Three persons killed as storm ices Texas

By The Associated Press

Frigid temperatures and icy roads have been blamed for at least three deaths in Texas and more than 160 automobile wrecks on icy Dallas-area roads as an arctic cold front produced record low temperatures and put fuel company workers on overtime.

In El Paso, where temperatures dropped to 16 degrees Monday, police say a 46-year-old man apparently froze to death after crawling under a highway overpass to keep warm.

The man, identified by a police dispatcher as Leon Sledge, was found early Monday by two security officers of Southern Pacific Transportation Co.

Southern Pacific public relations officer Richard Hall said, "Apparently he froze to death. He wasn't hit by a train or anything like that, and there was no sign of foul play."

Hall said the man was believed to be a transient.

Police ordered that an autopsy be performed on the body, but a dispatcher said, "From the looks of the body, he froze to death."

Temperatures were expected to warm some today, but snow and ice still was in the forecast for much of North and West Texas.

Lone Star Gas Co. cut off fuel allotments Monday for electric-power generating plants and reduced gas by 75 percent to low-priority industrial customers to meet residential demand, with the official start of winter still two days away. Generating plants switched to other fuels, such as oil.

A 16-inch gas main break in Fort Worth left about 150 homes without fuel for about eight hours this morning, Lone Star spokesman Breck Harris said.

The rupture also forced the utility to ask industrial customers in the Fort Worth and Arlington area to curtail usage until service was rerouted and the early morning residential crunch for gas eased, Harris said.

A 20-year-old Lewisville man died in an accident on Lake Dallas Bridge in Denton about 2:40 a.m. Monday, police said. Severe weather was also blamed for the death of an 8-year-old girl Sunday in Grandview whose house burned after her mother tried to use a stove for heat.

By Monday night, 23 major accidents — those with injuries — were reported in the Dallas area.

Midland set a temperature record Monday morning with a low of 15 degrees and Del Rio set a record with a reading of 23 degrees. The previous Dec. 19 record in Midland was 19, set in 1945, and the previous low in Del Rio was 26 set in 1909 and tied 1929.

"The only thing between us and Canada is a few picket fences," said National Weather Service meteorologist Bill Alexander in Fort Worth. "This is the coldest type of air mass there is. This is a mid-winter air mass."

Alexander said cold air builds up over snow-covered fields in western Canada, becomes more heavy and dense as it chills and then is pulled south by gravity.

The bone-chilling cold — near zero in the Panhandle and in the teens across North Texas — burst water mains in several cities, forced Dallas authorities to activate reserve ambulance crews and even postponed a pre-trial hearing in Plainview for self-described mass murderer Henry Lee Lucas.

Authorities could not get Lucas from his Georgetown jail cell to Plainview for the Monday hearing because ice covered a runway in the Central Texas town.

Temperatures were expected to get no higher than the upper 30s in some parts of North Texas, with highs in the teens predicted for other areas.

The National Weather Service said it was keeping travelers' advisories in effect Monday night because of snow and freezing drizzle.

Temperatures Monday night were in the single digits and teens in Northwest Texas, and in the 20s over North and Central Texas. South Texas had readings in the 30s, except for some lower 40s reported in the coastal areas and El Paso.

A Dallas police spokeswoman said about 70 minor accidents and 13 major accidents were reported between midnight and 8 a.m.

"That's unusual. Usually we get about three or four between midnight and 6 a.m.," she said. "So the weather has magnified it about 10 times.... Everything is moving at a snail's pace."

Dallas Fire Department spokesman Bill Jernigan said officials had activated two reserve ambulance crews to handle the flood of calls. Most of the calls were for injuries from traffic accidents and falls on icy walkways and roads, he said.

Afternoon highs Monday ranged from only 12 degrees at Amarillo to 54 degrees at El Paso.

Before dawn this morning, it was 6 degrees and snowing at Amarillo, 18 at Dallas, 17 at Abilene, 20 at San Angelo, 12 at Wichita Falls, 26 at Austin, 31 at San Antonio, 37 at Corpus Christi, 39 at Brownsville and 40 at El Paso.

Snow or freezing drizzle was falling across portions of North and West Texas this morning.

Record low set in Midland

From Staff Reports

A winter which officially is still two days away may have taken many native Texans by surprise, but is probably a nostalgic reminder of Christmases past for Yankees in the area.

The cold spell that has hit the state and much of the nation this week has resulted in yet another record low for Midland, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Monday's high of 27 was 10 degrees below the lowest high recorded for Dec. 19 — 37 degrees in 1945. The overnight low of 15 Monday also broke the old record of 19, again set in 1945.

But as cold as it might be in Midland, there's alway someone less fortunate. Amarillo recorded a 12-degree high Monday and a six-degree low.

Midland's high of 27 was 51 degrees below the record of 78 set five years ago. The low of 21 was still 10 degrees warmer than the record low set 10 years ago.

Travelors' advisories were still in effect today because of low visibility and icy roads which resulted in approximately 100 minor accidents in the Midland-Odessa area since Sunday. However, the regional airport has been operating normally since Monday, according to Assistant Aviation Director Tommy Jones.

Temperatures will warm slowly but surely, according to the forecast. Tonight will be cloudy with lows in the middle 20s. Southerly winds of 10 to 20 mph are expected.

Wednesday will see continued cloudy skies, more fog and warmer temperatures. Highs near 40 are anticipated, but will be accompanied by gusty 10 to 20 mph winds from the south.

Series to examine hunger in America

For decades, reports of hunger raised visions of feeble children — in Africa, in South America, in Asia — their bellies swollen, their eyes staring hauntingly into a hopeless future.

A Hearst Series

Today, that has changed. Today, the problem also exists in the United States. In numbers not seen since the Great Depression 50 years ago, soup kitchens and food lines are seen daily in the cities, suburbs and even farmlands of the nation.

The extent of the problem is unknown, except that it is vast. And growing.

The solution for the problem defies definition, except that it apparently is beyond the ability of private agencies, beyond the capacity of local government.

The victims vary by age, race and region of the nation except that they have in common the crippling and debilitating experience of going without food altogether or with unhealthy substitutes, the degrading experience of joining a line and asking for food, the dehumanizing experience of life without hope.

Their ranks include not only the chronic poor, but the newly poor — new immigrants, whose hopes of riches and comfort have been dashed by reality; senior citizens, whose golden years are characterized by loneliness and want; the newly unemployed, whose livelihoods have vanished in the convulsive economic realignment under way; and the deinstitutionalized, whose lives have become an endless nightmare of confusion and darkness.

Reporters and photographers from The Hearst Newspapers across the nation have documented the problem. They have interviewed hundreds of the hungry across the nation, as well as officials of public and private agencies trying to meet their growing need.

The series, which will include a look at Midland's hungry, begins Wednesday in the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Blame hangs on chain of command

WASHINGTON (AP) — Much of the blame for the deaths of 241 U.S. servicemen in a terrorist truck-bombing in Lebanon falls on military commanders who failed to anticipate the likelihood of such an attack, a House Armed Services subcommittee concludes.

But a report issued Monday also faults virtually the entire military chain of command and specifically calls to account the "higher policy-making authority that adopted and continued a policy that placed military units in a deployment where protection was inevitably inadequate."

And on the broader issue of whether the Marines should remain in Lebanon, the report recommended "in the strongest terms" that the Reagan administration review its position to determine whether the presence of the troops, along with others from Great Britain, Italy and France "is justified."

The Marines died when a truck driven by a terrorist on a suicide mission drove through a concertina fence early on the morning of Oct. 23, raced by guards armed with unloaded rifles and crashed into the front of the building before exploding with enough force to collapse the building.

Many of the troops were killed as they slept late on that Sunday morning.

A five-page summary report found that Col. Timothy Geraghty, commander of the Marines on the peacekeeping mission in Beirut, "made serious errors in judgment in failing to provide better protection for his troops."

And U.S. Navy commanders with direct command authority over the 1,900-man peacekeeping force share responsibility "for the inadequate security posture" of the Marine force, it said.

Telephone calls to Geraghty's home in Jacksonville, N.C., went unanswered Monday night and a military spokesman said there would be no comment from the Pentagon until officials there read the report.

A similar report has been ordered by Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and is likely to be released later this week.

The subcommittee took testimony from more than 40 people, including Marine infantrymen and Gen. John Vessey, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The summary findings were approved late Monday on a vote of 9-3. The full report is to be released early next year.

Greyhound to resume schedule as workers make concessions

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Greyhound strikers grumbled about concessions even after they overwhelmingly voted to end a seven-week strike, as the company vowed to resume full service by Wednesday and Trailways said it will match the larger bus line's new discounts.

"I'm just glad it's over," said Harry Rosenblum, president of the Council of Greyhound Local Unions, a division of the Amalgamated Transit Union. He announced late Monday that the contract was approved 7,404 to 2,596 in nationwide balloting.

"I am not happy with it," Rosenblum said. "It was a game of hardball and they played harder ball than we did."

Some returning Greyhound workers said that only financial hardship made them ratify the three-year pact, which included a 7.8 percent cut in wages.

The nation's largest bus line had said it needed the concessions to remain competitive with other carriers and cut-rate airlines.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Snow for part of the northern Great Plains is forecast through Wednesday by the National Weather Service. Cold temperatures are expected to continue for most of the nation.

Record-breaking cold enters its fourth day

By The Associated Press

America's heartland shivered into its fourth day of record-breaking cold as a frigid blast from the Arctic sent chills from the Pacific to the Potomac today, stalling cars, bursting pipes, closing schools and causing at least 22 deaths.

With temperatures well below zero across the northern third of the nation, the National Weather Service predicted that scattered snow would add insult to injury from the Rockies to the Great Lakes. But falling flakes were only a sidelight to the main show — a miserably stagnant deep freeze that covered much of the country.

Forty-seven cities reported low temperatures that tied or broke records for the date on Monday, including such cold spots as Eau Claire, Wis., with 31 below, Rochester, Minn., with 33 below, Mason City, Iowa, with 26 below, and Williston, N.D., with 40 below.

Harrison, Wis., took the day's icy trophy with a low of 44 below.

Strong winds made it feel even colder, and the National Weather Service in Bismarck, N.D., warned that the wind chill could plunge to a staggering 70 below zero today.

The cold spell's staying power has some folks wondering if it will ever warm up. Iowans are asking not if there will be a white Christmas, but "if we're going to have a white Fourth of July," said state climatologist Paul Waite.

The arctic air mass is expected to drift slowly east over the next few days, bringing some relief to the Midwest but foisting winter woes on the East, said meteorologist Harry Gordon of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

A winter storm packing 40-mph winds hit Utah this morning, creating near-blizzard conditions near Salt Lake City and forcing police to close two major interstates. Snow was expected to spread over the Rockies today, with greatest accumulations in the Colorado mountains, Idaho and the Great Basin south to Arizona, the National Weather Service said.

At least 22 deaths have been attributed to the weather since the weekend, including traffic fatalities on slippery roads in Idaho, Missouri and Utah, carbon monoxide poisonings in Oklahoma and exposure deaths in Iowa and Illinois. A Seattle bus driver collapsed and died while throwing sand to free his vehicle from snow, and an 8-year-old Grandview, Texas, girl died in a house fire started by a kitchen stove used as a heater.

The Kansas City Area Hospital Association reported that at least 68 people had been treated since the weekend for weather-related injuries and illnesses, ranging from sprained ankles to frostbite and hypothermia.

The polar cold combined with leftover ice and snow to make roads glass-slick in many areas, and hundreds of traffic accidents were reported.

A Combs Airways plane slid off an icy runway at the Rock Springs, Wyo., airport Monday night, but none of the 31 people aboard was injured, spokesman Dennis Decker said in Denver. The airport was shut until Federal Aviation Administration investigators arrive today.

One to three inches of snow Monday snarled traffic in Seattle, and a state patrol dispatcher reported "a real mess" in King County, Wash., with 127 bang-ups during the morning rush hour alone. The problems stretched as far south as Texas, with Dallas police counting 83 accidents from midnight to 8 a.m.

But mostly cars wouldn't start at all, and tow truck operators were kept jumping — figuratively and literally — throughout the day as they received thousands of calls to charge frozen batteries and pull stuck autos.

"It looks like a used-car lot out here," said mechanic Peter Galbraith of Olson's Standard station in Kingsford, Mich. "We're having a hard time getting anything done because we keep answering calls and going out to get cars running."

Eastgate Towing in Sioux Falls, S.D., had such a backlog of calls that no more could be handled after mid-afternoon, angering potential customers, Lea McElroy said. Even tow trucks had to be jump-started.

"I had one driver swear at me because we let out drivers sleep for six hours last night," she said. "It'd be nice if someone made a plea for our side."

Schools were closed Monday in Pleasant Valley, Iowa, because buses wouldn't start.

Highs Wednesday low 40s extreme northeast to upper 60s coast.

PLO loyalists begin evacuation

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's besieged loyalists today began boarding five Greek passenger ships which, escorted by French warships, steamed into this northern Lebanese port city to carry them to remote Arab refuges.

The French ships stood guard outside the harbor as the evacuation began in a subdued atmosphere shortly before midday.

A few rifle shots were fired in the air as truckloads of the guerrilla loyalists, estimated to total 4,000, began streaming into the harbor for the forced departure from their last stronghold in Lebanon.

But it was a far cry from the tumultous send-off that Arafat recieved from his leftist Lebanese allies 489 days ago, when he evacuated Beirut with about 8,000 guerrillas under U.S.-guaranteed safe passage from the Lebanese capital of Beirut, then besieged by Israeli troops.

White U.N. pickup trucks drove about 100 families of evacuees, including 250 children, to the crowded harbor area.

The Ionia Glory, with the blue United Nations flag fluttering from her mast, was the first of the five Greek ships to enter the harbor, steaming in at 9:30 a.m. (2:30 a.m EST). It was followed by the Odysseus Elytis, Naxos, Sandorini and Vergina, which was once named the Dan when it was owned by the Israeli Zim ship line.

There was no trace of the Israeli gunboats that harassed the city with six shelling attacks in the past 10 days. The United States on Monday told Israel that it "hopes and expects" the Israeli attacks would stop so the evacuation could get under way.

Lebanon's state radio in Beirut said the Israeli vessels were watching the operation from a distance, but had made no attempt to interfere.

Earlier in the morning, unidentified jets had streaked over the city as the convoy approached the harbor early today after a half-day trip from Larnaca, Cyprus. The planes drew heavy barrages of anti-aircraft fire from positions north of the harbor.

The explosions rattled across the city, sending residents diving for cover.

A Christian-controlled radio station in Beirut said Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas fired at the jets because they thought they were Israelis, but stopped when Arafat's command headquarters said the planes were French, sent on routine reconnaissance in advance of the evacuation.

But the French Defense Ministry denied in a communique issued in Paris that any French planes had flown over Tripoli today.

The exodus leaves Arafat without armed fighters in any Arab country bordering Israel. PLO officials say one of the evacuation ships will go to Larnaca, where evacuees will board Iraqi planes waiting there to airlift them to Baghdad.

The other ships are going to Tunisia, where Arafat plans to take up residence at his political headquarters, Algeria and the two Red Sea republics of North and South Yemen, according to the PLO officials.

The loyalists' departure comes a day before the deadline set by Syrian-backed PLO rebels besieging the city. They have accused Arafat of betraying the Palestinian cause by adopting what they feel is too soft an attitude toward Israel.

The dissidents, who had launched a month-long bloody offensive to oust Arafat from northern Lebanon, had threatened to storm the city of half a million inhabitants if he stayed beyond Wednesday.

The French aircraft carrier Clemenceau and destroyer Armand escorted the five Greek ships from Larnaca, Cyprus, and the port was under heavy Lebanese police patrol when the ships arrived.

A half-dozen Lebanese army trucks piled high with suitcases were seen at the harbor as Arafat's second-in-command, Khalil Wazir, also known as Abu Jihad, inspected the evacuation preparations.

"We have to face many difficulties, we have to face many problems," Abu Jihad told reporters. "If we have lost a battle it doesn't mean we have lost our struggle. The struggle will continue."

Abu Jihad said he feared that Israel would still try to prevent the evacuation.

Salvadoran army captain arrested

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Police arrested a Salvadoran army captain accused by subordinates of ordering the killing of two American land reform advisers in 1981, the captain's brother says.

Elsewhere in Central America, government troops battled an estimated 2,000 CIA-backed rebels in northern Nicaragua, and four Latin American foreign ministers planned to meet today in Panama City in another effort to bring peace to the troubled region.

The foreign ministers are from Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama, known as the Contadora group. They have met periodically since last Jan. 1, pressing for demilitarization of Central America and an end to outside outside involvement in the region's conflicts.

The Contadora group is seeking the withdrawal of several hundred U.S. military advisers from Honduras and El Salvador and several thousand Cuban advisers from Nicaragua.

National police in San Salvador arrested army Capt. Eduardo Alfonso Avila on Monday, brother Julio Enrique Avila told The Associated Press, claiming the arrest was made at the insistence of the FBI. U.S. Embassy and national police sources refused to confirm or deny the report.

"We do not know if Capt. Avila was arrested," an embassy spokesman, asking not to be identified, said. "If he was, the FBI has nothing to do with it. It has no power to arrest anyone here."

The reported arrest was in connection with the murders of American land reform advisers Michael Hammer and Mark Pearlman, who were gunned down along with Rodolfo Viera, the head of El Salvador's land reform agency, on Jan. 3, 1981, in the Sheraton Hotel coffee shop in San Salvador.

National guardsmen Jose Dimas Valle and Santiago Gomez Gonzalez, arrested and still awaiting trial for the murders, have claimed that Avila and national guard Lt. Isidro Lopez Sibrian ordered them to kill the three men.

Avila and Lopez Sibrian previously were arrested briefly, but a court ordered them released in October 1982 for lack of evidence.

The Reagan administration has been pressuring President Alvaro Magana's conservative government to crack down on rightist death squads operating in El Salvador or risk losing millions of dollars in U.S. aid to help it win the stalemated four-year-old war against leftist guerrillas.

Some wealthy Salvadoran exiles in Miami are known to have financed the death squads, blamed for most of the 39,000 civilian deaths since 1979, including the slayings of labor and agrarian reform officials.

The U.S.-financed land reform program, breaking up big estates and distributing parcels to landless peasants, has angered many of the wealthy families it affects.

In Nicaragua, Sandinista leaders said Monday that more than 2,000 Honduras-based rebels renewed attacks this week on towns and villages in two northern provinces, Nueva Segovia and Jinotega, in their fight to overthrow the leftist government.

One force of 600 rebels on Sunday surrounded the village of Murra, 100 miles north of Managua.

"There are no casualty figures," said the source who requested anonymity. "But they must be numerous on both sides because they are fighting with heavy arms and modern automatic rifles."

Newspaper will fight Lucas press restrictions

PLAINVIEW (AP) — A newspaper says it will fight a motion by a defense attorney representing Henry Lee Lucas seeking to restrict press coverage of Lucas' murder trial here.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal said its attorney filed a brief Monday contending the restrictions sought by attorney Bob Bass would "keep the public from knowing" about the Lucas case.

Lucas is charged in the death of an unidentified woman whose decapitated body was found near Plainview last year.

A hearing on the motion and other pretrial motions filed by Bass had been scheduled for Monday, but was postponed because inclement weather in Georgetown, where Lucas is being held, kept authorities from flying him to Plainview, 40 miles north of Lubbock.

State District Judge Marvin S. Marshall did not set a new hearing date, but said he would not likely hear the motions before mid-January because of other court appearances scheduled for Lucas elsewhere in the interim.

Lucas, who has been convicted in two Texas murders and faces trial in eight others, is awaiting trial in Georgetown on a murder charges in the death of an unidentified woman whose body was found in 1979.

In addition to the press restriction request, Bass has filed pretrial motions in the Plainview case seeking to dismiss the murder charge because the victim was not identified and seeking to suppress a confession by Lucas.

The newspaper said one of the motions filed Oct. 11 by Bass seeks to bar the press "from reporting in detail the evidence obtained by this court during pretrial hearings other than reporting what certain persons testified at said hearing."

The paper said Bass' motion also seeks to keep the press "from taking photographs of the defendant or witnesses or any person connected with the proceedings."

The Avalanche-Journal said its attorneys, D. Thomas Johnson and Brian T. Quinn, filed a brief Monday citing about 20 court cases as precedent for open coverage of pretrial and trial proceedings.

At an informal news conference, Johnson explained the newspaper's challenge of Bass' motion is "important because people have a right to know."

Johnson said the court has a duty to "protect the decorum of the courtroom," but said that Bass's motion, if granted, "would keep the public from knowing" about the Lucas case.

Lucas, 47, has received nationwide news coverage since he was charged in June with killing Kate Rich, 80, of Ringgold.

He has told lawmen that he has killed as many as 165 people across the country.

Lucas was sentenced to 75 years in prison in the Kate Rich case and received a life sentence in the death of his 15-year-old common-law wife, Freida Powell.

Two of the pending cases against Lucas are capital cases.

DEATHS

Leonard Botts

Services for Leonard G. Botts, 65, of 1601 W. Michigan, will be at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Steve Edwards, pastor of First Christian Church, officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Botts died early Monday morning at his home following a lengthy illness.

He was born March 30, 1918, in Yale, Okla. He spent his early life in Payne County, Okla. He moved to Longview in the early 1930's and began working in the oil field during and after school. He began as a rig builder before going into oil field sales.

He served in the South Pacific Theater of Operation in the U.S. Navy during World War II. He married LaVerne Cook in Oklahoma City, Okla., in 1942. After he was discharged, he moved to Wichita Falls and was employed with Continental EMSCO for 18 years. He moved to Midland in 1965 and was employed with Harbison-Fisher Manufacturing Co. for 18 years. He was a member of the First Christian Church, the Joseph A. Kemp Masonic Lodge of Wichita Falls, and was a 32nd-degree Mason and a member of the Scottish Rite.

Londoners make point of shopping at Harrods

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — It wasn't quite like the World War II Nazi blitz. But it evoked memories in a nation the German Luftwaffe couldn't drive to panic or surrender through years of pounding — and provoked the same stolid reaction.

Londoners didn't just refuse to stay away Monday from their famed Harrods department store after an Irish Republican Army car-bomb killed five people and injured 91. They made a point of going there.

"I think people have to be made aware that we won't be intimidated in any way," commented housewife Susan Thompson as she emerged calmly from the elegant store.

It reopened dead on time — the shattered glass swept away and only departments on the east side which took the brunt of Saturday's blast boarded up.

The famous went too, and some mourning relatives said they'd be there soon.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's husband Denis, chuckling defiance in words his wife might have chosen more carefully, returned to their Downing St. residence with two bulging Harrods packages and said:

"It wasn't as crowded as it normally is, but no damned Irishman is going to stop me going there."

There was the traditional royal visit that marks national occasions of sorrow or crisis, and carries a mixture of calm, caring and controlled anger.

Heir to the throne Prince Charles, whose favorite great-uncle Lord Louis Mountbatten was slain in a 1980 IRA bombing, went with his wife Princess Diana to the bedsides of seven of the 19 victims still hospitalized.

"I think it is extraordinary that people can kill quite cold-bloodedly and plan an operation like this, knowing the sort of effect it is going to have," said Charles, in a neat display of the British penchant for understatement.

"God will be the judge of those who did it."

Some popular newspapers called the bombers "bastards" in bold, black type.

But John Arbuthnot, 52, had a more steely message. His police constable daughter, Jane, 22, was killed along with another officer, as they drew up in a patrol car to check the suspect vehicle, whose explosion also fatally injured two British and one American passers-by.

"However terrible it is, they will not defeat us, the British, in this frightful thing," said Arbuthnot, who said his family would be shopping at Harrods before Christmas.

"Jane died so that Londoners and visitors can walk the streets in freedom and safety."

The management of the elegant store, which caters for every upmarket taste, said it was "delighted and overwhelmed" at support from the public.

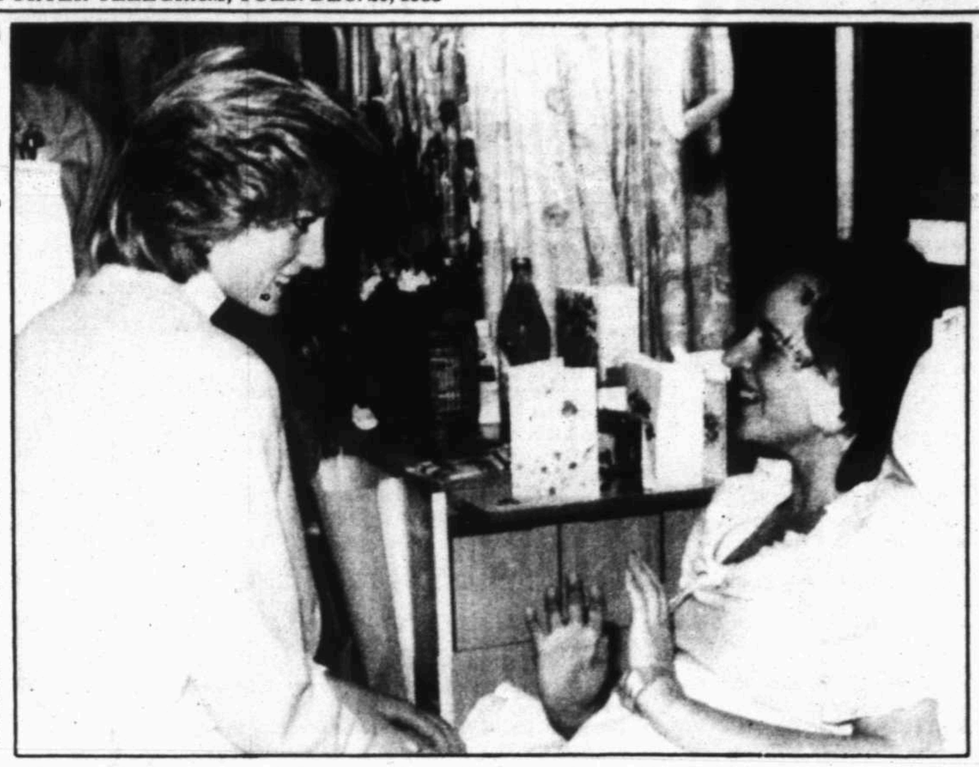

Harrods chairman Aleck Craddock reported "near normal" sales for the Monday of Christmas week — when the store does some 1 million pounds ($1.42 million) of business of day.

"This is our answer to the IRA," said Craddock.

On Saturday, there was no panic among the estimated 15,000 people in the store as the blast resounded miles across the capital and sent smoke and flames and tons of shattered glass raining into the street.

"I think a certain reaction must have set in," Robert Brown, 30, said Monday as he nursed a shattered arm and shrapnel wounds in hospital. "I'm feeling just a bit emotional today."

It takes something special to unite Britain's usually fractious politicians, and the IRA did it.

Chatting with Helen Allan, injured in Saturday's bombing at Harrods department store in London, is the Princess of Wales. Also recovering in Westminster Hospital in London is Mrs. Allan's husband, Roy.

Disco owners jailed

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A judge today ordered the imprisonment of the four co-owners and the manager of a basement discotheque where 79 people died in a fire.

The order was issued by Jacobo Lopez, the magistrate examining the circumstances of the disaster Saturday morning at the Alcala 20 night club.

The four owners and the manager were taken early today to Carabanchel Prison on Madrid's outskirts, according to their attorneys.

Under Spanish law, the examining magistrate can hold people without charge for questioning up to 72 hours. The four co-owners and the disco manager were brought in by police for questioning Saturday, so the period for being held without charge appeared to have expired.

KAL items returned

NEVELSK, USSR (AP) — Soviet authorities turned over to Japanese and American officials today 83 items — but no bodies — from the South Korean jetliner shot down by a Soviet fighter plane on Sept. 1.

The transfer, the second of its kind, took place at this Soviet port on the southwest end of Sakhalin island, near the site where the Korean Air Lines jumbo jet is believed to have plunged into the Sea of Japan after the attack in Soviet air space.

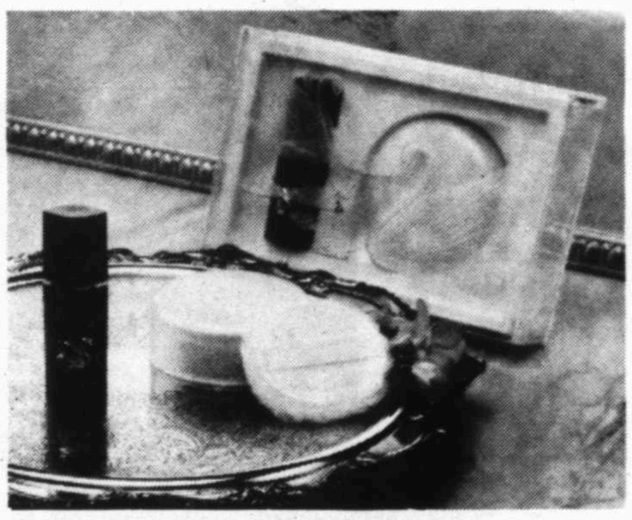

All 269 people aboard the Boeing 747 were killed.

The Soviets handed over five boxes containing 73 pieces of debris purportedly from the airliner, including seven pieces of clothing, two books and one piece of plastic venetian blind.

On Sept. 26, a similar delegation of Japanese and American officials visited Nevelsk. Again, they received five wooden crates containing mainly twisted pieces of metal.

Rumsfeld completes visit to Iraq

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — U.S. Middle East envoy Donald Rumsfeld, the highest-ranking American official to visit Iraq since 1967, ended a 24-hour visit today and left for an undisclosed destination.

A terse official announcement said Rumsfeld was seen off at Baghdad airport by a representative of the Foreign Ministry's protocol department.

Rumsfeld, who flew in from Saudi Arabia on Monday, discussed with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz "topics of mutual interest and the latest Middle East developments," it said.

China releases new Mao film

PEKING (AP) — China released a documentary film Monday on the life of Mao Tse-tung, potraying him as a brilliant visionary who propelled the Communists to power and then made mistakes in his last years.

The 80-minute, color documentary titled "Mao Tse-Tung" is described officially as the definitive portrayal of Mao's life. It features previously unshown footage of Mao bowing before his parents' grave, and rare clips of him joking with peasants and breast-stroking across the Yangtze River.

The film is the latest in a barrage of homage to "the great helmsman" in advance of celebrations marking the 90th anniversary of his birth next Monday.

China's senior leader, Deng Xiaoping, whom Mao opposed in his later years, is using the occasion to redefine Mao's place in Chinese history while asserting that his own government remains faithful to Mao's vision of a strong, socialist China.

Japanese party retains majority

TOKYO (AP) — The governing Liberal Democratic Party, which suffered a major setback in general elections, salvaged a simple parliamentary majority today when eight independent candidates joined its ranks, a party official said.

Hajime Kubo said the independents accepted certificates officially bestowing membership in the LDP, raising the party's number of lower house seats to 258 in the 511-seat chamber — two more than are needed for a majority.

The LDP, which has ruled Japanese politics for 28 years, lost 35 of its 285 seats in Sunday's election.

Sudan threatens retaliation

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — First vice president Omar Mohammed el-Tayeb threatened retaliation for what he alleged was Soviet-inspired agitation aided by Cuba, Libya and Ethiopia in southern Sudan, the Sudan news agency said today.

The agency said el-Tayeb was addressing the opening session of the southern Sudan regional assembly Monday in Malakal, 175 miles south of Khartoum.

"The enemies' plot is planned in the Kremlin, implemented by Havana, financed by Libya, and the mercenaries are trained by Ethiopia," the agency quoted el-Tayeb as saying.

MIA team arrives at crash site

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A U.S. military team trying to locate missing American servicemen has arrived in Laos to survey the site where a transport plane was shot down at the height of the Vietnam war, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said today.

The survey by the team from the Joint Casualty Resolution Center marks the first time the U.S. government has been allowed to investigate the site since 1975, when the communist Pathet Lao regime took power.

The spokesman said the government team arrived on Monday. It will survey an area near Pakse, in the southern Laotian province of Sedone, where a U.S. C-130 transport plane with 16 people aboard was shot down by anti-aircraft fire on Dec. 21, 1972.

Aquino testimony continues

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A man who claims communists recruited him and the man police say killed opposition leader Benigno Aquino testified today to a government-appointed commission probing the assassination.

The witness, Rosendo Cawigan, 44, has been denounced by Aquino's family, who say his claims that he and Rolando Galman were recruited by communist subversives are baseless.

Cawigan's claims previously have been publicized by the government to bolster its charge that Galman shot and killed Aquino, President Ferdinand E. Marcos' chief political rival, at Manila's international airport Aug. 21.

Galman was gunned down by security guards moments after Aquino's death, but Aquino followers say Galman was framed to cover up government involvement in the assassination.

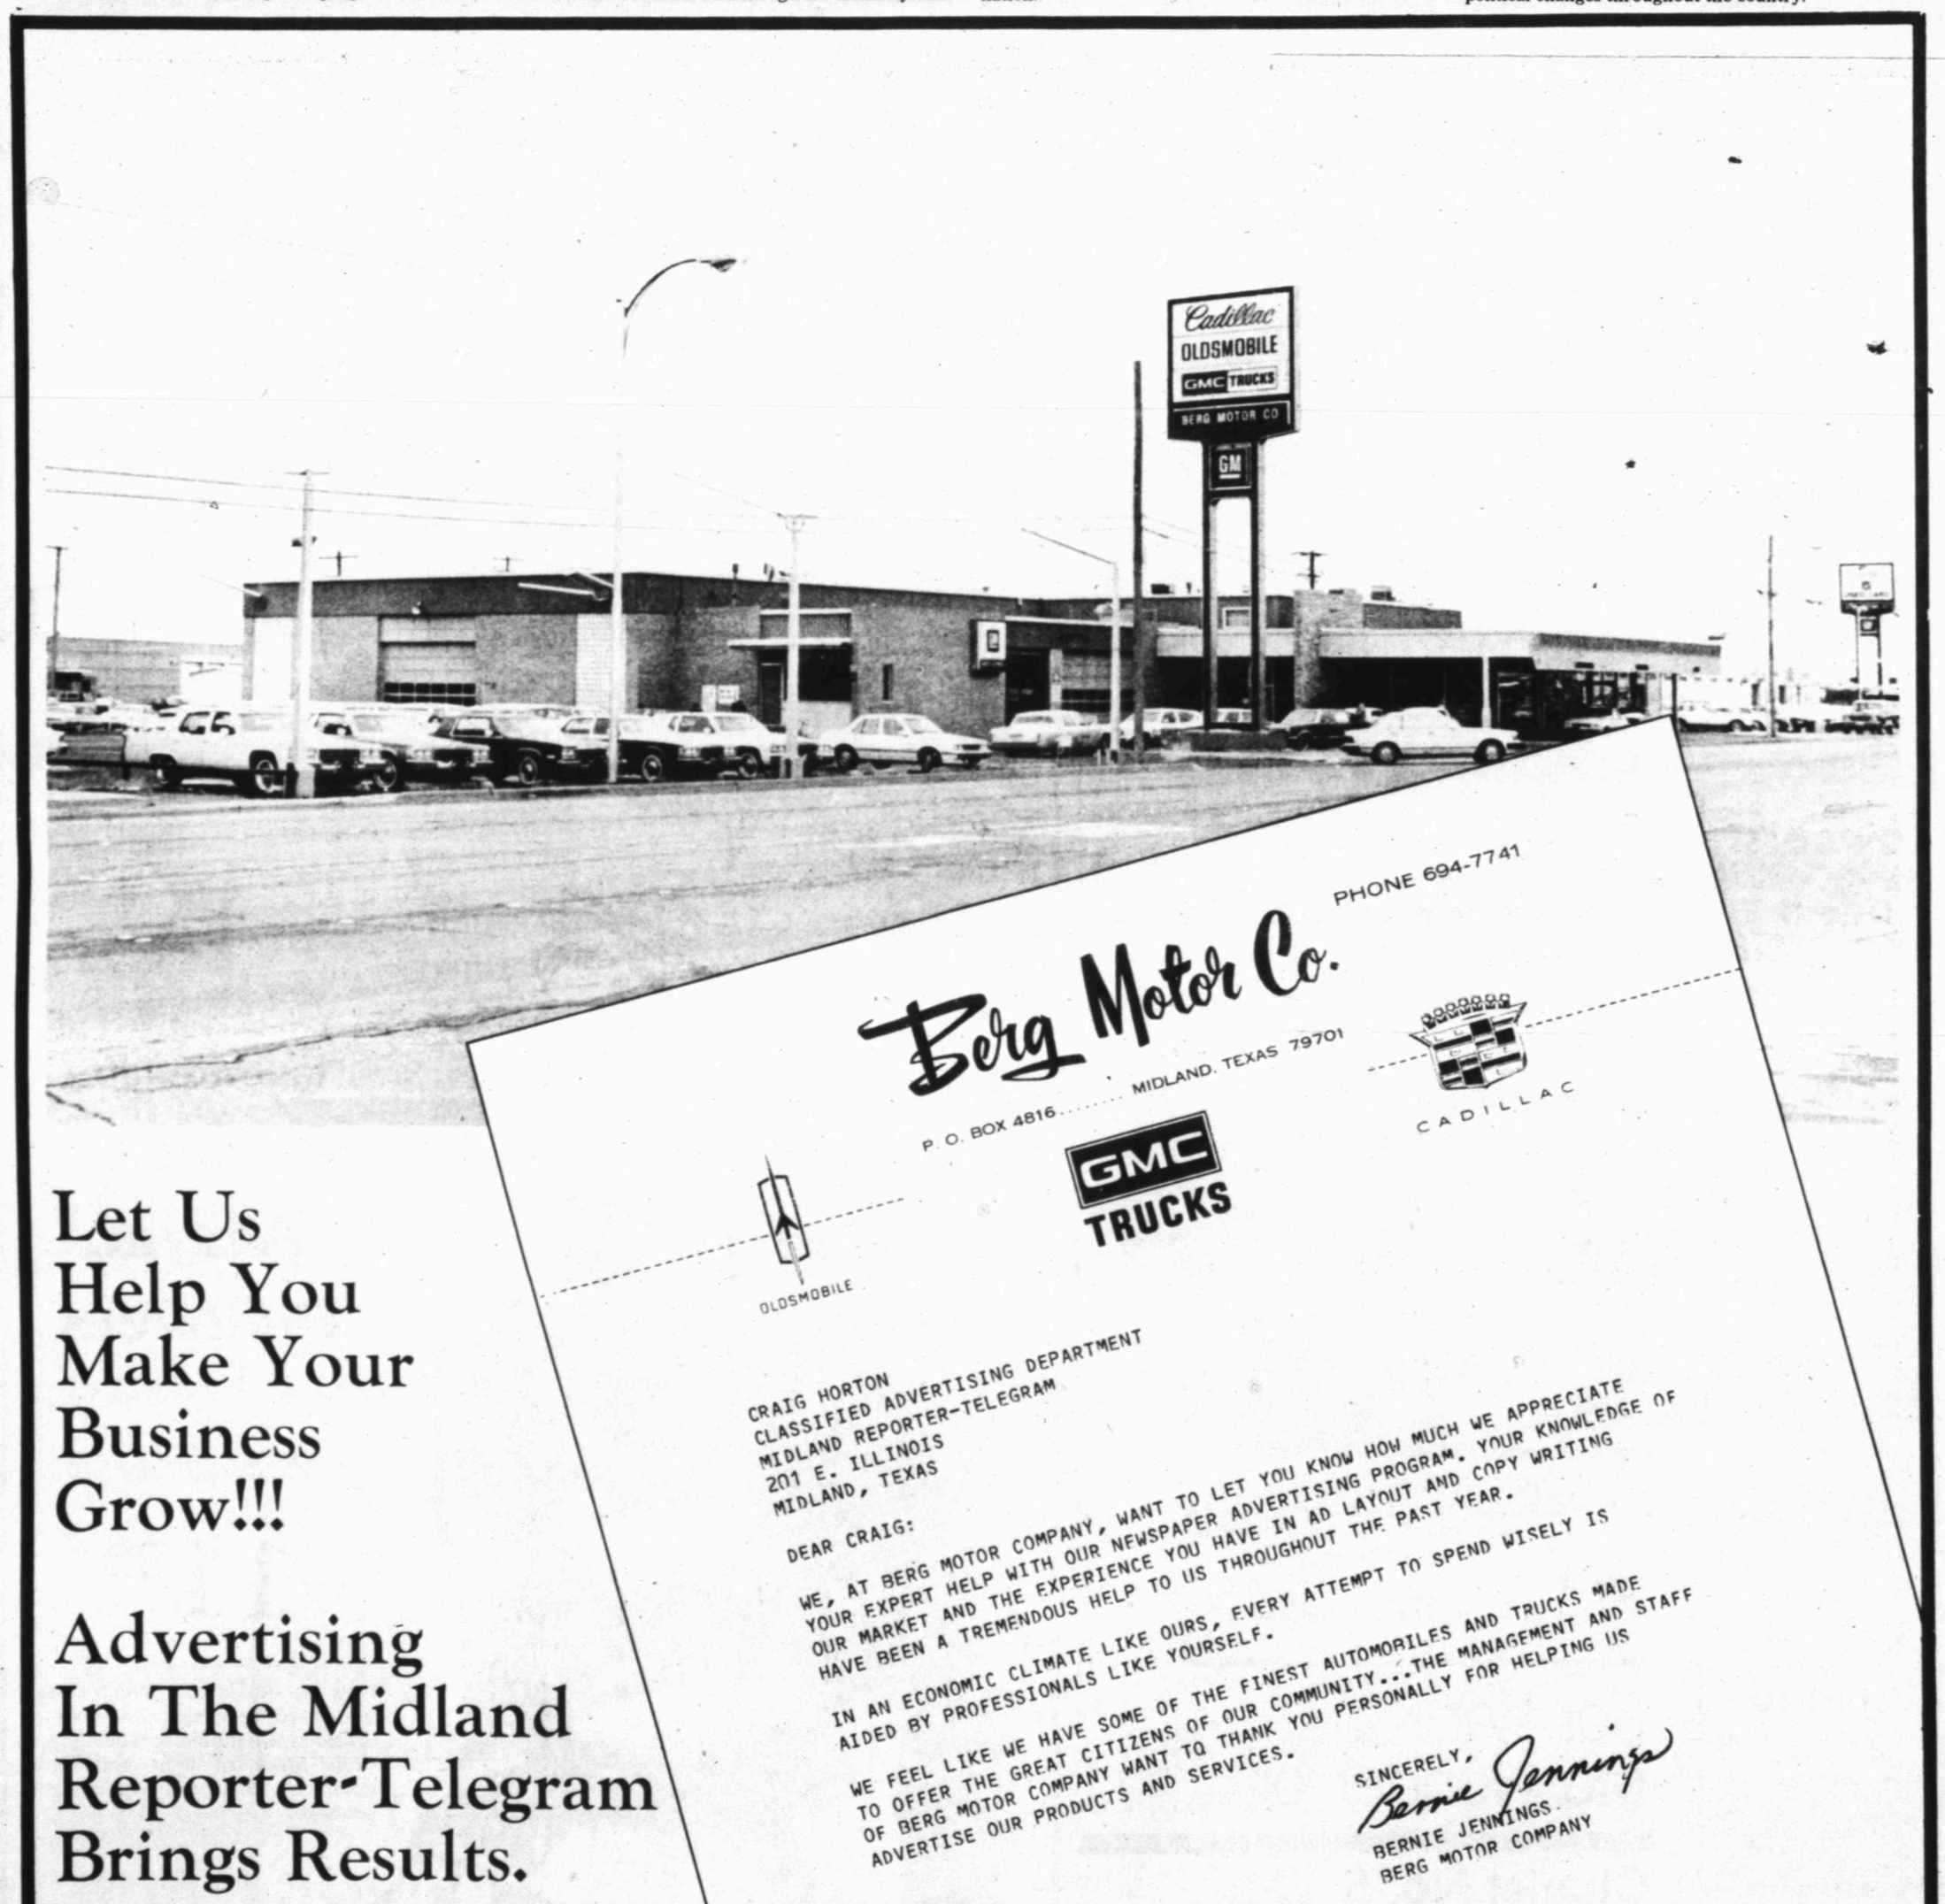

Cawigan, identifying himself as a former Aquino bodyguard who now works as a government intelligence agent, testified that he wanted to kill Aquino to prevent Aquino from killing him first.

