Cold Blast To Linger Over Area

SURPRISINGLY cold temperatures and a dusting of snow visited the South Plains Wednesday and National Weather Service officials say the frigid conditions are expected to continue through Friday.

Lubbock's high temperature Wednesday of 34 was approximately 10 degrees lower than the predicted high and the wintry reading was accompanied by a light snow which fell over much of the city throughout the day.

Today's high is expected to be in the lower 40s, weather officials say, and a 20 percent chance of precipitation remains in the forecast. Winds today are expected to be from the south at 10 to 15 mph, and the low tonight should be near 25.

Friday's forecast calls for slightly warmer temperatures, but even then the mercury is not expected to climb out of the 40s, according to the weather service.

Light rain fell Wednesday throughout the state except for extreme Southwest Texas and the Panhandle. Wednesday night light rain mixed with snow was reported between Dallas and Seymour and extended to between Fredericksburg and College Station.

Dalhart had the afternoon's coldest temperature of 30 degrees. On the other end of the state, Brownsville and McAllen both registered highs of 65.

Wednesday's light snow and drizzle in the region was caused by an upper level disturbance which combined with moist air over the South Plains, forecasters said. But as the high pressure system moves slowly eastward, weather officials say, fair conditions should return to the Hub City by the weekend.

The extended forecast calls for partly cloudy skies through Monday with the mercury climbing into the 50s. The National Weather Servcice predicted cloudy skies for most of the state, with large areas of rain and rain changing to snow for the Panhandle.

South Plains weather Wednesday was consistent with that of the rest of the state, with most areas reporting cloudy and cold conditions. The only bright spot in Texas was the far western portion of the state.

PLEADS 'NOT GUILTY' — Vickie Daniel is photographed Wednesday leaving the Liberty County Courthouse after saying she did not intend to shoot her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., and pleaded "not guilty" to a murder charge at her arraignment. Mrs. Daniel Pleads Innocent Of Murder

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — The wife of former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. pleaded innocent Wednesday to a charge she intentionally killed the scion of one of Texas' most prominent families.

Vickie Daniel answered "not guilty" in a soft voice when asked by State District Judge Clarence Cain to enter a plea at her arraignment.

Cain scheduled a March 20 hearing to consider pretrial motions.

Wearing the same navy blue suit she wore to her husband's funeral Jan. 21, Mrs. Daniel told reporters after the five-minute proceeding, "I did not intentionally shoot my husband."

Mother Of Three

Daniel, 39, was shot in the stomach with a .22-caliber rifle. Another bullet went through the ceiling, said Liberty County Sheriff C.L. Eckols.

District Attorney Carroll E. Wilborn has maintained Mrs. Daniel knowingly and intentionally murdered her husband.

But Mrs. Daniel's attorney, Andrew Lannie, has rejected such a contention and said he wants the trial moved to another city because of the prominence of the Daniel family in this agricultural community.

Father's Career

Daniel's father is a former legislator, speaker of the Texas House, Texas attorney general, governor, U.S. senator and Texas Supreme Court justice. Price Daniel Sr. currently lives in Austin but still maintains his home at the family ranch.

Lannie also has said he will waive the right to a speedy trial. Without such action, the trial would have to begin within 120 days of the indictment date.

Mrs. Daniel filed for divorce Dec. 31. Daniel's will, filed last week, made no reference to his wife and left all his property in trust for three young children, including one by an earlier marriage.

Wilborn has alleged there was indiction of premediated murder. But Lannie has argued an altercation preceded the shooting and part of the incident was witnessed by Kimberly Moore, 12, Mrs. Daniel's daughter by an earlier marriage.

Daniel was shot once in the lower stomach, and the bullet severed the aorta.

Mrs. Daniel was hospitalized for shock and hysteria immediately after the slaying, leaving once during her five-day stay to attend her husband's funeral.

She was charged with murder Jan. 24 and indicted by a Liberty County grand jury four days later. She is free on $50,000 bond.

Rather than return home, Mrs. Daniels said, she has been staying with relatives.

Man Killed In Shooting

AN APPARENT argument over a Lubbock man's plan to go out with a friend Wednesday night ended at 7:10 p.m. in the fatal shooting of Vivian Alan Fair.

Fair, 21, was pronounced dead at his 520 E. Loylola St. home by Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack, who ruled the death a homicide and ordered an autopsy performed at St. Mary's Hospital.

A 19-year-old woman who police said shared the northeast Lubbock residence with Fair was taken into custody at the scene and police were questioning the woman late Wednesday.

Officers said the argument which apparently led to the shooting began shortly after Fair returned home about 1½ hours before the fatal shooting. Arriving at the house with Fair was the friend, police said, and the dispute escalated when the pair announced their plan to go drinking.

The woman, who police said had lived with Fair about two years, reportedly wanted to join the men, but when they rebuffed her suggestion, the argument grew more heated, police said.

Police said Fair, his friend and Fair's

Reagan Campaigns For Budget Slash

Support Of Congress, Public Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to build a foundation of congressional support for politically unpopular budget cuts, made an extraordinary trip to Capitol Hill on Wednesday to sell his case to Senate and House leaders.

Today, he will begin his effort to peddle the program to the American public, with a televised speech to the nation at 8 p.m. CST. White House press secretary James S. Brady said the address was undergoing "substantial rewriting" by the president.

As he returned to White House after the 75-minute discussion on Capitol Hill, Reagan said, "It was a good meeting, just to establish a base."

"Difficult Situation"

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the president told the lawmakers: "We're in a difficult situation. We need the support of the American people. We need the support of the Congress."

The president has come under increasing pressure to assuage fears that his efforts to stem the growth of the federal budget will not be made at the expense of the poor and most needy.

Brady said the president, in formulating his economic program, was trying to "weed out the greedy to help the needy."

"No programs that are a safety net for the poor, the indigent and the truly needy are going to be eliminated," he said.

"Linkage" Planned

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee left the Capitol meeting with Reagan saying, "I'm convinced the president will propose tax relief and spending cuts together." He said Reagan left no doubt "there will be linkage between a tax cut on one hand and spending cuts on the other."

One congressional source, who asked not to be identified, said the president left the impression that his proposed 10 percent tax cut for individuals would be retroactive to Jan. 1. The source said the president left no doubt that business tax cuts would be retroactive to the first of the year.

Baker and Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said Reagan asked for a specific pledge of support on only one point, a proposed increase in the federal debt ceiling to cover current government spending commitments.

No Specific Cuts

On spending reductions, Byrd said, "No specific cuts were discussed."

Baker and Byrd praised Reagan's overture to Congress. It has been rare that a president has made the trip to the Capitol to press for his programs rather than calling congressional leaders to the White House. The president was accompanied by Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and Budget Director David Stockman.

Byrd called the meeting "a good gesture. I think it's symbolic but it's a good symbolic gesture."

"The most significant part of the meeting in my view was the president of the United States reaching out to the members of the Congress," said Baker.

Both men said Reagan's economic speech tonight will deal in some specifics of the administration's developing economic package. Tonight's speech is chiefly expected to be a broad outline of the nation's economic woes and how the economy got into its current condition.

Byrd and Baker said they expect the president to lay out the details of his program in an address to a joint session of Congress on Feb. 18.

Before his trip to the Capitol, Reagan met with three black leaders — the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, Hosea Williams and Charles Evers, all of whom supported his election campaign.

"The briefing that we received, it puts us in a much better position to say to blacks and poor people in America, 'have no fear. Mr. Reagan is not going to run out and snatch any checks from the needy,'" said Williams.

"The president gave us assurance that any cutbacks with regards to social programs such as Medicare would not affect the poorest people in our society and those who need it most and we left there greatly inspired," said Abernathy, form-

Republicans Hit On Debt Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats, accusing Republicans of demagoguery, vowed Wednesday to withhold support from President Reagan's debt increase bill until most GOP senators shed their inhibitions and vote for it.

In addition, the Senate Democratic Caucus agreed to fight for a debt-limit increase that is smaller than the $50 billion recommended by Reagan, the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee.

Byrd relayed the Democrats' position to Reagan during a meeting at the Capitol involving the president and leaders of the House and Senate.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker told reporters, "I predict the vast majority of Republicans in the Senate will support" the bill.

"Bite The Bullet"

Noting that over the past several years most Republicans in Congress have opposed raising the debt limit, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd told reporters: "It's time for the Republicans to bite the bullet, depoliticize this issue and support the Republican president."

Byrd and his fellow Democrats were incensed that some Republicans in the last election used the debt-ceiling issue to paint Democratic senators as fiscally irresponsible. That tactic, said one of the targets, Assistant Democratic Leader Alan Cranston of California, was "totally demagogic, totally conscienceless."

Republicans Accused

"We are not going to pass this debt limit increase with a majority of Democrats and a handful of Republicans," Byrd said. "We cannot continue to allow the Republicans to distribute their irresponsible and distorted campaign propaganda on this issue."

Because of Republicans' record on raising the debt ceiling, Byrd announced, Democrats had agreed to:

—Withhold their votes from the bill until a majority of Senate Republicans vote for it.

—Try to hold the increase below the $50 billion figure asked by Reagan. That figure was based on the assumption that Congress would approve the 1982 budget of $739.3 billion proposed by the Carter administration, Byrd noted, although Reagan is advocating sharp reductions. Budget cuts would mean less need for borrowing.

—Delay a Senate vote on the bill until after Reagan delivers his economic message tonight.

The Democrats' action could — but probably won't — upset plans for final congressional action on raising the debt limit this week.

Tax Credits Threat Seen For Schools

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

FEDERAL legislation that would provide tax breaks for families who send their children to private schools would create a caste system of schools and force a drain on funding for public schools, an official of the Texas Association of School Boards told area school trustees Wednesday.

During a school board workshop at Texas Tech University, TASB trustee Kathee Lupton cited the organization's opposition to tuition tax credits — legislation she said will be a "very controversial issue" in Congress this session.

Approval Chances "Good"

Mrs. Lupton also said following the workshop that TASB members who recently were in Washington, D.C., got the impression that the long-debated legislation stands a good chance of passing.

She told about 50 area administrators and school board members that the credits "undermine the principles of public education by encouraging affluent families to enroll in private schools." Consequently, Mrs. Lupton said, there would be a drain on public school enrollment, leaving public-supported education mostly for the poor.

Dwindling Support Feared

Public school financing also would be threatened by the tax credits, she said. With migration toward private schools, there would be dwindling support for public educators who want to raise educational funds through taxes or bond issues.

Public schools also would face a loss of state and federal funds since financing is based on enrollment, Mrs. Lupton

Decision On Lifting Soviet Grain Embargo Postponed By Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan postponed a decision Wednesday on whether to continue the Soviet grain embargo, despite a campaign pledge that he would lift it once in office.

Discussion of the embargo, imposed by former President Carter in the wake of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan, took up more than half of Wednesday's Cabinet meeting, according to White House press secretary James S. Brady.

"We had a full discussion. We're going to have more," Reagan said to reporters as he left the White House on his way to the Capitol for a discussion with congressional leaders about his economic program.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas said she and about a dozen other Republican senators from farm-belt states had been invited to meet with Reagan on Feb. 17 to discuss the issue and that they had been assured there would be "no change in current policy" before then. But Brady said he did not know of any such meeting being scheduled.

Brady took pains to emphasize that by putting off any action, the president had not implicitly decided to continue the embargo.

"He's not ready to make up his mind," the spokesman said.

Brady declined to say whether the president was leaning toward continuing the embargo or lifting it, noting that "he's still listening to the discussions."

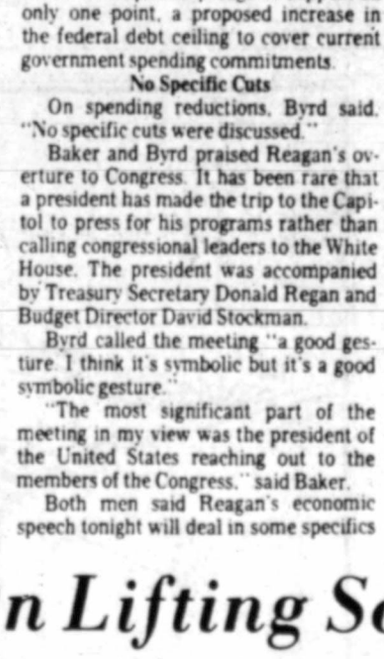

"My sense is it will probably continue on into some other Cabinet meetings," he said.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said after Wednesday's session, "All I can say is it was discussed, there's no decision, and that's it."

Reagan's campaign opposition to the embargo strengthened his standing among farmers, a key political element in the Midwest. Last July, Reagan said in a written statement that he favored lifting the embargo immediately.

At his news conference last week, the president continued to indicate that he was opposed to the embargo, saying: "It was asking one group of Americans to bear the burden and I have always thought it was more of a kind of gesture than it was something real."

In the administration's view, lifting the embargo, or continuing it, would have little impact on farmers. But continuing it would send a message to Soviet leaders as questions are raised about what course they will follow in dealing with unrest in Poland.

"There's powerful symbolism on both sides," said one White House official who asked not to be identified by name.

Lifting the embargo would be a gesture to farmers, but retaining or expanding it "would also send a strong signal internationally," he explained. "Economically, it doesn't make that much difference to farmers."

In a related development Wednesday, a group of House Republicans sent a letter to Reagan urging him to lift the embargo. The letter stated, "As you yourself have said, the embargo has not achieved its stated purpose — deterring Soviet interference and aggression in Afghanistan."

The letter was signed by Rep. William C. Wampler of Virginia, ranking Republican on the Agriculture Committee, and and 17 other congressman, most from agricultural states.

Marvin Meek of Plainview, president of the American Agriculture Movement, said the boycott was ineffective and that he favored continuing it only if price supports are increased.

"It still boils down to what we said last November," Meek said. "We're willing to go along with it as long as it doesn't destroy our markets."

Agriculture Department economists blamed the 1980 drop in grain prices largely on a glut of supplies from bumper 1979 crops, rather than on the embargo.

But, some government experts say, farm commodity prices may be slightly lower because of the embargo, and food

State, Local Burden On Roads Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Texan nominated to run the Federal Highway Administration said Wednesday it may be time to return more road responsibility to state and local governments.

"If we accept the premise that the federal aid highway program was created to assist the states in constructing and improving roads that serve the national interest, have we not expanded the program beyond its federal role when we finance, say, the curbing and guttering of city streets in a town in Texas?" Ray Barnhart said at his Senate confirmation hearing.

The Senate Environment and Public Works Committee then approved Barnhart's nomination, 14-0. The panel's chairman, Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., said it might reach the Senate floor for confirmation as early as today.

Barnhart, formerly a Texas highway commissioner and a state Republican Party chairman, said the top priority must be preserving the interstate highway system, which faces serious and costly repair problems at a time when the national highway fund's income is limited.

Khomeini Blasts Political Infighting In Iran

KHOMEINI IN PRIVATE — Pars, the Iranian news agency, released this picture of Ayatollah Khomeini Wednesday, saying it is a rare photo of him "in his private hours." The caption was dated Feb. 2, but Pars did not specify when or where the photo was taken. In a speech Wednesday, Khomeini publicly acknowledged he was in bad health. (AP Laserphoto)

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini accused Iran's politicians Wednesday of "biting one another like scorpions," and paid a rare compliment to the United States by urging them to behave more like their American counterparts. The 80-year-old revolutionary leader also acknowledged he was in poor health.

Iran's political feuding pits the fundamentalist Islamic clergy against the more liberal President Bani-Sadr. A leading clergyman suggested Wednesday the president's role as commander of the army was not secure, and an Islamic newspaper said in an editorial there were "rumors" Bani-Sadr might resign.

Khomeini, addressing a crowd at a Tehran mosque, said, "The crowd is so huge ... but I cannot speak in detail because my health is not good enough."

"Therefore I will be brief and will say a few words in general." Tehran radio has recently broadcast appeals for Iranians to stay away from the suburban Tehran home of Khomeini, who was said to have suffered a heart attack early in 1980 and was hospitalized for several weeks. Since then there have been various reports that his health was failing.

Khomeini's 25-minute speech was broadcast by Tehran Radio and monitored here and in London.

It was his second speech stressing the need for unity among Iran's feuding politicians since the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran for 444 days were freed on Jan 20. Iranian leaders have used the hostage issue — both before and after their release — in attempts to gain power over their political foes.

As in the past, Khomeini declined to take sides between Bani-Sadr, leader of Iran's secular moderates, and his longtime rival Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, who is supported by the powerful Islamic clergy that controls Parliament.

Khomeini did not mention either side by name, but said Iran's opposing political groups were "biting one another like scorpions. God help them if they are wittingly weakening this country.

"God forbid if there should come a time when I feel obliged to do my duty. I advise them to keep calm, not to claw one another's faces, but to join together to help the country progress. Solve our differences of opinion in a brotherly atmosphere.

"Do not let it become necessary for me to do my duty. If I do have to do my duty I will take back whatever I have given to other individuals," he said.

Khomeini pointed to the U.S. political system as an example of how political foes can co-exist.

"You'll never see two parties in the United States working against U.S. interests," said Khomeini, who habitually refers to the United States as the "Great Satan."

He continued: "You saw recently the opposition between two parties in the United States that wanted to choose a president.

"When one (party) won and became president, the other party did not attack it and impose work stoppages.

"They congratulated him and are busy serving their country, and with the unity of words are promoting their country," Khomeini said.

The political feuding continued Wednesday with an exchange of charges between Bani-Sadr and his chief rivals.

Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, leader of the ruling Islamic Republican Party, told reporters Bani-Sadr was close to exceeding his constitutional powers and suggested the president's position as commander-in-chief of the armed forces was not secure. "Bani-Sadr will be high commander of the army as long as Imam (Khomeini) lets him," Beheshti said.

Khomeini, in a possible reference to Bani-Sadr's military role, said in his speech, "If I feel it is my duty, I will take back from anyone that which I have given."

Bani-Sadr wrote in his newspaper column, The President's Diary, that this will be the year of "resistance" — a word he has used frequently of late. "If we want to pass this crisis safely, there is no way but resistance," he wrote, without saying exactly what the crisis was or who was causing it.

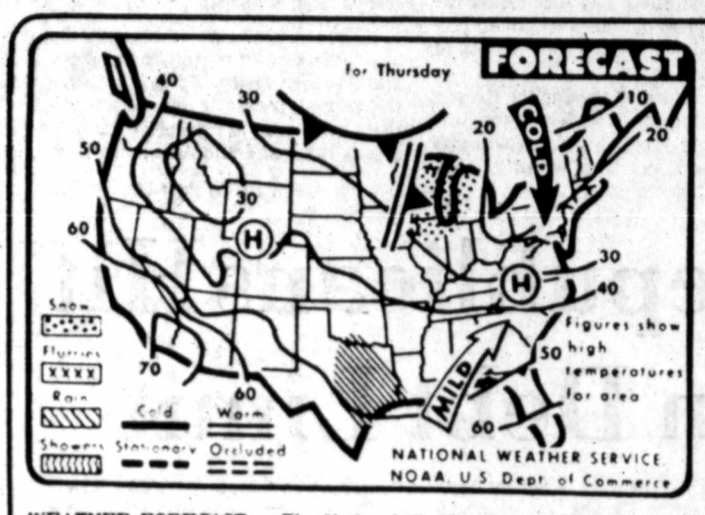

The pro-clergy newspaper Azadagan, accused Bani-Sadr of trying to expand his power base by "creating an atmosphere of provocation and confusion against the government and other institutions."

The newspaper said there were rumors Bani-Sadr would resign to "disturb the situation," but a spokesman for the president dismissed the newspaper report as "nonsense."

Bani-Sadr is scheduled to address a mass rally in Tehran's Aza'adi Square on Feb. 11, the second anniversary of the Iranian revolution. The pro-government militants who still occupy the U.S. Embassy plan to hold a rival ceremony the same day and turn over the embassy to the charitable Martyrs' Foundation.

On Monday, parliamentary speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani appealed for Khomeini's intervention in the intensified dispute between Bani-Sadr and Rajai.

Since the Americans were freed, Bani-Sadr has criticized the hostage accord, saying last weekend that there should have been a national debate.

Combatants Issue War Claims

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran claimed to have driven Iraqi troops 5½ miles back in its war-conquered western highlands Wednesday, but Iraq denied it, saying it held fast to positions along the 300-mile-long invasion front.

Iraq also claimed its forces shot down two U.S.-made Iranian Phantom jets raiding Iraqi positions around Iran's southwestern oil refining city of Abadan.

There was no immediate Iranian comment to the claim, which came in an Iraqi military communique that said Iran sent the jets up in efforts to slow an intense Iraqi artillery barrage against the giant refining complex in the city in oil-rich Khuzistan province.

The communique claimed that Iraqi helicopter gunships staged rocket-firing assaults against enemy positions in the western front and claimed 140 Iranian troops were killed. It conceded 38 Iraqi "martyrs."

Iran's claim of a counterattack in the western front came in a military communique which said Iranian troops were trying to recapture the Iranian border town of Qasr-e-Shirin, which controls a 120-mile highway to the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

On Tuesday, Iran's chief of staff claimed Iran's western highlands would be recaptured from Iraq in two or three weeks.

An Iranian military communique broadcast by Tehran Radio said Iranian jets attacked an Iraqi brigade in the Hafaiyyah region of Iraq on Tuesday, destroying more than 50 vehicles and inflicting 100 casualties.

In the Abadan and Khorramshahr sectors of Iran, Iranian shelling inflicted "some casualties" on the enemy and destroyed one Iraqi tank and one ammunition depot, Iraqi shelling of Abadan residential quarters Wednesday morning damaged "a number" of homes, the broadcast said.

An earlier Iranian communique reported that Iraqi-backed Kurdish rebels, who are seeking autonomy from the Iranian regime, were locked in artillery duels with the Islamic revolutionary guard garrison in the northwestern Iranian city of Mahabad.

There, rebels were said to have staged several raids to capture the radio and television station to proclaim a breakaway Kurdish state.

Iran offered no casualty figures and there was no independent confirmation of the claims from either side.

Western reporters have not been allowed to independently observe the fighting since Iraqi troops entered Iran on Sept. 22 after months of sporadic border clashes. Iraq has offered to withdraw from Iran if it recognizes Iraqi sovereignty over the Shatt al-Arab estuary. Iran has refused.

Before the conflict, a line down the middle of the Shatt served as the border between the two countries. While both Iran and Iraq are Moslem countries, Iraq's population is Arab; Iran's is Persian.

Light Snow Reported In Northeast

By The Associated Press

Light snow fell Wednesday over parts of the Great Lakes region and central Appalachian Mountains, and travel advisories were issued for western New York state.

The National Weather Service reported temperatures were near zero in the northern Plains and the Upper Midwest. Cloudy conditions prevailed along the central Gulf Coast, and rain was reported in parts of Texas.

Temperatures around the nation at 1 p.m. CST ranged from a high of 69 in Palm Springs, Calif., to a low of 4 below zero in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The forecast for today called for snow to continue over the eastern Great Lakes region. Snow flurries were predicted for the Upper Mississippi Valley and the western Great Lakes area, and light rain was forecast in central and southern Texas and southern Louisiana.

Sunny skies were predicted along the Atlantic Coast, the southwestern Plains, the Southwest, and over much of the West. Some cloudiness was forecast along the central Pacific Coast.

Temperatures were expected to be in the 50s and 60s from Florida to the Pacific Coast, and some parts of the southwest deserts were expected to have readings in the 70s. Temperatures in the teens and 20s were forecast for the northern Plains, the Great Lakes and the Upper Ohio Valley to the northern half of the Atlantic Coast. Temperatures were forecast in the 30s and 40s in the South Atlantic states, the Midwest and the Intermountain Region.

Here are some afternoon temperatures and conditions in key cities around the nation and in Canada:

Eastern U.S.: Atlanta 42, partly cloudy; Boston 19, cloudy; Buffalo 12, partly cloudy; Caribou 7, partly cloudy; Charleston, S.C. 42, partly cloudy; Cincinnati 19, windy; Cleveland 13, snow; Detroit 13, snow; Miami 66, partly cloudy; Nashville 33, fair; New York 24, cloudy; Philadelphia 24, partly cloudy; Pittsburgh 12, snow; Washington 32, fair.

Revolutionary Iranian Court Tries Journalist

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — An Iranian Revolutionary Court tried American freelance journalist Cynthia B. Dwyer on espionage charges Wednesday, the Swiss Foreign Ministry said. The ministry said a verdict — and possibly sentencing — was expected as early as Monday.

The surprise move came only two weeks after 52 American hostages were released from 444 days of captivity and at a time when the Reagan administration was reviewing terms of the agreement with Iran that freed the hostages.

The Swiss, who represent U.S. interests in Iran, also said that the Iranian-born, naturalized American citizen Mohi Sobhani was freed by Iranian authorities after being held on unspecified charges since Sept. 6.

Mrs. Dwyer is a 49-year-old mother of three who has been held in Iranian prisons for nine months. A Swiss diplomat who attended the one-day trial said she appeared "nervous but in good condition" and was able to "speak freely" during the trial.

CYNTHIA B. DWYER

In Washington, State Department spokesman William Dyess said information the department received reported Mrs. Dwyer had a hearing and not a trial and that "we are not aware of any specific charges."

But Swiss Foreign Ministry spokesman Othmar Uhl insisted it was a trial and that a verdict, which could mean conviction on the spy charges, was expected "around Monday." He said the Swiss had been invited to send an observer to the trial.

John Dwyer, who said his wife was arrested when she went to Iran to write articles about the Iranian revolution, said he had been told "there will be some kind of finding made Monday, and we just have to settle down and wait for it."

He added that Sobhani's release was not necessarily an encouraging sign. "I see no reason for optimism or pessimism," he said. "I'm very glad for him and his family, but I'm not sure what bearing it has on my wife's case."

Mrs. Dwyer, of Amherst, a suburb of Buffalo, N.Y., and Sobhani, whose family lives in southern California, were not involved in negotiations to free the 52 Americans seized in the U.S. Embassy takeover Nov.4, 1979.

The Swiss diplomat who attended the trial, Wilhelm Schmid, was reached by The Associated Press by telephone in Tehran and said Mrs. Dwyer "was very happy to see and to learn that finally there seems to be some sort of decision about her case."

Asked if he had any indication what the verdict might be, Schmid replied: "Oh, no. I'm afraid not. We will have to wait until the decision of the court is made known to us."

He said she was charged with "spying — acting against the best interests of the Islamic Republic of Iran. In the event she is released, we will do everything in our power to help with the arrangements for leaving the country.

"In the event that she should be sentenced, which we hope will not be the case, we will naturlaly continue to insist on our right to visit her and to help her in any way possible."

There was no indication why Iran had decided to act on the cases of Mrs. Dwyer and Sobhani. Iran gave no information on whether it intended to free Mrs. Dwyer, convict her and deport her from the country or to sentence her to a prison term.

In Washington, Dyess said the Swiss had informed the United States there may be "a disposition" of the case next week. Asked if her release was expected, he said, "We have no speculation on that."

In answer to a question, Dyess said he did not want to speculate on the differences between a trial and a hearing under current Iranian law.

He said information on release of Sobhani had come from Sobhani's brother in Los Angeles.

Morris Sobhani, another brother of the 44-year-old computer expert, said in Santa Barbara, Calif., "we are just very happy and very thankful."

He said his brother ran a computer business in Iran and stayed there after his former employer Rockwell International, pulled out of the country in 1979.

Morris Sobhani said his brother married an Iranian woman in Tehran and that the family had no information on whether the freed man would return to the United States.

According to the State Department there was no new information on a third U.S. citizen in Iranian custody, Zia Nassri, who was born in Afghanistan. There was no information on when he was arrested or why he was held.

Hereford Man Charged With Indecency

A-J Correspondent

HEREFORD — Michael Williams, 31, of Hereford was arrested Wednesday after a 222nd District Court grand jury here indicted him in connection with the alleged sexual molestation of his two daughters.

Williams was indicted on two counts of indecency with a child and could face a two to 10 year prison term and a $5,000 fine if convicted.

Williams' bond was set at $30,000 for each count and he remained in Deaf Smith County Jail Wednesday night.

The charges against Williams stem from an alleged incident in December while the two girls were visiting during the Christmas holidays.

The grand jury also returned two indictments against an Amarillo man and a Hereford man on charges of theft in connection with the theft of a 1981 Peterbilt truck from a Little Rock, Ark., dealership.

Gary Quisenberry, 28, of Amarillo and Vernon J. Carlisle, 55, of Hereford are accused of theft over $10,000 in connection with the theft earlier this year.

Grand jurors no-billed, or refused to indict, two other Hereford men who originally had been charged in the same incident.

