DERAILED—Around 9:45 p.m. Wednesday, this Chrysler driven by Joe Morgan Simmons of Snyder ran off the bridge on the RS&P Railway tracks behind the Varsity Square Shopping Center. City police said the vehicle was traveling north on the railroad tracks when the incident occurred. Mickey Nunley, president of RS&P, said a train scheduled to arrive later in the evening was halted before it reached the scene. Damage to the bridge and tracks was being surveyed this morning. Some of the track on the bridge was reported out of line. It was reported that the vehicle turned onto the railroad right-of-way south of Varsity Square. (SDN Staff Photo)

Hostages Released Unharmed...

Hijackers Surrender

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Chanting "Allah Akbar" — "God is Great," three Lebanese hijackers surrendered to Syrian peacekeeping troops in Beirut early today and freed 35 exhausted but unhurt hostages and a Libyan jetliner after a 52-hour, 7,500-mile ordeal.

The Boeing 727, hijacked Monday night over Italy, flew to Damascus today with most of the 27 freed passengers and eight crew members, airport officials said. A few of the passengers stayed in Beirut, the officials said.

As the three hijackers walked down the tail ramp of the plane, one of them held a grenade in his raised hand. They turned aside reporters' questions with "Allah Akbar," gave the V-for-victory finger salute and were led to a white Mercedes limousine with Syrian license plates ringed by Syrian troops in full combat gear.

Syrian forces have played a major role in Lebanon since 1976 when they moved in to end the 18-month civil war.

It was not known if the hijackers would be prosecuted.

They said they were Shiite Moslems who wanted to focus attention on the disappearance of the spiritual leader of the Lebanese Shiites, Imam, Moussa Sadr, who vanished three years ago on a trip to Libya. At first they demanded that Libya produce him. Later they demanded a U.N. investigation of his disappearance.

It was the sixth time since Sadr's disappearance in August 1978 that his followers seized a plane to demand his return. In no case were any hostages injured.

The Lebanese Shiites claim Sadr is being held by Col. Moammar Khadafy, Libya's Sunni Moslem leader. Libyan authorities claim he boarded a flight for Rome at the end of his visit to Libya and say they do not know what happened to him.

After commandeering the plane on a flight from Switzerland to Libya, the hijackers forced the pilot to fly to Beirut, then back to Athens and Rome, then to Beirut again, on to Tehran, and finally back to Beirut a third time.

There were reports that two men joined the hijackers during the first stop in Beirut and that two more joined during the second stop. But only the three men got off, and officials said all the hijackers had surrendered.

The week's other hijacking, of three Venezuelan airliners on Monday, ended Wednesday with the return of the three planes and about 100 hostages from Cuba to Venezuela. The 11 hijackers surrendered in Havana, and the Cuban Interior Ministry said the Cuban courts would decide their fate.

The planes were hijacked in a coordinated operation, but the identity and goal of the hijackers was never established. Caracas newspapers received a communique demanding $10 million and the release of 12 prisoners in Venezuela. But some of the freed hostages reported the hijackers said they were supporters of the Puerto Rican independence movement, while others said they were working for the cause of the leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

House Republicans Are Trying To Deliver More Spending Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans, hoping to avert another government-stopping confrontation with the White House, are trying to deliver $4 billion in new domestic spending cuts that President Reagan wants and Democratic leaders oppose.

The latest in a year-long series of budget fights was due today as the Democratic-controlled House considered a stopgap spending measure needed to keep money flowing to the government after Dec. 15.

The House action comes a day after the Republican-controlled Senate, signaling its impatience with Reagan, voted 49-48 for a 1982 budget outline demanding that the president submit a revised plan "as soon as possible" to balance the 1984 budget and reduce inflation, interest rates and unemployment.

That Senate action was not directly related to the stopgap spending measure, which the Senate will consider after the House acts.

In the House, Republicans are pressing for a plan worked out by White House aides, key House and Senate Republicans and their staff aides. It is an attempt to avoid a repeat of last month's veto of a stopgap bill, which Reagan called a budget-buster, and the resulting shutdown of government operations for a half-day.

An interim measure signed by Reagan expires Tuesday.

Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, was offering the compromise plan as a substitute to a Democratic measure the committee approved Wednesday. Conte's attempt to have his substitute adopted by the committee failed on a voice vote.

The Republican substitute achieves the $4 billion in savings Reagan wants by imposing a 4 percent reduction on those domestic programs for which regular appropriation bills have not yet received final congressional action. The Democratic measure is similar to the one Reagan vetoed.

Excluded from the cuts in the Republican measure are all government benefit programs — including Social Security, food stamps, Medicare and Medicaid — the general revenue sharing program, veterans medical care and law enforcement operations.

However, about $730 million more than the White House wants for social programs is included in the Republican plan to keep moderate and liberal Republicans from bolting the GOP ranks.

Both the Appropriations Committee bill and Conte's plan call for partially raising the pay cap for senior bureaucrats that has been in effect for two years. The plan has twice passed the Senate this year, but has never made it through the House.

Aides have estimated that some civil servants would receive relatively small increases, while those whose pay has been capped at the highest level for the full two years would get increases of more than $9,000 — from $50,112 to $59,560. An estimated 40,000 to 50,000 bureaucrats would be affected.

In addition, both proposals would keep money flowing to government agencies through the end of the 1982 fiscal year next Sept. 30.

House Appropriations Committee aides said the $414.2 billion Democratic proposal saves about $942 million from the compromise measure Reagan vetoed last month while the $413.1 billion Republican measure saves about $2.1 billion.

Conte said Wednesday that he had a "real commitment" from the White House that Reagan would sign his substitute.

Democratic leaders, however, argue that there should be no further cuts in domestic programs.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said earlier in the week that the cuts "are not acceptable." But he declined to predict victory.

In the Senate, meanwhile, the 1982 budget resolution that was adopted Wednesday generally parallels the temporary spending outline Congress adopted in the spring. It amounts to a holding action until Reagan can submit his new tax and spending proposals in January, but is required so Congress can adjourn for the year.

Although Snyder kept football going for three extra weekends by hosting playoff games, it did not dampen interest in basketball here. And local teams have been responding with some interesting games at both the high school and junior college level.

Teams at all levels have shown improvement and we hope that game officials will get into the swing of things as the season progresses. So far they seem to be consistent only in their inconsistency. When two teams are battling toe-to-toe, so to speak, and the arms and elbows are flying, there are going to be infractions. And they are not necessarily going to be limited to one side of the center line. But there are times when you would never know it by checking the scorebook.

That is why we think the electronic scoreboard should light up all of the personal fouls during the course of a game. There is a widespread practice of omitting them after the total of 7 is reached for a college game and 5 for a high school game, since those are the magic numbers for determining when free throws are mandated for non-shooting fouls. But the figures can be misleading.

For example, during a game involving the Western Texas College Dusters recently, there was a time in the game when the scoreboard showed WTC with a total of 7 fouls and the opponents with 4. Actually, the figure was 13 to 4 instead of 7 to 4, which means that the scoreboard did not reflect a true picture of the situation because it had stopped on 7.

We admit that Snyder fans are sort of spoiled when it comes to basketball. The amazing success of local teams in recent years has some people all but expecting shutouts. We need to remind ourselves that nobody can be a champion every year. Even Brownwood, Alabama and the Dallas Cowboys lose one occasionally. But it is nice to know that whenever one of our teams takes the floor, it would not be considered a miracle if it won.

