Unusual 'shoot' Tuesday

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

The Scurry County Coliseum was the site for an out of the ordinary photo "shoot" Tuesday as a California-based world-class photographer brought his patented lighting techniques to Snyder.

The subject was the recently completed "Master of the Sky" bronze eagle creation of local artist Robert Taylor. The photographer, assisted by local Harley Bynum, was Dean Collins.

The place was the main floor of the coliseum, because Collins explained for his purposes he needs lots of space..."and time."

Collins — who works out of San Diego — travels around the world as a commercial illustrator. But, he says he spends an equal amount of time as an educator. His subject, he says, is light.

"My job is to create the light qualities which can properly show the subject. To tell the story about a four-dimensional object in two dimensions."

The "fourth dimension" Collins refers to is time, and he notes that in using light it is the easiest to manipulate.

The "time" used for the 10 or so photographs he took Tuesday equaled a 3 to 4 second shutter speed. The actual amount of time used to "take" these pictures — that is pushing the shutter — likely amounted to less than 20 minutes.

To set up the picture, however, Collins took more than five hours.

He began shortly after noon Tuesday and ended up around 5:30 p.m. In the effort, he was assisted by Bynum and four other photographer friends, his volunteer "gaffer" staff.

Polaroid shots were taken during the process to establish if the light "looked right." But Collins never exposed a single frame of color film for the portraits until 5 o'clock.

The "setup" for Collins' impromptu studio consisted of the ordinary tools of the photographer's trade — rolls of black paper for backdrops, black cloth to cover the sets, white cloth to act as a light diffusing material, five white studio lamps and two amber lamps.

These he grouped around a stack of seven fold-out tables provided for functions at the coliseum. The grouping was set up just in front of the coliseum stage area.

The "subject," Taylor's eagle — which stands some 9 ft. tall on its pedestal — was elevated from floor level by mounting it on top of one table.

The others, some stacked two-high, were then placed around the central figure. Onto these, Collins directed where the lamps would first be placed, then secured by yards of masking tape.

A light meter wielded by Collins plus his own practiced eye determined how these lights were positioned.

The black paper provided the backdrop. Other reflective lights, to include the amber lamps, were then aimed at this for the back lighting.

No flash equipment was used, consequently the long shutter speed of up to 4 seconds was needed. When Taylor joined his creation on the set for a second

Hughes buyout is record $5 billion

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors Corp. said Wednesday it is buying aerospace giant Hughes Aircraft Co. from the Howard Hughes Medical Institute for more than $5 billion in cash and stock, one of the biggest non-oil business mergers in history.

General Motors, the nation's largest automaker, Ford Motor Co. and Boeing Co. had been considered the leading contenders in the bidding for Hughes. Only Ford had announced making a bid.

Directors of the Hughes Medical Institute chose GM after studying the bids Tuesday in New York.

General Motors said Hughes will operate as a new subsidiary that also will include GM's Delco Electronics division, AC Spark Plug division's instrument and display systems operation and Delco Systems Operations.

The new subsidiary, to be known as GM Hughes Electronics Corp., will operate independently with its own board of directors, GM said.

The deal eclipses GM's $2.5 billion acquisition last autumn of Electronic Data Systems Corp. of Dallas, a giant computer services company.

Flooding occurs on South Plains

From local and wire reports

Heavy thunderstorms dumped as much as 9 inches of rainfall in portions of West Texas, causing flash flooding across a wide area.

Snyder and Scurry County received a general rainfall of 2 inches, although up to 3 inches was reported north of the city. Rain was continuing to fall Wednesday morning.

Area rain recordings were taken around 7 a.m. with most observers reporting additional rain falling during the morning also.

Snyder's official rain count was listed as 1.39 inches, bringing the year's total to 15.14 inches.

With the recent rains, the level at Lake J.B. Thomas continued to rise slowly with at least 1 ft. expected from Tuesday's downpour and possibly as much as 3½ ft. Lake Thomas received 2.02 inches at the west end and 1.08 at the dam area Tuesday night.

Wednesday morning, officials with the Colorado River Municipal Water District reported all creeks and the lake basin were running into the lake, although not at a flood stage.

The lake's level was set at 2,220 ft. above sea level, up 3 ft. from where it was at the end of 1984. Thomas' maximum capacity is 2,258 ft.

Deep Creek was also flowing Wednesday morning and some street flooding was reported.

Regarding area rain amounts, Hermleigh recorded 2.50 inches while Ira measured 2 inches. Fluvanna received 2.35 inches and Polar (in Kent County)

In Brief

Kidnapped

SOMONAUK, Ill. (AP) — The abduction of a second-grade girl as she bicycled with a friend has left the 1,100 residents of this rural community in "shock and disbelief" as they ponder the first kidnapping here in recent memory.

