Sanders enjoys American life

He's a Russian making Mexican food in Hereford, Texas

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

Michael Sanders has a short, simple philosophy of life. "Be honest with your friends and be friends with honest people," he said.

It's a philosophy which has well served the 27-year-old executive. It has helped him thrive on three continents during his travels in Europe, parts of Asia and, finally, to North America.

Sanders has journeyed a circuitous route to his position as operations coordinator for C. Ramirez & Sons food manufacturers here in Hereford.

Michael Sanders is not his original name. It is a considerate affection used as a courtesy for his American friends and business associates. The mouthful of unfamiliar sounds and syllables which are his birth name would be a near impossibility for many Americans.

Sanders was born in the province of Azarban in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, better known as Russia. Azarban is one of the southernmost provinces of the Soviet Union. It is located west of the Caspian Sea and on the eastern border of Armenia.

The province where Sanders was born is not the frozen north land that many people think of as being Russia, and Sanders' native tongue is not, as one might assume, Russian.

Sanders' speaking ability is not limited to English and his mother tongue. His cosmopolitan existence has enabled him to develop speaking skills in seven different languages including Turkish, Oserish, Ballon (spoken in Bulgaria and north Greece), Italian, Yugoslavick, French and, of course, English.

When Sanders first arrived in the United States in 1984, English was not included in his repertoire of (See SANDERS, Page 5A)

Moving up

Michael Sanders the biochemist (at left) soon became Michael Sanders the executive (bottom) after joining C. Ramirez & Sons food manufacturing here in Hereford. Sanders, a native of the Soviet Union, lived and traveled throughout much of Europe and parts of Asia before moving to the United States.

Is Texas getting more Arkansasitized?

EDITOR'S NOTE: From his foxhole in Fort Worth, AP Correspondent Mike Cochran has covered the ups and downs and ins and outs of Texans for 30 years. The following is written from his playful Texas perspective. Very playful.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Gig 'em, Pigs! Hook 'em, Hogs! Soooooieeee, Steers!

Wait a minute. Hold it. Something's wrong here. Could it be that Texas is being Arkansasitized? (Ark-an-sauce-a-tized).

That glib old Razorback Jerry Jones, the pride of Little Rock, has seized our semi-beloved Cowboys, and Arkansas billionaire Sam Walton is picking our pocketbooks with his marketing magic.

Sam's Wholesale Clubs and Wal-marts are proliferating faster around here than hangers in a closet or pennies left unattended.

Arkansas-born Donald Carter, resplendent in western garb and non-removable cowboy hat, grabbed off the Dallas Mavericks and turned them into the NBA's wonder team. As in, "Jeez, I wonder what they're gonna do next..."

And the headquarters of baseball's historic Texas League? Little Rock.

If you don't think J.R. Ewing has enough problems, consider this: An Arkansas-born femme fatale named Kimberly Foster has descended on "Dallas" this season and she's up to no good.

Says Lorimar Television of this scheming blonde:

"Hoping to join the rich and powerful Dallasites this year is April Stevens' younger and seductively sly sister Michelle, who comes to the city in search of the means - or man - who can lead her to her fortune."

Is nothing sacred?

Obviously not. Even the Alamo's fallen under the dark shadow of the Big Red Razorback. Literally.

The Arkansas folks who own Dillard's bought out Joskes, long a symbol of proud Texas marketing. With its new Dillard's logo, their most famous store stands within musket range of the Alamo in downtown San Antonio.

And while our famous Hunt brothers, Bunker, Herbert and Lamar, have been squandering billions, their Arkansas-born sisters, Margaret and Caroline, have been getting richer.

And richer.

Says Texas Monthly magazine: "Arkansas natives born to hugely rich oilman Haroldson Lafayette Hunt Jr., Caroline and Margaret are neither freewheeling, spend-happy inheritors nor daring businesswomen. Rather the pair, especially (See ARKANSAS, Page 3A)

Gramm visit is Sunday

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm (R-College Station) will be in Hereford at 4:30 p.m. Sunday to discuss the drug trafficking and manufacturing problems encountered locally and across the state and nation.

Sen. Gramm served as one of the Senate representatives in negotiations with administration officials that finalized the priorities and funding level of the nation's anti-drug strategy.

Gramm will be joined by Hereford Police Chief Don Brush, Deaf

Smith County Sheriff Joe Brown, DPS Lt. Charles Henderson, and other law enforcement and civic officials.

Sen. Gramm will provide officials with details on the national Drug Control Strategy recently announced by President Bush. Gramm will highlight congressional proposals on the anti-drug plan, and will describe how regional drug task forces will benefit under the proposals.

"For too long law enforcement officials have had to fight a big battle with a small stick," Gramm said. "The federal government is finally wading in and giving local officials a bigger stick."

"There was a time when you moved to a place like Hereford to avoid the drug problem. The sad reality is that the drug problem exists everywhere. There is literally a drug thug at the door of every high school in America."

Groups don't like wiring pacts

AUSTIN (AP) - Telephone companies are wringing money out of customers through service contracts for work that is rarely, if ever, needed, according to consumer advocates.

And if homes or businesses ever have inside wiring problems, Texas consumer representatives say an independent repairman would charge less to fix it than telephone companies do.

But telephone companies counter that the inside-wiring contracts can forestall large repair bills. The contracts cost about $1 to $2 a month, compared to the $60 and up that a telephone company may charge for a repair job.

How often do most customers obtain any benefit from the wiring insurance policies sold by their phone companies?

"On average, inside wiring only requires service every 20 years, and you're not required to utilize Southwestern Bell to work on those wires," said John Hildreth, director of the southwestern regional office of Consumers Union.

"There are other businesses available to do that work who charge far less than what Southwestern Bell quotes you when they're trying to sell you that service," he said. For example, one Austin company providing repair service charges $45.

Tom Smith, director of the Texas office of Public Citizen, echoed Hildreth.

"When was the last time you had something go wrong with your wiring?" Smith asked. "The chances of having a service call that you have to pay for is relatively remote. And it (the contract) also hooks you into having repairs done at their rate."

Fixing your phone

If you are a Southwestern Bell customer in Hereford and you have a problem with the wiring leading to your telephone, you can pay $1 a month for InLine. That can prevent you from paying a charge of $30 for the first 15 minutes and $15 for each 15 minutes thereafter. If the problem is your phone, you're on your own.

Inside wiring repair became the telephone customer's problem after the breakup of the AT&T system. Service contracts for inside wiring were among the many telephone company services deregulated by the federal government.

"Virtually all local telephone companies have some type of service maintenance plan they make available for a monthly fee," said Public Utility Commission spokesman Bill Dunn.

Southwestern Bell, which serves about 5 million Texas customers, offers inside wiring service contracts for $1 or $2 a month for homes. The higher fee covers the use of a "loaner" telephone.

"It sure is a convenience knowing you will not have to have a large outlay, and if there is a breakdown, you get it fixed promptly. We feel it's comparable to other organizations that have warranties," said Jim Goodwin, Southwestern Bell's area manager for public relations.

Southwestern Bell charges $30 for a service call and the first 15 minutes of work. Every additional 15 minutes costs $15, and repairing an outlet can take 45 minutes to an hour.

GTE Southwest Inc., which has about 1 million customers in Texas, charges $1.25 a month for its contract, said John Wallace, director of communications. A customer with an inside wiring problem and without a service contract could pay $73 for a GTE repair visit, new wiring and a new jack, he said.

"You can see that that could be a pretty good one-time charge for someone that might be on somewhat of a limited monthly budget," he said. "It simply affords them some protection."

Like Southwestern Bell, GTE will not reveal information about the number of people with wiring contracts. Wallace cited concerns about competition.

"I can tell you it's been an almost overwhelming response, and we're real pleased with how it's going," Goodwin said.

But consumer advocates aren't buying. Smith, Hildreth and C. Kingsbery Otmers of the Office of Public Utility Counsel said they don't have the service.

"I certainly wouldn't purchase it for myself," said Ms. Otmers, who represents residential utility customers before the PUC. "I don't see any value to it."

When the courts relieved phone companies of the responsibility for making repairs to inside wiring, many stores began selling the equipment required for phone users to make their own repairs.

Cop College

You can't smoke on campus, but you can carry a weapon

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - John Salamy, a 22-year-old aspiring FBI agent, was a bit disconcerted when he looked down during an exam and saw a .38-caliber revolver strapped to the ankle of the student next to him.

On this campus, you may smoke only in designated areas. You may carry your gun anywhere.

The John Jay College of Criminal Justice, part of the City University of New York (CUNY) system, is indeed an unusual institution of higher learning.

It is a liberal arts college where you cannot major in English, history or philosophy, but you can major in forensic psychology, criminology or deviant behavior and social control.

A science lab is equipped to do DNA testing, the ultimate in identification. Kojak is now filming in the environs. A vintage firetruck, enclosed in glass, is the major artwork of one building.

"It's the only school where you might have an ex-convict, a recovering alcoholic, an FBI man and a cop all taking notes in the same class," says Dr. Charles Bahn, a psychology professor.

"In fact, we used to joke back when it was nearly all cops, 'How do you grade a class where everybody is armed?' We told them we gave credit for time served and were open to plea bargaining."

John Jay is one of only a few colleges of criminal justice, including the universities of Chicago, Nebraska at Omaha, Wisconsin, Louisville, Baltimore and East Tennessee State.

Soon to celebrate its 25th anniversary, John Jay is still called the "cop school," but it has expanded its horizons since it was housed in the Police Academy and all the students were New York's finest.

In the ensuing years, the college moved to several different locations in Manhattan, but up until the 1970s about 70 percent of its students were police officers.

Now housed in two buildings near Lincoln Center, and just south of a housing project, the student body is predominantly civilian, with only a quarter of them cops or others in uniformed services.

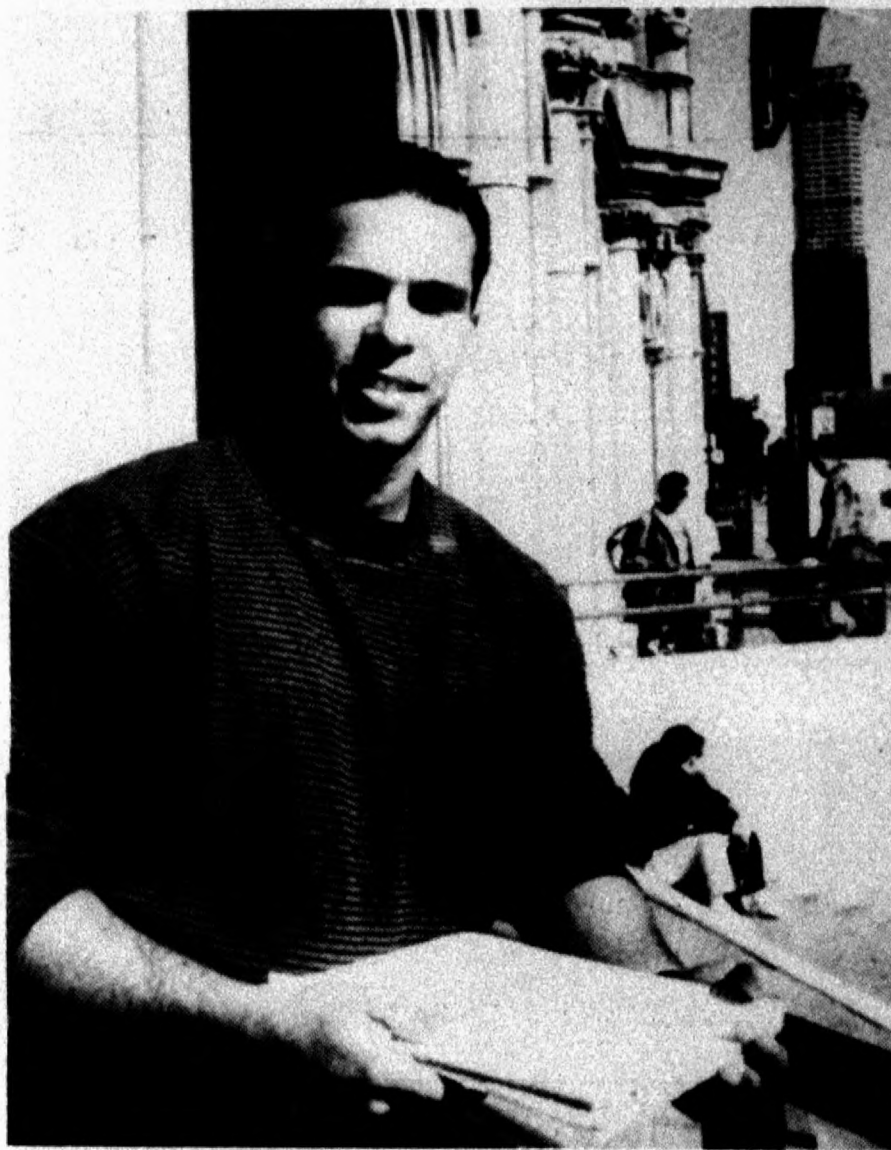

Still, the coffee shop-deli down the street would not make the day of an armed robber. There is a lot of firepower beyond those pastrami and corned beef sandwiches.

There are more than 8,000 students, most of them pursuing associate and bachelor's degrees. In addition, 550 are working for their masters and 103 their doctorate.

John Jay, named after the first U.S. Chief Justice, has a special mission within the CUNY system, the largest urban university in the country with 19 schools and 194,000 students. Says Jay's president, Gerald Lynch:

"We hope John Jay will help professionalize the criminal justice system, teach people in law enforcement that life is ambiguous, that life is made up of grays, that it will give them more compassion."

"We don't teach fingerprinting here. We have a library, which I insisted be the first thing people see when they enter the new building. We have a 625-seat theater.

Cop by day, student by night
David Rivera is a full-time policeman, but attends John Jay College of Criminal Justice at night.

"The students learn things here they will use outside of their professional life, things to enrich their personal life."

Students often complain about the liberal arts courses, since many have already decided on a career. Salamy, for example, wants to become either an FBI man or a DEA agent.

Despite the similarity of interest, there is great diversity.

"Students here want to be anything from probation officers to judges to senators," says Julia Bryant, a school spokeswoman. "There are 19-year-olds who want to be on '21 Jump Street' and older cops who want to be commissioner."

There are also indications that some of the police students are preparing for a second career. Security management is an increasingly popular major.

"Maybe the biggest thrill of going to John Jay is knowing you are going to have a job when you get out," says Dr. Lawrence Koblinksky, who is a recognized DNA-fingerprinting expert.

Graduates are heavily recruited by would-be employers, including law enforcement agencies. The Rochester, N.Y., Police Department set up a recruitment table early this semester.

The school's alumni include two dozen to three dozen police chiefs across the country.

The Criminal Justice Center housed at Jay is sort of an advanced cop school, but students don't take formal courses. It offers workshops and seminars on such things as hostage negotiation, stakeout and surveillance techniques, confidential informants, clandestine drug labs, bomb awareness. The classroom is often the street.

These specials, usually given for law enforcement agencies but occasionally for private industry, are not open for public inspection. They don't want to give away secrets of the sluthing trade.

"The mutts don't know these things," said one of the 35 New York City housing cops who attended a five-day workshop on narcotics investigation.

The workshop was conducted by Lt. Frank Bunting, division chief of a drug enforcement task force that includes federal, state and city agents.

Bunting presented the latest technology and offered advice growing out of his own experience. In discussing surveillance he talked of "ghosts" and "uncles" and other undercover operatives.

The students role-play a drug bust, and sometimes they make mistakes. In one, the major suspect simply strolls out of the room, while the "arresting officers" question the lesser crooks.

Bunting poses another scenario: "All right," he says. "It's 102 degrees out, you're in the South Bronx and you've got 300 people around you now. What are you charging this guy with?"

A Hispanic woman cop, getting into the spirit, jumps up and confronts her classmate.

"What are you doing? That's my brother. He didn't do nothing."

The laughter drowns out Bunting. Bunting once gave a lecture to a group of mystery book writers and was deluged with offers to co-author a book.

Dr. Alan Goldstein, a psychology professor, says he was once teaching a class about schizophrenics and their usual non-violent nature.

A cop-student asked: "Would you like me to show the class the two bullet holes I have in my

Charity raffles on Nov. 4 ballot

AUSTIN (AP) - Gambling issues on a statewide ballot usually draw fire-and-brimstone opposition, but not so with a proposal to authorize non-profit organizations to conduct raffles for charity.

It's a matter of priorities, say some groups that oppose gambling. "While it is offensive, it's the least offensive," said Sue Cox, executive director of the Dallas-based Texans Who Care.

Proposition 15 on the Nov. 7 constitutional amendments ballot would, according to its supporters, recognize the fact that hundreds of legitimate, non-profit groups - such as religious societies and volunteer fire departments - hold raffles for charity.

Under current law, charity raffles violate state gambling prohibitions and can be prosecuted as a third-degree felony, which carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison.

Although local prosecutors have been reluctant to interfere with such raffles, a highly publicized raffle by an Austin theater group some years back drew a lot of criticism and the attention of the district attorney, though no one was prosecuted in that case.

State Rep. Terral Smith, R-Austin, said his wife, who was active in the theater, persuaded him it was time to make it all legal.

"We're talking about the Junior League, PTA fund-raisers, my own Rotary Club," Smith said.

His proposed constitutional amendment failed in the 1985 and 1987 legislatures, with the opposition arguing that legal raffles would lead to big-time gambling.

But with anti-gambling forces concentrating in recent years on such high-profile issues as a state lottery and pari-mutuel betting on horse and dog racing, the raffle proposal cleared the Legislature in 1989. The measure takes effect if Proposition 15 passes.

A provision was added that would require all profits from the raffle to go to the charitable group and require the charities to operate the raffles themselves, not through contractors.

"Terral presented it as the most important legislation the free world had ever seen," Ms. Cox quipped.

She said her anti-gambling organization would not mount a campaign against it.

Weston Ware, associate director of the Christian Life Commission, also in Dallas, said, "We are opposed, but we have other concerns that are more significant. And we have neither the funds nor manpower to rise to every occasion."

"Our feeling is it's a mistake," Ware said. "The state would be increasing gambling, and it's unwise public policy decision under any guise. Whether it's a lottery, sports book or charity raffle ticket, it's a form of scam and should not be promoted as good public policy."

On the ballot, Proposition 15 reads:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to permit and regulate raffles conducted by certain non-profit organizations for charitable purposes."

Three arrested on cocaine charges

Three persons, including one from Hereford, have been arrested on organized crime charges for conspiring to distribute cocaine, according to Deaf Smith County District Attorney Roland Saul.

Tommy Deas, 41, of Hereford was arrested on a warrant at his residence about 3 a.m. Friday by Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputies and Hereford Police Department officers.