Carlisle, as well as the the men who were no-billed, were arrested last week, but Quisenberry remains at large.

Local authorities began an investigation into the theft after being contacted by a Department of Public SAfety Motor Vehicle Theft investigators from Amarillo. The FBI also is looking into the incident, authorities said.

SEARCH FOR LOST INMATE

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Authorities here were searching Wednesday for a jail inmate who was mistakenly released because of a clerical error. Tyrone Johnson, 21, of Elizabeth, who was awaiting trial on burglary and theft charges, was freed from the Union County Jail Tuesday after a clerk accidentally typed his prisoner identification number on a release form.

Panel Postpones Hospital Hearing

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Health Facilities Commission has postponed until Feb. 23 a public hearing on an application by Slaton Hospital Memorial Foundation Inc. to construct a new hospital.

The foundation has asked authorization to construct and operate a 30-bed, 17,466-square-foot structure to replace the current 40-bed facility.

The hearing had been scheduled for Jan. 20. The deadline for becoming a formal party to the application has passed.

However, anyone may attend the hearing as an interested person. Such persons may introduce evidence but may not cross examine witnesses nor protest the introduction of evidence. The commission's offices are at 1600 W. 38th St., Austin.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES

Keogh Plan For Self-Employed

By RAY DeCRANE
(Fourth of 14 parts)

Just as employees who are not covered by a pension program may set up their own retirement fund on a tax-sheltered basis, self-employed people have the same type of opportunity under current income-tax laws.

The provisions for self-employed people are even more liberal than they are for employees. Any self-employed person may set aside 15 percent of his net business or professional income, but not more than $7,500 yearly, in an account called a "Keogh Plan."

As with IRAs for employees, the contributions to a Keogh account are deductible on the individual's federal income-tax return and all the earnings on the account are protected from any income tax until withdrawals begin.

Information on Keogh Plans, and other tax-saving advantages, can be found in the 1981 edition of "Cut Your Own Taxes and Save" by Ray De Crane. For your copy, send a check or money order for $1.50 (plus 50 cents postage and handling) to "Cut Your Own Taxes" c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Under the tax laws, withdrawals from either an IRA or a Keogh account may not take place before age 59½ without incurring a 10 percent IRS penalty, but withdrawals must begin in the year in which the individual turns 70½.

If a self-employed person — it may be a manufacturer's representative, a barber, a physician, a dentist, an accountant, etc. — has full-time employees working for him, they must also be covered if the employer sets up a Keogh Plan. Incidentially, the contributions to the employees' retirement program are tax deductible to the self-employed person.

Because of the added expense of covering employees when a Keogh Plan is established, some self-employed people elect instead to establish IRAs for themselves. The contribution ceiling is lower for an IRA — only $1,500 a year — but when this type of retirement program is adopted, there is no requirement to cover employees as well.

Contributions may be made to a Keogh Plan as late as the April 15 filing deadline for the tax return as long as the account was opened by last Dec. 31.

Campaign Finance In Sound Shape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush finished his 1980 campaign for the Republican presidential nomination with money in the bank and his books in good shape, the Federal Election Commission reported Wednesday.

The commission's final audit of the Bush campaign said he stayed within the overall spending limit for primary campaigns and under the individual limit for each state.

The commission earlier asked penalty payments from President Reagan and former President Jimmy Carter for exceeding legal spending limits in their nomination campaigns.

The Bush audit said he had been overpaid by the goverment in the matching funds program, but that he had returned the entire $39,691 overpayment last September. Bush received $5.7 million from the federal government to match funds raised from private donors.

ON CITY TRAFFIC NEEDS

Too Much Talk, No Action

ONE FESTERING traffic sore has moved closer to remedy even as the City Council somewhat timidly came face to face with the difficulties of effecting a permanent cure for Lubbock's other clogged arteries.

Texas Tech, which had stubbornly blocked the widening of University Avenue for 15 years, approved a compromise plan which will permit the City to improve the mile-long stretch between 4th and 19th Streets.

The plan plainly will benefit the university as much as it will the community, but credit must go to President Lauro Cavazos and the entire Board of Regents under Chairman J. Fred Bucy for correcting the mistake made by previous administrations in delaying the widening project.

We applaud all those responsible for that.

WITH A REPUTATION as the most accident-prone mile of roadway in Lubbock, as well as one of the most difficult to get down, University Avenue along the campus now can be improved and beautified.

As part of the compromise, which will result in an adequate although not ideal thoroughfare, angle parking on the east side of the street will be converted to parallel parking.

Merchants who are upset about this would be better advised to convince their landlords that they must acquire off-street parking space nearby.

Parallel parking will be less dangerous than angle parking but, from the merchants' point of view, it is better than the only viable alternative of eliminating parking altogether.

THE BUSINESSMEN'S opposition typifies one of the difficulties in solving other traffic problems here: Everybody wants to move freely across town but wants the traffic to stop in front of his own place.

Lubbock will have to make better use of existing streets, though, if it is to alleviate a worsening traffic jam, members of the City Council agreed at a planning session for the 1980s.

Planning Director Jim Bertram said the cost of, and oppposition to, a long-delayed east-west expressway will mandate less effective measures.

Instead of reacting with a determination that "where there's a will, there's a way," Council members seemed to be sort of resigned to the situation.

They did show interest in yet another study into the feasibility of computerizing the traffic signals and suggested a one-way pair to relieve 34th Street, which is a good idea.

WE'D PREFER to see an aggressive attitude, however, one designed, among other things, to make certain the state meets its commitment to build a 3rd and 4th Street one-way pair to handle expressway volumes of traffic.

This would have to merge into an expressway-type facility along what is now the Tech Freeway to a point beyond the 19th Street intersection, with a grade separation interchange at that point.

Design of Interstate 27 through the city also must be improved, as the Council itself noted earlier, in order to let east-west traffic get onto and off it without stopping.

Lubbock must aggressively insist on speedy construction of I-27, just to play catch up with other cities. In addition, it must demand its fair share of non-Interstate allocations by the Texas Highway and Transportation Department.

It shouldn't take 15 years to get University Avenue widened, 25 years to get an Interstate expressway built or another minute to get some action on other street improvements that have been talked about for years.

TEXAS CHAPTER UNWRITTEN

Book Closed On Bilingual Ed

IN SCRAPPING bureaucratic plans to require that children be taught almost all their courses in their native languages, the Reagan administration hopes to free future generations from the bondage of racism.

It remains to be seen whether a federal judge in Texas has the power to impose 12 grades of bilingual education on school children regardless of what anybody else thinks about it, however.

New Education Secretary T.H. Bell, who is suspect outside liberal circles because of his activist record, stunned just about everybody by junking the bilingual education rules proposed by his predecessor.

THOSE PROPOSALS, which would have taken effect this year, Congress permitting, were "harsh, inflexible, burdensome, unworkable and incredibly costly," Bell determined.

He added that they would have violated federal law by usurping state and local control of education.

"We will protect the rights of children who do not speak English well, but we will do so by permitting school districts to use any way that has proved to be successful," Bell said somewhat ambiguously.

We hope that means that children who are not proficient in English will be given special help, but that none will be given a crutch for so long that they never have to rely on English in acquiring reading, writing, reasoning, communication and other basic skills.

To compete on an even footing in the American society, a minority student must finish high school using English as his first language. His native language then becomes his extra edge rather than his handicap.

Just what bearing Bell's decision will have on a Texas court case is uncertain. Federal Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler is in the process of abusing his power to impose 12 grades of bilingual education on Texas schools.

Now that the administration has decided against usurping powers reserved by the states or the people, we hope that Judge Justice will be prevented from doing so.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Consultants Take Chill Out Of 'Frozen' Jobs

WASHINGTON—President Reagan has come out of the starting blocks in impressive fashion, decreeing a series of executive actions designed to fulfill his campaign pledges to the public.

Drawing the lion's share of attention in the early going was an executive order imposing a freeze on the hiring of new federal employes.

This move provoked a great outcry about the hardship inflicted on people who thought they were about to land a federal job, and about the alleged chaos that would be created within executive agencies.

All of this, I regret to say, is a bit of a sideshow. The truth is there have been hiring freezes off and on under every President since Truman. Such freezes have not created chaos in the federal bureaucracy.

UNFORTUNATELY, neither have they halted, or even slowed, the growth of our leviathan government.

It is interesting to note, indeed, that the officially recorded number of federal civilian employes has hardly changed at all over the past two decades—going from 2.23 million in 1959 to 2.48 million in 1978.

Considering the fact that the federal budget quintupled in this period, and that the scope of federal actions increased accordingly, this is on the face of it an amazing statistic.

If common sense tells you the number of federal employes could not possibly have remained constant under these circumstances, you are right.

WHAT HAS happened is this: as President after President has ordered hiring ceilings, freezes or cutbacks—even as federal responsibilities have expanded—the work has simply been contracted out.

More and more people are hired as consultants or outside experts, put on state or local payrolls to be paid with federal money, or sequestered from public notice in independent public corporations.

The colossal scope of this concealment has been sketched for us by reporter Donald Lambro, among others.

He notes, for example, that while the former Department of Health, Education and Welfare officially had 145,000 people on its manning tables, it had more than 1 million other people on state payrolls, in local communities, in think tanks and universities whom it was paying with our federal tax dollars.

IN A recent book about this subject ("The Political Economy of Federal Government Growth") economists James Bennett and Manuel Johnson of George Mason University note that the officially tabulated work force has, in effect, converted itself into a highly paid group of white collar managers, supervising the activities of millions of other non-listed employes.

The government keeps growing, but the form of its growth is changed, and nicely obscured from public vision.

All of which means the hugga-mugga over the official hiring freeze is, to substantial degree, a distraction.

The really important initiative on Reagan's part occurred two days after this freeze, when he order a 5 percent cutback on obligations for consulting, management and contract services to the federal government.

This is where the action really is, and if the new President can get this problem under control he will have rendered a major service indeed to the long-suffering taxpayer.

AND SOMETHING TO TIE AROUND THE FINGER

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Brush Up On Energy

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—President Reagan's plan to announce decontrol of oil prices on the day the hostages were honored in Washington was scrapped when dentist-politician James Edwards, who as secretary of energy has started out as the Cabinet member least popular in the White House, worked on teeth back home.

The Reagan scheme was to play down politically unpopular oil decontrol by unveiling it Jan. 27 when the nation was preoccupied honoring the hostages.

But Edwards was nowhere to be found the preceding weekend when the decision was made. Returning to Washington, he loudly insisted that decontrol could not go forward until he had a chance to look it over.

That delayed the announcement until Jan. 28, when it was the day's top news story.

But where was Edwards that preceding weekend, when not even resourceful White House switchboard operators could find him? "Probably drilling somebody's teeth," a presidential adviser snarled.

Intended as sarcasm, this was close to the truth. Edwards, a former governor of South Carolina and a practicing dentist, was winding up personal business in Charleston, S.C., that included removing a child's braces.

PRESIDENT REAGAN is considering Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who was national security adviser in the Ford White House, to be U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union—a switch from an industrialist to a military man intended to send a strong signal to Moscow.

The soft-spoken retired Air Force general, a protege and former deputy of Henry Kissinger, is no hard-liner. Nevertheless, Reagan likes the symbolism of switching from Ambassador Thomas Watson, Jr., a retired IBM executive, to a military officer.

There is another Reagan motive: Offering Scowcroft a spot in his administration commensurate with his high position in the Ford administration will help the President's relations with Gerald Ford.

PRESIDENT REAGAN showed how attentive he is to thunder from the right by conducting two long, private meetings in the White House within his first week in office with Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina over conservative objections to the new administration's State Department and Defense Department appointments.

Helms was sounding off as chairman of the Steering Committee, a loosely organized group of conservative Republican senators. Specifically, he complained that former Reagan adviser William Van Cleave had not been given a Pentagon post and urged wider authority for another Reaganite adviser, Fred Ikle, as undersecretary of defense.

Helms left the two meetings much cheered by prospects for national security appointments more to his liking. Nevertheless, he has not lifted his "hold" delaying Senate confirmation of Frank Carlucci, whose selection as deputy secretary of defense was the focus of Steering Committee grievances. Helms wants to see more state and defense appointments before he yields on Carlucci.

THE SUPPOSEDLY super-secret first family locator which enabled President Carter's senior staffers to electronically spot any family member from Jimmy to Amy, is being thrown out by President Reagan's staffers as an unnecessary complication.

"We can't figure out how the damn thing works anyway," one Reagan staffer told us. Carter's aides were fond of showing off the electronic gadget but always warned against news reports about it for fear it somehow might violate security.

He was appalled at the deteriorated condition of his office in the Executive Office Building (next door to the White House), once used as a hideaway by Richard M. Nixon and occupied by Ambassador Sol Linowitz under Carter. Nofziger immediately ordered a coat of paint.

SEN. EDWARD M. Kennedy has departed from his family's custom of having a close relative manage political campaigns by naming an outsider, staffer Jack Leslie, to run for a fourth full term in the Senate in 1982.

Nephew Joseph Kennedy, oldest son of Robert, ran Teddy Kennedy's 1976 campaign. Leslie, who handles political matters in Kennedy's Washington office, will soon move back to Boston to take full charge of the 1982 campaign.

Kennedy heads the 1982 hit list of right-wing groups who were so successful in cutting down liberal Democrats last November. Although he is a prohibitive favorite, the conservative activists are determined that he face a vigorous Republican opponent for the first time.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Uncover The Past

WASHINGTON—Professor Manolis A. Andronishas, an archaeologist at Greece's Soloniki University, has unearthed the tomb of King Philip II, the father of Alexander the Great.

The tomb, which was built in 320 B.C., was unearthed at the village of Vergina, 30 miles southeast of Salonika, Greece's second-largest city. The tomb was discovered under a 50-foot mound.

Inside the tomb was a room holding a lion-footed gold sarcophagus. Inside this sarcophagus was the dust of Philip's bones.

Dr. Andronishas also unearthed an ivory statue of Philip's golden ossuaries, his spear, his gold-ivory trimmed breastplate, a feathered panoply, a gold chest, a gold wreath and other important artifacts.

FROM 359 B.C. to 336 B.C. Philip of Macedonia swept across Thessaly, Thrace and Macedonia, forging a rich and prosperous nation and, in the process, unifying Greece.

Philip married Olympia, the daughter of an Epirote king. In 356 B.C. she gave birth to Alexander.

The young Alexander was instructed by Aristotle, who inspired his interest in philosophy, medicine and science. But in 336 B.C. Philip was assassinated. And Alexander, age 20, mounted the throne with the military's backing.

On Philip's assassination, Alexander marched south to recover a wavering Thessaly.

THEN HE crossed the Danube to dispurse the Getae and defeat the Illyricum. Then he invaded Macedonia again.

Meeting in Corinth, the Greek League appointed Alexander generalissimo for the invasion of Asia. He ordered that surveyors, architects, scientists and historians accompany his army.

He invented the infantry phalanx: After the cavalry charge, the striking force, which consisted of some 9,000-soldiers armed with 13-foot spears, attacked.

Darius the Great ruled Persia, an empire of some 27 nations. Alexander engaged and defeated Darius' armies in battle. Darius fled, leaving his family in Alexander's hands.

ALEXANDER ALSO fought successfully at Arbel, reaching Damascus. Then he conquered the Mediterranean coast, including Egypt.

Alexander left orders for the building of a city: Alexandria. But he never saw a single building rise; the young king gave his orders and then moved on.

By the age of 27, Alexander had conquered the whole known world.

However, a violent fever struck Alexander, and he died in Babylon in the year 323 B.C. Ptolemy, a general under Alexander, moved Alexander's body from Babylon to Alexandria.

It was wrapped in gold mesh and buried in a glass coffin in the center of Alexandria. But Alexander's bones have long since disappeared.

JAY HARRIS:

The Next Time...

NO ONE HAS taken any more American hostages as yet. But, don't bet on it not happening again...

In the wake of the return of the 52 Americans held in Iran, the outpouring of patriotism and the blunt talk by President Reagan, one would have thought those who oppose the U.S. would cool it for awhile.

Not so, if the past few day are any indication.

In Mexico City, 30,000 Mexicans marched past the U.S. Embassy in support of leftists battling for power in El Salvador. In Frankfurt, some 14,000 persons rampaged through the streets in protest of U.S. aid to the ruling regime in El Salvador. In Moscow, the tone was vitriolic.

In brief, it was "Yankee, Go Home!" But, leave your dollars.

THIS IS NOT to say that America, by its recent actions, including the patriotic bit and Mr. Reagan's warning, has suddenly regained long-lost respect abroad.

On the contrary, it is to note that there has been no abatement of the turmoil in the Mideast, the growing confrontation with the Soviets and the seething unrest in much of Central America. We didn't solve the world's problems overnight.

But, at least we know what they are. The American people must not only put some teeth into a fractured foreign policy and a gutted defense posture, but find an answer to double digit inflation and an energy crisis that keeps us chained to foreign oil while at the same time we try to bring a bit of order out of chaos.

In effect, while we live in a world that "never had it so good," much of it, including the oil kingdoms, teeters on the brink of anarchy.

THE CAST of players in this drama is one to boggle the mind.

On one hand, there is Iran "going down the drain" in the wake of the hostage issue. The nation is victim of a Dark Ages mad mullah mentality and a religious nut who has played God with millions of Iranians and risked plunging his own nation and the world into another bloodbath.

In Afghanistan, Russian soldiers spread death and destruction among a nation of people who posed no threat other than being alive. In another part of Asia, Communist Chinese and their cohorts in crime push a genocide as horrendous as the Nazi Holocaust.

And the likes of an Ayatollah Khomeini, a Leonid Brezhnev and a Red Chinese leader spread their hands and mouth: "Who, Me?"

BUT, THE charade doesn't end there. It plays closer home...

This past Sunday, a Chicago paper said Mexico has agreed to furnish Cuba with sophisticated oil-drilling equipment, including that possibly made in the U.S. but banned for export to Castro.

If so, it would mean that Mexico's leaders are pursuing a policy inimical to the interests of the U.S., and themselves, even as America serves as a haven for hordes of aliens who otherwise would turn the land of manana into a bloody battlefield, for food and clothing.

Not far away in El Salvador, another chapter in "agrarian reform" is being written, this time, as so often in the past, with the encouragement of church leaders who play into the hands of terrorists and leftist movements, yet don't have the moral fortitude to preach common sense family planning.

To such do-gooders, a leftist despot seems to be preferred to any other, no matter the cost.

THE AMERICAN people can be forgiven if they are confused by the rhetoric and claims and counter-claims swirling about such events.

But, the mass media and American leaders, especially those under the Carter Administration, as well as some church spokesmen, can not. They should know better, or at least seek to present the whole truth.

There is no question but that there is a new wind blowing across much of the Developing and Third World, including Central America. The clamor for land, food, clothing, homes grows by the hour.

There is no question but that there are violations of human rights as we perceive them. But, do we help or hinder when we apply those standards in such a selective and hypocritical manner that they have no meaning?

Despite all the talk, the real cause of human rights has not been advanced significantly the past four years. There is no Utopia, especially under Marxist and dictatorial rulers who betrayed not only America, but those who followed their pied piper promises. The dead on the rooftops in Tehran, in the mountains of Afghanistan and on the refugee boats in Southeast Asia are stark proof of that fact.

THE AMERICAN people should have learned a lesson from the Iranian hostage mess. It is one we ignored in the jungles of Vietnam.

It is that we aren't going to make the world over in our image, nor should we try. We aren't going to export Democracy, or turn others into Democrats or Republicans or even Southern Baptists or Catholics just because we do business with them.

At the same time, we can't crawl in bed with every radical "liberation" movement, including those backed by the Marxists, in hopes that some "right wing or conservative" government more oppressive than we like will be replaced with one which will embrace Santa Claus, the Tooth Fairy and universal Love on a credit card.

Our policy, in brief, should be to stand up for what is best for America. Defend it, fight for it if necessary. For 200 years, this nation has had the best system of self-government yet devised by man. We have for the most part been more fair and even handed with friend and foe alike, more humane and generous than any other nation in the history of mankind. We owe no one an apology for that, nor should we be pushed around for it...

Letter Describes Depth Of Rage Of Accused

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — With Jean Harris listening intently from the witness stand, a prosecutor read a letter Wednesday in which she told Dr. Herman Tarnower she was angry at being cut out of his life and his will by a "vicious, adulterous psychotic."

"I stayed away while you made love to the woman who has destroyed me," wrote Mrs. Harris, who is accused of fatally shooting Tarnower, her lover of 14 years, in a jealous rage over her younger rival, Lynne Tryforos.

The 57-year-old former school headmistress showed intense interest as Assistant District Attorney George Bolen read aloud the letter she has testified that she sent to the developer of the Scarsdale Diet last March 10, the day of the shooting.

Mrs. Harris' attorney followed on his own copy of the so-called "Scarsdale Letter," which he removed from the post office the day after Mrs. Harris' arrest.

"I am distraught as I write this," Mrs. Harris wrote the millionaire diet developer. "Your call telling me you prefer the company of a vicious adulterous psychotic has kept me awake for almost 36 hours."

The upcoming April 19 dinner in Tarnower's honor was to be the "apex" of his career, Mrs. Harris said, and she was upset to learn that he had invited Mrs. Tryforos, his 37-year-old divorced office assistant, to be his escort.

"I will be with you on the 19th of April because it is right for me to be there," Mrs. Harris said.

The packed courtroom was silent as Bolen read the document which was admitted into evidence Wednesday.

The letter was handwritten in red ink on the stationery of The Madeira School for girls in McLean, Va., where Mrs. Harris was headmistress at the time. She has testified that she wrote the letter on the weekend before last March 10.

Mrs. Harris has said that her jealousy over the 69-year-old Tarnower's affair with Mrs. Tryforos played no part in the fatal encounter in Tarnower's bedroom of his Purchase, N.Y. estate last March 10 and that he was shot accidentally trying to prevent her from committing suicide.

But the prosecution maintains that Mrs. Harris surprised her lover in the darkened room and shot him to death after discovering Mrs. Tryforos' satin nightgown and curlers hanging in the bathroom.

"Having just received a copy of your will with my name vigorously scratched out and Lynne's name in its place...Is this the culmination of 14 years of broken promises?" Mrs. Harris wrote.

Mrs. Harris accused Tarnower of selling her diamond engagement ring when "your adulterous slut got her divorce and needed money."

Mrs. Harris has testified that Tarnower had accused her of removing two of his books, and she wrote in the letter, "The very thing your whore does openly, you now have the cruelty of accusing me of."

"Now that a thieving slut has the running of your home, you accuse me of stealing," she wrote.

Mrs. Harris admitted to twice "taking money from your wallet," but said it was to pay for her clothes Mrs. Tryforos destroyed, including a yellow silk dress Mrs. Tryforos allegedly smeared with excrement.

"Tasteless behavior is the only kind Lynne knows," Mrs. Harris said.

She admits calling Mrs. Tryforos in the middle of the night and reaching Mrs. Tryforos' two children.

Overturned Conviction Rehearing Move Denied

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today denied the state's request for a rehearing of the court's earlier decision overturning the conviction of Sylvester Menefee, convicted in Lubbock County of aggravated robbery and sentenced to five years in prison.

A three-judge panel of the court had concluded Menefee should have been granted a new trial on the basis of "newly discovered evidence," consisting of the testimony of a co-defendant who was acquitted after Menefee's conviction.

The state argued that the motion for new trial was filed more than two months after the record of the appeal was filed with Court of Criminal Appeals, and that the appeals court had no authority to hear that request.

The appeals court also overturned an order revoking the probation of Mary Jane Solis, convicted in Terry County of forgery by passing and given a two-year sentence.

The state requested revocation of probation on grounds she had violated terms of her probation by committing the offense of forgery by passing, and the trial court agreed.

However, the appeals court said the state had failed to "present any evidence regarding appellant's (Solis') culpable mental state" and thus did not meet the burden of proof necessary to sustain the revocation.

The appeals court upheld the revocation of probation of Robert Lynn Washington, convicted in Hale County of theft and sentenced to six years in prison.

The appeals court said that revocation was "because the appellant had committed the offenses of rape, aggravated assault, and assault, all on the same day against the same victim."

Task Force Recommends Additional Drug Laws

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' select task force on control of illegal drugs in Texas recommended Wednesday the passage of five new laws by the 67th Legislature.

Clements already had declared the committee's recommendations an emergency matter to be given priority consideration by senators and representatives.

"If you want to do something about crime in Texas you have to do something about drugs," Dallas multimillionnaire Ross Perot, head of the Texans' War on Drugs Committee, said at a news conference. "Drugs are the No. 1 criminal and social problem in the state of Texas."

Perot said the main thrust of the proposed legislation, introduced in both the Senate and House, was "to go after the big traffickers and the people financing the large drug shipments which currently come into Texas and are distributed throughout the country."

"We're not after the kid in the schoolyard or the small-time guy on the corner," he said.

Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, who will be handling two of the major bills in the Senate, said Texas, because of its nearness to Mexico and South America, has "gained a reputation as an easy haven for major distributors and smugglers. These bills will help change that situation."

The proposed legislation includes:

•A bill proving stiffer penalties for drug traffickers dealing in large quantities and to allow conviction of drug traffickers under conspiracy and solicitation laws. New penalties for "boatload" and "truckload" quantities would include minimum sentences of 15 calendar years without parole and fines up to $250,000.

•A bill calling for a mandatory 5-year minimum sentence for any adult drug dealer selling illegal drugs to anyone 17 or younger.

•A "head shop" statute outlawing the making, selling or possession of articles that glamorize or promote the use of illegal drugs.

•A "triplicate prescription" bill covering dangerous drugs such as morphine, Dilaudid, Preludin, amphetamines, methamphetamines and methaqualone (Quaaludes). Law enforcement authorities would be able to check on any health care professional writing an unusual number of such prescriptions or any person receiving unusually large quantities of the drugs.

•A bill that would automatically and permanently cancel the license of any physician, pharmacist, dentist or veterinarian convicted of a drug-related felony.

A&M Regent Appointees Approved By Committee

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate subcommittee on Wednesday approved the appointment of three Aggie graduates as Texas A&M regents after two of them said they favored spreading A&M's portion of the rich Permanent University Fund among other schools in the system.

By the same 5-0 vote, the Senate Nominations Subcommittee approved the reappointment of Alton Bowen as state education commissioner and the appointment of V.F. "Doc" Neuhaus of Mission to the Finance Commission.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, asked the A&M apppointees how they felt about divvying up A&M's portion of PUF — which is now shared by A&M and the University of Texas — particularly to Prairie View.

Harvey "Bum" Bright of Dallas, class of '43, said, "I favor spreading the PUF funds through the (A&M) system to meet requirements."

"I feel the same way," said William McKenzie of Dallas, a 1944 graduate.

Joe Richardson Jr. of Amarillo, class of '49, said, "I'd have to do some more research." He added that he was "certainly not" in favor of abolishing Prairie View, and Brooks responded, "That's not a serious move."

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, asked how the appointees felt about allowing schools such as Stephen F. Austin and Sam Houston State to share in the PUF. McKenzie replied, "I don't think you should steal from one to build another," then he added that "steal" might not be the proper word.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said he understood from the remarks that the appointees were committed to keep the PUF for the UT and A&M systems, and McKenzie replied, "Absolutely."

"Texas deserves the best, and I hope to be part of a team that turns out the best for all the schools in the (A&M) system," said Richardson.

Bowen said the No. 1 problem in public education is getting back to the teaching of fundamentals — reading, writing and arithmetic." He said 30 percent of Texas school children are not achieving at the level they should be.

"One of the finest things that has happened in the last two years," said Bowen, "is the testing you required."

Pupils are now tested in the third, fifth and ninth grades.

Bowen also said the Texas Education Agency would propose a form of teacher competency testing that would require education majors to display basic skills before their junior year in college and also expertise in their teaching field before they are certified.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Cowboy's Owner Sued

DALLAS (AP) — The nephew of Dallas Cowboys owner Clint W. Murchison Jr. has filed a lawsuit against him and four other Murchison family members, charging that proceeds from a trust fund in the nephew's name were wrongfully used as loan collateral.

John D. Murchison Jr. said the money from the trust fund established by his late grandfather C.W. Murchison should have been turned over to him on April 7, 1973, John Murchison's 25th birthday. The trust was one of four that were set up by the elder Murchison in 1949 to benefit his grandchildren.

The lawsuit charges that the money was wrongfully withheld from John Murchison and was used as collateral for at least three loans secured during 1980 by other Murchison family members.

The lawsuit, filed in a Dallas district court, also charges that Clint Murchison III, son of Clint Murchison Jr., was responsible for the alleged misuse of the trust fund proceeds.

