House oks money for MX missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a narrow victory for his plans to build the MX "Peacekeeper" missile, President Reagan is expected to survive a determined House challenge to his authority to keep the U.S. Marine peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

Despite rising concern over the safety of the Marines, a head count by the Democratic House leadership showed "a lot of votes to spare" to defeat a move to cut off funds for the troops after March 1, a Democratic congressman said.

Although it was expected the Lebanon measure would be rejected, lawmakers said the Marines' presence in Lebanon might not be endorsed as strongly as in September. Then the House passed by a 253-156 margin a resolution authorizing the Marines to stay at their posts for up to 18 months. The mood of Congress has stiffened since the Oct. 23 terrorist bombing which killed at least 230 U.S. servicemen.

The vote scheduled today came as the House completed action on a $247 billion defense spending bill with $2.1 billion for production of the first 21 MX intercontinental ballistic missiles still intact.

An effort to cut funds for the MX was rejected Tuesday by a vote of 217-208, almost the same margin by which it was rejected three months ago. In July, on a spending authorization vote, the MX survived on a count of 220-207.

In Tuesday's vote, 190 Democrats and 18 Republicans voted to cut the MX funds, but were defeated by a combination of 145 Republicans and 72 Democrats.

MX advocates said the Reagan administration had made sincere efforts in arms control but opponents voiced deep skepticism.

In another major gain for the administration's strategic modernization program, the House turned aside, 247-175, an effort by Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., chairman of the defense appropriations subcommittee, to bar long-range Air Force contracts to buy B-1B bombers. The vote signaled that the once-canceled and long-controversial program will continue.

In the measure, there is nearly $6.2 billion for the B-1B program in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1, including $3.76 billion to build 10 planes, which would replace aging B-52s that were last produced in 1962. The rest of the funds are to buy parts.

Congress bought one plane in 1981 and seven last year after the administration revived the B-1 program that had been killed by President Carter in 1977.

30th win earned by band

For the 30th year in a row, the Snyder High School Tiger Band has earned a Division I rating in UIL marching competition.

Under the direction of Sam Robertson, the SHS band competed Tuesday in Abilene's Shotwell Stadium at the Region II UIL event. Some 30 area junior high and high school bands performed at the event.

The only other AAAA school at the competition was Sweetwater, which also received a Division I "superior" rating.

Wednesday morning, Robertson praised a "super job" by all the band members and noted that the local group recieved two I's and a I-plus from the three contest judges.

Under a new composite scoring system adopted by the UIL this year, the "Pride of the West" SHS band outpointed the Sweetwater Division I rating.

In the high school division, other schools and how they placed were:

—Class A: Jayton, I; Cross Plains, I; Roscoe, I; Rochester, II; Bronte, II; Roby, II, Robert Lee, II; Trent, III; Loraine, III.

—Class AA: Baird, I; Winters, I; Hamlin, I; Albany II; Anson II; Hawley, II; Rotan, II; Haskell, III; Jim Ned, III.

Class AAA: Wylie, I; Clyde, I; Colorado City, I; Stamford, II; Coahoma, II; Breckenridge, II; Merkel, II.

30th FIRST DIVISION — This Division I trophy was earned by the SHS "Pride of the West" Black and Gold Band in the Region II Marching Contest in Abilene Tuesday. It marked the 30th Division I in a row for the local band. Shown Wednesday morning are Drum Majors Kay Hammack (front) and Linda Walker (center) along with the 1983-84 Band Officers (from front, left) Pete Rosas, Carolyn Alvarado, (second row) Laura Shifflett, Dedra Crawford, Darren Jackson, Connie Henderson, (back row) Teresa Dodson, Mike Byrom, Gene Sands, Dale Sands and Ray Canales. ## C&W holdup arrests made

Tuesday, Snyder police arrested two suspects in connection with the armed robbery of a Snyder convenience store reported Saturday.

Two Colorado City women are being held in the Scurry County Jail Wednesday morning, charged with the holdup at the C&W Food Basket at the intersection of 40th St. and College Ave.

Two female bandits reportedly produced a gun and demanded money in that incident, reported around 7 a.m. The contents of the store's cash register was taken.

According to police detectives, the arrests Tuesday were the result of investigators following up a lead in the case which surfaced Monday morning.

Investigators from the Big Spring police department as well as the Mitchell County Sheriff's office became involved in the case prior to the arrest of the first suspect — 27-year-old Ruth Mae Bailey — early Tuesday morning.

Bailey was initially arrested by Mitchell County authorities and brought to Snyder for questioning. Reportedly, information obtained from Bailey led to the arrest of the second suspect, 20-year-old Tammy Lee Tyler. She was taken into custody in Colorado City shortly after 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Colorado City law enforcement officers are currently investigating an armed robbery of a convenience store in that city as well.

Officers said Wednesday morning the local suspects are not currently linked to the other area robbery. Investigators, however, say the suspects have been identified as persons going to at least three other Snyder convienence stores Saturday morning. Bond for both is set at $20,000.

Meeting slated to reach goal of United Way

United Way officers, drive chairmen and campaign workers are urged to attend a special meeting here Friday as a final push for the 1983 campaign receives a last scrutiny.

The latest United Way count has this year's campaign some $13,000 shy of its sought-after goal of $77,300.

Although the effort is slightly more than 80 percent complete, the $13,000 still to be raised equals the sum total allocated to four of the eight United Way agencies.

Funds now targeted for the West Texas Rehab Center, Oil Patch Foster Parents Association, Salvation Army and the local operation of the Red Cross total just more than $13,000.

Other agencies aided by the campaign include the Boys Club, allocated $25,500; Boy Scouts, $17,000; Snyder Child Day Care Center, $10,000; and Girl Scouts, $8,000.

"We want to kick around some ideas for finishing up the drive," said Roy McQueen, chairman for this year's effort. United Way officials hope to be over the top before Thanksgiving.

He said it is important that a good representation of this year's workers attend the Friday session "to let us know exactly where we are and what we might still expect."

If the traditional methods of fund raising are near complete, new ideas to reach the goal are to be discussed.

The meeting is to begin at 10 a.m. at city hall.

Last week, Snyder school pupils brought home report cards for perusal by parents and other interested adult parties.

One youngster brought home a report card that had more than its share of failing and marginal grades.

"What have you to say about this?" asked the father.

"One thing for sure," he replied, "you know I ain't cheating."

He reminds us of the small boy who had his own definition of conscience: "Something that makes me tell my mother before my sister does."

A few weeks ago we commented that we didn't know anyone who was a dues-paying, qualified member of Mensa, the elite group whose membership requires an IQ of at least genius.

We further commented that a new group had formed, Densa, a group for the thick-head majority. We know plenty, including yours truly, who could get quick approval into this group.

Now we know a fellow who is a card-carrying member of American Mensa Limited. George McDonald, a registered pharmacist for more than 50 years and now retired, brought in a copy of his card which shows him to be a Mensa member in good standing.

In the case of Mensa, we'll have to "let George do it."

Bond ratings, child support on November ballot

(Editor's note: The SDN continues its review of the 11 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution. These will be decided by state-wide vote next Tuesday).

Amendment 5

Number five of the 11 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution would allow the state to use its Permanent School Fund (PSF) to guarantee bonds sold by local school districts.

The proposal is seen as a way of making such bond sales easier to finance for school districts throughout the state.

By pledging the PSF as a guarantee, it would improve the bond ratings for all Texas school districts. This in turn would drive down interest charged for these bond sales.

It is noted that such bonds are the primary means of financing large projects involving new building or building repair. And school districts in this state are finding it increasingly difficult to finance such needed programs.

Currently, Texas is one of only 15 states which do not already participate in similar school district capital construction and debt programs.

In the event of default, the amount paid on the district's behalf under the guarantee would be deducted from state money paid yearly to the district — making it practically "risk free" to the state.

Opponents of the measure note that it would entail "tampering with a dedicated fund." They say this might lead to further attempts to use the fund

Amendment 6

Number six of the 11 proposed amendments would allow the state government to sieze up to one-third of a man's paycheck if he owes overdue child support payments.

State welfare officials say at least $10 million annually could be saved in state-provided Aid to Families of Dependent Children payments.

It is reported that 70 percent of the parents legally obligated to provide support for their children fail to pay.