Ronny Shoppa, 25, of Amarillo was arrested Thursday at Lubbock International Airport with one kilogram of cocaine in his possession by Department of Public Safety narcotics agents.

Sherry Kay Hall, age unknown, of Amarillo, was arrested shortly before 1 p.m. Friday in Amarillo.

Bond for the three has not been set, Saul said, adding that a motion to deny bond for Deas had been filed because he was free on bond for a prior offense at the time of his arrest.

Saul said the case was initiated by investigators from the District Attorney's office.

Clarification on Hallmark goods

Just in case there is any misunderstanding, Caryn's Hallmark Shop in Hereford is not closing.

A story in Friday's Brand concerning a giant garage sale to raise funds for the Senior Citizens Center reported that "goods from a Hallmark store that is closing" were to be sold Friday and Saturday.

An official with Senior Citizens noted the center should have reported that the goods came from an "out-of-state" Hallmark store that is closing. The Brand joins the Senior Citizens Center in apologizing to Caryn's Hallmark for any misunderstanding the article may have caused.

ARKANSASITIZED

Caroline, are astute, risk-averse caretakers of wealth."

Maybe so, but they'll never corner the world silver market.

Actually, being rich and being from Arkansas doesn't always spell success. Dallas zillionaire Bob Dedman, a native of Rison, Ark., has given $25 million to Southern Methodist University. And the Mustang football team still can't win.

But it's not enough that those feisty Razorbacks captured the Southwest Conference football championship last year. They also won conference titles in basketball, cross country, indoor track and outdoor track and shared championship trophies in tennis and baseball.

All this despite the narrow Texas edge in the number of SWC schools. Texas has eight. Arkansas has one.

Back in the Top 10 and undefeated, the Razorbacks seemed hell-bent on vacationing once again in our Cotton Bowl on come next New Year's Day.

Well, Texans may be seeing red, but they're not dead. Yet.

It was Texas 24, Arkansas 20 last weekend, and it happened in the Hills of Fayetteville, no less. And on the 20th anniversary of The Great Shootout, also won by the Longhorns.

Ken Hatfield, the Arkansas coach, can still chuckle a bit. He has installed former Razorback underlings in head coaching jobs at Rice and Texas-El Paso.

And those Razorback invaders are not above heaping insult onto injury. A man named Bill Elkins Jr. showed up at the State Fair of Texas the other day with a funny looking loaf of bread tucked under his arm.

Uh-huh. You guessed it. "The blue-ribbon best white yeast bread in Texas was baked by a man in Texarkana, Ark.," as a writer from the Texarkana Gazette so indelicately reported.

Still, such embarrassments pale beside owner Jerry Jones' overthrow and purge of those erstwhile heroes, the Dallas Cowboys, once known from coast to shining coast as America's Team.

Ha! Within days, citizens in the Arkansas state capital staked crimson claim to the silver and blue-helmeted heroes, dubbing them Little Rock's Team and the Arkansas Cowboys.

One T-shirt depicted a snorting red hog leaping out of the Cowboy helmet's silver star.

Lock up your daughters, Texas! Overnight, Tom Landry became the only ex-coach the Cowboys ever had, and in his place was owner Jerry's old Razorback roomie, Jimmy Johnson, whose concretely coiffured hairstyle is almost as famous as Landry's hat.

Coach Jimmy's hairdo could deflect bullets, which may be fortuitous if the Cowboys keep losing. They're 0-7 and counting.

In the midst of that dismal streak, a sports writer asked owner Jerry about his Texas reception. He got no comment.

Oh! Jerry may already have gone a mite too far, messin' with the Cowboys Cheerleaders like he did, then trying to make amends by calling them the "pick of the litter."

Now that's an Arkansas endearment if there ever was one.

What next? Prancing Piglets? Piggly Wigglets?

Hey, this is serious stuff.

Just the other day, a Dallas Life magazine writer named Waltrina Stovall warned football party hostesses in Texas to "root hog or die." Said she:

"Yes, such Texas beef standbys as brisket and chili just aren't appropriate now that Jerry Jones and Jimmy Johnson are running Arkansas' Team."

The roast suckling pig, she insists, is the entre of choice.

Roast suckling pig? You gotta be kidding. You take the chili, you take the soul. Try telling Cajuns that gumbo's a goner or convincing Bostonians that clam chowder's on the skids.

No doubt alarmed by this whole brassy business, a Dallas Morning News scribe named Mike Freeman slipped into the Ozarks recently for a first-hand look at the red phenomenon. Terrifying, it was.

His report included this observation:

"Woven throughout Little Rock's new-found excitement is a sense of triumph over Dallas. Arkansans say there always has been a sense of competitiveness with their big brother state next door."

The article enhanced this notion by quoting another son of the Ozarks, Frank Broyles, the University of Arkansas athletic director. Speaking at a benefit dinner for Jones in Little Rock this summer, Broyles declared:

"We Arkansans are living high on the hog. Don't we live to take over Texas?"

Is there no limit to this Razorback mentality?

Before a Texas-Arkansas football game once, recalls Houston columnist Mickey Herskowitz, a sign appeared on the lawn of a church in Fayetteville, home of the Hogs. It said:

"Football is only a game. Eternal things are spiritual. Nevertheless, Beat Texas!"

Heaven help us all.

buttocks from one of those non-violent schizophrenics?"

Goldstein says that is one of the great strengths of John Jay.

"We all learn to be tolerant and we learn from each other."

Meanwhile, back in the ivory tower part of the school, freshmen are wrestling with an English literature survey course, basic mathematics, speech, government 101, much like students at any college. Half of their credits must be in traditional liberal arts courses, but even those have a criminal justice flavor.

"Sometimes, we wish their interests were broader," says Dr. Dorothy Bracey, head of the anthropology department and an expert on international policing, particularly the criminal justice system in China. "But, in another way, it makes it easier to teach here. In theory, all students have some interest in criminal justice."

Forty percent of Jay's students come from families that earn under $12,000 a year. They are older than most college students and most of them work. About 80 percent receive some sort of financial aid.

The undergraduates are 36 percent black, 32 percent white, 28 percent Hispanic. Almost half are women.

Due to finances, about a fourth graduate in four years. With work and aid, almost three-fourths stick out 10 to 14 semesters to graduate.

Still, about 500 students get their baccalaureates each year.

The staff includes Olga Ford, a retired New York City detective. She has worked as technical adviser for TV shows. There was a reported contract out on her when she helped bring down drug kingpin Nicky Barnes.

As head of the internship program and knowing the reality of policing, she advises students: Don't take internships with private industry security men who are armed, never ride in a radio car, never visit a parolee, never walk with a cop to and from the precinct.

There's Dr. Ansley Hamid, an anthropology professor who specializes in crack-related violence and street gangs and maintains that crack is not as instantly addictive as it is being portrayed.

"The dealers are controlled users, or sometimes abstinent, and I recently met an 80-year-old grandmother, who has no previous history of alcohol or drug abuse, who is a controlled user," Hamid says.

"Crack just came on us so fast, there was no time for a body of experiential users to teach others. Now people are coming up with strategies for recreational use of crack. They might mix a little with some marijuana, for instance."

"The real danger is the destruction of families and crack does the footwork. The marijuana dealer lasted a long time. Eventually he bought a small bakery or maybe a boutique in the neighborhood. With crack, the money doesn't stay here.

Over at the Criminal Justice Center, there is William McCarthy, retired New York City detective. With the code name "Mother," he was once the undercover owner of two houses of prostitution. As head of the bomb squad when he retired, he was known as "Billy Bombs."

Now working on his doctorate, McCarthy says, "If it weren't for John Jay, I would never have gotten my bachelor's and master's degrees. Back then, it was the only place a cop could go."

In the next office sits William Loudon, also working on his doctorate. Loudon was the NYPD's chief hostage negotiator.

Psychology professor Bahns likes to tell about the FBI man in a public service administration course. The professor lectured that changes in top leadership should occur at least every 10 years. Loyal to long-tenured J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI man challenged that. So the professor assigned him to write a paper justifying his point of view.

Working at his office, the FBI man did some research on the pros and cons of Hoover's long stewardship, pitching the carbons into the waste basket where another agent found them. The FBI-author agent was greeted the next morning by two FBI agents who announced he was under investigation.

He explained to the department that this was not a plot. It was homework.

An angry Hoover was on the telephone immediately to John Jay.

"What are you going to do about that professor who is trying to undermine me?"

"I'll tell him you called," was the reply of a school that will not suffer intimidation.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says reputation is character minus what you've been caught doing.

Parents can tell but never teach until they practice what they preach.

Education: Learning what you didn't even know you didn't know.

Sometimes we don't stop and think about it, but Hereford is hustling! The recent chamber newsletter notes that construction is moving ahead rapidly on the new Hereford Professional Building to be located at 343 N. Miles, former location of Hereford Medical Clinic. The completely renovated structure will house McGinty & Associates and several other offices to be announced soon.

Thirty-two new housing units, known as Countryside Estates, are under construction on Ranger Street just east of Hereford Senior Citizens Center. Designed for senior citizens, the entire area around the complex will provide full security and access to the Senior Citizens Center, reports the C of C newsletter.

Remodeling is also underway at 331 Main Street in downtown Hereford where the new Gaston's Department Store will be located, reports the chamber. It also notes that the Post Office is adding a special handicap entrance on the south side of the building, and that two feed yards—Circle 3 Feeders and Bar G Feeders have added to their capacity.

The Christmas Stocking Fund will start its annual campaign soon and a few volunteers are needed to work on the anonymous committee which administers the program. Anyone interested in working with the committee can contact Speedy Nieman at The Brand office or Betty Henson at the Red Cross office. Either will pass word along to the CSF committee.

How about those Hereford Whitefaces? The bull was snorting and the Herd stampeded over Randall here Friday night to put the icing on the Homecoming cake.

There's little resemblance between the Whiteface team that opened the season and the one that dominated Randall Friday night. The offensive line has made tremendous strides and the defense keeps getting better, as indicated by the two shutouts in a row.

My hat is off to Coach Don Cumpton, his aides and the entire Whiteface team. The season is not over and there are still some tough games to play but it appears that, once again, Cumpton has the team peaking for the playoffs.

Editorial opinion from around Texas

Border Drug Situation Demands Action Now

Though he's certainly not trying to sow panic, Texas' U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen thinks the situation along the Texas-Mexico border is ample cause for alarm - certainly sufficient to justify action by drug czar William Bennett declaring the region a high-intensity drug trafficking area.

Bentsen said last week, "Mexico has become a virtual trampoline for drug smuggling into the United States." He urged action upon Bennett, who has indicated he will defer any decision until February.

That, however, just won't get the job done, in the senator's view: "A delay in the drug war in Texas does not square with the explosive growth in drug smuggling along the Texas border."

Bentsen would appear to have the better of the argument. As the senator pointed out, "They're not talking about kilograms any more - they're talking about tons."

The situation in South Texas is rapidly assuming the proportions of an emergency. Further delay in funneling federal assistance here would just give the traffickers that much more time to solidify their position. ... It's time for Bennett to move off dead center.

Lottery No Way To Support Schools

The state's public education system should not be supported by a state lottery. The Legislature would do the state a disservice by tying its public education budget to the tail of a kite that once airborne often flies erratically.

What the state must do is set in place a permanent, solid system of public school finance. A lottery should not be part of any funding plan. The reasons should be obvious. Lotteries are an unstable form of revenue, their revenues fluctuate often and they require a lengthy period to become operational. ...

-Austin American-Statesman, Oct. 19

Limits On Congressional Terms A Good Idea

Texas Rep. Bill Hammond came up with a good idea the other day - improve the quality of government by limiting congressional terms.

Hammond, a Dallas Republican, filed a resolution asking the Legislature to call for a constitutional amendment barring U.S. House members and senators from serving more than 12 years. He wants it considered during the special session that begins Nov. 14.

On the one hand, it could be argued that the voters of each congressional district should be allowed to pick their own representative without arbitrary interference from the outside.

But, on the other hand, the 22nd Amendment already prohibits the president from serving more than two terms. This is to keep one man from accumulating too much power. Some members of Congress also can become too powerful over a period of time. ...

Given the public's undue fear of a constitutional convention, and Congress' understandable reluctance to limit its members' tenure, this amendment probably will never reach fruition. Nevertheless, a limit on tenure has merit.

-Amarillo News-Globe, Oct. 22

Another Law Open To Abuse

Once again, the Legislature has perpetrated a law that is broadly and loosely written. ...

Earlier this year, legislators repealed a badly written law that allowed police authorities to withhold the names and addresses of crime victims from the public. ...

Early (Oct. 16), Express-News police reporter Jeff Davis was arrested by San Antonio police for doing his job: covering a shooting. Davis was jailed (for) photographing a woman who had been shot at another location. It was not even the scene of the crime.

Davis was arrested under a law that quietly took effect Sept. 1. He was charged with interfering with the duties of a public servant. The law makes it illegal for someone to "intentionally, knowingly, recklessly or with criminal negligence" interfere with or disrupt police, firefighters or paramedics at a scene.

This is so broad that an innocent passerby could be arrested. Sponsors of the law are state Rep. Jack Harris, R-Pearland, and state Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria. Both said there was no intent to hinder news-gathering. ...

This is selective enforcement of a vague law from which nobody gains. The public loses two ways: by paying taxes for a waste of time and money and through loss of information. ...

Voice of Business

By Dr. Richard L. Leshner, President

U.S. Chamber of Commerce
WASHINGTON -- Election campaigns sometimes get tiresome, but never as tiresome as complaints about the role of political action committees (PACs) in campaigns.

Some critics contend money has become too important in our political system. Others take that charge a step further contending PACs are using their financial resources to subvert the political process.

All of which is so much nonsense. In the last election cycle, we spent $457.7 million on House and Senate races. By what standard can that amount be judged exorbitant? I suggest a country with an annual gross national product of more than $4 trillion can afford to spend less than one-half of one billion every other year to elect its government.

Likewise, the criticism of political action committees is unwarranted. The fundamental strength of our system of government is citizen participation in the process, and PACs are nothing more than groups of citizens banding together to promote chosen causes within that system. They voluntarily pool their time and money to elect candidates who share their political agendas-agendas as diverse as the American people themselves. PACs represent the entire political spectrum in our country--unions, business, environmentalists, liberals, conservatives, you name it. And if, as some critics contend, the PACs are "special interests," the same can be said of every individual voter who goes to the polls to vote his or her personal interest.

The critics would do well to remember that today's political system is the result of yesterday's reforms, prior to the advent of PACs, a handful of anonymous donors could manipulate the system behind the scenes. Today, thanks to limitations on contributions and full disclosure of who contributes what, political support is broadly-based and a matter of public record.

Indeed, if there is a weakness in the PAC system, it is the failure of some PACs to establish clear guidelines. PACs should decide which candidates warrant their support based upon shared philosophy and fidelity to ideals, not incumbency or threats.

There is probably no such thing as a perfect political system, but the one we have in place now has proven most effective in promoting citizen education and participation. All things considered, the influence of PACs on our political system has been most positive and beneficial.

TRAFFIC TRENDS

A recent report showed many states had an increase in traffic fatalities after the speed limit was raised to 65 on rural interstates. The report did point out that some states had a large increase while some had no increase at all.

Vermont had an increase of 800%. That is not surprising, those folks aren't used to speed. No one in Vermont has ever driven over 35 mph. If a car got up to 55 it could not stop within the state.

The one state I know had no increase is California. I spent a month there a couple of weeks ago. That on week took at least a month off of my life. During the week, I drove on or over every freeway in Los Angeles. Those things should be named free-for-alls instead of freeways.

I was driving my brother, the lawyer's, Toyota pickup. I would start up an access road and scream, "Scratch gravel, White Wind." It is scratch or die. It is absolutely necessary to be at take-off-speed when the time comes to merge.

Those folks are in a hurry. It does not matter what the speed limit happens to be, the rule is you keep up with the traffic or die. There are old drivers and there are slow drivers but in California there are no old, slow drivers.

I was driving sixty-five in a fifty five mile speed zone and three motorcycle policemen passed me. If you stay close to the sound barrier no one notices. It costs a few lives but they have too many anyhow, and besides the smog is going to kill you if you live to exit the freeway.

Los Angeles gets a lot of flack about its freeways but they are the safest place in America to drive. They have already killed off all of the bad drivers. The survival of the fittest has worked. The ones that are left know how to merge.

What Texas needs is to import a bunch of California drivers for about a month. We could use a good weeding, and they know how. If there is to be a weeding, how about starting with that slow one I was behind this afternoon.

An AP news analysis

Flag-burning: A peculiar political issue

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Maybe, as one senator said, there were just too many lawyers wrapped up in the flag debate. It certainly had more to do with legal and political points than with flag-burning episodes.

By the end of the week, burning the American flag will be a federal crime again, after four unopposed months that passed without a noteworthy episode of desecration.

The flag bill is due to become law on Saturday without President Bush's signature, withheld because he insisted that the Constitution should be amended to declare that Congress and the states can ban desecration of the flag. The Senate rejected the amendment last Thursday. The vote was 51 to 48, 15 short of the two-thirds required to approve a constitutional amendment. Eighteen Democrats voted for the amendment; 11 Republicans broke with Bush to vote against it.

Advocates of the amendment argued that it was vital because the Supreme Court overturned an earlier flag-burning law as an infringement of the right to free speech. Sponsors of the bill said it would stand up in court because, unlike the overturned Texas law, it doesn't mention motives, simply banning the act of burning, mutilating or trampling the American flag, with penalties of a fine up to $1,000 or up to a year in jail.

The bill calls for an expedited Supreme Court review, so the final exam probably won't be long in coming. "There will be a race to test the decision, there will be a race among the flag-burners to put this statute to the test," said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., who believes the court will uphold the new law.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, the confessed lawyer who complained about all the lawyer talk, thinks the whole issue will be back in Congress because the court will overturn the statute.

So ends, or at least pauses, a peculiar political debate, rooted in the campaign of 1988 and revived on June 21, when the Supreme Court held that even an act of dissent so offensive as burning the flag is protected by the Constitution.

Uproar. Both houses of Congress adopted resolutions challenging the decisions. A band of House members staged an all-night speechmaking session denouncing the decision and defending the flag. And Bush urged that the Constitution be amended to undo the decision.

At that point, a flag protection amendment almost certainly would have passed Congress. But legislative wheels turn slowly. House and Senate committees held hearings on flag protection, listening to more than 100 witnesses. Congress spent more than 51 hours debating the issue. Bush, according to his spokesman, "put in an enormous amount of time" trying to gain support for the amendment he sought.