"I've lived here for 28 years, all my life. You never had to worry about anything," said a weeping Sheree Ackerman, whose daughter, 7-year-old Melissa Ackerman, was kidnapped Sunday seven blocks from home.

One charged

HOUSTON (AP) — The brother of a Houston fireman was held in jail without bond today on charges he accidentally set a fire while making a Molotov cocktail, killing his mother and a young niece.

Gary Leslie Sharp, 22, was arrested Tuesday on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

The SDN Column

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The best substitute for brains is silence."

It was suppose to be a newspaper open house, but three baseball buffs got together by accident Sunday afternoon and did everything but have batting practice.

Walter Buckel, publisher of the Lamesa Press-Reporter, played professional baseball for the old Lamesa Loboes. He was here for the open house and ran into Snyder's Speedy Moffett and Skipper Joyce.

Moffett, Joyce and Blue Lowry--without a doubt--are the top baseball authorities in Snyder. Everybody was here except Blue who was likely off watching some major league game.

Skipper Joyce said he recalled the time he was manager of the Snyder Little League All-Stars and they were entered in a tournament in Lamesa.

The year was 1953 or 1954 and Speedy Moffett was president of the Snyder league and Buckel was president of the Lamesa league and tournament commissioner.

Snyder was supposed to play Big Spring whose coach was unable to produce birth certificates to verify the ages of the ball players. Joyce and Moffett asked for a forfeit.

Buckel granted the forfeit after Big Spring could not produce any type of documents. Snyder then played Lamesa the following day, and none of the three could remember who won.

Moffett, who played semi-pro ball and later was the successful head coach of the Snyder Tigers, said he remembers watching Buckel play. "He was a good shortstop, but couldn't hit. If he ever got on base, he could really turn those corners."

Speedy asked if Buck could still circle those bases. "You're not suppose to be able to 40 years later," Buck countered."

Buckel told Joyce he signed his contract to play pro ball for $75 a month. "I never made enough money to leave town."

Farm loan date nears

June 24 is the final date to file an application for an emergency farm loan for losses caused by last summer's drought and extreme high temperatures.

According to Dennis Cumbie, acting county supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), to qualify for an emergency loan, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production.

Farmers participating in the PIK or federal crop insurance programs will have to figure in proceeds from those programs in determining their loss.

The FmHA office serving this area is located in Rotan at 111 B on North Garfield.

Wife says she tipped off FBI to ring

WEST DENNIS, Mass. (AP) — The former wife of a retired Navy communications specialist charged with running a spy ring involving his son and brother said in an interview published today, "I did what I believed in" by tipping the FBI about the operation.

As John A. Walker Jr. and his son, Michael, pleaded innocent Tuesday in Baltimore to espionage charges, Barbara Joy Crowley Walker said that she and her daughter Laura Walker Snyder went to authorities in Boston several months ago.

John Walker, 47, is charged with masterminding a spy ring the FBI says sold secrets to the Soviet Union for at least 20 years. The FBI alleges Walker tried to recruit Ms. Snyder, an Army communications specialist from 1978 to 1979.

Ms. Snyder has not been charged and her whereabouts have not been publicly disclosed.

"Why in the name of all that's holy did I wait so long?" Mrs. Walker said in an interview with The Cape Cod Times. "You have the answer. It is because of what's happening to my family and my children."

In an interview Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Cynthia, Mrs. Walker, divorced in 1976, said, "I did what I believed in."

At times fighting back tears, she said her son "is very important to me," adding that reporters should now "allow them (the Justice Department) to do what has to be done in order to bring this thing to an end."

John Walker was arrested May 20; Michael, 22, on May 22; John Walker's brother, Arthur, 50, on May 29; and Jerry A. Whitworth of Davis, Calif., on Monday. Arthur Walker faces a preliminary hearing June 12 in Norfolk, Va. Whitworth was arraigned Monday and faces another hearing Friday.

John Walker, a Norfolk private detective, and Arthur, an engineer with a defense contractor near Norfolk, are retired Navy officers. Michael is a seaman aboard the aircraft carrier USS Nimitz. Whitworth is a retired Navy radioman.

The New York Times reported today that the FBI has turned its attention to Jacksonville, Fla., after agents found a recent navigator's map of the city in John Walker's plane and a city phone book in his office.

Bush touched by survivors' courage

WHEATLAND, Pa. (AP) — A shirtless Irvin Moldovan sat on a chair before a heap of scrap that was once his home and offered a strawberry to Vice President George Bush, who was touched by the courage of survivors in this tornado-battered industrial hamlet.

"I'm alive. My family's alive. You don't stand back and feel sorry. You have to push ahead," said Moldovan, 62.

Bush, touring the destruction Tuesday from last week's killer storms, took the fruit and gave the white-haired man, who offered to sell his house for 27 cents, an autographed pocketknife stamped with the vice presidential seal.

