Mexican Airlines Airplane In Crash

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (UPI) —A Mexican airlines plane with 45 persons aboard—including 14 Americans—crashed atop San Augustin Mountain 12 miles from Guadalajara today. There was no sign of life at the scene.

Apparently there were no survivors among the 38 passengers and seven crew members on the Aeronaves de Mexico Constellation that was on a flight from Tijuana to Mexico City by way of Guadalajara when it vanished Monday night.

Searchers found the wreckage smashed against the 8,000-foot-high mountain at daylight. Rescue parties were dispatched immediately to the almost-inaccessible summit.

The plane landed here from Tijuana, discharged some passengers, took on others, and took off in a heavy rainstorm for the capital at 11:07 p.m. c.d.t. The pilot checked in routinely at 11:17 p.m. c.d.t., but after that there was nothing but silence.

Rescue workers said the plane apparently hit the mountaintop shortly afterward. While the mountain is 8,000 feet high, Guadalajara itself is 5,000 feet above sea level—making the crash scene only 3,000 feet above ground level.

The U.S. consul at Guadalajara said 14 Americans were aboard.

Among them were said to be two scientists from the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla, Calif.—Townsend Cromwell and William Shinada. They are members of the Inter-American Tuna Commission and boarded the plane Monday at Tijuana, according to San Diego travel agent John Hjorth.

Also said to be aboard was Alfredo Gayou, U.S. representative of the airline.

The pilot was listed as Capt. Alfonso Ceana, 47, of Mexico City. The co-pilot was Capt. Robert Herrera, 47, of Mexico City.

GM Ups Share Of Production

DETROIT (UPI)—General Motors increased its share of auto production in May but total production of GM, Ford and Chrysler was more than 30 per cent under car-truck building in May of 1957.

GM built 215,754 cars and trucks in its U.S. plants in May, compared with 269,762 a year earlier. For the first five months of this year, GM production is 1,199,124 compared with 1,509,059 last year.

Ford production in May was 111,358 cars and trucks, compared with 192,432 in May, 1957. For the first five months this year, Ford has built 607,262 units compared with 1,023,229 last year.

Chrysler May production was 56,411, down from 129,396 last year. In the first five months this year, Chrysler built 294,594 cars and trucks, compared with 643,631 last year.

Chevrolet, with 601,127 units built so far, and Cadillac, with 24,445, came closest to their output of 1957. But none of the big three car makers is ahead of last year in production.

Foundation Gets Gift For Home

The signatures of William and Jewel Castleberry went on a deed Monday in Attorney Arthur M. Teed's office, giving the Top O' Texas Foundation title to ten acres of land west of Highland General Hospital.

The Foundation, with Teed as chairman, seeks to build a convalescent home in Pampa which will comfortably house senior citizens.

Teed states that the 20-acre building site given by Foundation Founder E. G. Barrett will be sold to further the Building Fund.

The new site is located one-quarter mile west of the Hospital, adjoining the Community Hotel property.

The Board of Directors views the home as a modern building with an adequate nursing staff and beds for 50 or more.

Five Cases Are Handled In Court

Three charges of driving while intoxicated, one of sale of liquor on Sunday and one swindling with a worthless check were filed in County Attorney Don Cain's office yesterday.

Charges of driving while intoxicated were filed against Nall Fernando Parsons of Oklahoma City, Okla., and he entered a plea of guilty in Gray County court and was fined $125 and costs with three days in jail.

Carl James Sivils of Pampa entered a plea of not guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated and his bond was set at $500.

Cecil W. Adams, 616 N. Roberts, entered a plea of not guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated and his bond was set at $500.

Charges of Sale of Liquor on Sunday was filed against Jimmie Sears, 731 South Gray, and he entered a plea of guilty and was assessed a $100 fine and court costs.

L. E. Thrush of Lubbock entered a plea of guilty to charges of swindling with a worthless check and was assessed a $5 fine and costs and made restitution for the check. He gave the check, for $25.49, on August 23, 1957, to the Bennett Truck Stop of Pampa.

Cuban Army In Drive

HAVANA (UPI)—The army has launched an "all-out push" against rebels entrenched in the Maestra Mountains, seeking to drive them into the sea, it was reported today.

Private sources said 8,000 to 11,000 troops attacked last Sunday along an 80-mile front between Manzanillo and Santiago. They reported fierce fighting and said casualties have been heavy on both sides.

A victorious advance by the army would drive the rebels to Oriente Province's south coast. Naval patrols along the coast have been reinforced to block rebel attempts to escape by sea, the sources said.

The rebel radio, back on the air after nearly two months' silence, said Monday that insurgent leader Fidel Castro has "nearly 5,000 men" holed up in the mountains—about 2½ times the figure estimated by observers in Havana.

In Havana, the Senate approved President Fulgencio Batista's request for a 45-day extension of the current state of emergency in Cuba. The House will meet soon to consider the measure.

Man In Visit To Two Stars

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—DeVon Smith, 32, already has been to at least two stars and plans to visit several planets, suns, moons and asteroids.

Smith, from Los Angeles, Calif., passed through New Orleans today. He's on an "outer space" hitchhiking tour to American cities which bear such names as Jupiter, Star, Sun and Earth.

Mercury, Tex., was his first target and he hit last Thursday. Monday he blasted off for Star, La., and Star, Miss. Now he plans to go to Jupiter (Fla.), Pluto (W.Va.), Neptune (N.J.), Mars (Pa.), Ceres (N.Y.), Vesta (Minn.), Venus (Neb.) and several other astronomical locations.

He skipped Star, Tex., last week because of bad weather, Smith said.

But he'll get back to Earth (Tex.) later in the tour and rest up for a week or so after thumbing about 12,000 miles.

Woman Strong In Talkathon

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (UPI)—A Fayetteville secretary, shooting for $1,000 in prizes, was still going strong early today in her attempt to set a new national talking record.

And if Mrs. Lois Grant, 27, failed in her attempt, six other local women were waiting for a crack at the jackpot of prizes.

At 12:30 a.m., Mrs. Grant had passed the 14-hour mark and a spokesman for the television dealer who is promoting the contest said her voice "is holding up fine. She's still going strong and she promises she'll still be here and still talking in the morning."

Mrs. Grant began her assault on the record at 11:30 a.m. e.d.t. Monday. The present record for talking by a woman is believed to be 26½ hours.

Ike Planning To Press For Talks

United Press International
By WILLIAM GALBRAITH

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower plans to press Russia to begin technical talks June 24 on ways to police a future nuclear test ban, informed sources said today.

Eisenhower will suggest the date for start of the discussions in a new letter to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev this week. It must be checked first with Britain, France and other North Atlantic allies.

The President and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles went over a proposed note to Khrushchev during an hour-long conference Monday. Afterwards Dulles expressed "reasonable" optimism the talks would begin this month.

Other sources said the United States plans to suggest June 24 as the starting date. Russia has indicated it is ready to begin by then.

Only one possible hitch appeared in sight and that seemed slim. It involves location of the talks. Eisenhower suggested they be held in Geneva. Khrushchev said he would prefer Moscow.

Informed sources indicated the United States would hold out for Geneva on the ground that neutral territory might be more conducive to successful discussions.

The United States is agreeable to Khrushchev's latest suggestion Czechoslovakia and India be included in the talks. The West currently plans to limit its side to technical experts from this country, Britain and France.

Blakely Sees Labor Racketeering

PARIS, Tex., (UPI)— Senatorial Candidate William A. Blakley charged Monday out-of-state labor racketeers are seeking to control Texas labor and align it with such groups as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

Blakley told a Lamar County rally "I think it would be a good thing for the working man as well as others to take a look at this situation in which they are aligned with the (NAACP) and its purpose, and then compare that with the proper use of labor relations."

Blakley said "pressure groups directed by outside labor racketeers who seek to control the laboring people of this state are doing so purely to accomplish a political purpose."

The Dallas multi-millionaire also expressed opposition to federal aid to education.

He said "I am now, and will be, against any federal aid to our educational system. If they are going to pick up the bill, they will tell you what to teach."

Blakley, who opened a 20-county East Texas swing Monday, made hand-shaking visits at Farmersville, Greenville, Sulphur Springs, Commerce and Cooper.

Today, he was scheduled to visit Clarksville, Bogata, Mount Vernon, Pittsburg, Gilmer, Gladewater, Mineola, Grand Saline and Wills Point.

Economic Experts Differ On Slump

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Government economic experts are far from unanimous on the likelihood of the recession hitting bottom this month.

The administration's current public position is that the economic downturn is losing most of its steam and that conditions will remain essentially at present levels until late summer or early fall when signs of a pickup can be expected.

This can be backed up by citing economic indicators showing signs of improvement. The steel industry is picking up noticeably. New housing is moving ahead strongly. Unemployment will show some decrease in figures that will be released this month for May.

There are top economic officials of the government, however, who do not believe plus factors in the economy come anywhere near to outweighing the minus factors.

They point to the continued downturn in business investment for new plants and equipment; the sharp April drop in machine tool orders; unstable labor-management relations in the automobile industry; lower export trade; and the fact that late spring department store sales have not shown the vigor of recent years.

There still is an undercurrent of demand — some from industry, more from labor—for a quick tax cut despite the administration's stand to the contrary. Some segments of industry and labor can be expected to revive their tax cut demands in a few weeks after Congress has acted on the extension of excise and corporate rates.

One top federal official whose job it is to keep his fingers on the pulse of the economy told United Press International:

"I don't think any person, however well informed, can argue against the fact of future economic recovery. The question of timing, on the other hand, is quite open to discussion."

Commissioners Pay City Bills

Pampa City Commissioners paid monthly bills in their meeting this morning.

The commissioners also approved payment of $16,801.55 to Foran Construction company for paving work and had the first reading of Ordinance 499. This ordinance admits another part of the Soan addition into the city limits.

The next meeting of the commission will be on Friday 13.

Army Fires Missile

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — Army troops Monday night staged the first successful inland firing of the Redstone missile at White Sands Proving Ground, N.N., the Department of the Army announced today.

The Army said members of the 40th Field Artillery missile group fired the 62-foot missile from a lightweight tower under tactical conditions.

"Other than for the elementary and safety precautions provided by the missile range, the troops were on their own," the announcement said.

Violence Erupts In Lebanon, 8-10 Dead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — At least eight persons were reported killed and 10 wounded in a sudden eruption of violence Monday in widely - scattered areas of crisis-gripped Lebanon.

On the political front there was no sign of a break in the stalemate between pro-Western President Camille Chamoun and the opposition forces.

Both sides appeared to be marking time until Lebanon's charges of "massive interference" by the United Arab Republic are considered by the Arab League.

Navy Bomber Blows Up In Flight Monday

SEVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—A huge twin-jet Navy bomber exploded in flight Monday, sending debris from the blast falling over a large portion of this north Florida community. One man was killed, two houses were destroyed, and a church was heavily damaged.

Two of three crewmen bailed out to safety.

Navy authorities at Sanford, Fla., said the A3D Skywarrior apparently separated into two sections after the blast. The engine section plummeted into two sections after the blast. The engine section plummeted to the ground in a Negro district and the tail section fell about 100 feet from two houses which burst into flames and were destroyed.

Lt. Jake Raulerson of the Highway Patrol, who was on the scene, said the pilot's body was found in the cockpit about 100 feet from some Negro residences.

The pilot was identified as Lt. Cmdr. Robert W. Ramey, 34, of Lock Arbor, Fla.

Raymond M. Hite Jr., AO-1, 34, bombardier-navigator, was treated at Deland Hospital and released. The other survivor, Daniel N. Gerbis, AT-1, 30, Chicago, was flown uninjured to his home base by helcopter.

Raulerson said the burned homes were vacant at the time of the crash.

Algerian Commander Summoned To Paris

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
United Press International

PARIS (UPI) — Gen. Charles de Gaulle took over greater absolute power today than any other Frenchman in recent history, under a self-imposed mandate to restore peace in Algeria and put France on its feet in six months.

In that time, he will rule without interference from Parliament.

No sooner had the French upper house put final approval this morning on the emergency powers De Gaulle demanded as the price of his return to power than he summoned the French supreme commander in Algeria to Paris for a military briefing.

Gen. Raoul Salan, accompanied by two aides, arrived in Paris at noon for the meeting.