Bush displayed the flag issue daily during his campaign against Gov. Michael Dukakis, criticizing the Democratic presidential candidate for his veto of a 1977 bill to require that Massachusetts school-teachers lead pupils in the Pledge of Allegiance. Dukakis said he had been advised it was unconstitutional; Bush said he would have found a way to sign it.

Democratic congressional leaders opposed a flag-burning amendment to the Constitution, but they weren't turning the issue over to Bush this time. They backed resolutions and bills giving their side an opportunity to vote the flag. During weeks of hearings and periodic installments of floor debate, they argued that there ought to be a law against flag-burning. The House passed one 317 to 43, and the Senate approved it 91 to 9.

That provided a political alternative to the proposed amendment. While no politician could afford to be against protecting the flag, the question became how to do it. And both sides know that if the court overturns the law, there will be new and probably irresistible pressure to amend the Constitution.

Bush was stuck. He couldn't block the bill he didn't want, especially in view of what he'd said about the Dukakis veto. So the pressure went down and with it, the political risks of voting against the amendment. Voter concern had subsided. So did the concern of senators that a vote against the amendment might be made a damaging issue in the next election.

In the Senate roll call, 13 senators who will be up for re-election next year voted against the amendment, 18 for it.

Dole insisted that "the people who sent us here" wanted the Constitution amended, and said the Senate should have been listening to them instead of to legalistic arguments. "We have too many lawyers in the Senate, too many lawyers who think they're on a high school debate team," the Kansas senator said. Dole said he's a lawyer, too, but doesn't talk about it very loudly.

While Dole said he doubted the opponents would be boasting to their constituents, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said he'd tell his that "we have saved the flag and we also preserved the Constitution."

But the best summation may have been that of Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Nebr.:

"America's political leaders have spent far too much time and have wasted far too much political capital on a subject which in the end will make very little difference to the future of our country."

LOTS AND LOTS OF WATER

NEW YORK (AP) - The Atlantic Ocean, bounded by North and South America on the west and Europe and Africa on the east, covers 31,530,000 square miles.

It is the world's second largest body of water, about half the size of the Pacific Ocean.

The average depth of the Atlantic is about 14,000 feet. Its deepest area, north of Puerto Rico, is Milwaukee Deep which lies 27,498 feet below the surface.

SANDERS

languages.

"The way I learned the language... I talked to people," Sanders recalls.

He had a little help from television, too. Sesame Street teaches children and newly-arrived foreigners who need a rudimentary understanding of English. Despite a background in science, philosophy and theology, Sanders wasn't above taking a few lessons from Big Bird.

Sanders came to America from Europe while his brother was teaching at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. Just a few months after arriving in Lubbock, Sanders obtained his G.E.D. and registered as a student at South Plains College at Levelland. For a year and a half Sanders was a student at Levelland, also taking classes at Tech, until the longing to return to Europe became too strong. He left his studies behind during a European excursion which lasted several weeks.

While Sanders was away, his brother moved to Connecticut to accept a teaching position at Yale. With his brother gone from Lubbock, Sanders resumed his studies at West Texas State University in Canyon instead of at Texas Tech. Sanders graduated from WT during the past year with a degree in bio-chemistry.

Sanders took a job with C. Ramirez & Sons while he was still at student at WT. He was hired by the food manufacturing company to work in quality control.

"When I came here, they didn't even have a laboratory. I had to build a laboratory," Sanders said.

The lab he built was of such quality that Ramirez & Sons is now offering food testing services for other manufacturers. Taco Bell is one of the largest firms for which Ramirez & Sons provides quality control testing. Sanders remembers fondly the accomplishment of obtaining the Taco Bell account.

"I was very proud of myself," Sanders said.

While working in quality control,

Sanders focused his ample energy and intelligence on the task before him. His accomplishments include the development of a new method of testing for the fat content in food substances. This method was so innovative and effective that the Association of American Chemists published an article written by Sanders about the development.

Sanders' employment by Ramirez & Sons as a bio-chemist led to a whole new interest for the young immigrant.

"From that, I became fascinated with the food industry," Sanders said.

Sanders has done well in his career with Ramirez & Sons as he has does in every endeavor he undertakes. This is evident in everything from his art work to the soccer which he once played professionally in Europe. The young man is obviously a driven individual.

"I think it comes from my artistic background. I can't sleep if I don't finish something," he said.

This dedication has not gone unnoticed at Ramirez & Sons. Last year, Sanders was promoted from quality control to management where he now serves as operations coordinator. With his education complete and his position secure with Ramirez & Sons, Sanders is currently in the process of moving from Amarillo to Hereford.

"I love the town," Sanders said of his new home. He is especially appreciative of the local residents who "work with their hands."

"They know what pain is and know what success means," Sanders said.

Sanders is discreetly non-committal in his reaction to the local landscape.

"Generally, it's so flat and dry," he said.

During his travels, Sanders has viewed a wide variety of landscapes and has gained an intellectual taste for an equally varied range of philosophies.

"I'm very scientific, but I believe in God, of course," Sanders said.

Sanders "grew up on books," as he says, in a family which encouraged learning. Even with his extensive literary background, Sanders is well aware of the lessons to be learned from everyday life.

"Nothing teaches you how to really analyze people better than people themselves," he said.

James Witherspoon Adds Security and Strength to First National

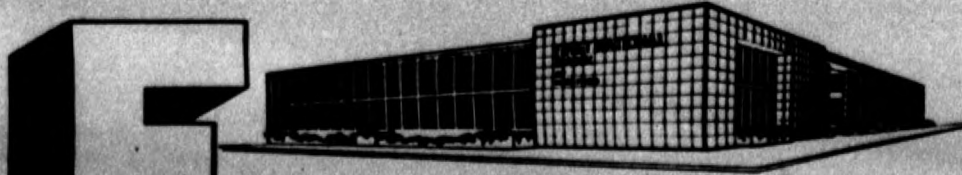

In the recent past, we have been talking a lot about financial security and hometown pride. But we felt it important that we make it very clear; these are not new things at First National Bank. This spirit has been passed on for many years. And for the past 55 years, James W. Witherspoon has protected and nurtured that spirit of security and pride. As the longest serving member of our board, Mr. Witherspoon has shared his legal knowledge and his love for Hereford with the First.

Witherspoon is currently the Executive Secretary and Legal Council for the Texas Sugar Beet Growers, and he serves the Cowgirl Hall of Fame Board and Hereford Outreach. His past involvement and givings to this community are far too many to mention, although he proudly remembers each with no less interest today.

The old cliché states that Rome wasn't built in a day? Nor was anything that was built to last. Board members like Jim Witherspoon have stayed with First National Bank through good times and tough ones to ensure that our maturing and growth always resulted in...

YOUR EYES

GLASSES TO HELP YOU READ

Reading glasses are generally indicated for two types of eye defects. One is moderate or high amounts of hyperopia, or farsightedness, which can occur at any age. This condition causes blurred vision at near, squinting when reading, avoidance of close work, and headaches or tired eyes after reading, sewing or even doing a jigsaw puzzle. Children as young as five or six have been diagnosed as having excessive amounts of farsightedness and may require glasses for reading.

If you are about forty or older, and have to hold your newspaper out at arm's length to see the print clearly, your eyes are probably losing their ability to focus at near points. They are also gradually losing their ability to adjust focus as you shift your gaze from distance to near. This common condition -- presbyopia -- happens to nearly all of us and requires glasses to make reading comfortable and clear.

A thorough eye examination will determine if you need reading glasses and the prescription which is best for you.

Split Level Plan Offers Two Full Baths - or - One Compartment Bath

THRIFTY PLAN FOR LIMITED LOT WIDTH

© By W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

A front porch, complete with wood rail and columns, leads to a large living room that is separated from the dining room by a cased opening. However, kitchen access is also shown from the living room, near the garage and upper level stairs. The U-shape kitchen provides plenty of work area, cabinets and built-in appliances. The large breakfast-dining room features glass sliding doors to the rear terrace.

The upper level is shown with three large bedrooms and either a compartment bath (two commodes, two lavatories and one tub) or two full compartment baths, both with a tub. A laundry chute is indicated for sending dirty clothes to the lower level which encompasses the double garage and laundry area.

The country exterior style is enhanced by shuttered windows, vertical siding and wood rail porch.

The plan is Number 190 SL A. It includes 1,197 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures

Q. - We just purchased a very old house which has wooden shingles on the roof. We bought it with the understanding that the shingles were badly in need of repairs and would have to be replaced. We would like to use asphalt shingles, but have been told they cannot be placed over wooden shingles. Is this so, and would not the cost of removing the old shingles send the price of the reroofing to the sky?

A. - Asphalt shingles can be installed directly over wooden shingles, but only if the old shingles are in fairly good shape and if there is not another layer of shingles under the present covering. Your roofer is the only one who can determine what the situation is in your case, since the condition of the framework plays a part in the decision on how the job should be handled. It is difficult to see how repairing the shingles will be easier than removing them. Also, when asphalt shingles are installed over wooden shingles, certain kinds of extra work must be done, such as placing feathering strips under the butts. In many cases, removing the old shingles may be a lot easier than roofing over them.

Q. - We have our roof covered with asphalt shingles. There are two layers of the same kind of shingles there already, but our local roofer says the roof deck is strong and will support a third layer. Should I believe him, even though I have read that only two layers of shingles are safe?

A. - If he is a licensed roofer, he should know whether the deck will support a third layer. However, just to be certain, check your local rules on construction. Some communities will not permit the use of a third layer of shingles.

("A Homeowners Guide to Quality Roofing," including an asphalt shingle color guide, can be

Troubleshooting tips for kitchen range save time

By READER'S DIGEST
For AP Newsfeatures
An out-of-commission kitchen range is an enormous inconvenience.

Fortunately, some range problems have surprisingly simple fixes, eliminating the need for a professional and putting your kitchen quickly back on line. Here are some troubleshooting tips:

Electric or Gas Oven
OVEN WON'T OPERATE
- It may be set to come on automatically at a specific time. Reset the automatic-manual control to "Manual."

- On an electric range, check for a blown fuse or tripped circuit breaker. On a gas range, check the pilot light.

BAKED OR ROASTED FOOD IS BURNED
- The temperature control may be set too high or too low. Recheck the recipe.

- An oversized utensil may be letting the food dry out and burn. Use a dish that the food fills most of the way. Using brighter colored utensils may also help prevent burning.

- The oven thermostat may need recalibrating. To test it, place an accurate, mercury oven thermometer in the center of the oven, set the oven for 350 degrees and run it for 20 minutes. To recalibrate, pull off the temperature control knob and either adjust the disc on the knob's underside or turn the screw in the knob's shaft. See your owner's manual.

- Clear any obstruction from the oven exhaust vent. It's usually located at the rear of a gas range's cooktop or under a surface element on an electric range.

BAKED OR ROASTED FOOD UNDERCOOKED
- Too many dishes may be blocking air circulation; space them at least 1 inch apart.

- Make sure the temperature setting was correct, and test the oven thermostat's accuracy as described above.

OVEN SWEATS
- Try preheating the oven before using it.

- Check for a blocked exhaust vent.

- Replace a worn or cracked door gasket with an identical part from an appliance repair store. Many gaskets just hook on and are easily changed. On others, the oven liner must be loosened - work best done by a professional, especially on a self-cleaning range.

Electric Range
CAUTION: Before working on an electric range, turn off the power at the fuse box or circuit breaker panel.

ALL COOKTOP ELEMENTS DO NOT GO ON
- Check for a blown fuse or tripped circuit breaker.

ONE ELEMENT DOES NOT GO ON

- Lift out the cooktop element and try it in another same-size receptacle. If the element won't work there, replace it with an identical part.

- If the element works, check the receptacle with a flashlight. If the interior is blackened and corroded, have a professional replace it.

Gas Stoves
CAUTION: If you smell a strong gas odor, immediately turn off any flames, open the windows and doors, and get everyone out of the house. Turn off your home's main gas shutoff valve. Report the leak from a neighbor's phone.

NONE OF THE BURNERS WILL LIGHT
- There is no gas supply. Call your gas company.

BURNER WON'T LIGHT
- The pilot light may be out. Relight it and stop any drafts that may have blown it out.

- The electric spark igniter may need cleaning. See your owner's manual. Unplug the range's power cord before working on it.

- If burner will light with a match, the ignition holes around the edge of the burner may be clogged. Lift out the burner and wash it in hot, sudsy water and ammonia. Clear the holes with a straightened paper clip.

BURNER FLAME IS UNEVEN
- The burner's ignition holes are clogged. Clear them as described above.

BURNER FLAME IS YELLOW OR HIGH AND HISSING

- Adjust the air-gas mixture on the burner's air shutter, following your owner's manual. A high, hissing flame indicates too much air; yellowness indicates too little. A properly adjusted natural gas flame should have a blue cone with a light blue tip.

The password phrase for handling a common household problem - a stuck window - is "be gentle."

If you aren't gentle in unsticking the window, you will wind up with another common household problem: what to do about the ugly mars around the window sash and moulding where you finally got the window to move again?

Gauges in that area are the usual result of getting the window loose the wrong way. The wrong way is by using the blade of a screwdriver instead of a wide-bladed putty knife.

The screwdriver blade is usually too thick and too narrow for the prying action. You should use the wide-bladed putty knife or a special serrated tool made especially for the purpose. Even then, the prying must be done carefully - in other words, gently.

The usual reason for a stuck window is a paint seal, which needs only to be broken to get things in order again. Examine around the sash - with a flashlight, if necessary - and see if you can see where the seal exists.

Sometimes the window will move after the broken-seal treatment is used on a single side, sometimes you will have to do it on two, three or four sides. If the cause is a warped stop moulding, the same treatment will put things in order.

In both cases, you need some post-solution action. If paint caused the problem, sand lightly and lubricate. If warping was the culprit, straighten out the moulding or use a new strip. But if high humidity conditions brought about the warpage, the same thing will occur again at a later time unless the condition is fixed.

For instance, it doesn't do much good to remove the mildew, since it will return soon.

As in all do-it-yourself repair problems, you sometimes will face an obstacle that can't be hurdled easily.

Suppose breaking the paint seal does not work - or suppose there is no paint seal, yet the sash remains stuck - what do you do?

Get a wooden block of some kind and tap it alongside the grooves of the sash. Do it very carefully to avoid breaking the pane or anything else.

In an especially stubborn case, you may have to work on the window from the outside, again using the wide-bladed putty knife technique. Insert the knife blade between the bottom of the sash and the top of the sill and, if necessary, wherever sticking persists.

When none of your efforts bears fruit, you may have to take the somewhat drastic action of removing the sash from the frame. This is a bit sticky if you haven't done it previously, so get some advice from a knowledgeable neighbor or the local hardware dealer.

Better yet, get one of the handyman publications that give detailed instructions on how this is done and how to determine if the sash cords need replacement.

If so, consider the possibility of replacing them with more modern spring lift sashes or balances. Most of them are a lot easier to install than the old-fashioned sash cord. They come with complete instructions.

One of the possible annoyances with double-hung windows (those which slide up and down in parallel tracks) is that, when they become very old, the latch fails to hold. This is because the hook on the upper sash is no longer in alignment with the lock.

All that needs to be done is to unscrew the hook and reset it so that it locks properly. The holes that have been left in the sash can be filled with wood putty or plastic wood.

When you keep a window open and cannot use the latch, creating a security risk, try buying the little gadgets that keep the window open part way but prevent it from being opened any farther. This provides air without a loss of security. They are easy to attach.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much helpful data on a variety of subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $3 to this paper at P.O. Box 1055, Brick, N.J. 08723.)

Celebrities like fantasy furnishings

By CONNOISSEUR

Bruce Newman, who runs the world's largest antiques store, specializes in "fantasy furniture" that draws clients including Jacqueline Onassis, Jane Fonda and Dan Aykroyd.

The fantasy pieces, according to an article in the current issue of Connoisseur, include vitrines adorned with starfish and sea horses, antler-mounted Bavarian standishes, carved polychromed peacock chairs, a cradle in the shape of a swan, Black Forest bear lamps, a giant "grotto" mollusk love seat and cork furniture that looks as if it had some terrible skin disease.

Newman is the animating force behind Newel Art Galleries, and this month he will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the store his father founded by turning the National Academy of Design in New York into a seven-room fantasy showcase.

The five-story Newel Art Galleries in New York contains what Newman estimated as "several hundred thousand" pieces.

Though most of his stock is of decorator quality, about 10 percent is what he calls fantasy.

"I used to call it 'quality camp,'" Newman said. "But if I call it 'fantasy furniture,' I can charge more money for it."

Newman is heavily stocked with current decorator mainstays - Biedermeier, art deco, art nouveau, Charles X, bentwood and bamboo. Now he is buying pearl-inlaid papier-mache furniture and 18th and 19th century Russian furniture. He trusts the decorators who make up 60 to 70 percent of his sales will follow suit.

"If you're looking for something, he's got it," said designer Mario Buatta.

Another top decorator, Mark Hampton, said, "I think Bruce inspires all of us to think in areas we haven't."

Newman is known for driving a hard bargain, but his client list includes Lee Radziwill, Jackie Onassis, the Donald Trump clan, Bill Blass, Lamar Hunt, and Prince Saud.

Suffragist Lucy Stone was born in 1818 in West Brookfield, Mass.

Details help any house

It is the details, the small things, that turn a house into a home.

That's the view of New York City architects Peter Shelton and Lee Mindel who, according to an article in the current issue of House Beautiful, see a house as a whole and not a series of rooms. It is the accumulated details that make the difference.

"You shouldn't go into a house and experience just one thing - a great ceiling, a great sofa or a great facade," Mindel said. "We believe in an integrated environment."

Shelton, 43, and Mindel, 37, have developed some signature themes - a judicious use of luxurious materials, a painstaking and rewarding passion for detail and the surprise of subtle visual tricks.

"With us, one thing leads to another," Shelton said. "You want a new light switch? To do that, we have to take down the walls. But the walls will leave a mark on the floor, so we will have to change the floor."

Mindel agreed, adding: "The idea of cutting off the design process at a certain point seems foreign to us. An environment is always the sum of its parts, including lighting, furniture and decorative objects."

The Italian liner Andrea Doria sank July 25, 1956, after it collided with the Swedish ship Stockholm south of Nantucket Island off the New England coast. The two ships carried a total of more than 16,000 passengers but only 51 lives were lost.

France's King Henri IV, a Protestant, converted to Roman Catholicism in 1593.

To open up a space, Shelton, Mindel may frame the view of another room with an interior window. They may add light and interest by designing floors with glass-brick areas.

A Shelton, Mindel rug with dark squares might mirror their design of a coffered ceiling above. Or, a parquet floor in a dining room will echo the wood inlay of the table.

