Early Crops Not Affected

The little bug that until now was feared only during the wheat growing season has come back to this area and is playing havoc with the grain sorghum crop. Green bugs are eating the leaves of the sorghum crop from Clovis, New Mexico, all the way into Illinois.

Early grain sorghum crops in Floyd County are little affected by the green bugs. . . .and the well known and feared midge. But late crops are beginning to show the results of both insects. . .especially the green bug.

Floyd farmers are contracting spray jobs from aerial spray companies and hoping to kill out the insects. One farmer near Aiken said that the green bugs were literally swarming in the air in his community.

Lyndon Almand, Area Entomologist says that if control measures are taken, more than one spraying may be needed since reinfestation is highly possible due to the build-up of greenbugs throughout the area. However, this buildup should slow down during the hot weather which the area is presently experiencing. The rapid greenbug development over the past few weeks has been a result of relatively cool weather which is conductive to greenbug reproduction.

Although greenbug counts are running as high as 2,000 to 4,000 per leaf in many sorghum fields, the greenbugs are mainly on the bottom leaves of the plant and are doing little damage, says the entomologist. On grain sorghum which is in the pre-boot stage or later, research has shown that the insects do not cause enough damage to justify control measures.

Almond advises farmers, however, to keep a close watch on their fields and evaluate their particular situation. If the greenbugs move to the upper leaves and begin causing considerable damage to these leaves, control measures may be necessary.

Insecticides available for controlling greenbugs include phosdrin, endrin and parathion. Extreme care should be exercised in applying these materials, cautions the entomologist. The waiting period from the time of application until harvest is as follows; phosdrin, 3 days; endrin, 45 days; and parathion, 12 days.

MIDGE

Almand suggested that farmers be on the alert for these insets attacking milo, in the soft dough stage.

Under normal summer temperatures from 14 to 16 days are required for the complete life cycle. The males live only a few hours, but the females live about one day. During this time a female will lay 30 to 100 eggs in the grain heads. The eggs develop into larvae which feed on the grain head, turning it into a blighted appearance. The orange colored midges will be sun crawling over the grain, and are usually seen best in early morning and late afternoon. Control measure is similar to that for greenbugs. Parathion, Endrin and Ethion are recommended as sprays for controlling them.

Three break-ins, two in businesses and one house burglary is being investigated this week by City and County officials. Goen Drug, Miller's Barbeque and the residence of Mrs. Valrie Green was entered the past week.

Tom Hopper, Chief of Police, said the drug store was entered through the air conditioning ducts on the roof and the burglar or burglars left by the front door.

C. M. Miller reported to police that he discovered the break-in to his business on Silverton Highway when he opened for business Sunday morning. Taken was chewing gum, candy and a radio. Entrance was gained at the back door where the lock was broken.

Hopper said they had several

Floydada High School Graduate Selected Bishop

by Melvin Mathis

A bright, likeable, high-spirited and verstile young man who graduated twenty-eight years ago from Floydada High School as President of the Senior Class may be coming back to the old home town within a few months to preside at the dedication of First Methodist Church.

This is the prospect now, for Alsie Carleton, football and basketball player, debater, tenor singer, piano player, and generally energetic, has grown up a good deal.

His odyssey since leaving Floydada, where he spent the last three high school years from 1927 to 1930, has involved graduation from McMurry College, where he served as president of the student body, theological studies at Southern Methodist University, pastorates at Trent and Baird in the Abilene area, work across the street from Texas Tech as pastor of St. John's Methodist Church, a distinguished pastorate at First Methodist Church in Big Spring, and since early 1953 three positions of great responsibility in Dallas.

And so, last week, in Oklahoma City, he was the recipient of at least 60% of the ballots from lay and ministerial delegates to fill the one episcopal spot available within the South Central Jurisdiction, an eight-state area embracing everything from the northwestern panhandle of Nebraska to the New Orleans area, and the southwestern corner of New Mexico to the northeastern reaches of Missouri.

There are now ten bishops within this area, each with one or more annual conferences.

The new Bishop Carleton will serve both the New Mexico Conference and Northwest Texas. The former includes Texas from Odessa on westwards. He is to reside at Albuquerque.

VARIED BACKGROUND

It has been customary for the South Central Jurisdiction to choose its bishops from men whose time has been spent altogether in the pastorate. At least one exception was that of Paul Martin, who served sixteen years in Arkansas and Louisiana and then eight in east Texas after being elected in 1944. Although his last assignment had been as pastor of the First Methodist Church in Wichita Falls, he had spent one term as a district superintendent. But Alsie Carleton not only did this, but also was working in a theological seminary, Perkins at S.M.U. at the time of his election.

When he left Big Spring in 1953, he followed Lance Webb, also a product of the Northwest Texas Conference. Webb had been at University Park Church in Dallas, and sent on to Dayton, Ohio, to succeed a man who had just been elected a bishop.

In 1964 Webb was elected a bishop in the North Central Jurisdiction, with his area being in Illinois. Dr. Carleton, thus destined to be the second native of this region to reach this high post, was after a few years as pastor, re-assigned to be a district superintendent in Dallas, and from this post became a professor in church administration at his old school, and a field director of theological students serving as pastors. He was directing a course for pastors not planning a full theological education, at the time of his elevation to bishop.

THOSE IN ON VOTING

Numerous delegates known to Floydada people were in on the voting in Oklahoma City, including Gordon Bennett, DeWitt Seago, Marvin Boyd, Luther Kirk, J. M. Willson, Sr., J. M. Willson, Jr., Charles Lutrick, Joe Salem, Mrs. J. P. Elms, Lee Nowlin, and Harold Harriger.

Representative citizens of Floydada, several being of faiths other than Methodists, expressed their pleasure upon learning of his success, and the general opinion in speaking of Carleton during his three high school years in Floydada, following his earlier schooling in the country to the southeast, was that he was a very nice boy, one whom everyone liked, high-spirited, no prude, but not mean, either.