De Gaulle himself is scheduled to visit Algeria Wednesday for a showdown meeting in which he is expected to tell rebellious army leaders and French settlers that the central government in Paris once more is in command.

Rams Bill Through

De Gaulle rammed the last of his special powers bills through a reluctant Chamber of Deputies shortly after midnight and it went to the upper house Council of the Republic at 9:30 a.m. (3:30 a.m. c.d.t.). The upper house passed it 256-30.

The austere, 67-year-old former Free French leader smashed a threatened revolt against him in the National Assembly by telling the deputies bluntly that he would resign if they failed to give him the powers he demanded to restore French political and economic stability at home and overseas.

The revolt collapsed immediately thereafter.

The bills become law as quickly as they can be published in the official journal today or Wednesday.

De Gaulle already had taken over the duties of the outgoing government of Premier Pierre Pflimlin and usual ceremonies were dispensed with.

General Moves In

Instead De Gaulle simply took over Pflimlin's office in the age-darkened 200 - year - left - bank mansion and shortly before noon—in the words of an aide—"began governing France."

His first move was to summon Socialist Robert Lacoste, minister-resident in Algeria for the past two years. Lacoste arrived on the double.

It was understood De Gaulle was drawing up his final cabinet list before leaving for Algeria.

Crusader III In First Test Flight

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—The Crusader III, a new Navy all-weather "push button" fighter plane, made its first flight here Monday, three months ahead of contract schedule.

Chief test pilot John Konrad rocketed Chance Vought Aircraft's shark-like interceptor over this desert base in its initial 48-minute test. Security restrictions prevented release of information on performance figures, but the new fighter was described as capable of combat at more than twice the speed of sound—more than 1,500 miles an hour—and performing "space-edge" duty above 95 per cent of the earth's atmosphere.

Charge Of Murder Filed In Killing

Gray county sheriff's office authorities were still investigating the fatal shooting of Isaac I. Butcher of Lefors today and are having a hard time finding an eyewitness and a motive for the shooting.

G. W. McInturf of Pampa, being held in Gray County jail on a charge of murder with malice aforethought, has admitted shooting Butcher, 43, three times with a .22 caliber rifle Sunday. He gives no reason for the shooting other than he (Butcher) was "trying to take over my home."

McInturf was denied bond by Justice of the Peace Bill Graham yesterday. He served about five months in the state penitentiary for hog stealing, two years ago.

District Attorney Bill Waters said today that it would be hard to build a case against McInturf since no eye-witness can be found.

McInturf shot Butcher in his (McInturf's) home Sunday night and without witnesses it will be hard to prove just exactly what happened prior to the shooting and why it happened, Waters said.

McInturf is being held in Gray County jail pending action by the Grand Jury, which will convene on June 9.

Funeral plans for Mr. Butcher have been changed from Pampa to Howell, Okla.

The body was taken from the Duenkel - Carmichael Funeral Home, where arrangements were pending, to Howell, where services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

Burial will be in Shady Point, Okla.

Man Fined On Driving Charge

Paul Melvin Sutton, 1241 S. Wilcox, entered a plea of guilty in Gray County Court this morning to charges of driving while intoxicated. He was fined $100 and costs and given three days in jail.

Sutton was arrested by Pampa Highway Patrol officers yesterday 13½ miles south of Pampa. He had run his car off in a ditch and was taken to Highland hospital with a cut on his head.

Czechs Hijack Plane, Fly To Freedom

VIENNA (UPI) — Three Czechs hijacked a chartered plane over Communist-dominated Czechoslovakia Monday and forced the pilot to fly them across the Iron Curtain to freedom in Austria.

The three said they chartered the twin-engined plane at the Central Moravian airport on Olmuetz in Czechoslovakia. When they were airborne, one at gunpoint ordered the pilot to alter his course and head for Aspern, Austria.

Either Way It'll Cost In The End

PARIS (UPI) — Law student Francois Pietri found out that it's cheaper to shout "Long live De Gaulle" than "Down with De Gaulle."

Petri was fined the equivalent of $15 in a Paris court Monday for participating in a forbidden demonstration on the Champs Elysees and shouting "Long live De Gaulle."

His only consolation was the fact that 11 demonstrators, haled into the same court for shouting "Down with De Gaulle" were fined the equivalent of $25 apiece.

Senate Fight Shaping Over Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A major Senate fight was taking shape today over efforts by both Republicans and Democrats to water down a foreign aid bill calling for a $3,713,000,000 authorization.

The bill under debate was sent to the Senate by its Foreign Relations Committee and calls for 229 million dollars less than the amount originally requested by President Eisenhower. But it is 110 million dollars more than voted by the House.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) said he would propose a series of amendments designed to "cut back considerably" the authorization. One of the biggest fights was taking form over an amendment by Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) to knock out a provision authorizing the President to give aid to any Soviet satellite if he found it in the U.S. interest.

Debate on the foreign aid bill—which authorizes funds for another 12 months of economic, military and technical assistance starting July 1 — began Monday.

Study Labor Reforms

Legislation leading to some tax relief for small business firms seemed to be the object of a House Ways and Means Committee which met today. Prospects were considered good for enactment of such a program before Congress adjourns.

Despite their stand against general tax cuts, both the Administration and Democratic leaders were pledged to support some program of special tax relief for small businesses.

A Senate Labor subcommittee started closed-door sessions today to act on proposed labor union reforms with most members considering themselves committed to send a bill to the Senate by next Tuesday.

Republicans on the Senate Labor Committee were preparing to carry to the floor their plea for a tougher labor reform bill than they expect the Democratic majority to approve.

Elsewhere in committies today, the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee continued hearings on a long-range farm program. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee scheduled testimony from C. Burke Elbrick, assistant secretary of state, on U.S. policies in Europe.

A House Foreign Affairs subcommittee started hearings on the apparent deterioration of U.S. relations with Latin America. R R. Rubottom Jr., assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, was slated to testify as the initial witness.

The House met at noon on a private calendar and defense appropriations.

Major developments in Congress late Monday:

Space: The House passed and sent to the Senate a bill creating a powerful civilian National Ateonautics and Space Administration. It would direct all government space programs except those primarily military. The bill passed by voice vote with no audible objections. Shortly before, the House unanimously passed a concurrent resolution calling on the United States to seek an international agreement reserving space for peaceful uses.

Regulatory agencies: The special House subcommittee investigating federal regulatory agencies recessed until Thursday when it will hold hearings in Boston on its investigation of the award of Boston television Channel 5. A subcommittee counsel said documents bearing on letters and phone calls to Federal Communications Commission members indicated there was a "pattern" of out-of-court representation in nearly every important TV channel contest the subcommittee has so far scrutinized.

Government pay: The House approved by voice vote a bill giving retroactive 10 per cent pay raises to more than one million federal government workers. It would cost 542 million dollars a year and, in addition, the workers would collect more than 200 million dollars in pay retroactive to Jan. 1. A Senate version provides for a 7½ per cent wage hike, and the question now goes into conference committee to be threshed out.

Dominican Republic: Rep. Charles O. Porter (D-Ore.) repeated his demand for a congressional investigation of the March 1956 disappearance of Prof. Jesus de Galindez, 40-year-old Basque exile and former Columbia University professor, who was an outspoken critic of Dominican dictator Rafael L. Trujillo. Porter branded as "fantastic" a report clearning Trujillo of any part in the unsolved disappearance.

Negotiations With Reds On Ban Due

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. McCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst

It looks as if negotiations with Soviet Russia for a possible ban on nuclear weapons tests may be started before this month is over.

A letter from Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev to President Eisenhower seems to leave the way for clear for the opening of the test ban negotiations.

At the same time, negotiations for a later "summit" conference of heads of governments on cold war issues are proceeding secretly in Moscow.

Eisenhower told Khrushchev on May 24 that he was ready to start technical talks on the test ban within three weeks after receiving word that the Soviet government was agreeable.

Ready to Start

The President suggested that the experts who would engage in the talks make a progress report within 30 days after the start of their meeting and make a final report within 60 days or as soon thereafter as possible.

Khrushchev replied Saturday that he was ready to start the talks within three weeks, as Eisenhower suggested. But he proposed that the final report be made within three or four weeks instead of within 60 days.

As regards the details of the talks, Eisenhower suggested that they be held in Geneva, Switzerland, and that experts of the United States, Britain, France and possibly other countries which have means of detecting nuclear weapons tests be included.

Khrushchev said that Geneva would be a suitable meeting place but that he preferred Moscow.

He said he would like Poland and Czechoslovakia, and India and possibly some other countries, to be represented.

It Was Expected

This is what Eisenhower had expected. He is most likely to propose that Japan, which is uncomfortably in the middle between Russian tests in Siberia and American tests in the Pacific, be included.

Presumably, the next step may be for Eisenhower to suggest firm date for the start of the meeting and either to accept Moscow as the meeting place or to ask again that it be Geneva.

There is no guarantee that expert talks will result in an agreement to end the nuclear weapons tests.

Regarding the summit negotiations, the United States, British and French ambassadors in Moscow have conferred separately with Soviet foreign minister Andrei A. Gromyko on this question within the last week.

There is no indication of the progress being made, if any, in these talks.

Scouts In Camp At Kiowa

Fourteen Scout Troops of the Adobe Walls Council pitched their tents in the cottonwood grove at Camp Kiowa Sunday. For a week they will live like Scouts.

Boys from Groom, White Deer, Pantex and Miami are among the energetic Scouts. The Troops have scheduled hours in the axe yard, archery range and other areas of the Scout Camp. In the axe yard they sharpen knives and axes, split tent stakes and learn to care for their tools.

Representatives of the Health and Safety Committee, Dr. Joe Gates and Dr. G. W. Scott, made the final medical check before the opening Sunday.

Some of the Troops are Troop 11 of Groom with Joe Blakeney as leader, 81, White Deer, Paul Buchanan; 83, Pantex, Frank Fincher, and 79, Miami, Loran Grantham.

Tough To Describe Medium Quality TV Shows By Critic

United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—One of the toughest things about being a TV critic is describing shows of medium quality in new ways.

So far this season I've used up mildly ingratiating, fairly pleasing, moderately compelling, tolerably arresting and passably interesting. I've also used up other mildies like in-between, average, so-so, respectable, admissible, 50-50, lukewarm and neutral.

Frankly, I've run out. And so, all I can say about Monday night's CBS-TV "Studio One" medium quality offering, "Ticket to Tahiti," is that it was mildly ingratiating, fairly pleasing, moderately compelling, tolerably arresting and passably interesting. It was also inbetween, average, so-so, respectable, admissible, 50-50, lukewarm and neutral.

It had some plusses—a mildly ingratiating performance by Franchot Tone, a fairly pleasing one by James MacArthur, a moderately compelling one by Kim Hunter and a tolerably arresting one by Olive Sturgess.

It also had the bones of a passably interesting plot: The father who has reached the middle of the journey and who suspects his blood is not merely tired, but asleep, and who yearns to shuck his responsibilities and sail for Tahiti or Chavez Ravine or some remote spot like that there; the son, young, married, in debt, restless, spoiled, who is saddled with a young wife who also is married, in debt, restless etc.

But its neatly packaged little ending in which father and son and son's wife and father's girl friend all congealed in one grand and gooey gob of togetherness was absurd, what is sometimes called "Deus ex Machina," which I might freely translate as "Gob (sic) Out of a Machine," but I wouldn't dare.

Summing it all up, I would say "Ticket to Tahiti" was one of those in-between efforts, average, so-so ... aw, you finish it yourself.

Short Shots: Charles Boyer got mixed up in a half-hour drooper, "The Clock Strikes 12," on NBC-TV's "Alcoa Theatre" Monday night—better he should have stood in the Casbah ... if you must watch Westerns, and why you must I don't know, NBC-TV's "Restless Gun" is as, uh, restless as any — Monday night's effort was a cut above the average oater.

Arthur Godfrey's CBS-TV "Talent Scouts" had three performers of quality Monday night, and for a change, I thought his audience showed good sense in its choice of the winner—singer Leslie Scott.

Auto makers turned out 349,474 cars last month or 10.4 per cent more than April. However, it was the smallest May since 1948. Production this week will be held down by continued efforts to reduce dealer stocks of new cars, now estimated at 750,000 units.

