Workers find baby

HEREFORD — Workers hearing cries from a veterinary clinic's trash incinerator pit found a newborn girl wrapped in a plastic bag Thursday. Heat from Wednesday's burned trash kept the baby alive in the sub-freezing weather, sheriff's officials said. Deaf Smith General Hospital listed the girl in guarded but critical condition. She was transferred Thursday afternoon to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where a hospital spokeswoman said the girl was stable. Sharon Pennington, sheriff's administrative assistant, said officials believe the baby was born at about 7 a.m. Workers, hearing what they thought was an injured cat or goat, found the baby at 8:41 a.m., Ms. Pennington said. The baby has blond hair and weighs 4 pounds 7¼ ounces, she said. Deputies are searching for the mother.

President Clinton confers with Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen before Clinton talked to Treasury employees about his economic package.

House OKs president's budget bills

■ Lawmakers approve economic package on near party-line.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House moved to close the book on Reaganomics by embracing President Clinton's recipe of new spending to create jobs, plus long-term budget cuts and tax increases to whittle the deficit.

After a marathon debate past midnight Thursday, the Democratic-controlled chamber approved dual measures providing $16.3 billion for job programs, slashing defense spending and sharply raises taxes on the rich and corporations.

After taking a congratulatory phone call in the Oval Office from House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., Clinton said the vote reflected "a change in the tenor" of politics.

"We're really trying to break the gridlock," he told reporters. "I think the Congress really wants to make a difference."

Late Thursday, the House voted 243-183 to approve a deficit-reduction blueprint that would trim budget shortfalls by $510 billion over the next five years. Only 11 Democrats strayed and opposed the president, while no Republicans supported his plan.

The savings — to be enacted in future bills — would be split. About half would come from spending cuts on defense and benefit programs such as Medicare. The rest would arise from tax increases, mainly on the rich and corporations. It resembled a plan the Senate was also debating.

Then, just before 1 a.m., weary lawmakers voted 235-190 to approve a companion bill pumping $16.3 billion in new spending into community development grants, small business loans and other job-creating projects. The administration says the measure would create 219,000 jobs this year and more later.

In the Senate, where debate will continue next week, party discipline also held. Democrats defeated, 53-46, a GOP effort to strip Clinton's proposed energy tax from the plan.

Clinton himself couldn't resist contrasting his own economic priorities with the call for smaller government that President Reagan brought to office 12 years ago.

"It is clear that the time has come to make a fundamental change in policy and direction," Clinton told Treasury employees as he headed a last-minute campaign to solidify support and make his victory an imposing one.

And as the president's triumph approached, he added a personal touch. His spokeswoman, Dee Dee Myers, announced that lawmakers of either party supporting his plan would be invited to a White House breakfast this morning.

With an 80-vote numerical advantage in their pockets, Democratic leaders had predicted that in a long day of debate, they would overwhelm Republicans and approve the two Clinton economic recovery measures.

True to their word, party leaders showed they could hold their rank-and-file together.

On a tally of 295-135, the House killed a GOP budget that would have cut spending by $429 billion over the next five years — and dropped all of Clinton's tax increases. Just three Demo-

Declining tobacco revenues hurt treasury

By Arlene Levinson
Associated Press writer

It seems to make perfect sense — if cigarettes rob Americans of their health, why not tax them more to help pay for health insurance?

One answer: Because revenues from tobacco taxes are crumbling like the ash on a cheap cigar, along with the percentage of Americans who smoke.

They're butting out for health reasons or because tax increases make it too expensive. Either way, the public treasury is taking a hit.

A 50-state survey by Associated Press bureaus found 20 states reporting tobacco product tax revenues in decline and 11 others that were in decline until they raised their excise tax. The rest generally were static.

The same goes for federal tobacco revenues, which fell until the excise tax went up from 16 cents to 20 cents a pack in 1991. This year it went up to 24 cents.

While tobacco taxes yield lots of ready money at first, they're unlikely to provide long-term funding for something huge and growing like universal health care.

Btu tax could be industry setback, Phillips CEO says

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

If the oil industry is singled out for an energy tax, it might not see the fruits of an economic recovery for sometime to come, said W.W. "Wayne" Allen, president and chief operating officer of Phillips Petroleum Co.

Allen

Speaking to an overflow crowd at the monthly meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, co-sponsored by Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association, Allen said the industry was still going throuh a period of downsizing, restructuring and cost-cutting and that a Btu energy tax would only set the industry back.

He said the Clinton Btu tax was just Clinton's version of the "old oil, new oil" plan of the Carter administration, and that it might be followed by a consumer tax on top of a Btu tax.

Allen, a petroleum engineering graduate from Oklahoma State University, said for Phillips to move forward in

Midland to host 1995 national theater festival

By Georgia Temple

Midland is to be the first city in Texas to host the American Association of Community Theatres National Festival, beating out nine semifinalists and three finalists to do so.

"We were, of course, very excited with the announcement that it was going to come to Texas because it's such a prestigious event," said Don Bachmann, executive director of Midland Community Theatre.

"We also hope that it is going to raise the visibility of theater arts in the community, besides bringing in additional dollars to the local economy."

The announcement was made at a Thursday press conference at the Midland Chamber of Commerce. The other finalists that had present their bids for the 1995 festival were Rochester, N.Y., Asheville, N.C., and Grand Rapids, Mich.

Credit for winning the event goes to MCT and the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Cult leader rejects appeal to surrender

WACO (AP) — Federal agents on Thursday evening made a surrender appeal over blaring loudspeakers to David Koresh, doomsday leader of an armed religious cult.

But a defiant reply could be heard from the group's rural compound.

"I am not coming out until my message gets out," said a voice heard on a loudspeaker by reporters over a mile away.

It could not immediately be determined if the voice was Koresh's.

Another voice was heard to say, "David, we are not here to hurt you. We are here to help you."

The same voice also reassured people inside the compound they would have "legal representation."

Heart attacks likely to occur on birthdays, study shows

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Doctors have uncovered what must be one of nature's crueler ironies: People are especially likely to suffer heart attacks on their birthdays.

A study released Thursday shows that people — especially men — are about 20 percent more likely to suffer a heart attack on their birthday than on other days of the same week.

Just what folks should do about this is not clear, though. Certainly birthdays cannot be avoided, as much as people might like to. But overindulgence can be, and researchers suspect that might be the real culprit.

Looking at when heart attacks occur is a hot subject of research. Experts hope their work will help reveal the forces that trigger these attacks, so they can find new ways to stop them.

Anything that reduces the number of heart attacks has a major impact on public health, since

TAX: Fewer smokers means declining revenues

(From 1A)

Base.

In 1965, the year after the first U.S. surgeon general's report linked smoking to cancer, 42.4 percent of Americans over 18 smoked. By 1990 that figure had dropped to 25.5 percent.

Accordingly, government treasuries have eased their dependence on tobacco.

Among the states, tobacco taxes peaked in 1968 in providing 5.2 percent of state revenues. That share has fallen to 1.9 percent. Smokers' current $5.8 billion contribution to the federal pot is 0.4 percent of all revenues, a mere puff compared to the 1.39 percent in 1968.

This pattern of sliding revenues has two chief causes, economists say.

Tobacco taxes don't grow with the economy, necessitating regular increases. And when tobacco taxes get high enough, some smokers quit and would-be smokers don't start. Another effect can be bootlegging and black markets.

The Minnesota Revenue Department offered this equation: For every 10 percent increase in the price of cigarettes, sales fall 4.5 percent.

The tax on smokers is "a mechanism to limit consumption," Mark Muchow, chief tax analyst for the West Virginia Division of Tax and Revenue. "Every time the cigarette tax is increased, a few more people say, 'It's time to quit.'"

Cigarettes cost, on average, $1.90 a pack, including the 24 cent federal tax and state taxes that range from Virginia's 2.5 cents to Massachusetts' 51 cents.

"It's a lot easier to add a few cents to the cigarette tax to close the budget gap, than to raise the sales tax," said Doug Olberding, a researcher at the Council of State Governments in Lexington, Ky.

New York is fairly typical. Revenues on tobacco products slid from $606 million in fiscal 1991, to $596 million in fiscal 1992. This year they're projected at $557 million.

Or take California, which pumped up its cigarette tax from 10 cents a pack to 35 cents in 1989. That only briefly stopped the natural slide in revenues. Cigarette excise taxes jumped from $560 million in fiscal 1989 to $787 million in fiscal 1990, but started to fall again the next year.

Yet this steady, if diminishing cash flow, remains attractive to lawmakers, and even presidents.

President Clinton said he may propose higher taxes on tobacco products to help pay for his national health insurance plan. Like other advocates of this idea, he suggested it's only fair smokers should pay more.

His wife and architect of health care reform proposals, Hillary Rodham Clinton, reiterated this in a recent AP interview.

The Clintons weren't the first to latch on to this idea.

Former President Jimmy Carter has endorsed a $2 federal excise tax on cigarettes sought by the American Cancer Society, American Medical Association and the American Heart Association.

The more than $30 billion it would raise, he said in a Feb. 21 letter to The New York Times, "could be put to good use paying for health care reform, childhood immunization efforts and other high priorities."

The idea of tying tobacco taxes to health care is spreading.

In Congress there's a bill that would raise the federal cigarette tax to $1 a pack and put most of the money collected into health care.

Missouri House Speaker Bob Griffin wants to raise the 13-cent cigarette tax 4 cents to pay for primary health care in his state. Oregon Gov. Barbara Roberts proposes to raise the 28-cent tobacco tax 10 cents to finance smoking prevention and education and a proposed health program. Similar arrangements have support in a dozen other states.

crats supported the Republicans.

Lawmakers then turned aside, 409-20, a second Republican plan that would have eliminated $682 billion in red ink by combining spending cuts with Clinton's tax increases on the rich.

Also rejected was a package by the liberal Black Congressional Caucus adding defense cuts and tax increases to Clinton's plan and using the extra money to finance social programs. The defeat was by a 335-87 margin.

The Democratic measures flew in the face of Republican orthodoxy that has long called for tax cuts, reductions in social spending programs and a strong defense budget. That approach prevailed when Reagan swept into the White House in 1981. But both he and successor George Bush failed to deliver on their promises of a balanced budget.

"We've had no-pain presidencies for 12 years, and now the pain facing the American people is greater than anything we could have possibly imagined," said Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas. "A president that's willing to . . . say we need to make cuts and we need to increase taxes in certain areas is a president with courage who deserves to be followed."

Republicans warned that Clinton's priorities were wrongheaded.

"They think a large federal government is the answer," said Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio. "We believe empowering the individual and getting government off individuals' backs is the answer."

But outnumbered and with no White House to protect them for the first time in 12 years, their efforts were doomed from the start. Taking no chances, Democrats even limited the number of amendments GOP lawmakers could offer, a routine tactic that nonetheless infuriated Republicans.

"We were royally zapped," Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa., moaned in an interview.

Behind the scenes, Clinton was at work. In phone calls and letters to wavering Democrats, he urged them to support his plan.

"He had all the details about jobs, all the facts and figures," said Rep. G.V. Sonny Montgomery, D-Miss., a conservative who said he got a call at home from Clinton at 10:20 p.m. Wednesday. "I just listened."

Montgomery and other conservatives were most troubled by the jobs package, which they complained would add to budget shortfalls that are already historically high. But they seemed all but ready to concede that the plan would go through.

"The president's made quite a few calls" to round up votes, said Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, a leader of the conservatives. Asked if the calls were effective, he said, "Yeah."

Just to be sure, Democratic leaders were piecing together an amendment trimming the jobs package by about $10 million. Its goal was to remove projects that Republicans had chided as ludicrous wastes of money: $3.2 million to produce atlases about fish populations and $800,000 to get America's white water canoeing team ready for the 1996 Olympics.

The Democratic aim was clear: win big and convince the public that gridlock is over.

"The goal here is to have the fewest number of Democrats defect," Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., one of the party's vote counters, said in an interview. "We're interested in demonstrating we have the capacity to govern."

said she could not confirm the use of the loudspeakers. And a representative for the FBI could not immediately be reached.

However, agents have acknowledged previously that they set up loudspeakers around the cult's compound.

And FBI agent Bob Ricks said Thursday that authorities have become worried that Koresh isn't giving his 104 followers an accurate picture of the steps they are taking to end a 19-day siege.

"So we will be continuing to explore different ways to reach those people who are not receiving information that they should," Ricks said Thursday morning.

dead.

Twenty-five people, including 21 children, have left the cult since then. The four adults have been held as material witnesses.

Federal magistrate Dennis Green ruled Thursday that one of them, Kathryn Schroeder, could be released from jail on a $10,000 bond. But prosecutors immediately asked for a federal judge to reconsider the decision, leaving Ms. Schroeder in jail until a hearing next Wednesday.

Koresh had little participation in negotiations for several days, apparently because of wounds suffered in the gunfight.

His re-entry into the discussions Wednesday eroded progress made earlier in the week, which had included a face-to-face meeting between cult members and law officers, Ricks said.

The cult member who led negotiations in Koresh's absence, Steve Schneider, told authorities earlier this week that up to 30 cultists would leave if they were satisfied with the treatment they would receive from law officers.

On Wednesday afternoon, the FBI prepared specific answers to legal questions they had posed, drove three buses up to the compound and urged Koresh to "let these people go," Ricks said.

But Koresh did not respond, saying he had to go to the bathroom and never returned, the FBI agent said.

"He was not able, we believe, to handle direct confrontation," Ricks said. "He is a person who has totally dominated everyone inside that compound. It's very difficult for him to have anyone push demands on him. It's totally a one-way street."

Nevertheless, Ricks said authorities "feel no urgency" to forcefully end the standoff.

"We believe an effort to bring this thing down forcefully will result in many lives being lost," he said. "We believe that those lives will not be lost on our side."

President Clinton remembered the four ATF agents who died Feb. 28 during a speech in Washington Thursday, noting three had been assigned to protect him during last year's campaign.

"I know that all of you join with me in praying for a peaceful and sure and quick conclusion to the events in Waco," Clinton said during a speech at the Treasury Department.

He also said: "We're very concerned that part of Koresh's grand scheme is he would like to see a large number of his people die, which would be justification for his pronouncements of the fulfillment of the scriptures."

ENERGY: Phillips to change strategies, CEO says the oil industry it was adopting long-term commitment to continuous improvement, strategic relationships, and closer cooperation with other operating companies. But he said the centerpiece for the company's external strategy was to transform the way it relates to suppliers.

Calling them "strategic relationships," Allen said the plan was to formalize strong informal relationships and improve them to reduce costs for both supplier and Phillips. This will be achieved through gain sharing, in which any cost savings directly attributable to the alliance will be shared by all parties.

"If both sides contribute, both sides should benefit. If suppliers provide services which add value, they should be rewarded," said Allen, adding that in today's environment, companies must reduce the total cost rather than pay the lowest cost for each and every item or service.

Allen said such arrangements were the wave of the future, and said Phillips was shifting from "management of quality to quality of management." We are moving from just improving the product to improving the business process.

A new plan being tried by Phillips toward this end is an employee incentive plan that will reward employees who meet or exceed predetermined targets that result in continuous improvement of performance.

He said employees of business units would now be accountable for delivering agreed-upon performance for safety, expenses and cash flow from operations. Allen said cash flow was not the only expectation, that customer satisfaction would also be a part of the program.

Other changes in management includes new rules for corporate procurement and reorganization of partnerships within the company.

"To retain our business, suppliers will have to prove the service they provide is useful to us. We want suppliers who can deliver what we want, in the right quantities, every time, on time and who can provide value-added services."

He said the oil industry faces major challenges in 1993 and it behooves companies to control that which is within their power.

"We can't control oil prices, OPEC or the national economy and we can't control the weather or what goes on inside the Beltway around Washington D.C., but when it comes to basics, we have some real assets to work with. We have world-class technology, a good reputation for quality, and a trained and motivated work force. The challenge is to leverage these strengths through better business processes."

Someone steals man's artificial leg from truck

NOVATO, Calif. (NYT) — A custodian is appealing to the public for help in recovering his $16,000 artificial leg, which was stolen from his truck.