A number of local fans saw Nolan Richardson's Tulsa Hurricane on television in a game with No. 1 North Carolina last week. Nolan could start five ex-WTC players now, if he so desired, since Chuck North checked in there to join Paul Pressey, Phil Spradling, David Brown and Greg Stewart.

But many local fans may not be aware that Tulsa's women's team has four former WTC players on its roster and they are among eight who have played in all of the team's games so far. They include Joyce Plagens, Shari (Teal) Spradling, Katie Fisher and Liz Hooper. Through eight games Plagens was averaging 11.6 points per game, Spradling 10.9, Fisher 10.4 and Hooper 7.9.

Greece-Turkey Feud Continues

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - Greece carried its feud with NATO ally Turkey into the winter meeting of the Western alliance's foreign ministers today after blocking the defense ministers' communique because they would not brand the Turks potential aggressors.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and the other defense ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on Wednesday rejected a demand by Greek Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou for a statement guaranteeing his country against any aggression by Turkey.

The two neighbors have been NATO's eastern defense anchor since 1952, but their traditional, centuries-old hatred has been revived in recent years by rivalry for control of Cyprus and the Aegean Sea.

Greece withdrew from participation in NATO's military activities in 1974, after the Turkish invasion of Cyprus. The United States got it to return in 1980, but the election of the anti-American, anti-NATO Papandreou in October reversed the trend.

Papandreou, who is also Greece's defense minister, told the other NATO defense ministers at the start of their semi-annual meeting Tuesday he was considering a "process of disengagement from agreements that are prejudicial." NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns said he wanted the final communique summing up the two-day meeting to include "the guarantee that the eastern frontier of Greece (with Turkey) would be protected against aggression."

Papandreou met Wednesday with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., and State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said they had a "valuable, substantive and productive" talk. He refused to give any details.

Luns said Turkish representatives gave Papandreou that assurance verbally but "objected to a text which would indicate that in some way the alliance thought Turkey would be capable of attacking Greece, or that Turkey would have the intention of doing so."

Gunshot Wound Fatal To Woman

Sharon Johnson, 25, of 2411 32nd St. who had been hospitalized in Lubbock since Sunday for treatment of a gunshot wound, died Wednesday night.

Funeral arrangements were pending this morning at Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

She was found wounded at home at about 2 p. m. Sunday and officers said she apparently had been shot with a .22 caliber pistol found at the scene.

Ask Us

Q.—How are game officials selected for playoff football games?

A.—They are selected by the athletic departments of the schools involved---that is, if they can agree. If they cannot agree, officials are assigned by the University Interscholastic League office in Austin, usually from another region of the state.

Thursday update

Farmworkers Need Toilets

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Hidalgo County farmworkers, who a spokeswoman says "relieve themselves" on the crops they pick, should have toilets provided for them in the fields, says State Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein.

Bernstein, after a Wednesday meeting with Rebecaa Harrington of the United Farm Workers, said he is prepared to enforce the state law requiring field toilets. He said would notify growers who are violating the rule.

"In the event that the employers ignore my letters of noncompliance, we will probably turn it over to the attorney general," he said.

Mrs. Harrington told reporters the lack of toilets in the fields means "more than likely, the fresh vegetables that (consumers) are buying are contaminated with feces."

Tax Fraud Trial Begins

SEATTLE (AP) — Five tax protesters accused of making a fortune in an illegal tax shelter have gone on trial in federal court in Seattle.

The five are charged with helping thousands of taxpayers across the country cheat the Internal Revenue Service by selling them expensive courses on how to beat taxes.

Authorities said the company showed taxpayers how to wash money through a foreign trust organization that has been described as a sham.

R. Bruce Ripley of Woodinville; David J. Morris of Bellevue; Gaze Durst of Edmonds; Karl Dahlstrom of College Station, Texas; and Hiram E. Conley of Tucson, Ariz.; denied the accusations and say the tax shelters are legal.

Prison Reforms 'Intrusive'

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for the state of Texas have atacked a federal judge's prison reform orders as the "most intrusive and far-reaching intervention" in the history of prison litigation.

The criticism came in a state appeal filed in the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in a suit against the Texas Department of Corrections brought by inmates and the U.S. Justice Department.

The state rapped the Justice Department's support of Texas prison inmates in a civil rights suit, arguing the TDC will be subjected to "reform-minded supervision of a federal judge, his special master and a roving band of monitors."

It particularly objects to orders to eliminate double-celling and increase parole eligibility and furlough programs.

Oral arguments are scheduled Dec. 18 before a three-judge panel in New Orleans.

BCD, Chamber Officials Meet

Members of the Board of County Development and Snyder Chamber of Commerce officals held a joint meeting Wednesday to discuss plans for the coming year.

Bill Warner, chamber manager, said the meeting was scheduled to give officials of the two orgranizations an opportunity to discuss matters of mutual concern. The BCD and chamber use the same office facilities in the chamber office building and share the services of Warner, who is chamber manager and consultant to the BCD.

Those attending the Wednesday session, which included Truett Bryan, chamber president, and Guy Sullivan, BCD chairman, looked over some tentative budget proposals and discussed program of work.

Warner said the chamber-BCD staff is looking into the possibility of providing computer service, which would release secretaries from some routine paper work so that more time could be spent in expanding services of the oganizations. Officials of both oganizations indicated interest in the proposal and suggested that Warner check further into possibilities.

Sullivan said he would like to see the chamber and BCD seek more events such as recreation vehicle rallies, conventions and other activities that bring visitors to town, including playoff football and basketball games.

The playoff football games this fall were a definite asset to the community, it was emphasized.

In addition to Bryan, the chamber was represented by Brenda Hedges, Elizabeth Potts and Brian Boswell. Other BCD members attending were Clyde Hall and Dale Stuard.

Agriculture, Urban-Consumer...

Fight Over Farm Bill Forms Alliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The battle in the House over a new farm program is forging a strange alliance of agriculture and urban-consumer interests.

Usually at odds over multibillion dollar farm legislation, the two groups are now working toward the same end — defeat of an administration-backed, $11 billion farm bill.

"It's the oddest coalition that I've ever seen," said Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., a House Agriculture subcommittee chairman who is among those organizing opposition to the bill.

Agriculture Secretary John Block, still optimistic about passage of the compromise he shoved through a House-Senate conference committee this week, acknowledges that he needs the support of some House Republicans who have never before voted for a farm bill.

"We need to cultivate all the votes we can," Block says. "We're not going to leave any stone unturned."

The compromise bill is expected to be approved, possibly as early as today, by the Senate, where Block's position has generally been endorsed by the Republican majority.

The measure's backers emphasize that by keeping farmers financially afloat, consumers also are guaranteed continued production of adequate food supplies at the lowest prices.

But in the Democratic-controlled House, where farm legislation has traditionally faced a stiff challenge, many farm interests are abandoning the bill because they feel it's completely inadequate, especially for dairy and grain producers.

Besides Jones, their ranks include Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, another Agriculture subcommittee chairman, and Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., who as the Democratic whip is charged with marshaling support for legislation on the House floor.

That opposition is strengthening the hand of urban and consumer interests, who object to the compromise's sugar program. They claim it will cost taxpayers and consumers hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

"What we have plus their support will be enough to do it," says Rep. Peter Peyser, D-N.Y., who's leading the House anti-sugar forces.