The Commerce Department reported that sales by merchant wholesalers in April were 4 per cent over March but 6 per cent below April, 1957. Cumulative merchant wholesale activity for the first four months of this year was 9 per cent below the same period of 1957.

Rays From Luminous Dials Being Studied

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The present ho-hum scientific attitude toward the luminous watch or clock dial as a potential threat to future generations of people is not justified, because the question has not been finally settled.

That is the opinion of a scientist who specializes in what radiation from X-rays, radium, natural "background" radiation from cosmic rays, and, of course, from the "fall-out" of atomic and hydrogen bombs do to human bodies, especially their reproductive chemistry.

Dials shine in the dark because they are touched up with radium. The scientific question is: Does such a tiny amount of radium radiate enough gamma rays to mess up the reproductive chemistry ot the person wearing the watch?

Finds Tiny Amount

The luminous dial question was dealt with by Dr. W. F. Libby, member of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, and by the British Medical Research Council. Libby's investigation found that the continuous gamma radiation of a watch increased the natural "background" radiation to which the wearer was subjected anyway, by only 5 per cent. The British investigator put the amount much lower—at about 1 per cent.

Libby suggested that the radium on a watch dial was one microcurie, which is an extremely tiny amount, but he doubted that the average watch dial had even that much. The British investigators figured that the average dial had only one-fifth of a microcurie.

The question now has been reopened by Dr. J. L. Haybittle of the Radiotherapeutic Center of Cemabridge, England. He measured, more from curiosity than for any other reason, the gamma rays emitted by a "modern shockproof, self-winding watch," and found they added up to 2.2 microcuries of radium. Thereupon he measured the gamma rays from the watches of eight other scientists in his laboratories and found the amounts of radium on their dials ranged from one-tenth of one microcurie to one and two-tenths microcuries.

Should Be Reduced

The low official British figure "may be substantially correct," he said in a report to the technical journal, "Nature," but "there exist watches containing at least 10 times this average amount of radium." Since one-fifth of a microcurie or even less will make a dial shine in the dark, then why should watch-makers use any more? he asked.

In itself even the largest amount would cause no scientific concern if this were not the atomic age. But it is, and so all gamma radiation which reaches the reproductive glands of people of the reproductive ages, no matter the source, should be reduced to the absolute minimum, he said.

Consumer bank financing for autos and major appliances is "under the greatest pressures," but the over-all installment credit picture is "normal and not alarming," the American Bankers Assn. reported. 'Music Bingo' Is Dreary Little TV Program Demonstration

(Television In Review)
By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Music Bingo," a show which made its debut last Thursday on NBC-TV, is a dreary little demonstration of the bankruptcy in TV programming.

"Music Bingo" may become a hit show. I doubt it, but it may. It does contain one of those win-at-home gimmicks and that seems to be all that's needed nowadays to notch a rating.

But I don't care if it does notch a rating. I don't care if it does become a hit. I don't care if it draws a million postcards a week. I don't care because the show is a bore, bore, bore.

What's worse, "Music Bingo" is not even an original bore. Its a second-hand, shopworn tattered, faded, tired, strained, patched, shabby, threadbare fourth-day-hash of a bore. Its entire format is merely a combination of bingo plus CBS-TV's "Name That Tune."

Ah! Summer TV

Which brings us to summer TV, an expanse that yawns before us with all the allure of the Gibi Desert. The broadcasters argue that audiences fall off in the summer, that costs must be cut, that reruns and cheapie quizzes are the only way out.

But the argument is nonsense. Its a flimsy excuse for lack of imagination and enterprise. There is no rigid correlation between cost and quality.

Accepting the need for low cost shows in the summer, why not a little inventiveness in the programming area?

Why not a low cost drama show that would use the young talent at the cluster of drama schools in Manhattan like Actors Studio, Herbert Berghof's, Stella Adler's, with each school responsible for, say, a production a month?

Why no attempt to bring in kinescopes and films of the best TV shows from other countries?

Why Not "Bests"?

Why not propless dramatic readings in the style of such Broadway successes as "Don Juan In Hell" and "John Brown's Body" as spectaculars?

Why not a 13-week "Best of NBC-TV" or "Best of Cbs-TV" that would slot kinescopes from the best moments of Berle, Gleason, Caesar etc?

Why no experiments with jazz groups, dance groups? Why no Showcase for young comics and young comedy writers?

Why no utilization of the dozens of folk song festivals, music festivals, and drama pageants that so many of this nation's communities present each summer?

Why? I dunno. But I have one further suggestion: Why doesn't everybody just turn off his set and sit out in the sun for the rest of the summer?

Look Back: Wayne and Shuster's Shakespearean baseball skit on Sunday night's CBS-TV "Ed Sullivan Show" was comedy of a high order — one of the highspots of the season. "Baseball Corner," which replaced Sid Caesar on ABC-TV Sunday night, was a mildly diverting low pressure talk klatsch. Shari Lewis, a fugitive from early morning TV, was a charming addition to the NBC-TV "Steve Allen Show".

Re-Run Division: "Gerald McBoing Boin," a show I dig, made a welcome return to CBS-TV on Friday evening. "Noah's Ark," back again on NBC-TV Sunday night for a second try is still a cornball show, but compared to most of the drivel scheduled for TV this summer, it's almost palatable. CBS-TV brought "The Search" back Sunday and its study of stuttering was, I thought, a fairly interesting go-around.

Piano talent aside, I found Van Cliburn on the CBS-TV "Person to Person" show Friday night a pretty irritating young man in his manner — priggish and affected. Dinah Shore was badly advised in trying to duet with Gospel Singer Mahalia Jackson on NBC-TV Sunday night — Miss Jackson's full throated and easy flowing voice just oblitereated Miss Shore.

The Channel Swim: Victor Borge signed a three-year deal with an auto sponsor for one TV show a year at a reported $225,000 per show — CBS-TV looks like the network. Tom Kennedy got the emcee job on NBC-TV's "The Big Game," which replaces "Truth or Consequences" on June 13. Jody McCrea and Ann Williams have replaced Roddy McDowell and Janice Rule in this Wednesday's "Kraft Theatre" drama, "Last of the Belles". "Confession," a show that originates in Dallas, is the replacement for ABC-TVs "Make Me Laugh" starting June 19. Pat Boone receives his B.S. magna cum laude Tuesday from Columbia University — he wound up with an A-minus average.

Judge Has Opinion On Teen Driving

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "A boy or girl of 16 is too young to be turned loose with a car at night."

That is not the offhand opinion of a grouchy parent. It is the studied conviction of a famous juvenile court jurist, Judge Alfred D. Noyes, who has tried more than 20,000 cases involving teenagers.

Judge Noyes presides over the juvenile court in Montgomery County, Maryland, a prosperous and heavily-populated suburb of Washington. He is a white-haired, soft-spoken man who likes young people. He emphatically does not share the notion that today's teenagers are going to hell in a hack.

"We ought to keep this juvenile delinquency problem in perspective," he said. "Only about 2 per cent of our young people get into serious trouble with the law. The really notewrothy thing about the present younger generation is that so many of them are making a fine record in spite of all the pressures and temptations to which they are exposed.

Instead of issuing blanket denunciations of modern youth, Judge Noyes said, adults should be trying to identify—and relieve—some of the specific pressures of modern living which cause youngsters to get into jams.

"A good place to start is the driver's license laws," he said.

Most states issue regular driving permits to any youth who has reached his 16th birthday and can pass a comparatively simple test. A few states will license a youth under 18 only with the parents' consent. Several states license 15-year-olds, and South Carolina and Arkansas grant permits to 14-year-olds.

Judge Noyes would like to see every state adopt a "junior permit" law like that which has been in force in New York for the past few years. Under this statute, youths 16 to 18 are restricted to daytime driving. The holder of a junior permit may drive after dark only if an adult is in the car with him.

Judge Noyes agreed that many modern teen-agers know more about the mechanical workings of cars than adults. But he said the ability to take an engine apart does not necessarily imply that a youth also has the maturity, the judgment, the "ability to comprehend the potential danger of a situation," that is necessary for safe driving, particularly at night.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm a woman of 58 and have been the victim of two long engagements, neither of which materialized so I am unmarried. I have been seeing a fine professional man who is 60 and was widowed a year ago. He says he adore me and shows me much respect. He wants to marry me. He is well-to-do, generous and considerate, but I am wondering if that is enough. Don't you think a woman is entitled to more? Thrills, I mean. Thank you.

NOT THRILLED

Dear Not: At 58? Grab him!

DEAR ABBY: I live in a rooming house where there are six other apartments. The landlady gave me a key for my door and I just found out that my key fits everybody else's door and theirs fit mine. She says if I don't like it I can call a locksmith and pay for changing the lock on my door. I don't want to move because this place is handy to my work. Can I force her to give me the privacy and security I am paying for?

NO PRIVACY

Dear No: You can't FORCE her to do anything. She is being very petty but if you like your apartment, better take her suggestion.

DEAR ABBY: My girl and I are going steady and intend to be married in about a year. I've always addressed her parents as "Mr. and Mrs. So and So." She never addressed my parents as anything, but all of a sudden I noticed she started calling my mother "MELLIE" and my father "BILL." They almost choked but didn't say anything. Is this proper? If it isn't, do you think I ought to correct her and if so how?

JIM

Dear Jim: It is proper only if the parents don't object. (Some rather enjoy it!) However, if yours t chokges tyou coue to ask y almost choked, I suggest you cough up the courage to ask your young lady to address your parents as "Mr. and Mrs. So and So."

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are expecting a child in about four months, however we cannot support ourselves, let alone another child. Although we would like to keep the child we know it would be much better to put it out for adoption. I feel badly about having to write such a letter but we feel that trying to support another child would be unfair to the four we already have. Can you put me in touch with an honest adoption agency who would place our baby in a good home?

REALISTIC PARENTS

Dear Realistic: It is inconceivable to me that parents would willingly give up their own child for this reason but if you call your local Community Chest, Family Service or County Welfare Association, they will place your baby in a good home.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 64 years old but he keeps getting younger if you know what I mean. He walks to work every morning and stops by a lady's house for breakfast because he says he likes her biscuits. My friends tell me not to worry because he is an old man and this woman wouldn't be bothered wit him, but they don't know my husband! He bought her a pair of slik stockings for Mothers' Day and she isn't his mother. What should I do about this?

MAD

Dear Mad: There's no fool like an old fool and your husband is behaving like one. Get the lady's recipe and break up the Breakfast Club.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN TROUBLE:" I will keep your cret forever—but you can't. Try the sack dress and confer with the man in the case.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

When Mart got home from school it was raining hard. Accordingly his mother told him to put on dry shoes and rubbers before going over to a friend's house. He ignored her.

So to make obedience easier for him, she got his old shoes and rubbers herself. But when she anxiously urged them on him again, he flatly refused.

Then in a flash of anger, she said, "All right, keep your feet wet—and get yourself pneumonia!"

Her anger was only partly caused by Mart's refusal to let her protect him against illness. Mostly it was caused by his refusal to let her protect herself against it—against the outlay of sleepless nights, extra work and worry required of her when Mart is sick.

This self-interested anger seems perfectly natural to me. No sensible person enjoys the strain of nursing children through illness.

The trouble is, it doesn't seem natural to Mart's mother.

Like other overprotective parents, she'd be ashamed to acknowledge any interest in her own safety, and feels obligued to pretend she struggled to secure Mart's health only for his sake, never for her own.

But this denial of self-interest doesn't destroy it. All it does is to infuse her interest in Mart's safety with forbidden anxiety over her own — and compel her to pursue him with pleas to relieve her of it.

If she accepted ineterest in her own safety as natural instead of shameful, she could protect it herself instead of begging Mart to protect it for her. She could say unhesitatingly, "All right — if you want to keep your wet feet, keep them here in this warm house instead of taking them over to Brownie's."

But so long as we are obliged to pretend no personal interest in keeping him well, we'll have to hover over him with appeals to keep himself well. And when he rejects them, we experience the same anger we feel when anyone denies us what we have a right to.

The root problem of the overprotective parent is his fear of asserting any interest in himself.

We all have a personal interest in keeping children reasonably safe. Unfortunately, the virtue of "loving" them has been preached to us so hard that we've got the impression that it's shameful to love ourselves.

And so we have to pretend that our concern for their safety contains no concern for our own.

The weather is at hand for "Dad's Backyard Drive-In" to open the barbecue season. . .if this favorite family "hot - spot" isn't blazing at charcoal heat already.