Ken Genazzi, 34, who lives in Petaluma, made a quick stop at a 7-Eleven store on Wednesday afternoon. Wearing his backup prosthesis, he walked in and bought a soda and cigarettes, discovering minutes later that the high-tech leg had been snatched from the front seat of his unlocked truck.

Genazzi believes the culprit was one of several teen-agers he saw loitering near his truck when he entered the store.

"I can see teen-agers doing it as a joke or something, but they don't realize the value of it," Genazzi said. "I'd like to have it back."

The teen-agers, Genazzi said, were probably enticed by the novelty of the appliance.

"Obviously it has no value to them, but it's valuable to me," he said.

"It's kind of sick, in a way, to take someone's leg. Maybe they'll make a planter out of it."

Genazzi's insurance will cover replacement of the skin-toned, plastic and metal limb. Prosthetic devices range in cost from $3,000 to $20,000, depending on the model, according to a manufacturer.

However, for Genazzi, a replacement will not be the same.

"That was the good one," he said. "The old one I have on now is uncomfortable."

Genazzi lost his right leg in a bicycle accident when he was 13. He said it will take his doctor about a month to fit him with a new leg — one with the special ankle device that was custom-made for him.

Genazzi pledged not to press charges if the person responsible for the theft returns the leg.

"I understand how teens are," he said.

HEART: Overindulgence on birthdays might cause attacks, researchers say heart attacks are the nation's biggest killer, taking 500,000 lives a year.

Dr. Alan Wilson of the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School based his birthday findings on records of 118,955 heart attacks treated over a five-year period at 90 New Jersey hospitals. He presented his data at a meeting of the American College of Cardiology.

The pattern was significantly different for men and women, Wilson said. Men's heart attack rates were 21 percent higher on their birthdays, but women's were only 9 percent higher.

"Emotional stress and overindulgence," such as drinking and smoking, might explain the birthday risk, he said. "The sex difference may give us clues about the trigger."

The study of what touches off heart attacks is one of the newest in cardiology. It began with the discovery by Dr. James Muller in 1985 that people face their highest risk of heart attack during the first hour or two of the morning.

"There is a lot of interesting information coming out on emotional stress. A birthday is a big event," said Muller, a physician at Deaconess Hospital in Boston.

Wilson also found that people are more likely to be seen for heart attacks on the day after holidays. Heart attacks were 16 percent more common than expected on the day after New Year's, 28 percent higher after Easter and 17 percent higher after the Fourth of July.

Several studies have found that heart attacks are also more common on Mondays and during the winter.

However, a British study presented at the conference suggests it's cold weather, not just the time of year, that is bad for the heart. It found that heart attacks are more common than expected even on brisk days in the summer.

Heart attacks "occur more commonly on colder days, regardless of the time of the year," said Dr. Bradley Marchant of London Chest Hospital.

MCT: Festival should bring community about $500,000, chamber's King says on the part of the chamber, especially Anita Rogers, who did a very fine job on her end.

(From 1A)

"It's not only important that you select the theater, which we all know is one of the finest performing spaces in the whole country, but you also have to sell your community."

The festival, which includes five days of dramatic play competition and theater workshops, will bring nearly 500 community theater professionals and volunteers to Midland.

Generally, the participants stay 10 days to two weeks in an area, Bachmann said.

The money, which will turn over in the community as a result of the festival, will amount to a conservative estimate of $500,000, said Janna King, president and CEO of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

The direct spending in the local economy, Ms. King said, is based on $75 a day for each person.

Bachmann said Midland and MCT were chosen to host the event because of: the ease of access in and out of the city; geographic location within the United States; transportation arranged by the chamber with the Midland Independent School District; the chamber securing good motel and hotel rates; a state-of-the-art theater facility; ancillary activities in the community and surrounding area; restaurants downtown and around Theatre Midland; and the percentage of volunteer support for the theater in a community of this size.

"The overall package that was offered by the theater and the Chamber of Commerce addressed all their concerns and met all their needs," Bachmann said.

"The cooperation on this bid between the theater and the Convention and Visitors Bureau is a great example of how a local group can work with the CVB to bring a national convention to our community," Ms. King said.

The American Association of Community Theatres was impressed by MCT's support in the community.

"Midland Community Theatre has a wide base of community support," Bachmann said. "We have the manpower to make the event happen."

The cost to bring AACTFest here in 1995 will be around $60,000.

"The money will be raised by Midland Community Theatre," Bachmann said, adding that some will come from festival registration. Bachmann said he also hopes to receive some grant money from the Texas Commission on the Arts.

The national festival for American community theaters began in 1971, but was set in motion earlier by Art Cole, founding director of MCT and president of the national association from 1968 to 1970. Cole is considered to be one of the principal founders of the national festival.

Bachmann pointed out it is most appropriate for the AACTFest to be held in Midland on MCT's 50th anniversary.

"We wanted to honor the founding of MCT by Art and Ruth Cole," Bachmann said. "We also wanted to bring some recognition to the theater, and one of the best ways of doing that is to host a national event."

Before being eligible to attend the national festival, finalists must have won AACTFest competitions in their state and region, leaving only the top 10 troupes in the nation to compete at the finals. All regional winners become eligible to represent the United States at international festivals around the world.

Every four years, a winner represents the United States at the World Amateur Theatre Festival started by Prince Rainier III and Princess Grace of Monaco.

In 1995, one of the 10 theaters competing in the finals will be chosen to go to Monaco. When the Monaco festival began in 1965, MCT represented the United States at the by-invitation event.

Police accuse drug lord in Bombay bombings

NEW DELHI, India (NYT) — The Bombay police said on Thursday night that they now believed that a major drug lord in the city who has fled to Dubai was responsible for the wave of bombings last Friday that killed 232 people, wounded more than 1,400, and severely damaged major buildings.

The police commissioner, Amarjit Singh Samra, made the announcement at a news conference at which he said that two men were arrested on Thursday and that they had confessed that the drug smuggler had paid them about $160 to plant some of the bombs.

For a week, India has been gripped by uncertainty over whether the country faced foreign-inspired terrorism to destabilize the country; members of the governing Congress Party and the opposition Hindu party have publicly accused Pakistan of organizing the bombings, assertions that have aggravated India's already tense relations with its neighbor.

The spokesman for the Congress Party has said that India should have Pakistan declared a terrorist state. The Bombay police have said that a plastic explosive was used in the bombings, a finding that some politicians saw as proof that their neighbor was involved, but a Western diplomat in New Delhi said on Thursday that even that was no longer certain.

The announcement on Thursday, if it is borne out, appears to undermine suspicions about Pakistan, and an explosion in Calcutta four days after the blasts in Bombay is now thought to be unrelated.

Samra said that the police had "clinching evidence" that implicated Ibrahim Abdul Razaq Memon, a Bombay drug lord known as Tiger, as well as his family. The commissioner said the two men arrested on Thursday said that Memon had hired them to spread chaos in the city.

"They really didn't seem to understand what they were doing," Samra said. "The were given some 5,000 rupees for the job. Later, when they saw it happen, I think they themselves were scared."

Samra said that the Memon family intended to incite chaos because they believed it would help their drug-smuggling operations.

South Korean premier denies threat of war despite nuclear tension

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korean leaders tried to assure their people Thursday that the dispute over North Korea's nuclear program would not lead to war.

Tensions began growing last week, when the North unexpectedly announced that it was quitting the nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, thus releasing it from the obligation to allow international inspections of its nuclear sites.

The withdrawal reinforced suspicions that the hard-line Communist North is developing nuclear weapons, despite its denials. South Korea, the United States and other Western nations denounced the North's decision.

The North, in turn, blames rising tensions on the divided peninsula on U.S.-South Korean war exercises that ended on Thursday.

A South Korean newspaper reported Thursday that Seoul would be willing to discontinue the maneuvers if the North would rejoin the treaty, but the South's foreign minister said he knew nothing about this.

In Vienna, Austria, meanwhile, the International Atomic Energy Agency held a special meeting to discuss persuading North Korea to reconsider.

In a resolution, the agency said it was "urgent" that the North enable the agency "to take the necessary measures to resolve differences and to ensure" compliance with a safeguards agreement.

"The name of the game in North Korea has to be nuclear transparency, and that means continuing inspections," said David Kyd, a spokesman for the U.N. agency.

If North Korea continues to refuse nuclear inspections, possible actions include sanctions by the U.N. Security Council.

North Korea maintains its nuclear program is peaceful and says two sites the agency has demanded to inspect are military installations it is not obligated to open to outsiders.

The North's official Korean Central News Agency, monitored in Tokyo, said Thursday that the "dark clouds of another war" loomed because of U.S. efforts to pressure North Korea into agreeing to abide by the nuclear treaty.

It urged South Koreans to press for the withdrawal of all U.S. troops and nuclear weapons from their nation, saying that if U.S. "adventures" led to nuclear war, the Korean peninsula would be the first place devastated.

South Korea has said it is free of nuclear weapons, but the North maintains that U.S. troops stationed there keep nuclear arms in the country.

The North has declared a "semi-war" footing to protest the U.S.-South Korean war games.

South Korean Prime Minister Hwang In-sung, however, discounted the threat on war, saying Thursday that the real threat came from the North's withdrawal from the nuclear treaty.

"The people are worried about a war because of North Korea's withdrawal from the (nuclear treaty), but there is no war under the current situation," Hwang said.

Still, rumors about an imminent war led some South Koreans to stock up on basic necessities, news reports said.

First 1993 case of cholera spurs cleanup efforts

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Sanitation crews have begun removing tons of refuse, including old tires and dead dogs, from dry arroyo beds in a neighborhood where a woman was recently diagnosed with cholera.

No more cholera cases have been detected since the woman in Colonia Lopez Mateos in the western part of the city contracted the disease after eating contaminated seafood. The woman recovered and neither her family nor neighbors were infected, health officials said.

But Sanitation Superintendent Carlos Garcia said the arroyos are being cleaned out and later will be enclosed with concrete because they could become avenues for diseases like cholera to spread throughout neighborhoods without sewerage.

"When it rains, water puddles form in the arroyos and that becomes a breeding ground for insects that could pass on diseases to people," Garcia said.

Cholera is a highly contagious disease contracted through contact with food or water contaminated with fecal matter. Primary symptoms include severe diarrhea and dehydration, which can kill a victim if not treated quickly.

More than 700,000 cholera cases have been reported in the Western Hemisphere since an epidemic broke out in Peru in 1991.

Tragedy stresses danger of tracks

Many a motorist in Midland, straddling the railroad tracks and waiting for a red light to change, has experienced the same fear that raced through the minds of motorists trapped in congested traffic in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Wednesday.

The situation there ended in tragedy when the Silver Star Amtrak train from New York City rammed into a gasoline tanker trapped in traffic, igniting a giant fireball that killed the tanker driver, five others, and injured at least 21 people who were either waiting in cars at the tracks or passengers on the train.

We're not going to second-guess what happened at Fort Lauderdale, but there was a time a few years back in this country when no driver of any vehicle would allow himself to get caught on railroad tracks whether he could see a train approaching or not. To do so was too risky and the results too certain. Motorists would simply stop before driving onto the tracks, if they had to wait for the traffic in front of them to move out of the way. But in today's fast-paced society, complete with highways jammed with vehicles, motorists have largely thrown caution to the wind and pull across tracks even if they have to wait in that position for two minutes or longer. In most instances, traffic thins out and they can advance with no problem.

What occurred in Fort Lauderdale should be a warning to motorists to think long and hard before stopping on railroad tracks, even if they think they'll be in that position for only a minute or two.

If motorists get caught in a situation crossing tracks where a train is seen approaching, they should get out of their vehicles and flee; nothing is gained by staying in a vehicle and thinking the worst will not happen.

It's sad that it takes a tragedy to remind motorists not to take chances where trains are concerned, but after the Florida disaster drivers should make up their minds not to get stranded on railroad tracks.

Abortion clinics now exist in war zone

WASHINGTON — Guard dogs, razor wire, panic buttons, video cameras and bodyguards are not typically associated with medical environments. Yet this is the picture of the bunker mentality that has gripped abortion clinics across the country.

Anderson

"These are health facilities that are forced to function like maximum security prisons," said Ron Fitzsimmons, a lobbyist who represents about 200 abortion clinics nationwide.

Even before the recent murder of a doctor outside a Pensacola, Fla., abortion clinic, a radical fringe of the pro-life movement has been resorting to violence and sabotage to achieve results on the streets that they've failed to achieve through the system.

With little fanfare, the battleground of the abortion controversy has been shifting from the Congress and the courts — where pro-choice advocates are winning — to the doorsteps of clinics and even the driveways of doctors, where militant pro-lifers prevail, thanks to a combination of pranks and black-bag jobs.

"When I came to work here, never did I think that I would be working with undercover intelligence and a police bomb squad," said Ashley Phillipps, executive director of a woman's clinic in San Diego that was recently subjected to a butyric acid attack — one of more than 40 occurring within the last year. The chemical is poured into hypodermic needles and injected through key holes, under doors or through ventilation shafts at the clinics.

"Every package that comes into the clinic improperly labeled is considered a bomb," one clinic administrator told our associate Melinda Maas. "The packages are dumped in water or simply turned away." As a result, patients are getting searched before entering clinics and are forced to flash ID.

A clinic director compared this climate to serving in a "MASH" unit: "We are trying to perform surgery, while being threatened by bombs, chemicals, hate mail and violent protesters. It's like working in a war zone."

Less threatening but highly disruptive is the technique of tying up telephone lines. "They put their phones on redial and just keep calling," one clinic staffer told us. "Or a bunch of them call and make appointments they don't show up for, so we're left with no patients that day."

One of the more ominous developments is the way the battle often is taken far beyond the boundaries of a clinic, to the private lives of clinicians. Families, friends and landlords of abortion providers are targeted for violence and harassment. In Minnesota, Dr. Sue Wicklund's daughter was followed to school by protesters who stood outside her classroom and distributed flyers calling her mother a baby killer.

Physicians are stalked on the freeways, picketed at their homes and blocked into their driveways. Tom Tucker, who owns and operates three clinics, was boxed in by three cars at a traffic light and then run off the road by an unidentified man who was shadowing him. Tucker claims that protesters have followed him to the airport and even to Pizza Hut. They have "broken every window in every building I own," he said. "The other day, when I went into JCPenny to buy socks, they came in behind me screaming 'baby killer.'"

Jeri Rasmussen, executive director of an abortion clinic in Minneapolis, says she's been stalked for three years, forcing her to install a home security system.

Jack Anderson's and Michael Binstein's column is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

CHARLEY REESE

Trade pact could take your job to Mexico

The North American Free Trade Treaty is the big test for President Bill Clinton. By his actions on this issue, we can infer if he is sincerely interested in helping the American people or if he is just another front for the money merchants.

Reese

This treaty, if ratified as is, will undo overnight all else Clinton claims he wants to do in terms of restoring Americans to a decent standard of living. It will suck American jobs south of the border like a vacuum sucks up ants.

At the moment, Clinton is in his fence-straddling position — he says he favors the treaty but wants side agreements. Well, that's almost like a fellow telling a woman he wants to marry her but only if she signs a pre-nuptial agreement that he won't have to live with her.

If anybody tells you that the Mexican government can be forced to allow free trade unions and honest enforcement of environmental, worker safety and health standards by an addenda to a treaty, they are lying. And they know they are lying and they are hostile to the interests of American workers and decent American businessmen. That's true whether they are politicians or members of the AFL-CIO.

The meat of the nut is this: Products made in Mexico will come into the U.S. duty-free. Mexican labor earns, if they are lucky, $1 to $1.50 an hour. Are you going to pay an American $7 to $9 an hour to put together a gadget a Mexican can put together for $1 an hour? Do frogs fly? Do you think an honest American farmer, wrapped in environmental and labor regulations, can compete with an Mexican outfit as free of restraint as Genghis Khan?

Thomas Jefferson observed once, "Merchants love nobody," and on another occasion remarked, "Merchants are the least virtuous citizens and posses the least love of country."

There are exceptions to everything, but my own observations are that Jefferson was mostly right. Certainly nothing that has happened in 20th Century America, particularly since the end of WWII, would refute Jefferson's observation.