His participation in athletics, music, speech activities, and the presidency of his graduating class, all of these testify to his versality and popularity. A sly dig at his normal attitude toward girls is given in the back pages of the Hesper, the 1928 annual: "Alsie was waiting for her in the parlor, and he said to the light: 'Either you or I will be turned down tonight, old fellow.' "

Humor creeps up in this quotation attributed to him the following year: "Alsie Carleton will now sing the famous song entitled - 'When a goat is right behind you - it's no time to lace your shoes.' " He was also quoted as saying that "if having money is dirty, then he knew that he was really sanitary!"

BASKETBALL

In 1928 he is pictured in a squad of 14 basketball boys, but as one of the four without the regular uniform. By the next year he has moved up to playing center and is captain, and as a senior he is center again.

In football he is shown as a right half-back his senior year, when the team won 5, lost 4, and tied one. His basketball teammates during his junior year were William Smith, forward; Riley Holmes, forward; Joe Smith, forward; Howard Welborn, guard; Harold Porterfield, guard; Raymond Nelson, center; Everett Moore, forward; and Ernie Widener, guard, with Troy Jones as coach.

This team won the invitation tourney at Quitaque. The team during his senior year was described as the best for Floydada up to then, holding practice sessions at Andrews Ward.

They lost 2 out of 3 to Lockney for county, and got second at the Turkey invitational. Teammates were Ernie Widener, Starks Green, Howard Welborn, Joe Smith, Will Smith, Warren Poole, Milton Ashton, Jess Lanier, Donley Stephenson, Carl Nelson, and Floyd Bell, "Business Manager." Ike Jay was coach.

PEOPLE such as Mrs. Claudia Brown of Levelland deserve a pat on the back. She is a 52 year old negro woman, who is walking 20 blocks each day, starting back to college after a 33 year interruption. During the 33 years she married, reared four children and from the time the youngest was two, she worked at housekeeping jobs to support them after the breakup of her marriage. All of her children are married now and all but one daughter received some college training although Mrs. Brown admitted it was "rough" on the pay she received from cleaning jobs. She plans to attend Texas Tech this fall. She has 79 hours, counting credits gained at South Plains College last winter and those she received at Paul Quinn College in Waco during 1933-35 when the going was really tough.

MR. and Mrs. C. A. Cass were in the Hesperian Office Monday. They were in this area to visit friends and attend homecoming at Lakeview. Mr. Cass has spent the past 45 years in the teaching profession, having taught in Floyd, Lamar, Titus and Bowie Counties. During this time he has only missed 14 teaching days. What a record! He and his wife now reside in Paris, Tex.

THOSE who missed the women's ball game Saturday night missed an evening of good, clean entertainment. All rules were barred so you can imagine the hilarity on the ball field. Announcer Dale Kincer should have told everyone Beverly was his wife, tho. He would announce all batters by Mrs. So and So, and when Beverly was playing catcher he would holler, "get the ball honey". To those who didn't know, word finally got around in the stands that they were married so it was OK to call her honey. All players were outstanding. Defensively I thought Elinor Hendrix, Gail Daniel, Donna Pernell and Alma Fleming were outstanding. Elinor pitched a good ball game too. Lynn Marler, living up to the standards of her ball playing sons, knocked a homerun with bases loaded, not over the fence but far enough. It wasn't anything unusual for a batter to get to first and before the play ended another homerun would be tallied due to an uncontrolled ball. Women are not supposed to control a baseball, tho, they control the sons that control the baseball. Good going, girls, besides getting a good workout you netted the Baseball Association some $50.

Speaking of baseball, much is left unsaid about the fellows who manage, coach and work with the players each year on their free time. A lot is left unsaid about the women who help too. I understand Mrs. Earl Pierce was working at the concession stand every game of the Freshman League, and most wives of the managers and coaches keep up with the play by play of their team. It it is a family project for some.

THE Washington Report, authoritative newsletter of the highly respected American Security Council, revealed last week the startling information that while the Johnson Administration is ignoring the problem, Fidel Castro is reaching into the heart of the United States to train guerrilla fighters for war in America's cities. According to the newsletter, one Stokely Carmichael last year visited a guerrilla warfare camp in Cuba where he met some 200 trainees from all parts of the United States. Two days later it was said he traveled to another training camp where trainees from the English-speaking countries of Africa are being taught to speak like the American Negro for the purpose of blending into the U.S. cities to incite turmoil. Here in the United States, says Washington Report, a Castro organization known as "Cuban Power" operates from New York to Miami where they can team up with like-minded revolutionists dedicated to destroying America.

Mrs. Lane Decker, president of Caprock District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, gave a report on the Leadership Seminar to be held Aug. 13 to 15 at St. Mary's University in San Antonio. Theme of the leadership training session will be "Obligations for Tomorrow."

New members attending were Mmes. Doris McLain, L. G. Wilson, J. W. Cannon and Charles Anderson. Other members present were Mmes. Lane Decker, Sammy Hale, Don Cheek, Bob Copeland, C. C. Whittle, Herman Graham, L. W. Crabtree, Lawrence Wedel, W. R. Bradshaw, Doyle Moore and Tom Moore.

Harmony Club Meets. Has Guest Speaker

The Harmony Home Demonstration Club met Thursday for the regular meeting. The president, Mrs. Sherwood Ramsey presided. Roll call was answered with "My Favorite Accessory."

Mrs. Zant Scott led the group in singing "In the Good Old Summer time".

Mrs. Bob Hopper gave the devotional.

After the business meeting the program was turned to a guest speaker, Mrs. Brown from Lockney, who gave a very informative program on "How to Accessorize Your Wardrobe." "Accessories can bring about a form of individuality" stated Mrs. Brown. A collarless dress can be accessorized more easily than one with a collar. Wide crushable belts will be in vogue for the coming season, also pins with sets rather than the plain gold and silver jewelry of past seasons.

Mrs. Monroe Schulz gave the 5 minute demonstration on "How Your Family Can Cope With Daily Stress and Tension."

