does there have to be another riot for politicians to listen to our demands?"

Eichwald said the picket was targeted at Gov. Toney Anaya.

"We want him to call the special session," he said.

But Anaya was not in his office when the picket took place.

His acting news secretary, Vicki Phillips, said he was on his way to San Diego, where he was to be a guest on a television news show.

Eichwald said he has made several requests to speak to Anaya about the status of state employees.

"We've been told they have a logjam in their scheduling of appointments and that we'll eventually get in," he said.

Anaya has said in the past he is willing to call a special session on employee pay raises if he has enough support from state lawmakers.

pollen-producing ragweed, Jinotti said.

Spinal injuries, including broken necks, are more common this year along the California coast, as surfers deal with the weather-altered coastline.

'We've started to see kids running out into the water and doing a shallow surface dive and hitting the bottom," said Dr. John Skinner, 52, an internist at Newport Beach, Calif. "I really love to surf, and I have seen a lot of (spinal) cases in the hospital, so we've been trying to make the public aware of the hazard."

In New Mexico, bubonic plague — known as the Black Death in the Middle Ages — claimed this year's third victim Monday, one of a record 24 cases reported, said Dr. Jonathan Mann, state epidemiologist. The previous record of 16 was set in 1975, Mann said.

Officials speculated the unusually wet, cool spring produced ideal conditions for rodents that carry plague-bearing fleas.

The 1983 plague death rate, including the 13-year-old boy who perished Monday, is lower than in recent years — about 12.5 percent compared with the average 16 percent of all cases — because of prompt diagnosis, Mann said.

Another kind of pestilence, Eastern equine encephalitis, killed a man in a Boston hospital Thursday and authorities were spraying swamps to wipe out mosquitoes which carry the disease.

The rare brain infection also has killed one horse in Massachusetts, two in New Jersey and four in New York state this year, health officials said.

The risk of humans being infected is only about one in 10 million, but two consecutive wet springs preceded by mild winters have permitted the virus to spread, health officials said. Recent dry spells may be helping to control the problem.

my friends for years," Slivka said. "Mrs. Yost was in another building I owned and came over here when I bought this one seven or eight years ago. These are personal friends of mine. These aren't just tenants."

Police said they would await the results of autopsies to determine if any criminal investigation is warranted.

The first body was discovered when a home health care nurse, Sara Govender, let herself into Mrs. Yost's apartment with a key to change the dressings on ulcers that had developed on the woman's legs, police said.

The nurse found Mrs. Yost's body on the floor of her second-floor bedroom.

Ms. Govender contacted police. The body of Mrs. Carver was found on a bedroom floor of her second-floor apartment.

Some residents had found other lodgings after the air conditioning failed, but most stayed, opening doors and windows and turning on fans.

David Ruiz, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Ruiz of Hereford, left Monday evening for Colorado Springs, Colo. to compete in the U.S. Junior Amateur Boxing Championships. Ruiz, a 112-pounder, is part of the Region IX team competing in the event, which begins Wednesday. The region includes boxers from Louisiana and Texas.

The 1983 championships will feature the talents of 160 of the nation's top 17 and 18-year-old boxers representing 15 Regions and 12 weight classes.

Ruiz, a 1983 graduate of Hereford High School, hasn't been beaten in the ring this year according to his coach Raymond Casarez, Jr. Casarez has tutored the young pugilist for some 10 years.

Ruiz earned his chance at the national championships by beating last year's champion and runner-up in the Region IX Finals last week in Ft. Worth. He is currently ranked 10th in the nation among amateurs in his weight class.

Parker is ranked No. 3 in his class, Casarez said.

The championships in Colorado Springs will serve as the basis of selection for the U.S. team which will compete in the Junior World Championships Nov. 16-26 in Santo Domingo, The Dominican Republic.

Casarez said Ruiz was to check into camp at 3 p.m. today, and will face an unknown opponent sometime Wednesday.

In a final weight check held at the Hereford & Vicinity YMCA Monday, Ruiz tipped the scales at 111 pounds, just under the limit.

"David has had several brothers box too, but he is the first to make it this far in competition," Casarez said. "We've got a few more good boxers coming up also, but they were too young to enter this tournament," he added.

The U.S. Junior Amateur Boxing Championships is sponsored by the USA Amateur Boxing Federation and Budweiser, and is sanctioned by the Colorado Amateur Boxing Federation.

Perkins not bothered by deficit

By GEORGE STRODE AP Sports Writer

CARACAS, Venezulea (AP) — Sam Perkins wasn't worried at halftime, even if the heavily-favored United States men's basketball team did trail Mexico by 10 points in their Pan American Games debut.

"We weren't really concerned. We knew we had a lot of time. But we had to ease back into it. We couldn't score 10 points all at once. I think the defense did it for us," said the 6-foot-9 North Carolina forward, who scored 10 of his 16 points in the second half.

He proved to be a prophet. The Americans, relying on a zone defense in the final 20 minutes, outscored the Mexicans 38-16 for a 74-63 verdict.

The American men's basketball team was not the favorite of the Venezuelan crowd, drawing jeers when they trotted onto the floor. And the crowd loved it when the Mexicans swept into a 20-4 lead in the first six minutes, taking advantage of seven personal fouls and six turnovers by the United States.

At every timeout in the first half, the crowd stomped its feet, clapped its hands and chanted: "Mexico. Mexico. Mexico."

All three of the men's basketball winners Monday night — Cuba and Puerto Rico won the others in overtime — came from behind before a spirited, whistling Poliedro crowd nearing capacity of 13,000.

Cuba, down by six points with 12 minutes left, stormed back for a 103-88 verdict over the Dominican Republic. Puerto Rico, thanks to Mario Morrales' basket at the buzzer, stunned World University Games champion Canada 90-89.

Elsewhere, the United States collected three gold medals on the first of 15 days of competition in these Western Hemisphere championships.

Eric Buljung, 39, a U.S. Army member from Fort Benning, Ga., captured the men's free pistol, the first medal of the games. Pat Spurgin, 18, from Billings, Mont., just up from the junior level, won the women's air rifle, a first-time event in the Pan Am competition. And the United States also reaped the team gold in the same event.

The fourth U.S. gold medal belonged to Margaret Castro. The New Yorker won the women's over-72 kilogram class in judo.

Even with those gold medals, the Americans were still chasing Cuba in the medals race. The Cubans, led by triple gold-medal victors Juan Hernandez and Aristotle Soler in weightlifting, collected eight titles among their 12 overall medals. The United States was second with 10 medals. Host Venezuela was running third with two golds and seven medals.

'Controversy crowded the competition again.

A dozen Venezuelan swimmers were found residing in a downtown hotel, with a pool, instead of the oft-criticized athletes village. The village has no pool.

An American request to condense the women's basketball schedule from two weeks to nine days was denied for the second time in two days and Bill Wall, a U.S. basketball official, was still threatening to move the American basketball players out of the village, against the U.S. Olympic Committee's wishes. Jack Hartman, the men's coach, said the athletes' living quarters were "deplorable."

In softball, the American women lost to Puerto Rico 6-5, the victory going to University of Southern California softball coach Donna Terry.

Martin out

After his 1982 season for the Hereford Whitefaces, Martin was named to the Amarillo Globe-News Super Team and the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal All-South Plains squad. He also was first-team All-District for District 3-5A.

Season tickets on sale

Reserved season tickets for Hereford Whiteface home football games are now on sale at the school's administrative office, it was announced Monday by Athletic Director Jerry Taylor.

Monday was the deadline for reserved-seat holders to claim their same seats again this season. The remainder of the choice seats now go on sale to the general public.

The reserved seats are priced at $15 for five home games, a savings of $5 if seats are purchased at the gate for each game. Tickets are $4 at the gate.

The first home game is Sept. 9 when Canyon comes to town as the last non-district opponent. Under the new 3-5A setup, Hereford has only two non-district contests. The Whitefaces go to Pampa Sept. 2 to open the season.

The home games are: Canyon-Sept. 9; Monterey–Sept. 23; Tascosa–Oct. 7; Palo Duro–Oct. 21; Coronado–Nov. 4.

Eyes on Dickerson during Dallas win

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys dominated Los Angeles 30-7, yet a rookie from Dallas who plays for the Rams drew the most attention.

