Narcotics Roundup Begins

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

About 50 sealed indictments, representing what is believed to be one of the largest actions against organized crime in the state, were returned today by a 99th District Court grand jury.

While officials with the criminal district attorney's office refused comment at noon, sources said a large part of the indictments deal with widespread narcotic traffic.

Those sources told The Avalanche-Journal some of the persons named in the indictments are accused of heroin trafficking that extends outside the boundaries of the South Plains.

Evidence presented to the grand jury for the last two days was the result of an extensive undercover operation participated in by investigators from the district attorney's office, Drug Enforcement Administration agents, Department of Public Safety, Lubbock and Slaton police, Lubbock County Sheriff's Department, Texas Rangers and federal agents.

Warrants were being prepared at noon and officers reportedly were meeting at the DPS office to coordinate efforts to round up those named in the indictments.

Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford was scheduled to hold a news conference this afternoon to elaborate on the county grand jury's indictments.

Mackey Leaves Tech For MSU

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas Tech University president M. Cecil Mackey, 50, was named president of Michigan State University this morning after a unanimous vote of the MSU advisory selection committee and the board of trustees.

Mackey had been considered the front-runner for the post since it was revealed Tuesday that he was being interviewed for the job.

Mackey is to assume office no later than Sept. 1, though he said this morning he hoped to be in office sooner — possibly by the first of August.

The announcement came about 8:45 a.m. after selection committee members met with trustees to cast the final ballots. But Mackey called Texas Tech Board of Regents Chairman Robert Pfluger shortly before midnight Wednesday to indicate he would be named MSU president today.

"He called me last night around 11 p.m. and said they were going to name him this morning," Pfluger said. "I can't blame him for taking the job."

Mackey's appearance in East Lansing, Mich., and on the MSU campus on Tuesday came as a surprise to Tech administrators and regents alike, many of whom believed Mackey to be in Washington, D.C.

He was scheduled to meet with a task group of the Advisory Council for the National Science Foundation Wednesday. But a staff worker for that organization said Mackey called shortly before the meeting was to begin to leave word that he would not be attending.

Mackey was expected to return to Lubbock tonight.

Pfluger said he had been contacted about six weeks ago by a trustee emeritus from MSU, who was asking for information on Mackey's term as president at Tech. He explained to Pfluger that Mackey was a candidate for president, saying they were "looking for a man with moxie."

"With all honesty and sincerity, I told him how I felt about Mackey," Pfluger said. The MSU representative reportedly was concerned about Mackey's ability to jump in and take charge.

"Yes, he'll have to take charge of the situation," was Pfluger's assessment of Mackey's abilities. Mackey's "take charge" attitude has at times caused friction in his dealings with the Tech board, which did not always want to be led.

Not long after the MSU phone call, Mackey called Pfluger to brief him on the situation:

"I want you to know my name has surfaced as a candidate for the president of Michigan State University," Mackey reportedly told Pfluger. Mackey told Pfluger that he had asked to have his name removed from consideration.

In late April, Mackey was being considered for the job along with Archie Dykes of the University of Kansas and Charles Ping, president of Ohio University. Mackey and Dykes reportedly withdrew after their names were released.

"In my mind, it was over with," Pfluger said of his April conversation with Mackey. "I didn't know about this trip," Pfluger said, adding that first notice he had of Mackey's presence in East Lansing came after reading an Avalanche-Journal story Wednesday morning.

Pfluger said he dreaded the search procedure to replace Mackey, adding that he would try to call a meeting of the Board of Regents for June 15 to start the procedure.

"I think Dr. Mackey has done a wonderful job, internally," Pfluger commented.

Mackey said this morning that he had a "major commitment" to affirmative action, the support of which was consi-

Carter Still Backing Voluntary Controls

A-J News Services

WASHINGTON — President Carter said emphatically today he will not fight inflation by imposing mandatory wage and price controls.

In remarks prepared for delivery to the new United Food and Commercial Workers Union, he appeared to scotch some speculation that he might have to scrap his 7 percent "voluntary" wage-price guidelinee in the face of rising inflation.

"I will not slap mandatory government controls on wages and prices just through the 1980 elections and then later watch inflation skyrocket out of control," the president said.

"I will never fight inflation by deliberately throwing millions of Americans out of work."

His remarks came after a federal appeals court temporarily stayed a lower court order telling Carter to stop threatening companies which violate his guidelines. Organized labor is demanding mandatory wage-price controls.

In Washington, Carter's inflation fighters charged today that five oil firms apparently violated government price guidelines and that United Airlines' new labor contract probably broke the wage standard.

The five oil companies cited included Getty Oil of Los Angeles, The Charter Co. of Jacksonville, Fla., Time Oil Co. of Seattle, National Cooperative Refinery Association of Kansas, and the Corpus Christi refinery of Champlin Petroleum.

There was no immediate comment by the companies.

Today's action indicated that the administration intends to fight for compliance with its voluntary wage-price guidelines despite a recent setback in federal court, mounting union opposition and a stubbornly high inflation rate.

The wage-price council also said that a recent contract between National Electrical Contractors Association and Local 48 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in Portland, Ore., is out of compliance with the wage standards.

So far, the council has ruled definitively that only two firms have violated the price standard: Amerada Hess Corp., an oil company, and the cement division of Ideal Basic Industries.

United Airlines estimated that its new contract with the Machinists Union would boost labor costs by 34 percent over three years. But the nation's largest airline previously has said it believes the pact conforms with Carter's voluntary guidelines.

However, the council said today in a preliminary analysis that it believes the contract is not in compliance with the 7 percent wage increase standard.

Upon receiving notices of "probable non-compliance," accused violators have 10 days to respond before the council makes a final ruling.

Both United and the Machinists are expected to contest the charges.

Even if the council rules against the airline, however, it is unlikely that the administration can do anything about it short of holding United up to public criticism.

Saying he will not make decisions simply because they might be politically popular, Carter spoke out against selfishness by Americans.

"I am tired of seeing America pulled apart by selfishness," he said. "Our country was not built by people who said 'me first, me last and me always.'

"I did not campaign across this country with my family for two or three years just to sit in comfort in the White House, or to read in future history books I Was once president of the United States.

"I sought this office to lead — to face problems regardless of their difficulty. If the decisions I must make to safeguard the future of our country cost me some political support, then let the chips fall where they may."

Airlines Face Costly Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's fleet of DC-10s is grounded for at least a week, creating continued turmoil at airline terminals and mounting costs for airlines, as engineers seek to correct what may be a design defect in the big jet's engine mounting system.

The plans of many travelers coming to the United States also are being disrupted because of a Federal Aviation

(Related story on Page 10, Sec. D)

Administration decision to bar foreign-operated DC-10s from U.S. airspace until the problem is resolved.

"It's going to be some time," FAA chief Langhorne M. Bond said Wednesday when asked how long the DC-10s will be out of service. "The grounding will remain in effect until the problem is found, analyzed and cured."

He said the planes won't be airborne again until McDonnell Douglas Corp., the plane's manufacturer, proves the aircraft is safe. He said that would take at least a week — longer if a major design change is required.

Bond said the FAA will work closely with the plane's builder to pinpoint the problem and fix it.

"We're going to outline our main design and maintenance procedures first and work from there," he said.

The FAA suspended the design certificate of the troubled DC-10 Wednesday after fresh hairline cracks were found in the engine mounts of two jets that had been checked and cleared during other inspections conducted just a week ago. The order affecting foreign-operated DC-10s was issued later in the day.

In Long Beach, Calif., McDonnell Douglas released a statement calling the FAA action "extreme and unwarranted" and said it is considering going into court to try to overturn

It was the fourth time in a week that all or some of the 138 U.S.-registered jets had been grounded in the aftermath of the May 25 crash of a DC-10 in Chicago. The American Airlines plane crashed and burned after an engine fell off during takeoff, killing 275 persons in the worst U.S. aviation disaster.

Bond said FAA investigators had discovered a possible design problem in the aft rear bulkhead of the DC-10 engine mounting, which is one of the points where the engine attaches to the wing. A 10-inch crack that existed before the accident was found in this section in the engine that fell off the DC-10 in Chicago.

Asked how such a design defect might slip by FAA inspection, he replied, "If our suspicions are correct, it got through the process somehow. That's what we've got to figure out."

Bond said the adequacy of FAA inspection procedures will be looked into during the investigation. "Nothing will be exempt from the sweep that will follow," he said. "But right now our focus is on what caused the Chicago crash."

The new grounding came in the form of an emergency suspension of the DC-10's design certificate, which is required before the FAA certifies an aircraft model as airworthy. Bond said that while the order covered the design of the entire plane, "we're concerned with the engine pylon assembly only."

Under the order, the entire domestic fleet of DC-10s will remain on the ground until the plane is certified safe.

The grounding took its toll on the airlines and the traveling public as the 60,000 to 70,000 passengers who ride U.S.-registered DC-10s each day sought alternate transportation. Airlines rolled out reserve planes, travelers crowded airports, vacations were disrupted and business appointments were missed.

Bond Foes Rebuffed By Court

By SYLVIA TEAGUE

City Hall critics James G. Marshall and Robert Lee Isom Jr. lost their attempt this morning to have a validation of $9.5 million in City of Lubbock bonds set aside, but Marshall announced he has filed yet another suit against the city over the bonds.

Marshall and Isom had filed a petition for a bill of review last month, asking 137th District Judge Robert C. Wright to set aside his December, 1978, judgment validating the general obligation bonds.

However, city attorneys were successful in challenging the court's jurisdiction over the request for a bill of review and Wright dismissed the case.

In the petition for the bill of review, Marshall and Isom claimed they were being forced to pay more than their share of the court costs for the validation proceedings and, ironically, Wright

Blockade Strategy Used By Protesting Truckers

By The Associated Press

Three hundred trucks parked four abreast and blocked a mile-long section of the Indiana Toll Road early today, as independent truckers in several states stepped up protests against rising fuel costs.

Elsewhere, truckers took complaints to the source, using their big rigs to block pumps at truck stops, mainly in the West and Midwest.

At least one truck stop was blockaded on Interstate 70 in Denver as the 210-member Colorado Association of Independent Truckers joined in a call for a nationwide shutdown.

It was causing concern among shippers such as Joe Oran, president of Scott Truck Line in Commerce City, Colo., who said he couldn't find drivers for 10 truckloads of beef sitting in refrigerated trailers in his lot. He said each trailer contains $50,000 to $100,000 worth of meat.

Indiana State Trooper Dan Hiexenbaugh said trucks began lining up shortly after midnight at the Burns Harbor exit near Indiana's deep-water port on Lake Michigan and a Bethlehem Steel Corp. complex. Four hours later they were jammed four abreast a half mile in either direction from the exit, he said.

"They requested to talk to the news media," the trooper said.

Hiexenbaugh said eastbound Interstate 94 where it crosses the toll road also was blocked, but traffic was diverted, and "as far as we know there was nobody there who didn't want to be."

The truckers started pulling away before the morning rush hour of mill workers and port employees.

While some truckers predicted the protest would gather steam across the country today, leaders of the Independent Truckers Association were scheduled to meet with federal officials in Washington to discuss the diesel shortage.

The association has not sanctioned the action, which the dissident truck drivers are terming a wildcat strike.

In West Fargo, N.D., today, six trucks blocked a truck stop, and only one truck stop within 30 miles of Bismark was selling diesel fuel. The rest had shut down in sympathy with truckers.

In Utah, truckers set up pickets Wednesday night at major truck stops and a couple of freight companies and food chains.

Jim Shaw, president of the Utah chapter of the Independent Truckers Association, said the threatened shutdown has produced "a heck of a decrease" in truck traffic across the state over the last two days.

"There's guys sitting all around, and they aren't letting anybody fill any trucks," said Ken Williams, who was working early today at the High Forest Truck Stop in Rochester, Minn. Other stops across the state were also tied up.

Action Planned On Windfall Tax

A-J News Services

WASHINGTON — House and Senate leaders agreed today to attempt to pass a windfall oil profits tax before they leave for a month-long vacation Aug. 3, and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said it would be a tough one.

O'Neill said representatives of the House and Senate leadership and of the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee agreed on a timetable at a breakfast meeting.

The House, which considers all tax measures first, will attempt to pass the tax before the July 4 recess, and the Senate will attempt to pass it before the August recess, O'Neill said.

President Carter has asked for the windfall profits tax to offset the extra revenue that will go to oil companies as price controls are gradually removed from crude production during the next two years.

On another energy front, an American farm leader is trying to work out an apparently unprecedented deal to buy oil from the militant Arab state of Libya in return for wheat, corn and farm machinery.

Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, is conducting quiet negotiations with Libyan officials in an effort to ease the farmers' shortage of diesel fuel. More than 3 million American farmers are members of the federation.

If the talks succeed, farm cooperatives will import the high quality, expensive Libyan crude and sell their agricultural products to the oil-rich nation.

"What we would like to do is to develop a contract for continuing supplies," Grant said.

State Department officials said they did not think there would be any objections to the arrangement Grant is trying to work out.

"The only restriction we have is military-related sales," said one official, who asked not to be identified.

In fact, he said, "with the balance of payments deficit, we want to encourage deals."

Last year, the United States ran up a deficit of about $3.3 billion in trade with Libya, mostly because of rising oil prices.

Imports cost $3.7 billion while exports, including some food, were worth about $425 million.

Last month, the State Department, concerned about an expansion of Libya's military capability, recommended cancellation of a proposed sale of Boeing 747 jetliners to that country.

Libya is reported to have financed terrorist raids against Israel, fought a brief border war with Egypt in July 1977 and has led Arab "rejectionists" in condemning Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for signing a peace treaty with Israel.

In deliberations of the oil cartel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Libya is one of the most hawkish, and Libyan oil is among the most expensive — and highest quality — in the world.

Grant, contacted by telephone in Saw Mill Creek, Ohio, where he was attending a board meeting of the Farm Bureau, said he met first with a visiting Libyan delegation in Miami earlier this year and then flew to Tripoli for talks with Ahmed Shahati, a top official in the Khadafy government.

The farm leader said he will fly to Libya again in a few weeks.

Berle Delivers Eulogy

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — In a rare serious moment, comedian Milton Berle delivered the eulogy at a memorial service for Jim Hutton, the tall, boyish-looking actor who starred in "Ellery Queen" and more than a dozen motion pictures.

BERLE

Hutton also was remembered as a man of "spirit, robust good looks and vitality," by Monsignor John V. Sheridan during services attended by about 80 people at Our Lady of Malibu Roman Catholic Church on Wednesday. "That is how Jim will live with all of us," said Monsignor Sheridan.

The 45-year-old Hutton died Saturday of liver cancer after being hospitalized at Los Angeles New Hospital nearly four weeks.

Architect Honored By Peers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — I.M. Pei, the Chinese-born architect whose bold geometric shapes have won him the highest professional and public praise, is now one of the few holders of the American Institute of Architects highest award.

Pei was given the award, a gold medal, at the AIA national convention in Kansas City Wednesday. Only 41 architects have received the award since its inception in 1907.

In his speech, Pei, 62, called on his colleagues to contribute more to public service. "If Thomas Jefferson could find time to serve as a member of the local school board in Washington while he was president, so can we find time for public service," he said.

Sanjay Gandhi Named In Charges

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Sanjay Gandhi, the politically active son of former prime minister Indira Gandhi, has been charged with attempted murder, rioting and armed robbery, according to the Press Trust of India.

The news agency said the charges, filed in a local magistrate's court against Gandhi and 11 others, arose from a violent May 1 demonstration here protesting the special courts set up to try Mrs. Gandhi for alleged abuse of power.

When asked about the report, Gandhi said he was unaware that formal charges had been filed. He said he thought the case was a reaction to a complaint of police brutality he had filed earlier.

Standing Room Only

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — David Turosak is so certain a piece of the Skylab space station will fall next to his Richmond home that he's selling tickets to anyone who wants to come and watch.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

The $5 tickets pay for a chair from which to observe the action and all the beer you can drink. Spectators have to bring their own sunglasses, though. Turosak says "the color will be intense."

Turosak, 23, dreamed Skylab will come flaming down to earth on July 3 and that a piece of it "the size of a Volkswagen" will fall next door to his Grove Avenue home.

Scientists expect the Skylab, in orbit since 1973, to fall between June 27 and July 21, with a 50-50 chance it will come down July 9.

Turosak says he isn't frightened, even though the 500 or so pieces of the plummeting Skylab are expected to include 10 weighing about 1,000 pounds and a couple weighing 4,000 pounds or more.

"I think it should be a happy occasion, and everybody should drink beer and, well, learn something about science — what went wrong, you know," he says.

Opponents Given Opportunity To Challenge Treaty Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a politically embarrassing defeat for President Carter, the Senate is giving opponents of his China policy an opportunity to challenge the termination of the defense treaty with Taiwan.

With 25 Democrats joining the majority, the Senate voted 59-35 Wednesday that its approval is neccessary before a mutual defense treaty can be terminated.

Although President Carter is free to ignore the non-binding resolution, its impact was heightened by a decision in federal court Wednesday.

In that decision, U.S. District Court Judge Oliver Gasch dismissed a suit by 23 congressmen and one former member to halt Carter's China policy.

Gasch said the issue was "not yet ripe" for a legal decision on whether Carter's action was constitutional. However, he said it will be if the Senate asserts its right to a voice in terminating treaties.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said the judge's ruling gives new life to his campaign to have Carter's termination of the Taiwan treaty declared unconstitutional.

He said he will use the Senate vote as grounds to ask Gasch to reconsider his decision to dismiss the suit.

"It is clear the judge agrees with me on the merits of the constitutional argument," Goldwater said.

He referred to Gasch's statement that, "The court believes the power to terminate treaties is a power shared by the political branches of this government, namely the president and the Congress."

Schmidt Calls Meeting With Carter Friendly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and President Carter have held what both call a highly satisfactory meeting, speaking in agreement on the key matters of energy and the Soviet military buildup.

Personal relations between the two leaders were strained during the early days of the Carter presidency — partly because Schmidt endorsed Gerald R. Ford in the 1976 election. But not so Wednesday.

As he left the White House after lunch, Schmidt, speaking in English, praised the United States and the president and later told German reporters the meeting was "very, very friendly."

"The chancellor and I have had a very productive discussion," Carter said. Press secretary Jody Powell confirmed that the meeting, in Carter's eyes, had been highly successful.

Schmidt visited the White House during a speech-making trip to the United States. The two leaders spent nearly two hours together, the last 20 minutes of it alone without aides.

The meeting took place amid widespread criticism in Europe — and West Germany — that the United States is trying to shift the burden for higher oil prices to its European neighbors by putting a $5 subsidy on home heating oil and diesel fuel imports.

West German Embassy spokesman Karl Paschke said Schmidt repeated his criticism to Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, but did not mention it to Carter.

Coast Guard Recovers Last Bodies

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (UPI) — The bodies of the last two of six crewmen who burned to death on a Canadian freighter struck by a flash fire Tuesday on Lake Superior have been found, officials said today.

A spokesman at the Lakehead Harbor Commission said the two bodies were found Wednesday night by Coast Guardsmen near the engine room of the Cartiercliffe Hall. The other four bodies were found in that area Tuesday night by guardsmen wearing asbestos fire suits.

Nineteen members of the crew escaped the blaze and four were hospitalized in Ann Arbor, Mich., for treatment of burns. A 20th injured crewman, hospitalized in Hancock, Mich., was released Wednesday.

The 730-foot freighter was in the second day of a six-day trip from Duluth, Minn., to Port Cartier, Quebec, with a cargo of 993,000 bushels of corn when the fire began.

The Coast Guard towed the disabled ship from the scene of the fire — 11 miles north of Copper Harbor, Mich. — to the Canadian port Wednesday afternoon. The smoldering debris rekindled late Wednesday, but firemen extinguished the blaze.

Coast Guard representatives as well as officials from the National Transportation Safety Board were called to Thunder Bay today to search the vessel and investigate the cause of the fire.

A Coast Guard spokesman said a hearing would be held in Duluth Friday in an effort to determine the cause of the fire.

FTC Probe Threatens To Rock Testing Industry

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International Writer

Does costly "coaching" for the college, law and medical school admissions tests boost a score 100 or more points?

That's the question a Federal Trade Commission investigation is attempting to answer. The probe report, when released, could rock the multi-million dollar testing industry — which has been claiming for years that extraordinary preparation for the tests doesn't significantly change a test-taker's score.

About 300,000 studens pay from about $300 to over $500 to be coached. This includes some 100,000 high school students. If the FTC probe report, handed to the Commission May 15 in Washington, shows paying for intensive preparation — coaching, as it's called — makes a big difference, then the complaint will be raised that coaching is unfair.

Various civil rights groups will allege that students who cannot afford coaching — the poor and especially the black poor — are at an even greater disadvantage than is now alleged when they take the tests that open doors to colleges and all kinds of training, including medical and law schools. Civil rights critics of the test have claimed for years the tests are biased in favor of white males and against white females and blacks and hispanics of both sexes.

Testing industry chiefs, including $85,000-a-year Education Testing Service President William Turnbull in Princeton, N.J., deny the tests are biased. They also maintain drilling or coaching doesn't boost scores significantly.

The National Education Association has filed a formal request under the Freedom of Information Act to obtain the underlying factual data in the yet-to-be released FTC report.

So have others, including Stanley H. Kaplan, head of a test-coaching service operating in 88 cities, mainly the large metropolitan areas.

Both requests have been denied and now both are appealing to the federal courts. In this unusual scenario, the NEA lawyer fighting the FTC for the information is Arthur E. Levine of Boston.

Levine, a former FTC staff member, worked on the FTC report on the test-coaching industry.

Charles Shepherd, FTC spokesman, told UPI it would do no good to file a Freedom of Information Act request for the report, that such a request would be denied, as more than a dozen have been to date. He said the FTC commissioners, upon reviewing the report, may decide to widen the investigation and that in such a case, this report would be kept out of circulation.

The NEA says the report "has serious implications for the rights of millions of students and adults at the turning points of their lives."

"The NEA has learned through reliable sources," said NEA Executive Director Terry Herndon, "that an FTC staff report contains data which will prove that students who attend costly private coaching schools achieve higher test scores on standardized tests — tests which the test-makers claim are 'coach proof.'

"The skill of test-taking then becomes more important than the skills the tests allegedly measure. People who can afford the cost of such schools thus have an unfair advantage at important transition points — from high school to college, from college to graduate, law or business school, from school to job, and in some instances from one job to another job.

"The public has a right to know not only the results of this report...but also the important underlying data so that students and adults are protected from arbitrary decisions based upon unfair test scores and ability to pay."

Some of the tests commercial concerns help takers prepare for are known as SAT, LSAT, MCAT — that is, scholastic aptitude test, law school admissions test, medical college admission test. A boost of 100 points could made a big difference when a candidate is considered for admission.

The SATs, for example, are scored from 200 to 800, the higher figure being perfect. An estimated 1.4 million high school students took the SATs last year.

The test itself has been getting close looks from educators, parents and others trying to figure why SAT scores have been dipping over the last decade.

At prestigious colleges, admissions officers prefer scores in the 650-and-up range on College Entrance Examination Board SAT tests administered by Educational Testing Services in Princeton, N.J.

Some critics of the highly standardized tests claim the slide in SAT scores is due to the test being behind the times. Others claim it is due to cultural biases — that it is biased in favor of white male candidates and thus as greater numbers of blacks and poor take it, the overall scores will decline. An example of a test question which some claim is culturally based is the following, from a reading comprehension test:

"The (fill in the blank) roses flushed up in her cheeks." The student is supposed to underline the right word for "blank" from this list: white, pretty, small, yellow, red.

The answer is red but how would a black child know, say the National Education Association critics.

The ETS, created by the College Board, the American Council on Education and the Carnegie Foundation, runs over 300 test programs, including some for branches of the federal government. It designs the test given prospective agents of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Civil rights critics of the test have claimed for years the tests are biased in favor of white males...

After the SAT, its big test is the Graduate Record Examination, taken last year by 314,000 and then, the LSAT, taken by 128,000.

The ETS, grosses $80 million a year and another testing service, American College Testing, $20 million.

ETS money comes from fees paid by test candidates. But it also comes from government and foundation grants.

The ETS reaches into every level of education and some critics, notably consumer advocates, claim its $80 million a year lead over its next biggest competitor, ACT, is due to its monopolistic position in the testing industry. Among those most interested in the coaching report are:

—Robert J. Kingston, president of the College Board in New York, a $52 million-a-year operation that provides tests and other educational services for students, schools and colleges. Membership: 2,000 colleges, schools, school systems and educational associations.

—Turnbull, president of the multi-million dollar a year Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N.J. The ETS runs the SATS and other tests given to more than a million a year.

—Kaplan, president of the Stanley H. Kaplan Education Centers in 88 cities. Persons are coached for tests at his centers, part of a $1 million a year industry patronized by about 300,000, including 100,000 high school students.

—Herndon, executive director of the NEA, representing 1.8 million teachers. Here's what Kingston is saying:

—New research on the effectiveness of special preparation for the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) has led the College Board to reaffirm its advice that coaching — which the board defines as intensive drill or cramming on sample test questions — does not substantially improve students' scores on the SAT. "This kind of intense cramming should be differentiated from instruction in test-taking skills, and instruction in mathematical and verbal reasoning abilities," he says.

Here's what Turnbull is saying:

—Nothing. The ETS stance is that there's no sense commenting on something that has not been seen, which is the status of the FTC report. The ETS did submit certain materials to FTC probers. In his most recent public pronouncement, Turnbull talked about IQ Scores. He cautioned against the belief that IQ scores do not change significantly. "People, especially young people," he said, "can change in a dynamic way."

Here's what Kaplan is saying:

—"My coaching is equivalent to a year's work. It helps people remember what they forgot in today's education: Learn, regurgitate, forget." Coaching fees for the SATs is $275, for the Law School Admissions Test, $275, for the Graduate Record Examination, $275. The Medical College Admissions Testing coaching is $325. Other coaching services help prepare new law school graduates for bar exams and the prices on these get into the $500 range. Some [illegible] go through Kaplan's testing coaching system every year.

"I don't make any claims," Kaplan says. But he keeps records. The records show on average scores are boosted 100 points or more. Some, from 100 to 200 points higher after coaching.

Here's what Herndon is saying:

"The public has a right to know what is in this FTC report."

He said the NEA will pursue the report through the courts if necessary. "The public should have an opportunity to make its own judgment about the justice of standardized test scores based upon evidence gathered through their tax-paid agency."

"Despite mounting evidence of the unreliability and lack of validity of standardized test scores, millions of individual careers hang in balance on test scores, with five million people taking such tests yearly," he said.

"At this very moment, decisions are being made as to who gets into what college next September based on data which we believe the FTC can prove operates unjustly against many citizens."

Committee Approves Gas-Alcohol Blend

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A gradual blending of alcohol into gasoline to reduce dependence on foeign oil has won the approval of an Assembly committee despite opposition from oil companies and utilities.

The Resources, Land Use and Energy Committee voted 10-0 Tuesday on a bill that would require 1 percent alcohol in gasoline by Jan. 1, 1982. The bill, which was sent to another panel, would require 5 percent alcohol in gasoline by Jan. 1, 1985, unless studies indicate adverse effects on air quality.

Backers of the bill said the oil companies and utilities were working on such fuels, "but want to do it in their own time frame."

ADMITTED SLAYER GETS LIFE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — An 18-year-old Agawam man has been sentenced to life in prison after pleading guilty to the second-degree murder of his 71-year-old grandmother. Jeffrey Struck admitted in Hampden Superior Court that he stabbed Hilda Blevins last July 25. Her body was found the next day.Struck testified he had argued with his grandmother before the stabbing. He will be eligible for parole in 15 years.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Big Apple Bites Again

ANOTHER "BAIL-OUT" of New York and other big-spending governments at the expense of Texas taxpayers is in the works.

The "Unemployment Insurance System Revitalization Act of 1979," sponsored by liberal Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and others, would provide "cost equalization" grants to states which have exhausted their unemployment insurance funds.

These grants, paid from federal general revenue funds, would reward those states which have been over-generous in paying the unemployed and penalize those which have exercised fiscal responsibility.

THE NATIONAL ECONOMIC Research Institute, an Austin-based group, says its analysis "reveals that the states which will gain the most from such a program are primarily Northeastern or Midwestern states."

These very states, it adds, are those which pay the highest unemployment benefits for the longest periods of time and which, in order to pay these benefits, have borrowed most heavily from the federal treasury.

New York, for example, would get an $839 million federal handout if the Javits bill passes. Pennsylvania would get $1.05 billion. Texas would get zero.

"In short," NERI points out, "the Unemployment Insurance System Revitalization Act, a $7.2 billion package, would channel dollars out of states which have been financially responsible in the management of their unemployment insurance systems (and) into states which have...created an unfavorable business environment which results in high unemployment."

SPONSORS OF this national ripoff contend that states which are in the deepest financial trouble should be assisted through federal general revenues because "the crisis of the unemployment insurance system has been created by a national economic recession."

In point of fact, of course, the states which have paid out more in unemployment benefits than other states have paid did so because (1) they created unfavorable business climates and (2) encouraged the unemployed to stay off work longer by paying bigger benefits for longer periods.

"States with liberal eligibility, disqualification and duration provisions were the first to cross the insolvency line," the U.S. Chamber of Commerce points out.

Having lived beyond their means, they now want to gouge the rest of us. They shouldn't get away with it.

IN MOVING ALL three of its division heads out of Lubbock, Southwestern Bell is leaving a big hole in the ranks of community leadership.

Under the Bell System's nationwide reorganization, decision-making powers are being centralized and cities such as Lubbock are being demoted in terms of corporate importance.

Ma Bell undoubtedly has good, sound reasons for this because she's not known for making too many business mistakes.

Nevertheless, Lubbock has been the better for the presence here of Bell executives Bob Dunbar, Bob Cooper, Charles Lee and their predecessors.

Dunbar is being transferred to San Antonio, Cooper to Houston and Lee to Austin. A single division-level position, yet to be filled, will be left here, as will most of the 950 Bell employes. In time, we may even get 50 or 60 more telephone company employes here.

As might be suspected, the downgrading of division offices in cities such as Lubbock is not a result of Texas' vesting rate-making authority in a single statewide Public Utility Commission, according to Bell spokesmen.

Other states long have had such centralized bureaucracies. Still, it's certain to have crossed the Bell corporate mind that one reason for having division-level executives active in civic affairs throughout the system no longer exists.

THAT REASON WAS to demonstrate to the City Council rate-setters and the public generally that the company is not a greedy conglomerate but a public-minded business with employes who are a part of, and interested in, the community.

Dunbar, for example, has been active in the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Boy Scouts, Museum, Better Business Bureau, Texas Tech Foundation, Cultural Affairs Council, Second Baptist Church, etc.