The amendment goes against a Texas law which has stood since 1876, however. This prohibits "garnishment of wages" or the seizure of a person's pay to satisfy the claims of a creditor.

If passed, a district court judge could order a person's income seized in order to pay the overdue child payments.

Fathers who remain current with their support payments would not be affected. Also, it is directed that no employer may discharge or take other disciplinary action against an employee because of the garnishment.

Opponents point to the danger of "opening the

In Brief

Troops heading for Beirut

WASHINGTON (AP) — With its military objectives in the Grenadines islands secure, the Pentagon is preparing to move 11 Navy ships from the southern Caribbean to the Mideast to replace American ships and Marines in Beirut, according to Defense Department sources.

At the same time, the aircraft carrier America and its eight escort ships will be moved into the Caribbean where it can quickly support the estimated 6,000 Army troops on Grenada, the sources said Tuesday, speaking on condition they not be named.

The Marines were among 1,800 Marines on a five-ship group that helped launch last week's invasion of the main island of Grenada.

The invasion was also supported by air strikes from the carrier Independence.

With resistance on Grenada reduced to isolated sniping incidents, the Marines and Army Rangers who took the island have been replaced by troops from the Army's 82nd airborne division.

Airline hiring new pilots

HOUSTON (AP) — Between 40 and 50 newly hired pilots will begin training classes next week designed to let Continental Airlines expand its schedule in December, a company spokesman says.

Continental began hiring pilots this week to replace those who are on strike, Bruce Hicks said Tuesday.

"These guys will take one to two weeks of training" before they start flying, said Hicks. "These guys have thousands of hours of flying time on the type of aircraft we fly."

Continental will start additional training classes weekly with an average of 20 new pilots in each class to meet plans "for our continuing expansion starting in December and beyond," said Hicks.

Continental filed Sept. 24 for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

Boles will receive the $12.50 prize through the mail.

Corn bushels not enough aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has in storage more than 80 million bushels of low-grade feed corn which a Texas senator wants used for drought relief, but a nationwide aid program would require up to 10 times that, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says.

Block said Tuesday that the goverment-owned corn of the lowest three grades - 4, 5, and sample - is stored in 27 states, with the majority of it in Texas, Iowa and Minnesota.

Block provided the figures in a letter to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who is sponsoring legislation that would require agriculture officials to make corn of those grades available at reduced prices to drought-smitten farmers and ranchers around the country.

At a news conference, Bentsen urged Block to begin making such grain available instead of waiting for Congress to force him to do it through the legislation, which has passed the Senate but is still pending in the House.

"Up to now you've seen the Department of Agriculture resist and put blocks in the way of every approach," Bentsen said. "And I think they're just terribly wrong."

When the measure was approved by the Senate last month, John Ochs, Block's press secretary, said there were only about 25 million bushels of such corn stored and that all of it was in Texas.

Elsewhere, Ochs said, the lower grade corn had been blended with other corn to produce a higher grade that would not be required to be sold under the Bentsen measure.

Ochs said that because such grain was available only in Texas, the legislation would benefit only that state.

In his letter to Bentsen, however, Block said that the Commodity Credit Corporation, which finances the storage, "has in inventory in 27 states a little over 80 million bushels of corn that is U.S. No. 4 grade or lower."

But Block, who has consistently refused to release the grain as drought aid, said any nationwide program of assistance "would require the distribution of as much as 800 million bushels of grain" and cost between $1 billion and $1.5 billion.

Bentsen also said he has asked the Senate Agriculture Committee to investigate reported discrepancies in the quality of government owned corn stored in an elevator in Plainview, Texas.

In a letter to the committee, Bentsen said that inspections by both federal and Texas agriculture officials had disclosed far more low-grade corn in the elevator than reported by Commodity Credit Corporation inventories.

Bentsen told reporters that since inspections appear to indicate the the stored grain's quality is deteriorating it should be made available as quickly as possible as livestock feed in drought-smitten areas.

I belong to a union. for most of my professional life I've been a dues-paying member of AFTRA, the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Never once has that union sought in any way to tell me how to vote. At no time has AFTRA presumed to speak in my behalf.

Other unions do.

AGVA, the American Guide of Variety Artists, represents actors and actresses. Under the presidency of Ed Asner there have been efforts to superimpose his politics on theirs.

While union involvement in politics may be appropriate for some tradesmen — though I am unconvinced it is — for a union's leaders to presume to influence mass media is at least a First Amendment misuse.

The teachers' unions do not poll their membership before taking sides.

Leaders of The Newspaper Guild — representing 24,000 newswriters——has announced that union is in favor of Mondale for president, although there was no effort whatever to survey the membership.

Little wonder union membership is rebelling against its own leadership. Membership is down by more than a million in one decade. Unions now represent only one-in-five American workers. And less and less, unions leaders are able to deliver the vote of their own constituents.

In the first national election, as many blue collar workers defied union recommendations as did not. Union leaders are union busing from inside!

Our silent majority does not appreciate dictation from anybody.

The gesture of commitment from union leaders no longer carries much weight.

Yet when the union represents news writers and seeks to involve them in partisan politics, that can only compromise further their already diluted credibility.

Lichter-Rothman studies affirming that most of the media elite are left-to-far-left in their political ideology should have been an embarrassment, should have begat an effort toward balance.

I see no evidence it did.

And now, a year away from election, for the Newspaper Guild to proclaim a preferred candidate must surely render suspect everything the writers subsequently say and write.

Individual broadcasters and newspapers frequently assert themselves politically. So be it.

Readers can accept or reject such "guidance."

But no TV or radio network takes sides in respect for the near-monopoly influence they enjoy and the wide spectrum constituency they serve.

Surely national unions have a similar obligation.

Pecos slips past Snyder

ODESSA -- It was a match of ups and downs, but when it was finally over, it was Pecos that was up and Snyder that was down as the Eagles defeated the Tigers 15-10, 4-15 and 15-8 to claim the District 2-4A runnerup spot in volleyball for 1983.

Monahans, last year's Class 4A state champion, had already won the 2-4A crown.

Snyder never really got on track, despite overwhelming the shorter Eagles 15-4 in the second game. The Tigers probably allowed more Pecos points on their own miscues than what the Eagles earned. Almost one-half of Pecos' points came on fouls at the net by Snyder. But it wasn't that one-sided. Pecos, also playing tight at times, committed its share of fouls.

Ironically, it came down to a battle between Pecos' fine setter-spiker Patty Acosta and Snyder's Sabrina Sullivan, easily the best overall server in the district this season.

With the score 4-2 in the second game for instance, Sullivan delivered four straight points via the serve - two were aces, one was unreturned and the other was returned out of bounds - to give Snyder a commanding 8-2 advantage.

In the third game, she bolstered the Tigers after they trailed 9-2, to a 9-7 mark.

But though Snyder pulled within 9-8 in the final game, it could never keep Pecos from relinquishing the momentum. The Eagles, who had been defeated twice by Snyder during the regular season, rode out the final six points under the rapid-fire spikes by Acosta, consistant serving of Margaret Lozano, and an overall fine defensive effort.

Acosta, who the Pecos squad consistantly looked to for momentum, seemed to provide it at the right times. She got the Eagles off and running with two solid spikes to the open area in the final game, and Pecos rode her energy to victory.

Snyder led 3-1 in the first game, aided by four straight points from server Susan Brim. But the Eagles rallied back at 10-8 as Lozano served up five points. She hit into the net to give service to Snyder, but Pecos held the Tigers, and Lisa Wilborn served up three to make it 13-8 in favor of Pecos.

Snyder, which had seemed to have trouble concentrating in the first game, put everything together in the second. Good front line blocking silenced Acosta, and through the Eagles were within 4-2 at one time, Snyder quickly left them behind. Good defense, coupled by the strong serving of Sullivan and Mona Green, made the difference as well. Green served three aces and Sullivan two in the match.

The final game though, belonged to Pecos. While Sullivan brought Snyder back from a deficit of 9-2 to 9-7, the Eagles stopped the comeback and got point number 10 - a crucial point in this game. From there, the Eagles seemed to do everything right while each Tiger mistake was compounded by the pressure, and Pecos went on to win.