Mrs. Bob Hopper, hostess for the occasion, served refreshments to the following members: Mmes. Mather Carr, R. B. Gary, Walter Hanna, Glenn Pool, Sherwood Ramsey, Bob Ratjen, Monroe Schulz, Zant Scott, and J. R. Turner. Guests were Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Elmer Dean Williams.

MRS. TOMMY QUISENBERRY

Kaye Finley, Quisenberry Wed In Twin Ring Ceremony

Miss Shirley Kaye Finley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Finley of Floydada and Tommy Ray Quisenberry, son of Bill Quisenberry of Sandhill Community and Bettye Ruth Quisenberry of Plainview, were wed Saturday evening in a double ring ceremony. Vows were repeated in the First Baptist Church in Floydada.

Rev. Truit Kinsler, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Kress, performed the ceremony.

Wearing a traditional gown of white lace organza, the bride was presented at the altar by her father. The patterned lace bodice was enhanced with seed pearls and sequins and the full skirt and detachable train of rayon organza was graced with sequined lace. Her veil of nylon illusion was secured to a headpiece of lace, pearls and sequins. White roses formed the bridal bouquet.

Bride's attendants were Mrs. Mike Hollums, Floydada, and Miss Cathy Gearhart of Amarillo. They wore Empire-styled yellow gowns. The gown bodice was of satin-bonded cotton lace with skirt of sheer rayon georgette over taffeta. Watteau panels graced the gown back. Swiss braid rosettes formed the headpiece and each carried a bouquet of white Marguerite daisies showered with soft yellow maline poufs.

Other members of the wedding party included flower girl, Debbie Dobbins, niece of the bride, and ring bearer, Jonny Finley, nephew of the bride. Candlelighters were Kim Paschal, brother of the groom, and Jimmy Finley, the bride's nephew.

Bobby Gilliland was best man and groomsman was Mike Hollums.

Ushers were Roy Dale Kendrick, cousin of the bride, and Ricky Joe Quisenberry of Plainview, brother of the groom.

Presenting a program of wedding music was Mrs. Tony Cochran, organist, and Miss Mary Bradford, soloist.

RECEPTION

At the reception in the church parlor, Linda Paschal, sister of the groom, Cerita and Sherry Crutchfield served refreshments. Ann Chowning registered guests.

Bouquets of bridal attendants and a candelabrum formed the centerpiece of the serving table. Covered with a yellow lace cloth, the table was appointed with crystal and silver.

Four Compete Lockney School Of Nursing

Three Floydada women and one from Dougherty were among those completing a 12 month school of nursing at Lockney General Hospital recently and received their diplomas last Thursday night. Graduation ceremony was held in the First Methodist Church in Lockney.

Rev. James Allison, pastor of the First Baptist Church and Bob Glover, minister of the Main Street Church of Christ, gave the benediction. Special music was presented by Mrs. James Allison.

A reception honoring the graduates was held in fellowship hall.

For travel the bride wore a white dress with sheer coat in colors of orange and yellow. Accessories included orange shoes and white gloves.

The rehearsal party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Quisenberry, grandparents of the groom.

Residence of the newlyweds is 1800 N. Mirror in Amarillo, where the groom is employed by Levi-Strauss. Both attended Floydada High School.

Crystal and silver appointments were used on the serving table, which was centered with an arrangement of wedding bells and tiny artificial flowers. Turquoise candles were used to complete the table arrangement.

Gilliland Slams Hit That Wins Game For Lockney Team

Bobby Gilliland, pitcher for the Floydada Drillers, who lost to Lockney 5-2 in the Mackenzie Baseball League two weeks ago, won the ball game for Lockney's Club Tuesday night against Haskell.

What was thought at first to be a Gilliland homerun by fans and players alike was ruled as a double by baseball officials. Lockney Coach Bob Glover, in talking with second base umpire Garvin Beedy, related that Gilliland's fly ball to right field was batted down at the fence by a Haskell player, who was injured on the play.

A Lockney runner on third made it home by the long fly to break the 4-4 tie in the seventh inning.

Coach Glover, in talking with a Hesperian reporter yesterday, had nothing but praise for the three Floydada boys picked up by their team to play in the tournament. They are Gilliland, Todd Wester and Tim Rose.

The coach said the ball hit by Gilliland went toward the greatest distance of the fence, 340 feet and was batted down practically at that point by the Haskell boy, who made an outstanding play.

Lockney went out in front of Haskell 3-1 in the first inning of the ball game. With two outs and no score Rose got a hit, Gilliland gets a runner home with a hit, and pitcher Bick Bickley knocks in two runners.

Second inning Haskell got no hits and no runs, Lockney three hits and no runs. In the third inning Haskell gets another score, making it Lockney 3, Haskell 2. No scores were tallied in the fourth and fifth inning but in the sixth inning Haskell scored again making a tie ball game of 3-3.

In the seventh inning Haskell scored on an error making it 4-3. For Lockney Duckworth hit to run in the tying score, making it 4-4. One runner was on first, no outs, a batter fans and Gilliland is up to bat.

He connects with the first throw, knocking the ball to the fence near the south side of the score board, bringing in the base runner.

Bickley was winning pitcher for Lockney, pitching the entire seven innings.

Haskell won the first game against Petersburg Monday. They played last night and the winner of that game (unknown at press time) will play Lockney tonight (Thursday). Game time has been set up to 9 o'clock.

If Lockney wins tonight they are winners of the District II Senior League and will play in San Angelo Aug. 5 for State. If they lose they will play again Friday night against the same team.

Astros Rally Past Floydada

The Plainview Astros rallied for three runs in the bottom of the seventh Friday night for a 6-5 victory over the Floydada Blue Jays.

Roy Esteves allowed seven hits and struck out nine en route to the victory.

The Blue Jays play Plainview here tonight at 8:30. Pete Soliz is the Blue Jay coach.