For as Gary Hogeboom and Danny White of the Cowboys controlled the airways Monday night in the National Football League preseason game, the leading rusher was Eric Dickerson, the 1982 All-American from SMU.

Hogeboom, in his fourth season with Dallas and starting his first game as a pro, sent the Cowboys off to a 10-0 first quarter lead.

He completed nine of 13 passes for 106 yards and had a 17-yard scoring pass to Doug Cosbie.

White, the regular starter, came on to hit 9 of 14 for 98 yards and Glenn Carano hit four of 9 for 40.

The Rams offense sputtered and might have died if it weren't for the 218-pound Dickerson who gained 67 yards on 14 carries to lead all rushers. He did, however, fumble at the Dallas six when the Rams' offense had its best scoring chance.

At the end, the only Los Angeles touchdown was contributed by LeRoy Irvin, who intercepted a White pass and ran it back 80 yards.

After the game, even talk in the Dallas dressing room was of Dickerson.

"He is going to be one of the best," said winning coach Tom Landry. "He could make the difference for Los Angeles. He could change things for them."

Star running back Tony Dorsett of the Cowboys, said, "Dickerson is going to be a good one, and he should not get discouraged because he is not starting. Take it from someone who was in the same spot seven years ago."

Although the second man picked overall in the NFL draft had played briefly against San Diego in the opening preseason game, he suffered a bruised back on his second rush.

Veteran Jewerl Thomas is listed as the starter at halfback with the fast and powerful rookie from SMU his backup.

After the Dallas tussle, Dickerson commented, "I feel this was my first pro game under my belt. I have the potential to break a long run and that's what the fans like to see."

His longest gain against Dallas was 17 yards.

Los Angeles quarterback Vince Ferragamo experienced a night to forget. He played the first half, threw 16 passes, completed only three for 29 yards and had three intercepted. Two of the latter set up Dallas scores.

Both clubs play again Saturday. Dallas (2-0) is at home against Pittsburgh and New England visits Anaheim.

Champion Holmes delays retirement

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Sports Writer

Larry Holmes will not retire as undefeated heavyweight champion ... at least it doesn't appear that he will by the end of this year.

The World Boxing Council champion has said he would hang up his gloves at the end of 1983, but now he is facing three title defenses in a period of five or six months.

The third fight, a mandatory defense agaist top-ranked Greg Page, is set for next February or March.

Before that there are scheduled fights Sept. 10 against 10th-ranked Scott Frank at Atlantic City, N.J., and Nov. 25 against unranked Marvis Frazier at a site to be named.

For those two matches, Holmes, who will be 34 in Nov. 3, reportedly will make $4.6 million, $3.1 million of it fighting Frazier. For that kind of money, Holmes came to terms with promoter Don King for a mandatory defense against Page.

"I want Larry to make money," said King, who promoted all but one of Holmes' 16 title fights.

King had maintained Holmes already had signed to fight Page even before his last defense against Tim Witherspoon May 20. "I have a valid, binding and enforceable contract," said King.

But Holmes says he merely signed an agreement for a Page fight, and no purse, site or date was mentioned in the agreement.

Larrymore Studio's Ballet Classes will be demonstrated by four of the most outstanding figures in American ballet.

Merrill Ashley, Principal Dancer, The New York City Ballet, is world renowned for her remarkable and accurate allegro technique as well as her regal authority of presence and gesture.
Denise Jackson, Principal Dancer, The Joffrey Ballet, is an extraordinary performer who is in total command of the style and nuances of classical ballet.
Georgina Parkinson, Ballet Mistress, American Ballet Theatre, was formerly a Principal Dancer with the Royal Ballet and is known for her strong classical technique and great dramatic abilities. She was appointed Ballet Mistress with American Ballet Theatre in 1978.

Sturgeon gains first Saturday

Amarillo's Jesse Sturgeon won the overall title at the Third Annual Hereford Town & Country Jubilee 10K and 2-mile Fun Run Saturday, pacing himself to a 33:16 time in the 6.2 mile event.

Sturgeon's time was more than three minutes off the event's record of 30:07 set by John Dixon of Amarillo in the inaugural run in 1981.

Teresa Price of Canadian won the women's 10K with a time of 47:50, far off the women's record of 39:51 set by Amarillo's Beverly Watkins in 1982.

In the 2-mile event, Levelland's Buddy Hutto cut almost three minutes off the old record with a time of 10:05 Saturday. The old mark was a time of 11:02 by Hereford's Felix Soliz last year.

Hereford's Selma Moreno was first among the women in the 2-miler with a time of 12:48, while Hereford's Dana Cabbiness was second at 12:56. Fernando Carasco of Hereford was second behind Hutto with a time of 10:36.

The races this year contained 113 runners, a big jump from the field of 75 which competed last year. The runners were sponsored by the Hereford & Yicinity YMCA and Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Organizer Weldon Knabe of the YMCA did report one unusual aspect of the race. Pedro Ramirez, a newcomer to Hereford, originally entered the 2-mile event, but became confused at the turnaround point and went on to run the full 10K race. Ramirez's time in the event was 47:25, a remarkable effort for a first attempt.

Lupe Rocha was the only Hereford 10K entrant to win his age group. Rocha turned in a 38:16 to win the Men's 14-19 division. Other Hereford medal winners included Jason Jones, 3rd in the Men's 13-and-under (60:15), Clayton Osburn, 2nd in the Men's 14-19 (42:48); Javier Herrera, 3rd in the Men;s 14-19 (43:55); Joe Reinauer, 3rd in the Men's 40-49 (46:00) Charles Hoover, 3rd in the Men's 50-and-over (54:01) Lorraine Riddle, 2nd in the Women's 20-29 (53:55) and Debbie Smith in the Women's 20-29 (60:50).

Record Setter

Levelland's Buddy Hutto blazed his way to a record in the 2-mile fun run which was held along with a 10K race Saturday. Hutto's time in the event was 10:05, almost a minute faster than the old record of 10:02 set by Hereford's Felix Soliz last year. The runs were sponsored by the Hereford & Vicinity YMCA and Deaf Smith General Hospital. (Brand Photo by Bob Nigh).

Braves suffer losses of game, star

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Losing hurt. But losing Bob Horner hurt more.

The Atlanta Braves, who have lost three of their past four games, lost their slugging third baseman, Bob Horner, in the fourth inning of Monday night's 4-0 whitewashing by San Diego when he tried to break up a double play. He broke his right wrist in the process.

At game's end, most of his teammates had no idea they'd lost one of the main cogs in the Atlanta offense (a .303 batting average with 20 home runs and 68 runs batted in). When Horner was taken to a hospital, everyone thought he'd only sprained the wrist. It wasn't until later that the fracture was discovered.

"It's a tough break, but that's the way the ball bounces," said John Mullen, the Braves' general manager, following a couple of midnight telephone conversations with Manager Joe Torre. "The last time he said, 'Good night. Let's sleep on it and decide what to do the first thing in the morning.' There are no instant solutions."

The Braves will have to decide whether to put veteran Jerry Royster at first base or bring up Brook Jacoby from Richmond of the International League. "I can't speak for Joe," said Mullen, "but I kind of feel he's going to go the Royster route. Still, we have to recall someone to replace Horner on the roster and it might be Jacoby."

Despite the loss, the Braves managed to maintain their 5½-game lead over Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers were beaten 7-3 by San Francisco.

Horner had one of Atlanta's five hits off Dave Dravecky. None of them hurt the San Diego left-hander, who wound up with his first major-league shutout in his second big-league season.

"It felt so good," he said after recording his 14th victory of the year, "especially since it came against the best team in baseball. The Braves have an awesome lineup. They all can hit the long ball."

It was only his second victory since the July 6 All-Star Game. "Beautiful!" exclaimed Padres Manager Dick Williams. "He'd been struggling. This is the best he's looked in a long time."

Giants 7, Dodgers 3

In Los Angeles, Jeff Leonard drove in four runs with a homer and a triple and Darrell Evans had a homer and three singles and added two runs batted in as San Francisco ripped the Dodgers and kept them from gaining ground on the Braves.

"We're playing the spoiler role and this rivalry, the Giants and the Dodgers, is heating up again," said Evans.

Phillies 5, Cubs 0

For seven innings in Chicago, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia and Steve Trout of the Cubs matched zeroes. Then the Phillies erupted for all five of their runs, the first on Greg Gross' broken-bat single and the rest on Mike Schmidt's seventh career grand slam.