They mustered a majority of the House against that program in October only to see it returned to the compromise bill by congressional negotiators. The administration dropped its opposition to the program this summer in return for southern Democratic votes on President Reagan's budget cuts.

"Unfortunately, the administration baled out, which I think was a big mistake," said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., a leader in the negotiations that yielded the compromise package.

Explosion Is Reported

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — An explosion caused extensive damage early today to the offices of the government department that handles black affairs in this white-minority-ruled nation, the South African Press Association reported.

It said sabotage was suspected. No one was hurt.

Government offices have been the target of a number of bomb attacks this year by the black nationalist African National Congress.

Nixon Allegedly Talked With Burger About Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to the galley proofs of a new book by John D. Ehrlichman, Richard Nixon met with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in the White House in 1970 and discussed a case pending before the Supreme Court, The Washington Post says in today's editions.

It is improper for a judge to discuss a pending case with anyone who is not a party to the court's decision-making process, according to the Code of Jucicial Conduct of the American Bar Association.

Barrett McGurn, spokesman for the Supreme Court, said Wednesday night when queried about the allegation, "It is the general practice for the justices not to respond to allegations, and it is the practice now."

Ehrlichman, who was Nixon's adviser on domestic affairs, says in the galley proofs that he kept notes of several such discussions, and that former Attorney General John N. Mitchell also took part.

Proofs of the book, "Witness to Power," were mailed to reviewers by Simon and Schuster, the publisher, said the Post, but the newspaper said it obtained a copy independently.

The newspaper also quoted Ehrlichman's proofs as saying that before his nomination, Burger was so eager to become chief justice that he offered to step down before the expiration of Nixon's term so Nixon could make another nomination to the court. Mitchell, however, said the idea of Burger stepping down was Ehrlichman's and was never communicated to Burger.

Ehrlichman, convicted in connection with the Watergate scandal, served a prison term in part for falsely testifying before a grand jury.

The Post said Ehrlichman declined to comment on any aspect of the book, which is to be published next spring. Ehrlichman's telephone number in Santa Fe, N.M., is unlisted.

Mitchell denied he took part in discussions about pending court cases with Burger, the Post said. "I can't conceive of the chief justice over at the White House discussing cases before the court. Certainly I was not a party to it," Mitchell said.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

There is no one on the face of this earth for whom I feel more compassion than the mothers of children who are on half-day sessions at school.

My neighbor, Iris, went through an entire year of this schedule and we almost lost her. We all went over one day and literally dragged her from the utility room and set her down in the living room.

"Where are we?" she mumbled numbly.

"In your living room," we said gently.

"I've never been here before," she said.

"Of course you have, it's the room right off your kitchen and utility room. Remember?"

She shook her head.

"All I remember is in September I went into the kitchen and the utility room and I've been there ever since. Rinsing breakfast plates, putting them in the sink, clearing the table, starting the washer..."

"It's all right," we said. "Don't dwell on it."

"...and then picking up the pajamas and washing them, and making beds and it's lunchtime again and the kids are home and it's time to pick up the school clothes and wash them, and set the table and get lunch and rinse the plates and do the dishes and clear and it's dinnertime and I set the table and pick up the play clothes and wash them and get dinner and clear the table and rinse the dishes and start the washer...did I say that before?"

We nodded.

My kids went through it and it was a period that I paranoically refer to as the "Clothing Connection." It was like a game. Every time they moved ahead two spaces, they passed Go and went directly to the closet. My five-year-old once set a record for changing clothes. Within a 14-hour period, he changed clothes nine times. He had an outfit for eatng breakfast, going to school, running through the house, using the phone, eating lunch, answering the door, riding his bike, weighing himself, and one that he wore because there was nothing clean left to wear.

I couldn't walk through a room without encountering a pile of his clothes. It was like picking your way through cow chips.

I'll never forget poor Iris if I live to be a hundred...her hands shriveled from hand washes, her sinuses filled with laundry bleach, her brain fogged by lint. "When does it all end?" she said. "All this washing and ironing?"

We smiled. "On the day your kids start to do their own laundry."

One of the first plays a bridge player is taught is the finesse. However, one must also know when to avoid it as well as when to take it.

On today's hand, North opened a light 11-point hand and South naturally drove to game. Declarer, a new student of the game, held up his ace of spades until the third round, displaying good technique. Then he forgot safety and crossed to dummy's ace of hearts and cashed the king and queen discarding two small diamonds from his hand. Now came the inevitable club finesse. It lost to West who cashed his high spade and the 10 of hearts to defeat South one trick in his game.

"Oh what bad luck to find the club finesse wrong and both major suit winners in West's hand," moaned South.

South was unlucky, but he missed a sure line of play. After he won the ace of spades he could ensure three notrump by playing ace and another club.

This safety play guarantees nine tricks against all possible adverse card combinations. If West hold the club king he takes it and the last spade.

Should East hold his nibs, South will still wind up with just three notrump and would have made at least four-odd by taking the club finesse, but the first rule of rubber bridge is "make your contract."

Children Are Experts At Choosing New Toys

CINCINNATI (AP) — When kids undo the wrappings from their Christmas toys this year, they will unwittingly have had considerable say in the design of some of those playthings.

"Children are savvy consumers as well as discriminating critics of toys," says David DeMala, consumer specialist for a toy manufacturer. "So, they should be kept in mind every step along the way in the creation and manufacture of toys. Underage connoisseurs are involved in the design and testing of new toys long before the final product reaches the marketplace. It's this kid 'input' that keeps toys child-like and popular with youngsters," DeMala says.

Kids must be treated as intelligent consumers because they are the real buyers of toys, according to the Kenner Products expert. Children from age 2 and up are capable of discriminating between alternatives, he points out. Just as they can decide about the playmates and food they prefer, their ability to select toys is equally sharp. If they indicate a liking for a certain toy, pay attention, DeMala urges parents. "Let's face it, in the fantasy world of toys, your little boy or girl is the expert," he says.

A term often used among toy designers is "play value," he points out. "Toys that let the child create have extended 'play value,'" DeMala explains. "A toy that fails to excite the child's imagination seldom becomes a best seller.

"Package age brackets shouldn't be considered written in stone," he says. "A toy that is labeled for ages 6 and over, for example, is what the manufacturer has determined is the average age group that would enjoy the toy. But a child 's individual ability, strength, attention span and other factors cannot be ignored."

Body heat

The true test of a good winter coat is not how well it keeps the cold out but how well it keeps your body heat in. Check the way the coat fastens — if it buttons, there should be a generous fabric overlap where it joins. If it zips, look for a flap over the zipper. Avoid wrap coats held in place with a belt only — too much chance for heat to escape. Also, check the cuffs — knitted ones that fit snugly at the wrist are best. At the neckline, see if the collar can be turned up to cover your ears, or if there's a detachable hood. Since many coats have vented backs for ease in walking, make sure the vent can be buttoned closed to keep out frigid breezes.

KGB Lied; Alexeyeva Can't Leave

MOSCOW (AP) — Andrei Sakharov's daughter-in-law said today the KGB had lied to her Wednesday when it told her the physicist's hunger strike had ended and she would be allowed to join her husband in the United States.