Lighthouse Loses 1st Tilt, Wins Second In District Play

Lighthouse Electric ball team, who won the Junior League in Floydada, lost their first game Monday night in the Haskell district tournament against Haskell, 5-1, but was back in running Tuesday night when they played and beat Stamford, 6-0.

Lighthouse played the winner of the Clyde-Lockney game last night, but at press time who they played and the outcome of the game had not been learned. If Lighthouse won, that will put them out front with two wins and another game to play this week before going into trials.

Spur Man Brings Program For Harmony 4-H'ers

A group of Harmony 4-H Youngsters, their parents, and leaders met in an all day meeting at the Community Center, Tuesday, July 23rd. The foods group lead by Mrs. Monroe Schulz and Mrs. Gerald Smalley prepared a delicious lunch for all present.

In the afternoon Mrs. Bob Hopper, who is safety leader, introduced Cecil Fox of Spur, who is Game Warden in that area. He gave a very interesting and educational program on snakes, their habits, and their harmful and beneficial effects to mankind. He had a dozen or more species to show the group. He showed eggs and embryos of different species. Mrs. Fox stated there are ten different species of rattle snakes in Texas. The heat nerves of a rattler can determine his distance from prey even though he is blind or on the darkest night. He mikled venum from one of his rattle snakes. This venum crystalizes in a very short time. The younger a person the more serum it requires if they are bitten by a rattler, one pound of venum is worth $116,500.00.

He showed the group a western Milk Snake. They are very useful in that they devour termites.

Frogs are very useful because they eat their weight each day in insects.

He gave the group safety measures from snakes. He stated that the snake usually strikes when you turn to run. As long as you are still, he will not strike. If possible divert the snake's attention before moving. Mr. Fox stressed that using a tourniquet incorrectly can be as hazardous as the snake bite itself. He gave proper methods of using one and proper methods of caring for the wound until you reach a doctor.

There were about 40 present for the program.

COUNTY AGENT'S CORNER

by Joe Wilson

Wheat farmers should mark Aug. 8 on their calendars as plans are now being formulated to have a couple of meetings on wheat production within the county. It is hopeful that one meeting can be held at South Plains and one at Dougherty. This would enable many of the larger wheat producers to be near the meeting places.

Presenting the program at each meeting will be Dr. Robert Metzer, area agronomist for the extension service at Lubbock, and R. J. Hodges, small grain specialist at Texas A&M University. Dr. Metzer will talk on management practices to produce a good yield and Hodges will talk on varieties for production and grazing.

It is hopeful that Lyndon Almand, the extension entomologist will be here to present a part of the program on wheat insects, their prevention and control.

Knowing these three men, the program will be one that wheat farmers will not want to miss. More information on the meeting will be released later this month.

Cotton farmers should keep a close check for bollworms as weather conditions have been excellent for a large build-up of the insects. A few light infestations have been reported but no large outbreak has occurred yet.

In being able to control this insect chemical treatment must begin when the worms are still small. They become increasingly difficult to control as they get larger.

Midge season is almost here so grain sorghum producers should begin looking for this insect. It would be a good idea to start checking the grain sorghum around Aug. 1 and continue until it is out of danger. Only sorghum that has just headed through the bloom stage can be affected by this orange, gnat-size insect.

LIGHTHOUSE ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE, INC.
MARY PHILLIPS, HOME ECONOMIST

A trend toward better grooming habits and practices is indicated by an increase in the variety of personal-care electric products available to "Automate" grooming from head to toe. Many routines, which previously required considerable skill, can now be accomplished at home with professional results - thanks to "power" equipment.

In reviewing an array of such products, Rita Marie Schneider, Editorial Director of "What's New in Home Economics," advises consumers to consider the following points in purchasing what she calls the "glamour girls" of the appliance industry:

1. Select an appliance designed, engineered, and produced by a reputable company.
2. Consider what the appliance will do, its features and limitations, and how often it will be used.
3. Check the warranty and availability of service.

Today's portable hair dryers come in a variety of sizes, styles, and features. The hard-bonnet, salon-type is faster drying than the soft-bonnet types because of a higher wattage and a greter flow of air around the head. A spray mist feature, found on some hard-bonnet units, makes it easy to set hair dry between shampooings; once set, hair takes only 20 minutes to moisturize and dry. Many soft-bonnet dryers come with a shoulder strap or belt so they can be worn or carried around while the hair is drying.

The very newest coiffure appliance is the electrically-heated hair curler set. Simulating the old-fashioned curling iron, it curls hair in minutes by applying heat. Results are best when these curlers are used on dry or only slightly damp hair, with curling time ranging from 7 to 15 minutes.

An electric comb, which blows heated air through the hair as it combs, is good for short or long hair and for children. Its counterpart, the electric hair brush, duplicates prolonged hand brushing with much less effort. While only frequent shampoos will keep hair clean, brushing is beneficial to remove surface dirt, to distribute natural oils, and to make hair shine.

Heretofore, a salon-type facial at home required draping a towel over the head and holding the face over the steam from a kettle of boiling water. A modern facial-mist beauty appliance provides controlled heat to help cleanse pores naturally by inducing perspiration. Since it is intended to loosen embedded dirt, stale make-up, excess oils, and other pore-clogging matter, it should be advantageous for all types of skin - particularly for teenagers with complexion problems.

Use of an automatic toothbrush is said to result in cleaner teeth than manual brushing, and also to provide healthful gum massage. Brushing action is available in either up-and-down or back-and-forth motions - or both. Supplementing a toothbrush plus dentifrice, water-pulsating dental hygiene units help to flush food particles from between and around teeth and also serve to stimulate gum circulation.

Miss Schneider recommends a weekly manicure as part of everybody's grooming routine. Electric powered units - to facilitate both manicures and pedicures – include five attachments: cuticle pusher, cuticle brush, buffer, disc sander or nail shaper, and drum sander or callus smoother. A nail-drying feature is included on some manicure units, and even on some hair dryers.

With travel so prevalent, grooming equipment is also being designed to travel easily – so that American women and girls can maintain their "band box look reputation anywhere.