Mexico optimistic on economy

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An opposition political party says Mexicans are optimistic about chances for improved economic and social conditions in 1984.

But the small Mexican Social Democratic Party said a public opinion poll conducted by its Institute of Public Opinion indicated citizens are concerned about long-range political stability in this nation of 75 million.

The poll indicated short-term optimism that Mexico will escape the effects of a severe financial crisis. But it said there were fears of long-term instability in Mexico, with concern that there could be growing protests and political changes throughout the country.

Army spends millions on 'sloppy' uniforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soldiers say they're too hot, too heavy, too hard to dry, too hard to keep from wrinkling and just generally sloppy. But the Army is going ahead with the purchase of millions of new camouflage uniforms.

It's already spent nearly $205 million for 6.4 million sets of the new fatigues and, according to a message circulated to major commands last month, "responses from the field" have been "universally unfavorable."

Army officials said Monday they plan to spend $432 million on 13.4 million sets of the 50-50 nylon and cotton blend uniforms, done up in a four-color "woodland pattern."

The objective is to outfit each of the more than 778,000 regular Army soldiers and 670,000 national guardsmen and reservists with at least four sets of uniforms.

Army officials acknowledged they had received complaints about the garb fom some of the troops sent to tropical Grenada in October.

But the complaints go back further than that and the Army said the heat problem was under study by its logistics command even before the Grenada invasion.

Because of the objections, a logistics task force has developed plans for a light-weight version of the battle dress to be tested in the field next year. Army officials said the lighter uniform could be used as a supplement, for use in warmer climates.

In June 1980, the Army informed its troop-information newspapers that the new uniform would be "more suitable for field use in moderate temperatures" than the fatigues then in use. However, a November message from the Army's Forces Command reported that troops in the field felt the fabric "is too heavy and warm even in temperate regions."

"The uniform does not 'breathe' and retains heat," the message said.

"When wet, it takes an extremely long time to dry. These are not optimum characteristics for a field uniform where strenuous physical activities are required," it said.

As for appearance, the report said the battle dress received "very low acceptance from the troops because of its 'sloppy' appearance."

Plane slides off icy runway

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (AP) — A Frontier Commuter service airplane landing in blowing snow slid off an icy runway and hit a snowbank, but none of the 31 people aboard was injured, a spokesman for the flight operator said.

Although snow had reduced visibility to three-fourths of a mile at the time of the landing at 9:26 p.m. Monday, the spokesman blamed the incident on a "slick" runway.

"It slid a little bit off," said spokesman Dennis Decker of Combs Airways, which began operating the Frontier Commuter service to northern Colorado and Wyoming in October.

The problems began as soon as the airplane touched down, a spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, Gary Mucho, said today.

"According to the pilot, the aircraft began drifting to the left, and he was unable to control the aircraft. It hit a snowbank and left the runway," Mucho said from Denver.

He said he didn't know how far off the runway the 50-seater airplane had gone, but it was "far enough for the left gear to get tangled up in a snowbank."

The Convair 500 turboprop was damaged, Mucho said. But he did not know the extent of the harm to the plane. He said the Federal Aviation Administration would be invited to send an investigator from Casper today.

The Combs Airways Flight 709 had 28 passengers and three crew members aboard, and those who had planned to go on to the flight's destination in Pocatello, Idaho, were put up in motels in Rock Springs, a dispatcher at the Sweetwater County Sheriff's Office said.

The airport was closed until federal investigators arrived, said a flight service station operator in Rock Springs who declined to give his name.

Congressmen tend to avoid 'tedious' business

By CLIFF HAAS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The actual business of legislating has never been considered a very pleasant occupation, judging by the fact that senators and representatives spend most of the year doing other things.

After the First Continental Congress met in Philadelphia on Sept. 5, 1774, John Adams wrote to his wife, "The business of the Congress is tedious beyond expression...Every man upon every question must show his oratory, his criticism and his political ability."

Members of Congress still do not like to spend their time on the floors of the Senate and House of Representatives. Instead, they busy themselves with committee and subcommittee work, social events, speeches, travel and campaigning.

During the recently completed first session of the 98th Congress, which began Jan. 3 and ended Nov. 18, the Senate met 150 days and the House 146 — about 40 percent of the calendar year. And many of those days no substantive legislative business was conducted.

This year was really no different than most. In 1982, for example, the Senate met 147 days, the House 140.

Congress is now in the middle of a two-month break before the House and Senate reconvene Jan. 23. But already it is clear that during the 1984 election year the two chambers will spend fewer days in session than they did this year. House Democratic leaders — who control the legislative agenda in that chamber — have mapped plans that would have the House in session no more than 136 days next year. The Senate will follow a similar schedule.

According to the preliminary schedule, the first major break of the year will come 18 days after reconvening, when Congress takes off 10 days to celebrate the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

It's back to work Feb. 21 until April 13, when there is another 10-day break, this one for Easter.

The comes a break for Memorial Day, the close of business May 24 through noon May 30.

Then, June 29 is the last day of business while legislators take off until July 23 to allow time for the Fourth of July celebration and the Democratic National Convention July 16-19 in San Francisco.

After reconvening for 18 days, Congress recesses Aug. 10 to devote 25 days to Labor Day and the Republican National Convention, Aug. 20-23 in Dallas.

That will leave less than a month to meet an adjournment target of Oct. 4.

None of this takes into account those Tuesdays during the year when states will hold primary elections. No significant votes will be taken in Congress on those Tuesdays in deference to legislators who will be back in their home states for the elections.

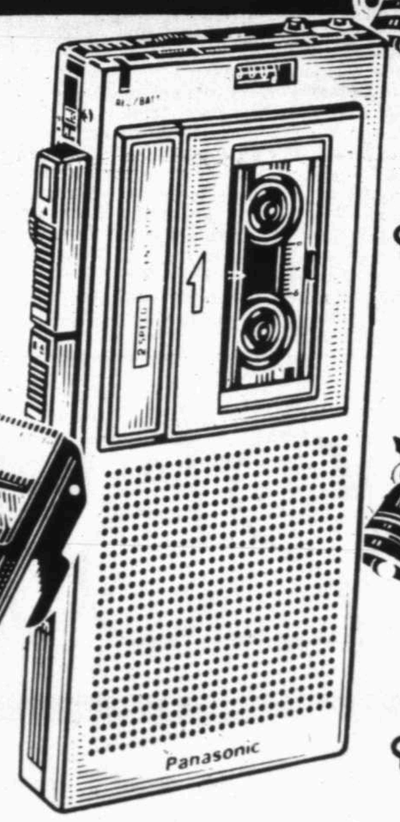

In addition, little, if any, legislative business is conducted on Mondays or Fridays during election years because so many legislators are fond of using those days for campaigning.

Firing of blast furnace raises steelworkers' hopes

LONE STAR, Texas (AP) — About 200 tons of molten iron splashed into a giant cauldron with a brilliant glow that softened the shadows of gloom that accompanied the closing of the Lone Star Steel plant more than a year ago.

The firing of the blast furnace last week produced the first batch of molten iron in 16 months.

"That's a pretty sight," said workman Jene Hay.

"It's an important step," said company spokesman Mayo Lanagan. "You don't bring on the blast furnace without a significant consideration."

And the step is important to more than just the workers and stockholders of Lone Star.

Within a year from the time the plant suspended almost all manufacturing operations and laid off 4,000 employees in August of 1982, unemployment in Morris County rose from 4.6 percent to 43.8 percent.

But now steam clouds billow from the steel plant on cold mornings and more than 2,300 workers are on the job.

"Everything is looking better around here," Lone Star Mayor Nick Nichols said. "But everybody has a cautious attitude. It's not over with yet, but at least it has turned around and started back up."

A local trucking company is looking for drivrs to haul oil field pipe produced at the plant and Lone Star State bank is considering a fancy new building made possible by lower construction prices.

"We did it to show that things are not going to dry up here," bank president Steve Reese told The Dallas Morning News. "We did it to show that things are not going to dry up here. There aren't going to be any tumbleweeds blowing down our highways."

The mayor and others believe their phenomenal high school football team is partly responsible for lifting the spirts in Lone Star and nearby Daingerfield.

Daingerfield High won the Class 3A championship Saturday night with a 42-0 rout of Sweeny and tied a 70-year-old national record for consecutive shutouts in a season with 13.

But although some spirits have been lifted by the firing of the blast furnace and the triumphs of the local football team, there still are signs of economic hardship here.

Some stores still are closed. And at the United Steelworkers of America local union hall, volunteers put together sacks of food and Christmas toys for the 1,500 plant workers still without jobs.

Residents of the area are careful not to let their optimism get too high. A company spokesman says he can't predict when the 1,500 workers will be called back. Union officials are particularly cautious.

"I think it's just a wait-and-see situation," said union local vice president Don Qualls. "Everyone is pleased that so many are going back to work for whatever period of time.

Author claims U.S. illiteracy at crisis proportions

Hearst Feature Service

"There are certain blind patriots who like to say, 'We're No. 1,' " says Jonathan Kozol, education author. "Well, we're not. We're No. 49."

Of the 158 members of the United Nations, the United States now ranks 49th in literacy, Kozol says, well behind all the nations of Western Europe, Japan and the Soviet Union. In the 1950s, the United States ranked 18th.

Kozol, the author of "Death at an Early Age" and "Invisible Minority," a soon-to-be published book on illiteracy, says that illiteracy in this nation has reached crisis proportions. He estimates that 25 million adults are unable to read or write at the third-grade level, and 35 million more cannot function at the eighth-grade level. For the purposes of functioning in this society, anything less than an eighth-grade education is illiterate, says Kozol, adding, "That's well over a third of the adult population."

Some experts in education do not place the figure that high, settling on 23 to 25 million. But they agree that the number of illiterate people in this country is increasing:

— A national sampling by the University of Texas found that a third of the adults contacted could not read a bus schedule, determine how much money had been deducted from their paychecks or describe job requirements from a help-wanted ad.

— The U.S. Department of Education reports that a million 12-to-17 youths cannot read at the fourth-grade level. In California, 2.5 million adults are just as handicapped, reports the state library, and 6 million of the state's 17.3 million adults lack a high school diploma.

— The Department of Education also reports that half of prison convicts have inadequate reading and writing skills, as do 85 percent of juveniles brought before the courts, 75 percent of the unemployed and 90 percent of mothers receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

— Forty-four percent of black teenagers are functionally illiterate, as are 56 percent of Hispanic teen-agers, Ford Foundation studies show.

For illiterates, this is a closed society, Kozol said. Newspapers are written at the ninth-grade level, tax and welfare forms at the 10th-grade level and the antidote on a bottle of lye is 12th-grade level, he points out.

"There's so much concern about censorship in America, but that's the ultimate censorship: excluding 60 million people from the whole process," he says.

Kozol wants $5 billion spent to battle illiteracy, backed by a five-year program of continuing education. By his estimates, illiteracy "is costing us $15 billion each year" — in costs of prisons, of industrial accidents caused by a failure to read, by welfare payments to those who cannot adequately read or write. Spending $5 billion to eradicate illiteracy "would be a bargain," he argues. Organizations like the Coalition for Literacy say the cost of illiteracy is far higher, up to $225 billion.

Assistant agriculture commissioner lives with her boss

AUSTIN (AP) — Susan DeMarco has a top-level job in the state Agriculture Department, supervises a staff of 80 and works for $1 a year. But her situation troubles some observers because she lives with her boss, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

She is the assistant commissioner for marketing and economic development, a job that ordinarily would pay her $49,000 a year.

"It's the best job in the department," Ms. DeMarco, whose main responsibility is marketing homegrown products in the United States and abroad.

It is also a job that state nepotism laws would prevent her from holding if she was married to Hightower.

The law forbids elected officials from hiring people to whom they are related by blood or marriage. But since Ms. DeMarco technically is not married to Hightower, she could be paid for her Agriculture Department work.

However, some observers are bothered by the morality of people living together without being married, while others say Hightower is bending the nepotism laws and paving the way for abuse. Others contend Ms. DeMarco's situation shows nepotism laws discriminate against women and should be abolished.

"I'm sure there are women who think I'm awful (for) not getting paid," Ms. DeMarco told the Dallas Times Herald. "And there are those who think I shouldn't be there at all. I'm here; I'm doing a job. The first person who will tell me if I'm not doing my job will be the commissioner, because he cares about his programs working."

Hightower said Ms. DeMarco organized his transition team, prepared the budget, hired key people and hatched and worked ideas that have become some of the department's most important projects.

"If you were looking all over the country for someone to put this thing — marketing programs — together, you'd want DeMarco. We would still be unpacking boxes here if it weren't for her," he said.

Hightower also doubts the couple's relationship will become a political liability.

"If I'm a good agriculture commissioner...no amount of gossipy stuff will be relevant to the people," he said.

"...It would be another thing if she wasn't qualified, but then she wouldn't be here in the first place. But I don't think I should deny the state of her abilities," added Hightower.

He said although its not fair for her not to get paid, if she did get paid "it would generate a flurry of political attacks that would interfere with what we are trying to get done here."

"I'd rather be paid," said Ms. DeMarco. "But that was part of all the considerations I had to make."

The issue of nepostism laws "is a conversation that society needs to have because society is changing," she added.

THE BETTER HALF

"My boss got the holiday spirit today. First he decorated his desk, then all the offices, then. . . ."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, December 21, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Jane Fonda, TV host Phil Donahue, tennis star Chris Evert-Lloyd, Penn State football coach Joe Paterno and the Mets' home run king Dave Kingman share this birthday with you. Also born on this date: famed British statesman Benjamin Disraeli and Russian leader Josef Stalin. A commitment is necessary if romance is to be meaningful. Adopt a positive attitude towards any challenges that might lie ahead. You uncover talents you did not know you had. Look for a way to market your innovative ideas. A new job or home is part of the picture. Consult loved one before beginning a decorating project.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Christmas parties make it difficult for you to get much work done. Be careful not to miss deadlines. A romantic relationship would benefit from greater give-and-take.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good things happen wherever you go today. Extra cash becomes available. You may have to change your work schedule. The holidays have put your associates in a more cooperative mood.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Bring a new idea to higher-up's attention, but do not expect any action until the new year. Mate's attitude cheers you up. Take things one at a time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Reconfirm your reservations if planning to travel over the holiday. A personal relationship shows steady improvement. You have been acting more mature recently. Keep up the good work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Higher-ups are impressed with your performance today. A spontaneous invitation holds the promise of romance. Do not pass your responsibilities off on busy people. Carry your share of the load.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An "impossible" dream moves closer to becoming reality. Do not give up! A conversation with an old friend proves very enlightening. A bit of mystery will keep romance humming along.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Not a good time to start a new career venture. January will do fine. Complete a work project before getting involved with an office party.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Concentration will be difficult at work. Your associates want to party! Do some last-minute shopping. Money is available from more than one source. It is up to you to motivate a child.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Try not to discuss touchy subjects with parents who are under pressure. Regrets have prevented you from renewing a wonderful friendship. Summon up your courage and make that phone call!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Ignore any gossip about a loved one. Tension lessens when a parent-child conflict is resolved. Each needs the other's support. Accept the boss' view as correct for now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may find it difficult to cut through red tape now. Key people are celebrating the holidays. Romance has its ups and downs. A change in lifestyle makes you feel better about yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A partnership is going through a period of renewal that will make it stronger than ever. Ignore both skeptics and skinflints. Vacation trips enjoy favorable influences. Be sensitive to partner's needs.

Heartache of Vietnam continues

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — American military involvement in Vietnam ended in 1975, but it's clear from the concluding installment in a 13-part public television series on the war that for many, both here and abroad, the heartache and pain persist.

"I still, in my sleep, see this thing going on every night," says one American soldier who fought in Vietnam. "It's a bad thing that happened."

"It was like a movie to me," says Mary Truong, a refugee who remembers the day U.S. forces left her country. "We didn't know what was going to happen. I was so afraid."

"Vietnam: A Television History" ends tonight with "Legacies," a carefully measured, clear and temperate look at what followed the collapse of the U.S.-backed government in Saigon.

"Legacies" was completed in November, months after producers wrapped up work on the first dozen chapters in the remarkable and acclaimed series. Production of the final program, a joint, $4.6-million production of WGBH, the public TV station in Boston, Britain's Central Independent Television and Antenne-2 in France, was delayed by problems with financing.

A version of "Vietnam: A Television History" already has been shown in England, and French viewers will see the series as early as next month. Negotiations are under way to distribute the series elsewhere in Europe and in Asia and South America.

Ratings for the first 12 episodes began at an impressive level in five big cities — nearly 9 percent of the audience, high for public TV, in New York and San Francisco — but have fallen more or less steadily since then. The 12th program, called "The End of the Tunnel," attracted just 2 percent of the TV homes in New York, and less than 3 percent in San Francisco.

But the series, scrupulously fair in its effort to give voice to all sides, will stand nonetheless as an important visual record of the war that George Ball, undersecretary of state through the mid-'60s, describes in "Legacies" as "the greatest single error that the United States has made in its national history."

The concluding program reviews the uneasy peace that followed the American pullout, the flood of refugees into the United States and other countries, the relocation of 1.5 million South Vietnamese by the new communist government, and Vietnam's invasion of Cambodia toward the end of 1978.

At its annual meeting in Stockholm, the International Bridge Press Association announced that its Charles Goren Award for "Bridge Personality of the Year" had been bestowed on Oswald Jacoby. Earlier this year, Jacoby announced that, after more than 50 years of tournament bridge (he turned 82 this year), he was retiring from the competitive game.

As player, writer and theorist, Jacoby contributed greatly to the game. And he holds one record that will never be equaled — he won his first auction bridge crown after he was already a national champion at contract. There is almost no honor in the game that he has not won. This hand was reported more than 30 years ago.

Once his partner showed game-going values, Jacoby wasted no time in getting to where he wanted to play the hand. West led the king of hearts and, as soon as dummy came down, Jacoby claimed the hand on a double squeeze — and his opponents conceded!

Let's see how the play would have proceeded as the cards lie. Assume West shifts to a diamond at trick two. Declarer wins, draws three rounds of trumps, cashes the king of diamonds, and ruffs a diamond. Declarer simply runs all his trumps. West must keep a heart to guard against dummy's queen, and East must keep a diamond to protect that suit. Thus, neither defender can keep more than two clubs, so the ace and king will drop the queen and declarer's jack becomes the fulfilling trick.

What if West has the diamond guard? Then he will have to keep a guard in each red suit, and he will be unable to hold more than one club. In the end position, declarer will be able to lead a club to the ace and take a proven finesse against the queen if it has not already appeared.

Old 'El Nino?'

Cold weather's arrival in the Permian Basin late last week put area residents to grabbing coats and checking their vehicles' radiators for anti-freeze protection. Ironically the arrival of the first snowfall in Midland in the 1983-84 season beat the arrival of winter — the "official" arrival, at least.

That won't occur until 5:30 a.m. EST, on Thursday. But National Weather Service forecasters are predicting that this season's weather won't be as extreme as last year when torrential rains swamped the West Coast and record snowfalls blanketed the East and Northern Plains. And El Nino is the one to thank if that scenario unfolds.

Dr. Donald Gilman, head of the Weather Service's extended forecast department, says this winter should be milder in most parts of the United States because of the absence of El Nino, the reverse of Pacific trade winds that periodically disrupts weather patterns in the Western Hemisphere. The anomaly is named for the Christ child because it usually occurs around Christmas.

Last year, though, El Nino arrived six months late, increased water temperatures several degrees more than it normally does and pushed further east than usual. The results weren't particularly pleasant.

Americans didn't suffer alone, though. Although scientists say the effects of El Nino are largely a matter of conjecture, it's blamed for such phenomena as abnormally warm weather in Europe, hurricanes over the Pacific Ocean and African dust storms, all observed last winter.

Biologists are still assessing the extent of El Nino's damage last year. Entire schools of anchovy were wiped out in the eastern Pacific after the warm waters destroyed the plankton they feed on.

While the effects of El Nino are not fully understood at this point, technological advances are making its impact on the weather less of a surprise.

While that knowledge may not appease travelers stranded by an unexpected heavy snowstorm, at least now we know who to blame — El Nino.

And all this time we thought it was Old Man Winter!

Deployment politics simple

The politics of the Pershing II deployment in Europe are easy to understand.

Charley Reese

The Europeans would prefer, if the U.S. and the Soviet Union go to war, that they not go to war in Europe. They see deployment of the Pershing IIs as a way to ensure that any war will be an intercontinental nuclear war.

The Europeans have always played this game and you can't really blame them. The Europeans have twice in this century torn up their own nest. They've had enough. If the two superpowers want to fight, the Europeans want them to fight in their own countries.

That's why the Europeans never have and never will provide enough conventional forces to defend NATO. That's why they insisted on the U.S. putting Pershing IIs and ground launched cruise missiles in Europe. They know that with those in place the Soviets, if they are going to start anything at all, will start it by going for the U.S. jugular.

From the European viewpoint, the best deterrent to a war in Europe is to guarantee that such a war would be an intercontinental nuclear war. That way, they figure neither the United States nor the Soviets will be tempted to settle their differences at Europe's expense.

The anti-nuclear crowd, like its counterpart in the United States, is simply too naive to understand what is coming down.

From the Soviet point of view, deployment of the Pershing IIs gives them an opportunity to pursue one of their main objectives — isolating the United States. They are fanning the flames of dissent in Europe by pretending to be upset by the deployment.

Actually, the Pershing IIs and the cruise missiles do not change the military balance in any significant way and the Soviets know that. If they had really not wanted those missiles deployed, they would have made some minor concession at the arms talks. President Reagan certainly gave them plenty of opportunities. He was, in effect, pleading with the Soviets to give us an excuse not to deploy.

From the U.S. point of view, deployment is just a headache. We, too, know they won't change the military balance significantly but we gave into European nagging. The Europeans began to insist on intermediate range nukes when they realized that America no longer had strategic nuclear superiority. That made them doubt that America would commit suicide in their behalf.

If I were president, they wouldn't have to doubt because I would withdraw from NATO. The alliance is out of date completely and is an unnecessary expense and danger.

The Soviet Union is very unlikely ever to invade Western Europe even if we did not put our own country on the line. For one thing, the Soviets have their hands full keeping Eastern Europe under control. For another, Western Europe is their primary source of credit and technology. For still another, they have good reason to believe Western Europe will vote itself into Communism eventually anyway. For yet another they know that if they went to war with the United States and gave the West Europeans an out, they'd take it so fast they'd leave their shadows behind.

The British and the West Europeans are very good at looking out for themselves. They make it clear, to the point of nausea, that NATO is for their defense. They refuse to get involved in a helpful way outside of the NATO area and about half the time criticize us as strongly as the Soviets do. And of course they trade with our enemies shamelessly.

The day they refused to allow American planes to even fly over their airspace to re-supply the Israelis in 1973 was the day we should have told them goodbye.

What the United States needs are allies who see an alliance as a two-way street. More than that, it needs leaders who will quit playing world politics and begin to look out for America's national interests. That indeed would be a novelty.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

'Brass' balks at military accord

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's new Lebanon strategy seems to have been misplaced somewhere in the Pentagon's thousands of look-alike cubbyholes. He wants to tighten U.S. ties to Israel and confront Syria with an Israeli-American military threat. This is the best way to get a settlement out of the Syrians, he now believes.

Jack Anderson

So on Oct. 29, Reagan signed a secret National Security Decision Directive calling for closer strategic coordination with Israel. This was followed, according to confidential documents, by a call for "combined planning," "joint exercises" and "pre-positioning of U.S. military equipment in Israel."

But a presidential directive can get mislaid in the Pentagon's catacombs — if it propounds a policy that the generals don't like. Few generals, of course, would risk openly defying the commander in chief's explicit order. So instead, the unwanted directive is merely cast adrift in the Pentagon's labyrinth of dead ends.

This is what's happening to the president's strategy for dealing with the Lebanese crisis. The military chiefs "are simply not willing to implement the White House decision," a high administration official told my associate Lucette Lagnado.

The White House and State Department, on the other hand, are trying to implement the new strategy. They had hoped, for example, to complete three specific accords with Israel during Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's recent Washington visit: 1. to establish U.S.-Israeli medical cooperation; 2. to approve joint military exercises; and 3. to coordinate strategy in Lebanon.

But the seasoned officers at the Pentagon have learned that any presidential directive they oppose might fade away if only they study it long enough. So a week before Shamir arrived, they protested that the proposed accords couldn't be put into operation without careful study.

They succeeded in setting aside the accords and creating a joint U.S.-Israeli committee to study them. This amorphous committee, designated the Joint Political-Military Group, has managed at least to set up an agenda. According to a confidential document:

"The JPMG will meet in January. It is expected that at least medical cooperation may be finalized at this meeting. The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. (John W.) Vessey, will visit Israel in January." This modest schedule, of course, is subject to further obstruction.

The irony is that the Pentagon chiefs oppose military pressure while across the Potomac, the civilian leaders favor a show of strength. The White House has simply despaired of a diplomatic solution in Lebanon. It has been tried with one shuttle dipomat after another, but they have all come up empty-handed. Working through moderate Arab nations, such as Saudi Arabia, has been equally fruitless. The new strategy is to scare the Syrians out of Lebanon with a show of Israeli-American strength.

This has led to a bitter backstage debate. I have been privy to the secret exchanges, including some of the briefing papers that have been circulating in the backrooms.

The strategists in the Pentagon argue that the spectacle of the Americans and Israelis in military lockstep will frighten the moderate Arab nations and jeopardize U.S. relations with them. This could block U.S. access to some strategic Middle East bases that the Joint Chiefs hope to get.

Counters one briefing paper: "The moderate Arabs are anti-Israel, but they fear Arab radicalism more .... The Arabs ally themselves to those who can protest them. A strong, pro-Israel U.S. is more attractive than a weak anti-Israel U.S. .... Lebanon and Jordan want the U.S. to protect them from Syria."

The Pentagon strategists, noting the speed with which the Soviet Union rearmed Syria after the shellacking it took from Israel in Lebanon last year, doubt that U.S.-Israeli military posturing will impress either the Syrians or the Soviets. But the White House strategists believe that military power is the only argument that they do understand.

With U.S. and Soviet power arrayed on opposite sides of the Lebanon dispute, warn the Pentagon brass, there is danger of a confrontation between the superpowers. Responds a briefing paper: "Working together to restore the balance in the region actually reduces the risk by reducing the incentives to aggression."

The military chiefs also argue that the United States and Israel have different goals; the Americans are anti-Soviet, the Israelis anti-Syrian. "A false distinction," claims the briefing paper. "The Soviet challenge usually takes the form of aggression by local radical allies backed by Soviet arms and advisers."

Concludes the paper: "What is the alternative? Let the Soviets and radicals win?"

OUTRAGE OF THE WEEK: Pratt & Whitney Aircraft has been exposed in recent months for charging the Pentagon outrageous prices for spare parts. Because it had "sole source" contracts with the military, the company could — and did — charge whatever the traffic would bear. There was no competition.

Now the Navy is about to award a contract — it won't say how much — to study the problem of overpriced spare parts, among other things. But when contractors tried to bid on the project, they got a rude shock: The investigation was to be handled as a sole-source contract. Who was the sole source? You guessed it: Pratt & Whitney.

Another View:

Signs of movement

Reports of progress by the Contadora Group on a peace plan for Central America come at a time when there are other encouraging developments, new signs of constructive realism that hold promise of easing the tension in the region.

A new study by the Atlantic Council has special importance. The study concludes with a recommendation of much more aid, and affirms that "there should be a presumption against paramilitary covert aid" — correct on both issues. The continuation of American assistance to the "contras" in Nicaragua is counterproductive. The study recommends more open contacts between the U.S. government and the Sandinistas who rule Nicaragua, as well as the Cubans — proposals matched by a word of caution that the United States must be prepared to use pressure when persuasion fails.

The Atlantic Council study coincides with an alarming proposal from some of the Nicaragua rebels supported by the United States. The Nicaraguan Democratic Force is proposing the creation of a "liberated zone" within Nicaragua to provide real estate for a provisional government. That would not mask the failure of the rebels to pose a significant threat to the Sandinistas. But it could make more difficult the dialogue for a negotiated regional settlement that must be the priority.

There have been signs of movement that lend encouragement to the peace process. U.S. Vice President George Bush told the leaders of El Salvador on Sunday that "you will lose the support of the American people" unless there is control of "the extremist right-wing terrorists, the death squads, that small group of people within your own society who operate outside the law." It was the strongest U.S. condemnation of this form of terrorism, important because it informed friend and foe that the American advocacy of democracy is not offered solely as a counter to leftist extremism.

Within Nicaragua itself there have been signs of change that have been interpreted by some Latin American diplomats as indications of a receptiveness to the Contadora peace process. In effect, the Sandinistas have only returned to some of the promises that they made when they defeated the Somoza dictatorship, including reducing restrictions on the press and moving toward a fixed date for national elections. These may prove to have been only superficial gestures to calm a moment of rising international indignation about the betrayal of the revolution and internal anxiety about the risk of American military intervention. But reaffirmation of the fundamentals of that revolution was welcomed by Nicaraguans and by their neighbors. And that reaffirmation will make it all the more difficult to backslide again on the good intentions that brought the Sandinistas to power.

The Presidential Commission on Central America, which is headed by Henry A. Kissinger, was in Mexico City last Tuesday. That was another good development. Mexico is a member of the Contadora Group. Mexico has been a firm opponent of armed intervention, an advocate of economic development to ease a crisis that has roots in the colonialism of the continent. Mexico can play an influential role in trying to keep the nations of Central America free of any new colonialism, whether it springs from Havana or Washington.

INSIDE REPORT:

Fears pushing France to Bonn

PARIS — With minimum publicity, Socialist President Francois Mitterrand is tightening French military links to West Germany in a move toward partnership that is unprecedented in the history of the two old adversaries.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The effort by Mitterrand, whose steely realism about the Soviet threat to Europe has become President Reagan's best, most unexpected foreign surprise, has one main source: fear that shattering of the defense consensus in Bonn may lead either to neutralism or anti-Western nationalism across the Rhine.

The prospect of France and the rest of NATO Europe deprived of the West German defense line against the Warsaw Pact is a specter causing nightmares here. Mitterrand does not advertise the prospect nor how he hopes to fend it off, partly out of fear of anti-French repercussions in West Germany and anti-German reactions in France.

But there can no longer be doubt that the hard-nosed Socialist leader of France, strongly backed by Gaullist leader Jacques Chirac, intends to institutionalize the defense relationship between the two countries. He is building a new French arsenal that he hopes will influence Bonn away from its new and still murky separatism, centered in the Social Democratic Party (SPD) and the Greens.

Although Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative party turned back the SPD effort to block deployment of new Pershing II missiles, the French fear the SPD may now turn against NATO itself in its zealous courtship of detente and the favor of Moscow.

Thus, Mitterrand and Defense Minister Charles Hernu are building a new 50,000-man Rapid Action Force and a nuclear-tipped missile, with a 250-mile range, called Hades. The force is geared for front-line duty beside West German troops on the first day of combat; the Hades will fire warheads against Warsaw Pact choke points, possibly from both French and German bases.

What makes this unique is a first-ever attempt at integration between French and German forces. The Rapid Action Force, now half built, will eventually have nearly 300 helicopters to move it to the border of East Germany and the Warsaw Pact in hours. The plan is to use German aircraft for protection on the way to the battlefield.

Far more delicate is the question of whether the Hades missile, still under development, should be based in both countries and, if so, whether Bonn should have some control over its firing. "We're not even whispering about that except behind locked doors," one French official told us.

The fact that the French would even consider "dual key" control over firing nuclear-tipped missiles, with Bonn possessing one of the keys, shows the level of French concern over new separatist tendencies in the Federal Republic. Centuries of taboo against Gallic military collaboration with the once-hated and feared Hun seem to be melting under the political heat of Bonn's pacifist-neutralist-nationalist mood. Keeping West Germany strongly in NATO is worth a great deal to Paris.

The Reagan administration is giving silent encouragement to Mitterrand, but not without some caution. French-German nuclear cooperation on the Hades missile could anger the Soviet Union. But it could also lead to an elusive American goal of long standing: a European defense, allied with but not subservient to the U.S., with its own nuclear force.

One of Mitterrand's first moves on taking power was to set up regular, twice-a-year meetings of the defense and foreign ministers of France and West Germany. He has also now established a bureaucracy to handle security relations with Bonn on a day-to-day basis, a step carefully avoided here ever since Gen. de Gaulle took France out of the military part of NATO in 1966.

That is a measure of the quiet revolution taking place in a country that has always prided itself on going it alone. As West Germany moves away from its post-war dependence on the Atlantic alliance, Mitterrand moves France toward partnership with Bonn. As a way to block creeping neutralism, Mitterrand's move may be the only one possible.

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak write for Field Enterprises.

Pentagon up in arms over licenses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials say President Reagan ultimately will have to resolve a flap with the Commerce Department over how strict the United States should be in exporting items that could be turned to military use.

The Pentagon officials, who requested anonymity, on Monday attacked Commerce Department procedures used in granting licenses allowing the export of valuable technologies.

They specifically faulted Commerce for permitting the export of sophisticated U.S.-made computer components that almost found their way to the Soviet Union and advanced bullet-proof material purchased for fabrication into flack jackets for Syrian troops.

"The law requires that the Defense Department be consulted but there has been a persistent refusal by Commerce," one official said. "It will have to go ultimately to the president."

The defense officials complained that — except for items destined directly to Soviet bloc nations — the Commerce Department has balked at allowing Pentagon officials to review many of the export licenses.

Defense officials have complained privately over the years that the Commerce Department is too lax in issuing export licenses for sophisticated technology and equipment that might be of military value to the Soviets.

Pentagon officials have said significant technology has reached the Soviet Union by first passing through allied and friendly countries.

Commerce Department spokesman B. Jay Cooper had no immediate comment.

The Pentagon officials citied examples of what they termed "a quite careless approach" by Commerce in issuing such export licenses, noting the discovery of highly advanced computer equipment and technology in West Germany and Sweden. Last month, U.S. officials disclosed that elements of a computer family called VAX had been intercepted in West Germany enroute to the Soviet Union.

While Pentagon officials were complaining privately on their home turf, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was linking up with Treasury Secretary Donald Regan across the Potomac River to praise West German authorities for helping prevent a Soviet Union "espionage coup" by seizing the sophisticated computer.

The two Cabinet chiefs held a news conference to display computer terminals, keyboards, disc drives and other parts of a $1.5 million system that they said had been seized in West Germany last month before it could be smuggled into the Soviet Union.

Weinberger said that had the computer made its way to the Soviet Union, "they would have been able to produce vastly more accurate ... and more destructive weapons."

Of the computer, the Pentagon officials who talked anonymously, said: "An alarm bell should have gone off. It was a very serious mistake to issue the license."

Citing another example, the Pentagon officials said the Commerce Department last March and July approved two licenses for a small German company.

Navy portrays Soviets in show

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — On stage, an officer in a Soviet uniform shouts in a thick Russian accent, vilifying decadent America as a "society ... in its death throes." In the audience, U.S. sailors listen.

The program, staged by U.S. Navy intelligence officers, provides the U.S. servicemen with an unusual glimpse of their Soviet rivals that they hope will help the Americans in the event of war.

Spiced with music, film and occasional Cold War one-liners, the six-hour presentation shows, in the words of Senior Chief Intelligence Specialist Dave Garrett, that television-generation sailors "can learn a great deal and it doesn't have to hurt."

"In most Navy presentations, it's a guy at a podium. It's boring," says Lt. Tom Bortmes of the Fleet Intelligence Center.

Garrett and Bortmes portray Soviet sailors, boasting of their dedication, ridiculing American attitudes and giving first-person accounts of how they believe communist forces view the world.