"It's all a bluff," Liza Alexeyeva, 26, said after leaving Soviet secret police headquarters today. "I can't believe anything they say anymore. I'm not going there again."

Speaking with reporters in Sakharov's Moscow apartment, Miss Alexeyeva said KGB agent Alexander Baranov told her Wednesday she had been granted permission to emigrate and that Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner, abandoned their 17-day-old fast on learning the news.

"As a member of the KGB, I can tell you permission was granted yesterday for you to leave," she quoted him as saying, adding he threatened to delay her departure if she had further contacts with foreigners.

Since then however, she has made three telephone calls to officials at OVIR, the agency that handles foreign visas, and was told they knew nothing of a visa for her, Miss Alexeyeva said.

During their second meeting today, Baranov failed to provide evidence the Sakharovs had ended their fast and refused to tell her of the couple's whereabouts or the state of their health, Miss Alexeyeva said.

"They have been using me to give credence to their story," she charged. "Sakharov announced the hunger strike and only Sakharov can call it off."

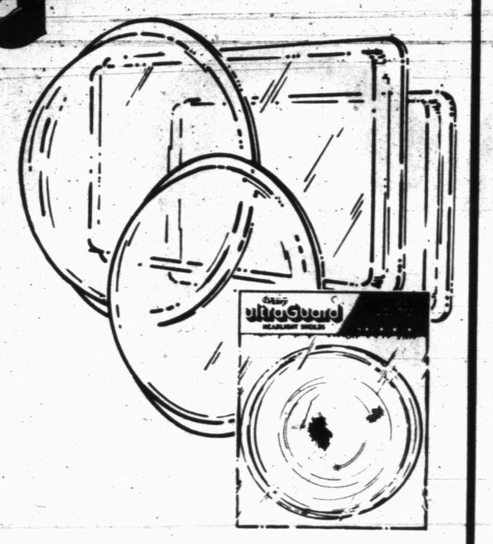

The KGB summoned Miss Alexeyeva for a second interview today to grant her permission to visit the Sakharovs in Gorky next Monday. But Miss Alexeyeva said she did not believe their promise, noting that the secret police had detained her last Saturday when she tried to make the trip.

Sakharov, 60, who won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize for his work in human rights, was exiled to Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow, in January 1980 to restrict his access to foreign reporters.

He and his 58-year-old wife began a hunger strike Nov. 22 to pressure the government to allow Miss Alexeyeva to join Mrs. Bonner's son by a previous marriage in the United States. The son, Alexei Semyonov, 25, married her by proxy in Montana last June. The Kremlin does not recognize the marriage and claims Semyonov is still married to another Soviet woman.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Thanks a lot for telling my mother-in-law that she is entitled to use her dead husband's name forever. She refused to sleep with this man for the last 20 years of his life, then she nagged him to death. I never heard her call him anything but "that s.o.b." the whole time she lived with him. And now that he is gone, she insists on being called "Mrs. John Smith."

My husband is John Smith Jr., and his mother still goes by Mrs. John Smith. I wish she would use her given name so people wouldn't get us mixed up, because I am Mrs. John Smith, too.

Abby, why don't you tell these widows to get on with their own lives and quit hanging onto the past? They just sit around and suck up the Social Security money and wait to die. What a waste!

NO NAMES OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Regardless of your personal feelings about your mother-in-law, the fact is, a woman is entitled to use her late husband's name as long as she lives — unless she marries again.

DEAR ABBY: This is to thank you for your Thanksgiving Day column. It gave me the strength to make it through another day.

I am in the Army, stationed in South Korea, and I find it hard to be thankful for anything while I am unwillingly separated from my dear wife and two children.

I am under constant pressure from my buddies to go out with the local "girls," and I'm criticized because I won't. I am in a race with myself to see if I end up in a hospital from too much alcohol or from a nervous breakdown.

I volunteered to work today to keep my mind off the fact that it's a holiday. After reading you today, I realized that as homesick and blue as I am, lots of people have it worse. Thank you.

THANKSGIVING IN KOREA

DEAR THANKSGIVING: Hang in there. Your letter made my day. If you'll permit me a little unsolicited advice: Stay away from the bottle. One drink is too many and a hundred isn't enough. Write home every day, keep busy, stay out of trouble and, yes, pray. And before you know it, you'll be home with your family. God love you.

DEAR ABBY: I just have to share this with somebody! My 5-year-old son said, "Mommy, do you know what I want for Christmas most of all?"

I thought to myself, "That little con artist — I wonder what he wants now?" His answer knocked me right off my feet. He said, "All I want is a mommy who doesn't smoke anymore. I love you very much and want you to live for a looooong time." Then he put his chubby arms around my neck and kissed me.

I had to wipe away a tear. It's been two weeks, and I haven't had a cigarette since. I don't think I will ever smoke again. Wish me luck.

NANCY IN KANSAS CITY

DEAR NANCY: I wish you luck. And kiss your beautiful son for me.

Large Hole Is Wine Cellar

DEER LODGE, Mont. (AP) — Four state prison inmates told a judge and prosecutor that the large room they had hollowed out under the floor of their cellblock was really a wine cellar.

And they said a tunnel from the room, which surfaced well within prison walls, was an air vent for the cellar. The excavation was discovered last July 22.

The prisoners told state District Judge Arnold Olsen Tuesday that they planned to use fruit and yeast from the prison kitchen for their brew, which they would store in the large, square room.

Powell County Attorney Ted Mizner agreed the explanation seemed more likely than the prison authorities' accusation the men were trying to escape and the result was a light sentence at the end of the tunnel.

The men were allowed to plead guilty to criminal mischief.

Three of the men already have additional time tacked on their terms for attempted escape.

Olsen sentenced each man to an additional three years, but said he'd review their behavior within a year and might suspend the balance of the time. Mizner complained the sentence was too light, but Olsen wouldn't change his mind.

The sentences were handed to Mike Shurtliff, 23, serving five years for burglary; Myron Faraason, 33, serving 24 years for criminal mischief, burglary and attempted escape; Jimmy Lee Sudbury, 26, serving 23 years for theft and attempted escape; and Harvey Hintz, 25, serving 104 years for deliberate homicide and attempted escape.

Refugee Holds Candlelight Vigil

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Salvadoran refugee Ana Estela Flores Guevara railed in Spanish against injustice and treachery in her native country while about 40 people gathered for a candlelight memorial for five missionaries hailed as martyrs of the revolution in El Salvador.

"The law is not enforced in El Salvador and there is no justice in the courts. Bribery and trickery prevails. The Constitution has never been adhered to," Ms. Guevara told those who gathered for the candlelight vigil Wednesday night across the street from San Fernando Cathedral.

Ms. Guevara, who was apprehended by Border Patrol agents and spent 98 days in Texas jails until she was released on $5,000 bond, has contended in her appeal to the U.S. State Department for political asylum that her life would be jeopardized if she was deported to El Salvador.

She said religious people in El Salvador are persecuted for preaching the gospel and attempting to help the needy.

"I spent 98 days in jail in this country because I was poor. A poor person, wherever he goes, is persecuted," she said. "Christmas will soon be upon us and it will be a sad one for the thousands of children left without parents in El Salvador."

Ms. Guevara was apprehended by border patrol agents near Cotulla on June 24, 1981. Immigration officials later said they suspected that she was "Commander Norma Guevara," a member of the National Democratic Union, a Communist Party front oganization attempting to topple the government in El Salvador.