The pair custom-design furnishings for specific projects and they have created their own line of clean-lined architectural furniture, as well as rugs and upholstered pieces.

Architecture, however, remains their first love.

"Our clients run the gamut from 20-year-olds to 70-year-olds who are interested in exciting design," Mindel said.

Like other good architects, they keep foremost in mind the needs of the people who live in a house. Asked how much a client influences the design of a project, Mindel said:

"Entirely, but it is our best fantasy of them. When we are designing a space for someone, it's as if we were making a movie about him, and we cast the best possible actor in the role."

The architects like to bring the outdoors inside, maximizing natural light. A family living in a Colonial house in Short Hills, N.J., asked for a second, more casual living room. They also wanted a tower to give them a view of nearby cliffs.

The architects built a two-story tower with an airy tree house feel. The space has three prominent windows to bring in light from all sides. Seen from the outside, the windows become architectural "picture frames," offering views of the interior.

The proposed site of another house meant the front would receive southern light while the back would be dark.

To bring light to the whole house, Shelton, Mindel made generous use of glass walls, with a steel-framed skylit corridor running the length of the house. For privacy they build freestanding redwood walls a few feet away from the house itself.

"Here," Mindel told Elaine Louie in House Beautiful, "the structure really is the ornament."

Papier mache Halloween masks easy for kids to make

Given the success of last summer's blockbuster hit, Batman, it's likely that the Joker, the caped crusader's arch-rival, will encourage the revival of clownfaces for Halloween.

To avoid the high price tag of store-bought costumes, why not help children make their own masks? Papier mache masks (more lightweight and breathable than their rubber and plastic counterparts) from the Elmer's Glue people, are easy to make and fun to wear.

Start with a blown-up balloon, plenty of old newspapers and a 50-50 mixture of Elmer's Glue and water.

Use wet, unglued strips of newspaper to cover the first layer of balloon. Then, dip strips in glue mixture, pulling each strip between fingers to squeeze out excess and wrap four or more layers around balloon. Apply one layer cross-wise on balloon, the next up and down, and so on. Alternate newspaper and colored comics, to help see which layer you're on.

When thoroughly dry, split into two sections (front and back) and remove balloon. Cut small openings in each mask for eyes and mouth.

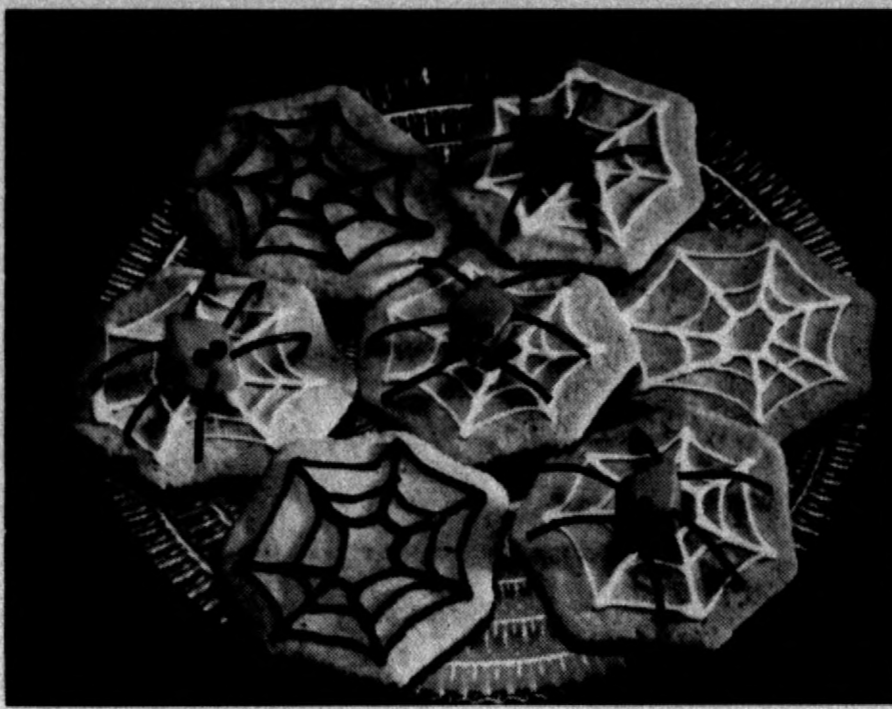

Paint whole surface with glue tinted pink, yellow or green with food coloring. Let dry and paint or add on features.

Try using small pieces of paper dipped in glue-water mixture, squeeze out and mold into heavy lips, a pointed nose or heavy eyebrows. For a comic clown, use a plastic red ball for a nose, a paper cup for a hat and yarn for hair. Paint on a broad red grin and attach big, round ears.

Easy to make masks

Halloween is a great time to encourage creativity. Children will enjoy assembling and wearing papier mache masks such as the ones pictured above. All you need is a blown-up balloon, some old newspapers and glue.

Here's some healthy Halloween teeth tips

Halloween...it's almost impossible to keep children from overindulging in candy and other sweet "treats" during this time of the year.

According to a 1988 survey by the candy industry, 80 percent of all American households gave candy to "Trick or Treaters" last year.

And children are risking more than an upset stomach from these sweet "treats"-excess sweets without proper oral care can lead to cavities and tooth decay.

Allowing a child to eat small amounts of candy over several days is unhealthy for teeth because teeth will be constantly coated with sugar. This can be even more damaging to children's teeth than allowing them to eat it all at once.

But parents can keep their children's teeth healthy on Halloween and long after by helping their children follow these simple oral health tips.

Halloween treats should be eaten after regular meals and children should brush their teeth afterward. (Remember, children need supervision while brushing until age seven or eight.)

Always use a fluoride toothpaste that is accepted by the American Dental Association (ADA).

Toothpastes specially designed to appeal to children make a parent's job of getting children to brush much easier.

Young children tend to swallow toothpaste when they brush their teeth. Use a pea-sized amount of toothpaste-preferably one that contains less foaming action on the toothbrush to avoid this common problem.

There isn't much of a "trick" to flossing, but smaller children have difficulty. For Halloweeners over the age of eight, make sure flossing is a daily habit.

Fluoride rinses can help prevent tooth decay. Use a rinse which bears the ADA's seal of approval. Fluoride rinses are not recommended for children under six years of age.

Children should visit the dentist no later than the age of two or three. The dentist and hygienist will check for cavities or development problems and provide information on preventing children's oral health problems.

Halloween fun with spooky spider cookies

With their long licorice legs, gum-drop spiders creep across webs of frosting spun atop pumpkin cookies for a Halloween treat that's home-baked and wholesome.

Scary Spider Cookies are anything but frightening. Before the kids turn themselves into ghoulish ghosts and goblins, they will have just as much fun in the kitchen making the candy spiders and spinning the frosting webs as they do trick or treating.

The cookie recipe won't spook the cook either. The spiced dough is made several hours ahead of rolling and baking. While the dough is firming up in the refrigerator and the kids are devising their candy long-legs, you can relax.

The frosting is so easy, the kids can make that, too. For less of a mess, let them weave their webs by piping the frosting out of a small-tipped plastic squeeze bottle or a heavy duty plastic bag with one bottom corner cut off.

It's a treat to know that pumpkin not only adds a golden glow to these whimsically eerie cookies, but it is a good source of vitamin A as well.

For a nutritious Halloween snack, offer trick or treaters glasses of milk to go along with the cookies and their not-so-spooky spiders.

SCARY SPIDER COOKIES

Makes about 2 dozen cookies

Herd comes home in style, 38-0

By SAM W. WALLER
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces wasted little time Friday in letting the Randall Raiders know who was boss, scoring on the second play of the game on the way to a 38-0 homecoming win before an overflow crowd at Whiteface Stadium.

The Herd, which upped its record to 5-2 overall and 4-1 in District 1-4A, rolled up 363 total yards and scored on five of seven possessions in the first half while limiting the Raiders, now 4-3 and 2-3, to just 81 yards and one first down in the opening 24 minutes.

Herd coach Don Cumpston said he never expected the win that gave the defense its second straight shutout to come as easily as it did.

"I saw (Randall) play twice in person," he said, "and both times I saw them play they were a very, very good football team against Estacado and against Frenship.

"To say I thought the score could be like that, no. But you have to give our team a lot of credit because they prepared themselves mentally and physically and did the things you have to do to win a game like that."

The Whiteface defense deployed into a five-back set from the start in an attempt to shut down Randall's passing game.

"Going in, we had a lot of respect for their throwing game," Herd coach Don Cumpston said of the strategy. "Mainly their receivers, No. 83 (Paul Griffin), 21 (Clint Stewart) and 89 (Chad Stewart).

"They had thrown the ball for 200-and-something yards against Estacado and well over a hundred against Dumas. We felt like with (Chris) Roberts at fullback (instead of tailback) ... that the strength of their team was passing."

The plan worked as Raider quarterback Robbie Burd was limited to just 14 yards on two completions in nine attempts in the first half.

"But," Cumpston added, "to be able to do that, you're basically playing the run with six people up front, and those kids stopped the run excellently, too.

They hurt us on a couple of draw plays, and that was it.

"At this point in the season," Cumpston continued, "you've seen just about everything they're going to do and you try to take away their best stuff and make them beat you left-handed."

The front of the Hereford defense managed to hold Randall's ground game in check while the secondary shot down the aerial attack, allowing Roberts and Vivens a combined 131 rushing yards in the game.

Randall coach Stocky Lamberson admitted that the nickel defense forced changes in his game plan.

"We wound up running more than we had intended to," Lamberson said. "That was a problem because their front seven are so good. Their down people are so good and so strong that that was hard for us to deal with."

Lamberson added that while the Herd defensive plan was a factor, execution played a major role in the Raiders' downfall.

"We didn't find the receivers and when we did, we overthrew them," he said. "(Hereford) did a good job preparing there. They have good players back there (in the secondary) and they did a good job. The coaches did a great job getting them ready and the different coverage bothered us and we couldn't hit anything."

"And, of course, they kept the pressure on us up front and hurried us. We couldn't make anything consistently."

Hereford started the game with a bang on a 'Starburst' return of the opening kickoff. Russell Backus fielded Randall's only kickoff of the night at the Herd 10-yard line and handed off to Chris Stewart, who sped 37 yards down the right sideline to put the Whitefaces in business.

Tailback Matt Bromlow, who carried 15 times for 112 yards, took one run for no gain before ripping off a 53-yard score. Eddie Cantu's kick gave the Herd a 7-0 lead with just 50 seconds gone off the clock.

The teams exchanged punts before Hereford struck again. A 16-yard pass from Jason Walterscheid to Backus, who had only one other catch in the game, and an 18-yard run by Bromlow set the Herd up at the Randall 2, from where Walterscheid strolled into the end zone on a bootleg around right end.

Hereford's defense allowed the Raiders only three plays and a punt for the third time in a row to set the offense up at its own 40.

A mishandled toss on first down set the Herd back six yards, but on third-and-11, Bromlow fired a strike to tight end Jonathan Haney on the option pass for a 25-yard pick up.

A penalty and two short gains left Hereford with third-and-nine at Randall's 35. Walterscheid kept on an option, making a 360-degree spin to get out of a tackle, and somehow managed to regain his balance and outrace everyone to the end zone on his second, and final, carry of the game.

The Raiders finally gained a first down at the start of the second quarter when Roberts broke loose on a 37-yard run down to the Herd 23. Randall inched its way to the 19, but on fourth-and-six, Vivens made only three yards to turn the ball over on downs.

Lamberson said at that point, the Raiders were out the game.

"That was it," he said. "We were not fired up to play anyway and they stop us there and our momentum was gone. We didn't put out much effort."

"The first half, there really wasn't any effort to start with and they're such a good football team that they got rolling and we couldn't regroup."

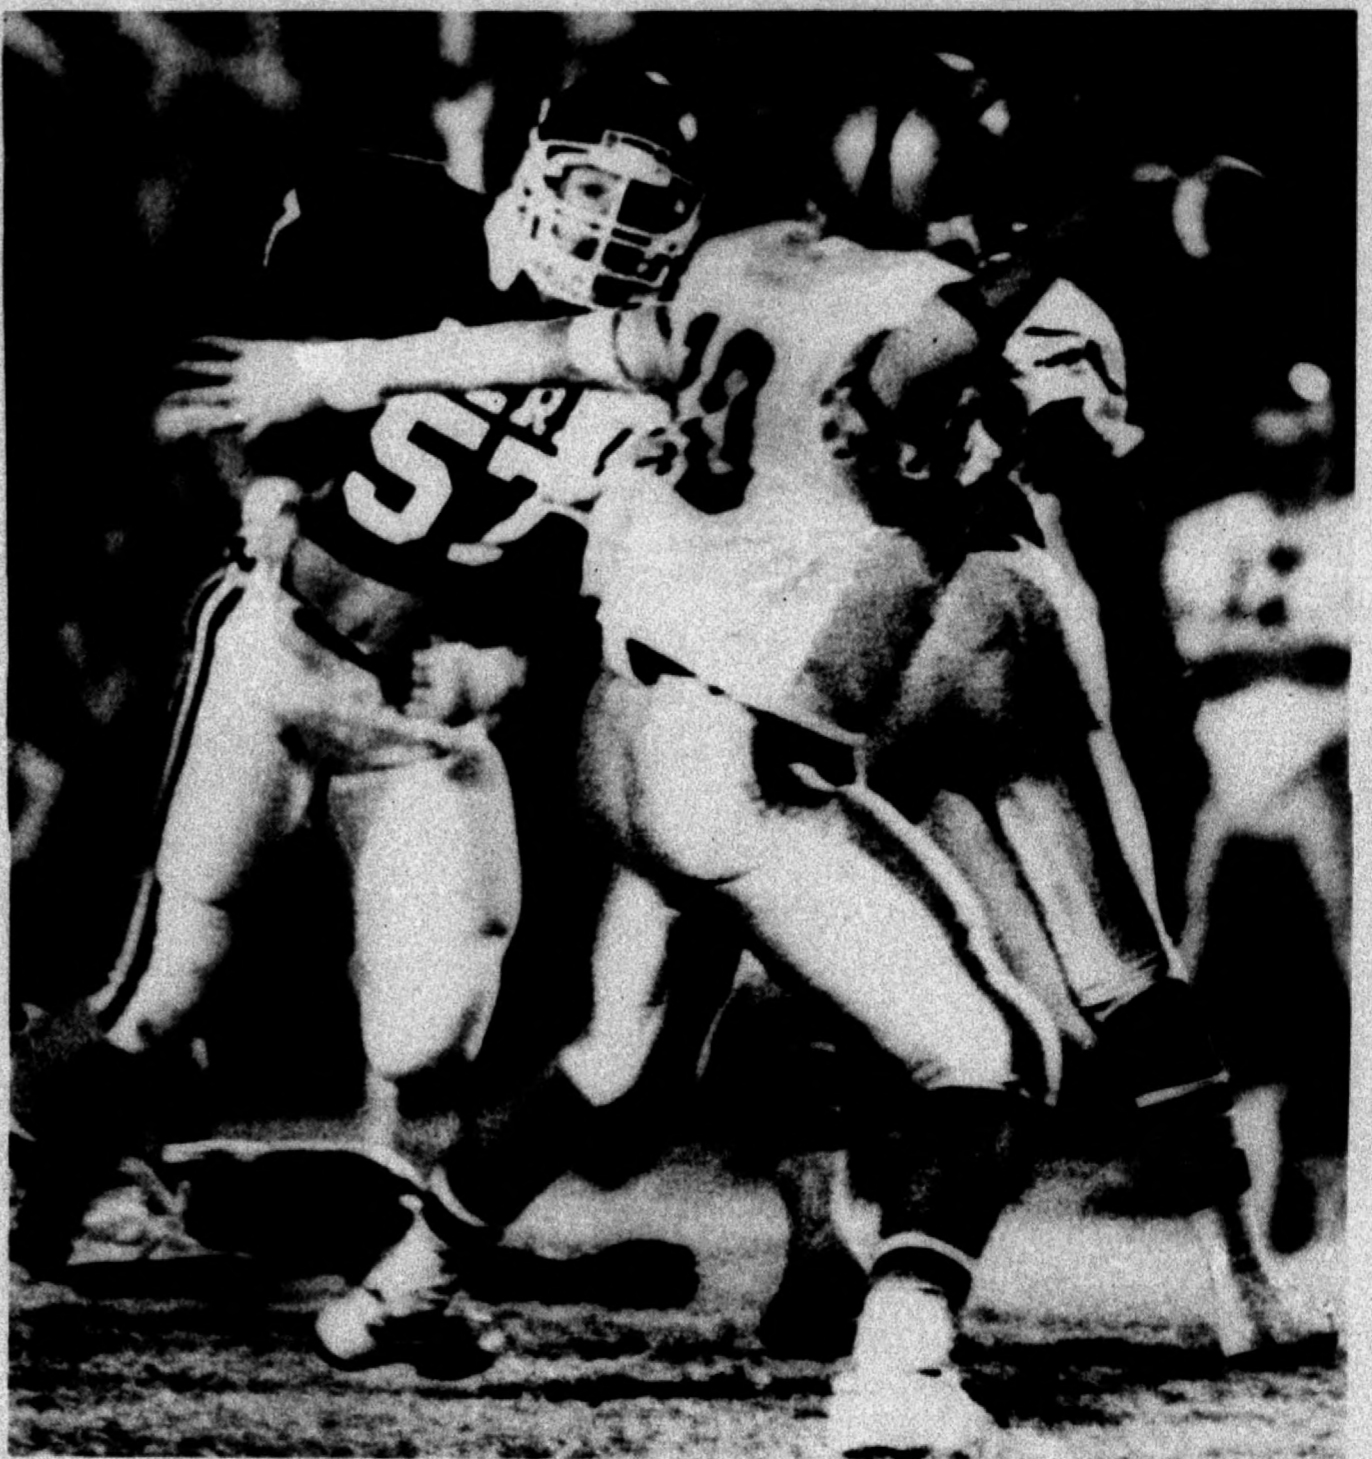

The Herd made no ground on the first two plays after the stand, but Walterscheid found Backus with what turned into a 42-yard pass.

"The (defensive back) just stopped for some reason - why, I don't know," Walterscheid said of the play. "Russell was wide open and I hit him."

Walterscheid connected with Haney for nine yards on the next play to set up fullback Greg Urbanczyk's 33-yard touchdown rumble up the middle.

Cumpston said he had intended to keep the ball on the ground in order to

Herd subs get to shine

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Tate Smith and T.J. Head didn't figure before the game that they would get quite as much playing time as they did Friday night in Hereford's 38-0 win over Randall at Whiteface Field.