Garrett, wearing the uniform of a Soviet enlisted sailor, condemns the "capitalistic and warmongering society" in the United States.

Soviet sailors serve out of love for their homeland, he tells the audience, while U.S. "Navy mercenaries" sign up because they can't get a job or are looking for adventure.

The mock-Soviet also relates how he spends hours at political indoctrination lectures while at sea on deployments that last up to nine months.

Soviet sailors are much better prepared for war than their American counterparts, he says. "If combat is necessary, we will win."

The reason for the production, titled "Soviet Seapower Education Program," is that by better understanding their potential enemy, the U.S. sailors would be able to fight more effectively if war broke out, the intelligence officers said.

"We present what we think is a very balanced demonstration of the Soviet Union, the quality of life there," said Bortmes. "It's not meant to be a Red threat or Red Scare-type presentation at all."

Since March, a five-member team headed by the intelligence training center commander, Capt. Paul Lasko, has presented the show to 15,000 people at 19 Navy bases.

Navy personnel with security clearance see the six-hour classified version of the show. A 2½-hour unclassified version, with less detail about U.S. and Soviet weapons, is presented to other personnel, Navy families and visitors.

The show, similar to one begun several years ago by the Air Force, was recognized by the chief of naval operations in August as an official Navy program.

Biography won't be reissued

NEW YORK (AP) — A biography of Barbara Hutton, in which the late heiress is said to have received excessive prescription drugs from a doctor, will not be reissued in a corrected form.

Random House had already recalled 58,000 copies of the book after learning it contained errors about a doctor who treated Miss Hutton. The publisher said in a statement Monday that "legal, editorial and publishing problems" led to a decision not to republish "Poor Little Rich Girl" with the corrections.

The biography by C. David Heymann erroneously stated that Dr. Edward A. Kantor prescribed excessive drugs for Miss Hutton in 1943. Kantor was only 14 at the time.

Residents donate after robbery

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Authorities say residents are opening their hearts and their pocketbooks after a robbery at a food kitchen for the poor.

Brother Don Thibodeau, an Episcopal monk who works at Community Kitchen Inc. says a radio report Monday of the theft last week of six 20-pound hams has led to donations more than making up for the loss.

Among the donations were 20 turkeys received by employees at Citizens Union bank as Christmas bonuses and a few cans of food from a married couple who had eaten at the kitchen while out of work.

Thibodeau said Monday said the thieves could have been seeking food for their families. "People do desperate things on holidays if their families are hungry," he said.

U.S. urged to use food reserves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two congressmen are urging the Reagan administration to immediately use food reserves to save millions of starving Africans, and pay for the emergency program later with a supplemental appropriation.

At a news conference Monday, Rep. Thomas Daschle, D-S.D. said that in addition to food, the Africans need medicine, seeds and transportation equipment. Daschle, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, said the Reagan administration has shown a "willingness to consider" the emergency request and a $150 million supplemental money bill to pay for the food aid.

Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., said "Africa is facing a drought more serious than that of 10 years ago, which threatened 6 million people with starvation and killed millions of heads of cattle.

Representatives of several groups also trying to alleviate the problem said the famine threatens 100 million people in 22 countries. Food supplies will be critically low by March, they said.

Yields on Treasury securities up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials say yields on short-term Treasury securities are up slightly after a one-week decline.

In Monday's auction, the government sold about $12 billion in new T-bills — half in three month bills at an average discount rate of 9.04 percent, up from 8.93 percent last week, and half in six-month bills at an average rate of 9.24 percent, up from 9.12 percent.

Monday's yields were the highest since the Sept. 6 levels of 9.21 percent for three-month bills and 9.40 percent for six-month bills.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 9.41 percent for three-month bills and 9.85 percent for the six-month bills.

Drug abuse grant 'AIDS' study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret M. Heckler says a $218,000 grant will be used to study why intravenous drug users contract the deadly disease AIDS.

Although homosexuals are the primary victims of the acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS disease, intravenous drug users are the second-largest risk group.

Mrs. Heckler said Monday the grant from her National Institute on Drug Abuse will go to the New York State Division of Substance Abuse to conduct the study in the New York City metropolitan area. She said that more than 90 percent of the AIDS victims who are heterosexual intravenous drug users dwell in that area.

U.S. wants barriers stopped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government is pressing for elimination of bars to trade in insurance, shipping and other non-merchandise services.

U.S. Trade Representative William Brock said Monday an American report on the subject to members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade was "a very exciting and positive step, a giant step."

A 308-page report is filled with statistics on current trade and analyses of trends.

An international agreement on settling disputes in that area is probably still at least several years away, officials said.

Carriers may resume service

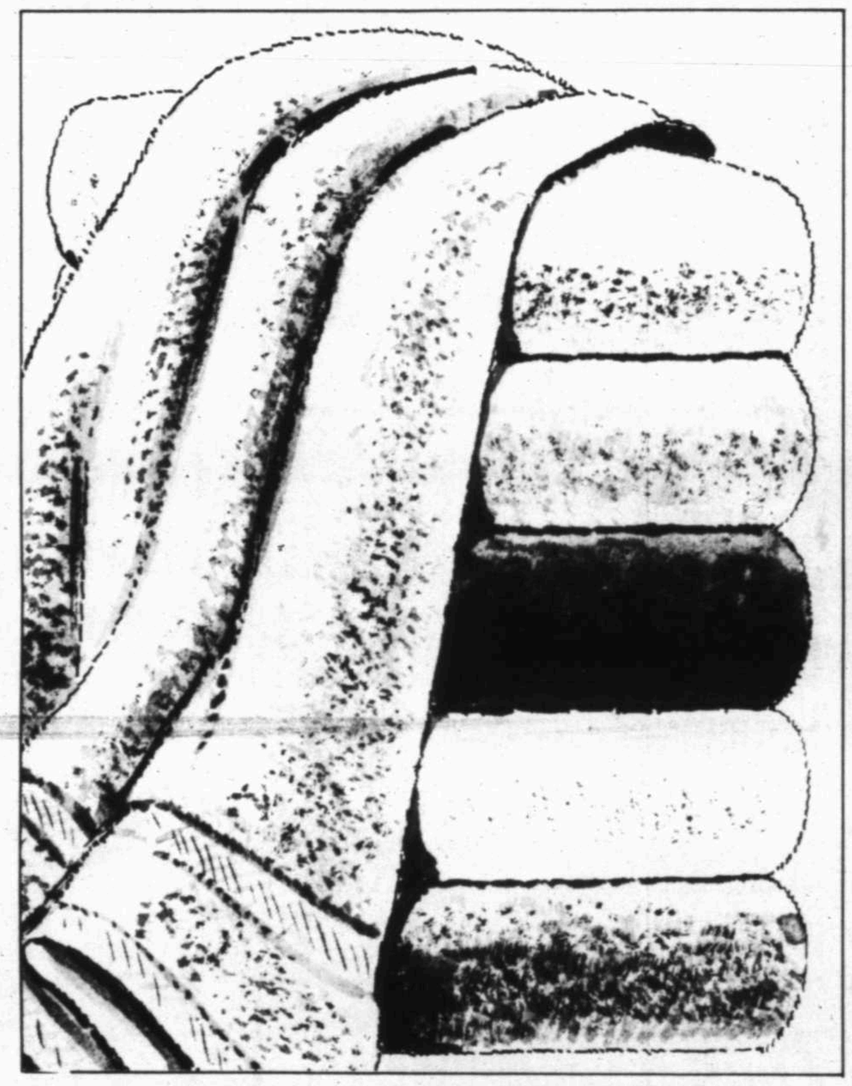

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Air Illinois hopes to get its fleet of 13 commuter aircraft back in the skies shortly after New Year's Day, a spokeswoman said.

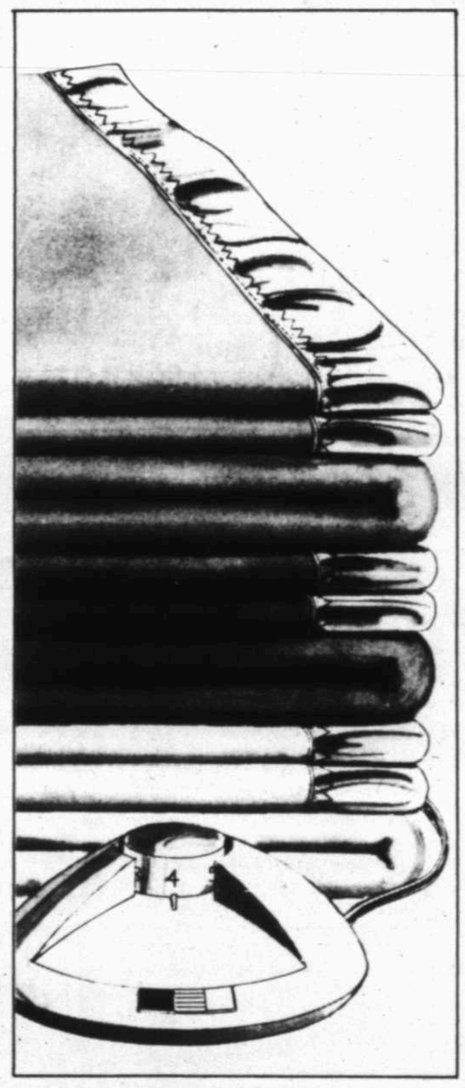

Spokeswoman Alice Mitchell made the appraisal Monday as the Federal Aviation Administration said it was sending six inspectors to the airline to hasten its recertification.

The carrier ceased its six-state service Thursday until it could meet FAA safety requirements.

Success takes coach away from Rebels

Dykes takes post as Texas Tech defensive coordinator

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The ugly side of success raised its head at Midland Lee this morning as Rebel head football coach Spike Dykes resigned that position at the Lee Field House to become defensive coordinator at Texas Tech University.

Dykes said he would report to Tech after Jan. 1. The position of head coach at Lee is now open.

Dykes compiled a 34-11-1 record in four years at Lee, but the 1983 season was the cream of his tenure, guiding the Rebels to a 13-3 record, the best ever recorded in the 23-year history of the school.

Lee's season came to an end Saturday in Texas Stadium with a 25-21 loss to San Antonio's Converse Judson in the state Class 5A finals.

"I'VE DECIDED to go to Texas Tech with mixed emotions," Dykes told news media representatives in a morning news conference. "Any time you spend four years in one place, it puts a lump in your throat to leave. But in this business, you have to enter the arena and fulfill your dreams. Professionally, this is an opportunity I just couldn't pass up."

Many think Dykes is rolling the dice with this decision since the Texas Tech coaching staff has come under much critisism this year. Head Tech coach Jerry Moore has practically wiped out his coaching staff in an effort to rebuild a winning effort. However, Dykes sees the gamble as worth taking.

"If I was worried about those problems, I wouldn't need to be in this profession in the first place," said Dykes. "There is always the possibility that things won't work out, but I believe strongly in Coach Moore and Texas Tech. It is a challenge of building a new tradition and I'm looking forward to it."

Dykes noted that it was a tough decision because he and his family have loved living in Midland.

"Midland will always hold a special place in my heart. We have a great school here. The people are special and you have great backing from the administration. I really don't know what more you could ask. This will be a great job for anyone fortunate to get it," said Dykes.

"I got too much of the credit for this team. It all starts with administration, the students and coaching staff. I've had the benefit of all three. Gil Bartosh straightened out the junior high situation six years ago when he came here as head coach and I just stepped into a good situation."

DYKES SAID he would like to see one of his assistant coaches elevated to head coach, but said, "That's not my decision. Gil will have to do that."

Bartosh said the search for a new head coach will begin immediately.

"We will try to look within the Midland system first before opening up to others from the outside. We will start looking immediately for a new head coach for Lee High," said Bartosh. "We are going to try and hire the best coach possible, whether in Midland or outside of Midland."

Bartosh, who arrived in Midland from the Dallas area at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday morning only to find out he had lost one of his coaches, would not comment on what his immediate feelings were on hiring a new coach. However, Lee assistant coach Jack Tayrien appears to be the leading candidate at this time.

"We will miss Coach Dykes and his family in Midland. We appreciate all that he has done for the team, school and community," said Bartosh. "He also has a great opportunity to further his career at Texas Tech. We wish him the very best in his career."

Dykes said he was approached about the Tech position "about two weeks ago. Coach Moore tossed out the possibility, but I told him that I couldn't consider it until after the season. I was so wrapped up in this team at the time that I couldn't give him an answer.

"We talked at length Monday, and that's the first time I talked with Jerry since two weeks ago. There has been a lot of speculation about this over that period of time, but I really didn't make up my mind until Monday," said Dykes.

Dykes said that he will be recruiting the West Texas area for Tech. Does that mean that he will be taking some of Lee's semifinal champions with him to Tech?

"I certianly hope several of them will be going with me. I sure can't give you a specific number, but I hope it is a bunch of them," said Dykes.

DYKES SAID he has been unable to talk to his team about his decision.

"With the holidays, there just isn't any way to have a team meeting," said Dykes. "Some people will not understand this move, but I think our kids will. We've talked at length this year with our kids that you have to enter the arena to get what you want and they will understand that."

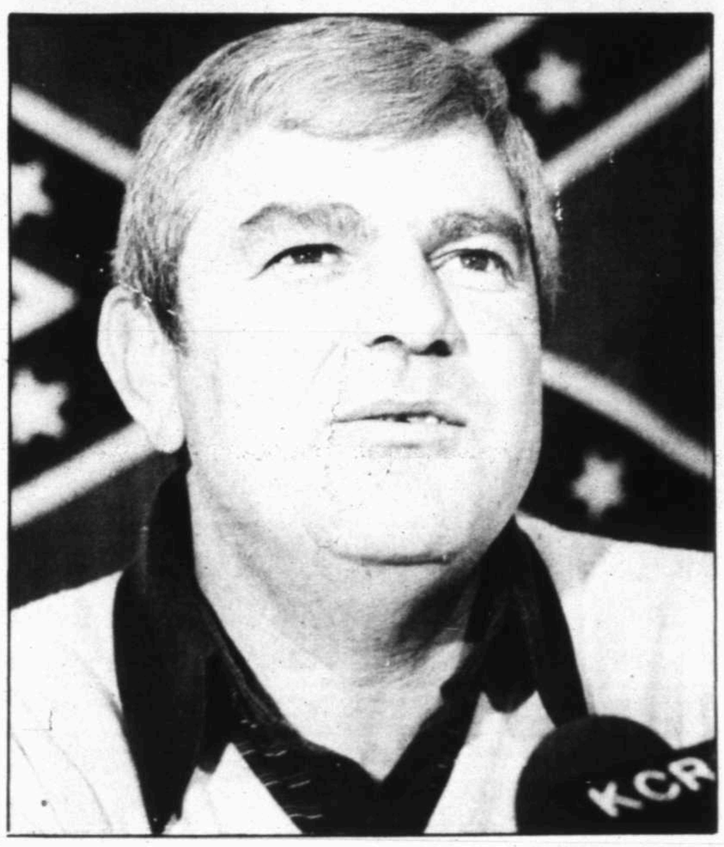

Dykes started at Lee in 1980 with a 13-7 loss to Killeen and ended Saturday with a 25-21 loss to Judson in the state finals. In between were the greatest moments in Lee history, including 34 victories.

Dykes never won a District 4-5A title during that period, but his two "King Is Dead" victories over Odessa Permian this year will always be the hallmark of the Dykes regime.

In 1981, Dykes' Rebels missed the district championship in a 9-7 loss to Permian on a Panther field goal with 13 seconds left in the game. That Lee team was 8-2, but came a year prior to the UIL's rule that made it possible for two teams from each district to enter the playoffs.

Lee's booster club meeting, scheduled for tonight, has been cancelled in the wake of Dykes' announcement.

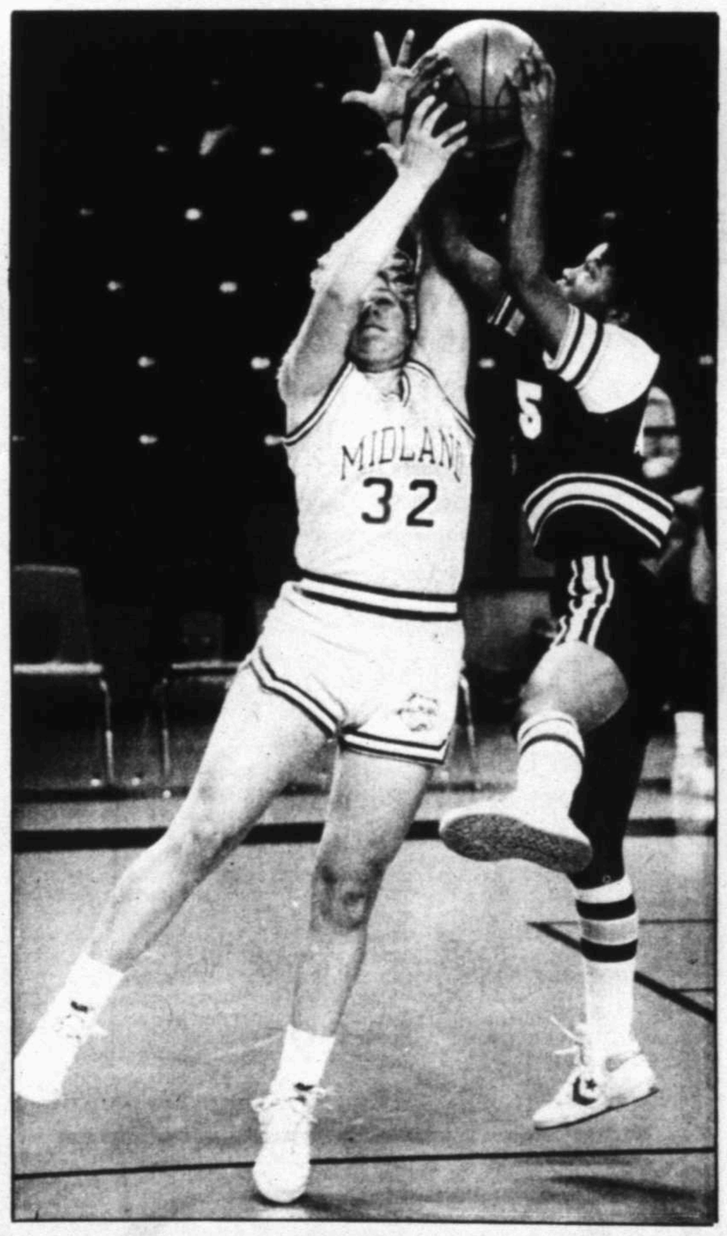

An era has ended with Dykes leaving Lee, but a "New Tradition" was started. And now the search begins to continue what has been started.

MHS girls open 4-5A with victory; Boys beat Lobos

Both the boys and the girls basketball teams at Midland High are units that prefer to de-emphasize individual stars.

But Monday night at Chaparral Center, each team went to one player to deliver the big points, and Denise Lanz and Chris Rooker both obliged.

Lanz scored 25 points to lead the girls to a 60-36 district-opening win over Abilene High, and Rooker netted 32 in the Bulldogs' 83-65 victory over Levelland.

"It was a fun game," said girls coach Jane Young. "I thought we started out and pressed them for six or eight quick points, and that helped us."

It was more like ten quick points. Abilene braved icy conditions and a three-hour drive to get here, but after about three minutes of their game, someone suggested the Eagles could have saved some money and some self-respect if they had stayed home.

Midland High opened with a 10-0 blitz, but Abilene cut the gap to five twice in the first quarter.

But the Bulldogs reasserted themselves and lead by 18, 30-12, at the half.

It only got worse for Abilene. Lanz took control of the game midway through the third period, and put the game out of reach. First, she passed nearly the length of the court to Orvetta Johnson for a layup, then scored the 'Dogs next seven points before assisting OJ again. That gave MHS their largest lead, 53-22, and the game was quite over.

Was the MHS intensity level up for the district opener? "I'm sure," said Young. "OJ is a senior, and a good leader. She fires them up a lot." Johnson, who had been out last week with an injured ankle, returned to form and chipped in 12 points.

MHS (10-5) faces a key early-season district bash with rival Lee Thursday night at Lee High.

FOR THE boys, 12 games in the last two weeks have taken a toll, but against Levelland Rooker emulated Lanz' performance. His 32 points came after a slow start, as he was held to only two points in the first quarter. Not surprisingly, MHS trailed the Lobos at that point, 15-12.

LHS lead 21-16 three and a half minutes into the second quarter when Rooker went to work. In a minute's time, MHS' pressure defense had freed Rooker for eight lightning quick points. When he finally missed a shot, Darrell Davis was there to grab the carom and put it in, and the Bulldogs were ahead 26-21.

Davis made another key contribution in the half's last 30 seconds, scoring two hoops to break a 30-30 tie and give MHS a halftime lead of 34-30.

After that, it was off to the races, and the 'Dogs exploded for 49 second-half points.

"I thought we were sluggish for a while," said Coach Jack Stephenson. "Coming off the San Antonio tournament, though, it was a pretty good effort."

Conceding that the Bulldogs were "leg weary" Stephenson didn't think it affected the team mentally as well. "Not these guys," he said, "They've got too many things going for them."

Most of all, they have a 15-3 record, and a date tonight at Snyder before the team breaks for the Christmas holidays.

MHS' JV boys (7-8) were also winners, by a 55-49 count over Levelland's JVs. Anthony Deande and Matt Sears had high scoring honors for the Bullpups with 16 each.

Seven Rebels named All-South Plains

BY BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The pain could be seen on the faces of the Midland Lee Rebels after the 25-21 loss to Converse Judson in the state championship game at Texas Stadium. The pain wasn't physical. It was a mental anguish, a pain of the heart and mind.

It's a pain easy to understand. The dreams and hopes of the players depended on the outcome of that one game. They had a chance to prove they were the best in the state and came up short. They had to settle for second.

The lockerroom, except for the interviews by the press, was quite. The players were reluctant to speak, finding words hard to come by. Their impressive efforts on the field were forgotten, edged from the mind by the 25-21 score. What they had accomplished didn't seem to matter. What they failed to do, did.

But, those accomplishments will not easily be forgotten by the Rebel fans who witnessed the game — 8,000 or so at Texas Stadium and an untold number from the first-ever live broadcast of a championship game.

THOUGH IT isn't the same as a state title, a new honor was bestowed on several Rebels this weekend in the annual Lubbock Avalanche-Journal All-South Plains football team. Not only was Midland Lee well represented on the team, but several other players from the Permian Basin were named.

Rebel coach Spike Dykes, who took Lee farther this year than the school has ever been before, was named Coach of the Year while fullback Isaac Garnett earned Player of the Year honors and a first team running back position.

Garnett, who was held to 63 yards by Judson, set a school record of 1,994 yards this year in 16 games and, according to Bill McMurray of the Houston Chronicle, is No. 9 on the all-time 5A list.

Four other Lee offensive players were named to the team, coming from the front line: Tackle Tracy Sherman, guards Devoe McMillen and Coy Stewart and center Allen Bell.

Odessa Permian, Odessa High and Midland High also received berths on the elite offensive squad. Quarterback Rex Lamberti, tight end Mike Kwiatkowski and kicker Kirk Strahan represented District 4-5A champion Permian; Odessa High's Charles Hunter earned a running back spot and Midland High's Allen Foret was named at wide reciever.

Other offensive players were: Running back Randy Williams and tackle Chad Cole from Plainview; and kickoff returner Jerry Smith of Amarillo Palo Duro.

On defense, the honors were spread out a little more. Lee managed to place two on the list, end Eddie Kittle and linebacker Michael Johnson. Permian also placed two on the squad: tackle Jim Wilson and linebacker Britt Hager while Odessa High's Boyd Cowan was picked for the secondary.

Other members of the defensive unit are: Linebacker David Deathridge and secondary Shane Gay of Lubbock Monterey; Linebacker Lee Borckman and secondary Jeff Streun of Herford; End Roy Thompson of Plainview; Tackle David Scott of Amarillo High and Punter Chris Moore of Lubbock Coronado.

GARNETT IS in good company in the Texas Top 10 for 5A rushing yardage. Of course, the best of all time is Chris Pryor of Converse Judson whose 2,804 yards (16 games) this year shattered the mark set by Houston Stratford's Craig James in 1978 of 2,411 (15). Fort Worth Eastern Hills' Jeff Atkins is third with his 1982 performance of 2,333 (11) followed by Pat Sheehan's one-time record mark of 2,233 yards (15) for San Antonio Lee in 1965.

Carl Roaches rushed for 2,177 yards (14) for Houston Smiley in 1971 for fifth place; Earl Campbell for 2,036 (15) for Tyler in 1973; Bubba Hill, 2,020 (12) for Port in 1979; Jimmy Hawkins, 2,017 (12) for San Antonio Holmes in 1981; Isaac Garnett, 1,994 (16) for Lee this year and Jack Newby, 1,987 (10) for Amarillo in 1949.

ABILENE — The defending champion Midland Lee Rebels got off to a good start in District 4-5A girls basketball Monday night when they posted a 71-42 victory over Abilene Cooper.

Lee built up a 36-22 first half lead and was paced by Felicia Farias with 21 points, Tunya Mayberry with 12 and Stacy Harmon with 10.

"We just played extra well I thought," said Midland Lee coach Shirley Stephenson. "All 10 of our kids scored and they all played well."

On Thursday, the Rebels host cross-town rival Midland High, last year's No. 2 team in the 4-5A, at 8 p.m. at Lee Gym. Sophomore action starts at 4 p.m. followed by junior varsity at 6:15.

Flames beat Jets in 7-6 shootout

NHL

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Calgary Flames Coach Bob Johnson was pleased with his team's 7-6 National Hockey League victory over the Winnipeg Jets Monday night, but the high score was a nagging concern.

He said afterward he is not fond of shootouts.

"This was too wide open, much too careless," Johnson said. "I'd rather see a 3-1 game that's well-played.

"This was a good game for the fans but not the coaches. And I'm the coach."

Johnson also expressed concern about his lineup. A knee injury to left winger Dave Hindmarch last Friday in Vancouver — he collided with a goalpost — has the coach worried.

"We have to get into a routine," Johnson said. "Part of that is getting everybody healthy."

Johnson experimented Monday to fill the hole left by Hindmarch. He sent out both Steve Bozek and Richard Kromm. Although Bozek scored a key goal, Johnson is still bothered by the problem.

"We don't have the ideal player to fill that spot over the long haul," the coach said.

Rookie Hakan Loob of Sweden scored three goals in a game for the first time in his career to lead the Flames.

Calgary's Lanny McDonald scored the 400th goal of his career and he was joined by Paul Baxter, Doug Risebrough and Bozek.

Morris Lukowich had two goals, while Paul MacLean, Tim Young and Dave Babych also scored for Winnipeg.

Calgary goalie Rejean Lemelin made 30 saves, two fewer than Doug Soetaert of Winnipeg.

MacLean opened the scoring at 49 seconds, beating Lemelin with a low shot. Loob then scored two goals to put the Flames ahead.

His first came at 1:58 when he tapped in a rebound from the edge of the crease after Soetaert had a made a save. Just five minutes later, Loob took a pass from Eddy Beers from behind the net and beat Soetaert with a 10-foot shot between the pads. Beers finished with four assists.

McDonald's goal came on a power play at 8:15. He ended an eight-game slump by firing a shot between Soetaert's legs from the face-off circle.

Young scored about two minutes later, tapping in a puck lying in the crease.

Lukowich tied it at 7:01 of the second period, deflecting in a shot by Ron Wilson. Baxter restored Calgary's lead at 8:30, fooling Soetaert with a low, 40-foot shot. Loob scored his third goal at 11:44, banging in a pass frrom the corner from Eaves. Risebrough made it 6-4 at 18:46 on a penalty shot awarded by referee Don Koharski after he was pulled down from behind by Ron Wilson.

In the third period, Babych cut Calgary's lead to one early in the period, scoring on a power play.

Bozek scored the winner at 7:46, batting down a high pass from Steve Konroyd at the side of the Jets goal and banging the puck behind Soetaert.

Arneil set up an exciting finish when he scored about one minute later, tipping in a goal-mouth pass from Dale Hawerchuk.

Danielson to start in first Lion playoff game

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Lions' coach Monte Clark will spend the better part of the holiday season readying backup quarterback Gary Danielson for the National Football League playoffs.

Clark learned Monday that quarterback Eric Hipple will miss the Detroit's first playoff game with an injury to his left knee.

"Eric hurt his knee on a pass play in the third quarter (of the Lions 23-20 victory over the Tampa Bay Bucs)," Clark told a news conference. "He does have some ligament damage. The early prognosis is that he'll need two to six weeks to mend."

The coach said veteran Danielson, who came on in relief of Hipple on Sunday to fire a 6-yard touchdown pass to rookie wide receiver Jeff Chadwick to give Detroit the National Conference's Central Division title, would be at the throttle for the Lions' playoff game Dec. 31.

The game will be on the road, but the opponent and site for that game won't be known until after the Dallas Cowboys meet the Los Angeles Rams Monday in the NFC wild card game. The Lions, 9-7, could play the defending Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins or the San Francisco 49ers.

During the season, Hipple completed 204 of 387 passes for 2,577 yards and 12 touchdowns with 18 interceptions. He also was the club's fourth-leading rusher with 171 yards and three more TDs on 41 carries.

Thg less-mobile Danielson, a seven-year NFL veteran who underwent knee surgery and missed all of the 1979 season, completed 59 of 113 for 720 yards and seven touchdowns with four interceptions. He ran only six times for eight yards.

"Basically, we do the same thing with both of our quarterbacks," Clark said. "We certainly won't tell Gary not to run. He can run and slide."

Clark, who has molded the team to fit his own image during his six years as coach, said the divisional championship — the Lions' first title in 26 years — gave him great personal satisfaction.

"The guys that deserve the credit are the players themselves," Clark said. "They are the original try-hard people in pro football. We've stressed that there has to be a willingness to prepare and they've been willing."

Michaels to guide USFL's Generals

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Walt Michaels' reputation "as a tough, firm, taskmaster" helped him catch the eye of New Jersey Generals owner Donald J. Trump, who has decided the former New York Jets coach is the man to guide his United States Football League club.

Michaels, who left the Jets under duress less than a year ago, was to be introduced today as the Generals coach at a news conference.

"He's been a winner. That's what we need," Trump said Monday in a telephone interview from his New York office.

Michaels, who took the Jets to within one game of the Super Bowl last year, will take over a team that finished 6-12 in the USFL's first season.

Trump noted that Michaels directed the Jets to the National Football League's AFC championship game, where they lost to the Miami Dolphins, but the Jets suffered through a 7-9 season without him this year.

Michaels could not be reached for comment at his West Islip, N.Y., home.

The selection of Michaels as coach ends a search that began shortly after Trump purchased the Generals in September from J. Walter Duncan, an Oklahoma oilman who owned 90 percent of the club. Chuck Fairbanks, who owned the other 10 percent, stepped down as coach and team president after the sale.

Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula turned down a reported $1-million offer from Trump to coach the Generals.

Michaels, who coached the Jets from 1977 until the club announced his retirement last February, will take over a club built last season around 1982 Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker.

Walker led the USFL in rushing after he was lured away from the University of Georgia following his junior year for a reported $5 million over three years.

The defense is being reshaped around Gary Barbaro, an All-Pro safety when he was with the NFL's Kansas City Chiefs. Barbaro signed a contract with the Generals in November, after he couldn't come to terms with the Chiefs.

Meanwhile, Trump refuted reports that Cleveland Browns quarterback Brian Sipe has signed a contract with the Generals, but he said he would like to have the NFL veteran on his team.

Dave Lapham, a 10-year veteran at guard with the Cincinnati Bengals, is expected to sign a contract with the Generals. Lapham has been sent a contract by mail, but he has not yet returned it to the Generals, a New Jersey spokesman said.

San Francisco claims NFC West crown

Cowboys buried, 42-17

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco defense displayed its championship form of two years ago, making things miserable for Dallas stars Tony Dorsett and Danny White, in a division title-clinching 42-17 romp over the Cowboys Monday night.

They sent the Cowboys, two-time Super Bowl champions, into the National Football League playoffs reeling from a 1-2 punch. The rough night at Candlestick Park came eight days after a 31-10 loss to Washington which knocked Dallas out of the National Conference East lead.

"This is the worst we've ever done going into the playoffs," said head Coach Tom Landry, whose 12-4 team will face the Los Angeles Rams next Monday at Texas Stadium in the NFC wild-card game.

"Los Angeles hasn't played as well lately as earlier in the season. But they'll be a tough opponent. Anyone would be tough for us now," Landry added.

THE 49ERS, 10-6, had to win Monday night's season finale to nose out the Rams, 9-7, in the NFC West race. They were well on their way to that victory on the third play from scrimmage, when linebacker Keena Turner blitzed Dallas quarterback White and caused an unusual interception.

Turner hit White's passing arm, the ball popped a few yards into the arms of defensive end Lawrence Pillers, and Pillers ran 16 yards to the Dallas four-yard line. Montana threw a six-yard touchdown pass to fullback Roger Craig three plays later.

"Our defense was incredible. That was very inspirational. It's tough not to get enthusiastic with things like that happening," said tight end Russ Francis, who caught one of Montana's TD passes.

Montana completed only four of 16 passes in the first half, but two were for touchdowns in the opening quarter. He tossed the ball laterally to wide receiver Freddie Solomon on one play, and Solomon raced 77 yards down the left sideline to score.

"You know you'll get stopped sometimes, but other things will break big," Montana said.

"The four of 16 in the first half didn't bother me a bit," added the quarterback who was 10-for-10 in the second half as the game became a blowout.

WHITE THREW for 277 yards, falling 20 short of a 4,000-yard season. But one of his passes was intercepted and returned for a touchdown, and he fumbled twice when sacked.

Dorsett, held to 24 yards by Washington, settled for 32 yards Monday night.

"We're going to have to sit down and talk among ourselves. This was quite embarrassing," Dorsett said.

Putting a damper on the 49ers' spirits was an injury to Dwight Clark, their leading receiver. He left the game with a knee injury, and Coach Bill Walsh said he might miss the post-season games.

A 56-yard punt return by Dana McLemore gave the 49ers another touchdown and a 14-0 lead four minutes later.

Rafael Septien put Dallas on the scoreboard with a 47-yard field goal before San Francisco struck back with the touchdown by Solomon, who got key blocks from tackle Bubba Paris and receiver Dwight Clark on the dash down the sidelines.

White scored on a quarterback sneak in the second period after Michael Downs intercepted a pass and returned it 26 yards. But another Dallas scoring threat in the quarter fizzled after reaching the San Francisco 25 when Septien missed from 46 yards.

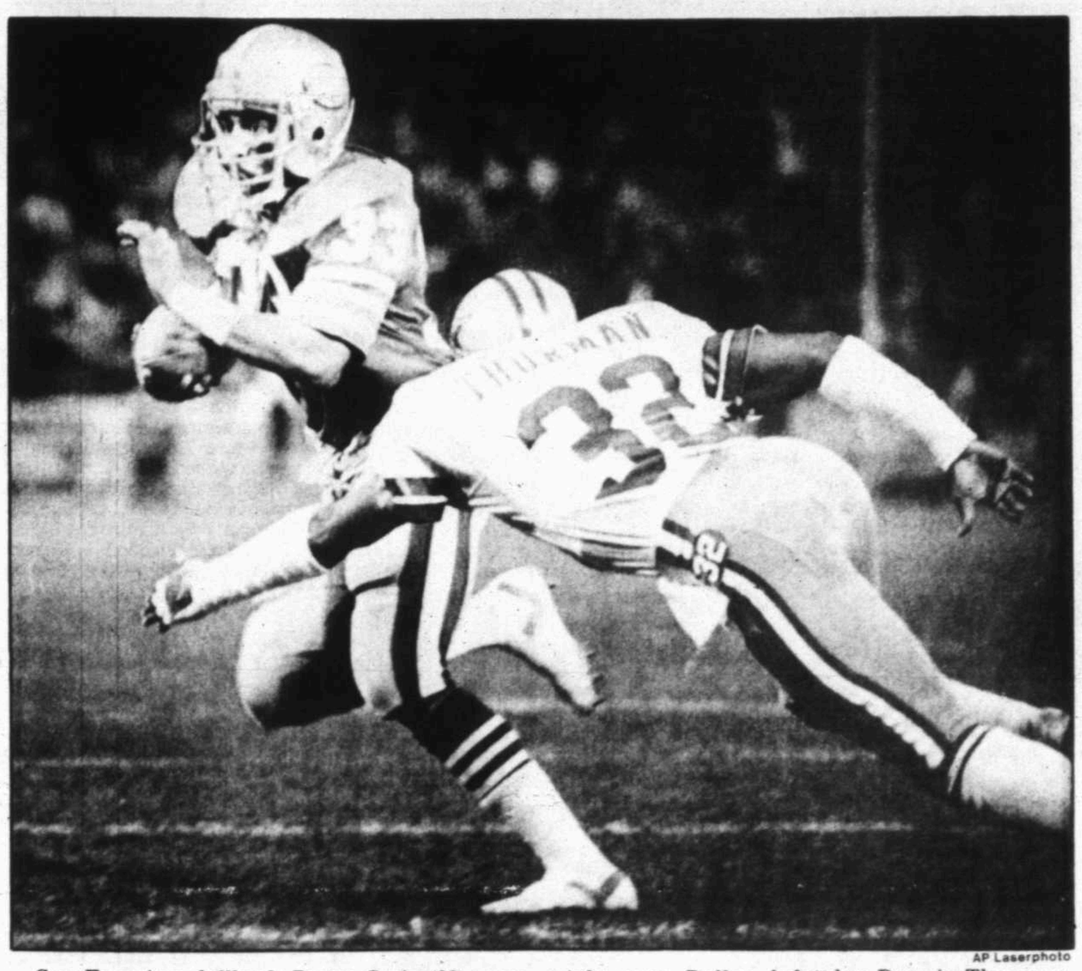

The 49ers went 75 yards after taking the second-half kickoff and scored on Montana's 18-yard pass to an uncovered Russ Francis, the tight end. Montana completed only four of 16 passes in the first half, but was 6-for-6 in the third period and hot until leaving the game midway in the final quarter.

White threw his 29th TD pass of the season, breaking his own club record, set in 1980, when he hit Tony Hill on a 13-yard strike early in the final period.

But the next time Dallas had the ball, cornerback Eric Wright intercepted a White pass and ran 48 yards for a touchdown. The final San Francisco TD, on Montana's 16-yard pass to Craig, came after White was sacked and lost a fumble at the Dallas 36.

THE VICTORY was the 49ers' third straight over the Cowboys, who lost a regular-season game at Candlestick Park by a 45-14 score in 1981 and fell here 28-27 in the NFC championship game that season.

The 49ers went on to beat the Cincinnati Bengals in Super Bowl XVI.

Young sets pace for easy Houston victory, 129-65

HOUSTON (AP) — Michael Young scored 22 points to lead Houston to a decisive 129-65 thumping over Texas Lutheran Monday night and then pronounced the nation's third-ranked college basketball team near its peak.

Texas Luthernan's outmanned Bulldogs could do little more than agree.

"I would say at this point we are executing at our top form," Young said after the statistical display. "We will work on a few weak points during the next couple of day then be ready for the road trip."

Young was one of six Cougars to score in double figures as UH led from start to finish.

"I thought the guys coming off the bench did another good job for us," UH Coach Guy Lewis said. "I think we pretty well know where we are going now. We ran the offense tonight. We took good shots and didn't do stupid things."

Houston scored the first 10 points of the game and TLC's first points came as a result of a goaltending call against 7-foot center Akeem Olajuwon with after 3:58 of the first half. The Cougars led 66-32 at the half.

Freshman forward Rickie Winslow added 20 points, 10 rebounds, eight assists and five crowd-pleasing dunk shots. Guard Alvin Franklin had 17 to match Olajuwon, who also got 11 rebounds and nine blocked shots.

Freshman Greg Anderson hit 14 points, had 13 rebounds and added five blocked shots against the shorter, outmanned Bulldogs, who dropped to a 3-5 record.

