Lester Lee Rhodes stands in front of the Maple Avenue house she has lived in since 1969. The east Midland home, one of several George and Barbara Bush and their family lived in during the 1950s, has attracted attention from the press and curiosity seekers.

Former Bush home object of curiosity

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Lester Lee Rhodes thinks she knows why the cars drive by her white house on Maple Avenue, slow down and sometimes stop. The vice president used to live here, and after November the visits might become more frequent.

"A lot of them just drive by, they'll stop and look and keep on driving," Mrs. Rhodes said during an interview in her comfortable, two-bedroom home where George Bush, his wife Barbara and their children lived in the 1950s. "They don't even come up to tell me what they are doing, and that bothers me, but I guess it doesn't hurt anything."

Mrs. Rhodes bought the house in 1969, more than a decade after the Bush family left the white home with a matching carport.

A few years ago, one of Bush's sons came by and asked if he could take some photographs of the house "where my dad used to live," according to Mrs. Rhodes' son, Eddie.

"He just wanted some pictures of the house," Rhodes recalled.

The house was one of three the Bush family lived in during the 1950s. The others were on Sentinel Drive and Ohio Avenue, the GOP hopeful for president said during a November 1987 campaign stop in Midland.

Mrs. Rhodes, who lives on a Social Security check, has made several improvements on the home since the vice president's family lived here. A new roof, wood paneling, ceiling fans and a picket fence have been added, though the house now could use a coat of fresh paint, she said.

Strangely enough, Mrs. Rhodes met the Bushes in Houston several years ago, before he became vice president.

"I fixed dinner for them, and I met them then," she said. "I was living here then, but at the time I didn't know they used to live here."

Mrs. Rhodes said she had "no comment" when asked if she would vote for Bush or his opponent, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, for president.

George and Barbara Bush lived in Odessa and then Midland from 1948 to 1959, when the family moved to Houston. In the late 1940s and 1950s Bush worked in the Permian Basin as an oil equipment salesman and eventually set up his own company, Zapata Petroleum Corp.

North's trial delayed until after election

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trial of ex-White House aide Oliver L. North was postponed Friday until after the presidential election to give lawyers more time to study hundreds of thousands of top-secret documents.

The decision by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell canceling the Sept. 20 date means the first criminal trial arising from the Iran-Contra affair won't be held while Vice President George Bush campaigns for the presidency.

Bush, whose acquiesence in the decision to conduct arms-for-hostage deals with Iran has been criticized by Democratic rival Michael Dukakis, will be free to campaign before the Nov. 8 election without possibly embarrassing reports from the trial.

Bush, asked for his reaction to the judge's decision, replied, "I have no reaction to that." When asked specifically whether it would make his campaign easier, he said, "No."

North's lawyers had threatened to subpoena Bush as a witness, apparently as part of their efforts to show that the former National Security Council aide was authorized to divert arms-sale profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The order insures that the trial will not begin until after the election, and probably not before the new year.

The delay will inevitably renew speculation about post-election presidential pardons for North and former national security adviser John M. Poindexter, who is scheduled to be tried separately.

President Reagan has repeatedly defended both men as innocent of any criminal wrongdoing. He said in May that had not ruled out granting them pardons, but he indicated they would not be forthcoming until a verdict was rendered. Reagan leaves office next Jan. 21.

Gesell did not schedule a new trial date but ordered North's lawyers to file any additional motions by Oct. 10.

The judge also set that date as the deadline for the prosecution to give North all the top-secret documents the court has ruled may be needed for the retired Marine lieutenant colonel's defense.

The brief order was issued after both sides requested delays in dealing with the problems posed by the vast archive of top-secret documents said to include several hundred thousand pages of material.

Gesell has previously ruled that North is entitled to inspect the documents to determine what material might help him persuade a jury that his activities were authorized by the Reagan administration.

Walsh sought more time for the CIA and other agencies to search for classified material that Gesell ruled should be made available to North.

The defense, meantime, had accused Gesell of setting draconian deadlines for lawyers to study the secret documents already turned over by prosecutors.

North's lawyers harshly attacked the judge in pleadings filed Thursday saying: "In its frantic rush to trial before the election, the court seems to have abandoned all sense of what is fair."

At a hearing last week, Gesell complained about the increasingly confrontational style of defense attorneys Brendan V. Sullivan Jr. and Barry Simon, whose firm, Williams & Connolly, is known among lawyers here for its asggressive tactics.

"There's a breed of lawyer that assumes that the minute they come into the courtroom, the judge is against them, when all along they are trying to help them," Gesell said. "I've been around a long time, and I'm going to be fair to both sides."

Gesell's brief order also canceled a hearing scheduled for Monday on how to present secret documents as evidence during the trial under the Classified Information Procedures Act.

North's lawyers protested that they had not been given enough time to prepare for the hearing, saying if it went forward as scheduled it "will be a complete sham, and the court knows it."

Gesell also ordered North to file by Nov. 14 a more specific notice of what top-secret government documents he wants to disclose at trial.

The judge agreed with Walsh's view that the 265-page list of government documents North filed Monday was not the specific notice required by law.

In a statement, Walsh said: "The court and this office have made extraordinary efforts to bring this case to a prompt trial. We shall continue our preparation for the trial of the full indictment against the defendant North in accordance with the schedule fixed by the court."

Boat sinks after being rammed by barge

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A ferry boat carrying workers home from a night shift split in two and sank after it was rammed by a barge, and at least 16 people drowned, officials reported Friday. A Red Cross source put the toll at about 38.

Jose Nava Ramos of the Minatitlan newspaper La Opinion said reporters had confirmed 27 died and said 16 people were rescued.

Raoul Torres, spokesman for the Veracruz state governor's office in Jalapa, said the collision occurred late Thursday night after the workers had completed their labors at a sulfur mining operation.

Officials said the search for survivors was continuing but feared the toll would rise from the minimum of 16 dead.

A statement released Friday by the Azufrera Panamerica sulfur facility in Jaltipan and read to The Associated Press by telephone said 17 workers were killed in the accident.

Pedro Leetch Valcaza, operations director at the Jaltipan facility, said the cause of the accident had yet to be determined. But he said the swift current of the Coachapa River may have been a factor.

Divers from the Jaltipan mine pressed their search in the river Friday, said Torres. Jaltipan is about 300 miles east of Mexico City.

A Red Cross worker in Minatitlan, 12 miles east and upriver from the Jaltipan mining operation, said "about" 38 people drowned in the accident. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

PTL properties may be sold to Canadian company

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The bankruptcy trustee for PTL said Friday he has tentatively agreed to sell the ministry's theme park, satellite network and other assets to a Canadian company for $113 million.

"We'll sell it to them unless somebody else comes in at the last minute with a better proposal," said trustee M.C. "Red" Benton.

The sale of the Heritage USA Christian theme park in Fort Mill, S.C.; the PTL television network founded by disgraced evangelist Jim Bakker; and 1,700 undeveloped acres must also be approved by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds in Columbia, S.C.

The prospective buyer, Samoth Capital Corp., is headed by Peter Thomas of Vancouver, British Columbia, and Karsten von Wersebe of Toronto. Thomas is chairman of Century 21 of Canada and Von Wersebe is president of York Hanover Development Ltd.

"We look to own and operate Heritage USA as a major resort and conference center, which would focus on creating an atmosphere and which would stress traditional family values," Thomas said.

The comments and details of the tentative agreement were reported in today's editions of The Charlotte Observer.

Culver names Williams to campaign

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland businessman Clayton Williams and Fort Worth political activist Fran Chiles will chair Supreme Court Justice Barbara Culver's re-election campaign, Ms. Culver said Friday.

The judge said Williams, owner and founder of ClayDesta Communications, "embodies the Texas entrepreneurial spirit." Williams said Ms. Culver "did an outstanding job for West Texas" when serving as a county and district judge in Midland.

"That's why I wholeheartedly support her re-election to the Supreme Court," Williams said.

OPEC president expects oil prices to exceed $16 before November

KUWAIT (AP) — Rilwanu Lukman, president of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, said he expected crude oil prices to rise above $16 a barrel before November, the Kuwait News Agency reported Friday.

Lukman, who is also Nigeria's oil minister, made the prediction in Lausanne, Switzerland, where OPEC's five-member price monitoring committee completed one day of talks on Wednesday.

The committee convened to discuss the situation in the world oil market in light of Iran's acceptance of U.N. Security Council Resolution 598 calling for an end to the 8-year-old war with Iraq.

The end of the war between the two OPEC members could help bolster flagging oil prices, in the view of some oil analysts.

They reason that Iraq, which does not currently have an OPEC output quota, and Iran, which has been heavily discounting oil prices, would return to the cartel's discipline if peace is reached.

Lukman did not elaborate on the basis for his expectation. November is the date for the next OPEC ministerial council session. Prices have been running at an average $2 to $3 a barrel below OPEC's benchmark of $18 a barrel.

Lukman said another meeting of the group's price monitoring committee or an emergency conference of all 13 OPEC nations is possible, the Kuwaiti news agency reported. He said: "All depends on what happens over the coming few weeks or few months."

The price monitoring committee is composed of the oil ministers of Nigeria, Saudi Arabia, Algeria, Indonesia and Venezuela.

Religious leaders denounce film as blasphemous

By MYRA LEE SALCEDO
Staff Writer

It may take more than a miracle for Martin Scorsese's controversial film, "The Last Temptation of Christ," to be released in any Permian Basin theater, or for that matter, in any theater nationwide. The film, which Scorsese said touched the roots of his own spirituality, has been denounced as "blasphemous," and a product of "Hollywood's darkest hour," by religious leaders and an alliance of conservative church groups across the country.

The film's distributor, Universal Pictures, and its corporate parent, MCA announced Thursday that "Last Temptation" would be released Friday instead of in late September, as previously planned. The advanced release date may have been scheduled in order to avoid the continued widespread furor over the film which church organizations have threatened to picket or boycott.

Many Christians are protesting the film sight unseen, and Bill Bright, founder and head of the San Bernardino, Calif.-based Campus Crusade for Christ has offered Universal $10 million for all copies of the movie so that he could destroy them.

"I would call together the leaders of the Christian world, and we would have a big bonfire celebration," Bright said in the Aug. 8 issue of "People" magazine.

The same article stated that the United Artists Theaters chain, which controls 2,000 screens nationwide, will not show the film in any of their theaters, an announcement which local UA managers verified.

William Dafoe appears as Jesus in Universal Pictures' "Last Temptation of Christ." Studio officials announced Thursday the film would be released a month early, in response to mounting criticism.

General Cinema has not made any announcements concerning "Last Temptation," and Diana Brooking, assistant manager of Midland Park Mall Cinemas said they have not yet "received a booking" nor have they received word as to whether or not they will be showing the film.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Weather to stay warm

From Staff and Wire Reports

Temperatures should remain warm with a slight chance of thunderstorms expected through the weekend, according to National Weather Service forecasters at Midland International Airport.

Saturday will be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms, and a high expected in the lower 90s. Winds will be from the southeast 10 to 20 mph. The low Saturday night will be in the lower 60s.

Sunday should be identical to Saturday, with partly cloudy skies and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms expected. Winds will be from the southeast from 10 to 20 mph.

Friday's high of 91 was 11 degrees cooler than the record high of 102 which was set in 1964. Friday's low of 66 was just five degrees warmer than the record low of 61, set in 1975.

STATE

Another round of widely scattered afternoon showers and thunderstorms spread across the state Friday, while heavy rains in the mountains of Southwest Texas produced some flash flooding.

A strong downpour hit east El Paso Friday afternoon, sweeping two vehicles into ditches and dumping up to 4 inches of rain on some areas in just an hour. But it barely sprinkled over some parts of the city, and El Paso International Airport reported only about a quarter-inch of rain.

"Sam Snead (Street) was like a river," said Marvelle Norton.

The El Paso Street Department distributed sandbags to people in one eastside neighborhood to keep rising water from flooding into their homes.

The National Weather Service forecast scattered showers and thunderstorms across much of the state. Highs Saturday will mostly be in the 80s West and the 90s and low 100s elsewhere.

NATION

Thunderstorms moved across lower Michigan on Friday when a cold front pushed into very warm and humid air over the Great Lakes, and much of the nation sweltered in temperatures in the 80s and 90s.

The thunderstorms produced wind gusts of 80 mph in east-central Michigan, and knocked down trees near the town of Ashley. Thunderstorms in northern central Ohio created wind gusts of 55 mph and blew down tree limbs near Elyria.

Heavy rain was also reported as thunderstorms scooted across parts of southeast Kentucky. Gusty thunderstorm winds also downed trees near Mount Horeb in southwest Ohio and toppled trees in Indiana's Carroll County.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms popped in warm and humid air across the eastern third of the nation. Thunderstorms were scattered from the western parts of New England through the upper Ohio Valley, much of the Appalachians into eastern parts of Georgia, the Carolinas and the northern half of Florida.

In Cambridge, Mass., Harvard University shut down for the day Friday because of the heat and poor air quality, the first closing for heat in the school's 353-year history.

Portland, Maine, went over 90 degrees Friday for the 11th time this year. Alpena, Mich., reached 89 degrees to break the previous record-high temperature of 87 degrees set in 1973.

The forecast for today called for showers and thunderstorms from New England through the Ohio and Tennessee valleys, the middle and southern Atlantic states, the lower Mississippi Valley and Gulf Coast region into Florida. Thunderstorms were forecast for northern and western parts of New England through the upper Ohio Valley into the central Appalachians.

FILM

The reason for all the outrage is due to Scorsese's apparent interpretation of Christ, which is based on a novel written by Nikos Kazantzakis 15 years ago. Religious leaders say that Kazantzakis' novel, which portrays Christ as a troubled and vacillating man, is a sacrilegious departure from the scriptures.

"I remember the book and it wasn't written by a New Testament scholar," said the Rev. Allen Whitman, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in Midland. "The author uses his own imagination, and the book is not historically accurate — it's fictional. But, I can't say if the movie would be harmful not having seen it," Whitman said. "And I haven't signed any petitions to stop the film from being released," he added.

"I haven't seen the movie, but quotes that I have seen from the script — which I believe to be accurate — are a contradiction of the New Testament picture of Christ," said the Rev. Alan Williams, chaplain at Midland Memorial Hospital.

"And I think it is a disservice to the community for any media to mislead the public about a figure who is so close to the hearts of so many," Williams continued. "The New Testament is clearly an historical document dating from that time and that's where I would base my understanding of Jesus Christ."

Williams said he had signed a petition asking Universal Studios not to air the movie. He also said the petition itself included the quotes that were disgusting.

A petition being distributed by the American Family Association printed lewd lines alleged to be from the script, including one that Universal said wasn't in the movie, but did appear in a previously bootlegged copy of an outdated script.

No matter what the exact lines are in the movie, most ministers say it is the impression the film is giving about Christ that upsets them.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor of First Baptist Church in Midland, said, "I think this movie is a sad commentary on Hollywood. It's blasphemous to portray the incarnate son of God as an uncertain, sexually obsessed person." Vestal said he could not "find words adequate enough to express" his "outrage and grief."

Another person who has not seen the movie, is Nelson Price, head of the United Methodist Communication's Public Media Division. In a recent press release from the United Methodist News Service, Price called any boycott by the United Methodists "premature." In the same release, the Rev. William Fore, a United Methodist and head of the National Council of Churches, (who had seen the film) said it was "consistent with an important stream of Christian theology" by making Christ's divinity dependent on an act of will.

One minister who screened the film, the Rev. Paul Moore, the Episcopal Bishop of New York, said, "Overall I had a very positive reaction and saw nothing blasphemous about it."

Rev. Frank McFarlin, associate minister for the Christ of Today Church, viewed the entire production of the film as a "disgusting" moneymaking ploy. McFarlin said, "It's disgusting what people will do today in order to make money. The producers and the actors will toss out any moral principle in order to make money on a film."

McFarlin, who also practices clinical hypnosis and hypnotherapy at his Behavorial Motivation Institute in Midland, said he is also concerned about the influence the "Last Temptation" may have on people. "Negative thoughts could be absorbed into the memory and could subconsciously affect individuals who aren't fully set on their beliefs. I myself wouldn't have any part of "The Last Temptation of Christ," he said.

Scorsese has said that his film "is like a prayer," that it is his way of "worshiping," and that he wanted to "get on a more one-to-one level with God, without anything in the way."

"This is not just a historical figure that we are dealing with here," said Vestal of Midland's First Baptist Church. "This is my Lord and savior we are dealing with."

Although Vestal's church has joined in organizing a protest and circulating petitions, he said, "We are not calling for a loss of free speech, but with free speech comes responsibility. If someone made a degrading, inaccurate film about my wife or mother, I would sue. 'The Last Temptation of Christ' is about someone I care about more than my wife or mother."

Although Vestal advocates protesting the film, Williams said, "I think the best thing for the church to do if the movie comes out is to ignore it — because the more protest the church makes the more publicity the movie will get."

Vestal said, "Even though we have registered our concern and resistance to the release of the film...frankly, I haven't stopped praying."

PTL

Thomas and Von Wersebe would have up to six weeks to inspect the property and financial records before deciding whether to go through with the purchase, the newspaper said. Less than half of the $113 million would be paid in cash, but the buyers would have to come up with $4.9 million as soon as the sale is agreed to, and $41 million upon closing, according to the tentative agreement.

Charlotte businessman George Shinn, who owns an expansion team in the National Basketball Association, has been negotiating with PTL to buy its assets. Shinn's lawyer, Spencer Stolpen, said Friday evening that they are still talking with Benton and PTL's lawyers.

Stolpen confirmed that Shinn originally offered $75 million for PTL, but has increased his offer.

"We have been talking about significantly larger numbers since," Stolpen said. After reviewing the letter of understanding with Samoth, he said, "They (PTL officials) are not selling the property out from under us. They are still working with us, and we still believe they are dealing with us in good faith. And they are looking out for the best interest of the estate."

PTL has been reorganizing under Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings since June 1987 and must sell its assets to pay debts amassed under the leadership of Bakker, who resigned in March 1987 in a sex and money scandal.

"I think this is a step in the right direction," Benton said of the sale. "It will take care of a lot of the creditors, but not all of them."

Bakker also has been interested in buying PTL.

Ervin Bazzle, one of Bakker's attorneys, said, "It's my understanding the door is open for other offers to be made and probably will be made."

Bazzle said he didn't know whether Bakker would submit an offer, but said: "He's always said he will do everything he can to save the ministry."

Calls by The Associated Press Friday evening to home numbers listed for Stolpen and Bazzle went unanswered. Calls to Benton's North Carolina home were referred to two numbers in Fort Worth, Texas, which were unanswered. The Associated Press also received no answer in calls to two telephone numbers listed under the name Peter Thomas in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Celebration marks Hiroshima bombing

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Mayor Takeshi Araki appealed to world leaders today to prevent further nuclear holocausts at a ceremony marking the 43rd anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima.

In a special ceremony to comfort the souls of the dead, water was offered for the estimated 78,000 people who perished within moments after the the bomb was dropped by a U.S. warplane at 8:15 a.m. on Aug. 6, 1945. Many of the dying cried for water as they died of severe burns.

The atomic bombings of Hiroshima and of Nagasaki on Aug. 9, 1945, led to a capitualion of Japan's military-controlled government and an end to World War II.