Cooper and Lee have been similarly involved.

Losing that kind of community involvement at the management level is regrettable. I'm not wishing Ma Bell any bad luck, but if she decides that decentralization was the right idea after all, I hope she sends us some more like the ones she's taking away.

I DON'T KNOW about you, but I find it revolting that the Jimmy Carter campaign used tax money for making cash payments to "get out the vote" for him in 1976.

After 2½ years, the Federal Election Commission finally has said that the President's campaign committee must reimburse the government $15,207 in undocumented cash outlays by campaign workers.

Buying votes, or getting partisan voters to the polls, is just one inevitable abuse when tax money is used to promote personal political ambitions.

The whole idea of public financing of Presidential and Congressional campaigns needs to be junked. Carter spent $26 million of your taxes in the 1976 general election and Gerald Ford matched him in dipping into the till, mostly nice and legal but in my opinion wrong just the same.

It's a corruption of the democratic process.

Castro Set To Challenge U.S.

WASHINGTON—Fidel Castro's recent visit to Mexico to meet with President Jose Lopez Portillo spells real future trouble for the U.S. both in the UN and in Central and Latin America.

The trip is viewed as a definite sign the Cuban Communist leader has decided to switch his main diplomatic-military activities from Africa and Asia to the U.S. backyard in Central America.

Taken in that context, the Mexican visit is regarded as the opening shot of a new diplomatic offensive by Castro to force the lifting of U.S. economic sanctions against Cuba and the withdrawal of U.S. military forces from Guantanamo Naval Base.

Both of these Cuban objectives are scheduled to be high on the agenda when Castro acts as host for the international meeting of "third world" countries in Havana in September.

FOLLOWING THIS conference's action, Castro will then take his diplomatic offensive against the U.S. to New York where he will address the UN's general assembly.

What caught President Carter and his advisers by surprise was the warm welcome that Castro received from Portillo, who went out of his way to praise the Cuban leader after earlier giving Carter a cool reception.

In messages to other "third world" governments, Castro already is using his warm Mexican welcome to stake out a claim of leadership for the "third world."

According to U.S. intelligence experts, Castro is convinced that conditions are now ripe for Communist-led or controlled takeovers in Nicaragua, Guatemala, El Salvador and Honduras over the next two to three years.

Castro's diplomatic offensive is designed to isolate the U.S. from these and other Latin American countries in order to discourage and block any united or effective counteraction.

A GRAPHIC EXAMPLE of Castro's success so far is Mexico's decision to actively work to try to bring down the pro-U.S. government of Nicaraguan President Somoza. The decision was made shortly after Castro's visit.

Although Mexico never broke diplomatic relations with Cuba, despite Castro's efforts to overthrow other Latin American governments, the new left government of Portillo has cut off relations with Nicaragua and quietly begun to aid the pro-Castro terrorists there.

Word from Mexico City is that Portillo will soon publicly support Castro's demands to end the U.S. embargo of Cuba and the withdrawal of U.S. military forces.

This sudden shift in Mexican policy from being neutral to pro-Cuban is believed to be based on an assessment that the Carter administration is letting events take their course in Central America.

The turnover of the Panama Canal to Panama is seen as a sign Carter will gradually withdraw all U.S. military power from that region and that Castro, who is building up his military forces with help from Russia, will soon dominate the region.

In exchange for Mexico's diplomatic support, Castro backs what he describes as "the legitimate demands of the Mexicans who emigrate to the U.S." even if their entry into the U.S. is illegal.

In addition to his immediate goal of becoming the leader of "third world" nations, Castro believes he is predestined to play the leading role in bringing socialism to the U.S.

This possibility would be regarded as a bad joke except for the reality that, since Castro took power in Cuba in 1959, five American Presidents have come and gone and Castro's power and authority is still growing.

SBA Has Special Loans For Disabled

HANDICAPPED MEN AND women—our nation's most disgracefully neglected minority—finally are getting access to more jobs and business opportunities and are being increasingly recognized as fully capable of competing for profits and economic advancement.

It's in the field of small business that opportunities are opening most dramatically. And it is under the leadership of the Small Business Administration that assistance to the disabled to become private entrepreneurs is being centered.

In the six years that the SBA has had a business loan program for the disabled, 923 loans totaling $70 million have been made. But in 1978 alone, there were 316 of these loans totaling $24.3 million, reports a spokesman for the SBA's New York district office.

This represented a whopping 33 percent increase over 1977, when 105 loans were made to the handicapped for a total of $15.1 million.

"THERE IS A large pool of handicapped people in this country who are ready and willing to start businesses of their own," says Robert Ruffner, of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

"I find that increasing numbers of these people are interested in starting their own companies rather than being subject to the uncertainties of federal job grants," he adds.

But Ruffner warns that the psychology of Proposition 13 is spreading even to programs of this nature and "many of these grants are in jeopardy." He urges you, if you are a disabled prospective entrepreneur, to contact the SBA for help at once.

If you are handicapped, below is how you can qualify for a Small Business Administration loan. First, the eligibility rules:

• THE BUSINESS MUST be 100 percent owned by the handicapped applicant.

• You must prove via a physician's certificate the exact nature of your disability, and that it is permanent.

• You must demonstrate how your handicap prevents you from competing in the business community.

Other criteria include: you lack funds not otherwise available; you have a good character; proven repayment ability; sufficient equity; some collateral.

Loans in the program fall into two categories:

(1) Handicapped Assistance Loans to nonprofit organizations (HAL-1). (2) Handicapped Assistance Loans to small business concerns owned, or to be owned, by handicapped persons (HAL-2).

UNDER HAL-1, financial assistance is available to public or private nonprofit sheltered workshops, or any similar organization, to enable them to produce and provide marketable goods and services.

Under HAL-2, the financial assistance program makes loans for the establishment, acquisition, or operation of a small business concern owned by a handicapped person or persons.

The SBA's primary method of assisting a business financially is by guaranteeing business loans made by banks. The SBA may guarantee up to 90 percent or $350,000 of a loan by a commercial bank to start your new business or to expand an existing one.

The guarantee could go as high as $500,000 in an exceptional situation. On this loan program, interest is set by the bank at a maximum of 12 percent.

Your initial move involves submitting a loan proposal to the commercial bank, preferably a bank where you maintain an account, indicating how much money you will need; how you will use it; and how your business will generate enough income to repay the loan.

You will impress your banker with your ability as a manager if you submit a well documented plan. Work on it with care!

If your bank is unwilling to make a loan directly, or in participation with the SBA, ask the banker for a letter of decline, contact a second bank, and follow the same procedure.

THE SBA MUST be highly selective in making these loans, for funds for direct loans are very limited. The documentation you are required to submit for a direct loan application is the same as needed for a guaranteed loan from a bank.

No matter what the obstacles that remain, they are less overwhelming than in the past.

If you are disabled, have a good idea and managerial skills to make it as a business owner, never has the chance for you to get into the mainstream been greater. Try it.

John D. Lofton:

Feds To Blame For Gas Lines

WASHINGTON—Now, I am going to level with you. I am not going to lie. I have not read all of "Standby Rationing Plan No. 1," put together by the Department of Energy's Economic Regulatory Administration's Office of Regulations and Emergency Planning. (This plan, incidentally, became Subplans 2 through 6 as it was cut to ribbons on the floor of the House.)

Likewise, I have also not read all of "Standby Conservation Plan No. 2, Emergency Building Temperature Restrictions" or "Standby Conservation Plan No. 3, Emergency Advertising Lighting Restrictions."

But as I pondered these schemes, the question came to mind: Why is it assumed by the Carter administration that, regardless of the finite amount of oil or gas available in the United States, the most efficient and equitable way of distributing these fuels is via plans formulated by government allocators?

After all, it is the federal government that is in large part responsible for the energy mess we are in!

IN ITS CURRENT issue's lead editorial, titled "Tank Queues," The New Republic magazine points out:

"Under DOE rules, a refining company that wants to reduce the amount of gasoline it provides to its dealers must follow an 'allocation' formula. The allocation rules in effect freeze supply patterns. The purpose is to prevent refineries from favoring their own stations and cutting off independent and small retailers.

"The problem is that the rules make it next to impossible for refiners to shift supplies around to meet changes in demand. When California drivers increased their consumption sharply this year, dealers had no way to accommodate the higher demand and soon ran short in that state.

"Any allocation rules would tend to inhibit needed adjustments, but DOE's regulations have a more serious flaw. Until March 1, the allocation rules were based on supply figures for 1972—meaning that stations were allotted gasoline supplies based on what they sold in a corresponding month seven years ago.

"TO GET AN idea what this means, take two hypothetical stations which sold the same amount of gas in 1972. One has doubled its business since then; the other has had its sales cut in half. Under the DOE rules, each would get the same allocation."

The long gas lines in California, caused primarily by Department of Energy rules and regulations, are an example of history repeating itself. The same thing happened in 1974 during the Arab oil embargo.

In his book, "A Time for Truth," former Treasury Secretary William Simon, who also headed the Federal Energy Office, says:

"As for the centralized allocation process itself, the kindest thing I can say about it is that it was a disaster. Even with a stack of sensible-sounding plans for even-handed allocation all over the country, the system kept falling apart, and chunks of the populace suddenly found themselves without gas.

"There was no logic to the pattern of failures. In Palm Beach suddenly there was no gas, while 10 miles away gas was plentiful. Parts of New Jersey suddenly went dry, while other parts of New Jersey were well supplied. Every day, in different parts of the country, people waited in line for gasoline for two, three, and four hours.

"THE NORMAL MARKET distribution system is so complex, yet so smooth, that no government mechanism could simulate it. All we were actually doing with our so-called bureaucratic efficiency was damaging the existent distribution system.

"As the shortages grew more erratic and unpredictable, people began to 'top off' their tanks...and that fiercely compounded the shortages and expanded the queues. The psychology of hysteria took over.

"Essentially the allocation plan had failed because there had been a ludicrous reliance on a little legion of government lawyers, who drafted their regulations in indecipherable language, and bureaucratic technocrats, who imagined that they could simulate the complex free-market processes by pushing computer buttons. In fact, they couldn't."

No, they couldn't. They couldn't do it then and they can't do it now. What the federal energy allocators demonstrated in 1974 is that there is no problem so bad that it can't be made worse by the massive intervention of government bureaucrats. If these same bureaucrats intervene now in the same way, as they are seeking to do, they will prove the same thing.

The Brighter Side

Overheard: "Those self-service gas stations may be pretty good deals after all. You pay a little less per gallon—and get to clean your pants with what you spill."

Regulatory Changes Significant For Small Savers

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — For the small saver, the regulatory changes made this week are important more for their direction than the degree of change.

And still missing from the "save the small saver" package — one, admittedly, that regulatory officials could do nothing about — is a tax incentive for saving.

Federal regulators did give savers a chance to earn a quarter of one percentage point more on passbook deposits. And they eliminated regulations for minimum deposits on almost all savings certificates.

But a tax incentive, said thrift institution representatives, would do even more. It would, they said, encourage personal savings, boost home sales, and provide stability to lending institutions.

What the small savers — and the banks received in the regulatory changes was significant, but in part mainly because it pointed the way to even more freedom to raise (or lower) rates in the future.

Eventually, some reformers hope, the small saver may earn a rate equal to that of larger investors. However, as that scenario unfolds — if it does — banks might have to charge more for mortgages.

The approval of variable rate mortgages, whose rates rise or fall with economic conditions instead of being set for life as in most current mortgages, now gives lenders flexibility to meet that eventuality.

Analysis

The market for small savings, and for the home mortgage loans that are supported by those savings, therefore has been changed substantially in direction — but for the time being, maybe not as much in degree.

A saver, for example, still needs $10,000 if he or she is to take advantage of money market certificates, which provide the highest return and shortest maturity offered by banks and savings associations.

A mortgage applicant also retains a degree of choice in the mortgage he accepts. While a lender might wish him to accept a variable rate loan, he has the choice of asking for a conventional, fixed-rate loan.

And the lender still can decide it doesn't wish to avail itself of one or more of the changes. It can decide to forego offering higher return certificates, for example, if competition permits.

None of these changes, savings and loan people say, is likely to mean a sharp rise in savings. The 5.5 percent yield on passbook savings at thrift institutions, for example, isn't likely to change habits.

What would increase the flow of savings, they say, is a tax change permitting savers to be free of taxes on the first $200 or $300 or $500 (depending upon which bill is discussed) of interest on savings.

To them, this is only logical and just. Stock owners, for example, pay no interest on the first $100 of dividends. Why, ask the thrift institutions, shouldn't the same attitude apply to savings?

If such a law were passed — and some thrifts feel it will be by the end of the year — more funds would flow to savings institutions, which then would be better able to make home loans. So goes the concept.

What this country needs, they argue, is more savings. And the echo you hear is probably the same phrase repeated by ordinary savers who, until this week, hadn't been able to get a nod from anyone in years.

Romance Seen In Reports

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — It isn't every day you encounter romance in the mostly dry-as-dust financial disclosure reports high-paid federal officials must file under a new ethics law.

But romance seems an apt term to apply to the reports filed by Margaret McKenna, President Carter's deputy counsel, and Arnold J. Miller, director of Carter's personnel office.

Miss McKenna's filing reports that during 1978 she received from Miller "Christmas, birthday gifts of clothing and accessories" she valued at $150.

Miller's report of gifts bestowed lists Miss McKenna as the recipient of "birthday and Christmas clothing and accessories, $250?"

So, it would seem, Miller places a higher value on the gifts he gave than did Miss McKenna on the gifts received. But Miller did insert a question mark after his valuation.

Miller's filing also included another item under "food and entertainment" for which Miss McKenna made no comparable entry.

According to Miller, Miss McKenna was guest of honor at what he listed as: "Birthday party, $400?"

Birthday Season

Sunday was Miss McKenna's birthday and when a reporter suggested this could mean more of the same sort of entries on next year's McKenna-Miller reports, she laughed and said, with what seemed like a twinkle in her voice (can voices twinkle???????), "We'll see."

Actually, Sunday was a big day for White House birthdays. In addition to Miss McKenna, celebrants included deputy press secretary Rex Granum, deputy presidential assistant Landon Butler, television coordinator Anne Edwards, and scheduling aide Susan Yowell.

Sunday also was the birthday of the president's old friend, Bert Lance.

Close To Incident

The White House came close to being the scene of an international incident Monday when French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet came calling.

Among other things, Francois-Poncet wanted to cmplain about a controversial administration susidy aimed an insuring adequate home heating oil for New England next winter.

The French and some other Europeans claim the subsidy has boosted their own costs for such oil. Carter has a different view.

Alerted by the French Embassy, a sizable press contingent assembled to hear a promised Francois-Poncet statement following his meeting with Carter.

But associate White House press secretary Dale Leibach approached an embassy official and announced it would be a breach of protocol for the foreign minister to sound off on White House property. Leibach suggested as alternative sites the State Department or the French Embassy.

Meanwhile, the embassy supplied reporters with copies of a statement Francois-Poncet planned to make.

As French officials objected to Leibach's attempt to keep Francois-Poncet away from the reporters, who often question prime ministers, ambassadors and other foreign officials at the White House without dealing a death blow to protocol, the argument was moved indoors.

In the end, the foreign minister made a delayed appearance in the driveway and got his beef on the public record.

Environmentalists Fight To Protect Taj Mahal

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Four environmentalists have demanded that the government move an almost-completed oil refinery because of a possible pollution threat to the spectacular Taj Mahal, other historic monuments and a bird sanctuary in the Agra area.

"The question is no longer whether the ... Mathura refinery will harm the Taj Mahal and other nearby monuments, but how long will it be before the acid fumes make the damage visible," the environmentalists said in a statement issued here this week.

People living near the 331-year-old Taj, about 24 miles southeast of the refinery and 130 miles south of New Delhi, report the famous marble mausoleum has already lost much of its pearly sheen because of pollution-emitting iron foundries in the vicinity.

Money Market Funds Enjoy Increased Popularity

NEW YORK (AP) — People increasingly have been pulling money out of their savings accounts. But where is that cash going?

Savings banks and savings and loan associations have blamed substantial net outflows of deposits since mid-March on a decrease in the popularity of their high-paying money market certificates with big investors. But the thrifts have suffered from the loss of deposits in lower-paying passbook accounts for several months, since "open market" interest rates started to soar last fall.

The flow of funds out of banks and into open market securities, such as Treasury bills and notes, is called disintermediation because investors abandon banks, which act as intermediaries between borrowers and savers, to invest directly in government and corporate short-term debt.

Big savers, who had the $10,000 minimum required for a money market certificate, could invest directly in the 26-week Treasury bills that set the interest rates on the MMCs. Until March 15, thrifts paid a quarter of a percentage point higher interest rate than did the T-bills and commerical bank MMCs. Now the rates are the same.

Small savers had very few choices, but one of them was to buy a piece of a money market mutual fund. The popularity of these funds has soared along with interest rates.

Money market mutual funds invest in short-term money market debts, such as Treasury bills, certificates of deposit issued by major banks and high-grade commercial paper of major corporations. Many of the funds allow investments as small as $1,000 — within reach of smaller savers.

Money market funds also offered large and small savers the advantage of easy access to their money. People who hold savings for emergencies don't want to be committed to distant maturity dates on time deposits.

According to William E. Donoghue, publisher of the Money Fund Report, assets of money market mutual funds totaled $21.5 billion last month, about double the $10.7 billion in such funds last Dec. 31.

These funds currently are paying about 9.5 percent, with yields ranging from about 7 percent to 10.5 percent among 64 funds surveyed by Donoghue.

Among the 64 funds, more than half accepted minimum investments of $1,000 or less and all but 10 offered check redemption privileges.

This privilege means the investor can write a check against his or her investment account, usually in amounts of $500 or more, should a need for cash arise.

The latest wrinkle in the fairly new field of money market funds is aimed at people with higher incomes who have become disenchanted with thrift institution MMCs that pay no better than T-bills or commercial bank MMCs. It is the tax-exempt money market fund. The Fidelity Group of Funds, based in Boston, recently announced it had established the first fund invested in U.S. government securities that is exempt from all state and local taxes.

Roger Servison, a spokesman for Fidelity, said Fidelity Government Securities Fund Ltd. maintains its tax exemption because it is organized as a limited partnership, not as a corporation or business trust, which are treated as separate taxable entities under state law. The fund will invest only in securities that are exempt from state and local taxes in all 50 states.

Servison said the fund was aimed at individuals and businesses in states with high income taxes, such as New York, California and Massachusetts.

Donoghue predicted that money market funds could become "the next major type of depository institution or bank," entering territory invaded by credit unions five years ago and savings and loan assocations 15 years ago.

When it is poured, the concrete floor in the basement of the average home contains more than 240 gallons of water.

Civil Rights Groups Call For KKK Investigations

By United Press International

Southern civil rights groups are calling for federal investigations into the weaponry of the Ku Klux Klan and say they will press on with marches and demonstrations in a resurgence of racial unrest.

In Atlanta Wednesday, the NAACP denounced a confrontation between blacks and the KKK in Decatur, Ala., last month and called for a federal investigation into the KKK and other white supremacy groups for possible violations of the Gun Control Act.

Two blacks and two whites were wounded May 26 when shooting broke out after about 80 marchers were confronted by a group of Klansmen. Gunfire erupted when police tried to move the Klansmen aside, but some pushed their way through the ranks.

The NAACP said it was "alarmed that such groups have now begun to flagrantly brandish an array of weaponry and other tools of destruction."

In Birmingham, 17 Klansmen are on trial in federal court — charged with terrorizing blacks and mixed couples. One Klansman testified shotgun blasts were fired at a house where white women were living with black men.

Since the start of the year, the NAACP said, its branch offices had reported an "unusually high increase in hate group activity," including at least 10 cross-burnings in Nashville, Tenn. c

Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, also decried the violence, but said the SCLC would go ahead with a Saturday march in Decatur with assurances of "adequate" police protection.

Lowery said last month's incident was caused by "a ruthless attack by the Ku Klux Klan" during the march that commemorated the arrest a year earlier of Tommy Lee Hines, a retarded black man who was charged with raping three white women and robbing one of them. Hines was convicted last fall on one rape charge and is serving a 30-year prison sentence.

"We have recommitted ourselves to the march and are emphasizing that the ruthless attack by the Ku Klux Klan was a violent eruption which represents the rising level of active racism in Alabama and the nation," Lowery said.

Lowery said representatives of the NAACP, the American Civil Liberties Union and the Southern Regional Council had announced support of the effort.

In Decatur Wednesday, two KKK members arrested during demonstrations last month were convicted in city Recorder's Court.

One man, arrested May 27 while carrying a rifle during a Klan march a day after the clash that left four people wounded, was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 for violating a city gun ordinance prohibiting weapons at public gatherings.

The other was convicted of resisting arrest and assault on a police officer during the May 26 clash between blacks and Klansmen.

ABORTION BAN

BOSTON (AP) — The Legislature has completed action on a bill aimed at banning all government-financed abortions in Massachusetts except those necessary to save a mother's life. The stringent measure, approved Wednesday, now needs only the governor's signature to become law. A spokesman for Gov. Edward J. King said the bill would be signed within the next several days

Klansman Testifies At Trial

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — A government witness in the trial of 17 Ku Klux Klansmen for acts of intimidation aimed at blacks in Talladega County testified Wednesday that four of the Klan members charged in a shooting incident were not involved.

Randy C. Ward, 21, of Childersburg said he and several fellow Klansmen wanted to whip white women for sharing homes with black men, but decided instead to fire shotgun blasts into a house where two racially mixed couples lived.

Defense lawyers established during testimony that Ward initiated plans for the terrorism by calling four Klansmen together and plotting their course without consulting other members.

Ward also testified he was elected head of the Klan chapter in Sylacauga after leading the attack on the home shared by the interracial couples.

Ward's testimony came in the third day of a federal court trial of 17 Klansmen charged with terrorizing blacks, a home shared by racially mixed couples and a white man in Talladega County.

Testimony was to resume today.

Ward said he was a member of a committee formed by Wayne Vincent, Exalted Cyclops of the United Klans of America's Sylacauga chapter, to find a way to intimidate the women in the house shooting incident.

The shooting occurred last Nov. 24 after Ward and several Klansmen discussed ways to intimidate the women, Juanita T. Fowler and Debra Ann Payne.

"We was trying to figure out how to get them out of the house and whip them," Ward said. "We didn't know how the house was laid out or how many blacks were in there.

"Buck Webb (a defendant) told the group it would be best to shoot up the house."

Ward, one of three Klansmen who pleaded guilty to the charges last week, testified he rode in the back seat of a car with a shotgun while fellow Klansman Joseph Stewart, 21, drove.

Howard "Buck" Webb, 32, and Will R. Reynolds, 30, were in a pickup, following them as "backup," Ward said.

A fifth Klansman, James H. Bettis, 59, was waiting in another car to receive the shotgun after the shooting, he said.

Nine Klansmen, including Ward, were charged in a conspiracy count for the shooting and three others were charged with aiding and abetting. Ward also was charged with violating the Fair Housing Act by firing into the house.

Ward said he didn't tell four other Klansmen indicted for conspiracy about his plan to shoot into the house. The Klansmen were Mahlon Burchell, Johnny Hutto, Roger Champion and Edward Deerman.

Defense attorney Louis Wilkinson said confining the shooting to Ward and his four companions was the main strategy of the defense.

Leaders Urge Followers To Form Patrols

OKOLONA, Miss. (UPI) — Black leaders, angered by the shooting death of a black jail trusty by a white deputy, urged a crowd of 150 followers Wednesday night to form neighborhood patrols to protect their families from harrassment and death.

"Law and order have broken down in Okolona," said Alfred "Skip" Robinson, head of the United League. "As long as you are black, you will not be free in this society. As long as you are black, you will be harrassed and killed."

Robinson told the crowd — many armed with rifles and shotguns — "We have to protect our own families and friends.

"I want you to go out and patrol every street and road in the black neighborhoods of Okolona and Chickasaw County. We have to protect our own people because nobody else will."

Okolona, a mustering point for the Confederate cavalry during the Civil War, has been targeted for demonstrations and protests by Robinson and his United League.

Marchers in Okolona, Tupelo, Holly Springs, Lexington and Corinth have called for more jobs for blacks, an end to racial discrimination and more say in governmental affairs.

The demonstrations also were aimed at alleged incidents of police brutality.

The blacks' anger is directed at deputy Sheriff Hansel Rogers, who shot 18-year-old Lee Andrew Carouthers in the face Tuesday. Sheriff Carl Craig said Carouthers, serving two years for burglary, had attacked Rogers with a knife.

Rogers, described by blacks as a "disgrace to law enforcement," was suspended pending an investigation by the FBI and state authorities. An autopsy was completed Wednesday on Carouthers. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

THE AUTO MECHANIC

Motorists Can Help Improve Economy

By JOHN MEYER

A mechanic newly returned to the garage from a 10-year absence would be amazed at the recent changes in automobiles. Sparked by demands for cleaner air and greater fuel economy, auto manufacturers have redesigned their products for lighter weight and more complete combustion.

Car makers face a problem that at first seemed likely to solve itself: If you develop a clean-burning engine, you will have created one that is also economical. So far, however, they have had to sacrifice much in performance to stay abreast of demands for cleaner air.

In the meantime, we have been deluged with a profusion of emission-control devices that few average motorists understand. Looking under the hood of a late-model car is like a visit to a snake farm, with vacuum hoses to various valves and controls everywhere.

Unfortablely, some people think these devices are responsible for their cars' loss of power. They have been told that they can bring back all the breath-taking acceleration of the past by disconnecting these systems.

That is not only untrue but illegal. Engines have simply been detuned for greaters gas mileage; a loss power is the result.

There are only a few things the modern motorist can do to maintain some semblance of performance in his or her car.

The tuneup is more important than ever.

In the past, drivers could overlook regular tuneups. Cars had so much power that performance was not noticeably affected. The loss of even a little responsiveness with today's engines is evident immediately.

The car's ignition system and carburetor are directly related to the emission devices. It is not only important to have the tuneup done at the proper time, but to have it done by a mechanic familiar with all emission equipment. This point has been brought home to those who have had to pay for a new catalytic converter because of carburetor failure.

For performance, that is about it: Keep everything, including the emission equipment, in proper tune.

For economy, meanwhile, be aware of several additional considerations.

As an accessory, consider buying a cruise-control device to take the place of an unreliable foot. Cruise control can add 3 to 6 miles per gallon on long drives.

If you can't afford cruise control, remember the old method for improving your driving habits: Pretend there is an egg under the gas pedal and try not to break it.

Some manufacturers offer mileage minders, dash indicator telling drivers when they are operating at peak efficiency.

Economy can also be helped by maintaining proper tire inflation and inspecting the air filter between tuneups.

If you are really concerned about economy, you will already be driving a small car with five-speed transmission and without power steering and air conditioning. Two cars in this category, Honda CVCC and Subaru, have also eliminated the need for cumbersome add-on emission equipment by new engine designs.

If you're still hungry for power, on the other hand, your only answer may be to resurrect that '65 Oldsmobile stored in your grandmother's garage.

John Kennedy To Graduate

ANDOVER, Mass. (UPI) — John F. Kennedy Jr., 18-year-old son of the late president, graduates Thursday from the Andover Academy, joining a long list of luminaries who received degrees from the prestigious 201-year-old prep school.

Kennedy, who has attended the school for the past three years, will be one of 360 students taking part in commencement exercises. He reportedly plans to attend Lehigh University in the fall.

Public, Private Debts Boost 1979 Inflation Rate

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Other than for the limited supply and high cost of imported oil, is there something about the 1979 brand of inflation that makes control of it unusually difficult?

The answer is yes. Regulatory restraints on borrowing have been eased. So has the American attitude toward public and private debt. Lifestyles are involved, as is lowered confidence in government. And more.

In other years, inflation's onset would mean tighter federal budgets. But for fiscal 1978 the deficit was $48.76 billion. The 1979 deficit is about $33 billion; the 1980 projection is $28.4 billion.

While they differ on so many things as to undermine confidence in their craft, economists generally agree that such deficits at the peak of a long economic expansion can only result in inflation.

But private individuals have also run budget deficits, adding to price pressures. Consumer installment debt — the kind repaid by the week or month — has risen to more than $275 billion, up $45 billion in a year.

A three-year look at the changing figures reflects the changed attitude. In January 1977, the ratio of installment debt to income was about 13 percent. A year later it had risen to 14. This year it's 15.

Why the willingness to take on so much debt? Surveys show that people have lost faith in the government's ability to restrain inflation, and so buy before prices rise even more. They then repay in cheaper money.

The rise in the number of women workers has also enabled some families to assume more debt. Forty-five percent of homebuers now have more than one wage earner in the household, according to mortgage lenders.

Mortgage lenders themselves have sometimes encouraged debt by bending the rules of thumb on the size of loans that can be made on homes, sometimes granting mortgages that amount to 35 percent of gross income.

But they aren't the only lenders who have relaxed standards. Bank credit cards have proliferated, sometimes unsolicited; and with them, lines of credit have often been extended, again unasked.

Analysis

Overdraft checking, which permits bank customers to write checks for amounts far beyond their deposit amounts, have also become common. And human nature be what it is, the overdraft privilege usually is used.

Wary of being squeezed by tight money, as in other years, many businesses also have deveoped guaranteed lines of credit and are using them. They too recognize the beauty of repaying in cheaper dollars.

A particularly important regulatory change has had a big impact on the housing market, again adding to inflationary pressures. That change permits savings institutions to offer high-yield savings certificates.

Until last year, a savings and loan association or savings bank could offer long-term savings certificates that, with compounding, might reach 8-plus percent over a seven or eight-year period. Now they can offer $10,000, 6-month certificates that pay close to 10 percent.

The net effect has been to delay the homebuying slump that accompanied inflation in other years, when lenders didn't have funds to lend. The 10 percent rate helped them retain deposits, which could be lent out.

As inflation worsens and interest rates climb, not even the 6-month certificates may be able to help savings and loan associations retain funds. They had a net outflow of $1.5 billion in April. But they delayed the downturn.

No, it isn't only the cost of oil that has fueled the current 13.9 percent annual rate of inflation. You might say that Americans, as individuals and through government, also added grease to the skids.

AMC Policy Wins Praise From Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group that spends much of its time criticizing the auto industry now is changing roles to praise American Motors Corp.

AMC received the praise this week from the Center for Auto Safety, a Washington organization that consumer activist Ralph Nader helped found, for offering a three-year warranty against severe rusting on cars sold in the United States.

The consumer group said they determine which consumer problems with cars are most widespread by letters from motorists — and poor protection against corrosion comprised one of the largest segments of complaints.