Miss Ono Releases Song

NEW YORK (AP) — The last song John Lennon and Yoko Ono worked on before his death was released Wednesday as a single sung by his widow, and a Warner Bros. spokeswoman said it will appear next week in record stores.

The song, "Walking on Thin Ice," is written and sung by Lennon's wife, Yoko Ono, with the ex-Beatle playing backup guitar. The flip side, a ballad called "It Happened," also sung by Miss Ono, was originally taped in 1973 and rediscovered by Lennon.

Before he was shot to death outside his New York apartment house in November, Lennon and Miss Ono had decided that the single should be another attempt to push Miss Ono's own career as a singer-songwriter. Her music and artistic "happenings" have often been criticized.

After dropping out of the music business for five years, the famous couple recently released a new album, "Double Fantasy," which had been planned as a double album but was released as a single.

Lennon and Miss Ono recorded songs that did not appear on the album. The spokeswoman for Warner Bros, which distributes the single by Geffen Records, said there were no current plans for releasing the remaining songs.

Eldest Identical Twins

CHICAGO (AP) — The 77-year-old Caulifield brothers are the eldest finalists of three sets of identical twins competing in the Illinois Lottery Identical Twins Contest.

William and Amos, lifelong bachelors, kid each other: "If I look like him, I'll kill myself."

The Caulifields, who share a home in Belleville, took their first plane ride here Tuesday to join Brett and Brad Salamon, 22, of suburban Flossmoor, and Henrietta Parrish Hudson and Lorietta Parrish Skinner, 40, of Chicago in the finalists' circle.

The finalists for the most identical twins in Illinois were chosen by Gov. James R. Thompson. Public voting will determine the winners, to be announced in March, from pictures of the finalists posted at lottery locations. Prizes are $1,000 for the winning set, $500 for second place and $250 for third.

The Parrish sisters' resemblance doesn't stop with their physical appearance. Both are registered nurses, both adopted the Moslem faith and both married musicians. They and their husbands share the same residence with seven children.

Lorietta said, "Our husbands can tell us apart, but sometimes it takes a few seconds."

Chain Of Command Confused

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Milford Thompson now both works for and is the boss of Stewart Huber in the Wisconsin Agricultural Stablization and Conservation Service. Follow carefully:

U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block has named Thompson acting chairman, and temporarily the only member, of the state ASCS committee. The committee reviews all actions by Huber, who is director of the Wisconsin ASCS office.

But Thompson also continues to work as a production adjustment and compliance specialist under Huber.

Thompson said neither he nor Huber calls the other "boss."

"I say, 'Good morning, Stewart,' and he says, 'Good morning, Milford,'" Thompson said.

The Reagan administration is expected to name a full three-member committee within the next month or two and replace Huber with a Republican.

'Citizen Brutality' Suits Encouraged In Albuquerque

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Police in this New Mexico city are being encouraged to file civil suits in cases of "citizen brutality" to thwart attacks on officers.

"Just because we wear a uniform doesn't mean we have to take any abuse," said Greg Williams, president of the Albuquerque Police Officers Association.

"If a citizen has the right to sue for police brutality, then a police officer has the right to sue for citizen brutality. We don't give up our rights just because we wear a uniform," he said.

He said the organization not only encourages an officer to seek legal relief, but also will help pay the cost of litigation in some circumstances.

"When people viciously and maliciously attack a police officer with the intent to incapacitate him," a suit should be filed, Williams said.

Citizen brutality is not new, but cases have surfaced recently because of increased awareness and better education on the part of police officers, he said.

Reynolds Acting Like 'Narc'

ATLANTA (AP) — Actor Burt Reynolds, in Atlanta to direct and play the lead role in the film, "Sharkey's Machine," is learning to talk and act like a "narc."

REYNOLDS

Reynolds, the son of a career police officer, will play Sharkey, a narcotics officer with the Atlanta Police Department, when filming begins in three weeks.

"I don't want anyone to question the authenticity of this film," Reynolds said Tuesday.

Monday night Reynolds consulted with Georgia Bureau of Investigation Director Phil Peters about the drug subculture and how police handle undercover operations.

Flag Mystery Solved

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — In a gesture of tribute to the freed American hostages, a group calling itself the flag committee gave the city an American flag. The city promptly hoisted the flag in a special dedication ceremony Friday.

The next morning, the $500 flag was missing, and committee spokesman Felix Palumbo said it was apparently stolen. The money had been raised through donations, and Palumbo said, "I'm really disappointed because we worked like hell to get it."

This week, the committee discovered that city firefighters took the 20-by 30-foot flag down after receiving complaints from residents who said it was not properly lit at night.

Committee member Martin Chomsky said street lights surround the pole, but residents said the flag deserves more illumination if it is flown at night.

Chomsky said he is contacting Veterans of Foreign Wars posts to determine how much light is necessary.

Chomsky said if there is not enough light now, the committee will buy a spotlight and ask permission from Jersey Central Power & Light Co. to mount it on a utility pole.

Meanwhile, the flag will remain at fire headquarters.

To Continue Lawsuit

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The husband of novelist Taylor Caldwell wants to continue a $5 million defamation of character countersuit against Mary Margaret Fried, Miss Caldwell's only surviving daughter.

In a telephone interview from Palm Beach, Fla., W. Robert Prestie, Miss Caldwell's fourth husband, Tuesday told the Buffalo Courier-Express that he wants to continue the suit even though Mrs. Fried dropped the suit she filed against him.

Attorneys for Mrs. Fried, 60, and Miss Caldwell predicted Prestie's suit would be dropped after settling Mrs. Fried's suit out of court Monday. But Prestie said he was still upset over allegations that he "kidnapped" Miss Caldwell when the couple moved to Connecticut last summer.

Mrs. Fried's suit tried to prevent the move. She alleged that Prestie, who married Miss Caldwell 2½ years ago, was interested only in Miss Caldwell's money and ignored her mother's wish to remain in Buffalo.

Miss Caldwell wanted to leave Buffalo and urged him to file the countersuit, Prestie said.

He said Miss Caldwell had completed more than 100 pages of her 34th novel. The writer is in excellent health and says she has "three more books to write," he added. "They're there, waiting to come out."

Governor Visits Class

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — In the past, 5-year-old Ben Barnum has brought rocks from his yard, ash from Mount St. Helens and pictures of his family to his kindergarten's show and tell sessions.

But this week Ben outdid himself — he brought Gov. Scott M. Matheson to show his class at Arlington School.

Ben, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Brent Barnum of Murray, met the governor at a basketball game last week, and invited Matheson to come to his class.

Integration Process Distorted, Say Ex-High School Students

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Three men who were student leaders at Little Rock Central High when it was desegregated in 1957 say a television movie about that historic period dwells unduly on the few whites who taunted the new black students.

The school attracted national headlines when Gov. Orval E. Faubus called out the state National Guard to block the admission of nine black students, and President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent in federal troops to make sure they were admitted.

CBS television on Wednesday night was showing a movie called "Crisis At Central High," based on a book by Elizabeth Huckaby, vice president for girls at Central during the crisis.

Craig Rains, who was senior class representative on the student council in 1957, said the scene in the script that bothered him most showed Ernest Green, the only senior among the nine blacks, seated apart from his white classmates at graduation.

Rains said that in reality the graduates were seated in traditional alphabetical order. A photograph of the event supports his version.

"There was tension, no question about that," he said. "Everyone held his breath when Ernest Green's name was called (to come forward and receive his diploma). There was tight security. We didn't know what to expect." No trouble resulted.

Rains also said he objected to a scene in which Green is shown eating alone in the cafeteria. The script implies this was always the case, but Rains said he and a few other whites made a point of eating with Green as often as they could.

"We had some people make some comments about it," he said. "Not anything you'd like to hear." Rains added that "having lunch" frequently meant no more than sharing a table with Green.

Rains also said he never saw any physical harassment of the black students, but did observe some taunting.

"It was not from the student leaders, or the better students grade-wise," he said. "The students that caused problems could be counted on the fingers of two hands.

Ralph G. Brodie, who was president of the student body in 1957-58, said he wrote a response about the film and sent it to the producers before filming began. Brodie, now a tax lawyer, said he received no reply.

"This review has been written to point out the omission and correct the resulting distortion that I believe is present in the script of the docu-drama," Brodie wrote. "My primary concern is that the indefensible actions of the few white students who are emphasized in the script will be once again attributed to the 1,800 responsible white students who are virtually ignored."

He said that the script emphasized the "troublemakers."

Bill May, a lineman on the Central High football team in 1957, said it was what happened outside the school that gave Arkansas a bad name.

"Those people outside came from all over the state, and out-of-state," he said. "You'd see license plates from Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama ... Who'd drive all the way from Jackson, Miss., to march around Central High School?"

May said he thinks some reports of harassment of black students were exaggerated, but also concedes that there probably were things going on that the average student didn't know about.

"It used to be a joke — 'Let's go home and watch TV and see what happened at school today,'" he said.

Symbol Of Kent State Now Happily Married

MIAMI (AP) — Eleven years ago, 14-year-old runaway Mary Vecchio became a national symbol of outrage after she was photographed kneeling over the body of a Kent State University student slain by National Guardsmen.

The spotlight was harsh for the ninth-grade dropout and brought years of unwanted attention from police, hecklers and journalists.

But on the eve of a new network dramatization of the Kent State slayings, Mary Vecchio is happily married and living in blissful obscurity, her mother says.

"Sometimes, she would walk just one block from the house and they (police officers) would arrest her for kicks," Claire Vecchio said. "She felt she had to get away."

Mary was the subject of Associated Press photographer John Filo's Pulitzer Prize-winning photograph of the May 4, 1970, incident in which Guardsmen opened fire on students protesting U.S. involvement in Cambodia.

When Frank and Claire Vecchio saw their daughter's picture in the the newspaper, they traced her to Indianapolis and she was returned home.

In an interview with the AP this week, Mrs. Vecchio said her daughter had married Joe Gillum, a 43-year-old plumbing contractor, in a Las Vegas chapel two summers ago.

The couple was living in Columbus, Ohio, during the holidays but planned to move either to Florida or California, Mrs. Vecchio said. Repeated attempts to contact Mary were unsuccessful.

When Mary left Miami several years ago to put her troubled past behind her and face an uncertain future, her mother "worried about her a lot because once you do something people don't like, they never let you forget it."

In 1973, the media focused on Mary Vecchio once again when she was arrested for prostitution and ordered to pay a $50 fine. She said she had been a prostitute for only a month.

Mrs. Vecchio said her daughter also received numerous citations for vagrancy and loitering, all attributable to harassment, she said.

"They framed her, that's all there was to it," Mrs. Vecchio said.

Although a decade has passed since Mary Vecchio was captured in the Kent State photograph, effects of her exposure have lingered, Mrs. Vecchio says.

"I have a daughter who is 13 and looks like Mary, and some of the kids tease her about it," she said. "A lot of people in the neighborhood when I'm outside still recognize me and they look at me hard."

On Sunday night, the past will hold Mary Vecchio for yet another look. Filo's memorable photo will be shown in NBC's television dramatization, "Kent State." Filo, a student at Kent State when he shot the picture, will appear as himself in the television special.

But Mary Vecchio Gillum, now 25, will not be in the broadcast. She turned down $200 payment for a minor role, her mother said.

Experts Mull Decontrol's Impact As Prices Rise

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Shell Oil Co. and Union Oil Co. of California announced wholesale fuel-price increases of a penny to 4 cents a gallon Wednesday, joining others who have boosted prices this week following the lifting of federal petroleum price and allocation controls.

But Shell, the nation's eighth-largest oil company, said last week's decision by President Reagan to scrap the controls "had little or no impact" on its latest moves. It attributed the actions instead to the "increasing cost of imported crude."

In a new study, meanwhile, three Federal Reserve Bank of New York economists estimated the dropping of the price controls would cause prices of oil products to be "20 to 30 cents per gallon higher" than if the controls had been maintained.

The economists, Paul Bennett, Harold Cole and Steven Dym, said in the bank's "Quarterly Review" that while their study was completed prior to Reagan's action, the move "does not substantially change our conclusions."

They also said price increases resulting from the gradual dropping of controls since June 1979 would result in conservation moves, cutting U.S. oil use about 6 percent and helping to reduce petroleum imports.

Shell said its wholesale gasoline prices rose 1 cent to 4 cents a gallon, depending on region, while its wholesale prices for diesel fuel and heating oil climbed 3 cents a gallon in most areas.

Union, the nation's No. 15 oil company, said it raised wholesale prices of gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel 2 cents a gallon in several areas. Tosco Corp., a large Western refiner, said it increased wholesale gasoline and diesel fuel prices 3 cents a gallon.

Most of the nation's refiners have increased prices for gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel by a penny to 6 cents a gallon since Reagan's move was announced Jan. 28.

Some refiners have attributed the increases directly to the lifting of the controls eight months ahead of schedule, while others have said previous oil-price hikes — including a 10 percent jump in imported oil prices since mid-December — sparked the moves.

The trade publication Lundberg Letter has estimated the national average retail price of all grades of gasoline was about $1.27 a gallon, while the pre-tax wholesale price was about $1.04 before controls were lifted.

Under the abolished federal control program, refiners dependent on imports received payments from those with access to cheaper price-controlled domestic supplies. The transactions left the average effective cost of crude for U.S. refiners below the price of imported crude.

The New York Fed economists said in their study that the lifting of controls, which was to have ended Sept. 30, allowed the efective cost of oil to refiners to increase gradually as domestic crude prices approached world levels and the amounts of subsidies declined.

If the cost of imported oil were to rise from today's $35 per 42-gallon barrel to $39 by October, the "import subsidy" allowed under the controls would have kept domestic oil-product prices down by 24 cents a gallon, the economists said.

At $44 a barrel for imported oil, they said, the subsidy would have reduced prices 24 cents a gallon below what they would have been if no controls existed.

Your Personal Biorhythms

Step 1 — Year of birth. Read down the left hand column to find the last number in the year of your birth then go across to the appropriate decade. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Governor's 'Honest Mistake' Corrected

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate corrected Wednesday what Sen. Ray Farabee has called an "honest mistake" of the governor by approving a proposal to free state money to build rural roads.

The bill would allow the state treasurer to distribute to counties each year gasoline tax revenue dedicated to the County and Road District Highway Fund.

A veto by Gov. Bill Clements in 1979 kept the money from being distributed to the counties but it did not stop money from accumulating in the fund.

This session Clements asked legislators to consider the bill he had vetoed as an emergency measure.

"Do you think he'll have a bill-signing ceremony?" quipped a senator.

Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said approximately $12.5 million had accumulated in the fund. The total is expected to reach $16.8 million by Aug. 31, with another $7.3 million transfer giving counties nearly $25 million in road funds for 1982.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said Clements' "ill-advised veto" had prevented money from flowing to local governments, especially in rural Texas, and inflation had cut into the funds they would have received.

Sen. E.L. Short, D-Tahoka, said at least one county in his West Texas district was forced to raise taxes to make up for the road money the governor's veto kept them from getting.

The bill was sent to the House on a 29-0 vote.

Weather Prevents Recovery Of Oil In Galveston Bay

HOUSTON (AP) — The Coast Guard said Wednesday at least 3,000 barrels of crude oil still remain in a container ship terminal from a Jan. 28 oil spill that dumped about 22,000 barrels of crude oil into the Galveston Bay area.

Petty Officer Doug Bandos said weather has prevented recovery of the oil at the shore end of the Barbours Cut terminal.

"It has been raining and things are real muddy," Bandos said. "We have one truck stuck in the mud, so we'll just have to let things improve. But the oil is contained by booms and is not affecting container ship operations."

Meanwhile, he said, the cleanup operations in the Miller Point area north of Texas City were being completed. The last patch of oil in open water slammed into the Miller Point area Monday night.

"The rest of the oil is scattered along beachfront sand and rocks and mopping up operations will require about a week, possibly two weeks," Bandos said.

Barbours Cut, the container terminal for Port Houston, is near the Houston Ship Channel's entrance to Galveston Bay. Booms were used to contain most of the oil spill in the cut after a hole was knocked in the hull of the tanker Olympic Glory in a collision with the Lucor Wickliffe, a chemical carrier.

Congressman Arrested On Sodomy Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressman Jon C. Hinson of Mississippi was arrested in a public men's room of a House office building across the street from the Capitol Wednesday and charged with oral sodomy. The rest room had been under police surveillance through a peephole as a "tea room" gathering place for homosexuals.

Deputy Chief Gilbert Abernathy of the Capitol Police said Hinson, a Republican serving his second term, was arrested for engaging in the sex act with Harold Moore, 28, of suburban Oxon Hill, Md., a library assistant. Moore was also arrested.

Hinson posted $2,000 bond and was released 4½ hours after his 1 p.m. arrest. The 38-year-old congressmen and his wife, Cynthia, live in Alexandria, Va.

Two other men were arrested in the same restroom, in the Longworth House Office Building, on similar charges in late morning in a separate incident and arraignment for all four will be Thursday in the District of Columbia Superior Court.

It was the third homosexual incident involving members of the House of Representatives in recent years. In 1977, Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y. was arrested for soliciting sex from two males in the District of Columbia. Last year, Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., was accused of soliciting sex, allegedly from a 16-year-old boy. Richmond admitted his act and Bauman conceded he had homosexual tendencies.

Hinson, too, has acknowledged previous involvement in two incidents related to homosexual activity, both before he was elected to Congress. He said last August that he had been arrested in September 1976, in suburban Arlington, Va., on charges of committing an obscene act, the nature of which he did not describe, and that he paid a $100 fine on a reduced charge of creating a public nuisance.

On Oct. 24, 1977, Hinson was one of four survivors of a fire at a Washington movie theater, the Cinema Follies, which catered to homosexuals. Nine persons died in that fire.

Despite the admissions, he was re-elected last November to a second term by a forgiving electorate.

Two hours before the arrest of the congressman and Moore, police arrested Jetton S. Douglas, 28, a lobbyist, and Kerry L. Jones, 36, a staff member of the Democratic Study Group, in the same men's room. They were charged with oral and rectal sodomy, D.C. police said.

Abernathy said Capitol Police, who patrol only Capitol Hill, received information last week that the men's room was a "tea room gathering (place) for homosexuals" and put the room under surveillance.

He said all four were observed committing homosexual acts in the "common area of the restroom." He described the method of surveillance as "through an opening."

Hinson was first elected in 1978 to represent Mississippi's 4th District.

Last summer, he told his constituents that "I must be totally frank and tell you that both of these incidents were in areas frequented by some of Washington's homosexual community," he said.

Although the matters did not become a major campaign issue, Hinson's Democratic opponent, Britt Singletary, commented after Wednesday's arrest: "It's startling. I can't help but feel somewhat vindicated. At least folks know I wasn't telling them the lies. I feel like now the truth is out.".

Hinson received 69,321 votes to 52,959 for independent runner-up Leslie McLemore and 52,303 for Singletary.

He had been administrative assistant to Rep. Thad Cochran of Mississippi from 1973 to 1977 and legislative, then administrative, assistant the previous six years to that state's Rep. Charles Griffin. Before that, Hinson had been a House page and a doorman. He was a U.S. Marine for six years.

Seismic Activity Worries Scientists

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens spouted two large steam plumes Wednesday, but scientists monitoring the volcano said they were more concerned with a 24-hour increase in seismic activity.

"We're more concerned these days with an overall increase in seismic bursts — that includes crater avalanches, small earthquakes and activity associated with steam plumes," said Christina Boyko, spokeswoman for the University of Washington geophysics center in Seattle.

She said it was too soon to tell whether the gradual increase in seismic activity is a sign that the mountain is preparing for a new eruption. "I can't say exactly when we'll know," she said.

The quakes during the period were too small to be assigned precise magnitudes or locations, she said.

There has been no recurrence of harmonic tremor, rhythmic ground movement scientists associate with the movement of molten rock, since two rumbles on Monday.

One steam plume Wednesday morning reached 4,500 feet above the 8,400-foot rim of the volcano's crater, while the second reached about 2,000 feet above the crater, said Kathy Cashman, a U.S. Geological Survey geologist.

Geological Survey scientists ventured to the mountain earlier in the week found the crater and lava dome within it to have have undergone no significant changes since they last were measured, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Thom Corcoran.

The mountain was visible under clear skies Wednesday morning, but clouds in the afternoon forced the closure of the Forest Service's restricted red zone 12 miles around the mountain. The red zone is closed whenever visual observation of the mountain's crater is impossible.

The volcano's last explosive eruption was in mid-October, the fifth such blast since the May 18 eruption that left 62 people dead or missing.

Meanwhile, the volcano-damaged town of Castle Rock learned Wednesday it will receive $418,000 in federal money to improve the city's south end drainage capacity. Cowlitz County will get another $50,000 to move a sewer line and a pump station near the town, said Rick Cocker, press secretary to U.S. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash.

Castle Rock Mayor Mike Huson said the city's south end has had drainage problems for years, but the millions of yards of volcanic mud deposited in the Cowlitz River by the mountain's May 18 eruption intensified the problem.

Plane Crash Considered Murder-Suicide

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The mysterious crash of a light plane a year ago probably was a murder-suicide by a man who feared his theft of $5,000 from an employer was about to be discovered, police say.

San Jose police said they believe that Robert Spencer, who chartered the plane, committed suicide by overpowering pilot Clyde Zappa and plunging the plane into a residential neighborhood at 200 mph on Feb. 4, 1980.

Both men were killed in the fiery crash, but no one was injured on the ground.

An investigation by the National Transportation Safety Board and the San Jose Police Department turned up no firm answers to the cause of the crash.

"I found absolutely nothing to make the plane dangerous," said Audrey Schutte, an investigator for the NTSB. And she said there was nothing to indicate pilot error.

"As a pilot of 39 years experience and 25 years as a prosecutor, it's my opinion that something happened inside the airplane between the two occupants, a wrestling match or something, that caused it to crash, said Santa Clara County assistant district attorney William Hoffman.

"We feel it was a murder-suicide," said San Jose police Sgt. Larry Demkowski.

Board Members Get Re-Elected

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS — Charles Guthals and Billy Neil Williams were re-elected to serve their third six-year terms on the Clovis Board of Education Tuesday.

Williams carried Position 1 with 1,021 votes to Eddie Pullman's 990 votes and Phillip Mendoza's 537 votes.

In Position 2, Guthals took the seat with 1,213 votes to David Williams' 685 and Walter Bradley's 523.

Officials said the total vote count was 2,580, less than 16 percent of the registered voters.

In Texico, Roy Thornton won his first three-year term to the Texico Municipal School Board, with 69 votes to J.B. Taylor's 49.

Thornton will replace Ronnie Curry, who did not seek re-election.

Voters in Grady elected Joe Burnett to a six-year term on the Grady Board of Education with 108 votes.

Burnett was opposed by Alan G. Sumrall who received 63 votes and Fred Crowley with 5 votes.

He will replace C.B. Blackburn, who did not seek re-election.

In Melrose, incumbent school board member Wayne C. Pinnell was re-elected to Position 2 with 125 votes. Opponent Troyce Mitchell received 96 votes, while Steve Scott recieved 76.

In the Position 1 race there, Bobby Gene Bennett received 108 votes with incumbent F.W. Barlow garnering 103. Charlotte Montgomery received 71 votes, while Paul Grider got 16.

Mental Health Unit Plans Open House

The Mental Health Mental Retardation Center of Lubbock will sponsor an open house from 8:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. today at Greenfair Manor Complex, 2812 Weber Drive, according to Oscar Jones, director of the drug abuse program for MHMR.

The open house, held in conjunction with National Black Awareness Month, is to acquaint the public with the new outreach office at the complex, Jones said.

Counselors will discuss their programs on drug and alcohol abuse, mental health, mental retardation and a referral service for social security and food stamps, all of which are services provided by the MHMR center and the outreach office, Jones said.

Wyoming Oil 'Lottery' Open To Every U.S. Citizen

ONTARIO, CALIF. (Special)—Hundreds of average citizens will win oil lease rights in upcoming public drawings conducted by the State of Wyoming. Some may achieve overnight wealth by selling their rights to oil companies and retaining lifelong royalties on any oil or gas production.

Incredibly, most will risk no more than $30, tax deductible, to enter the little-known program that offers every American the opportunity to compete on an equal basis with giant oil companies for leases of public lands.

Entry details and information may be obtained by writing The H. Kirk Sanders Company, (Public Lands Division), 2032 Caroline Drive, Ontario, California 91761 (Post Office Box 3697). Enclose $1 for postage and handling.

Official Entry cards and instructions will be rushed by return mail to permit you to meet the next available filing deadline. 2-5

Hall Of Fame Names Inventor Of Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The developer of man-powered flight will be honored as inventor of the year and four other men are being added to the National Inventors Hall of Fame, the U.S. Patent Office announced recently.

MacCready achieved international fame in 1977 when his "Gossamer Condor" made the first sustained, controlled flight by a heavier-than-air craft powered solely by the pilot's muscles.

In addition, in 1979, MacCready's "Gossamer Albatross" made the first crossing of the English Channel by a human-powered aircraft.

Being added to the hall of fame are:

•Harold S. Black, a native of Leominister, Mass., now living in Summit, N.J., who developed the negative feedback amplifier widely used in electronic equipment.

•Chester F. Carlson, born in Seattle, Wash., honored posthumouly for the development of the Xerox system of photocopying.

•Charles Stark Draper, a native of Windsor, Mo., who now resides in Cambridge, Mass., who developed a system of gyroscopic stabilizers widely used in navigation equipment.

PAUL MacCREADY

•Nicolaus August Otto, born in Holzhausen, Hesse-Nassau, Germany, who invented the four-cycle gasoline engine, the type most commonly used in automobiles.

The four will be inducted by Joseph Previto, president of the National Inventors Hall of Fame Foundation.

In addition to the formal ceremonies a variety of inventors will be demonstrating their work throughout the day Feb. 7-8.

The Hall of Fame was established in 1973 with the assistance of the Association for the Advancement of Invention and Innovation.

Thomas A. Edison was the first person selected for membership in the hall, the only one honored that year.

Since then 34 others have been added including such well-known inventors as Alexander Graham Bell, Eli Whitney, Wilbur and Orville Wright, Guglielmo Marconi, Rudolf Diesel, Louis Pasteur and Robert H. Goddard.

DIES OF EXPOSURE

LITTLETON, N.H. (AP) — An Army Special Forces soldier on winter survival maneuvers in New Hampshire's White Mountains died Wednesday of exposure after falling into an icy stream, an Army spokesman said. The Green Beret, whose identity was not immediately released, died at about 4 a.m. Wednesday at Littleton Hospital.

Navajo Fear Program Cutbacks Under Reagan

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — The Navajo nation made "solid, tangible" accomplishments during the Carter administration, but Navajo Tribal Chairman Peter MacDonald says he is worried about whether Navajos can sustain that progress under a Reagan administration.

"Much of what we have secured is in danger," MacDonald said Tuesday in his annual "state of the nation" address to the tribal council.

MacDonald noted that unemployment among Navajos decreased from a "disastrous 45 percent to a somewhat better 38 percent" during Jimmy Carter's years.

In addition, he said grants from Carter's Economic Development Administration helped build three shopping centers on the sprawling reservation.

But the Navajo nation, he said, faces the possibility of major cuts in social programs funded by the federal government under President Ronald Reagan.

"There is no doubt that there is much waste and mismanagement in federal programs and there are some grant programs that fund downright silly projects and studies," said MacDonald.

However, he said native Americans should not be put in the same category.

"I think that our people, along with other reservation-based native Americans, are in a position to make out a special case for exemptions of cuts from federal programs."

China Ready To Ring In New Year

PEKING (AP) — Young people's thoughts turn to weddings, Chinese officials worry about birth control, families stock food for feasts and the fireworks business is booming — sometimes accidentally.

It's all part of China's biggest celebration, the lunar new year that this year ushers in the year of the rooster. The holiday is officially called the spring festival, since China observes Jan. 1 as New Year's Day.

The celebration starts Thursday and most Chinese will have a four-day holiday, making it a convenient time for family reunions and weddings.

The official Xinhua news agency reported that in the first 10 days of January, 7,032 couples registered to be married in Shanghai during the holiday.

It also is reunion time for husbands and wives whose work assignments normally keep them apart. Health workers are busy distributing birth control devices and pills to prevent a need for abortions later, the newspaper Health News said.

The People's Daily said fireworks supplies are plentiful, with the amount on sale in Peking up 30 percent from last year.

Meanwhile, special inspectors are busy trying to keep fireworks off the trains, and millions of firecrackers have been reported confiscated from passengers. Last year, more than 30 people were reported killed or injured in fireworks accidents on trains or in stations.