Carlton finished with a seven-hitter and his 11 strikeouts gave him 3,637 for his career to 3,619 for Nolan Ryan in their duel for the all-time record.

Pirates 4, Mets 2

Rookie Jose DeLeon, who pitched 8 1-3 innings of no-hit ball against the Mets July 31 in New York (they won that game 1-0 in 12 innings) hurled 8 1-3 innings of four-hit ball against them this time in Pittsburgh.

Astros 9, Reds 1

In Cincinnati, Jose Cruz drove in five runs with his eighth and ninth homers of the year and Houston's Bob Knepper pitched his fifth complete game of the year.

In his five previous starts, Knepper was 0-2 with a 5.93 earned-run average. For the year he's 5-11 and 3.56. "Bob has pitched pretty decent ball all year in spite of his numbers," said Astros Manager Bob Lillis.

Expos 5, Cards 1

Tim Raines broke an eighth-inning tie with a sacrifice fly off the Cards' relief ace, Bruce Sutter, then Cary Carter homered to cap a three-run burst in the top of the ninth that ended Montreal's three-game tailspin and saddled St. Louis with its 12th loss in 14 games.

Roping slated

A pasture roping contest is slated for 10 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 10 south of the Rider's Club Arena in Hereford.

Teams are given five head and required to pay $125. Competition is described as three loops, progressive with Gist belt buckles to be given to the winning squad.

If more than 75 teams enter, organizers said the pasture roping would get underway at 8 a.m.

Meanwhile, open roping competition is scheduled to be held Thursday, Sept. 1. The same cattle will be used there as for the pasture roping, with squads charged $30 for four head.

Tourney deadline tomorrow

Wednesday is the deadline for those interested in entering the YMCA Deaf Smith County Closed Tennis Tournament, to be contested Friday-through-Sunday at the Hereford High School courts.

Play is slated to begin each of the three days at 8 a.m., with nine-point tiebreakers and two out of three sets being the format.

The tourney features 22 events, of which anyone is able to enter in three. Competition is for female or male first graders through adults. Youth divisions are supposed to compete on Friday with adults to play during the weekend.

Adult and high school competitors will be charged $6 per event if they are members of YMCA and $7 if not. Junior high school and elementary division players must pay $5 if they are not YMCA members and $4 if they are not YMCA members and $4 if they are. Entry fees must accompany entry forms.

More information may be obtained from the YMCA office (364-6990) in the Sugarland Mall.

Newcomers feel at home in Hereford

By LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

"Of all the locations we looked at, Hereford made us feel most at home," state Ross and Ellen Moline, new owners of the Montgomery Ward store at 309 N. Main.

Mr. and Mrs. Moline moved here a little over three weeks ago from Seymour, where they sold a Gulf Oil Distributorship which they had owned for several years.

Their two married sons, along with their 4½-month-old granddaughter, reside in Seymour, where the couple had lived for six years.

After selling their business there and looking for something different, the Molines decided on a Wards agency, and after looking at several around the state, they chose to come here.

"We feel that the biggest factor in deciding on Hereford was the open friendliness of all its people and the reception and presentation of what Hereford has to offer as outlined by Mike Carr at the Chamber of Commerce," notes Ross.

"We are looking forward to meeting and serving the people in this area," he continues. "We only hope that people will feel half as 'at home' in our store as the people of this area have made us feel."

The Molines currently have two employees, Debbie Wagner and Derenda DeLeon.

Another factor which helped Ross and Ellen decide on Hereford is the climate of this area. Both are originally from humid areas, Ross from Fort Worth and Ellen from Alabama, and they enjoy the dry Panhandle climate.

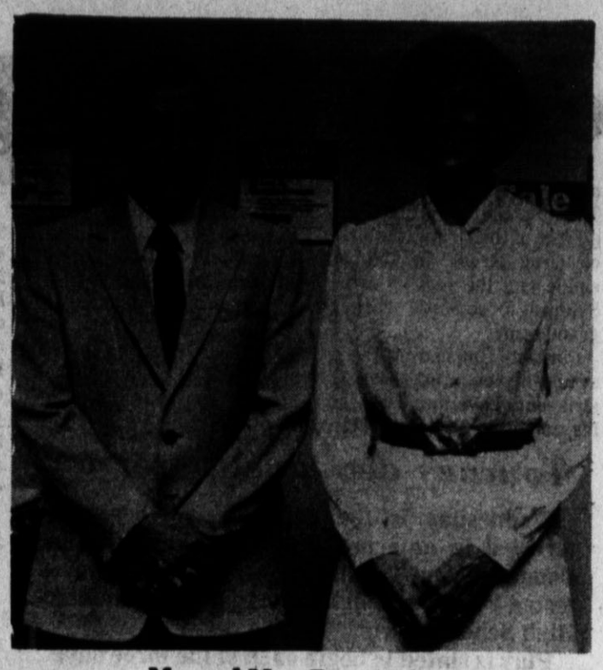

Prior to owning the Gulf Oil Distributorship, Ross had worked in the drilling business and had been a manufacturers representative in the aircraft industry.

He has been involved in Lions Club in the past, and says that he and his wife look forward to getting involved in the community later on after they get settled at the store and in their home on 114 Juniper.

Ellen, who has worked with her husband, and also was employed by the Federal Civil Service for many years, enjoys making dried weed and wildflower arrangements and likes to work in the yard.

She was a Pink Lady with the Seymour Hospital Auxiliary, working in the snack and gift bar and holding the office of corresponding secretary in the auxiliary.

The Molines like to travel and have visited most of the states.

Others on the tour were from the Amarillo area.

The visit to Memphis included a tour of the city and a stop at "Graceland," the home of Elvis Presley. At Chattanooga, activities included a ride on the Incline Railway to the summit of Lookout Mountain, visits to Rock City Gardens and Ruby Falls, and dinner at the Chattanooga ChooChoo.

The group stopped at Gatlinburg and Smoky Mountain National Forest as they traveled to Asheville, N.C., where they visited the Biltmore Mansion and Gardens.

Returning to Nashville by way of Knoxville, the travelers visited the Hermitage Home of Andrew Jackson, the Parthenon, and the Country Music Hall of Fame. The next day they stopped at Opryland U.S.A. and attended an evening performance of the Grand Ole Opry.

The farewell banquet, before returning to Amarillo, was held at the Holiday Inn in Russellville, Ark.

American Indians taught early colonists how to make maple syrup, and today it still is produced only in the United States and Canada. From 40 to 50 gallons of tree sap are boiled down to get one gallon of the rich syrup.

Adolescents face special problems

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent

For many, adolescence has been thought of as a period of "storm and stress." More recently, that "storm and stress" has been recognized as a critical period during which youngsters focus on special problems and concerns brought about by physical, intellectual, social and emotional changes.

Most early adolescents–11 to 14 years of age – share concerns about their physical development and relationships with family and friends, yet they have exaggerated feelings of being very different from others.

Girls usually mature earlier than boys and are more anxious about attracting boys than boys are to gain their favor.

Being an early or late maturer poses a special problem for early adolescents. These youngsters may feel "out of step" with their peers. Late maturing boys and girls, for example, may feel anxious and wonder if they ever will attain normal adult height and physical development.

Early adolescents seem sometimes to be emotionally unstable and overly sensitive.

One 14-year-old girl, for example, had her hair done at a beauty shop before a special school party. But she became upset with the way her hair looked because the other kids might think it looked "funny."

She cried and then completely changed the new hairdo. While her parents felt that her reaction was extreme and inapproporiate, it is actually quite typical. The girl's strong need for peer approval interfered with a more sensible judgment about the hairdo.

Although incidents of this kind may not be pleasant and can cause tension in the family, they are a normal part of a youngster's struggle for identity and independence.

Parents, middle-school or junior high teachers, 4-H leaders and others can be helpful to young people who are struggling for their own identity. Young adolescents need the support of parents and other adults who take the time to listen and accept them just as they are.

Early adolescence is a time of growth and frustration for both parent and child. But it is a necessary step in order for the young person to achieve a sense of identity and self-worth.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

The ivory horn of the narwhal, or "sea-unicorn," is actually an elongated tooth that sometimes includes a rudimentary second tooth at its base. A 20-foot whale may have a tusk up to nine feet long.