"For the past few years, the major automobile manufacturers have been advertising their attempts to cope with corrosion," Clarence Ditlow, the center's executive director, said in a letter to Roy D. Chapin, AMC board director.

"However, until the action taken by your company, the automobile manufacturers had not backed up their claims by offering even the corrosion warranty offered to Canadian purchasers of their vehicles," he said.

"The offering of this corrosion warranty to American purchasers represents a significant step forward to assure vehicle purchasers that improvements have been made to improve the corrosion resistance of new American Motors automobiles," said Ditlow, who usually is a critic of the auto industry.

The auto safety group also urged that AMC adopt another part of the Canadian anti-corrosion code that calls for protection against surface rust for 18 months and for five years for so-called "rust-through" starting in the 1981 model year.

Ditlow urged that the three-year warranty against rust-through be extended to Jeeps and the Renault Le Car, which AMC dealers market.

"We are certain that consumers will find this type of warranty persuasive in the sales of AMC cars. We continue to ask General Motors, Ford and Chrysler to abandon their anti-consumer attitudes and follow in the step of AMC," he said.

The consumer group said corrosion has resulted in some owners losing use of their vehicles, lower resale and trade-in value or others and numerous repair bills for car owners. He cited a National Bureau of Standards estimate that $6 billion to $14 billion is lost annually due to corrosion in cars.

Tape Clears Senators

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The video and audio taped segments of House debate that have been on sale ever since the House began televising its proceedings are not what could be called a hot item.

At $104 for a half-hour segment and $176 for a full hour, only 16 videotape orders have been received.

A few have been sent to libraries or to hometown television stations. But one tape has been put to a use probably not envisaged when the system was devised: Reps. Peter Kostmayer, D-Penn., and Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind., each bought an audio tape of the May 3 budget debate in order to prove exactly what was said in an exchange with Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif.

They claimed the version of Dannemeyer's remarks that appeared in the Congressional Record was misleading and they used the tapes to provide an exact transcript that was inserted in the Record's next edition.

Analysts Say Battle-Tested Chinese Army Ready To Fight Again

BY W. WINFIELD MILLER

HONG KONG (UPI) — China's month-long border war against Vietnam — its first battlefield test since the Korean War — has left Peking confident and ready to strike again, Western military analysts say.

Despite Peking's admission that 20,000 of its troops were killed or wounded during the February fighting, China is ready to launch another "punitive" invasion of Vietnam if that appears necessary to halt Hanoi's "expansionist" moves in Indochina, the analysts say.

Having tested its rusty war machine, "The Chinese really believe they can handle the Vietnamese army and the Soviets (Vietnam's strongest ally)," says one Western diplomat.

The Chinese have warned that hostilities will erupt again if the Vietamese "do not abandon their policy of regional hegemony and anti-Chinese policy."

But China also is aware that the Soviet Union, which played only a minor role in supporting the Vietnamese in this winter's fighting, may not stand on the sidelines if the war breaks out again.

This and a buildup of Soviet pressure on China's northern border, has led to increased concern by Chinese leaders over their outmoded military hardware.

Western military experts say China's military equipment is 10 to 20 years out of date and they believe it will take Peking at least 10 years to modernize its forces.

"What they have is not that modern, but it is adequate," says one military analyst. "The artillery they used in the border war is basically the same used in Korea, but it is damned effective."

China's awareness of its outmoded equipment is shown by its frequent shopping trips abroad for hardware — mostly to France, Britain and the United States.

China needs new anti-aircraft missiles, tanks and jet fighters. Its agingair force MiG-19 and the Chinese-designed F-9 fighters were considered too valuable and vulnerable to risk their being shot down during the border war, the analysts say.

The Chinese military has been impressed by the French Mirage 2000 jet interceptor and the British Harrier jumpjet, the military experts say. They also showed interest in France's "Hot" and "Milan" anti-tank weapons.

Analysis

No contracts for military hardware have been signed with foreign nations, which the Western experts say could indicate less than full agreement among Chinese leaders on how rapidly modernization of the Chinese army should proceed.

To launch its punitive attack against Vietnam, China relied on the age-old "human wave" tactic — sending thousands of troops surging across the border into Vietnam's five northern provinces at 26 points.

"The Vietnamese were stunned by the overall scope of the thing," says a Western diplomat specializing in Chinese affairs. "If the Vietnamese were not humbled, they were made at least a lot more wary of the prospect of future fighting."

China has admitted 20,000 of its troops were killed or wounded in the border war and estimates of Vietnamese casualties run as high as 50,000.

Western experts say China's high casualty rate and the threat of Soviet intervention if a second round of fighting erupts could give China second thoughts about launching another invasion.

Some members of the Chinese Politburo think renewed fighting "will harm the country's overall modernization drive," one analyst says.

Pope Avoids 'Explosion' In Poland

WARSAW (UPI) — From the outside it may appear that Pope John Paul II has come back to his native land like an avenging angel, fiery sword in hand, to slay the dragon of communism, which has his people in thrall.

To believe that is to overstate the case and to underestimate John Paul.

Nothing could be further from his desires than to inflame Poland's 29 million practicing Roman Catholics to turn upon the 2.5 million communists who rule them.

Any such act would be disaster for the Polish church.

In the real political world, Poland's course is set for her — rather than by her — and the church alone cannot completely reverse that course.

Commentary

John Paul, it is true, has done his share of sniping at the current Polish regime. He has jabbed, sliced, fenced with every issue he can find.

But in this fencing the foils are tipped, not needle-pointed to wound or kill.

In plainer words, the pope has done everything in his power to avoid an explosion.

And there has been no explosion.

There has not even been a sputter. Throughout Poland, through four days of papal events, there has been no sign of anti-government activity at all.

Moreover, John Paul has been equally careful not to upset the regime itself more than he can help.

His church in Poland and the regime in Poland are poised in trembling balance. This is a new thing. It is as if for years one end of a seesaw had been weighted to the ground, and only now has the other end risen even.

Upset that delicate balance and the seesaw could tilt either way. It is in the pope's interest, as much the regime's, to keep it steady.

His greatest weapon against the Polish regime is not words but the religious fervor of Poland's people. His very presence here immeasurably strengthens that fervor.

He has worked hard to strengthen it even more. He has stressed Poland's own cult figures, Poland's religious past, the thousand years of Poland's religious commitment.

He knows he has his people's fervent love more than another pope could have, because he is a Pole, because for all his life he has shared their lives and knows every anguish they have.

He has worked hard, again, to reinforce their loyalty to the institution of the pope, to the church, to the core of its beliefs. He has sought to solidify their stand behind the church's position in its dealings with the Polish state.

In reaffirming those church positions, in restating the points where church and state disagree, he has been cautious but not timid.

He brings up every point of contention, every issue, even a 13-year-old dispute that concerned a different Polish government and a different Catholic pope.

By implication and innuendo, in a sideways way, restating these differences cannot help but be taken as criticism of the regime.

But Karol Wojtyla of Krakow, Poland, did not come home as John Paul II, leader of the world's 700 million Catholics, to criticize. He came to affirm, not attack.

Bank Approves Loan To China

HONG KONG (AP) — The First National Bank of Chicago has agreed to lend $8 million to China for the purchase of cargo ships, a bank official announced here.

Executive Vice President William McDonough said the loan is believed to be the first granted to China by a U.S. bank.

McDonough said the loan agreement was signed with the Fujian (Fukien) Investment Corporation in China's southern Fujian province. He said the note was guaranteed by the Bank of China.

Both McDonough and Robert Abboud, chairman of the bank, declined to give other details of the agreement during a news conference.

The bank held a board meeting in Peking last week.

He said that with China's modernization program, the bank hopes to conclude more loan agreements with China when "occasions arise."

Abboud said "given continued political stability and adequate supplies of energy, there is no question that China is now, and will continue to be, a preferred creditor in the world market."

Authorities Locate 'Officially Deceased' Airman In Galveston

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Air Force Staff Sgt. Wilmer W. Higgs Jr. mysteriously disppeared New Year's Eve 1977 from the all-night gas station where he moonlighted. About $120 was missing from the cash register; blood stains were on the floor.

They found his car a few days later, partially submerged in the San Antonio River south of downtown. The keys were in the ignition and police said it appeared to have been driven or pushed into the water. There were signs of a struggle.

It looked for all the world like a robbery-homicide. A statewide search was mounted, dozens of Higgs' fellow servicemen searched for his body in the brush near the river and Exxon offered a $1,000 reward.

No trace was ever found. The Air Force declared the Lackland Air Force Base marksmanship instructor "officially deceased" Jan. 20, 1978. A memorial service was held for him four months later in Vidor. Air Force death benefits and insurance money were paid.

That is not, however, the end of the story.

Local and federal authorities said Wednesday they have located the 33-year-old Higgs living in the Galveston area. The FBI says Higgs has lived and worked in Southeast Texas for the the past 18 months, posing in at least two jobs as "Johnny Newman."

If the Air Force sergeant is indeed alive, he faces possible theft charges in the station robbery and will be classified as a deserter, San Antonio police and Lackland officials said Wednesday.

Military authorities must also determine if fraud was involved in connection with the undetermined amount of death benefits and insurance money his wife, Carolyn, later received.

"There is no question at all in my mind, from what we have determined, that Higgs is alive. I'm convinced of it," said the FBI agent who began the investigation in Southeast Texas about two months ago. The agent asked to remain anonymous.

"Since his disappearance, both the robbery and homicide divisions have been investigating what the hell happened to him," said Police Lt. Virgil Roberson, who believes Higgs orchestrated his own disappearance.

"I have information that he is alive. The next step is to file theft charges against him for the money missing from the gas station," said Roberson. The station owner must decide, Roberson said, whether to press those charges.

The agent said the U.S. Attorney's office in San Antonio initially ruled that there was no federal violation falling under its jurisdiction and turned the case over to the Department of Defense and the San Antonio police. Roberson said local police know the man is near Galveston, where he is reportedly working as a carpenter, and plan to apprehend him if charges are filed.

Military authorities are also looking into the case and will apprehend him if he is declared a deserter.

Higgs' wife and the couple's two daughters lived in the Vidor-Beaumont area during the time the FBI report said Higgs was working in the vicinity, apartment managers said. Higgs' father, W.W. Higgs Sr., who also lives in Vidor, confirmed that.

Mrs. Higgs, who an apartment manager said moved to Hawaii last Aug. 31, said Wednesday when contacted by phone about the reports, "I found out this morning, but I am just too upset right now to talk about it. I have no comment to make."

Sr., said, "I'm extremely happy. Frankly, I never felt he was dead. I never had given up on him. If the law has found him, I would certainly like to know where he is."

Higgs was asked three times if he had seen his son since the disappearance. He answered each time, "No sir." He was asked if his daughter-in-law had any contact with his son during that time and replied, "If she has, I'm not aware of it."

He said his daughter-in-law received death benefits and insurance from the Air Force, but did not know how much. Higgs, who had been in the Air Force since 1965, made about $750 per month, officials estimated.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It would be better to put off distasteful tasks until the following day than to perform carelessly tomorrow. Extreme discipline will be needed or mishaps could occur.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Sharp words will result tomorrow with someone you know socially, unless you're able to ignore this person's rude behavior. Keep your cool.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Bullying tactics are used only by those who can't control themselves, and so try to control others. Don't stoop to this method should opposition arise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) What you say tomorrow will make a stronger impression than you may intend. Weigh your words carefully before sounding off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Foolishness could cause you to jump into something way over your head financially. Beware of anyone dangling carrots in front of your nose.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't pull the rug out from under someone you are closely associated with tomorrow without first thinking about the consequences. Chances are, later you'll wish you hadn't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Pipe dreams could replace carefully planned activities tomorrow and spoil any chance you had for a productive day. Don't fall prey to daydreams.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be prepared to adjust your social plans to fit the needs of the majority tomorrow. If you don't your only "entertainment" will be frustration.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Erratic behavior on your part will call attention to you for sure, and it won't be the good kind. Protect your image and reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Upon occasion you have a tendence to overract to something someone has said. Be smart. If this happens tomorrow, conceal your irritation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're much too reckless moneywise tomorrow and could make a costly mistake. Take time to study financial projects carefully.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's not your nature to try to out-manuever a competitor. Give him enough rope and he'll hang himself.

Your Birthday

June 8, 1979

This coming year will be an active one, and you'll be putting more energy and effort into satisfying some inner needs. Take care that what you work for is what you really want.

Miami Doctors Cite Dangers Of Cocaine

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite the belief there is no evidence that cocaine is dangerous, two Miami doctors who have counted at least 68 cocaine-related deaths say it is not safe for "recreational use."

Drs. Charles V. Wetli and Ronald K. Wright, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, say the average victim is a 26-year-old white male. In the deaths they counted, 29 involved the use of other drugs along with cocaine, and 24 involved effects of cocaine alone.

Respiratory collapse and death occurred most quickly among those who injected cocaine. Among those who sniffed or swallowed it, the reaction was delayed as long as an hour, they said.

New Awareness Helping Reduce Infant Death Rate

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County health care agencies have a tradition of voluntarism, but there also is a growing awareness of the need for increased cooperation of services and information.

A dramatic illustration of this is provided by recently compiled data on the operations of the Health Sciences Center Hospital neonatal intensive care unit from Feb. 1, 1978, to Jan. 1, 1979.

During the 11-month period, the number of deaths of babies less than one year of age who were born at the county hospital and admitted to the ICU was 8.8 percent (26 out of 295).

Last In A Series

This fatality percentage was in sharp contrast to the 19.6 percent (21 out of 107) infant mortality rate for babies born outside Health Sciences Center Hospital who were later admitted to the ICU.

Dr. Michael Blackburn, director of the division of neonatology at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, attributed the greater success of the "inborn" babies in the ICU to the close relationship existing between the hospital's obstetricians and neonatologists (high risk baby specialists).

He said the obstetricians, with the tools of prenatal care and history and the women's responses to labor, are usually able to advise the neonatologists beforehand of problem babies, thus preparing for a rapid transfer from the delivery rooms to the ICU.

And rapid identification and response to problems at birth is crucial, according to Dr. Blackburn. "You have to prevent simple things, the baby getting cold or his blood sugar going down," he said. "Babies have little reserve, so you can't have setbacks. They rarely remain in a fixed state."

Lines of communication between separate health agencies are becoming more visible, too.

Dr. Blackburn said Health Sciences Center Hospital requires as one of the conditions for the release of a baby from the ICU that a visit be made to the home of the infant.

Although the county facility employs a full-time social worker, according to Dr. Blackburn, Lubbock Health Department community nurses perform most of the home visits.

Paul Blackwell, medical programs coordinator at the health department, said the department is now sending a community nurse over to Health Sciences Center Hospital idaily.

An older example of the need for cooperation among county agencies is the federally sponsored Women, Infants and Children program shared by the health department and the United Way Well Baby Clinic in Lubbock.

"The whole thrust of the program is nutrition education," said Sue Belew, director of the Well Baby Clinic, and the nutritionists provide counseling five days per week to women in the health department maternity clinic and women with young children at the Well Baby Clinic.

Voluntary service of skilled outside help has long been essential to the proper functioning of the Lubbock County health care agencies, and here a transition appears to be under way.

While the health department and Well Baby Clinic are undertaking expanded programs to combat infant mortality, relying to a great degree on assistance from the Texas Tech medical school residency program, the existence of the Second Baptist Church Sick Children's Clinic in Lubbock may be in jeopardy.

"We are in a real crisis now from not having enough private doctors," Betty Lou Mahone, director of the Sick Children's Clinic, said. "I would say in the last six months it has gotten to be a real problem."

Mrs. Mahone said the clinic planned to send a representative to the May meeting of the Lubbock-Crosby-Garza County Medical Society, but added that "if we don't get any encouragement from them, we may have to consider cutting back our program."

The clinic depends heavily on volunteer physicians, who in the past have provided free examinations to children and infants five days per week.

At the Well Baby Clinic, where in the past the volunteer services of private doctors were primarily confined to several hours each Thursday morning, Texas Tech pediatrics residents, supervised by a faculty member, since April 1 have been examining babies each weekday afternoon, according to Mrs. Belew.

Interviewed shortly before the cooperative program with Texas Tech was begun, the director said: "The people really rely on the clinic for any kind of help. It will really help to have a physician on full-time duty. We won't have to refer a sick baby that could have been treated here to a hospital or a doctor."

The city health department conducts its maternity clinic five days per week under a similar arrangement, using the services of Texas Tech residents in obstetrics three days of the week and volunteer physicians and qualified staff for the remainder.

The growth of the maternity clinic is reflected in department statistics which show the number admitted to have increased from 203 in 1973 to 603 in 1975, 736 in 1976, 835 in 1977, and 960 in 1978.

The new-born clinic at the health department, expected to open in the next few weeks, will provide check-ups for children from birth to age one if their mothers attended the maternity clinic.

And an expanded home visiting program also will fight the infant death problem.

From rough sledding in the early going, when Dr. Marjorie Orr said the community nurse staff dropped to two persons after her arrival in February 1978, the home visiting program added three nurses in September 1978 and three more in January 1979, according to the department director.

She said she anticipated having five community nurses always connected with the visiting program and added, "We will probably make home visits to patients we know about or who are referred to us by a doctor or an agency."

The mission of the newly developed health department perinatal center has already been stated. In an assessment of the progress and past failings of the department prepared early this year, Dr. Orr said the department was setting out as a top priority, reducing the infant mortality rate in Lubbock County "to at least that of the state level by 1981."

Perhaps no one is more interested in seeing that goal accomplished than state and federal officials who are currently considering a grant proposal to fight infant death in a 15-county South Plains region, including Lubbock County.

The grant, which if approved would provide more than $100,000 annually over a four-year-period to the county, is pending before the state health department and the Dallas regional office of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

If approved, funding of the grant could begin late in 1979, according to a state health department official, which would mean further expansion and coordination of county health services.

In late March Dr. Orr said she foresaw using a portion of the funds appropriated to the health department to hire a supervising nurse to coordinate infant mortality programs among the various county agencies.

In the final analysis, that may be the essential ingredient for the future.

Minister Plans To Be In Pulpit

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI) — The minister at the Morning Star Missionary Baptist Church says he plans to be in the pulpit on Sunday — despite claims from four church members he has been fired.

The church members claim they fired the Rev. Charles M. Morgan, 28, for not following the church's by-laws and for "wasting the church's money." But Morgan has refused to leave.

Morgan said Wednesday he had not heard that an associate Wyandotte County district court judge, Matthew G. Podrebarac, granted the church members' request for a temporary restraining order to keep Morgan "from acting in the capacity of minister or pastor of said church."

"A church has no business being in court and I sure hope we can get out of it as soon as possible," Morgan said.

Podrebarac has scheduled a hearing on the request for a permanent order for next Wednesday.

The church members asked for the restraining order because they said "that unless the defendant is restrained immediately, violence may ensue."

Morgan said Wednesday he had not been fired by the church because it would take a two-thirds majority of the church's 50 members for that action. He said the four members were merely trying to "make trouble."

"I don't know what their problem is," he said.

John Alexander, one of the four plantiffs, was one of six persons who filed a lawsuit in 1977 against then-pastor Rev. C.E. Williams, whom the members accused of overpaying a contractor for an addition to the church.

Dip In Beef Prices Cheers Consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose a modest 0.4 percent in May — the smallest increase in nine months — with a sharp drop in beef prices getting much of the credit, the government said today.

The May increase was a marked turnaround from the 0.9 percent wholesale price rise in April, together with increases of 1 percent or more in the first three months of the year.

The Labor Department report offered further proof that the nation's economy has begun to slow, which might help ease the high rate of inflation so far this year.

Wholesale food prices fell 1.3 percent in May, the largest drop since February 1976. Beef prices at wholesale fell nearly 7 percent, the first decline after five consecutive months of large increases.

"It's bound to have some effect at the retail level," said John Early, chief of the Labor Department's division of industrial prices. "Most food changes pass through very rapidly."

At the same time, however, the wholesale prices of consumer goods other than food rose 1 percent in May.

Early blamed the continuing increase on rapidly rising gasoline and fuel oil prices. Gasoline prices went up 5.2 percent in May, for an increase of nearly 12 percent in the past three months. Fuel oil was up 5.4 percent, or more than 18 percent since February.

Government economists had been predicting the slowdown in food prices. The rising petroleum prices are blamed on a worldwide shortage and repidly escalating charges for crude oil from producing nations.

Wholesale price changes are included in the Producer Price Index, which reports prices at three levels: the wholesale or finished goods level, when goods are ready for sale to the final user; the intermediate level, where they have received some processing, and the crude level, where goods have not yet received any processing.

The Producer Price Index stood at 212.4 in May, meaning that goods that cost $100 at the wholesale level in the 1967 base period cost $212.40 last month.

The index last month was 10 percent ahead of a year ago, the Labor Department said.

May statistics indicate that prices rose 1 percent at the intermediate level and 0.8 percent at the crude level.

Food prices declined modestly at both levels. But non-food prices, particularly for petroleum products, rose 1 percent for partially processed goods and 2.3 percent at the crude stage.

At the finished goods level, prices eased for pork, fresh fruit and eggs as well as beef.

Savings likely to show up at the supermarket will be offset by more expensive prices for such goods as gasoline, home heating oil, tires, plastic goods and leather footwear, the Labor Department said.

The wholesale prices for items of this nature rose 1.6 percent in May, the third consecutive monthly increase.

"In the three months ended in May, these rices advanced at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 20.1 percent, the fastest rate for any three-month period since the summer of 1974," the price report said.

Front May Halt Warming Trend

A-J News Services

A cold front pushing southward between Lubbock and Amarillo early this afternoon, bringing travel warnings in the Rockies and promising cooler weather in West Texas Friday.

The mercury pushed toward the 90-degree mark in Lubbock at midday, in sharp contrast to recent cloudy and cool weather, as gusty winds stirred up dust in some areas.

However, at noon winds had reached only about 15 mph here. Lubbock's midday reading was 87 degrees, while Amarillo, already behind the front, registered 74 degrees.

Wind warnings were issued for area lakes, with winds expected to flow in a southwesterly direction at 15 to 25 mph with much stronger gusting this afternoon before diminishing tonight.

The winds are part of a developing low pressure system that early today centered in eastern Colorado and is expected to sweep southeast, bringing cooler temperatures and the possibility of more rain by Friday to the South Plains.

National Weather Service reports indicated hot, sunny skies this afternoon, with temperatures in the Lubbock area cooling to the mid-60s tonight and peaking in the upper 80s Friday.

Weekend South Plains forecasts show a chance of showers Saturday and continued coolish temperatures in the 70s and 80s. By early next week, however, temperatures are expected to rise to the 80s and 90s.

Heavy thunderstorms moved across portions of South Texas today and hail fell during the night in Grayson and Cooke counties.

Residents of Wichita Falls, however, were relieved because floodwaters were receding, police reported early this morning.

The National Weather Service said a band of showers and thunderstorms — some quite heavy — was over the South Texas area. Rain was forecast for all areas of the state except West Texas.

At Wichita Falls, a police dispatcher said floodwaters were receding and residents who had been evacuated from their homes Tuesday night were almost all back — drying out their possessions.

"Most of the flooding situation is receding slowly," she said. "The main problem was around the Holliday Creek area, but it's receding. It's receding slowly, but it's receding," she said.

Three days of rain between Monday and Wednesday caused waterways across the state to swell and were blamed for at least two drownings.

A 13-year-old boy drowned Wednesday afternoon at Wichita Falls when a flat-bottom boat overturned in a rain-swollen drainage ditch. It had been packed with a debris from a tornado less than two months earlier.

In addition, the Red Cross had to open shelters for evacuated residents.Most of them had returned home by today.

The area was devasted April 10 by a tornado that killed 44 persons.

At Laredo, police were keeping a watchful eye on rivers but a spokesman said "the weather looks pretty good" today and they wee optimistic rivers would not rise to a dangerous level.

"The river's pretty high, but there's no flooding yet — no problem," a policeman reported earty today.

A possible tornado was sighted on radar Wednesday night 10 miles west of Bowie, the weather service reported. Another was indicated five miles southwest of Bellevue. A Check with authorities, however, revealed no damage and they did not believe a tornado had touched down in either location.

Girl From Denver Wins National Spelling Title

By BEVERLY O'BRIANT
Avalanche-Journal Staff

After an hour and a half and 22 rounds of spelling, Katie Kerwin of Denver, Colo., was declared winner of the National Spelling Bee this morning.

She defeated Julie Won, of Harrisburg, Pa., who placed third in last year's contest, and Donna Marie Allmon, of Hampton, Va.

Katie's winning word was "maculature." Second-place finisher Julie Won battled for eight rounds with Katie before missing the word "virescence."

"Virescence" means the abnormal greening of petals because of chlorophyll. "Maculature" is the impression made from an engraved plate to remove ink from recessed areas.

Some of the words correctly spelled by Katie in the meet were "osteomyelitis," "oleaginous," and "fortissimo."

Katie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kerwin. An older sister, Mary, an older brother, Greg, were finalists in the National Spelling Bee in 1975 and 1973 respectively. Those finished in the top ten.

At the beginning of the second day of competition, only one of the nine Texas spellers remained in the contest, Pamela Hake of Fort Worth.

The other contestants from Texas included Michelle Faldik of the Houston Chronicle, Michelle Evatt of The Avalanche-Journal; Michele Shouse of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times; and Simone Farmer of the San Antonio News.

Other Texans were Julie George of the Odessa American, Rick Stout of the Amarillo Globe-News, Robert Roling of the Dallas Morning News and John L. Molinar of the El Paso Herald-Post.

Pamela finished fifth in the national competition. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hake of Fort Worth, she is an 11-year-old sixth grader. Her interests include playing the piano and violin. Pamela was sponsored by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Among the words the spelling bee contestants had no trouble with Wednesday were "kibitzer," "loquacious," "klystron," "officialese" and "visceral."

In confident bursts of letters said quickly or in desperate, dragged-out guesses, they spelled them right.

But "freshet," "chicanery," "commissure," "soporific" and "masochist" were troublesome. They knocked contestants out of the running.

By the time Wednesday's spelling ended, the 109 original competitors — 63 girls and 46 boys from 39 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, had been whittled down to 32 — 18 girls and 14 boys — to compete today until a champion emerges, winning the $1,000 prize.

While the children, age 10 to 14, spelled before two microphones, parents tiptoed to the front of the hotel ballroom to photograph their offspring in the act of high concentration.

Three judges sat before the spellers, a fat dictionary at their side, ready to ring a bell for every misspelling.

A visit to the Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution and Arlington National Cemetery are planned this afternoon.

Friday, the group will visit either Mount Vernon or the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Friday night the week's activities will be concluded with an awards banquet in the Mayflower Hotel.

Michigan State Selects Mackey For High Post

dered of prime importance in the selection of the new president. MSU Board of Trustees Chairman John Bruff said the original list of candidates for the job included about 250 names.

Dr. Edgar Harden, 71, acting president for MSU, was relieved that the trustees had finally made a choice after 18 months of trying to replace former president Clifton Wharton.

"I'm enthusiastic" about leaving, Harden said. "It just all came together very rapidly," he said of the final decision to approve Mackey.

"We feel that finally, after all these months of looking, that we've come up with the best choice," Harden said.

Harden, scheduled to leave his post June 30, said he thought Mackey had also been on campus around Memorial Day.

Sources have told the A-J that Mackey's new salary would range between $65,000 and $75,000. Texas Tech is currently paying Mackey $63,000.

Mackey is scheduled to follow a breakneck schedule of meetings today, including visits with various alumni groups, student and athletic associations. He spoke today of remaining accessible to students, a remark he also made upon coming to Texas Tech in 1976. Mackey replaced then-university president Grover Murray after a search of eight months.

Some Lansing residents were surprised to hear that the president of a West Texas university half the size of MSU would be chosen over a long list of candidates from bigger schools in Minnesota, Ohio, Nebraska and other states.

But insiders have said it is Mackey's varied background which made him such an attractive candidate to the MSU board, which had reportedly been split by one group who wanted a scholarly president and another who wanted a businessman with experience in financial matters.

Mackey was president of the University of South Florida in Tampa for five years before coming to Texas Tech. He also held positions with Florida State University, the Federal Aviation Agency, the U.S. Department of Commerce and the U.S. Department Of Transportation.

He holds master's, law and doctorate degrees and has taught economics and law.

U.S. Generals Claim Panama Aids Rebels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. Army generals testified today that Panama is supporting Nicaragua's Sandinista guerrillas, but they disagreed on the extent.

Lt. Gen. Dennis P. McAuliffe, commander-in-chief of the Army's Southern Command, told a House subcommittee that the Panamanian government has permitted formation of a brigade of Panamanians to fight in Nicaragua and allowed Sandinistas to flee to Panama last September after they seized the legislative palace in Managua.

But, McAuliffe said, "the Panamanian involvement appears directed more against the (Nicaraguan President Anastasio) Somoza regime, which is perceived by Panama as repressive, than toward advancement of the Sandinista cause."

McAuliffe said some Panamanians also have been involved in supplying guns to the Sandinistas, but had no comment on whether the government is involved.

However, retired Lt. Gen. Gordon Sumner told the subcommittee he believes that Panama is supporting revolution in Central America.

Sumner said former Panamanian head of state Omar Torrijos told him in 1977 "of his intention to support rebellion and insurrection in his neighbor republics."

Sumner, who at the time was chairman of the Inter-American Defense Board, said Torrijos told him specifically that he intended to increase Panama's support for the Sandinistas and insurgents in El Salvador.

Sumner said Congress should not allow the treaties turning the Panama Canal over to Panama to go into effect.

He said the treaties, which guarantee Panama an annual share of canal revenues, are now being used to "blackmail the U.S. Congress into paying money which will support subversion in this hemisphere."

Rep. Carroll Hubbard, D-Ky., chairman of the Panama Canal subcommittee conducting the hearing, said House leaders had planned to postpone action next week on a bill to carry out the treaties but that President Carter insists the House vote next week.

Hubbard said a nationwide advertising campaign supporting the bill is planned and that House action may be rescheduled next week "on the insistence of the White House, based on the fact that this barrage of propaganda has already been scheduled and paid for."

Hubbard said Carter also has invited 100 House members to the White House Monday night to urge them to vote the next day for the treaty bill.

Marshall Announces New Suit Against City In Bond Dispute

again ordered the pair to pay court costs for this morning's hearing.

The hearing was punctuated by an exchange between Marshall and Wright about Marshall not being represented by an attorney.

Marshall, who represented himself in the validation action, asked Wright to continue the hearing until Marshall could hire an attorney.

However, Wright denied the request, telling Marshall he had been notified of the hearing in enough time to hire an attorney.

Isom was represented by attorney Floyd Holder, who originally also was representing Marshall.

Holder told Wright he had been fired by Marshall, but Marshall said Holder withdrew from the case.