In Shanghai, the newspaper Wen Hui Bao reported seven people injured when a boat carrying fireworks exploded and sank after some youths jumping aboard accidentally landed on some firecrackers.

All papers sounded a theme of frugality and a Shandong province newspaper warned that extravagance could lead to shortages.

Xinhua, meanwhile, was reporting good food supplies in Peking, Shanghai and remote Lhasa, the Tibetan capital, where Peking ducks and special vegetables had been sent in for the Tibetan new year. Peking, however, reported temporary shortages of woolen goods, women's wrist watches, good cigarettes, wine, liquor and jasmine tea. Xinhua said extra supplies were on the way.

In Shanghai, Xinhua said the commerce bureau was trying to insure adequate supplies of fish, a traditional Chinese symbol of abundance.

Indians' Use Of Alcohol Decreasing

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — A study of alcohol consumption in an Indian tribe once led by Sitting Bull says that excessive drinking among American Indians appears to have stabilized, a Penn State professor says.

Nevertheless, alcohol "remains the No. 1 health problem of the American Indian, particularly those west of the Mississippi River," according to Dr. James O. Whittaker, who conducted a 20-year follow-up study of drinking among the Standing Rock Sioux, a tribe of some 6,000 members who reside mostly in North Dakota.

"The good news, if this study is any indication, is that the incidence of drinking seems to have leveled off. In fact, it may be declining a bit," said Whittaker.

"Twenty years ago, roughly 69 percent of the sample reported that they consumed alcoholic beverages," Whittaker said in a recent interview. "Approximately 58 percent of the sample reported likewise in 1980."

This figure is not far off from the U.S. population as a whole, Whittaker said. But the amounts that the Sioux drink and the frequency with which they drink are much higher, he said.

Life expectancy on the Standing Rock Sioux reservation is only 45 years. Sixty-five percent live below the poverty line, said Whittaker, a psychology professor.

Alcohol provides an outlet for aggression in a culture where anger and frustration tend to be internalized, resulting in the highest suicide rate in the nation, he said.

The age range for the heaviest use has shifted from the 30 to 39 age group to those who are 20 to 29.

Among juveniles 12 to 19 years old, 55 percent reported that they drink today, up from 50 percent in the initial study. The median age for beginning to drink remained at 16.

"These figures are disturbing," Whittaker said. "Some 58 percent of the Standing Rock Sioux over 12 years of age consume alcohol."

Jury Opens Study Of Garwood Case

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A five-member military jury began deliberations Wednesday in the court-martial of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, but recessed after 8½ hours with no verdict on charges that he collaborated with his captors during almost 14 years in Vietnam.

The senior member of the panel, Lt. Col. Abromo L. Vallese, told the court when the jury recessed at 6 p.m., "We have a lot more deliberation."

The jury, which will not be sequestered, is scheduled to reconvene at 8 a.m. today.

Before the panel recessed, Vallese asked for copies of testimony from a government witness, Army Dr. Floyd H. Kushner, who was in a prison camp with Garwood at one point.

Garwood, 34, described by one former prisoner of war as a "white Vietnamese," also was charged with maltreating a POW by hitting him in the ribs after a group of fellow captives killed the prison camp's pet cat for food.

Conviction on either charge carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment and forfeiture of an estimated $147,000 in pay that accrued during Garwood's captivity.

The jurors, all Vietnam veterans, also have the option of reducing the maltreatment charge to assault, which carries a maximum penalty of six months in prison.

The jury, which began deliberation at about 9:30 a.m., returned to the courtroom at midafternoon and asked to review the testimony of two witness, former prisoner Sgt. Billy Watkins and Air Force Col. James F.T. Corcoran, a forensic psychiatrist who evaluated Garwood.

Watkins said that as he was being taken to a prison camp "Pfc. Garwood met our guards, they shook hands and embraced." He said Garwood told him to obey the rules of the camp, encouraged him to write statements protesting the war and advised him that he would be released if he worked hard.

Watkins said that on one occasion Garwood told another prisoner he did not believe he would ever return to the United States.

Jury Reads Testimony

The jury was also read testimony from the afternoon of Jan. 16, when Corcoran was asked if Garwood realized he was interrogating fellow POWs.

"He does not. He said he was helping the prisoners converse with the Vietnamese," the psychiatrist said, adding that "at some point in time Garwood lost his identity as a Marine."

If Garwood is found guilty, his sentence will be determined by the jury after further hearings. There is an automatic appeal of a guilty verdict to Maj. Gen. David Barker, base commander, and it would also automatically be heard by the Navy Court of Military Review in Washington.

Four Votes Convict

Four jurors would have to vote for conviction for Garwood to be found guilty. The jury would vote only once on the verdict unless at least one-third of the members cast ballots for further votes.

In 17 pages of instructions he read to jurors Wednesday morning, military judge Col. Robert E. Switzer said Garwood could be acquitted if the panel believed defense claims that the accused Marine was driven insane by torture in the jungle prison camps of North Vietnam and could not conform to military law.

"Insanity at the time of the offenses is a complete defense to the offenses of communicating and holding intercourse with the enemy and maltreatment of a prisoner," Switzer said. He said the jury would have to be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt of Garwood's sanity to find him guilty.

Captive Since 1965

Garwood was repatriated after he slipped a note to a U.N. representative from Finland in Hanoi in 1979. He said he had been held captive by the North Vietnamese since 1965 and wanted to return to the United States.

When he stepped from a plane in Bangkok several weeks later, he was notified that he had been charged with desertion, collaboration with the enemy, soliciting American servicemen to lay down arms and physically maltreating a fellow POW and verbally abusing another.

Switzer granted defense requests last week to dismiss the desertion, solicitation and verbal maltreatment charges.

Switzer, himself a Vietnam veteran, said in his charge to the jury that military law forbids POWs from communicating with their captors.

The collaboration charge alleged Garwood wore the uniform of and carried a weapon for his captors and accepted a position in the North Vietnamese army. It specifically accused Garwood of:

— Serving as an interpreter during political indoctrination classes in a prison camp.

— Informing to the enemy about complaints, feelings and attitudes of fellow captives.

Questioning POWs

— Interrogating POWs upon their entry into the camp about their former military units, their attitudes and any escape plans.

— Indoctrinating POWs as part of a political course, extolling the virtues of the National Liberation Front and suggesting that they "cross over" to the enemy.

— Serving as an armed guard, escorting POWs inside outside the camp.

School Board Group Briefed On Proposed State Legislation

said. The public school system "would suffer major revenue losses."

Mrs. Lupton, a Shallowater school board member, also said tuition tax credits "are unconstitutional as already determined by the Supreme Court."

She said she met with local congressional representatives Charles Stenholm and Kent Hance while she was in Washington and that they had slightly different views on the subject.

Hance, she said, is opposed to the proposed legislation. Stenholm currently is against tax credits, but Mrs. Lupton added, "He was in education; he was a teacher and he feels the educational system is declining and that it needs competition." Stenholm could be persuaded to change his vote later, she told the school officials.

The workshop also covered state legislation, with the director of TASB Educational Services briefing the group on Gov. Bill Clements' priority issues.

Jerry Smith listed several pieces of proposed legislation he said the governor has tagged as emergency bills. In that category is legislation that would mandate competency testing for teacher candidates both before they enter university education programs and again prior to receiving teacher certification.

Testing Plans Opposed

The bill "has a good chance of going through," Smith said noting that teacher groups are opposed to the measure. TASB supports testing as a condition for certification.

He said that another bill before the legislature would require testing for students at every grade level, with the exams tied to promotion and graduation. TASB opposes such testing as a prerequisite for moving to other grades or graduating.

Smith said the governor also has tagged for emergency action a measure proposing school curriculum reform. The bill, Smith said, attempts to take curriculum out of the hands of the legislature and give the State Board of Education the authority to outline students' course of study. "There probably would be more courses dropped than added," he said.

Gov. Clements is pushing for a measure that introduces a kind of merit pay for teachers, the TASB official said. The legislation would create a post of master teacher for educators identified by their school districts as outstanding. To allow them to move up in pay grades, $10 million would be set aside.

Those teachers would have no additional responsibilities, Smith said and there would be no guarantee they would receive the same pay level the following year. Also a limit probably would be placed on the number of master teachers a district could nominate.

Smith also briefly discussed legislation proposing due process for teachers whose contracts are not renewed. "There is a strong feeling among legislators that it could be moving teachers toward unions," he said. Due process is supported by the Texas State Teachers Association. Currently teachers' contracts can be discontinued with no reason cited by the school board.

"Union Threat" Lashed

He called the TSTA-supported collective bargaining bill a "straight-running union bill," informing trustees that state teacher organization staffers have been visiting school districts drumming up support for the legislation. TASB opposes collective bargaining.

Smith discussed another TSTA-backed measure that would create group health insurance for teachers. The teachers would have the option of participating in the program and therein lies a problem, he said. "Those who get into it (the insurance program) are the teachers who historically use insurance," Smith said, so the rates could be expected to increase.

During the four-hour afternoon workshop, TASB and Texas Tech staff also held discussion sessions on the attraction and retention of teachers, stress and "burn-out" and legal responsibilities of board members.

Grain Lid Decision Postponed

prices probably have not increased quite as much as they otherwise would have.

Carter announced the embargo Jan. 4, 1980, with the support of farm groups and their members. The order blocked delivery of 17 million metric tons of U.S. corn and wheat, plus some soybeans and other products, that the Soviet Union had been expected to take last year. It exempted 8 million metric tons of grain that were specified under a 1975 agreement calling for regular purchases of U.S. corn and wheat by the Soviets.

The farm support began to crumble within weeks as grain prices dropped and last March 28, the American Farm Bureau Federation asked for an "immediate end" to the embargo, contending not enough was being done to offset its effects at home and suggesting it was having little impact on the Soviet Union.

"Thousands Foreclosed"

"Thousands of farmers are being foreclosed on because the market has not recovered," Meek told reporters. "It's still below the cost of production."

Agriculture Secretary Block, who is lobbying for an end to the embargo, declined to comment directly on Meek's proposal although he has supported increases in some of the areas in question.

"I'm not ready to talk about that right now," Block said.

Meek, saying he has a Friday meeting at the White House as well, called the embargo completely ineffective with the only casualty being the American farmer.

"If it was really effective they (the Russians) would have pulled out of Afghanistan by now," he said.

90 Percent Urged

If those urging Reagan to continue the embargo and expand it win out, Meek said, the administration should move immediately to raise crop loan rates to 90 percent of parity and the price at which farmers must redeem grain under loan, known as the call level, to 110 percent of parity. Parity is the price for a crop that would give the farmer the same buying power he had in 1910 to 1914. Current crop prices at the farm are about 65 percent of parity.

The AAM plan would mean doubling the current loan rates for corn, now at $2.25 a bushel, and wheat, now at $3 a bushel. The call level would have to be increased from about $5.50 to $7.65 a bushel for wheat and from about $3.20 to $5.27 a bushel for corn. Block has said he believes call level should be increased but he has made no specific proposal.

Shooting

aunt, who owns the house and was there at the time of the shooting, were in the living room of the small frame house and the woman was standing in the doorway of another room during the argument.

The aunt, witnesses told police, was standing between the couple and attempting to act as arbitrator of the dispute when the woman suddenly displayed a .22-caliber magnum revolver, knocked Fair's aunt down and fired a single shot at Fair, striking him in the head.

Fair's death marks the city's third homicide of 1981 and the second in less than a week.

Bilingual Education Action Criticized

AUSTIN (AP) — Mexican-American members of the Texas Senate and House criticized strongly Wednesday the federal withdrawal of regulations for expanded bilingual education in public schools.

"We, the members of the Mexican-American Legislative Caucus of the Texas House stand adamantly and vehemently opposed to these backward steps for bilingual education and for tolerance and open-mindness in American," said a statement read by Rep. Paul Moreno, D-El Paso, at a news conference. "We hope this action by the secretary of education does not indicate an anti-minority trend in the Reagan administration."

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said he was preparing a new bilingual education bill that would be "logical, educationally sound, realistic, fiscally responsible and above all, sensitive to the needs of all students in the Texas schools who are of limited English proficiency."

1982 Now Targeted As Budget Cut Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's budget director has all but abandoned hopes for making significant cuts in the 1981 budget and is now concentrating on cutting federal spending in 1982 and beyond, Republican congressional sources said Wednesday.

Sources said Budget Director David A. Stockman also is predicting in an unusually optimistic forecast that the administration's economic recovery plan of tax and spending cuts will bring a dramatic reduction in inflation to a 6 percent annual rate by the end of 1982.

Last year's inflation rate was 12.4 percent. Most private economists expect that rate to continue in 1981 and then drop to about 9 percent or 10 percent in 1982.

Reagan pledged during his campaign to trim the 1981 budget by 2 percent, or about $13 billion, and in an interview Monday he repeated that this was still his target.

Stockman, however, has been telling members of Congress in recent meetings that the administration's basic goal is now to work toward saving money starting in fiscal year 1982, which begins Oct. 1, the sources said.

Spending in 1981 is currently expected to total $663 billion. The Carter administration projected 1982 spending at $739 billion.

A long list of programs has been targeted by Stockman for benefit cutbacks or elimination. The affected programs include Social Security, food stamps, child nutrition, public service jobs, unemployment benefits, Medicaid, urban aid, federal construction and loans or subsidies to business, farms and individuals.

Reagan, however, has not made a final decision on what cuts he will ask Congress to approve, according to administration aides.

Prospects Diminishing

Prospects for cutting the current budget are diminishing because the fiscal year is now more than a third over and the administration is running into delays in completing work on its proposed package of budget cuts, the sources said.

David Gerson, an aide to Stockman, said Tuesday that the budget director "is not giving up" on trying to meet Reagan's spending cut target for 1981.

"But it is also obvious to anyone that the horse is largely out of the barn," said Gerson, referring to the fact that money in the 1981 budget is rapidly being spent or committed. He said the "lion's share of savings" will come in 1982, adding that Stockman is focusing on specific budget cuts rather than an overall goal for trimming the budget.

Economic Package

Most of the administration's major spending reduction proposals will be included in an overall economic package Reagan plans to send to Congress on Feb. 18. However, some proposals calling for sizeable reductions will not be delivered until March 10, when the fiscal year will be nearly half over.

By the time Congress reviews the proposals and takes specific action, it will be too late in the year to achieve significant savings, said the sources.

One congressional source said the administration is still hoping to cut $40 billion or more from the 1982 budget, but that Stockman has advised key congressional Republicans that any specific figure for the 1981 budget has "no standing."

The source said Stockman explained that his plan is to cut programs in 1982 and beyond, and if in the process savings can be found in 1981, all the better.

"Down Payment"

The source also quoted Stockman as saying that the budget cut proposals expected Feb. 18 will be "something of a down payment" on the entire savings plan, which will be completed in March.

Reagan's economic advisers said shortly after last November's election that they would make specific budget proposals almost immediately after the Jan. 20 inauguration.

Foreign Aid Cuts Pared

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has reached a compromise position with Reagan administration budget cutters that is expected to result in far less sweeping cuts in U.S. foreign aid than were originally proposed, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

One official, who asked not to be identified, said that after several days of negotiations with the Office of Management and Budget and other agencies, "we expect to go forward to President Reagan later this week with a unified position."

The reported achievement of common ground comes after a burst of controversy over a draft OMB report which proposed that the pending $8 billion foreign aid budget for fiscal 1982 be slashed by some $2.6 billion or about 25 percent.

State Department sources stressed on Wedneday that the OMB report was a draft, that it was not definitive, and that it did not contain the budget office's final conclusions.

They noted that publication of the OMB report stirred negative reaction on Capitol Hill and from many of the world's industrialized nations which also contibute heavily to developing countries in the Third World.

The State Deparment has acknowleged that in a period of general economic austerity, the foreign aid budget must be reduced along with others.

But it has also sought the freedom to make foreign aid reductions carefully and in ways that do not undermine American interests abroad.

DREAMS SHATTERED — Iranian actress Mary Apick had dreams of stardom when she arrived in Hollywood from Iran in 1978. But then the Iranians took the Americans hostage. "I knew I was going to have trouble from the first day the hostages were taken," she said. Miss Apick said she had to resort to masquarading as an Armenian in order to get work. (AP Laserphoto)

Speech Set Tonight By Reagan

er director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Abernathy urged the president to cut spending by eliminating federal subsidies to farmers, but he added that Reagan made no commitment on the proposal.

Understand Gravity

Brady said the president, preparing for the 8 p.m. CST speech, was trying to portray the nation's economic problems in such language that "everyone understands the gravity, the magnitude, and the alternatives."

"He's going to make certain it is spelled out," the spokesman said, stating that the rewriting was required because in meetings with mayors and black members of Congress on Tuesday, the president discovered that "there wasn't a full understanding of things he wanted to get across."

Asked whether the president feared the impact that special interest groups could have on his program, Brady said: "The biggest special interest we have is America."

To Assure Nation

He said that in his speech, Reagan would seek to assure the nation that everyone will be treated even-handedly and that "there won't be any one, two or three groups singled out."

Brady described the president's consultations with Congress as an effort to "grease the skids."

"You want to go with Congress, not around them," he said.

By traveling to the Capitol for the consultations, Reagan redeemed a promise he made when he visited there shortly after he was elected and said he knew that Pennsylvania Avenue was a two-way street.

"The purpose is to go down to the other end of the avenue and resurrect the custom of having office hours on the other end," said Brady.

Visit Unusual

Although presidential meetings with congressional leaders are common in the White House, no president since Woodrow Wilson has made a regular practice of driving to the Capitol for such visits. Instead, they have generally limited their visits to Capitol Hill to the annual State of the Union address, other speeches to joint sessions of Congress and occasional receptions.

Reagan used the President's Room, an ornate room just off the Senate chamber on the second floor, for his conference.

It is the room where Lyndon B. Johnson signed the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and where Abraham Lincoln got word on March 3, 1865, that Confederate General Robert E. Lee was sending out feelers that he wanted to meet with Union General Ulysses S. Grant, in a prelude to the surrender of the Confederacy.

Democrats Push GOP On Debt Increase Bill

After hearing from Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, the Senate Finance Committee voted for the full $50 billion increase asked by the president.

The vote was 8-5, with Democrats Bill Bradley of New Jersey and George Mitchell of Maine voting present. Voting against the legislation were Republicans William Armstrong of Colorado, Steven Symms of Idaho and Charles Grassley of Iowa; Democrat David Boren of Oklahoma and Independent Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.

Until the mid-1950s, the debt ceiling was a fairly stationary figure of around $275 billion. But it has increased steadily since, as the government almost every year spent more than it collected. Now, the figure is raised about twice a year, and it is a foregone conclusion that within a few months the Reagan administration will have to ask Congress to lift the lid past the $1-trillion mark.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., asked Regan if there had been any thought of breaking the $1 trillion barrier now.

"The president told me personally that he woke up in the middle of the night thinking about that," the treasury secretary replied. But, even though passing the $1 trillion level now would have allowed Republicans to lay the blame on the Carter administration, Reagan "decided we should go with what we could justify," Regan added.

Regan said he considers raising the debt limit a purely mechanical act on the part of Congress; it simply lets the government borrow enough to pay for programs already voted, he explained.

Democratic Leader Byrd made the same point, saying an extension is necessary to keep the government from going bankrupt. But last June, when the limit was raised, he noted, only eight Republicans voted for it.

Lubbockite Assaulted At Local Nightclub

A Lubbock man said he was assaulted by two men after telling them early today to quit bothering several women at an Avenue Q nightclub.

Ron L. Sims, 19, of 2806 91st St. told police he was in the Jiggers Up at 48th Street and Avenue Q about 1:30 a.m. when he saw the suspects harassing the women. He said that when he intervened the men began arguing with him and they decided to go outside and fight.

Reports state that while Sims scuffled with one suspect, the other got a sharp instrument from his car and allegedly cut the complainant on the stomach.

Police said Sims suffered minor wounds and was taken to Lubbock General Hospital, where he was treated and later released.

Two Victims Identify Robbery Defendant

Two young women who were held up at gunpoint outside their 50th Street apartment complex last September pointed out Richard Davila in court Wednesday as the man who walked up behind them and said, "Ladies, your purses please."

Davila pleaded guilty Wednesday afternoon to the charge of aggravated robbery, but the 237th District Court jury hearing evidence against him will be asked to use the women's testimony in assessing his punishment. The crime of aggravated robbery carries with it a punishment of from five to 99 years imprisonment.

Attorneys were scheduled to argue Davila's punishment this morning.

Both women took the witness stand to tell the jury that they had returned to their apartment after a concert and were preparing to get out of the car when a man approached asking for directions. One of the women became suspcicious when the number the man asked for did not follow the apartment's numbering scheme.

They stayed in the car for about 20 minutes after he left, they testified, before venturing from the car with a can of mace. Halfway to their apartment door they were confronted by a man with a gun who demanded their purses, they said.

The man, who they identified as Davila, pulled the hammer of his gun back as if preparing to shoot when they hesitated in turning over their purses, they told the jury.

They forgot about the mace and turned over the purses, the witnesses testified.

Private Airplane Crash Kills Two Odessa Men

ODESSA (Special) — Two Odessa men were killed early Wednesday morning when their twin-engine private plane crashed about five miles northwest of here, according to the Department of Public Safety.

The pilot, Samir Makarem, 31, and a passenger, 35-year-old Mack Henderson, were pronounced dead at the scene of the crash by Ector County Justice of the Peace Jimmy Harris.

The wreckage of the 1978 Piper aircraft was discovered about 8:30 a.m., but investigators believe the plane crashed about 2 a.m.

The plane was en route from El Paso to Odessa-Schlemeyer Airport, the DPS said. The craft skidded about 300 feet after it touched the ground, Harris said.

The DPS spokesman said the cause of the crash was unknown, but the Federal Aviation Administration was to begin its investigation Wednesday afternoon.

Henderson was a former Odessa police officer and Ector County deputy sheriff and the stepfather of the wife of DPS trooper Roger Weaver. He was an unsuccessful candidate for county sheriff in 1976.

Makarem recently moved to Odessa from Albuquerque, N.M.

Government Employees Indicted By Grand Jury

A Reese Air Force Base employee who allegedly embezzled military funds and two postal workers charged with stealing the mail were indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday.

Regina Denise Berry of 218 George St. at Reese Village was indicted on nine counts of embezzlement and issuance of false statements. She is accused of using her employment at the Army and Air Force Exchange Service to issue false refund vouchers and collect the refunds herself.

Federal investigators allege she collected $856.50 through the issuance of five false vouchers during May and June.

Two U.S. Postal Service workers were indicted on charges of theft of a mail matter by a postal employee for allegedly taking first-class mail.

David Lyle Talbot of 5802 27th St. is accused of embezzling a first-class letter addressed to the Lubbock National Bank which contained $68. The other postal worker, Ramon Camarillo Jr. of Plainview, was indicted for allegedly embezzling five letters addressed to the World-Wide Mission Fund. Those five letters contained approximately $55.

The federal panel, after a two-day session, also handed down an indictment against David A. Brown of Plainview. He is charged with seven counts of making false statements to the Social Security Administration for allegedly telling officials he was single when he was married and reporting himself as a full-time student when he was not enrolled in classes.

The four persons indicted by the grand jury, the first this year, were ordered to appear before Federal Magistrate Bill Brister at 9 a.m. Monday for arraignment.

Strike Negotiations Breaking Down In Poland

NATIONAL ANTHEM — Lech Walesa, left, Solidarity union leader, joins fellow workers in singing the national anthem Wednesday at a textile factory in Bielsko-Biala, Poland. Talks between striking workers and the government broke down in that city Wednesday. (AP Laserphoto)

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Negotiations aimed at ending a crippling local strike in southern Poland broke down Wednesday and independent unionists called for reinforcements while the government warned of "consequences."

Independent labor leader Lech Walesa, on hand in Bielsko-Biala for the talks, told The Associated Press: "It is better to fall while carrying one's head high than to retreat ignominously.

"We are not afraid," said the leader of the 10-million member independent labor federation Solidarity.

Warsaw Radio said government negotiators headed by Czeslaw Kotela, deputy minister of administration, local economy and environment, returned to Warsaw after the talks failed. It said no date was set for a possible resumption.

The broadcast said the government representatives told the strikers there was "no basis" for their nine-day-old job action, which has affected transportation and some 120 enterprises in the city in the southern province of Katowice.

Kotela relayed to the strikers the government view that their action was "against the spirit" of labor-government agreements reached last year in settling nationwide strikes, the radio said. He said the strike committee would be "responsible for the consequences."

There was no indication of what the consequences might be, but a recent government communique said authorities would take "all necessary" measures if strikes did not end.

Continuing labor unrest in this Soviet-bloc nation has raised fears of a possible Soviet-led military intervention like that in Czechoslovakia in 1968.

The unionists stopped work to press demands for the resignation of local officials they alleged were corrupt. The provincial governor and his deptuy resigned Tuesday under pressure from the strikers, and Premier Jozef Pinkowski said he would "consider" the resignations.

But Warsaw Radio reported, and sources in Bielsko-Biala confirmed, that the strikers also want the resignations of Mayor Marian Kalon and two of his deputies.

Walesa, contacted by telephone, said "What we are doing here is forced upon us by life. We do not want to go on striking anywhere, but we are compelled to do so."

A Western visitor who arrived in Warsaw from the southern city described the atmosphere there as "very tense."

Sources said the strike leaders, angered by the Warsaw delegation's abrupt departure, stood and sang the national anthem.

A communique issued by strike headquarters to all enterprises involved said: "The negotiations broke down. The commission left for Warsaw. The strike is being continued. Strengthen second and third shift. Increase food supplies and blankets. In case of a breakdown in communications go ahead with a total sit-in strike."

The reference to strengthening shifts appeared to be a call for more workers to join the action.

Walesa was asked if he had read or heard about a blistering attack on his union made Tuesday by Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania, who accused Solidartiy of spreading anarchy.

Walesa said he had not but added, "We're attacking them (the regime) too."

A plenary session of the Communist Party's central committee will be held Monday, Polish state radio reported. No agenda for the session was given in the one-sentence announcement.

Local union officials said talks were continuing Wednesday in Rzeszow, in southeastern Poland, where private farmers are demanding official recognition of their own independent union. There was no word on progress of those talks.

Walesa met Monday in Rzeszow with Deputy Agriculture Minister Andrzej Kacala.

In Lodz, government officials met with university students there Wednesday and agreed formally to recognize the Independent Association of Students by Feb. 16, Warsaw Radio reported. The broadcast characterized the talks there as "businesslike" with "a common desire to reach agreement."

Court Orders Rescue Payment

OAK HARBOR, Wash. (AP) — A 28-year-old woman has been ordered to pay the $1,418 cost of her helicopter rescue after she fell or jumped from a 150-foot Whidbey Island cliff last September.

Deborah Sherier was ordered by Oak Harbor District Court Judge Marvin Buchanan to reimburse the Navy and Island County for the rescue.

Miss Sherier broke her ankle when she slid down the slopes of a cliff on the island before coming to a rest on the edge of another cliff 100 feet above Puget Sound. She told the court she was trying to avoid contact with sheriff's deputies who were trying to coax her away from the edge of the cliff.

She admitted she was despondent over personal problems, but denied she ever threatened suicide. Witnesses at her jury trial said she had been drinking heavily during that evening.

The taxpayer should not have to foot the bill for someone who recklessly endangers the lives of her rescuers, the judge said at the end of the trial last Wednesday.

Island County Undersheriff Stan Eelkema listed the expenses involved as $1,000 for the Navy helicopter, $80 for ambulance service, $190 for fire department costs, and $148 for manpower and vehicle expenses of the sheriff's department.

Miss Sherier's court-appointed attorney, Chad Dold, argued that the paramedics, deputies, ambulance crews and Navy search and rescue teams were only "doing their jobs."

The woman was "entitled to rescue efforts like any other citizen," Dold said, claiming the expenses involved were the "normal, expected expenses of running a county."

Hance Pushing Bill To Abolish Windfall Profits Tax On Oil

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock has introduced legislation to abolish the windfall profits tax on oil and the Department of Energy, and, although he does not expect the bills to be approved in their present form, he said Wednesday they might bring about needed changes for the oil and gas industry.

The congressman said in a telephone interview that he hopes the windfall profits tax at least will be altered to exempt independent oil operators and royalty owners and that the Department of Energy will be made less "meddlesome" in private enterprise.

Both bills were introduced late Tuesday with U.S. Rep. Jake Pickle of Austin and Rep. Tom Loeffler of Kerrville as co-sponsors of the windfall profits tax bill.