Floyd In District Horse Show

Floyd County was well represented July 23, at the District II 4-H Horse Show in Tulia. A total of 121 boys and girls competed in the show. Twenty South Plains 4-H'ers qualified to compete in the State 4-H Horse Show in Fort Worth, Aug. 8-10. Among these twenty to qualify were three Floyd County youngsters, which was as large a number as any county in the district had.

Shari Johnson of Lockney, won 3rd in the barrel race on a time of 20.5 seconds. She gathered eight points in this event and led the way for the other county youngsters. Sam Fortenberry came up with seven points by placing in three divisions. He placed 6th in the registered gelding class, 6th in Western Pleasure and 6th in Reining. Ginger Henderson came up with five points by being 3rd in showmanship; 4th in registered gelding, five years and older; and 9th in Western Pleasure. Sam, Shari and Ginger are the three that qualified to go to state.

Glen Lane of Lockney, placed 2nd in Grade Mares under 14 hands 3 inches, while his brother, J. H. placed 2nd in registered geldings five year and older. Diane Williams of Lockney placed 6th in the same class.

Everyone is very anxious about going to the state show in August.

LIBRARY NEWS

Approximately one hundred youngsters have enrolled as members of the Book Worm Club, the state reading program, for this summer, at the main library in Floydada. A sizeable number have completed requirements for certificates.

A check for the month of June shows a total circulation for Floyd County libraries of 3766, divided as follows: Floydada adult - 1112; Floydada Juvenile - 1543; Lockney Adult - 331; Lockney Juvenile - 970. The June pace has been just about kept even during July.

Competition is urged in defense contracts.

SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS – Parallel terraces, like the ones pictured above, are one of the best improvements that can be made on dry land or weak water farms. These terraces are primarily constructed to hold more rainfall on the land and to distribute water more evenly between terrace intervals. Several other advantages are that the problem of point rows has been virtually eliminated. Also, no terraces channels are left to pond water since the intervals are almost entirely leveled. This reduces "drowning out" of crops caused by the concentration of runoff rainfall just above each terrace interval. Because parallel terraces are on the level and farmed on the contour fashion and because side fall is reduced in building the terraces, each row acts as its own reservoir, keeping most of the rainfall within a few inches of where it falls.

Additional information on construction and cost share assistance available can be obtained by contacting the local Soil Conservation Service office.

Making The Drag..... In Sweden!

BY OUR FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT SUZANNE GUTHRIE

Hello there,

Man, I am having a wonderful time. Now I am with my host family at their summer home. We live on an island, and there are only fishermen and other doctors there. About 15 families.

We have to get here by motor boat, and we are about 25 minutes from Fjallbacka, the nearest city, about the size of South Plains, maybe a little larger.

While we were traveling here on Saturday, my host mother said, "Suzanne, we shall stop and eat at a very nice BAR, in the next town. It's the one we always go to." I thought "Bar???" and then said "Oh!" – ? I was pleased to find out that in Sweden, a Bar is a cafeteria, something like Furr's. What a relief!! Ha! Ha!

Here in Sweden we have five meals a day. Breakfast, then lunch, then about 3:30 we have sandwiches and tea, then dinner, and then about 9:30 we have sandwiches, cake and tea. This is really terrible for me because I'm already such a health child, and I sure don't need FIVE meals a day. But, when in Sweden, one must do as the Swedes do. (What an excuse) ?

Back to our island. It is called Dyngo, and it is kinda like home. Everybody knows everybody, etc. But of course nobody knows me, and they all ask lots of questions, which I answer with a question also.

I am learning so much about Swedish living. You know, one should never be ONLY A TOURIST because you can learn so much more when you actually live their life.

I found that the Swedish summers are rather cool. Everyone here is running around in bathing suits and I have on slacks and a sweater. But I'm beginning to get used to it! However, I leave Sweden for the tour through Europe 2 weeks from yesterday.

"The Virginian" will be on TV tonight. Yea! something in English, the only thing I might add. They used to have "Bonanza" and the "High Chaperral", but 2 little boys in a town in Northern Sweden were playing "Bonanza" and 1 little boy actually shot and killed the other. The Swedish decided it was a bad influence and removed it from their TV – I think it's rather strange, but I assure you there are many things that are MUCH MORE strange!

Well, I'm fixing to go play soccer – yes, socker! I'm really getting pretty good now.

Oh by the way, everybody please pay your doctor bill because I called home and talked to Daddy and Mother last Sunday – Ha! Ha!

I miss you all,
Suzanne

Wallace Rally In Plainview August 15

The Wallace Campaign of Hale County will stage a rally at 8 p.m., Thursday, August 15, at the Hale County Agriculture Center in Plainview. They are also planning a motorcade through a number of towns in this area and the tentative date for it is August 13.

What causes the enthusiasm to run so high in the Wallace Camp? If you ask Dr. Joe E. Webb of Plainview that question, you may be asked this question, "Will you stand up for America?" Dr. Webb is the County Finance Chairman and a warrior of many campaigns in the past and his enthusiasm is contagious. "Stand UP For America" is the slogan of George Wallace's American Party and the evidence of its effectiveness is a grass roots movement which has spread like the proverbial prairie fire throughout the nation. George Wallace is a fighter and there is no longer any doubts in the minds of the two major parties that they have a formidable adversary in the person of George Corley Wallace of Alabama.

Wallace has captured the imagination of millions of dejected Americans who are fed up with riots and lawlessness, a "no win" foreign policy, and rising taxes and inflation. Wallace wants to make the streets safe for all citizens, prosecute criminals and those advocating victory for the Viet Cong.

George Wallace has often assailed the two major parties by stating that the leadership is the same and that they sound like tweedledee and tweedledum. It appears the two major parties are bent on proving his point based on an Associated Press story from Washington, which is quoted in part, "A bipartisan move to neutralize the effect of a big Wallace showing has been launced by Reps. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., and Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz." And, it was Richard Nixon himself who observed the inspiration of Wallace supporters in Texas during a recent visit.