For the master chef, it means juicy sizzling steaks, tender, crisp hot dogs, smoky ribs smothered in sauce, hickory-sweet chicken that falls apart in your fingers.

"hamburger heaven" at home.

For the tots and teenagers it's

And for the woman of the house, it means time off from her own cooking and more time out of the kitchen.

She can eliminate a lot of extra clean-up work after those Saturday and Sunday night suppers, or luncheons by putting in a supply of disposable paper products that will make the summertime-living even easier. Paper plates, cups, napkins, even spoons and forks that you can use and then throw away are essential and will lighten the washing load.

Napkins are particularly important because, no matter how much care you take, open-air eating is bound to be a bit messy. The larger ones such as the new Kleenex table napkins are especially practical because they're big enough so you can wrap them all the way around a hamburger or hot dog bun, not only to keep them warm but to prevent the hot meat juices from burning your hand.

It's easy to forget that the same fires that barbeuce foods to a tasteful turn also can be severe hazards. But, by taking a few simple precautions before the first trip to the hickory pit, the chef can be sure of a full season of happy and hearty eating.

First of all, be sure to have the basic equipment for proper barbecuing and personal protection. Requirements include a long-handled spatula, a barbecue fork, tongs to pick roasting corn and baked potatoes out of the coals, asbestos gloves or gloves with asbestor palms, and an apron. (Any of these items would make an excellent Father's Day gift for the chef.) Be certain, too, that the handles of your spatulas and forks are of wood, cork or some other non-heat conducting material and that they fit tightly.

Your chef may feel a little foolish the first time he dons an apron, but it will keep fat from splattering the new sport shirt he received as a Father's Day present.

Here are a few safety precautions which all barbeuce chefs should follow: When using paper to lay the fire, ruffle it and anchor it with charcoal so the wind won't blow burning pieces of paper away or up into your eyes; keep children (and adults) wearing fluffy, inflammable clothes well away from the fire; don't set up portable barbecues near garages, sheds, or wooden fences.

Finally, another practical idea is to pour water over the charcoal to extinguish the fire after the food has been cooked. It's safer and the remaining charcoal can be used the next time.

Let a quick splash on hands, arms and face wash away travel cares. Frequent dips into the wash basin in this way ease hotweather discomfort while on the road.

Back Stairs At The White House

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

President Eisenhower's participation in a radio and television broadcast from the White House—even for two minutes—is a complicated procedure.

Considerable behind-the-scenes preparations are required.

Last week when the President dedicated the atomic power plant at Shippingport, Pa., by remote control, he was "on the air" for only two minutes. Another 18 minutes were taken up by rehearsing his part.

Robert Montgomery, the President's special TV adviser, came down from New York for the occasion.

The President used the special broadcast room put in under the North Portico when the White House was renovated during the Truman administration. It was one of the few times he has used the room. For the most part he has used his own office when making televised speeches from the White House.

The President's grandchildren have been using the under-the-portico broadcast studio as a play room.

During last weeks program, a battery-powered small model of a sports car was parked in a corner behind the TV cameras. It was a gift to the children from one of the President's friends. Folded up near it was another gift—collapsible trampolin. Another gift from a friend.

Montgomery, a television producer as well as a veteran movie and television actor, has been supervising the President's televised speeches since early in 1953. He was brought in after presidential aides decided a New York advertising agency was putting too much of a Broadway touch to the President's appearances on television.

Montgomery has considered his main job to be the removal of technical obstacles between the President and the public.

To make the President feel more at ease, the lectern was raised for stand-up speeches.

Because it made the President nervous, the teleprompter was done away with after two trials. The President lost what little confidence he had in the teleprompter when it broke down on him during one of the trials.

For shorter television talks, like the one last week, the President reads from cards with large print well out of camera range. Two sets, one to the President's right and one to his left are used, so that he can shift his head and eyes.

But for long speeches, he reads from pages of a script with big and bigger type. The bigger type is a signal for a relieving break, such as taking off his glasses for a moment.

SWITCHEROO — Can this crummy creature be Dean Martin, slick singer, tuxedoed smoothie and on-the-set clown? Yup. In his new picture, "Rio Bravo," he's facing the greatest challenge of his career. He plays the role of Dude, a broken-down lush of a deputy sheriff who makes a comeback and becomes a hero. There's them as sees an Oscar at the end of that comeback road.

"We've come to collect—the rainbow ended here!"

Prospecting while pondering the fate of Texas' "We're the Biggest" brags if they open the ice-box door in Washington and vote for Alaskan statehood. NOTE: 17 Texas Congressmen have already turned thumbs down on the very idea Suh!

DIAMOND DUST:

Stealing the script from Bill Veeck, Fort Worth's general manager, Harrison P. Wickel, has hit on a way to unseat the fortyish fan from his sofa, cool can, and idiot box.

When the Cats face Tulsa next Monday night, all male bug-eyes will be on an almost forlorn frill who lost out when teevee camera angles were changed and necklines were raised . . . Dagmar.

She ain't promised to field any infield bunts, there's too much frontage for that ,but the balding set can watch for a whoopee-sized show.

Pampa High's hard-hitting hustler, Mike Conway, who was on the bulls-eye of the Harvester hurling corps this spring for Coach Deck Woldt, could do no better than a second team all-district position (that's bad?). But you can bet a blue chip he got top-rating from both Amarillo school coaches.

Conway was named to Sam Pecchia's and Palo Duro's Bobby Scott, "all-opponet teams" this spring. What's more Scott picked Pampa as the club with the "best spirit" to face his Dons this spring. That, gents, is a direct compliment towards our Mr. Deck, no doubt about that.

History To Repeat!

History, they say, has a habit of repeating.

Could be. Should Fort Worth Paschal, bi-district conquerors of District 3 4-A champs, Amarillo, get past Austin High in the opening game of the state schoolboy baseball tournament at Austin Thursday and Lufkin ease past Houston Lamar, spectators will get a return match of last summer's state finalists in the Junior American Legion program.

Lufkin whipped Fort Worth twice, 18-5 and 7-1, to win the state Legion crown last August, then eliminated Little Rock before themselves being booted from the national playoffs by Monroe, La., at New Orleans.

Fort Worth has 8 of 9 starters off last summer's runner-up club, including pitchers Bert Griffin and Stan Standridge. Lufkin has six returnees from its championship Legion club including pitchers Tommy Fleming and David Skinner, and another pair off its national Pony League title winning club of last August.

The kids from the Pineywoods must have one of the top defensive teams in the state. Their team batting mark is only .226.

Both clubs are named the Panthers and both clubs met in the opening game of the 1956 state schoolboy meet, Lufkin blowing a 4-2 lead with two outs in the last frame, and losing 5-4 in an extra inning. And to whom? Lefty Bert Griffin, who as a soph set the East Texans down with six-hits.

Snyder meets South San Antonio and Port Neches plays Corsicana in the AAA bracket of the meet.

Hitting Hurler

Pampa's Ed Strickland, guard at Texas Tech, logged the most playing time last fall. The brawny youngster averaged 40.9 minutes per game . . .

Oklahoma State posted an 87-24-5 won-lost-tied athletic record during the past school year. The Cowboys were 10-0-2 in wrestling and won the national championship. They were 9-0-1 in golf and 13-1-0 in tennis for Big 8 titles . . .

Wayland College coach, Ed Billings, and Plainview High coach, Bob Clindaniel, will conduct a summer cage camp, June 16-27 . . .

Who sez pitcher's don't hit. Pampa's Cecil Reynolds, pitcher with Southwestern Oklahoma State College in the NAIA playoffs at Alpine, leads the Bulldogs in hitting for players with ten or more at-bats. He's rattled out six licks, including a double and triple, in 12 official trips for an even .500 mark. He's got half dozen runs - batted - in to boot. As a hurler, Reynolds is 2-1, appearing in four games (21-innings) he's posted 14 strikeouts and walked eight . . .

AND THEN there was the guy who lost his hand reaching for a cigarette . . bus ran over it.

Look Ma, No Race! In AL

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

Look ma, no race!

Blame it all on those one-track minded New York Yankees, who have gotten off to such a sizzling start that they conceivably could win the pennant even if they lose half their remaining games.

The high-riding Yankees, who knocked off the Chicago White Sox, 3-0, Monday night to stretch their lead to seven full games, have 116 games remaining. If they win only half of them, 58, they will wind up with a total of 86 victories—and American League pennants have been won with less.

Could Break Record

At the rate they're going, the Yanks are a good bet to break the league record of 111 victories set by the pennant-winning Indians in 1954. And the Yankee pitchers are doing it the easy way.

First, Don Larsen and Bob Turley adopted no-windup techniques and now southpaw Whitey Ford is using only a half wind-up.

He employed it Monday night in striking out 10 White Sox batters for his sixth victory. Six of those strikeouts came in succession to tie a league record and duplicate a feat he accomplished on July 20, 1956 against Kansas City.

Ford received all the batting support he needed from Hank Bauer and Mickey Mantle. Bauer hit a pair of homers, one in the sixth and another in the eighth, while Mantle walloped his fifth homer of the season into the right field bleachers in the first inning. All of them were hit off Jim Wilson.

Washington dumped Baltimore a bit deeper into the cellar by beating the Orioles, 2-1, on little Albie Pearson's single with two out in the 10th inning.

Harshman Fans 11

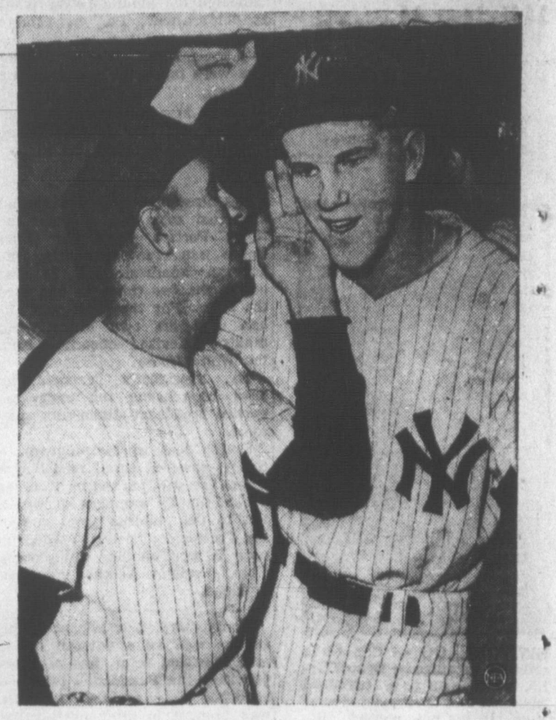

Pearson's single scored Clint Courtney from third base and spoiled a heart-breaking defeat for left-hander Jack Harsman, who struck out 11 batters. The only other run Harshman allowed was a fourth-inning homer by Roy Sievers.

Hal Griggs, who went the route for Washington, was aided by a sixth-inning triple play started by shortstop Rocky Bridges. Griggs yielded only six hits.

No other American League games were scheduled.

In the only National League game, Cincinnati climbed into fourth place with an 8-2 win over Pittsburgh that was practically a one-man job by southpaw Joe Nuxhall.

Nuxhall not only drove in two runs with three hits, but he also stole a base, struck out eight, gave up no walks and pitched a seven-hitter in turning in his first complete game of the campaign.

PSPHTTT—The old campaigner, Enos Slaughter, left, at 42 whispers to young Tony Kubek, 22, to put in his order for a new convertible with a 1958 World Series check paying the bill. The two Yankees have had a big hand in getting Casey Stengal's American League wreckers off to a record setting pace towards, ho-hum, another pennant.

LA'S VOTING NOW ON CHAVES RAVINE

By ALEX KAHN
United Press International

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers today reached what some people believed was the crossroads of their brief sojourn as a West Coast team as voters went to the polls to decide if they should have the site they want for their baseball stadium.

National League President Warren Giles 12 days ago warned that the franchise of the Dodgers as a Los Angeles club was in jeopardy unless the voters approved a referendum on the ballot on Chavez Ravine. That's where the club wants to erect a 12 million dollar stadium.

So intense was the interest in the referendum, Proposition "B" on the ballot, that Registrar of Voters Benjamin S. Hite predicted some 60 per cent of the electorate would turn out, drawn to the polls by the baseball issue more than the regular primary election ballot.