Carry organ donor card

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read recently that a 20-year-old woman from Saudi Arabia had a liver transplant in Boston. I think it is a disgrace that only the very rich can afford to buy organs for transplantation to keep their loved ones alive.

A while back a Chicago couple in modest circumstances were given a lot of publicity when their infant daughter needed a liver transplant. The stories and photos were so moving the public came up with over $300,000 in donations. (The child died and the parents set up a fund to help similarly stricken children.)

Selling eyes, kidneys, livers, etc., is clearly discriminatory against the poor. What can be done to stop this shameful practice? – Wet Hen In Westport

DEAR HEN: Each state handles the organ donor program its own way. According to the Illinois Department of Public Health and Dr. Robert Stein, Cook County medical examiner in Chicago, there is a public policy against the sale of organs.

I also checked with B.J. Anderson, associate general counsel of the American Medical Assn. She, too, said it is contrary to public policy in Illinois to sell or purchase organs and knows of no state where it is legal.

In Maryland, however, the federal government may pay coroners for pituitary glands.

The astronomical cost of a liver transplant (approximately $230,000 the first year) is due to the expense of patient care and hospitalization.

I'm glad you gave me another opportunity to plug the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act. You can offer any usable organ for donation upon your death. Just think of being able to give sight to a blind person or a second chance at life to one who needs a kidney, a liver or a pancreas.

Organ donor cards will be sent free of charge. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The address: The Living Bank, P.O. Box 6725, Houston, Tex. 77265.

Carry your donor card in your wallet at all times. I've carried one for several years.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Would you print a pithy recap of the advice you've been handing out for years regarding grandparents as sitters? More to the point: What should be said when our kids lean on us too often to baby-sit?

We love our grandchildren, but we don't want to be tied down anymore. Too bad we didn't clip those great columns when they appeared, but they weren't pertinent at the time – so who listened? Say it again, Ann.–Pressure In D.C.

DEAR D.C.: Some grandparents love to baby-sit and can't wait to be asked. Others, like you, aren't crazy about it and shouldn't feel guilty.

You do not owe your children this service. It's a lovely gesture now and then (especially if a daughter or daughter-in-law can't afford a sitter), but it's not written anyplace that you must. Offer when you feel you want to and say, "Sorry, we have plans," when you don't. Baby-sitting a second generation does not go with the territory.

Hawaii has the most youthful population of any state – median age 24.3 years.

Morgan to present 'Tribute to Elvis'

Matt Morgan and the Flaming Stars will present a benefit concert, "Tribute to Elvis," at 9 p.m. Wednesday in the Hereford Community Center. Admission is $1 and all proceeds will go to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Morgan, a 20-year-old Hereford resident, has been impersonating Elvis Presley since 1976, when a friend told him he sounded like Elvis. He has performed over 100 concerts since the first ones in his backyard.

In March 1979 Morgan did his first benefit concert for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and this year's benefit will coincide with the annual MDA telethon as well as being just one day after the anniversary of Elvis' death on Aug. 16, 1977.

The first part of the concert will be a portrayal of Elvis as he was in the 1950s and the second half will be as he was in the '70s.

In 1980 Morgan was joined by Matt and Mark Frost, also of Hereford, to form the Flaming Stars (the title of a Presley picture). Their last concert in Hereford was a year ago.

Last summer Morgan auditioned for the part of Elvis in a motion picture entitled "Luellen and Me" and was named for the part, but because of unforseen complications, filming has not yet started. In the meantime, Morgan has been featured in an Elvis special on cable TV in Dallas and this year he has been attending acting and modeling school at Barbizon in Amarillo.

Home Economics Cooperative Education in its third year

Students at Hereford High School will again have the opportunity this school year to take part in a home economics course which mixes classroom education and on-the-job training in a variety of occupations.

This class of Home Economics Cooperative Education (HECE) is open to junior and senior students for the third year. Work experience will be provided for students through part-time employment at cooperating businesses within the city.

Occupational areas included in HECE are care and guidance of children; clothing management, production, and services; food management, production, and services; home furnishings, equipment, and supplies; institutional and home management and supportive services.

The course is set up for one or two years and carries three credits each year. Students will receive pay comparable to that paid beginning workers in the same occupations.

Participating in this type of course will enable students, who desire to become occupationally competent, to enter full-time employment upon graduation from high school. HECE helps the school and community provide a well-rounded education in occupational areas that would otherwise not be possible. This fulfills the need for practical and useful training of young adults.

An advisory council of local citizens and businesspeople will be established to assist Mrs. Kris Dollar, teacher-coordinator, with the course. She will be responsible for the selection and placement of students, and will coordinate the classroom and job experiences.

Interested students or local business personnel who would like more information about becoming a training station for this course are asked to contact Kenneth Helms, vocational director, or Mrs. Kris Dollar, teacher-coordinator. They can be reached at Hereford High School, at 364-5112 or 364-0617.

Nuclear cataracts

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has been diagnosed as having nuclear cataracts in both eyes. This must be a new eye disease as there does not seem to be any information about this. Can you give us some information so we will know what to expect? Our eye doctor told us these cataracts are very slow forming and may not ever bother him but what if they do? Will he go blind?

DEAR READER — Think of them as just plain cataracts. The nuclear sclerosis term is used because the lens starts to harden in the center. It does progress slowly. When it first happens it may affect refraction of light waves through the lens. As a result the person's near vision may improve for a short time. This is sometimes called "second sight" because it provides a newfound ability to read without glasses.

But that is temporary. As the lens undergoes further changes the usual problems of cataracts appear.

Be happy the doctor told you that the condition may never cause your husband any problem. And what if it does? He will have the same problems that other people with cataracts have. If it affects his vision too much then he can have the cataracts removed.

Not everyone who has a cataract needs surgery. It depends entirely on how it affects the eyesight. If it is located where it does not interfere with light rays passing through to the retina, the person may never know that a cataract exists. However, when a cataract significantly affects vision, to the point that reading and other normal tasks become difficult or impossible, then surgery should definitely be considered.

I am sending you The Health Letter 13-6, Your Cataracts Are Coming, to give you a better understanding of the problem. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As this issue points out, if you also have disease of the other parts of the eye, such as the retina, you may still have vision problems after surgery. In some of these cases that is a reason for not doing surgery.

To preserve its neutrality, Switzerland on April 2, 1946, announced to the world that it would not join the United Nations.

Abundant Life

CONTENTMENT FOR US
By Bob Wear

Living is activity, but not all activity is living. Must activity is admittedly "much to do about nothing." The activity is often profitless, frequently regretted, and, more often than not, it adds to our problems and difficulties.

There is too much wasted effort, and time, and money, and opportunity. Even allowing for the justified wholesome diversion, and not nearly as much is needed for this as some folk think, there is an enormous waste.

This meaningless activity adds to the frustration, restlessness, and dissatisfaction from which much of the activity is supposed to be a way of escape. It erodes our contentment.

Life becomes increasingly burdensome, and our general outlook disappointing, in the self-made life climate of excessive activity. As we thus increase our burdens, the outlook becomes gloomier because the contentment that could be is crowded out. Out of this condition, many people often increase their activity.

In this life turmoil, people seem to be looking for something. Often they already have what they think they can find by going here and there. Many never calm down long enough to see, to really see what they do have.

It is better to plan and work to simplify our living experience. Herein we can find the contentment that is so very near to us, that has been hidden by excessive hustle and bustle.

"In character, in manners, in style, in all things, the supreme excellence is simplicity."-Longfellow.

Contentment is driven farther and father from us in the faulty habit of "making much to-do" about so many things. Generally contentment is what we are seeking, and it is just not this elusive.

Contentment is not in things; not in going and doing; not in continuous excitement and vain pursuit; not in the waste of time, money and energy; and not in superficial activity.

Contentment is in us, and will be doing for us what it should be doing to make us effective persons; if we do not crowd it out by excessive activity, making so much to-do about so much.

Camels were used in 1854 to build the Caribou Trail into the interior of British Columbia. Wild camels were still seen in the province as late as 1925.

"It's OK if you can't find the house keys...Marmaduke's been waiting for a chance like this to open the door!"

"Yes, Master."

Merrill says he was joking about bodies in well

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A hermit who pleaded guilty to murdering two men whose bones were found in an abandoned Central Texas well now says he shot one body only after it was dead and killed the other man in self-defense.

Henry Burton Merrill, serving concurrent 20-year terms in state prison, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that he started rumors that there were bodies in abandoned water wells to frighten off thieves in the Lake Whitney area of Central Texas.