CARLETON

MUSIC, MAN!

Alsie was quite a musician. Mrs. Ohmer Kirk gave him lessons in piano, and he sang all three years on the Boys' Quartette. In 1927-28 the group, which included Harold Porterfield as first tenor, Alsie as second tenor, Truman Webb as baritone, and Steve Marshall as bass, was directed by Miss Elizabeth Ann Little.

During the following year Mr. G. E. McWhorter was described as "coach and tenor", with Alsie taking first tenor, Ballard Wilkinson, second tenor, E. B. Massie, baritone, and Clyde Snell, bass. Alsie also served that year as president of the Debating Club, David Luttrell being vice president, Lester Jameson, secretary-treasurer, and Dorothy Crawford as librarian.

Lois Sitton was reporter, and other members were Doris Spence, Juanita Shirey, Ruth Enoch, and C. W. McCarty. Carleton and Jameson for the boys, Sitton and Shirey for the girls, were chosen, after 6 weeks of intensive training, to represent the school at county meet, and both defeated Lockney. Subs were Luttrell and Enoch.

In his senior year Carleton again served as president of the club, organized by Princ. Scoggins. Juanita Shirey was secretary, and Lois Sitton reporter. These two girls won the county meet at Lockney for the girls, Carleton and Dale Self representing Floydada boys. Wilmina Salisbury and Robert Welborn were alternates.

During his senior year he was also president of the DO-RE-MI Club, organized by Mrs. McWhorter for students interested in music. Vice president was Clyde Snell; secretary-treasurer, Dave Luttrell; reporter, Hershel Swepston; pianist, Lois Sitton; and assistant pianist, Victorene Fitch.

In his senior annual, Alsie was given the nickname "Chile" and this creed: "Music is the expression of the soul." He served as class president, with Howard Welborn as vice-president, Juanita Shirey as secretary, Audrey Farris as treasurer, and Lois Sitton as reporter.

On the annual staff he was listed as "Humorist." Lois Sitton headed up this group as editor-in-chief, with Martin True as business manager, and other staffers were Robinette Ridgway, Warren Poole, Juanita Shirey, Jesse Mae Wood, Starks Green, Erna Lee Crawford, Bama Gene Smalley, Audrey Farris, Georgia Eudy, Dave Luttrell, Nadine Dalton, Mildred Welborn, Ruth Rutledge, Ballard Wilkinson, and Mr. W. H. Scoggins, principal, as advisor.

Alsie went back to second tenor in the boys' quartette, with McWhorter again in charge. Ballard Wilkinson was first tenor, Clyde Snell, bass, and Dave Luttrell, second bass.

There was even a good citizenship club that year, and Alsie was its president the first semester.

The young man of the late twenties, gay, quite normal in his interests, stands out as at least slightly more varied in his interests than the average, but never losing the common touch (something he probably never thought of).

As he came back to preach in revival services at First Methodist Church about sixteen months ago, he showed a friendly interest in people as people, a command of a broad area of reading, and a fine mixture of gaiety and seriousness. "Alsie, it has been nice to know you; Welcome, Bishop Carleton!"

BALLOTING REPORT

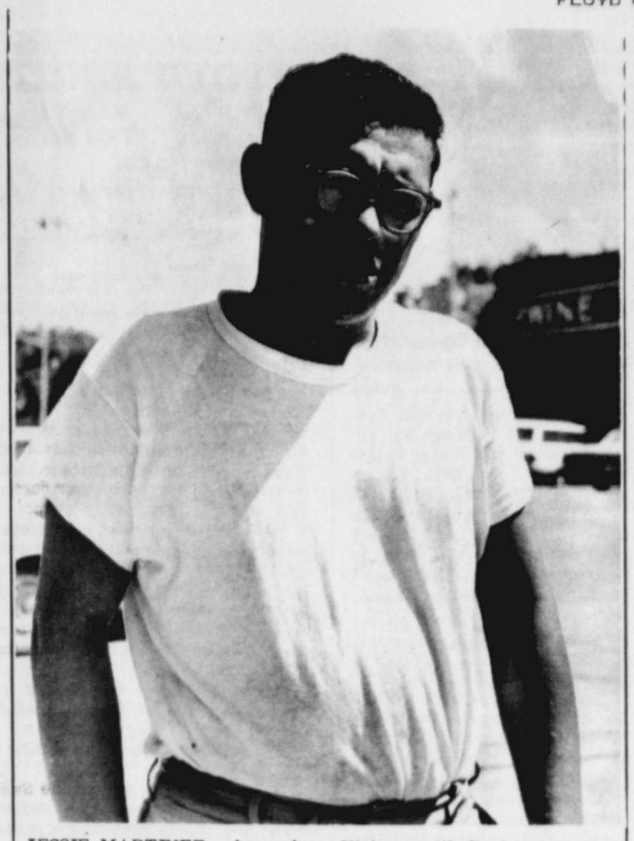

The Rev. Dr. Alsie H. Carleton, 58, became a bishop of the United Methodist Church on the 13th episcopal ballot taken July 25 at United Methodism's South Central Jurisdictional Conference July 24-27 in Oklahoma City.

Bishop Carleton received 280 votes, with 221 needed for election.

Bishop Carleton ran strongly on all ballots and was never below third in the voting. The decisive turn came on the 12th ballot, when he received 205 votes, with 223 needed for election (the requirement for the election was 60 percent of the votes cast on a particular ballot).

Upon announcement of his election by Bishop Noah W. Moore, Jr., who was presiding, the bishop-elect was escorted to the conference platform by two Dallas bishops under whom he had served. They were Bishop William C. Martin, retired, and Bishop W. Kenneth Pope of the Dallas-Fort Worth Area. Mrs. Carleton was escorted to the platform by Mrs. Pope and Mrs. Paul E. Martin, wife of the bishop of the Houston Area.

Bishop Carleton was a man who didn't think he could be elected bishop of The United Methodist Church and said immediately after his election that "you can't help but feel inadequate" when it happens. "It's a very sobering feeling," he said.