Scoring on serves for Snyder, which ended the season with a 20-13 record, were Sullivan with 12, Brim and Green with 6 each, Cari Walker with 4, Karlene Thompson with 3 and Tricia Gregory with 2.

Serving up points for the Eagles were Lozano with 12, Wilbourn with 8, Acosta and Lilly Talamatez with 4 each and Valerie Granado and Rosario Matta with 3 apiece.

No bi-district playoff site for Pecos and 1-4A champion Pampa had been determined as of Wednesday morning.

ANXIOUS MOMENTS -- A scene from the bench tells the story during the waning moments of the third and final game during Snyder's volleyball playoff with Pecos Tuesday. Pecos won the match 15-10, 4-15 and 15-8, earning runnerup rights in District 2-4A. Snyder completed the season with a 20-13 record. See related article at left. # Western scalps Indians

Western Texas College's Westerners opened the 1983-84 season with an 80-70 victory over a tough McMurry College junior varsity team here Tuesday.

No rest for the weary, though. The squad returns to action Thursday, entertaining Weatherford in the bottom half of a double header at 8 p.m.

Coach Barry Davis didn't want to analyze his team's performance, but rather, expressed his pleasure with the determination and effort.

"I'm pleased any time when we score more points than the other team. Our main objective on the court is to win the basketball game. We want to always be pleased with our efforts and I thought kids gave 110 percent effort in playing hard," he said. "I was extremely pleased with everybody that played, especially with the effort and intensity we are beginning to learn to play with."

Western had to overcome a high shooting percentage by the Indians, who had six juniors and five sophomores on the roster.

"They brought over some very experienced kids that played well and I thought it was a good, well coached team. You have to give a lot of credit to them," Davis said. "They shot the ball very well and when that happens you're not going to get a lot of rebounds. We got a good effort from our floor game."

Western made only 11 turnovers and had 16 assists and 17 steals.

Sophomore Richie Fells led the point attack with 18, while freshman Floyd Singleton had 17. Larry Banks put up 13 points, Anthony Smith 8, Fred Johnson and Robert Mitchell 7 each, Billy Chambers 6, Victor Spencer 3 and Dwayne Lister 1. Fells was seven of 11 from the field and four-of-four from the line to lead Western in a 30-of-69 field goal percentage. The team hit 20 of 27 freethrows.

Nick Fowler, 6-5 junior, scored 20 points for the Indians. Anthony Hunt, a 6-3 junior, and Butch Bearden, a 6-9½ sophomore, scored 18 each.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Hypoglycemia diet

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 15-year-old son had a five-hour glucose tolerance test and was diagnosed as having hypoglycemia with a flat glucose tolerance curve, along with food allergies.

He is on a low-sugar, food allergy diet and is much better, but still is overweight. This diet does not use "exchange" lists for the carbohydrates, proteins and fats. Instead it allows almost all vegetables, proteins and dairy products with no restrictions on the carbohydrates. The diet also calls for vegetable snacks only and I've found he has to have protein snacks, especially at night.

As he is involved in sports and he needs his strength, he needs to lose this excess weight. Can you suggest a diet or tell me where to obtain a diet designed for a growing boy?

DEAR READER — The fact that your son has improved is encouraging. I'm a little doubtful about the hypoglycemia diagnosis if the curve was as flat as you state. And I would prefer to see symptoms of hypoglycemia combined with a fall in the blood glucose level at the time of the symptoms before making such a diagnosis.

Whether a person has hypoglycemia or not, the rule to losing body fat is the same: consume fewer calories than your body uses. Since your son apparently is involved in athletics, that should not be difficult to do.

Cutting out the fats and sweets will get rid of the source of high calorie foods. That includes eliminating the fatty meats and fatty dairy products. Protein beyond his daily needs (about 56 grams) will not help.

Concepts are changing regarding food exchanges for diabetics and patients with reactive hypoglycemia. Not all carbohydrates are equal. Recent studies show that potatos are almost like eating sugar insofar as running up your blood glucose level is concerned, while rice will hardly budge the level. Whole bulky vegetables are a good source of carbohydrates. Both diabetics and hypoglycemics need carbohydrates. It is just important that they not be concentrated sweets.

I'm sending you The Health Letter 18-8, Hypoglycemia, The Low Blood Sugar Problem, which will help you understand the problem. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 42-year-old woman and am beginning to have arthritis pains. My family doctor has prescribed Motrin tablets, three each day. My pain is less since I started the Motrin.

I would like to know if there could be any side effects.

DEAR READER — All medicines have side effects. So does food. Too much food leads to obesity, may increase your fatty-cholesterol deposits and cause high blood pressure.

Motrin is a good medicine and has a few undesirable side effects in some people. The main one is irritation of the stomach or even ulcer formation. But often it causes less stomach complaints than aspirin.

It should not be used during pregnancy since its effects on pregnancy are not clearly established.

Motrin is not a hormone like the corticosteroids and does not have a hormone action. It relieves inflammation and pain, which is why it is used in both rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis and other causes of pain. It does not cure the underlying condition but makes you more comfortable.

No more charges planned against motel employees

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Fire officials say no further charges will be filed against employees of a motel where a five-alarm fire last summer killed five people after stacks of rolled carpeting ignited.

Deputy Fire Chief Don Peacock announced the department's decision after a half-hour meeting Tuesday with city prosecutors. A decision on whether to seek charges against the motel's owner was still pending, however, fire officials said.

Five guests died and 34 others were injured in the June 14 blaze at the Ramada Inn Central on Fort Worth's east side.

The motel's general manager, Eugene F. Slape, was acquitted in municipal court of a charge that he blocked an exit in the wing of the motel destroyed by the fire. But Peacock said that, despite the jury's decision, department officials believe they charged "the right person" when they issued the citation against Slape.

Slape's attorneys argued in the trial that Slape acted on orders from motel owner Ernest Barker of Mount Carmel, Ill. Slape testified that Barker personally ordered him to stack the carpeting in the hallway exit.

Jurors who commented after the trial said they believed that Slape was acting on orders and shouldn't be penalized.

The rolls of carpeting and padding were awaiting installation in guest rooms. Fire officials said they determined that the fire started in the carpeting, but did not determine how the blaze began.

Many motel guests said they were unaware of the early morning fire until they were awakened by honking car horns and the sound of breaking glass.

Marine remembers Beirut explosion

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Lorenzo Almanza said when he awoke half-buried in the rubble of a terrorist bomb attack on a U.S. barracks in Beirut, he heard the cries of fellow servicemen trapped in the wreckage and just "wanted someone to get me out of there."

The 21-year-old Navy corpsman was stationed in Lebanon during the Oct. 23 suicide attack on the Marine headquarters at the Beirut airport that took the lives of more than 225 U.S. servicemen. He said he was asleep on the second floor of the four-story barracks when he was awakened about 6 a.m. by a muffled explosion, but went back to sleep.

"I woke up on the ground floor, but I don't know how I got there," Almanza told the El Paso Times in a telephone interview Tuesday from the U.S. Army hospital in Landstuhl, Germany, where he is being treated for leg and pelvic injuries.

"I was breathing dirt," Almanza said. "I started yelling for help, but no one came. I said to myself, 'What am I going to do?' I just laid there for a while."

He said his right arm was free and so were his legs, but they felt numb.

Almanza said he began digging himself out with the one arm. He guesses it took 15 or 20 minutes of work before he pulled loose and saw his own injuries and the wreckage around him.

"I saw my legs," he said. "Both had compound fractures. They were just dangling there. And I could see I had a big wound on my hip."

He said he found himself "like in a little room." He saw one of the four or five men who had been sleeping in his quarters staggering around. He said the others were partially buried, but thought to be alive.

"I saw the whole place crumbled," he said. "A fire had started. People were still buried, yelling. I yelled for like half an hour before anyone came with a stretcher.

"I wanted someone to get me out of there, just get me out of there," he said.