At today's ceremony, wreaths were laid and mourners read the names of more than 4,000 people who died during the past year from radiation illnesses linked to the 1945 bombing.

Those deaths brought the total recorded number of fatal victims of the Hiroshima bombing to 152,650. Officials say say the actual toll will never be known.

Nearly 70,000 people perished instantly in the Nagasaki bombing.

Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita was unable to attend the Hiroshima ceremoney because of a major debate in the Diet, or parliament, over a tax reform proposal.

BOAT

Torres told The Associated Press the vessel Liberty was carrying 41 workers who had completed their shift at the Jaltipan facility to Minatitlan when it was struck by the barge at 11:45 p.m. Thursday night.

The Liberty immediately split in half and sank in the rain-swollen Coachapa, taking some workers with it to the river bottom, Torres said. Others jumped into the water as the vessel sank, he said.

"Personnel on the barge tried to rescue those they could," he said. "It is possible there are more people missing."

He said reports from the remote rescue site were sketchy and that the ferry was the only means of transport from the plant in Jaltipan to Minatitlan, where many of the workers lived.

Torres said the cause of the accident had yet to be determined, but said possible causes included "strong currents fed by the rains that made it difficult to navigate in the river" and poor night visibility.

Gov. Fernando Gutierrez Barrios ordered the state health department and other agencies to Minatitlan to help, Torres said.

Nava Ramos of La Opinion said in a telephone interview that the 50-foot Liberty was carrying 70 workers when it was hit by the 66-foot barge Aspa 35 and that 35 people drowned, including the Liberty's captain, Mauricio Vidal. At least 16 people were rescued from the river, he said.

He said the barge, owned by Azufrera, was carrying a load of sulfur upriver when it rammed the Liberty.

Nava Ramos said Azufrera Panamericana was in charge of the search operation and had located the Liberty on the river bottom about 60 feet down.

Witnesses said river conditions were dangerous when the accident occurred, Nava Ramos reported. He said workers had previously protested what they called the poor operating condition of company vessels used to ferry employees.

About 1,800 workers are employed at the Jaltipan plant.

CULVER

Mrs. Chiles, a former member of the Republican National Committee, compared Ms. Culver's "25 years of distinguished service" in the legal community to her Democratic opponent's lack of judicial experience. "Texas is fortunate to have her on the state's highest bench and I will do all I can to help her become the first woman ever elected to the Supreme Court in Texas history," Mrs. Chiles said.

Gov. Bill Clements appointed Ms. Culver to the high court in February, replacing Justice Robert Campbell, who resigned. She faces former Congressman Jack Hightower of Vernon in the November elections.

Reports filed with the secretary of state show the two candidates about even in fundraising. Although Hightower's collection of $245,000 so far this year leads Ms. Culver by about $9,000, Hightower had reported collecting more than half of that before Ms. Culver got into the race.

NORTH

Gesell's order highlights the problems that continue to dog Walsh's efforts to bring the case to trial.

The independent counsel has told Gesell that many of the documents in North's discovery request will never be released by government agencies for use at the trial.

If enough relevant documents are kept secret, the judge would be forced to dismiss some or all of the charges, notably the three major conspiracy counts against North, Poindexter and arms dealers Albert Hakim and retired Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord. All four have been granted separate trials.

These counts involve the most classified documents because such material would bear on whether the defendants acted with higher authority and not with criminal intent.

But to buy time, Walsh suggested Gesell put them aside the major charges while prosecutors try to declassify more documents. Walsh proposed that North be tried on 13 other charges, including allegations he lied to Congress and shredded documents.

Gesell, however, rejected this suggestion as moot, signaling he was granting the delay to give both sides a change to prepare for one trial — the option favored by Walsh all along.

Brady nominated to succeed Baker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III announced Friday he is resigning to take over George Bush's presidential election campaign, telling President Reagan he wanted to help "ensure the survival of your legacy."

Reagan called Baker "a friend whom I will miss" and announced that he was nominating Wall Street investment banker Nicholas F. Brady to be Baker's successor at Treasury.

Referring to months of speculation about Baker's move, Reagan began his statement to reporters by exclaiming: "Well, as Jim Baker would say, 'It's finally a done deal.' "

Bush, who was absent from the White House briefing room where Reagan, Baker and Brady appeared, held a news conference a while later at his campaign headquarters a few blocks away.

With Baker at his side, Bush said, "When that convention nominates me, I become more the candidate, more the standard-bearer of this party, and less the vice president of the United States."

The vice president said he would carry out his constitutional responsibilities, but said that "once I get that nomination, my job is to run, run hard, all-out for the presidency."

For his part, Reagan seemed pleased for Bush, even though Baker's departure marked the second Cabinet resignation in as many months.

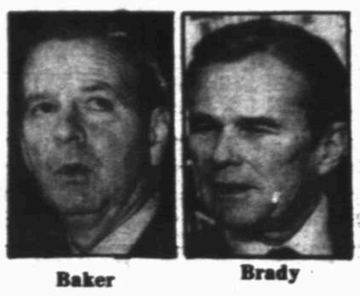

"You've been a secret of our success. Now Jim, go do it for George," the president said.

Baker said he had enjoyed working for Reagan, but told the president that "it does seem to me that in seeking to advance your vice president's candidacy, I can best help ensure the survival of your legacy."

During his joint news conference with Bush, Baker told reporters, "I am going to do my dead-level best to achieve that goal that we have both shared for a long time — that goal that you announced for the first time in May of 1979 when you announced that you were a candidate for president of the United States."

Welcoming Brady to his team, Reagan said, "I cannot think of anyone more qualified" to succeed Baker in the Treasury post. "Welcome to what might just be the most active six months of our administration," he said.

Baker's resignation is effective Aug. 17, the night his old friend Bush will formally receive the Republican nomination for president at the party's convention in New Orleans. That's also the effective date for Baker to officially become Bush's campaign chairman.

Baker

Brady

Brady's appointment is subject to Senate confirmation, and Reagan expressed confidence he would win it easily.

Baker's resignation was the latest in a long string of changes in the Cabinet in the final months of Reagan's tenure in the White House. Attorney General Edwin Meese III will leave his post later this month, and was feted at a White House party earlier Friday.

Brady, 58, is chairman of Dillon, Read & Co., a Wall Street investment house. He served as an appointed senator from New Jersey for eight months in 1982 following the Abscam convnction of Sen. Harrison Williams. He also chaired a presidential commission named to look into the stock market crash last October.

Like Baker, Brady is a close friend of Bush, and is regarded as a likely candidate to remain in the Cabinet if the Republicans hold the White House.

Reagan heaped praise on Baker, saying, "If there ever was a Reaganite, you are it."

There was irony in that. Baker spent 1980 trying to help Bush win the Republican presidential nomination as his campaign manager. He was later named chief of staff for Reagan's first White House term, and used his Texas savvy to help push historic tax and spending cuts through Congress.

Baker moved over to the Treasury Department in the early days of Reagan's second term, and helped manage enactment of the tax overhaul legislation that cleared Congress in 1986.

Brady told Reagan he would be proud to serve in his Cabinet. "Your administration has brought to this country the longest sustained period of prosperity in recent years," he said.

Brady chaired a commission appointed by Reagan that investigated last October's stock market crash. The panel recommended that the Federal Reserve Board coordinate federal supervision of the securities industry, but a working group of administration officials later recommended steps far short of that.

Brady would be the third person to head the Treasury Department since Reagan came into office in January 1981. Baker and then-Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan switched jobs at the start of Reagan's second term in 1985.

There had been some concern both in the administration and in the Bush campaign about the timing of Baker's departure, given the sensitivity of the investment markets to changes at Treasury's top command, and concern about keeping the economy on a stable footing.

New sub to join fleet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy said Friday it will commission its newest nuclear-powered attack submarine this weekend during ceremonies in Connecticut.

The USS San Juan will be moved to active service this morning at the Naval Submarine Base at New London, Conn., the Navy said in a statement. Puerto Rico Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon will deliver the principal address during the ceremonies.

The nuclear attack sub will be the third U.S. Navy ship to bear the name San Juan, the capital of Puerto Rico.

The vessel is 360 feet long, 33 feet wide and displaces about 6,900 tons when submerged.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 7, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Self-confidence will help you make a long-cherished dream come true. A financial situation shows marked improvement. Recent cares slip from your shoulders. Your personal life stabilizes. Romance brings the kind of introspection that will improve your chances for a substantial relationship. Reach for the stars! Repair past damage to family ties. Progress comes when you woo others to your cause. Use greater finesse.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Nobel Peace Prize-winner Ralph Bunche, comic actress Billie Burke, singer Lana Cantrell, pitcher Don Larsen, spy Mata Hari, singer B.J. Thomas, actress Loni Anderson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You finally sell something that has been on the market for a long time. Invest in ventures that are safe and will produce forever. All types of meetings should go well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Focus on making your house or apartment more comfortable. Your confidence in yourself grows. You are excited about a job again. Show how much you appreciate mate's efforts. Plan a romantic getaway.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): More study may be all that is necessary to solve a baffling problem at work. Socializing can lead to new business as well as new friends. A romantic interlude exceeds your expectations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be willing to start at the bottom and your ascent to the top will be rapid. You shine in group or club activities despite your shyness. Travel for adventure. Choose the right companions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It is important to escape the rut you are in. Intriguing ideas abound, but only a few will work right now. Make a real commitment to a relationship. Be willing to sacrifice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stay near home today. A visit from relatives or friends puts you in a great mood. Later, a career discussion with mate or partner will help clear up any misunderstandings. Romance beckons.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A sermon or lecture gives you fresh insights regarding an old problem. Meet new responsibilities head-on. A family get-together is a fun way to relax with loved ones. Stay close to home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do not be upset if a friend or relative fails to live up to a promise. Staying at home could prove more fun than traveling. Invite friends or neighbors over.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Bring your differences out into the open and show your willingness to compromise. Mate will respond in a positive way. Enlist family members' help if revising the budget. A telephone call brings delightful news.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Future steps will be easier to map out if you know what direction you want to take. Take stock of your accomplishments. Self-improvement projects help build confidence. Keep any diet or exercise resolutions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Put all thoughts of work aside and have fun. Someone you meet today will play a major role in romance. A platonic relationship begins to deepen. A declaration takes you by surprise.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Confusion could be due to a communications mix-up. Check appointment book. Put little stock in the promises of an unreliable friend. A close relationship is tested.

Chicken king marries rice queen

Perdue

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — If nothing else, Frank Perdue and his new bride have the basics for a good gumbo.

Perdue, 68, head of Perdue Farms Inc., the nation's fourth-largest poultry producer, married Mitzi Henderson Ayala, 35, in a private ceremony Sunday in Washington, D.C.

She is a California rice producer and president of the American Agri-Women, a national nonprofit coalition of women in farming, ranching and agricultural organizations.

Perdue's son, Jim, was the best man, while the bride was given away by her children, Jose and Carlos. The couple's honeymoon plans were not disclosed.

It is Perdue's third marriage and Mrs. Perdue's second.

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban state-run radio on Friday charged a U.S. Treasury Department inquiry into actor-director Robert Redford's recent visit to the communist nation constitutes a "witch hunt."

A Cuban radio report, monitored in Miami, said the inquiry "constitutes a violation of the free movement of U.S. citizens protected by the U.S. Constitution."

"These threats by the U.S. government against Redford," the report said, "mean there's a new witch hunt against those in the United States who challenge that country's ban on travel to Cuba by its citizens."

The report blamed U.S. President Ronald Reagan for the inquiry into Redford's three-day Havana visit last May and compared, unfavorably, the president's cinematic career with Redford's.

"It appears this new witch hunt has been approved by that frustrated movie actor, Mr. Reagan, whose movie activities were the opposite of Robert Redford's," the report said.

Lawyers for Redford said in Los Angeles on Thursday that the actor had received a letter from the treasury department asking about his trip to Cuba.

"I wouldn't really call it an investigation. They sent a letter and we told them the facts," said attorney Vincent Chieffo.

Redford, 50, has said he made the trip to take part in a scriptwriting workshop for women. He said he chatted briefly with Cuban President Fidel Castro during his Havana stay.

Charles

NEW YORK (AP) — Music legend Ray Charles says that as he was learning to cope with blindness he vowed never to own a guide dog, a cane or — a guitar?

"Why, it seems every blind blues singer I ever heard played a guitar," Charles, 57, said in an interview published in the Aug. 7 issue of Parade.

"In my mind, they each meant blindness and helplessness."

Charles credits his mother, who died when he was 15, with steering him toward the piano. He began traveling the South with hillbilly and rhythm-and-blues bands after his mother's death, but "in most cases, I'd play the piano, because they already had singers."

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Actor-director Robby Benson is going back to school.

This time, though, he will be teaching.

Benson will spend the 1988-89 school year as an artist-in-residence at the University of South Carolina, where he will teach movie-making and make a feature film, the school said.

Benson, 32, will be paid $60,000, university spokeswoman Debra Allen said Friday.

"My wife and I have been waiting to get out of Los Angeles," Benson said. "My life has been completely surrounded by the business end of show business. It'll be fun to get out and be a regular person."

Benson's films include "Ode to Billy Joe" and "One on One."

Shaw

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The daughter of Rep. Jim Ross Lightfoot, R-Iowa, has been hired as a nanny for the children of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Shaw.

"I'm not going back to college this fall," said Allison Lightfoot, 19.

Miss Lightfoot, who will care for the Shaws' 7- and 3-year-old daughters, said it will be her first job as a nanny.

Mrs. Shaw and her husband, Bernard, live in Westport, Conn.

Mrs. Shaw was 19 when she was kidnapped at gunpoint by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army. During the 19 months she traveled with the terrorist group, she renounced her family and participated in two bank holdups. She served two years of a seven-year prison term before President Carter commuted her sentence in 1979.

Domingo

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Danish critics Friday panned a show featuring Spanish opera star Placido Domingo.

One newspaper headlined its review: "Domingo — not worth a peseta." Another said: "Rotten tomatoes to the organizers."

Domingo's show in the Spanish zarzuela opera tradition at the Falkoner Theater began after a delay of more than one hour. The troop of singers and dancers had no orchestra, using recordings for accompaniment that resulted in what the Politiken daily called a "bathroom sound."

"Scandalous slovenliness," Politiken said, while Jyllands-Posten called the performance a "second-grade experience, not to say an outright deceit, considering the ticket prices of up to 1,500 kroner ($209)."

The Aktuelt daily said Domingo beamed when compared with the rest of the program.

CUTLER RIDGE, Fla. (AP) — America's oldest woman, Birdie May Vogt, celebrated her 112th birthday with a little party and received birthday wishes from President Reagan.

Ms. Vogt, named by the Guinness Book of World Records as America's oldest person and the world's second-oldest, remains alert and healthy, despite a substantial loss of hearing and sight, said Bonnie Barton, director of activities at the East Ridge Retirement Center.

Guinness' next edition will call her the world's oldest, but that will be corrected. Officials later learned that Madame Calment of Arles, France, is older by 17 months.

"Is it my birthday now?" Ms. Vogt asked Wednesday as she was wheeled into her party. Surrounded by 23 guests, she received gifts, flowers, a cake and birthday wishes from the president.

The only record of her birth is a page torn from the family Bible, noting the event Aug. 3, 1876, in Akron, Ohio.

Hard-pressed Ozarks area wants jobs but fears mining expansion

VIBURNUM, Mo. (AP) — John Carter, an environmental control engineer for the Doe Run Co., stoops at the edge of the Bee Fork of the Black River, just below one of the company's lead mines, and dips his hand into the water.

Water spiders on the surface skitter away, revealing a thriving population of snails.

"You can go below any of our operations and find a typical Ozarks stream that doesn't show any other effects than these," Carter says with satisfaction.

Carter says environmental conditions near current Doe Run operations are proof that the company operates safely and should be allowed, as it has proposed, to mine a section of national forest in southern Missouri.

But others don't think so and have come out in force against the proposal, despite its promise of bringing economic improvement.

People such as Kazie Perkins of Willow Springs feel the potential for damage to southern Missouri's clear spring-fed streams and wooded Ozark hills is too great to risk on new jobs, increased tax revenue or anything else.

"I understand fully the poverty of the region," said Perkins, who like many in the area is unemployed. She raises bees with her husband, who is a logger. "We're trying to come up with things to help ourselves. People are grasping at anything. But the answer is not degradation."

DOE RUN EMPLOYEES say they are equally concerned for the environment.

"I've read about how we turn creeks into sewers," said Lanny Evans, manager of technical services. "That's just not true. This is our home. I raise my kids here. I'm not going to destroy it."

Doe Run is the largest integrated lead mining and smelting company in North America, producing 200,183 tons of refined lead last year.

While demand for lead in gasoline, paint, solder and sporting ammunition has declined, the dense metal is increasingly needed for leaded glass in computer and television screens, for so-called "uninterruptive" back-up power systems and for batteries.

For 33 years, Doe Run and its predecessor, St. Joe Lead Co., have operated mining and milling operations in a section of the Mark Twain National Forest around Viburnum.

Estimating that the lead in the Viburnum Trend, the source of 90 percent of the nation's primary lead now, will be exhausted sometime around the year 2000, Doe Run wants to explore a 120,000-acre section of the national forest farther south.

Last year, the U.S. Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management gave the company preliminary approval to do so. The agencies released a draft environmental impact statement that recommended allowing mining in about 4,000 acres of the Mark Twain National Forest in Shannon, Carter and Oregon counties. A final draft of the statement is due in November.

ACKNOWLEDGING A potential for harm to the environment, the authors of the study said the economic boost lead mining would mean to the region was worth the risk.

A single mine and mill operation in the proposed lease area would mean about 125 new jobs, Carter said. Beyond that, there's the revenue to the counties from mineral rent and royalties paid by companies mining in the forest — $3 million last year.

While Missouri's jobless rate stood at 4.7 percent in April, the rates of Shannon, Carter and Oregon counties, where many people work in the tourism and timber industries, were 8.7, 7.8 and 6.6 percent, respectively.

"We have one of the highest unemployment situations in the area," said Mike Greene, the superintendent of schools in Winona. "We have abject poverty here and there isn't anything on the horizon for the community other than the possibility of lead mines."

Nonetheless, the authors of the environmental impact statement have heard from few people who support Doe Run's lease application.

"Even in the immediate area, we came out with more people who were opposed than were in favor," said John Woerheide, public affairs manager for the Forest Service. "Public sentiments are overwhelmingly opposing."

Of about 2,600 people whom the Forest Service heard from — in letters or petitions or at three hearings held around the state — 2,401 opposed the lead-mining proposal and 178 were in favor, Woerheide said.

"When you start talking to people about contaminating their water, this gets to be a real public issue," said Dave Foster, a research biologist for the National Park Service's Ozark National Scenic Riverways, which opposes the proposal. "Early on, there were a lot more people in favor of the proposal purely on the economic basis. Some of those people switched sides when it was put in the context of dollars versus clean water."

IN ITS ENVIRONMENTAL impact statement, the Forest Service and the BLM said the greatest risk to water resources was from the disposal of mine tailings, which carry traces of copper, zinc and lead. The tailings are pumped into holding ponds.

Opponents fear there would be leakage into ground and surface water. The Forest Service and the BLM say that's unlikely because the construction and use of the tailings impoundments would be strictly controlled.