The campaign reached its peak in the last two days with statements and counter - statements President Walter F. O'Malley, who had at first been reluctant to plunge into the battle, took to the air repeatedly to give his views on the agreement the club had negotiated with the city.

O'Malley said regardless of how the referendum went he would "fight with all my strength" to keep the Dodgers in Los Angeles. But at the same time he admitted the league had the power to shift the franchise if the club did not have a suitable stadium by 1960.

"We regret being in the throes of a political controversy instead of a contender in the National League race," O'Malley said.

Opposing the Dodgers' contract was the "Committee to Save Chavez Ravine" which for months had been airing charges that the city's agreement with the baseball club was a "giveaway" of valuable property.

The Dodgers last October accepted as a final agreement the resolution of the City Council exchanging some 300 acres of Chavez Ravine, less than a mile from the city hall, for their Wrigley Field baseball park, which had been used by the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League club.

But a referendum petition was circulated and the contract was placed before the voters for their decision in today's election.

Oilers Rap Lefors, 9-5

LEFORS — The Richardson Oilers vaulted to the top of the Industrial League standings here Monday night with a solid 9-5 triumph over Lefors.

The Oilers cashed in on a big four-run 5th frame to snap a 2-2 stalemate and breeze to victory. Lefors pushed across a pair in the 6th to pull up, to a 7-4 defecit but two more tallies in the 7th iced it for Richardson.

Ray Howard fired his way to the win while the loss was charged to Larry Rider. The Oilers collected two triples in the tilt, Dwain Koontze socking one in the 6th and pinch-hitter, Charles Nix, poking out one in the 7th. Nix, however, tried to stretch his three-bagger into a homer and was cut down at home plate.

The Oilers now own a 5-1 mark, half game ahead of Phillips' 4-1 record and Kempa Humble's 3-1 mark. W. P. Richardson pitched the Oilers to a pair of triumphs last week, 10-6 over KP Lodge and 21-6 over the Panhandle Packers as his mates supported him with five homers.

Score by innings:

Richardson	010 141 2 — 9
Lefors	011 002 1 — 5

Nobody Wants 'Looney' Loes

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Billy Loes, Baltimore's bad boy, wants to go to the Yankees but the chances are better he'll wind up the same place he began his big league career—in the National League.

A report that Loes, currently under suspension, might be dealt to the Yankees for relief pitcher Bob Grim was promptly spiked by both clubs.

"Not a chance," said Baltimore Manager Paul Richards.

Lee MacPhail, director of player personnel with the Yankees, said, "No one around here has discussed such a deal."

Richards said he still has not decided what the final disposition will be on the 28-year-old right-hander. It is known, however, that the last-place Orioles are in desperate need of added batting punch and that they undoubtedly would give up Loes to obtain it.

Few American League clubs have shown any interest in the ex-Dodger hurler and there appears to be a strong chance he may be waived back into the National League which waived him out when the Orioles purchases him from the Dodgers in 1956.

Loes, whose record is 0-5 this season, received some good news and some bad news Monday.

The indefinite suspension Richards plastered on him following his temperamental outburst in a game against Washington Sunday was cut to Wednesday mid-night. The $100 f netahwte ihn w ttiai The $100 fine that went with it stuck, however.

At the same time, the American League announced it was suspending him until Saturday midnight and fining him $100 also for pushing Umpire Larry Napp.

Tokyo A Wishing Bull Had Showed

A carded grudge-fight never materialized at the Top 'o Texas Sportsman Club Monday night when Bull Curry didn't manage to show up for his scheduled main eventer with Tokyo Joe.

Curry was called East by his wife who was ill and right about 11:30 Monday night, Tokyo Joe was wishing the Bull hadn't had to take off, for substitute Bob Gigel, no little man, crushed the near life out of Tokyo while fighting in close quarters outside the ring. Gigel won on a disqualification at that.

Little Red Feather buried a tomahawk in Irish Jackie's skull to cop the 8:30 opener and Don Curtis won a disqualification semi-final match from Dirty Don Evans when the latter tired of playing with his opponent, picked him up and tossed him over the top rope, looped round the ring. This isn't done in polite circles and surely not in the grunt-and-groan game so the referee had no alternative but to disqualify the Dirty One.

Plays For Keeps

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UPI) —Tim Holland of Rockville Centre, N.Y., the pre-tournament sensation, started "playing for keeps" today in the British Amateur golf championship.

The lanky, 27-year-old sales manager, who drew a first round bye, led nine other American survivors into second round action on the "old course," which already has claimed one-third of the U.S. contingent.

Swipes Stopped

NEW YORK (UPI)—Luis Aparicio, fleet-footed Chicago White Sox infielder, had a string of 26 consecutive stolen bases broken by the Yankees' Yogi Berra during Monday night's game at Yankee Stadium.

Aparicio singled in the third inning, but was thrown out trying to swipe second, Berra to Tony Kubek. The last time Aparicio was caught in a steal attempt was July 25, 1957. Berra was in on that occasion, too.

Duren Eligible

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ryne Duren, fireballing relief ace of the New York Yankees, has been declared eligible for rookie of the year honors.

The American League office announced Monday night that the bespectacled right-hander had appeared in less than 45 innings in the big leagues before this season and had been on major league rosters less than 45 days after cut-down date.

Longhorns Lose

AUSTIN (UPI)— Brooke Army Medical Center took advantage of Bob Sudderth's first-inning wildness Monday to down the Texas Longhorns, 5-3, at Austin.

Qualifiers

By United Press International

Ten golfers, three of them amateurs, qualified for the U. S. Open Monday in Dallas and Houston.

In Dallas, Bobby Nichols, a Texas A&M golfer from Midland, Dick Metz of Fort Worth and Jackson Bradley of Houston qualified with 2-under-par—141s at DAC Country Club.

IN QUALIFYING

Golf's Unknowns Stealing Show

By United Press International

Paul Harney, Dick Chapman and Gene Sarazen turned in creditable scores but it was the lesser-known golfers who stole the show in the sectional qualifying trials for the 1958 National Open championship.

Harney, fully recovered from a recent appendectomy, led the 29 qualifiers in a field of 175 at Detroit Monday with a 36-hole score of 139. Chapman, former U.S. and British Amateur king, posted a 136 while 56-year-old Sarazen, a two-time Open champion, fired a 140 among the dozen qualifiers from the New York metropolitan area.

However, the outstanding aggregate score was credited to Robert E. Goetz of Tulsa, Okla., who recorded a 67-67—134 over the Oaks Country Club course in his hometown.

Lee Mackey Jr. of Birmingham, Ala., and Franklin Keller of Webster Groves, Mo., two other relatively-unknown pros, turned in 65's to tie for the day's best single rounds. Mackey wound up with a 135 qualifying score and Keller had a 144 aggregate.

Most of the tournament pros competed at Detroit, where Doug Sanders won the Western Open Sunday. Sanders qualified with a 145. Lloyd Mangrum, the 1956 Open king, wound up second best behind Harney with a 140, while other leading qualifiers there included Tommy Bolt (141), Doug Ford and Don January (142 each), and Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer and Jay Hebert (143 each).

Among the "name" golfers who failed to qualify were Sam Parks Jr., the 1935 champion; Tony Manero, the 1936 winner; Dow Finsterwald, Jackie Burke, Johnny Revolta, Willie Turnesa, Mike Homa, George Bayer, Mike Souchak, Art Wall Jr., Porky Oliver and Dave Douglas.

The qualifiers will join 17 exempt players, including defending champion Dick Mayer, in the championship flight at Tulsa's Southern Hills country club, June 12-14.

Kempa Hands Phillips 1st Setback, 4-1

Kempa Humble threw a monkey wrench into any dreams the Phillips Petroleum club might have had towards an undefeated Pampa Industrial League season Monday night by dishing out a 4-1 licking.

Phillips was nursing a 1-0 lead going into the 4th frame when the roof caved in on pitcher James Shew. Kempa first-sacker Joe Thronton poled a two-run homer to give Kempa the lead and the winner's added single insurance tallies in the 5th and 6th.

Hall Pursley spun a nifty four-hitter at Phillips to post the win. He registered seven strikeouts and walked two for his night's work. In losing, Shew was clipped for eight hits, while fanning six and issuing free transportation to three.

Score by innings:

Phillips	100 000 0 — 1 4 1
Kempa	000 211 x — 4 8 1

'Summit' Meet Of Home Know-How

By DOC QUIGG
United Press International

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (UPI) —Down here, where Pelicans ramble single file along the beaches in flapping platoons and a man can take life lazy as long as his money lasts, there is gathered a singular tribute to American kitchen-monkeying.

If a gent who delves expertly and cleverly into engines is proud to be called a grease-monkey, I submit that a housewife who brings some old-fashioned Yankee ingenuity and inventiveness to her career should glory in what she is—a kitchen-monkey.

(Drop that rolling-pin, Myrtle. The term is, too, a compliment.)

Every year there is assembled here at Ellinor Village a group of ladies in a summit meeting of homemade know-how. They are the 40 winners in the national "Homemaker's Forum" contest, in which thousands of homemakers send in hints of how they make a house a home. The hints are time-saving, money - saving (maybe even face-saving) practical and useful ideas and devices dreamed up in the home.

Perhaps indicative that ingenuity sprouts with years of experimenting is the fact that 85 per cent of this year's crop of winners have been married 30 years or more. The oldest winner is 74. One has been married 53 years, another 46.

One of the neatest tricks since Tom Sawyer got a few other kids to whitewash a fence for him is the easy-ceiling-painting method of Mrs. E. D. Anderson of Portland, Ore. She simply attaches a broom handle to the handle of a roller brush — and walks around, instead of ambling up and down a stepladder.

Consider, also, the "well-heeled ladder" of Mrs. Clarence F. Aumann of Chicago. To keep ladder legs from slipping or marring floors, she nails man-sized rubber heels to the bottom of each leg. If your old heels are well run-over, the ladder will have a familiar, folksy look.

Know how to keep the handle of your percolator from charring or burning? Suggests Mrs. Joseph M. Skura of Wilmington, Del.: Save the little metal spouts from salt boxes and simply snap one under the handle. Devilishly cute, if it works. The forum contest people say they've tested all there.

NEW YORK—Adlai Stevenson, in calling for an end to the presidential primary elections:

"I think the presidential primary . . . is almost a useless institution. I am not by any means persuaded that the presidential primary is a good thing to have."

GETTYSBURG — President Eisenhower, in a statement on De Gaulle's investiture as premier:

"We look forward to the continuation of the intimate and friendly relations which have always characterized our long association with France."

Jade is so hard that an inch cube may resist a pressure of 50 tons, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Central Tire Works Does A Moving Business, Retreading Varied Tires

BIG ENOUGH TO DO THE JOB—Whether you drive a truck, tractor or auto, you'll go further with a Central Tire retread. Ward Maddox is putting a 15:00 x 34 tractor tire through the Vulcanizer and the 15:00 x 34 is the biggest tractor tire around. Maddox will give you a complete retread in an hour for only the price of recapping and your recappable tire. Central Tire Works is located at 618 E. Frederic. Call MO 4-3781.

★ ★ ★

If its speed and accuracy you're looking for then Central Tire Works, 618 E. Frederic, is the place to go. You can't ride on the rims or on a worn tire so how would you like to have new tires for old?

And you'll be better off with a retread from Central Tire for once retreaded your tire will stay perfectly round.

Ward Maddox has been in the business 37 years and you should see what his machinery will do. The only tire that Maddox can't work wonders on is a rotten one, one that's really given up the ghost.

But Maddox has a reason to be confident in his output of retreads. He does a very scientific job. And ther's no tire too large for the new vulcanizer. It will handle the largest tire you've got. Once on the Panhandle you have to go to Amarillo with your 15:00x34 tractor tire before you found a machine big enough to do the job.

Added service to your tractor tire is the Davis Reliner which will repair the ill effects of weather cracks. Just don't throw it on the dump until you've seen Maddox and if he says dump it, you'll know its gone.

Maddox has truck tires of all sizes stacked to the ceiling and car tires, why of course, all of them retreaded and ready to be sold.

Here's the special deal Maddox will make you. When you drive in with your road worn tire, you can drive out with a Maddox tire on loan. But it only takes an hour to do a complete job on your tire a saving of one hour or two.