Later, speaking in front of the roofless ruins of a church, Bush praised those digging out.

"In spite of the devastation, you can't help but feel a sense of pride at the courage of the people as they fight back. It inspires the whole country," a coatless Bush said after a one-hour walk through the rubble. "We must do everything we can to help the human suffering and help this courageous community that wants to fight back."

Sixteen counties in Pennsylvania and Ohio were declared federal disaster areas by President Reagan on Monday, making them available for federal money and low-interest loans.

The vice president walked with Gov. Dick Thornburgh and Mayor Helen Duby through the ravaged borough near the Ohio border. Seven people in the area were killed, 57 families were left homeless and a dozen plants and businesses were wrecked, costing an estimated 600 jobs.

Tornadoes clobbered areas of Canada, Ohio and Pennsylvania on Friday, killing 86 people. In hardest-hit Pennsylvania, 62 people died, 700 were injured, 1,602 houses were destroyed and 342 homes damaged.

In Wheatland, the vice president shook his head in disbelief and muttered "my heavens" at the ruins. He stopped to chat with Claire Wojtanowski, 62, whose house had jagged holes in the roof, a junked kitchen and a wrecked living room.

Peggy Childs, 31, said she found her wedding band 2½ blocks from her demolished home. The only other things she saved were a picture of her 7-year-old son, John Michael, and two pairs of her husband's pants.

"We have nothing. In 20 seconds, my two-story brick home was flat," Mrs. Childs said. "But we're survivors. You can't just throw up your hands. Life goes on, and you go on with it."

Deliberations continue in El Paso libel trial

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A state district court jury was to enter its second full day of deliberations today in the trial of a $24 million libel lawsuit against The El Paso Times and former Mayor Tom Westfall.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated for seven hours Tuesday and 30 minutes Monday after getting the case that was filed in April 1980 by former Mayor Ray Salazar and real estate developer Joe Foster.

Tuesday afternoon, jurors informed District Judge Jerry Woodard, who presided over the three-week trial, that they were hung up on three of the four issues they were asked to decide.

Woodard told the panel to continue its discussion, saying if it cannot render a verdict on all the issues, the case will have to be retried.

Salazar and Foster contend that several articles and statements made by Westfall in a 1979 interview with a Times reporter defamed them and damaged their business reputations.

Use fast-acting yeast and whip up bread, rolls, muffins, or coffee cake in less than a couple of hours. The new rising agent can be used wherever yeast is called for in a recipe. The main difference between fast-acting yeast and the old-fashioned kind is that the new yeast requires only half the usual rising time.

SCS Notes

Don't forget wildlife when harvesting wheat and oats. Quail, mourning dove, turkey, and other birds find food and cover in fields of small grains.

Strips of unharvested grain around field edges near brush or tall grasses provide excellent food for quail and turkey. Quail and dove will use unharvested strips along terraces or around areas in the field that are too wet to cultivate. Mourning dove will feed on shattered seed where soils are shallow and the stand of grain is thin.

Even if the entire field is combined, these same areas can be left untilled until next planting season to benefit wildlife. Without tillage, waste grain is available to the birds and an eight inch stubble provides suitable cover until it deteriorates.

If an area in the field has a thin stand of wheat and a good stand of native sunflowers, save this area for dove hunting next September.

Do not burn the small grain stubble. Wildlife benefits are lost as well as organic matter; it also exposes the soil to erosion. The Upper Colorado SWCD and U.S. Soil Conservation Service encourages soil protection through proper use of small grain residues.

"BOY! LOOKS LIKE MRS. WILSON'S GOING TO HAVTA GIVE YOU A BATH TONIGHT!"

Bird hopes to regain wings as series continues tonight

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Any hitter would be happy with a .393 batting average. As a shooting percentage in basketball, it's worse than mediocre.

For the NBA's Most Valuable Player, Larry Bird, .393 is a total disaster.

"For the past several weeks, I've been shooting the ball extremely well in practice," Bird says. "It's just that in games, the shots haven't dropped."

In his last five National Basketball Association playoff games, including the first three of Boston's championship series with the Los Angeles Lakers, Bird has made only 35 of 89 field-goal attempts.

If the Celtics are to rally from a 2-1 deficit in tonight's fourth game of the best-of-seven series, they need Bird to snap out of the doldrums.

"Of course Larry is vital for us," Coach K.C. Jones said Tuesday. "He's the MVP of the league, isn't he? But if we have to depend solely on Larry, we're in trouble."

"Larry is the guy to carry us," said center-forward Kevin McHale, who is leading the Celtics in scoring against the Lakers with 24 points per game. "We go with Larry and he can take us anywhere."

Despite Bird's slump, the Lakers are under no illusion that he might quit shooting tonight.

