MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 1. (AP)—Three persons were killed, five were critically injured and 25 were less seriously hurt today when a truck loaded with Mexican beet field workers traveling from San Antonio to Mt. Pleasant, Michigan, turned over near Onapa, 30 miles south of here.

Sheriff Arthur Kirkpatrick said it was apparent that the truck driver had fallen asleep at the wheel and the truck ran off the road into a deep ditch and turned over.

Kirkpatrick arrested Guadalupe Inanencio, driver of the truck, and his brother, Antonio, who had remained in the back of the truck and were in charge of the party.

The five critically injured Mexicans are given only a slight chance to live. They were taken to a hospital in Tulsa soon after the accident.

BUILDING PERMITS
TOTAL $34,800

Building permits issued at Midland for the first four months of the current year reached a total of $34,800. Although this is an average of $8,700 per month, the building has been unevenly distributed, falling in the alternate months of February and April.

Four out of five permits were for construction of homes.

The first permit of the year was issued on Feb. 22 to J. W. Jordan for a residence. This was for $7,000.

March witnessed the beginning of no new activities but April permits reached a high of $27,800. The first permit in that month went to James P. Harrison of the Reporter-Telegram staff for a garage and home and was for $3,100.

April 9 saw a permit for $20,000 issued to Frank Cowden for residence and garage.

J. G. Harper obtained a permit on April 13 for $2,000 for a residence. The last permit for the month was issued to C. A. Clayton for $1,500 for rebuilding of old houses.

MORE THAN $200
TO BE GIVEN BY
CITY MERCHANTSShow to Start at 1:30
And Last All Sat.
Afternoon

Prizes and premiums totalling more than $200 in cash, merchandise or services have been posted by merchants of Midland for the Trades Day exhibits of livestock, equipment and miscellaneous articles Saturday of this week. It was found after T. E. Bizzell and Fletcher Currie completed a canvass of the business section late Tuesday.

Headed by a parade of the band, mounted horsemen and livestock to be exhibited, the Trades Day begins at 3:30 p. m. Saturday and continues throughout the afternoon. The exhibits, sales and general entertainment will be on the lots just south of the Reporter-Telegram and those to the south of the Mackay Motor company, Dodge-Plymouth dealers.

Additional hitching racks, to take care of double the number of animals exhibited a month ago, have been constructed. Coops, or cages, for poultry and pet stock have been erected. A cold drink stand to be used by the rural women's clubs was being completed this morning at the exhibit grounds.

John M. Gist of Odessa, who will bring a half dozen ribbon winning horses from his Midland barns, said Tuesday afternoon that the monthly Trades Day and livestock show here already is attracting attention over the country and should be kept up regularly. He predicted that it would grow into an event of considerable magnitude, eventually making Midland the center of an outstanding livestock show as it was several years ago.

W. T. Blakeway, general manager for the day, said farmers and ranchmen to participate, the leaders pointing out that many sales of stock will result.

T. E. Bizzell, chairman, and Fletcher Currie, secretary, in a veiled cooperation from all business houses, they reported. They said the Midland merchants were highly in favor of the monthly event and were giving prizes and premium money to encourage the exhibiting of livestock produced in this section. Surrounding counties were invited to participate, the leaders pointing out that the Trades Day is not strictly a Midland county affair.

The prize list follows:

Percheron stallion, Midland National Bank, $5.00.

Percheron mare, Scharbauer Coffee shop, $5.00.

Percheron colt, Piggly Wiggly, 48 pounds flour.

Best team draft horses, Texas Electric Service company, $5.00.

Best team draft mules, Fred Turner, $5.00; Addison Wadley, $5.00.

DENY PROFITS OF WAR, AND ASSURE PEACE!

An honest-to-goodness bill to take the profits out of war might turn out to be an excellent means of keeping the nation out of war altogether.

Take a look at the plan now being considered by the Senate munitions committee. This plan, submitted by John T. Flynn, New York financial writer, is reported to bear a certain amount of White House approval; and whether it does or not, it at least suggests a new way of keeping the country at peace.