Maddox is a skilled carftsman with the tire. He goes at it from every side. On the scientific tire buffer that works on the principle of a lathe, tires pick up perfect form.

For a hole in any tire Maddox has a huge battery of steam heated section molds.

Retreads at Central Tire look good on any budget. Where else can you get a full treatment for the price of recapping plus your recappable tire.

Marshal Matt Dillon Says Its Fun Playing His Part

EDITOR'S NOTE: Vernon Scott is on vacation. Today's guest columnist is James Arness, TV's Marshal Matt Dillon. The lanky actor says his show holds the top rating because the hero doesn't always WIN.

By JAMES ARNESS
Written for U.P.I.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Like everyone, else who is identified with a popular television show, I am often asked what it's like. With me, the questioners want to know what it's like to play Marshal Matt Dillon in "Gunsmoke."

Now that United Press International has given me this opportunity, I'd like to answer that question.

It's a lot of fun.

One thing that makes it fun, of course, is the fact that Matt is one of the principal characters in television's top show. This makes me feel like a ballplayer whose team has won the World Series.

Cause and effect get a little mixed here. The things that make Matt Dillon fun to play are the same things that make "Gunsmoke" the top television show. These can be summed up in one word: honesty.

Made Him Human

John Meston and Norman McDonnell, writer and producer, who created Matt Dillon, made him a human being—a departure from custom. Western drama had become almost as formalized as the Chinese theater. The bad guy had a black hat, a mustache, and liked to kick dogs. The good guy wore a white hat, had a beautiful, intelligent horse, and was bashful with women.

The women were always beautiful; they were frail schoolmarms, tomboyish ranchers' daughters, or buxom dance-hall hostesses, but always beautiful.

Heroes always had at least eleven shots in their six-shooters, and never missed. Their horses always ourtan the villians horses. They never made mistakes, and always got the villains in the end.

Makes Mistakes

Marshal Dillon isn't one of them. His hat is brown; his horse is neither a genius nor a derby winner. And he is not awed by women. Most of the women he encounters are the homely, tired, faded sort one would really have found in Kansas in the 1870s. (Kitty Russell, played by Amanda Blake, is a welcome exception to this).

Dillon makes mistakes. Sometimes he arrests the wrong people, and lets the villains go. By being human he sometimes lets tragedies occur. He isn't perfect, any more than any real lawman was.

Avoiding these and other cliches makes "Gunsmoke" a better show and makes Matt Dillon a wonderful role. He seems real to me (He seems real to others, too, including some who insist their daddies knew Dillon in the old days, despite the fact that Meston and McDonnell invented him).

Things, like that have made Matt Dillon a continuously interesting character to play. I hope he lasts forever.

US Diplomacy Faces A Delicate Test

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—No survivors of the World War II scene in Washington, D.C., will doubt for a moment that U.S. diplomacy will face its most delicate test now that Gen. Charles de Gaulle is head man of France.

The French have a word for him. Formidable! That was de Gaulle.

Vain, touchy, egotistical, stubborn and proud were other words applied to the great Free Frenchman in the chit chat of the Washington cocktail circuit and in the hush-hush, off-record wartime conferences which the top civilian and military brass were forever having.

that security around de Gaulle from such men as Gen. George C. Marshall, Adm. Ernest J. King and from President Roosevelt himself.

North Africa Secret

"Explosive, handle with care," was the tag they put on the Frenchman.

Marshall and King related sadly that security arund de Gaulle headquarters in London was loose as a sieve. Hence Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill ruled against telling de Gaulle in advance about the 1942 invasion of North Africa although it was French territory which the Allies planned to storm.

Some just called de Gaulle "stuffy" and let it go at that. There was respect for him, however, and now that the U.S. may have to deal with de Gaulle in matters of life and death for both France and the United States, there is comfort in the fact that he and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower got along well.

"I happen to be one of those that liked him," Eisenhower said of de Gaulle at last week's news conference. The free people of the West can only hope that the Frenchman liked Ike too.

FDR told an hilarious story about trying to get de Gaulle and French Gen. Henri Honore Giraud together at the Casablanca conference where the President met with Churchill after the Africa invasion.

Roosevelt said he put it up to Churchill like this:

"Now, we'll call Giraud the bridegroom, and T'll produce him from Algiers next Saturday afternoon. And you (Churchill) get the bride — de Gaulle — from London, and we'll get them down here and we'll have a shotgun wedding.

"Well, Saturday afternoon came and I had my man there but Winston couldn't produce the bride. And it took—oh—until the following Friday morning before we could get de Gaulle there.

"And then came two days of conversations between them. Churchill and I kept discretly out of it, except that we got every afternoon a report of no progress, except that they had said: 'Apres vous, Gaston,'—'Apres vous, Alphonse.'

"I had to pull off some little dramatics. We went out on the lawn to get photographed—a row of four chairs: Churchill, de Gaulle, and me and Giraud. And there was Sammy Schulman (former White House press photographer) in an Army uniform in front of us with a camera. I had worked it out with Sammy beforehand.

" 'Oh, Mr. President,' said Sammy, 'Can we have a picture of the two generals shaking hands?'

"So I translated Sammy to Giraud and Giraud said, 'Mais, oui,' and he got right up and held out his hand. It took Churchill and myself five minutes to get de Gaulle on his feet and shake hands. However, the main point is that we got them together."

CANDIDATE? — Philip H. Willkie, son of the late Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate in 1940, has announced he may run for the U.S. Senate. A former state legislator from Rushville, Ind., Willkie said he would prefer to run against GOP Sen. Homer E. Capehart when the latter's term expires in 1962, but "under certain circumstances," might enter this year's senatorial race for the seat vacated by Republican William E. Jenner.

Jacoby ON BRIDGE

Here is another Intercollegiate Championship hand.

South's first problem occurs at his second turn to bid. He only has 13 high card points but his singleton diamond should look good to him and he should attempt to get to game. Furthermore, he should do so by bidding three hearts, not three spades.

In that case North should raise the hearts to four and South should play the hand in that suit and not in spades.

With hearts as trump, South ruffs the second diamond and plays the king of hearts. East's best defense is to let it hold. South continues with the queen whereupon East should win and lead a third heart. Now South wins this and runs out all his diamonds and six of clubs from dummy. His next play is a club and all he can lose will be one club trick.

With spades as trumps there is no play for more than nine tricks unless West helps declarer out by jumping up with his ace of clubs when South leads the suit. The extra trick at hearts was produced since South was able to ruff one diamond in his own hand and still keep four trumps in dummy.

PARIS — Gen. Charles de Gaulle, asking the General Assembly for six-month powers to cope with France's domestic and Algerian crises:

"Thus, the government of the republic, invested by the national representatives and provided in extreme urgency with the means of action, will be able to answer for the unity, the integrity and the independence of France."

France Likely To Be World Center Of Attention Awhile

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. McCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst

France, as personified by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, is likely to be the chief center of world attention for some time to come.

There is an atmosphere of uncertainty, and some nervousness, in the capitals of the leading powers over the course of French policy.

De Gaulle's policies may affect profoundly the future of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, relations between the Western Allies and Soviet Russia, relations between France and Germany and the negotiations for a "summit" conference on world issues.

De Gaulle had been thinking over such problems as these during the years he spent in the solitude of his country estate.

But he remained a completely unknown quantity. Frenchmen did not know with any degree of certainty what his domestic program would be, including the future of Algeria which to France is a domestic problem.

Ike or Nikita

Foreign governments knew nothing, with any degree of certainty, about his foreign policy.

There has been speculation that de Gaulle might visit Washington to talk things over with President Eisenhower. But there has been speculation also over the possibility that he might decide to go to Moscow to talk things over with Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The uncertainty in Washington and London over de Gaulle extends also to Moscow.

Though the French Communist party, and the Communist parties of other Western European countries, attack de Gaulle savagely, Soviet Russia seems to have decided on a hands-off attitude for the moment.

In a most unusual official statement broadcast from Moscow, the press department of the Soviet Foreign Office said:

"The Soviet Union does not interfere, and has no intention of interfering, in the internal affairs of France or any other country."

Even a Communist propagandist might have blushed in putting out that statement. What it means apparently, is that the Soviet government will wait a while before it decides whether its best course is to attack de Gaulle or to try to use him for its own purposes.

Russia may be expected first to try to weaken the ties between France on one hand and the United States and Great Britain on the other.

Keen World Interest

It may try to get de Gaulle's support in its attempt to neutralize Germany, especially by making it part of a central European zone in which nuclear weapon bases would be barred.

It will be surprising if Premier Khrushchev does not send de Gaulle a personal letter soon in an attempt to sell him a diplomatic bill of goods.

Aside from such questions as these, there will be keen world interest in de Gaulle's success in establishing himself as France's authoritarian leader.

That de Gaulle was called to take over the government as the result of a military coup can hardly be questioned. It is by no means certain that the professional army officers who revolted in Algeria, or the extreme right-wing civilian elements in France who joined in the demand that he be called to leadership, will approve his policies.

Experts on France seem agreed on at least one thing — that de Gaulle, always a lone operator, will not permit himself to be made the tool of any faction. That remains to be seen.

DETROIT — United Auto Workers President Walter Reuther, after Ford and Chrysler contracts expired last midnight, leaving 500,000 auto workers working without contracts:

"The companies have an advantage now, but it is an advantage which flows out of the recession and their stock of cars. This advantage will evaporate with time and the companies will see the wisdom of our position."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Barney Smith, a private guard at the Elvis Presley mansion, in denying he pointed a gun at a fence-jumping rock 'n' roll fan:

"What would a big man like me carry a gun for?"

Capital, Capitalism

It might serve as an object lesson if we were to understand the difference between capital and capitalism. There seems to remain in some quarters, the conviction that communists and socialists, et al, are out to destroy capital.

This is certainly not true. Communists and socialists are interested in obtaining capital, just as all the rest of us are. The difference is that the communist and the socialist wish to obtain capital by taking it away from those who have earned it.

The ordinary fellow is content with what he himself can earn. Consequently, to the ordinary fellow, however much money he can make, it becomes him to want to earn more. Ordinary people, in the ordinary course of economic events, becomes capitalists. Capitalism is the system of economics which makes this possible. Communists and socialists are out to destroy capitalism, not to destroy capital.

What makes a capitalist? There is only one thing. That is savings. The only kind of society in which there would be no such thing as a capitalist, would be a complete savage society. If you awaken in the morning and find that you are in a bed, in a house, that food is going to be prepared for you (or you may fix it yourself), that you have a car in which to drive to work, that you have clothes to wear or tools to use, you are a capitalist.

If, on the other hand, when you awaken you are naked, sans bed, sans house, sans food, sans car, sans tools, then you are not a capitalist. But even the luckless fakir on India's crowded streets has a robe. And if he is a true Buddhist he probably has a beggar's bowl. But if he is thus equipped, he already is a capitalist, for he has the necessary raiment together with the tools of his profession.

Capitalists are what most all of us are. Anthropologists, studying the most backwards of people is the Melanesian Islands and in Australia, tell us that even these primitives are capitalists to a degree. Their crude hunting weapons are items which have been saved from a previous day and can be used today. Their caves and their rude shelters represent savings in labor done before which need not be done again today. All of these things are capital.

Capitalism is the economic system in which individual people are permitted to earn what they can and to keep what they earn. Whatever they manage to keep over and above what they consume on a given day, is the capital with which they begin the next day. The freedom which makes this possible is economic freedom.

The collectivist answer to capitalism is that somehow it is immoral. This absurd deduction relates immediately and only to the differences in men's skills, and men's fortunes. Some men find that they can save more than other men. Greed and greed alone counsels the collectivist to object to this natural fact of our existence. The collectivist wants none of us to own anything. But this does not mean that he wants a destruction of property to ensue. On the contrary, he wants all property to be owned by some collectivist organization (the state), which organization will dole out the property on the basis of need, not on the basis of ability. He claims this would be moral.

The fact is that this process of anti-capitalism simply doesn't work. It never has and it never will. Even Stalin, the bloody communist monster who recently ruled Russia, found that "from each according to ability, to each according to his need" wasn't practical. That is why Stalin himself gave a nod of approval toward capitalism by re-writing the Russian Constitution so that it said: "From each according to ability; to each according to his work." This meant that Stalin adopted state capitalism as the going mode for Russia. It also meant that he reserved for the Russian government the power of paying on the basis of results, not on the basis of charity.