Jessie Martinez Back Home From Vietnam War

Jessie Martinez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Martinez of Tipton, Okla., formerly of Floydada, and the late Andrew Martinez, returned from duty in Vietnam July 22. His wife, the former Benita Delgado and two babies, have been making their home in Floydada during his army tour.

Martinez was a truck driver with the 669 Transportation Company and was stationed at Qui Nhon near Pleiku since July of 1967. His job was to transport cargo and ammunition to the battle areas.

Martinez said he never received an injury the year he served in Vietnam, but that a number of his buddies, also truck drivers, lost their lives. He said normally the convoys moved in daytime to avoid ambushes, but sometimes they were hit anyway. His particular company was hit by ambush some six to eight times but the troops were taught ahead of time to grab their rifles, seek cover and protect themselves.

In the year in Vietnam, Martinez said many improvements have been made. At first it usually took their trucks all day and half the night to travel some 300 miles, but the roads were paved recently and he said they could make the trip much faster.

He said when he first arrived in Vietnam, South Vietnamese were deathly afraid of the Vietcong and would hide in fear. They have learned to fight now, have better equipment to do so and realize the Americans are there to help.

Martinez said the only Floyd County boy he saw while in Vietnam was Ronnie Kitchens of Lockney, who is stationed at Qui Nhon and is a cook.

Asked what his future plans are, Martinez said "go back to work and later into a trades school if possible." He completed his high school education while in service.

Monday night.

Three members of each neighborhood center interviewed six applicants for the position. Thomas will begin work August 1. He will receive a salary of $4800.

Neighborhood Aids are yet to be employed for each center. They are selected by the neighborhood committee of each town.

As soon as neighborhood aids are selected, they will begin surveys of low income people in this area. Surveys will show family characteristics and areas of study that will be approached, for the benefit of the people who will attend classes and programs in the neighborhood center.

Floydada's neighborhood center will be developed in the Della Plains school building.

However, looking forward to his new duties in the episcopacy, the bishop praised the new structures being implemented by the church following its union with the Evangelical United Brethren Church this spring. "I've already been teaching my students the new structure," Bishop Carleton said. "They (the structures) are a great step forward, and I don't think I will have any problem adapting to them."

But he added his explanation of the function of structures. "I'm interested in structures only as structures relate to faith and action." he said. "This," he said, was "the church fulfilling its mission."

The new bishop indicated he is ready to try to bridge the "gaps" in our society, including the generation gap.

"The last four years have really made me keenly aware of the generation gap, the theological gap and the social gap," the new bishop said. "I hope my experience in the seminary will enable me to bridge these gaps," he said, noting that his close connection with the young ministers in Perkins puts him in a position of being able to work closely with youth in ministerial recruitment. "There has been a gap between the church and the youth," he added.

Bishop Carleton assumed the duties of resident bishop of the Northwest Texas-New Mexico Area upon his consecration Saturday noon, July 27, in St. Luke Methodist Church in Oklahoma City. He and his wife, the former Artha Blair Crutchfield, will be moving to Albuquerque about the middle of August.

Bishop Carleton told of humorous "family" sidelights in connection with his election as bishop. For more than the first half of the balloting he trailed Dr. Finis Crutchfield of Tulsa, and was elected on the 13th ballot. Dr. Crutchfield and Dr. Carleton are brothers-in-law. "Dr. Crutchfield really knows how to hurt his brother-in-law," Dr. Carleton said laughing. "When he announced his withdrawal, the delegates gave him a standing ovation. When he sat down he wrote me a note that said, 'Blessed is a man who standeth not in the way of sinners.'"

Plan now to visit with our state officials on this date.

TWO POINTS possibly overlooked in the "Bishop Carleton" feature in this issue are that Alsie worked for the J. C. Wester Bakery while going to Floydada High School and roomed with the J. S. Solomons.

They're All Mine

by Melvin Mathis

Baptist Juniors have been a special joy to Mrs. John Gray since 1916. Through these years - at Cone, Ralls, McCoy, and Floydada - she has been working in Baptist churches with children of this age, and she says gladly and proudly, "They're All Mine." Recently her pastor, Rev. Floyd Bradley of Floydada's First Baptist Church, said jokingly that although he wouldn't dare tell her age, she began teaching Juniors when she was four years of age, and had been teaching them for 52 years! Her youthful spirit is evident in conversation, but a combination of failing eyesight and torn ligaments in a knee, resulting from an accident, have persuaded her that she should give up this work that she has done for so long a period.

Born in Milam County, she came to the South Plains in 1907, as a child, and married John Gray in 1920. He operated a gin at McCoy for twenty years, moved into Floydada to get away from the gin business, and was back at it here in about a year. His death came in 1956.

She has a niece and nephew in this area. She is known as "Aunt Mamie" to Mrs. Pete (Wanda) Hickerson and Tommy Assiter.

Asked about work with clubs, she said that church activities had involved her to such an extent that she had never joined one. For ten years she was local president of the Woman's Missionary Union, and was Associational WMU president for five years.

There was a time when she expended considerable effort with china painting, which she laughingly says "Is a great deal easier than ceramics", but she has also done some of the latter. Recent years have seen her devoting a great deal of time to sewing.

It appears quite evident that "Aunt Mamie," though she has felt it necessary to give up her direct contacts with Juniors as a teacher, will still hold them in her heart. Her reminder is, "They're still mine." In a world where a sense of belonging is a cardinal need, these are reassuring words.

Harry Clark Inspects Floydada

Harry Clark, vice president in charge of industry, associated with a Midland bank, was in Floydada Monday interviewing members of the Floydada Chamber of Commerce in regard to Floydada's qualifications for a "Blue Ribbon City" award in industry potential.

Of the six categories in which a certain score must be reached, it appears that four of Floydada's categories are ready for certification. These categories are: schools and city government rate especially high, and industry and tourism categories also passed.