Houston had 17 blocked shots and hit 68 percent from the field for the game.

Reserve guard Eric Dickens scored a career high 13 points, including a 25-foot shot that established the biggest point spread of the game at 64 on the final shot of the game.

Houston won its eighth straight game, after an opening loss to North Carolina State, and scored over 100 points for the second time this season.

Bruce Spencer led Texas Lutheran with 20 points.

Tigers destroy Bears

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Vincent Hamilton scored 20 points and Murray Jarman 18 to lead Clemson to a 102-52 intersectional basketball victory over Baylor Monday.

The Tigers played without head coach Bill Foster, who missed the game with a stomach virus, and lost starting point guard David Shaffer with a stress fracture in his foot.

Shaffer is expected to miss at least two and a half weeks and may return in time for Clemson's Jan. 9 Atlantic Coast Conference opener against North Carolina State, according to Clemson team physician Dr. Byron Harder.

Assistant Coach Jerry Faulkner took over coaching duties for Foster.

Clemson shot 72 percent the first half, to take a 56-29 lead and finished overall with 66 percent accuracy from the field, while Baylor shot a cool 30 percent.

It was the seventh straight win for the Tigers, while Baylor slipped to 3-6.

It was a close game until midway through the first half when the Tigers reeled off 14 straight points to take a 35-18 lead with 5:40 left before intermission.

The Tigers had another rally, outscoring Baylor 11-3 as Jarman scored 6 points and Anthony Jenkins 3.

The game was never in doubt in the second half as the Tigers had five players in double figures. Chris Michael had 14, Marc Campbell and Anthony Jenkins had 11 each.

James Stern led the Bears with 14 points, and Brown had 12.

SMU rolls USI, 91-70

DALLAS (AP) — Junior forward Larry Davis hith eight of nine shots from the field to lead Southern Methodist to a 91-70 win over U.S. International in a non-conference college basketball game Monday night.

SMU, which raised its season record to 8-1, jumped to an 18-4 but U.S. International then slowed the pace of the game and kept within 10 points of the Mustangs for most of the game.

Alan Rosser scored 24 points for the Gulls, whose season record fell to 1-13.

Davis finished with 16 points for SMU, Kevin Lewis, Butch Moore and Carl Wright had 12 points each, Jon Koncak had 11 and John Briggs 10 for the Mustangs.

UTEP plays best game

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -- Texas-El Paso Coach Don Haskins thought his team played its best game of the year Monday night as the Miners got 15 points from Kent Lockhart to beat Louisiana Tech 82-70 and give Haskins his 399th career victory.

"The first 10 minutes we just couldn't do anything wrong," said Haskins.

The Miners, 7-0 for the season, hit nine of their first 10 shots from the floor to take an 18-8 lead early in the game.

"The difference in the game was out depth," said Haskings. "We could count on several different players to contribute."

But Haskins said Lousiana Tech was extremely aggressive on defense and might be one of the best teams UTEP will face all season.

"We had to play our best game of the year to win. If we hadn't, we surely would have lost," said Haskins.

Louisiana Tech cut the margin to 5, 35-30 at the half. But UTEP outscored the Bulldogs 10-2 at the start of the second half to take a 45-32 lead.

Louisiana, now 7-2, cut the lead to six points, 72-66, on a basket by Alan Davis with 2:06 remaining, but could draw no closer.

Davis led all scorers with 19 points. Rennie Bailey and Karl Malone contributed 16 points apiece for the Bulldogs.

Luster Goodwin and Fred Reynolds scored 14 points apiece for UTEP and Dave Feitl added 13.

LSU finds miracle

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State Coach Dale Brown said only one word could described the way his 10th-rated Tigers fought back for a 60-59 victory over Houston Baptist on Monday night: a miracle.

"It is probably a miracle comeback," said Brown after his club took the one-point victory on Leonard Mitchell's rebound basket with 18 seconds to play.

"I never gave up, but I was sitting on the bench thinking of just how we could come back and win it," Brown said. "I think this was a game that was won purely on will. I think it is the best comeback we have probably ever made here."

For unranked and virtually unnoticed Houston Baptist, it was a disappointing loss, as they led by 10 points with a little over five minutes to play.

"The thing that pleases me is the way that we stayed to our game plan from start to finish" said Houston Baptist Coach Gene Iva. "I think our players played extremely well.

"I think this means an awful lot to our program and to our players. I think we've been overlooked. I think a few more people will notice us and take a look at us."

Tar Heels hold No. 1 rating

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina, which did not play last week, retained its No. 1 ranking in this week's Associated Press' college basketball poll released today.

The Tar Heels received 36 first place votes and 1,233 points from the 63 participating sportswriters and broadcasters on the national panel, while second-ranked Kentucky received 27 first place votes and 1,224 points in a result almost identical to the previous week's.

Kentucky trounced Wyoming 66-40 and Brigham Young 93-59 last week to raise its record to 5-0, the same as North Carolina.

Houston and Georgetown, each 7-1, stayed at No. 3 and 5, respectively, each cruising to easy victories last week. Meanwhile, DePaul, 7-0, which overcame scares in the Suntory Ball in Japan squeezing by Alabama 77-76 and Texas Tech 50-47, retained the No. 4 spot.

Two other clubs with 7-0 records, Boston College and Purdue, each climbed two notches to Nos. 6 and 7, with 810 and 710 points, respectively. Maryland, 5-1, advanced one place to No. 8.

The lone newcomer to the Top Twenty is No. 20 Michigan, 7-0, which beat Detroit 84-63 last Saturday. Last week's No. 18 team, Iowa, was idle but the 3-2 Hawkeyes became this week's only casualty as they dropped from the poll.

Entering this week's Top Ten by virtue of nationally-televised upsets were UCLA and Louisville, each climbing six places to No. 9 and 10. The Bruins, 4-1, knocked off Memphis State 65-51 and the Cardinals, 4-2, beat last year's national champs North Carolina State 83-79.

Tied for sixth place last week, North Carolina State, 7-2, and Memphis State, 5-2, dropped to Nos. 13 and 16, respectively.

In the Second Ten, Louisiana State, 4-1, saw no action last week but dropped a notch to No. 11. St. John's 6-0, which had little trouble with Manhattan and Wagner, moved up a place to No. 12 as Georgia, 6-1, moved down two to No. 14.

Oregon State, 4-1, fell one slot to No. 15 despite beating Utah and Portland. Wake Forest and Texas El-Paso — both newcomers to the poll the previous week — each moved up two places to No. 17 and 18, respectively, while Michigan State, 5-1, fell two notches to No. 19.

Two UT part-time starters quit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senior Don Ellis and freshman Mike Hess, two part-time starters for the Texas Longhorn basketball team, quit the squad Monday.

They are the second and third players to quit the team this month, continuing a pattern that began after Bob Weltlich was hired as Texas coach in the spring of 1982.

Four calls by The Associated Press to reach Weltlich on Monday were unsuccessful.

From May 1982 to January 1983, four players quit the Texas team, and Weltlich dismissed another for attitude problems. Weltlich was hired from Mississippi to replace Abe Lemons, who had been fired.

This season's defections started Dec. with the loss of senior forward Bill Wendlandt, the team's leading scorer and most valuable player in 1982-83.

On Monday, Ellis, a 6-foot 5½-inch forward from Detroit, and Hess, a 6-0 guard from Newport Beach, Calif., said they had told Weltlich they were quitting.

Ellis, a junior college All-American at Nebraska Wesleyan, was recruited first by Lemons and transferred to Texas last year. He was named Longhorn captain, and averaged eight points a game before breaking a wrist at midseason. This year he has started three games and scored 16 points, with 12 rebounds.

Ellis said he had no regrets about coming to Texas, "nothing bad about coach Weltlich but from talking to other players, from what they said, I might have done a little better under Lemons."

Hess said he had told Weltlich "overall it really wasn't the program for me. We didn't suit each other, didn't fit each other." Hess said later he would prefer to say he was leaving for "personal reasons."

Blue still facing Kuhn's penalty

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — After receiving a three-month jail term for possession of cocaine, former star pitcher Vida Blue now faces possible further punishment from baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn last week announced a one-year suspension — with possible reinstatement as early as May 15 — for three of Blue's 1983 Kansas City Royals teammates who were caught in a federal drug probe.

However, after Blue was sentenced Monday, one of his attorneys alluded to indications by the players unions that it would fight Kuhn's suspension of Willie Wilson, Jerry Martin and Willie Aikens.

"Sometimes the players association has been successful in challenging the commissioner, and sometimes it has not," said Steve Fehr, whose brother, Don, is acting head of the players union. "There is a substantial possibility that Aikens, Martin and Wilson will be eligible to play baseball when spring training begins."

A spokesman at Kuhn's office in New York said Blue's case would be reviewed by the commissioner before any further action might be taken against him.

In imposing the sentence against Blue, U.S. Magistrate J. Milton Sullivant indicated there may have been a sharp distinction between the extent of Blue's drug involvement and that of the other three players, who all pleaded guilty to attempting to possess cocaine and were sentenced to three months in a minimum-security prison in Fort Worth, Texas.

Blue, 34, pleaded guilty to possession of three grams of cocaine and was the only Royal who testified before a grand jury hearing evidence on drug trafficking in the Kansas City area.

"Mr. Blue, were it not for the fact that you have cooperated with the government in this case, your sentence would be much more severe," said Sullivant, who also levied a $5,000 fine. The maximum prison term on the misdemeanor possession charge was one year.

Blue's attorneys said he had been undergoing treatment at a California drug rehabilitation center.

In a voice that seemed on the verge of choking several times, Blue described drug use as a "monster" that makes "midgets out of giants."

He also said he regretted that his actions had betrayed the "trust and respect of my friends and my family. I regret that it took something this tragic to make me realize there was something lying dormant in me that was so terrible."

Blue, the American League's Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner in 1971 with the Oakland A's, was one of baseball's biggest stars through the 1970s. He was the winning pitcher for the American League in the 1971 All-Star Game, and matched the feat while pitching for the National League All-Stars in 1981.

He won 191 games through 1982 but was ineffectual last season and was released by the Royals on Aug. 5 after compiling an 0-5 record and a 6.01 earned run average. He and his attorneys asked for leniency in part because of his desire to resume his baseball career.

"Drug use is a monster — it's made midgets out of giants, it's made bums out of executives, and it's made crybabies out of very strong persons," Blue said. "Chemical dependency can be just as deadly as cancer."

Blue's attorneys pleaded that even a short jail term could seriously endanger his chances of getting a job in baseball next year, especially because he might miss spring training.

Unheralded Evansville trumps No. 7 Purdue, 80-65

College Basketball

By The Associated Press

Unheralded Evansville had Richie Johnson, Harold Howard and an enthusiastic crowd on its side. Too many Aces, it turned out, for No. 7 Purdue.

Johnson scored 22 points, including a layup and two free throws during a late surge, as Evansville surprised the previously undefeated Boilermakers 80-65 Monday night in college basketball.

The two teams were tied 55-55 with 4:40 to go before a three-point play by Howard put Evansville ahead for good. Purdue's Jim Bullock made a free throw to cut the deficit to two, but a rebound basket by 6-foot-10 Bobby Wallace triggered an eight-point spree that gave the Aces a 10-point lead with just over a minute remaining.

"This was the biggest win of my career," said Evansville Coach Dick Walters, whose team is now 5-3.

"We got what we deserved," said Purdue Coach Gene Keady, whose team slipped to 7-1.

In other Top Twenty action, Fresno State upset No. 15 Oregon State 60-47, while No. 3 Houston crushed Texas Lutheran 129-65; No. 7 Louisiana State edged Houston Baptist 60-59; No. 9 UCLA bounced Howard 63-52 and No. 18 Texas-El Paso downed Louisiana Tech 82-70.

Johnson, a 6-9 forward, scored four points and Howard, who finished with 16, had the other two during Evansville's late streak. The Aces made eight foul shots in the last minute and Wallace's stuff at the buzzer completed the upset.

"The big keys in the game were that we played hard for 40 minutes and we weren't intimidated," Walters said. "The fans were a great factor in our favor also. I can't say enough about the support we had from them tonight."

The teams seesawed through the first half before Evansville took a 35-31 lead at intermission.

"Lack of concentration and impatience were our problems," Keady said. "They just played better than us. And the crowd was really into the game."

Jim Rowinski scored 17 points and Bullock added 16 for Purdue.

Top Ten

LSU, which trailed by 10 points with five minutes remaining, rallied to win when Leonard Mitchell grabbed a missed shot and stuffed home the rebound with 18 seconds left to play.

"It is probably a miracle comeback," said LSU Coach Dale Brown. "I never gave up, but I was sitting on the bench thinking of just how we could come back."

The Tigers, 5-1, never led in the second half until John Tudor's jump shot gave them a 58-57 edge with 1:28 remaining. Mitchell and Derek Taylor each had 16 for LSU, while Matt England, who transferred from LSU to Houston Baptist, scored 18 for the losers, 6-2.

Howard scored just nine points in the first half — the lowest point total for a half in the history of UCLA's Pauley Pavilion — and trailed the Bruins 29-9 at intermission.

UCLA, which got 13 points from Stuart Gray and 12 from Kenny Fields, scored the final 13 points of the half in improving to 5-1.

Second Ten

In Fresno, Calif., Bernard Thompson scored 22 points and sparked a 12-point run early in the second half that carried Fresno State past Oregon State. The 49ers' streak gave them a 40-24 lead and Oregon State, 4-2, never got closer than eight points the rest of the way. Fresno State outrebounded the visitors, 45-21.

"Fatigue was a big factor," said Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller, whose team was playing its third game in four days.

Unranked Teams

In other games, Iowa — which had been ranked 18th last week — got 16 points from Greg Stokes and beat Colorado 72-56. The Hawkeyes, 4-2, led 38-21 at halftime.

Vincent Hamilton scored 20 points as Clemson, playing without Coach Bill Foster, breezed past Baylor 102-52. Foster missed the game with a stomach virus and assistant coach Jerry Faulkner took over.

Center Greg Dreiling scored 19 points, including eight down the stretch, to propel Kansas over Oral Roberts 65-64.

Keith Thomas sank a 16-foot jump shot to break a tie midway through the second half and send Old Dominion past Western Kentucky 75-68.

Charles Barkley, recovering from a back sprain, scored 18 points while playing spraingly as Auburn routed Eastern Kentucky 100-60.

Junior forward Larry Davis made eight of nine shots from the field to lead Southern Methodist past U.S. International 91-70.

Tommy Davis tallied 23 points and Minnesota stalled in the final three minutes to hold off Jacksonville 52-50; freshman guard Andre Laird came off the bench to score 14 points as Mississippi topped Mercer 82-64; and Keith Jones scored 28 as Stanford beat Stanford 79-66.

Nelson Franse and Tim Garrett each scored 22 points as New Mexico beat Eastern New Mexico 74-63; Tim Kuyper's 15 points helped Washington beat St. Mary's 69-51; and Clyde Eads scored 20 to pace Tulane over Georgia State 77-52.

Former University of Arkansas head football coach Lou Holtz.

Recruiting a worry for Razorbacks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — While most college coaches are out on the road looking for talented football players to join their teams for next season, Arkansas is looking for a new head coach.

And at least one member of the Arkansas football team is worried about how the latest change at Fayetteville will affect recruiting.

Coach Lou Holtz tendered his resignation Sunday and announced in a news conference Monday that he was leaving Arkansas for personal reasons that he didn't want to discuss.

Athletic Director Frank Broyles said in a later news conference that he would begin a search for a replacement immediately. If a new coach isn't named by the end of the week, he said, Assistant Lon Farrell would handle recruiting.

"My biggest concern now is how all this will affect recruiting," sophomore defensive back Greg Lasker of Conway said. "It was already kind of unsettling because we were getting a whole new defensive staff. We'll just have to wait and see who is hired and what develops."

Center Greg Garrison from Conway said Holtz had talked confidently about the future at a team meeting before the Razorbacks left for the semester break.

"He said he was working on getting some good, new assistant coaches and was very excited about the off-season program," Garrison said. "I found it hard to believe he just upped and resigned."

Garrison said, "I think what got Coach Holtz in trouble there was he will do anything for a friend. Even though he knew it might get him in trouble, he would never tell a friend no. He would go ahead and do it. He was like that. He would never worry about the consequences when it had to do with a friend. He would do anything for a player."

In Little Rock, offensive guard Marcus Elliott said Sunday, "I had no idea he was considering resigning. I was really shocked."

Rival coach Fred Akers at the University of Texas said Holtz's resignation was a complete surprise.

"I haven't talked to him or Broyles in about a month now, and I'm really shocked," Akers said. "I knew they had some disruptions up there with some of their assistant coaches, and some of them had to leave.

"The state of Arkansas is a proud state, though, and even with Holtz leaving their football program will survive."

Broyles has mentioned Akers as one of the people who would be considered for the vacancy.

Steelers face first playoff game without Bradshaw

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In their 51 seasons of existence, the Pittsburgh Steelers have played 19 post-season championship playoff games. Terry Bradshaw has been the quarterback in every one of them.

They've played the Los Angeles, nee Oakland, Raiders in five of them. Bradshaw has been the quarterback in all five, including the Steelers' famed 13-7 "Immaculate Reception" playoff victory over the Raiders in 1972.

But in two weeks, when the Steelers meet the Raiders in the 1983 playoffs, they face the prospect of playing with someone other than the injured Bradshaw at quarterback.

That almost seems sacrilegious for a playoff game between the Steelers and Raiders, the National Football League's two dominant teams of the 1970s. The Steelers and Raiders won six of the seven Super Bowls from 1974-80. Bradshaw was a key to the four titles Pittsburgh won in those years.

But Steelers Coach Chuck Noll acknowledged Monday at his weekly news conference that he has no idea who his quarterback will be in Los Angeles on New Year's weekend.

Bradshaw has played less than 16 minutes in a 16-game regular season, just long enough to throw two touchdown passes in a 34-7 victory over the New York Jets.

Cliff Stoudt guided the Steelers to seven consecutive victories, but has been a loser in his last four starts. Mark Malone has played only twice, mopping up for Stoudt in a 30-17 loss to the Cleveland Browns on Sunday.

"We find oursleves in a situation we don't want to be in," Noll said. "Everybody starts questioning themselves and it ends up not being a good situation."

Noll said that if the Steelers had to play this week, Stoudt would again likely be the quarterback.

"Cliff's the leading contender," Noll said. "We'll make the decision in the best interests of the football team."

Noll would like to have the 35-year-old Bradshaw ready to play, but he reinjured his right elbow against the Jets.

Lamar's Everett named SLC player of week

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Junior college newcomer Jerry Everett was named Southland Conference player of the week Monday after figuring prominently in three Lamar basketball victories last week.

The 6-foot-5, 191-pound transfer student helped the Cardinals to victories at Weber Sate and a team title at the Evansville Invitational tournament with 55 points and 16 assists.

A Roosevelt, N.Y., native, Everett was named to the all-tournament team at Evansville as the Cardinals defeated Northern Arizona and the host Purple Aces, after leading Lamar at Weber State with a game-high 17 points.

For the week, Everett, who came to Lamar by way of McLennan Community College in Waco, Texas, shot 75 percent from the floor, hitting 21 of 28 shots, including nine of 10 against Northern Arizona. He also made 13 of 17 shots from the free throw line and pulled down 12 rebounds, including a team-high six against NAU.

Other players nominated this week were Arkansas State forward Marvin Stevens, Louisiana Tech guard Rennie Bailey and North Texas State guard Todd Warren.

Second Oiler coach of season hands in resignation

Studley may go to Dolphins

HOUSTON (AP) — Interim Coach Chuck Studley became the second Houston Oiler head coach to quit this season Monday when he handed in his resignation after learning he would not be a serious candidate for the job next season.

Studley, who started the season as the Oilers' defensive coordinator under Ed Biles, assumed the head coaching duties on Oct. 10 when Biles resigned with the team in the midst of a 17-game losing streak.

Studley guided the Oilers to a 2-8 record over the final 10 games of the season that included victories over Detroit and Cleveland. The Oilers lost their finale Sunday to Baltimore 20-10.

"I have concluded that it is in the best interests of this team that I resign as head coach," Studley said. "Prior to this, I said I felt strongly that I should be rehired."

Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzeg and Studley met Sunday night following the loss to the Colts, Studley said.

"He told me at that time it was not his intention to rehire me as coach," Studley said. "There was talk about me being a candidate for the job but I didn't want to sit around and see how this thing comes out. There might be other positions available."

HERZEG SAID Studley realized when he took the job, the obstacles that lay ahead.

"We have maintained the position that throughout his tenure as interim head coach both he and the staff would be evaluated at the conclusion of the season," Herzeg said in a statement.

Herzeg said Studley, along with assistant coaches Kay Dalton, Andy Bourgeois, Vic Rapp, Elijah Pitts , Ralph Staub and Dick Selcer, had been given permission to speak with other clubs concerning future employement.

Offensive line Coach Bill Walsh signed a long term contract last season and will remain with the club, Herzeg said. Herzeg gave defensive backs coach Ken Houston a vote of confidence.

Studley confirmed that he planned to talk to the Miami Dolphins on Tuesday about becoming the team's defensive coordinator. Studley said he had not been offered the job but thought it would be a good opportunity.

Studley said Herzeg's hesitation about naming him immediately brought about his resignation.

"I thought if there was any reluctance at all to appoint me as head coach, then I should step down," Studley said. "They know me as well as they are going to know me."

While Studley made his exit, former Canadian Football League quarterback Warren Moon was scheduled to meet with Oiler officials to discuss a possible contract.

Hugh Campbell, head coach of the Los Angeles Express of the United States Football League, has been rumored as the leading candidate to replace Studley.

Studley leaves behind a team that has won only three games in two seasons and must face an off-season of changes in coaching staff, try to solve a quarterbacking problem and deal with the demand by Pro Bowl running back Earl Campbell to be traded.

Aside from breaking the team out of a losing streak, Studley faced other crises in his brief reign as head coach.

Campbell demanded to be traded after he was removed from a game against Cincinnati Nov. 6 in the Astrodome. Studley was openly critized by linebacker Gregg Bingham, who said the interim coach should not be retained.

Studley said he felt he handled both situations correctly.

"I thought the confrontation with Earl Campbell and Gregg Bingham were handled in the best manner for the players involved and for the benefit of the team" Studley said.

At a regular press conference Monday, Houston Oiler interim head coach Chuck Studley resigned his position because he was not considered to be a serious contender for the full-time job.

Green Bay finally runs out of patience, fires Starr

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Nine years of patience with the often lacklustre performance of the Green Bay Packers ended abruptly with the firing of coach Bart Starr.

As a record-breaking quarterback in the 1960s, he led the Green Bay Packers to National Football League championships under coach Vince Lombardi. But after taking over in 1974 as coach, he was able to get the club into the playoffs only one season.

"I haven't enjoyed enough victories here, so thus I am being relieved of my duties," Starr, 49, said Monday. "I have no regrets ... I grew up here and became a man as a player."

Club president Robert J. Parins announced Starr's dismissal even before the 45-member board of directors had convened its annual postseason meeting to discuss Starr's contractual future.

He said Starr's immediate coaching staff also was dismissed.

Had the Packers defeated the Chicago Bears Sunday and qualified for the National Football Conference playoffs, "we wouldn't have been here today," Parins told a press conference when asked about the significance of the 23-21 season-ending loss.

Parins said he probably "will make the final decision" on hiring a Starr successor, and that the club had no immediate prospects.

RICHIE PETITBON, assistant head coach of the Washington Redskins, was mentioned as a candidate by one source.

The firing decision "was difficult, not only because of what it means to Bart — because Bart is almost synonymous with the Green Bay Packers, but also because of what it means to the coaching staff," Parins said in a statement.

The disenchantment had led to occasional booing by usually loyal fans in Green Bay's Lambeau Field. The Packers are virtually a state institution, and their affairs are felt all the way to the state capital.

"I feel badly for Starr," Gov. Anthony S. Earl said. "It is regretable he couldn't have done better. I think it is about time for a change, although I say that with some sad feelings."

In a Milwaukee shopping center within hours of Parins' announcement, a newspaper's random survey of 21 passersby showed 76 percent approved of the firing.

THE PACKERS were 8-8 this season. They finished 8-8 in 1981, their best won-lost record since 1978. In 1982, at 5-3-1, they made the playoffs for the first time in a decade, and optimism was high for 1983.

Then early-season injuries required Starr to round-up substitutes in a hurry, especially for the defense. The Packers labored through the season with some of the worst defensive statistics in the NFL, kept alive only by the persistence of quarterback Lynn Dickey.

Starr's firing saddened some of the Packers.

Even linebacker Mike Douglass, having threatened Sunday to file a grievance against Starr for having suspended him from a game two weeks ago because of critical remarks to a newspaper, was sympathetic Monday.

"It is like a family," Douglass said. "We have had some things that have happened, but we have had some good things that have happened too. I respect him totally as a man."

"I cannot pass judgment," defensive end Ezra Johnson said. "He was a helluva coach. He was a man of his word, a man I have a great deal of respect for."

Starr still had a year on his contract. His assistant coaches whose contracts also were terminated are offensive coordinator Bob Schnelker, defensive coordinator John Meyer, John Brunner, Lew Carpenter, Ross Fichtner, Monte Kiffin, Ermie McMillan, Bill Meyers, Dick Rehbein and Richard Urich.

Schnelker said he is unsure "what they are looking for" in the way of a new coach, but that he is considering applying for the job.

THE BOARD of Directors met Monday evening and ratified Parins' actions.

Much has been made of the fact that Starr did not call a timeout late in the fourth quarter Sunday. It could have interrupted the momentum of a drive by the Bears who, deftly using the clock to preserve their cadence, achieved a game-winning field goal with only 10 seconds to spare.

"I don't know," Starr said when asked if that might have been the final straw in Parins' opinion. "I am uncertain as to how much of a factor that was."

Starr had only two winning seasons, 1982 and 1978 (8-7-1). He lost out on the 1978 playoffs, however, by losing the final two games to Los Angeles and the Bears.

This season's controversies included his firings of defensive back Maurice Harvey and lineman Casey Merrill, who he said were not playing up to standard.

Then tackle Greg Koch quit training camp, fullback Eddie Lee Ivery signed up for drug rehabilitation, and Douglass was suspended for complaining to a newspaper about being criticized in front of fellow players.

"The over-all performance of the team was a strong factor" in the firing, Parins said. "But those other things were disturbing influences. They were to me. So when you put the whole bundle together, it made for my final decision."

Starr was picked by Green Bay as a 17th-round draft choice in 1956. In Lombardi's first year as coach in 1959, he moved him to a starting assignment.

Starr quarterbacked the team to five NFL championships. It also won the first two Super Bowls.

He quit playing in 1972. After a year as quarterback coach under Dan Devine, he went into private business, including a car-sales firm in Alabama and posing in T-shirt commercials on television.

Redskins' Gibbs defends AP Coach of Year honor

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Gibbs, who guided the defending Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins back to the top of the National Football League standings in 1983, was named today The Associated Press Coach of the Year for the second successive season.

Gibbs becomes the first coach since Allie Sherman of the 1961-62 New York Giants to win the award outright two years in a row. Don Shula, now with Miami, was Coach of the Year with the Baltimore Colts in 1967 and 1968, sharing the honor with George Allen of the Los Angeles Rams the first year.

"I'm overwhelmed," Gibbs said when told of his selection. "It's a reflection on the whole team." The Redskins, who during the strike-shortened 1982 season shared the NFL's best record with the Los Angeles Raiders, each at 8-1, finished this year alone at the top with a 14-2 record.

Gibbs' record in his three seasons as Washington's head coach is 30-11, including losses in his first five games, in the Redskins 8-8 finish of 1981.

Gibbs received 33 of the 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters. His closest challengers were Chuck Noll of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who received 14 votes, and John Robinson, the Rams' rookie head coach, with 10.

Others receiving votes were Dan Reeves of the Denver Broncos (6), Chuck Knox of the Seattle Seahawks, and Shula (5 apiece), Frank Kush of the Baltimore Colts (4), Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys and Tom Flores of the Los Angeles Raiders (3 apiece), and Bum Phillips of the New Orleans Saints (1).

When asked whom he would have voted for in Coach of the Year balloting, Gibbs smiled and said: "I'll probably get a lot of kidding about this, but I'd vote for Landry." It was Landry's Cowboys whom Gibbs' Redskins defeated 31-10 10 days ago.

The victory was one of the highs in a season that began with a low — the 31-30 loss to Dallas, when the Cowboys rallied from a 23-3 halftime deficit. "That was the low point," Gibbs said, "losing the opener. First, the way we lost it, then realizing what we had to do to regain the home-field advantage. Losing to Dallas and still having 15 games left, that was terrible."

Gibbs describes himself as "a common-sense person" in terms of coaching. "The greatness I leave to other people to determine.

"The Nolls, the Landrys, the Shulas — these are the really successful people. Sometimes I think about the guys who have come and gone and fade away so quickly. That's what scares me. That's what drives me."

Jimmy Connors returns the ball to Ivan Lendl in the championship match of the Nastase-Hamptons Tennis Tournament Monday.

Connors downs Lendl to win Nastase tennis

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Second-seeded Jimmy Connors outslugged No. 1-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 7-6, 6-1 Monday to take the championship of the $330,000 Ilie Nastase Hamptons Invitational Tennis Tournament.

Connors, who also beat Lendl in the finals of the U.S. Open, walked away with $90,000 and a gold and silver trophy valued at $17,000.

"Now I wish I could go on playing without taking my two weeks off," Connors said after the match. "But I also work hard on my vacation. I still work on my tennis during my time off."

With the score 6-5 in the tie-breaker, a fan gasped as Lendl hit a forehand return after serving. His shot went wide and Connors won the tie-breaker 10-8.

"I was very upset and annoyed," Lendl said. "After I hit the shot, I knew it was someone in the crowd but it was too late.

"I thought I was serving a lot better than in the past few days, but against Jimmy it doesn't matter. You have to work very hard for each point."

Connors said he heard nothing.

In the third set, Connors jumped out to a 5-0 lead.

"Any time you jump off to a lead like that against someone capable of playing the kind of tennis he can, you wonder when the barrage is going to start," Connors said.

"I don't know if I could have played four sets. It was kind of a weird tie breaker, it could have gone either way. Once I won that tie-breaker, I felt he kind of lost it."

Marty Riessen and Sherwood Stewart defeated Steven Meister and Van Winitsky 6-4, 7-6 to take the doubles title.

Only four teams have had playoff seasons

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Welcome to the National Football League playoffs, a parody on parity.

Ten teams are in, but only four of them — Washington and Dallas in the National Conference and Miami and the Los Angeles Raiders in the American Conference — have had playoff seasons.

The rest are there on passes, up-and-down teams barely better than mediocre who nevertheless remain in the chase for Super Bowl XVIII.

The National Football League uses a tie-breaking formula in its standings that is matched for confusion only by its recipe for rating quarterbacks. The result is a last-day scramble that sends teams coming and going in and out of the playoffs, at a dizzying pace.

All week long we heard the possibilities. "If this happens and that happens, then ... " Well, as quarterback-turned broadcaster Don Meredith once sagely observed, "If ifs and buts were candies and nuts, we'd have a heckuva Christmas."

The best thing to do is sit back and wait to see who winds up with the best records. But that doesn't always work, either.

The Detroit Lions were 9-7 this season. That makes them champions of the NFC Central Division. Raise the pennant to the top of the Silverdome and thank heaven they live in a division with three 8-8 teams — Green Bay, Chicago and Minnesota.

The Cleveland Browns were 9-7 this season. That makes them also-rans in the AFC Central Division and sends them home for the holidays, even though two other 9-7 AFC teams — Seattle and Denver — are celebrating playoff berths and the 9-7 Lions own a division title in the NFC. That may make sense at NFL Control but it could take some explaining elsewhere.

The NFL has some truly outstanding football teams. Two of them, Dallas and Washington, happen to play in the same division, the NFC East. How a team from Texas comes to play in an East division is a whole other subject to be explored when we explain what Atlanta and New Orleans are doing in the NFC West. The problem is there can be only one team at the top of a division. So when the Redskins and Cowboys went head-to-head a week ago in Dallas, it was the First Place Bowl.

The Redskins won and then nailed down the division title by beating the New York Giants in the final game. That doomed Dallas to wild-card status in the playoffs, a sort of second-class citizenship that will keep the Cowboys on the road after the tournament-opening game against the conference's other wild card — either San Francisco or Los Angeles.

The California team that is not the wild card comes out of this with the NFC West title and the home field in the second round. That means, if Dallas survives the wild-card game, it plays on the road in the next round against a team with a poorer record. That hardly seems fair, although it has happened before. And it is not impossible to survive. Remember that in 1980, the Raiders were a wild card and won the Super Bowl.

The NFL's competition committee is responsible for this intricate system and its chairman, Tex Schramm, also happens to be president of the Dallas Cowboys, placing him in an interesting position.

Oil stocks follow rig count down

By DONALD C. BAUDER
Copley News Service

AN ANALYSIS

Wall Street analysts have a fixation on a statistic called the "rig count."

I confess that for several years I thought the rig count represented the number of hot new stock issues that had been surreptitiously manipulated skyward that week — or the number of public service projects in which all the bids were rigged.

It's neither. The rig count tells how many rigs are drilling for oil domestically. In the late 1970s and early 1980s, when the United States was trying to establish energy independence and energy stocks were soaring, the rig count was all-important. Of course, that activity came asunder a couple of years ago, and the rig count plunged.

In 1981, about $41 billion was spent on exploration in the United States. This year, it will be something like $19 billion, according to John P. Dessauer, publisher of Dessauer's Journal.

In 1981, the companies supplying services and equipment to the oil drillers had a record year — but things have gone sharply downhill ever since. Oilfield service and equipment companies have gone into bankruptcy. Banks that loaned heavily to the drillers are in miserable shape.

The stock market caught the trend. The stocks plunged as earnings plunged. The rig count seemed to bottom out last April, and the stocks rode up for awhile, but they have since cooled down as investors realized that the rig count, while rising, was still far below the rig count of two years earlier.

Kevin Conboy of Wall Street's E.F. Hutton estimates that the rig count will exceed 2,700 by the end of this year. But in 1981 it was running around 4,300.

According to Financial Weekly, the earnings of 111 oil and natural gas services companies have plunged by a collective 72 percent over the past 12 months. The stocks have risen 14.2 percent during the past year (compared with the New York Stock Exchange composite's rise of 20 percent), but the oil service stocks have dropped 19.3 percent over the past several weeks.

There are some very, very high-quality companies in this business — Schlumberger is the best example — and thus there are some vocal bulls. Hutton's Conboy said, "Some major oil companies may be stepping up natural gas drilling activity."

The oil service stocks have been creamed lately, he said, because some analysts expect a $2 to $4 drop in crude oil prices. But he said "a $25 per-barrel oil price would still keep intact the incentives to drill for oil." He gives Halliburton, Schlumberger and Smith International the firm's highest rating; just a notch lower are Hughes Tool and Baker International.

"Oil exploration is picking up. Oil service stocks are likely to rise in the near term. However, the longer term is still cloudy," said Dessauer. "The cost of drilling for oil is down 25 to 30 percent from 1981. The economics of drilling for oil are more favorable than in many years."

With the economy booming, demand is up — hence, "reduced drilling costs and a guaranteed market have attracted renewed interest in exploration," he said. "Someday there will be another U.S. oil drilling boom."

Earlier, Dessauer had recommended Baker International and GEO International. He admits he was too early. "The stocks have remained weak — but be patient," he said. He expects them both to move up — and at that point, he would sell.

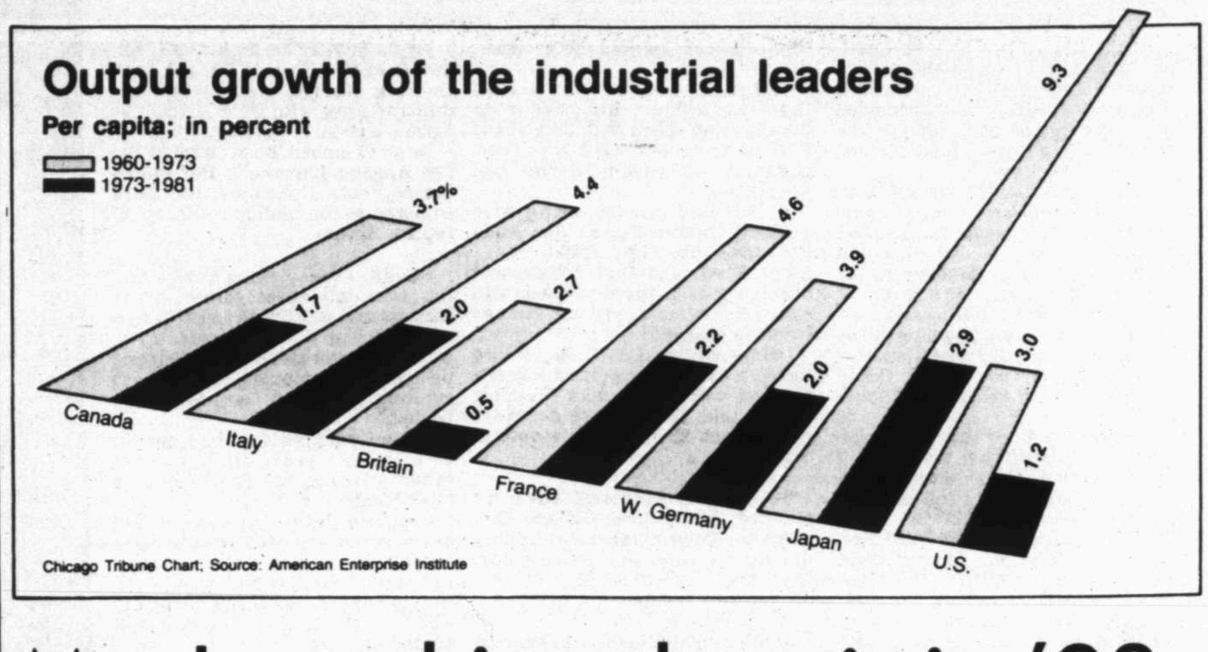

The bears in these stocks are concerned about the international oil price weakening. OPEC members have a huge trade deficit; the cartel may not be able to keep its production discipline. (Definitely, the rig count should be a description of OPEC's pricing policies.)

"We would not purchase these issues," said Steven G. Einhorn of Wall Street's Goldman, Sachs. "The long-term risks facing this industry remain unchanged — the risk of a substantial oil price decline; excess oil producing capacity, which should depress new exploration, particularly in OPEC countries; a continuing glut of natural gas, which is unlikely to be alleviated in the near future; continuing declines in international drilling activity and overcapacity within the oil service industry."

Einhorn says the companies should show some improvement in 1984 — but will then sink back again in 1985 and 1986.

"The offshore drilling industry, after three years of prosperity (1979-1981) is now in a very difficult period," said A. Jack Linder of Wall Street's Dean Witter. "Rig utilization worldwide is just over 75 percent and rig contract charges have fallen in some markets by as much as 60 percent."

He, too, expects continuing increases in oilfield activity in 1984 — but that's not enough to make the stocks attractive. He is neutral on the stocks.

Market schizophrenic in '83; Will bull stumble in 1984?

By ARELO SEDERBERG
Hearst Feature Service

It has been a schizophrenic year for the stock market, which means that investing in equities has often been a tramatic experience. Those who made money had to work for it, especially in the second half.

"Market at all-time high" was the headline throughout most of the year, but you had to look under the surface for the truth. Even as the Dow average explored before-untouched peaks, high-technology issues were being battered without mercy. And the American Exchange and Over the Counter, host to secondary issues, belied the talk of a continuing bull market.

Yet, by many measures, it was an extension of the bull market that began on Friday, Aug. 13, 1982. Most analysts pegged it as the second leg of the bull, one in which excesses are corrected, one in which selectivity rules.