The truth is that private capitalism may be undermined so thoroughly by laws and regulations that it ceases to exist for all practical purposes. However, capital will continue to exist so long as men do not consume everything on a given day.

A Timely Edmund Burke Letter

I saw reference in The National Review to Edmund Burke's letter written to a Lord in 1756 on "A Vindication of Natural Society." The reference caused me to want to read this letter. I found it very, very interesting because Burke at that time was only 27 years old and saw very clearly the harm government could do to man.

The tyranny governments impose on mankind is coming to pass in the United States during this century just as Burke wrote 202 years ago.

The letter is hard to find. I got it out of the California State Library and found the type was extremely small and rather difficult to read. So I thought I would try to find this letter in larger type. I thought it was such a masterpiece that it, of course, would be in the Harvard Classics, but although the Harvard Classics devotes nearly a whole book to Burke, this masterpiece was not to be found there. Then I thought I could get it out of the local library but they could find no copy of it so I had to read the small type.

It would be a great thing if those people who have so much confidence in the government would read this letter of some 18 pages.

We would have a better government if more people understood the dangers that come from government interfering with man's natural rights.

Burke goes from the Egyptians, the Greeks and the Romans and pictures the tyranny that comes from kings, aristocracies, republics and democracies. He pictured them all about the same.

He contended that there were many more people killed by government than were killed by wild beasts or animals. He gives the figures to show the number killed in various wars and under different forms of government.

He contended that Alexander was responsible for the sacrifice of 1,200,000 lives and Alexander's successors depopulated the country by at least 2,000,000. He was of the opinion that Alexander was not a vicious man when he first took office but that power corrupted him.

As an illustration of the tyranny, he relates: "In the court of Nero, a person of learning, of unquestioned merit, and of unsuspected loyalty, was put to death for no other reason than that he had a pedantic countenance which displeased the emperor."

Then he relates: "This very monster of mankind appeared in the beginning of his reign to be a person of virtue. Many of the greatest tyrants on the records of history have begun their reigns in the fairest manner. But the truth is, this unnatural power corrupts both the heart and the understanding."

On Politicians

This is what he had to say about politicians:

"This natural unpremeditated effect of policy on the unpossessed passions of mankind, appears on other occasions. The very name of a politician, a statesman, is sure to cause terrour and hatred; it has always connected with it the ideas of treachery, cruelty, fraud and tyranny; and those writers who have faithfully unveiled the mysteries of state-freemasonry, have ever been held in general detestation, for even knowing so perfectly a theory so detestable."

Double Standard

It seems to me that Burke understood why governments were bound to be oppressive and tyrannical. The reason primarily was because they had a double standard.

Those who have been reading this column have noticed that I have opposed the government doing things that no individual had an ethical or moral or natural right to do. Here is the way Burke puts it:

"But if there were no other arguments against artificial society than this I am going to mention, methinks it ought to fall by this one only. All writers on the science of policy are agreed, and they agree with experience, that all governments must frequently infringe the rules of justice to support themselves; that truth must give way to dissimulation; honesty to convenience; and humanity itself to the reigning interest. The whole of this mystery of iniquity is called the reason of state. It is a reason which I own I cannot penetrate. What sort of a protection is this of the general right, that is maintained by infringing the rights of particulars? What sort of justice is this, which is enforced by breaches of its own laws? These paradoxes I leave to be solved by the able heads of legislators and politicians. For my part, I say what a plain man would say on such an occasion. I can never believe, that any institution agreeable to nature, and proper for mankind, could find it necessary, or even expedient in any case whatsoever, to do, what the best and worthiest instincts of mankind warns us to avoid. But no wonder, that what is set up in opposition to the state of nature, should preserve itself by trampling upon the law of nature."

Abominable Snow Man

Robert Allen Reports:

'Sand' Bomb To Be Tested At Eniwetok

WASHINGTON — A Unique "sand" bomb, with the cataclysmic destructive power of millions of tons of TNT, is scheduled to be tested this month at the Eniwetok proving grounds in the South Pacific.

Purpose of this exceptional thermonuclear experiment is to ascertain whether it is possible to "imprison Strontium - 90 in substances that will render this deadly fallout insoluble in the soil, and thus prevent it from being absorbed in grasses and food plants."

The vital need to avert that arises from two grim facts:

(1) Every nuclear explosion produces Strontium - 90. Elements of this type of lethal fallout are still in the atmosphere from the first atomic test in New Mexico in the spring of 1945—and will continue to be for many years to come.

(2) S-90 is particularly dangerous because its "calcium-like properties channel it up the food chain from the soil to human bones, where it causes cancer and Leukemia."

On the basis of labortary experiments, Atomic Commission scientists believe that a certain amount of Strotium-90 can be kept from being absorbed in the soil and thus by plants.

Sand and "special fertilizers" were used in this laboratory work.

Their practical effectiveness will be tested in the giant "sand" bomb that will be exploded at Eniwetok this month.

If this test is successful, the government scientists are confident it will be a major breakthrough in the long effort to appreciably reduce the danger to people throughout the whole world from deadly Strontium-90.

Results of this momentous test will not be known for some time.

MOUNTING TERROR — Strontium - 90 is a steadily increasing worldwide menace.

If Russia, Britain and the U.S. continue their present rate of nuclear tests for another 30 years, the average S-90 level per individual will increase from 15 to 30 micromicrocuries per gram of calcium.

According to Atomic Commission standards the "maximum permissible concentration of S-90 in human bones is 100 micromicrocuries per gram of calcium."

Commission scientists estimate the present level in children's bones is 0.75.

That's what the Commission has reported to the Joint Atomic Committee in a special study titled "Developments in Radioactive Fallout." This significant survery does not include the Russian and British tests earlier this year, nor the U.S. tests now in progress in the South Pacific.

Publishable highlights of this backstage study are as follows:

"There is a greater-than-average fallout danger to the aged as well as to the very young, who absorb Strontium-90 along with calcium in growing. S-90 in people over 60 was found to be concentrated in vertebrae, breastbones and ribs. In the 20-60 age group the distribution is more general and hence less dangerous.

"If the tests continue for the next 30 years. . .the genetic effects are given as 160 to 800 defective children born each year in the U. S. compared to 80,000 children now born defective as a result of natural genetic defects. The worldwide ultimate increase would be 2,5000 to 13,000 defective children per year providing the average world fallout were the same as in the U.S.

"The regional differences in the Strontium-90 level are much smaller than differences in total fallout. The level for the southern hemisphere when it reaches equilibrium will be about one-half that for the northern hemisphere. . .Strotium-90 levels average 15 percent higher in the female than in the male."

TAKING OFF WRAPS — Some information is finally going to be made public about this country's mighty efforts to "control" the H-bomb for peacful purposes—such as producing electricity.

This notable unveiling will take place at the international atomic conference in Geneva in September.

That's the word the Joint Atomic Committee has received from the Atomic Energy Commission. The AEC advised that "most, if not all, the progress in Project Sherwood" will be disclosed at the Geneva parley.

Project Sherwood includes all AEC activities to control thermonuclear power. This epic program is being conducted at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., National Laboratory, the Los Alamos, N.M., Scientific Laboratory, the University of California Radiation Laboratory, at Livermore, and at Princeton University, N.J.

So far, the U.S. has officially reported controlling temperatures of only about one-hundredth of those created by an H-bomb explosion.

The Atomic Commission is asking Congress for an additional $2,000,000 for Project Sherwood. In stressing the need for these funds, the Commission told the Joint Committee:

"Since the U.S will disclose at the Geneva conference in September most, if not all, of its progress in Project Sherwood, the Commission must be prepared to push toward newer and more promising results in the program. Continued progress may be delayed if construction funds are not available for use immediately when needed. To cover these eventualities, this request is for $2,000,000 for new construction."

NOTE: The Navy is constructing an unusual reactor to power the new radar picket submarine TRITON. This unique reactor will have removable individual fuel elements which can be replaced at sea from a tender so the atomic sub doesn't have to return to a base for the purpose. The TRITON, in addition to being speedier than any other sub, will be equipped with two of these advanced reactors to ensure greater reliability.

The CRACKER BARREL

A lot of news about the Cuban revolt is in the news lately. But there's very little interpretation of it. Leftie magazines that have nothing to say about Communist dictators such as Tito and Gomulka are loud in denouncing Batista as a dictator. He is, but he's not a Communist dictotor. In 1932 his country broke off diplomatic relations with the Reds and in 1956 Cuba sponsored a U.N. motion holding the Soviet Union responsible for genocide in Hungary. Batista has signed a mutual defense pact with America. But what of Castro, the rebel who is trying to overthrow him? Former Ambassador Spruilee Braden has stated, "Castro is a fellow traveler, if not a member, of the Communist Party and has been so for a long time. He was a ringleader in the bloody uprising in Bogota, Columbia, in April, 1948. The uprising was engineered and staged by Communists and the Columbian government and press subsequently published documentary evidence of Fidel Castro's role as a leader in the rioting which virtually gutted the city. The appearance of the Cuban at the head of the recent uprising in his own country stamps the insurrection as another part of the developing pattern of Communist subversion throughout Latin America."

Hankerings

By HENRY McLEMORE

Mac Relives Part Of His Youth

I took time off from the cultural activities surrounding the world premiere here in Atlanta of Sam Goldwyn, Jr.'s, "The Proud Rebel" to stretch out in the shade of a magnolia tree and relive in memory a very happy part of my youth.

It was here that I went to high school (I was a bugler in the Tech High Drum and Bugle Corps), and it was here that I started in the newspaper business on the now gone, but I hope not forgotten, Atlanta "Georgian."

Stretched out under the magnolia, I fell to wondering how I ever had enough energy to hold down my job on the "Georgian." In the first place, I worked, roughly, 24 hours a day. I didn't have to — I could have gotten by with 16, I believe — but for a 21-year-old, with his first press card, 16 hours isn't enough. I would have liked the day to have been 24 hours longer.

I was miserable when I wasn't around the office, and nearly every morning found me there two hours too early, waiting for someone to arrive and give me something to do, or to send me somewhere.

Where the energy came from is even more mystifying when I recall my weekly pay check. It was four dollars, and even in the late 1920's a man had to do a lot of stretching to make four bucks take care of food, lodging, clothes, laundry, and entertainment. I doubt if I were a heavy contributor to civic money drives.

I had a visit with the gentleman who gave me my first job, Edward Friend Danforth, one of the great sports editors of all time, now retired to a life of leisure. I reminded him of my first salary, and he said he was sorry about that and if he were hiring me today, he would do better by me.

"I'd give you six, or maybe seven dollars," Ed said. "Costs have gone up, and then there is a lot more of you. What did you weigh when you went to work for me?"

"About 115 I guess — and all muscle."

"And all in your head," Ed said.

Those were the days when a reporter — a cub one in particular — did everything. Baseball games, one-alarm fires, church and social notes, second-run movie reviews, dog shows, real estate items, the court house, the police station, the outer fringes of the legislature, and grammar school track meets.

A cub like myself finished the day so exhausted he barely had strength to dress, date, and dance until two in the morning. Then, with three or four hours' sleep, another beautiful day dawned. Thinking back, I believe I lived chiefly on adventure and chicken sandwiches in those days.

There was a drugstore in the "Georgian" building where a jolly Greek sold the biggest chicken sandwiches I ever saw for a dime. One of those, and a nickel glass of milk, and a man was ready for another five- or six-hour spurt. It's a wonder I don't have feathers and molt.

I wish I had brought along my little address book of those days. It would be fun to take those old girl friends for a ride in a model-T Ford and talk about yesteryear. Their husbands and children—and grandchildren, too—would be most welcome to come along.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

It is often puzzling for older people to know how to interpret certain symptoms which occur in youngsters.

For example, Mrs. H. has recently written that her 11- year-old granddaughter constantly has a low temperature. Her doctor, Mrs. H. says, tells her that some people naturally have a low temperature and there is no need for concern. The child, she adds, is unusually white, with a waxy skin.

It is quite true that the temperatures taken by a clinical thermometer often vary from person to person and in the same person from one time to another. It depends on how the temperature is taken and sometimes on the thermometer itself.

If this particular child has a slightly lower than "normal" reading on the clinical thermometer, but does not have other symptoms, then the situation can be safely ignored. Assuming this to be the case, it probably will cause undue worry to the child and to others if her temperature is taken at frequent intervals.