The agencies say the only possibility for contamination would be an accident, spilling reagents being transported to the mill or a storage accident at the mill.

In 1977, a dam near Desloge in the Old Lead Belt failed and tailings leaked into the Big River. A study found elevated levels of lead in the river, and state officials warned against eating black redhorse sucker fish caught up to 50 miles downstream.

In 1980, St. Joe Minerals Corp., Doe Run's parent company, reached an agreement with the state to pay for repairs to the dam. Carter noted that St. Joe ha built the tailings pond before current strict federal and state regulations were in effect and added that the company's own study of the river contamination found that the state warning was unwarranted.

"It's simply wrong" that mining is environmentally degrading, insisted Mark Taylor, a geologist for Doe Run and president of the area Chamber of Commerce in Viburnum, a town built by the company when it began mining here in the 1950s. Taylor voices confidence in the regulations that the government and the company have in place to protect what all agree is a precious, wild environment.

Dubai looking for economic boom after Persian Gulf war

By JOHN RICE

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — Businessmen in this free-wheeling, free-trading Persian Gulf port say an end to the Iran-Iraq war is likely to mean an economic boom for the United Arab Emirates city-state.

"It would be just like the Klondike," said Stan Robinson, a Mercedes Benz car dealer.

Dubai has combined modest oil income with a centuries-old merchant tradition to make itself the major port in the southern end of gulf, the most important local trading partner of Iran.

"The dream is to be the Hong Kong of the 21st century," said Sultan Ahmed Bin Sulayen, chairman of Dubai's massive Jebel Ali free zone, a $2.5 billion facility that includes what Dubai says is the world's largest man-made harbor.

The city-state is already a major transit point for cargo — much of it heading across the gulf to Iran. That flow collapsed in the early years of the war and is just now recovering.

Although Dubai has weathered the war and a dropoff in oil revenues, most businessmen believe "the end of the war will be positive," said Daniel Greenwald, executive vice president of the American Business Council of Dubai.

Shipping officials in Dubai, who insisted on anonymity, said that while Dubai has gained revenues in repairing war-damaged ships, it has lost business at its container ports and at shipyards.

"You can go to a lot of places for a half a million dollars," said one, referring to the cost of war-risk insurance in the Persian Gulf for a big container ship.

Greenwald said the war also has probably deterred some businessmen from making major investments in Dubai.

Many traders are also hoping Dubai's historic role as a transit route for Iranian cargo will carry on as Iran rebuilds after the war.

Even during the war, thousands of Iranians a month fly to Dubai International Airport, the busiest in the Middle East, to shop in Dubai's famed souks, or markets. The Iran Air jetliner downed by U.S. Navy missiles in early July was headed for Dubai.

"They come in the airport from Bandar Abbas...They shop, they load the dhows (boats) down, they go back again," said Abdulla Abul-Houl, foreign relations director for Dubai's Chamber of Commerce.

The waterfront is piled with new washing machines, tires, car parts and sometimes whole cars destined for Iran aboard the hand-built little wooden dhows that ply the gulf.

The Iranians are part of an exotic mixture of visitors and expatriates from India, Pakistan, the Philippines and the West who outnumber Dubai's locals by at least 2-1 in the population of 490,000.

Many of the foreigners are lured by Dubai's tolerance in an area where Islamic law and customs predominate. Its high-rise hotels feature British-style pubs, Lebanese nightclubs and Japanese restaurants.

Entertainment ranges from a grassy golf course to ice rinks, complete with an ice hockey league.

Dubai is also tax-free, and relatively free of the red-tape and oppressive security that dim the allure of many Middle Eastern countries.

"Its like utopia," said Robinson.

Traditional dhows still used in trade

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — A fleet of little wooden dhows dart daily past the supertankers and warships of the Persian Gulf, carrying on a historic link between war-torn Iran and Arab Dubai.

"We bring lots of onions from Iran; watermelons, any kind of food and fruits that we can," said Hossein, a crewman who aboard a dhow docked at Dubai's busy waterfront.

Stacked and strewn all along the dock were piles of tires, boxed washing machines and automobile parts, bicycles and bedsprings — consumer goods destined for Iran aboard dhows.

The hand-made dhows have sailed the 150 miles from Dubai to Bandar Abbas in Iran for generations, but with the Iran-Iraq war the route has taken on added importance.

"Most of the other gulf countries except for Dubai and Kuwait have cut their trade links with Iran, so...most of the stuff we bring here goes to the other gulf countries. It's sort of a collection point for us," said Capt. Avaz Oveisi, who has spent 34 of his 62 years sailing dhows.

Iranians by the thousands — those who can find foreign currency — fly into Dubai to shop and send the goods back home by dhow.

If the goods are new, the pattern isn't. Dubai's ports and merchants once dealt in pearls and silk.

"Dubai is a trading place. They were smuggling and trading with the rest of the world for centuries," said Daniel Greenwald, executive vice president of the American Business Council of Dubai. Even in the days of container shipping, Greenwald said, "it can be very economical to use the little dhows," which can tie up in small ports and unload their cargoes quickly.

The boats generally take eight to 12 hours to cross the gulf, an arduous journey where temperatures can climb to 110 degrees or more, with humidity at 90 percent.

"Its really tiring to work on a dhow all the day, in all of the heat...and to load and unload," said Abbas Abassi, a dhow crewman.

Despite the dozens of warships cruising the gulf, none of the dhow crewmen said they had been threatened, although some said they were worried after a U.S. ship shot down an Iran Air jetliner.

"Since the airplane has been hit, we're very scared but there hasn't been any real incident," Abassi said.

"Even if they're scared they have to do it because this is the way they make money for their families."

Palm oil Malaysian

World palm oil production totals nearly 7 million tons per year, and almost 60 percent of it enters world trade. Malaysia, the most important producer and exporter, accounts for 56 percent of world output and about 85 percent of world exports.

Thornburgh denies he kept drug trafficking report from Congress

Thornburgh

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General-designate Richard L. Thornburgh denied Friday that he was responsible for withholding from Congress a 1975 Justice Department report on drug trafficking by Panamanian leaders and corruption among U.S. narcotics agents.

Senators referred repeatedly to the report during a generally friendly confirmation hearing on Thornburgh's nomination. The former two-term Republican governor of Pennsylvania promised to avoid the ethical questions that have plagued outgoing Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

Thornburgh, former chief of the Justice Department's criminal division, testified that his involvement with the 1975 report "was peripheral at best." He said he would do everything possible to make it available to lawmakers.

Thornburgh promised to hold the Justice Department to "the highest ethical standards" if he is confirmed as Meese's successor. As the former official who established the department's public integrity section, he said he would not interfere with an internal investigation of Meese's conduct.

At the same time, he declared: "I'm a strong supporter of President Reagan. His agenda is my agenda."

Thornburgh, who heads the Harvard Institute of Politics, said that fighting the "scourge of narcotics" will be his top priority. He also promised a vigorous battle against organized crime, public corruption and white-collar crime while safeguarding civil liberties.

Members of the Senate Judiciary Committee seemed perplexed after they read an article in the Wall Street Journal on Friday which said Thornburgh participated in a decision to withold portions of the department's drug report from Congress.

The Journal said internal department documents showed the report focused on "narcotic activity involving military authorities" in Panama and a purported plot by U.S. agents more than a decade ago to assassinate Gen. Manuel Noriega, the current Panamanian strongman. Noriega is under federal indictment in Miami for alleged involvement in drug trafficking.

Thornburgh said the report was completed before he became assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division. But he recalled that after he assumed that post, division lawyers reviewed the report to determine whether there were any offenses that should be prosecuted. The report did not result in any court action.

The nominee said any decision on withholding the report from Congress "would be a decision of the attorney general," who then was Edward Levi.

"I made no such decision. It was not in my province to make such a decision," Thornburgh said.

Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said documents cited in the story indicated that Thornburgh attended a meeting where it was decided the department should continue to resist disclosing portions of the report to Congress.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, said there is "much concern about how much prior administrations knew about drug trafficking" by Panamanian leaders. "I'm asking you to make that report available," Hatch said.

Thornburgh promised to do so unless the report contains information that cannot be disclosed, such as names of confidential sources.

"We have to know what's in the report," said Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., who has been trying to obtain a copy for years.

Noting that the report reportedly detailed an assassination plot, Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., asked Thornburgh if he shouldn't have a better recollection of the 1975 events "if there was a plot to assassinate an official in a foreign government."

Thornburgh said the department at the time was investigating "a plethora" of reports of U.S. intelligence agency plots after a report on such activities by then Vice President Nelson Rockefeller.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., asked Thornburgh about several reports that he "gave no-bid contracts to political cronies" while Pennsylvania's governor. Thornburgh denied the allegation.

The former governor specifically rejected any connection between the state's giving Merrill Lynch business to sell Pennsylvania Turnpike bonds, and Thornburgh's election the following year to the Merrill Lynch board.

Thornburgh went on the board of the giant brokerage firm 10 months after his gubernatorial term ended.

Biaggi resigns congressional seat

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Mario Biaggi, convicted of corruption charges twice within a year, tearfully resigned his seat in Congress on Friday rather than face expulsion by his colleagues.

Biaggi, 70, said he left "with sadness but no regrets," and continued to assert his innocence of the charges that led to his downfall. "Not a single penny, gift, trip, not a share of stock, ever came to me," he said.

Once the city's most highly decorated police officer, Biaggi, a Democrat, served 20 years in Congress and was so popular in his district he was considered likely to win again in November, despite his convictions.

But he said he was quitting his re-election race.

"Today I actually ended a career in public service that has spanned almost 50 years," going back to his days as a young letter-carrier, an emotion-choked Biaggi told reporters crammed into his Bronx office.

The end came when a federal jury convicted him Thursday of racketeering, extortion and bribe-taking through Wedtech Corp., a South Bronx military contractor that made payoffs to get government work. He faces up to 20 years on the top count.

Biaggi said he was resigning, effective immediately, because his appeals will take too much time for him to continue to serve in Congress. "I wouldn't be able to give my constituents all the time they deserve," he said.

But there were other pressures on Biaggi to step down.

The House next month was to consider expelling him for his earlier, unrelated federal conviction on charges of taking an illegal gratuity and obstructing justice.

Biaggi said he had asked party leaders to strike his name from the September primary ballots. He had filed on both the Democratic and Republican lines; candidates in New York often run for nominations of parties of which they are not members.

A spokesman for the state Board of Elections said removing Biaggi's name was complicated but possible.

Two other men were running in the Democratic primary for Biaggi's seat, state Assemblyman Eliot L. Engel and former Assemblyman Vincent Marchiselli. Biaggi did not say if he would back one of them or seek to give his spot on the ballot to another candidate.

No one else was running as a Republican. The Democratic nominee usually wins the general election because Democrats outnumber Republicans by eight to one in the Bronx.

Biaggi was joined by his wife and three children while he spoke to reporters in his storefront office, its walls lined with photographs and plaques commemorating his career. Some office workers wept as he spoke.

"I leave with the knowledge that I always worked hard for people and tried to make a difference in their lives," Biaggi said. He started to choke up with emotion as he came to the end of his four-minute statement.

Those joining him included his son, Richard, 39, who was acquitted of racketeering but convicted of bribe receiving, mail fraud and tax charges in the Wedtech case. Four other people were convicted of racketeering with the elder Biaggi for using the now-defunct Wedtech as a corrupt enterprise.

The jury found that Biaggi extorted stock once worth $3 million and $50,000 in cash from Wedtech in exchange for his political influence. Biaggi was also convicted of filing false financial disclosure statements and income tax returns to cover up his illegal profits.

He is to be sentenced Nov. 18.

In the other, unrelated case, involving Biaggi's assistance to a Brooklyn shipyard company, he was sentenced to 30 months in prison for obstructing justice and taking a free trip to Florida. An appeals court upheld the conviction but Biaggi said he will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

USPS contract with Perot voided

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal board ordered a Postal Service contract with Texas computer billionaire H. Ross Perot voided Friday because it violated proper procedures.

The contract had been suspended on July 8 after a preliminary ruling which the Postal Service is challenging in the U.S. Court of Appeals.

The mail agency argues that the General Services Administration's Board of Contract Appeals doesn't have jurisdiction in the case.

The GSA appeals board ruled in favor of challenges to the deal brought by two Perot competitors, Electronic Data Systems Federal Corp. and Planning Research Corp.

The board concluded that the Postal Service violated federal rules by failing to provide any advance notice of the contract and awarding the contract to Perot without seeking competitive bids.

The Postal Service had no immediate reaction to the ruling.

At issue is a potentially lucrative contract for a study of postal operations and recommendations for improvements in efficiency.

While the first stage of the contract carried a $500,000 price tag, there was provision for a follow-up phase in which payment would be a percentage of any savings realized by the agency. That arrangement could extend 10 years or more.

That seemingly open-ended payment provision, plus the sole-source nature of the deal, drew criticism from members of Congress and potential competitors including EDS, the firm formerly owned by Perot.

EDS and Planning Research Corp. complained to the GSA board, which hears disputes over federal contracts.

Faced with various challenges, Postmaster General Anthony Frenk ordered the deal suspended until the questions could be resolved. In any event, he said, the open-ended payment provision would have to be renegotiated.

At the same time, the Postal Service asked the appeals court to rule whether the agency comes under the GSA board's jurisdiction. The Postal Service says it has authority under a 1971 law to follow its own purchasing and contracting rules.

Group Islamic Jihad will be disbanded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A magazine said Friday that an underground group holding at least two American hostages was being disbanded after a crackdown on its leadership by Hezbollah, Iran's closest ally in Lebanon.

The magazine, Ash-Shiraa, also reported that Hashemi Rafsanjani, Iran's Parliament speaker and commander-in-chief, has been put in charge of Iranian policy on the foreign hostages held in Lebanon. Iran is believed to have substantial leverage with pro-Iranian factions holding hostages in Lebanon.

The Beirut weekly magazine, which gained international attention for first revealing U.S. secret arms sales to Iran, cited no sources for Friday's report. Not all of its previous stories about the hostages have been accurate.

Ash-Shiraa said Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, "has been rapidly disintegrating after the arrest of one of its leaders, Abbas Zoreik, who headed a squad responsible for bank robberies in Beirut."

The magazine did not say when Zoreik was arrested by what it called "an Islamic party that has been patronizing Islamic Jihad."

This appeared to be a reference to Hezbollah, or Party of God, which is widely believed to be the umbrella for various Shiite Moslem underground factions holding most of the 18 missing foreigners in Lebanon. Nine of them are Americans.

"It has since been revealed that a decision has been taken to disband Islamic Jihad," Ash-Shiraa said. It did not say who took the decision, but it implied that Hezbollah's command was behind the reported move.

Ash-Shiraa said the Islamic party which arrested Zoreik was also after another Islamic Jihad leader, Hassan Iziddine, who is sought by the United States for allegedly helping in the 1985 hijack of a TWA jetliner to Beirut.

If the magazine's report is accurate, it could mean Hezbollah is trying to remove extremist surrogates holding the hostages in order to take direct charge of the captives in advance of possible negotiations to free them.

The magazine did not say why Hezbollah was cracking down on Islamic Jihad, which holds Associated Press chief Middle East correspondent Terry A. Anderson, the longest held foreign hostage in Lebanon, who was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Islamic Jihad also holds Thomas Sutherland, 56, of Fort Collins, Colo., acting dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut, who was abducted June 9, 1985.

Anglican church envoy Terry Waite was kidnapped in west Beirut on Jan. 20, 1987, after leaving a seaside hotel for a rendezvous with Islamic Jihad, hoping to negotiate the release of Anderson and Sutherland. No group has claimed responsibility for Waite's capture.

In a separate report, Ash-Shiraa said Iran's revolutionary patriarch Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has put Rafsanjani in charge of the hostage issue.

"The move abolished a commission that Khomeini formed last year to handle the hostage issue, which was made up of President Ali Khamenei, Rafsanjani, Revolutionary Guards Minister Mohsen Rafiq-Doust and Revolutionary Guards commander Mohsen Rezaie," Ash-Shiraa said.

WORLD

Ex-Red Army soldier to be executed for war crimes

MOSCOW (AP) — A military court on Friday found a former Red Army sergeant guilty in the murders of thousands of Soviets while in the service of Nazi Germany and ordered him executed, the Tass news agency said.

A.A. Posevin was accused by the court in the Ukrainian city of Kharkov of personally killing 330 people while serving as a policeman under Nazi occupation forces in 1942-43, and of commanding a batallion that killed 4,000 people.

Tass did not say when the death sentence, imposed in the Soviet Union by firing squad, would be carried out. It did not give his age, but other news reports said he was born in 1916.

Posevin went into hiding after his service under the German army, rejoined the Red Army as it drove the Nazis out of the Soviet Union, and then lived quietly for years as a machine operator in a village in the Lvov region of the western Ukraine, the official news agency said.

Posevin deserted the Red Army in June 1942 and voluntarily joined the attacking Nazi forces as a policeman in Kharkov, a major industrial city in the eastern Ukraine, Tass said.

From August 1942 until August 1943, he cooperated with the Nazi forces in the killing of thousands of Soviets, including old people, women and children, the newspaper Pravda Ukraine reported Aug. 2, quoting court documents.

Pravda Ukraine said 1,700 Soviets were killed by the Nazis and their Soviet helpers Jan. 27-29, 1943.

Cowboys' goal: Rekindle flickering flame

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Not since the uncertainty of the expansion years in the early 1960s has the Dallas Cowboys' franchise been so desperate for success.

Fan popularity of the guys with the stars on their helmets has dwindled to a two-decade low.

It's been a well-chronicled decline of bad draft choices, outdated coaching theory and players who couldn't handle the pressure without a miracle-maker Roger Staubach around.

The arrogance of "America's Team" became the humbleness of America's chumps.

Cowboys' tickets, once the Sunday pasteboard passes of Dallas high society, now go begging for lack of interest. It didn't help things several years ago when the Cowboys made themselves one of the most expensive tickets in the NFL at $23 per game.

The Dallas Mavericks of the NBA have become the "in" thing to do in Big D now. To be "seen" you go to Reunion Arena not Texas Stadium.

OWNER BUM Bright can't even sell the team. It's been on the open marketplace a year but Bright can't get what he's asking — over $100 million.

If the Cowboys, who lost over $1 million last year, don't take off like a rocket this year, there could be a developing cash-flow problem.

"I can't think of any more important preseason in our history," said club president Tex Schramm. "We've got to have an exciting product. We have to get the fans back in the stands, which means we have to win some games."

The Cowboys were hit with the lowest attendance in Texas Stadium history last year. Some of it was caused by the NFL strike but many fans are turning away from the Cowboys, who haven't made the playoffs since 1985.

"The fans are tired of seeing bland people and performances," Schramm said. "They wanted something to get pumped up about. They want us to light a fuse."

Schramm paused for a minute and added "We're going to get there. We're going to be exciting."

The 68-year-old Schramm said there will be no addition this year to the Ring of Honor, the select list of six Cowboy greats displayed in silver on the wall below the press box at Texas Stadium.

SCHRAMM DOESN'T want to dwell in the past.

"We can no longer keep living on our past success," Schramm said. "We've played that record over and over again. We know all about the 1960s, the 1970s, and the great players. But the fact is, we haven't been in a Super Bowl in 10 years. Let's forget history. Let's make new history."