City beautification, city parks have not qualified at this time. With some extra effort by the Floydada citizenship, this can be accomplished before next spring, according to a chamber spokesman.

Jake Webb is chairman of the Blue Ribbon effort, which is sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Clark said Floydada was the first city that he had personally checked and he was responsible for some of the guidelines of the promotion, while he was chairman of the Texas Industrial Commission.

TAX MAN SAM SEZ

Every year there are a number of Texas couples who decide to "split the blanket." Divorce is enough misfortune, without getting into tax problems in the process. Under Texas community property laws, the earnings of both spouses up to the date of divorce is community income. When the couple files their income tax return for the year, each spouse has to have the total earnings up to the date of divorce, the total withholding tax and the total itemized deductions or tax credits, since by law each is required to file an income tax return on their one-half share. They must also declare their separate income, credits and deductions for the rest of the year after the date of divorce. It works out much better to settle the entire matter at the time of the divorce. In any case, don't be one of the several thousand Texans that will get involved in an income tax audit of your income tax return for the year of your divorce.

VETS ASK

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q. – Will the new surtax on incomes which is retroactive to last April 1 apply to the educational allowance I receive from the Veterans Administration under the G.I. Bill?

A. – No. Educational allowance, compensation and pension, and even G.I. insurance dividends are exempt from taxation, including the new surtax. The only taxable VA payment is the interest earned on G.I. insurance dividends left on deposit with the VA. This is not considered a veteran's benefit and must be reported as earned income.

Q. – A deceased veteran had active service in both World War I and World War II. Will a burial allowance of $250 be paid for each period of service?

A. – No. The Veterans Administration may pay up to, but not more than, $250 toward this veteran's burial expenses. The claim for reimbursement of his burial expenses must be filed with the VA within two years of the veteran's burial. His family should contact the nearest VA office for assistance in obtaining this burial allowance.

Q. – I was recently separated from active duty after three years of service. However, I now belong to an Organized Reserve unit which trains two days each month and two weeks each summer. Will this Reserve service increase my education and training benefits or add to the time in which I can use my G.I. Bill home loan entitlement?

A. – No. The Post-Korean G.I. Bill, which grants veterans such as you with active duty after Jan. 31, 1955 both education and training and home loan benefits, excludes Reserve training from this program.

However, you are already entitled to the maximum of 36 months of education and training benefits by virtue of your three years of active duty. You must complete this training within eight years after leaving active duty. And you have 20 years from the date of your separation from military service to use your G.I. Bill home loan entitlement.

Any time you have a question about any of your veteran benefits, check with your nearest Veterans Administration office for the answer and assistance.

FLOYD PHILOSOPHER Works On Plan To Strike Against Strikes

Editor's note: The Floyd Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm takes a minor look at the tax situation this week, more or less.

Dear editar:

I don't know that this is very important, but there are so many starkly important things staring us in the face from one side of the world to the other these days that when a man runs across an unimportant one he ought to grab hold of it. There aren't too many of them left.

At any rate, I read an article on an inside page of a newspaper last night about a motorist in England who refused to pay a 12-cent toll to cross a bridge becuase, he said, the tax was imposed 900 years ago by King Canute and couldn't possibly apply to a modern automobile. Despite the fact that since the year 1023 people have continued to pay the tax, he said, 900 years is long enough and he refused to pay. Of course they took him to court and made him pay anyway.

Clearly that man doesn't know the first thing about taxation.

He should have been grateful that King Canute thought up the idea of charging him only for crossing the bridge. Had Canute been on the ball he would have taxed a man to come onto the bridge, then taxed him an equal amount to get off the other end. Have you got time to figure up how much tax money England would have brought in during the past 900 years if that bridge tax had been 24 cents instead of 12? Probably could have made enough to have left the tax off of tea and saved us the trouble of holding Presidential elections.

Another thing that man doesn't know about taxation is that a tax's age has nothing to do with it. The longer ago a tax was thought up, the more used to it people become and the easier it is to collect. The easiest tax to collect is one that was thought up and put into effect before you were born. If we're smart we'll be figuring out some taxes now to go into effect just before the next generation arrives.

The fact that King Canute may have told his people that bridge tax was just a temporary measure till England got on its feet, has nothing to do with it.

Any man who has studied the matter knows that there's nothing more temporary than a permanent wave or more permanent than a temporary tax.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Hogs Top Market For Grain Sorghum

COLLEGE STATION – Grain sorghum marketed on the hoof could be the answer for both grain and swine producers in Texas, Dr. Donald B. Hudman, Extension swine specialist with Texas A&M University, says.

According to tests conducted at the Stiles Foundation Farm near Thrall, grain sorghum fed to market hogs netted twice as much as grain sold at harvest-time in the area. On the market, grain was valued at about $2 per hundred pounds, but the hogs returned about $4 per hundred.

In the nursery unit, pigs from four to five weeks of age raised to 75 pounds, consumed about two pounds of feed per pound of gain. Hogs from 75 pounds to finishing, about 210 pounds, consumed approximately three and one-half pounds of feed per pound of gain.

The herd average at the Stiles Farm was approximately 334 pounds of feed per 100 pounds of gain, including sows and boars.

In the tests, 196 sows have farrowed 2,077 pigs, but more important, says Hudman, is the number of pigs per litter - 10.6. At 35 days of age the litters averaged 9.4 pigs, or about 2 pigs per litter more than the national or state average.

The term "mortgage lifter" could once again be applied to hog raising in Texas if producers follow good production practices, says the specialist.

Market hogs should weigh approximately 200 pounds at 154 days of age for optimum economic production.

A desirable product must be marketed by the hog raiser and it should be one which the consumer wants and demands. About 90 percent of the market hogs should grade "Number One."

"Today, Texas producers must shoot for the meat-type hog with a loin-eye area of about four and one-quarter inches. An even better indication of the amount of meat a hog is carrying is the back-fat-probe – an ideal hog is one with a back-fat measurement of 1.4 inches or less," Hudman says.