She has denied being Commander Norma and said the news reports that she may be the revolutionary leader would put her life in jeopardy if she was deported to the country she left to escape religious persecution.

The vigil was organized by Latin America Assistance in memory of Sisters Dorotea Kazel, Vita Ford and Maura Clarke. The three nuns were killed in El Salvador on Dec. 2, 1980, shortly after they returned, along with lay worker Jean Donovan, from a retreat in Nicaragua.

Also termed as "martyrs" on a placard were nun Carla Piette and Bishop Oscar Moreno, who died in El Salvador last year.

Sister Pat Auer, a former missionary in Honduras, and Joseph Heflin, a member of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, contended the religious persons killed in El Salvador were only a few of thousands slain in Central America while in pursuit of religious and political freedom.

The Rev. Kris Kehl, a retired Episcopal priest and former Bexar County Jail chaplain, said the missionaries who died in Central America "are part of the wave of the future, that will not lie down, backwash or retreat."

"Venceremos. We shall overcome. We shall win. There is no giving up for this witness, even if it means the martyrdom of death," Kehl said.

Landslide Buries 8

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A 20-foot-high landslide caused by heavy rains buried eight houses and apparently killed 41 people in the East Java village of Joho, a regional official said today.

The official 22 bodies had been recovered and 19 other people were missing and believed dead.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Strengthen the muscles

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 17-year-old girl. Through the years I have kept in pretty good physical condition. I do exercises every night before going to bed. I've even tried dieting but nothing seems to get rid of my problem — my heavy stomach and rear end. My legs are slender, as well as my top half. Is there anything you can suggest to solve this problem, or tell me why I have it? Is it the way I exercise or how much I exercise? I need help desperately.

DEAR READER — People are born with genes that influence markedly whether they will be fat or slender and where the fat will be stored. For example, one ethnic group in Africa tends to have a large storage of fat over the buttocks, not just a little, but a pillow-like fat pad.

You can still affect the amount of fat deposited but you do have to accept the realities of natural characteristics. You can see this same thing in the animal kingdom where a dairy cow is lean but a beef cow is chunky and gets fat easily.

You cannot really spot reduce, but if you do not have any fat on your legs or upper body, further fat loss should cause you to lose fat from the one remaining place — your lower torso. People who want to slim down their waist usually do need to lose fat through diet and exercise.

You do need exercises to strengthen your abdominal and other trunk muscles. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 17-12, Winning the Battle of the Bulge, which will describe in greater detail the exercises you need to do. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You need to do three types of exercises, those that strengthen your muscles to maintain good posture, tuck your abdomen in and hold your spine erect, those that improve your flexibility and those that you use to help eliminate calories or the endurance-type exercises.

The strengthening and toning exercises involve both sit-ups and leg lifts but you also do need to do exercises to strengthen the muscles in the upper back, particularly to avoid slumping that contributes to the abdominal bulge.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have endometriosis. I had to have a hysterectomy and removal of my left ovary four years ago for this.

At that time my doctor left in the right ovary so I wouldn't have to take female hormones. Since then I have had repeated bouts and the last time my ovary grew to the size of a cantaloupe before we discovered my problem. My ovary is still tender and hurts a lot.

What causes this problem? If I didn't have surgery would the problem go away and not bother me any more? My doctor plans on removing the ovary.

DEAR READER — Endometriosis is simply tissue that lines the uterus, endometrium, that has gotten out of the uterus and located in other parts of the body. It enlarges with the menstrual cycle and causes pain, and often tissue destruction.

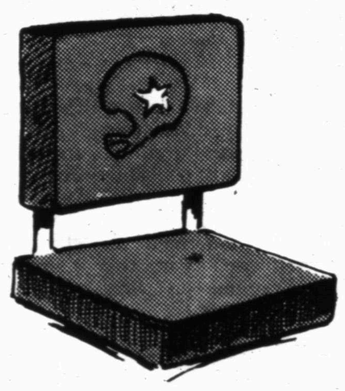

It is not known why the tissue gets into other areas. It does disappear at the menopause when the cycle to stimulate endometrial growth stops. It can cause tube blockage and destruction of the ovaries. Since you cannot expect to get pregnant after a hysterectomy, I would feel that if you are having a lot of trouble your doctor is justified in removing the remaining ovary that contains the tissue. You can take hormones to replace those normally produced by the ovaries.

For The Best In Floatation Beds See Folks At The Waterbed Shop

Sleep is vital to our physical and mental well-being and how well we sleep depends to a great extent on the bed we sleep on. Today for millions of people flotation sleep is a necessity. People have discovered that it is a better way to sleep and the folks at the Waterbed Shop, located at 4202 College, can help you make the same discovery.

Sleeping on water will make an immediate, noticeable difference in the quality of your sleep. A watermattress provides even, warm support under your entire body. No matter how you position yourself, you remain cradled in relaxing warmth from head to toe.

The complete support helps prevent neck cramps, aching muscles and back pains. And unlike innerspring mattresses, a watermattress has no pressure points to cause restricted circulation, which can make you toss and turn during the night. With a temperature-controlled flotation system, you will sleep perhaps more deeply than ever before, waking up alert and thoroughly refreshed, morning after morning.

Right now for your gift-giving convenience, Joe Bob Martinez is offering the San Carlos waterbed including mattress with 17 year warranty, heater and liner with 5 year warranty, fill and drain kit, pedestal, and free set up and delivery for only $399.00. This bed would make an excellent gift for the special person on your Christmas list.

See Joe Bob Martinez at the Waterbed Shop in the Junction and discover for yourself the luxury of temperature-controlled sleep. You may even buy yourself the San Carlos waterbed.

Rent 'N Own Offers Everything From Furniture To Televisions

RENT N OWN located on the East side of the Square, offers rental-purchase plans on furniture, large appliances, television sets and stereo equipment. (SDN Staff Photo)

Rent "N" Own, located at 2514 Ave. R, is the place to go if you need furniture for the home. They also handle large appliances, and everything in the store is on a rental-purchase plan.

Randy and Lynn Myers manage the store and are always willing to help. They opened the store here in May of this year and have built a friendly, cooperative reputation in the town.

Rent "N" Own has living room furniture, bedroom furniture, stereos, washers, dryers, refrigerators, microwaves, dinettes, 19" portable and remote portable tvs, 25" consoles and remote consoles, and 25" home entertainment centers. They have furniture to match almost any home.

Randy and Lynn offer one day service. You can walk in with a Texas drivers license, fill out an application, and have it approved in a matter of 15-20 minutes most of the time. Deliveries are made after 4:00 and you can have your rental that day. All rentals are "no obligation", so if you find yourself in a bind, return the merchandise and you are not obligated to pay for the time it is not used.

The store in Snyder is the youngest of three stores. There is a store in Sweetwater and one in Colorado City. They are all members of APRO, Association of Progressive Rental Organizations, and they follow their standards and their competive prices.

Randy also services what he rents. If merchandise on the rental-purchase plan is found to be faulty with just reasonable wear, Randy will have it replaced for you free of charge.

If you need a new living room suite, but don't have the credit references to charge, or the large down payment, go see Rent "N" Own on the east side of the square and talk to Randy or Lynn. You may have a new suite that evening, or better yet, furniture would make a lovely Christmas present.