Major groups "rotated" in a downward correction, one after the other – high technology, brokerage firms, specialty retailers, housing, precious metals, oils, big banks. Coleco had its Adam computer and Cabbage Patch Dolls, yet its stock fell from a high of 65 to a low of just over 13. Digital Equipment went from 132 to 64; Texas Instruments, from 176 to 101; Mattel from 19 5/8 to 5; Metromedia, from 57 to just over 20. And so on. That made it, indeed, a curious bull, one with weaker legs.

And what of 1984? Will the bull stumble and fall in an election year? The general consensus is that it will not; the party is not over. At least a pretense of a bull will be there. In other words, the popular average will hold up.

But as the year nears its end, many of the professionals were on the short side, or held puts, which are options that score only if a stock declines. Says Jim Dines, who writes The Dines Letter from San Francisco:

"What bothers me most is that everybody still is so bullish. After all, they say, it's an election year. But 1960 was an election year, too, and the market dropped. The market in 1983 has an eerie resemblance to 1961. Electronic stocks scored and then died. Defensive stocks took over, peaking out late in the year. I think the market now is intensely overbought."

Dines believes that if the Dow Average goes below 1,200, next year will be worse than anyone now thinks. And if the average goes below 1,150, "it will be 'everyone out of the pool.' "

What worries Dines – and many others – is the high level of real interest rates, or the rate after subtracting inflation. It is close to a record. And to his mind, there are some clear signs rates could go higher. Among them are that daily new lows are dominated by interest-sensitive preferred stocks, the "mushy" bond futures, the strong dollar overseas, a weakening ultilities group, and sagging gold and silver prices.

He's not quite ready to call 1984 yet, but comments: "We might have a Santa Claus (year-end) rally, but my instinct is to buy puts. We could have a severe December-January decline. The consensus is that the market will be strong in the first half and weak in the second. But it might be the reverse. The market does what it does to fool the most people."

Dines admits his position is openly contrarian. A more conventional one is expressed by Robert Schulman, vice president of big Conti Commodities in Chicago. "Inflation next year will be modest, about 4 percent, with only higher food prices keeping the Consumer Price Index up. For consumers and investors, it will be a good year. I see the Dow at 1,350-1,400 by summer, then down – and down sharply after the election."

And for the longer term, inflation is the key. When inflation took over in the mid-1960s, stocks fell to 50-year lows, adjusted for inflation. So the key question for the equity buyer is: Have we beat inflation?

There is a consensus answer about that. It is that we have licked it for some years to come. But as Dines says, markets like to fool people.

As a footnote, the biggest gainer in 1983 was Canadian Imperial Bank, up from 8 cents to $31, a gain of 34,831 percent. But if you'd had Computer Devices at its high, 16 3/8, you'd have to gain 1,871 percent to get the now 87-cent stock back to what you paid. So, most certainly, it was a cross-current market. You could even call it vicious.

London's Midland stepping in

By The Los Angeles Times — Washsington Post News Service

San Francisco-based Crocker National Bank, saddled with a portfolio of bad loans to housing developers, could soon lose much of the autonomy it has enjoyed since being taken over by a British bank two years ago.

Top executives of Midland Bank of London, which owns 57 percent of San Francisco-based Crocker National Corp., arrived in California Monday to begin a complete examination of the bank's lending activities.

A top Midland official, who asked not to be identified, said Monday that the appraisal will probably result in Midland becoming much more involved in the day-to-day activities of its U.S. bank.

"This situation has created a number of problems for us," the Midland official said. "It has came as a blow to us, and we are going to take a more active role in Crocker."

Crocker announced last week that it expects to post a $57 million loss in the fourth quarter because it will set aside $107 million to cover loans it may be unable to collect on.

Although the long recession left many banks holding worthless loans to bankrupt borrowers, analysts say that Crocker may have been hurt more than most, particularly in construction lending, for reasons only partly related to economic factors.

Outside analysts and former company executives say that the leadership of Thomas Wilcox, who became chief executive of the bank in 1974, made Crocker the strong, profitable institution Midland wanted to buy.

But Wilcox, in importing talent from banks in New York and Chicago to fill top executive positions, also created a climate of executive infighting and aggressive management that led the bank to grow perhaps more rapidly than it should have, analysts say.

Wilcox, who remains the chairman of the bank's executive committee, could not be reached for comment Monday.

And then the alliance with Midland in 1981, followed shortly by Wilcox's retirement, left Crocker in the hands of John B.M. Place. He embarked on a complete reorganization of the company that, former executives say, distracted management from the critical task of steering the bank through the problems created by the recession.

"The new management wanted to impress the new owners," one former Crocker executive, who asked not to be identified, said. "There was not enough concern about some of the problems because there was so much turmoil over who reports to who. Morale started to go down. I think a lot of people wondered why we got all involved in a reorganization of lines of authority and markets and never did focus on how to use the new capital from Midland."

Current Crocker executives argue that the reorganization was intended to put the bank in a position to best use the $820 million in capital Midland brought to the alliance.

"The reorganization was a major undertaking, and we consumed an awful lot of time getting it into place," Crocker Executive Vice President Owen Harper said. However, he said that most of the bank's problems lie in the construction lending area, which was virtually unaffected by the organizational changes.

At the third quarter's end, construction finance loans made up more than half of the bank's portfolio of $962.4 million in non-performing loans, that is, loans on which borrowers were more than 30 days past due with their payments.

Midland honored for its driving course for municipal employees

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

When Beverly Wingo went to Chicago to pick up the city of Midland's award from the National Safety Council, she contended it also recognized the efforts of three other city employees. But it also serves as a tribute to the programs she started after being hired as the city's safety training coordinator.

Midland was chosen by the NSC for "Best Performance by a Municipal or County Governmental Organization" in the area of driver improvement programs. An NSC press release says the award was in connection with Midland's effort to improve its driver training program. The city offers NSC's Defensive Driving Course is an eight-hour class that teaches a driver how to avoid traffic accidents by becoming a safe driver.

Ms. Wingo said she is only one of four city instructors; the others are Mike Butler, George Logan and Glen Harris.

Butler and Logan conduct defensive driving for traffic court; Harris does it for the fire department; and Ms. Wingo handles it for all other city employees.

The NSC award was based on the number of people taught in these classes and the city which showed the largest increase from 1981-82.

"The city had gotten lax in teaching defensive driving" until she was hired in November 1981. She started with a class once a month, opening it to any employee and his or her family. She also established the requirement that whenever a city employee is involved in an accident, that person must take the course.

City officials will be instituting another requirement in January, said Ms. Wingo. All municipal employees will be required to take the defensive driving course and a cardiopulmonary resuscitation class within a year after their employment.

"Hopefully, by the end of 1984, all city employees will have completed the defensive driving course. Their certification is good for three years and then they must take it again," said Ms. Wingo.

The city's interest in safety by and for its employees is a relatively new idea, according to the coordinator. "Governments didn't use to pay attention to safety and training," she said. But in talking with other municipal governments in this new job, she's finding "they're more aware of it and of safety precautions than they were in the past. They're budgeting more money for it."

Since Ms. Wingo began the program for the city, she's noticed a change in attitude by the employees. If there is an accident involving a city employee, Ms. Wingo is called to the scene immediately. She talks to the employee and tries to determine what caused the accident: driver error or a problem with the equipment.

"They have an openness with me," she said of the employees.

To see how the various pieces of equipment operate and any problems employees might have with it, she often will ride in the machinery. "I've gone out at 7 a.m. with sanitation drivers and ridden up and down the alleys. They know I'm not afraid to get dirty."

Getting dirty is nothing new to Ms. Wingo. Her previous job with Safety International put her out on the oil rigs in jumpsuits and hard hats teaching safety to oilfield hands or determining cause of an accident.

Her initial interest in the field of safety was piqued 16 years ago when working for the Odessa company, Industrial Foundation of America. That firm kept records on workmen's compensation injuries.

After she went to work as a secretary for Safety International six years ago, she began asking questions about the reports she was typing.

"I'm a real curious person," she said. Ms. Wingo attended some classes in CPR and was asked by an employer if she wanted to become an instructor to fill in when the others were too busy. She did.

Then, as activity in the oilfield increased, she was allowed to do injury investigations and learn hydrogen sulfide training. Ms. Wingo traveled from North Dakota to Louisiana in conducting training seminars.

Ms. Wingo noted she was one of the first women to specialize in safety training. "I've just always had an interest in it," she said.

Conviction reversed in pit bulldog case

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The Texas Court of Appeals has reversed the conviction of Willie Whitmire, who was found guilty more than a year ago of fighting pit bulldogs southeast of Midland.

Whitmire, 24, was one of eight people arrested on the night of Aug. 29, 1982, at a makeshift pit-bulldog arena in rural Midland County. Another defendant was found guilty by a jury, one pleaded guilty, a fourth was found innocent, and four others are fugitives.

The high court acquitted Whitmire, whom a jury convicted in Midland County Court-at-Law of cruelty to animals, due to insufficient evidence.

"That (jury verdict) doesn't prove it (the jury) was right," said Rusty Wall, Whitmire's defense attorney.

"All it (the evidence) ever showed was that he was somewhere in the vicinity of the dog fight," he said.

The rendering by the appellate court means the state "cannot try him again," Wall said. "I'm always glad to win (a case)."

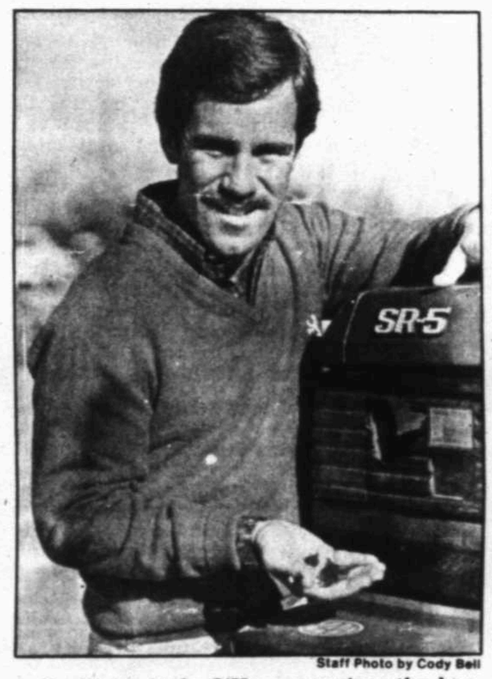

However, Midland County Attorney J. Scott Henderson said Monday the prosecution does have "another avenue of appeal, and I disagree with the Court of Appeals." He said the state has "the right to request a discretionary review" of the judgment by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, which is the state's highest appellate court in criminal matters.

Henderson, however, said he has not decided whether or not to contest the decision due to the expense.

"WE ARE CHARGED with spending the public's money in a responsible manner," he said, "and we have to determine if it is really worth it.

"I still agree with Judge (Willie) DuBose," Henderson said. "He held that it was not insufficient evidence, that the evidence was sufficient." DuBose, county court-at-law judge, presided over the trial.

Geologist Andy O'Hare examines the broken taillight of his 1982 Toyota — one of several cars damaged during an ongoing rash of vandalism near the Union Oil Co. office at 500 N. Marienfeld.

Vandals damaging parked cars

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

An ongoing spate of vandalism has pressed some local oil company employees into an informal vigilante group that's working with police to apprehend the high school students believed responsible for damaging several cars on the company parking lot in the past six weeks.

"About 1½ months ago, a man approached as several of us were leaving work one afternoon," said Andy O'Hare, a geologist for the Union Oil Co. at 500 N. Marienfeld.

"He told us he had seen some kids vandalizing our cars. He and another man chased the kids but weren't able to catch them."

O'Hare's 1982 Toyota had been scratched with a key or similar sharp object. Other vehicles had also been scratched.

About two weeks later, O'Hare came out to find that a rock had been used to smash a tailight on his car. The rock was still imbedded in the light fixture.

At least six cars belonging to Union employees have been damaged to date.

In addition, numerous vehicles at an adjacent apartment complex and other company parking lots in the area have also sustained damage, according to O'Hare, who estimates the dollar loss in the thousands of dollars.

"Kids have even been seen jumping up and walking on the roofs and trunks of cars," he noted.

Adding insult to injury, a youth was seen urinating on a car one day. "The other is bad, but that's sick," said Naomi Moore, a Union Oil production clerk whose car was among those damaged.

Students from Midland High School — which is located three blocks from Union Oil — are suspect because the vandalism occurs during lunch hour and as students leave for home in the afternoon, according to O'Hare.

While police note that auto vandalism isn't confined to school areas, they say this case is somewhat unique because "they usually do it to other kids' cars, not the neighbors'," said Det. Lt. Earl Luckey.

Rather than confront the culprits, O'Hare said he and some other employees got together and began watching the youths as they came through the parking lot.

"We also took pictures and turned them over to the police," he added. "Since they know they're being watched, the vandalism has died down — at least in our parking lot. It's only sporadic now."

If the youths are apprehended, O'Hare said, he'd like to see authorities put them in some sort of rehabilitation program and make them pay restitution.

"They need to learn respect for other people's property," he added. "The most distressing thing is having that kind of unexpected expense, especially at this time of year. It's also a hassle having to sleuth during work hours."

Preparation key to adjusting to college

Midland High Counselor David Dennis advises Neal Kassanoff on sending college testing scores to various schools he wants to apply to.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third installment of a four-part series on post-secondary education. This article deals with preparation for and adjustment to college.

While high school graduation marks an ending, it's also a beginning, and sometimes a frightening one, for students.

There are several ways to ease the transition to college and independence, according to Dr. Robert Hawkins, counselor at Midland College. The key is being prepared academically, emotionally and financially.

"Students many times are not prepared psychologically," he said. "We have to work with 75 to 80 percent of the kids. The bottom 25 percent are academically illiterate. We have to get them up to college level. Twenty-five percent or above have no idea what they want to major in, and another 25 percent will change (their majors)."

Academic preparation must begin early, he insisted. While voluntary aptitude and career tests are usually administered in the senior high schools, Hawkins feels initial testing should begin in junior high.

"With the four-year plan, now even the junior high level isn't too early," agreed Midland High School counselor David Dennis, who said career goal testing is one way to help students focus on their interests and learn more about professions.

In a program begun this year in Midland schools, eighth graders and their parents meet with junior high counselors to work out a four-year course schedule. They are encouraged to think about post-secondary education and plan their schedules accordingly.

"Your sophomore year you need to start narrowing choices a little bit. Certainly by the end of your junior year students need a list of things they're interested in," Dennis said.

Odessa cable will get more channels

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Cable problems appear to be clearing up in the aftermath of heavy citizen criticism of the service provided by Community Cablevision of Odessa.

Viewers jammed phone lines over the Thanksgiving holidays as the northeast part of the city went without its usual allotment of "Turkey Day" football games. Malfunctioning of a major trunk line for that area left a large part of the city without cable reception for all or part of the holiday.

Since that time, the cable company has been under considerable fire from the city government which awarded it the franchise in late 1982 and angry residents dissatisfied with the bill and service offered by Community Cablevision.

Early spring has been targeted by the cable company for the addition of channels to the basic cable service which has the largest number of viewers upset.

A Dallas channel, Home Sports Entertainment, will likely be added to appease the desires of sports fanatics in the city who feel they are not getting enough athletics on their televisions to justify the expense.

Ted Turner's Atlanta station, WTBS, may also be added to the basic offerings in an effort to give a more varied choice of channels to 23,000 local subscribers.

While plans do call for these changes to be made, Community Cablevision needs to troubleshoot possible technical and legal problems that might go with the additions.

Remembering best moments of Christmases past

The flower that smiles today,
tomorrow dies.
All we wish to stay,
tempts and then flies.
What is this world's delight?
Lightning that mocks the night,
brief even as bright
— From Shelley's Ode to Mutability

It seems appropriate to recall the best of seasons past.

Long, ice-glazed hills rutted with the tracks of a thousand sleds and ringing with the squeals of runny-nosed kids who had no idea how quickly those December afternoons would melt from substance to memory.

Green and red-striped mittens tied to a string that ran through your coat so you wouldn't lose them.

A shiny red bicycle beside the tree on a Christmas morn that took forever to arrive and no time at all to disappear.

Looking out schoolroom windows at snow melting on rooftops, wondering how long it would take for the streets to melt so you could ride your new bike.

Popcorn, Pepsi-Cola and egg salad sandwiches on Christmas Eve.

That one Christmas Eve you woke to find your parents putting presents under the tree and still you didn't catch on because they told you they were merely rearranging the gifts Santa had left.

A hand-carved manger scene and snow-tufted windmill in the yard of the old German couple next door.

They couldn't speak English "so goot," but they made the best chocolate candy a kid ever ate.

The crush and buzz of shoppers in large stores with X-ray machines in the shoe department.

You could slip your feet into those machines and see your bones bathed in ghosty green light.

The glow and smell of burning wood in battered drums outside makeshift huts that housed street corner vendors — grizzled old men who smelled of whiskey and who constantly rubbed their hands together over the flames.

Ancient women in babushkas and thick gray coats, hanging their wash on brittle clotheslines and singing songs about strange lands you knew only from books.

Watching the leather-aproned ice man struggle up snowy steps — twin, 50-pound blocks of ice gripped in tongs across his shoulders.

His was a job you envied in summer, but you wondered why he would do it in winter.

Old radio shows.

One in particular would come on six weeks before Christmas and end — happily, of course — as Santa slid down chimneys while reindeer pranced on glistening rooftops.

It was called The Cinnamon Bear and told in gripping detail how some nefarious characters stole the star that was to grace the top of a little brother and sister's Christmas tree.

Then this friendly bear happened along to help them recover the star — just in the nick of time.

Such is the gullibility of children that you never asked how bears could talk. Or how wingless creatures could fly. Or how such a small sleigh could hold gifts for everyone on earth.

And such is the mutability of life that before you know it you're on icy hillsides again.

Only this time it's your own children squealing with delight — their little faces turning red in the wind, their mittened hands clutching the sides of new sleds, sleds that won't last near as long as they once did.

Come Christmas Eve, they'll be sitting on your lap stuffing popcorn in their mouths and asking for the umpteenth time how long it'll be till Santa arrives.

Oh well, some myths are dangerous and others aren't. Let children have Old Saint Nick for as long as they can keep him.

And let them rekindle in us the glow of Christmas gone.

Regulations regarding the addition of channels may block the addition of WTBS. Copyright questions still awaiting a decision by a copyright tribunal have the company holding up on addition of the Atlanta station.

Depending on the precedent-setting decision, subscribers may have to pay more for the new channels.

Community Cablevision would need to pay 3.75 percent of each year's gross revenues to the tribunal if its upcoming decision upholds this practice. Subscribers would end up paying the difference.

Technical questions also are ahead concerning the use of Channel 7 on the cable. Interference from the local off-air Channel 7 may keep Community Cablevision from utilizing the channel.

But the current Channel 2, which is a character-generated news service from United Press International, could be shifted to Channel 7 if a lack of interference allowed the move. This would open up Channel 2 for viewers' use, possibly adding the Cable News Network.

"That's strictly speculation at this point," warned General Manager Terry Arnold, noting that final determinations would call for the agreement of his superiors at Capital Cities Communications and the city council.

"Those decisions are not made by me," he said. "Programming is a real difficult thing at this point." Surveys to measure local viewers' opinions are planned before spring to give Community Cablevision a better idea what watchers want.

Measuring the effect of the citizen efforts to get action, Arnold said "This just helps emphasize the fact that the basic package is a little weak."

A lawsuit involving the city and Cablevision of West Odessa was recently settled to the extent that the city feels able to move ahead with efforts to improve the present franchise's service. The city and Community Cablevision have settled the claims against them in the $10 million suit, but The Texas Electric Service Co. has not.

TESCO reportedly will seek damages based on allegations that Cablevision of West Odessa strung cable from its poles without permission.

The cable company is expected to appear before city council Jan. 9 to answer charges of poor service and work on ways to improve the viewing offered to Odessans.

They have already agreed to add phone lines to answer service calls and complaints from viewers, who before were often frustrated by an inability to get through to the switchboard.

Conviction reversed in pit bulldog case

"I think the judge and jury were right," Henderson said. "The jury held the evidence was sufficient."

In his argument before the jury in October 1982, Wall contended that "mere presence alone" did not make Whitmire guilty of the offense. Wall said the "one small piece of evidence" — of Whitmire running when Midland County sheriff's deputies and Texas Department of Public Safety troopers converged on the dog-fight arena — was only proof he tried to evade officers and did not prove he pitted dog against dog.

"What was he doing out there if he was not out there dog fighting?" Henderson asked. "He had been there quite a while."

In setting punishment, the jury had placed Whitmire on probation for one year and fined him $1,000.

IN WRITING THE opinion for the Court of Appeals, Associate Justice Max Osborn said "the evidence was insufficient to support the verdict of guilty."

Osborn noted that observation by binoculars disclosed "numerous individuals gathered around an illuminated pit adjacent to an abandoned house." Dogs were being lifted in and out of the pit. Sheriff's deputies and DPS troopers moved in on the dog fight scene shortly before midnight.

"Dogs were both chained and roaming loose in the area," Osborn wrote. "The dogs were underfed and many exhibited wounds, abrasions and blood."

DPS Trooper Sue Rudie, who spied Whitmire running through an area of dog cages, ordered him to stop, which he did, and placed him under arrest.

No evidence linked Whitmire to the dogs or to the vehicles at the arena, Osborn said, and no one testified Whitmire was in the pit area.

"Presence and flight alone are insufficient to sustain a conviction," the judge decided. "The judgment of conviction is reversed and a judgment of acquittal rendered."

In a related trial, 30-year-old James Wayne "Bubba" Burton was found guilty by a jury of cruelty to animals, placed on probation for one year and fined $1,000. He did not appeal his conviction.

ANOTHER DEFENDANT, William Clarence "Bill" Rich, 26, of Andrews, was acquitted. "I didn't have anything to do with it (dog fighting)," Rich said at his trial in February 1983. Rich claimed he was at the dog fight by happenstance. He said he was there to see the newly-acquired farm of another defendant, his friend David Heard, and to help Heard feed the dogs. Rich said he knew Heard had pit bulldogs, had heard rumors that Heard fought dogs but had never seen a dog fight.

Heard, who pleaded guilty to promoting the dog fight, was fined $250.

The four untried defendants who have jumped bail are Robert Douglas Merritt, 25, his wife, Shawn Ellen Merritt, 29, and two Chavez brothers, Richard Ronald, 22, and Randy Ray, 26.

Since the dog-fighting cases, Texas law has been revised to stiffen the penalty for betting on dog fights.

As before, causing one dog to fight another is a Class A misdemeanor, which is punishable by a one-year jail term and a $2,000 fine. A person who owns or who trains dogs to fight may be subject to similar penalties.

However, the revised law, effective Sept. 1, deems it a third-degree felony for a person to fight dogs for money or any other benefit, to participate in the earnings of a dog fight, to operate a dog-fighting pit or to provide a facility for dog fighting. Those felony violations are punishable by a two- to 10-year prison term and a $5,000 fine.

A spectator at a dog-fighting exhibition may be fined up to $200.

Students planning on applying to highly selective schools should know at least a year in advance what the deadlines and admission requirements are, Hawkins said. They also need to be aware of application deadlines for financial aid, on-campus housing and special programs such as nursing.

It is advisable for students interested in applying for academic scholarships or selective schools to complete their SAT or ACT college tests by the spring of their junior year, both men said. A student should choose his senior course load with college in mind, and may want to consider taking classes at Midland College during his senior year.

Seniors should meet with a guidance counselor who can help assess skills and interests and can identify schools that best fit abilities and needs. Each fall College Forum is held at one of the Midland high schools. Representatives from dozens of post-secondary institutions provide specific as well as general information.

In most instances a senior should obtain catalogs of his choice colleges, tour the campuses, interview and apply during the winter months. He ought to talk to students and alumni as well.

Colleges send out notices of admission or rejection by mid-April. Once he has decided on a school he needs to enroll, place deposits for a room and tuition, check into pre-registration and credit testing and sign up for orientation sessions.

All that may sound like a lot of work, but once a student is admitted, the most difficult road may still be ahead.

First there's housing. Students living off campus have to consider cost, convenience and transportation. In addition to rent he must take into account utilities, food, possible repairs and maintenance and a deposit.

He must also consider furnishings, dishes, kitchen appliances, leases and roommates. He needs to decide how important it is to have laundry facilities, air conditioning, storage and parking.

Many colleges have housing offices to assist in finding rooms and roommates. He may want to consult his parents as to what can be afforded in a realistic budget.

Insurance — medical, auto, renters and possibly life — is also important. A student should find out if he is covered by his parents' insurance and look into policies offered through the college.

Various sources offer advice on making the college transition easier: get involved in school activities, make new friends, don't be afraid to ask for help, take courses you are interested in and don't overload at first, keep caught up in schoolwork, instead of going home every weekend spend time getting familiar with the college and other students, don't go in with a negative attitude, realize you aren't alone and, most of all, give it a chance.

Dodd Griffith of Midland, a freshman at Dartmouth College this year, commented on the adjustment period most freshmen go through.

"You have a lot more responsibility because there's nobody regulating your life in any way," he said. "I didn't have any trouble. Some people who are free for the first time in their life didn't handle it too well at first, but I think everybody settles down after a few weeks.

"I guess the only thing I really had to reconcile myself to was that you really have to work at college," he continued. "It's a lot more academically oriented and there's a lot less emphasis on sports. I think my attitudes have changed, but I can't really state specifically why. I don't waste as much time as I used to. I have learned to interact better with people."

He said learning to live with the idiosyncrasies of two roommates also contributed to his "college education."

"Making friends was a new experience for me because I've pretty much had the same group of friends my whole life. But people were very friendly. Basically nobody knows anybody, so you're all pretty much in the same boat, pretty far from home, so everybody's pretty friendly because they want to make friends and need to make friends.

"They recruit people from all 50 states and various foreign countries, so you have people from all backgrounds." he added.

Although trying to adjust to a totally different way of life can manifest itself in homesickness, Griffith said he was spared those feelings.

"There's so much to do you don't really have time to get homesick."

WEDNESDAY: Educational alternatives.

Package mix-up ends happy

HURST (AP) — A woman who recovered five Christmas packages that mysteriously ended up at a Philadelphia research laboratory instead of their Illinois destination says the happy ending shows the true spirit of Christmas.

"It renews your faith in mankind that someone would take the effort to find the owners," Kathy Mitchell said Monday. "I would have felt just awful if they hadn't gotten there."

They almost didn't. Ms. Mitchell learned of the package mix-up in a story Saturday in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Officials at the Bute Paint Co. in Houston told the newspaper they wanted to find the owners of the gifts, which had found their way to a Philadelphia laboratory under a Bute address label.

The company mailed a box of paint samples via United Parcel Service to the Philadelphia company, but what arrived was a large box containing five wrapped gifts addressed to Mom, Dad and Tommy. The box was stuffed with November issues of the Star-Telegram, but contained no clue as to the destination of the gifts.

"I don't know what happened with United Parcel. All I can say is I think it was nice of Mr. Bute to find us. We're very grateful," Ms. Mitchell said.

Faulty fireplace blamed for blaze

A faulty fireplace is blamed for a blaze that heavily damaged walls in apartments 104 and 204 at Windsor Place Apartments, 1801 N. Midland Drive, about 10:30 p.m. Monday. Five fire department units responded to the call and firemen spent two hours on the scene.

Earlier Monday, firemen were called to Windsor Place to extinguish a minor attic fire that damaged the studs and rafters of apartment 236. An improperly placed heater was listed as the cause of that blaze.

In another fireplace-related blaze Monday, five units were called to a wood frame house occupied by Joe Carrillo at 408 W. Cowden shortly after 11 p.m. Heavy damage was reported to one wall of the home. An overheated fireplace was blamed for the blaze.

In theft and burglary complaints filed with city police during the past 24 hours, Loreta Shirey reported that a $950 double-car garage door was removed from a vacant house at 3807 Mark Lane. The theft occurred sometime Thursday.

And Jerald H. Bartley of 1705 W. Illinois told officers a camera and several pieces of photography equipment were taken from an office at 300 W. Wall. The loss was placed at $723.

Convicted robber ruled out as suspect in armed robbery

DALLAS (AP) — After interviewing a convicted armed robber in prison, Dallas prosecutors said they do not believe he committed the robbery for which black engineer Lenell Geter was convicted.

But District Attorney Henry Wade said the investigation into the controversial case would continue, and the possibility that inmate Jerry Jerome Stepney committed the $615 robbery would be pursued.

"I don't think he had anything to do with it," Wade said Monday about the possibility that Stepney, who resembles Geter, committed the robbery for which the South Carolina native was sentenced to life in prison.

Geter was released on bond last week after an appeals court agreed to grant a new trial. Geter's co-workers, who say he was at work at the time of the 1982 holdup, won a new trial after applying public pressure on Wade's office.

Five eyewitnesses identified Geter, 26, as the robber from pictures circulated by Greenville police. Geter's attorneys claim the pictures were circulated only because the young E-Systems Inc. engineer is black.

Wade said his staff probably will show Stepney's photograph to victims of the Balch Springs robbery before completely ruling him out as a suspect.

Wade sent an investigator to interview Stepney in prison, where he is serving a 30-year sentence for two Dallas armed robberies. Stepney admitted to the two robberies but denied any role in the Balch Springs case.

Odessa police seek suspect in sexual assault

From staff reports

ODESSA — Police are seeking a suspect in connection with a sexual assault reported early Tuesday morning by a 56-year-old Odessa woman on the southside of town.

The woman told police that she was awakened at 2:53 a.m. Tuesday when a black man fell across her bed and on top of her. The man, who had a knife, then told the woman to be quiet.

The woman said she resisted, striking her attacker in the face with a small plastic cup. The man then struck her with another weapon he was carrying.

She told police he then covered her head with a blanket, tore off her clothes and forced her to have sexual intercourse with him. After the attack, the man left.

The woman went to a next-door neighbor's home and called police. Investigators determined the attacker forced his way into the home through a living room window on the west side of the home.

The victim was taken to Medical Center Hospital in Odessa, where she was examined, treated and released. The woman could give no further description of the man, except that he was a black male.

Jail to be fixed

AUSTIN (AP) — A contract has been approved to design $5 million in repairs to the new Travis County jail, which allegedly had 100 serious design faults when completed this spring.

County commissioners have earmarked $1 million for professional services, including a $350,000 architectural fee approved in a contract with a Mississippi firm, money for a financial adviser and funds for a study that the architects conducted on the locking system at the jail.

Lufkin family makes Christmas record

LUFKIN (AP) — Julie, 12, and her younger sister Jennifer, 10, stopped giggling for five minutes — long enough to assume the stance of serious recording artists. They readied their voices, waited for their father's cue, and for the 100th time became elves:

"Come on, Pokey! Wake up!"

"Christmas is coming and you gotta get to work, c'mon Pokey! Wake up!"

Several months later, both still can go into their "elf routine" on command.

Jennifer was only 3 years old when her father, Billy Feltman of Lufkin, wrote the song and story "Pokey the Lazy Elf" that was later to become a family project in record-making in this East Texas city.

Pokey, whom Feltman refers to as if a family member, was published Dec. 25, 1976 in the Lufkin Daily News. Since then, it has become a popular Christmas tale with area grade school students.

"I heard one first-grade teacher read it to her class and they actually clapped when Pokey pulled through in the end," Feltman said.

Written in the Aesop's fable tradition of a lesson to be learned, the story is of Santa's one lazy elf who would rather sleep than make toys. It has a happy ending when Santa Claus has a heart-to-heart talk with Pokey, telling him some children will not receive gifts this year unless the elf pulls through. In the end, Pokey rallies through the night to get the job done.

But the story behind the making of the record is similar in that the Feltmans really had to work hard to get their project on the market for the 1983 holiday season. The song is, as Feltman describes it, "kind of jazzy, with piano, sleigh bells in the end and elves in the beginning."

"We hadn't planned for the girls' voices; it just happened and I thought, 'Why not get the whole family into the act?'" Feltman said of the ad-libbing style in which they recorded the song.

The elves are played by Feltmans's two daughters, the singing is done by Feltman, and his wife Brenda, an elementary school music teacher, plays the recorder on the flip side, a madrigal-style song called "Christmastime."

"I wrote the song first and the story came from that and I can't really remember how the whole thing began," said Feltman, who is primarily a country-western songwriter.

The difficulties in recording the song came in finding a place to record close enough to home. And finally the mountain moved when Crystal Brook Recording Studio opened in Lufkin earlier this year. The Feltmans seized their chance and became one of the first to cut a record in the studio. That, Feltman says, is the only reason it took him seven years to make his first recording.

Feltman estimates it took three weeks to finish the record once they began work on it in October. Currently he is marketing the song in stores locally and in Port Arthur and says it seems to be catching on. It sells for about $2.00.

"I was out at the deer lease last weekend and played my guitar for some kids there, and I think the best experience I had with the song was when they came back the next day and sang it for me," Feltman said.

Feltman has been involved in music since his Port Arthur high school days in the early 1960s, when he temporarily changed his name, performing as "Billy King and the Chessmen." The name change, Feltman said, was necessary to placate his mother, who did not approve of his professional singing at 16 years old. The Chessmen was an eight-piece band of horns, saxophone, drums and Feltman, who said they played mostly soul music of the late 1950s.

Since then, his interests have been in writing mostly country-western songs. Until a little more than a year ago, he performed his songs locally with piano player Ken Poston, who also supplies piano music for "Pokey."

Currently, Feltman is a supervising counselor with the Texas Vocational Rehabilitation Counsel.

"I've written lots of country and western songs that have, I think, potential. I want to record some of those in January," Feltman said.

A great deal of famous songwriters began as part-time musicians and Feltman said that although Pokey is his first recording, he hopes to someday "make it big."

"Ideally, yes; I think that's the hope of every songwriter. It is the American dream. And there's always a chance of that happening if you have something recorded.

"I don't want much, really. Just for Pokey to be as well known as Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

Members of the Feltman family, from left, Billy, Jennifer, Julie and Brenda, hope their song about an elf will become as famous as the song about the red-nosed reindeer.

Pilot being held in Mexican jail sues U.S. Customs

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A shot down American pilot being held in a Mexican jail has filed a $3.4 million claim against the U.S. Customs Service in preparation for filing a lawsuit against the government.

William Humphries, who has been held in Reynosa since his plane was shot down by a Mexican air patrol in August, filed the official claim with the Customs Service last week.

The government has six months to respond to the claim before a lawsuit can be filed, attorney James A. Skrobarcek told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

"We have ample time in which to investigate the claim and then reply, which we will do," said Charles Conroy spokesman for the customs service in Houston.

But Humphries' attorney said his client was chafing to file suit." Humphries' claim is based on the belief that customs officials violated federal confidentiality statutes when they informed Mexican lawmen that the pilot was transporting electronic equipment by air from McAllen to Mexico on Aug. 10, Skrobarcek said.

The 55-year-old pilot was flying his Cessna 310 loaded with video tapes and Japanese watches when it was shot down near Tampico. Humphries, a Bandera native, was then taken to the city jail in Reynosa where he remains in custody, facing smuggling charges.

Mexican law, designed to protect domestic producers from foreign competition, have made the smuggling of electronic equipment from the United States a lucrative business. Although such equipment is considered contraband by the Mexican government, the U.S. government regards the export of such equipment legal.

Skrobarcek wrote to customs commissioner Donald F. Kelly that U.S. officials had been forwarding flight data to the Mexicans.

In the letter of Dec. 12, the attorney said that such a practice was common. The attorney said U.S. officials knew the information would be used to justify Mexican attacks on American planes.

The "illegal transmission stems from a bilateral agreement" in which American authorities agreed to provide information from forms filed with customs by individuals transporting electronics, perfume and toys, the attorney wrote.

Skrobarcek said that by law forms "are confidential."

Humphries, among other things, is asking for $1 million for illegal detention, $1.5 million in punitive damages and $90,000 to replace his twin-engine aircraft.

'Cashier' crushes aluminum cans

DUNCANVILLE (AP) — A new machine may make recycling an aluminim can nearly as easy as tossing it out the car window.

Aluminum can collecting, like banking, has become automated. A grocery store in this Dallas suburb planned to unveil a machine today that will cash in cans in a matter of seconds.

The machine, called "can cashier," is the first of its kind in Texas and the first of five to be placed in the Dallas area this week, says the manufacturer, Can Cashier of Texas.

"Littering has become a problem and we want to make aluminum can collecting so easy and convenient you don't have to have a pickup truck to do it," said Don Benscoter, director of Creative Technology Inc., which he said spent six years developing the machine. "You can use our machine wearing white gloves.

The machine stands about 8 feet tall and is shaped like an eight-pack of cans. To operate it a customer feeds the cans into a small opening, where the cans are picked up by a conveyor, crushed and weighed.

In 24 seconds, the machine gives the customer a cash return based on the current rate of aluminum exchange.

Only about 10 percent of the aluminum cans being produced are being recycled now, so the developers hope that the new can crushers will bring some new converts to recycling, Benscoter said.

"We are trying to motivate a whole new group of people to start thinking about recycling instead of throwing cans in the garbage," he said.

Fire posed no danger to crew, commander says

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The small fire that broke out in the rear of the Shuttle Columbia as it returned to Earth Dec. 8 was quickly snuffed and posed no danger to the six-man crew, reports mission commander John Young.

Nor was the crew jeopardized by computer and navigation aid problems in the final hours of the flight, Young told a news conference Monday.

"No, we weren't in any problem," he said. "The people on the ground did a great job keeping us out of trouble."

He said the fire was doused by an automatic safety system and the astronauts didn't even know about it until the day after the landing.

Many questions at the two-hour post-flight conference were directed at the three problems, but the space men preferred to discuss the merits of the European-built spacelab and the 72 science and technology experiments conducted in that $1 billion workshop mounted in Columbia's cargo bay.

Young, who has made six space flights, more than any other man, said he probably won't make another one.

At 53, he said, it's "getting harder and harder" and he is returning to his job as head of the astronaut office at Johnson Space Center.

Young said that as astronaut director he will be kept busy in 1984 with 10 or 11 shuttle flights scheduled and another astronaut selection process to increase the size of the present 77-person astronaut corps.

The four scientists on the flight — West German Ulf Merbold, Owen Garriott, Byron Lichtenberg and Robert Parker — said a massive amount of science and technology data had been gathered in astronomy, life sciences, atmospheric physics, materials processing and other fields.

It could be weeks or months before many of the results are known, they said.

"We have shown the world that humans can effectively do meaningful science work in space," said Lichtenberg, a bio-medical engineer from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"Spacelab really proved itself as an orbiting laboratory," said Parker, an astronomer.

"The Europeans should be congratulated," said Garriott, an electrical engineer.

Merbold, a physicist from Stuttgart, West Germany, said he was very excited with the scientific results but criticized NASA for not letting the Europeans make greater free use of the spacelab which they built and donated to the American space transportation system.

"The return to Europe should be more," Merbold said. "Spacelab is designed for 50 flights, and NASA's return to Europe is just one half of one mission. The politicians of Europe won't be able to sell (future cooperative space programs with the U.S.) without a greater reurn.

"For the future," he said, "I would like to see the United States of America and the European Space Agency sign a paper to build a space station. If Europe says it will fund 25 percent, they should get a 25 per cent share of its use."

European experiments will fly on future spacelab missions but they will have to pay NASA's shuttle transporation fee to put them on board.

With Columbia and spacelab working so well, a mission control extended the mission from nine to 10 days. But the landing on day 10 was postponed eight hours while experts on the ground sought to learn why two of the shuttle's five computers failed while jet thrusters were being fired.

While this trouble-shooting went on, one of three navigation units failed. But controllers determined there was plenty of backup computer and naviagation capability and felt confident in ordering the astonauts home.

As Columbia descended to a landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., two of three auxiliary power units that operate wing and tail controls, landings gear and breaks, burst and spilled fuel that hit a hot surface and ignited a small fire in the rear of the shuttle.

"We knew from our instruments that two of the APUs had shutdown but we had no way of knowing about a fire," Young said. "The APU fuel can't cause such a problem until we're down to 45,000 feet (where oxygen is available) and in this case, when an APU shuts down it activated an a isolation valve that shut off the fuel flow and stopped the fire."