Loeffler, a Republican member of the House Appropriations Committee, is co-sponsoring the bill to abolish the three-year-old Department of Energy.

Hance and Pickle are members of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Pickle is No. 3 in seniority on the tax-writing body.

"Whether or not the Reagan administration puts these into their priorities will determine how successful we'll be," Hance said, adding that there should be a determination by late March or early April.

"If we're not successful, it puts the heat on the administration to reorganize the Department of Energy and try to make sure it's not meddlesome in energy problems and that its valid functions, like research, are carried on."

Hance said he and Loeffler are considering the introduction of a bill to exempt independent oil operators and royalty owners from the windfall profits tax as "a fallback operation" to the bill introduced Tuesday.

"These two pieces of legislation are actually very simple and very clear," he said. "One would repeal the so-called windfall profits tax. This is nothing but an excise tax which economically punishes domestic producers. It hinders our efforts to become independent of foreign oil.

"The second bill would simply abolish the Department of Energy. A provision of the legislation would allow the president to dismantle the functions of the Energy Department and transfer any necessary duties to other presently existing agencies.

"These legislative proposals would be giant strides in making the United States energy independent. The United States energy industry would be returned to the free market system which allowed it to become so great in previous years.

"Neither the windfall profits tax nor the DOE has produced one barrel of oil, turned one spade of coal or generated one watt of electricity."

Hance said the political complexion of Congress has changed a great deal since the 1980 session, becoming more conservative, and that legislation to abolish or at least put more limits on the windfall profits tax and the DOE has a better chance of approval now.

"Rarely is a bill passed the way it's introduced," he said.

The congressman said he would like high technology research currently being sponsored by the DOE to be shifted to other government agencies.

Ex-Inmate Files Suit In Assault

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

An admitted homosexual, currently serving time in the Texas Department of Corrections, has filed a $6 million lawsuit against the sheriff's department and administration of the Lubbock County jail, claiming he was raped in his jail cell by a group of inmates while his cries for help were ignored by guards nearby.

Ralph G. Davis has filed the suit in U.S. District Court here, claiming his civil rights were violated during his stay at the Lubbock County jail late last summer. The suit explains that Davis is classified by the TDC Classification Committee as an effeminate homosexual who has been assigned separate living quarters at Huntsville on that basis.

The suit originally named former jail administrator Albert Smith as the defendant. However, Judge Halbert O. Woodward's order entered Tuesday changed the defendant to the sheriff's department and jail administration.

Davis charges that on July 29, 1980, he was escorted from his Huntsville cell to the prison administration building, where he was placed in shackles and leg irons. He was later informed that he was being transferred to the Lubbock jail on a bench warrant to assure his appearance as a material witness at the trial of Charles W. White, according to the suit.

Upon his arrival at the jail, Davis claims, he was taken to the fourth floor and placed in a cell.

He claims that shortly before 3 a.m. July 30, he was attacked in his cell by a

Oriental Rug Showing

Good handmade Oriental Rugs are recognized as one of the finest investments on today's market. You will appreciate these values!

Concord House is proud to present this fabulous showing and sale

Oriental rugs and carpets have been protected for centuries and the rugs and carpets produced today are the same in almost every respect as those produced 500 years ago. The best known and most beautiful rugs come from Persia but there also excellent pieces that come from China. Afghanistan, Turkey, Pakistan, India and Romania. There are other countries in Asia and Africa who produce handmade rugs, but we do not have enough space here to enumerate all of them. All these rugs are made of wool. There are exceptions such as some of the Persian Qum that are made of pure silk.

One may ask why is a hand made oriental rug or carpet the most prized and sought after of all floor coverings? The main reasons are:

1) An oriental rug, being entirely hand made, has a guaranteed durability, even occidental damage can be repaired without descreasing the rug's value. This cannot be said of a machine made rug which once damaged, loses its value.

2) The decorative value of an oriental rug in undeniable it greatly enhances a room and creates an immediate impression of friendly warmth on entering it.

3) Provided it is used with care, the value of an oriental rug increases year by year. It is a safe investment and can be turned into ready cash at any time.

It is sometimes believed that oriental rugs and carpets are very expensive items. This is not so. We have many fine pieces that sell at under $500.00

A brief summary of our rugs and carpets, and their characteristics, is as follows.

Persian: The finest pieces come from the towns such as Istahan, Qum, Kashan, Tabriz and Kerman. In addition there are the nomadic rugs of coarser weave such as Hamadan, Shiraz, Abadeh, Afshar and Belouch. We also have Kelims which have no pile, which come in colorful, geometric designs.

Chinese: The thickest pile of all carpets and rugs. They are very luxurious and come in embossed Aubusson, Floral and Peking designs.

Pakistan: Specialises in Bokhara and Afghan designs and in excellent copies of Persian design. Considerably less expensive than Persian rugs.

Afghan: in well known elephant foot designs in red and gold. Useful for offices and hallways. Other designs are also produced.

India: Mainly heavy pile. Produced with beautiful pastel backgrounds in Floral, Aubusson or Chinese Peking designs.

Turkish: Made of wool, silk and artificial silk. Some rugs rival those of Persia in quality and design. Reasonably priced.

Romanian: mainly copies of Persian designs, but we also have large carpets with the Aubusson design made in wool supplied from England. Extremely good value at very low prices.

Physical, Psychological Factors May Cause Depression In Women

EDITOR'S NOTE: In trying to understand depression and why it strikes women twice as often as men, researchers have found evidence of both physical and psychological causes. In the second of a three-part series, AP Writer Jane See White examines these findings.

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer

Depression is not an equal-opportunity illness. Two-thirds of the 2.4 million Americans who are suffering severe symptoms of this disabling ailment — and millions more with milder problems — are women.

Why? The answer remains a puzzle. But scientists say depression is probably caused by a mix of biology, psychology and life experiences.

"Depression probably doesn't exist by itself," said psychologist Violet Franks of the Carrier Clinic in Belle Meade, N.J. "It's tied up with feelings and self-image and life situation."

One theory is that depression may have a genetic component: researchers studying identical twins found there is a 68 percent likelihood that if one twin becomes depressed, in time the other will too. It may be that some mothers pass to their daughters a predisposition to depression.

Another theory is that depression stems from chemical changes in the brain. Another suspect is hormones. Women experience wide hormonal changes during child-bearing years, when they're most vulnerable to depression.

It also may be that men mask depression better than women. Three times more men than women commit suicide — perhaps partly because men succeed more often. Men typically use deadly weapons; women typically use poisons or drugs.

"Studies have found that the overt expression of depression is less socially acceptable in men," said Dr. Aaron Beck, chief of the University of Pennsylvania Center for Cognitive Therapy. "Women get a sympathetic reaction, but men get rejected" when they act depressed.

That may explain why more women seek professional help, but it doesn't account for the fact that even among those who don't seek help, experts have found that women display more depression symptoms than men.

Finally it may be that it is simply more depressing to be female.

Yale researcher Myrna Weissman and psychiatrist Gerald Klerman, in a study often cited as a classic in the field, concluded that women's lives may be at the root of women's higher depression rate.

That conclusion came after the two reviewed evidence to support other theories to explain depression — biological, chemical, genetic — and found none had been scientifically proven.

They concluded that "elements of the traditional female role" may contribute to women's higher depression rate.

They noted, for instance, that "real social discrimination" makes it difficult for women to achieve, that women's jobs — in and out of the home — tend to be lower status than men's, and that married men are less likely than single or divorced men to become depressed, while this is not the case for women.

Many other experts believe a source of women's depression is the way women learn to think, to cope and to live. Ruth Greenberg of the Center for Cognitive Therapy says the high rate of female depression has "a lot to do with what women learn.

"Women learn more 'shoulds' and if they can't deliver the payment may be depression," she said. "... Certain culturally transmitted requirements affect women every day, whether they know it or not."

Despite theories that a housewife's duties may be depressing, there's no difference between depression rates of working wives and housewives, said Lenore Radloff of the National Institute of Mental Health.

What is women's role today? A recent study released by the President's Advisory Committee on Women found 50 percent of Americans still think a woman's place is in the home. Most also thought doctors, lawyers and bankers should be men, while nurses and salespeople should be women.

One third of the women surveyed thought they could have done better in life if they'd been men, and one fourth said being female had kept them from accomplishing what they wanted.

The litany of rules for feminity is familiar, but experts say that even in these liberated times it still applies:

Girls aren't aggressive or competitive. They are warm and sympathetic. Girls aren't fighters. They are peacemakers. Something is basically wrong with a girl if boys don't like her.

Sixty-five percent of the center's depressed patients are women, and mostly they're depressed about men, said psychologist Jeffrey Young.

"The worst thing they can imagine is being without a man," he said. "They'll tolerate enormous amounts of unhappiness and misery to avoid losing one ... Girls are taught that if a woman isn't with a man, something is wrong with her."

Another ingredient, said Tufts University psychiatrist Carol Nadelson, is that "girls really are led by guilt a great deal. A girl is held more responsible than a boy if she violates certain norms ... girls get pushed into seeing themselves as accountable for everything."

Boys learn 'shoulds' too, experts say, but with more latitude — he shouldn't cry, but he can punch you in the nose. And "boys will be boys," they aren't imbued with the same degree of personal accountability.

"If you set up a social psychology experiment that can't be solved, women students always say they couldn't solve it because they're stupid. But male students say they didn't have enough time, or it was unfair," said Franks.

Since most depression can be traced to some triggering event — a divorce, say, or a disappointment — many experts believe the tendency of women to blame themselves when life goes awry is a key to their higher depression rate.

At the University of Pennsylvania, psychologist Martin Seligman has identified an "attributional style," or way of viewing events, that is common to depression-prone people.

Healthy people blame a failure or disappointment on external things — like bad luck — and they figure it's a temporary state, he said.

But Seligman found that people who become depressed habitually blame themselves and believe that this personal shortcoming will affect everything they try to do.

Women in general are more likely to have the depressive attributional style, he said.

"Women are socialized to respond to failure with helplessness, passivity, by giving up and accepting it," said Seligman. "But men are taught to fight, challenge, endure."

It's not surprising, then, that one way to cure depression is to change the way its victims view their world — to reshape their thinking to avoid depressing pitfalls.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Twenty-seven declarers in the 1966 World Olympiad mixed pairs played in five spades on bidding like this. Eighteen declarers made the contract while nine went down when they tried to drop the queen of diamonds.

The play always started with the ace of clubs lead and a heart shift followed by an attempt to cash a second heart.

Those declarers who knew what they were doing proceeded to ruff a club in dummy, cash dummy's ace of trumps, lead a trump to the queen and ruff their last club.

West would show out, whereupon it would be a cinch to count the East hand as seven clubs, four hearts (because of the jump raise) and one card each in spades and diamonds. Thus, they would lead a diamond to their king and take the sure-thing finesse on the way back.

We really feel that the nine declarers who lost a diamond trick misplayed the hand. After all, this was a world championship even though a mixed pair event.

We also regret that the report did not say what happened at the other tables except to point out that when John Collings of Great Britain held the West hand, he bid on to six hearts. John had, and still has, a reputation for wizardry as declarer and his opponents bid on to six spades for fear he would bring the heart slam home.

John doubled and got a real top score when declarer misguessed the diamonds and went down two tricks.

Depression Different In Men

By The Associated Press

Though twice as many women as men become depressed, some experts believe there are men out there who have not been counted — perhaps because depression takes a different form in men.

"Men may cope differently, so that they don't end up looking like depressed people," said psychologist Jeffrey Young of the University of Pennsylvania Center for Cognitive Therapy.

The center director, Dr. Aaron Beck, noted that studies have found that it is more socially acceptable for a woman to be depressed.

"Women get a sympathetic reaction when they express depression, but men get rejected," he said.

While 65 percent of the center's patients are women, Beck said, "Women tend to come to us sooner and to be less severely depressed than men. Men tend to let it go, which seems to me the only sensible explanation for the higher suicide rate in men."

But suicide experts like Dr. Calvin Frederick of the National Institute of Mental Health warn that suicide rates can't be used as a measure of depression. "All suicides aren't necessarily depressed," he said. Some, for instance, are mortally ill. Some are crazed by other psychiatric disorders.

Another explanation for the higher male suicide rate is that men tend to succeed when they attempt to kill themselves because they generally use emphatically lethal means — guns, explosives and hanging.

But in a study of depression rates, psychiatrist Gerald Klerman and Yale researcher Myrna Weissman concluded that the evidence is overwhelming — two times more women than men actually do get depressed.

And while it wouldn't account for the vast numerical difference in depressed men and women, they also decided they couldn't rule out a popular theory that some men turn to alcohol to obliterate depression's pain.

They cited studies that found between 35 and 50 percent of alcoholic men have depressive symptoms. But there's a rub: alcohol is a depressant. Did the depression bring on the drinking or did the drinking trigger the depression?

Readers' Exchange

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

Oh, we have the most exciting recipes this week! What have all of us done to deserve it? But, deserving or not, let's cook.

This week, as last, the requests will start things off.

Ruby Johnson would like to cook goat meat — more than just one way!

Goldie Nixon would appreciate a recipe for carrot and raisin salad, similar to that served at Furr's Cafeterias.

Wanda Peters needs a simple, family-type barbecue beef recipe that you can cook in one pot.

CHIPS OF CHOCOLATE PEANUT BUTTER CAKE

2- 1/4 cups flour
2 cups brown sugar
1 cup peanut butter
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 tsp. baking soda
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 cup milk
3 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 12-oz. pkg. chocolate chips

In large bowl, combine flour, brown sugar, peanut butter and butter or margarine. Blend at low speed until crumbly; reserve 1 cup of this mixture. Add to remaining crumb mixture the baking soda, baking powder, milk, eggs and vanilla; mix until blended.

Batter will be slightly lumpy. Pour this batter into a greased 13 x 9-inch cake pan. Sprinkle with the 1 cup reserved crumbs.

Over the crumbs, sprinkle the chocolate chips. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean.

MONKEY BREAD
(Yield: 1 Bundt pan)

2 sticks butter (melt one)
1 cup milk
2 whole eggs
1 pkg. dry yeast (dissolve in 1/4 cup warm water)
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup sugar
1- 1/2 cup flour (twice) or total 3 cups

Scald milk, beat eggs, milk, sugar, salt and butter together. Add 1- 1/2 cup flour.

Beat well. Add yeast. Let rise 1 hour. Add another 1- 1/2 cup flour. Blend well. Cover with damp cloth, refrigerate overnight.

Take out 2 hours before cooking. Melt 1 more stick of butter, pour some in bottom of Bundt pan and grease pan well. Leave a little in bottom of pan.

Butter hands. Pinch off pieces. Roll in balls and dip in butter. Place in pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Faye Forbes of Ralls wrote, "A Cheerie Good Morning!" She also enclosed the recipe and method of adding and mixing fruits for Brandied Fruit Starter.

BRANDIED FRUIT STARTER
(Do not refrigerate)

In large-mouth, 1/2 gallon (or larger), jar put: 1 cup sugar, adding 1 cup pineapple chunks (sliced and drained). Mix well with wooden spoon. Cover loosely. (Faye uses a coffee filter and rubber band.) Let set at room temperature, stirring every day or so. Let set two weeks.

Add: 1 cup diced peaches or apricots with 1 cup sugar. Mix well. Let set another two weeks, stirring occasionally. Add 1 cup marachino cherries (drained and cut in two) and 1 cup sugar. Mix as above and let set another two weeks before using. Keep 1 cup or more for starter. Always use same amount of fruit and sugar at each addition. One may double amount to make a larger amount.

A final note: You may add 1/2 cup peach or apricot brandy, just before using.

RUM CAKE
(Submitted by Ruby Johnson)

1 cup of butter
2 cups of sugar
4 eggs
2- 1/2 cups of flour (one-half of self-rising flour)
1 cup of condensed milk
2 tsp. butter flavoring
2 tsp. vanilla
2 tsp. rum

In the meantime, mix together: 1 stick butter and 1/3 cup sugar, 1- 1/2 cups of vanilla wafer crumbs and 1 cup of pecans. Line tube pan.

Then pour in batter. Bake at 325 degrees for an hour and a half. Will keep frozen for 6 months.

PEPPER STEAK
(Sent by Mrs. Roy (Margie) Parker, Seminole)

2 lbs. round steak, 1-inch thick
2 tbsp. cooking oil
1/3 cup soy sauce
2 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 clove garlic, minced
3 carrots
3 Bell peppers, cut in 1-inch squares
8 green onions, cut in 1- 1/2-inch pieces
1/2 lb. sliced mushrooms, or 8 oz. canned
1 can water chestnuts, sliced
3 tbsp. cornstarch

Cut round steak in strips 1/8-inch thick, 3-4 inches long. Brown strips in cooking oil. Pour off drippings, measure and add water to make 1 cup. Combine with soy sauce, sugar, pepper and garlic. Add to meat, cover and cook slowly 45 minutes.

Using vegetable parer, cut carrots lengthwise into thin strips, cut strips in half. Add carrots, peppers, onions, mushrooms and water chestnuts to meat.

Add enough water to barely cover vegetables. Cook for 15 minutes covered. Combine cornstarch with 1/4 cup water, add to steak and vegetables to thicken juices. Extra soy sauce can be added, if desired. Serve over cooked rice. Makes 6-8 servings. Hint: When steak is partially frozen, thin strips can be cut more easily.

ANN LANDERS

Discovery May Prevent Golden Celebration

Dear Ann Landers: Four months from now we were to celebrate our 50th wedding anniversary. They have been good years. I was 16 when we married and my husband was 18.

We operate a small but successful manufacturing plant. A few weeks ago when the intercom broke down I wandered through the plant looking for my husband to tell him he had a long-distance call.

I found him and a homosexual employee in the storage room engaging in a sexual act. The initial shock has worn off, but I am very confused. My husband had a serious operation 15 years ago that left him impotent. For 15 years I have remained celibate rather than be unfaithful.

I am thinking seriously of moving to another community because I cannot live under the same roof with this man. I am also considering cancelling the plans for our anniversary celebration. This, of course, would leave him to do the explaining.

I confided in my closest friend, who advised me to pretend that nothing happened and go ahead with the celebration. I cannot bring myself to discuss this shocking dilemma with our son and daughter.

May I have your thoughts, please, Ann? I am — Crushed, Shattered And Dying Inside (Baltimore Sun)

Dear Crushed: What I am about to suggest will require tremendous strength and saintly patience, but do try. Fifty years together is a long time — and you said they were good years.

The man is sick. You say he has been impotent for 15 years. Obviously, he is able to achieve some measure of satisfaction with a male. Tell your husband what you witnessed and suggest that the two of you go together for counseling. It is important for you to learn the nature of the anxiety that drove him in that direction. I hope you can find a top-notch therapist who will work with you both until this hideous problem is resolved. Good luck to you, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a guy, 22, who reads you every day. You must know that millions of people take your word for law. I hope you will let me use your column today to save some lives.

Eight months ago there was a 22-year-old guy from out of town who had a car accident. He was close to death and needed blood to stay alive. People came through for him and he made it — thanks to many generous donors.

I was one of the donors. This guy found out my name and sent me a letter thanking me for contributing blood that saved his life. He also sent me his picture. On the picture he wrote, "To a good guy I hope to meet sometime. I have your blood in my veins and your love in my heart. Thank you."

His letter set me up for weeks. It's a fantastic feeling to know you've helped someone stay alive. That fellow did as much for me as I did for him. We correspond regularly and he has become like a brother to me.

I hope every person who reads this will go at once to give blood if he hears it is needed. It's a wonderful thing to do. — Feeling Good And Happy

Dear Feeling Good: Why wait? Blood donors are always in short supply. I hope several thousand readers will call the American Red Cross immediately for details of where and how. Bless you for writing.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

HINTS FROM HELOISE:

Pompons Useful Cleaners

DEAR HELOISE:

Many years ago I learned from your column how to make those cute and useful scrubbers (or pompons) from nylon net.

I still use the net, but no longer remember how to make the scrubbers.

My daughter-in-law has some new stainless steel pans and I'd love to make some for her. — Hortense

Not only will the pompons clean your daughter-in-law's pans but they'll keep the cobwebs out of the corners of her ceiling, decorate her prettiest gift package, clean her fresh vegetables, shine her sink and tub, remove lint from her clothes (not all with the same pompon, though, please!).

Cut three six-inch wide strips across a half yard of 72-inch-wide nylon net.

A quick way to get this part done is to take a piece of cardboard six inches wide and at least 24 inches long. Line the edge of the cardboard up with the edge of the nylon net, then wrap the net around the cardboard, securing the edges of the netting with clothespins or paperclips, if necessary, to hold it in place.

With your scissors, run the blade down the two edges of the cardboard and you'll end up with perfectly cut strips.

Stack the strips one on top of the other, matching edges. Thread a big needle with heavy-duty thread or yarn, and baste right down the middle of the stack, using long basting stitches.

Draw up the yarn from both ends as you would when making a ruffle, pulling it tight as you can toward the center.

Tie the yarn ends together, then wrap the remaining yarn around the "waistline" of the scrubber once or twice, tie it off, and cut off the excess yarn.

If you want a non-professional scrubber that's really speedy to make, skip the basting stitches and just gather up the nylon net strips in your hand, fan fashion. Wrap a rubberband around the middle or use yarn, tying it tightly as possible.

Now for the unveiling of the pompon! Remember how you make carnation flowers out of tissues? Well, do the same with the layers of nylon net — that is, pull one layer at a time, giving a yank to make it separate. This is a must, or you'll end up with a flat pompon.

So, for pennies, you've got a most versatile little workmate to help you get through those daily chores. — Hugs, Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

Your recent column about the mother who tied her toddler's shoestrings in knots on the end to prevent him from pulling them out, reminded me of a poem I had written:

"I wish I could take off my shoes —
I don't mind the rest of my clothes —
I'd like to splash in the puddles
With mud oozing up through my toes.
I think it's terribly trying
Being only half-past two
Loosening the deliberate knot
Mother has put in my shoe!" — Helen Bryan

Thanks for showing us the "other side." — Heloise

HEM MARKER

DEAR HELOISE:

When I wanted to shorten a new skirt, I found my 30-year-old skirt marker had gone kaput.

So I just taped my tape measure to the side of my leg at the length I wanted my skirt, then measured up to my waist.

When I transferred the inches to my skirt, it came out the right length — in inches, though, not metrics — I'm too old for that! — Harriet

THERMOSTAT CONTROL

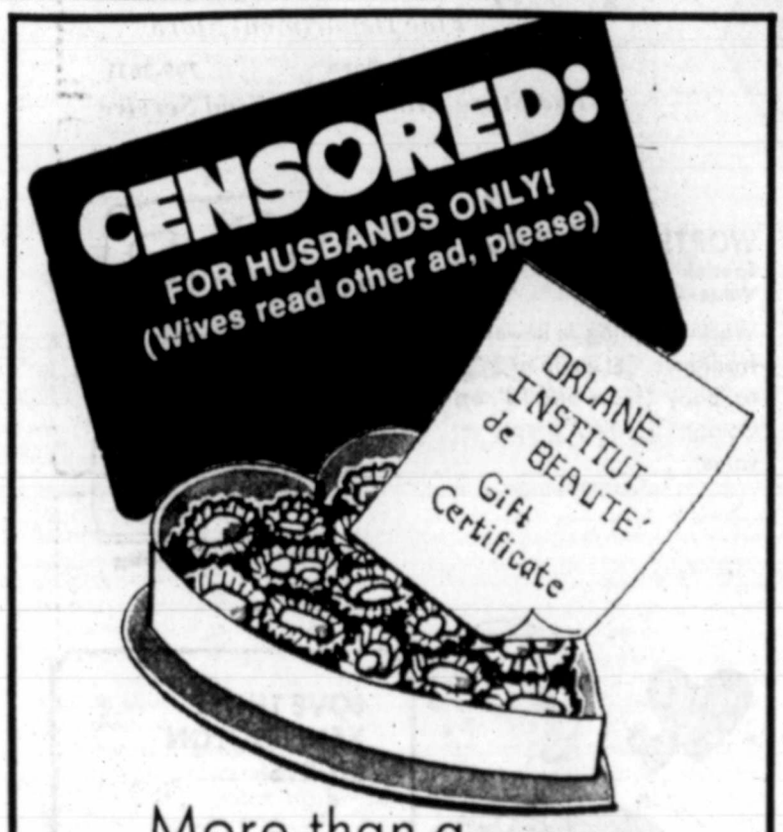

DEAR HELOISE:

Instead of waiting until bedtime to turn the thermostat down, do it about an hour before.

The last hour will be comfortable and the heat saved will be just that much more. — Retired & Saving

Send your favorite household hint to your friend Heloise care of 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. She can't answer your letter personally but will use the best tips received in her column.

Toxic Shock Syndrome Information Sought

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Would you please explain toxic shock syndrome? I am enclosing an article on it. I have used tampons for years. — Mrs. M.S.

Toxic shock is a dangerous drop in blood pressure (shock) caused by a poison (toxin). So toxic shock is not unique to tampon use. However the toxic shock syndrome written about so much of late is used to describe the sickness found in some women who used certain tampons.

What has been pieced together about the story (as of this writing) is this: The bacterium, staph aureus, apparently grows more readily in the vagina of some tampon-users. This bacterium releases a toxin that causes the symptoms — high fever, vomiting, diarrhea, the drop in blood pressure and a sunburn-like rash on the palms and soles. It is a little more common in women under 30, but by and large the overall risk of toxic shock appears to be quite low (about 1.2 to 3 women out of 100,000 each year).

The Communicable Disease Center states: "For most women, the risk of toxic shock is so low that it is unwarranted to recommend use of tampons be discontinued. The risk of toxic shock syndrome can be lessened even further by using tampons only during part of the menstrual period — not all day and all night. If a woman has had toxic shock syndrome, she should not use tampons for at least several cycles afterward, or, better still, until her doctor approves. If the staph germ can be found in her vagina, she should not use tampons until the staph is eliminated from the vagina."

NOTE: Because this is an ongoing controversy, newer facts may emerge as studies go on. Therefore, for the very latest information, women should continue to watch for developments in their daily newspapers, which will be prompt to print the latest important facts as they emerge.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What causes toe nails to become very thick? What can be done about them? Is this just another old-age problem? — R.C.D.

There are a number of causes for the thickening, so the treatment must be tailored to the cause. Often, thickened nails result with repeated injury from ill-fitting footwear. Such nails are best taken care of by a podiatrist, who can pare them with a file or with a mechanical burr.

Other causes of nail-thickening are psoriasis, fungal infections and a skin condition called Darier's disease. The podiatrist will be able to tell whether your nails are thickened from repeated injury or from an illness. For a discussion of nail health, see the booklet "Solving Your Nail Problems." To get a copy, write Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I know that smoking cigarettes for years will harm the lungs and cut down on my air supply, but I am young, active and enjoy smoking. Is there any proof that this is doing me any harm or affecting my physical performance right now? — G.L.

Cigarette smoking has "right now" as well as long-range effects on the airways. It causes them to narrow. One cigarette just one hour before exercising can do this. In medical terminology airway resistance is increased, and increased airway resistance most definitely decreases the amount of oxygen you breath. Less oxygen is made available to your heart and to your muscles. Yes, that affects performance.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 73 and had a heart pacer put in last year. I am concerned and wonder if it was necessary to have x-rays taken like I did to see if the pacer wire had moved. I understand that x-rays can be damaging. I think entirely too many x-rays are given these days. — D.L.

We are all concerned about too much radiation. However, when needed they can be valuable tools. Besides, newer, more sensitive film, development and machines themselves make it possible to take x-rays with very little hazard. The two you had will not harm you. Your doctor probably had good reason to suspect some movement in the device.

Dear Dr. Donohue: A friend of mine uses bicarbonate of soda for everything. Is there any harm in taking too much bicarb? — A.J.B.

Your friend is getting too much sodium if he is using too much bicarbonate of soda. That can present the risk of high blood pressure. Also too much bicarbonate of soda can alter body chemistry. Too much of anything is bad.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)." Write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column enever possible.

Ex-Inmate Files Suit In Assault

group of inmates who raped him repeatedly and forced him to commit sodomy and other unnatural acts over a period of two hours. Guards and officers stationed nearby made no effort to rescue him, he claims, despite his cries for help and "the general uproar."

Davis charges that while confined in the Lubbock County jail, he was subjected to inadequate, vague and unsafe standards of reasonable protection against a "pervasive reign of violence and terror executed and perpetuated by quasi-guards," who Davis describes as inmates acting in a supervisory capacity and administering discipline over the other inmates.