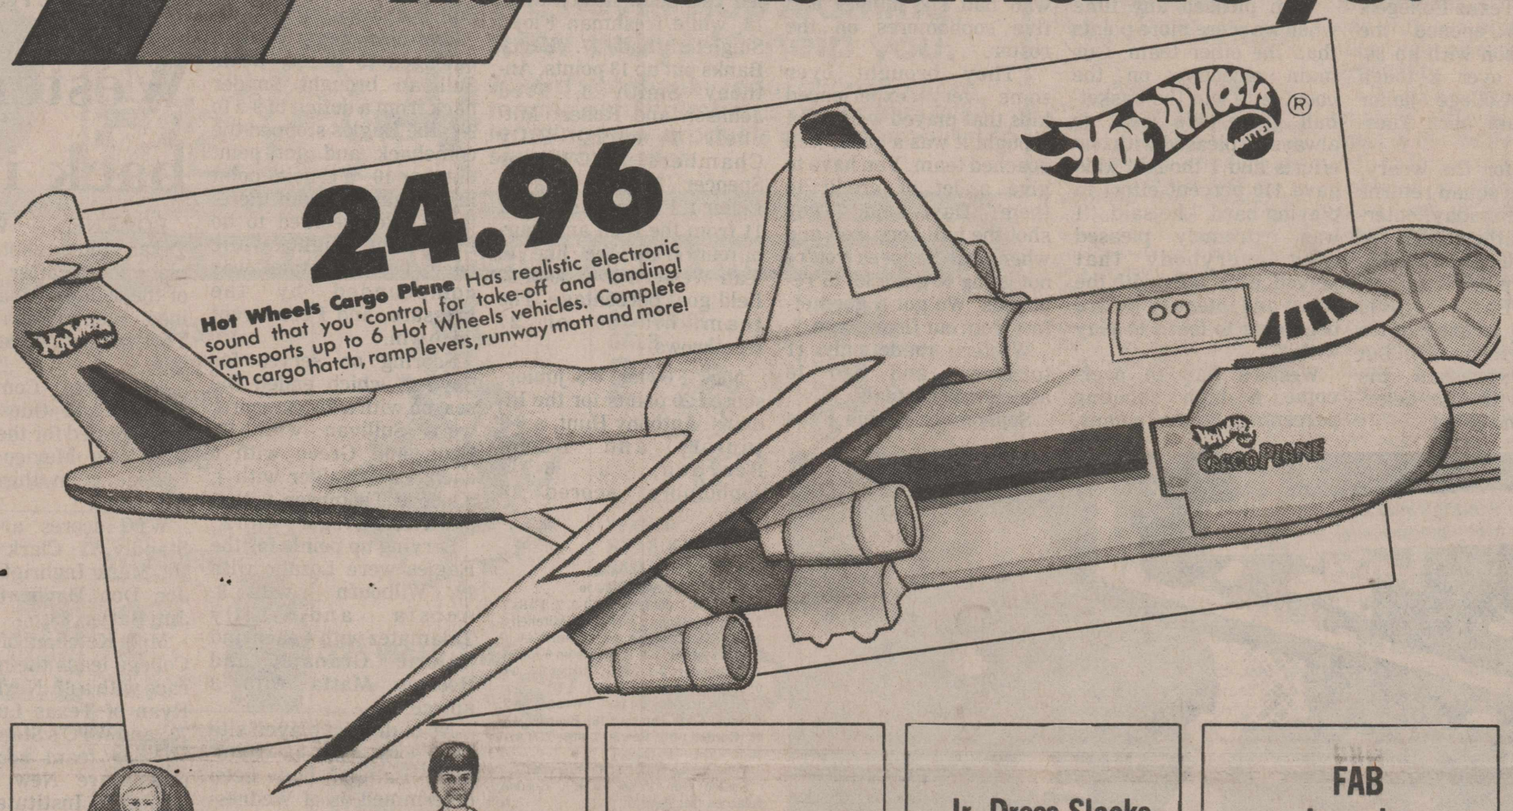

Almanza, who ran a small commissary, said he did not know who was killed.

"No one talked about anything like that happening," Almanza said. "We felt safe. It was pretty well fortified."

People with arthritis should become "knowledge junkies" about their disease, suggests the Arthritis Foundation. "The more you know about a chronic disease like arthritis, the easier it is to cope with it," says Dr. Frederic C. McDuffie of the Atlanta-based foundation. "Learn about your medications and your exercises, as well as about emotional reactions you can expect and about how other people cope with the disease."

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

A valuable adjunct to Blackwood is to respond five clubs to show zero or three aces, five diamonds to show one or four, five hearts to show two aces and an unsatisfactory hand, and five spades to show two aces and a satisfactory hand.

The North-South pair were using this form of Blackwood in the St. Louis regionals, so North was able to show that he did not like his hand in spite of holding two aces.

South didn't bother to ask for kings. With two kings plus two aces North would have liked his hand and would have responded five spades.

South felt that if North held the diamond king and a singleton club, seven diamonds might be a very good contract, but that seven no-trump would be on a club finesse at best.

The game was match points. Six no-trump bid and made would surely be a good score, so he bid it.

South won the heart with dummy's ace and led a diamond. He planned to play his ace if a small diamond appeared (the standard safety play to lose just one trick when missing K-J-x-x), but when East produced the jack, he could afford the queen finesse in an effort to make an overtrick.

West scored his king, but that ended proceedings for the defense.

Cubans build own shelter

POINT SALINES, Grenada (AP) — Cuban, Soviet and Libyan diplomats were ordered to leave Grenada by today, but an official in Havana says Cuba's delegation will stay put until Cubans captured or wounded during the U.S.-led invasion are evacuated.

About 70 of the 600 Cuban prisoners worked Tuesday on construction of a detention camp to house them until they are sent back to Cuba.

By nightfall, after 36 hours' work, prisoners moved into the complex of 30 tents and a concrete building at Point Salines.

The complex is near an airport many of the Cubans were helping build before the United States invaded the Caribbean island to oust a Marxist, pro-Cuban regime that seized power in a military coup two weeks earlier.

Shortly before a nightly curfew began, Capt. Bob Willey, a U.S. Army spokesman, said there had been no reports of any shots fired on Grenada Tuesday, But 17 Grenadian troops were reported to have surrendered to the 292 Marines who took Carriacou, a tiny island dependency of Grenada, and five other Grenadian soldiers were captured in the northern part of Grenada.

Cuba's deputy foreign minister, Ricardo Alarcon, said the expulsion order from Governor General Paul Scoon of Grenada "will only be carried out by force and by U.S. troops."

Scoon, "evidently acting under instructions by the U.S. government, ordered the Cuban diplomatic personnel on Grenada to leave the country in 24 hours," Alarcon said, adding that the message was received before noon Tuesday.

Libya and the Soviet Union did not publicly comment on the order.

International Red Cross officials said they hoped 35 wounded and 15 ill Cuban prisoners would be airlifted today or Thursday to Barbados, where a Swiss jet waited to take them home.

Two Cubans, one with a spinal injury and the other with a fractured skull, have been admitted to a U.S. hospital in San Juan, Puerto Rico, where 44 American servicemen and one Grenadian have also been treated for injuries in the invasion.

The Cuban prisoners working on their new prison were "good, fast workers, and they've done a super job," said Capt. John Ramey of the Army 82nd Airborne's 307th Engineer Battalion. As they worked on the new encampment, some Cubans smiled and waved at reporters.

Natives of Carriacou, 20 miles north of Grenada, said they had been awaiting the Marines since invasion of the main island began. Residents led the Marines to Grenadian soldiers and to a warehouse containing 17 rifles and other weapons, official U.S. reports said.

Meantime, the State Department said it was taking "very seriously" intelligence reports implying Cuba might try to retaliate by backing terrorism against U.S. citizens in Latin America.

Confab continues

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Leaders of Lebanon's warring factions debated their country's role in the Arab world today, the third day of reconciliation talks, conference sources said.

The delegates opened the working session with a discussion of the cultural and political heritage of their country, including its "Arab identity."

A conference spokesman announced Tuesday the delegates had agreed to form a committee to submit proposals on defining Lebanon's nature and determining how it fits into the Arab world.

The question of identity for Lebanon, with its diverse religious and cultural communities, goes to the heart of the divisions between Western-oriented Christians and their more Arab-conscious Moslem compatriots. The differences have caused years of political instability.

On Tuesday, Syria pressured the Lebanese government of President Amin Gemayel to renounce a troop withdrawal pact with Israel as a first step toward reconciling Lebanon's warring factions.

Conference sources said Foreign Minister Abdel-Halim Khaddam of Syria denounced the May 17th accord in a morning session and then met Gemayel privately to hammer the point home.