"No way did I think I would," said Head, backup quarterback to Jason Walterscheid. "I'm glad that I did get to play some. I think I did okay while I was in there."

One of his best plays was as holder on Eddie Cantu's field goal early in the third quarter. The snap came in a little over Head's head, but T.J. pulled it down, got it on the tee and Cantu kicked a 33-yard field goal that could have been good from 53. It made it a 38-0 game.

Tate Smith knew he'd get some playing time Friday, but thought most of it would be on defense.

Not only did Smith play defense but he got to play tailback for most of the last three quarters.

On his first play, he broke for 44 yards and a touchdown.

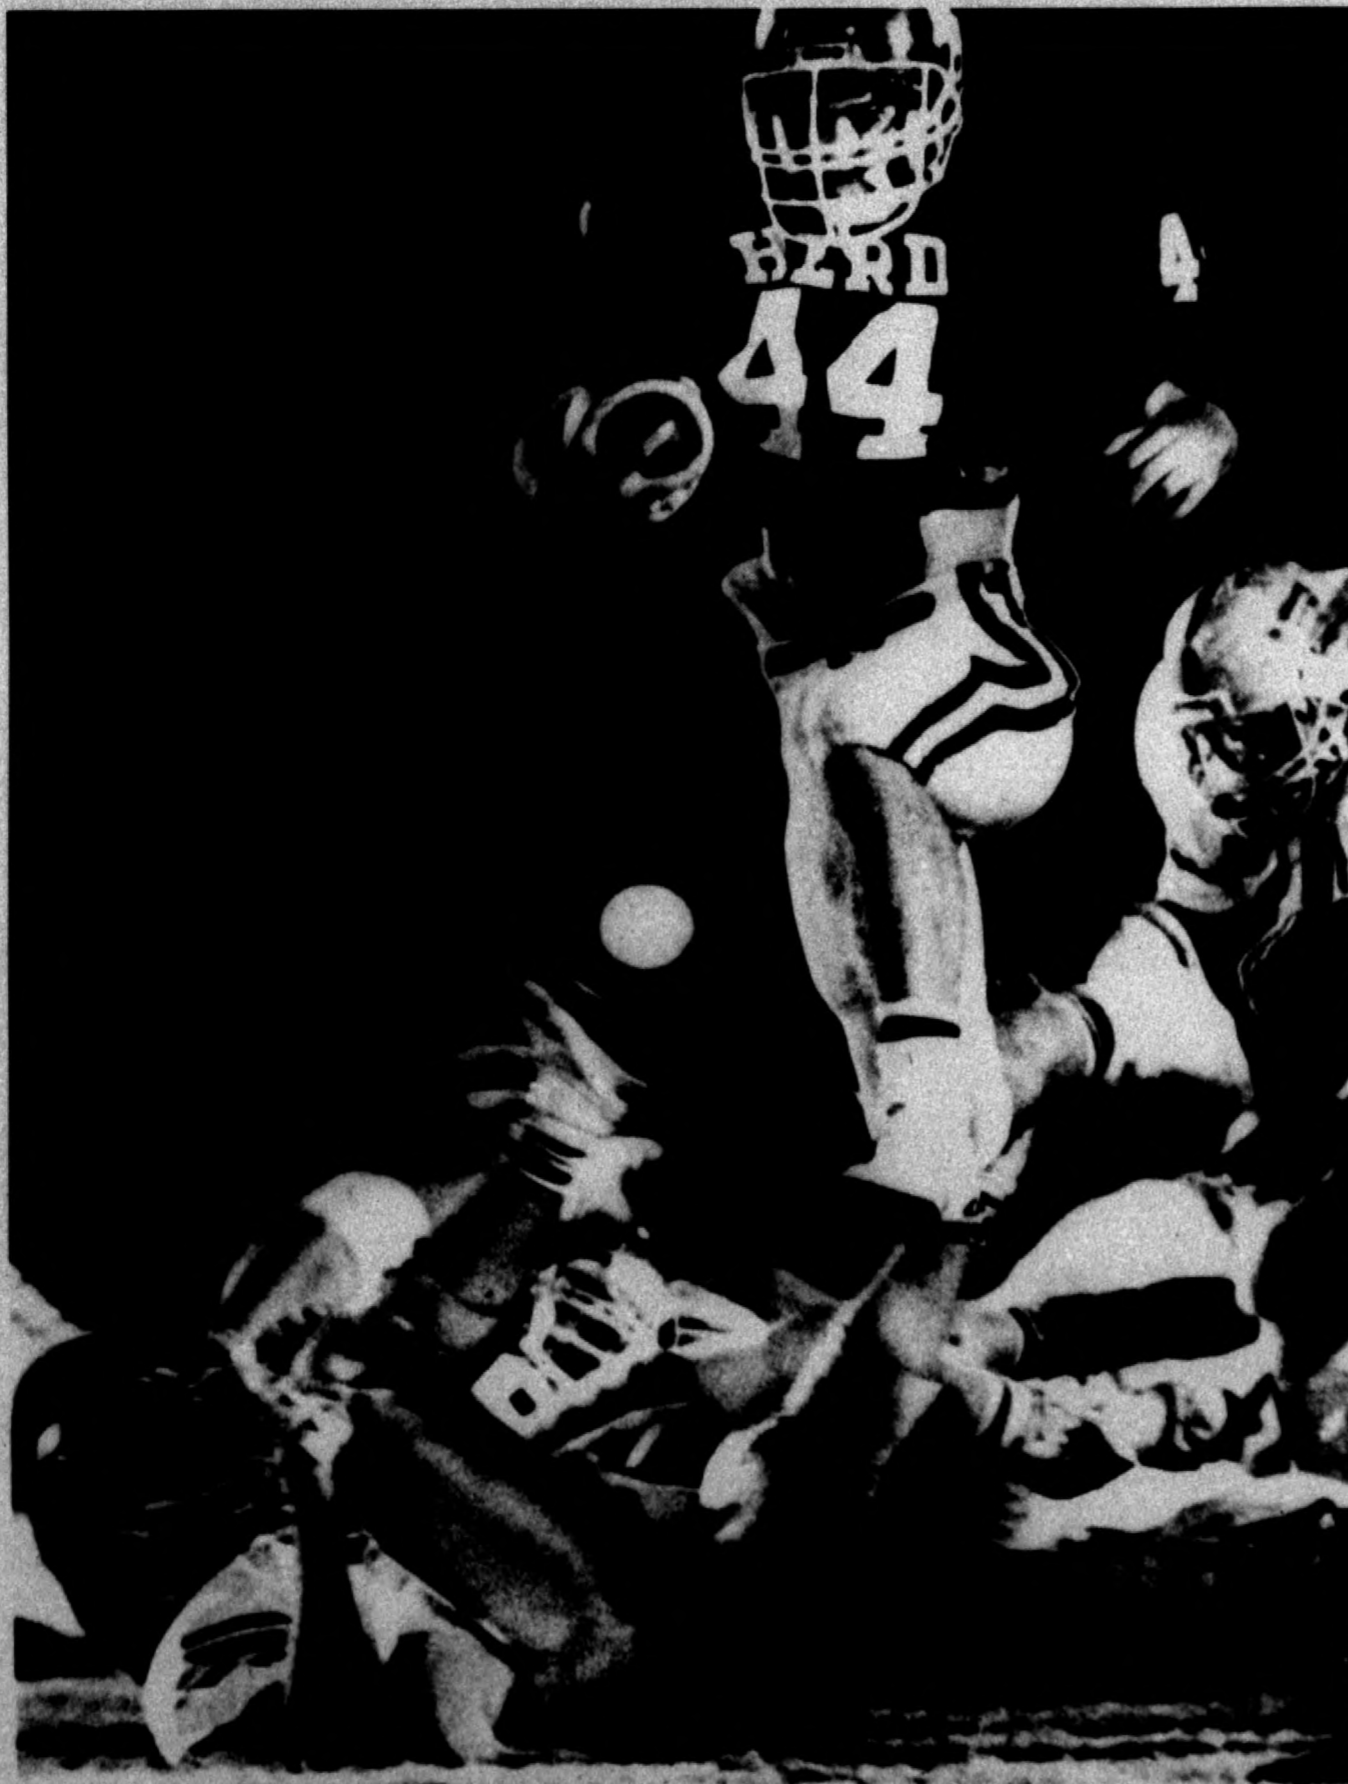

"It was 24 toss," a simple pitch back to the tailback, Smith said. "The linemen had them cleared out and it was no problem. The linemen played a great game. They had them blocked out, and couple of their (Randall) guys were down on the ground."

The offensive linemen were perturbed because of a few unpleasanties hurled their way by some opponents who were using racial slurs.

The Herd's offensive line retaliated by using "secret code" to make its blocking calls at the line of scrimmage. The calls were made in Spanish.

Cody Page has spent some time in the past playing running back. This year, the junior is a full-time linebacker. When he intercepted a pass in the fourth quarter of Friday's game, he showed a few flashes of the old running back days.

"I was covering the curl, and all of a sudden the ball was right there," Page said. "I looked at it for a second there in my hands, then took off running." Page didn't score, but he ended Randall's last threat with the interception.

Terrell loses grip against Corsicana

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

Terrell used up 6:23 of the clock on a 13-play drive late in the game that Coach Jerry Crompton thought was about to produce the winning touchdown in a game against Corsicana.

Trailing 26-22 Friday night and heading into the final half-minute, Terrell - undefeated and ranked No. 10 among Texas' Class 4A teams - was inside the Corsicana 5 when running back David Darr lunged

As Darr extended the football in his left hand in an effort to penetrate the plane of the goal, the ball popped free.

Crompton screamed that the ball had already gotten over the goal first, for a touchdown, but officials began unlocking a massive pileup in the end zone.

Finally, referees ruled that Corsicana's Willie Kelly had

Netters reach regional semis

The Hereford Whiteface tennis team took a pair of 10-8 wins Friday in the first two rounds of the Region 1-4A team tennis tournament in Lubbock, edging Taylor in the first round and topping Burkburnett in the quarterfinals.

The wins advanced the Herd to the semifinals, where they were scheduled to meet second-seeded Big Spring at 8:30 a.m. at the Coronado High School Courts.

Big Spring, champion of District 4-4A, drew a first-round bye as a result of its seed and blanked Cleburne, 10-0, in the quarterfinals.

The other semifinal match will pit Waco Midway and San Angelo Lakeview. Midway, the top seed, drew through to the second round, where it beat Pampa, 10-8. Lakeview tied Brownwood, 9-9, in the first round but advanced by virtue of a 20-18 advantage in sets, then whipped Saginaw Boswell, 10-2, in the quarterfinals.

In other first-round matches, Burkburnett shutout Fort Worth Brewer, 10-0, while Boswell downed Cedar Hill.

A's crush SF, 13-7, in return of Series

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Baseball Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Home, away or even in Phoenix, the Oakland Athletics are pretty tough to beat.

Just ask the San Francisco Giants.

After an 11-day layoff because of the earthquake on Oct. 17, the A's beat the Giants 13-7 Friday to take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-7 World Series. No team has ever rallied from a 0-3 deficit since the Series started in 1903.

Oakland had the best regular-season record in the major leagues this season and brushed aside

Toronto in the AL playoffs in five games. The A's are one victory away from proving what most already know: that they're the best team in baseball.

The A's had plenty of heroes in Game 3.

Dave Stewart won his second game of the Series, Dave Henderson hit two homers and drove in four runs, and Jose Canseco broke out of his Series slump with a huge three-run homer.

But the real heroes of this Series are the people of the Bay Area - people who battled back from tragedy and helped others while doing it.

Before the game, rescue workers representing firefighters, the police department, military and construction workers threw out the ceremonial first pitch.

"Without people like that we could have had more deaths," Stewart said. "That's what makes America great."

What makes the A's great?

Try power, speed, pitching and a manager who seems to make all the right moves.

In Game 1, Tony La Russa started Walt Weiss over Mike Gallego, and Weiss hit a home run. In Game 2, La Russa predicts Terry Steinbach will hit a homer and he did just that.

After Commissioner Fay Vincent and San Francisco mayor Art Agnos announced last Monday that the Series would be delayed, the A's decided the next day to go to Phoenix because of bad weather in the Bay Area.

The A's played a game against their instructional team on Thursday, and Dave Henderson and Tony Phillips hit home runs.

Henderson and Phillips homered again Friday when it counted, as did Canseco and Carney Lansford.

The A's five home runs in the game tied the World Series record set by the New York Yankees against St. Louis in Game 4 of the 1928 Series. Three of the Yankees' homers were by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig hit another.

"I know in my heart that my ballclub was just as prepared as Tony's," Giants manager Roger Craig said. "My club just doesn't quit. We came back in the ninth inning."

Scott Garrelts, who has had little success in his two Series starts, allowed Dave Henderson's two-run double off the top of the right-field fence in the first inning.

of unbeaten teams in the same district - Bartlett, ranked third statewide, and Thorndale, ranked fifth statewide.

Thorndale won 25-24, handing Bartlett only its second loss in regular season since 1985 and only the second defeat overall for Bartlett over the past 21 games. Bartlett's only loss of 1988 was by the same score, 25-24, to Flatonia in the Class A quarterfinals.

In 5A, fifth-ranked Huntsville and sixth-ranked Longview both tumbled. Huntsville was a 14-9 victim of Spring Westfield, while Longview was routed 35-2 by Marshall.

In 4A, No. 4-ranked Bay City was ambushed by El Campo, 10-0, and in 3A, No. 2-ranked Denver City was upset by Lamesa, 30-21.

Only one ranked 2A team lost. Shiner, the No. 10 club, was edged by LaVernia, 17-14.

Bartlett was the only Class A team to lose, but No. 10 Rising Star was held to a 7-7 tie by Hico.

eat up the clock and keep the Raider offense off the field, but a defensive adjustment by Randall gave the Herd a wide-open middle to run through.

"With the eight-man front that they had shown, we were planning on a three-back set where we could have enough blockers for everybody," Cumpton explained. "But, during the course of the game, the ran a lot of seven-man front to try to hold down our passing, I guess. That allowed us to get our fullback plays going pretty good."

Urbanczyk, who finished the game with 97 yards on nine carries, said the blocking of the Herd offensive line combined with the unprotected middle made the run.

"The (linemen) would just get onto their man, lock on and go," he said. "And their defense wasn't as good as we thought they were. They had a pretty good noseguard, but once you got past him and the linebackers, I don't know where the secondary was."

The Herd defense held again after the score, and Randall punter Cory Musick shanked one into the wind for only 15 yards. Tate Smith took immediate advantage of Bromlow being sat down as he raced 44 yards up the middle on the next play. Cantu's fifth conversion of the night gave the Herd a 35-0 advantage with nearly five minutes remaining in the first half.

The Herd had an opportunity to make the lead even bigger just before halftime following another three-plays-and-punt possession by the Raiders. Cumpton began substituting and backup quarterback T.J. Head directed a drive that reached the Randall 21, but a one-yard loss by Stewart and back-to-back penalties had Hereford facing second-and-26. The Whitefaces regained most of the yardage, but fourth-and-13, Head was sacked from the blind side.

Cumpton re-inserted the starters for the first - and only - drive of the third quarter. The Herd ran more than six minutes off the clock in moving 44 yards, mostly on runs by Bromlow, Urbanczyk, Stewart and Smith, to the Raider 10. Walterscheid (four for five for 77 yards) hit Haney (three catches for 44 yards) with his last pass of the game for 10 yards to set up a 28-yard field goal attempt by Cantu.

An illegal procedure call moved Cantu back five yards, but the 33-yard kick went through for the final points of the night.

Randall responded with an eight-play drive, its longest of the night, before being forced to punt for the seventh time in the game at the start of the fourth quarter. The Herd defense had the Raiders in a hole when Mike Daniel sacked Burd for an eight-yard loss, but allowed 28 yards on the next two plays before stiffening near midfield.

The defense kept pressure on Burd all night, but Daniel's sack was the only one registered in the game.

Daniel said Burd's quick release prevented him from having to eat the ball much.

"They had big tackles, but they were slow," he said. "And that quarterback got rid of the ball so quick you really couldn't tackle him."

But the rest of the defensive line had to live with the frustration of an elusive quarterback.

"I was trying (to get a sack)," said defensive tackle Brian Wagner. "I swore I was going to have on before the end of the game. I think I had six hurries of the passer, but I never got a sack."

Cumpton emptied the bench for the remainder of the game as everyone in uniform saw action. The mass substitutions included the varsity debuts of quarterback Chris Blair and center Brady Wilson, who were promoted from the junior varsity because of injuries and illness at their positions and the JV's having two open dates in a row.

The latter stages of the contest also saw Wagner, who has been used as a blocking back in the Herd's full-house backfield, make his bow as a ball carrier. Wagner said the play was a moment he had been waiting for.

"I begged (the coaches) for two games to get to do that," he said, "and, finally, it paid off. My big yard - I'm happy."

While the offense was easing off the throttle, the defense kept the pressure on Randall as linebackers Jason Lueb and Cody Page picked off Burd passes late in the fourth quarter. Lueb was getting his first playing time on defense after missing three weeks with a shoulder injury and serving on special teams against Dunbar.

Refuge sets pheasant hunt

The U.S. Department of the Interior Fish and Wildlife Service has announced it will hold five days of ring-necked pheasant hunting at Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge at Umbarger.

The hunt, which is by special permit only, is scheduled for Dec. 9, 11, 13, 15 and 17 from 9 a.m. to sunset each day on approximately 2,000 acres of refuge land.

To enter the drawing for permits, hunters must send their name, address and daytime telephone number to Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge, P.O. Box 228, Umbarger, Texas 79091. Entries for the permit drawing close Nov. 17 with the drawing to take place Nov. 20. Only one entry per name will be accepted.

Permits will be allotted by computer on Nov. 20. Hunters will be notified by mail whether or not they have been selected for a permit, which allows the permit holder and one guest to participate.

Permits are good only for the day noted and are not transferable. There is no choice of hunt days.

Permits may be picked up at the refuge headquarters the day of the hunt. Permits of no-show hunters will be issued at 1 p.m. each day of the hunt on a first-come, first served basis.

All Texas state hunting regulations will apply for the hunt and hunters must have a valid Texas hunting license in addition to the special permit. Special refuge regulations will also be enforced.

For more information, contact refuge headquarters at (806) 499-3382 or P.O. Box 228, Umbarger, Texas 79091.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department says spending on soil and water conservation is at a record level because of 1985 legislation that established a long-term retirement program for fragile cropland.

Under the massive Conservation Reserve Program, or CRP, a goal of up to 45 million acres of highly erodible cropland could be taken from production by the end of next year.

By midyear, more than 30 million acres had been contracted and more are on the way.