"I need a lawyer and want a lawyer," Marshall said. "I beg the court for time to get one."

"The court never precluded you from getting a lawyer and in October, 1978, this court suggested you do so," Wright said. "You had ample time to hire a lawyer."

Don Vandiver, representing the city, said the petition for a bill of review was an attempt "to obtain what could not be obtained in a trial on the merits."

Vandiver also said none of the requirements for a bill of review had been met.

Holder said Wright's court did not have jurisdiction over the validation action because another suit challenging the validity of the bonds was pending in 237th District Court.

However, attorneys for the city denied that case was pending and City Attorney John Ross said the question of jurisdiction had to be settled through an appeal to a higher court — not through a bill of review.

State law establishes a specific route of appeal which Marshall and Isom did not follow, Ross said. If a decision is not appealed within a certain time, state law says that ruling is "forever binding," Ross said.

Marshall and Isom had claimed the appeal bond, raised at the request of the city, prohibited them from appealing the case to a higher court.

Marshall said he had refiled a suit in 237th District Court which challenged the city's handling of bonds.

Wright's ruling should clear the way for a planned Aug. 21 sale of $8.82 million in capital improvement bonds to finance water, street, sewer and firefighting system improvements.

County Ponders Hospital Panel

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The names of 15 to 20 members of a new "blue ribbon" committee to grapple with the financial problems of Health Sciences Center Hospital will be announced sometime next week, Lubbock County commissioners said today while sifting through a list of several dozen candidates.

There will be two or three representatives each from the legal, medical, banking and accounting professions, they indicated.

Commissioners were also seeking representative rural Lubbock County residents and minority group members.

Gerald Bosworth, administrator of the Lubbock County Hospital District-created hospital, urged that members be appointed "from the brown and black communities" because the hospital clientele is more than 50 percent minorities.

County Judge Rod Shaw said some of the candidates were persons who have been asked to serve on the hospital district board but declined because of other commitments at the time they were asked.

Precinct No. 4 Commissioner Alton Brazell said they should "stay clear of elected officials because they've got their own governmental interests."

The commissioners also apparently were not considering members of the hospital staff.

They trimmed the list of candidates to 30 and were going to contact those in hopes of getting 15 to 20 who would serve.

The commissioners court decided to appoint the committee after declining a hospital district request earlier this week to approve an increase doubling property taxes.

They said an increase would have to be approved by district residents in an election which will be held in August if approved.

The committee is being appointed to study the financial condition of the hospital, which has about $7 million in unpaid bills on its books, and analyze its financial impact on the county.

Clements Inks Bill Helping News Media

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements signed into law today a bill prohibiting evidentiary searches of newspaper and broadcast station offices.

"I think you are all well aware of what the bill is about," Clements told his weekly news conference before signing the measure.

The new law prevents law enforcement officers from searching a news office if there is no evidence reporters and other employees are involved in criminal activity.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled last year that police could search a news office for evidence of a crime even though the office's only connection with any criminal activity was through its news coverage.

However, the court said states could pass special laws protecting freedom of the press. Connecticut, Nebraska and New Jersey have passed similar laws.

Clements also signed a bill allowing citizns to file mandamus suits to stop or prevent officials from holding closed meetings in violating of the Texas Open Meetings Law.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over objections by the Carter administration, the Senate Armed Services Committee voted Wednesday to exempt $1.4 billion worth of military construction from a requirement that prevailing wages be paid.

Grand Jury

ments are related to a federal grand jury investigation now being conducted in Lubbock.

The federal panel resumed its deliberations Monday into a large-scale cocaine distribution ring across the South Plains.

That panel, too, was prompted by an undercover investigation headed by DEA and Department of Public Safety narcotics agents.

Some sources have hinted that the federal panel might conclude its investigation this week, possibly this afternoon.

The panel began its probe into alleged cocaine distribution in early May. The grand jury recessed without taking any action, then resumed its deliberations Monday.

More than 50 persons, including members of prominent Lubbock families, have been subpoenaed to testify before the federal panel.

The "no comment" stance of federal officials and the method in which the proceedings have been conducted have given rise to much speculation.

In addition to the evidence resulting in the sealed indictments, the county grand jury also considered 81 other felony cases and was to report on them this afternoon.

Jack Haley Succumbs At Age 79

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Haley, the man millions will always remember as the Tin Woodman in the film classic "The Wizard of Oz," has died at the age of 79.

Haley entered UCLA Medical Center Saturday after a heart attack, lapsed into critical condition Monday and died at 1:04 p.m. PDT Wednesday, said hospital spokeswoman Bonnie Whitham.

Haley's former vaudeville partner and wife of 52 years, Florence McFadden, was at his bedside.

Haley starred in vaudeville, Broadway musicals and 50 movies as an actor and song and dance man, but his 1939 performance as the Tin Woodman brought him the most fame.

Haley's last public appearance came April 9 at the Academy Awards, when he joined with the "Oz" scarecrow, Ray Bolger, to present an Oscar.

His son, Jack Haley Jr., president of 20th Century-Fox Television Productions, produced that telecast and directed the 1972 movie "Norwood," the last film in which his father appeared.

A deeply moved Ray Bolger said, "A very dear friend — a man I loved and adored — is gone. ... It will always be an honor to have been with him in a film that has become an international classic."

Margaret Hamilton, who played the wicked witch in "Oz," said in New York, "He was ... one of the dearest men I think I've ever known, fun always, and so helpful in every way, and I was very, very fond of him."

In recent years Haley Sr. had devoted himself to real estate development, charity organizations and to the American Guild of Variety Artists (AGVA), the embattled union he once headed.

Pipeline Ownership Ban Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities took a first step today toward barring oil company ownership of petroleum pipelines, a move that might have the effect of holding down gasoline costs.

The Federal Trade Commission announced it will seek public comment on a "petition for rulemaking" to prohibit oil companies from owning the pipelines. Major oil companies now own most of the nation's petroleum pipelines, which move oil from wells to refineries and then to markets.

The Federal Register notice requesting comment on the issue would declare oil company ownership to be "an unfair method of competition" and illegal under the antitrust laws, the FTC announcement said.

The FTC action was taken on a petition it received in January from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who asked the commission to forbid such ownership.

Kennedy hailed the FTC announcement. "For over 70 years the pipeline ownership issue has been explored in report after report and study after study," he said. "The cost to consumers in excessive rate charges, inefficiency and loss of competition has been repeatedly documented."

"The resolution of this issue has been postponed too long. Competitive difficulties of this kind in the oil industry are no longer tolerable," Kennedy said.

The American Petroleum Institute, an industry group, had no immediate comment.

After public comment, the FTC staff is expected to report to the commisssion by the end of the year on recommended action.

The oil companies are expected to oppose vigorously any government requirement for divestitures.

Even if the FTC issues a regulation barring oil company ownership of petroleum pipelines, appeals could be carried to the federal courts.

Kennedy has said federal regulation on profit rates on pipeline operation is a failure because the government does not say how big the pipelines can be.

Kennedy, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, contends this allows oil companies to build pipelines of a size that results in maximum profits.

"Because pipeline capacity is not regulated, owners can evade rate regulation," Kennedy said in his petition to the FTC. "The effect of such evasion is to raise prices to consumers and to discriminate against non-owner shippers by depriving them of adequate capacity and equitable rates," he said.

The FTC staff told the four commissioners in a memo that to issue the regulation Kennedy wants, the agency would have to have data showing that pipeline ownership enables oil companies to reap monopoly profits.

The Federal Register notice, approved unanimously by the commission, is expected within a week.

Hart's Relatives, Friends Doubt Heart Attack Report

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (UPI) — Relatives and friends of Gene Leroy Hart, many of whom helped raise money to finance Hart's trial in the brutal slayings of three Girl Scouts, doubt the fugitive-turned-folk hero died of heart failure.

Hart, acquitted March 30 of the sex slayings of the Girl Scouts in a highly publicized trial, collapsed while exercising Monday at McAlester State Prison.

"I think they killed him," Millie Littledave, Hart's sister, said. "I think they wanted him dead and they got their way. The Tulsa Mafia (Tulsa County prosecutors) — that's the system. You can't beat them. I guess I will always believe they killed him."

After the trial Hart, 35, was returned to McAlester to finish serving sentences totaling 140 years for previous kidnapping, rape and burglary convictions.

State medical examiner Dr. A.J. Chapman said Hart may have first suffered a heart attack three years ago while he was a fugitive from the Mayes County jail and before the Camp Scott killings.

Chapman said it was not unusual for a man of Hart's age to suffer from heart disease, although he said Hart's sickness was unusually severe for a 35-year-old. He also said the symptoms might not have shown up in a routine physical examination.

Prison officials could not say when Hart had had his last complete physical checkup. He had been to the prison infirmary only once since his return from Mayes County, for treatment of a skin rash.

Many residents in Hart's hometown, some of whom held chili suppers to raise money during the full-blooded Cherokee Indian's trial, said they felt the popular, former high school football star had not been treated fairly and suffered unjustly in prison.

"They just don't believe that Gene died of a heart attack," said the Rev. Bill Grass, the Hart's family minister. "They think someone put something in his food or he was drugged or something."

Rev. Grass' wife said, "Of course, the boy (Hart) didn't hardly have a chance anyway. Once they sent him back to prison he really didn' have a chance."

Locust Grove Police Chief Kenneth DeCamp wasn't surprised at his fellow townspeople's reaction to tte death.

"I can tell you already what they're going to say," DeCamp said. "They're going to say that Gene Hart ran into some foul play at McAlester."

Hart't funeral was set for 2 p.m. Friday at the Locust Grove high school gym with burial at a cemetery near Locust Grove.

Chapman said "complete toxocological scans" on Hart's body will be performed, probably by the end of the week, to determine if any drugs were present in his bloodstream.

The only drug found in the initial autopsy was Lidocaine, which was administered after Hart was stricken to try to control his heartbeat, Chapman said.

Novelist Kicks Off Workshop

By TOM GRIESS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Good fiction writing mirrors the richness of life, weaving inspiration and beauty along with pain and ugliness into the context of a story, and English teachers must use those stories to excite the senses and stir the imaginations of students.

Novelist, teacher, mother and wife, Robin Brancato, speaking this morning at the Lubbock Christian College Summer Workshop, "Strategies for Teaching Secondary English," said the dual responsibilities of writer and teacher can be burdensome.

"I believe as a writer in faithful reproduction of language in life. As a teacher, though, I abhor lazy, unimaginative language," she said.

She added that her recourse was to try to take the middle path, using improper grammar and profane language if imperative, but always underlining the importance of words to life.

Speaking of the central characters in her soon-to-be published fifth novel, "WHUP," Mrs. Brancato said: "They share a belief, with most of my other protagonists and with me, that words matter, that if we can use words, we can communicate and work things out."

She cited the example, however, of one eighth grade student in Wisconsin who recently took exception to her philosophy of realism.

In a December 1978 letter to the author on the subject of her third novel, "Winning," a story of the response of a high school boy to a paralyzing football injury, the student said he enjoyed the book, but was offended by the language.

She told the assembled area teachers she wrote the Wisconsin student and explained that while she dislikes "bad language," many people use it. To refuse to use profane language in writing for adolescents would be to ignore a large segment of society, many of whom are "good and worthy of love," Mrs. Brancato said.

Her remarks were the first at the three-day workshop that will end Saturday afternoon. Still to speak are F. Allen Briggs on "Teaching with Newspapers," Gene Michelon on "Some Practical Tips in Successful Writing," Ann Jenson on "Teaching Language and Composition" and columnist M. Stanton Evans on "Teaching Responsible Citizenship."

The workshop, which is being planned and coordinated by the LCC English department and funded by the LCC Center for Business and Economic Education, is designed to improve junior and senior high school English teaching.

Following Mrs. Brancato's speech, one local teacher said she recently took a classroom poll which indicated that nearly all the students use profanity and dislike G-rated motion pictures.

Mrs. Brancato said the response sounded like what she would expect of her Hackensack, N.J., high school students, but cautioned against fearing for the future of America's youth.

She said most students act and speak quite differently with peers than among adults, and she added that her experience showed most of contemporary youth to be loving and morally minded.

Stolen Vehicle Crashes In Field North Of Spade

A car reported stolen from in front of the Lubbock County Sheriff's Department about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday crashed several hours later north of Spade on FM 168.

The driver of the car, Deppy D. Jaquess, 31, of 2603 38th St., has been charged with theft over $200 by the Lubbock Criminal District Attorney's Office.

Jaquess, reportedly the lone occupant of the 1968 Ford Mustang, was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Littlefield Hospital and Clinic.

According to the Department of Public Safety, authorities had not spotted the suspected car thief until he was admitted at the Littlefield hospital.

Investigating trooper Andy Hernandez said Jaquess apparently was northbound on 168 when he lost control of the vehicle. Hernandez said the car rolled over several times in a ditch and came to rest in a plowed field.

A Spade resident spotted the unconscious Jaquess in the field and drove him to Littlefield.

Jaquess told authorities he was accompanied by another man when he had the accident. However, Hernandez said it was thought the man was alone because the vehicle appeared too badly damaged for anyone to have walked away from it.

The vehicle was owned by Lubbock bail bondsman Manuel Flores. Flores, of 1916 E. First St., said his car was stolen between 5:30 p.m. and 5:45 p.m. while it was parked in front of the sheriff's office.

Hernandez said the vehicle appeared to be a total loss.

Six Area Residents Hurt In Car-Pickup Collision

MULESHOE (Special) — Five area residents remained hospitalized today as a result of a car-pickup truck collision that injured six persons about 1:15 p.m. Wednesday on Texas 214, about 11 miles north of here.

Laura Jesko, 11, of Muleshoe was in critical condition this morning at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital and her 16-year-old sister, Angela, was in serious condition at Methodist.

The girls, who both reportedly suffered head injuries in the accident, were first taken to West Plains Medical Center here and transferred to the Lubbock hospital Wednesday afternoon.

Their mother, Brenda Collier Jesko, 35, and another sister, Ginger, 7, were in good condition late today at West Plains.

The driver of the pickup, Joe Nanez, 51, of Friona also was in good condition at the Muleshoe hospital, and his son, Jessie Manuel, 9, was treated at West Plains and later released.

Department of Public Safety reports show that Mrs. Jesko was going north on Texas 214 and Nanez was traveling south on the same highway when the accident occurred. Trooper Jim Bishop said the two vehicles struck almost head-on about 350 feet north of the intersection of Farm Road 145 and Texas 214.

Police Obtain Girl's Records

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Police child abuse investigators have obtained the records on a 10-year-old girl who gave birth to twins last month at the Indiana University Hospital.

Records and other details on the multiple births — believed to be the first in the nation for a mother so young — were suppressed by the hospital under a patient privacy policy.

Officials, doctors and family members refused to discuss the case after announcing that that the mother and her twin baby girls were in good condition.

Police, however, informed hospital officials of a state law that allows them to subpoena hospital records that could be related to child abuse cases. Hospital officials confirmed Wednesday they had surrendered the records.

Police made no immediate comment on the focus of their investigation or on the contents of the records.

Group Charges Blind Exploited As Cheap Labor

WASHINGTON (AP) — On assembly lines in Cincinnati or Chicago or New York they work — some for more than 20 years — forming candles, producing mattresses, packaging airplane meals. For their labors, they earn as little as 61 cents an hour.

They are blind people employed at privately run "sheltered workshops" across the nation. Their advocates charge they are being exploited as a cheap labor pool with the Labor Department's blessing.

The 50,000-member National Federation of the Blind wants the government to eliminate rules allowing employers to pay blind workers less than the federal minimum wage — now $2.90 an hour.

Opposing the federation are the nonprofit workshops, which contend they are providing job opportunities that otherwise would be denied the handicapped. Paying the minimum wage to all blind workers could force some workshops to close, the employers say.

Federal law now lets employers pay blind and other handicapped employees less than the minimum wage if they can prove the workers are less productive than sighted workers.

The government estimates there are up to 7,000 blind employees at sheltered workshops, with the majority earning a sub-minimum wage.

By contrast, very few blind people employed by profit-making companies are paid sub-minimum wages.

"Blindness is not an impediment to productive work," said James Gashel, spokesman for the Federation of the Blind. "It has been proven that the blind can earn the minimum wage if employers adopt more efficient methods."

Gashel said workshops use poor production methods and the Labor Department uses faulty tests to measure blind workers' productivity.

"The argument that blind workers are not productive enough to earn the minimum wage pales in the face of profit-loss statements," he said.

Gashel said after-cost revenues, up to $2.4 million at one workshop, go to support other charitable programs rather than to the workers who produced the money.

"We want a fair share" of that money, said Gashel, who termed the current system "morally wrong." He complained that while employees are earning sub-minimum wages, workshop administrators pull down $50,000-a-year salaries.

Last year, sheltered workshops had sales of $123 million, half of which came from federal contracts.

The federation's position won support from several members of Congress, including Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa., who is partially blind himself. Lederer said the current regulations "do more to work against blind people rather than with them."

Charles W. Harles, spokesman for Goodwill Industries of America, said many blind workers have multiple handicaps and are "very unproductive."

"There are substantial numbers of handicappped at Goodwill . . . who would have no work if not for the sub-minimum wage," said Harles. He said most Goodwill workshops operate near the break-even point.

"We're interested in paying the minimum wage or more when people can earn it," he said, adding that the main purpose of a workshop is "to provide a work setting and (job) training ... not to make money."

Officers Get Order To Jog

SCITUATE, R.I. (UPI) — Police Chief William J. Lawton thinks his 18 patrolmen and officers spend too much time sitting in their cruisers. So he's ordered them out on the street — to jog on the job.

They're required to run at at least 1½ miles a day during slow periods on their shifts. "They do an awful lot of sitting in police cars," he observed.

The 52-year-old police chief has been a jogger for two years, running a mile a day at his home. He began his department's physical fitness program a month ago and so far, he says it's resulted in a more alert and less fatigued force.

Lawton said he's had little resistance to his order. Only men over 50 are exempt. They're required to walk the distance.

The liqueur Benedictine is named after the Benedictine monks who first made the drink at their monastery in 1510.

COMMUNITY SUPPORT — Doug Stolleis, president of the Monterey Optimist Club, presents Tom Ford with a check that will help finance a trip to a national speech contest for Ford and his teacher Elizabeth Browning. Effort Nets Enough Money To Send Ford To Tourney

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A search for funds that began as a joke blossomed into a full-fledged fund-raising drive that will send a Monterey High School graduate to a prestigious speech tournament this month.

The fund-raising efforts of the Monterey student body and the Monterey Optimist Club netted about $750 to finance Tom Ford's trip to Cincinnati, Ohio, for a National Forensics League tournament.

The need for money surfaced after the 1979 graduate qualified in the spring for the national contest. The school district does not fund trips for events that are not sponsored by University Interscholastic League so that "we were faced with raising the money," said Ford's speech teacher, Elizabeth Browning.

Ford said that Monterey teachers initiated a trading stamp drive to raise money, but the student-sponsored effort was kicked off on a less than serious note.

"One day they got on the announcements and said, 'If you see Tom Ford in the halls give him a quarter,'" said Ford. "But people I didn't even know were giving me quarters. We raised about $60 from that. It started out as a school joke, but at the same time it was paying off," he said.

After the initial drives, the fund-raising efforts began in earnest. A bake sale, car wash, garage sale and a $100 donation from the National Honor Society, topped off by a $400 check from the Monterey Optimist Club raised the necessary funds.

Ford explained that the Optimist Club promised to fund the balance of the money needed after the school had completed its money-making efforts.

Now that the trip has become a reality for the speech enthusiast, Ford admits he is nervous. "There will be people from all over the country there... it's a scary thing," he said.

Ford feels he is prepared for the contest, which runs from June 17-22, but said he continues to practice his performance.

He will compete in the humorous interpretation category and in the dramatic interpretation division. He won first place in the district (which stretches from San Antonio to El Paso) with his interpretation of the Jules Feiffer play, "Hold Me!" which he will perform again in Cincinnati.

Ford said he stumbled upon his interest in speech as just a sideline to his main interest in dramatics. He was not enrolled in speech last fall, but Miss Browning discovered his dramatics talent and asked him to go on a speech trip with her class.

"I went once and liked it," said Ford. He continued to compete in contests during the year and ended up at the district meet in Abilene. According to Miss Browning, Ford is only the fourth Lubbock student to qualify for the NFL contest and the first in the history of Monterey High School.

Ford will attend the University of Illinois in the fall as a drama major. Said Miss Browning, "Tom wants to be a professional actor and it may give him an edge to say that he went to one of these tournaments."

The fledgling actor is proud of the support of his community. "They really pitched in," he said. "It feels good to know that people are willing to support you."

Cotton Threatened By Seedling Ailment

By DUANE HOWELL
Avalanche-Journal Farm Editor

A period of "moderate weather" is needed to facilitate progress of a High Plains cotton crop hit by seedling disease and slow development on a major acreage, agriculture officials said Wednesday.

Estimates, described as "highly tentative," indicate that cotton on approximately 1 million or more acres has become infected with a seedling disease complex which threatens farmers with a significant reduction or loss of stands.

Cotton on another 1 million acres, although less vulnerable, "isn't in good condition," industry sources said.

Farmers in the 25-county Lubbock area were expected to plant 4.4 million to 4.5 million acres of cotton, up slightly from more than 4 million last year.

How much stands may be reduced could hinge on weather conditions during the next few days, agricultural officials said. A partial stand loss, depending upon the number of plants surviving, could be tolerated, they said.

The seedling disease, often present in varying degrees early in the season, became established last month during wet, cool weather, which also retarded development of healthier plants. Most cotton has had only brief interludes of "good growing weather" since it was planted.

"What we need is a gradual return to open weather," said Dr. L. L. Ray, cotton scientist at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock. "If it turns off hot all of a sudden, we will lose a lot of this cotton."

Ray said the crop as a whole is a week to 10 days late and "extremely variable." The crop in some southern areas is as much as two to three weeks later than farmers like.

This means, Ray said, that temperatures and weather conditions "will be especially critical" in late August and in September and October. That is a key period for fiber development in the bolls.

"We still have possibilities of making a real good crop," Ray said, "but the probabilities of doing that are decreasing as we get later with this cotton."

A week or so of favorable weather, however, could bring a much improved complexion to the crop picture, he added.

The uncertain, variable crop conditions are reflected in Hockley County, where cotton probably is a little more advanced than in much of the area.

"Our crop is in about every kind of shape imaginable," said Hockley County Agent Bill Taylor of Levelland. "Some is looking pretty good, some isn't planted, some is dying from seedling disease, and some didn't make it up to a stand."

Taylor estimated that about 75 percent of the crop is up to an acceptable stand but emphasized that "there is no guarantee this will be maintained." He said another 15 percent has a weak stand and probably will be replanted and still another 10 percent is yet to be planted.

The crop situation, he said, "is all up in the air right now. We could wind up

Rabbitt Will Return To Panhandle Fair

Eddie Rabbitt, who was a hit with audiences at the Panhandle South Plains Fair here last year, will return for the 62nd annual exposition, according to Steve L. Lewis, fair general manager.

Rabbitt, who has made nine consecutive No. 1 singles, will be here for an 8 p.m. show Sept. 25, Lewis said. The fair run is Sept. 22-29.

Rabbitt, recently named the best new male vocalist in country music, will be joined on the stage of Fair Park Coliseum by Janie Fricke, who was nominated for the newcomer of the year award at the 1979 Country Music Awards.

It's the third entertainment package to be annunced for this year's fair. Earlier, Lewis said Charley Pride will return for the ninth time for 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. shows on Sept. 23. Also, Dave and Sugar, with 1979 newcomer of the year John Conlee, will be here for an 8 p.m. show on Sept. 26.

Rabbitt recently was awarded the Silver Bullet Award by Country Music Magazine. From his first hit in 1975, "Forgive and Forget," Rabbitt's singles consistently have made the top 10 on the country charts.

Initially, however, he made his mark writing songs for other artists, such as "Kentucky Rain," the late Elvis Presley's 50th million-seller, and "Pure Love," Ronnie Milsap's hit.

Originally a background singer, Miss Fricke branched out on her own and her debut album was dubbed "Singer of Songs." Since then she has been nominated for best female country vocalist and won a bullet award for best female vocalist from Country Music Magazine.

Over the years, Miss Fricke has backed up such stars as Dolly Parton, Milsap, Lynn Anderson, Crystal Gayle, Johnny Paycheck, Johnny Duncan and Vern Gosdin.

Eleven shows are being arranged for the eight-day fair run, Lewis said. Other attractions will be announced in the near future.

All seats are reserved and ticket prices are $4, $5, and $6 for all shows.

Tickets may be reserved now by writing the fair association at P.O. Box 208, Lubbock, 79408. However, tickets will not be mailed to purchasers until they become available in mid-Auguest.

At that time they also will go on safe at six locations including the box office in Fair Park Coliseum.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I've stolen all my life. I started taking small things from my friends. I've stolen money from my mother's purse and also my father's pocket. I've even shoplifted just to get away with something. I've never been caught. I guess I've been lucky, or maybe I'm just good at it.

I'm also a terrible liar. I make up things just to get people to listen to me. I don't have any friends, and I'd like at least one. I work hard to impress people but always end up making a fool of myself.

I'd like to be a good person but I don't have the will power to do what's right. Dishonesty seems to come more natural to me. I need help before I end up in jail. So, Dear Abby, what can you do for a 15-year-old failure? I can't talk to my parents.

A No-Goodguy

Dear Guy: A guy who knows his faults as well as you know yours is no "failure" in my book.

You are fair enough to blame only yourself for your weakness, smart enough to know that you lie to attract attention, and sufficiently honest to admit you want friends and a clear conscience.

If you have a school counselor, make tracks for that office. If not, tell your parents you have some personal problems you would like to talk over with someone at the mental health clinic. Once you get the help you need, I'll bet on you.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote, "Under certain circumstances, a child CAN be darker than its darkest parent."

Abby, since there are only two parents involved, you should have used "darker" instead of "darkest." Just thought you should know.

English Buff

Dear Buff: I knew. But "darkest" somehow sounds better to my ear. Just as "put your best foot forward" should be "put your better foot forward" if one wants to be absolutely correct. However, I'll opt for putting one's best foot forward — whether I'm referring to a person or a centipede.

DEAR ABBY: I called a young lady I know and invited her to attend a sailing regatta with me on the 4th of July. It's one of the nicest affairs of the season and entails the races in the afternoon, followed by dinner and dancing at the yacht club.

Instead of saying yes or no, she asked me to call her around the 25th of June and she'd tell me then.

Abby, if she turns me down, I'll have to ask somebody else, and by then all the best girls will have been asked. Why do you think she's waiting, and what should I do?

Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: She could be waiting to see if she gets a better offer. Call her and tell her if she can't give you a definite "yes" now, you'd like to call somebody else. (That should take the wind out of her sails.)

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

SCIENCE DEMONSTRATOR — Bill Haehnel, science demonstrator for Southwestern Bell shows the practicality of converting soundwaves into electrical waves and transmitting them over lightwaves. This system, called a photophone, was originally developed by Alexander Graham Bell in 1880 and will be used for future phone communications.

New Phone System Shown By Electronics Expert

Haehnel, Southwestern Bell's science demonstrator for three years, showed recent Bell System innivations in a new science presentation before the Lubbock Kiwanis today at noon in the Civic Center.

The new show was titled "Through The Looking Glass — Lightly." Haehnel expects to carry the show 35,000 miles and present it to more than 300 groups in Texas.

"More than 2,500 changes have been made in the basic telephone over the past 25 years," Haehnel said. "In fact, virtually every component has been changed in the past six years to increase efficiency and fidelity as soundwaves are converted to electrical waves and reconverted into the sound of a voice."

The Bell system handles 500 million calls a day, Haehnel said. "Ten years from now, we'll double that to a billion calls a day. That's why new technologies are being developed to handle those calls without investing huge additional sums of money in new equipment."

Using a century-old device invented by Alexander Graham Bell, Haehnel demonstrates in his show the practicality of converting soundwaves into electrical waves and transmitting them over lightwaves.

The device is called a 'photophone.' "Mr. Bell based his photophone on sunlight — using a nonmetallic elenent called selenium — and he actually transmitted soundwaves through the refracted light across a room. That was in 1880, and he never really had the time or encouragement to perfect his photophone," Haehnel noted.

He said both the seleium device and modern-day solar cells developed by Bell Labs are solid-state, light-sensitive components that have almost infinite telecommunications capabilities.

Bell's early efforts are being developed by the Bell System in more sophisticated ways. Haehnel said lightwaves from lasers are being transmitted through flexible glass fibers, carrying them over lightwaves. This system, called a photophone, was originally developed by Alexander Graham Bell in 1880 and will be used for future phone communications.

"The success of a lightwave communications trial in Chicago is perhaps one of the major breakthroughs toward the way we'll be communicating in the near future," he said.

Expert Says Beef Prices Low Compared To Some Groceries

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If President Carter and his inflation fighters are troubled by the price of beef, they ought to take a look at what bay leaves bring these days.

Strip steak sold for $4.68 a pound recently and there is no disputing that made $1.48 hamburger look like some kind of bargain. But next to bay leaves those prices pale. Bay leaves, those dark green things your mother laced her chili with, fetch $159.20 a pound at groceries everywhere.

That's no typographical error. You figure it out: $9.95 an ounce, 16 ounces to the pound, $159.20. Of course, you get more than just bay leaves. You get a nice four-inch bottle for your kitchen shelf with a 50-word history of bay leaves on the label. It's all a matter of putting things in perspective.

Let's face it, how many bay leaves are you going to eat? You may not even like bay leaves. And if you do, so what? Why not splurge once in your life?

And while you're in the spendthrift spirit, pick up some of those $134.08-a-pound snipped chives. People who've tried them say that, with a little sour cream, chives do wonders for a baked potato.

Saffron, which some persons like with rice, sells for $135.84 a pound. Pretty exotic fare for your local supermarket, perhaps, but, hey, who's to tell you what to put in your rice? Free enterprise is to America what $45.92-a-pound chervil is to whatever it is you use chervil for. Some of us didn't know there was such a thing as chervil, never mind that it cost $45.92 a pound.

Just running through the list, in no particular order, here are some other supermarket bargains you may have overlooked. The per pound prices, copied down in a national chain foodstore, are right off the bottles of a nationally advertised brand which is neither the cheapest nor the most expensive:

Sweet basil $34.88, sweet bell pepper $27.04, caraway seed $20.64, ground cardamom $29.76, allspice $12.66, chili powder $20.64, coriander leaf $41.76, bay laurel $34.44, ground cinnamon $28.64, whole cloves $25.44, ground cloves $19.52, ground cumin seed $12.68, dill weed $20.64, ground ginger $27.04, marjoram $31.68, hot mustard $10.08, ground nutmeg $12.69, shredded green onion $32.80, instant minced onion $9.28, chopped oregano $28.48, ground oregano $10.56, paprika $9.17, lemon peel $16.96, orange peel $12.69, shredded parsley $37.44, sage $30.24, rosemary $23.20, thyme $23.20, tarragon $34.88, and vanilla beans $19.04.