Pilot Brewster Shaw said engineeers had not yet pin-pointed the cause of any of the three problems and there was no easy way of knowing at this time whether any of them would delay the next shuttle flight, scheduled to start Jan. 30.

Arson ruled in fire

AUSTIN (AP) — Arson has been ruled for the third time this year in a University of Texas fraternity house fire.

Fire investigators said Monday they found "heavy traces" of an unidentified flammable liquid on a stairwell in the Alpha Tau Omega house, where two members of the fraternity were injured Sunday during a predawn fire.

The blaze was the second major fire at a fraternity house in a week and the fourth this year.

Fire Department Capt. Danny Stamper said investigators believe someone doused the stairwell to the second floor and ignited it.

Only six people were in the house at the time, since many students already have returned home for the holidays, fire officials said.

The ATO fire came exactly one week after a fire at the Lambda Chi Alpha house, believed to be started by a cigarette, killed Margo Helen McFee, 19.

Ancient custom of Christmas tree treasured by many

Of all Christmas customs, perhaps the most universally treasured is the Christmas tree. Brightly decorated with shimmering lights and glittering ornaments, the tree is as likely to reflect the traditions of each individual family as it is those of the world at large.

From the exciting moment when the tree is set up, usually some days in advance of Christmas Eve, it commands a position of central importance during all holiday festivities. So much so that is it difficult to believe that only 200 years ago the custom of setting up and trimming a tree at Christmas was not widely observed outside its native Germany.

Christmas, 1878, is recreated each year at the Butler-McCook Homestead in Hartford, Conn. This Christmas tree, which stands in the Homestead's North Parlor, is surrounded by period toys. Festooned with garlands of popcorn and cranberries, hung with cookies and lit by tiny candles, it is trimmed in the fashion of late 19th century America. The cluster of American flags on top was not uncommon as a tree decoration. When the tree was dismantled after Epiphany the children of the house would be able to assuage their disappointment by gobbling up the edible ornaments.

One legend credits Martin Luther, the 16th century theologian, with having set up the very first Christmas tree. According to this legend Luther conceived of a tree alight with countless candles as a way of representing to his children the glory of the star-lit Heaven.

However historical sources indicate that the first Christmas tree can be traced to the early 17th century when fir trees, decorated with colored paper, gold foil, apples, toys and candies, were reported in the German city of Strasburg.

Though the Christmas tree was a relatively familiar sight in 18th century Germany, certain localities continued to favor the "Pyramid," a wooden structure adorned with colored paper and lights and (in Berlin) green twigs as well.

Nineteenth century England knew the "Pyramid" as a decorative formation consisting of gilt evergreen, apples and nuts. The Christmas tree owes its popularity in England to Prince Albert, the consort of Queen Victoria, who imported the custom from his homeland of Germany.

Perhaps the first Christmas trees in America were erected by Germans, the Hessian mercenary soldiers who fought on the British side during the Revolutionary War — not a terribly auspicious beginning for such a time-honored tradition.

The first American president to set up a Christmas tree in the White House was Franklin Pierce, whose administration spanned the years from 1853 to 1857. However it wasn't until the presidency of Calvin Coolidge that an official observance — the National Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony on the White House lawn — was established.

What are the antique origins of the Christmas tree? In what ancient rituals, observances and beliefs is the favorite Christmas custom of trimming the tree in fact rooted? Historians point to a multitude of sources, among them the Roman custom of decking residences with evergreens during the festival of the Kalends which occurred in the early part of January.

Parallels between the Roman observation of Kalends and the festivities traditional at Christmas are many and include those of decorating the home with lights, extending lavish hospitality to friends and family and extravagant gift-giving.

A Druidic custom which historians cite is that of worshipping the spirit of vegetation by worshipping the sacred tree and the spirit that resided within it. Generally Druids would adorn oak trees with candles and golden apples in conjunction with the Winter Solstice, as seasonal observances were of central importance to Druidic religion.

Many early Christian beliefs stand behind the tradition of trimming a tree at Christmas. For instance it was customary for people to bring indoors during the autumn such flowering trees as hawthorn or cherry, that they might bloom and bring forth fruit on Christmas Eve. This tradition may derive from the belief that St. Joseph of Arimathea, settling at Glastonbury in western England, planted his staff in the earth, whereupon it became a thorn tree and sprouted leaves. Furthermore every Christmas Eve it miraculously blossomed.

Another legend relates the Tree of Knowledge which grew in the Garden of Eden with the Holy Cross. According to this legend when Adam was expelled from Eden, he carried away with him a piece of the Tree of Knowledge. From this grew the tree from which the Cross was made.

December 24, according to the old Church calendar, was the Feast of Adam and Eve on which day it was traditional to hang a fir tree with red apples. This Paradise Tree, as it was called, is certainly a forerunner of the Christmas tree as we know it.

There are some very pretty stories associated with both pine and fir trees, among the most popular choices for Christmas trees. According to one legend the pine tree provided a hiding place for the Holy Family when they were fleeing from the soldiers of Herod. For this, Christ blessed the pine, whose cones, when split lengthwise, reveal the handprint of the baby Jesus.

The fir tree, according to another legend, boasted both flowers and fruits until Eve discovered the tree and plucked its treasures. From that time on, the legend continutes, only needles grew on the fir tree until on the evening of the Nativity it suddenly blossomed once again.

Holiday glitter at Carter's Grove Plantation, located near Williamsburg, Va. This large and gaily decorated tree continues the custom established in Williamsburg by a German professor, Charles Minnegerode, in 1842. That first Williamsburg tree was ornamented by strings of popcorn, lighted candles and glided nuts.

Jesus Christ: Heart of Christmas message

At the very heart of the Christmas season is the spirit of giving. It is a spirit embodied by Jesus Christ, one which reasserts itself in many customs, traditions and stories associated with the holiday which celebrates the Nativity of He who gave His very life for all mankind.

In some small way, by giving meaningful gifts to those we love and by making donations to those we do not even know — the poor, the hungry and the lonely — we echo faintly His great gift.

We echo also the Three Magi, who traveled countless miles to bestow upon Him tokens of their wonder and their love: gold, frankincense and myrrh.

The great emotion stirred in them as, having presented their offerings, they gazed upon the infant Savior, is recreated every Christmas in a myriad of ways and is felt as freshly and as strongly in 1983 as it was in the year of Christ's birth, as strongly in the heartland of America as it was in the manger in Bethlehem, lit by the radiance of the Magi's guiding star.

The tradition of giving to others has continued through the ages to be associated with Christmas and increasingly in modern times with the figure of St. Nicholas.

A fourth-century bishop born in Lycia in Asia Minor, St. Nicholas is credited with many acts of selfless generosity and good will, both of which are at the heart of the Christian religion. On one occasion Nicholas brought back to life three small boys killed seven years before by a cruel butcher. On another he calmed a raging sea during a storm which tossed a sailor overboard from the ship on which he was a passenger — and miraculously gave breath back to the drowned man.

Always alert for the suffering of others, he saved from famine a town in Asia Minor by diverting a shipmen* of grain to them, which then miraculously reproduced itself so that the merchant to whom it belonged lost nothing. In another legend he is credited with having rescued from slavery three penniless maidens by anonymously donating to each of them a bag of gold, the equivalent of a dowry.

In commemoration of this last deed, in the Netherlands (and in the Dutch colony known as New Netherlands — today, New York), three oranges were traditionally left out in a dish on St. Nicholas Day, Dec. 6, to symbolize Nicholas' golden gifts.

As early as the 14th century St. Nicholas' feast day was reason enough for giving presents. At that time groups of choir boys from churches whose patron was St. Nicholas would be given a gift of money and a holiday. Traditionally they would choose one of their number to be a "bishop" and, properly attired, lead them through the streets as they called their requests for "bishop money" which would be given them by passers-by.

Of the money they amassed, half would buy candy, the other half candles for use in the church.

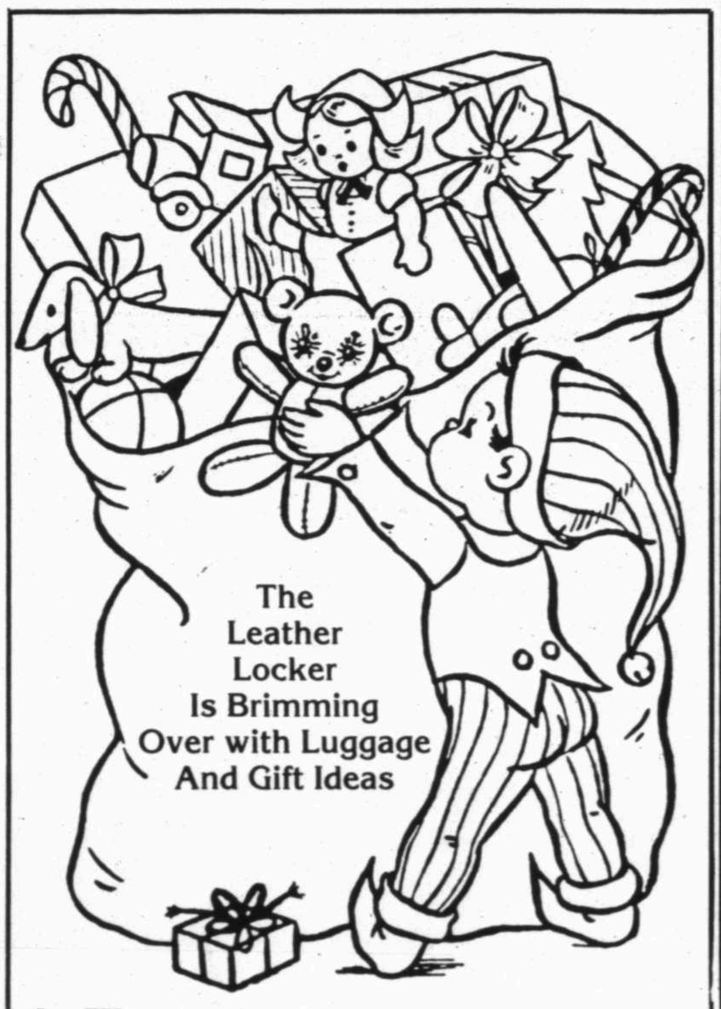

St. Nicholas' Day was also the occasion when well-behaved children attending convent schools would be rewarded with little gifts. The mischievous ones would come in for well-deserved punishment, namely some strokes with the birch rod. Even then St. Nick was careful to find out which children were "naughty or nice," and reward them appropriately.

Eventually St. Nicholas became transformed into Santa Claus — a gift giver whose serious message of generosity to all is sometimes masked by the fact that, as perceived in the contemporary world, he is primarily a figure of jollity with a sleigh full of presents, a booming laugh and a rotund belly which shakes "like a bowlful of jelly."

But despite the fact that at Yuletime a Santa Claus can be found at virtually every street corner and in every department store, the meaning of the season still rings out loud and clear, strong enough to echo behind every "Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night," a far more essential phrase: "Peace on earth, good will to men." For that is what the Christmas spirit of giving is all about.

Twelfth Night marks Magi's visit

One of the most moving episodes of the Christmas story is that of the Three Wise Men, the Magi. Wearily traversing long, desolate miles, they were sustained by their faith and guided by the light of a single star on their journey to Bethlehem to adore the infant Christ.

Their arrival is traditionally celebrated on Jan. 6, a holiday variously known as the Epiphany, Three Kings' Day and Twelfth Night.

For worshippers in the Russian and greek Orthodox Churches, Jan. 6 is the heart of the Christmas holiday and is observed with great solemnity.

Twelfth Night revels frequently included impromptu masques, performances which were enjoyed by players and audience alike. Illstration courtesy: The New York Public Library Picture Collection.

In both Italy and Spain the Epiphany, rather than Christmas Day itself, is the day on which presents are exchanged in commemoration of the gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh which were brought by the Magi to the Christ Child.

In Italy at Epiphany, in expectation of a visit from the Befana, a mysterious old woman who is the Italian version of Santa Claus, children hang out their stockings. If they have been good the Befana will leave them toys and candy; however if they have misbehaved she is certain to know and to reward them appopriately with a stocking full of coal.

Common to the celebration of Twelfth Night in many countries, including England, France, Holland, Germany, Denmark and Portugal, is the Three Kings' Cake, a sweet yeast cake in which has been buried a single token, usually a bean but sometimes an almond or a tiny china doll.

Below is a recipe for the traditional King's Cake, which is reproduced from John Clancy's volume of holiday recipes, "John Clancy's Christmas Cookbook" (Hearst Books).

KING'S CAKE
Six to eight servings

Cake:
1 package active dry yeast
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup lukewarm water (110 degrees to 115 degrees)
4 to 4-1/2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground nutmeg
2 teaspoons finely grated lemon peel
3/4 cup milk
5 large egg yolks
8 tablespoons unsalted butter (one stick), softened
2/3 cup finely chopped citron
1 pecan half
1 egg yolk, beaten

1. Stir the yeast and 1/2 teaspoon of the sugar into the lukewarm water. Let the mixture stand until it foams, about four to six minutes.

2. In a large bowl combine the remaining sugar, four cups of the flour, the salt, nutmeg, lemon peel, milk, egg yolks, butter and yeast mixture. Stir all the ingredients together until the liquid is absorbed by the flour. Remove the dough from the bowl and place it on a lightly floured work surface.

3. Knead the dough by pushing it forward and folding it back in half on top of itself. Continue to knead the dough for 15 to 20 minutes or until it is smooth and elastic. When necessary sprinkle the dough with enough flour to keep it from sticking to your hands or the work surface.

4. Place the dough in a large buttered bowl and turn it to coat it with butter. Cover the bowl with plastic wrap or a towel and let the dough rise for about one hour or until it doubles in size.

5. Transfer the dough from the bowl to the work surface and very gently knead the citron into it just until the citron is well incorporated.

6. Return the dough to a clean, well-buttered bowl and coat it with butter as before. Cover the bowl and let the dough rise for 45 minutes to one hour or until it doubles in size.

7. Punch the dough down in the bowl then transfer it to the work surface and shape it into a 14- to 16-inch-long cylinder. Press the pecan half into the dough so it is completely encased. Place the cylinder on a buttered and floured cookie sheet and shape it into a ring by twisting and then overlapping the ends securely. Brush the entire surface of the cake with the beaten egg yolk and let the cake rise again for about one hour or until it doubles in size.

8. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Bake the cake on a rack in the middle of the oven for 35 to 45 minutes or until it is golden brown. Transfer the cake to a wire rack to cool.

Decoration:
3/4 cup graulated sugar
Green, purple and yellow food coloring pastes (available in specialty food shops)
2 cups confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 to 4 tablespoons water
1/4 cup candied cherries

1. Divide the granulated sugar into three 1/4-cup batches and put each in a medium-sized bowl. Using a toothpick, place a tiny dot of green color paste on the palm of your hand. Sprinkle about one tablespoon of sugar from one batch over the paste; rub your palms together until the sugar turns evenly green, and return the sugar to the bowl from which it came. Blend the sugar together until you create an even shade of green without dark or light spots. Wash your hands and repeat this process to make the purple and yellow sugar.

2. Combine the confectioners' sugar, lemon juice and two tablespoons of the water in a large bowl and beat with a wire whisk until the icing is smooth. If the icing is too stiff to spread with a metal spatula beat in additional water. Spread the icing over the cake, letting any excess run down the sides. While the icing is still wet sprinkle the colored sugar over the cake without overlapping the colors, creating three large spots of color. Decorate with the candied cherries.

Marriage proposals unique

The Christmas season is an "engaging" season in more ways than one: more proposals of marriage will take place during this holiday than at any other time of the year. What will these proposals be like? Do hopeful men still get down on bended knee or is that kind of romancing a thing of the past?

According to an article in the December/January issue of Bride's magazine, men today are every bit as romantic as ardent Romeo ever was. Most proposals are still formal; many men do kneel down. Some modern-day suitors bring romance to new heights with their creative, even extravagant ways of asking the question, such as:

— One who went really "overboard." He popped the question during a moonlit ride in a rowboat. When his girlfriend said "yes," he lit a candle. A chorus broke out in song from the edge of the lake!

— Another who made a "grandstand" play. He had an airplane fly over the field of a major league baseball game trailing a banner that read: "Amy — This Is The Inning to Say Yes!"

Roses at Christmas gift-giving tradition

More than 47 million roses will be purchased this December, exceeding Valentine's Day sales and making it the biggest rose month in 1983, predicted the Floral Index Inc. of Chicago.

Many of those roses will be purchased by corporate executives as holiday gifts for co-workers, associates and business customers, according to the Rose Information Bureau and Chicago-area florists.

"Ninety percent of my corporate customers send roses to their business associates because they want to send only the very best," a leading Chicago florist said.

The rose is a popular choice for holiday gifts with its color scheme of red and green, and it is a time-saver for busy executives who don't have much time to stop. One telephone call to a florist covers everyone on the list and assures speedy delivery in the local business community as well as throughout the world.

The Rose Information Bureau advises consumers to order their holiday rose gifts early and specify American-grown roses to assure the freshest and most fragrant blooms.

Cutlery set sharp gift

Every family seems to have one person who acts as "chief cook and bottle washer." Whether the cook in your family is into gourmet cuisine or just plain meat and potatoes, a good cutlery set is a great gift to give him or her this Christmas.

Many consumers tend to shy away from knife purchases because they lack adequate information on cutlery. When shopping for a cutlery set there are really only three important things to check: selection, sharpness and storage.

According to Regent Sheffield Ltd., producer of knives, a full cutlery set should include a paring, boning, utility, butcher, chef's, carving and bread knife.

Checking out how knives are stored is an especially important consideration because proper storage prolongs the life of the blade. Once a blade comes in contact with other metals it begins to lose its sharpness.

This blaze of 250,000 Christmas lights at Al Copeland's mansion in Metairie, a New Orleans suburb, set off a legal fight with neighbors sick of dealing with the nightly crowd of spectators. A judge ruled recently that the lights may stay lit.

Christmas cookies: Family favorites also make delectable decorations

Christmas cookies are not only good for eating, they are good for decorating as well. In the times before store-bought ornaments and garlands of colored lights were the norm, people virtually always included some brightly decorated cookies on the branches of their trees, forming them with intricate cookie cutters.

This was particularly true in Germany and among the descendants of German immigrants in Pennslyvania. Among the cookies which did this delectable double duty:

— Sringerle: anise flavored cookies formed in a special mold and imprinted with a horse shape;

— Pretzel-shaped cookies whose twisted shape sought to mirror the position of hands clasped in prayer but which probably derived from the pagan symbol which denoted the winter solstice;

— Gingerbread men and animals which were enhanced by the addition of bright pictures representing Yuletide scenes and themes which were "glued" onto the cookies' pliant surface with a paste made from egg whites.

Below are recipes for two of these traditional holiday goodies, Springerle and Danish Vanilla Pretzels (Vanillekringler) which are reproduced from "Christmas Cookies & Candies" (Rawson, Wade) by Barbara Myers.

SPRINGERLE

4 eggs
1 pound confectioners' sugar
3 to 3-1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
Grated rind of one lemon
Anise seeds

Beat the eggs until fluffy, using an electric mixer set at medium speed. Gradually beat in the confectioners' sugar, then continue beating on high speed for 20 minutes. (This makes the finished cookies fine-grained and light.)

Sift three cups of the flour with the baking powder and salt. Fold into the beaten egg mixture by hand. Add the lemon rind. Knead the dough briefly, add the remaining flour if necessary. (It should be soft and malleable.)

Roll out small portions of the dough on a lightly floured board to about 1/4-inch thickness. Dust a Springerle board or rolling pin with flour and press or roll firmly into the dough. Cut the cookies between the designs with a floured knife.

Set one inch apart on a lightly greased and floured cookie sheet, placing a few anise seeds beneath each cookie. Let stand uncovered at room temperature at least 12 hours to dry the tops and set the designs.

Bake in a 275 degree oven for about 20 minutes or just until very delicately colored with the appearance of having been iced. Makes three to six dozen, depending on the size of design.

Note: Store the cookies in a tightly covered container for two or three weeks to develop flavor.

VANILLEKRINGLER
(Danish Vanilla Pretzels)

1/2 pound butter
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
4 egg yolks
1 tablespoon heavy cream
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
Vanilla Glaze (recipe follows)

Cut the butter into the flour using a pastry blender. Beat the egg yolks with the cream, sugar and vanilla until very thick. Stir into the flour mixture, then knead with your hands to form a smooth dough which does not stick to your fingers.

Break off small pieces of dough (about a rounded teaspoonful). Roll out on a lightly floured board into pencil-like strips about seven inches long. Pull the ends as if to make a ring but overlap to form a pretzel shape. Press the ends lightly.

Arrange an inch apart on an ungreased cookie sheet. Let stand overnight uncovered at room temperature.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until delicately browned at the edges. Ice with Vanilla Glaze while still warm. Makes about four dozen.

Vanilla Glaze

1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon heavy cream (approximate)

Combine the sugar, vanilla and enough cream to make a smooth icing of spreading consistency.

Card game family gift

As you make this year's holiday gift list take a tip from Santa and check it twice. By rounding out your selection with gifts for the entire family, holiday gatherings will evolve into hours of family fun and much entertainment throughout the year.

A gift of card games, for instance, will move quickly from beneath the tree to center stage, becoming a part of the holiday festivities. The good old-fashioned family fun that follows will complete the picture of a perfect day and lead to special family get-togethers all year long.

North Pole, N.Y.: Real Christmas fantasy town

By DIANNE WILLIAMS

NORTH POLE, N.Y. (AP) — There's no fooling the much-younger generation, especially when it comes to Christmas. When a cagey 4-year-old named Amanda walked into the reindeer barn at this snowy fantasy land, she made a quick antler count.

There was Dasher, and Dancer, and Prancer and Vixen ... eight in all, and Amanda was satisfied. On a snowy December Saturday, all was well in North Pole, N.Y., the little village that even the U.S. Postal Service recognizes as Santa Claus' home.

North Pole is actually a Yuletide theme park in the town of Wilmington about 9 miles from Lake Placid.

It was opened in 1949; within three years, it had its own post office, however, and today it's the place where letters addressed simply to "Santa Claus, North Pole" are delivered year-round.

The park's denizens do their best to keep little kids believing. A talking Christmas tree cheerily greets passers-by; life-sized characters like Frosty the Snowman lead youngsters in a frolic through the snow; and in a little log house, the rotund one himself — with real whiskers — patiently hears youngsters' petitions.

But there's a small rumble from the reindeer barn. Some tiny children have spotted Rudolph, all right — but his nose is moist and black! Aha!

"Rudolph's nose only gets red on a foggy winter night," explains Tom Patnode, who takes care of what he says is one of only two reindeer herds in the continental United States. A crisis of faith averted, the kids go back to patting the friendly creatures.

Children are much more "sophisticated than they used to be," sighs Margo "Mother Goose" Hess, who at 70 years old is in her 18th year at the park. "They just grow out of the believing age quicker."

"It's hard to put the stars in their eyes after they've been here a few times," says general manager Bob Reiss, who presides dressed in a red parka and a jangling, bell-covered hat.

Meg and Eileen, a pair of 9-year-olds from Troy, N.Y., exit the reindeer barn and head for Santa Claus' house. No, they haven't written to Santa this year, but just to be on the safe side ...

Letters and drawings cover the walls of Santa's little house. A grandmotherly Mrs. Claus, assisted by red-and-green-clad elves, greets the children and herds them toward Santa.

He's fat, all right, with no tell-tale stuffing. And very kind, and the deep blue eyes peering through spectacles shine with affection for the youngsters.

With a smile he hears out the earnest requests, then sends the children on their way with a promising, "Be good children now, and I'll be to your house on Christmas Eve."

Outside, Frosty and his aides, Chris Moose and Rowdy the Reindeer, lead a group of snow-suited kids in a musical frolic around an icy, 6-foot-high cylinder that represents — you guessed it — the North Pole. In the outdoor Yuletide Theater, there's a Nativity pageant and a musical revue led by Mother Goose.

Mitten-muffled applause fills the air.

"This is what makes believers," says Reiss.

Homemade decorations most inviting

By VALERIE WARNER
Copley News Service

One of the best parts of the holiday season is decorating around the house, the little touches that put you in a warm holiday mood. Of course, the most meaningful ornaments are the ones you create yourself. Store-bought items tend to look alike and cost more. Why not try these easy wood-finishing projects and invent a welcoming and festive setting for family and friends?

Instead of carving initials in a tree, hang pre-cut wood letters you finished yourself on a wall, or give a set to a friend for a special, personalized gift.

Large, inexpensive raw wood letters can be purchased at many hardware and paint supply stores. All you do is "finish" them.

Select a penetrating wood finish. These are the easiest to apply and come in the widest variety of natural wood tones.

Then, for a lively, modern look, simply brush on a clear gloss polyurethane. Besides being the most durable protective finish, polyurethane gives wood a glasslike shine without hiding the beauty of the grain.

Once the polyurethane has been allowed to dry, you're ready to present a very unique and personal gift.

Another holiday decorating idea that you can enjoy year-around and for years to come is restoring or refinishing a wood mantelpiece.

According to the experts at Minwax, the leading manufacturer of wood-finishing products, if the existing finish is just dull, dry or worn looking, you can restore its original beauty with an antique oil finish. Simply wipe the surface with a clean cloth moistened with antique oil. Change the cloth as it becomes soiled and buff for a genuine hand-rubbed effect.

But, if the finish on your mantel is badly scratched or the color is not to your liking, refinish in a warm, rich wood tone. Select an easy-to-apply penetrating wood finish. It will prevent future dents and scratches from exposing bare wood.

For years of extra-durable protection, top the finished mantel with an antique oil, polyurethane or wax finish.

A few holly sprigs arranged around candles and perhaps an ornamental brass tack for hanging stockings are all that need be added for a Santa-pleasing mantelpiece.

This holiday season, create even more excitement when you go visiting — bearing gifts. Instead of packing gaily wrapped presents in a plain box or bag, transform an ordinary bushel basket or orange crate into a festive "gift tote."

To give a basket or crate holiday color, finish it in bright red, green or rich natural-tone wood finish. Brush on a liberal coat, wait five to 15 minutes, wipe off excess and allow to dry overnight.

For a bright, glasslike surface, coat with a clear gloss polyurethane finish. (Polyurethane is also the best finish for preserving pinecones and other delicate wood decorations.)

Once the finish is dry, decorate your basket with rope handles, holly sprigs or ornaments. Then fill your new gift tote with packages and you're ready to play Santa. Your gift tote makes a good storage container for wrapping paper and ribbon after the holidays, too.

Electronics gifts please givers, getters alike

If Santa is a little late in wriggling down your chimney this Christmas it is probably because he got so involved with his new home computer or his wristwatch TV or personal robot that he lost track of time and forgot to pack the sleigh.

It should not come as a surprise. This year's consumer electronics gift package is full of so many functional, enjoyable, affordable and exciting Christmas gifts that the biggest challenge facing the holiday shopper is choosing just the right one.

There are those little TV sets the size of a watch. There are now little personal stereo systems hardly bigger than the cassette tapes they play and there are cordless telephones that let you make calls from the back yard or the pool. But that is only the ribbon on the total electronics Christmas gift package.

How about interactive videodisc players that allow you and friends or family members to take a direct part in the program? Or a videotape recorder with a built-in color camera that is only slightly larger than a home movie camera? Or a home audio system that uses space-age computer technology and futuristic laser beams to play back your favorite music? And, for the ultimate in dazzling sci-fi technology, how about a cute little personal robot which rolls around the house obeying spoken commands and delivering a cold beer to its thirsty owner?

It is all out there waiting for the gift shopper with a long list of holiday purchases on his or her mind, and with a little pre-shopping preparation there is no reason why a shopper can't come up with just the right present for everyone on the list.

The product that may be THE in present of 1983 is the telephone. The decision to have the telephone company permit unrestricted access to its marketplace has brought a host of creative entrepreneurs into the retail telephone field, and the result is a cornucopia of sleek, high-performance high-design telephones — all tailor-made for the gift giver. The variety of new telephones available is a broad one, and encompasses everything from smart answering machines to chic, designer-look desk and table models to convenient and compact one-piece electronic units.

But what is stirring up the most excitement this Christmas are cordless telephones, which free the user from that curled cord which has kept generations of talkers glued to one spot while they carried on conversations.

By using a cordless phone apartment dwellers and homeowners can now answer those calls without moving from the patio or leaping for the towel. Cordless models can also be used to carry on conversations while the user strolls through the house or takes a walk around the yard.

Home comupters are also big this year. Inexpensive home computers are suitable for all ages, educational levels and income brackets. Many different computers offer educational as well as entertainment packages.

Video cassette recorders, VCRs, are among the most appealing of seasonal gifts because they offer recipients such a wide array of different functional options:

— A portable VCR for Dad so he can stop fooling around with the film camera with the limited playing time and begin putting the family on videotape. Videotapes can be viewed instantly — no need to get them developed — and can hold up to eight hours of viewing.

— VCRs can automatically record television programs, even when no one is home.

— VCRs can record off one station while another station is being watched.

The portable video taping enthusiast also has another option — a portable VCR with a built-in camera. Unlike conventional portable VCR systems, which feature separate recorders and cameras, this new all-in-one unit eliminates the need for users to carry the camera in one hand while the recorder is toted around with a shoulder strap.

Coordinated coverings: Gift wrapping alternative with taste

Believe it or not, it's time again to start thinking about holiday wrappings and all the trimmings. You will probably buy beautifully patterned, colored paper, ribbons and bows, tie everything up in a package that looks too good to open, and later what was pretty and appealing will be crumpled up, torn and tossed aside.

This holiday season there are other alternatives. You might box your presents in a wrapping that stays on, cleans in a minute and turns the most ordinary gift into a designer-coordinated treasure. Plus you are thoughtfully creating a gift box that can be used year after year, for gifts or for attractive storage in the home.

Non-alcoholic drinks make holidays safer

Christmas is the time of year when family and friends gather together to celebrate the joys of the season and look forward to the year ahead. For your guests who have a long-distance drive to attend a holiday gathering, here are three festive but alcohol-free drinks:

CHRISTMAS CLASSIC

4 oz. cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
2 oz. pineapple juice, chilled
1 orange slice
1 piece stick cinnamon (about 4-inches)
Club soda, chilled

Pour cranberry juice and pineapple juice over two or three ice cubes in a 12 oz. bar glass. Add the orange slice and stick cinnamon and stir briskly.

Let sit for a minute to develop the flavors, then add club soda to fill the glass and stir gently to mix.

GINGER FIZZ

4 oz. lemonade
3 oz. fruit punch
Splash apple juice
Ginger ale

Over ice combine lemonade, fruit punch and apple juice. Top with ginger ale and garnish with strawberries.

HOLIDAY TONIC

9 oz. tonic
3 oz. orange juice

Pour into tall glass; may or may not be rimmed with salt.

Have a happy and safe holiday season.

Keeping 'cool' during holidays important

As the holiday season heats up it is easy to get ground down in the frenzy of last-minute shopping, writing cards, non-stop party-going and entertaining. You are pressed for time, nerves frazzle, energy ebbs and good looks can suffer in the crush. Here are some suggestions on how to keep your cool when everyone around you is at a boiling point:

— Carry a note pad and jot down your thoughts and ideas for gifts as they occur. Fear of forgetting something important can make anyone hot under the collar, but doing something about it can ease the anxiety and instill confidence.

— Shop by telephone whenever possible to store up time and energy. Do personal purchasing in the morning when stores are least crowded and wear comfortable shoes. You will be standing in line even under the best of conditions. Later you can massage your feet at home — a must if you have a party ahead.

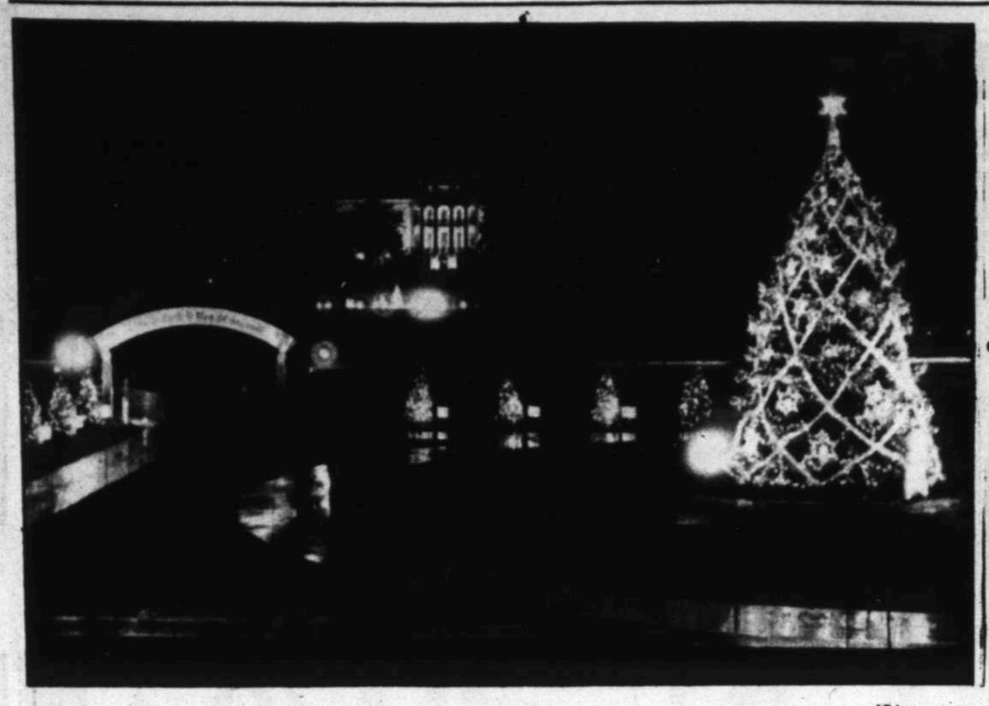

— A gentle foot massage will wake up the entire body. Stroke on a generous amount of creamy body lotion. Then, using your thumbs, manipulate your soles from the heels up to the balls of your feet, paying particular attention to the instep. Use firm, small circular motions. Finish by bending your toes forward and back to ease tightness.

— Protect your hair. It can wilt in a crowded, over-heated party. Select a hairspray that will leave your hair both touchable and malleable so that it doesn't have to be shampooed again for the next day.

— Relax your eyes so they can brighten for the next holiday whirl. Lie down in a darkened room and brush a slice of cool cucumber over each closed lid for five minutes.

The National Christmas Tree and other trees from the surrounding "Christmas Pageant of Peace" on the Ellipse opposite the White House were lit in a ceremony on Thursday. President Reagan threw a switch from inside the executive mansion to light the trees for the holiday season.

Amy Benham, 7, of Westport, Wash., assisted President Reagan with the lighting of the tree.

The National Christmas Tree for 1983 is a 30-foot Colorado blue spruce.

CARE plan will send 'Gift of Life' to those in need

NEW YORK (AP) — "This holiday season, why not send more than just a greeting. Send 'A Gift of Life,'" suggests Dr. Philip Johnston, executive director of CARE, the international aid and development organization.

"The CARE Holiday Gift Plan will enable your holiday gift to go further than any other you can give," he said. "It will travel to the needy in 35 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East, where CARE programs help people to survive and work toward self support."

Your gift list and tax-deductible check should be sent to: CARE Holiday Gift Plan; 660 First Avenue, New York, NY 10016. Credit card holders may call in donations of more than $25 to: 1-800-228-2060, Johnston said.

Special holiday greeting cards will be sent to the people you've named, telling the recipient that you have given a contribution to CARE in his or her name.

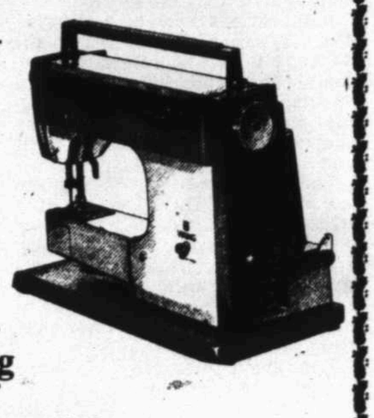

The organization is able to stretch donor dollars by combining contributions with those from the U.S. government, foreign governments and private companies here and abroad, and by sharing project costs with host governments, Johnston explained.

Advance planning makes holiday snacking easier

When the holiday season is in and school is out, home can turn into an entertaining center virtually 24 hours a day.

Here are two recipes for terrific snacking:

MRS. CLAUS' MUFFINS

4 cups branflakes with raisins
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup brown sugar
2-1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
2-1/2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup candied fruit
2 cups buttermilk
1/2 cup oil
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine dry ingredients in large mixing bowl and stir until well blended. Measure liquid ingredients into one-quart pitcher. Pour liquid mixture into bran mixture and stir until dry ingredients are moistened. Transfer batter to an appropriate sized plastic container or bowl and cover tightly. The mixture can be refrigerated up to two weeks. Will yield three to four dozen.

To bake: Set toaster oven at BAKE mode and preheat to 400 degrees. Line a six-cup muffin pan with paper liners and spoon each with batter approximately 2/3 full. Place a candied cherry or walnut half in the center of the batter. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes.

SURPRISE PACKAGES

1 package (12 oz.) brown and serve type rolls (10 rolls)
1 package (10 oz.) frozen broccoli pieces with cheese sauce
1 can (4 oz.) mushroom pieces, drained
1 can (6-1/2 to 7 oz.) tuna, drained
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento, drained
2 teaspoons instant minced onion
1/4 teaspoon curry powder, optional
2 tablespoons butter, melted
Dash white pepper

Slice roll lengthwise approximately 1/3 of the way down. Using a fork carefully remove center, leaving approximately 1/4-inch shell. Use centers for bread crumbs in another recipe. Prepare frozen broccoli according to package directions. Empty cooked broccoli into small bowl and stir in remaining ingredients. Fill the scooped out roll with approximately two tablespoons of the filling and cap with top slice. Individually wrap each sandwich with foil and freeze on a cookie sheet. Once sandwiches are frozen transfer to freezer type plastic bag. Makes 10 sandwiches.

To heat: Set the toaster oven at BAKE and preheat to 400 degrees. Remove foil and place up to six sandwiches in the bake/broil tray. Brush sandwich tops with melted butter and bake for 25 to 30 mintues or until center is hot.

Microwave stackers perfect gift for chef

The holidays this year will see plenty of action in the microwave department. With many people receiving microwave ovens as gifts (or having received one previously), cookware makes a natural tie-in.

Busy people love time savers and a microwave oven can be a real help for those who learn to use them. New cookware can inspire the would-be cook.

Look for microwave cookware that can go directly from freezer to microwave oven to the table and dishwasher for the ultimate in convenience.

A new cookware that is especially convenient is an eight-piece set that nests into a 6-1/2-inch high storage space for real efficiency. Pieces in this set perform a wide variety of cooking functions, such as roasting, steaming, making casseroles and doubling as chafing dish.

Always choose gifts of the highest quality.

Jewelry gift-giving tradition

Family holidays have a way of building the most wonderful memories that become all the more treasured as the years go by. Old-fashioned Christmases are a good case in point.

Take for example yester-year's traditional decorating of the tree. Garlands of popcorn festooned the branches and saucy gingerbread men and women peeked out from the greenery.

Many of the ornaments on the tree were lovingly made by the youngest family members who fashioned brightly colored paper chains with paste and scissors.

Little yarn dolls in green and red were favorites and those works of youthful art were kept as tree decorations for each succeeding year until they literally fell apart.

The smell of baking gingerbread, freshly popped corn, bayberry candles burning and the pungent fragrance of the tree itself may live only in memory today as trees and ornaments alike appear in plastic. Thankfully many traditions still remain, according to the Jewelry Industry Council.

The holiday season continues as the most popular time of year for young men to give their sweethearts that most thrilling of all gifts — a diamond engagement ring. A fine wristwatch remains one of the most prized gifts to receive on Christmas morning.

There is a reason for these particular gifts remaining favorites. What better time for a young couple to declare their intentions than when loved ones are all at home during one of the most happy times of the year? And as for the wristwatch, long a status symbol of achievement, it is the most coveted gift of all on Christmas morning by young and old alike, for it is fashionable, modern and utilitarian.