Nike, for example, closed its last U.S. shoe factory in 1984 and sent the jobs overseas. Indonesian workers, according to the United Auto Workers, make 14 cents an hour and it cost Nike $5.35 in materials and labor to produce a pair of shoes it sells in the U.S. for about $125.

What has that to do with free trade with Mexico? It shows the mentality of big business: Neither the worker who makes the shoe nor the purchaser who buys it benefits. Both are exploited. So if you think corporate America, handed a cheap labor force on the silver platter of the treaty, will disdain to partake, then you are naive.

So Clinton, who has surrounded himself with millionaire lobbyists, financiers and lawyers as economic advisors, will soon have to decide if he wishes to restore the American standard of living or follow up on George Bush's plans to lower the American standard of living.

Charley Reese's column is distributed by King Features Syndicate.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

'New Democrat' Clintons are older than they look

Here's the conundrum: If the Clintons are, as they say, "new Democrats," how come they behave like the "old Democrats" they say they aren't?

Murchison

Because in fact they are old Democrats? As we near the end of the Clinton Era's second month, the evidence on this score isn't what a proponent of limited government might call encouraging.

We have to find out first of all what an "old" Democrat may be. A useful way to put the question is: Does the politician under scrutiny want to shrink or expand the federal government? Old Democrats — the Kennedys, Humphreys, Johnsons, Mondales, McGoverns, O'Neills and so on — were (and still are) notoriously fond of statutes, taxes, regulations and mandates. Their notion of rights seldom compassed the right to be left alone by government. The old Democrats favored, among other things, higher taxes and government health care.

The old Democrats had notable links to special interest groups, chiefly labor and the major civil rights organizations. When possible, they advanced the interests of those groups.

One group the old Democrats conspicuously opposed was "the rich," who were credited with designs on the lifeblood of the poor. Old Democrats heckled "the rich" with fine abandon and sought to redistribute their resources.

The old Democrats accepted the need for the military but weren't fond of its self-contained, hierarchical structure; mainly, they wanted the money it spent.

Now: Where's the difference, the real difference, between the Clintons and the O'Neills? If it's there, it sure doesn't show.

The Clinton program calls for massive expansion of the federal government, financed in large part by tax increases. There's to be a government program of national health care, as sought all these years by Ted Kennedy. The key to the program is managed competition — managed by, you guessed it, the federal government.

In fact, the Clintons want a bigger say in managing the economy as a whole: directing resources where the federal planners decide they are most needed. Listening to Clinton, one doesn't hear many tributes, such as were common in the Reagan years, to the ingenuity and inventiveness of the free marketplace, aka the sovereign people voting with their dollars. There is instead the constant refrain that the people need help, government help.

The Clinton Democrats, in approved old-Democrat fashion, cock attentive ears to what big labor is saying. The Clintonites favor repeal or liberalization of the 54-year-old Hatch Act, whose ban on political activity by federal workers crimps the influence of government employee unions. Whereas President Bush had suspended the Davis-Bacon Act, which lets local unions set government construction wages, Clinton reinstated it.

To all of which one may say: So what? Does it matter that the new Democrats are older than they look? It matters plenty. There was a reason the Clintonites affected newness: The old tax-and-spend policies backfired a long time ago, making the country poorer rather than richer, the government bigger and costlier. Though Clinton sold himself as a new commodity, his ideas so far have the quality of the echo chamber. We have heard it all before.

More should consider hiring older workers

Family Services, a Midland United Way agency, is proud to join with employers all over Texas in celebrating Older Worker Week, March 14-20. Gov. Ann Richards recognized the value of these workers by stating: "Thousands of older Texans offer employers the experience and wisdom of a lifetime of hard work and dedication."

For over a year now, Family Services has participated in the Senior Texans Employment Program (STEP). We could not be more pleased with the delightful and skilled employee that has come to work with us under this program. STEP is administered by the Farmers Union Community Development Association Inc. with state and federal funds provided through the Texas Department of Aging.

I would urge all employers in Midland to "Consider hiring older workers — a great natural resource!"

New economic plan is needed, won't hurt

Since we do not have a touch-tone phone we take it this means to be heard in the poll on President Clinton's economic plan. Dorothy Matthews and Mona Caswell do not speak for all of us on fixed incomes when they say it is unfair and will hurt everyone, even the wealthy.

First let us say that those on low incomes will be better off. Those on low Social Security will not be hurt. Those like us will pay more taxes but tell us how it will hurt? We feel fortunate, and are glad to do our part. If we sacrifice anything, and we don't even see that, it would be something that people in any other country never had in the first place.

Further, let us say that everyone who is able will be asked to contribute, but it is NOT going to hurt. If we do not, our grandchildren will live in a Third World country in another 10 to 20 years.

After living in Midland for over 20 years, we have found it to be a pessimistic, rather than a conservative town. It seems this is nationwide. They talk a good life, but live another.

We live the way they talk — we do not subscribe to Ronald Reagan's "borrow and spend" philosophy. We do not spend more than we have, and always have more than we spend. Ronald Reagan, the actor, was a master of illusion and he created the illusion of plenty, while our nation was being looted and bills were not being paid. People with credit cards do that all the time. Poor George couldn't keep up the illusion, as the bills came down on his watch, but he did this one thing for us, we were "DIS-illusioned, by George." Now the bills are past due, so we might as well stand up like men or should we say women, bite the bullet and pay the bills, and for God's sake, stop the sniveling crybaby act of "It hurts, it won't work." Talk about deadbeat granddads, they want to pass it on to our grandchildren who will live in Third World poverty all their lives.

Greed is an equal opportunity sin and seems to cross all lines, but for our nation it is a deadly sin — and could be the death of a nation.

Ask lawmakers to tag 'peacekeeping' costs

While those in power push for a standing U.N. army and U.S. taxpayers pay for U.N. "peacekeeping," please join me in asking our congressman and senator how much the Somalia incursion and the latest Kuwait/Iraq operations are costing — and where in the Constitution such expenditures are authorized.

Speaking of the Constitution, beware of those who are calling for a Constitutional Convention in order to balance the budget or to attempt to solve other "emergency" situations. This wonderful document may be the only thing standing between us and total slavery. We must read and study it and teach it to our children for if the foundations be destroyed what can the righteous do?

Comet may be related to fall of dinosaurs

Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — The largest impact crater in the United States apparently was formed a hundred thousand years after an even larger impact in Mexico wiped out the dinosaurs, although a top scientist says the two events may have been related.

Gene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geologic Survey at Flagstaff, Ariz., said here Monday that studies of fallout from the two events show clearly that they were separated in time.

This could indicate that both of the impacting objects were part of a stream of comets through which the Earth moved over a period of 100,000 to a million years, he said.

The impact in Mexico caused a crater about 100 miles across and blanketed the Earth with dust that blocked out the sun. Every species of land animal larger than about 50 pounds was wiped out.

The largest impact crater in the United States is near Manson, Iowa, and was found in the 1950s by geologists puzzled by strange changes in rock layers as revealed by cuttings from water wells.

This crater is only about 18 miles across — far too small to have caused a global extinction — but because the impact occurred at the end of the Cretaceous age, scientists have long suspected there might be some connection.

Shoemaker is one of more than 600 scientists taking part in the 24th annual Lunar & Planetary Science Conference at Johnson Space Center. The conference is sponsored by the Lunar and Planetary Institute and NASA.

In another session on cratering, R.J. Bottomley of Canadian Union College, College Heights, Alberta, said a big Siberian crater that was briefly thought to have played a role in the Cretaceous extinction has been dismissed from the list of suspects.

Studies of argon gas trapped in rock gathered from the Popigai impact crater indicate that the impact occurred long after the event that brought the Cretaceous age to an end.

Early studies by Russian scientists put the age of this crater at 30 million to 40 million years. Two years ago, however, tests of a sample indicated that it might be 65 million years old, the right age to have played a role in the death of the dinosaurs.

Secretary's pacemaker operation successful, surgeons say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeons implanted a silver dollar-size pacemaker just below Defense Secretary Les Aspin's collarbone Thursday to control a worsening heart condition. Doctors said he probably would resume a full work schedule next week.

"It went perfectly well," said Dr. Al Soloman, the pacemaker specialist who conducted the 90-minute operation at Georgetown University Medical Center.

Dr. David Pearle, Aspin's cardiologist, said that although the defense secretary was suffering "a serious underlying condition," he expected the pacemaker to eliminate the coughing and breathlessness that have bothered Aspin.

Aspin, 54, has a congenital heart condition known as obstructive hypertrophic cardiomyopathy. His heart muscle has thickened, impairing its ability to pump adequate volumes of blood. Doctors said the pacemaker would relieve his symptoms by reducing the force — but not regulating the rhythm — of his heartbeat.

"We would expect him to return to a normal level of activity for him, and certainly all the things that are important for him to do within his job description," Soloman told a news conference just minutes after the operation.

"The illness comes at a difficult time for the Pentagon, which is undertaking a broad review of the nation's military requirements while preparing for Congress its plan for large cuts in the 1994 defense budget. Aspin was scheduled to discuss the budget at congressional hearings this week, but the sessions were postponed. He entered the hospital Tuesday.

Aspin remained conscious during the surgery and did not transfer his authorities as Pentagon chief, officials said.

Soloman said Aspin asked questions and joked in the operating room, and his heart murmur eased noticeably by the time he was returned to his room. He was given a local anesthetic and a mild sedative "to take the edge off" before a 1½-inch incision was made for the pacemaker just below his collarbone.

"He says, at least right now, that he feels better than before," Soloman said. "But I think the biggest part of the effect of the pacemaker is going to be seen in weeks rather than in hours or days."

Soloman said Aspin would remain in the hospital until the weekend and probably would be able to return to work next week. In a week Soloman said he would see Aspin to "fine-tune" the pacemaker and examine the incision.

Both doctors said they could not rule out the possibility that Aspin's condition would eventually require open-heart surgery. They noted that use of a pacemaker to treat Aspin's symptoms is relatively new, and that while clinical trials showed good short-term benefits, the long-term effects are not known.

Pearle said that he is uncertain whether Aspin was suffering from a bronchial condition in addition to the heart problem. On Wednesday the doctor said he had decided Aspin did not have a bronchial infection, but on Thursday he said he was not sure and would continue treatment as if an infection existed.

Jail becomes petting zoo with lion cub

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — The Bryan County Jail could have doubled for a petting zoo for a few hours Thursday as people lined up to get a look at the African lion cub that had enjoyed a bit too much freedom the night before.

Deputy Charles Quarles said the 5-month-old lion cub wandered up onto a porch in Cartwright.

Quarles said he opened up his passenger car door, but the cub, named Shawna, went around and got in on the driver's side and sat behind the wheel. He used his elbow to nudge the animal over to the passenger side and took her to the jail.

Extra jailers were on hand Thursday morning to accommodate the dozens of people who came to get a glimpse at the cub. Becky Ogden of Cartwright picked up the cub Thursday afternoon after being called by Colbert police overnight about whether her animal was missing.

ARTHRITIS PAIN RELIEF REPORT

Dr. Christopher Burda, M.D., a leading rheumatologist and arthritis researcher, reports a 93% success rate in relief of pain among his patients involved in an open-label clinical study. These patients had pain associated with arthritis, bursitis, tendinitis and other similar disorders. Their pain relief ranged from good to complete relief. The over-the-counter drug that was used was the new AURUM analgesic lotion. AURUM is a rich, smooth, topically applied lotion for deep penetrating temporary relief from arthritis pain.

Dr. William G. Brelsford, M.D., while conducting a double-blind study at a leading research center said that AURUM can provide a significant level of pain relief for the discomfort of bursitis, tendinitis, arthritis and similar soft tissue injuries and disorders.

Dr. Joseph Kahn, Ph.D., P.T., of New York, a leading physiotherapist and author of the well known textbook "Principles and Practice of Electrotherapy," reports that all of his patients who used AURUM received temporary relief from pain. He said, "AURUM is a significant adjunct in the treatment of arthritis."

AURUM is formulated in a rich lotion base with the highest quality ingredients and combined with powerful analgesics. AURUM is one of the most effective pain relieving applications available without a prescription. AURUM is a safe, tested, alternative to prescription drugs without concern of gastrointestinal problems associated with some pills or tablets. AURUM contains Methyl Salicylate and 24 Karat Gold. Consult physician if allergic.

AURUM will be available in local drug and grocery stores. AURUM is relatively new on the market and some retailers may not be aware of its availability. Ask your retailer to order it through their wholesale drug supplier for next day delivery.

If you have any difficulty finding the product, please ask your pharmacist to call 1-800-256-9008. AURUM is available now at Albertsons pharmacies.

Programs to receive additional funding

■ Program to distribute $1.3 million to low-to-moderate income areas.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

A wide range of community improvement programs benefiting residents of southeast Midland will receive additional funding this year due to Midland's soaring poverty rate.

The Community Development Block Grant program, which serves areas of low-to-moderate income, will distribute $1.3 million in federal funds this summer — a 33 percent jump from the $856,000 offered last year.

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development used 1990 census figures to determine their specific allocations. That change showed an increase in Midland's poverty rate from 6,093 in the 1980 census to 12,774 in 1990 count. The national poverty level for a family of four is an income of $1,163 a month.

"We're very happy with this sum," said Sylvester Cantu, CDBG Coordinator. "We'll be able to do a lot more in that area of town this year. Of course, it's bad that our poverty is rising, but I still guess we're below the national average."

The 1994 fiscal year grant, which is offered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, will serve citizens living south of Illinois Avenue and east of Midkiff Road or east of Big Spring Street north of Illinois.

Although the majority of the money will be given to community improvement programs — such as infrastructure work, public facilities, housing programs and economic development — a portion of the funds can be used for public services.

"The city council can put in 15 percent of the total ($190,350) to help support public services." Cantu said.

Last year some of those public service programs included: the Southeast Senior Nutrition Program, $56,000 to feed 80 people every day; Citywide Community Services, $10,000 for a home-cleaning program and $25,000 for the Northeast YMCAs Senior Wellness Program.

The largest allocation of last year's CDBG money — $250,000 — went toward street paving projects, which included paving 15 miles of streets and installing curbs and gutters on at least 12 streets.

Other programs that were offered CDBG money included: $50,000 for the Homeownership Incentive Program, which helped provide down payments for nearly 100 families last year; $30,000 for the Housing Emergency Repairs Program, which provided emergency repairs for gas lines, sewer lines and water heaters for homes of low-income senior citizens; $150,000 for improvements at the proposed eastside community park; $35,000 for improvements at Martin Luther King Park and $45,000 for the demolition of about 45 abandoned Midland homes. An additional $70,000 went toward CDBG administrative costs.

People interested in seeking funding for their programs this year have until May 7 to apply at the city's Planning Division Office. The first public hearing on May 25 will allow groups to push their programs to the City Council. Prospective applicants will be required to attend an April 14 workshop detailing program requirements.

Family specializes in VW 'bug repair'

By Amy Keen
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH — If someone were to tell Tommy Tarter that he and his whole family had gone a little buggy, he'd probably just grin and consider it a compliment.

For years, the Tarters have all been nuts — bug nuts, that is, as in crazy about Volkswagen Beetles, those humpbacked, kid-colored cars with engines that sound like an idling lawn mower.

Call Tommy Tarter crazy like a fox. He turned his love of the cute little econo-cars into his business. He's a mechanic. And each of his four grown children also specializes in bug repair, repainting, reupholstering and refurbishing.

The only advertising done for the Bug Shop, 10024 Jacksboro Highway, is maybe two or three customers' Beetles parked out front. That, and the contented customers across the country and beyond who have spread the word.

That business has been steady since Tarter set up shop at the location in 1979 — and 10 years before that in Azle — is testament to his and his family's work, since VW stopped U.S. sales of the convertible-model Beetle in 1979 and the hardtop earlier.

"I bought a Volkswagen in 1961 and I drove it back and forth to work before I went to work for them, in Wichita Falls," Tarter said recently, standing in front of shelves full of Volkswagen parts.