"With no intentions of ever killing anybody, I started the rumor, just more or less as a joke, but it really got to be a joke," Merrill said.

But when law enforcement officers heard the rumor in August 1982 in the form of an anonymous tip, they found a well full of bones and debris less than a mile from Merrill's home.

Merrill pleaded guilty in December to slaying Tommy Dale Rogers, 42, of Cleburne, and Bobby Carroll Walker, 34, of Rio Vista. Hill County District Attorney Dan Dent said Merrill gave authorities a statement about the killings. Merrill says now, however, that he killed only Walker, and that was in self-defense.

Merrill said he pleaded guilty to the slayings because he was afraid he wouldn't have received a fair trial, that he would have been sent to Rusk State Hospital or sentenced to death.

Jerry Van Pendley, 37, accused of being Merrill's accomplice, pleaded guilty to one count of attempted murder and received a 10-year probated sentence. He was treated at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Waco, where he was released in January.

Last month, Pendley was arrested in Bosque County in connection with another slaying. A grand jury declined to indict him, and he was freed.

Merrill now claims Pendley killed Rogers for insurance money in spring 1980 and that Pendley forced him to shoot the body after Rogers was dead.

"So I shot him in the heart and in the head with my pistol. I shot a dead man," he said.

He says his life was threatened because he knew too much about the well and the people who wanted to collect an $80,000 policy on Rogers. Dent said the Texas Rangers investigated that possibility but found no insurance policy.

As for Walker, Merrill said: "He'd poked his rifle in my belly with the safety off. I killed him in self-defense. I'm not interested in discussing that because I'm going back through the courts."

Merrill insists there were three skeletons in the well and that the third belongs to an "unknown." Officials first could not determine how many bodies were in the well and medical examiners finally concluded the remaining bones belonged to animals, Dent said.

Merrill contends the lab reports were altered to show only two bodies. "I'm going to pursue exhuming the body of the unknown person," he said, laughing. "I think that would be quite interesting."

The unknown man "wasn't killed there. He was killed somewhere else and hauled there," Merrill said.

Merrill said a civil suit he filed against Hill County Sheriff Brent Button was intercepted before it reached federal district court in Waco, but the court clerk's office said the suit had been received. U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton recommended last month that the suit be dismissed as frivolous.

The suit claimed, among other things, that Button refused Merrill a haircut before his court appearance and that the jail had no night lights. Merrill also argued that he shouldn't have to post bail for three murder counts if there were only two skeletons. Merrill has asked for an appeal.

He said he also has written F. Lee Bailey asking to be interrogated on his "Lie Detector" show.

Merrill, 53, says he now is planning a screenplay about his life and wants Kenny Rogers to play his part. He is writing an autobiography called "The Joke of the Well" and is attending school to sharpen his spelling and writing skills.

His prison cell is a far cry from the riverbank on which he used to lay his mattress. In winter, he lived in a granary.

"I don't think I was what you call a hermit because I had lots of friends," Merrill said. "I was living like I wanted to live and doing what I wanted to do. And I wasn't hurting anybody. I sure wasn't on welfare."

Cystic Fibrosis patient risked death to give birth to son

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Jeri DeMille knew that having a baby could hasten her own death from cystic fibrosis, but the 23-year-old woman says she wanted to do something for her husband — and herself.

"I didn't want to leave him alone," Mrs. DeMille said of her husband, Mark, after she gave birth to a 6-pound, 11-ounce boy at St. Joseph Hospital in Orange. "Then, when the baby was born, I realized I'd done it for myself, too.... I wanted a reminder that I was here."

Mrs. DeMille, who lives in Palm Desert, gave birth to Cameron Lee DeMille on Aug. 3, one day after her third wedding anniversary. The new mother was released from the hospital Friday.

Chances are 1 in 50 that the infant, who appears healthy, will carry the disease, said Dr. Ralph Rucker, chairman of the neonatal department at Children's Hospital of Orange County, adjacent to St. Joseph.

Mrs. DeMille, back home Monday in Palm Desert 100 miles east of Los Angeles, said so far she has shown no ill effects from her pregnancy or 13-hour labor.

"As far as I know, going by my lung X-rays and everything, there's no changes," she said. "I know the doctors expected a lot worse. Everybody's pretty amazed."

She said she was exhausted but "that's normal for anybody." Her mother flew out from the family home in British Columbia to help take care of the baby, she said.

At age 14, Mrs. DeMille was diagnosed as having cystic fibrosis, a hereditary disease in which the lungs, liver and pancreas secrete large amounts of thick mucus that can clog the lungs and interfere with breathing and digestion.

Many victims die of lung disease. The cause of cystic fibrosis is not known and there is no cure, although drugs can be used to fight resulting infections.

Most victims die before age 20, and 15 percent of those few who do give birth die within six months, according to records of the National Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Another 12 percent die within two years.

Rucker said statistics for most of Southern California show no prior birth to a cystic fibrosis patient.

Mrs. DeMille, who received prenatal treatment in the cystic fibrosis clinic at Children's Hospital, said she knows the exertion of having a baby will shorten her life, but said, "I don't know how much and I don't care."

She described her husband as "really understanding" and said, "One thing he always told me was he never felt he had the right to tell me that I couldn't have a baby. He loved me enough to let me do it and I loved him enough to do it for him. He's really special."

The hardest part, she said, is knowing she probably won't live to see her baby grow up.

"I've practiced how I'd say good-bye to my husband," she said. "But now there's the baby, and it will be harder."

Jurors begin deliberating punishment in housewife's trial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A psychiatrist says a Texas housewife convicted in the slayings of five people almost certainly would commit other violent acts, but corrections officials described her as a "model inmate" who "read her Bible daily."

Jurors planned to begin deliberating today whether Linda May Burnett should be sentenced to death by injection or life imprisonment.

Mrs. Burnett, 35, spent almost four years on death row before her first conviction was overturned on appeal in December.

She was found guilty of capital murder Sunday in the July 1978 slaying of Martha Jean Phillips of Woodward, Okla., one of five people found bound and shot point-blank in a mass grave.

During Monday's punishment phase, prosecutors called a Dallas psychiatrist who said he thought there was a "99 percent probability" the Nederland housewife would commit further violent crimes.

Dr. Clay Griffith, who conceded he had not examined Mrs. Burnett, used a personality profile outlined by prosecutors to conclude that she had a "severe anti-social personality disorder."

Griffith classified her as a sociopath, saying the slayings were premeditated and precipitated only by "some kind of inner urge."

"The main thing is that it is an execution-type killing," he said. "This really is the worst kind of killing there is."

Defense attorneys called three corrections officers as character witnesses, including the warden of the Texas Department of Corrections unit where Mrs. Burnett spent two years.

"She was very obedient ... she was what we would call a good prisoner," said warden Lucille Plane of the TDC's Mountain View unit in Gatesville.

A matron at the Jefferson County jail, where Mrs. Burnett was transferred after her conviction was overturned, described her as a "model inmate."

"We have never had any trouble with her," matron Willie Wright said. "She was kind to other people who seemed to be having problems. She studied and read her Bible daily."

Mrs. Burnett's first husband, Hubert Miller, testified that she once shot him in the neck for no reason and that she wounded herself with a shotgun when she was pregnant with their first child.

Prosecutors contended Mrs. Burnett helped her boyfriend, Joe Dugas, abduct and kill the family members from a Winnie, Texas, farmhouse because he blamed them for the breakup of his marriage.

Both Mrs. Burnett and Dugas were sentenced to death for the slaying of Mrs. Phillips' 3-year-old son Jason, but Mrs. Burnett's conviction was overturned.

Dugas was shot to death two months ago during an apparent escape attempt.

Mrs. Burnett also is charged with the deaths of Jason's father, Elmer Phillips, and elderly grandparents, Bishop and Ester Phillips.

Her trial was moved here from Beaumont on a change of venue.

Mechanics ignore strike in Houston, Denver

HOUSTON (AP) — Large numbers of Continental Airlines mechanics ignored pickets and went to work as scheduled in Houston and Denver, but Los Angeles workers observed the strike, causing union leaders to predict victory.

Wilbur Spurlock, general chairman of District 146 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said about 60 percent of the airline's 350 mechanics reported to work in Houston Monday.