Of course for the very young there is always that first silver starter set and tiny tots will treasure their first real piece of jewelry — an add-a-pearl necklace.

Jewelry is a most apt gift for Christmas, the Council points out. It is sentimental, lasting and one of the best ways to say "I love you" during this happy season.

Decorating the tree was a family project in the "good old days" when popcorn and cranberries were strung together for bright garlands and yarn dolls, gingerbread men and colorful paper chains adorned the Christmas tree in preparation for wondrous Christmas morning gifts. Time was and still is a favorite Yuletide gift — the gift of a watch — reveals the Jewelry Industry Council.

The story behind Christmas stockings is a tale of Bishop Nicholas' generosity. Having learned about the plight of a local nobleman with three daughters and no money for their dowries, St. Nicholas proceeded to secretly throw a bag of gold into the window as each girl became of marriageable age. One of the bags fell into a stocking hung against the chimney to dry. From this incident the Christmas custom of hanging stockings in hopes of receiving presents originated. The trio of stockings, in the left photo, is designed as gifts for men and boys. The basis of each is two pieces of felt held together by brushing a generous amount of adhesive along the outside edges (except the top). The stockings are easily decorated with a personal touch for the recipient.

Drawings show Santa's spirit

The image of Santa Claus as a jolly, fun-loving figure with more than a spark of mischief in his personality is by and large a product of the 19th century. And one of the people most instrumental in this conception was Thomas Nast whose whimsical, sometimes sentimental, sometimes humorous drawings captivated American readers in the periodical entitled "Harper's Weekly."

Twentieth century readers can enjoy an extensive collection of Nast's Christmas artistry in a volume entitled "Thomas Nast's Christmas Drawings," printed by Dover Publications.

Christmas tree business booming

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — In this day of artificial turf and plastic-plants, producers say sales of real Christmas trees are making a comeback.

"Nationwide, there seems to be a return to the natural," says Steve VanderWeide, a 35-year-old tree Michigan grower. "Christmas trees are moving swiftly along with that feeling."

Artificial trees cut into sales in the 1960s, but "we've gained some of the ground back," VanderWeide said.

The National Christmas Tree Association in Milwaukee reckons the low point came in the early 1970s, when sales totaled about 26 million trees, according to executive director Don McNeil. Sales this season could hit 31 million.

Surveys attribute the increase to young couples who want to show their children "what a real Christmas was," McNeil said.

"It's part of the tradition they remember when they were kids," he said.

VanderWeide, president of the Michigan Christmas Treee Association and a 12-year veteran of the business, grows several varieties of trees on his 1,500-acre farm in Manton, about 200 miles northwest of Detroit. And he says consumers should be smiling this year and through the next few seasons.

"They can continue to look for stable prices and better quality," he said.

A good-quality, 7-foot Scotch pine fetches $7 to $10 on the wholesale market and retails for about double that, VanderWeide said. Taller trees and fir and spruce varieties are more expensive.

At the last available count, Michigan is the largest producer of Christmas trees in the United States, followed by Wisconsin, Oregon and Minnesota, McNeil said. The rankings could change after this season's production is totaled, he said.

Michigan growers produce about 4 million trees every year, exporting 65 percent of them to 35 states from Arizona to Florida, according to Mel Koelling, professor of forestry at Michigan State University.

Scotch pine — "the bread and butter tree of the industry" — accounts for about 80 percent of the harvest, Koelling said.

Give plants holiday decor

If you have a pretty plant you would like to spotlight you might decorate the pot with green or red tape to give it a holiday feeling.

A fruit bowl piled high with pretty ornaments makes a striking centerpiece for your table. A two-tier candy server could be filled with either tiny ornaments or decorative candies, then finished off with a big bow on top.

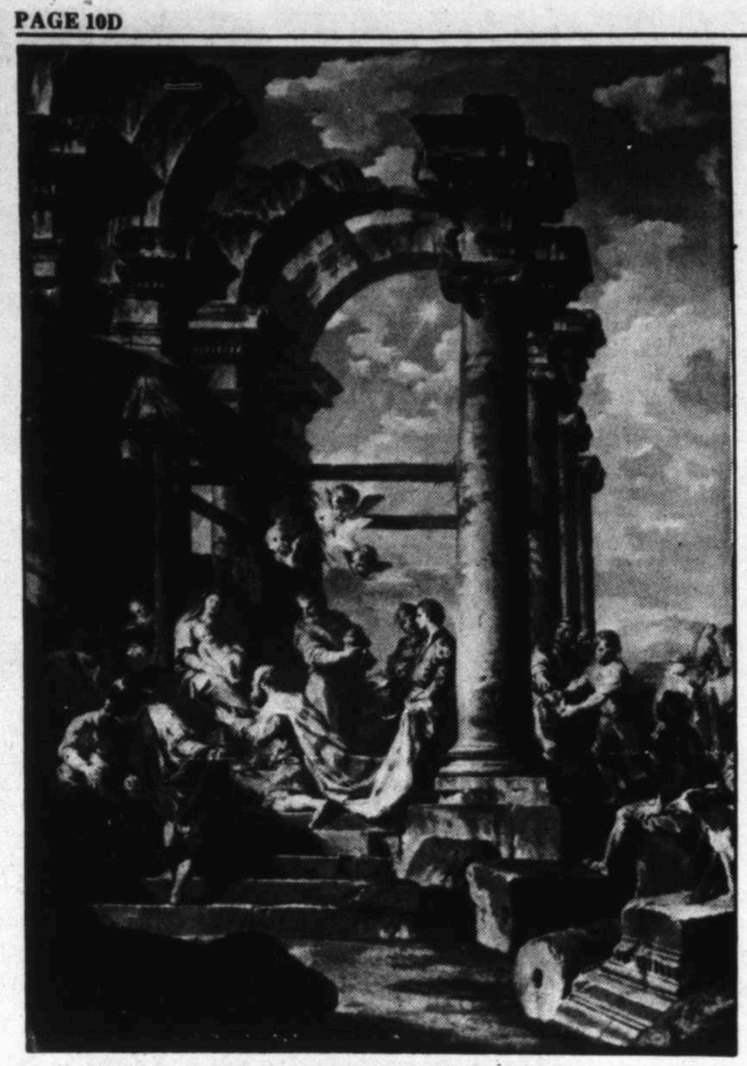

If you would like a truly distinctive centerpiece, check with your local florist.

Favorite clothes can survive holiday spills

By TRACI DAVIDSON
Copley News Service

Many people wear their favorite clothes at Christmas dinners. In the joy, merriment and excitement of the holiday spirit, they often spill their favorite foods on their holiday garb. Unfortunately, most fabrics when soiled become permanently stained, ruining these clothes forever.

"I've heard too many consumers complain that their favorite holiday outfit was ruined because stains didn't come out in the wash — and many times, even from dry cleaning," says Dmitry Gagarine, research director of Milliken and Co., makers of stain- and wrinkle-resistant Visa polyester fabrics. "Consumers have every right to get the most from their fabric dollar, so we decided to do extensive testing on how different fabrics perform when stained with typical Christmas-time foods."

Gagarine and his staff tested a full menu of foods, including gravy, cranberry sauce, beets and cherry pie stains on fabrics that they felt people would most likely wear during this time of year: wool, linen, ordinary polyester, Visa polyester, nylon and several natural and synthetic blends. It was found that the synthetic fabrics came out cleaner after an ordinary machine-washing in hot temperatures and a cup of detergent.

Of the natural fabrics tested, cotton came out of the wash cleaner than wool and linen. Fabric blends of polyester-wool and polyester-cotton also had fair-to-good stain release after an ordinary washing. The stains were the most difficult to remove from natural fibers and fabric blends because of their high-fat molecular structures.

"Wear clothing made of synthetic fabrics at holiday times for the best and easiest maintenance," says Gagarine.

Gagarine suggests pre-spotting natural fabrics which are stained in one-quarter cup bleach for every gallon of water at 70 degrees Fahrenheit for approximately 15 minutes. (This applies only to washable natural fabrics and will work better if the fabric is a light color.) Then squeeze out the fabric and put the clothing through another wash cycle. Most holiday stains will disappear, except on cotton when turkey-dressing stains will still persist. A fabric blend of cotton-ordinary polyester will also show turkey-dressing stains after this procedure, and even rice-gravy stains will still be there.

Your next step would be to take these clothes to the dry cleaner. Tell the cleaner where the stains are and what caused them so he-she can pre-spot the fabric with special solvents. "All of the stains came out when we discussed the particular problem with the cleaner," says Gagarine.

Stain removal experiments were conducted under realistic conditions. Stains were allowed to settle into the fabric for a minimum of 24 hours at 70 degrees Fahrenheit and under 50 percent humidity.

"Research is so important — it gives consumers what they need and want," says Gagarine. "It took years for us here at Milliken to develop new, improved fabrics like our Visa polyester, but it's well worth it.

'Midnight Cake' simple to make, satisfying to eat

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

1½ cups sifted cake flour
1¼ teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup Dutch-process cocoa
2 large eggs
1¼ cups sugar
⅔ cup oil
1 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Line bottoms of two square cake pans (each 8 by 8 by 2 inches) with wax paper. In a large bowl thoroughly stir together flour, baking soda, salt and cocoa; reserve. In another bowl beat eggs until foamy; gradually beat in sugar; continue to beat if necessary until thick and ivory color; reserve. To reserved flour mixture add oil, buttermilk and vanilla; beat until smooth; fold in reserved egg mixture until blended — batter will be thin. Turn into prepared pans. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 35 to 40 minutes. With a small metal spatula, loosen edges; turn out on wire racks; cool completely. Put layers together with ⅓ cup raspberry jam. Beat together until thick 1 cup heavy cream, ¼ cup Dutch-process cocoa, ¼ cup confectioners' sugar and use to cover top and sides of cake.

Special diets need special cooking

Diabetics and others on modified diets recommended by their physicians often use the "exchange list" method to determine foods that can be eaten. The groups, as broken down by the American Diabetes Association and the American Dietetic Association, are milk, vegetable, fruit, bread, meat and fat. Persons following special diets are allowed a certain number of "exchanges" in each of the categories daily — a difficult feat to master if the recipes being prepared do not list provisions for each serving.

As an aid in preparing delicious and varied menus for those on special diets, the Rice Council of America is offering a special recipe leaflet containing 14 recipes and listing the exchanges and calories for each. The leaflet includes recipes for beef, fish, pork, lamb and poultry and is available free of charge. For a copy send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to the Rice Council, P.O. Box 740121, Houston, Texas 77274. Ask for "Calculated Cooking."

Down-filled jacket, vest fashionable

Children, teenagers and adults will all appreciate a down-filled jacket or vest this Christmas. They are great for running errands, weekend walks, going to school or work, skiing or ice skating. For warm winter days the vest is ideal over a skirt or sweater.

The down jacket will keep you warm on cold winter days and will be comfortable through early spring. These practical fashion items will last for years if they are properly cared for. And they will be in style for years, too.

Group gifts fit families

With the holiday gift lists growing and the cost of entertainment soaring many families are pooling their resources this year for large single-purchase items that everyone can enjoy.

The trend towards group gifts — within extended families or groups of friends — includes hi-fi component systems, video equipment and car stereos. New or upgraded stereo systems are among the most-wanted items. While all family members may not agree on what kind of music to listen to, everyone appreciates his or her favorites played on a good component system.

Contributions for group purchases can be sufficient to buy an entire system or simply to upgrade one or two components.

Selecting stereo speakers is as simple as trusting your own ears. Shoppers should expect to pay at least $250 for a pair of well engineered loudspeakers.

While pre-packaged component systems might seem the easiest to buy they don't always offer the best value.

An audio manufacturer offers the following tips for selecting components:

— Bring good copies of favorite records to test on a variety of speakers. Have different kinds of music to be sure all are reproduced accurately.

— Ask the salesperson to play your records on two different sets of speakers at the same volume. Select the best set and compare them to a third.

— Use this process of elimination to evalate the speakers considered, but don't compare too many sets in one day. A few hours of comparison can lead to listener "burn-out."

— Stand a couple of feet directly in front of one speaker. See if you can hear both speakers or if the nearby speaker drowns out the farther one. This will help assure that you will hear true stereo.

— Set the receiver to the hissing noise between FM stations and have everyone walk around the listening room.

Guide for twelve ways to spend Christmas offered

By MICHAEL CARLTON
The Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

DENVER — There are certain decisions in life — always agonizingly difficult — that one always remembers; some successful, some not. The day you asked a girl out for the first time, and got turned down. The evening you proposed. The early-morning decision to divorce.

I remember some long-ago decisions as clearly as what I had for breakfast this morning. I made one such memorable decision last Dec. 25 while sitting in my home in the snow-choked Rocky Mountains. All of winter's elements came to play in Denver last Christmas. Roads were closed, stores were closed, even churches were closed. Bah, humbug.

My great Christmas, 1982, decision — one of the best I have ever made — was simple: Never again will I spend a Christmas in the snow.

But I realize that some of you like snow, love crackling fires and the scent of pines — and frostbite. So, for those of you who are smart like me and want to escape winter's fury, and for all you others who can't stand the thought of a Christmas without snow, we present our annual choice of Christmas holidays to remember. In the spirit of the season, we are giving you a dozen choices, one for each of the 12 days of Christmas.

ON THE WARM WATER

Since I've decided to go warm this year at Christmas, my first choice is a cruise. Princess Cruises' Pacific Princess will take you into the hot Pacific on a special 26-day cruise.

You will visit Tahiti, Hawaii, the Marquesas islands and — on Dec. 26 — Christmas Island. The roundtrip cost is $5,928 per person.

ON COLDEN POND

Holland, home to St. Nicholas, may be a bit cool at Christmas time, but Floating Through Europe, Inc., is offering a Christmas cruise Dec. 23-26 on board its hotel barge "Juliana." This is the first year the organization has offered winter barge cruises, so you can be assured no one else on the block has taken one.

Details from Floating Through Europe, Inc., 271 Madison Avenue, New York 10016.

IN PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH

Winterthur, the DuPont estate in the Brandywine Valley, is one of the most beautiful estates in America. And when it is dressed up for Christmas, it is even more enchanting.

The estate is one of the stops on a Maupintour to the Pennsylvania Dutch Country Dec. 19-26. You will also visit Longwood Gardens' Christmas tree lane, Bethlehem (of course), have wine and cheese at the Mount Hope Estates, sing Christmas carols at the old Donegal Mills House, have a country Christmas feast at the Strasburg Inn in Lancaster County, and visit an Amish household to learn about the customs of these interesting people.

The basic cost is $858 per person, double; a single supplement is an additional $200. Details from your travel agent.

ENGLISH COUNTRY CHRISTMAS

Lord Torrington wrote in 1787 of England's Lygon Arms Hotel, that "There could not be a cleanlier, civiller inn than this is, which bears the marks of old gentility and of having been a manor house. The hay is so good and everything so neat and the dogs so fat."

The rates for the Christmas program at Lygon Arms begin at $120 per person, per day, which includes a room and all meals. Details by writing the hotel at Broadway, Worcestershire, WR12 7DU, England or from your travel agent.

SOUTHERN COMFORT

Is there a prettier Southern city than Savannah, Ga.? With apologies to Charleston, no.

Christmas in Savannah is a throwback to the 19th century. You'll begin your Christmas weekend with a reception at the 1820 Davenport House with sherry and benne bits.

There are several other Christmas tours of Savannah. For details on them and on all facets of Savannah write the Savannah Area Convention and Visitors Bureau, 301 W. Broad St., Savannah 31499.

A RED CHRISTMAS

Christmas in Russia? Is it allowed? Apparently, for Society Expeditions is sponsoring a Christmas trip there, featuring transporation on the Trans-Siberian Express. You will celebrate Christmas Eve in a Russian Orthodox Church in Leningrad and tour the Hermitage Museum, then head for Moscow for a night at the Bolshoi ballet and a champagne and caviar dinner. By New Year's day you will be in Irkutsk, Siberia, where you can take a troika ride and drink some more vodka and champagne. If you want a cold Christmas, this is it.

The basic cost is $3,950 per person. Details from your travel agent.

CHRISTMAS IN CANADA

If Russia isn't cold enough for you, Canada should be. Maupintour has a Christmas in the Canadian Rockies that includes stays in the handsome Lake Louise Chateau and the Banff Springs Hotel, a drive through the spectacular Fraser River Valley, and time in Vancouver, where you can drive through Chinatown and Gastown and take the aerial tramway to the top of Grouse Mountain.

All this for $968 per person, double occupancy. Details from your travel agent.

CULTURAL CHRISTMAS

You start in New York. A performance of the "Nutcracker" at Lincoln Center begins your special Christmas, followed by a champagne supper at the Helmsley Palace. The next day it's off to Geneva for two nights, and then five nights at the wonderful Hotel Mon Cervin in Zermatt, followed by two nights in the Palace Hotel in Lucern, and seven nights at the Hotel Bristol in Vienna.

You will have black-tie dinners at gourmet restaurants, take sleigh rides through the Swiss mountain villages, and sightsee from a private rail car. You'll have the Royal Box at the Spanish Riding Academy, be given a private concert by the Vienna Boys Choir, attend the Imperial Ball on New Year's Eve, and enjoy a performance by the Vienna Philharmonic — all for a mere $3,745 per person, which includes your meals but not airfare. Details from your travel agent or William Buckman's Travel Time, 17 North State Street, Chicago 60602.

FORD HAS A BETTER IDEA

Detroit hardly seems like the most romantic place to spend Christmas — and it isn't, but nearby Dearborn can be.

Greenfield Village, a collection of 19th-century buildings, presents a remarkable Christmas each year, with live music, reproductions of period toys which children can play with, and demonstrations about Christmas traditions and foods all part of the celebration, which runs from early December through Jan. 2.

Weekend packages for two cost $150 at the inn, including a welcoming cocktail, two breakfasts, admission to Greenfield Village, taxes and tips. Children 12 and under sharing lodging with their parents are charged $19.

THE SOUND OF MUSIC

"These Are a Few of My Favorite Things," was one of the most memorable songs from the "The Sound of Music," and also describes a special holiday in Germany and Austria this Christmas.

The tour will take you to the Christmas market in Nuremburg, to a marionette play and a Mozart concert in Salzburg, to a Christmas banquet at the Hofburg (former residence of the Austrian Kaiser), and to the Kaiser Ball in Vienna, which is one of the social events of the year in Europe.

Details from Cortell Holidays, 3 East 54th St., New York 10022 or your travel agent.

TIME IN NEW ENGLAND

Christmas in New England is our most traditional, with the tiny steeples of churches throughout the region ringing out the joyous news of Christ's birth.

The tour costs $1,250 per person and includes accommodations for eight nights, eight breakfasts, six luncheons and seven dinners. Details from Country Inn Tours, 2930 Camino Diablo, Suite 200, Walnut Creek, CA 94596 or your travel agent.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HIGH

If you don't want to take my opening advice, you can spend Christmas in the Rocky Mountains, as I did last year.

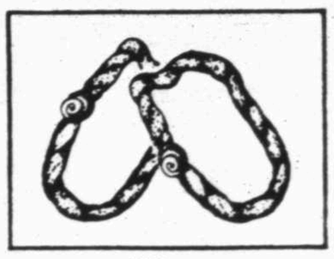

Maupintour has a great program scheduled from Dec. 19-27 that begins in Denver, with a stay at the Brown Palace, followed by a drive to Vail where you will lodge at the new Westin Vail. Next, board Amtrak to Salt Lake City, where you will stay at the fine Hotel Utah, attend a performance of Ballet West's "Nutcracker Suite," have a special Christmas Eve dinner, and attend a concert by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir on Christmas Day. Then, a sleigh will whisk you to the Homestead Resort for Christmas dinner.

The basic cost is $998 per person and your travel agent has details.

Santa's bookbag: Something for everyone

Hearst
Feature Service

This survey of the best new gift books for Christmas takes us on armchair journeys to spots as far-flung as Versailles and Peru, and then to books of paintings, photographs, and animal pictures – a Santa's bookbag, with something for everyone.

Consider finding some of these gems under the tree:

"A Desert Country Near the Sea" by Ann Zwinger (Harper and Row; 399 pages with b/w illustration throughout, $24.95).

BAJA CALIFORNIA HAS never been explored so intimately as in this naturalist's journal. Through the mountains, across the arid desert areas and into the sea with fins and snorkel to observe the coral reefs and tidepools, Zwinger combines 15 years of experiences in this chronicle. Her text and the numerous accompanying drawings and photographs make this enjoyable reading, and the scientific information is excellent.

"Pre-Columbian Art" by Jose Alcina Franch (Harry N. Abrams; 618 pages with 1,052 illustrations, including 177 in full color, $125).

Lucien Mazenod is a French publisher whose magnificent volumes on art around the world are considered among the most beautifully designed and comprehensive scholarly surveys available. This American edition of his book on pre-Columbian art, written by a distinguished ethnologist from the University of Madrid, is no exception. The photographs of wall paintings, sculptures and architectural detail from sites all over Latin America are truly extraordinary. The fold-out of the "Governor's Palace" at Uxmal, Yucatan, Mexico, is a breathtaking example of Mayan architecture. A beautifully designed section on the construction and excavation of the principal archaeological sites is by far the best material that has been made available on this subject. If you care about pre-Columbian art, this book is absolutely essential.

"AMERICAN FOLK ART of the Twentieth Century" by Jay Johnson and William C. Ketchum Jr. (Rizzoli, 352 pages, 230 color illustrations, $45).

The primitive power of these paintings, drawings, carvings and sculptures has a cumulative effect of surprising the reader by the sophistication of this material. If that sounds paradoxical, you need only leaf through this handsomely printed volume to see the subtleties of emotion and complexities of motif explored by artists with no formal training. Here is a grand slice of Americana with excellent text and documentation. In addition to well-known folk artists, this volume presents discoveries from all over the United States.

"Versailles: A Garden in Four Seasons" by Gerald van der Kemp, Jean d'Ormeson and Pierre Lemoine, with photographs by Jacques Dubois (Vendome Press, 224 pages with 213 illustrations, 115 in color, $85).

NEVER HAVE THE gardens of Versailles been captured with such loving detail and such a sense of splendor that was the court of Louis XIV. This book is remarkable not only for the stunning photographic work taken at Versailles in each of the four seasons of the year, but also for the physical quality of the publishing. The effort that has gone into the printing and binding of this limited edition (only 1,500 copies) reflects a craftsmanship that can rarely be found outside of Switzerland, where this book was prepared. Page after page, these special images from the timeless world of the Sun King delight the eye with the genius of 17th-century France.

"A World of Animals: The San Diego Zoo and the Wild Animal Park" by Bill Bruns, with photographs by Ron Gairison (Harry N. Abrams; 288 pages with 307 illustrations, 202 in full color, $35).

The best zoo in the world prides itself on putting few bars between the visitors and the animals. Hence, this lovely book contains lots of wildlife pictures that might well have been shot in native habitats. The text provides a great deal of backstage history and information about how the zoo gathers and cares for wild animals. If you have been to the San Diego Zoo, this is a vivid way to enhance your memory.

"MONET" BY ROBERT GORDON and Andrew Forge (Harry N. Abrams, Inc.; 304 pages with 365 illustrations, including 125 in full color; $67.50).

Is it possible that almost 60 years after his death there are still 50 paintings by the great Impressionist painter Claude Monet that have not been reproduced in color in an art book? This glorious new homage to the master more than rectifies this oversight by presenting all of Monet's works, including the missing 50, with careful attention to the subtle difficulties of color printing, lavish fold-out sections of comparative works, and historical photographs of his studios and gardens. The concept of this book and the painstaking research were produced by Robert Gordon over a period of 10 years.

Ideas for gardener's stocking

If you have gardening friends on your gift list this year, why not consider surprising them with a "green thumb" type gift which can be used and enjoyed year-round as they pursue their favorite hobby.

According to Texas Agricultural Extension Service, garden items make unusual, welcome and unique gifts, and the selections are vast. There is something for nearly everyone in any price range.

From a hand trowel to a riding lawnmower, gardening tools are guaranteed to please.

Garden accesssories such as wind chimes, a bird feeder, flower pots or hanging baskets are thoughtful gifts and gardening books, foliage plants and flowers, garden plants and gift certificates are always well-received.

Christmas trees holiday tradition

Copley News Service

An estimated 68 percent of the living rooms of America will display decorated Christmas trees on Dec. 25. A beloved holiday tradition, symbolic of the yule season, brings the evergreen, its fragrance and its symbols into the lives of Americans.

Germans have been given credit for using the first decorated and lighted tree, but the idea goes much further back into history. Primitive people believed that in nature lived and dwelt their gods. They especially revered trees and felt the strongest spirits lived in them.

It is recorded that during the Roman period trees were decorated with lighted oil lamps and had swinging toys tied to the branches. The same claim has been made by Egyptian historians for that culture.

HENRY VAN DYKE tells in his story, "The First Christmas Tree," about the druids' introduction to the Christmas tree. They were about to offer to the spirit of a sacred oak tree a young prince. He was saved from his untimely death by the missionary Winfried. The crowd gathered around him as he begged them not to worship the heathen gods any longer out in the dark forest.

Winfried told the druids of the birth of Christ, pointed to a small fir tree and asked them to take it into their homes and celebrate the birthdate of the Christ child. Those tiny firs in all probability were the first Christmas trees in England.

The most repeated story about our yule tree is about the reformer, Martin Luther (1483-1546). From the time when he sang carols in the streets with his friends in Eisenach to when he was the head of his own household, Christmas held a deep meaning for him.

The traditional story is that as Luther was walking home one Christmas Eve, the night was so filled with the bright winter stars peeking through the majestic beauty of the evergreens, that he was lost for words when he tried to share this experience with his family.

HE RETURNED TO the forest, and cut down a small fir, brought it into his house and placed lighted tapers on its branches. This he later said represented for him that beautiful night sky above the manger the eve that Christ was born.

Some clergy objected to Christmas trees as late as the 18th century. Sermons were preached on their evil because the people spent more time decorating their yule tree than they did reading their Bible. One denomination today forbids its members to observe Christmas or this custom.

Germany has contributed much to yuletide celebrations, and they have as the center of their festivities, their Christmas tree. On Christmas Eve, at the right moment, the door is thrown open for the children to view the trimmed tree in all of its glory, decorated with glittering stars, dolls dressed as angels, sweetmeats, tinsel, painted nuts, tiny tapers, homemade cookies, and handmade toys.

Presents are exchanged, then all join together to sing such Christmas favorites as "O Tannenbaum, O Tannenbaum!" and "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht!"

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS trees this side of the Atlantic were decorated by Germans, homesick Hessian mercenaries who had been hired by George III to put down the rebellious colonists. Customs of occupying troops are not readily adopted.

Much later, a German professor at Harvard, Charles Follen, in 1843, is credited with having set up the first Christmas tree after the Hessians in his home in Cambridge, Mass,

FASHION

Glamorous looks start with necklace, earrings

By COLETTE BOUCHEZ
Copley News Service

Olivia Newton-John has it. So do Bernadette Peters, Connie Sellica, Diahann Carroll and the absolutely gorgeous Linda Gray. And, as you can see by this photo, Jane Seymour has it to the limit!

What's "it?" It is unabashed glamour in the truest sense of the word!

And looking sensational is not all these ladies have in common ... because each one receives a healthy dose of good looks from one very special man: Arthur Johns, hairdresser extrodinaire! Owner of the high-chic salon Adjectives in West Hollywood, Arthur is the definitive authority on achieving glamour!

With the holidays approaching, adding a bit of that super beauty glamour to your appearance may be exactly what's on your mind; and according to Arthur Johns, it's far easier than you may think to look like a real superstar clear through the New Year!

"It's important to remember," says Johns, "that one of the main proponents of glamour is jewelry; and if you want to achieve a truly glamorous look, jewelry is where you start.

"It doesn't have to be expensive," he says, "it doesn't even have to be real. But, well-placed jewelry can change your image from daytime to nighttime glamour!

"For a woman," he continues, "a necklace and earrings are the most important pieces, with earrings making the strongest fashion statement of the season. And that is one of the main things to keep in mind when you take step two in achieving glamour ... choosing a hairdo.

"For a formal affair, or for the holidays," he says, "your best bet is an up-do. You need to get hair up and off the face so that your jewelry can be seen."

For actress Jane Seymour, who has extremely long hair, Arthur achieved glamour and high style by sweeping just enough hair off her face and one side of her neck to allow her necklace and earrings to "do their job ... sparkle, shine and add panache!"

"JANE LIKES TO wear her hair down," says Johns, "and if you have very long, beautiful hair like she does you may also want to show it off. The solution is to bring up the hair around the face, and perhaps off one side of the neck; your look will be more assertive, more formal and definitely more glamorous.

"If you can't bring your hair up," says Arthur, "it's still important to get it off your face.

"I suggest lightly geling your bangs and then blowing the rest of your hair back off the face and neck. You can then secure the whole look with one of those marvelous new wide hair ribbons that can be tied on the side or even at the top.

"If you don't like the look of the wider ribbons," he continues, "then the exact opposite is also considered very chic ... the use of those new pencil-thin headbands that come in bright electric colors. It's just enough to hold the hair off the face and add a bit of shine at the same time. You can then wear those wonderful new oversized earrings and/or necklaces.

"Also," adds Johns, "the snood is making a comeback and it works just great if you've got lots of little ends that you don't know what to do with. Simply pull all your hair back, pin in place and spray, and then cover the whole back of your head with the snood and again add your jewelry. It's a very sophisticated sort of 'Chanel' look that's going to be very strong for the holidays and formal affairs."

THE TWO THINGS Arthur suggests you avoid when attempting to glamorize your look is jeweled or fancy hair combs, and glitter of any kind in your hair or on your hair accessories.

Bridal fashions vary

In the midst of cold December, it's hard to imagine warm weather ahead. But in the world of bridal fashion, spring and summer are already here: this month the stores stock up for the coming year. What will the brides of 1984 be wearing?

Following the trend of the past few seasons, the silhouettes are classic and very feminine.Fabrics and detailing are sumptuous.

The formal, traditional wedding with all the trimmings is very big right now, and the clothes reflect it. But there's something else in the works this year: high variety and style.

You know what I'm going to do during the biggest revolution in telephone history?

Relax.

"Telecommunications revolution!"
"Phone company breaking up!"
"Today's headlines could get you confused about telephones and what to do. So I called the folks at AT&T for some straight answers on their special toll-free number: 1-800-555-8111."

The AT&T telephone in your home comes with options no one can match.

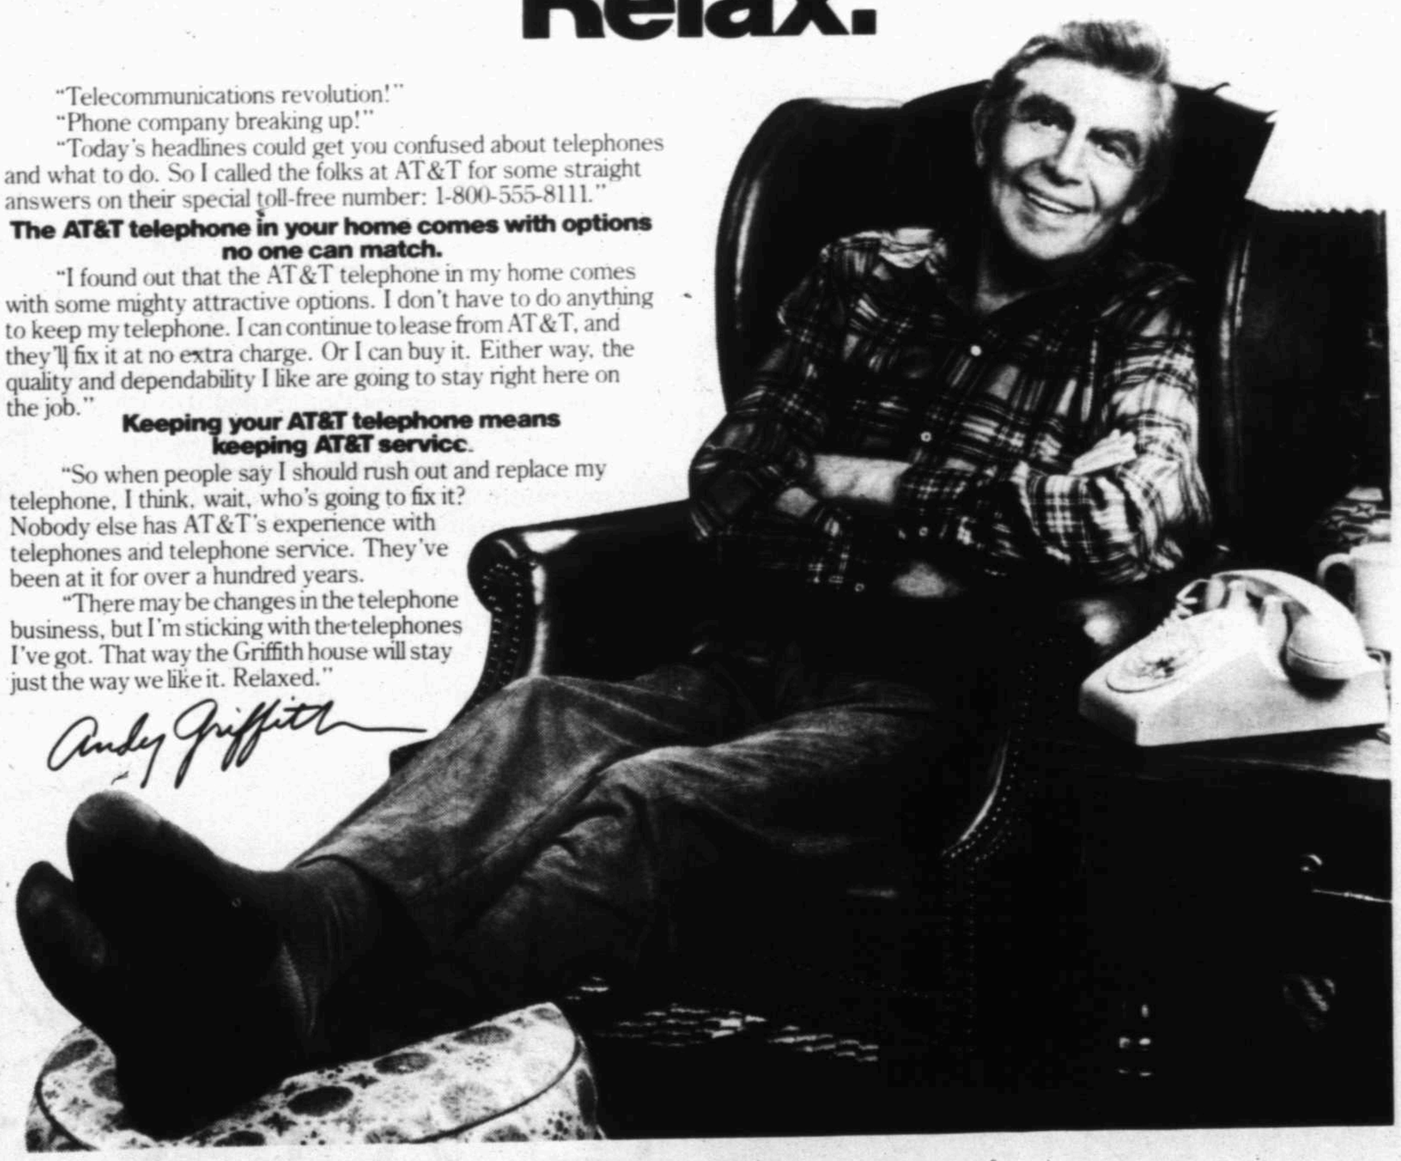

"I found out that the AT&T telephone in my home comes with some mighty attractive options. I don't have to do anything to keep my telephone. I can continue to lease from AT&T, and they'll fix it at no extra charge. Or I can buy it. Either way, the quality and dependability I like are going to stay right here on the job."

Keeping your AT&T telephone means keeping AT&T service.

"So when people say I should rush out and replace my telephone, I think, wait, who's going to fix it? Nobody else has AT&T's experience with telephones and telephone service. They've been at it for over a hundred years.

"There may be changes in the telephone business, but I'm sticking with the telephones I've got. That way the Griffith house will stay just the way we like it. Relaxed."

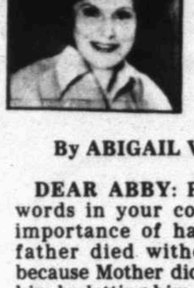

Andy Griffith

DEAR ABBY

Woman worries about family without wills

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please put a few words in your column about the importance of having a will. My father died without leaving one because Mother didn't want to scare him by letting him know that he was sick enough to die.

Of course, Dad wanted Mother to have everything, but after he died, Mother had to go through a lot of fancy footwork to settle his affairs. Having gone through all of this, wouldn't you think she would have her own will drawn up? Well, she hasn't, and she is getting on in years.

My sister, who is married to an attorney, called me "greedy and crass" for reminding Mother to have her will drawn up. Mother has asked her attorney son-in-law repeatedly to please get together with her to do it, but he keeps telling her there is no hurry and he's too busy right now. (My sister told me that she and her husband don't have wills either. Can you believe this?)

I am not concerned about my own inheritance, but my mother has a lot in assets, and I don't want to see it lost in taxes. What should I do? — CONCERNED DAUGHTER

DEAR CONCERNED: Tell your mother to give her attorney son-in-law the following message: "If you can't get together with me within the next two weeks, I intend to find an attorney who will." And if he doesn't — she should.

DEAR ABBY: This year I thank God my husband has a steady paycheck coming in and our family will spend the holidays with many loved ones. Our table will be filled with plenty to eat and our children will open many gifts.

I am not unappreciative, just a bit guilt-ridden because I know many families will go hungry and no Santa will visit their kids.

Feeling as I do, I called our parish priest and asked him to find a family we could help during the holidays. He said he knew of a family in desperate need and any help we could provide would be an answer to their prayers.

So my husband and I and our two children are shopping for "our family." Now instead of hearing, "I want," we hear, "Let's get this for them."

Abby, if every fortunate family were to help a family or person in need, it would be a better holiday season for everyone. — G.K.S.

DEAR G.K.S.: Thank you for a great idea.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Jerry and Me" could have been written by me 30 years ago. I was also 15 and madly in love with a 20-year-old man. My parents did everything they could to keep us apart, so I got pregnant on purpose so they would have to let us get married.

I was still 15 when our first child was born, and 17 when we had our second. Six weeks later my husband was sent to Italy with the U.S. Air Force and I was left behind to care for our two babies. Six months later my husband was badly brain damaged in a car accident, and 10 months after that he was killed in another car accident.

At 19 I was a widow with two children, no education and no job skills. I'll spare you the details of those awful years of struggling to survive and make a life for the three of us. Suffice it to say that I became an old lady before I became a woman. Worst of all, I broke my mother's heart. (She died at 55.)

I would like to tell that 15-year-old girl who can't wait to get married: You have a lifetime to be an adult. Once your childhood is gone you can never get it back. The horrors I endured before I turned 21 nearly ruined my life. Listen to Abby. If you are in love, it will last. At 45 I am only beginning to get my life together. I sincerely hope you will not make the same mistake I made. Sign this ... OLD BEFORE MY TIME

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Detergent deters sharks

Hearst Feature Service

Watch out, Jaws. The search for a fail-safe shark repellent has taken scientists to the drugstore on a highly successful mission.

Dr. Samuel Gruber, who has spent his professional career on the trail of the perfect anti-shark potion, reports that a detergent used in shampoos and dishwashing liquids outperformed the Navy's best repellent, as well as beating out a promising natural chemical candidate called Pardaxin.

Gruber, a professor at the University of Miami, says the anti-shark action of the detergent sodium dodecyl sulfate (SDS) was uncovered during the course of conducting studies on Pardaxin.

Pardaxin is a poison produced by a Middle Eastern flatfish, the Red Sea sole. Sharks have been photographed stopping an attack on the sole in mid-bite the instant after the fish released its toxin into the water.