On his left was a wall hung with fenders. On his right was a display of before and after photos of his family's work, along with a shelf full of toy bugs as small as an inch in length. On the floor was a decades-old, child sized, motorized and driveable bug that has been used in many an Azle High School homecoming parade.

Tarter said his years under the hood of a Volkswagen have convinced him that Beetles have lasting power beyond most new cars, including the new generation of VWs.

"That's what sold me on them," he said. "I've never done without a bug since then."

But why are so many people still sold on a car that's no longer made, one for which parts are sometimes hard to find?

Tarter ticked off the reasons on his fingers: "They're economical, they're air-cooled, and you can do anything you want with them. You can drive it like a dune buggy one day and then drive it to work the next, and it'll do just as good both ways. You can't ever wear them out. You can wreck them, but you can't wear them out."

Tarter said that repair work is the "bread and butter" of his business, with his sons, Darryl, 32, specializing in rebuilding and repairing VW engines and Ricky, 30, doing general repairs and tune-ups.

Both sons also race souped-up models at Volkswagen trade shows. The shop features trophies and plaques inscribed with their victories, as well as awards for best interiors and best paint jobs.

Down the street, at Tarter's Paint & Body, 9844 Jacksboro Highway, his middle son, Tony, 31, does body work and painting on all types of cars, and his sister, Debra Tarter Conway, installs new upholstery, headliners, carpeting and door panels. They also special-

Senate passes 'potty parity' bill for more women's restrooms

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Senate on Thursday approved a bill that would require new stadiums and other facilities to increase the number of women's restrooms.

The so-called "potty parity" issue gained national attention in 1990 when a Houston woman was ticketed at a concert after she used a men's restroom to avoid long lines for the women's rooms.

After the Senate sent the bill to the House on a voice vote, Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, sponsor of the measure, said. "The women of Texas thank you."

Under the bill, stadiums, arenas, or any facility where "the public congregates" would have to have double the number of women's restrooms as men's. The requirement would apply only to facilities either built or overhauled after this year.

This 2-to-1 restroom ratio "is simply an effort to face reality and provide restroom facilities in proportion to the different needs of men and women," said Barrientos, D-Austin.

Barrientos had a similar bill two years ago, but it died in the final moments of the regular legislative session. Some House members then had wanted to reduce the ratio to 3-to-2.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, presiding officer of the Senate, said he did not believe there would be any controversy over the bill this time.

Denise Wells, the woman who went to the men's room July 7, 1990, in The Summit, was tried for allegedly violating a city ordinance that prevents a person from a entering a public restroom for the opposite sex.

A jury quickly acquitted her after she testified she couldn't wait in line any longer.

Ms. Wells said Thursday she was glad the bill was being revived and hoped that this time it would become law.

"It really is a problem and needs to be addressed," she said. She recently went to a Houston Rockets game at The Summit and "even in the private club level there are women waiting in line," she said.

Under the bill, stadiums, arenas, or any facility where 'the public congregates' would have to have double the number of women's restrooms as men's.

Midland's March rebates fall; year remains strong

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Although March sales tax rebates to the city were lower than during the same period last year, total payments this year for both the city and county remain strongly ahead of last year's pace, according to recently released figures from the state comptroller's office in Austin.

This month's payments include those collected by monthly filers for January sales. Sales taxes are reported to the comptroller by businesses on either a monthly, quarterly or annual basis.

The city received a payment of $566,802 this month, a 3.37 percent decrease from the $586,564 paid in March 1992.

The city's year-to-date payments for the first three months have totaled $2,558,218, or 8.63 percent higher than the $2,354,882 collected in the same period last year.

February payments — for taxes collected in December — showed a significant 17.54 percent increase.

Meanwhile, Midland County's March payment, also based on taxes collected in January, showed a slight drop from the same period last year. But the 1993 total is showing a substantial rise from last year at the same time.

The monthly payment decreased 4.88 percent, from $335,890 last year to $319,490 in March 1993.

Year-to-date payments for the county in the first three months of the year have totaled $1,455,037, a 12 percent jump from the $1,299,651 collected last year at this time.

Statewide, a total of $101.7 million in March sales tax payments were issued to 929 cities and 109 counties, an 11.1 percent increase from the payments of one year ago.

Broken down, the cities received $91.4 million in sales tax payments, up 11.3 percent from the $82.1 million paid out in March 1992. Counties were given $10.2 million in payments, a 9.4 percent rise from the $9.3 million paid during the same month last year.

Midland officials to move ahead with expansion

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

City officials plan to move ahead with the expansion of Martin Luther King Jr. Park following a third town hall meeting Thursday night.

The meetings, which were held to solicit suggestions from the community on possible additions and improvements for the park, were sparsely attended, but officials believe they were essential in the future development of the park.

"It's a community affair. It's up to them to say what they want to go with this and tell us where they want to put the money," said District 2 council member Juluis Brooks.

The expansion project — which will increase the size of the park from three to five acres — will include a regulation size basketball court, a sand volley-

Official returns from talks in Mexico

GRAPEVINE (AP) — U.S. Commerce Secretary Ron Brown said his first meeting abroad with Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari on free trade was "exhilarating."

"I couldn't be more encouraged," Brown said during a stopover at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Thursday afternoon. "I met with Salinas like two old friends having a reunion."

Brown stopped in Texas on his way back to Washington from Mexico, where he conferred with Salinas and other Mexican leaders. Brown made the trip to express the Clinton administration's continued support for the North American Free Trade Agreement.

NAFTA was completed in August by the Bush administration and is designed to dismantle virtually all trade barriers between the three nations over a 15-year period starting Jan. 1, 1994.

A long list of opponents to NAFTA testified last week at a House hearing and the administration was told bluntly by lawmakers that the deal as written cannot win congressional passage.

But Brown and U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor say supplemental agreements will be strong enough to persuade fence-sitters to accept the agreement.

Some labor groups have protested the agreement, claiming that NAFTA will cause U.S. jobs to go to Mexico.

"There is no data to support that assertion," Brown said, adding that "we need to be sensitive to the needs of American workers."

Brown said that NAFTA should increase the number of American jobs, saying it "creates jobs because it encourages exports."

Negotiators from the United States, Mexico and Canada began work in Washington this week on questions about the environment, worker rights and protection against sudden increases in imports.

A proposed tri-national North American Environmental Commission would review complaints and report publicly on its findings.

But U.S. environmental groups and key lawmakers want the panel to have enforcement powers to require cleanup of the serious environmental problems that exist along the U.S.-Mexican border.

The Tarter family, owners of The Bug Shop, turn their love for Volkswagens into an enterprise.

BUG: Family repairs VW Beetles

ize in Volkswagens — including minibuses, fastbacks and Karmann Ghias — and cater to an owner's whims.

They've sold VW car seats to a man in Bolivia and rebuilt rusted-out bodies for bug owners in California and Florida.

Debra, inspecting a piece of royal blue carpeting at her sewing machine, said that Tony inspired her to learn how to upholster five years ago because "He knew I wanted to be in on anything my family did and be part of the family business," she explained. "We're a family that does everything together."

Tommy Tarter doesn't worry about running out of work. Plenty of bugs, he said, have been sitting for years, needing repair.

"If you go down any street in Fort Worth, one out of 10 streets would have a bug sitting in the back yard," he said. "Now, they're pulling them out. We get people all the time, at least two or three calls a week, wanting a car to look the same as the year they had one in high school.

PLAN: Officials to expand park

ball court, irrigation and landscaping improvements, the extension of the walkway and a new park sign.

George Logan, director of Community Services, believes the construction should be able to meet the allotted cost of $35,000 in City Development Block Grant money, which was issued for the project last summer.

"We would like to move on this as quickly as possible. We hope to have the work completed by the end of July," he said. "The park is well used. Our goal is to expand the recreational opportunity for the neighborhood."

Bidding for cement work, landscaping, electrical work and the irrigation system will begin next month and officials hope to hire a contractor in May.

Kelly Cook, a designer with Alldredge Gardens, presented a preliminary proposal Thursday that included a 40-foot by 8-foot wooden bridge that would cross a sunken utility easement and four-foot slopes next to the basketball court, which would create an "ampitheater effect" and would allow basketball players a place to rest during games.

Other improvements could include a pavilion and lights at the basketball and volleyball court.

Anyone interested in offering additional input on the future development of the park should contact Logan at 685-7354.

Elderly group pushes change in equity law

AUSTIN (AP) — The American Association of Retired Persons has endorsed a proposal that would allow home equity loans in Texas for whatever purpose homeowners choose.

"Older people often want to live out their lives in the family home," said Rep. Debra Danburg, D-Houston, a sponsor of the measure, in announcing the endorsement Thursday. "Why should they have a lower standard of living and be denied reverse annuity mortgages, only to leave the kids a house free and clear?"

In reverse annuity mortgages, a company can make monthly payments to a homeowner to buy the equity in a home, then take over the residence after the individual dies.

Ms. Danburg also drew from personal experience, saying that when she wanted to set up a law practice and had no collateral for a loan, she had to sell her house and buy a new one in order to use her equity.

"Texans should be able to use the equity they've built up as collateral to start a small business, send a child to college, or enhance the quality of their retirement years, just as residents of every other state in the nation can do," said Rick Smith, president of Community Bank in Waco and chairman of the Texas Conference for Homeowners' Rights.

The conference is a coalition of homeowners, lenders, senior citizens, small business owners, parents and educators.

Homeowners currently can use their home equity only to pay back taxes or for home improvements.

Texas prison system to undergo audit

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas prison system, which emerged last year from two decades of control by the federal courts, will undergo an extensive management audit that state officials described Thursday as the largest special project ever attempted by the Texas Comptroller's Office.

"We think over the next nine months we can provide or the (prison) board and for the people of the state of Texas some good ideas and some fresh insights and looks into how you design a system or perhaps redesign parts of it to make it function the very best possible way for the taxpayers," Comptroller John Sharp said.

The audit, suggested initially by Gov. Ann Richards, will be conducted by an outside accounting firm to be hired by the comptroller's office.

Sharp said he expected it would cost several hundred thousand dollars but declined to speculate on a specific figure since the project will have to be put out for competitive bids.

"We're going to bid the process out to try to get the best talent in the nation in terms of accounting firms, in terms of prison experts," he said.

Carol Vance, who took over as chairman of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice in November, said he hoped the audit would address the problem of inmates who are released and then keep returning to prison.

"I think we're all interested in one thing and that is to try to lower the recidivism rate, the revolving door so to speak," Vance said. "If we can accomplish this through this audit then I think this agency, which is already just really stretched to the hilt with the new prison construction and things going on, we can all do a better job."

The state is spending $642 million to build 25,300 beds in new prisons, plus another $125 million for regional jails that will house 10,000 more inmates. The prison system already houses 57,500 convicts, about 99.6 percent of maximum capacity. It also employs some 30,000 people.

"I think it's an excellent opportunity as the prison system and community corrections and even our parole system all increase to such large proportions," Vance said of the audit.

"We need a way to better measure what we're doing and what we're literally spending billions of dollars on, to see what programs are working and what programs are not working as effectively."

"It's not an easy thing to do to ask a bunch of outsiders to come in and take a look at your shop," Sharp said. "And in a lot of cases, it's rare in government of any kind to have that kind of thing happen. We willingly accept that."

Last year, U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice agreed that the state was running a constitutional corrections system and allowed state officials for the first time in 20 years to control its own prisons.

"The time is right to take a top-to-bottom look at the management, programs and performance of the agency," Sharp said. "Texans will pump more than $3.5 billion in state and local tax dollars into their criminal justice system this year and they have a right to know that their money is bringing them the kind of criminal justice system they demand and deserve."

Founder: King's message has less impact on today's blacks

MARSHALL (AP) — The message of nonviolence that Martin Luther King Jr. preached during the civil rights movement of the 1960s has less impact on today's blacks, the founder of the Congress of Racial Equality says.

"This country is born and bred in violence. Violence is as American as apple pie," James Farmer said in an interview prior to his return to Wiley College on Saturday for the school's 120th Founders Day.

Farmer, a Marshall native and Wiley College alumnus, saw nonviolence as the key to ending segregation in the nation in the 1960s. But Farmer told the Marshall News-Messenger he is pessimistic that nonviolence will work again.

Three decades ago, he said, young blacks and their leaders who were involved in sit-ins and demonstrations were mainly middle-class students familiar with Gandhi and Henry David Thoreau.

They knew what men like King and Farmer stood for, and most of all, Farmer said, there was an achievable goal to which nonviolence led.

Now, Farmer said, there isn't.

"Certainly the poor are more tuned in to violence and Malcolm X than they are to King and his ideas," Farmer said. "They are no more receptive now than they were when I was trying to talk about nonviolence in Harlem in 1960.

"The only group I know of that is still trying to teach nonviolence is the King Center in Atlanta. I frankly do not think it is effective because the participants are so few."

Farmer said he still believes that, as Thoreau put it, "Most of all I must see to it that I do not lend myself to the evil which I condemn."

But he said the needs are different now, and the "enemy" less identifiable, he said.

"I do think that more effective than preaching nonviolence would be coming up with creative programs to relieve the hurt that leads to violence — poverty, illiteracy, drug use and the destruction of the family," he said.

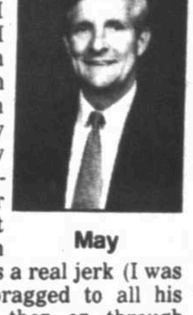
FAMILY MATTERS

Woman's addiction can be worked through

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: Ever since I was in the seventh grade, I have been having sex with someone. It all started with my girlfriend's older brother. I thought that I was in love with him and when he had sex with me (I really didn't know what he was doing), I never really thought or felt much about it. He was a real jerk (I was in love) and bragged to all his friends. From then on through high school I was a "bad girl" who all the boys hit on. I have no idea how I never got pregnant or caught any disease, but I didn't.



May

Starting even in junior high from the very beginning, I would swear to myself afterwards that this would be the last time I would ever have sex with anyone until I was married. But then the boys would call and I just couldn't say "no." When I was with them I just couldn't stop myself. I didn't enjoy it all that much but I couldn't stop them or myself.

When I went to college, I went far away where no one would know about my past. That worked until I started going to fraternity parties. As soon as I went to my first party and started drinking, the whole thing started all over again. It wasn't quite as bad as in high school because I started living with someone my sophomore year. But even then I cheated on him on occasion when someone "came on" to me. I just couldn't seem to stop. My boyfriend never found out but he suspected something was going on. I was and am a master at hiding what I was doing even then.

In spite of all the sex stuff, I made good grades and got at really good job with a (major firm) when I graduated. I had to travel several days a week with the company. In spite of my strong desires to do otherwise, I started having sex with clients and even some fellow employees on the road. During this time I got herpes, but even that wasn't enough to stop me for more than a few months. I'm ashamed to say that it really didn't matter whether they were married or not. If they "came on" to me, then I responded.

I eventually met my husband-to-be at one of the client firms. We got married less than two months after we met. At first everything was wonderful. I was able to contain my sexual needs to our marriage. During the next four years I only slipped three times and they were all with old flames. I had quit traveling and stayed in town. Recently I have had to start going on the road again. That was OK with my husband, but he doesn't know what that means.

That's why I'm writing you. I was in Midland one Friday and I happened to read your column. You are the first person I have ever shared this with. You can answer me in your column because I don't want anything from you coming to our house. I love my husband and I want to be happily married and faithful to just him. I'm so scared that when I'm on the road and some man starts coming on to me that I won't be able to stop myself again. What can I do to make myself not do this? Sign me DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: By acknowledging you have a problem, you have made a very important and necessary step. The problem you have described is both complex and potentially destructive — physically and emotionally. I encourage you to read Dr. Patrick Carnes's book, "Contrary to Love," as the next step.

While somewhat clinical and detailed, his book is very well grounded. I believe that you will find some direct answers to your questions in his discussion of sexual addiction. You can find information about is a known recovery process that helps "restore one's sanity."

The shame and despair of any seemingly unmanageable behavior can affirm core beliefs that there is something powerfully wrong with the addict as a person. The results are the same, no matter what the person is addicted to — sex, food, alcohol or drugs. As Dr. Carnes wrote, as attempts to stop the addictive behavior fail, they help crystallize the addict's core belief system that:

- I am basically a bad, unworthy person.
- No one would love me as I am.
- My needs are never going to be met if I have to depend on others.
- Sex is my most important need.