Raising Money Is Not Easy

DALLAS (AP) — Efforts to raise $500,000 for the children of eight servicemen killed in the abortive rescue mission for the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran has had only limited success, organizers say.

More than $150,000 has been raised in the Arthur "Bull" Simons Fund, a year old this month, but funds are needed to pay for at least 17 scholarships. The men died when a helicopter crashed into a C-130 transport plane in the Iranian desert on April 24, 1980.

Chief fund-raiser Kenneth Fulmer said former hostages promote the fund and often contribute their speech honorariums.

The Anableps is known as the four-eyed fish. It has divided eyes which allow it to see underwater and above the surface at the same time.

Dusters Ranked Number 1 In The Nation!

It took some time to sink in, but Coach Joe Cushing believes his Dusters will be able to handle the mental burden of being named the No. 1 women's junior college basketball team in the nation.

Western Texas College, 12-1 for the season and 2-0 in WJCAC conference play, was named the NJCAA's No. 1 team this week in the first poll of the year.

"The girls were kind of in shock for a while," laughed Cushing. "It took some time before they realized, 'Hey, he's talking about the whole United States!' But I think they are going to handle it real well."

A complete poll was unavailable to The Snyder Daily News, but NJCAA headquarters in Hutchinson, Kan. did confirm Western Texas College's No. 1 position.

It was also learned that Allegheny, Pa. led the men's poll, with Henderson, Tex. ranked third and South Plains ranked No. 8.

Cushing was elated over the selection, but cautious at the same time.

"I think it's great for our program and most definitely for Snyder, Texas," he said. "At the same time, we have to realize that we can't build a season around that ranking. We can't let it make any difference in the way we play basketball. I'm real proud of the girls because they seem to be taking it real well. We were already picked No. 1 in our conference so we knew everybody would be shooting for us," he added.

Tigers Hosting C-City As Reef Tourney Opens

Snyder's Tigers, 7-2 after a 1-2 start this season, were to take their role as Canyon Reef Tournament hosts to the court this afternoon against Colorado City at 2:30 in the high school gym.

The Tigers, who won the Levelland Invitational a week ago, will be tuning for the District 2-AAAA season, which begins Tuesday when rival Lamesa High School ventures into Scurry County Coliseum.

In other games today, defending Canyon Reef champion Borger was to take on Sweetwater at 2:30 in the coliseum and at 4 Abernathy and Lubbock Monterey vie in the gym and San Angelo and Fort Stockton meet in the coliseum.

Abilene High and Burkburnett take the high school court at 5:30, while El Paso Austin and Odessa Permian meet in the coliseum, and at 7, Waco Midway and Lubbock High face off in the gym and Estacado and Big Spring clash in the coliseum.

Winner of the Snyder-Colorado City game will take on the Abernathy-Lubbock Monterey victor at 7 p.m. Friday in the coliseum. Losers will meet at 10 a.m. Friday, also in the coliseum.

Brackets are available at the coliseum and high school and appeared in Wednesday's edition of The Snyder Daily News.

Western Tests 'Dogs Tonight At 6 And 8

CLARENDON — Western Texas College hopes to conclude the 1981 portion of the junior college basketball season on a positive note tonight as they meet Clarendon here.

Western Texas will break for the holidays after tonight's games and won't return to action again until Jan. 7.

WTC's women, 12-1 on the season and 2-0 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play, take on the Lady Bulldogs at 6, while its men, 8-7 and 1-2, compete at 8.

Clarendon women are 8-2 for the year and 1-1 in conference play and are pushing the Dusters in almost every statistic.

Western leads the conference in team offense with a 73.8 average and in team field goal percentage with a .454 figure. Clarendon ranks second in both, 73.6 and .451. Clarendon is limiting its opponents to 62.2 points a game - WTC 62.7 - and the 'Dogs average .624 from the line while the Dusters average .670.

Clarendon boasts two of the top scoring leaders in the conference, including top-rated Cassandra Crumpton, who averages 25.7 points and 14.7 rebounds.

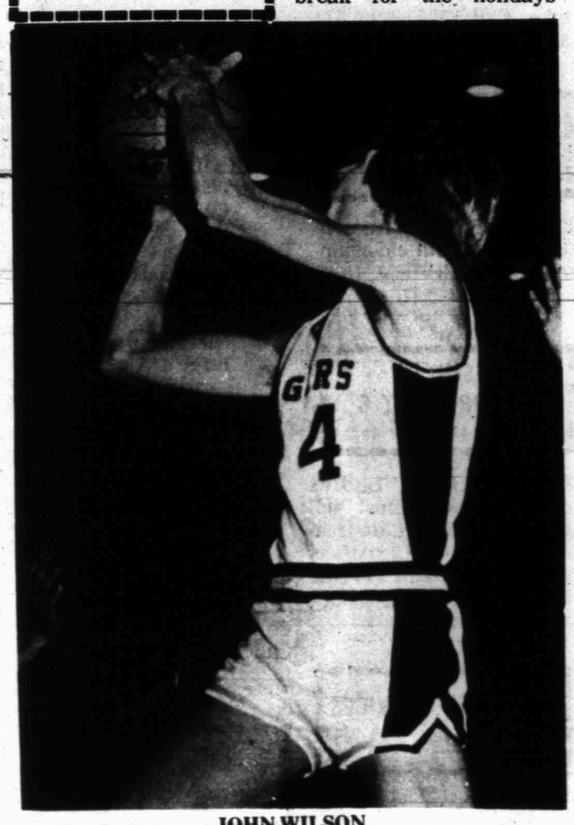

Western is paced by Vickie Teal, 17.1 points and 9.6 boards, and by Valerie Wells, 12.2 points and 7.7 rebounds. Dorcas Perkins, the conference's leader in blocked shots with 48, averages 10.3 points and 7.2 boards.

CC's men are 9-5 and 1-2 averaging 80.3 points and allowing 69.5 while shooting .487 from the field and .549 from the floor.

Western averages 78.9 points and allows 75.6 and shoots .527 from the floor and .676 from the stripe.

The Bulldogs are led by George Millhouse's 17 points and 6.8 rebounds. Gregory Graham adds 15.6 points and 5.6 rebounds.

The Westerners are being paced by Darren Lee, who averages 19.2 points and 7.7 boards; Derrick Grow, 15.8 points; Dwayne Hunt, 13.7 points and 5.2 boards; and Jerrold Whitmore, 12.1 points.

Sideline Glances...

Prediction Wrapup

By BILL McCLELLAN

Welcome, Canyon Reef fans!

This year's 16-team basketball tournament promises to be one of the best, not only because the quality of the teams but because of the balance between them. In the past it wasn't too hard to focus in on three or four schools which were most likely to make it to the finals. This year at least seven or eight appear to have a shot at standing in the winner's circle Saturday night.

The Canyon Reef starts today at the high school and coliseum. We'd like to be among those to welcome our out of town guests, both the teams and fans.

Football Predictions Over

Randy Lewis' blazing start and consistancy through the season earned him the top percentage in our Sagacious Sideline Selections this year.

Lewis, who works as a pressman for the SDN, correctly predicted 177 out of 260 games for an average of 68 percent.

Joyce Smith served the cause of the fairer sex by almost overtaking her co-worker in the final weeks to wind up second. She got 175 of 260 for a .673 figure. Joyce works in the composing department.