According to analysts in the department's Economic Research Service, total spending by USDA and state agencies for conservation this year could exceed $3.2 billion, up from $2.5 billion in 1988 and $1.2 billion in 1987.

Estimates show that total USDA spending this year on soil and water conservation could reach $2.8 billion, up from $2.1 billion in 1988 and $1.7 billion in 1987.

Costs of the long-range CRP are expected to account for nearly $1.75 billion, or roughly 62 percent of the $2.8 billion total, says economist Merritt Padgett.

Other big USDA cost items are $176 million for carrying out cost-sharing practices under the traditional Agricultural Conservation Program, which dates back to the 1930s, and $366 million for technical assistance and extension services.

WASHINGTON (AP) - A proposal by President Bush to overhaul federal pesticide regulations, including faster action to take chemicals off the market, has drawn generally favorable reaction from major farm and commodity organizations.

The president said Thursday that the plan was partly in response to public's concern over stories "alleging the presence of dangerous levels of pesticides."

While claiming the nation's food supply to be safe, he said "some of the public's perception is based on valid concerns about the government's slow and cumbersome process for removing pesticides from the market."

Bush mentioned a high degree of awareness by Americans of news stories earlier this year on the presence of the cancer-causing chemical Alar on some apples; and, more recently, concern about the widespread use of the fungicide EBDC on fruits and vegetables.

Dean Kleckner, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, paid tribute to a provision in Bush's plan that would impose a "negligible risk" standard on pesticides.

Some had advocated a "zero tolerance" standard, which would ban all traces of suspected chemicals in food.

"Those who favor 'zero tolerance' and farmers disarming themselves and surrendering to all pests probably won't be happy with this," Kleckner said. "But they wouldn't be happy with the disruptions in the food supply and distribution system that would result from such policies, either."

Five major commodity organizations said in a joint statement that they supported Bush's effort as a commitment "to building consumer confidence in our food supply, which is already the safest food supply in the world."

The statement was issued by the American Soybean Association,

National Association of Wheat Growers, National Corn Growers Association, National Cotton Council, and U.S. Rice Producers Legislative Group.

- Appendices and specialty maps of many different features

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Marketing by co-ops shows steady decline

WASHINGTON (AP) - The share of commodity marketings by farm cooperatives has declined from levels of the early 1980s, according to an Agriculture Department report.

In 1987, the most recent year examined, co-ops accounted for 25 percent of farm marketings, down from 27 percent in 1985 and 28 percent in 1982.

Grain marketings by cooperatives were reported at 29 percent of the total, down from 33 percent in 1985 and 36 percent in 1982. That includes sales of oilseeds except for cottonseed.

"Much of the decline has been the result of less cooperative involvement in grain and oilseeds marketing," the report by the department's Agricultural Cooperative Service said Wednesday.

The co-op share of milk marketed was 76 percent in 1987, compared with 78 percent in 1985 and 77 percent in 1982. Cotton marketings were 38 percent, 33 percent and 36 percent, respectively, and livestock at 7 percent, 8 percent and 11 percent.

Fruit and vegetable marketings by co-ops accounted for 23 percent of the total in 1987, up from 8 percent in 1985 and 11 percent in 1982.

Cooperative shares of production supplies sold to farmers also dropped by similar percentages, to 25 percent in 1987 from 27 percent in 1985 and 28 percent in 1982, the report said. However, not all items declined accordingly.

Supplies included: fertilizer, 43 percent of the total in 1987, 44 percent in 1985 and 42 percent in 1982; petroleum, 37 percent, 44 percent and 36 percent; farm chemicals, 28 percent; 29 percent and 34 percent; seed, 19 percent, 15 percent and 17 percent; and feed, 17 percent, 16 percent and 18 percent.

Idled acreage may be brought back into use

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Agriculture Department economist says a world-class foot race could develop among farmers in 1990 to see who gets to the fields first if grain supplies tighten further and prices go up.

Gregory Gajewski of the department's Economic Research Service said U.S. farmers have millions of idled acres that could be brought quickly back into production if prospects brighten.

"Other countries also have the potential to expand agricultural production," he said. "Canada, the EC (European Community), Brazil, Argentina, Thailand and others could substantially boost output if producer prices rose enough."

In the United States, land used to grow U.S. crops this year is estimated at 342 million acres, up 14 million acres from 1988, Gajewski writes in the November issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine.

Slightly more than 29 million acres were idled this year under the USDA's annual crop programs. That does not count around 30 million acres of "highly erodible" cropland held out of production under the long-term Conservation Reserve Program.

"Should crop supplies tighten further and prices rise, the acreage idled under the annual programs could quickly return to production," Gajewski said.

But at the moment, the need for a large crop production increase "is in some doubt," he added.

SILICON ON RUBBER MAKES 'SMART' TIRES

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - One of America's major tire makers is racing to put a "smart" tire on the road, possibly by the mid-1990s, reports Automotive Electronic News.

The proposed system will use exceptionally small silicon sensors embedded in the tire. The semiconductors will sense pressure and temperature and transmit data to a controller which will regulate air pressure according to road conditions.

According to the publication, engineers also are working on plans to integrate this system with sensor-operated "smart" suspension systems.

Wheat exports continue to be subsidized by both the United States and the 12-nation EEC. And prices of soybeans and "coarse" grains - corn, sorghum, oats and barley - have come down from earlier high levels.

"Moreover, such a surge in worldwide production could come at some environmental cost," Gajewski said. "But the higher prices and profits would help farmers absorb the costs of shifting to more environmentally sustainable farming practices."

Gajewski said the experience of U.S. farmers in the 1970s and early 1980s "may temper plans for expansion" in the near future.

It was a combination of declining supplies and rising commodity prices that triggered larger production and a rise in global stockpiles of grain.

"But world production growth outpaced demand growth in the early and mid-1980s, and stagnating prices touched off the farm financial crisis," he said. "Land values plummeted as farmers' returns did not keep up with earlier expectations."

Gajewski said that a few years ago "U.S. grain surpluses were so big that much effort went into devising new ways to store it." Now, some analysts are worried about the low levels of food reserves.

Farm income has risen dramatically from the ebb of the early '80s. After allowing for inflation, 1989 income is expected to be up about 35 percent from 1984, "when farmers were struggling through their worst financial crisis since the Great Depression," he said.

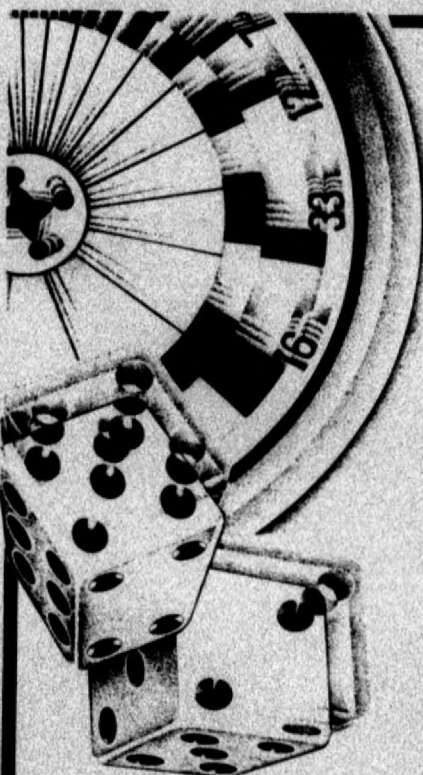

Land values have been rising the last couple of years, although Gajewski noted new survey information showing that farmland prices are expected to rise much more slowly in 1990.

Because land values embody profits expected for the next decade, Gajewski said the recent slowing could reflect concerns about long-term trends in commodity prices, new farm legislation due in 1990, negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, and future policies under the 1992 European unity plan.

But he added, "On a more basic level, the slowing likely reflects farmers' more cautious attitudes following the financial crisis" earlier this decade.

MORE THAN POCKET CHANGE

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. mint plans to produce about 33 percent more coins in fiscal 1990 than in fiscal 1988, according to American Metal Market.

Selling pecans

Pilot Club members are selling pecans for the holidays as one of their annual fundraisers. Sara Pesina and Betty Sue Wortham display both sugar coated and plain pecans which will be sold for $3.75 per container.

Fox presents program

Peggie Fox presented the program Tuesday when the Pilot Club met for a regular meeting at the Community Center.

"A Talk Show With Heart", starring Opera Winnie, was the program Chairman Fox presented. Those participating were Jerri Taylor, Vera Pilot, Vera Threwitt, Rosie Meedfly, Dorothy Ott, and audience participant Margaret Schroeter.

Breakfast was served to 30 members and two guests.

Keywanettes hold coat drive

The Hereford High School Keywanettes have set a goal that no one will be cold in Hereford this winter.

The Keywanette coat drive kicked off last Sunday with a good start. Several coats were delivered to the Bull Barn with many more added Monday night during the homecoming carnival.

The club plans to begin delivery of the coats in November to families who need them. There have been around 200 coats donated.

If anyone has a coat they would like to donate, contact Mrs. Binder 364-8597 or Mrs. Weatherly 364-0321. A keywanette will pick up the donations. Coats may also be dropped off at the Chateau Inn on Hwy. 60, Saturday, Oct. 28 from 9 a.m. to noon. Keywanettes will be there to assist you.

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) - Mick Jagger joined some fans in a short jam session in the parking lot of Sullivan Stadium before a sold-out Rolling Stones show.

Eighteen fans from Biddeford, Maine, were sitting around their rented camper playing Stones songs Sunday when a guy in a hooded sweatshirt and sunglasses came by. When the hood and glasses were lifted, Jagger emerged.

Cholesterol cut by 25 percent

If you've been avoiding eating eggs because of their cholesterol content, you can still enjoy them in moderation.

Latest research data reported from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Nutrition Composition Laboratory shows the average large egg contains 25 percent less cholesterol than previously thought, said Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten, nutritionist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

She said research indicates the average large egg contains 213 mg of cholesterol, not the 274 mg previously thought. "Eggs also are an important source of protein, Vitamin A, riboflavin, Vitamin B-12, iron, zinc and phosphorus."

What does this mean to consumers? There should be less concern about dietary cholesterol intake but possibly more concern with saturated fatty acids, according to another researcher, Dr. Donald McNamara of the University of Arizona.

Sweeten said it's true that a high blood cholesterol is a risk factor for heart disease, but blood cholesterol is not the same as dietary cholesterol, and most people are confused.

McNamara's research indicates that 80 percent of the cholesterol in the body is made by the body. Concerning dietary factors, the primary determinant of blood cholesterol is the type of fat in the diet, not dietary cholesterol.

Sweeten said dietary cholesterol has an impact in about one-third of the population whom we call 'non-compensators' because their bodies lack a normal regulatory response to high cholesterol intakes. McNamara's research shows that for the majority of people, cholesterol metabolism is well-balanced so that either the body produces less or excesses are excreted.

Sweeten said for this majority, concern about dietary cholesterol in animal products, eggs and lean meat is unwarranted.

The nutritionist said too much saturated fatty acids in the diet can elevate blood cholesterol. These acids are found in animal products and other sources such as coconut and palm oils.

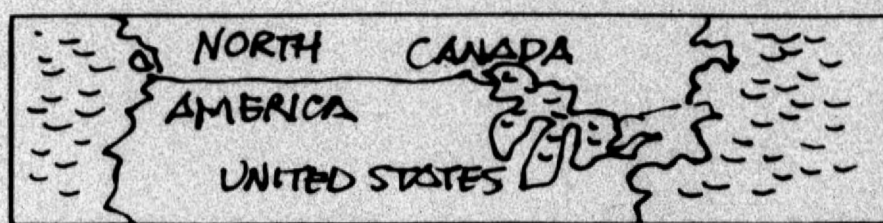

Sweeten said, in contrast, diets that replace saturated fatty acids with polyunsaturated fatty acids like certain vegetable oils such as soy or sunflower, may actually lower blood cholesterol.

Research indicates that dietary cholesterol is found only in animal products, usually in conjunction with saturated fatty acids. Eggs contain less saturated fatty acids than monounsaturated fatty acids, but comparatively more dietary cholesterol.

"Most nutritionists agree that you should not eliminate milk, meats, eggs or other wholesome foods from your diet. There are many lean cuts of meats and low-fat dairy products available," Sweeten said.

She cautioned, however, to beware of products labeled "cholesterol-free" because they may still contain some saturated fatty acids in the form of coconut or palm oils. These labels are quite deceptive and imply that because they do not contain dietary cholesterol the product will not affect blood cholesterol in most people.

"This new information about today's lower-cholesterol eggs should help more people realize a source of many nutrients other than cholesterol," said Sweeten. "In moderation, eggs, lean meats and low-fat milk products can still be enjoyed by health-conscious consumers."

ACS board members cited

During a recent board meeting of the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society, several members were given special recognition. Richard Ottesen and Jim Arney, who served as this year's co-chairmen for the business drive during the annual Crusade Campaign, were awarded certificates for their outstanding leadership. Also, Amy Gililand, DSC unit president, was recognized for her exemplary work with the American Cancer Society. She was presented with a silver letter opener featuring the ACS symbol. The entire board was presented the Silver Achievement Award for reaching an all-time high in Crusade income.

Achievement Award received

Board members serving on the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society were presented the Silver Achievement Award for reaching an all-time high in crusade income. The announcement was made when the local ACS board of directors met recently for their monthly meeting at the Caison House.

President Amy Gililand was also recognized for her exemplary work with the American Cancer Society. She was presented a silver letter opener featuring the ACS symbol.

After Gililand welcomed new board members and read the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved, she gave an award to Richard Ottesen and Jim Arney for their outstanding leadership on this year's annual crusade campaign. Also, the "Sword of Hope Award" was presented to Kee Ruland, who serves as public education committee chairman, for helping to further the control of cancer through education.

Several committee reports were heard from various chairmen. Ruland announced that the ACS's annual Great American Smokeout is set for Nov. 16. Literature will be taken to local schools for the children to take home to their parents as support for not smoking.

Country Christmas bazaar set

The annual Arts and Crafts Country Christmas Bazaar is sponsored by members of Westway Extension Homemakers Club.

The bazaar is scheduled for Nov. 11 at the Hereford Community Center. To obtain an entry form or for additional information, call Carolyn Evers at 364-4739.

Flame Fellowship Chapter to hold organizational meeting

The Hereford Chapter of Flame Fellowship will have its first meeting Thursday, Nov. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Center. The public is invited to hear guest speaker, Jean Warner of Mesquite.

Warner is Texas state overseer for Flame Fellowship International. She is a wife, mother, teacher, author, and licensed minister. She and her husband, Jim, are the parents of two children. Russell, their son, is a university tennis coach. Judith is their very special Down's syndrome daughter. Out of the special moments of her life, Jean has written "Sowing in Tears, Reaping in Joy". Jean has a great desire to see all women walk in total victory in every area of their life.

Festival scheduled Dec. 2

The Wesley United Methodist Church Women will sponsor their annual Fall Festival of Arts and Crafts from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Dec. 2 at the Hereford Community Center.

For additional information, call Ellen Collins at 364-0074 or Marilyn Bell after 5 p.m. at 364-1181.

Flame Fellowship is an organization of Christian women from nearly every denomination who meet in local chapters across America. Beginning as a prayer group, Flame is now a international organization of thousands.

Harris recognized as sweetheart

Deann Harris was recognized as chapter sweetheart by XI Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority at the Oct. 17 meeting at West Texas Rural Telephone.

Harris was selected by members in a recent vote and will be honored during the annual Sweetheart Tea and Valentine Dance set in February.

President Marge Bell called the meeting to order with 12 members repeating the opening ritual.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved as read. Roll call was taken and Tammy Williams was recognized as a guest. Bell said the first pledge meeting was held prior to the meeting.

In communications, Bell noted the state convention is set for June 22-24, 1990 in Amarillo with "Naughty '90s" as the theme. A thank-you note from the All-Star Sports Center was read as the local store thanked the chapter for allowing them to participate in the September benefit style show.

Secret Sisters were thanked by Peggy Hyer, Linda Arellano, Harris, Susan Shaw, and Melinda Henson.

The list of committees for city council was read. Hyer said rituals are set for Nov. 21 with Alpha Alpha as hostess. Also, tentatively set are: Sweetheart Tea, Feb. 3; Valentine Ball, Feb. 10; Silent Auction and salad supper, March 15; and Founders' Day, April 26 or 30.

Bell encouraged Harris to send in her photo to international by Nov. 1 for the annual sweetheart contest.

Treasurer Harris said proceeds from the style show totaled $444 and $222 went to Lifeline and Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center.

Service committee chairman Hyer collected children's books, etc. for the Department of Human Resources.

Program committee chairman Kay Williams said the next meeting will be held Nov. 7 concerning "Nutrition: For Women Only" by Susan Shaw. It will be held in Shaw's home as Ruby Sanders serves as co-hostess.

Social committee chairman Bodner announced that a couple's party is set for Oct. 28 in the E.B. Black House at 7 p.m. Suggested dress for the mystery party is that of the 1940s.

Bell said the next pledge meeting is set for Nov. 7 at 7 p.m.

In new business, Henson told of the need for help by the Red Cross in repairing potential Christmas gifts to be given away. Several members tentatively set Tuesday, Nov. 28, as a meeting date at the Red Cross as 7:30 p.m. to help.

Harris gave the program on home-based businesses with Dona Hendrickson serving as co-hostess. The meeting adjourned with the closing ritual and Mitzvah.

In attendance were Harris, Bell, Hyer, Arellano, Shaw, Henson, Whitfill, Bodner, Williams, Holly Bixler, Pene Coplen, Connie Matthews, Gaye Reily, and guest, Tammy Williams.

In 1946, the United States detonated an atomic bomb at Bikini Atoll in the Pacific in the first underwater test of the device.

Planning observance

Church Women United will be sponsoring World Community Day at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 3, in the fellowship hall of First Baptist Church. A nursery will be provided during the special observance which has a theme of "To Pray is to Risk." During World Community Day, Church Women United will focus on action for justice and peace in the local, national and global context. Planning the event are, from left, Nancy Wilcox, who will serve as leader of the event, and Carmen Flood, song leader.

World Community Day scheduled

The public is invited to attend the observance of World Community Day at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 3, in the fellowship hall of First Baptist Church. A nursery will be provided for the event which is being sponsored by Church Women United.

Among those participating include Carmen Flood, song leader, and Cathy Revell, accompanist, both from St. Anthony's Catholic Church; Sara Cook and Susan Sublett of First Baptist Church; Carol Sue LeGate from First United Methodist Church; and Nancy Wilcox, who will serve as leader.