Dr. Carnes also suggests seeking professional help and joining a support group if one is available. I encourage you to read his book and take action. You are worth the effort.

THE FOLLOWING TIPS FROM THE PERMIAN BASIN CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION PROGRAM are to help us not lash out at our children:

- Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult.
- Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what you child is about to hear.
- Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
- Put your child in a time-out chair (remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age).
- Phone a friend.
- If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.

Square dancers find friends

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In your reply to people wanting to meet someone of the opposite sex, how come you never mention square dancing?

Van Buren

It's a wholesome way to meet people. You will see no couch potatoes, no drinking is allowed, and it's great exercise.

This is a worldwide activity and is well-established in all 50 states. There are teen and singles clubs as well as couples only. Some clubs will welcome anyone from 16 to 90 who walks through the door.

If you're interested and don't know a dancer, look in the Yellow Pages under "Square Dance Apparel" and call one of the shops for information. It opened up a whole new world for me. — ROBERT FITTS, EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR ROBERT: You must be a new reader. In June of 1989, I ran the following ringing endorsement of square dancing:

DEAR ABBY: Once in a while I read a love story in your column, usually from a couple who met through Operation Dear Abby. Well, I also have a love story to tell.

Elderly emigres learn English

By Henry Stern

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Hunched over notebooks and forcing themselves to speak unfamiliar English words, elderly emigres from Russia and Cuba struggle to learn the language of their new country.

Amid the heavy accents in the weekly class at a senior citizens center emerges a shared hatred of communism and the privations they endured in their birthplaces.

There's also a lot of laughter from the "60- and 70-something" students over their own linguistic mistakes.

"If they leave each time having learned one thing, they're ahead of the game," said Sydelle Spialter, an adjunct professor at Union County College. "I don't sit on them too hard."

The community college offers the free classes as part of its Learning is For Ever, or LIFE, Center. The class is one of 21 taught on subjects from biology to Shakespeare at locations convenient for senior citizens.

College officials began the center in 1979 and have continued with the help of public and private donations. They say elderly people are eager to learn, but rarely try because they are embarrassed or scared.

Spialter, herself a 62-year-old daughter of Russian immigrants, said transportation would prove too great an obstacle for most of her 20 students if she didn't come to the senior center.

AP Laserphoto

Sydelle Spialter, left, enunciates a word for the elderly Russian and Hispanic students in her English class at Union County College in Elizabeth, N.J. The course is among a number of free classes for senior citizens which are part of the college's Learning is For Ever, or LIFE, Center.

THE MAJORITY of students are Russian Jews; however, there are also several Cubans as well as one Colombian.

Arriving for a recent class, the Spanish-speakers and Russian-speakers talked among themselves in their native languages as they sat along a cafeteria table.

Spialter snapped them into English with her arrival, asking for the date, calling the roll and using basic conversational phrases written on the blackboard.

It was a typical classroom situation.

The more confident students dominated the class; the teacher tried to draw in the others. Spialter periodically shushed the more talkative students, who often sought to translate for the others.

The tone of the class was relaxed, although the students were earnest.

To one student Spialter offered some advice for answering the everyday question, "How are you?"

"In America, if someone asks you, 'How are you,' say 'Fine, thank you' even if your head hurts or your stomach hurts," she said. "Nobody wants to know if you're not fine."

The 90-minute lesson moved on to practicing sentences using "have" and "has" and "want" and "want to."

Said one student: "I want a good life." Another interjected, "You have a good life."

Other students agree they have a good life in their new country, and Spialter regularly mixes in quasi-civics lessons about "why life is better" in democracies.

THE STUDENTS, who depend largely on Social Security for their income, become most animated when they must explain why they left their countries. Their thoughts run ahead of their words as they talk of wanting better lives for their children and a desire for freedom.

> 'I'm sure they come out to learn the language but it's also a social thing for them. Anything too much more intense, I'm not sure would suit their needs.'

"I had many problems in Cuba," said Guinola Gomez, who came to the United States in 1968.

"I don't have much hope of returning to Cuba because Fidel Castro has it so controlled," Gomez, 65, said in Spanish after class. "I want to learn English so I can handle myself in daily life."

Most students have similar expectations.

"When I go to the doctor, when I go outside my house, I need English," said Sheymdlya Glazaman, a 68-year-old Russian who emigrated in 1979.

"I want to learn English to read, to write," said Nina Kiner, 61, a Russian who emigrated in 1989. "I learn because I live in America."

Spialter said immigrants have waited years, and even decades, to learn. English-speaking relatives and others within their own communities have helped them in the meantime. The class allows the students to try English without fear or inconvenience.

"I'm sure they come out to learn the language but it's also a social thing for them," Spialter said. "Anything too much more intense, I'm not sure would suit their needs."

ABBY: Dance club brought couple together

(From 4B)

Several years ago, following a painful divorce, I enrolled in a square dance class. The caller (teacher) said that every year there had been marriages as a result of people meeting there. I didn't find a husband, but I had a lot of fun and met some nice people. Then I dropped out.

Last October, a neighbor encouraged me to enroll in another square dance class, and there I met Richard — an "angel" (that's what they call dancers who come to help beginners). I approached him, just to talk, and before the evening ended, he asked me for a date.

Richard turned out to be the love of my life! I'm no spring chicken (I'm 50 plus) and never expected to find love again, but did I ever! He's a few years younger than I am, but who's counting?

We're getting married next week, and I've never been happier. Abby, please tell your readers about square dancing. It's good exercise and a wonderful way to meet nice people. — DO-SI-DOLLY IN L.A.

DEAR DOLLY: Your letter is a do-si-dilly. Thanks for the tip. Take heed, all you lonesome polecats. Square dance clubs are listed in the telephone directory.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column recently that a woman had attended a very posh party and never met the bride and groom because there was no receiving line. Well, this could have been my wedding.

When I was married, I was three months pregnant, which wasn't a problem for either of us or our parents, as we had gone together for nine years and had planned to marry a year later.

I confided in my priest, who knew me well because I had attended his church all my 24 years of life, and he refused to let us get married in the church until we had completed a Catholic seminar, and the first opening wasn't for four months — at which time I would have been seven months pregnant!

Anyway, getting back to the receiving line, my parents found a beautiful Christian church. The price for renting the church was $750 for the ceremony, but no receiving line, because they had scheduled three more weddings immediately after ours. We were told later that nobody missed the receiving line, and in my condition, I certainly didn't. — MARRIED IN LA JOLLA

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, MARCH 19, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Let go of a recent disappointment in business or love and make a fresh start. You have a great deal going for you and now is the time to strut your stuff. In the summer, a unique moneymaking opportunity comes your way. Improved health is tied to your getting out of a stressful situation. Re-examine your options. Better organization at work will mean better financial results. New romance gets 1994 off to an exciting start.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Glenn Close, actors Patrick McGoohan and Bruce Willis, novelist Philip Roth.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Believe only half of what is reported from so-called official sources. Do some private checking up this afternoon. Gaining ground in one direction could mean losing territory in another.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friends may be free with advice, but this does not obligate you to follow it. It is always easier to spend somebody else's money! Refuse to get hooked by a wheeler-dealer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may feel less than your best today. Others are depending on your efforts. It is a true test of character to do well when you are under the weather. Press on!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may find conditions at home or work disorganized. And social highs you have been anticipating could be postponed. Try to hold the fort as best you can.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Let yourself go in business. Welcome an opportunity to score big in the market! A phone call could change the whole complexion of a relationship that seemed shaky at first. Offer reassurance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Hang on! Help is on the way in the form of a friend or maybe a check. Dress to impress. Your charm comes to the fore tonight, giving romance a welcome boost.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you get a second chance, make the most of every minute. Your luck will run strong, especially in money and love. Business needs your dedication to really turn the corner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Travel plans, even a local jaunt, can be dotted with detours. Confirm your route in advance. A conversation with an older person brings fresh insights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It may be time to take a chance on romance. A "sure thing" will not necessarily bring happiness. Choose a partner who has both ambition and get-up-and-go!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid coming on too strong or a business deal could collapse. Bide your time and things will go your way. Get feedback from several sources before making important decisions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Avoid dipping into your financial reserves. Mate is your strongest ally in business and private life. A romantic interlude could lead to new contentment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Being in the right place is the secret to your success. Follow through on a financial tip. Guard your sources. Keeping in close touch with loved ones at a distance strengthens your bond.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are curious, adventuresome and imaginative. They know what they want and are likely to get it if they exercise self-discipline. Easily distracted, these Pisces must learn to concentrate on the task at hand. Their superior intellect could lead to a rewarding career in science if they keep careful, detailed notes. Loving and faithful, these Pisces make devoted spouses — eager to keep the home fires burning.

Was 1993 finally going to be Tommy's year? Readers of this column are aware of Trump Coup Tommy's uncanny ability to play well only when trumps are breaking badly and there seemed to be an epidemic of poor splits at the club.

Credit for reaching slam really belongs to Tommy's partner. Since North had not promised anything of value, Tommy's cue-bid followed by a jump over game showed a hand virtually capable of taking 11 tricks on its own and North judged that three-card support and a doubleton was worth a trick.

West made the normal lead of the queen of clubs and the spectators were beginning to wonder how Tommy would find a way to go down. Then everything changed. On the second round of trumps, West discarded a club. The change that overcame Tommy was almost as radical as the metamorphosis of Mr. Hyde from Dr. Jekyll.

To bring home the contract Tommy would have to find East with four diamonds and at least two clubs. After cashing the remaining high club, Tommy played off three high diamonds, then ruffed a diamond in dummy. Fortunately, everyone followed. Tommy could now claim the slam.

Dummy's last club was led and, since East could not afford to ruff, the defender discarded a heart. Declarer ruffed, cashed the ace of hearts and exited with a heart. Tommy did not mind which defender won, because the last two cards in the East hand were J 9 of trumps and Tommy held Q 10. Since East's trumps were trapped, Tommy's slam was in the bag.

Princess Diana makes plea for world's homeless teens

LONDON — Princess Diana made an impassioned plea Thursday for better care of teen-agers left homeless by violence and neglect.

"When we as a society take over the parenting of a child — a child already damaged by previous experiences — we need to care for them as we would our own children," she said. "We need to help them build a life for themselves."

The 31-year-old princess spoke at a conference on teen-age homelessness organized by the charity Centrepoint, of which she is a patron.

Centrepoint released a report showing many local government councils in London, where homelessness among the young is acute, are failing to tackle the problem effectively.

PLAINFIELD, Ind. — Betty Shabazz, the widow of Malcolm X, paid a visit on Mike Tyson in prison.

The two prayed together Wednesday and discussed his education behind bars.

Shabazz

"His prayer moved me to tears," Shabazz said. "I am as pleased and proud of his development as any mother or professor would be."

Tyson, the former world heavyweight boxing champion, is serving a six-year sentence at the Indiana Youth Center, a medium-security prison 15 miles west of Indianapolis, for raping Desiree Washington, a Miss Black America contestant.

Tyson is appealing his convictions on one count of rape and two counts of deviate sexual conduct.

"He should have been put in a non-punitive learning-teaching environment," Shabazz said in a statement. "However, I am totally confident and believe that he is mentally prepared to handle his present challenges."

Shabazz made the trip to prison after speaking Tuesday night at DePauw University in Greencastle, 40 miles west of Indianapolis.

PHOENIX — Travis Walton, whose UFO abduction story is told in the movie "Fire in the Sky," says he's hounded by people who doubt him and seven fellow loggers.

"I hope people come out of the movie more open-minded," he said Wednesday in a telephone interview from his home in Snowflake in eastern Arizona.

Walton, 40, was a logger in northeastern Arizona when he said he was lifted into the sky by an extraterrestrial beam of light on Nov. 5, 1975. He said he reappeared five days later.

The movie, starring D.B. Sweeney as Walton, opened last weekend, prompting a new attack on Walton's claims by the Committee for Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal, which debunks supernatural claims.

A member of the organization, Philip J. Klass, said in a 1983 book that Walton and logging crew leader Michael Rogers concocted a hoax to win a National Enquirer UFO sighting contest and to manufacture an excuse for missing a logging contract deadline.

Walton, Rogers and six other loggers split a $5,000 prize, but have denied any hoax.

TORTOLA, British Virgin Islands — Hundreds of people turned out Thursday to greet Prince Philip on his first visit to this British Caribbean territory in 16 years.

Prince Philip

He was welcomed by British and local officials as he stepped off the royal yacht Britannia, then left to attend a special legislative session. From there, he was to head for a band concert, a trip to coral baths on the nearby island of Virgin Gorda and a dinner reception aboard the yacht.

The Duke of Edinburgh and the husband of Queen Elizabeth II is on a 10-day tour of the English-speaking Caribbean.

Pat Nixon celebrated her 81st birthday quietly Tuesday, at home in Park Ridge, N.J., with her family, but there were events in her honor at the Richard M. Nixon Library and Birthplace in Yorba Linda, Calif.

Several thousand people attended ceremonies that featured children from the Pat Nixon Elementary School in Cerritos, Calif., singing "Happy Birthday," and another group of children performing Irish dances (Mrs. Nixon, whose name originally was Thelma Ryan, was born just a few minutes before St. Patrick's Day).

The festivities included the reading of letters sent by Lady Bird Johnson, Rosalynn Carter, Betty Ford, Nancy Reagan, Barbara Bush and Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Mrs. Clinton paid tribute to Mrs. Nixon's accomplishments, among them illuminating the exterior of the White House at night, and her travels abroad representing the nation by herself.

The ceremony was videotaped, and it, plus a huge birthday card with thousands of signatures, will be sent to Mrs. Nixon.

State in brief

■ Family sues office over women's lost body parts

FORT WORTH — The parents of a woman who died two years ago have filed a multimillion-dollar lawsuit contending that a medical examiner's office was negligent in losing some of their daughter's body parts.

Corliss Diane Ancrum, 25, of Arlington died March 19, 1991 in what her family maintains was a homicide.

Police have said they have identified a suspect, but have no hard evidence to act upon.

The medical examiner's office first ruled that Ancrum's death was due to natural causes, later changing the ruling to "undetermined."

Arlington police and the medical examiner's office have said they have done all they can in the case.

On Tuesday, Edward and Jacquelyn Ancrum filed suit against the Tarrant County medical examiner's office, Medical Examiner Nizam Peerwani and Deputy Medical Examiner Stephen Putthoff, who conducted the autopsy.

Peerwani has declined to comment and Putthoff could not be reached.

■ Authorities still seek identity of woman

AUSTIN — Comal County authorities said Thursday they may be closer to discovering the identity of a woman whose body was found three weeks ago near Canyon Lake southwest of Austin.

Chief Deputy Elwood Hoherz of the Comal County Sheriff's Office said authorities had received several calls concerning the case, but that the woman has yet to be identified.

"We've got something to check out," Hoherz said.

The woman, who was three months pregnant at the time of her death, had the number "4" tattooed on her left hand, a double-pierced ear and hair that had been dyed almost red, officials said.

She was found naked and bound by rope at her hands and feet near Canyon Lake, about 35 miles southwest of Austin, and is believed to be in her late teens. The body lies unclaimed in a New Braunfels funeral home, days away from a pauper's burial under a temporary marker with "unknown" printed as the only epitaph.

Investigators say they are puzzled that no one has come forward to identify the woman, despite the distinctive traits.

■ Girl's recount of attack leads to conviction

FORT WORTH — A teen-ager who said he was just playing with a 13-year-old female schoolmate has been convicted of sexually assaulting the girl on a crowded Fort Worth school bus.

The girl said she tried to push the boy off and screamed for help from the bus driver. The driver continued down the road, apparently unaware of what was happening, the girl testified.

The youth said he "was just wrestling with her; horsing around."

The teen-ager testified Wednesday during his delinquency hearing — the juvenile-court equivalent of a trial — that he only wanted to "have fun — just like teen-agers usually do after they get out of school."

"All I did was have my arms around her neck, with my fingers locked together," he said. "She pushed me and I let her go."