"I look for him to be very aggressive offensively," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "He might take as many as 30 shots."

Bird has been troubled in the postseason by elbow, finger and ankle injuries, but he steadfastly refuses to use them as an excuse.

When he sat out one game of the first-round series against Cleveland to rest his elbow, he came back to score 34 points in his next outing.

Michael Cooper, who along with James Worthy plays against Bird defensively, says in tonight's game he expects Bird to "go inside, use his weight advantage and get more rebounds. Once he gets going, it creates a different ballclub for them."

"I'd like to get us going because I know I provide leadership for them, but I don't think I can do everything," said Bird. "We've got some guys playing extremely well right now. Kevin played a great game Sunday (in a 136-111 Boston loss). We just need four or five guys clicking on the same cylinder. We've just been hitting and missing. Once we get four or five guys rolling, we're going to be tough to stop."

TENNIS

PARIS (AP) - John McEnroe, fighting back from a 3-1 deficit in the final set, edged Sweden's Joakim Nystrom 6-7, 6-2, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5, to move into the semifinals of the French Open tennis championships.

Dead Soldier's Papers Now Become a Troubling Legacy

DEAR ABBY: Before his death some 15 years ago, a friend of mine showed me some identification papers he took from the body of a German soldier he had killed shortly before the end of the war. He said that for years he had felt guilty for having consigned another soldier—even an enemy—to an unknown grave. He asked me to translate the papers and forward the information to the German authorities so the soldier's family would have definite information about his death. With my meager high school knowledge of German, I translated the information and promised to forward it to the proper authorities.

I delayed doing the task, stored the papers away and forget about them. I came across them recently, and I'm wondering if, at this late date, I should do something about the matter. I feel strange to be the only person in the world to know the final saga of a dead soldier whose family must still be wondering about his fate.

I decided to ask your advice. After all these years, would it be better to withhold this information and let the survivors alone in the resignation they have probably achieved by now? Would I open old wounds by forwarding the papers? Or if I should reveal the information, whom shall I contact?

I will be grateful for your advice and abide by it.

V.H., SANTA FE, N.M.

DEAR V.H.: The families of soldiers missing in action never forget. I assure you they would be thrilled to have this information. Enemy or ally, that soldier was somebody's son, brother, husband, lover or father. Please write to: Bundesarchiv-Zentralnachweisstelle, 5000100 Aachen, Kornelimuenster, Abteistr 6, West Germany.

DEAR ABBY: "No Names, Please" complained because her parents and her husband's never offered to keep the grandchildren so they (the parents) could get a little rest.

Well, we are grandparents who have been denied the pleasure of having our grandchildren overnight.

Why? The parents say we "spoil" the children because we let them eat, drink and do whatever they want. We also let them stay up late to watch TV. We're told: "It takes a lot of hard work on our part to undo all the harm you do when you keep the kids overnight."

DOTING GRANDMA

DEAR DOTING: In a word, Grandma, no.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your letter about unwanted summer guests: My husband and I resolved a similar situation when we built our swimming pool.

We put in a flagpole and sent beautiful announcements to inform our friends and relatives that we had built a swimming pool. We added that when the flag was flying, they were welcome, but when the flag was down, they were not. The flag was placed where it could be seen by those approaching our home.

This system has worked perfectly for 21 years.

Methodists adopt fidelity guidelines

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Lay committee members in the Southwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church have adopted new moral standards on marital fidelity and celibacy.

The new guidelines, condemned by one delegate as anti-gay, were approved Monday by 1,000 delegates attending the conference convention.

The new rules call for lay committee members to abide by the same rules of marital fidelity and celibacy when single that apply to the clergy.

The rules was endorsed despite protests from Austin layman Troy Stokes, who said the church is trying to exclude homosexuals from serving on committees and in the clergy.

Stokes said he plans to inform the superintendent of the conference's Austin district that two pastors are guilty of marital infidelity.

Stokes said the rule is intended "just to be there to soothe those who hate homosexuals, who in the minds of the authors are so meek and wimpy that they would never protest.

"But I will protest to correct a distorted, stereotyped perception of gay people. Another motivation is to deter the Southwest Conference from is theft of reputation of gay people," he said.

Stokes did not speak at the convention, but circulated leaflets to delegates outlining his position.

San Antonio delegate Don Hand, who proposed the amendment, said one standard is needed for both clergy and laity.

"Everyone who holds himself out to be a Christian ought to be willing to have his life held up as an example of Christianity," he said.

But he said he thinks Stokes "would have the church give its blessing to the practice of homosexuality."

The Defense Department announced in 1965 that the first contingent of U.S. combat troops — 3,500 Marines — was being sent to fight Communist guerrillas in South Vietnam.