Heretofore meaningless exhibition games take on a new light with the Cowboys, who face the lowest preseason ticket sales since 1974.

"Winning them would really help," said Schramm.

The word has filtered down to Coach Tom Landry, who normally does not attach any importance to the results of games that don't count in the standings.

"It's very important for us to win," Landry said. "Winning helps the confidence of the team and gets the fans enthused."

THE COWBOYS have preseason dates with the San Diego Chargers, Los Angeles Raiders, the Chicago Bears and the Houston Oilers.

"The fans are there, waiting to come back if we just do our job," Schramm said. "There was a lot of excitement last year with our replacement team. It was like a college crowd. The fans were whipped up by the enthusiasm of the replacement players."

Schramm said many fans never accepted the returning veteran players after the strike ended.

"The air just kind of went out of them," Schramm said.

However, enthusiasm over the Cowboys had already been on the wane. For example, the Dallas Cowboys' Weekly, the official house organ of the team, once had a circulation of almost 100,000.

It's dropped 40,000.

Preseason opener tonight

SAN DIEGO (AP) — With injuries, age and trades changing the face of both the Dallas Cowboys and the San Diego Chargers, the clubs will be giving their new players a long look when they meet in an exhibition opener Saturday night.

"This will be a game to highlight our young players and see how they compete against top people," said Tom Landry, who begins his 29th season as the Cowboys' coach. "Basically, we want to look at younger players. Since so many veterans are hurt, it's an opportunity for them."

"The major decisions will be to keep the right people," Landry said.

The Cowboys have been hit by a rash of injuries, particularly on defense. Their three starting linebackers all have been sidelined — Jeff Rohrer (back); Mike Hegman (knee) and Eugene Lockhart (broken bone in hand). Cornerback Ron Francis also is out with a dislocated shoulder.

Also missing is running back Tony Dorsett, the longtime Cowboy who was traded to Denver. The deal was made so Herschel Walker could make an undisputed ascension to fulltime backfield duties, but Walker probably won't play Saturday night.

High winds beget high Hogan scores

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

Years of experience with the wind patterns at Hogan Park helped Steve Whiteside in the first round of the Midland Men's City Tournament on Friday.

In fact, the 33-year-old Whiteside was the only golfer to break par on the Hogan Park layout with his 67. Frank Tryon and Jamie Winkel enter today's second round tied for second with even-par 70s, while Mac McGee is four strokes back at 71.

Defending champion Bobby Gee is tied for 11th after a first-round 76.

Whiteside, a Midland sales representative, said his familiarity with the Hogan Park course helped during a blustery Friday.

"I grew up on this course," he said. "This golf course isn't that easy in the wind. The main thing is to keep the ball down.

"Clue selection was critical with the wind like this," he added.

Whiteside finished with 13 pars, four birdies and one bogey. But oddly enough, it was his bogey on the ninth hole that provided the impetus for a strong finish.

He sank a 20-foot putt to birdie the 10th, then he averted disaster two holes later with an outstanding chip that enabled him to save par with a four-foot putt.

In contrast to Whiteside's sparkling round, Gee had one of those proverbial days in which little went right.

"I didn't hit the ball badly, but I just didn't score well," the Texas A&M sophomore-to-be said. "I was just kind of tense through the front nine."

The former Midland Lee standout missed several short putts and had to hit around a tree for his second shot on one hole.

Play begins at 12:15 today with championship flight play, followed by first, second and senior flights. The tournament continues through Sunday.

TOURNEY NOTES: Gee's playing partners Larry Bryan and Gordon Wessels had their ups and downs, but both finished at 72. Bryan is a former Midland Lee teammate of Gee, while Wessels is a former Midland College golfer who will join Bryan on the Texas-San Antonio links squad this year.

Bryan triple-bogied the 12th hole after losing a ball in the voluminous fairway rough and having to incur a stroke penalty. But he got back into the thick of the championship race by getting birdies on three of the last five holes, including one on a 30-foot putt at No. 17.

"I was very happy to end up with a 72," Bryan said. "I held it together after that bad hole.

"I just lost control on that one hole," Bryan said. "After that hole, I rolled my wrists and strengthened my grip.

"I putted real well, which covered up for the fact that I wasn't chipping well."

Likewise, Wessels had trouble with his short game. But the Krugersdorp, South Africa native didn't get into many situations where chipping was critical to saving par.

He just wasn't taking any chances on a windy day.

Here are results from Friday's championship flight play:

Steve Whiteside 67; Jamie Winkel, Frank Tryon 70; Mac McGee 71; Larry Bryan, Gordon Wessels, Doyce Haney 72; Charles Roberts, Wally Brown 73; Benton Spradlin 74; John Castillo 75; Gilbert Carter, Bobby Gee 76; Scott Lovett, Randall Milby, Keith McKelvy, Bobby Welborn, Jeff Moses, John Bettis 77; Harry Bettis, Bob Kahnk, Dave Holloway 78; Carter Wiggins 80; Joe Sloan 82; Jay Roseberry 83.

Mid-City departs for state Little League tournament

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

Presidential election years are starting to take on another meaning in Midland. They're becoming known as the years a Midland Little League travels to the state LL tournament in Waco.

Four years after a group of North Central All-Stars placed fifth in the 1984 state tourney, the northwest Midland neighborhood near Lee High School will try again with a new group from the North Central League.

The North Central All-Stars will leave for Waco Sunday morning, in plenty of time to prepare for their first game Monday night. Midland will face Katy National, a team from the Houston area, at 5:30 p.m. Monday.

The winner of the state tournament will advance to regional play at Orlando, Fla. later this month. The regional winner earns a trip to the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa.

The North Central nine breezed through district play at Hogan Park last month, outscoring opponents 64-9 in five games.

After capping the district tourney with two wins over Midland Mid-City, the North Centralers eked out two wins over three-time state qualifier Pecos in the bi-district playoffs to become one of the last 16 teams in the state — out of 450 that began district play last month.

Angels fall further back

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Just as it all seems to be coming apart for the Angels, it's all coming together for the El Paso Diablos, who opened a 1 1/2 game Texas League West lead over Midland with a 9-5 win Friday night at Angel Stadium.

It wasn't so much that the loss spoiled the opening of a 10-game homestand, but it was the Angels' 10th loss in their last 12 starts and the wonder is that the Haloed Ones weren't further behind as the final 25-game stretch run began.

With Manager Max Oliveras sitting out a two-week suspension, Friday's game wasn't as close as the final score hinted. The Angels scored four runs in the ninth inning.

When Randy Veres, 1-1, left at the end of seven innings, Midland trailed 9-0 and had managed just two hits.

"THIS IS just his second start since reporting from Stockton (Class A California League). He threw well at San Antonio in a tough loss," said Manager Dave Machemer, "and tonight he had a live fastball. He tightened up a little in the seventh and with a 9-0 lead I didn't want to take any chances."

The '70s may be forgotten, but its heroes aren't

Patterson

Last weekend was a devastating one for me. The last few days in July traditionally bring another birthday to yours truly. This year's was especially irritating.

After turning 29 last week, I noticed how I feel every bit of it — physically. Bones creak now that didn't a few years ago. Eyeballs are more bleary in the morning and coffee is all the more important to surviving the a.m. hours.

"Well if it helps any, you don't act 29," Karen, my other-half, said.

(I'm not sure, but I think I've been insulted).

I also realized last weekend that I am now at the age where I can legitimately claim a certain era all to myself. I grew up in the boring '70s.

Following the excitement of the '50s and the turbulence of the '60s, the '70s was a sleepy span of years when — with the exception of Watergate — nothing of great note really happened. You just never really hear all that much about that decade.

Since the '70s were my formative years (whatever that means), I have noticed one thing: role models in sports were more numerous in that decade than they are in the '80s.

NOWADAYS, THE sports headlines shout, "So-and-so arrested for whatever ..." In the '70s, you could safely open a newspaper and read something like, "Staubach completes 100 passes for another Cowboy win."

Idolizing was simply more pleasurable in the 70s. There were more respected athletes, more interesting sports happenings.

The '70s brought us great heros. First and foremost would have to be the one and only Roger Staubach, who quite likely will go down as the most famed Cowboy ever — regardless of what the future holds. Staubach to Drew Pearson on second down, Staubach to Preston Pearson on third down. Staubach to Dorsett usually meant a perfectly executed screen play.

Staubach's perfection of the two-minute offense will likely never be duplicated by anyone. True Cowboy fans will always remember a cold November day in '79, when Staubach threw four touchdowns late in the fourth quarter to score a miraculous 35-34 win over the Washington Redskins.

And speaking of the 'Skins, has there ever been a more exciting rivalry in football since those Dallas-Washington matchups of 10, 15 years ago?

And was there ever a more mismatched pair of defensive backs than Charlie Waters and Cliff Harris? Pretty-boy Waters, who had his own poster, appealing to women everywhere. No-nonsense Harris, who was never afraid to make a statement whilst on top of some unlucky receiver.

TERRY BRADSHAW and his Pittsburgh Steelers were another thorn in the Cowboys' side. The Steelers literally defined professional football during the '70s and represent one of the toughest dynasties ever. Bradshaw, Swann, Bleier, Harris, Ham, Lambert. What a great lineup.

In baseball, the most dynamic player of the '70s was Reggie Jackson. A Yankee and and Athletic, primarily, Reggie was to the children of the 70s what Mantle was to those in the '50s. Nobody could as gracefully belt a home run like Reggie, and, if memory serves me, it seemed even pitchers didn't mind too much when Reggie would stop to watch as his "dingers" cleared the wall.

If the Texas Rangers ever fielded a hero, it would have been catcher Jim Sundberg. No one in Arlington ever represented the team as well as Sunny. It was a joy to recently see him rejoin the team in his twilight years.

Tennis fans will forgive me if I feel Ivan Lendl and Boris Becker don't hold a candle to the Bjorn Borg-Jimmy Connors match-ups in the '70s, particularly '76 and '77. The excitement in tennis is just no longer there. Not even the childish behavior. Temper tantrums thrown by John McEnroe are boring compared to the antics of Ilie Nastase.

AND THEN there's boxing, which has undergone close scrutiny in the '80s. It has gone from an exciting sport in the '70s to a boring, controversial big business in the '80s. Mostly because of the demise of Muhammed Ali.

Ali is widely hailed as the greatest ever. When he retired for the last time, he took with him the spark. (Actually, the spark was gone long before his final retirement).

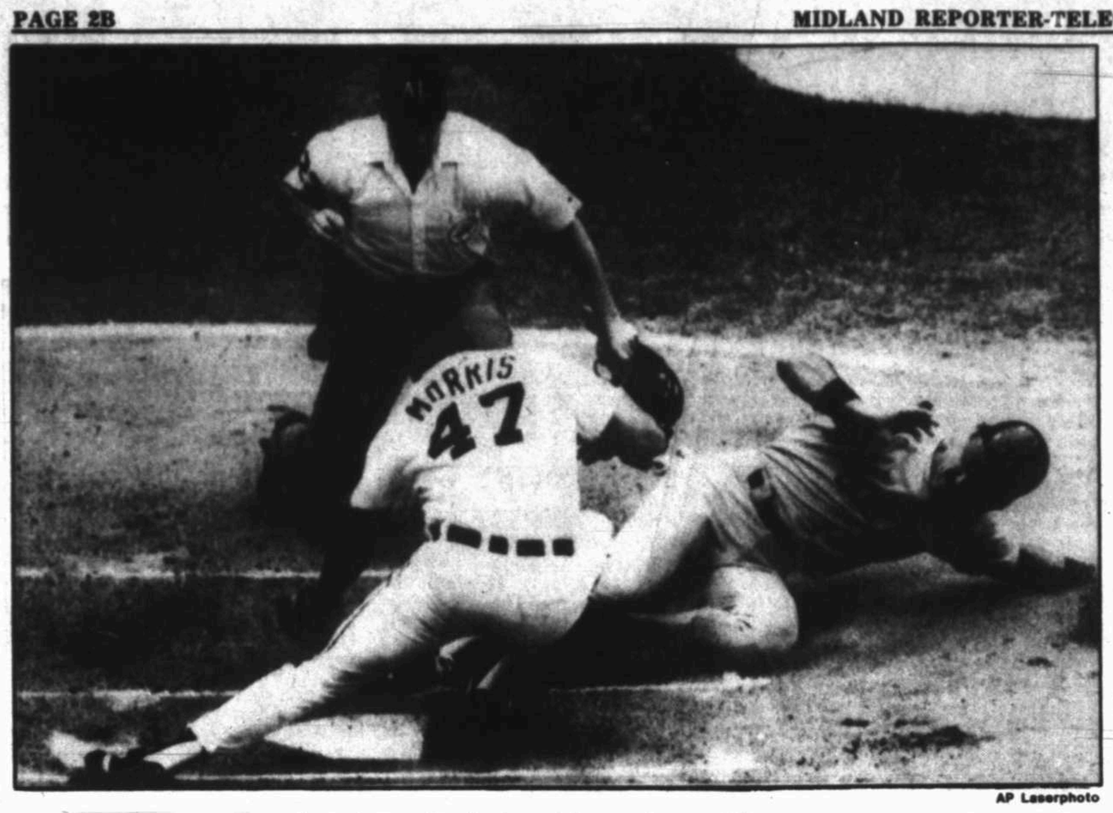

He also was responsible for the controversy today concerning the danger of boxing. Because of the headbangings he took throughout his career, regardless of whether he won or lost, the Muhammed Ali of '88 is physically a far cry from the Cassius Clay of the '60s and early '70s.

So, are there any heros today?

Maybe a few, but name today's top role-models and they'll be nowhere close to the ones we remember from the '70s.

Twins swipe pair from Yanks

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Frank Viola became baseball's first 17-game winner and Steve Lombardozzi drove home four runs as the Minnesota Twins routed the New York Yankees 11-2 for a sweep of Friday's doubleheader.

The Twins handed New York its first doubleheader loss at Yankee Stadium since Sept. 10, 1983, against Baltimore. In the opener, Gene Larkin's three-run homer broke a tie in the eighth inning and sent Minnesota to a 7-5 victory.

New York's Rickey Henderson grounded out to lead off the first game, snapping the streak of 15 games that he had reached base leading off the first inning.

Minnesota, winless in five games against New York before Friday, has won four in a row. The Yankees have lost four straight.

Viola, 17-4, allowed eight hits in 7 1-3 innings. He struck out six, walked one and improved to 6-8 lifetime against New York. Juan Berenguer and German Gonzalez, making his major-league debut, closed.

The Twins, the top fielding team in the majors, tied a team record by playing their 10th straight game without an error. They made three double plays behind Viola.

Kirby Puckett, Greg Gagne and Tim Laudner each got three of Minnesota's 15 hits against Lee Guetterman and three relievers. Guetterman, recalled from Class AAA Columbus earlier in the day, gave up five runs in three-plus innings and lost his first decision this year.

Puckett, who went 2-for-5 with a home run and double in the opener, singled three times in the first four innings of the second game. He leads the majors with 159 hits and 52 multi-hit games.

The Twins broke it open with five runs in the fourth for an 8-1 lead. Dan Gladden drew a bases-loaded walk from Neil Allen, Lombardozzi hit a two-run double and Puckett followed with a two-run single.

Rangers 8, Indians 4

ARLINGTON — Pete Incaviglia hit a three-run homer and Ruben Sierra also had three RBI as the Texas Rangers defeated Cleveland to snap a four-game losing streak and hand the Indians their sixth straight loss.

The Rangers scored two runs in the first and four more in the third to take a 6-0 lead.

Oddibe McDowell led off the first against rookie Rod Nichols, 0-2, with a single, stole second and took third on an infield out. Pete O'Brien grounded to first baseman Willie Upshaw, who chased McDowell back to third when no one covered the bag. O'Brien took second on the play and both runners scored on Sierra's single.

Sierra hit a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the third and Incaviglia followed with a towering shot to left for his 20th homer.

Steve Buechele hit an RBI triple in the eighth and scored on Jim Sundberg's suicide squeeze.

Paul Kilgus, 9-9, allowed 10 hits in 7 1-3 innings to win for just the third time in his last nine decisions. Craig McMurtry finished up to earn his second save.

Cory Snyder's 20th homer, a three-run shot in the fourth, snapped the Indians' scoreless streak of 19 1-3 innings.

AL Roundup

Tigers 3, Red Sox 1

DETROIT — Jack Morris and Mike Henneman combined on a six-hitter and the Detroit Tigers beat Boston in the first game of a doubleheader to hand the Red Sox their second consecutive defeat for the first time under manager Joe Morgan.

The Red Sox are 19-3 since Morgan took over after the All-Star break.

The first-place Tigers opened a two-game lead over Boston in the American League East. The New York Yankees, in third place, dropped a doubleheader to Minnesota and are now 3½ games back.

The game was delayed twice in the first five innings by rain, the first time for one hour, 39 minutes and 1:06 the second time.

Morris, 9-11, returned to the mound for Detroit after both rain delays. He pitched seven innings, allowing five hits, walking three and striking out five. Henneman took over to start the eighth, earning his 17th save.

Boston starter Mike Smithson was replaced by Dennis Lamp after the second delay but Lamp left after 1 2-3 innings with an elbow injury.

Orioles 4, Brewers 1

BALTIMORE — Jose Bautista pitched a six-hitter and Jim Traber hit a tie-breaking single in the sixth inning as the Baltimore Orioles won their season-high fourth straight game by beating the Milwaukee Brewers in the first game of a doubleheader.

Baltimore, which began the season with a 21-game losing streak, won for the first time in six tries against Milwaukee.

Bautista, 6-9, walked none, struck out five and allowed no earned runs for his second complete game. Ted Higuera, 7-7, has been supported by just 10 runs in his last four starts, losing three of them.

With one out in the sixth, Cal Ripken singled and Eddie Murray forced him at second. Murray took second on a single by Mickey Tettleton and scored on Traber's single. Ken Gerhart's bunt single drove in Tettleton to give the Orioles a 3-1 lead.

Pete Stanicek hit his second homer in the seventh.

Murray's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded gave Baltimore a 1-0 lead in the first. Milwaukee tied the score in the fifth on Paul Molitor's RBI single.

Blue Jays 7, Royals 6

TORONTO — George Bell drove in three runs with two doubles and reliever Duane Ward allowed no hits in 4 2-3 innings as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the Kansas City Royals.

The teams combined for nine doubles, a triple and Jesse Barfield's home run.

The Blue Jays scored the winning run off Ted Power, 5-5, in the fifth. Fred McGriff's one-hopper deflected off shortstop Bill Pecota's glove for a double. After moving to third on a grounder, McGriff tagged up and scored when first baseman George Brett caught Barfield's foul ball near the bullpen, with his back to the plate.

Astros creep closer still

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston scored four runs off Orel Hershiser in the first inning, and Glenn Davis drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly to second baseman Steve Sax as the Astros beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4 Friday night.

The victory cut the Dodgers' lead in the National League West to 2½ games over the Astros.

Davis, in the starting lineup for the first time since July 26 after recovering from a leg injury, broke a 4-4 tie in the fourth with the shallow sac fly, then drove in a run in the sixth-inning with a single.

Hershiser, 15-6, walked Gerald Young to start the fourth. Young went to third on Terry Puhl's single and scored on Davis' fly to a back-pedalling Sax. Sax's throw drew catcher Rick Dempsey away from home plate as Young slid in safely.