Juvenile court Judge Scott Moore heard more than two hours of testimony by the girl, the defendant and other witnesses before finding the youth guilty of aggravated sexual assault and indecent exposure.

Moore ordered the youth held at the Lynn W. Ross Juvenile Detention Center until a sentencing hearing next week.

Some cult documents remain sealed

WACO (AP) — Open hearings in federal court this week have given citizens a glimpse of their legal system at work in the highly secretive Branch Davidian cult case.

Still, a number of documents remain sealed, as were some court proceedings the first two weeks of the siege. Public access advocates say, with a few specific exceptions, the Supreme Court requires openness.

"We proceed in the public eye. We don't have Star Chamber proceedings," said Jane Kirtley, executive director of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press in Washington, D.C.

"I am always disturbed when I hear that in times of great amounts of emotion ... that somebody will revert to the idea that secrecy is best," she said.

Closed to public view in Waco have been the initial search and arrest warrants held by federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents who raided the Branch Davidian compound Feb. 28 in attempt to arrest leader David Koresh on weapons charges.

The raid turned quickly into a 45-minute firefight, leaving four federal agents dead, 16 wounded. At least two and possibly 10 cult members have died, but federal authorities have refused to confirm how many bodies they believe to be in the compound. About 100 people remain holed up inside.

FBI Agent Bob Ricks said Thursday that Koresh and his top assistants have asked to see the arrest and search warrants. The fact that federal agents would not provide the entirety of the documents was one obstacle to another face-to-face meeting with cult leaders, Ricks said.

"The affidavit itself is sealed," Ricks said, adding that federal authorities were willing to provide a "cover sheet" showing the warrants had been signed by a magistrate.

Ms. Kirtley said federal court decisions concerning the unsealing of search warrants have been "very much in flux," and there is no test case pending before the Supreme Court.

Other documents and court proceedings kept from the public in the cult case have been:

—A federal court appearance by Katherine Mattson, 77, who left the cult compound in the early days of the siege.

—A federal court appearance by Delroy Nash, who was arrested at the compound just after the firefight.

—The initial arraignment for Kathy Schroeder, who left the compound March 12. She is being held in jail as a material witness.

—Government documents explaining why Ms. Schroeder is being held as a material witness.

—The initial arraignment for Oliver Gyarfas, who left the compound March 12 and is being held in jail as a material witness.

Tom Leatherbury, a Dallas lawyer and president of the Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas, said his organization has not taken a position on secrecy surrounding the Branch Davidian case.

"The foundation is, of course, concerned with things such as secret court proceedings," Leatherbury said. "If the foundation's board views this as a general problem and one that affects a great number of people in the state of Texas, then we'll seek to learn more about it and take a formal position."

Dog keeps families from getting mail

BAYTOWN (AP) — Two families have had their mail service suspended since Feb. 25 because the mail carrier is frightened of a fenced-in dog.

Although the carrier does not have to pass through the fenced-in area to deliver the families' mail, the U.S. Postal Service says the families must pick up their mail at the post office.

"The mail carrier doesn't even have to walk along the fence," said Jennifer Stewart, who with her husband Mike own Jake, a golden retriever. "She can walk on the other side of the driveway or through the yard."

Jake is kept in the back yard surrounded by a 4-foot high chain-link fence.

Neither the Stewarts nor their next door neighbor, Georgia David, have been able to have their mail delivered since last month.

Although the dog is not an immediate obstacle, he is perceived as a potential threat, the post office says.

Monahans, Andrews favorites

■ Midland High and Midland Lee co-host the last non-district golf tune-up as the 36-hole Tall City Invitational begins play today.

By Bill Price
Staff writer

While Midland High and Midland Lee will be playing their last non-district round of the boys regular golf season today and Saturday, Class 4A powers Monahans and Andrews are expected to be the teams to beat in the 1993 Tall City Invitational tournament.

Derrick Pursley, who carded a 66 Feb. 12 at the Snyder Country Club, will be joined by Andrews teammates Ronnie Lopez and Marcus Mainord as the Mustangs' top medalist contenders. However, Jason Garduno of Monahans, who has also broken 70 this season, Lee's Mitch Spence and Jeremiah Luttrell, of MHS, all might have a say in that matter.

The tournament will see the Division I teams teeing off Friday at 8:30 a.m. at Green Tree Country Club. Division II teams take the course at the same time Friday at Ranchland Hills Country Club. Saturday's second round will have both divisions playing at Hogan Park Golf Course beginning at 7:30 a.m.

With El Paso Parkland dropping out of the tournament because of no-pass, no-play, the field has now been reduced to 14 in Division I and eight in Division II. But, according to the local coaches, there's no question who the favorites are.

"Monahans, Andrews and Amarillo High are probably the three strongest, though Borger is one of the better teams too," said Lee coach Bobby Dunn.

■ Tall City Invitational

"They're probably the teams to beat, but Lee can be in the thick of it, too," MHS coach Aubrey Culley said. "I don't know how to feel about touting the crosstown rival, but they've got a little older team. They can be a power to be reckoned with.

"We're doing real well, but we're a young team. Our basic starting five has one senior, three juniors and a sophomore. I feel like we will be competitive, though. We've got a team that is close."

The tournament will be the last for Lee and MHS before the District 4-5A tour begins with next wee-

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — It's not uncommon for a point guard to record a triple-double, but the way David Cain of St. John's did it against Texas Tech in the NCAA East Regional was quite unusual.

The 6-foot senior scored 12 points, helping the Redmen take a 85-67 victory Thursday over the Red Raiders. The first-team all-Big East performer also had 11 assists, four above his average.

The statistic that stood out most for Cain was 11 rebounds, more than triple what he normally gets in action and one less than forward Lamont Middleton. In the midst of a very physical contest, the smallest player on the floor was a standout.

"You can't measure what David does by his size," St. John's coach Brian Mahoney said after winning his first NCAA game. "He has tremendous heart. We definitely wouldn't be here this afternoon without David and the way he's played."

Cain had seven other games this season where he reached double figures in assists, collecting a season-high 14 against Seton Hall on March 6.

"He has tremendous quickness. You don't think a guy that height could rebound like that," Mahoney said. "All year long, he's been giving us three or four rebounds a game."

While Cain was making his mark, Texas Tech had a hard time finding it. The Red Raiders entered the game as a 48 percent field goal shooting team. They failed to reach that figure in the first half as they fell behind 9-0 in the opening minutes, then rallied to get to 40-37 at the half.

The second half was a complete collapse as Texas Tech hit just 10 of 43 field goals — the Red Raiders hit 2 of 18

Madness hits; No. 2 seed falls

Associated Press

The NCAA tournament got off to the kind of start college basketball fans love Thursday night: Santa Clara, a 15th seed, shocked Pac-10 powerhouse Arizona 64-61 in the opening round of the West Regional.

It ranked among the biggest upsets in tournament history. Only once before, in 1991 when Richmond

DALLAS — The Dallas Mavericks got a temporary reprieve from the sour side of the NBA record book but they are still in danger of being the worst team in league history.

The Mavericks, with ovations from only the third Reunion Arena sellout crowd of the season echoing in their ears, left for a five-game eastern trip having fallen one game short of the NBA record for consecutive losses in a season.

Dallas snapped a 19-game losing streak Wednesday night with a 102-96 victory over Orlando thanks to rookie Jim Jackson's best game and a memory lapse by the Magic, who apparently forgot Shaquille O'Neal plays on their team.

O'Neal, who had scored 21 points, including five baskets on thundering dunks, shot once and missed in the fourth quarter.

The Mavs travel to Philadelphia to play on Friday night. The 76ers set the

Staff report

Midland High, Midland Lee and Greenwood head a field of eight high school tennis teams competing in today's Midland Open tennis tournament.

Action begins at 8 a.m., and due to the number of players, the early rounds will be held at both the Lee and MHS courts. Lee is the official host of this year's open.

Odessa High, El Paso High and Clyde are the only three teams from outside the Midland area competing in this year's event. Also scheduled to participate are teams from Midland Freshman and Lee Freshman.

"We or Lee should win it," first-year MHS tennis coach Tom Heiting said. "It's so small this year, it's kind of a cross-town rivalry thing.

Lee's top boys players include David Stark and Matt Thompson. JoAnne Kelly is the No. 1 girls singles player at Lee.

The No. 1 doubles teams at MHS feature Allen Neighbors and Kevin McIlvaine on the boys side, and Shanna Burgen and Jennifer Burkett for the girls.

MHS' girls' singles players are now led by Abby Geltemeyer, who moves up to the No. 1 position after junior Bonnie Terrazas suffered a season-ending ankle injury.

BORGER — An autopsy will be performed on Borger High School head football coach Stocky Lamberson, who officials say was found dead in his home Thursday.

Officials have refused to release any details on the cause of death and say they will withhold any information until after the completion of the autopsy.

Lamberson, 50, led high school football teams to the state playoffs in 11 of his 19 years as a head coach but last year went 0-10 in his first season at Borger. He had a career record of 132-87-3.

Midland frosh finish spotless

The Midland Freshman High School boys soccer team completed the 1993 regular season without a loss along the way compiling an 8-0-1 record. The team competed against other ninth grade squads from Midland and Odessa.

Members of the team were Jeremy Barnett, James Barrett, Billy Cooper, Carey Gentry, Zack Ham, John Hardell, Dustin Huber, Jeremy Jones, Junior Khongraj, Trevor Koiro, David Leaverton, John Lyle, Matt Miller, Jeremy Noel, Chris Owen, Phillip Parker, Steve Phares, David Rhoades, Casey Willis, Joe Galbraith, Robert Evans and J.D. Garcia.

The Raiders, coached by David Entzminger, opened the tournament with a 3-0 win over the Deep Purple Roadrunners. Following a 3-1 loss to the Albuquerque United Quest, Midland won its last two games, 2-1 over the Los Alamos Lazers, and 2-0 over the Las Cruces Deadly Kickers.

Offensive scorers for the Raiders included Josh White, Kyle Shatzer, Joey Entzminger, Ian Miller, Daniel Campbell, Daniel Corey and Patrick Ginsert. Defensive players included Clint Hall, Mason Shepherd, Billie Ryon, Ryan Brown, Tim Salsibury, Brandon Barr, Cecil Kelley and Jeff Levea.

Midland Raiders 2nd in Roswell

ROSWELL, N.M. — The Midland Raiders boys 10-and-under soccer team finished in second place in the West of the Pecos Soccer Shootout in Roswell, N.M., last weekend.

The second-place finish earned them an invitation to the Triple Crown Soccer Series in Steamboat Spring, Colo., in August.

Correction

In Thursday's Reporter-Telegram, the correct school of two local tennis players was not correctly reported.

Jordan Gau and Marcy Holland, an eighth grade doubles team from San Jacinto Junior High, won their match against Amber Reese and Heidi Doby, of Goddard Junior High.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

Laker works magic for Montreal

Associated Press

■ Spring Training

Several prospects are just refusing to go away this spring.

Tim Laker, trying to win a job as Montreal's starting catcher, had two hits and drove in two runs as the Expos beat the Atlanta Braves 8-2 Thursday in a game shortened to 5½ innings by rain at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Laker, who spent 28 games with the Expos last season, raised his spring-training average to .357.

"He really showed up at this camp like someone who wants the job," said Expos manager Felipe Alou, who is still uncertain about Laker's future. "If we agree he's ready for the major leagues, he's got to be the No. 1 catcher and the other two (Darrin Fletcher and Tim Spehr) the backups. "But he has to be playing almost every day — whether it's here or at Triple A."

The Cincinnati Reds got another solid performance from pitcher Tim Pugh Thursday in a 5-4 victory over Detroit at Plant City, Fla.

Pugh (1-0) extended his scoreless-innings streak to nine and is now the leading candidate for the fifth starter's spot. Against the Tigers, he allowed two hits in five innings, lowering his ERA to 0.64.

Butch Huskey's two-run triple in the seventh inning Thursday helped the New York Mets beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3 in a game shortened to seven innings by rain at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

It was the rookie third baseman's third game-winning hit of the exhibition season. He beat Philadelphia with an RBI single in the bottom of the ninth on Tuesday and hit a two-run homer against Atlanta on March 8 in the bottom of the ninth.

Against Los Angeles, Huskey lined Kip Gross's breaking ball over right fielder Billy Ashley in the seventh to put the Mets ahead.

"I'm sure having fun," Huskey said. "It's fun to be succuessful. I'd much rather play baseball and work hard than work hard at a McDonalds."

As well as he has played, Huskey, 21, will not join the Mets when they return to Shea Stadium in two weeks. He most likely will be playing Class AAA in Norfolk, Va., or AA in Binghamton, N.Y.

"I won't be disappointed," Huskey said. "Right now, the way it looks, I wouldn't have anywhere to play (with the New York Mets). I want to be in the game everyday. I want to go wherever I'm going to get 200 or 300 at-bats."

Outfielder Matt Mieske, obtained from the San Diego last spring in the Gary Sheffield trade, singled and hit a 420-foot homer over the scoreboard in left Thursday as Milwaukee beat the Padres 10-4 at Chandler, Ariz.

Mieske is expected to start the season at Class AAA New Orleans but has made an impression on Brewers manager Phil Garner.

"He's a good player," Garner said. "He's got a good bat and he does a good job in the outfield. I don't see room for him now, but you never know."

Thursday was also a day a couple of veterans improved their chances of winning a job.

Florida got another a strong pitching performance from Jack Armstrong, who worked five innings for the first time this spring. He gave up four hits, struck out three and walked one against Houston.

Armstrong has allowed only one earned run, while striking out 11, in 16 innings this spring.

"Armstrong is pitching well," Florida manager Rene Lachemann said. "He's changing speeds. He's not out there just to overpower people. He's pitching as a pitcher."

kend's Odessa round at Odessa Country Club, and both coaches have their top five players set, for this week anyway.

MHS will depend on Luttrell, Will Gray, Jason Hewett, Craig Kuiper and Luke Mattorano. Lee will counter with Spence, Matt Clements, Eddie Hatch, Gene Ivie and Chris Hale.

But this tourney could revolve around the battle between District 3-4A rivals Andrews and Monahans. And Dunn seemed to think the Loboes might have the edge.

"Monahans has won every tournament they've been to and Andrews has won every one except two. But the thing with Monahans is you know Garduno is going to come in with a good score, then somebody else scores well too. They have five strong players," he said.

But one advantage the local teams have is the sites. Midland's players are on their home courses.

"That is an advantage. It probably can give either team five to six strokes over the two days, and that can make a difference," Culley said. "But a lot of the area players have experience on those same courses, so who knows."

While the outcome of the tourney is still unknown, one thing is for sure. After an inclement season thus far, the teams will be ready for any kind of weather.

"The wind won't bother us, I just hope it's not cold," Dunn said. "All year we've had only three good days, two days at Del Rio and one at Andrews. The rest have been cold or raining or snowing or the wind blowing 10,000 mph."

Some of the other teams expected in the Division I field are Dumas, Amarillo Palo Duro, Amarillo Tascosa, San Angelo, Abilene Cooper and Abilene High.

Knicks' win streak at eight

Associated Press

RICHFIELD, Ohio — The New York Knicks, behind Patrick Ewing's 28 points and 13 rebounds, beat Cleveland, 115-95, for their eighth straight victory and their longest winning streak since 1989.

■ NBA Roundup

It was the Knicks' first win at Richfield since 1987, ending a string of 11 losses at the Coliseum and snapping the Cavs' 12-game home winning streak. Earlier this season, New York also ended a 23-game regular-season losing streak at Boston and a 13-game streak at Chicago.

The Cavs complained constantly about the officiating and were whistled for six technicals and a flagrant foul. Coach Lenny Wilkens was ejected in the third quarter, and Brad Daugherty and Larry Nance both were thrown out for yelling from the bench with two minutes to play.

The game pitted the Knicks' hard-knocks defense against Cleveland's sharpshooters, and defense prevailed. New York, which extended its Eastern Conference lead over Chicago to 1½ games, hounded the Cavs into 26 percent shooting in the first quarter (5 for 19) and raced to a 30-16 lead before expanding the margin to 22 points in the second quarter.