Demo accuses Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Reagan embarks today on another trip to promote his tax simplification plan, a Democratic leader is accusing him of "preaching one thing and practicing another" by making partisan speeches on the tax issue.

Reagan was to speak today and Thursday at fund-raising events for Republican senators seeking re-election in Oklahoma, Georgia and Alabama. That, according to Sen. George Mitchell of Maine, chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, smacks of partisanship.

"The president is preaching one thing and practicing another," Mitchell said Tuesday. "In Washington, he is asking Democratic leaders for bipartisan support on his tax program. At the same time, his trips, which are billed as selling the tax program to the American people, are highly partisan. How can he ask for bipartisanship on the one hand and lead political pep rallies on the other?"

Mitchell, a member of the Finance Committee that considers tax legislation, said Republican incumbents in all three states, where Reagan's appearances are expected to reap an estimated $850,000, are regarded as vulnerable. So, he said, are GOP senators who appeared with Reagan at tax simplification rallies in Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Florida last week.

Reagan's remarks at a fund-raising dinner for Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., in Miami last week were sharply partisan, accusing Democrats of "pitting white against black, women against men, young against old." He avoided partisanship, however, in Williamsburg, Va., and in Oshkosh, Wis., where Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., introduced him, and in Malvern, Pa., where he shared the platform with Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa. Virginia does not have a Senate race this year.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan's speech at today's fund-raising luncheon for Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., would "have a number of other things involved, current issues," as well as tax simplification.

Speakes said the White House would keep track of the president's time, down to the quarter of an hour, and bill the campaign committees for the portion of it spent on political activity.

Former state representative serving as jail trusty

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Bob Valles served four terms in the Texas Legislature before being convicted of official misconduct.

Now, Valles passes time awaiting a bail denial appeal in the El Paso County Jail, doing laundry and doing administrative work as a "trusty."

"He's a trusty at his own request," Sheriff Leo Samaniego said Tuesday, "And he's been a good one. I have no complaints. He's a hard-working guy - no trouble whatsoever."

Samaniego said Valles works in the jail laundry, and he also is assigned to booking, releasing and property divisions.

"He just wants to be working," Samaniego told The El Paso Times. "It makes the time go by faster."

Inmate says...

Love led him to slay guard

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Texas prison inmate told investigators he stabbed a female guard to death because he loved her and "couldn't live without her," an officer investigating the case says.

Minnie Houston, 41, was found dead about 9:30 p.m. Monday in a bathroom adjoining an employee dining room near the Texas Department of Corrections Ellis I Unit outside Huntsville.

Billy Linville, who investigates TDC matters for the Walker County sheriff's office, said Ellis inmate Ramon Mata Jr. admitted to the slaying Tuesday in a six-page confession.

Mata, 36, serving 30 years for a Pecos County murder, was transferred to Walker County Jail, where he was being held on a capital murder charge in the guard's death.

According to his confession, Mata claimed he killed Ms. Houston because he loved her and he "couldn't live without her," Linville said. "I guess he had some kind of intimate feeling toward her ... He's living in a fantasy world. That's my opinion."

Ms. Houston, a TDC employee since October 1979, was assigned to supervise the seven-member crew of inmate trusties — which included Mata — at the dining area, TDC spokesman Charles Brown said.

Mata was spotted leaving the building at the time of the stabbing, Brown said. He then drove Ms. Houston's automobile to the main prison unit where he turned himself in to prison officials, Brown said.

Investigators said the guard had been stabbed about 10 times from behind with a 15-inch butcher knife. The weapon was found in Ms. Houston's car, and Mata's clothes were bloody, officials said.

Ms. Houston's late husband, Robert Houston, also worked as a guard at the Ellis I Unit until he died in an August 1975 traffic accident, Brown said.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR GOTT — My mother had her gallbladder removed several years ago. At that time, the doctors told her that they also had removed several stones in her ducts and that she was now "clean." After several years of good health, my mother's attacks resumed. Her doctor told her that the pain was all in her head, and he prescribed Valium. Is it possible that they left something in her?

DEAR READER — Yes. The surgeon could have left a gallstone. Sometimes small stones are inadvertently missed during an operation and later enlarge to cause symptoms.

I assume that you are asking if the surgeon may have accidentally left in something else, like an instrument. Again, my answer is yes. This type of accident is unlikely, but possible.

A far more common cause of your mother's attacks would be new gallstones. If she is a stone-former, she may have made a whole new set of stones that could be causing pain, although she is minus a gallbladder.

I think it's risky for any doctor who has not carried out a thorough evaluation to insist that abdominal pain is in the head. Head pain is called headache; abdominal pain is sometimes elusive to diagnose — but it is usually real.