The plaintiff claims that jail administrators by and through their subordinates have been aware of the aggravated rape and aggravated assault directed against him, as well as the abuse of other homosexual inmates at the county facility. He charges further:

— Ruthless extortion of homosexuals for sexual satisfaction; the acquisition of commissary supplies in support of gambling debts.

— The exploitation by brutal coercion of admitted homosexuals to convert non-admitted homosexuals to perform bisexual and homosexual acts until homosexual conversion of the non-homosexual is attained.

— Exploitation of homosexuals by "bawdy house" practices of coerced and homosexual prostitution.

— Aiding, abetting, coercing and promoting homosexuality discriminately by consenting to some homosexual acts perpetuated by some homosexuals and penalizing homosexual acts performed by other homosexual inmates.

Davis claims that he and other homosexual inmates are indifferently treated and situated adversely at the Lubbock jail in comparison to heterosexuals throughout the jail system. He claims that the jail administration, by the actions previously described, seeks to discriminate against him and other classified homosexuals.

The suit claims that jail administrators, through the taking of ordinary care, should have been aware of the acts and known they were injurious and discriminatory.

Davis seeks the $6 million in compensatory, punitive and exemplary damages

Lubbock Restaurant Owners Note Changes In City, But Not In Menu

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

From L.C. "Buck" Peveto's viewpoint, Lubbock was raised on chili.

Since 1925, he has cooked it and served it himself.

The 72-year-old Orange native came here in 1925 with his parents and went to work in a cafe started by his father and another man at 814 Main St.

They called it the Hot Shot, and because the specialty never changed, Peveto never saw any need to change the name.

"Our menu hasn't changed too much," he said, "but people's tastes have changed from what they used to be. You have to have more things.

"Lubbock used to be a Saturday town," he added. "Everybody would come to town, farmers and all, but you don't have that anymore.

"Saturday used to be our big day, the only big day we had. Saturday business started falling off in '52, when the boll stripper came in."

Peveto was 16 and working part-time in a family cafe in Rockdale when the family came to Lubbock. He followed the same routine here until finishing Lubbock High School in 1927.

His father, J.C. Peveto, retired in 1936, and the younger Peveto has been running the Hot Shot ever since.

Obviously, he has seen a lot of Lubbock history.

He watched the county build the old county jail across the street in 1931, and he shared a building first with a barber shop and from 1927 to 1944 with a shooting gallery.

With his wife Ola, whom he married in 1932, he took over the whole building in 1944. They also moved into the east side of it, where the shooting gallery had been, put in booths and remodeled it extensively.

The Hot Shot cooked on uninterruptedly until May 1970, when the tornado that devastated the city also destroyed the restaurant.

"It tore us down pretty good," Peveto said. "It took the roof off and tore the walls down."

They rebuilt, however, and re-opened six months later with the restaurant as it is today.

On the south wall, they have a series of photographs of the Hot Shot in its various stages over the decades.

The restaurant does not stay open on Saturdays anymore. With the disappearance of the harvest hand, it caters mainly to the courthouse crowd and closes at 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Asked what it takes to run a successful business through more than a half-century, Peveto said, "You've got to really work at it. You've got to stay with it and watch your p's and q's, and you've got to have a good wife to help you.

"My wife has been a real help. She's been the main ramrod."

Mrs. Peveto has been especially important in recent months, he said, since he was diagnosed as having a malignant tumor on a kidney and operated on Dec. 24. The restaurant was closed through the holidays and re-opened Jan. 5.

Peveto has been taking daily radiation treatments, he said, and has been able to spend increasing time at work.

"Lubbock is still about the same type of town as it's always been," he said. "The businesses are scattered now. Everything used to be on Main and Broadway, but now it's scattered all over town.

"The people are still about the same. Everybody lived about equal, and everybody didn't want too much then, like they do now. They were more content with what they had.

"Things have been changing all along for the last 20 years The modern days are pretty good if you can get any help to help you work. That's the trouble nowadays. Help is so hard to find."

Peveto said he has had a relatively untroubled career, adding, "People are easy to get along with."

He has been robbed only once — by an employee who broke in after hours and stole $25 about 30 years ago — and has never had a fight or other memorable trouble among customers.

He and his wife have three children, Kenneth Peveto and Mary Lynn Parker, both of Dallas, and Ginger White of Lubbock. They have eight grandchildren.

Objections To Federal Funding Formula Eyed

By DEBBI STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A federal funding formula which virtually eliminates this region from receiving two types of drug abuse prevention funds is being protested by local health agencies and will come up for discussion by South Plains Association of Governments board members today

The board is expected to consider a recommendation by SPAG's alcohol abuse advisory committee that a formal objection be registered with the Texas Department of Community Affairs, which channels money from the National Institute on Drug Abuse to local regions.

The money in question would fund educational programs to prevent drug abuse and alternative intervention programs, which focus on finding means to meet the potential alcohol abuser's problems before an abuse pattern has developed.

Oscar Jones, director of drug abuse services with the Lubbock Regional Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center, said his agency is raising strong objection to the pattern that the state agency has followed in awarding funding contracts to larger metropolitan areas including Dallas and Houston and leaving West Texas penniless.

Jones said the allocations are made on a ratio of the number of alcohol abuse incidences compared to population in a region. However, he questions where the state and federal agencies obtain the figures which rank the Lubbock area among the lowest in the state.

The ratio is assessed on a base of 100,000 population and registers the Lubbock area 22nd out of 24 regions in the state for alcohol and drug abuse, Jones said. He noted that his office alone has 105 persons enrolled in a drug treatment program and said he feels there is a much greater incidence of drug and alcohol abuse here than state and federal statistics show.

So far Lubbock has received no funding for the two types of abuse programs and has had to perform minimal services through local efforts alone, he said. Jones pointed out that the Dallas and Houston areas are receiving up to four grants apiece for the programs.

Jones said an estimate of the dollar impact on this area could not be assessed until local statistics on abuse incidences are rectified, but pointed out that alternative intervention program contracts most recently awarded to other areas amounted to as much as $75,000 a grant.

Jones has had plans in the making for a $50,000 mural construction project at a Canyon Lakes site which has run into funding snags for several months and possibly could compete for funds under the alternative intervention program. The mural construction, Jones said, would provide a project for students who have lost interest in normal class settings and are potential dropouts.

The SPAG board of directors will consider the alcohol abuse committee recommendation on the funding at 10 a.m., following an executive committee session at 9 a.m.

In 1541, Coronado and his band of Spanish adventurers crossed the Arkansas River and entered what now is the state of Kansas.

Zoning Change Opposition Expected

A proposed zoning change requested by the Gloria Dei Lutheran Church, 1706 Slide Road, is expected to draw opposition from neighbors at the Planning and Zoning Commission meeting at 7 p.m. today in the city council chambers.

The church exists in an R-1 (Single Family) district, having been granted a special exemption by the Zoning Board of Adjustments, said Wayne Robins, assistant zoning administrator.

The church had to return to the ZBA to obtain an exemption to build portable buildings and has requested a change to A-2 (High Density Apartment) district to forestall further trips to the board, he said.

The zoning office has received several telephone calls and a few returned notices indicating oppostion to the change from neighbors.

Mother, Daughter Serve In Army Reserve

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

In 1955 she joined the U.S. Air Force's nurse corps "to see the country."

Saturday, Army Reserve Maj. Dorothy Bleau will swear into the Army Reserve the daughter who put an end to her Air Force service and the traveling that went with it.

Now, they both will be seeing the country the same way — through two-week annual duty tours at Army hospitals. The rest of the year they will join other members of the 829th Station Hospital one weekend a month at Lubbock General Hospital.

"I got out of the Air Force because, at that time, a woman couldn't have children and be in the Air Force," Mrs. Bleau said of the family-oriented decision she made 18 years ago.

After tours in several states, and one in Spain that sharpened her appreciation of "the good old USA," she met her husband in San Antonio while undergoing flight nurse training.

"He was from Massachusetts, too, and wanted to live in Texas."

A subsequent duty assignment in Minnesota "with 45 inches of snow" convinced her that life in Texas looked pretty good.

Lubbock became home when he came to teach at Texas Tech, and the New England natives, who grew up fighting blizzards, don't mind the sandstorms at all.

When the Army hospital reserve unit began here more than five years ago, she joined up, working up to the major's rank she receives Saturday just before swearing in her daughter.

Melanie, a senior at Coronado High School, followed her mother's example as soon as she reached the qualifying age of 17. After May graduation she will undergo initial training before returning to Lubbock.

Her basic training will be at Fort Jackson, S.C., and she will get medical training at Fort Sam Houston.

About 30 of the 125 members of the 829th go on active duty one weekend a month at Lubbock General Hospital, filling in as registered nurses, licensed vocational nurses and nurse's aides.

A small detachment works with the Veterans Administration Hospital in Big Spring and another has duty with Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. And when needed, a medical team goes to Plainview in summers to give medical aid to migrant workers.

Unit members also give physicals to military persons in the area and go to areas without facilities to perform reserve and national guard physicals.

One segment of the group spends its active duty weekends in classrooms or on hospital floors learning hands-on procedures in preparation for combat medic profficiency. Further training in a combat environment tops off local education, while additional instruction ups the profficiency to that of a military emergency medical technician.

Mrs. Bleau, a registered nurse when she turned military for the chance to travel, fills in at RN status.

Melanie will begin as a nurse's aide while continuing her upgrading process as a reserve in addition to pursuing other education, she hopes, at Texas Tech.

Until graduation, she will attend weekend drills with the rest of the unit.

Eight Area Residents Slated To Get Paroles

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements has authorized the parole of eight persons convicted of crimes in the Lubbock area.

Clements acted upon recommendation of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Daryl W. Hamlin was paroled to Harris County officals after serving and earning one year and four months of a four-year term. Hamlin was convicted in March 1980 in Lubbock County of burglary of a vehicle.

Michael McLin was paroled to Lubbock County officials after serving and earning three years and three months of a seven-year sentence. McLin was convicted in October 1977 of theft and in December 1977 of forgery in Lubbock County.

Alan B. Meadows was paroled to Tarrant County oficials after serving and earning one year and five months of a four-year sentence. Meadows was convicted in December 1979 of unlawfully carrying a weapon in Lubbock County. He also was convicted of burglary in September 1979 in Hays County and in July 1979 in Guadalupe County.

Michael Duaine Tapscott was paroled to Harris County officials after serving and earning five years and eight months of a seven-year sentence. Tapscott was convicted in May 1978 in Lubbock County of burglary with intent to commit rape.

Joe Manuel Vela was paroled to Dawson County officials after serving and earning three years and seven months of a five-year sentence. Vela was convicted in Dawson County in November 1978 of robbery and in August 1979 of burglary with intent to commit theft. He also was convicted in January 1979 in Ector County of burglary of a habitation.

Brian R. Walker was paroled to Lubbock County officials after serving and earning three years of an eight-year term. Walker was convicted in Lubbock County in May 1979 of forgery.

Tommy Lee Westbrook was paroled to Harris County officials after serving and earning two years and seven months of an eight-year sentence. Westbrook was convicted in May 1979 in Lubbock County officials after serving and earning one year and eight months of a five-year term. McDonald was convicted in January 1980 in Lubbock County of delivery of controlled substance.

Aid For Disabled Leader To Speak

Justin W. Dart Jr., the chairman of the Governor's Commission on Employment for the handicapped, will be the speaker to day at at "call to action" local organizational meeting as part of the International Year of Disabled Persons.

The meeting, which will be at 7 p.m. in the Coronado Room in the University Center at Texas Tech University, will be one of forming committees for working on projects in conjunction with the International Year of Disabled Persons. Among the issues to be discussed will be employment and transportation.

Dart lives in Austin and has been working with disadvantaged and disabled persons since 1966. He is a member of Coalition of Texans with Disabilities, American Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities, the National Association of the Deaf, the American Council of the Blind, and other disability related organizations.

The United Nations has designated 1981 as the International Year of Disabled Persons.

Maxim Litvinoff, the last of the liberal-minded Communist leaders, was dismissed from the Russian cabinet in 1939. He was replaced as commissar for foreign affairs by Vyacheslav Molotov. Litvinoff had worked with Lenin in London and was married to an English woman.

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

By MARTIN SLOANE

DEAR SUPERMARKET SHOPPER — Early in October I saw a newspaper advertisement from a chain drug store offering a special on Kordite Leaf Bags.

The ad also indicated that a $1 manufacturer's refund was available to bring my cost down to only $1 a box. The regular price was $2.19.

I purchased the bags and was given the Kordite refund form, which I promptly sent off to obtain my refund. You can imagine my surprise when a week later I received my envelope back marked "box closed."

I opened it up and took another look at the refund form. For the first time, I noticed the words "expiration date Dec. 31, 1979" in small print at the bottom.

Can you tell me why a store would promote a refund offer that expired many months earlier?

Since I tried to take advantage of the Kordite offer in good faith based on the store's advertising, should I ask the store for my Kordite refund and the postage it cost me? — Ira B. from Chicago.

DEAR IRA — Advertising the expired refund offer was probably a simple mistake on the store's part.

When the cartons of leaf bags were removed from their warehouse, the advertising manager was probably told that refund forms were enclosed in each carton. He or she then advertised the refund without checking the expiration date.

Obviously, shoppers are not the only ones who should check these important dates. When you find expired refund forms displayed in a store, you can score a few points with the manager by bringing that fact to his or her attention.

Should the store pay you the advertised refund and your postage? Yes, since it was in error. You may have some trouble collecting, however, since the problem occurred several months ago.

SMART SHOPPING TIP

Mrs. Paul Horowitz of Hollywood, Fla., tells us that whenever she finds a refund form that she intends to use, she immediately addresses the envelope in which she will send her request for that offer.

In the upper right-hand corner of the envelope, where the postage stamp will go, she notes the required proofs and the expiration date. She puts the refund form in the envelope, which she files with her other envelopes by expiration date.

Each time she makes up her shopping list, she goes through the envelopes to remind herself of these offers. As she obtains each required proof, she marks it off in the upper right-hand corner.

"This system really helps me keep track of the refunds I am working on and their expiration dates," says Mrs. Horowitz.

Readers whose tips are published in this column will receive my "1981 Guide to Coupons and Refunds." Send your tip to me in care of this newspaper.

Mistreatment Of Officer Alleged

DETROIT (AP) — A police officers' union says a patrolman was put on guard duty in near-zero temperatures in a precinct parking lot because he failed to issue enough traffic tickets.

The patrolman, Larry Carter, a 12-year veteran of the Detroit police force, was suffering from sore feet and spent part of his shift in a chair outdoors with the wind chill factor at 22 below zero Monday night.

Carter said he sat for three hours in the chair in the bitter cold, feared frostbite and reported sick. A doctor found no frostbite, but ordered Carter home for the remainder of his shift.

But Thomas Peterson, a precinct commander, denied the allegation.

Watroba demanded "immediate psychological testing of all supervisory and command officers" involved in the decision to put Carter on guard duty.

Peterson said he ordered Carter to patrol the station and never ordered him to sit in the parking lot.

Long-Lost Dog Finds Ride To Chicago

WARREN (AP) — Shadow, the dog who turned up in Southeast Texas 15 months after she disappeared from her home in suburban Chicago, is going home thanks to a Fort Worth dog fancier.

Rita Brown, whose husband is a pilot with American Airlines, Wednesday offered to accompany the mixed-breed pooch from Dallas to Chicago by using her employee family pass.

"I don't work or anything and I'd be happy to fly with Shadow to Chicago," Mrs. Brown said.

She extended the offer to the John Morris family who has cared for Shadow since she appeared three weeks ago on the doorstep of their home about 35 miles north of Beaumont. Mrs. Morris had tried unsuccessfully to find a chaperone to accompany Shadow home.

The Morrises put Shadow on a Wednesday flight from Beaumont to Dallas. From Dallas, Mrs. Brown and Shadow will depart at 1 p.m. Thursday on an nonstop flight to Chicago.

Contacted Wednesday, Mrs. Ray Ulreich of Oak Forest, Ill., said she was delighted that her family's long lost pet finally was coming home.

"That's just marvelous," she said. "I just hope I can be there with my son to pick her up."

Part of the mystery surrounding Shadow's disappearance from her home 15 months ago was cleared up on Wednesday when the Ulreichs learned that Shadow may have been dognapped.

Mrs. Ulreich said she learned from children in the Warren area that Shadow was given to them by a "platinum blonde woman" driving a car with Illinois license plates. The woman knew the dog's name when she gave it to the children at a Huntsville motel, Mrs. Ulreich said.

Shadow will get a bath, a brushing and will wear a "big yellow ribbon " for her homecoming, Mrs. Brown said.

The Ulreichs have not seen their Lhasa apso-cocker spaniel mixed breed since she disappeared from their home in October 1979. On Jan. 26, the Morrises called the Ulreich home, the telephone number of which was on Shadow's tags, to inform them their pet had been found.

Because of subfreezing ground temperatures at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, however, airline officials refused to fly the dog to Chicago alone. The pooch could have perished waiting on the ground in the unheated baggage compartment of an airplane, they explained. Accompanied by Mrs. Brown, the flop-eared Shadow will travel in the passenger compartment inside a special cage tucked beneath Mrs. Brown's seat.

Con Men Outwit Victim Again

FORT WORTH (AP) — Police say an 83-year-old woman was stripped of $30,000 in cash in an ingenious con game perpetrated by accomplices of two con artists who took the same woman for $6,500 six months ago.

The latest ripoff involved three men who posed as plainclothes Fort Worth police detectives and was a year in the making, authorities said Wednesday.

The con artists convinced the woman they were investigating a second con game, in which an informant was being paid to give out confidential information about customer accounts at the woman's bank.

"This is the first time we've ever had anything like this in a long, long time, where a follow-up con was involved," said police Capt. C.E. Hogue.

The second scam occurred over three days last week but was not immediately reported, he said.

The woman cashed a $10,000 bank certificate each day for three days as part of the con, police said. The men convinced her they were police officers by leading her to believe they had solved the first scam, which occurred in August.

She was asked to cash the certificates of deposit — one on each day of the con — and bring the cash back to her apartment so the con men could dust the money for fingerpints.

She was driven to the bank in the same blue Cadillac that had been used by two women who defrauded her of two rings valued at $2,500 apiece and $1,500 in cash in August, she said. The men said they brought the car to her apartment so she could identify it as the one used in the earlier scam.

Increasing Use Of Fuel Alcohol Viewed

By PIERRE BELEC

PHOENIX (Reuters) — With gasoline prices rising towards those of alcohol, some oil companies are signalling intentions to increase the gasoline-alcohol ratio of gasohol to 85-15 from 90-10 at present, Martin Andreas, president of ADM foods division of Archer, Daniels, Midland Co., said.

ADM produces about 80 percent of U. S. alcohol fuel supplies.

As a result of price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and U. S. oil decontrol, the price spread between gasoline and alcohol has narrowed to about 30 cents a gallon in the past year, Andreas told Reuters in an interview.

"In the near future, the price of alcohol and gasoline used in gasohol will reach a cross-over point," he added.

Andreas, who was attending an international meeting on world sweetener policy here, also said alcohol has achieved some large competitive gains in the last year, despite substantial increases in prices of corn, a basic raw material for alcohol production.

A recent major breakthrough in alcohol production has led to a sharp reduction in fermentation time to 18 hours from 60 hours, he said.

Another factor which should aid the competitive position of alcohol, Andreas said, are expectations that the bulk of ADM's alcohol production soon will be using the nation's oil pipeline system, which would cut transportation costs by some 80 percent.

Alcohol plants will have to be connected to oil company pipelines in order to remain viable, he added.

Andreas disclosed that ADM conducted a test last week using an oil pipeline to transport 4,500 gallons of pure alcohol from Kansas City to Des Moines. The test was very successful with few problems, he added.

Separately, Andreas said Brazilian shipments of alcohol to the United States are a "continuing problem," despite legislation enacted last year imposing a 10-cent-a-gallon import duty.

He said the tariff has not been successful in stopping Brazil from selling alcohol at 30 cents a gallon below U. S. prices.

However, Andreas said Brazil will have less alcohol available for export in coming years as more will be needed domestically to provide for the country's alcohol burning vehicles.

RETURN TO JOBS

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Administrators in the Kalamazoo school district returned to their jobs Wednesday after they were threatened with dismissal if they continued their walkout. The administrators, members of United Auto Workers union Local 2150, struck Monday after six months of bargaining failed to produce a new contract. School Superintendent Charles Townsend said classes were not interrupted as more than 12,000 teachers and students crossed picket lines.

Energy Fund Measure Endorsed By Panel

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Legislation by Sen. E. L. Short of Tahoka to create an energy development fund for research and development of means to convert cellulose to alcohol was recommended for Senate approval Wednesday by the Senate Natural Resources Committee.

The committee voted 8-0 to recommend passage of SB 233.

Short said the legislation would authorize the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council to receive and disperse funds for such research. The bill itself does not appropriate any funds.

Bob Avant of TENRAC told the panel Texas has "very strong cellulose resources," and that waste agricultural products could be used to produce 600 million to one billion gallons of alcohol fuel annually.

Initial reserach in that area is being carried out by Texas Tech University, Avant said, and it is now hoped that a demonstration plant can be established.

Short noted that Tech is getting funds from the Department of Energy for the research effort.

Avant also argued that the bill would be a means to "leverage" funds from the windfall profits tax on oil back to Texas.

State monies in the fund would be limited to 20 percent of the total, Short said, with the other money coming from federal or private sources.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A BULLISH OUTLOOK FOR LIVESTOCK and red meat prices throughout 1981 and into 1982 is foreseen by a private agricultural economist.

Dennis Steadman, director of the food and agriculture service of Chase Econometrics, reviewed the outlook this week at the annual meeting of the National Meat Association at Miami.

Slaughter cattle prices will reach $75 per hundredweight by the third quarter of 1981 and $80 by the end of this year, Steadman predicted.

Hog prices probably will reach $55 per hundredweight by mid-1981 and $60 by 1982, he said.

The driving force behind his cattle price projections, he said, is the expectation of relatively light feeddlot placements.

Poor or negative profit margins have virtually eliminated any incentive feedlot operators might have had to put more cattle on feed, Steadman said.

FOR THE FOURTH QUARTER of 1980, placements were down 9 percent at 7.34 million head from a year earlier, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's cattle-on-feed report in January.

Steadman said 1981 pork supplies probably will be down about 7 to 9 percent from 1980, somewhat less than the decline indicated in the farrowing intentions section in the USDA's hogs and pigs report in December.

The USDA report estimated 1981 farrowing intentions for December through May would be down 6 percent from 1980.

The reduced livestock supplies expected in 1981 will force per-capita beef and pork consumption this year down to about 170.9 pounds carcass weight, 9 pounds below the 1980 level, Steadman said. Poultry will take up some of the difference, he said.

Higher red meat prices resulting from this shortfall will prompt a slight production increase in 1982, he said. This recovery in production should be enough to support a 1982 U. S. per-capita beef and pork consumption rate of about 171.7 pounds, he said.

TWO SENATORS PLAN TO INTRODUCE a bill to slash inheritance taxes in an effort to relieve family-owned farms and small businesses from pressure to sell out to larger enterprises.

The bill by Senate Finance Committee members Walcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., and David Boren, D-Okla., would allow gross estates valued up to $600,000 to be transferred free of inheritance taxes.

Current law allows the transfer of only $175,625 in property before it is taxed, the senators said.

The bill also would cut estate tax rates 10 percent and increase the gift tax exemption to $10,000 from $3,000.

A PROPOSAL TO ELIMINATE TARGET PRICES as part of the administration's legislative package for the 1981 farm bill may be considered by Secretary of Agriculture John Block, according to Washington sources.

Block commented earlier this week, for the second time since he took office, that he is philosophically opposed to the target price concept because it involves direct government outlays.

Sources at the USDA cautioned that Block's philosophical opposition to target prices may not take the shape of a legislative proposal to eliminate them.

"That possibility exists but he is thinking over every (legislative) possibility right now," one said.

COMMENTS ARE BEING SOUGHT BY THE USDA, by April 6, on proposals for the 1981-crop loan program for upland and extra long staple cotton.

The USDA said specific comments are sought on premiums and discounts for grade and staple length of upland cotton, base loan rates by warehouse location for upland, loan rates by location for eligible qualities of extra long staple, and micronaire differentials for both upland and extra long sta ple.

Loan quality differentials for upland cotton in the past usually have been announced in May. They are based partly on average spot market differentials during the first nine months (August-April) of the then-current marketing year.

COTTON FUTURES CLOSED AN ERRATIC session slightly mixed Wednesday with spot March and May up 43 and 2 points, respectively, and other months 11 to 19 points lower.

Prices moved indecisively in a narrow range on modest commission house buying and local selling with trade activity on both sides, dealers said.

Analysts suggested the slow trading could be attributed to continued quiet cash business and to withdrawal of traders ahead of today's USDA export commitments report.

A decrease in the percentage of long speculative positions in this week's trader-commitments report indicated there was room for speculators who had left the market to re-enter on the long side, analysts said, and also indicated it was less likely more longs would leave.

Analysts said the high percentage of short speculators indicated that any significant rally could lead to covering — the buying back of their shorts — by speculative traders.

Speculative short covering was said to have been a factor in Tuesday's rally.

SOUTH KOREA'S COTTON IMPORTS in the current marketing year are forecast at 1.54 million bales (480 pounds), up from 1.45 million imported and consumed in the previous season, the USDA's attache in Seoul said in a field report.

The report, received in Washington late last month, said imports in the 1981-82 season are expected to increase marginally to 1.55 million bales.

However, the report said Korean mills are switching to non-U. S. sources for cotton due to inadequate U. S. credit financing and higher U. S. prices.

As a result, the report said, it is likely that the U. S. share of South Korea's cotton market will decline somewhat below the current 98 percent.

Meanwhile, the USDA announced Wednesday that price support loans on upland cotton scheduled to mature Feb. 28 may be extended through Oct. 31.

UPLAND COTTON LOANS NORMALLY MATURE 10 months from the first day of the month in which the loan is made. Under certain conditions, however, current law provides that a producer can request an eight-month extension.

The USDA must grant the request unless the average spot market price of the base quality for the preceding month exceeds 130 percent of the average price for the preceding 36 months.

During January, the USDA said, the average price on the base quality was 85.11 cents per pound, or 127 percent of the comparable price for the preceding 36 months.

In other news, it was reported that the New China News Agency (NCNA) had said a new corporation to promote the production of goods for export opened in Peking this week.

THE CHINA EXPORT COMMODITIES CENTER'S construction corporation will help enterprises expand export production, raise the quality of export goods and improve packaging, the agency added.

It also will assist in building factories and mines which produce export goods, NCNA said.

Private sources earlier reported that China, which is opening an office in Dallas for a buying mission, is establishing an office in Pakistan, where the Chinese have bought a considerable amount of cotton.

Trading on Telcot slowed to 6,875 bales on an average price of 68.75 cents, an average of 2,920 points over the loan, with a nil market difference.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices closed mixed Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade following sharp advances the previous day.

Sources said there was some early buying in soybeans, but there was a lack of follow-through support from European markets attributed to the strength of the U.S. dollar. The stronger dollar discourages foreign buying because it makes it more expensive to convert foreign currencies into dollars.

Traders said wheat fell partly under the pressure of selling by commercial interests.

Oats were the only grain higher across the board, with speculators said to be competing to buy against a shortage of contracts for sale.

Farm Labor Development Urged

By Reuters

WASHINGTON — U. S. farmers would gain instant relief from economic disaster if President Reagan decides to lift the grain embargo with the Soviet Union, American Agriculture Movement (AAM) president Marvin Meek of Plainview said Wednesday.

If the embargo were lifted, "the market would instantaneously recover," thwarting a desperate situation in rural America, the Texas High Plains farmer said.

At a meeting to urge Reagan to honor his campaign pledge to end the embargo, Meek said even though the U.S.S.R. may not purchase more grain without the trade halt, market prices of grain would recover.

"Just the psychology of lifting the embargo would raise market prices for grain," he said.

Asked if the AAM recommends renegotiating the U. S.-Soviet five-year pact, Meek said the farm group does not favor grain supply agreements at all because they limit what the United States sells.

With an agreement, he said, there is no urgency for the Soviets to buy U. S. grain when market prices are high because they have a guaranteed supply.

In other comments on farm and overall government policy, Meek said the AAM will ask for a 120-day freeze on all farm loan disclosures.

"The cost of losing more farmers is counterproductive to the American consumer," Meek said.

Meanwhile, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., has introduced legislation to add a third deputy U. S. trade representative (USTR) position in order to enable the USTR to devote more time to agricultural matters.