LAUNDRY TECHNIQUES

Improper laundry techniques may gradually accumulate on a garment and go unnoticed until after the seventh or eighth laundry, reports Becky Culp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	1 ♠
2 ♡	2 ♠	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

The arithmetic of trick-taking is very simple. Eleven tricks are better than ten only when they don't result in nine. Consider this hand.

The bidding was orthodox enough, although many players would have opened the South hand rather than pass. The jack of hearts is the key card, since it solidifies the suit and gives South a sound rebid. South had a little something in reserve when he bid only two hearts over East's interference, but he did not want to crowd the bidding by jumping to three hearts.

West led a low spade and declarer wisely went up with dummy's ace—he could not afford to have East win the trick and shift to a club through the queen. Declarer drew trumps in three rounds and then started on the diamond suit. Had that suit divided 3-3, declarer would have obtained three discards and ended up making eleven tricks. Unfortunately, the diamond suit split true to the odds—missing six cards in a suit, the most likely division of the outstanding cards is 4-2. As a result, declarer was able to obtain only one discard, for he had no entry back to dummy to use the long diamond he could establish by ruffing.

At the cost of a possible overtrick, the contract could have been virtually assured if declarer took his tricks in the right order. The first order of business must be to test the trump suit, and declarer can do so by cashing two honors in his own hand. If trumps break 4-1, declarer must draw trumps and rely on an even diamond split.

However, when the 3-2 trump division is established, declarer can guarantee the contract if diamonds are no worse than 4-2. Declarer abandons trumps, leaving one outstanding, and cashes the king and ace of diamonds. When both defenders follow, declarer ruffs a diamond with a high trump if necessary.

Now declarer can re-enter dummy with a trump to cash the diamonds. In this way declarer makes five trump tricks, one spade and four diamonds, for a total of ten tricks.

Adult Short Courses Offered By South Plains College

A speedwriting shorthand course will begin Thursday evening at the Lubbock campus of South Plains College, 1302 Main St. Classes will meet Mondays and Thursdays from 6-8:30 p.m. and will run to August 6. The 50-hour couse, Speedwriting I, is geared to take the student to a speed of 60 words-per-minute and may be followed by Speedwriting II in September to reach speeds over 100 words a minute.

Speedwriting is a quick system of shorthand based on the use of the alphabetr rather than symbols. It will qualify for the Civil Service exam and for most positions which require a knowledge of shorthand.

A variety of Adult Short Courses will also be offered at the college. Persons who wish to develop skills for job-entry-level employment may choose short courses in Advanced Floral Design and Beginning Secretarial. An interior design course will also be offered to persons wanting more personal knowledge of the basic principles of design and will also aid persons in occupations related to interior decor.

To register for Adult Short Courses, persons do not have to be high school graduates, but they may not be public school students who will be re-entering high school in the fall. South Plains College at Lubbock is a fully accredited vocational-technical college.

Persons may register by calling 747-8111 or 747-0576 or by going by the 1302 Main St. campus.

Voting Record Of Area House Members

By Roll Call Report

WASHINGTON — Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes May 24 through May 30.

"REVOLVING DOOR" The House approved, 327 for and 48 against, a bill (S 869) relaxing the stiff ethics-in-government law due to take effect in the executive branch July 1. The law is largely aimed at blocking the "revolving door" by which many officials leave government to take private-sector jobs closely related to their former government position. Critics say the revolving door opens the way to conflicts-of-interest.

In part, this bill relaxes the definition of "contact" between the ex-government official and his former government agency.

Supporters said the law is so rigid it is driving many dedicated and honest officials out of government. Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., said: "I will be forced to vote for the liberalization until the day comes when we (members of Congress) are prepared to apply the rules that we conider appropriate for others to ourselves."

Rep. Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky., an opponent, said: "For those who come into government altruistically — and I am sure there are many — if there is this little bit of sacrifice it ought to simply be part of that altruism...."

Members voting "yea" wanted to relax the ethics law.

Reps. Charles Wilson, D-2, James Collins, R-3, Ray Roberts, D-4, Jim Mattox, D-5, Phil Gramm, D-6, Jack Brooks, D-9, James Wright, D-12, Jack Hightower, D-13, Joe Wyatt, D-14, Kika de la Garza, D-15, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Mickey Leland, D-18, Kent Hance, D-19, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Abraham Kazen, D-23, Martin Frost, D-24, and Manuel Lujan, R-1 (N.M.), voted "yea."

Reps. Bob Eckhardt, D-8, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, and Ron Paul, R-22, voted "nay."

Reps. Samuel Hall, D-1, Bill Archer, R-7, Jake Pickle, D-10, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, and Harold Runnels, D-2 (N.M.), did not vote.

ETHICS LAW The House rejected, 88 for and 292 against, an amendment to limit the contact the new ethics law (see above vote) permits between an ex-government official and his or her former federal agency.

The amendment said that, in addition to prohibiting for two years personal appearances by an ex-official before his ex-agency, the law should also prohibit "backroom" work. An example of backroom contact would be a lawyer writing arguments to be presented to the agency not by himself but by his law partner.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., the sponsor, said "so long as he is working in the backroom, this is the biggest loophole in the entire bill."

Rep. Carlos J. Moorhead, R-Calif., an opponent, said that "in almost any job (a former government employe) could get in private industry, there could be some effect on preparations that might eventually be made to a governmental agency...."

Hall, Pickle, Leath, Wright and Runnels did not vote.

MID-EAST AID The House passed, 347 for and 28 against, a bill (HR 4035) authorizing $4.8 billion in grants and loans for Egypt and Israel. The aid, an addition to normal U.S. foreign aid outlays, was promised by the U.S. as part of the new Mid-East peace treaty. Israel would recieve $800 million in economic aid and $1.5 billion in military equipment. The bill was sent to conference with the Senate.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., a supporter, said: "If the United States is to play a mediating role in the negotiations, it must be reasonably responsive to the security requirements of Israel and Eqypt."

Rep. James P. Johnson, R-Colo., an opponent, argued: "We are paying ransom to them to stop fighting each other. It seems to me that peace should be an incentive to them-not our arms."

Members voting "yea" favored the aid to facilitate the Mid-East peace treaty.

Collins, Paul and Runnels voted "nay."

Wilson, Roberts, Eckhardt, Leland and Kazen did not vote.

BUDGET The House gave final approval, 202 for and 196 against, to the congressional "master plan" for the fiscal 1980 federal budget. The fiscal year begins Oct. 1. The budget plan is nonbinding, but sets ceilings and guidelines which the House and Senate are expected to obey as they approve actual spending bills later in the year. The plan anticipates $509 billion in revenue, a maximum of $532k billion in outlays, and an annual deficit of $23 billion. The total national debt thus would be $887.2 billion.

Supporters regarded the measure as imperfect but acceptable. Opponents were mostly conservatives objecting to the overall price tag and liberals who thoudht defense spending was emphasized too much and social programs not enough.

Hall, Wilson, Roberts, Mattox, Gramm, Eckhardt, Brooks, Pickle, Wright, Hightower, Wyatt, de la Garza, White Gonzalez, Kazen and Frost voted "yea."

Leath and Runnels did not vote.

Elderly May Pay Less For Transit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is being asked to approve legislation that would make it easier for persons on Medicare to take advantage of reduced mass transit fares for the elderly and handicapped.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., chief sponsor of the measure, noted that "many communities now offering reduced fares for senior citizens and the handicapped require a locally issued identificatin card."

If his legislation is enacted, the senator said, it "... would mandate that the Medicare card be accepted as adequate proof for the lower fares. It will eliminate the burden of going to a mass transit office in order to obtain a local card."

Ruth Holmes Named Teacher Of Year

Dr. Ruth Holmes has been chosen Teacher of the Year for 1979 by the Lubbock Music Teacher's Association. The presentation was made at the annual spring banquet for the association.

Dr. Holmes is an associate professor of piano at Lubbock Christian College and teaches a limited number of private students at home.

Her recent edition of selected keyboard sonatas by Baldassare Galuppi has brought her a contract for the publication of one of the sonatas by Oxford University Press.

Dr. Holmes received her bachelor of arts degree in music from North Texas State University where she also completed her master of music degree in piano. She holds the Ph. D. in fine arts from Texas Tech University.

MX Missile System, Rhodesia Decisions Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter is expected to announce two major decisions soon: whether to go ahead on the advanced MX missile system and whether to lift economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

A White House official indicated both decisions are imminent, and perhaps will come within a day or two.

Carter held two meetings with top-level military and diplomatic advisers this week to discuss the various options on the MX experimental missile and how to make it less vulnerable to Russian firepower than the current Minuteman missiles.

The MX is more accurate in targeting and has double or triple the nuclear firing power of the Minuteman.

The president indicated at a news conference last week he was leaning toward approval of the MX, which could be shunted around to different launching sites.

Under the SALT II strategic arms limits which will be signed in Vienna by Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev on June 18, each side may build one qualitatively improved missile system.

Also before the week is over, Carter planned to disclose administration policy toward the new government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia.

The Senate voted that Carter must decide by June 14 if the new government has been freely and fairly installed, and if a good faith effort has been made by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the new black prime minister, to negotiate with other parties in the civil war.

Capitol Hill sources said Wednesday the administration has indicated it will temporarily continue economic sanctions by putting the whole question aside until November when the new British government must make a decision about lifting its own sanctions.

Carter was bearing down on a heavy agenda, trying to clear the decks before he departs next Thursday for the Vienna summit. He was expected to spend a long weekend at Camp David, resting and preparing for extensive discussions with Brezhnev on a range of EastWest problems when they meet for the first time.

The president also will unveil next Tuesday his national health insurance plan with a "first phase" dealing primarily with catastrophic illness and pre-natal and natal care.

TI Unaware Of Material At Dumpsite

DALLAS (UPI) — An executive of Texas Instruments says if radioactive material at a Massachusetts landfill site was left there by his company, there are no records of exactly how or when it got there.

The conglomerate is to be named in a U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission report as the probable source of uranium and other radioactive materials found at the Norton, Mass., landfill, said Walter Martin of the NRC's regional office in Philadelphia.

Martin said the report suggested TI unwittingly dumped the material at a private Norton landfill "not knowing it contained radioactivity."

Federal and state officials have been investigating a report that drinking water in at least one home near the dump is contaminated with "dangerously high levels of radiation," although a TI official said the NRC has advised the firm the level of radiation in Norton "does not represent a health or safety hazerd."

"Nobody knows if it is our material," said TI Senior Vice President Mike Rice. He added, however, "There is a good possibility that the material came from TI, or we could have accidentally taken it there."

TI officials said the Norton site was used for disposal of "ordinary industrial waste" during the 1950s and 1960s.

Rice said the radioactive materials would have been waste from "cladding" of nuclear fuel rod coverings. The nuclear cladding, or molecular bonding together of materials, was done by Metals and Controls Inc. of Attleboro, Mass., on fuel rods used in nuclear submarines under the U.S. Naval Reactor Program before and after the company merged with TI in 1959.

MINORITY LOAN APPROVED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department awarded $5.5 million in loan guarantees Tuesday to a Chicago-based, minority-owned firm which will manufacture food pouches to replace the military's C-rations and K-rations. The loan guarantee is the largest ever made by the department to a minority-owned firm.

Chairman Rebukes Talmadge's Lawyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Ethics Commitee today publicly rebuked Sen. Herman E. Talmadge's lawyers for their tactics in cross-examining Daniel Minchew, the Georgia Democrat's chief accuser of financial misconduct.

On the fifth day of cross-examination, Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., the panel chairman, angrily told Talmadge's attorneys, "I don't think you are doing your cause much good."

He said lawyers Ronald Wertheim and James Hamilton had asked irrelevant questions and caused unnecessary delays by refusing to follow rules of the committee on admission of evidence at hearings on the allegations against Talmadge.

After one series of questions about the failure of a travel agency owned by Minchew in Athens, Ga., 13 years ago, Stevenson declared:

"Whether (the questions) are relevant or not will soon itself be irrelevant because we will all soon be sound asleep."

Later Talmadge said in their defense that it was his own lawyers who uncovered evidence that Minchew benefited far more than he originally acknowledged from a scheme to convert campaign contributions to personal use.

Minchew says Talmadge approved the scheme to funnel campaign funds and Senate expense checks through a secret bank account to provide a ready source of cash for the senator's personal use.

Talmadge maintains Minchew is an embezzler who acted alone.

In an attempt to challenge Minchew's credibility, Talmadge's lawyers portray him as a man who was consistently dishonest in a number of business and real estate transactions unrelated to his job as Talmadge's chief aide from 1971 to 1974.

The lawyers say they also plan to develop evidence that Minchew's personal wealth sharply increased during the years he worked for Talmadge.

In one transaction, Minchew testified today that a friend, Matthew Nimitz, gave him $5,000 to invest in 1971 in a house on Massachusetts Avenue in Washington.

Minchew conceded that he sold the house for a large profit in 1974 but never told Nimitz, who learned of the sale from Talmadge's lawyers only two weeks ago. Under questioning, Minchew said he continued to send checks to Nimitz and indicated the funds came from the proceeds of rent checks from a house which had already been sold.

Nonetheless, Minchew said Nimitz has received $12,000 on his initial $5,000, which Minchew said "has been a very good investment for Mr. Nimitz." Nimitz is chief legal counselor to the State Department.

During Wednesday's hearing, two of the six members of the committee publicly questioned Minchew's credibility as Talmadge's accuser.

Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Robert Morgan, D-N.C., expressed doubts about Minchew's story that Talmadge ordered the conversion of campaign contributions to his own use.

Four members of the committee must vote against Talmadge, a Georgia Democrat, before any recommendation for disciplinary action can be sent to the full Senate.

The committee could recommend censure, expulsion or some less severe punishment.

The former aide has been questioned at great length about the account, which he says was opened and used with Talmadge's complete knowledge. Only he and Talmadge knew about the account in the Riggs National Bank of Washington through which passed some $39,000 in 1973 and 1974, according to Minchew.

Storage Tanks Explode In Florida Community

JAY, Fla. (UPI) — Two storage tanks of liquid petroleum exploded at a gas company yard in this Alabama-Florida border community today and burned for hours, forcing evacuation of a one-mile-square area.

There were no reports of any deaths.

The two burning tanks threatened a third, larger storage tank, but Jay police said they hoped there would be no explosion.

"They believe the big tank will not blow at this time, but they're all in a hold position anyway," said a spokeswoman.

"Right at the present time, the only thing I know is a tank exploded and is burning up there," said Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Sgt. Paul Pridgen. "There is another tank which may or may not go. People have been evacuated out of the immediate area."

Bud Davis, a Jay police officer at the scene, said the first tank was leaking when it exploded and triggered the explosion and fire in the second tank.

A Navy crew called in from Whiting field poured foam on the tanks in an effort to control the fire that had burned for nearly two hours.

Swimming Pool Course Slated

The Lubbock Health Department will present a "Swimming Pool Management School" June 16 from 8:15 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Room 101 of the Lubbock Civic Center.

The course will include instruction on sanitation in and around the pool, pool safety, bacteriology and waterborne diseases, algae control, disinfection and water filtration and recirculation. Also, the requirements of City Ordinance No. 3157, Regulation of Swimming Pools, will be discussed.

Pool supply dealers will provide information and displays.

There will be a $1 registration charge. For more information, contact Jane Bruton at the city health department, 762-6411.

Indians Protest Skylab Descent

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — About 50 demonstrators sprawled on the ground outside the U.S. Embassy today demanding protection when chunks of the orbiting Skylab spacecraft fall to Earth.

The group also presented a letter addressed to President Carter, charging the United States had concealed the fact that Skylab would fall from orbit.

"We were shocked to hear one of your national space administration (NASA) officials say that no one should worry (since) victims will be compensated," the letter said. "This shows that you and your government are treating us ... as guinea pigs and weighing our value in imperial dollars."

The letter to Carter concluded by saying: "We are sure that you ... will act in time."

The demonstrators, mostly local university students, shouted "Get rid of Skylab!" They left the area and there were no reported incidents.

NASA officials have said Skylab will fall from orbit in early July, scattering about 500 pieces of debris, mostly under 10 pounds, but two of which will weigh more than a ton each. They have been unable to predict where the pieces will land, but said the probability that someone will be hit by debris is about one in 150.

John Paul II Heads For Hometown, Auschwitz

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II set off today on an emotion-packed excursion that was to take him to his hometown of Wadowice and a Mass in the ruins of the Nazi death camp at Auschwitz-Birkenau.

The papal helicopter lifted off from a grassy field near downtown Krakow as hundreds of well-wishers ran along the ground below, waving at the former Krakow archbishop.

Thousands of other Krakow residents lined the pope's route to the field. Armed with umbrellas against a morning drizzle, they cheered and sang and clapped as the pope drove by.

For 20 miles in every direction around Krakow, papal and Polish flags fluttered every 100 yards or so. Streamers calling out "witamy" — "welcome" — were hung over intersections.

Barns were painted with primitive pictures of the holy father and hundreds of balconies and doorsteps were decorated with miniature altars.

"There never has been a time like this in all the history of Krakow," said an old man on the motorcade route. "All of a sudden everyone is kind and considerate to one another. There never has been such a spirit of joy in the city. It is like a feast that keeps going on."

Thousands stood in the rain cheering as the pope's helicopter landed in the center of Krakow Wednesday evening, bringing him from western Poland to the ancient city he served as archbishop until his election as pontiff.

Crowds 20 deep chanted and clapped as the pontiff traveled a flower-bedecked route to the cathedral at the hilltop Wawel Castle.

Poland's mightiest bell, weighing 16 tons and dubbed Zygmunt for a Polish king, tolled a welcome as the motorcade climbed the approach to the fortress.

The pope said evening prayers at the tomb of Poland's patron saint, Stanislaw, then retired to the same simple bedroom he used when he was Krakow's Archbishop Karol Wojtyla.

The crowd in the square outside did not disperse, and he appeared at a window to shouts of "It's your town! It's your town!"

"Aren't you going to sleep?" the pope asked repeatedly, and each time the crowd shouted back, "No!" "Well I am," the 59-year-old pontiff said, and calmed the throng by having them join him in a prayer.

The pope came to Krakow after three days in Czstochowa, site of Poland's holiest Catholic shrine, the Jasna Gora Monastery, where he challenged the Communist government to recognize religious rights and improve the conditions in which the church operates.

He told Silesian workers at a Mass outside the Monastery on his final day there that work was "the fundamental dimension of man's life on Earth." But he warned them against the atheism their communist government promotes, telling them:

"Do not let yourself be seduced by the temptation to think that man can fully find himself by denying God, erasing prayer from his life and remaining only a worker, deluding himself that what he produces can on its own fill the needs of the human heart."

In a farewell statement before leaving Czestochowa, he recalled previous visits to the monastery as a young boy with his father and later "clandestinely during the terrible occupation" during World War II.

"The meaning of this pilgrimage is quite inexpressible," the pope said of his homecoming trip that began last Saturday and ends next Sunday. "I shall not even try to find words to express what it has been for me and for us all."

Sadat's Party Expected To Win Elections

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat and his ruling National Democratic Party, riding the crest of peace with Israel, are expected to be the big winners today as Egyptians elect a peacetime Parliament.

More than 1,500 candidates, including 950 independents, 335 National Democrats, 176 Arab Socialists and 78 Liberals are running for election to the 380-seat unicameral legislature known as the People's Assembly.

The NDP held 312 of the 350 seats in the old Parliament which Sadat dissolved unexpectedly in April. A party spokesman predicted the NDP would extend its control over the new legislature in the tightly structured election.

Thirty new seats have been earmarked for female representatives and 99 women are running for them, although they may also run against men for other seats.

Recent election restrictions have barred extremist parties on the right and left which have voiced opposition to the peace treaty with Israel. The government also outlawed campaign criticism of the treaty as well as attacks on Egypt's basic social and political system.

The campaign restrictions resulted from two referendums in which Egypt's 10.3 million voters overwhelmingly supported the treaty and Sadat's plans for restructuring Egyptian politics.

Meanwhile, Israel and Egypt took hardline bargaining positions as they prepared for Monday's second round of talks on autonomy for the 1.1 million Palestinians living under Israeli rule on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. Israel and Egypt opened the talks with a ceremonial meeting in the Israeli town of Beersheba last month. The next session is to be held in Alexandria, Egypt.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin told a meeting of his Herut Party in Tel Aviv Wednesday night that Israel would use force to prevent the establishment a Palestinian state on the West Bank.

"I told the president of the United States that if the administrative council will announce that a Palestinian state has been set up, we will arrest all 11 members and restore the military government within 24 hours," he said.

Under terms of the Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty, West Bank and Gaza Palestinians are to elect an administrative council to implement autonomy for the occupied areas.

Begin, speaking at the conclusion of a convention that overwhelmingly re-elected him party chairman, said Jewish settlement would continue in occupied Arab lands, despite sharp criticism from the United States and Egypt who claim the settlements are illegal and hamper the peace process.

Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Wednesday that an Egyptian working paper for the autonomy talks calls for "an immediate halt" to the building of new Jewish settlements and seeks the release of all Palestinian political prisoners.

Israel "must take action to recultivate confidence among the Palestinian people," the news agency quoted the paper as saying.

Iranian Councilmen Abducted

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Revolutionary guardsmen took City Council members hostage in the Kurdish city of Sanandaj, cradle of ethnic revolt against the four-month-old Khomeini regime, and demanded the council be dissolved, the newspaper Ayandegan reported today.

It was not known how many captives there were in the City Council headquarters. An official at the governor-general's office in Sanandaj told The Associated Press by telephone that "negotiations" were going on, but refused to describe the situation further.

The council, composed of 10 men and a woman, was formed in March to take over administration of Sanandaj. Its formation was a concession to Kurdish militants who battled troops for five days in the western Iranian city, leaving 200 dead in the fight for greater autonomy.

The guardsmen on Wednesday demanded the replacement of the City Council by the Revolutionary Committee that previously controlled the city. The committee, linked to the Central Revolutionary committee in Tehran, was dissolved after the March fighting.

Ayandegan said the takeover of the City Council building stemmed from an incident several days ago when guardsmen shot and killed two people, apparently in personal disputes. The victims' families then set fire to a Revolutionary Committee building in retaliation.

A leader of another ethnic minority, the Iranian Arabs, signed an eight-point pact with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's government Wednesday aimed at ending violence in oil-rich, southwestern Khuzestan province, sources said.

The informants, who declined to be identified, said the accord includes a government commitment to choose officials strictly on the basis of their ability. The Arabs, like the Kurds, are angry about being governed by members of Iran's dominant Shiite Moslem Persian population and want greater autonomy.

The Arabs tried to take over the chief port city of Khoramshahr on May 30 and in the next four days 37 persons were reported killed and 200 wounded in fighting with revolutionary militiamen.

It was the latest outbreak of ethnic hostility to the Khomeini regime since the forces of Iran's Shiite Moslem leader ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in February.

Somoza Steps Up Fight Against Rebels

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza declared martial law and began calling up army reserves to combat Sandinista guerrillas holding Leon, Nicaragua's second-largest city, and battling the national guard in five other cities.

A tank-led column of Somoa's troops failed to break through guerrilla lines Wednesday to relieve the embattled garrison at Leon, 54 miles northwest of the capital city of Managua.

The troops fled back to the capital, and the guerrillas sent out a commandeered earth mover that cut a big trench across the Leon-Managua highway.

An estimated 400 guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front, many of them teen-agers, were reported in control of Leon, a city of 205,000. There have been no confirmed reports of casualties in four days of fighting there.

The Sandinistas gave a group of reporters a tour of the city. The guerrillas appeared to control all of the city except the national guard garrison and the area in its vicinity.

Many of the guerrillas were armed with automatic rifles. They were distributing milk from comandeered trucks and food rations from supply stations they set up.

"The townspeople were like proud spectators watching their sons at a baseball park," said one reporter.

Reports from the northern city of Matagalpa, scene of heavy fighting during the Sandinista uprising last fall, said guerrillas dynamited a bridge at the edge of town and after a day of heavy fighting claimed to have driven the national guard garrison back into its headquarters.

A Red Cross spokesman in Masaya, 35 miles south of Managua, said heavy fighting was continuing there, and the rebels appeared to have control of all of the city except for two government command posts.

Fighting also was reported in the southern cities of Jinotepe, Diriamba and Chichigalpa.

Economy Refuses To Go Down

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The bullheaded economy just won't go down for the count. Whacked over the head with two by four, one after another, it staggers, spins and lurches ahead again.

How much can it take? Truckers strike. Oil exporters raise prices. Frost arrives on schedule in the coffee plantations. Interest rates and prices seem beyond control. Consumers are said to be worried.

Statistics too suggest the economy is in trouble, and perhaps on the verge of losing consciousness. April durable goods orders plummeted. Factory orders fell 6.1 percent. The leading-indicator index fell too.

In fact, the latter fell in April for the third month this year, and it fell by 3.3 percent, the sharpest decline on record. Regardless, said a government spokesman, it doesn't necessarily mean recession.

What does it take? For more than a year, some of our most esteemed economists have been roosting on a limb, calculating and forecasting and waiting for portents of recession. It will come, they say. Any day.

It might. At the moment in fact, many economists are insisting all the more that May was the month when the recession finally did drop in. That claim, however, cannot be substantiated until some future date.

Meanwhile, there are signs of another sort that suggest some economists might have to sit out there on that limb for a while yet. These are signs of strength; they aren't pervasive, but they exist.

The Conference Board, ubiquitous monitor of everything economic, has announced that business spending for new plant and equipment may rise strongly this year, despite all those forecasts of troubles to come.

Analysis

"Strongly" might understate. Authorizations to spend by the 1,000 largest manufacturers reached an annual rate of $22.3 billion in the first quarter. The year-to-year increase might come to 20 percent.

That's just for big business, and for only the manufacturing segment of big business. It could be suggestive of what's being planned by others — by mining, transportation, public utilities and communications.

Smaller business also may be in a spending mood. Analyzing interviews made April 16, the National Federation of Independent Business found a surprising rise in the percentage of companies with expansion plans.

The Federation, whose rolls are said to include more than 500,000 independent business people, found the improved spending outlook was accompanied by a sharp rise in companies expecting higher sales.

Contrary to many other signals, it's Index of Small Business Optimism, maintained by university professors under the name Faculty Associates, reversed a negative direction that had persisted for two years.

As usual, you can find whatever you look for in the way of forecasts, and you don't even have to go outside the immediate area of the White House. But one consensus does exist — that the truth will soon be known.

That is, we won't have to rely much longer on projections in order to determine whether or not they'll be a recession. Sometime this year, the consensus says, we'll either be in it or not. The crisis is here.

It's entirely possible, some analysts say, that the slaphappy economy might stumble right on through the storm without going down on its knees. But if it does, they say, it will be a modern economic wonder.

So wondrous, in fact, that nobody will be able to explain very much about it or extract many lessons for future use. And so unexplainable to those economists out on a limb that they might even call foul.

Committee Approves Labor Dispute Law

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — As farm workers surrounded the Capitol, an Assembly committee passed a bill outlawing professional strikebreakers in farm labor disputes.

Police estimated that 2,000 farm workers gathered as United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez appeared to support the proposal.

The bill, which now goes to another committee, also prohibits licensed private detectives or guards from conducting anti-labor activities, and prohibits the use of tear gas.

Home Loan Rate Climb Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans thinking of buying a home probably can expect interest rates on home mortgages to continue climbing, bank regulators say.

The average effective interest rate on a mortgage for a new home rose to 10.48 percent from early April to early May, according to a Federal Home Loan Bank Board report released this week. The rate was 10.36 percent in early April.

It was the 18th month in a row that the rate went up.

Previously occupied homes were not spared the rate rises. The board's report showed that the average effective rate rose to 10.61 percent in early May for those homes, compared with 10.54 percent the previous month.

The effective rate includes the mortgage interest and certain initial home-buying fees.

Robert H. McKinney, bank board chairman, attributed the increases primarily to the continuing demand for mortgage loans and to the record savings withdrawals from savings and loan institutions in April.

"Although deposit flows appear to have improved recently, further rate increases seem likely, especially in light of the higher regulatory deposit rate ceilings which become effective July 1," McKinney said.

Last week, federal bank regulators voted to raise by a quarter of a percentage point the interest that banks and thrift institutions can pay on passbook accounts.

Meanwhile, the House Ways and Means Committee was expected to take a final vote on a measure that would restrict use of tax exempt bonds to help borrowers buy single-family homes.

The panel turned back efforts to kill the subsidized mortgage programs outright.

Instead, it approved national guidelines that would limit both the purchase price of homes that can be bought through the bond programs and the income of homebuyers who are given the low-interest loans.

The programs initially were set up by some states and local governments as a way for low-and middle-income Americans to get into the housing market.

But critics say some of the cut-rate mortgages are going to homebuyers who earn up to $40,000 a year and who are buying homes with price tags of as much as $150,000.

The administration backed a measure to strike down the programs altogether, saying they could cost the Treasury as much as $11 billion annually in lost tax revenues by 1984. That bill was strongly opposed by state and local officials and most committee members.

Oil Strike Reported

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Tenneco, Inc., says it has struck high quality oil in the same area of the Baltimore Canyon where it found natural gas last month.

The oil strike, some 80 miles off Atlantic City, was the first since eight major companies began drilling in August after bidding for leases from the federal government.

The Houston-based oil firm cautioned, however, that more drilling and testing are necessary before the significance of the find can be determined.

The oil company said the petroleum was found in a "very thin zone" 8,322 feet below the ocean floor.

Tenneco spokesman George Jackson said because of the high cost of carrying petroleum products from below the ocean floor to refineries, neither this strike nor the natural gas strike in the same tract was "sufficient to justify commercial development of the lease" at this time.

Politics Integral Part Of Joan Baez's Life

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Joan Baez has mellowed over the years, but she has not changed. Her voice still is clear and beautiful, and her politics are consuming.

To ask Miss Baez about only her music or only her politics — one without the other — is incomplete. Both are very much a part of her life. But she would rather discuss politics than music.

"I'm a terribly political human being," she says. She finds political activisim can be very tiring, but says "I'd rather be tired than bored."

Since the late 1950s when she sang in Cambridge coffee houses, Miss Baez has been a strident pacifist. She was outspoken against the Vietnam War and still is. But today, it's the Hanoi government that earns her wrath.

Her latest campaign is to "educate the public that there are severe human rights violations going on in Vietnam."