At the very least, your mother needs medical tests to identify the cause of her pain. These tests should include an ultrasound exam. Perhaps your mother could obtain better medical care if she found a doctor who was more willing to take her complaints seriously. Valium is a great drug, but it is much too frequently prescribed. I believe that in your mother's case, other treatment would be far more satisfactory.

DEAR DR GOTT — I'm concerned about fiber and diet and have begun to add unprocessed miller's bran to my food. However, a friend told me that it was dangerous to introduce bran into my diet all at once, but that it should be increased gradually over time. Is unprocessed miller's bran important for a high-fiber diet? Are other foods just as good? What's the relationship between a high-fiber diet and diseases of the digestive tract?

DEAR READER — I am not aware that the sudden introduction of bran into anyone's diet is dangerous, providing the amount of bran is not gigantic. However, if you notice digestive problems stemming from your new-formed healthful diet, back off and use your own judgment.

Bran consists of undigestable vegetable fiber. In general, uncooked vegetables are also a good source of this fiber. So rather than put all your eggs in the bran basket, you may enjoy more dietary variety if you choose to supplement your bran with alads. Oat bran is good, too.

In a 180-degree switch from previous dogma, doctors now recommend high-fiber diets for many intestinal disorders, like chronic constipation and diverticulosis. Colo-rectal cancer and breast tumors may be prevented by high fiber. Some experts believe that serum cholestrol can be lowered by bran-like foods.

Current information appears to indicate that Americans need to increase dietary fiber. How much increase is still debated but, certainly, two or three portions of vegetable fiber a day should suffice.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Court rules feds can cut trees

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that, at least temporarily and under certain conditions, the U.S. Forest Service can continue to cut down sections of five national wilderness areas in a quest to halt pine beetle infestation.

U.S. District Judge William Steger on Tuesday denied a request from a state agency and two environmental groups for a preliminary injunction that would have halted all cutting of trees in wilderness areas in Texas pending a trial later this year.

Man charged in gang shooting

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 20-year-old man has been charged with murder in connection with the Sunday shooting death of another man in what police have characterized as a youth gang fight.

John David Garcia of Fort Worth was being held in Fort Worth City Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond, according to authorities.

Garcia and a 16-year-old were arrested Sunday morning after the shooting spree which killed Domingo Duran Jr., 22, and injured nine others, including some children.

In Scurry County...

WIC Program benefits needy

More low-income women, infants, and children who are at nutritional risk will be receiving food assistance and nutrition education in Scurry County this month due to the WIC Program.

Local officials of the Texas Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC) are encouraging those who feel they may be eligible to apply for WIC services. To apply for WIC benefits, contact your local WIC office for an appointment at 573-9705. The office is located at 503 East Highway in Snyder.

WIC participants receive a monthly supply of nutritious foods such as milk, eggs, fruit juice, iron-fortified cereal and iron-fortified infant formula.

Monthly nutrition education classes are also provided so that WIC participants can learn about the relationship between health and good nutrition and how to buy and prepare nutritious meals.

To receive this assistance, participants must have health or nutrition-related problems and meet specified low-income criteria.

"Eating a nutritious diet is one of the most important things a pregnant woman can do to help assure a healthy baby; but eating a nutritious diet isn't always as easy as it sounds," according to Catherine Litteer, nutritionist and chief administer of the WIC Program in Texas. That is why she is encouraging low-income pregnant and breastfeeding women, infants and children up to five years old, who have been found to be the most vulnerable to the effects of malnutrition, to apply for WIC service.

"Some pregnant women simply can't afford a nutritious diet, and some don't know how to plan one," explained Litteer. "The consequences of poor, prenatal nutrition can be anemia, toxemia, prematurity, low-birthweight infants, complications in delivery, or other maternal or infant illnesses."

The benefits of good prenatal nutrition, achieved through the WIC Program has been documented in a study conducted by the Harvard University's School of Public Health. The study found that every $1 spent to aid pregnant women avoided $3 in hospital costs that would have been spent for treatment of their babies. The cost to taxpayers is less to prevent complications then to pay costs resulting from complications. Since the program is delivered through local health care agencies, WIC also encourages early and frequent prenatal and child health care.

The ultimate goal is to achieve a positive change in dietary habits that will improve participants' nutritional status. The futuristic nature of the program, training young mothers, who will in turn teach their children good eating habits, has far reaching potential.

Billy Bob Hardee retired June 1 from TESCO

After 35 years of service with Texas Electric Service Company (TESCO), Billy Bob Hardee retired June 1 as local manager of the company's Colorado City office.

Hardee will be replaced by Ben D. Lancaster, who has been local manager of TESCO's Ranger office for the last 15 years.

Hardee joined the company as a salesman in Snyder during the 1950 oil boom. In 1967 he transferred to the Sweetwater sales department. Two years alter he was transferred to Big Spring where he worked in oil field sales for both Big Spring and Sweetwater Divisions of TESCO.