Spurlock said between 25 and 30 of Denver's 103 mechanics reported.

But Tony Young, spokesman for Local 597 and the union's general manager in charge of administering the contract, said at least 95 percent of the 628 mechanics based in Los Angeles were striking as the nation's eighth-largest airline began hiring "permanent replacements" Monday.

"I think we can hold out," Spurlock said.

He said the union expected a large number of strikebreakers in Houston because many mechanics there worked for Texas International Airlines, whose parent company, Texas Air Corp., took over Continental in October.

He said perhaps 250 mechanics in Houston had been with Texas International and felt more loyalty to their employer as a consequence.

Continental spokesman Bruce Hicks refused to say how many workers were replaced Monday. He said mechanics who are replaced can apply for reinstatement, but added it could be a long time before openings were available.

The union, which represents 2,000 mechanics, flight kitchen workers and cabin cleaners, walked off the job at 11:01 p.m. CDT Friday. Hicks said the Marriot Corp. had been given a long-term contract for the approximately 600 flight kitchen and cabin cleaning jobs.

No new face-to-face talks have been scheduled. But Meredith Buell, spokesman for National Mediation Board in Washington, said board mediator Robert J. Brown was to meet with both sides Tuesday in Houston in an effort to resolve the dispute.

Hicks would not estimate how many union members were ignoring the strike, saying only that "a very substantial" number reported to work at Denver and Houston, the company's main hubs. He criticized Spurlock's figures as "substantially incorrect."

In Denver, Jim Collins, an outside publicist hired by Continental, said that "over 60 percent of those scheduled to come to work have returned to their jobs."

But some of those who crossed lines didn't get their jobs back because they showed up after their scheduled starting times, he said. He would not give a figure for the number of "permanent replacements" hired.

A Denver union committeeman, Bob Nelson, confirmed that at least 12 mechanics trying to return to their jobs were told they couldn't have them.

Neither side reported any violence.

The strike has forced the airline to halt service to 17 cities, but it has kept 85 percent of its service in operation, Hicks said.

Hiring permanent replacement workers is "absolutely" legal under the Railway Labor Act, which covers airlines, Hicks said.

Ninety-three percent of the union's Continental employees rejected the company's offer of $16 an hour, up from the previous contract's $13.45. The union asked for $17.70 an hour. The package also included an additional $10,000 in benefits during the contract, which would expire Dec. 31, 1984.

The union would not sign a contract until a back-to-work agreement for all strikers is reached, Spurlock said.

Labor owned cab company survives after changeover

DENVER (AP) — The big, shiny-yellow cabs were all that looked bright at the Yellow Cab Co., Denver's largest taxicab company, four years ago.

There was a new owner who wanted to make changes many of the drivers didn't like. The Independent Drivers Association, the union representing the drivers, tried to compromise with the new owner, but neither side could agree.

So the union bought the company — for $2.5 million.

It plunked down its entire strike fund, about $200,000, as a down payment and renamed the company the Yellow Cab Cooperative Association.

Now one of the 10 largest labor-owned companies in the United States — and one of just a handful of driver-owned taxicab companies — Yellow Cab is only a little less tumultuous at the management level than it was in 1979. But the drivers are making it go.

"People said we wouldn't make it past six months, but we celebrated our fourth anniversary in April," said Sharron Frank, 39, director of marketing and sales.

For the drivers, the switch to a cooperative has meant improved working conditions and the lowest accident rate of any taxicab company in the nation, Ms. Frank said. The turnover rate is just 14 percent a year, "lower than most banks," she added.

"When the drivers took over, they decided they wanted to do two things: They wanted to experiment and they wanted to do things on their own."

A self-defense program for drivers and a class in stress management are in the works. An incentive program pays $4 an hour for drivers who will take fares no one wants, such as short trips to the supermarket.

Before going on duty, drivers are encouraged to read their biorhythm charts, which show each driver's mental, emotional and physical levels for the day and bear such admonitions as "Watch for accidents today" or "Try extra hard for understanding today."

With a fleet of 400 cabs in Denver, another 25 at its Boulder Yellow Cab Co. and 25 airport limousines, Yellow Cab pulled in $9 million in gross revenues in 1982, not counting revenue from its 110 drivers who own their own cabs, said Ms. Frank.

The company has another 790 drivers who lease cabs from the company for $36.75 a day. All drivers also pay $2.75 to the union and $3 to the cooperative each shift.

Ms. Frank said the company is making it. "We had a break-even, slightly plus situation with the loans last year," she said.

Loans had to be taken out to buy Yellow Cab Co.'s land and facilities, she said. The loans still are being paid off, so the cooperative's nine directors announced the Yellow Cab employee-owners would not yet receive any profit on their equity shares, one per employee.

Yellow Cab headquarters is a cinderblock and brick complex of decrepit-looking, patched-together buildings of various vintages and colors.

"It's kind of a junky, clunky place, but we're changing physically and psychologically," Ms. Frank says, noting the stark concrete of the drivers' waiting areas.

Ms. Frank is not on the board of directors — its members include a dispatcher, telephone operator, accounting clerk and six drivers — but she is a member of the executive committee, which is the next echelon down the cooperative ladder. She and other committee members are department managers, and they meet each day at 4 p.m. with drivers to listen to complaints and suggestions.

Like any participatory democracy, the cooperative does not always run smoothly. Yellow Cab changed its management style in March from a single general manager to the four-person executive committee.

"It's eliminated some of the politicking among the drivers," said Ms. Frank. "But it's a little slower than someone who sits behind the desk and says, 'I'll do it.'"

The drivers bid on 10-hour shifts, with the more senior drivers able to claim desirable, daytime working hours.

Yellow Cab has pioneered what it calls "Paratransit," a program, catering to the elderly and the handicapped, which allows people to share taxi rides and pay reduced fares. It receives federal funds under Title III of the Older Americans Act.

"We try to approach things differently," said Ms. Frank. "We try to be creative."

Another program inaugurated by the new management allows people who have had too many drinks to have a cab drive them home at reduced cost. Ms. Frank said the program, called CARE, is being expanded so those same motorists can ride a cab back to their cars the following day, also for less than the usual charge.

Family living in tent until they can return to Michigan

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — When Richard Findley, his wife and baby girl were evicted Sunday from a trailer park five miles east of El Paso, he pitched two tents on the desert sand nearby.

They're prepared to rough it until he can earn enough money to move back to Michigan, he said.

"We've always made things work out for us before, and everything will work out for us again this time," said Findley, 35, a native of West Branch, Mich. "The good Lord will take care of us ... like He always has."

"The only thing we have to worry about is the sun," Elizabeth Findley said while sitting in the tent Monday afternoon with 6-month-old Corinne Findley. "We don't have any shade trees out here."

Mrs. Findley, 22, said she still goes to the park to get water for the family. All their food is canned, she said.

The family was told to leave the park, Findley said, when he couldn't come up with the $30-a-week rent for those in the park's recreational vehicle section.

The baby's skin is cherry red from playing in 95-degree heat the past few weeks. She giggles when her mom strokes her chin and kisses her cheek.

Findley said he is bitter because park manager Jim Denham evicted his family without thinking of his daughter's safety.

"He was grabbing at straws, trying to find a reason for us to leave," Findley said angrily. "But we've done nothing wrong, and he had no reason to kick us out."

Findley moved to El Paso five weeks ago from Midland, Texas. He said he earned $78 last week by pulling weeds and mowing lawns at the mobile home park. He wanted to use the money to pay the past two weeks rent, but he said Denham refused to take it.

The park manager tells a different story. Denham said Findley earned only about $26 from yardwork. Other tenants were complaining that Findley asked them for food and money, Denham said.

"We can't take a chance on our tenants getting leery about these people and have them move out," Denham said.

Denham said Findley lived at the complex for about five weeks and paid for three weeks' rent. He said he offered Findley different yard jobs at the park to help him pay his overdue rent but that Findley was not a good worker.

Findley said he has worked at several places across the country since being laid off by General Motors in 1974. He said he would like to earn enough money in El Paso to move back to Michigan, possibly landing another job at General Motors.