She hopes a massive public letter-writing campaign will convince Hanoi to let an accredited group such as Amnesty International into the country to study charges that people are being imprisoned and tortured.

"This is the leper case of the year," she says. "But I felt compelled to do something, partially because I knew no one else was going to.

"Understandably, Americans don't want to think about Vietnam at all. The right wing wouldn't be particulary interested, and the left has a lot of ideological problems about attacking that area."

She sees no conflict in her current stand.

"I confused some people because I spent 10 years of my life attacking our involvement in Vietnam. But not to speak up is no longer fair. I never was pro-Viet Cong, contrary to what I'm sure most people thought. The Viet Cong were engaged in the same kind of violence."

She expects to be attacked now by political leftists, but says whenever one takes a political stand, "there is always the risk that you will lose people who admired you. But those are the ones who never understood you in the first place."

Though her political beliefs are as strong now as they were 10 years ago, age and motherhood (she has a son, Gabriel, 9) have made her "a lot less strident and hopefully more willing to listen than I was."

For many years, she refused to pay the part of her income tax she believed supported U.S. involvement in Vietnam. But the government got the money anyway and she "grudgingly" began signing her full tax returns "when I was in such a financial mess I had to."

"It's taken me a long time to get out of the mess. I'm not entirely happy with the decision, but I think it was fair to myself and to my son."

At 38, Miss Baez is slim and has a dark beauty. Barefoot, wearing tan slacks and a loose blouse, she meets visitors in the hallway leading to her suite at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. Curled up on a settee, dark hair pinned back, she exudes a warmth and ready smile that puts visitors at ease. She laughs easily.

Despite putting out more than 20 albums, a penchant for causes frequently has brought money problems.

"There were financial messes I've gotten into because of doing say, two years of benefits. So all of a sudden, there I am, thousands of dollars in debt until I finally get it through my thick skull that I have to go to work."

Price War Bringing Back Travelers

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Ray Rychnovsky awakened his family to catch the 6:20 a.m. early-bird flight to Sacramento last Saturday — not out of any deep-seated desire to visit the state Capitol, but to catch a bargain.

"We can spend quite a bit in Sacramento and still save a lot of money," said the Livermore, Calif., engineer, one of hundreds of non-jet-setters who are taking advantage of a new wrinkle in airline price wars — The half-fare coupon.

United Airlines initiated the coupon idea in hopes of wooing back travelers who lined up at other airlines' ticket counters during its two-month strike. American Airlines quickly followed suit with a half-fare plan of its own.

Under both plans, passengers flying anywhere before June 17 receive a half-fare coupon, which must be used between July 1 and Dec. 15 on regular coach and first class fares — except to Hawaii or Canada.

When announcing the coupon plan on May 25, United officials said they expected to hand out up to 6 million of the coupons. The plan is a first for air carriers, the Civil Aeronautics Board having banned them until the recent airline deregulation.

Rychnovsky estimated the coupons could save his family $800. On their way home, the family confessed they were weary, but Rychovsky agreed they had "a fine time, and it was all worth it."

Other shrewd bargain-hunters are lining up to board planes for short hops they would not have taken — or would have driven — if not for the half-fare incentive.

Diane and Jose Asteier of Foster City, Calif., and their three children also decided at a moment's notice to fly up to Sacramento for a mini-vacation — and the coupons. Asteier, hearing only business signals on the San Francisco reservation lines, routed their flight through Stockton, 75 miles to the east.

They were rewarded for their efforts with 10 coupons, some of which Asteier intends to use on his frequent business trips to New York.

Paul Anderson of San Francisco has organized day trips to San Francisco and Monterey, and is even considering a few more short hops to acquire more half-price coupons before the offer expires.

The airlines encourage passengers to give the coupons as gifts, but decline comment about the black market traffic that may be developing.

One airline source, however, said coupons on the commuter run between Los Angeles and San Diego are selling at a brisk pace for $10. Another airline source said as much as $50 was being paid for coupons for some long-distance flights.

As for their indended purpose, the coupon idea seems to be working. United officials said 194,000 reservations were taken system-wide last Wednesday — breaking the airline's previous record by 30,000 passengers.

Other airlines, noting United's success, are said to be waiting in the wings with cut-rate plans of their own, promising to make the skies even friendlier for pennypinching travelers.

Capital Ambulance Service 'Subpar'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambulance service in the nation's capital is subpar when compared to that of other cities of similar size, a District of Columbia official conceded Tuesday.

"We have to reduce the amount of time it takes to get to you in an emergency," Raymond Granados, chief of the fire department's emergency medical service, told the Washington Star.

Granados said the city has just 15 ambulances and that it takes them an average of 10.2 minutes to reach the scene of an emergency, more than twice the average response time in most other cities. He said the city also needs more paramedics to operate the vehicles.

Castles Spotlighted On Tours

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Travel Editor

Castles..... medieval castles! If the subject appeals to you, then your travel plans have got to include Germany. The Rhine Valley alone contains castles ranging from empty ruins for the interested historian to modern overnight accommodations for today's traveler. They're the kind of castles that conjure up images of knights in shining armor and damsels in distress.

"How many European castles have you seen up to now?" asked Helmut Bender, owner of the Rheingau Air Service, as we walked across a grassy field toward a six-seater airplane.

"Today you'll easily double that number in about ten minutes," noted Bender with perfect English.

The engine roared to life and the plane rolled along the grassy field that had been a cow pasture before becoming a runway for the Rudesheim Airfield. As the plane climbed effortlessly into the clear sky, another six-seater plane of the same flight service taxied into place for take-off.

Below us the Rhine River wound its way to the horizon with picturesque villages and vineyards dotting the green landscape on either side. The villages seemed to pour out of the smaller side valleys to the river; some of the many vineyards were terraced to hold to the steep terrain and reap benefits of sunlight before shadows reached across the fertile valley.

Within seconds the first castle was seen. The classic stone turrets were topped by conical roofs, and high above the parapets a flag fluttered in the crisp, clean air. It was exactly as a castle would be imagined in a fairy tale from the Brothers Grimm. It was a perfect setting for "once upon a time....."

Another castle and another castle could be seen in the distance. Castle after castle marched along the valley. Some distance away from the river could be seen the tumbled ruins of a medieval structure, and a mile from there more ruins.

Many of the castles in the medieval age were built not only for defense, but to charge a toll from travelers that passed along the river and the valley. Plus there were robber barons and knights that demanded more than a small fee or percentage of the commercial goods.

From the airplane, as you see the many castles, the strategic location of each structure is easily understood and appreciated as being a small kingdom that necessitated defense or attack.

Scheduled several times daily from the middle of April through the 31st of October, the Rhine Valley scenic flights from Rudesheim include trips of approximately 30, 40, 90 and 130 miles in distance. The 30 mile air tour is 31.50 marks (approximately $15) at this writing, and the 40 mile tour is about $19; either tour may be the best bargain in Europe for the castle buff.

Don't let the description of the cow pasture runway or the size of the planes deter you from taking this memorable trip. The planes are brand new aircraft (Dornier DO 27's) especially suited with large windows for viewing and photography, and surpass all safety standards. The pilots are experienced fliers; in fact, one pilot is a former Boeing captain with 15,000 hours of flying time!

After the air tour that gives you a bird's eye view of the incredibly beautiful countryside, take a cruise on the Rhine to the same area for an entirely different perspective.

Rhine cruises range from a few hours to several days. The largest operator of a passenger service on the famed river is the KD German Rhine Line founded in 1826. Its fleet includes luxury liners, speedy hydrofoil, and several paddle boats powered by steam.

Good weather favors the Rhine Valley, but occasional spring showers or autumn chill won't hamper your viewing the countryside as you relax in lounges with large picture windows. All of the boats have catering facilities and the restaurants aboard are noted for reasonably priced meals. Lunch begins at $3, and a bottle of quality wine at the same price.

Following an itinerary that provided different forms of transportation, I traveled from Mainz to Koblenz (passing legendary Loreley Rock) on a KD cruise that lasted about 4 1/2 hours. The mini-cruise, passing very close to many of the most beautiful Rhine castles, costs about $15 with meals extra.

KD's timetables offer a wide selection of sailing every day of the week, and there are inexpensive side excursions from any KD landing. Railroads run the length of the valley, so combination boat and train journeys can be easily arranged.

Castles in Germany are not limited to the Rhine Valley — and they aren't relegated to only look, but don't touch. Many of Germany's castles are now hotels, and ten of the castle hotels have outfitted their towers with modern-day guest rooms and suites.

Staying overnight in an authentic castle can be surprisingly economical. I visited the Castle Hotel (a relatively new structure built about 1600) in Hirschhorn about 20 miles from Heidelberg. The castle offers a beautiful view of the Neckar River and the surrounding forested hills. Overnight accommodations are about $35 for two. Hirschhorn is a charming village and would be a perfect "get away" for a very restful vacation.

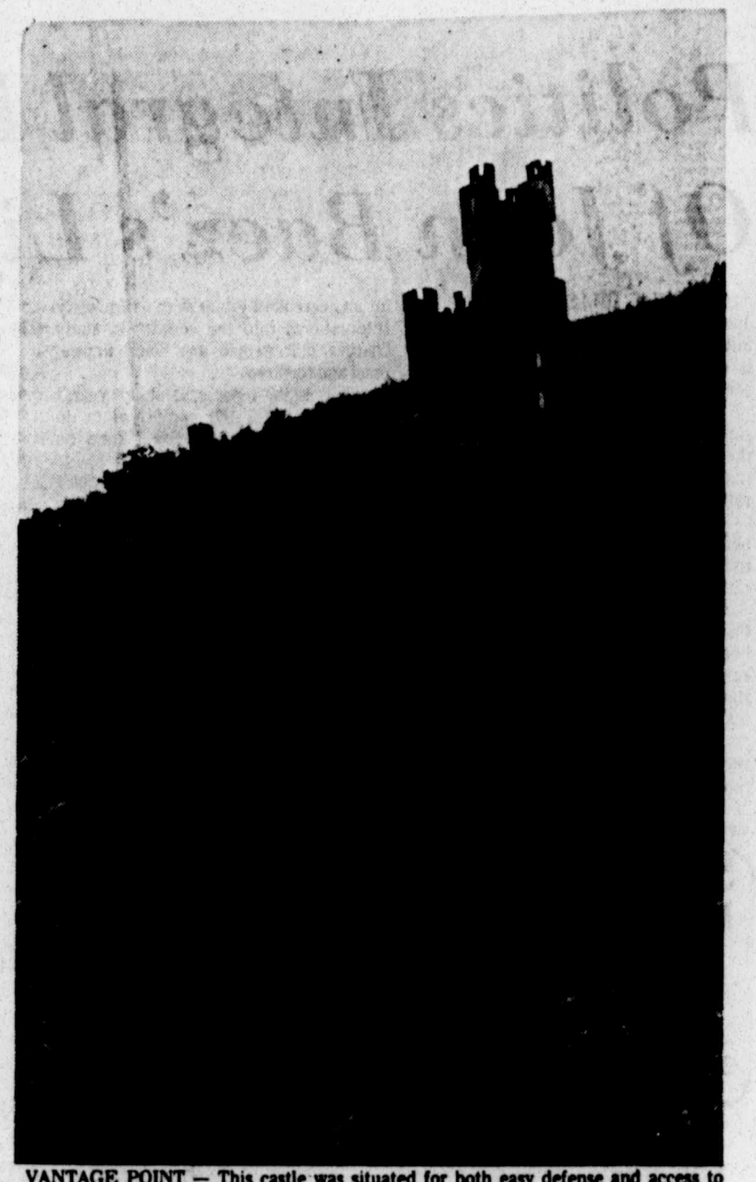
FORTIFIED RETREAT — Many medieval castles in Germany are part of cities or villages that have such resort facilities as tennis, bowling and swimming. Nearby woods offer bicycling, hiking and fishing in a pristine environment. Travel agents can book castle accommodations and transportation at no additional cost to the traveler.



VANTAGE POINT — This castle was situated for both easy defense and access to the Rhine River. Many medieval castles are today either museums or hotels with deluxe accommodations. Tourists can now sleep in quarters that once knew kings, and dine in halls that witnessed knights in armor. (Staff Photos by Ted Simon.)

Braniff Increasing Jet Fleet

Braniff International has eight new 747s on order, including five 200B models and three "SPs," and is acquiring additional 747s on lease for its new European and Pacific routes. "Power" stripes on the jet nacelles accent newly-developed advanced technology engines which are quieter and use less fuel, but more powerful with greater payload and range capability.

All the aircraft will be "Big Orange" in color as Braniff's first 747 became known, but with a different exterior treatment featuring a richer orange shade covering the vertical stabilizer as well as the fuselage. The interiors will feature all leather seats.

OLDEST OBJECT

The portrait of George Washington by Gilbert Stuart, which hangs in the East Room of the White House, is the oldest possession there. Brought to the executive mansion in 1800, it was saved by Dolly Madison when she escaped Washington in the wake of British troops in the War of 1812.

IN THE MIDDLE — Some castles enjoy a natural moat courtesy of the Rhine River. Many castles were strategically located to afford a view of river traffic for the purpose of charging tolls or preying on merchant vessels for their valuable cargoes destined for distant ports.

CLASSIC DESIGN — You don't have to be Rapunzel or Sleeping Beauty to stay in a castle. This tower (circa 1600) is part of the Castle Hotel in Hirschhorn, Germany, where overnight accommodations are available with a view of the Neckar River below the castle's ramparts.

PRE-FLIGHT CHECK — Helmut Bender and his wife Gabi operate the Rheingau Air Service at Rudesheim. The scenic flights of the Rhine Valley afford a bird's eye view of many castles in the immediate area. The scenic flights are a "must do" experience for castle buffs.

More information pertaining to Germany in general is available from any Lubbock travel agency (there's no charge) or by writing: Germany National Tourist Board, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10020.

Braniff International also has additional tour information. Write to Braniff International, P.O. Box 47008, Dallas, TX 75247, or visit their downtown Lubbock office. On June 1, Braniff began the first non-stop service to Frankfurt (plus Amsterdam, Brussels and Paris) from Dallas-Fort Worth. Passengers flying Braniff from Lubbock transfer in the same terminal at D/FW to one of the 747's for Europe.

Because the Lubbock gate is close to the International gate, getting to Frankfurt and the castles of Germany can be easier than negotiating the traffic at Jones Stadium during a Tech homecoming. Also, the price is not only right — it's almost unbelievable. Round trip budget fare via Braniff from Lubbock to Frankfurt (or Amsterdam or Brussels or Paris) is only $484. When you consider the gourmet dining in coach at that price — the price prompts you look for the passport instead of checking the bank account. If you are counting pennies, that $484 airfare does not include a $3 departure tax.

Boat Race Hot Stuff At Jamborees

By SHARI LEWIS

The rain-gutter boat race is hot stuff at Boy Scout Jamborees, and even though it takes a little preparation, when you run one you'll see why everyone considers it fun.

You need a 10-foot length of ordinary rain gutter of the type used on houses. Maybe one of the club member's parents has a piece, or maybe you can buy or borrow a length from the local hardware or home improvement store. Plug each end with end caps. The same store should have these caps. What you have now is a long, narrow container which you will fill with water.

Give each customer a little 4-inch boat-shaped piece of corrugated cardboard, a 3-by-5 inch card, and a toothpick. Scissors should be available for customers to cut their own sails of any size or shape. They attach the sail to the boat-shaped cardboard with the toothpick and launch their little ship from one end of the gutter.

They then blow the boat to the other end of the gutter. If it gets across within a certain time limit they win. (Use a kitchen timer). Otherwise, all they do is have a lot of fun. If it's a windy day, you might have a lot of winners.

ANSWER: The lines are straight!

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: If you add one letter to a number, it becomes sound. What's the number and what do you add? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Grain Board Proposal Criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Grain and Feed Assocation said a newsletter expressing opposition to a proposed national grain board was the "most important message" ever sent to its members.

The organization "does not cry wolf or sound false alarms," executive vice president Alvin Oliver told the membership.

He said it would be frightening if a grain board bill moved through Congress "in an atmosphere of hysteria" created by high fuel prices under the notion that grain could be bartered for OPEC oil.

The 12,000-member association includes country elevators, terminal elevators, merchandisers, processors, warehousemen and exporters.

It is one of many agricultural organizations that opposes the grain board proposal by Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., on which hearings began Tuesday.

Weaver introduced the bill before, but this year it is receiving more attention than before.

The proposed board would have power to set grain and soybeans export prices and would sell commodities directly. Private firms would have to buy their grain from the board and sell it at prices set by the board.

Most sectors of the agricultural community had nothing good to say about the concept.

Representing the Minneapolis Grain Exchange, Richard Goldberg, president of a North Dakota country elevator, said supporters of the bill were wrong in supposing that a board could raise farmers' incomes.,

The Canadian Wheat Board has failed to do that for Canadian farmers, he said.

A North Dakota State University study showed that from 1964-1975, North Dakota farmers received slightly higher prices than their Canadian neighbors in Manitoba.

Then in 1973-76, North Dakota farmers received an average of 21 cents a bushel more and another 11 cents, when protein content of the wheat was included.

Canadian and Australian systems run by national boards lag behind the efficiency of the private American system, Goldberg said. Last month the Canadian Wheat Board withdraw export offerings of wheat and coarse grains and deferred shipments of barley until next summer.

Joseph Halow of the North American Export Grain Association, an organization of 30 private and cooperative exporters, said Canadian grain and oilseeds shipments increased from 16.9 million tons in 1970-71 to 20 million tons in 1977-78.

At the same time U.S. Shipments under a private system more than doubled from 51.4 million tons to 107 million tons.

Halow said for several years, when it was politically popular to criticize private grain traders, "U.S. grain exports have continued to grow dramatically" to become "one of the most important sources of foreign revenue for the United States."

Canada's problems have diverted business from China and other nations to the United States. The Australian Wheat Board has been able to move only about 10-11 million tons of a record crop of 18 million tons, he said.

In 1976 Argentina scrapped a central board in favor of a private system and subsequent export volumes "should give them reason to be pleased," he said.

Halow ridiculed an argument that a national grain board could give the United States greater political leverage abroad to trade grain for oil.

There is no indication that a grain board has enhanced the political position of any countries who have them, he said.

Telling OPEC nations we would not pay their prices for oil unless they paid our grain prices would succeed only if they were as dependent on the United States for grain as Americans are dependent for oil, which is not the case, Halow said.

Walter Vernon of the Kansas City Board of Trade said the United States would have little leverage in other markets.

Russians buy 10-15 million tons of U.S. grain compared to their own production that surpasses 200 million tons and "could live without our grain if it were too expensive, and have done so before," Vernon said.

Japan could switch back to rice instead of wheat and encourage more soybean production in Brazil, where the Japanese helped set up production facilities as a result of American export embargoes a few years ago.

Weaver said opponents took slogans such as "food for crude" too literally. He merely hopes the board could narrow the gap between oil and grain prices, which were even in 1970, he said.

Simpler Surgery Recommended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Except in rare cases of advanced cancer, women may no longer be faced with the radical surgery recommended for treatment of breast cancer in the past.

New guidelines recommended by a government advisory committee call for less of the disfiguring surgery for breast cancer patients and encourage studies of even simpler surgery that would preserve most of a woman's breast.

The action by a National Cancer Institute panel of specialists Tuesday marked a significant departure from the radical mastectomy that has been the standard in breast cancer surgery for more than half a century.

The new "standard of therapy" adopted by the committee at a day-long conference called for total breast removal and removal of underarm lymph nodes for the 85 percent of breast cancer patients who have small tumors.

But the surgery would spare underlying chest muscles removed in radical surgery that has been used in the great majority of cases for years.

The consensus report was based on studies showing little difference in survival rates after nearly six years between women who underwent radical mastectomies and those who underwent breast removal alone.

The report must now be reviewed by the National Institutes of Health, but it was clear a major step was being taken in the effort to reduce the disability and disfigurement associated with breast surgery while maintaining the greatest chance of long-term survival for the woman.

"You can reduce the morbidity from primary therapy of breast cancer significantly," said conference chairman John Moxley, who is vice chancellor of health sciences at the University of California at La Jolla.

Although there has been a trend toward less aggressive breast surgery for 20 years, Moxley said 25,000 American women had radical mastectomies as recently as 1977.

The report adopted by the cancer specialists said preliminary results from a study in Italy indicate surgery that removes only the tumor and surrounding tissue, and leaves most of the breast, may be as effective as total breast removal. These findings, however, are too early to be conclusive.

Nevertheless, the panel said a similar study getting under way in the United States warrants support from patients and physicians "so the continuing search for the optimal patient treatment can progress to the point of maximal patient survival and minimum patient morbidity."

The group also recommended that in the majority of breast cancer cases, the initial biopsy to see whether a lump is malignant and the surgery to remove the breast be carried out separately.

This would give pathologists more time to examine the tissue in question, and patients time to discuss with their doctors the type of surgery to be performed.

Breast cancer is the leading cancer killer of American women, with 107,000 new cases expected to be diagnosed this year in the United States. An estimated 91,000 of them would fit into that small breast cancer category for which the committee said the less extensive surgery would be applicable.

DR. LAMB

BUN Test Explained

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My father has been treated for a kidney disorder. He was given a BUN test. After these tests were taken he was placed on a low-protein diet. Could you give me any information on kidney troubles and also on a low-protein diet? Some of the symptoms I know of were that he was bleeding from his kidneys and had a tired feeling and he had some hurting in his back and legs. He is 68.

DEAR READER — BUN stands for blood urea nitrogen. It's a test to determine how much urea is in the blood. Proteins are composed of amino acids. The protein is broken down into amino acids in the intestine. The amino acids enter the bloodstream.

Since many people eat a lot more protein than their body needs, these amino acids are chemically broken down. The part of the amino acid that contains nitrogen is stripped off. Two of these units are joined together to form urea. This excess nitrogen in the form of urea is then eliminated through the kidneys. That's why you can measure the urea eliminated in the urine and have a good idea about how much excess protein a person is consuming.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-12, Your Kidneys And How They Work, to give you some basic information about how the kidney filters the blood and eliminates such substances as excess urea as well as excess water, excess glucose and retains substances that you need. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

When a person's kidneys are not functioning adequately, they can't filter out the excess urea left over from excess ingestion of protein. The BUN level builds up. In this situation, it's common to limit the amount of protein in the diet.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About 15 years ago a urologist diagnosed a growth on one of my testicles as a spermatocele and said not to worry about it unless it became much larger. Several years later, after it had enlarged, I consulted another doctor who aspirated fluid from it and said it was non-cancerous but advised surgery if it continued to grow.

Recently I developed a small growth on another testicle and a third urologist advised it might never get any larger because of my age. I'm 58. He said it was immaterial if I had surgery.

I'd like to know whether or not I am risking my health by not having elective surgery. What causes such a growth like this anyway?

DEAR READER — Having the unanimous agreement of three urology specialists about your condition ought to be very comforting. In medicine we don't always get such a unanimity of opinion. Often there is some difficulty in deciding what something is that you can't look at under a microscope.

I'm certain that with the agreement of all three specialists that the diagnosis is correct. These are really little cysts that develop in the tubes that carry the sperm cells away from the testicles. These little cysts are not really important as long as they're not large enough to create mechanical difficulties. They do not become cancer.

China Agrees To Contract

TOKYO (AP) — Asahi Chemical Industries Co., a major integrated synthetic manufacturer in Japan, said today China has agreed to implement a 14 billion yen, or about $63 million, contract to build a plant to produce nylon cords for tires.

The contract was among the 22 China froze earlier this year due to a foreign currency shortage and rearrangement of economic priorities. China has already informed two other Japanese companies that it will proceed with their contracts, prompting business officials here to speculate that the Peking government has apparently decided to go ahead with construction of plants it has contracted.

Asahi Chemical Industries and Chori Co., a Japanese trading house specializing in synthetic textiles, concluded the agreement last Dec. 27 but China shelved it this year. Under the dollar-based, cash-payment contract, the Japanese companies will build a plant capable of producing 130,000 tons of nylon cords for tires a year in Pingtingshan in Honan Province.

BANKER SENTENCED

HOUSTON (AP) — The former president of the Sinton Savings Association has been sentenced to 12 years in prison after conviction on 14 counts of misapplying funds, conspiracy and making false loan applications. Robert Harris Cartwright, 38, was accused of defrauding several financial institutions in Houston and Sinton of $300,000 from 1975 to 1977. Attorneys said they would appeal, and Cartwright will remain free under a $150,000 bond.

House Leader Recommends 'Synfuel' Incentives

WASHINGTON (AP) -A guaranteed price for synthetic fuels will prompt the private sector to start production, says House Majority Leader Jim Wright.

The Democrat from Fort Worth said Wednesday that "synfuel" production incentives are a likely centerpiece for an intensifying congressional drive toward energy solutions.

"There is a growing consensus on the need for dramatic action to increase our domestic energy supplies," he said after congressional leaders met with President Carter at a White House session.

"I am less discouraged right now than I have been in two years," Wright said.

He said the program shaping up in Congress includes proposals to guarantee a government market for up to 500,000 barrels a day of synthetic fuels, expedite a pipeline to move Alaskan oil from California to Gulf Coast refineries and authorize the president to "fast track," or grant priority status to certain energy projects.

A bill that has the approval of the House Banking Committee but has not reached the floor would allow the government to contract for up to 500,000 barrels a day at a fixed price.

"We are going to create a synthetic fuel industry," Wright said, adding that increasing the ceiling to 2 million barrels a day has been discussed.

Any synthetic fuel — biomass, from coal or shale — would qualify for the price guarantees under the bill sponsored by Rep. William Moorhead, D-Pa.

Wright said the time between the decision to start a plant and the first production might be about five years.

"I think it's time to make a commitment," he said. "We need the sense that Franklin Roosevelt had in 1941 when the Japanese cut off our rubber supplies."

Ed Rothschild of the Energy Action Educational Fund, a consumer group, said any proposal to give government support for a synthetic fuel industry should include partial government ownership.

"There is no way the government should be subsidizing this kind of technology at all unless the government runs and owns it," he said. "I think they should stand on their own two feet."

Earl Ross of the American Petroleum Institute, a producers' group, said the organization had not taken a position on the Moorhead bill.

"Our basic position is that we're in favor of all synthetics," he said.

Wright said he favored government action to insure construction of a controversial pipeline from Long Beach, Calif., to Midland, Texas. He said the government should operate the finished pipeline if a purchaser from the private sector could not be found for it.

The third proposal in "the package I see shaping up" would allow the president to declare that an energy project had top priority and could not be subject to delay for any reason, Wright said.

"My interest right now is not putting a Band-aid on the wound," he said. "My interest is curing the cancer."

Disease, Rain Threaten Area Cotton Crop

with a whole bunch of this cotton too thin to leave or we could still be in pretty good shape on a lot of it at the end of the week — just depending on what the weather does."

Taylor said an abrupt shift to high temperatures — such as to above 90 degrees — in combination with low humidity of around 10 percent, intense sunshine and some wind could result in weakened cotton plants "dying like flies."

"We have a lot of fields where there is no way that one of every four stalks can live — the root has rotted off it," Taylor said. "Of the three remaining stalks, maybe one is questionable and two may have a pretty good chance."

Taylor said virtually all the crop has at least some seedling disease. But the percentage that might have to be replanted, he said, "depends entirely on the weather."

"We have some real bad seedling disease in places," he said. "And we have some fields where about one stalk in four, or about 25 percent, will be lost, and that's not a big loss — there still would be enough of a stand left to make a decent crop."

Taylor said some cotton planted from 1977-crop seed is "looking relatively good, but we don't have much of that."

While too much heat and low humidity would be damaging in the near term, rains and cool temperatures would aggravate the seedling disease complex and further retard development of the already late crop.

"Those cold thunderstorms really hurt," Taylor said. "They sear over the soil and waterlog it, and that's what could make this seedling disease go ahead and take its toll."

A rain-free period with temperatures ranging from about the mid-80s to mid-60s, with good humidity and a moderate amount of sunshine, would be desirable, agricultural officials said.

Cotton planting was gaining speed Wednesday in southern areas where farmers earlier had insufficient moisture to produce stands. With no weather interruptions, planting there will be in full swing later this week.

"We're 'blacking' this county pretty fast," said Eddie Brown of Lamesa, executive director of the Dawson County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Farmers are planting some fields a little wet, he said, but they are anxious to get the crop in the ground. Some are still waiting on drying in low-lying areas which may or may not get planted.

"Our crop is a little late, but we're trusting on a late fall," Brown said.

Brown said Dawson County farmers, who have been expected to plant about 300,000 acres of cotton, were able to "save" about 35,000 acres of the fiber crop. He said some cotton is being replanted and about half the county is being planted for the first time.

Cotton on about five sections was hailed out Tuesday night in western Lamb County.

The final cotton planting date under the federal farm program expired Friday in Deaf Smith, Parmer and Castro counties and ended Tuesday in Swisher, Briscoe, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Cochran and Floyd counties.

The period will expire Sunday in Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Motley and Dickens counties and on June 15 in the remainder of the 25-county area.

Clements Signs Child Custody Law

AUSTIN (UPI) — Beginning in August, Texas' divorced fathers will be more likely to have a say-so in custody suits over where their children will live.

Gov. Bill Clements Wednesday signed into law a bill by Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, pushed by Texas Fathers for Equal Rights. The bill, effective Aug. 27, authorizes divorce courts to grant fathers and mothers joint custody of the offspring of a broken marriage.

Living arrangements for the children would then be up to the divorced couple to decide.

Clements also signed bills eliminating special taxes on diesel-powered automobiles, making it a crime to interrupt emergency messages in citizens band radio frequencies, allowing the Edwards Underground Water District to require landowners to cap or seal water wells, and to permit the state's 254 counties to purchase supplies through the State Board of Control.

Among the 20 measures signed into law Wednesday were bills by:

—Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, exempting diesel-powered passenger vehicles from the 11 percent surcharge assessed diesel-powered vehicles on license tag fees. The measure, effective Sept. 1, will save owners of diesel-powered cars across the state $24,000 a year.

—Rep. Sam Hudson, D-Dallas, to make it illegal for a person to interfere with or interrupt relays of emergency messages on citizens band radio. Violators of the new law could face six months in jail and a $1,000 fine and if the emergency is one that results in serious bodily injury or property loss exceeding $1,000 the penalty could be as great as two to 10 years in prison.

—Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, giving the Edwards Underground Water District authority to order landowners to cap or seal water wells when ot in use and to go on private property to seal any open wells that the owner fails to seal. The district regulates use of the aquifer that supplies drinking water for San Antonio.

—Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, to give counties the option of making purchases through state agencies when large volume buying might result in price savings.