Our other predictors finished like so: Wayne Burney, advertising manager, 167 right for .642; Wacil McNair, editor, 156 right for .600; and Roy McQueen, publisher, 151 right for .580.

Ahmm. Of course, it's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game. Keeping that in mind, I played out a .623 figure, 162 right.

Other Games

Three other games of local interest. Western Texas' Dusters, picked No. 1 in the nation according to the first NJCAA poll, take on Clarendon tonight at Clarendon; 6 o'clock. The Westerners play the Bulldogs at 8.

Also, Coach Ken Housden's SHS Felines entertain Monahans in a District 2-AAAA ballgame Friday at 7 in the high school gym.

Ali Set to Take On Trevor Berbick

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) - Someone asked if he would quit should he lose Friday night, and Muhammad Ali immediately feigned sleep, snoring loudly.

"You can't tell me when I'm through," Ali told a Wednesday news conference upon "awakening."

"I'll know when I'm through."

To many people Ali appeared finished as a fighter in his loss to Larry Holmes, the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion, when he failed to answer the bell for the 11th round at Las Vegas Oct. 2, 1980.

"I didn't win a round against Holmes," Ali admits.

But Friday night the former three-time champion, who will be 40 Jan. 17, will fight 27-year-old Trevor Berbick in a scheduled 10-rounder at the 17,000-seat Queen Elizabeth Sports Centre.

Many look at it as Ali's final fight. He views it as a step toward a title shot against Mike Weaver, the World Boxing Association champion.

"The whole stage is set for me. I love this sort of situation," said the man who beat big, bad Sonny Liston, defied the U.S. government over military draft and won, scored a shocking knockout of awesome George Foreman in Africa and rallied to beat Joe Frazier in the "Thrilla In Manilla."

"After I beat Berbick, I'll be welcomed everywhere," said Ali, who is believed to be getting $1 million. He got $8 million for his one-sided loss to Holmes.

Berbick, who has trained in Freeport, Bahamas, reportedly is getting $350,000 for his first fight since he lasted 15 rounds against Holmes in a title bid at Las Vegas April 11. For that loss, which made his record 18-2-1, Berbick got between $100,000 and $200,000.

Felines Entertain Loboes Friday

Snyder High School girls take on defending district champion Monahans at 7 p.m. Friday here in a 2-AAAA shootout.

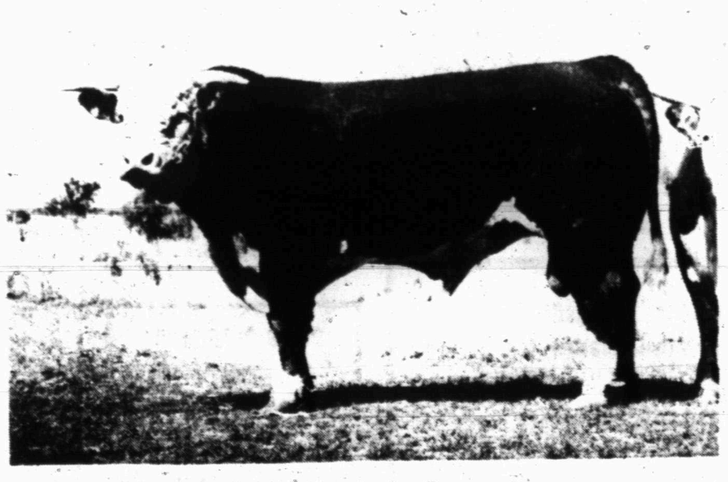

Both teams are 0-1 in district play. Snyder lost to Andrews on Tuesday, while Monahans fell to Pecos.

A junior varsity game will open the double header at 5:30.

The games have been moved to earlier starting times due to conflicts with the 27th annual Canyon Reef Tournament, which is going on today through Saturday, both at the high school and the coliseum.

Police Take Theft Report

Local police officers received one report of theft of services and investigated one minor traffic mishap Wednesday.

Around 3:30 p.m., an employee of the American Motor Inn told officers that two men had left the motel with out paying their bill. The two men, reportedly in their twenties and driving a small grey car, owed the motel for Saturday and Sunday night. Police are attempting to locate the subjects.

The intersection of 40th St. and Ave. V was the scene of a minor accident around 11:30 a.m. Wednesday. Involved were a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Elta Bolin and a 1976 Ford driven by Patricio Martinez Jr.. Only minor damages were reported to both vehicles.

In other activity, local police arrested one subject on outstanding warrants from Fisher county and one subject on charges of public intoxication and criminal trespass.

Fireman Go To 3 Fires

Snyder fire fighters answered calls to three car fires Wednesday.

The first call of the day came at 8:10 p.m.. Local firemen went to the intersection of Ave. E and 20th St. where they extinguished a fire in a 1972 Chevrolet owned by W. A. Ervin.

At 9 p.m. local fire units responded to a call from the Hobbs community east of Snyder. There, they assisted units of the Fisher County Fire Department in quenching another blaze in a car. At the time of the fire, the car was located inside of building and minor damage was reported to the structure.

Finally, at 2:15 a.m. this morning, fire fighters were summoned to the intersection of College Ave. and U. S. 84 where they put out a fire in a car owned by Roger Rybach.

Jean Sharp Named Top Munden's Employee

Jean Sharp of Snyder was recently named employee of the year for the Munden's Discount Centers in Texas.

Mrs. Sharp was selected for the honor from among 140 employees at the eight Munden's stores in Texas.

She received a plaque commemorating her honor and a trip to the Dallas Cowboys-Buffalo Bills football game as her reward for her years of service.

Mrs. Sharp went to work for Munden's prior to opening of the store in Snyder. She has worked in the local store since July 1, 1968. A longtime Snyder resident, she worked at the old Lieb's grocery store before going over to the discount center.

Steve Biko Widow Tries To Rebuild Her Life

KING WILLIAM'S TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Speaking of her young sons, she says, "I'm bringing them up to be like Steve. If they died for the truth, as he did, I would be satisfied."

With a gentleness that belies her words, she says, "Inside I should have bitterness — and I do."

That's as far as Steve Biko's widow goes toward making a political statement about the death of her husband, a radical student leader and founder of a black consciousness movement.

Nontsikelelo Margaret Biko has found a job, rebuilt her life and settled into obscurity in a country where apartheid — separation of the races — is law.

It is, she says, all she wants from life.

Mrs. Biko spoke in her bedroom during a recent interview because the rest of her five-room house was noisy with visitors.

A bright ceiling light was on but the younger son, Samora, 6, named for Samora Machel, president of Mozambique, slept soundly on the double bed. Mkosinathi — "God is with us" — is 10 and away at boarding school.

Biko died in police custody in 1977. A magistrate ruled that his fatal head injuries were probably received during questioning but that no policeman was to blame.

The circumstances of his death brought Biko world attention, as a symbol of race conflict in white-ruled South Africa, far more than his radical activities. Foreign governments protested. Some 20,000 blacks attended his funeral.

Biko's family sued the state for damages and, two years later, settled out of court for 65,000 rand — $68,000, about two-thirds of what they had demanded. It was the largest settlement ever made in the death of a detainee but family hopes for full disclosure concerning the death were frustrated.

"There are still some things not explained and they never will be," Mrs. Biko said.