The theme of World Community Day, chosen by the Church Women United celebrations planning group, is entitled "To Pray is to Risk." The observance is the final service in the year-long celebration's theme, "Jesus, Teach Us To Pray." A group of Korean American women will share their experiences during the special event Nov. 3.

Church Women United is a national, ecumenical movement that brings Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women together into one community of prayer and service. The goals of the women are to deepen understanding of what it means to be Christian women of faith in today's world; to develop a visible, ecumenical community; to work for a just, caring and peaceful society; and to use responsibly and creatively the resources God has entrusted to them.

The purpose of Church Women United is to encourage church women to come together in a visible community to witness to their faith and to go out into every neighborhood and nation as instruments of reconciling love.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about "Washington State Mom" who knew that her husband was sexually abusing their three children and did nothing to protect them. She said he was an alcoholic with a mean temper. And oh yes, "the publicity would have been awful," and the judge might ask some "very embarrassing questions."

My father, also an alcoholic, began to abuse me when I was 5 years old. I finally found the courage to tell my mother five years later. She called me a liar and a troublemaker. After several weeks of pleading and crying, throwing up and having nightmares, she said, "I will leave it up to you. I will go to the police if you want me to, but they will put your father in jail and we will all probably starve to death."

Being an insecure, emotionally troubled 10-year-old, I could not face that burden, so I chose to let the abusing go on. A year later, my father stopped bothering me and began to abuse my 5- and 7-year-old cousins, who were living with us at the time.

He died when I was 28. I did not cry at the funeral. My mother died nine years later and I cried hysterically at hers -- and every day after that for several weeks. I went to counseling and learned that I forgave my father because I came to understand that he was a sick man, but I could not forgive my mother because she didn't try to protect me against him.

My relationship with men have been awful. My drug of choice is food. I am now in a 12-step program and getting better. Ann, please keep telling people who have been abused that silence is deadly. They must talk about it and get it out in the open. Only then will the healing begin. -- P.J. in West Hartford

DEAR P.J.: Thank you for sharing your intimate feelings. Hundreds of others did, too. Read on:

FROM LOS ANGELES: As a woman who was abused by an alcoholic father, I cannot tell you how deeply that letter from Washington Mom affected me. Sexual abuse changes your life in every conceivable way. Self-hate and feelings of inferiority become a part of you. There is no way to recover your lost childhood. You go through life feeling dirty and worthless, as if it was your fault. A mother who knows that her children are being sexually abused and allows it to continue is just as guilty as the abuser.

RIVERSIDE, CALIF.: Those children would be better off in foster homes. I really got sick to my stomach when that woman wrote, "I raised them according to the Bible." Give me a break. Maybe it's not too late to lock them both up.

HARRISBURG, PA.: My two children were sexually abused by my baby sitter's husband. When my daughter told me what was going on I immediately took action. Believe me, there was no thought of embarrassment, just rage. He was convicted and sent to prison. The children got counseling. The best therapy was when I told them, "He is locked up now and will never hurt you or anyone else again."

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box. 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada send $4.45.)

BY REBECCA WALLS

In the Gunsight of the KGB by Alexander A. Ushakov is the story of Ushakov's arrest, imprisonment, and escape from Russia through the Caucasus Mountains into Turkey. Let's imagine that the border is in front of him. How does he cross it if:

- it's a Soviet border
- the wire fences have electronic and sound alarms
- the speed of a military helicopter, raised by the alarm, is much faster than the speed of a pedestrian
- the guards have well-trained dogs
- the guards are armed with AK-74 submachine guns
- the traveler has no weapon or equipment except a hunting knife, a pair of binoculars, and wire clippers.

Ushakov knew he was about to be arrested by the KGB. A professor at the Odessa Naval Academy, Ushakov was being investigated for his unpublished "anti Soviet" writings, as well as being denounced as an enemy of the state by his ex-wife. Yes, he was an underground anti-communist.

You won't want to miss this story of a brave man and of an astonishing flight for freedom.

Amethyst by Mary-Rose Hayes is a bold, mysterious and captivating story of four young women who meet in an English boarding school.

Each young woman is blessed with beauty and a special talent. Jess with an eye for light becomes one of the world's prominent painters. Gwyneth becomes the extraordinary model who captures the international fashion world. Catriona finds her gift for business and creates a great fortune after a failed marriage.

Victoria Raven the beneficiary of an amethyst ring, a family heirloom, has the power to predict the future. With this talent Victoria begins to spin the destinies of her beautiful and ambitious friends.

Each young woman is chosen for greatness, and each will be cursed with the same prophecy: that in 20 years they will be reunited, but one will be gone. Only time will tell who will live and who will die.

Victoria Holt's new book THE CAPTIVE is the story of 18-year-old Rosetta Cranleigh whose life is suddenly shattered when her first ocean voyage ends in a shipwreck off the African coast.

Only the quick thinking of John Player, a young deckhand, saved Rosetta and the debonair Lucus Lorimer from the raging sea. The three castaways find themselves washed up on a deserted island.

A long awaited "rescue" finally comes when the three find themselves captives of a band of pirates. Lucus is able to buy his own freedom, while Rosetta and John are sold to a powerful Turkish Pasha. Every moment Rosetta, in fear of being called to the Pasha, plans her escape. Just as things look hopeless, Rosetta with the aid of John succeeds in a daring escape.

Back in England Rosetta must now help clear John of the charges of murder of his step-brother. The trails Rosetta endured only strengthens her resolve as she draws closer to unmasking the true killer.

Those Who Do Things That Count, Never Stop To Count Them.

As we say goodbye and good luck to our retiring friend, Gladys Cavness, we at First National Bank could not help but reflect back on all of the things Gladys has done for our bank and our community. The list of her contributions goes on and on, but Gladys Cavness has never stopped "doing" long enough to count.

With almost eighteen years of service to customers and co-workers at the First, Gladys has been our definition of the phrase "To Do." She started working at First National in the Bookkeeping Department and retires as head of "Customer Service." Banking Services are only one part of the contribution she has made. Gladys has been very active in Hereford Hustlers since 1972. She has also served on the board of the Country Club and has been involved with the Cancer Society, Heart Association, United Way and much, much more. She supports the Herd with a passion.

If it's true that "Giving makes living more loving," then all of Gladys' days will be filled with great love.

Gladys will be missed by all of her friends at First National as she and her husband begin a new life of travel joined with the ongoing giving to their community. And although we are sad to see you go, you quickly remind us that

Friends multiply joy and divide sorrow.
Good luck to you always,

Gladys Cavness

Chapter meeting held at Reinauer residence

Los Ciboleros Chapter N.S.D.A.R., met recently in the home of Mrs. Joe Reinauer, five miles west of Hereford on Harrison Highway with Mrs. Beryl Fish serving as co-hostess.

Regent Mrs. Austin Rose led the opening ritual with the assistance of Mrs. Abel Ruga, chaplain. Mrs. Leroy Williamson led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance and Violet Reinauer conducted the singing of the national anthem. The membership recited the American's Creed led by Mrs. Arthur Clark and the Preamble to the Constitution was led by Rose.

Fish read the President General's message and Mrs. Gid Brownd gave the national defense report concerning the proposal of a constitutional committee and projected convention. All Americans must become knowledgeable to all areas of the constitution and to each individual's rights.

Clark, secretary pro-tem, read the minutes of the September meeting and Margaret Bell, treasurer, reported on the financial status of the organization. A letter was read from Shelly Moss in regards to the formation of Hereford Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center. The office of Hereford Outreach is seeking new volunteers to assist this vital program.

Ruga presented the program on the flag, "The American Flag, A Symbol of Service".

Williamson, local chairperson of the Centennial Jubilee of N.S.D.A.R. committee gave a brief report of projects for the year.

A report was given on the presentation of information to all local area schools for the 1989-90 American history month essay contest.

The presentation of the U.S. flag to local schools was referred to the chairperson of the flag of the United States of America.

Mrs. Jim Fish and daughter, Erin of Odessa, were introduced as guests of Mr. Beryl Fish.

Members present were Rose, Brownd, Ruga, Ruth Knox, Fish, Ruth Newsom, Williamson, Patricia Robinson, Reinauer, Leta Kaul, Mildred Drake, Margaret Bell, Charlotte Clark and Mildred Fuhrmann.

KIMBERLY EDELMON, MATTHEW CAREY

Couple to wed

Kimberly Dawn Edelman and Matthew Carey of Colorado, will marry Dec. 30 in Our Saviors Lutheran Church in Greeley, Co.

The bride-elect is a former Hereford resident and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Don Edelman. She is the great-granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lukey of Hereford. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Carey and Donna Filkins.

The couple are both graduates of Colorado High Schools. Miss Edelman is employed at Harman Industries and he is employed with Monfort of Colorado.

Hoelscher serves as hostess

The Golden Spread Aggie Moms met Monday evening in the home of Diane Hoelscher, president.

Mary Lou Schmucker led the group in an opening prayer. Secretary Jane Coplen read the minutes of the previous meeting and Joy Bunch, treasurer, gave a report.

A report was heard concerning the local club comprised of area students attending TAMU. Serving as officers of this club are Jacalyn Thompson of Dimmitt, president; Laura Nelson of Dimmitt, vice president; Alisa Hoelscher of Hereford, secretary; and Craig Waddell of Amarillo, treasurer.

Discussions followed concerning the preparation of "survival kits" for Aggie students for the fall finals week and the upcoming bake sale in Dimmitt on Dec. 2.

Refreshments were served by Karen White and Hoelscher to Hereford members: Anna Solomon, Sue Sims, Brenda Thomas, Coplen, Bunch and Virginia Jackson. Others present from Dimmitt and Nazareth included Schmucker, Jane O'Kelly, Martha Hyman, Mrs. Herman Birkenfeld and Dorothy Kleman.

During the next meeting Nov. 27 in the home of Adelle Clements, members will be packing survival kits.

Two-day festival planned

The annual Christmas Crafts Festival has been scheduled Dec. 2-3 at Sugarland Mall.

The festival will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2, and from noon until 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 3.

Booth space will be approximately 9 x 12 ft. Rental fee for a single booth will be $40. Booth rental is on a first come basis. No refunds will be given after Nov. 15 unless booth space can be resold.

For further information, call Euman Lyles at 364-1127 or write to: 1989 Christmas Crafts Festival P.O. Box 862, Hereford, Texas 79045.

Allred, White serve as auctioneers during meeting

Lynton Allred and Butch White were auctioneers for a benefit for the La Madre Mia Study Club on Oct. 26. Members donated items for the auction. The money raised will be used for club projects.

Joyce Allred opened her home for the meeting and Mary Herring served as co-hostess. Roll call was answered with "I would like ----."

The business meeting was conducted by President Carolyn Baxter. The constitution and by laws were read for new member Debbie Bentley.

Standing committees gave reports: membership, Barbara Manning; Yearbook, Lucy Rogers; Home tour, Georgia Sparks and Mary Herring.

Changes in the yearbook for Jan. 11, 1990 will be Ruth Black as hostess and Gladys Merritt will be co-hostess. Allred will give the program.

A program on astrology was given with pointers on when to cut hair, start a diet, gain weight, and dye hair.

Old business was a hand out from Jessie Ann Davis.

Members present were Allred, Baxter, Ruth Black, Francine Bromlow, Merle Clark, Betty Lady, Manning, Merritt, Lavon Nieman, Bettye Owen, Nancy Paetzold, Rogers, Tricia Sims, Sparks, Debbie Tardy, Herring, Betty Taylor, Mary Beth White and Bentley.

Study club meets at the Hudspeth House

The Velea Study Club met at the Historical Hudspeth House in Canyon for the Oct. 22 meeting.

The Hudspeth House is a bed and breakfast Inn which also specializes in private parties, teas, weddings, dinners, and retreats. It is a step into the past.

The home was built in 1910 in the western edge of Canyon. After West Texas State was built on the east side of town, Mary E. Hudspeth purchased the home and had it moved to the east side of town. The three story house was placed on cross ties and pulled to its new location by a steam tractor.

Mary Hudspeth was the first Dean of Women at the college and was later head of the modern language department. The victorian home with eight guest rooms is a showplace for numerous antiques and collections. The original stained glass from England, original chandeliers and many of Hudspeth's possessions make it a memorable place to visit.

The members and guests were served an elegant dinner in the dining room by the innkeepers, Dave and Sally Haynie. Guests for the evening were Wilma Hadley of Canyon and Claudia McBrayer of Hereford. Members served were Marcella Bradley, Juanita Brownd, Francis Crume, Betty Dickson, Ruth Fish, Betty Gilbert, Della Hutchins,

Joyce Ridder, Norma Walden and Margaret Zinser.

After the meal, Haynie told the history of the house and amusing stories of the lives of the innkeepers.

The next meeting will be on Nov. 13 in the home of Betty Dickson. Yiota Malouf will present the program on "The Women and Culture of Greece".

ROME (AP) - Paul McCartney says his better relations with other former Beatles has made it possible for him to play the legendary group's songs in public again.

"My relations with former members of the band have improved. Those songs are wonderful memories for me and that is why I am playing them again," he told reporters Tuesday before his Rome concert, part of a world tour promoting his latest album "Flowers in the Dirt."

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

Special thanks is extended to all of the volunteers that donated items and purchased items at the recent Red Cross garage sale to raise funds for disaster relief. The sale raised approximately $1,600 and donations raised the total amount to date to $3,645.05.

Thanks is also given to all those who made monetary contributions and to those who have donated aluminum cans.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter volunteers will have a game booth, pumpkin painting booth and a spook house at the Crimestoppers Carnival Halloween night at the Bull Barn. Volunteers are needed to work the booths. If interested, call the Red Cross office.

The CPR Instructors class has been postponed for several weeks. If interested in signing up for this class, call the office or Ronny Sanders, safety services chairman.

A class on back injury prevention will be held Saturday and Sunday in Amarillo. Call the office to register.

The annual territorial meeting will be held Nov. 10 in Amarillo. All volunteers and staff from Territory III will be meeting to find out about chapter activities and upcoming events. The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way agency.

Club to sponsor tournament

Members of Toujour Amis Study Club will hold their fourth annual Benefit Bridge Tournament at 7 p.m. Nov. 9 at the Hereford Community Center.

The public is invited to participate in the tournament in which several door prizes will be presented including the grand prize of a card table and chairs. Also, two $50 savings bonds will be given.

Tickets are priced at $5 per person and are available from study club members or may be purchased at the door.

All proceeds from the tournament, where refreshments will be served during the evening, will be used for a high school scholarship.

Only the quick thinking of John Player, a young deckhand, saved Rosetta and the debonair Lucus Lorimer from the raging sea. The three castaways find themselves washed up on a deserted island.

A long awaited "rescue" finally comes when the three find themselves captives of a band of pirates. Lucus is able to buy his own freedom, while Rosetta and John are sold to a powerful Turkish Pasha. Every moment Rosetta, in fear of being called to the Pasha, plans her escape. Just as things look hopeless, Rosetta with the aid of John succeeds in a daring escape.

Back in England, Rosetta must now help clear John of the charges of murder of his step-brother. The trails Rosetta endured only strengthens her resolve as she draws closer to unmasking the true killer.

During the Spanish-American War, the Spaniards surrendered to the Americans at Santiago, Cuba, July 17, 1898.

Those Who Do Things That Count, Never Stop To Count Them.

As we say goodbye and good luck to our retiring friend, Gladys Cavness, we at First National Bank could not help but reflect back on all of the things Gladys has done for our bank and our community. The list of her contributions goes on and on, but Gladys Cavness has never stopped "doing" long enough to count.

With almost eighteen years of service to customers and co-workers at the First, Gladys has been our definition of the phrase "To Do." She started working at First National in the Bookkeeping Department and retires as head of "Customer Service." Banking Services are only one part of the contribution she has made. Gladys has been very active in Hereford Hustlers since 1972. She has also served on the board of the Country Club and has been involved with the Cancer Society, Heart Association, United Way and much, much more. She supports the Herd with a passion.

If it's true that "Giving makes living more loving," then all of Gladys' days will be filled with great love.

Gladys will be missed by all of her friends at First National as she and her husband begin a new life of travel joined with the ongoing giving to their community. And although we are sad to see you go, you quickly remind us that

*Friends multiply joy and divide sorrow.
Good luck to you always,*

Gladys Cavness

Chapter meeting held at Reinauer residence

Los Ciboleros Chapter N.S.D.A.R., met recently in the home of Mrs. Joe Reinauer, five miles west of Hereford on Harrison Highway with Mrs. Beryl Fish serving as co-hostess.

Regent Mrs. Austin Rose led the opening ritual with the assistance of Mrs. Abel Ruga, chaplain. Mrs. Leroy Williamson led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance and Violet Reinauer conducted the singing of the national anthem. The membership recited the American's Creed led by Mrs. Arthur Clark and the Preamble to the Constitution was led by Rose.

Fish read the President General's message and Mrs. Gid Brownd gave the national defense report concerning the proposal of a constitutional committee and projected convention. All Americans must become knowledgeable to all areas of the constitution and to each individual's rights.

Clark, secretary pro-tem, read the minutes of the September meeting and Margaret Bell, treasurer, reported on the financial status of the organization. A letter was read from Shelly Moss in regards to the formation of Hereford Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center. The office of Hereford Outreach is seeking new volunteers to assist this vital program.

Ruga presented the program on the flag, "The American Flag, A Symbol of Service".

Williamson, local chairperson of the Centennial Jubilee of N.S.D.A.R. committee gave a brief report of projects for the year.

A report was given on the presentation of information to all local area schools for the 1989-90 American history month essay contest.

The presentation of the U.S. flag to local schools was referred to the chairperson of the flag of the United States of America.

Mrs. Jim Fish and daughter, Erin of Odessa, were introduced as guests of Mr. Beryl Fish.

Members present were Rose, Brownd, Ruga, Ruth Knox, Fish, Ruth Newsom, Williamson, Patricia Robinson, Reinauer, Leta Kaul, Mildred Drake, Margaret Bell, Charlotte Clark and Mildred Fuhrmann.

KIMBERLY EDELMON, MATTHEW CAREY

Couple to wed

Kimberly Dawn Edelman and Matthew Carey of Colorado, will marry Dec. 30 in Our Saviors Lutheran Church in Greeley, Co.

The bride-elect is a former Hereford resident and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Don Edelman. She is the great-granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lukey of Hereford. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Carey and Donna Filkins.

The couple are both graduates of Colorado High Schools. Miss Edelman is employed at Harman Industries and he is employed with Monfort of Colorado.

Hoelscher serves as hostess

The Golden Spread Aggie Moms met Monday evening in the home of Diane Hoelscher, president.

Mary Lou Schmucker led the group in an opening prayer. Secretary Jane Coplen read the minutes of the previous meeting and Joy Bunch, treasurer, gave a report.