This bill would take the profits out of war with a vengeance. Under its provisions, the government would take 50 per cent of the first 6 per cent profits of corporations, and 100 per cent of all over that in excess profits.

It would limit all individuals incomes to $10,000, taking everything over that for Uncle Sam. It would slap income taxes on everyone earning more than $1000 a year, and the rates would be stiff.

Furthermore, it would draft general officers of all corporations into the military forces, and in case of need these gentlemen could be put under the same sort of control and pay scales that apply to army officers. It would close all commodity exchanges, forbid speculation in commodities, license industries and, where necessary, fix prices, and commandeer for the government all essential industries and services.

The whole business is drastic enough to take your breath away. But that it would do what it sets out to do—remove the profits from war—there is not the shadow of a doubt.

Declaration of war would mean the beginning of a dreary and irksome interval for business and industry, under this scheme; furthermore, the government should be able to pay all war expenses out of income, and the stupendous bond issues of past wars would be unknown.

But beyond all that, it is highly probable that such a law would be a powerful force to make the nation keep the peace.

One of the chief dangers nowadays is the fact that war does at least provide a great, if temporary, spurt of prosperity. Enormous profits are to be made.

That fact sticks in the back of everyone's head. It helps make us ready to accept the idea of war; for we can never forget that however trying the war period may be, it will at least be a time of high earnings.

We'd get a different attitude if this Flynn plan were law. The advent of war would mean fewer profits, not greater ones. No one would have any financial incentive for welcoming war.

Passing such a bill might prove an excellent means of keeping the nation at peace.

THE AIR BECOMES SAFER

Commercial aviation in the United States is steadily becoming safer. Accidents to commercial planes caused by weather conditions decreased last year to a point where 3,400,000 miles were flown between each accident—as compared with 1,600,000 in 1931.

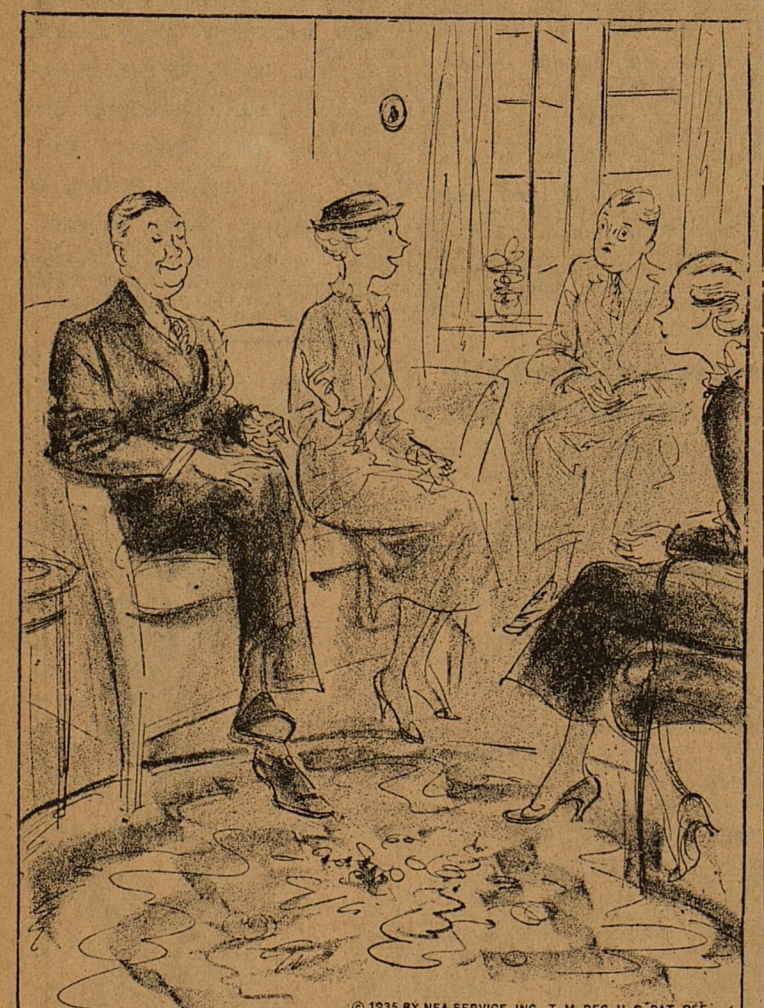

W. R. Gregg, chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau, says that this gain is due to "the well co-ordinated efforts of air transport companies and government agencies concerned with the weather services."