Cattle Futures Close Mixed

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 35 points higher to 12 lower with only February off. Sales increased to 25,616 cars Wednesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Late trade was active with February falling after midday on selling stimulated by expectations of heavy deliveries again today. Prices recovered from lows at the close on chart buying and support stemming from firmer tone to cash beef. Sources noted that stops were touched off on both sides of the market.

Deliveries total 501 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged to up 1 at 88 to 91 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were off $2 to up 50 cents with the best top $61.50 per hundredweight at Peoria. Slaughter totaled 123,000 head. About 7,600 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed unchanged to 47 higher on sales of 2,557 contracts.

Feeders followed the lead of the live cattle pit and fell for net losses after midday. Prices recovered on late short covering and local buying following live cattle futures. Some support stemmed from firmer tone to cash beef at noon. Trade had been slow earlier with locals most active and commission houses on both sides.

Cash feeders were off $3 to up $2 with the best top $86.50 per hundredweight at San Antonio. Receipts at the major terminals are expected to total 4,000 head.

Hog futures closed 80 lower to 85 higher on sales of 8,148 lots. Only the two most distant months held early gains.

Late local and commercial selling forced futures to new day's lows. Traders noted spillover weakness from the belly pit and selling on the easier tone to cash products at noon. Mostly lower live markets and weakness in grain futures were also noted.

There have been 84 deliveries thus far. Wholesale hams were unchanged at

Tribute To Benny To Feature Choice Sketches

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's an early Valentine's Day treat from NBC: the two-hour special "A Love Letter to Jack Benny."

Three of the late comedian's closest friends, George Burns, Bob Hope and Johnny Carson, are hosts of the tribute, which also includes a comedy segment taped seven years ago with Ronald Reagan.

"I had wanted to do the show on Jack's birthday, Feb. 14, which is Valentine's Day," said Irving A. Fein, who had been his personal manager and producer.

"Jack would have been 87 on Feb. 14. And this would be something special for his birthday and Valentine's Day. But the scheduling just didn't work out so we're a little early."

The "love letter" is made up of clips taken from 10 specials Benny did between 1965, when he switched from black and white to color, and 1974, when he died.

"We have some priceless stuff," said Fein, who co-produced the show. "We have some wonderful people doing comedy who'd never done comedy before. Like Gregory Peck. We have a rare appearance by Ronald Reagan, who was governor of California at the time. We have stme classic bits that were Benny's."

The show includes memorable appearances by such guest stars as Lucille Ball, Walt Disney, Dean Martin, Don Rickles, Frank Sinatra, Red Skelton, John Wayne and many more.

Although the show is 75 percent clips, Benny is also remembered on the program zy his friends. Fein said, "Hope, Carson and Burns were the people closest to Jack. George was his closest friend. George used to say, 'We've been friends for 55 years — because I always tell him he's a great violinist and he tells me I'm a great singer.'

"When Johnny Carson was a student he used to tape Jack's radio shows for his radio class at the University of Nebraska," Fein said. "If you watch Carson you'll see he patterns himself after Jack — the slow pause, the look, the hand to the face."

One of Carson's first breaks came in 1953 when he was invited to be on the Benny show. Carson then had a local show. The writers had witten a routine in which a young comedian tells Benny that everything he's doing in comedy is wrong.

"After Johnny took over the 'Tonight' show he came out to the coast and Jack called him at his hotel," Fein said. "He said he realized Johnny was probably booked, but if he got stuck he'd be glad to be on the show. Johnny thanked him and hung up.

"The next dav Jack asked me why Johnny had been so cold. So I called Fred de Cordova and we found that Johnny never believed a big star like Jack would call him. He thought one of his friends had impersonated Jack and made the call as a joke."

HBO Official Scans Variety Of Film Products

By TOM JORY

NEW YORK (AP) — If you took in a movie in New York City last year, there's a fair chance you stood in line with Jim Byerley. He saw 727, many of them in theaters near his midtown Manhattan office.

Byerley is director of product evaluation for Home Box Office, which means he helps the pay TV giant decide which movies to offer its four million subscribers.

"I've always loved films," says the Texas-born Byerley. "My parents took me to see the Walt Disney film, 'The Living Desert,' when I was just a kid, and I was hooked.

"Now I want to make films myself, and this has been an incredible learning process. And watching all those movies hasn't really reduced my sensitivity to what's good and what's not."

Byerley, 36, has, in fact, made movie-watching something of a science. He regularly provides HBO colleagues with capsule reviews of current movies, and he's put together his own list of favorites — with films like "The Birds," "Carnal Knowledge" and "Citizen Kane" at the top.

"People complain all the time, 'Why don't you show any good movies?' The fact is," Byerley says, "there aren't any.

Byerley's work takes him to international film festivals and screening rooms both here and in Hollywood, in addition to the movie theaters.

"During the Christmas holiday," he says, "I saw five films in one day. I think it's important to see movies with other people, especially comedies. I found I don't like to see them in a void. The audience reaction is so important.

"I saw 'Harper Valley P.T.A.' in a full theater, and I thought, 'This is the worst thing I've ever seen.' But the people were rolling in the aisles."

Naturally, HBO's subscribers are interested in the hit films, and that defines Byerley's job a bit. But there are plenty of other movies to be seen, and that's where Byerley comes in.

"I think the company feels that if we're making these decisions, we ought to know about everything in the marketplace," he says. "So we go to Cannes every year — I saw 52 films there this year — as well as the other festivals. And not only do I try to see every film that opens theatrically, we're bombarded with submissions that never make the theaters.

"Most of the little-known stuff is awful," he says, "but there have been some gems. I saw Linda Blair in a Canadian film called 'Wild Horse Hank' that never made it to the theaters. It did very well for us.

"Of course, we mainly deal in the most recognizable titles," Byerley says, "because we can't really promote the things we show. Nobody has to push 'The Amityville Horror,' so that's easy for us to do."

That doesn't mean, however, that HBO will buy all of the most publicized films.

"There really is very little question that we will buy 'Superman,'" he says. "A film like 'Cruising,' which was notorious, we felt that in terms of content and style, it really was not worth it."

IF A NATURAL DISASTER TOMORROW HOW LONG WOULD YOUR FOOD SUPPLY LAST?

Experts recommend that you store a year's supply of food for everyone in your family. But frozen or canned food must be consumed within a certain time or deterioration sets in.

Well, we have the answer: Mountain House freeze dried food.

It stores for many years. Not only that, but you'll love the taste, the great variety, and the ease of preparation.

Building Materials Chain
We are an aggressive Kansas City based full line building materials retailer currently operating 86 building materials center in 14 midwestern, south western and Pacific coast stores. Our record is impressive, sales and earnings have both grown of compound annual rates in excess of 30% over the last five years. As a leader in this dynamic growth industry, we feel the best is yet to come. Our projected growth rate calls for 10-12 new stores per year.

What does this mean to you! We are seeking self motivated individuals, preferably with a degree in business administration, management, marketing or accounting. If you meet these qualifications and are seeking that special career opportunity, we would like to discuss what Payless Cashways can do for you. A competitive benefit package along with an excellent management training program.

An appointment will be necessary. A resume would be helpful but not required.

Reagan Appointee Called Nitwit, Don't Know Man

LONDON (AP) — An Amsterdam daily called him a "nitwit," a London paper quipped "ask me another" and a Johannesburg paper headlined "don't-know man gets nod."

The international press was reacting Wednesday to President Ronald Reagan's choice of California Judge William Clark as deputy secretary of state.

Clark's admissions to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he didn't know the names of the South African and Zimbabwe prime ministers (Pieter W. Botha and Robert Mugabe), and his apparently thin grasp of foreign policy in general, attracted massive publicity in countries he may later have to visit.

The Amsterdam daily Volkskrant said "Reagan chooses nitwit as minister" — "nitwit" written in English, the rest in Dutch — and the mass-circulation Amsterdam de Telegraaf topped its story "American minister knows nothing."

Before gaining the Senate committee's approval to take over as No. 2 man at the State Department, Clark admitted that he knew nothing of the angry split in Britain's opposition Labor Party and didn't know how Western Europe felt about having American nuclear missiles sited here.

The London Daily Express reported his testimony under the headline "Ask Me Another" and the New Standard later took up the challenge by publishing a world affairs quiz for its readers.

The left-leaning London Daily Mirror offered stronger stuff in an editorial: "America's Allies In Europe — Europe, Mr. Clark, you must have heard of it — will hope he is never in charge at a time of crisis."

In France, the influential right-wing Le Figaro played down Clark's performance by arguing that he was only being appointed to keep an eye on Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

"If Clark was a judge without a law degree, why not a diplomat who owes his job not to competition but to circumstances?" wrote the paper's Washington correspondent, Charles Lambroschini.

"After all, Reagan is asking nothing more of him than to keep an eye on Haig whose ambitions do not stop at the State Department, a political motive logical enough for the Senate not to refuse to confirm William Clark," he added.

There was no official reaction in South Africa, but the pro-government Citizen reported, "Don't-Know Man Gets Nod For Reagan Top Policy Slot."

A kind word came from the independent Swiss paper, Takes-Anzeiger of Zurich, which said of Clark "he will make it eventually."

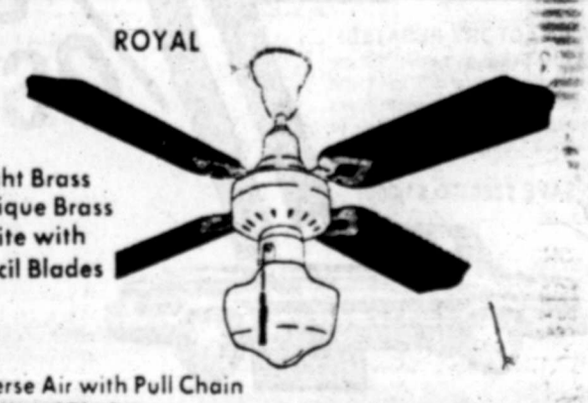

San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge was opened in 1937.

MAPS EXEC CLAIMS LIFE THREATENED

Official To Fight Charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man identified as a boxing promoter named in a $21.3 million bank embezzlement suit said he fled the country after his life was threatened and his 4-year-old son was kidnapped "because I learned too much."

But the man identified in a radio interview as Harold Smith, who had been missing for days after the boxing scandal broke open, said he had "come back to fight."

"I'm a fighter, and I don't run from nothing," he said. "I'm not afraid to die if I know what the purpose is."

Officials of San Francisco-based Wells Fargo Bank scoffed at the allegations Wednesday, calling them "preposterous." The bank on Monday filed the civil embezzlement suit against Smith, president of Muhammad Ali Professional Sports Inc., and several other officials of the sports promotion organization that sponsored numerous boxing matches and the annual Muhammad Ali track meet.

The man identified as Smith told KABC Sports Talk host Bud Furillo that he retrieved his son from kidnappers, then took his family to Switzerland for their safety.

He told the New York Times that the kidnappers had threatened to kill the boy "for what I can tell." Asked who the kidnappers were, Smith told Furillo: "Well, you can start at the Miracle Mile District of Wells Fargo bank (on Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles) ... This thing involves bank officials."

He said armed men came to his home and took his son, holding the child for a week until Smith promised to remain silent about the embezzlement and to leave the country. He said he and his family recovered the child, then headed north, apparently for Canada.

But he said they were followed.

"They were following us like cats and dogs, and the only way we could get out was out through the window," he said.

"There's nothing like the feeling of running through woods at 31 degrees, you know, with a little baby boy crying 'Daddy, I'm scared.'"

"I had to leave there under gunfire," Smith said.

The bank suit seeks restitution of $21.3 million, but Smith told Furillo: "We're not talking about $20 million ... What I've learned is that there are two or three hundred million dollars involved ... over a period of time, over eight, nine years."

And he said the alleged fraud really involved as many as 35 bank officials at 15 Wells Fargo branches.

Besides Furillo, Smith also called KNXT-TV sportscaster Jim Hill and New York Times boxing writer Michael Katz on Tuesday. All agreed afterward it was Smith they had spoken to. Smith also tel-

Raiders Looking For Defense

(New Texas Tech head football coach Jerry Moore should have little trouble fielding an experienced squad in 1981. Moore inherits 15 starters and numerous lettermen from Rex Dockery's 1980 squad that finished with a 5-6 record. To fully examine the returning players that Moore will be counting on, The Avalanche-Journal begins a four-part series on the strengths and weaknesses Moore faces one week before the Southwest Conference letter-signing date and six weeks before spring training. The first installment of the series deals with the defensive line and linebackers.)

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

Jerry Moore smiles when he thinks about all the experience he'll have at his disposal during the 1981 football season. After all, Texas Tech loses only seven starters from last fall's squad.

But there is a catch. Four of those departed seven Red Raiders were members of Tech's stubborn defense, and three of those four were stationed along the defensive front. Football games are won in the trenches, and the Tech defensive trench is in dire need of reinforcements.

On paper, the defensive line appears to be Tech's weakest link and the area where immediate recruiting help is needed. Rex Dockery acknowledged that fact before he left. Moore acknowledges that fact now.

First In A Series

Gone from that front five are starting outside linebacker (outside linebackers will be considered a part of the defensive front in this story because their role at Tech has been closer to that of a down lineman) Jeff McKinney and tackles Jamie Giles and Dane Kerns. Part-time starters and reliable substitutes Jim Verden, Hans Bischof, Rick Kempf and Roger Jones, who was a starting end before he torn up a knee against Baylor, have also used up their eligibility.

In essence, Tech has lost seven of its top 10 defensive linemen. And those seven were outstanding. Giles, Kerns, Verden and Bischof accounted for 166 of the 243 tackles made by Tech's down linemen. McKinney made 72 stops. Jones had 28 in three games.

The cornerstone is junior noseguard Gabriel Rivera, who's started for the Raiders since he arrived from San Antonio in the fall of 1979.

Rivera, 6-3 and 280 pounds, can be as dominating along the defensive front as any down lineman in the Southwest Conference. He has size, quickness and a nose for the ball.

Rivera led Tech's down defensive linemen in tackles last season with 70, making 50 of those tackles by himself. Twelve tackles were for losses totaling 49 yards. He also blocked a kick, caused two fumbles, recovered four loose footballs, broke up two passes, intercepted one aerial and recorded a pair of quarterback sacks.

Steve Ford, a 5-11, 235-pounder, is currently listed behind Rivera on the post-season depth chart but is recovering knee problems.

A healthy Rivera, or Senor Sack as he is known by his teammates, gives Moore a solid foundation on which to build. The next step in the rebuilding process is much more clouded.

Giles and Kerns were not only capable, but durable. Neither missed a game in 1980 because of injury.

Sports Medicine Conference Set

Prevention and treatment of sports-related injuries will be the major focusof Sports Medicine, a two-day conference jointly sponsored by Texas Tech University and the school's Health Sciences Center.

The two days of lectures, workshops and demonstrations begin Friday at 6:45 a.m. with registration. Lectures begin at 8 a.m. and continue through 8:15 p.m. Friday. Saturday's session begins at 8 a.m. and continues through noon.

The entire conference will be held at the South Park Inn, 3201 South Loop 289.

"We are concerned with prevention as well as treatment of sports-related injuries," said Robert P. Yost, M.D., associate professor of orthopaedic surgery and chairman of the conference planning committee. "We feel sports medicine includes the physical aspect as well as emotional and mental aspects of participation."

Due to the growing popularity of organized sports among youth, the concern of Americans for physical fitness and the interest to upgrade the quality of sports health, sports medicine has become an important facet of sports activity. There were over 17,000,000 sports-related injuries in the U.S. last year. The theme of the conference is better health care for athletes and all persons involved in sports-related activity.

Several of the nation's leading sports medicine authorities will be on hand during the two-day conference to share their expertise. The conference will bring together health and physical education professors, biochemical research scientists, athletic trainers, physical therapists, psychologists, physicians and pharmacologist.

Irving Dardik, M.D., and chairman of the U.S. Olympic Council on Sports Medicine, will deliver the opening day luncheon address. The topic of that address will be "Olympic Sports Medicine and Its Future."

Other noted experts on hand for the two-day workshop include: David Costill, Ph.D., director of Human Performance Laboratory, professor of physical education, Ball State University; Chauncey Morehouse, Ph.D., Sports Research Institute, Biomechanics Laboratory, Penn State University; Gideon Ariel, Ph.D., vice president and director of research for Computerized Biomechanical Analysis and president of COTO Research Center, Trabuco Canyon, Calif.; Don O'Donoghue, M.D., professor and chairman of orthopaedic surgery, University of Oklahoma; Mike Bobo, Ph.D., associate professor of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Texas Tech University; and Bill Grist, LPT.

The cost of the two-day event (including luncheon, banquet, refreshments and packet materials) for students and the general public is $25. Persons wishing to attend lectures and demonstrations, but not the luncheon or banquet can pay $10.

Rutledge's Father Says He Saw Son's Cut Lip

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The father of a former Arizona State football player testified Wednesday that his son showed him a lacerated upper lip a week after ex-Sun Devil coach Frank Kush allegedly punched the youth during a 1978 game.

Kevin Rutledge claims Kush split his lip with "a knuckle-punch" after a poor punt in the game and that Kush and Maskill subsequently harassed him into quitting the team and forfeiting his scholarship.

Rutledge told the court he met with his son at a golf course "the following Saturday" after the Oct. 28, 1978 Arizona State-Washington game in question.

"He pulled back his lip and said coach Kush had hit him and showed me the laceration," the senior Rutledge said. "During the week, Kevin's mother had also mentioned it to me."

Kush has testified the past three days that he "can't recall ever touching" Rutledge in the ASU-Washington game.

But Kush has told the court that "it was obvious" Rutledge "was punting poorly" in the game and that he decided to bench him for the last four games of the '78 season because of it.

Gordon Rutledge said he "was infuriated by the way Kevin was being treated" in the California game the week after the alleged altercation with Kush.

"It was evident Kevin wasn't being allowed to work out with the punters during the pre-game warmups or with the defensive backs," Rutledge said. "He was wandering around the field. I wondered why a boy was allowed to dress out just to embarrass him."

Rutledge said from that point on, his son "became less out-going. When he would go to a social event where normally he would mix with the other coaches or players, he was more reticient ... more withdrawn. I thought he felt ashamed and humilated."

In 1979's spring practice, Rutledge recalled his son telling him that he "wanted to get things going again, get his happiness back and went in with a positive attitude," but "was met with the same things he had been subjected to before ... harrassment and humiliation."

Rutledge transferred to the University of Nevada-Las Vegas in July, 1979 and filed his lawsuit against Kush and the other parties three months afterward.

Kush's attorney, Warren Platt, told the court last week that the civil action was sought because Gordon Rutledge blames Kush for son's unsuccessful Sun Devil football career.

"Kevin is an extreme disappointment to his father," Platt said. "Kevin Rutledge has been a pawn in this whole thing. This lawsuit was filed, not because there was a punch or harassment, but because Gordon Rutledge felt that Kevin was not getting to play. The fact is — this was a nice, solid high school player who did not have the ability to play in a big-time program like Arizona State and still is."

The elder Rutledge, however, said his son's career was hampered by an automobile accident Jan. 17, 1978.

"Kevin was not as energetic, was losing weight and was not in good health," the elder Rutledge said.

After a bad training camp in August and "personality clashes with Maskill," Rutledge said his son told him that redshirting "was his only choice until he could find out what his (health) problem was and get his head screwed on right."

Kevin Rutledge claims he approached Kush and Maskill about the possibility of sitting out the 1978 season, "but they wouldn't even talk to him about it."

The younger Rutledge testified that Kush later agreed that he could redshirt. Kush testified Tuesday that Rutledge never talked to him about it, that he and the team physicians had no knowledge of the auto accident because Rutledge didn't tell them of it.

Wichita Officials Declare Payoff Charges Invalid

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Athletic officials at Wichita State University declared their innocence Wednesday and insisted that allegations of payoffs to basketball players are groundless.

Coach Gene Smithson said at a news conference that the accusations came from discontented individuals who either quit or were kicked off the team. He said reports of money given to players "are total fabrications; they are lies."

Athletic director Ted Bredehoft said he reviewed the allegations "and in our opinion, and to our knowledge, the accusations are unfounded."

"We are very disappointed this has been brought out, but we must address ourselves to it," he said. "We pride ourselves in running a clean ship."

Bredehoft, Smithson and an assistant coach held the news conference Wednesday to answer questions about allegations reported in stories published Monday and Tuesday in the Kansas City Times. The stories alleged that players received free plane tickets, cash payments and free clothes. Four former players were quoted in the series as saying they had received more than $4,500 in gratuities from coaches during the past three years.

The Times also reported in the series that JoAnn Carr, the divorced mother of Shocker star Antoine Carr, purchased a $62,500 house and a new car within two years after Carr enrolled although the family had lived in near-poverty. Mrs. Carr denied that the university had helped her and said she received financial help from her boyfriend.

The Wichita Eagle-Beacon said in a copyright story Wednesday that the boyfriend, Don Florence, and his common law wife received a $1 million medical malpractice settlement in 1979. The Eagle-Beacon quoted Emerett Jenkins, described as Florence's common law wife, as saying she believed Florence gave Mrs. Carr money to help pay for the house.

She said she has withdrawal slips showing Florence obtained large amounts of cash from their bank account after the couple won the malpractice suit. Most of the cash settlement of the suit was designated for the care of the couple's son, but there was a substantial cash payment to Florence and Miss Jenkins, the Eagle-Beacon said.

Florence could not be reached for comment.

The Times series also quoted an unnamed woman who said she became pregnant last year while dating a Wichita State basketball player. She said Smithson arranged for her to have an abortion because her boyfriend was going to leave school because she was pregnant.

Smithson denied he ever arranged for an abortion or gave cash payments to any of his players. He said he had no knowledge that his assistants had ever given money to players.

Asked if players ever went to him for money, Smithson replied: "Sure, they have asked me for money and they have been refused."

One assistant, whose name was mentioned by several of the players in The Times series, said he could understand why he was singled out but denied making payments to players.

"I have a great deal of contact with the players," Jeff Jones said. "I'm black and they're black players. They, of course, talk to me about their personal problems."

"That's the price you pay for being a coach," said Jones, who described the allegations as an occupational hazard. "I'm man enough to handle the adversity. I can handle that my name came up. I think it's funny, myself. I laugh at it. The allegations are ridiculous."

Bredehoft said two Wichita businessmen called him while reporters for The Times were in Wichita and claimed they misrepresented themselves as advertising salesmen.

Michael J. Davies, editor of the Kansas City Star and Times, said later the assertion is "ludicrous on its face."

Smithson and Bredehoft said they did not believe the National Collegiate Athletic Association would launch a full-scale investigation. WSU officials confirmed they were notified last week the association was making a preliminary inquiry to determine the need for a full probe.

"We will certainly welcome and be very cooperative in any investigative process," Smithson said, adding he felt he had nothing to fear from a full investigation.

Scott Draws Conviction For New Jersey Murder

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Light heavyweight boxer James Scott Jr. was convicted Wednesday of murdering a Newark man to cover up an armed robbery.

The 33-year-old fighter, surrounded by his family, accepted the verdict passively and showed little emotion, even as his attorney, William Kunstler, leaned over and embraced him.

The conviction on first-degree murder and felony murder capped an eight-day trial. Scott was found guilty of shooting Everett Russ, 25, outside a Newark public housing project in 1975. When sentenced March 11 before Superior Court Judge Nicholas Scalera, he could get up to life in prison.

Scott, who did not take the stand in his own behalf, already is serving a 30-to 40-year prison term on his armed robbery conviction.

The boxer rose to national prominence through his televised bouts inside the Rahway State Prison. His 18-1-1 record includes victories over Yacqui Lopez, Jerry Celestine and Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, formerly known as Eddie Gregory and now the World Boxing Association light-heavyweight champion.

Scott was stripped of his No. 2 WBA ranking last September because of his inability to gain temporary release to fight outside the prison.

The jury of seven women and five men deliberated just four hours before reaching a verdict.

According to testimony, Scott asked Russ to lead him to a drug dealer. The two men went in the boxer's car to the Scudder Homes project. Scott entered the complex alone and robbed a woman who was to sell him drugs, according to the prosecution.

He then viciously beat another man, Leo Skinner, and brought him to the roof of a building, threatening to throw him off out of fear that Skinner would tell police about the robbery, said Essex County Assistant Prosecutor Glenn Goldberg.

When Scott returned to the car, he shot Russ to conceal the robbery, the state contended.

Back On Front Burner, 'Brew' Bubbling Again

By CHUCK McDONALD
Assistant Sports Editor

For 18 games, The Brew brewed on the bench.

Ralph Brewster — yes, the same Ralph Brewster who was wooed by a 100 or so major colleges as a high school senior and was good enough to start for Texas Tech as both a sophomore and junior — had been relegated to a reserve role in this, his senior year.

Brewster isn't the first collegiate athlete to find himself suddenly thrust out of the spotlight in his senior season, nor is he the first to recieve such a jolt at Texas Tech. Those things happen.

"At first it was hard for me to accept," said Brewster. "But I've got to respect coach (Gerald) Myers' decision. He went with what he felt was the best lineup."

And Brewster wasn't completely out of the picture. In fact he was usually the first man off the bench. Still, for a player that had led the team in rebounding for two straight seasons (averaging 7.6 as a soph and 7.1 as a junior) and had averaged 11 points a game in back-to-back seasons, coming in off the bench just wasn't the same.

But Brewster persevered.

"His attitude has really been tremendous," said Myers. "He kept his head up, he kept working and he hasn't created any problems. For a guy in his situation, I admire him for that.

"If he'd had a bad attitude about all this," added Myers, "he'd have been through."

But Brew isn't through. In fact, he's back. Back among the living.

After five straight losses, and sporting a 3-5 Southwest Conference mark, Myers decided to reinstate Brewster. He moved 6-6 Clarence Swannegan to the post position with 6-6 Ben Hill and Brewster at the forwards. Guard Steve Smith stepped out of the starting five, leaving only 5-10 freshman Bubba Jennings and 6-4 Jeff Taylor in the backcourt.

With this alignment, the Raiders faced the league-leading Houston Cougars Saturday night in Lubbock.

The results: Tech's most critical victory of the season (an 81-70 verdict) and for Brewster 15 points, seven rebounds and 33 minutes of playing time.

Afterwards, Myers tipped his hat to Brewster.

"I give the game ball to him," said Myers. "He's earned it."

Tuesday night against TCU Brewster got start No. 2 and the Raiders got win No. 2 in a row and their first road victory of the season in a 70-60 overtime decision over the Frogs.

Again Brewster played a pivotal role.

After Tech had forced this one into OT by blowing numerous opportunities at the free throw line late in the game, Brewster stepped calmly to the stripe in a pair of one-and-one situations and emerged with four points.

He got several key rebounds in the clutch, finishing with a team-high 12, and had 10 points. More importantly to him were the minutes played figure: Brewster had 34.

So not only is Brewster back, but the Raiders have returned to the living as well. At 5-5, Tech is in decent shape again in the conference tournament picture.

"It felt good, real good, when coach Myers told me I was going to start against Houston," Brewster recalled Wednesday. "I said, 'here's my chance to prove if still got it.'

"I wanted to see if I could still be effective as a starter. Because I know there's a big difference between starting and coming off the bench."

And all those games when he didn't start?

"I just wondered if he'd forgotten about me."

Now that he's back in the lineup, Brewster's not dwelling on the first 18 games of the season. He'd rather talk about the last two, and the six regular season tilts the 11-9 Raiders have ahead.

"That (TCU) game should give us the momentum now," says Brewster. "We've broken the ice now. We know we can be just as good on the road as we are at home if we play smart.

"You know, this is the last go-round for me," added the El Paso native, "I'd like to go out the best way I can, on top. I'd like to see us make it to San Antonio (for the SWC post-season tournament) and get into post-season play after that."

About that five-game losing streak (which included four conference games), Brewster claims the problem was more mental than physical.

"It seems like we lost a couple on the road to Rice and Baylor and everyone started getting down," he said. "That threw a monkey wrench into everything because before that we were working for first. All of a sudden we were down around fourth or fifth and we started wondering if we could ever win another one."

Although Brewster has been starting for only two games, he ranks as the Raiders' second leading rebounder in conference action with 56 carooms. Only Swannegan, who's averaging 6.2 an outing in league play, has been more dominant on the boards.

And rebounding, says Brewster, is precisely the area in which he can be most valuable.

"What I've really got to do to help the team is work the boards," said Brewster. "I felt good last night (Tuesday) and I was trying to get good position."

And while sitting on the bench, Brewster has had plenty of time to ponder his shot selection. Although he was a 49.9 percent shooter in his first three years, he's currently hitting 58.3 percent of his efforts, tops among the Raider regulars.

Down the stretch run that begins with a Saturday trip to College Station for a game with the Texas A&M Aggies, Brewster plans to remain steady.