Hershiser had a 3-0 record against the Astros this season and had yielded only three runs on 12 hits in 26 innings until the first inning.

Hershiser gave up hits on consecutive pitches to Young, Bill Doran and Terry Puhl, starting the four-run inning. Puhl's hit scored Young, a single by Ken Caminiti scored Doran and a single by Rafael Ramirez scored Puhl.

Caminiti scored the fourth run on a fielder's choice grounder in front of home plate by starter Jim Deshaies, 8-8, who gave up five hits over 5 2-3 innings.

Dempsey fielded Deshaies nubber and was preparing to throw to first base when Caminiti slid in safely behind him.

Dave Smith pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

Tracy Woodson reached base on a fielder's choice in the first inning before Kirk Gibson hit his 21st homer of the season over the right-field fence.

John Shelby doubled in the fourth inning and Dempsey homered over the left field fence to knot the score 4-4.

Mets 3, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Keith Hernandez, returning to New York's lineup for the first time since June 23, doubled and hit a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the seventh inning, while Ron Darling pitched the Mets over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Mets beat the Pirates for sixth time in their last eight meetings to open up a five-game lead in the National League East. New York has won four of five games against the second-place Pirates in the last eight days.

With the score tied 1-1 and one away in the seventh, Wally Backman doubled, chasing starter Bob Walk, 11-7, and bringing on left-handed reliever Dave Rucker.

Hernandez, who was reactivated just before the game, hit a 3-0 pitch over the right-field wall for his sixth homer of the season. Hernandez set up the Mets' first run with a first-inning double.

Darling, 12-7, improved his career record against the Pirates to 10-2 despite allowing solo home runs to Sid Bream in the fifth and R.J. Reynolds in the seventh.

Darling allowed four hits in 7 1-3 innings in beating the Pirates for the second time in a week. He bested Walk 2-1 last Sunday in New York. Randy Myers worked the final 1 2-3 for his 17th save.

The Mets, who have won three of four in Pittsburgh, took a 1-0 lead in the first after Backman singled to left with one out. Hernandez, batting for the first time since going on the disabled list with an injured hamstring, doubled down the right-field line, sending Backman to third.

Darryl Strawberry hit a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Backman. After Kevin McReynolds walked, the Pirates avoided further trouble when shortstop Rafael Belliard darted behind the mound to throw out Dave Magadan.

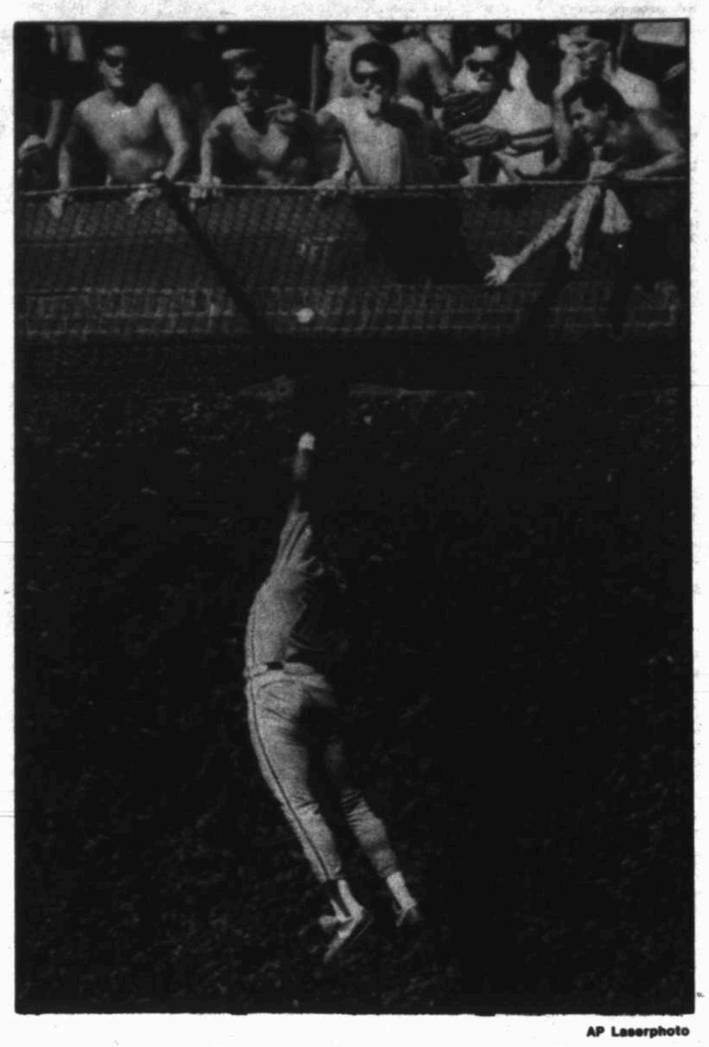

Phillies 9, Cubs 3

CHICAGO — Mike Schmidt hit his 541st career homer to tie Rogers Hornsby for career extra base hits and Milt Thompson went 4-for-5 with four RBI as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Chicago Cubs.

Schmidt's 11th homer of the year sparked a four-run third inning against Greg Maddux, 15-7, who has lost three straight.

Don Carman, 9-5, won his fifth straight decision, allowing eight hits, striking out six and walking one in 6 1-3 innings. Kent Tekulve appeared in his 988th game and took over sole possession of second place on the career list. Hoyt Wilhelm leads with 1,070.

Everyone in the Phillies' lineup had at least one hit.

NL Roundup

Braves 8, Giants 5

ATLANTA — Andres Thomas capped a four-run Atlanta third inning with a three-run homer, leading the Braves over San Francisco that snapped a streak of eight losses to the Giants.

Right-hander Rick Mahler, 9-10, pitched the Braves to their second straight victory following an eight-game losing streak. Mahler allowed eight hits while striking out four and walking none in 7 1-3 innings.

Expos 3, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS — Dennis Martinez pitched his second complete game victory over St. Louis in a week, and Rex Hudler had three hits as the Montreal Expos defeated the Cardinals.

Martinez, 13-7, allowed eight hits, struck out five and walked one. He pitched a three-hitter in a 2-0 decision over St. Louis on Sunday in Montreal.

Reds 10, Padres 7

CINCINNATI — Eric Davis hit a two-run homer in the seventh, and Herm Winningham had a three-run triple in the fifth to give the Cincinnati Reds a see-saw victory over the San Diego Padres.

Davis' homer, his 20th, broke a 7-7 tie forged when Carmelo Martinez hit a three-run homer in the Padres four-run seventh. Keith Moreland also drove in three runs for San Diego, two in the Padres three-run first and one in the seventh.

The Padres scored three runs off Danny Jackson in the first. Randy Ready walked, Tony Gwynn singled and Moreland doubled past Davis in center, scoring two.

Like it or not, preseason in full swing today

Coach Sam Wyche of the Bengals is giving Carl Zander and Skip McClendon the night off because their wives are having babies.

Mike Shanahan of the Los Angeles Raiders says of the team he's taking to San Francisco: "We'll be mostly vanilla."

And Bill Parcells of the New York Giants is giving Phil Simms the night off and playing his other veterans only minimally against Green Bay because, well, ...

... It's only the first exhibition game.

"It's kind of a double-edged sword," Shanahan says of the Raiders-49ers game, his first as an NFL head coach, which will be nationally televised by CBS.

"You want to do well, and you also want to evaluate a lot of people. But you don't want to do it at the expense of playing your first-string people excessively."

That will be the case in almost all of today's nine games, the first full-fledged evening of the NFL's exhibition season.

They are liable to look more like last year's strike replacement games than full-fledged NFL football. The uniforms are the same but the guys on the field wearing Nos. 101B and 1X will be long gone by Sept. 4, the day the real season opens.

The weekend actually began Wednesday night, when the Los Angeles Rams lost their second game in five days, falling to Denver 40-31.

On Thursday, Houston beat Buffalo 13-9 and Seattle topped Phoenix 21-7, in typical fashion.

Houston's hero was Brent Pease, last year's strike replacement quarterback who completed 8 of 15 passes after starter Warren Moon was just three for three. For Buffalo, starting quarterback Jim Kelly sat out with a sprained ankle; backup Frank Reich injured a shoulder and most of the second-half quarterbacking was done by Stan Gelbaugh.

The Seahawks, meanwhile, outgained the Cards — playing under the Phoenix name for the first time — 105 yards to 17 in taking a 14-0 first quarter lead, then lifted the somebodies for nobodies and ended up being outgained 365-287.

There was one game Friday night as Washington began tuning up for the defense of its NFL title by playing host to Pittsburgh at RFK Stadium.

Today, Atlanta at New England; Detroit at Cleveland; Indianapolis at Tampa Bay; Miami at Chicago; the Giants at Packers; the New York Jets at Philadelphia; Cincinnati at Kansas City; Dallas at San Diego and the Raiders at 49ers.

New Orleans is at Minnesota in a Sunday night game to be nationally televised by ESPN.

The Raiders-49ers game, which used to be a fixture matching the teams on the opposite sides of San Francisco Bay, has become routine since the Raiders moved south in 1982. It's even more routine now — it's the first game for the Raiders, the second for the 49ers, who lost to Miami 27-21 in last week's London game.

One of those Shanahan wants to see is Steve Beuerlein, who will start at quarterback after sitting out his rookie season with a shoulder injury. He will play a half and be followed by 32-year-old Vince Evans, who re-surfaced as a strike replacement last year.

Forty-year-old Jim Plunkett will play next week.

"We're kind of working in alphabetical order," says Shanahan, who says order of appearance doesn't necessarily mean that's the way the quarterbacks are ranked.

The Packers, who have six quarterbacks on the roster, have the same situation.

They will start Raiders reject Marc Wilson, to be followed by Randy Wright and Blair Kiel, with Robbie Bosco and Bud Keyes on for next week. Lindy Infante, the league's other new coach, talks a lot like Shahanan, saying:

"The order doesn't necessarily have anything to do with who will start.

The Giants, on the other hand have no such problems.

They will start Jeff Hostetler, who in four years has taken just one regular-season snap plus one in postseason — a fourth-down quarterback sneak that was the turning point in New York's Super Bowl victory over Denver two years ago. Hostetler is competing with Jeff Rutledge for the backup job behind Simms.

Simms, in fact, is a booster of Hostetler, who completed 15 of 21 in an intrasquad scrimmage last week.

"He's made big improvements, he's throwing the ball better and is relaxed," Simms says. "It's his best camp."

The Bears, meanwhile, are playing unknowns by necessity against Miami. Injuries to Jimbo Covert and Keith Van Horne have forced Chicago to go at offensive tackle with John Wojciechowski and rookie Caesar Rentie, a seventh-round draft pick who was a backup at Oklahoma.

"Being a backup for Oklahoma isn't too bad," Coach Mike Ditka said. "He'd probably be a starter for 80 percent of the other colleges around the country."

Steelers bop Redskins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bubby Brister threw two touchdown passes during a 31-point second quarter that propelled the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 44-31 exhibition victory over the defending Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins Friday night.

Running back Warren Williams scored twice in the second period and Tyronne Stowe returned an interception 20 yards for a touchdown as the Steelers turned a 6-0 deficit into a 31-6 halftime lead.

The Redskins used a safety, three second-half touchdown runs by Willard Reaves and a 39-yard field goal by rookie Chip Lohmiller to cut the margin to 34-31 with 8:53 left, but the Steelers pulled away to win their first exhibition opener in three years.

Washington, which used a 35-point second period in its 42-10 Super Bowl victory over the Denver Broncos last January, absorbed a similar thrashing from the Steelers.

Pittsburgh took the lead for good 1:50 into the second quarter when Brister capped a 72-yard drive with a 2-yard scoring pass to Mike Hinnant. Twenty-one seconds later, Stowe pulled a bobbled pass out of the hands of Washington tight end Terry Orr and turned it into a score.

Billy Capser eyes one of five birdie putts during second round action at the the U.S. Seniors Open.

Casper increases Seniors lead

U.S. Senior Open

By JAMES LITKE
AP Sports Writer

MEDINAH, Ill. — Former champion Billy Casper shot his second straight sub-par round, a 1-under 71, to take a three-shot lead after Friday's second round of the U.S. Senior Open.

Casper, the only player to break par in each of the first two rounds at Medinah Country Club's treacherous No. 3 course, was at 4-under-par 140 after 36 holes.

South African Harold Henning and Lou Graham — the only other golfers under par after two trips around the 6,881-yard layout, which was remodeled for this championship — were next at 143.

"The pin placements were great today," joked Casper, who remained critical of the greens. "At least they were on the greens."

Henning shot 73, largely due to a double-bogey at No. 9. Graham, who won the 1975 U.S. Open at Medinah, needed a remarkable recovery from a bad lie at No. 16 to fashion a 71.

From 110 yards out, he punched a low 6-iron into a hump guarding the front of the 16th green. From there, the ball skidded into the flagstick and nose-dived into the hole for a birdie.

"That's the hardest shot I've ever seen hit the stick and still go in," Graham said.

Walt Zembriski, the former steelworker who matched Casper's 3-under 69 Thursday, stumbled to 75 and fell into a tie with defending champion Gary Player and Al Geiberger at even-par 144.

Player and Geiberger joined Casper, Graham and New Zealander Bob Charles as the only sub-par shooters in Friday's 90-degree weather.

Player carded three birdies to go with a lone bogey for his 70. Geiberger birdied Nos. 2 and 5, followed with a bogey at the sixth hole, then parred the rest of the way for 71.

Another shot back at 145 was a group that included Charles, a left-hander who shot a 70, Gene Littler, Australian Peter Thomson and Orville Moody.

Moody, who climbed to within two shots of the lead after 16 holes, slid back by dumping his tee shot into the water at the 151-yard, par-3 17th. He took a double-bogey, bogeyed the 18 and finished with a 73.

Casper took a roller-coaster ride en route to his 71.

He bogeyed the first hole, then hit a 7-iron about 160 yards on his second shot into the third green "that people said went into the hole and jumped out.

"Probably, if I'd marked it illegally, it would have fallen back into the hole," added Casper, the 1983 Senior Open winner. "It was that close."

Casper settled for the tap-in birdie and made the turn at 35. But he dumped his tee shot into the front bunker at the 163-yard, par-3 13th, "then tried to get a little cute and left the next one in the sand."

He blasted out to eight feet beyond the hole, then took two putts for double-bogey 5. But Casper got back to 4-under with birdies at Nos. 14 and 18.

The 150-player field, competing for a $375,000 purse with a $65,000 winner's share, was cut to the low 60 scorers and ties for the final two rounds.

Three-way tie atop St. Jude's leader board

PGA

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Tim Simpson tapped in a three-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Friday to pull into a three-way tie for the lead with Jodie Mudd and Peter Jacobsen after two rounds of the $750,000 St. Jude Classic.

Mudd and Jacobsen, who played earlier in the day, both shot 68s for the second straight round to earn a share of the lead at 8-under-par 136.

Simpson, the co-leader with Ed Fiori after shooting an opening-round 66, two-putted from 35 feet on No. 5 and missed a 4-foot putt for par on No. 11 for bogeys.

Simpson, Mudd and Jacobsen were one shot ahead of Fiori and Nick Price, who shot a 64 to move into contention.

Simpson, the 1985 Southern Open winner and runner-up at last week's Buick Open, said he was not surprised he's among the leaders.

"I'm putting well and that's the whole key to my game. I'm not surprised," Simpson said. "I'm on a roll now. It's just a matter of enjoying it and feeling comfortable."

MUDD, WHO had five birdies and one bogey during Thursday's opening round, started his second round with three consecutive birdies, then matched par until finishing with a birdie on the par-5, 548-yard 18th.

Tommy Armour III and Fulton Allem were two shots back at 6-under 138 after two trips around the 7,282-yard Colonial Country Club course.

Mudd was relaxed and confident after his round Friday.

"I just need to keep playing like I'm playing. I feel I have a really good chance. Of course, any of these guys can shoot a 63 or a 64 and leap frog over the field," he said.

Still in search of his first PGA Tour victory, Mudd converted birdie putts of 2, 10, 15 and 5 feet during his round and was in danger of making bogey only twice during the day.

"I got off to a good start today. I'm real confident. I'm just going to be aggressive and see what happens," said Mudd, who has finished second six times during his seven-year pro career.

JACOBSEN HAD a 35 on the back nine with two birdies and a bogey before finishing with a 3-under 33 on the front nine for his 68.

He started his final nine holes with birdies at the par-5 first hole and the par-4 second hole, then matched par until dropping a 20-foot putt for a birdie 3 on No. 9.

"My irons were pretty good and I made a lot of good putts," said Jacobsen. "Two 68s here are good for anybody.

"On a golf course like this, it's essential to put the ball in play from the tee and, since the greens are rough and coarse, you've really got to be aggressive with the putter," he said.

PRICE MOVED from 1 over par to 7-under with his 64.

Overcoming a bogey 5 on the second hole, Price made the turn at 3-under 33, then birdied five of his last nine holes, including four in a row.

He birdied the par-4 376-yard 11th hole and then posted birdies on holes 13-16 to move within one shot of the lead.

Seventy-one players made the cut for the final round Saturday and Sunday, including defending St. Jude champion Curtis Strange, who barely made the cut after playing the first two rounds in even-par 144.

Richard goes birdie-wild

LPGA

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

HIGH POINT, N.C. — Deb Richard went on a birdie spree on the back nine Friday to finish with 22 points to win the second day of the $400,000 Pat Bradley International LPGA tournament.

Richard, now in her second year on the LPGA Tour, posted eight birdies, three of them on the first four holes of the back nine. She also had three birdies on the front nine of the 6,260-yard Willow Creek Golf Club course. Richard, whose only Tour victory came in last year's Rochester International, had bogeys at the third and 16th holes.

"I enjoyed the format very much today, obviously," Richard said. "It's interesting. You just don't know what it's going to take every day to get in."

Richard said the modified Stableford scoring system suited her aggressive style of play. But she said the standard style of scoring had taken the starch out of her approach.

"You tend to play, I think, a little more conservatively in straight stroke play than you do in this system," she said. "I have found myself in the last year getting a little more passive in the way I play, which I don't like. It's helped get me back in an agressive mode which I obviously got into today."