Commercial air lines, he adds, now employ more trained meteorologists and, as a result, are better able to decide when it is safe to fly and when it is not.

It is through steady, methodical effort of this kind that we draw nearer to the day when airplane travel will be as safe as any other kind.

Pink roses and spring tulle formed the decorative motif for the party.

Guests for the evening were Mrs. Mamie Stokes, Mrs. Susie G. Noble, and Miss Kathryn Zant.

In bridge games, high score for club members went to Miss Lotta Williams, high score for guests to Mrs. Stokes, and high cut to Mrs. Chas. Blalock.

At the conclusion of play, a party plate was served to: Mrs. Stokes, Noble, Blalock, Misses Zant, Cordelia Taylor, Williams, Theresa Klapproth, and the hostess.

If I Had Been
By Helen Welshimer

If I had been a goose girl
Who sat along a lake,
Would I have had a red heart
A shepherd lad could break?

If I had been a princess
Imprisoned in a tower,
Would I have pledged a tall lad
My troth in half an hour?

If I had been a gipsy
Who heard a violin
A fiddler played to please me,
Would I have given in?

SUPPOSE fine had waylaid you,
Or flood or bear or leopard,
And I had wed the minstrel,
The tall prince or the shepherd?

AND then, dear lad, you whistled—
My cockeyed heart had crumbled,
And promptly gone to pieces!

Bridgette Club Complimented by Mrs. A. P. Baker

A profusion of roses in bowls and vases and a color scheme of pink and blue in other appointments marked the party with which Mrs. A. P. Baker entertained the Bridgette club at her home, 1806 W. Missouri, Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. O. C. Harper, club guest, won high score in the three tables of bridge played, with Mrs. E. D. Richardson winning high cut.

The club voted to adopt the new international rules of bridge scoring.

At the tea hour, a salad plate was served to: Mmes. S. M. Warren, J. Kelley, S. O. Cooper, A. E. Horst, P. Q. Moore, W. Thurston, Bill Van Huss, Richardson, W. P. Knight, Kinney Reese, Harry Prickett, and the hostess.

FEMININE FANCIES
BY KATHLEEN EILAND

Here's a good example of the effort to bring the Great Outdoors to a great city. Down in New York's Greenwich Village, the doorman of the Club Gaucha rides a horse. When customers drive up in taxis or limousines, he dashes up on his steed, leans down from his saddle in approved cavalier style and opens the car door.

We can imagine Mademoiselle's heart going pitter-patter at the sight of the "cowboy," and wonder, Ah well, what is life without its romance?

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. has a new theory (perhaps it is only new to moderns for practically the same thing was done hundreds of years ago by the ancients) of how the exploits of her husband can go down into posterity. She thinks the doting wife should work out the achievements of her spouse in appropriate designs in petit point, which will be handed down to descendants.

Roosevelt, for instance, is noted as a big game hunter. Mrs. Roosevelt has worked a sampler showing a group of mountains over which her husband is leaping from crag to crag, most of his face being covered by shaggy red beard. She insists that the beard is most realistic.

She plans some day to work her husband's career as a whole in petit point. She has already worked various episodes from Theodore Roosevelt Sr.'s life.

Butcher or baker or candlestick maker, we suppose that quite interesting events in the life of any man could be suitably worked out in such a way. It sounds rather interesting and in Mrs. Roosevelt's words, "It's a stunt, but fun to do."

As in furniture, so in china, American designers and makers are daring to form their own ideas of what is what in the line of dishes and then to carry the ideas into execution.