Beirut radio said Gemayel tried to convince Khaddam to concentrate instead on constitutional reforms and the broader issue of removing both Syrian and Palestinian forces from Lebanon.

A cease-fire agreement on Sept. 26 included a call for the reconciliation conference. The cease-fire was supposed to end three weeks of Druse-Christian fighting in Lebanon's central mountains, but it has been broken repeatedly.

Israel, which has occupied much of southern Lebanon since last year's invasion, has warned the Lebanese government against scapping the withdrawal accord. Syria has rejected the accord because it grants Israel political and security concessions for withdrawing its troops.

Druse leader Walid Jumblatt told reporters he considered the question of Lebanon's identity a major issue.

"Is it (Lebanon) an American base, a Soviet base, an Arab state, and independent state? Up to now, nobody knows," Jumblatt said.

Damage in both accidents was said minor to moderate.

Price of letter has steadily increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — From July 6, 1932, until Aug. 1, 1958 — more than 26 years — the cost of mailing a letter first class didn't change. It was 3 cents.

The jump from 3 to 4 cents in 1958 triggered a steady, escalating series of price changes that finally reached 20 cents two years ago, on Nov. 1, 1981.

Now the Postal Service wants to increase the first-class rate to 23 cents by next Oct. 1.

On July 1, 1885, the first national rate, 2 cents, was established for letters.

Since then, the first-class rate has been:

Nov. 3, 1917 — 3 cents
July 1, 1919 — 2 cents
July 6, 1932 — 3 cents
Aug. 1, 1958 — 4 cents
Jan. 7, 1963 — 5 cents
Jan. 7, 1968 — 6 cents
May 16, 1971 — 8 cents
March 2, 1974 — 10 cents
Dec. 31, 1975 — 13 cents
May 29, 1978 — 15 cents
March 22, 1981 — 18 cents
Nov. 1, 1981 — 20 cents

Baptist group decides to build special house

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The Texas Baptist Men, a group within the Baptist General Convention of Texas, has approved the building of the first hospitality house in the state for the use of prison inmates' families.

The 35- to 50-bed project would be built near the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit in Huntsville at a cost of $75,000. The donation was proposed by former Cleveland Browns football player Bill Glass, vice president of prison ministries, who has been active in liaison with Texas prisons.

The house would provide low-cost overnight lodging for visiting families of the 37,000 prison inmates in that area, said executive board members of Texas Baptist Men, who unanimously approved the donation.

The project approval Monday preceded the Baptist General Convention here this week.

"There may be no greater sociological need of these inmates than to have visits from their loved ones," Glass told the group.

He said one inmate told him during a prison visit that his wife had never missed a week of visiting. But another inmate said he had not had a visit in 15 years, Glass said, and a third asked for a hug because he had not had one in 20 years behind bars.

"If we're going to help the crime situation in this country, we'd better get to the prisons, because that's where the criminals are ... The only hope is that these people can have a born-again experience in their lives and be transformed," Glass said.

"We think we can win many inmates' families to the Lord and that is very pivotal to the inmates' rehabilitation," he said.

The Huntsville house will be built on land donated by the local Baptist association, operated jointly by the Evergreen Baptist Association and Texas Baptist Men, and staffed by evangelistic teams.

It will be built by volunteers led by Olan Miles and his team of mission action retirees, who hope to finish construction in just one day. Glass said Texas Attorney Gen. Jim Mattox, a former Baptist Royal Ambassador, has agreed to help the volunteer construction crew.

The building will have two wings with 40 to 50 beds placed about four to a room, and will also have a common area and a kitchen where visitors can prepare meals. Guests will be charged $3 dollars a night to help maintain the facility.

The facility will be modeled after one in Jefferson City, Mo., believed to be the only other one like it in the nation, and Missouri sponsors will help the Texas group with its plans.

Lubbock begins assessing impact of computer firings

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Consumers looking for bargains scrambled today to snatch up the remaining Texas Instruments home computers on store shelves, as company employees worried about TI's move to eliminate 1,000 jobs at its plant here.

"Everyone in the financial community is concerned whenever a portion of our work force is put on furlough or laid off," said Jim Cummings, executive vice president of the First National Bank of Lubbock.

"Every payroll dollar turns seven times in the community so that definitely will have an impact," he said.

Beginning today, workers fired from the home computer assembly plant have three days of scheduled sessions with the Texas Employment Commission, said TEC office manager Velma Burkham.

The workers will receive interviews in alphabetical order, she said.

The employment official said the job market in this West Texas city of 174,000 was tight before the firings were announced Monday.

"There is not anything available in manufacturing that I know of," Ms. Burkham said. "It's going to be very competitive."

Texas Instruments officials announced on Friday that they were getting out of the home computer business, which they claimed was primarily responsible for a second consecutive quarterly loss of more than $110 million.

The company is uncertain when or if more layoffs could occur, said TI spokesman Norman Neureiter. But the consumer division headquarters would stay in Lubbock, the company said in a statement.

TI's Lubbock plant once operated 24 hours a day, producing the Dallas-based electronics giant's popular 99-4A home computer. An estimated 4,000 people were employed at that time.

Several hundred more employees work in the home computer area at Abilene.

Industry observers predicted an exodus of workers from Lubbock. Realtor Nita Kiesling said the move would have a devastating impact on the local real estate market.

"It's going to become a buyers' market because there will be so many things to choose from," said Ms. Kiesling. "Some of our sellers are getting very competitive in order to enhance their chances of selling in this kind of situation."

But Cummings said he had confidence that TI's consumer electronics division would rebound.

"I do have faith in TI and their commitment to Lubbock, except for the home computer business," he said. "They have demonstrated they are an industry leader in all of the other divisions they are in, so I believe we can look forward within a time frame of a year to seeing this facility back up to capacity."

Scenery, signs of war

EDITOR'S NOTE — AP Caribbean News Editor Dan Sewell was one of the few American reporters to visit Grenada and write about its mounting turmoil before the military coup and U.S. invasion. He spent a week on the island in July, and was one of the first reporters to return last week. This is his impression now.

By Dan Sewell
Associated Press Writer

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The first glimpse of this lush little island from high in the sky is like seeing a jewel, an emerald set off by the brilliant blue of the Caribbean. It's an unlikely setting for bloody war.

The military plane lands hard on the 9,000-foot Cuban-built runway, eight miles south of the capital. The asphalt stretches for nearly two miles, according to some, so jumbo jets crammed with money-waving tourists can land there. Others says it is that long to accommodate big transport planes bringing weapons from Cuba.

When the airplane doors pop open, heat rushes in. Temperatures are in the 90s, the sun is intense and the humidity is high. But this airstrip is on Point Salines, once one of the most beautiful beaches in the Caribbean, and occasionally a waft of cool sea air brings a moment of relief.

Men in fatigues point the way toward waiting trucks or vans, past the reinforced-concrete shell of what was to have been a terminal building. (People on Grenada seem to think the Americans will finish the terminal, but there's no official word on that.)

All around the tarmac are more soldiers, most of them busy, a few standing idly. A Cuban-made truck captured in the Oct. 25 invasion by U.S. Marines and Army paratroopers rolls by with a grinning GI at the wheel.

The ride into St. George's, the capital, is even bumpier than the landing. The potholed road winds past a crushed armored personnel carrier. Three Cubans were found dead inside, and then the wreckage was simply shoved to the side of the road into the banana trees.

Outside town, much of the refurbishing the government did before reopening the Grenada Beach Hotel in August has been wiped out by bombs. Rolled barbed wire blocks the entrance to the Ross Point Inn, probably the best restaurant on the island. Top U.S. officials have claimed it as sort of a makeshift American Embassy.

In St. George's, the first look at the small harbor — the "carenage" it is called — can be breathtaking. The dark green hills, dotted with pastel-painted Georgian-style homes, seem to plunge right into the double-horseshoe Caribbean basin where small boats bob on the soft waves.

Ten boys wearing shorts laugh and yell and take turns leaping from a concrete wall into the warm, translucent water, seeing who can make the biggest splash.

A young man eyes American soldiers going house to house looking for weapons. "Hey, man, they're doing good things," he says.