A most difficult question is asked by Mrs. E., who wishes advice on how to care for a mentally retarded son, age 19.

The first comment on this problem is that the question should not have been delayed so long. If parents are unfortunate enough to have a mentally retarded child they should certainly study their problems frankly and fully as soon as the diagnosis can be made.

In other words, there are differences between one child and another in the degree of mental backwardness, in the effect keeping such a child at home might have on brothers or sisters and, indeed, in the desirability of institutional rather than home care.

These questions can be settled only by individual study of the problems after the facts are known. Mrs. E., although late, should get advice from a psychiatrist, school authorities and others so that she will know what is best for her and her son.

Mrs. G. writes that she has a little boy of two who has been suffering with "weeping eczema" since he was three weeks old. Nothing which has been tried has cleared his skin so she is desperate for some way which can relieve this boy from his misery.

This is another puzzling and difficult problem. Eczema, which appears on the skin, is probably an allergic disorder.

That is, it is probably the result of some excessive sensitivity of this child to certain substances which he may eat, inhale or come in contact with.

The problem—and it is often a complicated one—is to try to find what this substance (or possibly substances) is. If this can be done and it can be eliminated, the eczema should get better.

Even if it cannot, there is a possibility that it will go away when the little boy gets a bit older. But he may be more likely to develop other allergic symptoms than children who have not had this experience.

Giant Power Plant Almost A Reality

By ROBERT O. O'BRIEN
United Press International

MASSENA, N.Y. (UPI) — The gigantic St. Lawrence Seaway and power project will be blasted a step closer to completion on July 1.

MEAN—Sleekly handsome Robert Evans is a throwback to the matinee idol days when a movie star looked like a lover instead of a longshoreman. But in his newest picture, "The Hell-Bent Kid," his bad actions belie his good looks. He murders just about everybody in the cast until he gets his—in a gun duel with Hugh O'Brian.

Tons of earth making up a 600-foot cofferdam will be dynamited about 8 a.m. and the waters of the St. Lawrence will churn across 40,000 acres of land from which whole towns and villages were literally uprooted and relocated.

It will be "inundation day" July 1, marking the final stages of a monumental construction task opening Great Lakes ports to ocean shipping and the second largest hydro-electric plants in the world.

The blast will signal the raising of the power project's 30-mile reservoir, stretching from Barnhart Island powerdam west to the American-Canadian control dam. Residents of Cornwall, Ont., and Massena, N.Y., are planning a four-day "inundation celebration" for the July spectacle.

Whole Towns Moved

In preparing for the man-made lake, 6,500 persons on the Canadian side of the river were relocated and 250 homes on the American side were razed.

The Canadian rehabilitation was more difficult. Residents of five hamlets, the town of Iroquois and individual homes, camps and businesses along the river were gathered into three new townsites—Iroquois, Long Sault and Inglenside.

Each new town has water and sewer facilities, schools, churches, streets and sidewalks. All of the merchants were relocated in modern shopping centers. The old canal town of Iroquois was simply swept off the earth and plunked down north of its old site.

The width of the new lake will reach 2½ miles in places with dikes protecting low-lying areas in its immediate vicinity.

Cemeteries Were Relocated

Not a stone remains where the old settlements were. Every tree, fence, home, barn, store and camp has been either torn down or moved.

Even cemeteries were relocated. Canadians moved only the headstones, while Americans removed all of the bodies.

Obituaries

By United Press International

NEW YORK—Bernard H. Sandler, for many years one of New York's leading lawyers, died here Monday at the age of 73.

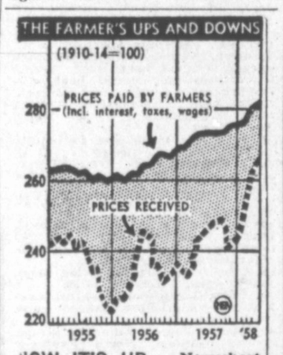

He was defense counsel for three of the four informers in the Herman Rosenthal murder trial, a famous case during the days before World War I.

LONDON — Sir Louis Sterling, philanthropist and industrialist who was born in New York's lower East Side slums, died here Monday. He was 79.

A naturalized Englishman, he was knighted by King George VI in 1937. During his life, he gave away nearly three million dollars to charity.

NEW YORK—Aaron Freilich, former chairman of the mathematics department at Lafayette High School, Brooklyn, died on Sunday at Liberty, N.Y.

Freilich, 65, wrote many mathematics textbooks and was a mathematics lecturer at Brooklyn College.

NOW IT'S UP — Newschart above, based on U.S. Department of Commerce data, traces recent history of farm income vs. outgo. Record shows no consistent relationship between the two. In the good business year of 1955, farmers' income generally tended downward. Now, in first quarter of 1958, receipts have taken a sharp upward spurt—a faster rate of increase than that of the prices he must pay. This is in contrast to declining income for the nation as a whole.

News In Brief

WHEEL CAUSES DERAILMENT

MERIDIAN, Miss. (UPI) — Twenty-nine cars of a Gulf, Mobile and Ohio freight train plunged off a 20-foot high trestle here Monday and piled up in a marsh. Railroad officials said the accident happened when a wheel came off one of the cars. None of the crew was injured.

BANK ASSETS UP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said Monday assets of U.S. commercial banks totaled 224 billion dollars at the end of last year. Mutual savings banks' assets came to 35 billion dollars. The combined assets represented an increase of 3 per cent over 1956. Deposits of all banks rose about six billion dollars in 1957, an increase of 2 per cent.

CASUALTIES LISTED

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)—Supreme French Commander in Algeria Gen. Raoul Salan announced Monday night that 715 Moslem rebels had been killed and 189 taken prisoner by French troops during the week ending Sunday. The French fight against the Moslem nationalists has been continuing without let-up despite the French crisis and Gaullist upheaval which started here May 13.

KERR, BARTLEY SEPARATE

LONDON (UPI)—Anthony Bartley, husband of movie actress Deborah Kerr, has applied to have their two children made wards of the court, his lawyers said today. Bartley's move followed an announcement made in Vienna last week in which he 35-year-old actress said she and her husband were "estranged." Bartley, who works in television, and Miss Kerr have two daughters, 11 and 7.

REDS TO SEND FOOD

LONDON (UPI)—Russia's Red Cross and Red Crescent societies soon will send a shipload of food and supplies to Algerian refugees in Tunisia, Moscow Radio reported Monday night. The goods will be distributed by the Tunisian Red Crescent society after arriving in Tunis aboard the Soviet freighter Odessa, the broadcast heard here said.

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) says actress Olivia de Havilland has requested special congressional legislation to save her U.S. citizenship. The star, who has lived in Paris since 1955, would lose her citizenship in two years under present law. Walter has introduced a bill which would exempt Miss de Havilland from a provision of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act that revokes the citizenship of naturalized Americans who live abroad continuously for more than five years.

HELD IN DEATH

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—Construction company employe Odell Black was held for the U.S. marshall's office today in connection with the death of a revenue agent following a scuffle over Black's income tax troubles. A levy had been made against Black's salary for back taxes, and he was trying to straighten out his difficulties with the aid of agent Joseph G. Strohofer. Suddenly, Black grabbed Strohofer by the throat, and another tax agent standing near by—Robert Maurer, 43 — pulled Black away. A short time later, Maurer collapsed and died.

NO DICTATORSHIP

WASHINGTON (UPI)—French Ambassador Herve Alphand forecast Monday the new French government of Gen. Charles de Gaulle will be a "strong and stable government." But Alphand said it "certainly will not be a dictatorship."

VERDICT OF MURDER

HAMILTON, Ohio (UPI) — A jury of nine women and three men found Shirley Edward Campbell, 22, guilty of first degree murder Monday night in the slaying of a Negro student nurse. Campbell was tried on charges of pushing the nurse, Sylvesta Andy, 20, of Piqua, Ohio, from the roof of a five-story hospital. He earlier had confessed he pushed her because she resisted his advances. Later he repudiated the confession.

Youth's Body Is Found

DALLAS (UPI) —The search for a missing 10-year-old Dallas boy came to an end early today when his body was found atop a garage a half a block from his home.

Dallas Police Homicide Capt. Will Fritz said the boy, Robert Henry Lord, may have been electrocuted. Fritz called power company authorities to check utility wires running above the garage.

The youngster had been missing from his home since 5:30 p.m. Monday.

Primary Elections In Three States

By United Press International

Voters go to the polls in primary elections in three states today to decide what is in store for Sen. William Knowland, the Los Angeles Dodgers and the son of a slain anti-crime crusader.

Knowland, U.S. Senate Minority Leader, sought the Republican nomination for governor of California against the state's attorney general.

But California voters seemed more interested in a referendum to determine whether the Dodgers will get a new site for their proposed 12-million-dollar stadium.

In Alabama, Atty. Gen. John Patterson competed against a circuit judge for the Democratic nomination for governor. Patterson's father was attorney general at the time he was slain during his crackdown on criminals in Phenix City.

Voters in South Dakota balloted to determine opponents in the race for governor.

In Monday's only primary, a college professor making his first political campaign defeated a veteran campaigner in a contest for the GOP nomination for governor of Iowa.

Voters in California will select Republican and Democratic nominees for a winner-take-all runoff election next November. Every statewide office except the Senate seat held by Thomas H. Kuchel is at stake in the primary.

A light vote is expected in South Dakota, where Lt. Gov. Roy Houck and Atty. Gen. Phil Saunders are the top candidates in a race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Throughout the campaign, Houck and Saunders ignored a third rival — State Rep. Charles Lacey, a cousin of Gov. Joe Foss. The governor is not eligible for a third term.

Six men fought for the Democratic 2nd District congressional nomination, including former Rep. Theodore B. Werner—who served in Congress during the early years of the New Deal.

WHEELS—Although the spinning wheels may suggest that Lilian Rygaard might be entertaining ideas of being a seamstress, it's really sailing she has in mind. The lovely Dane is pictured just before she boarded the liner Stavengerfjord in New York to return to her home in Copenhagen.

Nitro-Paraffin Shipments Are Banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tank-car rail shipments of nitro-paraffin have been banned by the Association of American Railroads following explosion of a tank car carrying the solvent near Mount Pulaski, Ill.

The ban, requested by the Interstate Commerce Commission, will be in effect until an investigation determines what caused the blast, which killed two men and injured more than 40 persons Sunday. The explosion caused damage in excess of a million dollars.

A similar explosion rocked Niagara Falls, N.Y., last Jan. 22 when a tank car blew up while a train was moving slowly on a spur line. More than 30 school children suffered cuts from shattered windows in eight schools. The car contained a lacquer solvent en route from Commercial Solvents Corp., Peoria, Ill., the same firm involved in Sunday's explosion.

A spokesman for the AAR said there had been no trouble with the shipment of nitro-paraffin until recently when it was put in tank cars for shipment. Previously it was shipped in drums, the spokesman said.

Greenhill Is Favored

DALLAS (UPI)—Incumbent Joe Greenhill of Austin topped District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, 419-315, in a Dallas Bar Association straw vote for the Supreme Court election Monday.

The Dallas Bar gave Appeals Court Justice Robert W. Hamilton of El Paso a 439-186 margin for Place 1 on the Supreme Court over District Judge Wilmer B. Hunt of Houston.

"I have a dress for the Junior hop and my father's permission to stay out till twelve—now I hope someone asks me to go!"

Lighter Side

ARDMORE, Okla (UPI)—Three teen-age boys were under arrest today for allegedly giving the telephone company tape - recorded sounds of coins being deposited into a pay telephone instead of money.

LONDON (UPI)—The annual report of the people's dispensary for sick animals today included the case of a tame mouse which had 20 stitches taken in its head after an encounter with a cat.

GUNTHORPE, England (UPI) — The Gunthrope Ladies' Social Group today reverted to its original name—the Merry Wives of Gunthorpe.

LONDON (UPI)—One bottle of sherry went a long way Monday night when 50 guests shared it at a party for the chairman of the Australian wine board.

It took two men to carry in the bottle, which was 2 feet 2½ inches tall and contained the equivalent of 131 normal-sized bottles.

Harrietta, Mich. (UPI)—On orders of the state, a local election was held here Monday for the first time in three years.

The matter of "the same people always being re-elected" prompted the village to drop elections in 1955.