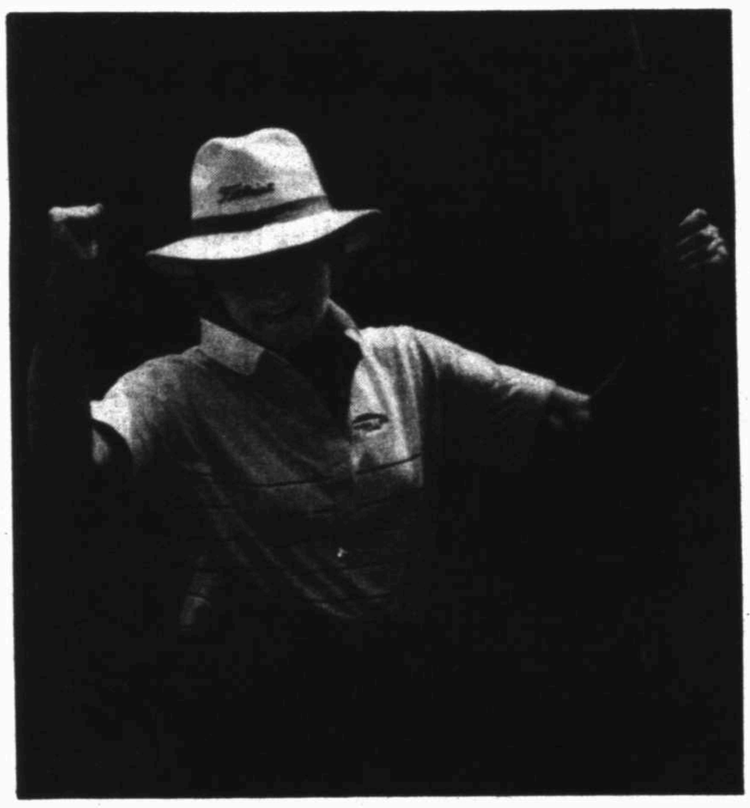

The tournament is being played under a modified Stableford scoring system, which awards points instead of counting strokes. A birdie earns a golfer three points and an eagle gets five points. A double eagle is worth eight points. On the minus side, bogeys cost a golfer one point and a double bogey costs a player three points.

Players do not carry over their scores from previous days, and the field is halved after each round, with 36 players from Friday's competition advancing to the third round Saturday.

Richard hit a sand wedge to within two feet on her opening hole to get started. After trouble with a bunker led to a bogey at the third hole, Richard recovered on the par-5 sixth hole with a chip to within two feet for birdie. A 4-iron to within eight feet capped the front-nine birdie run.

A four-foot putt for birdie after a 6-iron shot on the par-4 10th hole started the back-nine surge. Following a par at the par-4 11th, Richard sank putts of 12 and 10 feet for consecutive birdies.

Richard finished the round with a 20-foot putt on 17 and a 10-foot putt at 18 for birdies. She earned $8,000 for winning the round.

ANGELS

Veres was a first round, secondary phase, draft pick of the Milwaukee Brewers a few years ago out of Sacramento Junior College and the Brewers have brought him along slowly.

Off Friday's performance, he looks ready for AA ball.

C.L. PENIGAR spoiled his no-hitter with a lead off single in the fourth and Jim Opie led off with a single in the sixth. Lee Stevens led off the second with a walk, but was quickly erased in a double play. Outside of that, Veres kept the bases spic and span.

Veres is just part of the story for the Diablos however. Todd Brown just joined the team from Class AAA Denver and the 1987 Diablo pitched in with all forks, collecting three hits and knocking in two runs.

"It was a case of the parent club sending down an outfielder and Denver having to make room," said Machemer, "so we wound up with Brown."

Then there's Angel Rodriquez, the Tony Pena-style catcher, who hit a couple of two-run homers, his seventh and eighth in a three-hit night.

Rodriquez started the season with Stockton, was promoted to El Paso and then "dislocated his shoulder and went to Beloit for rehabilitation."

GOT ANY more glad tidings, Machemer?

Well, how about shortstop Bill Spiers. He was hitting .353 after 23 games with the Diablos and Friday went 3-for-4.

The kind of night it was going to be for Tim Kelly, debuting as the Angels' interim manager, was indicated early when Frank Mattox and Brown led off with singles. With one out, Gregg Vaughan bounced a bunt in front of the plate. Midland pitcher Chris Collins fired past catcher Mike Knapp to allow Mattox to score and Brown took advantage of the Angels' slow reaction to score from first.

Collins, 5-10, lasted just 2 2/3 innings and gave up a two-run single to Brown in the second and a two-run homer to Rodriquez in the third before departing.

"I doubt if I'll play him this week," Landry said. "We want to bring him along slowly. He has to carry the load for us. We don't want to pound him in training camp. He'll probably play more the last couple of (exhibition) games."

For the Chargers, it will be a preview of the post-Dan Fouts era. Fouts, who quarterbacked the Chargers for 15 years, retired earlier this year.

Mark Malone, the former starter for Pittsburgh who returned to his native San Diego in a trade, is among four quarterbacks seeking to replace Fouts. He will start against the Cowboys and play the first half, Chargers Coach Al Saunders said.

Second-year pro Mark Vlasic will play the third quarter with free agent Babe Laufenberg expected to guide the team in the fourth period. Steve Fuller is not expected to play this week.

"We haven't decided on our starting quarterback (for the season)," Saunders said. "That probably won't be decided until after the last (exhibition) game."

Saunders also said a lot of attention also will be focused on the play of the offensive line, which was shuffled with the trade last week of disgruntled tackle Jim Lachey to the Los Angeles Raiders.

"In all honesty, that's an area of the football team that must develop for us to be successful," said Saunders. "The line is woefully young in terms of experience. We're looking for backup people to challenge those positions."

One of the keys will be the play of second-year offensive lineman John Clay, who was acquired with two draft choices in the Lachey deal. He is being tried out at left tackle, Lachey's former position.

Steve Pelluer, in his fifth season with the Cowboys, is being given every opportunity to be Dallas' No. 1 quarterback. He was scheduled to play most of the first half Saturday. Pelluer played well in the final two games of 1987, victories over the Los Angeles Rams and the then-St. Louis Cardinals.

"We're trying to establish No. 1 quarterback capabilities with Steve Pelluer," said Landry.

The Pokes' proudest defensive tradition

By JIM DENT
Dallas Times Herald

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Try to envision Randy White as the first player drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 1961.

Fourteen years later, a guy named Bob Lilly would come along.

Through the Cowboys' fledgling years, White would thrive by using the head slap and by bulldozing through the 235-pound guards. After years of losing the big one, White would finally smoke the big cigar after Dallas wins Super Bowl VI.

Against the bigger 18-wheeling linemen of his era, Lilly would use his deceiving quickness to slide through the slower and less agile blockers. He and Harvey Martin would be co-Most Valuable Players in Super Bowl XII.

"If Randy could have played in the days of Lilly, he would have been even more effective than he's been in his time, because he would have used the head slap," defensive coordinator Ernie Stautner said. "I couldn't get Lilly to ever use the head slap, even though it was legal.

"If Lilly had played in Randy's time, he would have been better suited for this time. Lilly is big and tall enough to get around the bigger guys. I don't think the bigger guys would have slowed him down. Lilly's way of playing was more suited to today's game. Randy was better suited for Lilly's time."

Standing on the sideline recently during a Cowboys' afternoon practice in summer camp, Lilly could see himself in White's body.

Standing in the middle of the field, White wore shorts, a T-shirt and a fishing cap. He is unable to practice because of a degenerating disc in his neck.

"My career ended for the same reason," Lilly said. "It doesn't affect your body so much. But it just hurts when you hit anybody with your head. It's a very strong pain. I can see why Ernie wants to put him outside (at end). Otherwise, he would be fighting off spasms all of the time."

Except for the 1975 and 1976 seasons, when White played linebacker, the Cowboys defensive right tackle spot has been manned by no one other than White and Lilly. Larry Cole and Bill Gregory played right tackle during the interim years.

This summer, the torch is being passed to Danny Noonan, a second-year man who was given the job because of White's condition. No one knows if White can make it through the season. Thus White's dual role of player-coach during training camp.

Having someone new playing right tackle is like taking the star off the helmet.

"You do get a little sentimental seeing Bob stand over on the sideline, and then seeing Randy winding down his carer," Cowboys coach Tom Landry said.

Between them, there have been 19 Pro Bowls. Lilly was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame during his first eligible year in 1980. White is a good bet to gain entry on the first ballot five years after his retirement.

Cowboys president Tex Schramm was asked which player had made a bigger contribution to the team.

"I would say Lilly, because he was the leader during the lean years, and he set the tone into the championship years," he said.

"This is not to depreciate White. But he came into a proven football team, and now he's had to take the downside in the latter years. It might diminish his contribution in the eyes of some."

Nothing is making Stautner more sad than to see White in the final stages of his career. When he thinks of White, he thinks of Lilly.

"It was one of the saddest things that ever happened to me to see Bob retire," Stautner said. "Even though I think Randy can still contribute to this team, his time is winding down. And that is very sad."

What will it be like during the Noonan years? Noonan's style is closer to White's. They are almost identical in body structure. Both are slightly under 6-4 and weigh 270 pounds. Both like to use their strength, although White uses his quickness better than Noonan.

"Both Bob and Randy had strength and quickness," Stautner said. "But Randy used his speed a little better."

BOOSTER

"We've done everything we can with the product on our Weekly," said editor Carlton Stowers. "Now everything is up to the team."

The Cowboys went 4-0 in the 1985 preseason, won the NFC East title, and got into the playoffs.

That's exactly what Landry is shooting for again, a booster shot for the regular season.

It's medicine the ailing Cowboys dearly need.

DO YOU JUST CUT GRASS?

My neighbor cares greatly for her lawn. During vacations she hires people to look after it. I noticed that she kept changing lawn personnel. "Why?" I asked, observing that all of them seemed to cut grass rather well.

"They can," she said. "They all can CUT GRASS. But I'm looking for someone who can MOW LAWNS."

I pushed for explanation. "Well," she said. "The difference between CUTTING GRASS and MOWING LAWNS is the difference between CARE and CARELESSNESS; the difference between MAKING MONEY and MAKING A LAWN LOOK RIGHT."

She went on to tell me that HOW we do things is as important as WHAT we do. She mumbled something about being a PROFESSIONAL or an AMATEUR.

Then she got philosophical: "It really boils down to an attitude toward life: Do you want to LIVE through life or merely EXIST through it."

Jesus may not have been talking about mowing lawns, but he was talking about life: "I came that you might have life and have it more abundantly." (John 10:10)

Leavell hopes to inspire evangelism

Crestview celebrates anniversary with revival

By GEORGIA TODD TEMPLE
Religion Writer

Leavell

Wood

When the Rev. Dr. Landrum Leavell speaks at Crestview Baptist Church's upcoming revival, he hopes to inspire church members to carry Jesus Christ's message of redemption and salvation.

"Actually, the term revival means to live again, and a revival is designed primarily for church members," Leavell said in a telephone interview.

"Today, the definition most Christians give to revival is an evangelistic crusade. In my judgment, evangelism is a natural result of revival. People get saved when church people get revived.

"It's possible to have evangelism without revival, but a genuine revival will always result in evangelism."

Leavell, who is serving his 14th year as president of New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, will conduct revival services, along with Ty Morris Jr, director of music at Crestview, at 7 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

Leavell will also speak to the Men's Luncheon Monday, and his wife, Jo Ann Leavell, will address the Ladies Luncheon Tuesday.

He has one important credential in conducting a revival.

"I'm a person who knows and loves Jesus, and I'll be out there to share him with them," Leavell said.

"I think that's the one important credential. All the academics and other things don't make a lot of difference, when it comes down to the ultimate — does this person have something to share? I think I do.

"Biographical data can look real good, but if a person doesn't have something to say, it doesn't make any difference. Above all else, a preacher should have a good word about Jesus."

What a person has to share with another is based, Leavell said, on "one's personal experience with the Lord — the salvation experience. The depth of it will determine the testimony that he bears."

In addition to the upcoming revival, Crestview Baptist Church is celebrating its 35th anniversary this weekend.

Since organizing Aug. 2, 1953, the church has grown from a beginning membership of 171 meeting at Lamar Elementary School to a membership of 2,000 and facilities at 3300 Thomas Ave. valued at $4,839,000. Included in that valuation is the newly constructed Education/Activities Center.

The anniversary celebration begins today with a 6:30 p.m. fellowship dinner and continues with the Rev. Dr. Presnall H. Wood, the church's second pastor who moved to Midland in the fall of 1961 and left in 1968, preaching during the 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. services Sunday.

Wood, who is editor of The Baptist Standard, plans to be reflective in his talks while, at the same time, looking ahead.

His sermons will center around, he said, "The vision that God gave the people when they started in 1953, and in 35 years how they've been faithful to that vision, and the challenge to go forward."

A special presentation will be made at the Fellowship Dinner by the church's History Committee. Members of the committee are chairman Patty Hobbs, Ruth Shelburne and Jean Edwards.

During a recent telephone interview, Wood commended the church's facilities and its ministers — the Rev. Haston Brewer, the first pastor; the Rev. James "Bob" Evans; the Rev. Kenneth James; the Rev. Kenneth Hall; and the current pastor, the Rev. Dr. Rex M. Horne.

The church has a solid reputation among Midland Baptists and is "respected in Texas," Wood said.

"The strength of the church has been the lay people," Wood said. "People who have been willing to not only have a dream, but to make things possible and to give leadership."

When the 29-year-old Wood arrived in Midland, he found a growing church which was family oriented.

"I've been gone from Midland for 20 years — I left in 1968 — but as I've observed the church in these 20 years, it's been a consistently stable and to a great degree a family-oriented church."

Wood has fond memories of his time in Midland.

"We love Midland," he said. "Our youngest child was born in Midland and we like the church, we like the people in the other churches.

"Midland people are willing to take challenge and to take leadership. I liked and still like Midland kind of people. I never wanted to get on the airplane."

Although he didn't know it then, his time in Midland was to play a major role in his being offered the position of editor of the Baptist Standard, which has a circulation of a little over 300,000 and is the largest Baptist publication of its kind in the world.

Wood was working on his doctoral dissertation at Southwest Seminary in Fort Worth, when he moved to Midland. His field was church history and he chose to write his dissertation on the history of the Baptist Standard. The library at the seminary sent copies of back issues of the Baptist Standard to the Midland County Public Library.

"For three or four years between hospital visits" and church activities, "I read about 60 years of Baptist Standards on microfilm," Wood said. "The church was so good to me to let me have the time to finish working on my doctoral degree."

At the time, his only desire was "to live through it and complete the project."

From Midland, Wood went to Houston where he served for nine years as pastor at Park Place Baptist Church. In 1969, the Baptist Standard published Wood's dissertation in book form calling it "Prophets with Pens." In 1977, he was offered the job as editor.

"I did not seek the job," Wood said. In looking back, Wood has realized that his years of reading microfilm in Midland represented "an opportunity of training for this that I was totally unaware of at the time."

Woman to help inmates' families

Ed Williamson, founder and director of TEXANS DO CARE, Inc., recently announced the appointment of Mrs. Tommie Hatfield of Iraan to the position of Area Representative for Southwest Texas.

TEXANS DO CARE, Inc., is a nonprofit charitable ministry to the families of inmates. This ministry sponsors varied programs in most prisons in Texas and prepares Christian volunteers in many facets of caring ministry to inmates and their families.

"Mrs. Hatfield has long held an interest in the plight of hurting people, having experienced several years in the world of drugs and rejection," says a release from TEXANS DO CARE, Inc. "Her life over the recent years has demonstrated the power of a life lived in faith, dedicated to helping others, especially those affected by the criminal justice process."

TEXANS DO CARE functions with several hundred Christian volunteers from a wide array of congregations across the state, mostly concentrated around the larger cities.

"We are especially gratified when God raises up a servant, such as Tommie, in the more remote areas, because crime and its consequences know no boundaries," Williamson says.

"There are many, many people in this area of Texas who are undergoing the trauma of having a loved one or breadwinner in prison. There is a real need for someone with a caring heart, with competent skills and with reliable information to be available to those people. We believe Tommie will meet that need."

Mrs. Hatfield is available to speak to church groups, service clubs and other organizations and to help families of inmates to assess their needs and to help them and the community convert these usually "bad" situations to ones with more promising results. She may be reached at P.O. Box 683, Iraan, Texas, 79744. Her phone number is 1-639-2055.

St. Luke's honors minister's family

Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 S. Adams St., is honoring its first family, the Rev. and Mrs. S.V. Ferguson and daughter, Terry Lynn, with a special appreciation service at 3 p.m. Sunday with the Rev. F.W. Johnson of Antioch Missionary Baptist Church preaching the sermon.

"The Fergusons have been with Greater St. Luke for two years, contributing much to the parish and the community," says a release from Greater St. Luke.

A volunteer chaplain at Midland Memorial Hospital, Ferguson is secretary of the Ministerial Alliance and minister of the Northwest Texas Conference. He is also a member of the Kiwanis Club and an advisor in the summer children's program, SCOPE.

Mrs. Ferguson has involved herself in Church Women United, The Food Bank, Meals-on-Wheels and local missionary work. Terry Lynn, 13, plays the flute in her school band and has won first in talent performances at her school. She is the Sunday School pianist at Greater St. Luke.

The Stewart Board and members of Greater St. Luke invite the public to attend.

Sexuality study presented

"...And God Created Them Male and Female...and Now What!" — a human sexuality study for high school youth from a Christian perspective — is being presented by CLER Ministries, a local non-profit ministry, under the sponsorship of the Midland Association of Churches.

This 15-session Christian-based human sexuality course will be offered in local churches beginning the week of Sept. 11 and ending the week of Nov. 13. The classes, which are being offered to 9th graders, consist of 20 students per class and each class meets from 7 to 9 p.m.

Cost is $50 per student. The Midland Association of Churches has money available for those students who need assistance.

Enrollment is in progress. For more information call Linda Goddard, 697-5078.

Ms. Goddard, founder and president of this Midland-based ministry, has worked for the past six years with churches in Midland and surrounding areas. During that time, she has brought her Christian-based human sexuality education programs to more than 700 adults and youth.

Topical issues discussed

Some of today's most prevalent and major societal issues are the focus of a 10-week series being presented by Donnie Brackens, pastor of the Shekinah Glory Church of Midland.

The series, which will be conducted each Sunday at 11 a.m., will highlight specific issues such as family problems, drug abuse, suicide and economic conditions.

"These teachings will be practical in design and presented in a manner which will benefit the entire family," Brackens said.

The topic for Sunday is drug abuse and suicide.

The public is invited to attend. Shekinah Glory Church is located downtown at 207 N. Main St. For more information call the church, 682-8400.

King to talk about book

ODESSA — Unity of West Texas is presenting Sue King, licensed Unity teacher, in a series of talks based on the book "From a Chicken to an Eagle" by Jerry Fankhauser.

The talks began Sunday and continue through August.

"Sue takes us through the story of our path home as we discover who and what we are and the choices we may make," says a release from Unity of West Texas. "The choices are simple — chicken philosophy or eagle philosophy, the choice of love or fear, the choice of living in the barnyard or soaking in the heavens."

The talks will be presented at 9:30 a.m. at 810 Dixie, Suite 203.

Special meeting planned

"Are Apostles and Prophets for Today?" is the subject of a special meeting being held at Petroplex Covenant Church, 601 W. Missouri Ave., at 7:30 p.m. today.

"The apostle and prophet ministries are the ministries to whom the Lord has revealed the mystery of the Church," says a release from the church. "There is a great need for recognition in the church today of these ministries. God is restoring the recognition of these ministries today to prepare us for his return."

For more information call John F. Moreland Jr., senior pastor of Petroplex Covenant Church, 699-7303.

30 attend women's study

WORLD IN BRIEF

Carlucci: Soviets don't cut military resources

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said Friday the Soviet Union has not reduced the resources going into its military program.

Carlucci came to Turkey after a trip to the Soviet Union during which he visited several bases and saw secret military equipment.

"It is true that Soviets are more open in showing their military equipment and exercises," Carlucci told a news conference in Istanbul. "But we see no change whatsoever in the resources that are going into the Soviet military establishment."

Since the Soviets continue to produce a large amount of weaponry, "it is important that we as the NATO allies continue to maintain our deterrent at the highest possible level," Carlucci said.