Since 1972, Hardee has been the local manager for TESCO in Colorado City.

Government gets Cauble businesses in settlement

DENTON, Texas — After three years of legal wrangling, federal authorities have announced the largest forfeiture under federal racketeering laws, with the government gaining control of a bank worth almost $30 million and two western wear stores from convicted millionaire rancher Rex Cauble.

At a news conference in Denton, U.S. Attorney Robert Wortham of Beaumont said the federal government will receive the controlling interest of Western State Bank in Denton and the two Cutter Bill Western Wear stores debt free. One store is in Dallas and the other is in Houston.

According to the Department of Justice's Asset Forefeiture Divsion, the settlement marks the largest forefeiture in the United States under the Racketeering Influence and Corrupt Organizations Act. The bank in December listed assets of $29.2 million.

The government gets 87 percent of the Denton bank's stock, previously owned by Cauble, his wife and son.

Wortham said the store buildings will be leased by the government, and a Dec. 5 deadline has been given for the stores to vacate the property.

Judge refuses ban on polygraph tests

HOUSTON (AP) — A state employees union should have acted sooner if it wanted to protest the administration of lie detector tests to Texas prison guards, a federal judge says.

The Texas State Employees Union filed papers with U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice in January arguing the polygraph tests violated guards' constitutional and privacy rights.

But Justice on Tuesday refused to halt the tests, which are given to both guards and inmates when investigating prisoners' brutality complaints.

"It seems clear that the applicants (union) have been, at the least, less than diligent in asserting their interests in this civil action," Justice wrote.

Justice said the union should have raised its arguments against the tests earlier, and added that attorneys for the state and plaintiff inmates signed an agreement over the issue 14 months ago.

The court agreement, part of an attempt to end assaults against prisoners by Texas Department of Corrections officers, allows the tests during brutality investigations. Under the agreement, an employee will be fired for refusing to comply with a TDC order requiring him to undergo a polygraph test.

The stipulation was part of a 13-year-old lawsuit inmates filed against the TDC. Justice in 1981 ordered the state to undertake massive reforms, and the suit could be resolved in a few months if he accepts a settlement reached last month between attorneys for the state and the inmates.

Tom Mullins, a Houston organizer for the union, said he was not surprised by Justice's ruling.

"I think we were trying to show something that no one wanted to be brought to light," Mullins said, adding that some employees believe that TDC may be using polygraph testing as a means to get rid of them.

"It's easy to threaten somebody with a lie detector test. A lot are scared about it. It's a very intimidating experience," he said.

Japanese engineers unveil plan

DALLAS (AP) — Japanese engineers have unveiled plans for a $333.9 million high-speed train that could whisk passengers on a 30-minute, $5 ride between Dallas and Fort Worth.

The proposed system would have 12 stops between the two cities, including Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Many have access to secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials are concerned that too many people are being given access to secret documents, and a recent security report to President Reagan warned that "far greater efforts are needed to limit national security clearances."

Some 4.3 million Americans have the right to read classified information, government officials say.

Concern over the proliferation of security clearances has been heightened by the unfolding Navy espionage case in which four men — including John A. Walker Jr., his son and brother — are charged with selling secrets to the Soviets.

"We have an absurd number of people who are being cleared," Georgia Sen. Sam Nunn, ranking Democrat on the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Tuesday.

Michael I. Burch, the Pentagon's chief spokesman, said the Defense Department has been studying ways of tightening its procedures for awarding security clearances for three years, but has yet to make any specific changes.

The number holding clearances has sparked concern by the Information Security Oversight Office, a 2-year-old agency which operates at the direction of the National Security Council.

"There's been a recognition that there's a lot of reform to be done in the personal security area," says director Steven Garfinkel.

In an annual report submitted to the president six weeks ago, the oversight office expressed concern "that far too many individuals receive clearances for access to national security information."

"All too often, agencies grant clearances by habit, or as a badge of prestige, rather than as a requisite of job responsibilities," the report said. "Far greater efforts are needed to limit national security clearances to persons whose work necessitates access to national security information."

Of the 4.3 million with clearance for classified information, the vast majority are eligible to see documents labeled no higher than "secret."

George Woloshyn, associate director of the Office of Personnel Management's compliance and investigations group, which monitors clearances, said 800,000 people have "top secret" clearances.

Of that number, 135,000 have the highest clearance, for what is called special compartmentalized information.

More than 3.1 million hold "secret" clearance and the lowest clearance, "confidential," is held by about 350,000 people.

Because of the large numbers of people with clearances, Woloshyn said, periodic reinvestigations of those holding them have been confined to those with top-secret or higher clearances. If one holds only a secret clearance, there is no periodic investigation, he said.