Findley has worked for aluminum siding subcontractors Lonnie and Bob Harris, who said they paid Findley about $300 for two jobs last month. Harris said he offered to pay the Findleys' overdue two weeks' rent at the trailer home but that the manager would not accept the money.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Polly Fisher

A true fish story

By Polly Fisher

DEAR READERS — Today's Pointers will help you neatly prepare a tasty meal of fish, plus the home-baked bread to go with it! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My wife and I love fish. She was always disgusted with the mess that was left after cleaning it. Cleaning the fish out-of-doors did not solve her distaste for the job. I finally took over the fish cleaning task and now use this very simple method. I partially fill the kitchen sink with lukewarm water with the sink stopper in place. I then proceed to de-scale the fish and clean them internally all under water. No flying scales, no messy paper on the counter. After the fish are rinsed, I open the stopper, leaving the strainer in place, to allow the water to drain. When the sink is empty, I clean the scales and innards from the sink and strainer, rinse out the sink and wait for a fresh fish breakfast. — ANDREW

DEAR POLLY — Some time ago, a reader asked for recipes for self-rising flour. This beer bread is especially good toasted. It must be made with self-rising flour. Mix three cups self-rising flour, three tablespoons sugar, and one 12-ounce can warm beer. Mix thoroughly, pour into a greased loaf pan and bake one hour at 350 degrees. Delicious — MRS. F.S.

DEAR POLLY — For a nice serving container for raw vegetables (carrot sticks, scallions, radishes, cauliflower buds, etc.), cut the top off a pumpkin and clean out the seeds. Rinse and dry the inside. Presto! You'll have an attractive, unusual bowl to pile full of goodies. — BARBARA

DEAR POLLY — Milk turning sour? Hurry it along by adding a tablespoon of vinegar to each cup of milk. Use like sour milk, buttermilk or yogurt in cooking. — HENRIETTA

DEAR POLLY — Want an unusual luncheon treat? Make waffles flavored with herbs. I particularly like a pinch of fresh thyme, but basil, oregano, and marjoram all make delicious, savory waffles. — R.P.

DEAR POLLY — Here is a timely hint for the picnic season or pot-luck dinners. Meringue or soft frosting will carry or store undamagerd if covered with plastic or waxed paper, coated lightly with cooking oil or margarine. — ELIZABETH

DEAR POLLY — Ever get a muskmelon that tasted a little green? Don't throw it out! Grate it and use the melon like you would use zucchini squash in cakes and bread. The taste is really delightful and the products are very moist. Try it, you won't be sorry. — MRS. W.S.

DEAR POLLY — There's a darling little boy in my neighborhood who rides a small tricycle. He has a bell-timer on his handle bars. Someone asked him why. The little boy said, "I've had my fanny spanked too many times by Mommie because I am always late for lunch, naps and dinner, so my Daddy robbed my piggy bank and for $2.00 bought me this. Mommie winds it up when I leave and when it goes off, I head for home. — MRS. O.S.

SIPCO-Hereford Day

Swift Independent Packing Co. held a "Hereford Day" party for more than 1,600 employees and their families here Saturday afternoon. Harold Ecton, general plant manager, and Jerry McKinney, operations manager, are shown passing out balloons at the Bull Barn. Games, including sack races for the kids, were held in Veteran's Park.

The nineteenth century had its Evel Knievel in Jean Francois Grandet, nicknamed Blondin, who could walk on stilts on a tightrope across Niagara Falls.

Businessmen waiting for better times to return

LONE STAR, Texas (AP) — Merchants in the Morris County towns of Lone Star and Daingerfield no longer take prosperity for granted.

The decision that giant Lone Star Steel Co. slow its operations to a virtual standstill set in motion a severe adjustment for area residents whose lifestyles and business practices revolved around the plant. Wednesday will be the first anniversary of the layoff announcements.

But oil prices plummeted and drilling all but stopped in the summer of 1982. With massive cutbacks in drilling operations, the demand for its tubing products dropped sharply, Lone Star Steel said when it announced its layoff of thousands of workers last year.

"I think everybody at the time was running around, making as much money as they could. Then the bottom dropped out and for three or four months after, everybody was pretty much in a state of shock," said Steve Reese, a banker and the president of the Chamber of Commerce of Lone Star.

Civic leaders in Lone Star and Daingerfield say some businesses were forced to fold, but most have held on, despite losses, and the feeling remains high that the steel plant will return to full capacity again, perking up the economy when it does.

"For a long time we thought we were invulnerable to the national economic problems, but we found out we weren't," Reese said.

"People have become a lot better informed," said Lone Star public relations director Mayo Lanagan.

"A lot more people are paying attention to newspaper stories about the oil business and national economics. Now when they see stories in the news and on TV about things which are happening in other parts of the country, they realize it has an effect on them."

Reporters came from as far away as Washington and New York last Aug. 17 to cover the plight of Morris County. It even drew a report on a British TV network.

The reporters came, Reese said, so they could go back and tell their readers and viewers, "We saw this town die."

"But it wasn't so. We ain't dying. We're here and we're going to be here," Reese said.

Employment at the plant and other area industry has increased gradually since January, when 21,151 were reported jobless in an eight-county area, including 2,311 in Morris County.

The Lone Star Steel Co. plant where, in the boom days, 4,000 steelworkers turned out record amounts of high grade drilling pipe is now operating at a third of its capacity, its peak production since last August.

"Under the circumstances, I'm very optimistic. At least we didn't die on the vine, like everybody thought we would," said Frank Berka, president of the Chamber of Commerce in Daingerfield, seven miles north of Lone Star.

Berka said business at his car dealership has been picking up, albeit mainly in used cars.

But that doesn't mean that Morris County is out of danger, with a quarter of its residents unemployed last month, according to Texas Employment Commission figures.

For some businesses, sales are off an estimated 20 percent, Reese said. Others, such as dry goods and major retailers, report their business is off 75 percent.

Cowan said many businessmen are hanging on by their fingernails and some are operating at a loss.

But every bank in the area has grown in the past year, Reese said. To make up for lost deposits, bankers started soliciting less profitable money market and time deposit accounts.

Also, he said, lenders are policing their investments more closely. "We're more careful about loans. We're gearing back and slowing down."

Merchants have become more aggressive. They are hustling for business where two years ago they could wait for it to come through the door, Reese said.

Berka said the local economy appears to have bottomed out. Now the merchants are nervous about contract talks between Lone Star and the United Steelworkers local union.

If the two sides fail to reach agreement by the time the contract expires in October, Berka said, things could definitely get worse.

Local merchants are not expecting a return to the easy-money days. But, Reese notes, "In 1982 we had it very good. And when Lone Star returns to production, even if it doesn't get back to that level, it will still be darn good."

Wayfaring board defies mayor, stays part of New Mexico

ANTHONY, Texas (AP) — The local housing authority has decided to stay next-door in New Mexico, ignoring Anthony, Texas, Mayor Adrian Baca's pleas for the wayfaring group to return home to Texas.

"The board belongs in Anthony, Texas, but it still is in New Mexico," Baca said after the defecting housing board declined to return from its new office in neighboring Anthony, N.M.

Monday, on the final day of Baca's 15-day ultimatum to the board to "come back to town," the housing authority remained in New Mexico. "We're staying put," board chairman August LaVora said. "And there's no need for us to move now."

LaVora's board had butted heads for four months with Baca over his attempts to usurp its powers by setting housing authority policy in this farming town of 5,000 about 20 miles north of El Paso, and regulate the political makeup of the board, which is non-partisan.

Baca had stacked the board with two of his staunchest supporters, and has vowed to fill the last three posts next year with those who are "more in harmony with the things we stand for."

Baca, 46, is "a little dictator of the Mesilla Valley," and wants the "ultimate power in his town," LaVora said.

The board now is housed in the offices of John Keithly, who was Anthony mayor from 1979-81. There is no mayor or town office in Anthony, N.M., which is provided police protection by Dona Ana County authorities.

Baca told the housing board in a July 31 letter they had broken Texas law by moving the authority out of his jurisdiction.

In response, the board amended its bylaws Thursday to allow the authority to put its office anywhere within a five-mile radius of the Texas town. Anthony, N.M., where the new board office is located, is three blocks from the Anthony, Texas, town hall where the board used to be housed.

The board's move is not without precedence, LaVora said. The situation is similar to border communities such as Texarkana, which is in both Texas and Arkansas, he said.

But Baca said the board's decision to ignore his plea to return to Texas is "a blunder." He also said he had promised not to meddle in board affairs.