He spent one day in Ankara where he met with Premier Turgut Ozal and Defense Minister Ercan Vuralhan. After a day in Istanbul, the secretary was to travel to the Aegean port city of Izmir for two days of sightseeing.

Vuralhan said that after talking with Carlucci, Turkish officials concluded that "uncertainties in the relationship are a thing of the past."

He said the U.S. administration was aware that Turkey was trying to modernize its armed forces and said it was doing its best to help.

The government says that about $1.2 billion in U.S. aid is needed annually for the modernization projects. This year, Congress alotted Turkey $520 million in military aid.

Whistle blowers rewarded

BEIJING (AP) — Two men received the equivalent of a year's salary as a reward for uncovering a plot to resell 1,000 tons of urea as fertilizer, it was reported Friday.

The article in the China Youth News was one of an increasing number of anti-corruption reports appearing in the Chinese press.

The Youth News said that three days after the Chengdu Economic Crime Reporting Center opened in Sichuan province in July, the men went to the center and blew the whistle on the Peng Xian County Agricultural Center.

The company had received 1,000 tons of urea, a chemical found in urine and used as fertilizer, from the government at a low, state-set price, but the urea had disappeared. An investigation revealed the vice manager of the company had resold the goods at a profit of about $65,000, the paper said.

The whistle-blowers were given rewards of about $270 each. The average salary for Chinese urban dwellers is about $245.

Corruption reporting stations are opening all over China. The government said earlier this week that by September every province will have at least one.

On Friday, it announced the opening of a telephone hotline in Beijing to report corruption.

Containers not radioactive

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The 184 metal containers that washed ashore in Black Sea coastal provinces this week do not contain radioactive material, a government official said Friday.

"Radioactivity was our main concern and this possibility has been eliminated," said Attila Ozmen, head of Turkey's Atomic Energy Organization.

Some of the containers had skulls and crossbones on them. A yellow liquid and torn pieces of clothing came out of the few drums that were opened.

Further tests on the contents will be conducted over the weekend, Ozmen said.

Officials have no clue where the drums came from but they assume they are from the same source, he added.

A West German ship with waste cargo is anchored in international waters of the Black Sea after being barred from Turkish waters.

About 1,500 tons of waste imported into Turkey five months ago from West Germany was shipped back July 29.

These incidents have led many Turks to suspect that the mysterious containers appearing on Black Sea shores could have been dumped from another ship unable to dispose of its cargo.

Ivory measures adopted

HONG KONG (AP) — The government on Friday adopted measures to prevent ivory from poached elephants from entering the country.

All carved ivory entering the British colony will require a license showing it was obtained under quotas set by the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flaura, the government said.

Previously, only unworked ivory needed such documentation.

David Melville, conservation officer of the World Wildlife Fund, said large amounts of ivory from African elephants have been shipped to Hong Kong after being roughly crafted in the Middle East.

The population of African elephants is estimated at 750,000 to 1 million, he said. The number of elephants in East Africa has declined sharply because of poaching, Melville added.

Violators of the ivory import measures could be fined a maximum of about $640 for a first offense. A second offense could bring a $1,280 fine and six months' imprisonment.

Rebels ransack town

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — About 200 rebels raided and ransacked a northeastern Ugandan town, killing at least 10 people at random, a government official said Friday.

The members of the rebel Uganda People's Army, armed with rifles, machineguns and machetes, hit the town of Ngora on Thursday, according to a senior government administrator.

Residents fled into the bush as the rebels, dressed in tattered military uniforms as well as civilian clothing, fired wildly and began to loot stores of food, clothing and utensils during the three-hour rampage in the town about 120 miles east of Kampala.

Four of the dead included government officials, said the official, who spoke on condition of not being identified.

Boycotters face suspension

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The University of Dar Es Salaam is threatening to suspend students who are boycotting lectures to press for an increase of their meal allowances, it was reported Friday.

Vice Chancellor Nicholas Kuhanga said the university executive committee met Thursday and ruled that the students' demands did not justify a boycott, the government-owned Daily News said.

The committee ordered the students to report to their deans, and those failing to do so "should consider themselves...suspended," he said.

An undetermined number of students started boycotting lectures Tuesday, saying the $1.75 daily meal allowance was inadequate. They demanded it be increased to at least $2.38.

Alleged smugglers arrested

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Authorities arrested 14 West Africans who allegedly were trying to smuggle 20 elephant tusks and half a ton of precious stones to Burundi, the government said Friday.

The contraband was found in the false bottom of a truck headed for the port of Mpulungu on the southern shores of Lake Tanganyika, said Home Affairs Minister Paul Malukutila.

Zambian police were assessing the value of the contraband, Malukutila said.

A statement from his office did not give the nationalities of the 14, but it said the government appealed to neighboring Zaire to act against West Africans using forged Zairean passports.

Ivory poaching and illicit trade in gems, including emeralds, rubies and a few diamonds, are rife in Zambia and neighboring countries.

'Rambo' fans get violent

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Moviegoers at the packed Brazil premier of "Rambo III" got violent, smashing theater windows and damaging seats before a tear gas grenade went off and emptied the house, police said Friday.

No one was injured or arrested in the incident Thursday night.

It was not clear if the tear gas was unleashed by state police trying to keep the peace or by the unruly movie fans.

Moslem leader killed

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (AP) — A Moslem Shiite leader who headed an opposition political party was shot and killed by several men Friday as he left a mosque in northwestern Pakistan, party officials said.

No one claimed responsibility for the assassination of Arif Hussain Hussaini, which touched off a riot by 500 supporters who stoned cars and buses in the eastern city of Lahore before riot police dispersed them with tear gas.

No injuries were immediately reported in the clash.

An undetermined number of gunmen shot Hussaini, 45, outside the Madrasa Maariful Silamia mosque in Peshawar when he left the building following morning prayers, said the party officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Hussaini, head of the opposition party called the Movement for Enforcement of Shia Jurisprudence, was a leader of Shitte Moslems, a minority in Pakistan where most people consider themselves Sunni Moslems.

Shiites and Sunnis both hold Mohammed as their prophet, but the Shiite sect has been at odds with the predominant Sunni branch of Islam for 1,300 years.

Hussaini's party issued a statement calling the assassination a "calculated move and a conspiracy to plunge Pakistan into civil war."

A resolution passed by the Punjab branch of Pakistan's leading opposition party, the Pakistan People's Party, said the killing was an attempt to thwart opposition demands concerning the Nov. 16 general election.

President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq dismissed the civilian government May 29 and called the general election in which candidates will be forced to run as individuals, rather than as members of a political party.

Opposition parties have called on the president to lift this condition, saying it is unfair to their candidates. Although Hussaini also opposed this condition, he was not considered a radical or an outspoken critic of the Zia.

The president issued a statement condemning the assassination. He said it "appeared to be a conspiracy by the enemies of Pakistan and Islam and their agents who were out to destroy national unity and cohesion."

In the mid-1970s, Hussaini was expelled from Iraq, which also has a Shiite minority, after being accused of stirring anti-government unrest.

He later studied in Iran, where Shiites are in the majority, and returned to Pakistan after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini came to power in Iran in 1979.

Dukakis urges Bush to agree to series of debates

Associated Press

Democrat Michael Dukakis declared on Friday that "things have been getting a little shrill on the Republican side" and urged rival George Bush to agree to meet him in a series of debates.

A Bush spokeswoman brushed the challenge aside while the vice president welcomed aboard his new campaign chairman, James Baker III, who is resigning as treasury secretary.

Meanwhile, a White House doctor released a statement giving many particulars of Bush's physical condition and pronouncing him "an unusually active and healthy man."

Also on Friday, a spokesman for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas said the Democratic vice presidential nominee is resigning from three exclusive clubs, two in Houston in one in Middleburg, Va., outside Washington.

At least two of the clubs do not have black members, but officials of all three said none excludes membership to any group of people. Bentsen "just felt it was the appropriate thing to do," said his spokesman, Jack DeVore.

The manager of one of the clubs, the Ramada Club in Houston, said Bush had been a member until shortly before becoming vice president. The manager described the club's membership as "mixed." A 1980 Houston City magazine article, citing figures from a congressional committee, said the club had no black or female members.

Bentsen was on Capitol Hill, working on Senate business, but was rejoining the campaign trail today with a trip to Corpus Christi, Texas. He was to address the same Hispanic veterans group that heard Bush strongly attack Dukakis' defense policies on Thursday.

Dukakis, campaigning Friday in Laguna Beach, Calif., noted the attack and retorted that Bush "in my judgment doesn't have what it takes to lead this country in foreign policy." He challenged his Republican rival to devote their first proposed debate on Sept. 14 to foreign policy and national security issues.

"I think the American people want a debate on the issues, and I think it's about time we began planning for it," Dukakis said.

Dukakis spoke at a news conference as his campaign released a letter from top Dukakis campaign officials to the Bush campaign asking the vice president to agree to a set of three proposed presidential debates, and a fourth between their running mates. The debates were proposed by a bipartisan presidential commission, beginning with the mid-September debate in Annapolis, Md., and Dukakis said they were generally agreed to earlier this year by all the presidential candidates including Bush.

"In the last few days things have been getting a little shrill on the Republican side," Dukakis told reporters. "I think it really is time to focus in now on debates."

The campaign letter said the Bush campaign had avoided serious discussions about setting up a debate.

Kitty Dukakis, wife of Democratic presidential nominee Gov. Michael Dukakis, signs to hearing impaired members of the American Postal Workers Union Friday in Chicago. She received a giant letter with the union's endorsement of her husband.

In Washington, Bush spokeswoman Sheila Tate said, "We have said all along, and our opponent knows this, that after our convention we will turn our attention to debates. We have not excepted any debates because we have not decided who the appropriate sponsor should be."

Dukakis also renewed his criticism of Bush and the Reagan administration, saying President Reagan vetoed the $299.5 billion defense bill "largely for political reasons" and thus broke a bipartisan consensus.

Dukakis was in California to stress environmental themes.

Campaigning along the sunny Pacific Coast, he said Friday he would ban new offshore oil drilling unless there is an "absolutely compelling" energy shortage. Such drilling is a major issue in California.

Dukakis spoke to about 1,000 people in a park on a cliff over the beach. One questioner asked what compelling reason might lead him to permit new offshore drilling as president.

"Compelling reason has to be that we are so strapped for energy that there's no alternative and I don't think tht's going to happen for a long time, if ever," Dukakis said.

Dukakis was flying later to Seattle, continuing his environmental theme, then was flying on to Denver where he was meeting today with Western state governors.

Arriving in California Thursday night, Dukakis suggested that the Reagan administration's decision to impose a temporary moratorium on oil drilling lease sales was made only because of the election and could change after that.

Robert Kennedy's children meet with Cesar Chavez

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — Children of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy met with United Farm Workers Union President Cesar Chavez to offer their support in his fight with table grape growers and urge him to end his 2½-week fast.

"There has always been criticism of persons like Cesar Chavez," Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, 37, said after the visit Thursday. "He takes on the growers and he takes on the powerful."

Kennedy's eldest child joined her sister Kerry Kennedy, 28, and brother Douglas, 21, to pay a 20-minute call on Chavez. She said she tried to persuade Chavez to eat, but he refused.

"He was in high spirits but very weak," she said.

Twenty years ago, their father, then running for the Democratic presidential nomination, paid a visit to Chavez during his first fast. Kennedy and Chavez broke bread together during an Easter Mass, ending the labor leader's 25-day fast.

The 61-year-old Chavez was in the 20th day of his latest fast Friday. He is suffering from dizziness, nausea, vomiting, dehydration, malnutrition and shedding weight at the rate of a half-pound a day, Dr. Fidel Huerta said.

"The factor here is Cesar's age. He is not as young as he used to be," Huerta said at a news conference Thursday. "Although his spirits and his motivation are as high now as they were then."

Huerta has asked Chavez to enter the hospital because of complications brought on by the fast, namely increased levels of uric acid in Chavez's blood. But Chavez, who has lost 20 pounds, so far has refused.

He is fasting to promote the union's boycott of California table grapes. He has no contract among those growers and is demanding use be abolishedof five pesticides that he says are dangerous.

Chavez claims pesticides have poisoned croplands and caused cancer in residents in farm towns, such as nearby McFarland where 13 children have been diagnosed with cancer.

Chavez has not said how long the fast will continue. He also went 25 days without food in 1972, as well as in 1968, to advance farm worker issues.

Actor Meeker dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Ralph Meeker, whose role as the macho Hal in the original production of "Picnic" led to a 50-movie career and his own television show, died Friday of a heart attack. He was 67.

Meeker died at the Motion Picture and Television Hospital in Woodland Hills, where he had been admitted in September 1987, said Jean Ferris, a hospital spokeswoman.

The actor had suffered a series of strokes over the past eight years, according to longtime friend Jim Bacon.

Amtrak train derails in Montana

SACO, Mont. (AP) — An Amtrak passenger train on its way from Chicago to Seattle derailed on the plains of northern Montana Friday afternoon, scattering wreckage over a wide area.

Ambulances were summoned from surrounding towns to the site of the wreck, and injured people were being taken to hospitals in Malta and Glasgow, said a Phillips County sheriff's dispatcher.

The number and severity of injuries was unknown, but there were no deaths, Valley County Deputy Sheriff Clay Berger said.

"I saw a cloud of dust, and I thought it was a whirlwind," said Eddie O'Brien, who was sitting at the train crossing in his car as the train passed through the farm community of Saco, about 50 miles south of the Canadian border. "The signals stayed down," he said, and that's when he knew something was wrong.

O'Brien said he thought at least six passenger cars derailed.

"They were using ladders trying to get the people out," he said. "The Saco ambulance was there and the school buses were called out there, three of them," he told The Associated Press.

"They had people on stretchers. I imagine they were really shook up," O'Brien said.

Locomotives and a baggage car on the front of the train reportedly remained upright, as did one or two cars on the back, but the other "tipped over and I saw six cars on their side," O'Brien said.

The accident occurred on a straight stretch of track about 3:45 p.m.

Dallas police officers carry the casket of fellow officer Walter L. Williams past a police honor guard after the funeral service in Irving Friday. More than 3,700 lawmen and others honored the fourth Dallas officer slain this year.

Lawmen, officials honor Dallas officer who had been slain

IRVING (AP) — Rolling past the salutes of hundreds of law officers, the body of Walter Leon Williams on Friday began its journey to the Oklahoma hometown where he had hoped to retire at the end of a police career.

Williams, the fourth Dallas policeman to be slain by hostile gunfire this year, was honored by about 3,700 law officers, city officials and others in memorial services at the Calvary Temple.

The 47-year-old Williams, whose shooting Monday is still under investigation, was remembered as a man with strong values and a deep commitment to community service.

His friends recalled how he loved the law so deeply that he could not retire after 20 years in the military, deciding instead to pursue his longtime dream of becoming a peace officer.

Williams was the oldest rookie ever to join the Dallas force.

The Rev. Joseph R. Sheppard, pastor of the Ben Washington Baptist Church in Irving where Williams served as a deacon, said the officer had died because of tough choices he had made.

"The record shows he chose to go into the darkness to find out who shot a girl," Sheppard said.

Witnesses and ballistics tests have determined Williams was shot by Joseph Howard Jr. as he investigated a disturbance and the shooting of 17-year-old Keisha Johnson at a West Oak Cliff apartment complex in Dallas. Howard was slain by police a short time later after he charged a squad car and fired one or more shots, police said.

Several at the memorial service said the black officer's death was not in vain, and that he died doing the thing he loved most — police work.

"God has a reason," said the Rev. S.M. Wright. "God knows how to use situations and people to bring about a better world. It took a death on Calvary to bring about a better mankind."

As her husband was being eulogized, his widow, Jo Ann Williams, beckoned to her oldest son and he moved into the seat beside her, trading seats with a Dallas officer.

Mrs. Williams draped her arm around the 16-year-old youth abruptly thrust into a role as the man of the family, and patted him tenderly on the shoulder.

"It's our hope and our prayer that out of this will come some redemptive purpose," Sheppard said.

Before the service ended, Sheppard had a word of comfort for the many blue-, gray- and brown-uniformed officers, many biting lips or quickly dabbing away tears.

"Be brave, be of good courage, for God will take care of you," the minister said. "Just try to live so that when this hour comes, you might hear, like Walter, 'Well done, my good and faithful servant.' "

Following the hourlong service, the coffin was opened and officers filed by. A few crossed themselves while others said quick prayers. Several wept openly, and one young officer was comforted by an older supervisor.

Many cast their eyes straight forward.

After they filed outside, the officers formed an honor line almost a quarter-mile long. Jo Ann Williams, her two sons and daughter followed the casket as it was rolled out of the church and into the bright Texas sunshine shortly after noon.

About 500 Dallas police officers are expected to attend a 1 p.m. funeral service on Saturday at the Crystal Rock Cathedral in Ardmore, Okla. A graveside service will follow at the Little Flock Cemetery in Elmore City, the town where Williams was born and will be put to rest with a 21-gun salute.

Department may hire counseling

DALLAS (AP) — The head of a Dallas police officers group said top police administators are considering group counseling to help heal a numb and frustated police force following the fourth shooting death of a Dallas officer this year.

"I think many officers need counseling desperately," said Monica Smith, president of the Dallas Police Association, following Friday's memorial service for slain officer Walter Leon Williams.

Since Williams was fatally shot in the head last Monday while investigating a disturbance, the department has been reeling with grief and confusion, Mrs. Smith said. Immediate counseling is needed by many, she said.

"They're not coping real well," she said. "There's numbness and frustration."

Mrs. Smith said she asked top police administrators following Williams' slaying if some type of counseling might become available for officers and their families. The administrators were very receptive, Mrs. Smith said.

"I talked with several officers yesterday who told me that their families are going to need some help," Mrs. Smith said.

The leader of the DPA, which is not a union but a group that tries to relay the collective goals of Dallas police to administators, said family members are under more pressure than officers when tragedy strikes a department member.

"Someone will say, 'Daddy, don't go to work,' or, 'Honey, why don't you quit?' That weighs heavily on officers' minds," Mrs. Smith said. "It's tough for families because they can't go out on the streets and see how things really are. All they can do is sit home and wait."

Mrs. Smith took time to compliment new Chief Mack M. Vines, acting Chief Lou Caudell and other high-ranking police administrators for they way they have opened their doors and taken time to talk with individual officers during what she calls a department crisis.

The Greater Dallas Crime Commission, a law enforcement advocacy group, also is concerned about low morale within the department and has called a public forum Monday morning at The Stoneleigh hotel to discuss the problem.

Wright accuses Bush of 'scare tactics'

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright on Friday accused Vice President George Bush of using "scare tactics" when the Republican presidential candidate said Democrat Michael Dukakis would weaken America and make the world unsafe.

"No party has an exclusive franchise on patriotism," Wright said at the American GI Forum's national convention, where Bush Thursday attacked Dukakis on foreign policy issues.

"To think that national defense is a partisan issue, I think is a foolish thought," added Wright, D-Fort Worth. "We all live under the threat of a mushroom cloud."

Bush on Thursday said Dukakis' opposition to various weapons programs and Reagan administration policies in the Middle East and Central America amounted to an abandonment of the Democratic Party's mainstream typified by former presidents Harry Truman and John Kennedy.