"This has been really good for our young people," says Genty Jacobs, a hotel owner whose nephew is Grenada's ambassador to the Soviet Union. "With all the propaganda they thought America was all white colonialists. It was good for them to see all these black Marines and let me tell you if they ever let these Marines on the loose on this island a lot of our girls would be very happy."

Indeed, a few blocks away a gaggle of teen-age girls stare and giggle and whisper at a group of young Marines. True heroes, they act like they don't notice the girls. One of them asks how the Steelers did last weekend.

At Fort Rupert, the Grenada army headquarters where Prime Minister Maurice Bishop and his closest followers were executed Oct. 19, a soldier from Barbados offers a tour.

In the courtyard, a bullet-deflated basketball lies under a hoop. In one corner, the soldier points to a pile of stinking ashes and says it is the remains of six bodies that had been burned where they fell.

Back in the main part of town, a boy with a finger pointed like a gun runs up to a reporter. He aims and hollers, "American white man! Pow! Pow!" The old men chase him away.

School made impression on publisher

HIGHTSTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Publisher Walter Annenberg says The Peddie School made an "unforgettable impression" on him when he attended the college prep school in the 1920s.

Just how unforgettable was made clear Monday with the announcement that Annenberg had pledged $12 million to the school — apparently the largest gift ever to a secondary school.

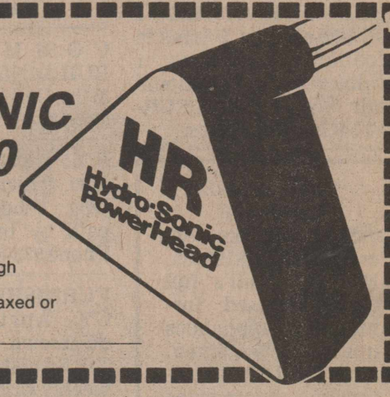

Annenberg, a 1927 Peddie grad who was voted "most likely to succeed," was not present at a ceremony where the pledge was announced.

Registry For Adoptees Nixes Surprise Reunions

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: What are your views on adopted children one day being able to meet their birth parents?

Nineteen years ago my parents forced me to give up a baby girl for adoption because I was 16, unmarried and pregnant. I was very bitter at the time because I wanted to keep my daughter, but I realize that my parents did what they thought was best for me.

I am now a happily married mother of three, but my nightly prayer is to meet my first-born child. I have no desire to "surprise" her with a telephone call or an unexpected visit. I want to meet her only if she wants to meet me.

I heard that there is a national organization with whom birth parents and adopted children may register, and if all parties are agreeable to meeting, they may do so.

I am not a wealthy person, Abby, but I would gladly pay a fee. Thanks for any help you can give me.

MY NIGHTLY PRAYER

DEAR PRAYER: There is such an organization. It is: International Soundex Reunion Registry, P.O. Box 2312, Carson City, Nev. 89702.

I have checked the organization out and have found it to be a legitimate, non-profit corporation that provides this charitable, humanitarian service gratis. Contributions are welcome in order to keep the operation going, but no fee is charged for services.

For a registration form, write to the above address, and please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a formal debutante party and need to know if it's OK to send a copy of the guest list to the kids I've invited. They want to know who's coming so they won't mention the party in front of any of the kids who aren't invited. (They don't want to hurt their feelings.)

SMALL TOWN, USA

DEAR SMALL TOWN: It would be easier to smuggle dawn past a rooster than to hush up a formal debutante party in a small town. Moreover, we all need to learn how to handle rejection, so it's unwise to try to protect our friends from such inevitable slights.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Although this is not a common problem, I hope you will help me. I am a 5-foot-10-inch woman who weighs 120 pounds, and I'm fed up with people telling me how "skinny" I am. I have even been asked if I'm "anorexic," which I consider an extreme put-down because I most definitely am not!

No one would say to an overweight person, "Gee, you're fat!" I have never dieted to get thin—in fact, I have tried unsuccessfully to gain weight, and I am plain sick and tired of being picked on because I'm so thin. By the way, I'm in excellent health. Please give me a witty comeback to use when people tell me I am painfully thin.

THIN BUT HEALTHY

DEAR THIN: Those who would remind someone that he/she is fat, thin, short or tall are either woefully ignorant or brutally insensitive, or possibly both. So resist the desire to respond with wit and assure them that you are in excellent health, then quickly change the subject.

Blasts rattle windows from 20 miles away

SEADRIFT, Texas (AP) — A series of explosions ignited the contents of two petrochemical barges at a manufacturer's docks Tuesday night, rattling windows as far as 20 miles away and producing billowing black clouds of smoke.

Authorities said no injuries were reported, and the explosions and fire on the Victoria Barge Canal, an artery of the Intercoastal Waterway, did not threaten residents.

Officials said they were not sure what caused the explosions.

Amazed casualty list was not higher

HOUSTON (AP) — A Baytown man who was part of the first force to parachute onto Grenada says he's amazed Army Rangers did not take more casualties in the assault because gunfire from the ground was very heavy.

Sgt. Mike Burton, a 24-year-old member of the Airborne Ranger Battalion, told the Houston Chronicle that thousands of rounds from small arms whined around his unit early Oct. 25 as the 39 men jumped onto an airport near a medical school.

"I couldn't believe we didn't have more men killed because the firing was so intense," Burton said.

He said five men from his battalion were killed and 10 wounded during the initial assault.

The Rangers leaped from their camouflaged C-130 transport plane at an altitude of 500 feet.

"We were in the air about 30 seconds and you could see the green, Soviet-made tracers coming toward us," said Burton, who was interviewed by phone from Georgia, where the Rangers are based.

"It was highly accurate, a lot more accurate than I would like," he said. "The shooting was real heavy. You could hear the weapons popping from the high ground that looked down on the airfield as we floated down."

The unit had gone on alert Oct. 23 and was in combat less than 48 hours later, Burton said. He said the group was instructed about its objective, the airfield of Point Salines, Grenada, and told they were also to secure St. George's University School of Medicine and rescue 1,000 U.S. students there.

Once on the ground, the Rangers formed an assault line and moved forward.

"We began firing and moving toward the high ground where all the shooting was coming from," said Burton. In an hour, the airfield was secured and C-130s landed with more Rangers, munitions and equipment.

The Americans moved on to the campus, sweeping through the buildings and assuring that the students were safe. When the Cubans counterattacked, Burton said his group used a recoilless anti-tank gun to knock out two Soviet-made armored personnel carriers.

By 11 p.m., just 24 hours after leaving Georgia, said Burton, all of the resistance near the airfield and the campus had been silenced.

"The Cubans were stubborn fighters and a lot were wearing uniforms," said Burton. "Those that were in civilian clothes knew how to handle their weapons. It was obvious they were trained soldiers."

Grenadian soldiers offered less resistance, he said, and seemed to fear their American captors would execute them. The Cuban prisoners were tough and impassive, said Burton.

Students at the campus were overjoyed to see the Rangers.

"They were frightened and had been held at gunpoint," said Burton. "It made me feel good that they were so glad to see us."

The 82nd Airborne Division flew in to replace the Rangers. Burton and his group took off for Georgia about 3 a.m. Saturday, ending a four-day Carribbean adventure.

Food prices will go up at faster rate in 1984

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices will go up at a faster rate in 1984, partly due to the ripple effect of this year's drought but also because the U.S. economy will be on the rebound, an Agriculture Department economist predicted today.

"While the drought's impact on the yearly increase in food prices is relatively small, most of the increase in prices will come out at one time — in the summer and fall of 1984," said Ralph L. Parlett of the department's Economic Research Service.

This year, food prices on the average are expected to rise 2.2 percent, the smallest annual increase since 1967. They went up 4 percent in 1982.

Currently, Parlett said in prepared remarks for USDA's annual outlook conference, food prices are expected to rise an additional 4 percent to 7 percent in 1984.

"Expected stronger economic conditions are the reason for most of the increase," Parlett said. "Real disposable income is expected to increase next year by about 3 percent. Although that might sound modest, it is the strongest increase in recent years. Consumers might be willing to buy more food, and could possibly be willing to buy higher-priced foods, particularly meats."

Parlett said this year's drought will account for about 1 to 1.5 percentage points of next year's food price increase.

"The primary effect of the drought thus far has been on livestock feed costs, pushing them higher," Parlett said. "However, higher feed costs do not directly translate into higher retail meat prices."