Baca blamed the U.S. Housing and Urban Development regional office in Dallas, which oversees the board's operations, for meddling in town affairs. HUD "encouraged them to break the law, with no malice certainly, but they nonetheless ... said to them 'you can move to New Mexico,'" he said.

The squabble over the housing board also has spread into Baca's personal affairs. LaVora charges Baca owns many of the prospective rental units in Anthony that could be used for low-income families.

Baca denied any wrongdoing, but said, "It's an ugly situation."

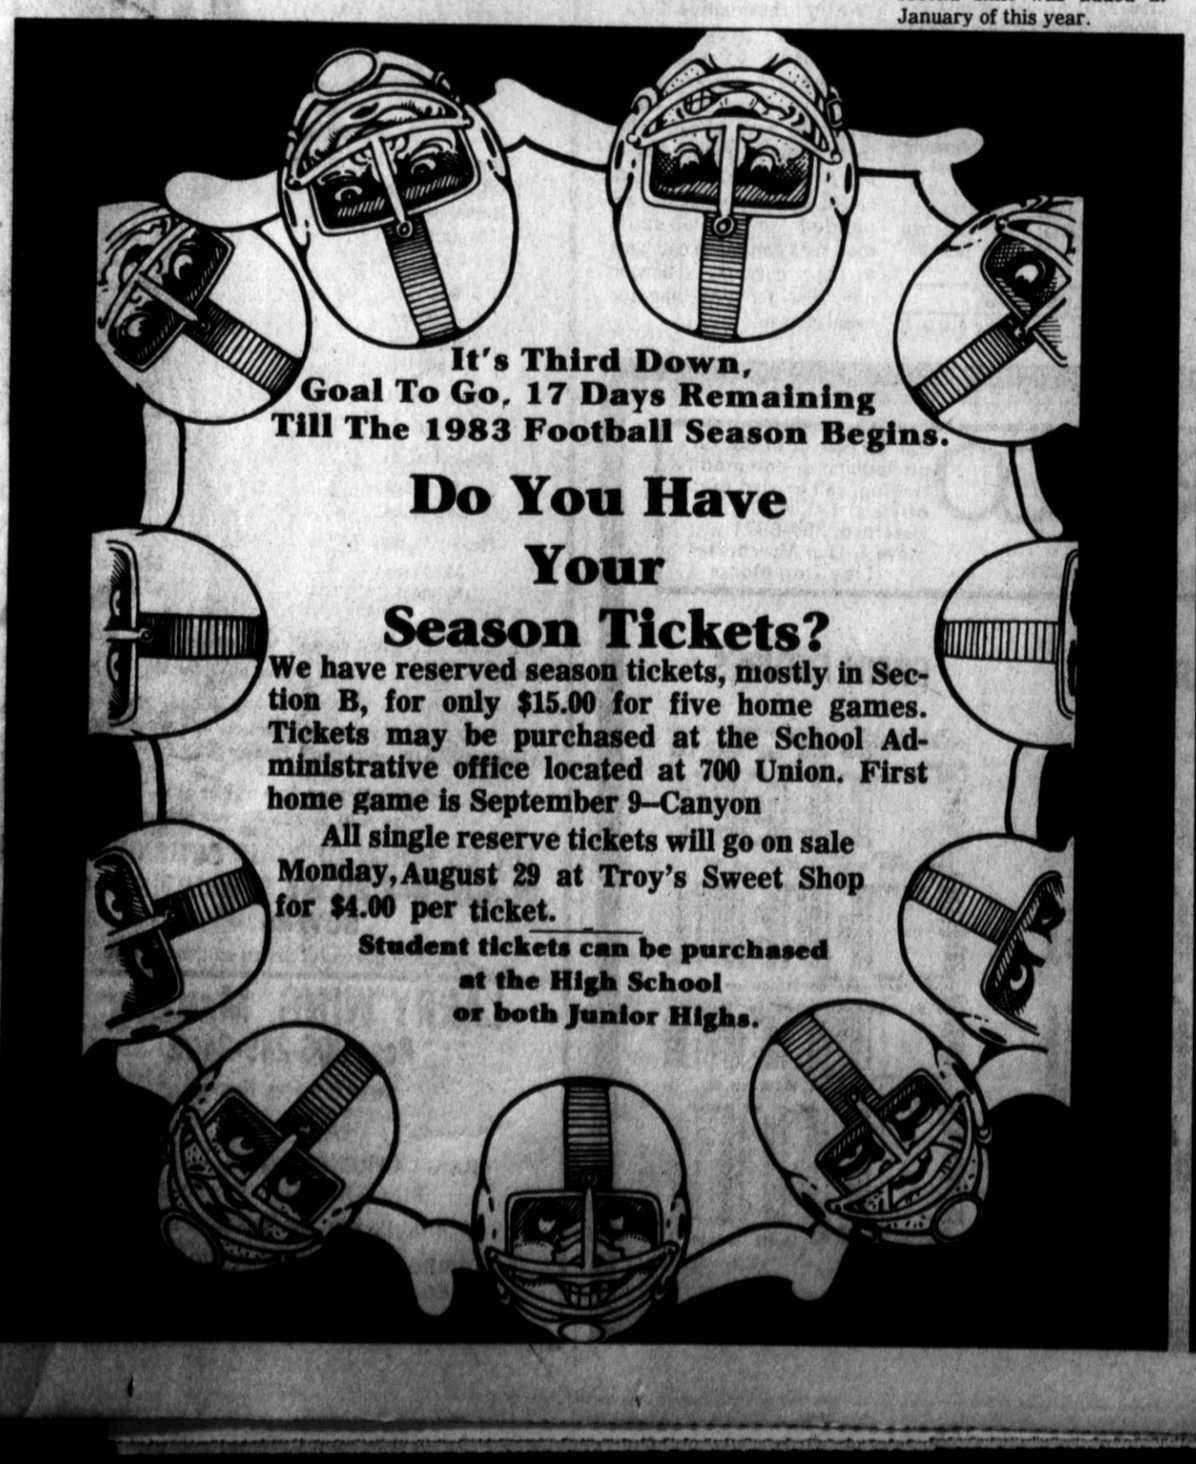

SIPCO celebrates

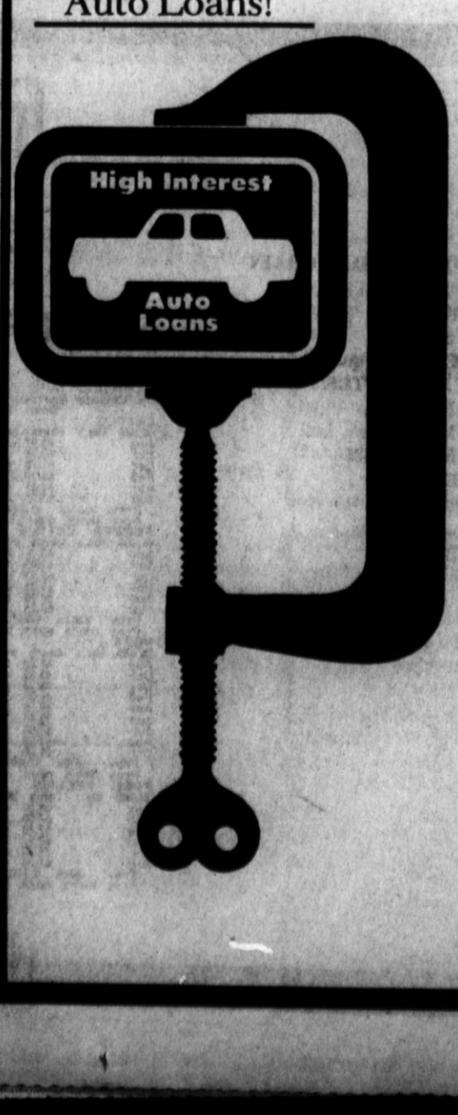

Swift Independent Packing Co. held a "Hereford Day" here Saturday afternoon with more than 1,600 employees and their families treated to a meal at the Bull Barn and games and a watermelon feast at Veteran's Park.

The company party started at 2 p.m. at the Bull Barn. After the luncheon, a band provided entertainment at the Barn while the games and activities got underway in the park.

Harold Ecton, SIPCO plant manager, said the company hoped to make the SIPCO-Hereford Day an annual affair for local employees.

SIPCO currently has about 600 employees at the Hereford plant. The plant reopened here Nov. 29, 1982 with about 225 employees. A second shift was added in January of this year.