—Rep. Charles Evans, D-Hurst, to get hunters and fishermen who do not carry their licenses with them on sporting expeditions off the hook when they are ticketed for not having a permit. The bill provides for charges to be dismissed if the sportsman later produces evidence that he had purchased a license.

FBI Investigates Mail Threat

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — FBI officials say they are investigating a letter mailed to District Attorney Bill White that threatened White and two federal prosecutors and took credit for the assassination last week of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

The letter was received in the mail by White's office on Tuesday. White turned it over to the FBI.

First Assistant District Attorney Charles Conaway said the letter mentioned White, U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd and Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr, the target of a Nov. 21 assassination attempt.

Conaway also said the unsigned, handwritten letter with a San Antonio postmark included the phrase, "Got Wood," in an obvious reference to the sniper slaying May 29 of the federal judge.

Wood, 63, known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases, died from a single shot to the spine as he left his townhouse for work.

Officials in the district attorney's office said the letter was being taken seriously in light of the attacks on Kerr and Wood.

'Horns Eliminated; Arkansas Loses First

Just ask Fullerton State's Augie Garrido.

"That was a 12 Rolaid game," Garrido said after his team outlasted Arkansas 13-10 Wednesday night in the College World Series.

The 27-hit game, highlighted by five home runs, was a pitchers' nightmare. Arkansas took a 2-0 lead, Fullerton went on top 8-2, Arkansas made it 8-6, Fullerton pulled out to an 11-6 advantage and the Razorbacks cut to 11-10 before the Titans finally put it away.

The offensive fireworks followed a well-played game in which Pepperdine eliminated top-rated Texas 6-4. That set up a showdown tonight between conference rivals Fullerton (58-14) and Pepperdine (53-17), with the winner to meet Arkansas (49-14) for the national title Friday night.

Texas, a 9-4 loser to Arkansas Tuesday night, finishes the year 55-8.

Dan Hanggie and Mike Garcia swung the big bats for Fullerton. Hanggie belted a grand slam in the Titans' seven-run second inning and Garcia tagged a three-run shot in the seventh.

Hanggie, who is Fullerton's No. 2 RBI man on the year with 67, has been a key player in the series because the Titans' top slugger, Tm Wallach, is batting only .235. Hanggie is hitting .375 and has driven in six runs.

"The ball I hit for the grand slam was a high slider," Hanggie said. "As for my defensive and offensive play in the series, I feel very confident. I haven't felt tight at any time.

"We can win this whole thing."

Arkansas, which tied a series record by hitting three home runs, was hurt by two plays on the basepaths. Kevin McReynolds was thrown out at home in the fourth inning when he tried to score from first on Mike Martin's double and Jeff Ash was nailed in the sixth when he tried to go from first to third on a single to left.

"We were hoping to stay close and do some things in the late innings," Arkan-

Red Raider, Chaparral Selected

A pair of Lubbock college baseball players were chosen in Wednesday's professional draft for Class A teams.

Brooks Wallace, shortstop for Texas Tech, was tabbed by the New York Mets in the seventh round and Steve Brigante, second baseman for Lubbock Christian College, went in the 16th round to Texas. Both are juniors.

A total of 16 Southwest Conference and Texas Athletic Conference (LCC's division) players were chosen.

Texas second baseman Andre Robinson was tabbed in the first round by Toronto and four more players (Longhorn pitcher William Walker, Arkansas catcher Ronn Reynolds, Texas A&M pitcher Mark Thurmond and Rice pitcher Allan Ramirez) went in the second round.

Wallace, who has started three years for the Raiders, had only .258 last season but finished the 1978 campaign with a .310 average.

The junior shortstop from Plano didn't miss a starting assignment last season and led the team in assists with 117. His fielding average was .910.

Brigante, also a junior and also a three-year starter, has been all-conference and all-District 8 (Texas colleges) for three seasons.

Last year for the Chaparrals, the Albuquerque athlete batted .345, with 14 doubles and 14 home runs among his 78 hits. He drove in 63 runs and stole 41 bases.

Both were picked in a phase of the draft in which major league clubs pick for their minor league Class A affiliates.

Tech Footballer Killed In Accident

Texas Tech footballer Jim Wosoba, who was contending for a starting center berth when spring training ended, was killed in an industrial accident Wednesday morning at Louisville, Ky.

Funeral services for the former San Angelo athlete will be held at Louisville Friday. The burial service will be at 10 a.m. at the Middletown Christian Church there. At the same hour Friday, a memorial service will be held in his hometown of San Angelo at the Park Heights Baptist Church.

Tech officials were notified that Wosoba, 20, was working on a construction site when apparently struck by a truck. He died shortly after the accident. Raider coach Rex Dockery was informed.

"This is a tragedy not only for the Wosoba family but for everybody that knew Jim at Tech," Dockery said. "It's unbelieveable how quickly things like this can happen."

"He was the most improved offensive linemen we had this spring. He was definitely a starting candidate at center."

Prior to start of spring drills, guard Joe Walstad was shifted to center to replace the departed duo of Kim Taliaferro and Travis Mileur. However, the work of the 6-3, 230-pound Wosoba in the spring brought thoughts of moving Walstad back to guard.

Wosoba was listed as the second-team center at the end of drills but Tech coaches felt the battle for first spot was still under way.

JIM WOSOBA

first year and was red shirted last fall.

"Jim's father told me that Jim had told him when he came home (to Louisville) for the summer that he was determined to start Sept. 8 when we play Southern Cal," Dockery said Wednesday.

Franklin, Cordero Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Ronnie Franklin was to explain to the stewards at Belmont Park today why he fought with rival jockey Angel Cordero. But while Franklin's brash action may result in punishment, it won't keep him from riding Spectacular Bid Saturday in the Belmont Stakes.

Cordero also is to appear before the stewards before today's racing program. But since the Belmont horses were to be entered today under New York's 48-hour rule, the jockeys canno be affected as far as the Belmont Stakes is concerned.

Franklin and Cordero have been at odds ever since Franklin accused the Puerto Rican veteran of trying to cost him the race in the Florida Derby. Franklin also accused Cordero, who rode Screen King, of unsportsmanlike conduct in the Preakness, but later said Cordero was "just race riding."

The altercation between the two came after the fourth race Wednesday. At the start of that race, Ski Pants, a 2-year-old ridden by Cordero, ran into Franklin's mount, Lorine. Both horses finished out of the money.

After dismounting, the two had words on the way to the jockeys' room. There, witnesses said, Franklin hit Cordero with his helmet and there was some grappling.

Some witnesses thought Cordero threw a punch, but others said he didn't. The stewards told both jockeys to keep their mouths shut about the incident.

Franklin is fortunate the incident will not affect his Belmont status, a race in which Spectacular Bid — winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness — is the odds-on favorite to win the Triple Crown.

"No horse is unbeatable," said trainer Loren Rettele, who has twice chased Spectacular Bid with Golden Act. "Secretariat got beat. That proves it."

The great Secretariat lost five times. But he sure didn't lose in the 1973 Belmont Stakes, winning in a record 2:24 by a record 31 lengths to become the first Triple Crown winner in 25 years.

Spectacular Bid has lost twice but his third defeat is not expected to come in the 1½-mile Belmont Saturday. Instead the $200,000-added classic is expected to be his 13th straight victory and make him the third Triple Crown winner in three years.

Entries were to be made today, and among those expected to be named to oppose Bid are three colts who tried him in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness — Golden Act, third and second in the Derby and Preakness, respectively; General Assembly, second and fifth, respectively and Screen King, sixth and third respectively.

Post time for the 111th Belmont is 4:38 p.m. CDT. The proceedings will be televised by CBS from 4 p.m.-5 p.m.

Following a two-mile gallop by Spectacular Bid Wednesday, trainer Bud Delp said he didn't care how many 3-year-olds were entered against his star and predicted Bid "is going to be better for this race that he ever was."

Maybe, but horse racing is a "show me" business — and Golden Act trainer Loren Rettele is one man who Bid will have to show again.

"He's dead fit now," said Rettele after Golden Act worked five-eighths of a mile in 1:013-5 on a muddy track

TAAF Net Tourney Continues

Play continues in the Texas Amateur Athletic Tennis Federation (TAAF) today at Lubbock Municipal Tennis Center with quarter-final action scheduled in the Boys 16-under division and semifinal action slated in the girls 14-under doubles play.

Competition in the adult events begins Friday night with the men's singles scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. Doubles play begins Saturday.

Today's other action includes the boys 16-under singles quarterfinals and the semifinals in the junior mixed doubles

Some titles will be decided Friday as final matches are scheduled in the girls 12-under singles division and the boys 12-under singles. In the girls division, Virginia Rector, a 6-2 6-1 winner over Kendall Rabon, will face Tanya Hamilton, a 6-0 6-1 winner over Julie McDonald. In the boys division, James Sadler defeated Jeff Butler 6-1, 6-0 to advance against Geof Plumbee, a 6-2, 6-3 winner over Todd Spears. Both final matches begin at 9 a.m.

In the boys 18-under singles division, Kevin Bryant, the top seed, advanced to Friday's finals with a 6-1 6-0 victory over Tommy Privett. He will play the winner of the George Rivers-Sammy Louato match.

When the men enter the court Friday night, Doug Davis will be the number one target to defeat. Davis, the number one men's player for Texas Tech and a former Class 4A state champion, is seed high in the TAAF tourney. Other top competitors will include Alex Thompson of Durban, South Africa. Thompson, who who played in the third spot for Central Texas Junior College this year signed a letter-of-intent to play for Texas Tech last weekend.

The tourney, which matches the top players in the Lubbock area, concludes with finals matches on Sunday.

PRINCTON HIRES COACH

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Rob Orr, the director of the Dad's Club AAU swimming team in Houston, Texas and a former assistant coach at the University of Southern California, has been named men's swimming coach at Princeton University. Orr, 28, replaces Bill Farley, who was named head coach at the University of Michigan.

Rozelle Urges End To 'Chop Block'

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League coaches will be getting a letter from Commissioner Pete Rozelle shortly pointing out the dangers of the "chop block" and asking those who coach that manuever not to use it anymore.

Rozelle had hoped to have something stronger to get the message across, such as a rule barring some forms of the chop block and a 15-yard penalty for offenders. Club owners were not willing to go that far, however, and the expected vote Wednesday to outlaw that block never materialized. The club presidents ended their two-day meeting only recommending that the chop block not be used.

"The commissioner is confident he can get the teams that are using it to stop coaching it," said American Football Conference Public Relations Director Joe Browne of Rozelle's letter-writing campaign. "And if they stop coaching it, the players will stop using it."

The chop block, a relatively recent innovation, is blamed for an increase in leg and knee injuries to defensive linemen. The manuever involves the use of two offensive players. Usually an offensive lineman at least partially engages an on-rushing defensive player, then an offensive back comes from the side and hits the defensive player low, around the knees.

Those who opposed a rule outlawing that manuever held it would be too difficult for officials to decide between a chop block and a double team block, which was not at issue. The key would be whether the rusher was engaged by the offensive lineman or whether he was breaking free when he was hit low by the second player. If he were at least partially engaged by the first player, it would be a chop block.

"It was felt it would put too much added pressure on the officiating," said Browne.

"Secondly," Browne said, "there was a question of how a rule against the chop block might affect the overall protection of the quarterback. If you're not letting that back block low, in effect, you are taking away some of the quarterback's protection. In most cases, the quarterback is the most valuable player on the team, and some clubs felt they wanted to give the quarterback the most protection they can."

Chaps Enlist Four Athletes

Four standout atnletes from Lubbock and the South Plains inked letters-of-intent with Lubbock Christian College Monday morning.

Signing with the Chaps were Dewayne Williams and Reggie Swearengin of Dunbar, also Sid Everton and Mitch Mackey, both of Snyder. Williams and Swearengin will play football, Mackey and Everton baseball.

A 5-9, 155-pounder, Williams played four different positions for the Panthers last fall, moving from split end to quarterback then from running back to defensive back. He caught six passes for 189 yards and picked off three passes. He was twice all-District in football and an All-South Plains selection in basketball.

Swearengin, 6-0, 180, doubled as a linebacker and offensive lineman. He had 34 tackles, including 17 solos, against Lubbock High.

Head coach Jerry Don Sanders has now inked 24 high school and junior college gridders this spring.

Everton, a righthander, was 11-4 with a 0.89 ERA and 140 strikeouts in 90 innings last for the the Tigers. He also doubled as a second baseman for SHS.

After an 11-2 junior campaign, Mackey slipped to 7-3 with a 2.43 ERA and 64 strikeouts last year. The 176 pounder lettered four years, serving as the designated hitter as a freshman, the left fielder as a sophomore and as a right fielder the past two years when not on the mound.

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

If you're a betting man and have any of those little green George Washington portraits left after the Belmont Stakes Saturday, here's a tip offered free and without obligation.

Billy Martin not only will be back as manager of the New York Yankees, he could be calling the shots by the July All-Star break — or shortly afterward.

Who says so?

Not owner George Steinbrenner. "We are continuing our talks — nothing definite yet," the big boss says.

Not Billy, who still insists, "I'll be back in 1980 with a two-year contract."

How come a change in midseason? Easy. Steinbrenner watchers know he is a man who lives by his instincts. He dislikes drift. He demands movement. It's a throwback to his days as a college coach and assistant athletic director. Never lose the old college try.

So far his instincts have been generally good. He hired the controversial, thrice-fired Martin originally because the team needed an injection of Martin's kind of fireworks. Billy can sting tender nerves but he can also manage a ball club and ignite emotions.

George took the rubber bands off the free agent market by signing Catfish Hunter for $3.5 million and then courting Reggie Jackson to change residences for $2.9 million. From then on, as the Yankees moved to three league championships and two World Series titles, George played his big chess game with million-dollar pawns, filling holes with super stars as the situation dictated.

When Yankee squabbling dropped the champions 14½ games out of the lead last July, Steinbrenner began getting impatient. The team was loaded with stars. The least thing it needed was conflict. Exit: the feisty, volatile Martin. Enter: placid, low-key Bob Lemon. It worked like a charm.

Through no fault of Lemon's but largely because of injuries, the Yankees so far this year have shown little get-up-and-go. There are signs of complacency and over-confidence. The champs look as if they could use a swift kick in the pants. That's Martin's forte.

Steinbrenner is not the kind of man to let a dormant situation exist for long. He is too much a perfectionist, too proud, too impatient and too impetuous.

The bottom line is this: Good ol' Bob Lemon can't wait to shuck his uniform and trade it for mufti. Scrappy Billy Martin can't wait to get back in the trenches. If it means juicing up the Yankees, Steinbrenner would be quick to oblige.

Bob Briner, boss of the Association of Tennis Professionals, announces from Dallas that a team of players from the Republic of China will be touring the United States during the next six weeks. If they can play tennis the way they do ping-pong, the Davis Cup is bound to wind up as one of the treasures in Peking's Forbidden City.

Such a conclusion might be drawn from the first returns that show Bucky Dent of the Yankees (avg. .243, 11 RBI, no homers) and Fred Patek of the Royals (Avg. .240, 11 RBI, no homers) leading Minnesota's Roy Smalley (batting leader with .334, 38 RBI and 10 home runs) for American League shortstop.

Far from being bitter, Smalley says: "I'm happy to be picked third. If they wanted to pick an all-star team on merit, the voting would be done by the players, coaches and managers. But the commissioner thinks it's nice to let the fans get involved. Great. But we have to accept it for what it is — a popularity contest."

Winner of the year's Tell-It-Like-It-Is Award: Jack Whitaker, veteran CBS sportscaster: "Broadcast of the Super Bowl is overkill. We (TV generally) use 12 cameras when three would do, miles of cable. We just flaunt our hardware. We show a boat on Biscayne Bay, shift to the Goodyear blimp, take a broad view of the ocean and then back to the blimp. Nobody knows where the football is."

Bid Aiming At Triple Crown

Wednesday. "He hasn't lost anything from those races (the Derby and Preakness)."

So Golden Act, General Assembly and Screen King will try again in a bid to steal some of the Triple Crown glory and stop Spectacular Bid from joining Seattle Slew and Affirmed to give the sport its third consecutive Triple Crown champion.

Last year, Alydar was the only colt to meet Affirmed in all three Triple Crown races, and he finished second in all three. In Seattle Slew's Triple Crown year of 1977, only Run Dusty Run opposed him in all three races. Run Dusty Run finished second in the Derby, third in the Preakness and second in the Belmont.

Secretariat was opposed by only Sham in all three races. Sham finished second in the Derby and in the Preakness but hurt himself and was fifth and last in the Belmont.

Lady Golfers Get Microphones

MASON, Ohio (AP) — National television is experimenting again with equipping Ladies Professional Golfers Association players with live microphones while they play.

Don Ohlmeyer, executive producer for sports for NBC-TV, says his network may mike as many as three players for the final two rounds it will telecast Saturday and Sunday from the LPGA Championship tournament.

"It brings the viewer closer to the game. He can hear what the player says to her caddy about club selection, what the player's reaction is to a shot," said Ohlmeyer.

Nancy Lopez, the defending LPGA champion, was to give the experiment a test run in her first round today for the $150,000 major event at the Nicklaus Golf Center.

"But even if Nancy does not like the idea personally, we may proceed with it with other players," said Ohlmeyer.

The biggest opposition to the experiment — pushed by LPGA Commissioner Ray Volpe — may come from the players themselves.

Jan Stephenson has been the only player to carry a live microphone in her skirt pocket in LPGA tour history. After running the test in the 1977 Women's International, Stephenson said she would never do it again.

The bubbly, unflappable Lopez, the game's No. 1 money winner, isn't sure she will like the idea either.

"It's fine with me," she said before teeing off today, "but I think they'll find our women, the more talkative ones, might not have much to say when they are conscious of the mike."

GRAND SLAMMER— Dan Hanggie of Cal State-Fullerton is mobbed by his teammates after banging a grand-slam home run Wednesday night to beat Arkansas. (AP Laserphoto)

'Horns Eliminated

sas Coach Norm DeBriyn said. "I thought the key to the game was Ash being thrown out at third when we were behind only 8-6.

"I'll take the blame for that. I thought he could make it."

Tonight's game matches teams that split four contests during the regular season. Fullerton, rated third nationally, won the Southern California Baseball Association title and eighth-rate Pepperdine was runner-up.

Both teams lost their opening games of the series, but have bounced back to win three straight. First round losers have won the series on five other occasions.

"I look for a dogfight with Pepperdine," Garrido said. "It should be exciting and it should be pretty well played. The pitchers will know the hitters and we'll know how to position our people. Because of that, it will tend to be more like a professional game."

Garry Humpston stroked a two-run, tie-breaking double down the left field line in the eighth inning to lift Pepperdine past Texas. Humpston, who was 1-for-9 in the series when he stepped to the plate, connected off reliever Keith Walker and made a loser of Texas ace Jerry Don Gleaton, who suffered his first setback in 14 decisions.

"To beat the kid who was pitching for Texas is a feather in our cap," Pepperdine Coach Dave Gorrie said. "He's obviously a good pitcher and a lot of other people think so, too. He was drafted in the first round.

"I felt if we could get our feet on the ground and get into our game, we could make a good showing of ourselves here. Our game is to get our good runners on base, hit to the right side and move our runners up and play good defense."

If Pepperdine wins tonight, the Waves will have to chance to avenge the 5-4 loss they suffered to Arkansas in the first round.

Sports Notes

Davis Joins Texas

Lynn Davis, head women's basketball coach at Cooper, has resigned to accept a position as assistant women's basketball coach at the University of Texas, it was announced Wednesday in Austin.

Miss Davis, who had been at Cooper for one year, will assume her new duties this fall as an assistant head coach Jody Conradt.

Miss Davis replaces Marti Fuquay, who resigned to become head coach at Temple Junior College, according to Miss Conradt. The UT coach praised Miss Davis as a defensive specialist, and said she would be used extensively in recruiting.

Miss Davis is a 1978 graduate of West Texas State University and was a four-year starter guard at Canyon High School. During her high school career, Canyon ruled as state basketball champion.

Walker Quits Post

AMARILLO (Special)—Dee Walker, Athletic Director of the Amarillo Independent School District for the past 24 years, announced his retirement effective Aug. 31.

Dr. B.J. Stamps, Superintendent of the AISD, said applications for the AD position will be accepted through July 1. A replacement is expected to be named by Aug. 1, he added.

Walker earned both a bachelor's and master's degree from North Texas State University. He coached briefly at White Deer and Borger before joining the Marines in 1942. After his stint in the service, he joined Odus Mitchell's staff at Marshall High School. He later moved with Mitchell to NTSU.

After eight years of coaching at NTSU, Walker was hired as Amarillo's first AD.

Woman Sues Astros

HOUSTON (UPI) — A woman hit in the face by a baseball in the Astrodome has testified in the trial of her $500,000 lawsuit that glare from the stadium's skylights caused the accident in 1974.

Janice Graham Johnson, 32, claimed the Houston Sports Association Inc., which owns the Houston Astros and operates the Astrodome, was negligent for allowing the glare.

She also has accused the Philadelphia Phillies, a defendant in the case, of allowing one of its players to hit the ball, which struck her in the face.

"When it hit (me), I heard it break my nose and my teeth crack and crunch," Mrs. Johnson said Wednesday. "Blood was everywhere. I was choking on blood."

The woman's attorney, W. Jiles Roberts, said the injury cost Mrs. Johnson about $15,000 in medical expenses and lost work time.

Little-Known Pitcher Gets 2nd Shutout Against KC

By United Press International

Through the first two months of the season, Dennis Martinez has established himself as one of the game's premier pitchers and his right arm has kept the Baltimore Orioles atop the American League's tough Eastern Division Trouble is, nobody seems to know it.

"I still feel I'm the second best right-hander on the team behind Jim Palmer," said Martinez, after tossing a four-hitter Wednesday night to lead the Orioles to a 3-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals. "But that's nothing to be ashamed of."

The Orioles grabbed a 1-0 lead off Royals starter Paul Splittorff, 8-5, in the fourth on a single by Rich Dauer and Lee May's RBI double, then made it 2-0 in the fifth on a Kiko Garcia double and Dave Skaggs' run-scoring single. Gary Roenicke hit his 11th homer in the sixth inning to close out the scoring.

"I just feel great man, just great," Martinez said after his seventh complete game. "...You can tell by the results that I've finally found myself."

Just when the Montreal Expos thought nothing could stop them, something did: Fatigue.

"I was enjoying it just watching them," Montreal Manager Dick Williams said after his club scored 11 runs in the fourth inning en route to a 12-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

"All we did was make some changes, get everyone in the ballgame and let our extra men get some at-bats," continued Williams, who has the Expos in first place in the East Division, a half-game ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals. "You don't give any take signs or anything, you just watch."

Ellis Valentine drove in three runs to highlight the inning. The 11 runs were three shy of the National Leagie record since 1900. Chicago scored 14 on August 25, 1922. The Expos also scored eight runs with none out, four less than Brooklyn's record set on May 24, 1953.

With Atlanta leading, 2-0, Montreal sent 15 batters to the plate in the fourth against two pitchers. Valentine drove in the first run of the inning with a single.

Yankees 3, Twins 2

White Sox 8, Red Sox 5

Milt May stroked a two-run homer and Lamar Johnson and Eric Soderholm added solo shots to lead Chicago over Boston.

Brewers 4, Rangers 3

Blue Jays 5, Angels 4

Mariners 4, Tigers 3

Indians 6, A's 4

Gary Alexander beat out a hit to shortstop leading off the eighth inning and scored two outs later on a triple by Duane Kuiper to pace Cleveland's fourth straight triumph.

Cardinals 6, Giants 5

Astros 4, Phillies 3

Pinch hitter Denny Walling slammed a three-run homer in the seventh to tie the score and Jose Cruz knocked in the go-ahead run in the eighth with a fielder's choice.

Cubs 3, Padres 0

Rick Ruschel and Bruce Sutter combined on a four-hitter to best Randy Jones, 5-4.

Mets 5, Reds 3

Pirates 5, Dodgers 4

Bill Robinson's second home run of the game, a two-run, two-out shot, capped a four-run eighth inning.

Connors Has Point To Make

PARIS (AP) — Jimmy Connors has come to the French Open tennis championships to settle a grudge.

His critics claim the Belleville, Ill., belter can't play on European clay, that he can't last the $485,000 French Open's wearying two weeks of best-of-five-set matches. And they claim Jimmy Connors and his big American power game could never beat Sweden's Bjorn Borg in his own backyard.

But after crashing into the semifinals Wednesday with a 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2 drubbing of American Eddie Dibbs, Connors appeared supremely confident he was on the verge of at last silencing his critics.

"Everybody says it is a gruelling tournament, and it is," Connors said. "And everybody says that if I don't come and try the French Open I'm not a great player, which is false."

After skipping this tournament for the past five years, Connors has dominated his matches with nearly the same ease Borg showed last year in winning the $49,000 men's title for the third time.

"Being in the semifinals is a lift for me, because that's where it all happens," Connors said. "If I'm going to bring out my best tennis, it will be now. And if I play any better than I have been, watch out. Because I'm playing very, very well."

But on center court at Roland Garros Stadium Wednesday, Pecci stunned the capacity crowd by upsetting No.3 seed and former French champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

"If Pecci plays likes this, he has a very good chance to beat Connors and win this tournament," Vilas said after losing 6-0, 6-2, 7-5. "He was playing very well. It was hard for me to keep him back."

Pecci and Connors are set to duel Friday, with Borg and American Vitas Gerulaitis meeting in the other semifinal match.

In the women's competition, top seed Chris Evert-Lloyd faced Australia's Dianne Fromholtz today and the other semifinal matched Australia's Wendy Turnbull with Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia.

Connors was not quite as sharp in his match against Dibbs as he had been in earlier matches here. He was not as accurate with his flat power drives and he seemed to lose his concentration a bit at times.

"I let down a little bit, which wasn't good," Connors said. "I had been hitting 10 or 12 balls waiting for a short one. But then Eddie started playing better and I wasn't as patient."

Nevertheless, Connors said, he was pleased with the way his game was honing toward the way he wanted it.

Player Among Field At Atlanta Tourney

ATLANTA (AP) — South African Gary Player begins his second stay on the 1979 American tour today in the $300,000 Atlanta Golf Classic, but don't blame him if his mind is elsewhere.

"I'm just getting my game into shape for next week," Player said Wednesday. "That's the one I need for a second Grand Slam."

Player referred to the U.S. Open championship which begins at Toledo, Ohio, next Thursday — an event he captured in 1965.

He also has an overriding interest in the British Amateur championship currently under way at Southport, England, where son Wayne scored a 3 and 2 victory over Tony Smith of Great Britain in a second-round match Wednesday.

"That makes my day," Player said when told his son's score. "Now he gets Dick Siderowf in the third round. They're probably playing right now because there's five hours difference in the time."

The 17-year-old Wayne also disposed of Siderowf, a two-time British Amateur champion, 5 and 4.

Player needs a second U.S. Open victory to complete what he calls his second Grand Slam, having already won at least twice in the other three events that are considered the four major tests of golf. He has won the Masters and British Open three times and the PGA twice.

"I'm swinging quite nicely," said the globe-trotting golfer who owns 114 career victories. "I've had three seconds this year, all by one stroke. Sometimes you feel second isn't good, but actually it is."

The Atlanta tourney, to be conducted over the hilly, 7,019-yard Atlanta Country Club course, will be Player's seventh this year in the United States. His best finish was a second in the Greater Greensboro Open just before the Masters.

Despite his limited schedule, he has won $43,532 on the PGA tour so far, 48th on this season's money list.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Rumors that the Soviet Union or Eastern European nations may have bought U.S. soybeans or wheat sparked a powerful rally Wednesday in grain and soybean prices on the Chicago Board of Trade.

A variety of rumors circulated during heavy trading, sending wheat futures to new season's highs in all contracts and soybeans to new life-of-contract highs in all but the two nearby trading months.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed 25 cents to $3.00 a bale higher Wednesday.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market on Wednesday was moderate. Supplies of cotton for sale were moderate to heavy and demand was moderate.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.9, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Price trend: steady on Wednesday.

Course Helps People Cope With Problems

Worry, alcohol or drugs can't hold a candle to self-help when it comes to getting it all together, in the view of one Texas Tech University professor who will direct a workshop this summer in rational self-counseling.

Participants will meet Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m., June 12, 14, 19, 21, 26 and 28. The workshop is offered through Texas Tech's division of continuing education. The fee is $30, and Dr. Paul Knipping of the Texas Tech health education faculty is the instructor.

Knipping and two colleagues have described their research in rational self-couseling in an article appearing in the January-February issue of "Health Values Achieving High Level Wellness." His co-authors are Dr. Maxie Maulsby Jr. who is the author of the book, "Help Yourself to Happiness," and Dr. Thomas C. Timmreck. Maulsby is a member of the psychiatry faculty at the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington. Timmreck is on the Center for Health Services staff at Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff.

One of Maulsby's video tapes, demonstrating his work with an alcoholic, will be a part of the workshop.

Knipping said the workshop will deal with applications of rational self-counseling to problems involving divorce, obesity, alcoholism, and other stress management.

"It is especially helpful," he said, "for persons with cardiovascular problems brought on by mismanagement of stress. Rational self-counseling is an effective way to minimize anger, anxiety, jealousy and other nonproductive emotions. While it works for postoperative heart patients, it should also provide a useful preventive approach to all pathology having an emotional base."

In their recent article the three authors urged that rational self-counseling be taught in public schools, as an approach to good mental health.

"Our TV-addicted society is probably the best informed, yet most dissatisfied, of any generation," they said. "The young and old both demonstrate their dissatisfaction with frequent illegal, immoral, antisocial and-or self-destructive behavior.

"Of the 150 million new prescriptions written each year, over half are for tranquilizers. Not surprisingly, the alcoholic beverage industry is one of the largest and most profitable in our country."

Their solution is to teach students "skill in the healthy use of their inner resources, skill in creating rational self-concepts and skill in making rational decisions and in formulating rational values and goals."

The workshop Knipping will teach will expand upon these concepts. To preregister or for more information, contact the division of continuing education at Texas Tech.

Tech Professor Named To Post

Dr. Idris R. Traylor Jr., a member of the history faculty at Texas Tech, has been appointed to the board of directors of the Texas Historical Foundation.

The foundation is a private, non-profit group raising funds to support preservation and conservation of Texas's historical heritage.

During the last 25 years the foundation, in cooperation with the state-supported Texas Historical Commission, saved or restored nearly 3,000 buildings and other historic structures, established almost 350 local and regional archives, opened 358 history museums and placed more than 6,000 Texas historical markets along state travel routes.

The foundation was organized in 1954 by several prominent Texans including the late Ima Hogg of Houston. Mrs. Charles L. Bybee of Houston is president of the board of directors. The 34-member board meets four times each year.