Rather, he said, changes in feed costs "prompt livestock and poultry producers to change production plans." In this case, when the outlook is for high feed grain prices, the tendency is to reduce inventories.

"Therefore, the initial effect is lower retail prices because of the temporary increase in meat supplies," Parlett said. "As supplies eventually dwindle, however, retail prices begin to rise. Furthermore, when farmers rebuild breeding herds by holding animals off the market, meat supplies fall even lower, putting further upward pressure on prices."

As many producers trim livestock herds this fall, there is a record supply of meat — and moderate retail prices. But because of this liquidation, there will be fewer animals for market in 1984.

"The strongest effect of this production cutback will probably occur about mid-year," Parlett said. "Retail meat prices, therefore, are expected to rise sharply in the third quarter and level off somewhat in the fourth quarter."

Per capita food consumption this year is up about 1 percent from 1982 — an average of 1,399 pounds per person against 1,385 last year, Parlett said. That is the estimated retail weight of food.

Total food consumption is expected to rise in 1984 "as real personal disposable income increases," Parlett said. But the per capita rate may drop slightly to 1,396 pounds in 1984.

"This seems contradictory, but food supplies will be smaller, primarily the result of the decreased meat production," he said.

Texas sues ag secretary over drought feed issue

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas has named U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block as defendant in a federal court suit aimed at getting emergency feed supplies for drought-stricken livestock in 27 West Texas counties.

Attorney General Jim Mattox and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told a Capitol news conference the suit was filed Tuesday morning in a Midland federal court.

Mattox said he hoped U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton would hold a hearing on the requested court order before the end of the month.

"Ranchers throughout West Texas will watch their cattle die unless some relief is given them," Mattox said. "This immoveable attitude of Mr. Block's makes absolutely no sense at all. He has the authority right now to release this grain — grain that is being hoarded by the federal government for no good reason — but he claims he wants to wait for the passage of federal legislation."

The suit claims between 15 million to 17 million bushels of federally-owned grain is deteriorating while in storage at several facilities in Texas. "At the same time the grain is in storage — at a cost to taxpayers of approximately $5 million a year — Texas ranchers and farmers are suffering from the worst drought in decades," the petition said.

Grenada invasion brings new fame to ham radio operators

By TOM ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

When the invasion of Grenada began, Mark Barettella, a medical student on the Caribbean island went to the anato' laboratory at St. George's University Medical School, opened a body bag and pulled out a ham radio.

He had hidden his radio equipment in the lab after a military coup toppled the government of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop on Oct. 12.

Although afraid he might be seized by authorities, the 22-year-old Barettella, of Ridgefield, N.J., began broadcasting information about what was happening on the island. He kept at it for two days and was helped by another nearby ham operator, Don Atkinson, a retired salesman from West Hartford, Conn.

They provided the world with much of the information about the early stages of the American invasion. They also gave a boost to their fellow short wave radio operators.

"For too long we've been accused of creating television interference," said Robert Neukomm, a ham operator in Wyckoff, N.J., who was among operators in the United States relaying information from Grenada to reporters and relatives of Americans living on the island.

"This is the first time we've had any good public relations since Sputnik, when an American ham picked up the signals and alerted the world that the Russians had put something up in space," he said. "We've had other good publicity, but nothing to this magnitude."

Ham operators insist there was nothing unusual about their actions during the Grenada invasion. They point out that in recent years hams have dodged martial law enforcers in Poland, the Argentine military during the Falklands battle and the eruption of Mount St. Helens in 1980, which led to the deaths of two ham operators.

"There are cases all the time around the world where ham radio has offered the first line of communications out of a devastated area, from an earthquake, hurricane, tornado or other natural or man-made disaster," said Richard Palm, deputy manager of the American Radio Relay League, a non-profit organization representing ham operators.

The league, which is based in Newington, Conn., says there are more than 400,000 licensed ham operators in the United States and an estimated 1.5 million around the world.

The ARRL was founded in Hartford, Conn., in 1914, when Hiram Percy Maxim, who tinkered in early radio, got together with a few amateur radio friends to establish a network they could use to relay their signals across the nation.

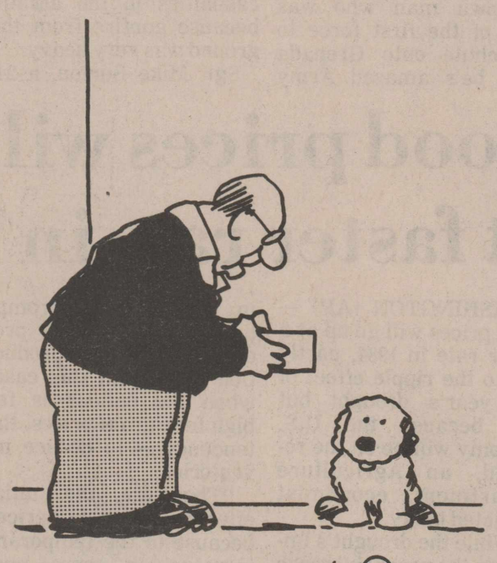

During World War I, several thousand hams in the United States were called upon to operate radios for the armed forces, and the hobby grew.

Million-dollar lawsuit filed in dialysis death

DALLAS (AP) — The family of one of three patients who died within minutes of each other after receiving kidney dialysis treatment has filed a $1 million federal lawsuit against the treatment center and the manufacturer of the dialysis equipment.

The lawsuit, filed Tuesday on behalf of Jeroline Thompson, alleges that her death was caused by the negligence of the staff at the Dallas Kidney Disease Center. Extracorporeal Medical Specialties, Inc., a Pennsylvania-based company and subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson Inc., was also named as a defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Thompson, 59, was one of three people who suffered nearly simultaneous heart attacks Friday when their blood rose to fatal temperatures while they were connected to dialysis equipment at the treatment center, authorities said.

Two other patients were hospitalized but have been discharged.

Investigators probing the deaths completed an on-site inspection of the equipment and pronounced it safe for continued use, a spokeswoman for the center said Tuesday.

Investigators from the Food and Drug Administration, the owner of the clinic and the manufacturer of the equipment completed their examinations Monday night, said a spokesman for the center who asked not to be identified.

Protesters are ready to defy threat to shoot

LONDON (AP) — Women peace protesters camped outside a U.S. Air Force base say they are ready to risk being shot by British soldiers in their effort to stop the deployment of nuclear missiles.

Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine said in a television interview Tuesday night that troops might use firearms if demonstrators entered the most heavily guarded areas of the base.

"It is my duty to make it clear that there are extreme circumstances where people could be at risk," he warned.

He said guards had to consider the possibility that an intruder might be a terrorist.

"The difficulty is that you can't teli the difference between a terrorist and a peace protester if the terrorist has taken the trouble to make himself look like one," Heseltine said in an interview with Channel 4 commerical television.

Heseltine's threat drew a defiant reaction from women protesters stationed outside the Greenham Common air base, 50 miles west of London, where the first of the new U.S. missiles to be deployed in Europe are due to arrive shortly.

"If they want to shoot us, that's what will happen. There will be a public outcry and maybe more people will listen to our protest," said one, who refused to be named.

Monsignor Bruce Kent, general secretary of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, called Heseltine's statement "brutal and shocking."

"It has always been in our mind that it was going to get to that point," he said.

So far this week, about 200 women have been arrested in protests that included using bolt cutters to get through sections of the nine-mile chainlink fence around the base. They dodged guards and rushed on to taxiways.

Police said another 26 protesters were arrested Tuesday when demonstrators rushed at the fence, thinking a just-landed C-5A Galaxy transport plane had brought the first missiles.

Screaming "it's bloody well here," about 100 women clawed at the wire in but did not breach it.

Journalists reported seeing two large containers unloaded from the plane, put on trucks and taken to a nearby building.

Heseltine, who has promised to tell the Commons when the missiles arrive, described the consignment as "equipment."

The Guardian newspaper said the handling of the containers did not suggest they contained nuclear warheads for the missiles.

The first of a batch of 160 cruise missiles are expected in Britain within three weeks as NATO adheres to its pledge to have the missiles operational by Dec. 31 if there is no agreement at U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in Geneva.