Cleveland made runs at getting back into the game in each succeeding quarter, the best one a 16-2 spurt that made it 50-42 late in the second period.

Hornets 113, Wolves 85

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Larry Johnson had the first triple-double in Charlotte Hornets history with 11 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists in three quarters of their victory over Minnesota.

Rookie Alonzo Mourning added 23 points and Johnny Newman 20 as the Hornets won by their biggest margin of the season.

The Timberwolves' 15 first-quarter points and 35 first-half points were both season lows. Minnesota got 17 points each from Christian Laettner, Doug West and Gundars Vetra in losing for the fifth time in six games.

Johnson, a second-year All-Star forward averaging 22.4 points, 10.5 rebounds and 4.2 assists, completed his triple-double with a pass to Kenny Gattison for a layup with 7.5 seconds left in the third quarter. The basket gave Charlotte an 88-58 lead, and Johnson did not play in the fourth quarter.

Charlotte broke the game open early, turning an 8-6 deficit into an 18-8 lead with a 12-0 run led by Kendall Gill and Mourning with four points apiece.

The Hornets' biggest first-half lead was 31 points, when David Wingate's layup capped another 12-0 run that made it 64-33 with 9.5 seconds. Vetra hit a short jump shot at the buzzer to end the half.

The Hornets led by as many as 37 points in the second half.

Celtics 105, Nuggets 101

DENVER — Xavier McDaniel scored 16 of his 20 points on 7-for-7 shooting in the fourth quarter, and the Boston Celtics rallied from an 11-point deficit to defeat Denver.

It was the fourth consecutive loss for the Nuggets and their second straight at home after they won 13 of 14 games at McNichols Arena.

Robert Pack scored a career-high 27 points and Reggie Williams had 19 for the Nuggets. Reggie Lewis led the Celtics with 24 points.

Denver led 86-75 going into the fourth period before Boston hit 12 of its first 14 shots of the quarter, including five by McDaniel, and rallied for a 100-99 lead with 1:54 left.

Williams put Denver back in front with a 19-foot jumper with 41 seconds left, but Boston scored the final five points of the game.

McDaniel's 3-pointer, his second of the period, put the Celtics ahead 103-101 with 21 seconds left. After Chris Jackson missed a 22-footer for the Nuggets, Alaa Abdelnaby completed the scoring with two free throws with 4.8 seconds remaining.

Abdelnaby had replaced Kevin McHale with 27 seconds remaining when he left the court with an ankle injury.

SuperSonics 131, Kings 111

SEATTLE — Shawn Kemp had 27 points and 17 rebounds and the Seattle SuperSonics won their eighth consecutive home game, over the Sacramento Kings.

The Sonics, 11-3 since the All-Star break, beat the Kings for the seventh straight time in Seattle.

Sacramento, which got a career-high 19 points from Pete Chilcutt and 18 by Lionel Simmons, led only once.

Kemp connected on 11 of 15 shots, including seven dunks, and Eddie Johnson came off the bench with 23 points for the Sonics.

Rockets 98, Warriors 85

OAKLAND, Calif. — Hakeem Olajuwon scored 35 points and Vernon Maxwell had 25 with six 3-pointers as the Houston Rockets overcame a 16-point deficit for their 15th straight victory.

The Rockets, who won a team-record sixth straight road game, are the 12th team in NBA history to win 15 in a row. They now own this season's longest winning streak, beating out Phoenix's 14-game December run.

The injury-plagued Warriors lost their sixth consecutive game and for the eighth time in nine outings. Golden State is now 0-9 when held under 100 points.

Leading just 52-50 at halftime, the Warriors outscored the Rockets 16-2 to start the third quarter and led 68-52 when Latrell Sprewell made two free throws with 7:01 to go in the period.

The Rockets regrouped to slice 12 points off the lead over the next three minutes, sparked by 10 points from Olajuwon, and trailed just 75-70 heading into the fourth quarter.

Heat 133, Clippers 117

LOS ANGELES — Glen Rice scored 14 of his 26 points in the third quarter and tied his own club record with seven 3-pointers, leading the Miami Heat past the Los Angeles Clippers.

The Heat won for the 10th time in 12 games, with Rony Seikaly adding 23 ponts and 20 rebounds to help improve the fifth-year expansion team's overall record against the Clippers to 9-3, including 5-1 at Los Angeles.

Danny Manning scored 29 points and Ken Norman 24 for the Clippers.

MAVS: Long road trip next

(From 1C)

NBA record for 20 consecutive losses in 1973.

"We didn't want that record, we didn't want to be known as losers," said Dallas forward Terry Davis.

Dallas has five victories, one each in November, December, January, February and now March. The 1972-73 Philadelphia team has the NBA record for fewest victories in a season, nine.

Dallas is 0-29 on the road this year.

"It's a great way to start a long road trip," said coach Gar Heard. "We can relax now. The pressure was building."

Dallas travels to New Jersey, Atlanta, Washington and Boston after playing the 76ers.

The Mavs defeated Orlando without forwards Doug Smith and Randy White and point guard Derek Harper, all injured.

But the Mavs discovered a new star for a night, guard Tim Legler, who averaged 27 points per game for Omaha in the CBA.

Legler scored all 11 of his points in the fourth period.

"We got King Kong off our backs," said Legler, whose second 10-day contract is up on Sunday. "There was a lot of tension on this team. Everytime you take the court, everyone expects you to fail.

"We just had to win this game. We didn't want to be in the record books."

Jackson said he was encouraged by Harper to take charge.

"He looked me in the eye during one of the timeouts and said this is where I had to step up," Jackson said. "It meant a lot to me for him to say that."

Orlando coach Matt Guokas said Dallas was "stripping balls and blocking shots. When you play good defense in this league, good things happen. We tried to get it to Shaquille in the fourth quarter, but we couldn't. You have to credit their defense."

Jackson, the Mavericks' No. 1 draft choice, said it was more thrilling than some of his victories at Ohio State.

Walker leads LPGA Ping

Associated Press

PHOENIX — Colleen Walker shot a 6-under-par 67 early Thursday and then waited to see if her one-stroke lead would stand up in the first round of the Standard Register Ping.

It did.

Walker credited two things — finishing before mischievous winds kicked up in the afternoon, and the rejuvenation of her game now that she has a driver she likes.

"I hit it well," said Walker, who played a bogey-free round with six birdies, all from 15 feet or less. "When I hit it close to the pin, I made the putt all the time. And when I missed the green ... I got up and down."

This year the Midland Downtown Lions will "shoot for the stars" as it attempts to set a record never before achieved in the 37-year history of the Pancake Jamboree — to feed 10,000 hungry pancake eaters. The closest this record has come to being broken was in 1984 when 9,640 were served.
If all these pancakes were put into a single stack it would be as tall as a ten story building. This record breaking feast will require a ton of sausage, 1,400 pounds of buttermilk pancake mix, 300 pounds of butter and 750 quarts of syrup.

NCAA: Arkansas, Duke win big beat Syracuse, had a 15th seed knocked off a No. 2.

It also marked another fold in the first round for Arizona. The Wildcats, seeded third last year, lost 87-80 to East Tennessee State in the Southeast Regional last March.

What made Santa Clara's upset at Salt Lake City even more remarkable was the fact that Arizona scored 25 straight points bridging the first and second halves. The Wildcats (24-4) took their biggest lead, 46-33, on a basket by Chris Mills with 15:26 left.

It would be their last field goal until Mills hit a 3-pointer to make it 64-61 with 8.4 seconds remaining.

Santa Clara missed four free throws from that point on, but Arizona was unable to capitalize. Damon Stoudamire's desperation 23-footer as time expired bounced off the back of the rim.

The Broncos (19-11), champions of the lightly regarded West Coast Conference, will face the winner of the Temple-Missouri game that was played later Thursday.

EAST

Arkansas 94, Holy Cross 64

The fourth-seeded Razorbacks (21-8) used runs of 11-0 and 10-0 in the game's first 12½ minutes to grab a 29-10 lead. Holy Cross (23-7) cut the deficit to nine early in the second half, but Arkansas then used a 15-2 run to increase its lead to 22.

Rhode Island 74, Purdue 68

Big Ten scoring leader Glenn Robinson had 36 points but got little help from his Purdue (18-10) teammates. The ninth-seeded Rams (19-10), a surprise choice for the tournament, won its first NCAA tournament game since it advanced to the round of 16 in 1988. Carlos Cofield had seven points in a 19-9 run that lifted Rhode Island from a 43-42 deficit to a 61-52 lead.

North Carolina 85, East Carolina 65

Eric Montross outmuscled East Carolina's shorter front line and scored 17 points as top-seeded North Carolina took an easy victory.

North Carolina (29-4) will face Rhode Island in a second-round game Saturday. The eighth-seeded Rams were 74-68 winners over Purdue earlier Thursday.

SOUTHEAST

Tulane 55, Kansas State 53

At Orlando, Fla., Tulane (22-6) went ahead 54-53 on a three-point play by Matt Greene. Anthony Beane drove the length of the floor looking to tie, but Pointer Williams reached in and stripped the ball with less than two seconds left. Kansas State finished the year 19-11.

Florida State 82, Evansville 70

Charlie Ward, taking advantage of Evansville's decision to let him shoot, scored 15 points to lead the third-seeded Seminoles (23-9). "Ward really did a great job of hitting some shots. We were gambling he wasn't going to hit those shots," said Evansville (23-7) coach Jim Crews.

Western Kentucky 55, Memphis State 52

Mark Bell, a 5-foot-8 guard, had 18 points and led his team with nine rebounds, as seventh-seeded Western Kentucky, the Sun Belt Conference champion, beat Memphis State (20-12).

Seton Hall 81, Tennessee St. 59

ORLANDO, Fla.— Seton Hall continued its run of first-round success in the NCAA Tournament, routing Tennessee State 81-59 in the Southeast Regional on Thursday night.

MIDWEST

Kansas 94, Ball State 72

At Rosemont, Ill., Rex Walters made all six of his 3-point shots and scored 23 points and the second-seeded Jayhawks (26-6) shot 56.3 percent. Ball State (26-8) was seeking to match its tournament success of 1990 when it upset Oregon State and Louisville before a 2-point loss to eventual champion UNLV.

Duke 105, Southern Illinois 70

The two-time defending NCAA champions extended their run of first-round routs to six, setting a school record for most points in an NCAA game. The Blue Devils (24-7) hit 14 of 19 from 3-point range and shot 63.2 percent overall.

California 66, Louisiana St. 64

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Freshman sensation Jason Kidd banked in a spinning, driving layup with 1 second left to give California a win over Louisiana State.

It was the Golden Bears 10th win in 11 games since coach Lou Campanelli was fired and replaced by Todd Bozeman.

WEST

Illinois 75, Long Beach State 72

At Salt Lake City, Rennie Clemons hit consecutive one-handed driving layups in the final 1:23 for sixth-seeded Illinois (19-12). Deon Thomas led the Illini with 20 points and nine rebounds. Lucious Harris had 27 points for Long Beach State (22-10).

Vanderbilt 92, Boise State 72

Billy McCaffrey, in his first NCAA tournament game since helping Duke win the 1991 national championship, scored 20 of his 26 points in the second half to carry Vanderbilt. Boise State (21-8) trailed 35-27 at halftime and closed within 40-33 before the Commodores (27-5) used a 27-4 run to pull away.

Temple 74, Missouri 61

SALT LAKE CITY — Aaron McKie and Eddie Jones scored 24 points each while Temple's scrambling defense stifled Missouri.

Rick Brunson added 14 points for the Owls (18-12), who earned a Saturday quarterfinal matchup with Santa Clara, a 64-61 upset winner over No. 5 Arizona.

from 3-point range — and finished at 32.5 percent.

Also, Texas Tech missed 10 straight shots in the closing 10 minutes and had only three field goals in the final 11 minutes.

"We had a chance at the seven-minute mark," said Texas Tech center Will Flemons, who scored 26 points but hit just 3 of 12 attempts in the second half. "We just couldn't complete the play. We couldn't hit the perimeter shot.

"We were very antsy, and the first little shot we had, we jumped up and shot the ball instead of just working the ball inside," Flemons said. "We were so eager to play, we just jumped up and shot everything we had."

Lance Hughes, who averaged 16 points per game in the regular season and through the Southwest Conference tournament, only got 4 points. He hit nearly 58 percent of his shots coming into the regional, but had a 1-for-9 day against the Redmen. Cain just poured salt into the wound.

"We were willing to give him the 3-point shot because we knew that he was more of a penetrator," Hughes said. "We wanted the people involved to block him out and not let him get into the lane where he could get a 10-foot jump shot."

Cain did hit just 4 of 10 field goals, but he did sufficient damage in other ways.

"They have a tremendous point guard in David Cain. I can see why he's first-team all-Big East. We did not do a good job of containing him," Texas Tech coach James Dickey said.

Cain accepted the praise, but only one set of numbers satisfied him, and they were on the scoreboard at game's end.

"I'm happy that I got it," he said, "but the main thing was that we got the victory."

Brigham Young 80, SMU 71

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Brigham Young led all the way but allowed Southern Methodist to draw close several times Thursday before pulling out a victory in the first round of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

The Cougars (25-8), led by Gary Trost's 26 points, advanced to the second round and will play Kansas, a 94-72 winner over Ball State.

Southern Methodist (20-8) trailed by as much as 14 in the opening half, but drew within two points early in the second half. The Cougars responded with a 3-pointer from Trost and a jam by Russell Larson to go in front 46-39.

Gerald Lewis had back-to-back baskets for the Mustangs to close the gap to 52-50, but BYU got a basket from Trost to go up 55-50, then went on a 6-0 run for a 61-51 lead.

SMU used three straight turnovers for a 7-0 run that narrowed the deficit to 74-69, but the Cougars held on by making 13 of 16 free throws down the stretch.

Larson finished with 19 points, while Tim Mason paced the Mustangs with 18.

The seventh-seeded Cougars, a team dominated by underclassmen, were an at-large entry from the Western Athletic Conference.

The Mustangs, a 10th seed and an at-large selection from the Southwest Conference, made only 34 percent of their field goal trys and 45 percent of their foul shots in the opening half and trailed 37-33 at the break.

Four different Cougars scored as BYU opened the game with a 9-0 run.

Larson and Trost each contributed eight points as BYU built a 29-15 edge 10 minutes into the game, but the Cougars went without a point for a five-minute span and SMU was able to close the gap to 31-29.

Brigham Young, however, managed to stay ahead as the Mustangs missed four of five from the foul line in the closing minutes. Nick Sanderson hit a 3-pointer to finally break the Cougars' scoring drought with 2:55 left.

Three share lead at Nestle Invitational

Associated Press

■ PGA

ORLANDO, Fla. — John Cook, who hadn't planned to play this tournament, turned his late entry into a 69 and a share of the lead Thursday in the wind-blown first round of the $1 million Nestle Invitational.

Cook was tied at 3-under-par with Mike Allen and Rick Fehr, the only others in the elite field able to slip through the teeth of the cold, blustery wind into the 60's on Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill course.

It was, by two shots, the highest first-round lead in the 15-year history of the tournament.

"With the north wind, every hole played tough," Cook said. "The short holes are downwind, and the long holes were all into the wind."

Curtis Strange agreed, both about the wind direction and the difficulties presented by the cold front that moved through this weather-battered state.

"It played about three or four shots harder than usual," Strange said after salvaging a 70 with a great save of par on the water-guarded 441-yard 18th.

It was that hole that Strange chose to illustrate how hard the 7,114-yard course was playing in the 30 mph winds.

"I hit a real good drive and I had a 3-wood left and I've only got an area eight paces wide to get it between the bunker and the lake and I can't play that shot," Strange said. "In retrospect, the right shot would have been to lay up with a 2-iron."

Instead, he played the 3-wood to the left — far to the left, behind the grandstand, took a drop then pitched to tap-in distance for the par that kept him one shot behind the leaders.

Strange, on the comeback from a slump that has extended since his 1989 U.S. Open victory, was tied at 2-under with Dan Pohl, Jay Delsing, Brad Bryant, Vijay Singh of Fiji and Fulton Allem of South Africa.