Mary Margaret McBride describes the new deal in chinaware:

"The new American china is characteristically built for efficiency. It eliminates the useless, concentrates upon functional simplicity. . . . Rims on plates have been done away with. The cups have handles that are easy to grasp and hold.

"Flowers this year are more important on china and pottery than ever before. They range from great splashy vivid blooms to small delicate field flowers in pastels. The more vivid patterns are for the country and for informal luncheon and supper parties."

One set has small rose figures scattered all over it, the same style that has been used on chalis for many years.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

I made some remark the other day about how Jess Rodgers is trying to wean his V-8. Well, I've finally heard a better one than that. It's about Ralph Lowe, Texas company wholesale gas dealer and operator of his own service station. His car was stolen on the Midland streets and it ran out of gas before it got a hundred feet past the city limits. If a gasoline dealer runs out of gas, how are the rest of us to keep our tanks full?

Beer drinkers, please don't think the "tanks full" remark was personal to you.

It has been years since we saw any boy who had knocked off a toe nail. We believe the boys of nowadays have easier times than the boys of 30 and more years ago.

Life is indeed a serious thing. But you should smile occasionally. People who are always serious do not day.

Mrs. J. E. Kenneth of McCamey was a Midland visitor yesterday.

Visitors from Stanton Tuesday included Mrs. J. P. Boyd and Mrs. Forrest King and daughter.

“Softball” Game Thur. Nite

The first night game of softball will be played in Midland tomorrow night when the Elite Cleaners team of Monahans, whose motto is, “We Clean ‘Em,” will meet an all-star Midland team under the management of Luther Tidwell.

The Monahans team has steam-rollered all opposition so far this season and their supreme confidence and egotism concerning the game here would make Dizzy Dean seem to have an inferior complex.

They show no respect whatever for the Midland reputation as first class softball players as witness by the following card from the visiting manager today to Tidwell.

The card reads: “What do you mean Monahans creep? You can change the name of the team from Midland Hardware to Midland ‘Software’ after Thursday night.” (Signed) Carter’s undefeated Cleaners, by H. E. Carter, P. S. (It still goes, “We Clean ‘Em”) If too hot try frigidaire.

Evidently some one made mention of the fact that there might be crepe to lay away the Monahans boys in after the game by the way the first lines read. The Monahans boys sent word, by mouth, that all the Rotary flags hanging here in the city now would make very nice shrouds for the Midlanders after the “slaughter” was over.

According to Manager Carter of the visiting team they will bring along a small crowd of about 500 home town residents to help out the attendance of spectators.

Managers of both teams turned in their starting line-ups today.

For the Monahans club will be: Yates, left field, Kild, center field, Estes, right field, Montrof, 3rd, Scroggins, ss, Carter, 2b and Manager, Hayes, 1-b, B. Carter, utility field, Woolley, catcher and Worham, pitcher. They also list the name of Jack Mason, Empire of strikes.

The Monahans club has been playing for the last month or longer but it will be the first game of the season for the home players.

However, some of them have been working out with the baseball team and are in fairly good physical condition.

Skipper Tidwell refuses to wax as tactful as the visiting manager but he did finally say, “We’ll be ready.”

Profiteering--

The full fury of the pre-war inflation came in 1916. In fact prices had risen so high then that very soon they began to fall of their own weight. Steel prices had risen 370 per cent. They were actually falling when the government began to try to check prices. It has been charged that the government really kept steel prices from going lower.

We tried price fixing during the war. In view of the enormous rise which had already taken place, it should have been easy to check the rise, if such process were feasible at all. But the prices continued to soar. In many lines the highest prices were reached after we began price fixing. Cotton goods were a price index of 181 before price fixing. After price fixing they were 255. Coal at 160 before price fixing soared to 207 a full year after. Wool was 208 before price fixing. It reached its highest point after at 290. These are but a few instances.

The men who managed price fixing were criticised. They certainly might have done better. But they were really helpless. It was like trying to hold back the sea. The billions kept pouring in. They disrupted, upset, twisted the whole economy, unbalanced cost and labor and profit factors so hopelessly that the government was powerless.