Bush also implied that Dukakis would cut funding for the Naval Station Ingleside homeport under construction north of Corpus Christi, which is expected to create thousands of new jobs in the area.

"Let nobody frighten you with scare tactics," Wright said of those suggestions, and added that Democrats played a role in obtaining funds for the homeport.

Wright also took the Reagan to task for his veto Wednesday of a $299.5 billion defense budget.

"There was not one suggestion from anybody in the Department of Defense that it was inadequate," Wright told the Hispanic veterans' and civil rights organization.

Texas State Treasurer Ann Richards later echoed Wright's criticism of the defense bill veto.

"It seems to me rather incongruous that you would have a vice president of an administration for eight years that talks an awful lot about defense, spends billions of our tax dollars on planes that won't fly, tanks that can't shoot," Ms. Richards said.

"And then when a bill passes a bipartisan Congress and goes to the president's desk that provides pay raises for our military, that provides money for fighting drugs in the military, that provides training for the military in South Korea and the European sector, the president vetoes it," she said. "Now, I'm a little tired of an administration that tells me one thing and does something entirely different."

She and Wright also said the nation's defense would be endangered by cuts the Reagan administration has proposed in education funding.

Wright said the $300 billion the federal government spends annually for defense dwarfs the $18 billion in funding for education.

"What good does it do if we spend billions of dollars for defense (systems) if our young people can't read the instructions to operate them?" Ms. Richards asked.

Some GI Forum leaders remained disturbed, however, by Dukakis' decision not to attend the convention, and political tension remained Friday between Republicans and Democrats in the organization.

Mario Diaz, national chairman of the GI Forum, who is a Republican, at one point reminded delegates that political signs and placards would not be allowed during a general assembly Friday afternoon.

Several prominent Democrats decided to attend the convention at the last minute, apparently trying to shore up damage from the Bush appearance and the Dukakis no-show.

Unscheduled Democrats who arrived Friday included U.S. Rep. Albert Bustamante of San Antonio, U.S. Rep. John Bryant of Dallas and former New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya.

STATE IN BRIEF

Adair says team faced flames, cold winds

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil well firefighter Red Adair, back from battling a blaze in the North Sea that killed 167 people, said his team faced flames and cold winds on the ravaged North Sea Piper Alpha platform.

Occidental, the rig's operator and main owner, hired Adair after a July 6 explosion destroyed most of the platform off the Scotland coast. Adair and his four-man team were hired to make the rig safe, seal the leaks and save the oil wells to which the rig is connected.

Two members of Adair's team returned with him Thursday on a flight from Amsterdam to Houston, while two remained overseas.

The 74-year-old Adair, who has battled nearly 1,200 oil fires since he began the dangerous career in 1958.Adair said conditions on the platform were "dirty, hot, wet and cold. The platform had tilted down into the water. Most of it was on the ocean floor."

He said the temperature fluctuated because of the flames and cold winds.

Adair conducted preliminary inspection of the Piper Alpha platform from a basket suspended above the flames and smoke.

On July 29, Adair and his team capped the last two wellheads. Adair said the team pumped seawater in to put out the fires, then plugged the wellheads with cement.

Greg Spedale, 31, said the disaster is the first in his experience involving casualties.

"The atmosphere was different because we were working beside the Occidental workers who had lost their friends," he said. "When it was time for work, everyone worked, and when it was done, it was time for grief and sorrow."

Jordan eager to go home

AUSTIN (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan, still hospitalized from her July 30 swimming pool accident, is eager to leave, a hospital spokeswoman said Friday, but doctors want her to wait until Sunday or Monday.

Spokeswoman Kari Larsen said Ms. Jordan, 52, remained in fair and stable condition at Brackenridge Hospital.

"She's in great spirits, her lungs are still healing," Ms. Larsen said.

Ms. Jordan, who teaches at the University of Texas Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, was in Congress for three terms and also was the first black state senator in Texas history.

She nearly drowned in her backyard pool about noon last Saturday.

Doctors says she suffers from a disease similar to multiple sclerosis that has confined her to a wheelchair, and she has used the pool for exercise for several years.

Hill wants court nomination

AUSTIN (AP) — Justice John G. Hill announced Friday that he wants the Democratic nomination for the Texas Supreme Court.

Hill, who serves on the 2nd Court of Appeals in Fort Worth, hopes to attain the position that will be left vacant by the resignation of Supreme Court Justice Jim Wallace.

In his 15-year career as a judge, Hill, 44, served as a Fort Worth municipal judge, a county court-at-law judge and a district judge before his appointment to the court of appeals.

The 64-member State Democratic Executive Committee will choose the nominee, who will appear on the ballot in the Nov. 8 general election.

Station marks 40th anniversary

HEREFORD (AP) — A lot in the radio business has changed since 1948, when station KPAN-AM-FM first went on the air, according to station owner Clint Formby.

Formby was the first voice ever heard on the Hereford station when it appeared on the air on a rainy August 4, 1948. He got things rolling with a song by Spade Cooley.

"It was western swing, a country sound with violins, not fiddles, and brass," he told The Hereford Brand this week as the station celebrated its 40th anniversary. "And I totally obliterated the first commercial."

The news on KPAN in 1948 was much different from today's news, Formby said.

"It was much more personal," he said. "Bessie Patterson drove out every morning. We had a lot of society news. A wedding might get 2-3 minutes and there were other things. What we might call our big news item today might be the last thing she would talk about."

There were no disc jockeys in 1948 playing record after record.

"We were announcers and we played transcriptions," Formby said. "They were huge disks that we would play at 33 1/3. There were not many choices available."

KPAN was founded by Formby's uncle, Marshall Formby, who led his nephew into the business.

Clint Formby has kept the tradition of being the first voice on the air at radio stations he purchased in Temple, Huntsville and Levelland.

"Of course, one thing that helped us when we went on the air was that there was no television," he said. "There was nothing to compare what to what."

Rubber bullets' victims include Arab children playing at home

EDITOR'S NOTE: Palestinians throw stones and sometimes firebombs at Israelis in the uprising on the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Israeli soldiers sometimes strike back with live ammunition, but more often with rubber bullets, tear gas, and clubbings. The rubber bullets, which are not intended to kill, are taking a toll, nevertheless, and Palestinian children have been caught by them in the crossfire. Some have lost their eyes, leaving them in a state of trauma and with little understanding of what happened to them. At the same time, the stones and firebombs are leaving Israelis seriously injured, some maimed for life. Following are two stories by Associated Press correspondents on how the disorders have tragically afflicted individuals on both sides of the conflict.

"When my daughter is old enough to understand. I will tell her: 'The Jewish soldiers came here and opened fire, and that's how you lost your eye.'"
— Safia Sharafi, mother of Fidah Sharafi, a nine-month-old girl hit by a rubber bullet

By MARY SEDOR

RAMALLAH, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Three-year-old Rasha Hoshiyeh stabs out the eyes of her dolls and stuffed animals.

She is trying to understand, her mother says, what happened when a rubber bullet fired by an Israeli soldier put out her left eye.

"She's not the same Rasha," said her mother, Majdouleen Hoshiyeh. "At night she looks at herself in the mirror without her eye and sometimes she starts to cry."

Rasha Hoshiyeh was playing at the door of her family's home in the West Bank town of Ramallah in March when the rubber bullet, fired by one of the soldiers chasing Palestinian protesters, smashed through the glass and hit her in the left eye.

"The force of the bullet knocked Rasha over. The eyeball was hanging outside the socket, there was blood flowing everywhere," Mrs. Hoshiyeh, 24, recalled in an interview.

Rasha has since undergone two operations. Today, the dark-haired child with curly pigtails and long black lashes wears an immobile glass eye several shades darker than her chestnut-colored right eye.

Since losing her eye, Rasha is more nervous, her mother said. Evidence of that is a blond-haired doll and teddy bear that sit eyeless on a shelf in her bedroom.

Eye loss is among the most dramatic of the injuries suffered by 36,000 Palestinians hurt by gunfire, tear gas, beatings or rubber bullets during the seven-month-old Palestinian uprising on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Of the total, about 6,000 have suffered lasting injuries, according to figures compiled from hospital and field reports by the Arab-run Human Rights Information Center.

One Palestinian, Yussef Abu Eid, 32, was killed in March by a rubber bullet fired at point blank range into his right eye. Two soldiers were charged with manslaughter.

One of the youngest Palestinians to lose an eye is 9-month-old Fidah Sharafi of the Jabaliya refugee camp in the Gaza Strip. On June 6, troops chasing demonstrators fired rubber bullets into the marketplace where, her mother said, they had gone to buy milk.

"When my daughter is old enough to understand," said Safia Sharafi, 22. "I will tell her: 'The Jewish soldiers came here and opened fire, and that's how you lost your eye.'"

Another infant victim was Hoda Masoub.

On June 1, Hoda's mother grabbed her daughter and ran into the narrow alleyway after troops hurled a tear gas canister into her home while pursuing stone-throwing youths. Hoda was hit by seven rubber bullets.

"My daughter is disfigured for life and she did nothing," said Mrs. Masoub, 29, as her daughter sat sucking a lollipop, her face half-concealed by a bandage and her right arm in a cast.

Dr. Ziad Jaouni, an ophthalmologist at St. John's Eye Hospital in Jerusalem, said 81 Palestinians had been treated at the facility for eye injuries received in clashes with troops. Of that group, 42 lost their eyes — about half of them innocent bystanders.

"We have treated many small children and elderly people who were not demonstrating. They were hit while standing in windows, doorways or on balconies," he said.

Doctors say dozens of others with serious eye damage or loss have been hospitalized elsewhere.

Eye injuries have been caused primarily by the cork-shaped rubber bullets, which are embedded with a hard metal core.

An Israeli army spokesman, Col. Ranaan Gissin, said rubber bullets do not have a straight trajectory and aiming is difficult when soldiers are chasing rioters.

"We don't fire rubber bullets at children and their mothers," Gissin said. "It is one of the non-lethal means we use to disperse a mob and is not intended to cause bodily harm."

Paralyzed Israeli soldier seeks revenge against Arab assailant

By KARIN LAUB

JERUSALEM (AP) — Dan Cohen, a 20-year-old soldier, was struck in the head by a 65-pound block thrown from a rooftop while he patrolled the occupied West Bank city of Nablus in March.

The injury left him paralyzed from the chest down and confined to a wheelchair.

"I'm very angry," said Cohen, who is expected to remain in the hospital here at least until September. "If I found him (the assailant), I would hang him from a high tree."

But Moshe Nussbaum, who was badly burned on the hands in a firebomb attack while on reserve duty in the West Bank, said he had no intention of seeking revenge.

"They weren't after Moshe Nussbaum. They were after Israeli soldiers, and they found me. Those are the rules of this war. I can understand it. I can't say I hate those kids."

Cohen and Nussbaum are among 428 Israeli soldiers injured since the Dec. 8 start of the Palestinian uprising in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. In addition, 272 Israeli civilians have been hurt.

Army officials said they could not provide a breakdown of injuries, but according to media reports most soldiers have been injured by stones and a smaller number burned in firebomb attacks.

During the same period, about 36,000 Palestinians were hurt by army gunfire, tear gas, rubber bullets and beatings, according to the Palestinian-run Human Rights Information Center. It estimated 6,000 suffered lasting injuries.

Israelis involved in the confrontations with Palestinians say homemade weapons used by Palestinian youths are far more lethal than people realize.

"Firebombs are dangerous weapons," said Nussbaum, 35, a police reporter for Israel radio when he wasn't on military reserve duty. "I used to say on the radio, 'Two people were hurt by a firebomb.' Now I understand the real meaning of the word."

Nussbaum and two other soldiers were on patrol in the West Bank village of Janiyeh on June 9 when a firebomb was hurled into their open jeep.

"It exploded between my friend and me," Nussbaum said. "I started to burn, so I jumped out and rolled on the ground to extinguish the flames."

Nussbaum was burned severely on his hands and back and was given skin transplants. He has been unable to return to work because he has not regained the full use of his hands.

In retaliation for the attack, the army blew up two homes belonging to three suspects and sealed the house of a fourth. The army also has begun to issue fire-retardant overalls to soldiers.

Cohen was on patrol in the narrow alleyways of Nablus' old city when the block was dropped on his head March 19. The assailant has not been found.

"We were afraid because we did not know from where they would throw the next stone at us...It was like a war," Cohen said in an interview.

But he added that the Israelis were at a disadvantage despite their superior weapons and firepower.

"The Arabs knew our orders on opening fire. They knew we weren't allowed to shoot at stone-throwers and that as soldiers we could not run away from the stones. So what was left was to be hit by stones and shut up."

Cohen, who says he hopes to study commercial photography after his release from the hospital, complained that injuries to soldiers were largely ignored while the media focused on the Palestinians.

"When a soldier gets hurt nothing is written about it," he said. "I would like it to be known that not only the Arabs are suffering."

Militant Jewish patrols take to Jerusalem's streets

JERUSALEM (AP) — A clenched fist thrust inside a Star of David is their insignia, a symbol of their anger and their allegiance.

Loaded guns and lengthy arrest records represent their willingness to express both.

"The Arabs are more afraid of us than the police," says Shmuel Herman, an immigrant to Israel from Elizabeth, N.J. "We have a freer hand."

Herman is a member of the Committee for Safe Roads, an innocuous name for a militant group whose armed patrols in Arab sectors of Jerusalem have stirred emotions in this divided city.

The group is made up of followers of American-born Rabbi Meir Kahane and his Kach movement, which advocates expelling all Arabs from Israeli-controlled territory.

They patrol in vans and on foot in defiance of police, who have arrested 20 of the vigilantes in six days. Some officials fear the group will provoke violence between the Holy City's 135,000 Palestinians and 340,000 Jews.

"They are absolutely irresponsible elements and one has to do everything to stop them," Mayor Teddy Kollek said on Israel radio last week.

On one patrol, four men whose ages range from 16 to 24 drove through Arab east Jerusalem to the Jewish community of Neve Yaacov and escorted bus No. 25, often a target of Arab stoning attacks, to the center of the city.

Shmuel Ben Yishai, organizer of the patrols, said many Jews appreciate the efforts of his committee. He was among those detained and warned by police, but he said that if he catches a Palestinian stone-thrower, "I will break his arm."

All 20 of those detained were freed on bail of up to $3,750 after being charged with incitement, and most are patrolling again.

One recent day, the van drove slowly past mosques, Palestinian restaurants, stores and homes in east Jerusalem. The four men looked out the windows. A 9mm handgun rested on the dashboard.

As it passed three Arab workers eating lunch beneath a tree, 22-year-old Shmuel Dayan, formerly of Minneapolis, Minn., shouted: "We're from Kahane!"

Herman, also one of the men arrested, says the volunteer patrols literally look for trouble.

"We keep our eyes open for some suspicious-looking Arab, someone who looks around like a thief in America. Then we drive back and forth. If we catch them trying to hurt an Israeli, we rough them up. Sometimes, we put them in the trunk of the car and take them to the police."

Herman, 24, said the committee has about 100 volunteers in Jerusalem, 80 in the West Bank and 60 in Haifa, the northern port city.

They saw no suspicious Palestinians in that recent hour-long patrol, however.

"It's a shame. I wanted to see some action," Herman said.

Kahane's supporters began citizen convoys in March 1987 — generally in the occupied West Bank, where most of them live as settlers — and began patrolling Jerusalem two weeks ago.

Arab east Jerusalem, which Israel captured in the 1967 war and has annexed, has become a focal point of the rebellion against Israeli rule in the occupied territories.

Midlanders charged with possession

From Staff Reports

Three persons were charged Friday with selling speed from a downtown Midland apartment, hours after they were arrested by Midland County sheriff's officers.

Kristi Kae Tarver, 28, 3701 Gulf Ave., and Fred Hernandez Villareal, 33, 307 N. Carrizo St., were charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, sheriff's investigator Fred Stubbs said. Bond for each was set at $35,000 by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine, Stubbs said.

Ignacio Villegas, 22, who lists a Midland post office box as an address, was charged with possession of a controlled substance, and his bond was also set at $35,000, the officer said.

The trio was arrested about 2:30 a.m. Friday at an apartment a few blocks from the Midland County Courthouse, Stubbs said. He declined to name the apartment complex.

About $1,500 cash, three handguns, at least 60 new syringes, more than 100 plastic baggies, and several scales were found in the apartment and confiscated, Stubbs said.

"We had received information that some selling of methamphetamine was probably going on there," he said. "We started the investigation about a week ago."

Another person was at the apartment at the time of the raid, but was not arrested, Stubbs said.

Man hurt in accident

From Staff Reports

A Midland man was injured in a two-vehicle accident south of the city Friday afternoon, the Department of Public Safety reported.

Leroy Andrew Cagle was listed in stable condition at Midland Memorial Hospital with a compound fracture of his left ankle, DPS reports said.

The accident occurred on FM 715 just after 5 p.m. about three miles south of Midland when a 1969 Buick four-door sedan driven by John Paul Holt of Midland collided with a 1978 Harley-Davidson motorcycle driven by Cagle, the report said.

Holt was northbound on FM 715 when he attempted to turn into a private drive and turned in front of Cagle, who was headed in the opposite direction when the accident occurred, according to the DPS.

LULAC will hold banquet

From Staff Reports

The Midland chapter of the League of United Latin American Citizens is holding a scholarship banquet 7 p.m. tonight at the Holiday Inn Country Villa.

Speaking at the banquet will be Andres Tovar of Washington, D.C., chairman of LULAC's National Education Committee. Tovar will address among other topics the high Hispanic dropout rate in Midland — 49 percent, according to a LULAC survey.

The banquet is sponsored by the Mobil Oil Corp. Fourteen recent high school graduates and college students will receive scholarships totaling $6,000 during the event.

Man's death ruled suicide

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A Tom Green County grand jury Friday stated the mysterious March 1987 shooting death of a San Angelo landscaper was a suicide.

Grand jurors said that someone tampered with Jeffrey Dale Mazuk's partially clothed body before authorities reached a ranch near Christoval where the body was found. But grand jurors said they "could draw no conclusions as to who tampered with the body based on the available evidence."

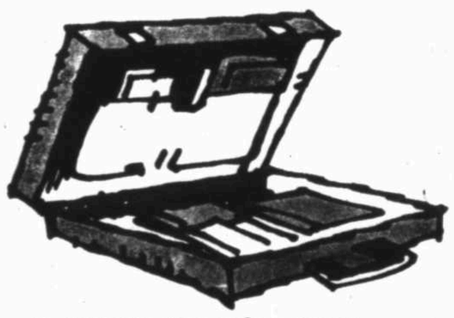

The grand jury heard four witnesses, including two psychiatrists who treated Mazuk.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative. Run your ad for at least one week, or use our special rate.

Remember, you can cancel your ad as soon as you get the desired results!

DRIVE THE EUROPEAN LUXURY SEDAN THAT COMES WITH THE BEST EXCHANGE RATE.

Over the years, Volvos have developed a well-deserved reputation for durability. So it should come as no surprise to discover that the value of a Volvo also holds up well over the years.

In fact, compared to every other line of European luxury imports, Volvo retains the highest overall projected resale value after five years according to *The Complete Car Cost Guide. An accomplishment not even Mercedes-Benz could match.
So if you want the European luxury sedan with the best exchange rate, exchange your car for a Volvo.