Local Woman Reports Abduction, Sex Assault

A Lubbock woman found lying in front of a house in the 2200-block of 35th Street about 1:45 a.m. today told police she was forced into a car and driven out of the city, where she was raped by a man and sexually assaulted by the man's female companion.

The woman said she was walking in the 1800-block of 34th Street shortly before midnight when the man drove up, jumped out of the car and forced her into the vehicle at knifepoint. The man's companion also was in the car, she said.

The pair reportedly drove the 21-year-old woman to a dirt road off FM 1585 about two miles east of Quirt Avenue. The woman said the man raped her in the back seat of the car while the other woman watched.

The victim said the man then held her while his female companion sexually assaulted her. The woman said that after the man assaulted her again she was driven back into the city and let out at 34th Street and Avenue S.

The woman was examined at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The alleged rapist was described as black, between 36 and 45, tall and muscular. He was clad in a black leisure suit, black floppy hat and dark shirt.

The woman assailant was described as a young Mexican-American, tall and of medium build. She reportedly was wearing a blue satin jump suit.

A Texas Tech University student said he was clubbed with a tire tool outside a South Lubbock club at 11:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Allan Curtis Copeland, 21, said a heavy-set man stopped him as he walked across the parking lot of the club at Loop 289 and University Avenue.

The man, driving a red and black car, told Copeland to quit "touching" his car or else he was going to hit him with the tire iron he held in his hand, Copeland said.

The assailant knocked Copeland to the ground and left the parking lot, reports indicate. Copeland was taken to Methodist Hospital, treated for cuts and a broken nose and released.

NEW UNDERSEA CABLE

LONDON (AP) — A new trans-Atlantic telephone and telex cable link has been approved that would boost by 50 percent the calling capacity between Europe and North America, the British Post Office said Tuesday. A statement said financing of the $200-million undersea line, scheduled to come into service in 1983, would be shared by the United States, Britain and France.

A late afternoon burglar made off with more than $3,000 worth of goods on Wednesday. Joyce Robertson, a resident of the 5500-block of Eighth Street, said a burglar pried open a wooden door between 5:30 and 6:20 p.m. and took two reel-to-reel recorders, an eight-track player and a camera.

Several guns and hunting knives were taken from the residence of Charles Norman Akers, 3808 35th St. The loss in the burglary, which took place between 7:30 a.m. and 6:45 p.m. Wednesday, was estimated at $755 and included two pistols, a revolver and three knives.

An unlocked car in the parking lot of the Shangri-La Apartments at 201 Indiana Ave. was ransacked between 6 p.m. Monday and 8 p.m. Tuesday. Camille Stary reported the loss of $940 worth of clothing and stereo equipment from the car.

Police took three Lubbock youths into custody Wednesday after they were identified by a 10-year-old boy as the three who stole $5 from him.

The boy told police he was at the TG &Y store at 1716 Parkway about 11 a.m. Wednesday when three black youths, all about 15 years old, grabbed him and took a $5 bill he was holding in his hand;. The three fled on bicycles, police said.

A city police officer, Odis Wayne Harner, received minor injuries Tuesday when his police car and another vehicle collided at North Quirt Avenue and East Rice Street.

Harner's car and a pickup, driven by Earl Wayne Thetford, were both headed north on Quirt Avenue. Police said Thetford, 47, of 5440 14th St., attempted to turn right from the center lane when he struck Harner's car in the left side.

The officer was taken to Methodist Hospital where he was treated and released.

The accident occurred at 1:24 p.m. Wednesday.

Achievement Institute Selects New Director

John A. Anderson, 37, has been named executive director of the Food and Fiber National Institute of Achievement, Arnold Maeker, president of the organization, announced today.

Anderson, one-time conventions manager for the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, is returning to Lubbock from San Antonio, where he was special assistant to the director of the Institute of Texan Cultures. He managed marketing, volunteer programs and special projects for the San Antonio institution.

Anderson also was formerly deputy regional director for the federal American Revolution Bicentennial Administration and associate executive director of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Texas.

During the bicentennial celebration, Anderson was involved in planning Lubbock's program which included the establishment of Food and Fiber.

Anderson and his wife Frances, both Texas Tech University graduates, have two children.

Food and Fiber is a non-profit organization researching and communicating the impact of food and fiber production and processing on the American way of life.

Norway Hopes To Better Safety Record At Sea

OSLO, Norway (AP) — About 200 pleasure boats are damaged by fires and explosions every summer in Norway, and 80 to 90 people are killed in such accidents.

It's not surprising, then, that efforts to increase safety at sea for users of small boats rank high among Norwegians.

Safe design and construction have thus become increasingly important considerations in recent years with the dramatic rise in pleasure-boat ownership.

Today every fifth Norwegian family owns a small pleasure craft. They range in size from small open boats with outboard motors, medium-size wood or reinforced-plastic family boats — called "snekke" here — or speedy cabin cruisers for longer trips along the coast.

Norway also exports pleasure boats, with exports last year reaching some $40 million.

Because of the accidents and lost lives, Norwegian consumer organizations started a safety campaign in 1966.

They came up with a form listing minimum standards of quality. These requirements, however, failed to satisfy everybody concerned and finally the Norwegian ship-classification society, Det Norske Veritas (DnV), was asked to develop a new set of rules.

Prepared in cooperation with insurance companies as well as the national Maritime Affairs Directorate, the new rules appeared in 1969 and have since been adopted by all the Nordic countries.

Then classification of all pleasure boats began. Some 170 Norwegian manufacturers collaborated in this effort, and today a total of 185,000 boats and 450 different types hae been classified in Norway.

Safety rules cover such features as hull strength, seaworthiness, fire resistance and fire prevention, fire-fighting facilities and provisions for escape in case of fire or accidents.

Many pleasure boats today are made from glass-reinforced plastic, and special attention is paid to their construction requirements. Emphasis is put on thickness of the bottom, sides and the deck. Vessels are also strengthened for engine beds, mast support, mooring fitness and keel.

Boats must also meet special requirements to avoid swamping. Stability is checked in relation to boarding methods and the maximum movement of people on board. Watertight bulkheads and bilge-pump arrangements are specified to prevent leakage through the hull.

All decks need non-slip surfaces — as do all grips, handles and rails. An escape ladder on the outside is a must on all larger pleasure boats.

Prevention of fire and explosion is a central aim of the rules. Certified petrol-engine boats made of glass-reinforced plastic must be designed with separate and individually ventilated gas-tight engine and fuel-tank compartments. All petrol tanks need top connections with special attention being paid to the tightness of fuel pipelines and flexible hoses.

These and ther precautions have significantly reduced the risk of fire and other mishaps in small boats around the coasts of Norway and other Nordic countries.

DnV claims the odds of fire in certified boats are only 30 percent of the rate in other crafts. They also say that no certified boat fitted with permanently-fixed extinguishers has ever been a total write-off because of fire.

Although the Norwegian small-boat fleet has tripled in recent years, the number of deaths associated with these small craft has not risen.

Special campaigns have also resulted in people knowing about safety at sea. More of the boat owners and boat users have also learned to swim, one DnV spokesman said.

Soviets Rap Increasing Prom Costs

MOSCOW (AP) — For Soviet high school students, this year's prom is turning out to be the most expensive ever, according to articles in the Soviet press.

With the teen-agers caught up in final-exam studies, Parents' Committees take over prom arrangements for each school, deciding how much students should contribute to the evening.

At School No. 797 in Moscow's Perovsky District, 60 graduating seniors were told to bring in 25 rubles each (about $37.50). That's a stiff price tag, considering the average Soviet worker earns only 160 rubles (about $240) in salary a month.

"It's not so important how this money is spent. It's the trend that's alarming," complained the newspaper Sovietskaya Kultura. "A few years ago they were collecting 10 rubles... Where will it end?"

Soviet proms are much like those in the United States — all-night affairs that follow the awarding of diplomas to high school seniors across the country.

The Parents' Committees at schools vie with one another to see which can prepare the most elaborate — and ultimately expensive — prom according to Soviet newspapers. Flowers, professional photographers, a pop music band, not to mention new dresses and suits, all hike up the cost of what used to be a simple dance.

"How can it be that if our children don't work yet, and don't earn any money yet, they have to pay such a huge sum," the newspaper Evening Moscow wanted to know.

"We have no objection to the fact that receiving a high school diploma is a real event both for the school and for its graduates, as well as for their parents. An event of great importance. But should it be marked with such high expenditures?"

The newspaper noted: "The diploma could be celebrated beautifully and gaily without spending so freely."

One newspaper correspondent asked a mother how she could approve of such elaborately arranged proms these days.

"What are we to do?" the mother replied. "Our children graduate from school only once in their lives nd everything should be perfect. But then again, everything has become so expensive. A Band alone charges 120 rubles ($180) to play the evening."

Sovietskaya Kultura ridiculed this kind of thinking, accusing parents of not even asking their teen-agers want they want.

"I never heard of a situation where young people started a mutiny because their prom was a little cheaper," the writer said. "And most would say there is no need to spend so much money."

"Have we become so used to it, that it must always be so?"

The article suggested that instead of a prom, maybe the occasion could be marked "like ordinary people do, by planting birch trees in the schoolyard as a memory to your studies."

Students Learn From 'Crisis'

CONCORD, Calif. (UPI) — The first-graders at Hillcrest Elementary School have a better idea than most kids about the woes of their parents during the gas shortage — they're on an odd-even "cookie rationing" plan.

Teacher Mary Tomlinson said the idea was to teach children the difference between odd and even numbers and, at the same time, acquaint them with the current numbers game at the pumps.

Last month, she issued paper license plates designated odd and even to her cookie consumers. On odd days, those qualifying lined up under a "fill up here" sign to wait for a ginger snap. The next day "evens" queued for chocolate chip cookies.

"The 'cookie crisis' was a complete success," Miss Tomlinson said. "They all have their numbers down now."

Museum Putting Oil Sketches On Display

Subsidy On Imports Of Heating Oil To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has told European officials it will not halt a $5-per-barrel subsidy on imports of home heating oil despite complaints the policy fuels skyrocketing spot oil prices.

The subsidy will continue until October, U.S. officials said in response to an official call for its abandonment from France's foreign and industry ministers visiting here.

Andre Giraud, French industy minister and chairman of the European Economic Community's council of energy, called the subsidy "unilateral, inefficient and counterproductive," at a news conference following day-long sessions with administration officials.

He accompanied French Foreign Minister Francois-Poncet, who is also president of the European Council of Ministers.

Giraud said Europe will have to accept the U.S. position and make certain it doesn't jeopardize efforts to coordinate oil conservation schemes in the face of rising prices charged by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and dwindling supplies.

Spirited competition for scarce supplies on the Rotterdam and Geneva spot markets has pushed prices past $30 per barrel, more than double the base levels charged by OPEC.

Giraud, at his news conference, voiced concern that continued oil price rises could create a "tremendous world economic crisis, very likely a recession."

To avoid such a scenario, western industrial nations will be meeting in various settings throughout June. West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt begans a five-day Washington visit this week to discuss energy strategies with the Carter administration.

Late this month, the United States and other industrial nations convene in Tokyo for a summit expected to concentrate on energy conservation schemes. A European Community spokesman in Brussels said the U.S. action will be discussed at that meeting.

Two days before this session, OPEC meets in Geneva, at which time they are probably will raise base oil prices by $2 to $3 per barrel.

In the face of concerted European complaints, U.S. officials have steadfastly defended the subsidy, intended to provide importers with sufficient incentive to move home heating oil into this country.

Administration officials insisted the subsidy was aimed only at luring heating oil fromm historic sources of supply, mainly in the Caribbean and eastern Canada.

The subsidy, or entitlement, comes from a pool of oil company funds. It is designed to equalize the relatively low, controlled price of domestic supplies and the higher foreign prices.

Greater World Demand Makes Exploration Of Area Economical

EDMONTON (UPC) — Increased world demand for oil only now makes it economical to work a 6,500-square-mile area near Lloydminster containing as much as 20 billion barrels of heavy crude oil, a Husky Oil executive says.

In a background paper released this week at the First International Conference on the Future of Heavy Crude and Tar Sands, James A. Williams, senior vice-president of Husky Oil, said his company is working 40 percent of the site straddling the Alberta-Saskatchewan border.

Current production is 27,000 barrels a day, Williams said, but with further research and investment in thermal recovery techniques, the company hopes to increase yield significantly from its leased reserves over the next few years.

To date, Husky has produced about 100 million barrels of heavy oil from the area.

A consultant with Gulf Universities Research Consortium in Houston, told the second day of the international conference that exploration costs no longer figure significantly in crude oil production.

"Although considerable effort will be required to develop the reservoirs, to delineate the pay, to determine the reserves, the location of the deposits are already known, " said Claude Hocott of Gulf.

"For the most part these deposits are at shallower depths than much of the future discoveries expected, and their development cost will be much lower than that of many frontier areas, particularly offshore."

Hocott said much of the heavy oil production of the world over the next 25 years "will probably come along a line reaching from western Canada to southern Venezuela, though there are undoubtedly numerous other areas of equal potential."

A division reservoir engineer from gas-hungry California told the conference his state uses twice as much gasoline a month as New York state and is sitting on top of crude oil reserves estimated at 35 billion to 50 billion barrels.

With an upswing in the need for gasoline, California is interested in new techniques for upgrading heavy oil, Fred Hallmark told the conference.

"Our refineries are more designed for higher gravity or lighter oil," he said, adding that the heaviest of the oil extracted in California has been used as asphalt on roads.

Heavy oil has been discovered in adundence over the years in the process of drilling for conventional crude.

Hallmark said about eight to 12 percent of the oil can be obtained by traditional drilling methods, but further amounts require heat application techniques to reduce oil viscosity and thin it sufficiently to flow.

Thermal techniques such as steam injection and underground fires have allowed some California wells to produce up to 50 percent of their total reserves, he said.

Production Of Texas Wells Drops

DALLAS (UPI) — Since 1972, the big year for pumping crude oil in Texas, the annual production from the state's oil wells has dropped steadily each year, says the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, and the trend continues with this year's statistics.

The decline corresponds to a 9.2 percent drop in Texas' oil reserves, from 8.5 to 7.7 billion barrels, said H.B. Harkins of Alice, association president and an independent oil producer.

The association represents approximately 3,200 oil producers, from major companies to small independents.

Harkins said federal price decontrol would encourage producers to recover more oil through more expensive secondary and tertiary methods — but not if Congress passes heavy windfall profits taxes proposed by President Carter.

"If the federal government adopts a policy that would take half of the revenue that the oil companies might realize from decontrol, then future enhanced recovery projects, as well as increased exploratory and developmental drilling, could be severely curtailed," Harkins said.

Texas produced nearly 1.1 billion barrels in 1978, 61 million barrels below 1977 and nearly 224 million barrels below the all-time peak production year in 1972. Nearly all the state's fields operated at the "maximum efficient recovery rate," said Harkins.

The recovery rate is set by the Texas Railroad Nommission according to geological conditions and market demand, said John Wagner, the association's vice president for public affairs. Since 1972, the market demand has been for all oil possible, Wagner said.

Increased recovery through secondary and tertiary projects would slow the decline in Texas' oil production, said Wagner.

"We are producing more oil each year than we are finding new oil to replace it with," he said.

Secondary and tertiary methods include pumping water into wells, fracturing the rock with pressure and using detergent to force out oil. Most oil new recovered by these expensive methods is classified as "old" oil, which sells for $6 a barrel.

New oil sells for $13 a barrel and the world market price is approximately $18 a barrel.

The greatest population growth in the United States came between 1880 and 1920. More than 21 million Europeans entered the country during that time.

Group Calls For Resignation Of FAA Official

IRVING (UPI) — The Airline Passengers Association — the group that went to federal court to ground the nation's DC-10s — has issued an ultimatum to the head of the Federal Aviation Administration: resign or face a congressional investigation.

James E. Dunne II, director of the consumer-oriented organization of some 50,000 frequent airline travelers, Wednesday demanded the resignation of Lanhorne M. Bond, charging the head of the federal agency had engaged in "evasive and deceptive conduct" relating to problems with DC-10s.

Dunne said Bond Wednesday announced the withdrawal of all DC-10 certifications at a news conference, effectively grounding the aircrafts, but said the FAA chief failed to mention the action was ordered the day before by a Washington federal judge at the APA's request.

"This is a continuation of the evasive and deceptive conduct on the part of the FAA shortly after the disaster on black Friday, May 25," said Dunne, referring to the crash of an American Airlines DC-10 in Chicago that killed 275 persons.

"Bond, in accepting the post he now holds, assumed full responsibility to uphold the highest possible degree of safety of all of us who travel by air," Dunne said. "He has ignored and repeatedly failed to fulfill this mandate."

Dunne said if Bond did not resign voluntarily, the APA Would ask Congress to demand a full-scale investigation into the FAA's role in the DC-10 groundings.

The Irving-based APA claims 50,000 members who fly 35-40 times a year. Originally founded as a travel club in 1960 in New York, the group adopted a consumer-oriented stance in 1967, said Hal Falfen, director of consumer affairs.

Salfen said the group was forced to go to court to get all 138 domestic DC-10s grounded because it was being rebuffed by the FAA in trying to obtain data. The FAA originally opposed the APA's grounding order request, but changed its position quickly when two-inch cracks were found in two more DC-10s.

Salfen said the group got no answer to its request for immediate scientific testing of DC-10s from either Bond or James King, head of the National Transportation Safety Board.

At first, the American crash was blamed on a bolt, then on cracks in an engine pylon and then maintenance, Salfen said.

"Since we felt we weren't getting answers, we went to court," he said. "If they had done what we asked them to do on Saturday (begin scientific testing) the airplanes would be flying."

At nearby Dallas-Fort Worth regional airport, the nation's seventh busiest, no major immediate impact was reported from the groundings. American Airlines substituted a Boeing 707 jetliner for a DC-10 that arrives nightly from Philadelphia.

The airline, which is moving its headquarters to Dallas-Fort Worth this summer from New York, also planned to begin its summer schedule today — despite 12 percent of its entire fleet being grounded. American has 30 DC-10s, Public Relations Director John Raymond said late Wednesday night.

The summer schedule, planned for months, would take American from 110 flights a day to 138 from Dallas-Fort Worth.

Another DC-10 flight scheduled to leave, beginning today, for Los Angeles would be replaced by a Boeing 707, Raymond reported. He said it was "highly unlikly" any DC-10 in the nation would be flying again by Monday — at the earliest — according to the company's "own educated guess."

He noted the APA was questioning the "safety of the airplane (DC-10) as a whole ... not taking on any one airline. Anyone that wants to do anything to make an airplane safer, we're not going to object to that," Raymond said.

He said some airplanes would be removed from American routes with small passenger loads in an attempt to absorb the heavily traveled routes served by the giant, tri-engine DC-10s.

Boy Receives Transplant From Sister

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Critically ill Steve Little got his miracle Wednesday when doctors successfully transplanted a kidney into him from his mentally retarded sister in an operation allowed by a landmark Texas legal decision.

"We got our miracle," said Margaret Little, mother of the children said after the five-hour operation. Both 15-year-old Anne Little and Steve, 14, were in stable condition Wednesday night at the Bexar County Medical Center.

The 4th Court of Civil Appeals here had cleared the way last February for Mrs. Little, Anne's legal guardian out of court, to allow doctors to use Anne's kidney for the transplant doctors said would save Steve's life.

Attorney R.H. Wester Jr., appointed to protect Anne's legal interests, had gone against the parents' wishes and challenged a Nov. 17 Guadalupe County probate court ruling allowing the transplant. He contended that Texas law provided no legal means by organs could be removed from mentally incompetent persons and donated to others.

Steve, who had one kidney never fully develop, had been living on kidney dialysis since his other kidney had virtually ceased to function three years ago. He had often been hospitalized and hadn't grown physically since beginning the thrice weekly dialysis.

Dr. David Player, one of the Seguin youth's doctors, said Steve eventually would have died from complications brought on by the treatments.

Stock Mart Stretches New Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a broad advance today as it attempted to stretch its rally into a fourth day. Trading was heavy.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead by 2.42 points at 837.92. Gainers led losers by 3-1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

New York Stock Exchange volume rose to 20.2 million shares in the first hour of trading from 17.37 million at noon Wednesday.

The Labor Department said producer prices rose just 4 percent last month as beef prices declined. But producer prices at the intermediate level rose 1 percent in May, while prices at the crude level gained 8 percent.

Oil, gas and petroleum industry service issues have recorded sharp gains lately as rising energy prices and rising sales have created profit gains and new opportunities.

Among energy stocks, Continental Oil was up ¾ at 36⅞. Great Basins Petroleum, which is considering selling its assets or merging with another company, gained ¾ to 12½ in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. Among oilfield service issues, Big Three was up 2½ to 40½.

Bucyrus Erie, the world's largest maker of excavating equipment, was up ¾ at 21⅛. McDonnell-Douglas led the NYSE most-actives and was unchanged at 21 after recording sharp losses a day earlier. Its DC-10 jetliners remained grounded by federal order.

U.S. Steel was unchanged at 22¼. Several senators said they expect President Carter to extend quotas on specialty steel imports, and the government reported business spending on new plants and equipment will rise 12.7 percent this year over 1978 levels.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index gained .31 to 57.54; the Amex market value index added 1.37 to 193.30.

Local Poet Selected

Hayden R. Nesmith of 2123 54th St. has been elected to professional membership in the Rocky Mountain Poetry Society, an organization of recognized poets.

Nesmith's poem, "The Storm," will be published in the fall 1979 issue of the Rocky Mountain Poetry Quarterly, according to Donald Day, chairman of the membership committee.

Review copies of the quarterly containing the poem will be sent to major newspapers and magazines throughout the United States, and copies will go to various colleges, universities and public libraries as well.

"Nesmith is a gifted person. We look forward to publishing our members' poetry in our quarterly on a regular basis," added Day.

Persons interested in joining the society may write the Rocky Mountain Poetry Society, Post Office Box 512, Pueblo, Colorado, 81002.

Inane Acting Spoils Love Story

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Last Giraffe," tonight on CBS, sounds like it can't miss — two young people fall in love, get married and save some endangered giraffes. I mean, how can you mess up a story like that?

Tune in, and see.

The story itself is fine — dramatic and touching, in the general style of "Born Free." But the production is so superficial and the acting so inane you get the feeling you're watching "Love Boat Sails to Africa."

Susan Anspach plays Betty Bruce, a divorcee who gets a camera and goes to Kenya "to work." She keeps saying this, that she's there "to work," but you never quite know what she's supposed to be doing. Just taking pictures of all the pretty animals, I guess.

She goes on a tour of a game reserve, where she witnesses the killing of a giraffe by a poacher. She is outraged, and takes a special interest in the endangered Rothschild giraffe species.

Fortunately, she snapped a picture of the poacher in the act of the killing, making possible a prosecution. Unfortunately, she was duped into handing her film over to the poacher's boss, villainous Ian Fielding.

"Then I gave my film to the accomplice!" she says, astonished to learn of the taking. "What a fool I am! How could I be so gullible? That'll teach me — never trust a man in a wrinkled safari suit with a crisp English accent."

Remember that.

Miss Anspach isn't given the brightest lines ever written, but she might have helped by not bringing her Susanne Sommers imitation to Africa. It's impossible to take her character seriously when every line is delivered in a singsong, little girlsy-wirlsy manner.

Anyway, she meets local tour guide Jock Leslie-Melville (Simon Ward), and they fall in love. This gives her the opportunity to remind us: "I'm too happy... I didn't come to Africa to have fun, I came here to work."

Here's where the movie gets good, because here's where the giraffes get the screen. Betty talks Jock into letting her care for the young offspring of the giraffe she saw killed. He agrees, and the newlyweds take the lovely creature home with them.

But Daisy grows up, the time comes to let her loose, and the Leslie-Melvilles figure a way to hold on to Daisy and save some of the other Rothschilds giraffes at the same time.

The giraffes and the countryside are great, but the drama is sappy. The danger to the giraffes seems kind of flimsy — some sort of development project, or something. And why does it take a weepy American divorcee to save the animals? Kenya cares, I think.

The Almanac
TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, June 7, the 158th day of 1979 with 207 to follow. The moon is moving toward its full phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini.

British fashion expert George "Beau" Brummel was born June 7, 1778.

On this day in history:

In 1933, Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany signed a 10-year peace pact. Less than six years later, Germany started World War II.

In 1959, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth became the first British monarchs to visit the United States.

In 1942, Japanese forces occupied Attu and Kiska in the Aleutian Islands. U.S. forces retook the islands a year later.

A thought for the day:

American poet Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "Beauty without grace is the hook without the bait."

Official Hopes Child Will Aid NBC Ratings

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — In Fred Silverman's book, a little child shall lead NBC out of its ratngs slump.

The child is Gary Coleman, a tiny 10-year-old bundle of show biz magic who stars in "Diff'rent Strokes," the only new NBC show to qualify as a hit in the Nielsen ratings.

As Silverman has outlined his strategy for the 1979-80 television season, he is depending on "Diff'rent Strokes" to help build up the show that will follow it on Thursday night — "Hello, Larry." He hopes the combination will bite into ABC's audience for "Charlie's Angels" and form building blocks for future comedy half-hours. But right now, the pressure is on "Diff'rent Strokes."

Gary's best friend is his German shepherd, Champion. The fifth grader's interests range from astronomy to miniature electric trains to writing mystery stories about lost hamsters.

But talk to Gary and he still sounds like any other little boy, whose conversation is peppered with nahs and yeahs. He enjoys bowling and golf and playing softball and about being an only child, he says enthusiastically, "Yeah, everything's mine."

Show Provides Rare View Of Courtroom

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jack Jones lived in a flophouse and got into the worst kind of trouble. He shot a man.

His story is not much different from ones found on any police blotter, anywhere, anytime. But this one will be on prime time television Friday and those who stick with it will experience the criminal justice system at the street level — in a way most law-abiding citizens never see it.

The fictional Kojak and Kaz may seem thin soup beside the real-life drama of Jack Jones in a documentary, "The Shooting of Big Man: Anatomy of a Criminal Case."

The program will be shown on ABC at 8 p.m. CDT.

The program eavesdrops on defense lawyers talking with their client in jail, on the victim hooked to his life support system in the hospital, on the prosecutor plotting his strategy and on the judge preparing for trial.

For this program, cameras were allowed everywhere and provide a rare glimpse into the courtroom. Real lawyers make real arguments. Real witnesses testify. A real defendant undergoes real cross-examination. Network publicity calls it "television's first examination of an entire criminal case."

Jones, a resident of the decaying Terrace View Hotel in Seattle, shoots Raymond Collins, nicknamed Big Man. The viewer meets Jones in jail and sees Big Man at a hospital, where he is paralyzed and near death.

"He come over to me, tried to intimidate me with his hand in his pocket and I told him to get on away from me and leave me alone," Jones tells his lawyers from the public defender's office. "He kept coming and I pulled the gun ... I fired at him. I was trying to scare him at that time ... but he kept messing with me when he kept on coming after me so I shot him."

Jones was drunk when he was arrested. In his statement to police, he admits shooting another man the day before. The victim, Big Man, is depicted as a bully and rapist.

Jones was charged with assault with intent to murder.

There are moments in a criminal case seldom revealed to the public. An investigator advising defense lawyers they had "better put the victim on trial;" a prosecutor saying "I want a conviction ... I want society as a whole to get the message that, you know, you just don't shoot people".

There are jail-cell rehearsals of testimony and Jones saying "that's what I'm trying to get around to learning ... how to express it."

Eric Saltzman, a trial attorney and producer with Evidence Films of Harvard University and Charles Nesson, associate dean of Harvard Law School, supervised the taping. They turned over more than 100 hours of tape to the ABC documentary unit for editing.

Although Jones never becomes any sort of sympathetic figure — or his victim, the object of pity — the verdict may come as a surprise to some viewers. But as Nesson says in an interview with ABC Supreme Court correspondent Tim O'Brien:

"Most important about this program is that viewers not leave it with the idea that they sometimes leave television dramas with, and that's that the defendant is either clearly guilty or clearly innocent.

Maurer Exhibit Set By Museum

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Alfred Maurer: The Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden Collection" will be on view through Aug. 12 at the Smithsonian's Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden.

Museum curator Judith Zilczer says, "Although modest in size and by no means a retrospective, the collection exemplifies the complexity and stylistic independence of Maurer's artistic development..."

Americans Invest Abroad As Hedge Against Domestic Inflation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Foreign investment is in vogue among individual American investors as a hedge against domestic inflation and Japan is emerging as a lucrative market.

At the end of 1977 American holdings of foreign securities totaled $49.3 billion, compared with $27.4 billion at the end of 1973, according to U.S. Commerce Department figures.

More than half this investment is in Canada — $26.9 billion at the end of 1977.

Investment in Japanese securities by Americans totaled $1.2 billion at the end of 1978 and there are indications U.S. Investment in Japan is increasing, partly because of the dollar's depreciation against the yen and partly because of the low Japanese inflation rate.

"I'm extremely bullish on the future of American investments in the Japanese stock and bond markets," said Daniel Schrimph, president of the Convertible Fund of Japan, Ltd.

The open-end mutual fund — an investment company that issues an unlimited number of shares and redeems them on demand — invests in the convertible bonds (those exchangeable into common stock) of major Japanese industrial corporations.

While Europeans have been quite active in the Japanese market in the last 15 years, Schrimph said, "this has not been quite the case in America."

"Yet today we do see a huge trend towards American investments abroad.

"American investors are recognizing that foreign investment is a way to hedge against inflation and that international diversification of their assets is a way of reducing risks," Schrimph said.

The American investor has been hurt in the U.S. market, he said. He sees his assets being eaten away by domestic inflation.

If he owns a small business, Schrimph said, he sees his margins eroded by increased labor costs and decreased worker productivity.

Statistics show, according to Schrimph, that over the last 10 years investment of U.S. dollars in Japanese securities has yielded about 17 percent annually.

"About a year ago," he said, "we decided to form a goup of very wealthy investors — mostly individuals — convinced that there was a need in the United States for a service to the individual that seems to be available only to big institutions, namely to have a vehicle whereby he could diversify his assets."

"So far, we have been very successful," he said.

The fund's current portfolio is diversified over some 25 companies in 10 industries — including construction, food, optical, and shipping and air transport.

Japanese securities are governed in much the same way as those in the United States, Schrimph said. For example:

—The rules of exchange are more or less similar to the ones in this country and disclosure requirements also are similar to those in the United States.

—There are few restrictions on Japanese companies. As yet, there is no OSHA or EPA and the mood of capitalism is overwhelming.

"So long as Japanese inflation is lower than America's and productivity is higher," he forecast, "the yen will continue to appreciate" in value against the dollar.