Dr. Eugenie Clark, a University of Maryland zoologist, discovered the sole's special talents while diving in the Red Sea years ago. The responsible chemical was isolated but was found to be unstable and too short-acting to be practical for swimmers and divers. Since then, scientists have looked for ways to improve it or synthesize similar, but tougher, products.

According to Gruber, his co-worker, Eliahu Zlotkin, noticed that Pardaxin resembled a detergent, and the team then tested 15 different detergent-type compounds for possible shark repellent qualities.

In one test, according to a paper Gruber prepared for the American Chemical Society, man-hating lemon sharks were placed belly up in a tank, and the test detergent was added slowly to the water. The scientists measured the amount needed to force the sharks to flip over.

Musician honored by UNESCO

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Claudio Arrau, the noted concert pianist, recently received the 1983 Music Prize awarded by the International Music Council of UNESCO at a ceremony here.

Other 1983 award winners included Herbert von Karajan and the Swedish Royal Academy of Music.

The prize is awarded annually to musicians and musical institutions who have contributed to the enrichment and development of music and served in the cause of peace and international cooperation.

Alternative Education offered at Permian Basin High School

The only place in the Permian Basin for students in the eighth through the twelfth grades to obtain an "alternative" education is at the Permian Basin High School.

Not everyone fully understands what "alternative" education is as defined by the Commision on Secondary Schools of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Specifically, the Commision's definition states: "Schools that depart from (usually because of the special needs of their students) the usual pattern or organizational structure, learning experiences, teaching methods and staffing to require a different approach to evaluation and accreditationare considered to be alternative schools."

Different private schools may depart from the traditional educational structure but that, in itself, is not sufficient to qualify as an alternative school.

Permian Basin High School was founded on the premise of being an "alternative" school in the fullest sense. When founded in 1980, PBHS was one of three alternative schools in the state of Texas. The others were in Houston and Dallas.

To qualify as an alternative school was not the only goal of PBHS. Rather, directors and administrative personnel were dedicated to gaining full accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Even prior to admitting the first students in September 1981, PBHS had begun the long and detailed process of gaining this accreditation.

Briefly, the steps leading to accreditation include requesting approval to seek accreditation from the State Committee and must include justification of status as an alternative school; a detailed self-study conducted under the guidance of the State Committee; working with a consultant approved by the State Committee during the course of the self-study; a two day intensive visit by a committee appointed by the State Committee with a written report of their findings sent to the State Committee for review and evaluation; and following completion of the self-study and visit committee phase of evaluation, the school is eligible to file an application for accreditation.

Once accreditation is granted, alternative schools must submit to follow-up visits arranged by the State Committee members for two years following the initial visit to confirm that the school is conforming to the Principles of Accreditation and the Standards of the Commission on Secondary Schools. And is maintaining its commitment to its stated purposes, philosophy and objectives. Accreditation was granted PBHS in December 1982, in Atlanta,Georgia.

"Alternative" education in the Permian Basin is available only at Midland's private Permian Basin High School. One of the primary characteristics of PBHS is the one-to-one educational format which offers each student one teacher-one student learning opportunities. Classes are scheduled similar to college classes allowing the school's facilties to work with a larger number of students, all on a one-to-one basis.

Interested persons should contact Glen Walton at the school by calling 683-4448. Permian Basin High School is located at 3100 North A Street, Building E.

Students at the Permian Basin High School get one-on-one attention from the teachers. If you think your child could benefit from this type of education give Glen Walton a call at 683-4448. Permian Basin High School is located at 3100 North A Street, Building E.

Tom King and Bill Chancellor, owners of K&C Industrial Developers, would like to point out the advantages of office ownership and invite interested parties to come by Big Spring Sixteen-O-Three North, their condominium office building at 1603 N. Big Spring.

K & C Industrial lets you own your office

Owning your own office space is not only practical from a proprietory point of view, but it makes good economic sense as well. The offices at Big Spring Sixteen-O-Three North offer you another advantage: 100 percent financing and a convenient location.

The offices at Sixteen-0-Three North are built to give you an outside or atrium view; none of that closed in feeling of the multi-story projects which abound. The most important feature of this particular project, however, is the fact that by buying one or more of these condominium units, you can proportionally share in the common areas of the building, such as the reception area, kitchen and baths, which give you additional space to use at no extra cost. According to Tom King, who along with Bill Chancellor, owns this property; the aminities offered by ownership in Sixteen-O-Three North include sharing of secretarial and telephone answering services, sharing expenses including utilities, insurance and taxes. Also the fact that unlike renting office space, your payments are set and can not be increased over the life of the financing.

King also points out the tax advantages in owning your own office space which can result in a savings in taxes of up to 50 percent per year.

There are still several spaces available at the project, ranging in size from 174 square feet up to almost 800 square feet. Financing is at 100 percent for 15 years at the lowest market rates. the white, one story stucco building located at 1603 N. Big Spring, is well designed to give each office an outside view, as well as a view of the central atrium. This results in office space which is light and airy, giving one a feeling of being outdoors. There is covered parking in the rear of the building, as well as a parking area for visitors in the front of the building. The building is close to downtown yet far enough away to avoid the traffic congestion.

For information on purchasing one of these office spaces, call Tom King at 682-6000.

Davis ready to go back to work

Sammy Davis Jr.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., battling back from a bout with cracked ribs, is described as fine now and ready to go back to work.

Davis, 57, left Cedars-Sinai Medical Center Friday after a two-week stay, says his publicist Arnold Lipsman.

Davis cracked three ribs when he fell down while "putting on his pants," Lipsman said Monday.

"When he went in he had his annual physical and they discovered a little cirrhosis of the liver," Lipsman added.

Cirrhosis is a deterioration of the liver commonly caused by alcohol consumption, and Lipsman said Davis' doctors ordered him to stop drinking.

"He's fine," said the agent. "He'll be opening at Harrah's Reno New Year's Eve as scheduled."

Thatcher

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has disclosed that she has a recurring dream that she's running for a train or plane and her legs seem to turn to lead. Nevertheless, she always catches it.

When she has the dream, she knows something is worrying her about her next day's work, the 57-year-old prime minister told 11 teen-agers who asked her questions in an interview broadcast Monday.

Asked if she ever got in trouble in school, she replied, "We are none of us perfect angels and there is a streak of rebellion in all of us."

Did she have any bad habits? "I'm sure I have lots of bad habits, but I'm sure you wouldn't say what your bad habits are."

"I'm very impatient if things aren't done quickly. I can't bear it if anyone is unpunctual," she added.

The youngsters were from Australia, Canada, Cyprus, the Falklands, Grenada, India, Zimbabwe, Bangladesh, Hong Kong, Jamaica and England.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fans of ABC's "Dynasty" know that Carrington family members are the darlings of Denver society, so it should come as no surprise to see them rubbing elbows at a fancy ball with well known people, including Gerald and Betty Ford.

Former president Ford and his wife have a brief conversation with Blake Carrington, played by John Forsythe, and his previous wife, Krystal, played by Linda Evans, in Wednesday night's episode.

The occasion is Denver's ultra-chic charity Carousel Ball. The TV stars — in character — and real-life celebrities chitchatted in front of the "Dynasty" cameras at the lavish affair last October.

Viewers also will see the globe-trotting former secretary of state Henry Kissinger as he gets a chuckle out of a conversation with "Dynasty" villainess Alexis Carrington, played by Joan Collins.

The scenes, shot at the real-life ball, are mixed into the usual soundstage production to heighten the series' authenticity.

ROME (AP) — Italian President Sandro Pertini says he'll try to raise funds for ailing author Elsa Morante, whose novels include "Arthur's Island," and "History, A Novel."

Miss Morante, 65, has been hospitalized since April following a drug overdose. Doctors then discovered she has a severe case of arterial sclerosis which has left her partially paralyzed.

"I found her in good spirits, with a clear, calm mind," Pertini told reporters after a 45-minute private meeting with the author in a Rome hospital Monday night.

"We talked a little bit about everything, of our memories, limiting the conversation to light topics that wouldn't tire her out," he said.

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne says she took over as president of the British branch of the Save the Children Fund in part because children need "a break."

The 33-year-old princess has traveled through Africa, to war-torn Beirut and to camps in Pakistan crammed with Afghan refugees to see for herself how money raised by the fund is being spent.

In an interview Monday, she said children deserve "as level a break" as possible.

"Raising money is a difficult thing to do," the princess conceded. As for determining whether the money is being spent the right way, "there is no better way of doing it than going to see for yourself."

LONDON (AP) — Actress Jane Seymour says she's considering an offer to play Vivien Leigh, the legendary star of "Gone With the Wind," in a film biography.

Arriving in London on Monday, Miss Seymour said she would not accept the unspecified offer unless she was satisfied that "everyone involved in the story was in agreement, including Lord Olivier."

Actor Laurence Olivier wed Miss Leigh in 1940, but the marriage soon disintegrated as she had a series of affairs and descended into manic depression. They divorced in 1961, and she died in 1967 of tuberculosis.

Olivier, in his 1982 memoir "Confessions of an Actor, said Miss Leigh's infidelity and mental illness tortured him.

The English-born Miss Seymour, 32, arrived from Los Angeles with her husband, David Flynn, and their 23-month-old daughter Katie to spend Christmas at St. Catherine's Court, an Elizabethan manor house they just bought near Bath in southwest England.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Joseph Massengale, 36, a stuntman and actor, died Saturday of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Massengale's television credits included "The Gambler," "The Gambler II," ABC's 1978-79 TV series, "How The West Was Won," and several episodes of the NBC series "Father Murphy." His film credits were "Stir Crazy," "Frisco Kid" and "Tom Horn."

Dating service for dogs, cats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Know a purebred cat or dog that needs a date? Frank Mashevich will fix them up — and the owner may make some money in the process.

For a small fee, Mashevich's Dog and Cat Dating Service will provide owners of purebred animals a selection of prospective mates — and stud fees — for their pets.

The 25-year-old Russian refugee, who works at a non-profit organization finding jobs for other political refugees, got the idea for the service about six months ago when he and a friend were discussing their problems in finding suitable mates for their dogs.

Mashevich was having trouble finding a mate for his male German shepherd. His friend, who owns a female collie, said he couldn't afford the $100 to $1,000 stud fees commanded by purebred collie breeders.

"I just didn't believe there is no other way," said Mashevich. "But I did some research and found that there wasn't."

So he and a partner, Lenny Gendleman, went into business and the service began operations about two months ago.

Clients can subscribe over a toll-free telephone number. They pay a $39 fee and provide information about their pet's age, breed and color and whether the animal is certified by the American Kennel Club.

In return they get a monthly list of opposite-sex pets of the same breed along with the owners' name and telephone numbers. From then on it is up to the owners to negotiate meetings and stud fees — and to verify their potential mate's pedigree.

"Usually people go to a breeder and they find only one or two, and there's no more choice," Mashevich said. "We give them a good choice."

In addition to offering more potential mates, the service is also bound to result in lower stud fees because it allows for increased competition, Mashevich contends.

"If he (the female pet owner) is not given a reasonable stud fee, he can go to someone else," he explains.

"The stud fee could be nothing. Sometimes the owner of a male dog is willing to do it in return for a puppy" — which can be sold at a profit, Mashevich said.

Film sweeps awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Terms of Endearment" clearly endeared itself to the Los Angeles Film Critics Association, which voted it the top movie of 1983 in five out of eight major categories.

Aside from best picture, the Paramount release earned best actress honors for Shirley MacLaine, best supporting actor for Jack Nicholson, and a pair of citations to James L. Brooks for best director and best script.

Robert Duvall was named best actor for "Tender Mercies" and Linda Hunt was best supporting actress for her work in "The Year of Living Dangerously."

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Penguins hatched in a refrigerated exhibit appeared indifferent to their long trip from the Antarctic while still in their shells, but the move may have left some remaining eggs infertile.

"They're really popping in there," says Sea World spokeswoman Jackie O'Connor, referring to the park's Penguin Encounter, where 15 of the flightless birds have hatched in the past two weeks.

Eight of the newborn Adelie penguins are being raised in nests, which their parents shaped out of rocks at the exhibit, Ms. O'Connor said Monday.

The first of the little gray Adelies, which grow to about a foot tall and assume black and white plumage that looks like a tuxedo, was hatched Dec. 4. The eggs were taken from Antarctica in an attempt to begin a self-sustaining colony of penguins at the marine park in Southern California.

"We have seven chicks that we are hand-raising," Ms. O'Connor said. "We take anything that it appears the parents are not rearing properly."

The hand-raised birds will be placed in the exhibit in January, after they fledge — or grow feathers — and can keep themselves warm in the 28-degree penguin enclosure.

Ms. O'Connor said that there are 30 more Adelie eggs "but we really don't expect to get 30 chicks out of those eggs."

"This is a low-yield year principally because of the disturbances," she said, referring to the penguins' transfer from a secluded freezer to the public exhibit in Southern California.

"This bird returns, in the wild, to the same patch of ground every year. This year they had to start over the whole business of staking out their territory. Some (eggs) will be infertile."

In their native habitat, Adelies usually lay two eggs. "Our work suggests that probably in the wild, they only rear one, and the second is a backup," said Ms. O'Connor. "Frequently we take one of those two eggs to incubate and hand-rear. It increases the breeding potential."

The second chick, she said, would not survive in the wild because it would be less developed and incapable of competing with its older sibling in getting regurgitated fish from its parents' beaks.

It's not the first time penguins have hatched at Sea World. Two Emperor penguins arrived early in the fall. But their parents were put in seclusion when the eggs were laid and both Emperor chicks are being reared by Sea World bird curators. They won't be on public view until they fledge in late January.

The Emperor parents were taken out of the exhibit when they laid eggs because they have a habit of carrying their eggs on their feet. Ms. O'Connor said it was feared that they might shuffle into the water and lose the eggs. When Emperors lay eggs in the wild, they are hundreds of miles from water.

The Adelies are different. They lay their eggs in the rock piles and the male and female trade nest-sitting chores.

There are 300 penguins of six varieties in the Penguin Encounter. And Ms. O'Connor says all the new hatchlings, as well as any chicks produced from 400 eggs just brought back from the Antarctic, will be crowded into the exhibit.

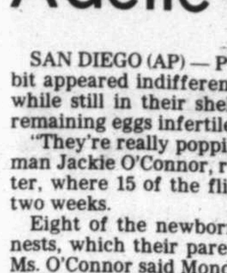

"There's still room," she said. "The natural history of these birds is that they are very colonial. You find them in colonies of millions of birds, literally almost shoulder to shoulder."

None of the penguins are endangered except the Humboldt variety, which tolerate warmer climates and are on display outside the penguin enclosure.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine says he has a constant ringing in his ears and that nothing can be done about it. I've never heard of this before and I'd like to know the name of the disease. — Ginny, Dover, N.J.

Dear Ginny: Tinnitus, which appears to be the condition your friend is experiencing, is not considered a disease but a symptom. While there is still no cure for the condition, I would not agree that nothing can be done for it.

The current choice in relieving the symptom involves masking the noise by substituting an external sound. This can be done with a hearing aid or with what is called a tinnitus masker. Some patients use music or another sound to mask the noise, and others have been helped by biofeedback or relaxation training. Most of the drugs tested have not been very effective and have resulted in undesirable side effects.

A number of self-help groups for tinnitus patients have been established around the country, and you might want to suggest to your friend that he look into this.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband continues to play tennis even though he has angina. I've tried to get him to slow down but he says that he feels better when he's active and that his doctor says he has no objections. What would you suggest? — Mrs. A.R., Potomac, Md.

Dear Mrs. R.: I suggest you let him play tennis. Dr. L. Howard Hartley, director of cardiac rehabilitation at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, reports that moderate exercise appears to be beneficial in patients with angina. If your husband is overweight, the loss of the extra pounds would also be very helpful.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've always been aware that mumps can cause a man to become sterile, but I'd like to know if this is always the case. — Irv, Casper, Wyo.

Dear Irv: Mumps that occur after puberty can cause an inflammation of the testes and, subsequently, a wasting away of the testes; this occurs in about 20 percent of men who have mumps. Even among this 20 percent, however, most men do not have their fertility impaired.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I had my gallbladder out about 10 years ago and I've heard that this means I am more likely to get stomach cancer. Is this true? — Mae, N.Y.C.

Dear Mae: The results of a study of almost 17,000 patients who had their gallbladders removed show they have no greater risk of gastrointestinal cancer than do people in the general population. The study was conducted by Dr. Sven Gustavsson, of University Hospital in Uppsala, Sweden.

For Hilda, Wilkes-Barre, Penn.: A report from Scotland indicates that a form of incontinence in women, which is often psychosomatic in nature, can be cured by hypnosis. Of 50 patients who completed the course of treatment, 29 became completely free of symptoms and 14 were judged to be considerably improved.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

First Lady Nancy Reagan helps the two South Korean children she brought to the United States for heart surgery, Lee Kil-Woo, left, and Ahn Ji Sook, with presents at St. Francis Hospital in Roslyn, N.Y., Monday. The children presented Mrs. Reagn with an ornament they made for the Reagan's Christmas tree, and the first lady gave them each a Cabbage Patch doll.

First Lady bringing Christmas to children

ROSLYN, N.Y. (AP) — Bearing dolls, T-shirts and tenderness, Nancy Reagan visited the two South Korean children she brought to America for heart surgery and said it was "like Thanksgiving and Christmas all rolled into one."

Asked how she felt about visiting the recuperating children, Mrs. Reagan replied, "If I start to tell you, I'll start to cry."

The first lady was reunited with the children Monday at St. Francis Hospital, where they underwent surgery to repair their hearts Nov. 23 and Nov. 24.

"Thank you for saving my life," wrote Ahn Gi-Sook, 7, in a handmade Christmas card she gave to Mrs. Reagan.

Her 4-year-old friend, Lee Kil-Woo, wrote: "To my hal maw nee (grandmother, in Korean). I love you."

The youngsters also gave her an ornament they made for the Reagans' Christmas tree — a white plastic foam ball decorated with sequins, a red bow and tinsel.

In return, she gave them Cabbage Patch Kids dolls and T-shirts that depicted teddy bears, with the inscription, "Love Beareth All Things."

"They look great," whispered Mrs. Reagan, her voice hoarse with laryngitis. The girl kissed her repeatedly, and the children played with their dolls.

Mrs. Reagan's spokeswoman, Sheila Tate, said she obtained the scarce dolls "in the magical way that first ladies can do."

Mrs. Reagan learned of the children from Gift of Life Inc., a program that brings poor children with heart defects from their native countries to the United States for operations.

Violence cut from cartoon

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Bugs Bunny always escapes the shotgun-toting Elmer Fudd with nary a whisker touched, but critics say he and his comic counterparts are being mortally wounded by CBS censors who are editing the violence out of classic Warner Bros. cartoons.

The exploits of Bugs Bunny, Elmer Fudd, Tweety Bird and Wile E. Coyote have been delighting children on Saturday mornings for decades. But the latest generation is seeing versions that are missing the often-violent endings to gags their parents enjoyed, according to the latest issue of TV Guide.

"They make some cuts that are so arbitrary and stupid, you can't believe it," said Chuck Jones, who directed 250 of the nearly 1,000 cartoons Warner Bros. Inc. produced until 1962.

"I think if they're bad for children, they should be taken off the screen completely. If they're not, they shouldn't let these heavy-handed idiots get hold of them and rape them," Jones said.

One example cited by the magazine involves rooster Foghorn Leghorn, who accepts a football containing a lighted stick of dynamite from his arch-nemesis, the dog. Foghorn tosses the football over his shoulder — and then the cartoon cuts to a scene showing Foghorn and the battered pooch talking. Viewers never see how the dog's fur became torn and frayed.

Alice Henderson, vice president of program practices at CBS, refused to comment about the censoring. But Greg Ford of New York, a film historian and critic specializing in animated cartoons, says he thinks the cuts have ruined the jokes.

"I think they should be shown intact or not at all," Ford said. "I think every child knows when the coyote falls off a cliff, it's not the same as the child falling off a cliff.

"The rhythm has changed, and there's obviously something absent. The gag doesn't work anymore," he said.

Big Apple nice place to visit

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City had 17.1 million paying visitors this year, about 200,000 more than last year, the city's Convention and Visitors Bureau says.

Visitors to the Big Apple spent about $2.2 billion, an increase of $130 million over 1982, the bureau reported Monday.

Hotel occupancy rose 3.4 percent to 73.4 percent, and the city played host to five more conventions than in 1982, the bureau said.

Charles Gillett, president of the bureau, said 1983 had been the strongest year since 1979 and 1980 — the best for tourism in the city's history.

New York City is "the No. 1 visitor destination in the world" and tourism will directly produce $208 million in local taxes in 1983, according to the bureau.

PUBLIC NOTICE
On October 26, 1983 (as released on November 14, 1983), the Federal Communications Commission designated the FM construction permit applications of the following applicants for a comparative broadcasting hearing:
Gonzales/Torres Broadcasting Company; R.L. Moore and L.L. Moore, DePaHo communications, Inc.; Willis Jay Harpole; Horizon Communications, Inc.; Responsive Chord Communications Ltd.; Lee Optical Pension Fund Trust; Jerry Wayne Black; Hugh M. McBeath; and A.S.& G. Communications. These applications seek the FM Channel 294C (106.7 MegaHertz) allocation at Midland, Texas. The issues in the hearing are as follows:
1. To determine with respect to the following applicant whether the applicant is financially qualified: Gonzales/Torres Broadcasting Company.
2. To determine whether a comparative preference should accrue to any of the applicants based on areas and populations which would receive service from the proposals.
3. To determine with respect to the following applicant whether the tower height and proposed location would constitute a hazard to air navigation: R.L. Moore & L.L. Moore, DePaHo Communications, Inc., and Willis Jay Harpole.
4. To determine which of the proposals would, on a comparative basis, best serve the public interest.
5. To determine, in the light of the evidence adduced pursuant to the foregoing issues, which of the applicants should be granted, if any.
Hearing is tentatively scheduled to commence at the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C. on February 27, 1984.
Copies of the applications, amendments, and related material are on file for public inspection at the following addresses:

Davis ready to go back to work

Sammy Davis Jr.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., battling back from a bout with cracked ribs, is described as fine now and ready to go back to work.

Davis, 57, left Cedars-Sinai Medical Center Friday after a two-week stay, says his publicist Arnold Lipsman.

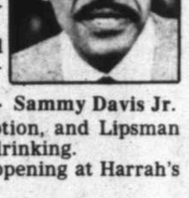

Davis cracked three ribs when he fell down while "putting on his pants," Lipsman said Monday.

"When he went in he had his annual physical and they discovered a little cirrhosis of the liver," Lipsman added.

Cirrhosis is a deterioration of the liver commonly caused by alcohol consumption, and Lipsman said Davis' doctors ordered him to stop drinking.

"He's fine," said the agent. "He'll be opening at Harrah's Reno New Year's Eve as scheduled."

Thatcher

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has disclosed that she has a recurring dream that she's running for a train or plane and her legs seem to turn to lead. Nevertheless, she always catches it.

When she has the dream, she knows something is worrying her about her next day's work, the 57-year-old prime minister told 11 teen-agers who asked her questions in an interview broadcast Monday.

Asked if she ever got in trouble in school, she replied, "We are none of us perfect angels and there is a streak of rebellion in all of us."

Did she have any bad habits? "I'm sure I have lots of bad habits, but I'm sure you wouldn't say what your bad habits are."

"I'm very impatient if things aren't done quickly. I can't bear it if anyone is unpunctual," she added.

The youngsters were from Australia, Canada, Cyprus, the Falklands, Grenada, India, Zimbabwe, Bangladesh, Hong Kong, Jamaica and England.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fans of ABC's "Dynasty" know that Carrington family members are the darlings of Denver society, so it should come as no surprise to see them rubbing elbows at a fancy ball with well known people, including Gerald and Betty Ford.

Former president Ford and his wife have a brief conversation with Blake Carrington, played by John Forsythe, and his previous wife, Krystal, played by Linda Evans, in Wednesday night's episode.

The occasion is Denver's ultra-chic charity Carousel Ball. The TV stars — in character — and real-life celebrities chitchatted in front of the "Dynasty" cameras at the lavish affair last October.

Viewers also will see the globe-trotting former secretary of state Henry Kissinger as he gets a chuckle out of a conversation with "Dynasty" villainess Alexis Carrington, played by Joan Collins.

The scenes, shot at the real-life ball, are mixed into the usual soundstage production to heighten the series' authenticity.

• • •

ROME (AP) — Italian President Sandro Pertini says he'll try to raise funds for ailing author Elsa Morante, whose novels include "Arthur's Island," and "History, A Novel."

Miss Morante, 65, has been hospitalized since April following a drug overdose. Doctors then discovered she has a severe case of arterial sclerosis which has left her partially paralyzed.

"I found her in good spirits, with a clear, calm mind," Pertini told reporters after a 45-minute private meeting with the author in a Rome hospital Monday night.

"We talked a little bit about everything, of our memories, limiting the conversation to light topics that wouldn't tire her out," he said.

• • •

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne says she took over as president of the British branch of the Save the Children Fund in part because children need "a break."

The 33-year-old princess has traveled through Africa, to war-torn Beirut and to camps in Pakistan crammed with Afghan refugees to see for herself how money raised by the fund is being spent.

In an interview Monday, she said children deserve "as level a break" as possible.

"Raising money is a difficult thing to do," the princess conceded. As for determining whether the money is being spent the right way, "there is no better way of doing it than going to see for yourself."

• • •

LONDON (AP) — Actress Jane Seymour says she's considering an offer to play Vivien Leigh, the legendary star of "Gone With the Wind," in a film biography.

Arriving in London on Monday, Miss Seymour said she would not accept the unspecified offer unless she was satisfied that "everyone involved in the story was in agreement, including Lord Olivier."

Actor Laurence Olivier wed Miss Leigh in 1940, but the marriage soon disintegrated as she had a series of affairs and descended into manic depression. They divorced in 1961, and she died in 1967 of tuberculosis.

Olivier, in his 1982 memoir "Confessions of an Actor, said Miss Leigh's infidelity and mental illness tortured him.

The English-born Miss Seymour, 32, arrived from Los Angeles with her husband, David Flynn, and their 23-month-old daughter Katie to spend Christmas at St. Catherine's Court, an Elizabethan manor house they just bought near Bath in southwest England.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Joseph Massengale, 36, a stuntman and actor, died Saturday of a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Massengale's television credits included "The Gambler," "The Gambler II," ABC's 1978-79 TV series, "How The West Was Won," and several episodes of the NBC series "Father Murphy." His film credits were "Stir Crazy," "Frisco Kid" and "Tom Horn."

Dating service for dogs, cats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Know a purebred cat or dog that needs a date? Frank Mashevich will fix them up — and the owner may make some money in the process.

For a small fee, Mashevich's Dog and Cat Dating Service will provide owners of purebred animals a selection of prospective mates — and stud fees — for their pets.

The 25-year-old Russian refugee, who works at a non-profit organization finding jobs for other political refugees, got the idea for the service about six months ago when he and a friend were discussing their problems in finding suitable mates for their dogs.

Mashevich was having trouble finding a mate for his male German shepherd. His friend, who owns a female collie, said he couldn't afford the $100 to $1,000 stud fees commanded by purebred collie breeders.

"I just didn't believe there is no other way," said Mashevich. "But I did some research and found that there wasn't."

So he and a partner, Lenny Gendleman, went into business and the service began operations about two months ago.

Clients can subscribe over a toll-free telephone number. They pay a $39 fee and provide information about their pet's age, breed and color and whether the animal is certified by the American Kennel Club.

In return they get a monthly list of opposite-sex pets of the same breed along with the owners' name and telephone numbers. From then on it is up to the owners to negotiate meetings and stud fees — and to verify their potential mate's pedigree.

"Usually people go to a breeder and they find only one or two, and there's no more choice," Mashevich said. "We give them a good choice."

In addition to offering more potential mates, the service is also bound to result in lower stud fees because it allows for increased competition, Mashevich contends.

"If he (the female pet owner) is not given a reasonable stud fee, he can go to someone else," he explains.

"The stud fee could be nothing. Sometimes the owner of a male dog is willing to do it in return for a puppy" — which can be sold at a profit, Mashevich said.

Film sweeps awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Terms of Endearment" clearly endeared itself to the Los Angeles Film Critics Association, which voted it the top movie of 1983 in five out of eight major categories.

Aside from best picture, the Paramount release earned best actress honors for Shirley MacLaine, best supporting actor for Jack Nicholson, and a pair of citations to James L. Brooks for best director and best script.

Robert Duvall was named best actor for "Tender Mercies" and Linda Hunt was best supporting actress for her work in "The Year of Living Dangerously."

Adelie chicks arrive on public view

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Penguins hatched in a refrigerated exhibit appeared indifferent to their long trip from the Antarctic while still in their shells, but the move may have left some remaining eggs infertile.

"They're really popping in there," says Sea World spokeswoman Jackie O'Connor, referring to the park's Penguin Encounter, where 15 of the flightless birds have hatched in the past two weeks.

Eight of the newborn Adelie penguins are being raised in nests, which their parents shaped out of rocks at the exhibit, Ms. O'Connor said Monday.

The first of the little gray Adelies, which grow to about a foot tall and assume black and white plumage that looks like a tuxedo, was hatched Dec. 4. The eggs were taken from Antarctica in an attempt to begin a self-sustaining colony of penguins at the marine park in Southern California.

"We have seven chicks that we are hand-raising," Ms. O'Connor said. "We take anything that it appears the parents are not rearing properly."

The hand-raised birds will be placed in the exhibit in January, after they fledge — or grow feathers — and can keep themselves warm in the 28-degree penguin enclosure.

Ms. O'Connor said that there are 30 more Adelie eggs "but we really don't expect to get 30 chicks out of those eggs."

"This is a low-yield year principally because of the disturbances," she said, referring to the penguins' transfer from a secluded freezer to the public exhibit in Southern California.

"This bird returns, in the wild, to the same patch of ground every year. This year they had to start over the whole business of staking out their territory. Some (eggs) will be infertile."

In their native habitat, Adelies usually lay two eggs. "Our work suggests that probably in the wild, they only rear one, and the second is a backup," said Ms. O'Connor. "Frequently we take one of those two eggs to incubate and hand-rear. It increases the breeding potential."

The second chick, she said, would not survive in the wild because it would be less developed and incapable of competing with its older sibling in getting regurgitated fish from its parents' beaks.

It's not the first time penguins have hatched at Sea World. Two Emperor penguins arrived early in the fall. But their parents were put in seclusion when the eggs were laid and both Emperor chicks are being reared by Sea World bird curators. They won't be on public view until they fledge in late January.

The Emperor parents were taken out of the exhibit when they laid eggs because they have a habit of carrying their eggs on their feet. Ms. O'Connor said it was feared that they might shuffle into the water and lose the eggs. When Emperors lay eggs in the wild, they are hundreds of miles from water.

The Adelies are different. They lay their eggs in the rock piles and the male and female trade nest-sitting chores.

There are 300 penguins of six varieties in the Penguin Encounter. And Ms. O'Connor says all the new hatchlings, as well as any chicks produced from 400 eggs just brought back from the Antarctic, will be crowded into the exhibit.

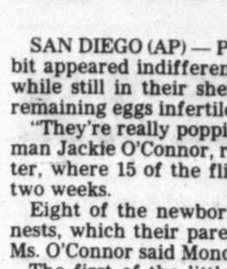

"There's still room," she said. "The natural history of these birds is that they are very colonial. You find them in colonies of millions of birds, literally almost shoulder to shoulder."

None of the penguins are endangered except the Humboldt variety, which tolerate warmer climates and are on display outside the penguin enclosure.

Tinnitus not disease but symptom

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine says he has a constant ringing in his ears and that nothing can be done about it. I've never heard of this before and I'd like to know the name of the disease. — Ginny, Dover, N.J.

Dear Ginny: Tinnitus, which appears to be the condition your friend is experiencing, is not considered a disease but a symptom. While there is still no cure for the condition, I would not agree that nothing can be done for it.

The current choice in relieving the symptom involves masking the noise by substituting an external sound. This can be done with a hearing aid or with what is called a tinnitus masker. Some patients use music or another sound to mask the noise, and others have been helped by biofeedback or relaxation training. Most of the drugs tested have not been very effective and have resulted in undesirable side effects.

A number of self-help groups for tinnitus patients have been established around the country, and you might want to suggest to your friend that he look into this.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband continues to play tennis even though he has angina. I've tried to get him to slow down but he says that he feels better when he's active and that his doctor says he has no objections. What would you suggest? — Mrs. A.R., Potomac, Md.

Dear Mrs. R.: I suggest you let him play tennis. Dr. L. Howard Hartley, director of cardiac rehabilitation at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, reports that moderate exercise appears to be beneficial in patients with angina. If your husband is overweight, the loss of the extra pounds would also be very helpful.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've always been aware that mumps can cause a man to become sterile, but I'd like to know if this is always the case. — Irv, Casper, Wyo.

Dear Irv: Mumps that occur after puberty can cause an inflammation of the testes and, subsequently, a wasting away of the testes; this occurs in about 20 percent of men who have mumps. Even among this 20 percent, however, most men do not have their fertility impaired.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I had my gallbladder out about 10 years ago and I've heard that this means I am more likely to get stomach cancer. Is this true? — Mae, N.Y.C.

Dear Mae: The results of a study of almost 17,000 patients who had their gallbladders removed show they have no greater risk of gastrointestinal cancer than do people in the general population. The study was conducted by Dr. Sven Gustavsson, of University Hospital in Uppsala, Sweden.

For Hilda, Wilkes-Barre, Penn.: A report from Scotland indicates that a form of incontinence in women, which is often psychosomatic in nature, can be cured by hypnosis. Of 50 patients who completed the course of treatment, 29 became completely free of symptoms and 14 were judged to be considerably improved.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

First Lady Nancy Reagan helps the two South Korean children she brought to the United States for heart surgery, Lee Kil-Woo, left, and Ahn Ji Sook, with presents at St. Francis Hospital in Roslyn, N.Y., Monday. The children presented Mrs. Reagn with an ornament they made for the Reagan's Christmas tree, and the first lady gave them each a Cabbage Patch doll.

First Lady bringing Christmas to children

ROSLYN, N.Y. (AP) — Bearing dolls, T-shirts and tenderness, Nancy Reagan visited the two South Korean children she brought to America for heart surgery and said it was "like Thanksgiving and Christmas all rolled into one."

Asked how she felt about visiting the recuperating children, Mrs. Reagan replied, "If I start to tell you, I'll start to cry."

The first lady was reunited with the children Monday at St. Francis Hospital, where they underwent surgery to repair their hearts Nov. 23 and Nov. 24.

"Thank you for saving my life," wrote Ahn Gi-Sook, 7, in a handmade Christmas card she gave to Mrs. Reagan.

Her 4-year-old friend, Lee Kil-Woo, wrote: "To my hal maw nee (grandmother, in Korean). I love you."

The youngsters also gave her an ornament they made for the Reagans' Christmas tree — a white plastic foam ball decorated with sequins, a red bow and tinsel.

In return, she gave them Cabbage Patch Kids dolls and T-shirts that depicted teddy bears, with the inscription, "Love Beareth All Things."

"They look great," whispered Mrs. Reagan, her voice hoarse with laryngitis. The girl kissed her repeatedly, and the children played with their dolls.

Mrs. Reagan's spokeswoman, Sheila Tate, said she obtained the scarce dolls "in the magical way that first ladies can do."

Mrs. Reagan learned of the children from Gift of Life Inc., a program that brings poor children with heart defects from their native countries to the United States for operations.

Violence cut from cartoon

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Bugs Bunny always escapes the shotgun-toting Elmer Fudd with nary a whisker touched, but critics say he and his comic counterparts are being mortally wounded by CBS censors who are editing the violence out of classic Warner Bros. cartoons.

The exploits of Bugs Bunny, Elmer Fudd, Tweety Bird and Wile E. Coyote have been delighting children on Saturday mornings for decades. But the latest generation is seeing versions that are missing the often-violent endings to gags their parents enjoyed, according to the latest issue of TV Guide.

"They make some cuts that are so arbitrary and stupid, you can't believe it," said Chuck Jones, who directed 250 of the nearly 1,000 cartoons Warner Bros. Inc. produced until 1962.

"I think if they're bad for children, they should be taken off the screen completely. If they're not, they shouldn't let these heavy-handed idiots get hold of them and rape them," Jones said.

One example cited by the magazine involves rooster Foghorn Leghorn, who accepts a football containing a lighted stick of dynamite from his arch-nemesis, the dog. Foghorn tosses the football over his shoulder — and then the cartoon cuts to a scene showing Foghorn and the battered pooch talking. Viewers never see how the dog's fur became torn and frayed.

Alice Henderson, vice president of program practices at CBS, refused to comment about the censoring. But Greg Ford of New York, a film historian and critic specializing in animated cartoons, says he thinks the cuts have ruined the jokes.

"I think they should be shown intact or not at all," Ford said. "I think every child knows when the coyote falls off a cliff, it's not the same as the child falling off a cliff.

"The rhythm has changed, and there's obviously something absent. The gag doesn't work anymore," he said.

Big Apple nice place to visit

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City had 17.1 million paying visitors this year, about 200,000 more than last year, the city's Convention and Visitors Bureau says.

Visitors to the Big Apple spent about $2.2 billion, an increase of $130 million over 1982, the bureau reported Monday.

Hotel occupancy rose 3.4 percent to 73.4 percent, and the city played host to five more conventions than in 1982, the bureau said.

Charles Gillett, president of the bureau, said 1983 had been the strongest year since 1979 and 1980 — the best for tourism in the city's history.

New York City is "the No. 1 visitor destination in the world" and tourism will directly produce $208 million in local taxes in 1983, according to the bureau.

PUBLIC NOTICE
On October 26, 1983 (as released on November 14, 1983), the Federal Communications Commission designated the FM construction permit applications of the following applicants for a comparative broadcasting hearing:
Gonzales/Torres Broadcasting Company; R.L. Moore and L.L. Moore. DePaHo communications, Inc.; Willis Jay Harpole; Horizon Communications, Inc.; Responsive Chord Communications Ltd.; Lee Optical Pension Fund Trust; Jerry Wayne Black; Hugh M. McBeath; and A.S.& G. Communications. These applications seek the FM Channel 294C (106.7 MegaHertz) allocation at Midland, Texas. The issues in the hearing are as follows:
1. To determine with respect to the following applicant whether the applicant is financially qualified: Gonzales/Torres Broadcasting Company.
2. To determine whether a comparative preference should accrue to any of the applicants based on areas and populations which would receive service from the proposals.
3. To determine with respect to the following applicant whether the tower height and proposed location would constitute a hazard to air navigation: R.L. Moore & L.L. Moore, DePaHo Communications, Inc., and Willis Jay Harpole.
4. To determine which of the proposals would, on a comparative basis, best serve the public interest.
5. To determine, in the light of the evidence adduced pursuant to the foregoing issues, which of the applicants should be granted, if any.
Hearing is tentatively scheduled to commence at the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C. on February 27, 1984.
Copies of the applications, amendments, and related material are on file for public inspection at the following addresses:

MANAGEMENT DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

ARE YOU "WENDY'S KIND OF PEOPLE?"

At Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburger Restaurant we believe in a total commitment to satisfying every customer. We are dedicated to quality-----not just talking about it. Our beef is pattied fresh daily at our restaurants. Each sandwich is made to order with the customers choice of condiments. Our sandwiches never sit under heat lamps like the other hamburger restaurants you know. If you share our dedication to quality, you're 'Wendy's Kind Of People", and we want to talk to you.

We are a growing Wendy's operation in the West Texas area committed to hiring only quality individuals who want to be a part of the Wendy's Management team. As a Wendy's Manager, you'll learn that people are your most valuable resource and will be able to lead them to meet our tough standards. You'll relish the opportunity to be closely involved with the daily operation of our restaurants. Two years college or previous management experience is required. If you're "Wendy's Kind Of People", and want to receive the kind of salary and company benefits you deserve, Call for an appointment. Equal Opportunity Employer.