A report was heard concerning the local club comprised of area students attending TAMU. Serving as officers of this club are Jacalyn Thompson of Dimmitt, president; Laura Nelson of Dimmitt, vice president; Alisa Hoelscher of Hereford, secretary; and Craig Waddell of Amarillo, treasurer.

Discussions followed concerning the preparation of "survival kits" for Aggie students for the fall finals week and the upcoming bake sale in Dimmitt on Dec. 2.

Refreshments were served by Karen White and Hoelscher to Hereford members: Anna Solomon, Sue Sims, Brenda Thomas, Coplen, Bunch and Virginia Jackson. Others present from Dimmitt and Nazareth included Schmucker, Jane O'Kelly, Martha Hyman, Mrs. Herman Birkenfeld and Dorothy Kleman.

During the next meeting Nov. 27 in the home of Adelle Clements, members will be packing survival kits.

Two-day festival planned

The annual Christmas Crafts Festival has been scheduled Dec. 2-3 at Sugarland Mall.

The festival will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2, and from noon until 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 3.

Booth space will be approximately 9 x 12 ft. Rental fee for a single booth will be $40. Booth rental is on a first come basis. No refunds will be given after Nov. 15 unless booth space can be resold.

For further information, call Euman Lyles at 364-1127 or write to: 1989 Christmas Crafts Festival P.O. Box 862, Hereford, Texas 79045.

Allred, White serve as auctioneers during meeting

Lynette Allred and Butch White were auctioneers for a benefit for the La Madre Mia Study Club on Oct. 26. Members donated items for the auction. The money raised will be used for club projects.

Joyce Allred opened her home for the meeting and Mary Herring served as co-hostess. Roll call was answered with "I would like ---."

The business meeting was conducted by President Carolyn Baxter. The constitution and by laws were read for new member Debbie Bentley.

Standing committees gave reports: membership, Barbara Manning; Yearbook, Lucy Rogers; Home tour, Georgia Sparks and Mary Herring.

Changes in the yearbook for Jan. 11, 1990 will be Ruth Black as hostess and Gladys Merritt will be co-hostess. Allred will give the program.

A program on astrology was given with pointers on when to cut hair, start a diet, gain weight, and dye hair.

Old business was a hand out from Jessie Ann Davis.

Members present were Allred, Baxter, Ruth Black, Francine Bromlow, Merle Clark, Betty Lady, Manning, Merritt, Lavon Nieman, Betty Owen, Nancy Paetzold, Rogers, Tricia Sims, Sparks, Debbie Tardy, Herring, Betty Taylor, Mary Both White and Bentley.

Study club meets at the Hudspeth House

The Valeda Study Club met at the Historical Hudspeth House in Canyon for the Oct. 22 meeting.

The Hudspeth House is a bed and breakfast Inn which also specializes in private parties, teas, weddings, dinners, and retreats. It is a step into the past.

The home was built in 1910 in the western edge of Canyon. After West Texas State was built on the east side of town, Mary E. Hudspeth purchased the home and had it moved to the east side of town. The three story house was placed on cross ties and pulled to its new location by a steam tractor.

Mary Hudspeth was the first Dean of Women at the college and was later head of the modern language department. The victorian home with eight guest rooms is a showplace for numerous antiques and collections. The original stained glass from England, original chandeliers and many of Hudspeth's possessions make it a memorable place to visit.

The members and guests were served an elegant dinner in the dining room by the innkeepers, Dave and Sally Haynie. Guests for the evening were Wilma Hadley of Canyon and Claudia McBrayer of Hereford. Members served were Marcella Bradley, Juanita Brownd, Francis Crume, Betty Dickson, Ruth Fish, Betty Gilbert, Della Hutchins,

Joyce Ridder, Norma Walden and Margaret Zinser.

After the meal, Haynie told the history of the house and amusing stories of the lives of the innkeepers.

The next meeting will be on Nov. 13 in the home of Betty Dickson. Yiota Malouf will present the program on "The Women and Culture of Greece".

ROME (AP) - Paul McCartney says his better relations with other former Beatles has made it possible for him to play the legendary group's songs in public again.

"My relations with former members of the band have improved. Those songs are wonderful memories for me and that is why I am playing them again," he told reporters Tuesday before his Rome concert, part of a world tour promoting his latest album "Flowers in the Dirt."

Red Cross Update

BY BETTY HENSON

Special thanks is extended to all of the volunteers that donated items and purchased items at the recent Red Cross garage sale to raise funds for disaster relief. The sale raised approximately $1,600 and donations raised the total amount to date to $3,645.05.

Thanks is also given to all those who made monetary contributions and to those who have donated aluminum cans.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter volunteers will have a game booth, pumpkin painting booth and a spook house at the Crimestoppers Carnival Halloween night at the Bull Barn. Volunteers are needed to work the booths. If interested, call the Red Cross office.

The CPR Instructors class has been postponed for several weeks. If interested in signing up for this class, call the office or Ronny Sanders, safety services chairman.

A class on back injury prevention will be held Saturday and Sunday in Amarillo. Call the office to register.

The annual territorial meeting will be held Nov. 10 in Amarillo. All volunteers and staff from Territory III will be meeting to find out about chapter activities and upcoming events.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way agency.

Club to sponsor tournament

Members of Toujour Amis Study Club will hold their fourth annual Benefit Bridge Tournament at 7 p.m. Nov. 9 at the Hereford Community Center.

The public is invited to participate in the tournament in which several door prizes will be presented including the grand prize of a card table and chairs. Also, two $50 savings bonds will be given.

Tickets are priced at $5 per person and are available from study club members or may be purchased at the door.

All proceeds from the tournament, where refreshments will be served during the evening, will be used for a high school scholarship.

Selleck's hot, but 'Innocent Man' isn't

Gail Reagan

HAVE FUN
at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

It ought to be against the law for people who's obscenity vocabulary is larger than their vocabulary of socially acceptable words to write movie scripts. Unfortunately, Larry Brothers falls into this category and was allowed to write...

AN INNOCENT MAN: Starring Tom Selleck as a squeaky clean, upright citizen, living the American dream, who is framed by two ruthless, on-the-take narcotics cops and is unjustly sent to prison. In prison he meets some other bad actors (puns, you can't escape them), is taught how to survive and shout vile language (instead of being given acting lessons), is released, seeks and gets revenge, and then goes back to his perfect life.

The problem with this movie (besides the constant obscenities that are used in lieu of character development) is that it has a poorly written script about some very dumb people. The Rainwood family (Selleck and wife), their defense attorney, the internal affairs police officer who is supposed to uncover the no-good cops, the prison guards, and the prisoners are all a bunch of the dumbest people you'll ever see in a movie that's not animated. Therefore, almost none of the story is believable. And, the direction by Peter Yates is insipid and unimaginative. Tom Selleck stretches his complete acting range - from A to B. He is a likable enough presence on film but he cannot carry a feature movie - he has no depth. He's just a TV, small-screen personality; this time in another poor movie. Rated R for excessive, unnecessary, constant and offensive obscene language and brutal violence. Some nudity (unfortunately, not Selleck's).

producer, Walter Wanger, who was incarcerated for shooting (wounding) Jennings Lang, lover of his then-wife, Joan Bennett. Would be rated PG-13.

BIRD MAN OF ALCATRAZ: (1962/Black & White) Starring Burt Lancaster, Karl Malden, Thelma Ritter, Betty Field, Neville Brand, Telly Savalas, Edmund O'Brien, and Hugh Marlow. Maybe not a "real" prison film - but you do get the feeling of "life inside" as you watch one of Burt Lancaster's finest performances. He plays the pensive, real-life prisoner Robert Stroud who, during his many years in jail, became a world-renowned bird authority. Would be rated PG.

THERE WAS A CROOKED MAN: (1970) Starring Kirk Douglas, Henry Fonda, Hume Cronyn, Warren Oates, Burgess Meredith, Arthur O'Connell, Martin Gavel, Alan Hale, and Lee Grant. Never heard of it? Well, that's what Have Fun at the Movies is here for - to keep you up-to-date on new releases and find those older gems you might have missed. This is a prison film - a bawdy, entertaining western/comedy, prison film with a fabulous cast of great character actors who know how to make the screen come alive.

Kirk Douglas plays a cocky inmate at a territorial prison, circa 1883, who matches wits with the reform-oriented warden, Henry Fonda, towards one goal: escape. It's a

VIDEO RENTAL MOVIES

Prison films have always had an audience; perhaps because their stories tell of a way of life foreign to most. For a conducted tour of American prisons we recommend...

RIOT IN CELL BLOCK ELEVEN: (1954/Black & White) Starring Neville Brand. This 1954 film may be even more contemporary today that it was originally. While the movie is not too well-known, nor was it a blockbuster when it was first released, none-the-less, it is a taut prison drama with a message that still packs a punch. The story depicts an aborted prison escape that ends with the convicts barricaded and demanding to be heard. Made at the height of the true-crime wave films of the mid-fifties, the script mainly concentrates on the characterization of the convicts, the prison staff, and the media.

One of its contemporary themes is media manipulation with prisoners trying to use the press for leverage. Even though the message gets a bit heavy occasionally, a good cast and excellent pacing make Cell Block 11 an exceptional movie for today's times.

For trivia buffs, some of the film is based on the experiences of the

Jones stars in A&E show

NEW YORK (AP) - James Earl Jones, who plays a pool hall owner in "Third and Oak: the Pool Hall," has a pool table in his suburban home. He piles books on it. But in case his 6-year-old son ever wants to learn to play, it's there.

"Third and Oak: the Pool Hall," a three-character play by Marsha Norman, will be shown on the A&E cable network on Thursday at 9 p.m. EST, and again on Sunday, Nov. 5. It's the first of four one-hour plays by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwrights to be shown on A&E on the first Thursday of four months as "American Playwrights Theater," a GM Mark of Excellence presentation.

At first, Jones wasn't sure he wanted to play the character, he says, since he likes to portray people who, whether or not they're poor, are worthwhile. "That was the problem here. I had to accept he was a jerk. I'm playing not a villain but not a right guy. I had to readjust my thinking.

"He is one of the blind ones. I defined Troy Maxson in 'Fences' (Jones played Maxson on Broadway) as a man who didn't distinguish his principles from his prejudices. This is such a man. He seemed gratuitously racist if not racist when it came to references to people outside his race, particularly to the girl who visits the pool hall. She is blond. She qualifies, in his eyes, for derision.

"I had a problem with that. I don't like to promote gratuitous racialism at all.

"I had to understand that white people had never meant anything good to him. He can't understand how, on a romantic level, they can mean something good to the man he thinks of essentially as his son. He can't see shared genuine affection and love between people who come from different worlds. He can't see she is as desperate as the young man is and their desperation is very similar. They resolve it without having a messy affair, as my character had been afraid.

"My character, who's in a closed society, behaves as if he's a Mafia don. He expects obedience and the mantle to be passed."

Mario Van Peebles, star of the TV series "Sonny Spoon," and Debra Cole act with Jones.

Marsha Norman won the Pulitzer Prize in 1983 for "Night Mother." The other playwrights in the series are Eugene O'Neill, Paul Zindel and Tennessee Williams.

"Having been around a long time doesn't mean good scripts are going to come flowing your way in excess," Jones says. "There are more good actors than good works."

But Jones stays busy. He's a poet in the film, "Field of Dreams"; played civil rights leader Vernon Jordan in the first "Saturday Night with Connie Chung" docudrama on NBC-TV, and recently narrated "Ivory Wars," about African elephants, on the Discovery channel.

He has made several movies, not yet released, since "Field of Dreams." "I have a 6-year-old. I have to keep working. I don't make multi-millions per movie. I don't think anybody should, frankly."

witty, handsome production directed by that master of the light touch, Joseph L. Mankiewicz. Crooked Man has a clever script and a good cast. (And yes, rattlesnakes do make good watch dogs.) Rated R.

ESCAPE FROM ALCATRAZ: (1979) Starring Clint Eastwood and Patrick McGeehan, is one of the better prison films. Any movie that combines the talents of Clint Eastwood and director Don Siegel is more than watchable. The story is based on fact and on the book by J. Campbell Bruce. It's a gripping, straightforward, methodical telling of the true story of Frank Norris, a prisoner in Alcatraz, who attempted to escape from the Rock with two other inmates in 1962 and was never heard of again.

Eastwood is ideal in the part and McGeehan is equally forceful as the neurotic warden. Rated PG.

MRS. ROY TYSON JONES
...nes Larinda Ann Pettit

Pettit, Jones vows spoken in Howardwick

Larinda Ann Pettit of Howardwick became the bride of Roy Tyson Jones of Hereford during an intimate ceremony Oct. 14 in the chapel at the First Baptist Church in Howardwick.

The marriage was officiated by James C. Martindale of Adrian.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.I. Pettit of Howardwick and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Jones of Hereford.

Guests were seated by ushers, Chad Hill of Littlefield and Clay Jones of Hereford, cousins of the groom. Kit Jones, sister of the groom, registered guests.

Stacy Smith of Amarillo served as matron of honor. Cody Hill of Littlefield served as best man and Jimmy Hobbs of Howardwick was candle lighter.

The church sanctuary was decorated with candelabra holding lighted tapers and entwined with English ivy and large satin rose bows. The pews were decorated with rose bows and white pearl and lace heart-shaped pillow. Flower girl was Tonja Jewett, daughter of Cathie Jewett of Clarendon. She wore a rose satin tea-length dress with a antique lace yoke.

Pre-nuptial selections were provided by Dee Williams. Brit Patten sang "We Have Just Begun", and "The Love Story", accompanied by Dee Williams.

As she entered the church, the bride paused to give her grandmother a long-stemmed red rose and at the close of the ceremony, she presented the mother of the groom with a long-stemmed red rose.

The unity candle was lighted by the bride and groom. Rice roses were handmade by Tenna Powell of Goodnight and distributed by Casey Martindale of Wellington.

A reception following the ceremony was held in Fellowship Hall at the First Baptist Church in Howardwick.

The bride's table was covered with an ivory linen cut-work and lace European table cloth over a rose liner. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with a rambling rose effect. Wedding bells were placed on the first and second tiers and topped with hand-blown glass decoration of two hearts and two bells. Other refreshments were punch, mixed nuts and a western hat, boots and horseshoe mints. Servers were Cathie Jewett and Christi Helms both of Clarendon.

The groom graduated from Clarendon High School in 1988 and attended Clarendon College majoring in life science.

The groom graduated from Hereford High School in 1987. He is serving in the Marine Corps Reserve and is employed by Meyers Cattle Company in Hereford.

After the honeymoon, they will reside at Route 5 Hereford.

There were guests from El Paso, Plainview, Wellington, Amarillo, Hereford, Littlefield, Mart, Tahoka and Hollywood, Florida.

The bride's veil of ivory tulle featured a pearl band coming to a point over her forehead with embossed small flowers and pearls on each side. It was designed and made by the groom's mother.

The bridal bouquet was a sweeping cascade of rose enchantment lilies and roses accented by English ivy, rose and ivory picot ribbon and iridescent pearls. For something old, she wore a lavaliere belonging to her paternal great-grandmother. Something new was a garter; something borrowed, a pearl necklace; and something blue, a handkerchief. In her shoe, she carried pennies depicting the bridal couple's birthdates. She also carried a new penny for good luck.

Maid of honor wore a rose satin tea-length dress with antique lace collar and matching shoes. Her bouquet was rose enchantment lilies accented with ivory picot ribbons.

Ring bearer was Kelly D. Linqvist of Howardwick, son of Bob and Cheryl Linqvist of Howardwick. He carried the rings on an ivory satin and lace heart-shaped pillow. Flower girl was Tonja Jewett, daughter of Cathie Jewett of Clarendon. She wore a rose satin tea-length dress with a antique lace yoke.

Pre-nuptial selections were provided by Dee Williams. Brit Patten sang "We Have Just Begun", and "The Love Story", accompanied by Dee Williams.

As she entered the church, the bride paused to give her grandmother a long-stemmed red rose and at the close of the ceremony, she presented the mother of the groom with a long-stemmed red rose.

The unity candle was lighted by the bride and groom. Rice roses were handmade by Tenna Powell of Goodnight and distributed by Casey Martindale of Wellington.

A reception following the ceremony was held in Fellowship Hall at the First Baptist Church in Howardwick.

Club to assist with carnival

The Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club met recently at the Flame Room with all members invited to help with the upcoming Crimestoppers Halloween Carnival. The event will be held at the Bull Barn on Oct. 31.

President Jack Nunley presided over the meeting. Resignations were accepted by Carrie Doak and Mona Gee. Reports were given on several members who were ill.

The Heritage Room of the library was selected as the new meeting place for the club after the first of the year.

The Christmas party will be held Dec. 11 at the Flame Room. The next meeting will be held Nov. 27 at 7:30 at the Flame Room.

Officers elected were Dale Henson as president; Weldon Roberson, vice president; Betty Henson, secretary; and Ruth King, treasurer. Hazel Botts will be telephone committee chairman. Other chairman and committee members will be announced at the next meeting.

Hosts for the meeting were Messrs. and Mmes. Roberson, Nunley, and Ralph Packard. The door prize was furnished by the Robersons and won by Howard Hershey.

Those present were Messrs. and Mmes. Clarence Botts, Bert Brown, Henson, Hershey, Bub Newell, Roberson, King, Ruby Mulkey, Juanita Coker, and Jane Packard.

Public invited to annual church bazaar set Nov. 10

The public is invited to the First United Methodist Church's semi-annual holiday bazaar set from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Friday, Nov. 10, at the church. This year's theme will be "Christmas in the Panhandle."

Mary Jones and Rubeth Griffing are co-chairmen for the event and Charmayne Klett is chairman of preparations for the western-style lunch which will be served from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The snack and coffee booth will be open throughout the day for the convenience of the public.

There will be a variety of booths selling handmade items, needlework, Christmas articles, baked goods, etc.

The trash-and-treasures sale will be held in the former Stark home adjoining the fellowship hall.

Stress discussed at meeting

Wanda Huseman gave a program on stress when members of Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met Oct. 19 in the home of Janice Betzen.

Members joined in the discussion on how different aspects of stress can effect an individual. Each participated in some of the shared helpful relaxation techniques.

Social chairman, Mary Jane Anvik, reminded club members of the Halloween Las Vegas Night social planned with prizes to be given away for the best costumes. Also, the ways and means committee chairman, Huseman, reminded the group about the upcoming stuffed baked potato sale Nov. 11.

Those present included Anvik, Janice Betzen, Glenna Calaway, Huseman, Ruby Lee, Marrie Leverett, Mary Beth Messer and Patty Frerich.

We encourage you to give to the