Borrowing right is still withheld from government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today is the second day the federal government operated without authority to borrow money and the red ink blues were everywhere.

Its credit exhausted, the Treasury Department struggled to do business on a cash-only basis.

"The U.S. government is living on a hand-to-mouth basis as the Congress creates uncertainty in the financial markets," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Tuesday in response to the Senate's 56-39 refusal Monday night to raise the national debt limit above its current ceiling of $1.389 trillion.

That limit was reached Tuesday when the Treasury Department made a $4 billion payment to the Social Security system. Until the limit is raised, the government will be operating only on the cash it has on hand.

Congressional leaders have indicated they may let the problem worsen as a way to prod reluctant legislators to go along with increasing the borrowing authority.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Tuesday he would delay further consideration of the debt bill until next week. An aide said Baker will "wait and see if there is a crisis and how people react to it."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said that when there is a crisis, "we can accomplish things that you can't accomplish a month previously."

The House already has acted to meet a Reagan administration request to raise the debt limit to $1.615 trillion.

Meanwhile, Congress still is grappling with the deficit reduction goals it set for itself in a budget adopted last June.

Flynt arrested, swears at judge, then released

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hustler magazine's publisher, promoting himself in a "Larry Flynt for President" T-shirt, cursed at a judge who ordered his arrest for failing to hand over a tape connected with John De Lorean's drug trial — but avoided a contempt citation.

U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi released the paraplegic Flynt after the publisher apologized for his outburst Tuesday.

Flynt, who was delivered to the courtroom by a platoon of federal marshals who arrested him at his heavily guarded Bel-Air mansion, had said he feared for his life if he went out.

He had threatened to shoot anyone who tried to serve a contempt warrant, but he offered no resistance and told 100 assembled reporters and photographers that his threat was "a publicity gimmick."

"If anyone is going to put a bullet in me, I want the whole world to be watching," said Flynt, 40, who has been confined to a gold-plated wheelchair since a 1978 assassination attempt in Georgia.

Takasugi had found Flynt in contempt for failing to appear in court with a barely audible tape recording which allegedly shows a government informant, James Timothy Hoffman, 42, threatening De Lorean if he refused to go through with a drug deal. The 58-year-old former automaker faces federal charges that he conspired to distribute $24 million in cocaine, part of an FBI "sting" operation.

"Mr. Flynt does not have the tape referred to in the subpoena," attorney Alan Isaacman told Takasugi. "We are reluctant to put him on the stand and have him answer questions for fear he may waive his Fifth Amendment privileges ... we feel he does not have to answer questions."

At one point in Tuesday's bizarre proceeding, Flynt loudly fired his three lawyers and said, "I'm my own attorney now. I have the right to defend myself." He later changed his mind.

Calls to Flynt's home late Tuesday were answered by a spokesman who declined to be identified, who said Flynt was too tired to come to the phone.

Cable company must wire home

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — In a decision that lawyers said is a legal first, a state district judge has ordered an Abilene cable television company to spend an estimated $57,000 to run a line to a single home in a remote section of the city.

Attorney Jack Bryant sued United Cable Television of Abilene in 1981 because the company would not wire his neighborhood even though it is within the city limits.

State District Judge Billy John Edwards ruled that under the company's 1964 franchise agreement, it must provide "prompt and reasonable service" to any resident of Abilene upon request.

Attorneys for the cable company said the ruling was unfair and might cause rates for all Abilene cable subscribers to go up. They contended that "reasonable" also includes a "reasonable expectation of a profit" for the cable company.

Bryant, who represented himself in the case, said the decision could also benefit about 400 of his neighbors in the Lake Fort Phantom Hill section of the city and other Texas residents in similar situations.

Bryant and attorney Glenn Heatherly, who represented UCTV, both said they found no legal precedent for the decision.

"We broke some new ground here today," Bryant said after Edwards ordered the cable company to run a line to his home, which cable company officials estimated would cost $57,000.

Heatherly said it set a "terribly dangerous precedent" to require UCTV to run a cable out to one home because it would invite a mountain of litigation.

"Whether it sets a dangerous precedent or not, I don't know," said Edwards. "But the cable company agreed to offer this service to all citizens and they haven't. I'm going to require that they live up to the agreement."

Edwards gave the company six months to comply with his order.

After the verdict, Barry Wilson of Denver, vice president for operations for United Cable's parent corporation, said furnishing the cable service to Bryant "is going to be pouring money down a rathole; it is not economically feasible. It is not a fair way to run a cable company."

Wilson testified during the trial that if Bryant won the case, it could lead to a rate increase for the other 28,300 cable subscribers in Abilene.

The anticipated rate of annual return would be minus 8.2 percent if cable were installed in the Fort Phantom area, Wilson said. He said an 18 to 20 percent return is standard for the industry.

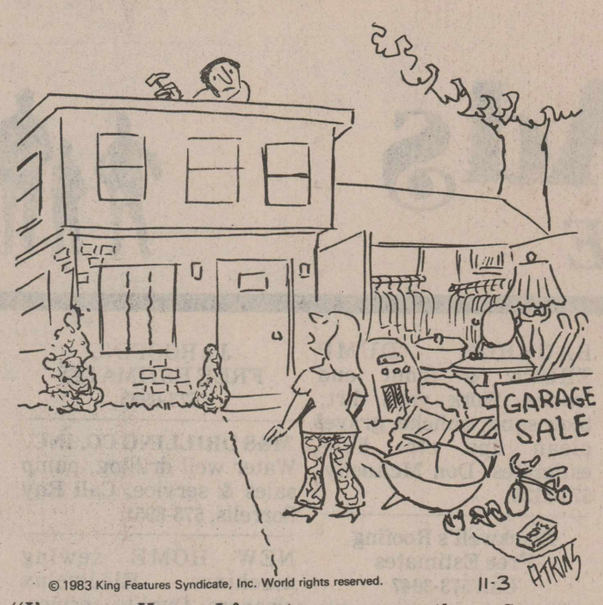

Heatherly contended that Bryant should have petitioned the city council for the service instead of filing a lawsuit.

"If the city council says for us to go, the cable company would be happy to go out there, but then we're going to bring in the books ... to determine how much will have to be subsidized to make a fair return," Heatherly said in his final arguments.

Heatherly said he would confer with his clients before deciding if the verdict will be appealed.

"It's been 18 years in coming," said Bryant. "We'll have a TV-watching party when I get it."

Strike threatens Chrysler

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — The resurgent Chrysler Corp., fresh from reporting a record profit after years of money troubles, faces millions of dollars in lost sales and production if a walkout at an Ohio stamping plant persists, an analyst says.

The strike which began Tuesday at Twinsburg, Ohio, shut down two of Chrysler's seven assembly plants today — idling 6,300 workers — and could affect three more plants by week's end, the company said. But a union official predicted a settlement, and talks were continuing.

Paul Jeunnette, financial secretary of United Auto Workers union Local 122 at Twinsburg, said Tuesday that he thought a settlement possible "in the next 48 hours." The UAW authorized the walkout.

E. Seaga claiming plot expels Soviets, Cubans

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Seaga ordered the expulsion of four Soviet diplomats, charging that they are KGB agents who plotted with a Cuban journalist to kill a Jamaican diplomat.

Seaga told Parliament Tuesday night that the Jamaican diplomat, a woman whom he did not name, was targeted for assassination after she reported an unusual amount of contact between the four members of the Soviet Embassy in Kingston and Joseph Bewry, an officer in the Jamaican Foreign Ministry.

"The security forces are in possession of the gory details of the plot first to kidnap the (female diplomatic) officer's children, then to confront her in a public place and stage a robbery during which she would be killed," Seaga said.

The Soviet Embassy in Kingston, Jamaica's capital, denied the allegations, accusing Seaga of "intentional worsening of relations between our two countries."

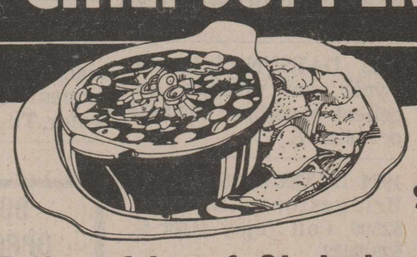

Michael Manley, Seaga's predecessor and leader of the leftist opposition People's National Party, demanded Seaga back the charges with evidence.