Congressman McSwain and Mr. Baruch hope to prevent a repetition of this by putting a ceiling over all prices when the war starts—prohibiting any prices from rising at all unless specifically permitted by the government thus doing away with price control.

However, the Nye bill proponents think there is but one way to meet this problem. It is to begin at the beginning—to prevent the inflation from starting. This can be done by taxation—severe taxation. Drastic! Yes, but war is a terrible thing. Drastic! Yes, but not as drastic as knocking on a man’s door and summoning him to the trenches to be killed or used up.

Of course, it was inevitable that someone would say this is commonism—a scheme to change the government when war starts. Of course, that is too utterly stupid. In the last war a petition was presented to the Congress which read as follows:

“We, the undersigned teachers of political economy, public finance and political science in American universities and colleges, respectfully urge upon Congress to adopt the policy of taxation rather than that of bond issue as the principal means of financing the expenditures of our own country in the war. The taxation policy is practicable. It will prevent the price inflation which must result from large bond issues. It is demanded by social justice. It will increase the efficiency of the nation in the conduct of the war.”

Just a lot of red professors? Well, the group was headed by Dr. O. M. W. Sprague of Harvard University who is regarded as one of the country’s leading conservative economists.

Here is another paragraph from some “reds”:

“War is a relic of barbarism. It is justifiable only as a means of defense. In the event of war in which the man-power of the nation is drafted, all other resources should also be drafted. This will lead to discourage war by depriving it of profits.”

That’s from the Democratic national platform of 1924.

From the last war we have left a debt of SIXTEEN BILLION DOLLARS. For this depression we will have piled on another EIGHTEEN BILLION DOLLARS by 1936. Are we prepared to venture into another war and to pile on top of this staggering mountain of debt a still higher one of forty or fifty billion—for the next war will be the costliest of all if we do not restrain the profiteers.

NEXT: The war on war profits.

munism—a scheme to change the government when war starts. Of course, that is too utterly stupid. In the last war a petition was presented to the Congress which read as follows:

“We, the undersigned teachers of political economy, public finance and political science in American universities and colleges, respectfully urge upon Congress to adopt the policy of taxation rather than that of bond issue as the principal means of financing the expenditures of our own country in the war. The taxation policy is practicable. It will prevent the price inflation which must result from large bond issues. It is demanded by social justice. It will increase the efficiency of the nation in the conduct of the war.”

Just a lot of red professors? Well, the group was headed by Dr. O. M. W. Sprague of Harvard University who is regarded as one of the country’s leading conservative economists.

Here is another paragraph from some “reds”:

“War is a relic of barbarism. It is justifiable only as a means of defense. In the event of war in which the man-power of the nation is drafted, all other resources should also be drafted. This will lead to discourage war by depriving it of profits.”

That’s from the Democratic national platform of 1924.

From the last war we have left a debt of SIXTEEN BILLION DOLLARS. For this depression we will have piled on another EIGHTEEN BILLION DOLLARS by 1936. Are we prepared to venture into another war and to pile on top of this staggering mountain of debt a still higher one of forty or fifty billion—for the next war will be the costliest of all if we do not restrain the profiteers.

NEXT: The war on war profits.

COAST TO COAST RECORD IS SET

NEW YORK, May 1.—The TWA mystery transport plane set a new transcontinental flight record for transport planes when it flew over Floyd Bennett field here at 6:59 p. m. Eastern Standard Time Tuesday, completing the flight in 11 hours, five minutes.

The plane left Union Air Terminal, Los Angeles, at 7:45 a. m. Eastern Standard Time, fought dust storms en route and maintained a speed well over 200 miles an hour.

Directing the flight was W. D. Tomlinson, veteran pilot and vice president of the Transcontinental and Western Air company. Two others were in his crew.

The previous mark was held by Leland Andrews, who flew a transport plane across country last Feb. 21 in 11 hours, 34 minutes, 16 seconds, with a 14-minute stop at Washington.