"I was really tired, finished," she said of the period after her husband died. Distracted by the inquest and disturbed by her sudden publicity as Biko's widow, she left her job as a nurse in a rural hospital for blacks.

Helped by friends, Mrs. Biko moved out of her mother-in-law's home in 1979 and rented her present house in Ginsberg, a black township separated by railroad tracks from the rest of King William's Town. She grows spinach in the front yard.

Mrs. Biko didn't work again until last year, when she became a nursing sister at a hospital that serves blacks and whites in separate wings of the building. She takes home about 400 rand — $420 — a month, slightly less than a white nurse receives for the same duties.

The Bikos married in 1970, when they were both 24. Acquaintances say Biko, increasing his role as a black spokesman, gradually left his plump, cheerful, quiet-spoken wife behind.

If there were strains, Mrs. Biko doesn't reveal them.

"My husband belonged to the people. I knew that before we were married and I accepted it," she said. "Now there are days when I sit down alone and try to face my problems, and I need him. He didn't neglect his family."

On the wall is a motto: "What is home without a mother." Mrs. Biko said: "I am aiming at bringing my kids up the way Steve would have liked. I don't think Steve would have liked to see his kids not involved with the people.

"At some stage, I will have to explain the role of their father in the community. Now, the older boy asks: 'Where was he working, what was he doing? He doesn't yet understand what Steve meant.

"But even Samora will tell you, 'The Boers killed my father.'"

Boer, an Afrikaans-language word meaning farmer, refers to the Afrikaners of Dutch and French descent who control South Africa's government.

Dennis Plans Mini-Mall Here

Foy Dennis, owner of the building formerly occupied by Gibson's, on College Ave., has come up with some interesting plans for the future of the structure.

In addition to providing expanded quarters for his audio business, Sound Concepts, he plans to transform the 12,000 square foot building into Snyder's first mini-mall. He expects to complete necessary remodeling work sometime next spring.

Current plans call for the building to eventually house a total of six or seven businesses. Dennis says that plans are not firm yet. The finished layout of the mall will be determined by the requirements of the individual tenants.

Although nothing is definite yet, Dennis sees prospects for the sucess of the endeavor as quite good. According to Dennis, several firms have expressed sincere interest in relocating to the new mini-mall.

Biophysicist Testifies In Creationism Trial

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas' creation statute will turn classrooms into circuses, with pupils trying to catch teachers disobeying it, a school official says.

"If you implement the law, students would have ample opportunity to catch the teacher doing wrong," Dennis Glasgow, science director for Little Rock schools, said Wednesday during the third day of the U.S. District Court trial of a lawsuit challenging the law.

"In that kind of circus atmosphere, they'll lose respect for teachers, teachers will lose respect for themselves. It will be very degrading," he said.

Glasgow said the law requires schools to give creation the same legitimacy as evolution.

Glasgow testified before Judge William Overton. The American Civil Liberties Union filed the lawsuit May 27 for a group of scientists, educators and clergymen. The ACLU says the law, which requires public schools to teach both the theory of evolution and the theory of creation-science if either is taught, is vague and violates academic freedom and the constitutional requirement for separation of church and state.

With Glasgow's testimony, the ACLU began to focus on education problems after its earlier witnesses — prominent religious scholars and some of the world's best-known scientists — said the law's creation concept is religious and without a scientific footing.

The state, which says the view is scientific and not religious, will begin presenting its evidence when the ACLU has finished.

Passed in March, the Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act applies to schools in September, but is impossible to implement, Glasgow said. It allows only scientific evidence, but there is none for creation, and forbids religious writings, which is the basis for the creation concept, he said.

Overton, citing the phrase "sudden creation" in the law's six-point definition of the acceptable creation concept, asked Glasgow if he knew how that could be implemented without reference to a creator. "No," Glasgow answered.

"Is there any way that you've thought of to accommodate some practical questions from students regarding other elements of the definition, for example, the worldwide flood?" Overton asked.

"I don't know of any scientific evidence for a worldwide flood," Glasgow said. "I don't know how you could do that without bringing in religion." The only materials he knows of to implement the creation concept defined by the law come from creationist organizations and often use religious references or name God, Glasgow said.

One creationist, Richard Bliss of the Institute for Creation Research at El Cajon, Calif., has contacted the Little Rock district to help implement the law, Glasgow said. He said Bliss has proposed in some material that pupils be taught both views and then be asked to submit a 500-word explanation of their personal opinions, Glasgow said.

"You mean to give their personal views on whether there is a creator or not?" Overton asked.

"That's my understanding," Glasgow replied.

replied.

In another development, Gov. Frank White's office received hundreds of complaints by telephone about Attorney General Steve Clark defending the law. The calls began after a Christian Broadcasting Network "700 Club" program Wednesday during which CNB President M.G. "Pat" Robertson said Clark participated in a money-raising program for the ACLU and is known to support ACLU aims.

Clark said he donated "lunch with Steve Clark" to an Arkansas ACLU fund-raising auction Nov. 21. He said he didn't go to the auction, doesn't know if anybody bought the offer or what they paid for it. He said it is not a conflict of interest with his defense of the law.

Harvard paleontologist Stephen Jay Gould, last of the ACLU's scientists, told the court Wednesday that creationists close their eyes to fossil evidence of transitions between species. Archaeopteryx, for example, had features of reptiles and birds, but creationists insist it was only a bird, ignoring its reptilian features, Gould said.

The fossil record — evidence of living organisms that is found in the earth — does not show every subtle change, but fossils illustrating some of the changes exist, despite what creationists say, Gould said. There is abundant evidence, he said, that bones near the back of the jaw of reptiles changed to the bones of the inner ear of mammals. It is no surprise that subtle changes aren't often shown by fossils because only 1 percent of all organisms have been susceptible to fossilization, he said.

The worldwide flood in the law's definition of the creation theory is contradicted by scientific evidence of more than one mass extinction, Gould said. He said about 50 percent of all families of marine invertebrates died 225 million years ago and that dinosaurs and several invertebrates disappeared about 65 million years ago.

The creationist claim that evolutionists classify geological strata according to the fossils in them, then date the fossils according to the age assumed for the strata. This is false, Gould said.

With Labor...

Reagan Trying To Make Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to make peace with organized labor, is lifting the ban against fired air traffic controllers being hired for other government jobs. But the controllers and their labor allies say the offer is a sham because there are no other federal jobs.

"We are clearly disappointed," an AFL-CIO spokesman said of Reagan's decision to waive the 3-year ban on government work for the 11,500 dismissed controllers.

Ron Newcomb, a fired controller from Auburn, Wash., now working as a bartender, called Reagan's action "a meaningless, symbolic gesture" that will provide little help since there are few government jobs available.

Newcomb's comments were echoed by many of the controllers, who were fired last August after they participated in an illegal strike.

"There are no other jobs in the federal government available. I wouldn't envision a big rush ... for applications," said David Pentz, a fired controller from Canton, Mich., who now works at a bowling alley.

The unions had hoped Reagan would allow at least some of the dismissed workers to return to the air control towers.

But Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis made it clear Wednesday that he was steadfastly against such a move, and Reagan said none of the fired controllers would be considered for jobs at the Federal Aviation Administration.

Lewis told reporters air safety would be jeopardized if the fired controllers were allowed to return to their old positions because of friction between them and the 9,300 controllers and supervisors who stayed on the job.