"If we work hard and play the way we're supposed to, we should win the last six games," Brewster promises. "We've got to dedicate ourselves to that. We've got to play aggressively and show some fight. Nobody likes getting beat and I think we owe some teams something this time around.

BREWSTER (34) ON PROWL AGAINST HOUSTON'S ROSE

Chaparral Duo Keeps Inside Game Alive

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It is all in a day's work.

Lubbock Christian College basketball players Brian Fortner and Jim Steensma know there is no sitting down on the job. There never is much rest or relaxation when there's work to be done. And no one else to do it.

Fortner and Steensma receive no days off, no workmen's compensation.

They are the Chaparrals' last line of defense, the team's only claim to an inside game even though both are playing out of their natural habitats.

Fortner, 6-foot-4 and 205 pounds, is LCC's center. He is a power forward by trade. Steensma, 6-6 and 225 pounds, is the Chaps' power forward. He is a small forward, a perimeter player, at heart.

Both are out of position and often out of breath. The remainder of the pencil-thin Chaps are of marginal assistance in shoulder-to-shoulder combat around the basket.

"Rebounds," Fortner said, in a word. "It's usually up to me to get them. And it can get frustrating. Against a team like Sul Ross, where there's a front line of 6-9, 6-6 and 6-5, I might go up for a rebound and have somebody take it right away from me. Sometimes I feel like it's all up to me to get the big rebound."

Fortner's rebounding figures have steadily escalated. He currently averages 9.1 per game while Steensma chips in 5.9. They have teamed to make LCC's inside game viable, if not threatening. Although unable to match the sheer statistical outpourings of Kevin Wharton and Keith Gardner, who effectively dominated LCC's baseline play for the two previous seasons, Steensma and Fortner have replaced them in spirit.

"I knew I couldn't block shots like 'Tree' (Wharton)," Steensma said. "Not many can. But I know I'm needed inside this year and I felt I could do a decent job. Brian felt the same way. If I had a preference, I guess I'd like to be outside. But now that Brian and I have improved to where we can hold our own, I feel at home down low."

Fortner has noted that opposing front lines seldom gang up on him and Steensma. They prefer less imposing, less physical targets. The Chap lineup is loaded with those.

"Our guys get shoved around some," Fortner said. "(Rick) Murdock and (Larry) Holt especially. And Bill (McGee) almost got killed when Keith White (McMurry's 6-7 center) took a swing at him in our game down there last week. If I hadn't stepped between them, White would've gotten to him.

"I get a few elbows underneath, the usual stuff, but I haven't been hit by as much dirty stuff as the other guys on our team. We're not very big, so some of the smaller guys get picked on. I don't consider myself a dirty player but I don't mind throwing an elbow if someone else throws one first."

Steensma also has adapted to the inside rigors; in fact, he enjoys the roughnecking.

"It gets rough down low, but it doesn't bother me to mix it up," Steensma said. "Sometimes, when the officials let things go, I'll really start bouncing people. It's fun, in a way."

Opponents have learned to respect LCC's inside tandem. This was not always the case when the Chaps faced one man-to-man defense after another during the first six weeks of the season. Now, with Fortner in particular having developed into a scoring threat with his turnaround jump-shot and offensive rebounding, zones have come into play against LCC in recent games.

"I feel a lot more secure now," Fortner said. "Most teams weren't too worried about our inside game at the start of conference but, lately, the ball's been coming inside and I've been averaging about 16 points a game. My jumper's falling and I don't feel uncomfortable anymore."

"I started picking it up around Christmas," Steensma added. "That was when Brian and I started working well together and feeling confident of each other. We help each other as much as we can."

Both juniors, Fortner and Steensma would be relieved if coach John Copeland were to recruit one or two top-quality baseline players for next season. They could use the company.

"I think we'd have won 10 more games this year if we had a big 6-7 kid," Fortner said, of the 7-18 Chaps. "I've told coach Copeland that if he brings in somebody at least 6-7, I'll get him 10 rebounds a game next year. We need someone to clear a path."

LCC Women Host McMurry

The Lubbock Christian College women's basketball team continues Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association play against McMurry College at 7:30 tonight in the LCC fieldhouse.

They lost to McMurry 59-53 Jan. 24.

LCC is expected to start center Darla Lynch; forwards Cindy Bigham and JoAnn Phillips, and guards Debby Pitchford and Sherry Brown.

Miss Lynch is the team's leading scorer and rebounder with per-game averages of 16.5 and 10.0, respectively.

Chaps Honor Darla Lynch

The Lubbock Christian College athlete of the week is women's basketball player Darla Lynch, it was announced Wednesday.

Miss Lynch, 5-foot-10 center, scored 21 points in her team's 70-53 victory over Sul Ross State Jan. 26. She also had 10 rebounds and blocked three shots in that contest, the Lady Chaps' only game last week.

She had been honored one week ago as the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association women's player of the week.

Runner-up to Miss Lynch for the LCC award was men's center Brian Fortner, who scored 43 points in three games. He also had 36 rebounds in that span.

Celtic-76er Rivalry Renews Fan Interest In NBA

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The rivalry is back.

In the mid-1960s, when the National Basketball Association was struggling to gain acceptance as a major league, the rivalry between the Boston Celtics and Philadelphia 76ers was one of the its prime attractions.

Wilt Chamberlain finger-rolling for two points for the 76ers, Bill Russell blocking a shot and starting a fast break for the Celtics — those visions linger in the mind's eye of anyone who spent a lot of time watching those basketball giants battle it out in Philadelphia, or on the marvelous parquet floor of Boston Garden.

Now, just when pro basketball needs a shot in the arm, the rivalry is back.

The 76ers and Celtics, who played here Wednesday night, again are the best teams in basketball. And again they feature two of the game's most exciting players, Julius Erving of Philadelphia and Larry Bird of Boston, the Doctor and the Birdman.

Their games are events, just as they were in the days of Chamberlain and Russell, renewing one of sport's great rivalries. The buildup for last week's clash in Boston was extraordinary, yet somehow the game managed to live up to its billing.

It had all the intensity of a championship series match, and should have been must viewing for critics who claim NBA players just go through the motions during the regular season. The Celtics won 104-101, and finally overhauled the Sixers, whom they had been chasing all season in the Atlantic Division race.

The teams fought extremely hard for the slightest advantage and neither ever led by more than seven points. Bird came out supercharged and hit his first five shots before suffering a severe thigh bruise in one of many collisions under the baskets. He finished with 24 points to top Boston, while Dr. J, the man of a thousand moves, led all scorers with 35. In the clubs' first meeting this season, Erving had scored 45 points.

"Realistically we have to look it as just another win," said Boston coach Bill Fitch, "but I won't try to kid anybody — we were up for this game."

So were the 76ers.

"This chase is good for both of us," observed Erving. "They're being right behind us has pushed us to play that much better in the last few weeks, and I'm sure it has helped them, too."

The Philadelphia-Boston race is important. The winner undoubtedly will finish with the best record in the league, giving it the home-court advantage in every playoff series. The winner will earn a bye through the first round of the playoffs, avoiding the dangerous best-of-three mini-series. And the way things stack up now, the winner will not have to play the tough Milwaukee Bucks in the conference semifinals.

Thanks to some thoughtful scheduling, Philadelphia and Boston will play each other on three of the last five Sundays of the regular season. All three games likely will be nationally televised by CBS, which should help both the network's ratings and the NBA's image.

The rivalry is back, and it couldn't have come at a better time.

Judge Changes Date For Antitrust Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge Wednesday set a new trial date of March 23 for the Oakland Raiders-National Football League antitrust case, expressing hope the delay will ease tensions between the feuding parties.

U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson, still pressing for pretrial settlement of the dispute, conceded "it does not now seem that settlement is within our grasp." But he added, "the court remains optimistic that it is not unreachable, either."

Pregerson's comments came in a court order changing the date of the trial, which had been scheduled to start next Monday.

"It is clear that this case is not ready to begin trial in five days," the judge said.

He noted that attorneys have spent many hours in his chambers trying to settle the case, and said "some significant progress has been made in certain areas."

"The court remains convinced that the most advantageous means of resolving this dispute for all concerned would be through settlement," Pregerson said.

He added there were many motions to be disposed of before trial time.

"Moreover," he said, "it may be that a slight postponement will also serve to help diffuse some of the tensions that have built up in recent weeks."

The battery of attorneys who met with Pregerson behind closed doors were pessimistic about a possible out-of-court agreement.

"We are poles apart," said attorney Maxwell Blecher, representing the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission. "There's no hope of settlement."

The complicated court case centers on the Raiders' effort to move the championship team to Los Angeles — a move opposed by the NFL.

The club and the Los Angeles Coliseum brought suit against the NFL. The league is supported by the Los Angeles Rams, who last year abandoned the Coliseum to move to Anaheim in neighboring Orange County.

At issue is an NFL rule which requires 21 of the 28 league teams to approve a franchise move. The Raiders say such a restriction is an antitrust violation inhibiting free enterprise. The NFL members voted 22-0 against the Raiders' move, with some abstentions.

The only point opposing attorneys seemed to agree on at Wednesday's session was the change in trial date. With a three-month trial expected, they said the March 23 date could allow the suit to be resolved in time for the Raiders to know where they will play next season.

Patrick Lynch, attorney for the NFL, said all sides favor a speedy trial. He also said the case has already cost the NFl more than $1 million in legal fees.

Pregerson set a pretrial hearing for March 10 to rule on several pending motions including one to move the trial out of Los Angeles.

New Oiler Coach Plans More Innovative Ideas

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler offensive coordinator Jim Shofner said Wednesday the Oilers' new-look offense will involve Earl Campbell more in the passing game and head coach Ed Biles said his off-season chore was to get quarterback Ken Stabler on a weight program.

Shofner, who resigned Tuesday as quarterback coach of the Cleveland Browns to accept the Oilers job, said he hoped to get Campbell in the Oiler passing game in much the same way that Browns used running back Mike Pruitt.

"You have to be able to throw on first down, and that's what we tried to do with Mike," Shofner said. "If the quarterback can't go deep, then we had Mike out there in the flat for a four-or five-yard gain. Earl can be the same way, but he won't be running any intricate patterns."

Shofner, credited with the development the past two years of Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe, was asked what he thought about Stabler's ability to throw long.

"He threw long on us pretty well last season," Shofner said.

Biles, who replaced former Oiler Coach Bum Phillips, interjected that he planned to talk with Stabler about working out with weights in the off-season.

"Ken had always worked with weights in the off season before last year but it wasn't required here," Biles said. "I think Kenny wants to win and will do anything that we thinks will helps us."

Shofner, who formerly played for the Browns and has been an assistant coach there the past two years, said he was not trying to get out of Cleveland but liked the opportunity offered by the Oilers.

"I was at the end of a three-year contract and I guess if you're an old Texas boy you always try to get back," Shofner said. "I like the idea of getting in on the start of something and besides, the weather wasn't all that good in Cleveland either."

Shofner, a native of Grapevine, Texas, played at Texas Christian University and served as head coach there from 1974 through 1976. Shofner also was an assistant coach at San Francisco from 1968 to 1974.

Cowboys' Waters Undergoes Surgery

DALLAS (AP) — Safety Charlie Waters of the Dallas Cowboys underwent surgery on his right knee Wednesday for the second time in 18 months.

Dr. Marvin Knight performed the surgery at a hospital in Muenster, and said everything went as hoped. Knight said he removed a cartilage and strengthened a ligament.

Waters underwent knee surgery in August 1979 and returned as a Cowboy starter after sitting out the 1979 season.

The surgery Wednesday was unrellated to the previous surgery, although the same knee is involved, Knight said.

A spokesman for the Cowboys said Waters will be in the hospital a week and in a cast for three to four weeks.

"After that, he'll start rehabilitation and we'll see how it goes from there," the team official said.

Magistrate Waives Charges In Phils' Drug Case

READING, Pa. (AP) — A magistrate dismissed all charges Tuesday against a Reading doctor accused of illegally prescribing amphetamines to seven Philadelphia Phillies baseball players.

District Justice Albert Gaspari also threw out charges against two men accused of illegally obtaining the drugs from pharmacies and delivering them to the players or their wives.

Dr. Patrick A. Mazza, 56, team physician for the Phillies' Reading farm club, and Robert L. Masley, 54, and his son, Robert M. Masley, 24, had all testified in their own defense at the seven-hour preliminary hearing.

The lawyer for all three defendants, Emmanuel Dimitriou, said in successfully winning dismissals that charges would never have been brought if the Phillies involved had told the truth and admitted getting the drugs.

"What you have here are a bunch of ballplayers who are world champions, but who are also champions of lying. They have tried to sell this man down the river to protect their own images and their own pocketbooks," Dimitriou said.

Mazza had testified that he had prescribed pep pills — the state claimed more than 2,600 — to pitchers Steve Carlton, Larry Christenson and Randy Lerch; first baseman Pete Rose; outfielder Greg Luzinski; shortstop Larry Bowa and former catcher Tim McCarver.

Deputy Attorney General Donald Johnson said that even if the ballplayers had lied about getting the pills, it wasn't the main issue in the case.

"This crime concerns the practice of medicine by Doctor Mazza," Johnson said. "What you have here is a doctor dispensing controlled substances that are dangerous and subject to abuse over the telephone and without a physical examination."

The magistrate wasted no time after the lawyers finished.

"I'm going to dismiss the charges on all," Gaspari said, and the crowd in the small hearing room broke into applause.

Johnson said any action on a possible appeal of the dismissal would have to be made by his superiors in the state Justice Department in Harrisburg.

Massa testified he had prescribed Dexamyl, Eskatrol, Dexedrine and Preludin. "They were made at the request of the ballplayers and were done in good faith," Mazza said.

Masley said he had delivered pills since 1978 to Carlton, Lerch and pitcher Larry Christenson and said he had given pills to Phillies' clubhouse man Pete Cera for first baseman Pete Rose and former catcher Tim McCarver.

Masley said he gave Cera pills for outfielder Greg Luzinski and shortstop Larry Bowa, but the prescriptions were in the names of their wives "because they wanted it that way."

Earlier, Lerch testified that he never authorized anyone to obtain drug prescriptions in his name, but admitted he had been given approximately 75 amphetamines on two occasions and paid $15 for them.

Christenson, Rose, McCarver and the wives of Luzinski and Bowa testified last month they never requested or got prescriptions from Mazza.

Lerch, who said he had been Mazza's patient while with the Reading club in 1975, testified he had received drugs from the elder Masley "on one occasion when he came down to the Phillies' club house and gave me a bottle of pills."

Lerch continued: "I believe he said he had something for me from Dr. Mazza. I didn't know what it was, but I took it."

Deputy Attorney General Donald Johnson asked: "What were they?"

Lerch: "Preludin (an amphetamine-like drug)."

Lerch said he hadn't requested the pills, which numbered about 50. The incident took place in 1979.

Lerch said he later asked Masley to get him some more of the pills, and that Masley "came back and gave me 25." Lerch said he gave Masley $15 the first time, but no money on the second occasion.

The elder Masley said he was a regular in the Phillies' locker room until July, when the case became public. He said he has maintained friendships with some Phillies' personnel.

Watson Defends San Diego Title

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tom Watson has a certain number of happy historical facts working for him this week as he opens defense of the first of his many 1980 titles in the Wickes-Andy Williams San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

A quick analysis of his spectacular career, which includes four consecutive seasons as the leading money-winner and Player of the Year, shows Watson:

1. Has a superior record as a defending champion;

2. Tends to win the same event several times; and

3. Wins early in the year.

It is not unusual for the tour to go through several seasons without anyone making a successful title defense. Watson has done it four times in the last two seasons.

Of his 25 career triumphs — 22 in the United States and three British Opens — a staggering 17 of them have come in only seven tournaments. In addition to the three British titles, he has won the Byron Nelson four times and has won twice each in the Bing Crosby, San Diego, Tournament of Champions, Western Open and Hall of Fame Classic.

All of which works in his favor in the 72-hole tournament that begins today on two courses at the Torrey Pines Golf Club.

"I like Torrey Pines," Watsons said. "I've had good success here. You always feel a little better, a little more confident, returning to a course where you've won before." he said.

Watson, easily the outstanding player in golf the past four seasons, opened his 1981 campaign last week and let one get away. He had the lead with nine holes to go, but finished with a fat 40 and missed the playoff by a single shot.

"A disappointing finish," Watson said. "My putter went sour. I need more practice, a lot of hard work."

Other leading contenders in the 156-man field include J.C. Snead, a 2-time winner here, former Masters and San Diego champion Fuzzy Zoeller, Andy Bean, Lon Hinkle and Ray Floyd.

CBS is scheduled to provide national television coverage of portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Smith Tells Of 'Death Threat'

ephoned Muhammad Ali's home on Wednesday to inform the former heavyweight boxing champion that he was back in the United States, said Howard Bingham, an aide to Ali.

Smith had said Tuesday he would visit Ali's home in person "to set the record straight," which brought hordes of reporters to the residence Wednesday. Ali spent much of the morning giving interviews at his Hancock Park home.

MAPS has no connection with Ali other than the use of his name for a fee. Since allegations of embezzlement surfaced last week, Ali has asked that his name be dropped from the group's title.

But Ali said Wedesday his attorneys warned him against a planned transfer of an undisclosed amount of funds to the bank just before news of the investigation broke publicly, fearing the funds would be frozen.

"I decided to take my name off the organization a few days before it happened because it didn't look right," Ali said. "Whoever knew it was going to break told my lawyer."

The FBI, which has seized records from MAPS offices in Santa Monica, insisted again Wednesday that its investigation is limited to investigating documents and not the pursuit of any individuals.

"We have no warrant for Mr. Smith," said FBI Special Agent John Hoos. "Mr. Smith is not wanted by the FBI and so therefore he is free to call anyone he wants."

George Caulfield, a Wells Fargo vice president, called the claims of life threats from bank officials, defaults in the hundreds of millons and involvement of several bank officials "preposterous."

"Since the stealing of funds came to light Jan. 23, an internal investigation has proceeded 'round the clock," Caufield said in a prepared statement. "We have determined the loss will not exceed $21.3 million and all but $1 million is covered by insurance.

"Bank depositors and bank customers are not affected by this in any way," he added.

The purported fraud came to light when Wells Fargo began an internal investigation after an employee had noticed "an irregularity," said Caulfield, vice president for communications at the bank's San Francisco headquarters. He said the money had been siphoned from the Santa Monica and Beverly Hills ranches, and the key to the embezzlement was that it involved a bank officer who also served as a MAPS official.

Lewis, a MAPS director and loan officer at Wells Fargo's Beverly Hills branch, left the bank Jan. 23 after 11 years and was still missing Wednesday.

Caufield said the embezzlement did not involve a loan, but would not comment on how the funds were taken from the bank.

Raider Defensive Front Faces Rebuilding Task Under Moore

And with Verden spelling Kerns, there wasn't much opportunity for the younger defensive linemen to record playing time.

Right now, Rivera is flanked by three question marks: Brad White, Ronald Byers and Kenneth Sterns. All three will be sophomores. All three saw very limited action last year. All three are considerably smaller than the tackles Tech has fielded in recent seasons.

White is 6-6 and 225 pounds. Byers is 6-1, 220. Sternes is 6-3, 220. Their size is a concern. Their lack of experience is a concern. It will be some time — probably near the end of spring training — when Moore and Bates make up their minds about who to sandwich around Rivera.

If Moore decides to stay with a five-man defensive front, he has four good ends from which to choose two.

Junior Jeff McCowan took over for Jones midway through the season and contributed heavily to Tech's defensive success from his strong outside linebacker position. The 6-0, 217-pound McCowan made 62 stops, intercepted two passes and had a pair of QB sacks.

David Smith, a 6-1, 215-pound junior, is listed behind McCowan on Tech's depth chart, but could easily earn a starting berth on the weakside. Smith is aggressive and came on strong at the end of the season.

Speedy Lewis Washington started the 1980 season at inside linebacker and was on his way to having a fine year before a knee injury sidelined him for two weeks. The 6-1, 200-pound Washington never regained full mobility because of the injury and was moved back to the outside, where he started the final seven games of 1979.

Despite seeing only limited action during the latter half of the year, Washington still accounted for 48 tackles. His knee now fully healed, Washington will be hard to keep out of a starting position during the spring.

Listed behind Washington is bull-like C.M. Pier, a 6-1, 210-pound senior who can knock heads with the best of them. Pier started three games for the Raider in 1980, but was plagued by inconsistency. Without a doubt, Pier has all the physical attributes to be an all-conference performer.

Because of the consistently good play of Terry Baer and the rapid developement of Stan Williams, both direct contributions of former linebacker coach Al Groh, Tech's inside linebacking corps appears more than solid.

Baer was the team's leading tackler with 78 stops, including a team-high 17 against Baylor. The 6-1, 220-pound senior is tough, stays around the football and plays hurt — everything an inside linebacker is suppose to be.

Williams didn't see much action during the Raiders' first five games, but made the most of his chance to play against Rice. The 6-2, 220-pound junior had 10 tackles in a 10-3 win over the Owls and earned starter's status the remainder of the season.

The only member of the linebacking corps not returning in 1981 is Rusty Maroney, who was a part-time starter last fall. That leaves the backup roles behind Baer and Williams wide open.

Sophomore-to-be Keith Porter, a 6-0, 217-pounder, is currently second team behind Baer. Two other freshmen, 6-4, 215-pound Dwayne Jiles and 6-2, 220-pound Bryan Lambert, are listed behind Williams.

The sleeper of the three could be Jiles, a rangy player who impressed Tech coaches last season with his aggressiveness and alertness. Jiles gained valuable playing time in Tech's final three games of 1980 and could challenge both Baer and Williams for a starting spot.

Another Raider lurking in the shadows at inside linebacker is Van Hughes.

Hughes, 6-4 and 240 pounds, was red-shirted last season after Tech coaches decided their plan to make him a defensive tackle wasn't going to work. Hughes is an exceptional athlete: big, strong and extremely quick. He'll be hard to keep out of the starting lineup. Because of Hughes' ability, Moore may want to try him at another position during spring drills.

If the young players come through at the tackle spots, Moore may want to continue using an odd-man front, defensively. If the Raiders have trouble filling the down linemen positions, there has been talk over switching to an even front to utilize three inside linebacker. Moore, busy recruiting, hasn't had time to evaluate his talent, and that decision is up in the air at least until spring training begins March 23.

(Part two of this four-part series, which will appear in Friday's editions of The Avalanche-Journal, will examine Tech's defensive backfield and the Raiders' kicking game.)

Mart Mixed In Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in erratic trading Wednesday while investors awaited President Reagan's speech on the economy, scheduled for Thursday night.

But airline stocks posted broad gains, helped by improved earnings and federal approval for fare hikes to offset rising fuel costs.

After creeping up and down all day, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed up 0.60 to 941.98. The blue-chip index had gained 9.13 points Tuesday, but tumbled 15.02 Monday.

Alan Poole of Laidlaw Adams and Peck said the market is engaged in a "kind of quiet tug of war" because investors are uncertain about what the president will say in his address on the economy and if specific details of spending and tax cuts will be unveiled then.

The president met with congressional leaders to try to build support for his program, but following the session Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said no specific budget cuts were discussed.

NEW YORK (AP) — Wed.'s national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Magazine Offers Parents Ideas On Children, Money

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Young children often are more aware of money than their parents realize. And grown-ups can use that awareness to teach the youngsters how to spend wisely.

A recent issue of "Consumer Views," a monthly newsletter prepared by economists at Citibank, one of the nation's biggest commercial banks, looked at children and money.

"The best way to teach is to let children practice using money themselves and to get them started early," the newsletter says.

"Young children usually first notice money when they go to stores with you, so start teaching on shopping trips with pre-schoolers. Give a 5-year-old or even a toddler some change in the store and let the child pay for crayons or a toy."

The Citibank economists asked child-rearing experts about allowances, overspending and budgeting. Here are highlights of what the experts said:

Children are ready to make their own spending choices as soon as they understand the difference between numbers. Let your son or daughter make the decision about whether to use his or her coins to buy one item costing 30 cents or two things at 15 cents each.

Youngsters under the age of five or six usually aren't ready for a weekly allowance. They don't have a sense of the future. By the time your child is in the first grade, however, he or she is probably ready for regular spending.

Figure out how much your child needs. Help the youngster keep a record of what he or she spends for a few weeks. Sit down with your child and divide the items into fixed expenses like carfare or lunches, variables like toys or movies, and savings. The variables, or "extras," are important. "The child won't learn much about managing money from an allowance completely tied into 'musts,'" say the Citibank experts.

Keep things simple to start with. The "extras" category in the allowance of youngsters under the age of eight or nine should be limited to things like ice cream, inexpensive toys or other small items. You can gradually increase the child's responsibilities as he or she gets older, adding a sum for gifts, for example.

A budget for older children should include a category for possible earnings. Unless it is financially impossible, however, earnings should not be subtracted from an allowance. You'll reduce the child's motivation to work.

Sooner or later you'll probably hear the argument: "The other kids get more than I do." Review your youngster's allowance. Have you adjusted it at all to cover inflation? Is his or her complaint valid? Check other parents to find out what your child's friends are actually getting. You may decide an increase is necessary.

If, however, you feel your allowance is adequate, be firm. Point out that it is not always a good thing to follow the crowd. Explain that different families have different amounts of money and different needs. Be honest with the children. Include them in discussions of family finances.

You can to expect your youngsters to make at least a few spending mistakes. Keep criticism to a minimum when possible; let the child learn from his or her own errors and gain confidence.

There are times to interfere, however. As a general rule, you should set simple standards in the beginning and stick to them. Dangerous toys, for example, should be ruled out. So should too many sweets.

It is usually not a good idea to bail out a child who wastes his or her entire allowance, then asks for money. In special cases, however, you may want to give a youngster an advance. Insist on repayment and use the experience as a basic lesson in borrowing and credit.

INVESTORS' GUIDE
By BILL DOYLE

Q. My investment portfolio consists of stocks in four companies. I have the certificate for one of the stocks in my safe deposit box. The broker I am using holds the certificates for the other three stocks.

Should I continue to let him hold those certificates? Or, should I ask that the certificates be returned to me?

I get my dividends on time.

A. The stocks you have left with your broker, no doubt, are in "street name" — registered in the name of his brokerage house. Even though you are the "beneficial owner" — the real owner of those stocks — the brokerage firm is acting as your "nominee."

Dividend checks, annual and quarterly stockholder reports and other communications from the companies go to the brokerage house — which is supposed to forward them to you. This arrangement works fine, for people who do a lot of buying and selling of stocks and who naturally don't want the bother of mailing or hand delivering certificates to their brokers after every sale.

It also suits people who like convenience and safekeeping of street name accounts. The Securities Investors Protection Corp. (SIPC) insures your account for up to $100,000, in case the brokerage house goes bust.

Even though you say you get your dividends "on time," there has to be some delay — between the time the brokerage firm gets the dividends and sends them to you.

Last year, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) cracked down on some brokerage firms for delaying payments to customers by using "remote checking" — writing checks on accounts at far-away banks.

Just recently, the SEC told the brokerage fraternity to shape up and ship proxy statements — for votes at annual stockholder meetings — to street name accounts, pronto.

Finally, many brokerage houses charge fees for keeping stocks in street name — especially if customers don't buy or sell something within a period of time and, thereby, generate commissions.

Whether or not to keep stocks in street name is an (OHE) individual decision. I take possession of mine and put them in the safe deposit box.

Q. In 1974, I exchanged some Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds, for Series H bonds. Am I correct in thinking that my H bonds will mature in 1984 -- 10 years after they were issued?

A. No. All Series H bonds have been granted two "extended maturities."

As the often confusing rules now stand, H bonds issued before February, 1957, will reach final maturity 29 years and eight months after their issue dates. H bonds issued from February, 1957, on will mature in 30 years.

So, unless you redeem them at an earlier date, you'll continue to receive interest checks from your H bonds until the year 2004. + + +

Q. We originally owned 50 shares of common stock, with a par value of $25. That stock was split, two for one, and we received 50 more shares. We were informed the par value had been changed to $12.50.

Recently, as the result of a merger, our 100 shares were exchanged for 100 shares of the merged company, with par value of only $1. We can't get a good answer from our broker or the bank to this question:

What does par value represent?

A. Next to nothing, as far as common stock is concerned. It's strictly a bookkeeping item — a dollar amount assigned to each common share by a company's charter. Par value may also be used to compute the dollar amount of the common shares on a company's balance sheet.

Par value has no relationship to market-value — the price at which common stock is bought and sold. Recognizing this, many companies now issue "no-par" common stock.