The first hole, also 441 yards and also a par-4, was another that played dead into the wind. Cook hit a driver and a 1-iron into the front bunker, then got up and down for a par.

"Usually, it's a driver and a 6- or 7-iron," said Cook, who added this tournament to his schedule only after the flu forced him from the Los Angeles Open.

Prices gain

NEW YORK — Oil prices settled higher Thursday, helped by a late-session rally in heating oil prices and further claims by OPEC that its members are complying with produciton limits.

Next-month delivery of West Texas Intermediate finished at $20.29 per barrel, up 12 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Crude's increase came in the final minutes of trading following a runup in heating oil prices.

Crude oil found support in another report from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries that its members are cutting production in line with an agreement reached last month.

OPEC cited recent industry estimates that show its output declining last week below the newly imposed ceiling.

Many analysts, however, say they won't be convinced until they see production figures for the entire month.

Natural gas prices were mixed. Contracts for delivery in April settled at $2.031 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 1.8 cents. Summertime delivery months were lower.

Bank closed

WASHINGTON — Federal bank regulators have approved the Kilgore First National Bank takeover of deposits at United Bank, National Association of Lancaster.

The failed bank's sole office will reopen Friday as a branch of Kilgore First National. Its depositors automatically will become depositors of the Kilgore bank.

United Bank with $46.2 million in total assets was closed Thursday by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reported.

The FDIC was named the receiver.

Dollar tumbles

NEW YORK — The dollar tumbled against all major currencies Thursday as foreign exchange dealers focused on the possibility that further U.S. interest rate declines will accompany continuing mediocre economic growth.

The dollar finished trading in New York at 115.65 yen, down from 117.20 yen on Wednesday.

A pound equaled $1.4860 late in New York, up from $1.4525 late Wednesday.

Stocks surge

NEW YORK — Stocks closed sharply higher on Thursday after the German central bank eased a key lending rate, pushing U.S. rates lower.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 38.90 points to 3,465.64.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by about 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 1,251 issues up, 654 down and 576 unchanged.

U.S. trade deficit increases

■ Gap widens to $7.3 billion at the start of 1993, Commerce Department says.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. merchandise trade deficit worsened in January, the government reported Thursday. Economists said the report reflected in part the flat economies of many of America's overseas trading partners.

"Our trade deficit deteriorated in January because Europe and Japan are in the midst of a winter of severe economic discontent," said John M. Albertine, head of a Washington economic forecasting firm.

The deficit widened to $7.30 billion as the year got under way, a 6 percent increase over the $6.89 billion trade gap in December, the Commerce Department reported. The increase nearly wiped out a 6.2 percent improvement a month earlier.

Exports, which reached a record $39.67 billion in December, fell back 6.7 percent in January, to $37.01 billion, the lowest level since $35.80 billion last August. Two-thirds of the decline was in aircraft and automobiles.

Imports also fell, due largely to a drop in U.S. purchases of foreign cars and other consumer items, and capital goods.

But the 4.8 percent decline, to $44.31 billion, was overshadowed by the decrease in shipments of U.S. goods overseas. Imports also had hit an all-time high in December, $46.56 billion.

Analysts said the deficit, the difference between exports and imports, will worsen this year because the struggling economies in Japan and much of Europe erode buying power and thus curb purchases of U.S. goods.

Also, the slowly strengthening U.S. economy will provide Americans with more income and stimulate their demand for goods produced overseas, they said.

A report from the Mortgage Bankers Association Thursday suggested another source of growth in American purchasing power. It said mortgage refinancing activity reached a record level in the week ended March 12 as interest rates reached 20-year lows.

"Last year, homeowners freed up about $16 billion in lower debt service due to refinancings and adjustments made to their adjustable rate mortgages," said Warren Lasco, association executive vice president.

"We are projecting similar savings this year, and this increase in spendable income should give a significant boost to our recovering economy," he added.

Meanwhile, the German central bank cut a key interest rate Thursday that analysts said should strengthen that nation's economy and boost demand for American products.

Still, economists at Merrill Lynch & Co. in New York predict that the U.S. trade deficit will grow by an average $10 billion annually through 1994.

The gap swelled to $84.3 billion in 1992, from $65.4 billion in 1991, the first deterioration since it peaked at $152.1 billion in 1987.

America's worsening trade performance, which means lost jobs for U.S. workers, is one of the biggest economic challenges facing the Clinton administration.

In another report Thursday, the Labor Department said the number of Americans filing first-time claims for jobless benefits fell for two straight weeks during the first part of March.

Claims for unemployment insurance shrank by 10,000, to 351,000, during the week ended March 13. That drop came on top of a 15,000 decline a week earlier.

But economists in and out of government contend job growth will remain sluggish until businesses are confident the economy will continue its recovery. Until then, they said, many firms will rely on overtime and increased productivity, rather than hiring new employees.

The trade report showed that exports of capital goods fell $1.66 billion in January, including a $894 million decline in aircraft exports. Auto shipments overseas were down $908 million. Agricultural sales dropped $150 million. The declines were partially offset by a $153 million increase in exports of industrial supplies.

But while foreigners were buying fewer U.S.-made cars, Americans curbed their purchase of cars made overseas. The report showed an $851 million drop in auto imports and a $580 million decline in purchases of foreign-made consumer goods.

Still, America's foreign oil bill rose to $4.20 billion from $4.11 billion in December. Volume increased to 6,827 barrels a day, from 6,244, offsetting a drop in the average price of crude oil to $15.49 a barrel from $16.24.

America's biggest trade deficit, as usual, was with Japan, a $3.90 billion imbalance, down from $5.09 billion a month earlier.

Continental offers flights to Denver

Staff report

Approximately two months after beginning service at Midland International Airport, Continental Express is expanding service, the airline announced.

Continental Express has announced it will begin a new one-stop service between Midland/Odessa and Denver twice daily effective April 15. Customers can also fly non-stop twice daily to Lubbock, the interim stop.

"Coupled with Continental's current non-stop service to Houston three times daily, our new one-stop service to Denver enables customers to more conveniently connect to Continental's western and Pacific destinations," sid a spokeswoman for Continental Express.

The spokeswoman noted that when the airline began service in Midland in late January, it had said it might add service to Denver, and has decided to do so. Business, she said, has been going very well at Midland International since Continental Express arrived.

Flights have been timed for customers to arrive in either Houston or Denver before 8 a.m. and to return to Midland/Odessa the same day.

Flights to Denver leave at 5:50 a.m. and 5:10 p.m., arriving at Denver at 7:54 a.m. and 7:17 p.m.

Flights to Houston leave at 6 and 11:30 a.m. and at 7:12 p.m., arriving an hour later.

Flights from Houston to Midland/Odessa leave at 9:45 a.m., 5:27 and 8:30 p.m., arriving approximately an hour later.

Flights from Denver to Midland/Odessa leave at 12:23 and 6:28 p.m. and arrive at 4:44 p.m. and 10:39 p.m.

Continental Express will utilize the 46-passenter ATR-42 on flights between Midland/Odessa and Denver. The turbo-prop aircraft offers inflight service, overhead storage, fold-down work tables and lavatories.

Bill would increase power of fast-food franchise owners

AUSTIN (AP) — Owners of fast-food restaurants would have more power in dealing with their parent companies under a bill passed Thursday by the Texas Senate.

The measure is the result of attempts by fast-food restaurant owners to stop what they consider unfair business practices once they are locked into a franchise agreement.

"'What these people are saying is, 'Don't treat us as slaves.' They have not asked for a sledgehammer, only a hammer," said Sen. Bill Haley, D-Center and sponsor of the bill.

The Senate approved the bill 18-11. It now goes to the House for consideration.

Opponents said a requirement that both sides of the franchise agreement treat each other fairly was too vague. They also said the legislation would lead to more lawsuits.

"What these people are saying is, 'Don't treat us as slaves.' They have not asked for a sledgehammer, only a hammer.'

— Sen. Bill Haley

Sen. Jeff Wentworth, R-San Antonio, voted against the bill, saying it would allow a franchisee to sue the franchiser for simply not making enough profit.

However, Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, said the measure would "help the little guy," and not promote frivolous lawsuits.

Recently some franchise holders have accused their parent companies of undercutting them by setting up competing restaurants, or selling their products in grocery stores.

They have also complained that the franchiser has terminated contracts without good reason.

Haley said he originally wanted the state to police these contracts. But heavy lobbying against the proposal, by giant franchisers such as Pepsico, made him seek a compromise, he said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Since then, I have purchased shares of four no-load mutual funds. All my investments there have doubled or better.

My problem is with the organization where I have the limited partnership. The partnership's quarterly distributions are invested in an individual retirement account I opened in that group's income mutual fund. After five years, that fund's share value is basically unchanged.

I know I am stuck with the limited partnership. However, I did arrange to transfer the $1,800 accumulated in that income fund to an IRA I have at one of the no-load funds. That is progress.

Recently, I asked the limited partnership to send my distributions to an IRA I have at one of the no-load funds. I was told that would be impossible and that money must continue to go into that organization's income fund. Is that true?

A: Not completely. The organization with which you are rightfully unhappy can refuse to send quarterly distributions "out of the house" to a rival mutual fund group. But you cannot be forced to continue reinvesting that money in a particular mutual fund run by the first organization.

Your letter is not clear about whether the limited partnership is in an IRA. If it is not, you can start taking those distributions by check and do anything you please with the money.

If that partnership is in an IRA, you can take that money by check once a year. Then, to keep it deferred from income tax, roll it over into your other IRA within 60 days after receipt.

Your feelings about being "stuck" with the partnership no doubt stem from the fact that you can't sell your partnership units, because there is no market for them. That's the sorry story of all too many limited partnerships.

Q: I have some old (circa 1900) Texas oil company stock certificates that my father owned. How can I have them traced?

A: This column's favorite source for tracing old securities has always been R.M. Smythe & Co., 26 Broadway, New York, NY 10004. It charges $50 for each company it researches.

Q: Is it true that a high portfolio turnover rate reflects poorly on a mutual fund's overall performance?

A: Not necessarily.

Portfolio turnover is the annual rate at which the securities in a mutual fund's investment portfolio are changed. Let's say XYZ Fund has assets of $500 million consisting of stocks and bonds. Let's also say, over a year's time, the fund sold $250 million of those securities and replaced them with other securities. Its portfolio turnover was 50 percent.

If the fund's management is extremely skillful or just plain lucky, every change in the portfolio will be a winner, resulting in an immediate profit and eventual higher assets.

Of course, no fund management is right on every portfolio move. Fund management people are delighted to be correct a majority of the time.

Different types of funds have different portfolio turnover rates. Aggressively managed funds usually have much higher turnover rates — 200 percent or more, in some cases — than do conservative funds.

Q: Why do some people say an investor buys a tax liability by purchasing mutual fund shares shortly before a dividend or capital gains distribution is made?

A: Because the investor has to pay income tax on the dividend or capital gains distribution. If you wait until after those distributions are made, the same amount of money will purchase more shares — with no tax bill.

Committee to recommend Alzheimer's drug

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — The first drug for treatment of Alzheimer's disease moved within one step of final government approval Thursday when an advisory panel endorsed the drug despite reservations about its effectiveness.

Members of a Food and Drug Administration committee voted without dissent to recommend that the drug tacrine be approved by the agency for marketing, but several members said it fell short of the benefits they had hoped the drug would give.

"There is a beneficial effect, but it is not a drug for everyone," said Paul Leber, director of an FDA drug division that supervised the testing of tacrine.

Leber said the drug will benefit 12 percent or less of patients taking it and the improvement might be only slight. Many patients will be unable to tolerate its side effects, he said.

"The effect is modest at best," said Dr. Robert Temple, another FDA official. "But where once you had nothing there is now this. That is no small accomplishment."

New studies presented to the committee showed that tacrine was modestly beneficial when compared with Alzheimer's patients who were taking placebo. The effect was said to be enough to be "statistically significant."

The studies also showed there were side effects, including a liver disorder, that forced many patients to stop taking the drug. But the committee members said that even small benefits would be worth making the drug available to the public.

"This is a baby step, but it is in the right direction," said panel member Gary M. Oderda of the University of Utah.

The advisory committee's 10-0 vote sends the matter to the FDA, where an official said approval could be expected within weeks.

The vote came after a daylong meeting during which researchers analyzed two new studies using tacrine. Warner-Lambert Co. plans to market it under the brand name Cognex.

Warner-Lambert spokesman E. Peter Wolf said the drug had been made available to patients in the testing program at a cost of about $3 a day for 120 milligrams. A higher dose, which showed the most benefit to those who could tolerate it, will cost more, he said, but no price has been established.

Panel experts said during the meeting that the drug had shown "statistically significant" benefits in long-term tests, though some members of the committee said the results fell short of reports that the drug had restored memories and other abilities lost to Alzheimer's.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive, incurable disorder of the brain in which patients gradually lose intellectual function and eventually die. The cause of the disease is not known.

Nancy Smith, an FDA statistician who analyzed a new drug trial conducted by Warner-Lambert, said that at the end of 30 weeks patients who were taking tacrine scored higher on Alzheimer's disease tests than did patients who were not taking the drug.

She said the improvement amounted to several points on the Alzheimer's disease assessment scale. The rating measures intellectual performance on a scale of 0 to 70, with lower numbers marking improvement.

At the end of 30 weeks, patients on high doses of tacrine showed an improvement of about five points on the test scale when compared to patients who were taking a placebo, Smith said.

Bombed tower reopens; mayor inspects offices

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Mario Cuomo led tenants back into the World Trade Center on Thursday, using a white handkerchief to check for any sign in his offices that the complex had been bombed three weeks ago. He found none.

"This really is amazing," Cuomo, who has offices on the 57th floor of 2 World Trade Center, told officials of the Port Authority, which owns the 110-story towers. "I did not dream that you could get it this clean, this fast."

The explosion in an underground garage Feb. 26 knocked out power, ventilation, communications and other vital systems in the twin 110-story towers, the world's second-tallest buildings. Port Authority Chairman Stanley Brezenoff showed Cuomo the new systems replacing them.

"I will report to my people that they are free to come back and it will be safer than before," Cuomo said. "The building is still standing and so are we."

George Rossi, assistant director of the trade center, said the towers would reopen in sections, starting with the upper floors of No. 2, which was less affected by the blast and subsequent fire.

Cuomo found no soot in his offices — not on the windows and walls, not on his desk, not even in a closet. Workers told Cuomo they used special sponges to soak the smoke off the walls. The offices also didn't smell of smoke.

Cuomo wiped a painting with a handkerchief, and it was clean. He had workers open a ventilation duct to look for soot; they found none. He checked a book on a shelf and said it was cleaner than it had been for years.

Two men of Palestinian descent have been charged in the bombing and are being held without bail. On Thursday, a federal judge refused to set bail for a third man, Ibrahim Elgabrowny, who has been held since he allegedly elbowed investigators who searched his Brooklyn apartment after the explosion.

Judge John Sprizzo told defense lawyer William Kunstler to appeal to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, saying there was not enough new information to make him reconsider another judge's bail decision.

Kunstler called Elgabrowny's detention "a total fraud," and accused the government of trying to fabricate a "mammoth Islamic conspiracy."

President Clinton calls 10-year-old Clinton on birthday

SEATTLE (AP) — Bill J. Clinton of Seattle, who turns 10 on Friday, got a call from the other Bill J. Clinton in the other Washington. It wasn't an ordinary birthday greeting, from one namesake to the other.

The boy, who goes by his middle name, Johannes, was born with a birth defect that left him with intestines that don't work and multi-million-dollar medical-care costs.

The occasion for the White House call was a St. Patrick's Day benefit for the lively third grader at a coffee shop.

"I'm pulling for you," the president said, his voice heard over a speaker at the cafe. "I'm glad you've got friends out there trying to help you."

Johannes gets his food through a catheter tube that delivers nutrients to his bloodstream. This requires him to be hooked up at home or with a mobile pump in a backpack 17 to 24 hours a day, his mother said.

"It was a miracle he survived the first three days," said the boy's mother, Allayne. "He was given five months to live when he was 4½ months old."