City in uproar over film shown

The film, titled "Whose Life Is It Anyway?," was recently shown to seventh-graders at Vidor Junior High School as part of a new district program to provide supplemental classroom materials.

The school board last month proposed the policy, which allows a principal to select supplemental teaching materials that are considered suitable, relevant and educational to students. The board must review the proposal once again before it is finally approved.

But Virginia Payne, an unsuccessful candidate in the April school board election and member of a group called Citizens for Excellence in Education, said she complained to police because "Whose Life" contains frontal nudity. The movie, she said, violates an obscenity ordinance in the city about five miles northeast of Beaumont.

The recently passed law forbids the sale and display of any "material or performance that the average person, applying contemporary community standards, would find that, taken as a whole, appeals to the prurient interest in sex." Such items, according to the law, "taken as a whole, lack serious literary, artistic, political and scientific value."

The statute also forbids showing pornography to children under the age of 17.

Violation of the ordinance is a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a maximum $200 fine.

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" features actor Richard Dreyfuss as a paralyzed artist who resists a hospital's efforts to keep him alive. The film was rated "R."

Orange County Sheriff James Wade told the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal Tuesday that he conducted an unofficial investigation and found the movie, which was shown in an edited version, was not pornographic.

"I'm satisfied with the actions they (the school board) are taking," Wade said. "They're doing proper."

Wade said he discussed the movie with County Attorney Steve Howard and would not conduct a further investigation.

However, Vidor Assistant Police Chief Sam Kittrell said he would speak to City Attorney Jerry Hatton "as soon as possible" to determine if the movie is pornographic.

Ms. Payne said she also has complained to administrators and teachers about two other movies shown to schoolchildren — "Clash of the Titans" and "Growing Up Stoned."

Parenting classes planned at WTC

Improving relationships between parents and teenagers will be the focus of an effective parenting course scheduled by the Continuing Education department of Western Texas College.

Classes are to meet from 7:30-9 p.m. on Mondays from June 10 to Aug. 12. Winona Curfman, local foster home development worker for the Child Protective Services of the Texas Department of Human Resources, will be the instructor. She holds the master in social work degree from Our Lady of the Lake University and is the mother of three teenagers.

The 10 classes at WTC will be based on "Systematic Training for Effective Parenting of Teen" (STEP/Teen). STEP/Teen is a sequel to Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP), the most widely used parent education program in the country.

More than one million people throughout the United States, Canada and other countries have participated in STEP and STEP/Teen discussion groups since American Guidance Service introduced the original STEP program in 1976.

"STEP/Teen encourages mutual respect between parents and teens," Mrs. Curfman pointed out. "It leads to increased cooperation, more effective communication and a more responsible self-reliant attitude among teenagers."

Record oil recovery forecast

AUSTIN (AP) — Advanced technology in recovering oil from known reservoirs could bring Texas oil producers and the state billions of dollars in the future, according to former Gov. Bill Clements.

"It will have enormous implications for the economy of the state as well as our national security," Clements told the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association on Tuesday.

"We're talking about in the future producing from the known reservoirs of the state the equivalent amount of oil that we have produced to date," Clements said.

Clements founded SEDCO Inc., an international oil drilling firm in 1947. SEDCO was merged with Schlumberger Limited in 1984. Clements was the final speaker at the annual TIPRO meeting.

Clements, Texas' only Republican governor this century, served from 1978 to 1982. He said he was making a nonpartisan effort to stress the importance of the oil and gas industry to the state and nation.

"I'm not running for anything," Clements told reporters after his speech, adding that he thought Democratic Gov. Mark White was "very vulnerable."

Clements has been considered a possible candidate for governor in 1986 and instrumental in getting a strong GOP candidate to run against White.

"We have had no national energy policy from the end of World War II to this date," said Clements, a former deputy U.S. secretary of defense. "This includes four Democratic and four Republican presidents. I don't think we can afford the luxury of not having an energy policy."

Clements said the nation's $63 billion trade deficit, of which about half was caused by imported oil, is a "serious problem."

"It not only affects our national security from a logistical standpoint, but it affects our relationship with both Canada and Mexico.

"If Mexico is to recover from the doldrums it is now in, it will be through its relationship through energy with the United States. That is their salvation," Clements said. "It is very important to Mexico and only slightly less with Canada."

He predicted that crude oil prices will remain "relatively stable" at about the current levels "and then gradually increase by about 50 percent by the year 2000."

The hope for the oil and gas industry in Texas and the nation lies in future technology, Clements said.

"It has to do with technology and research," he said. "We have not recovered more than 40 percent of those primary reserves by either primary or secondary recovery efforts.

"Think of all the billions and billions of barrels of oil we have produced," he said. "They are only 40 percent of what we know is there.

"I will forecast to you that by the year 2000 we will have evolved a system of research and development through technology that will let us reach out and remove half of those remaining reserves.

"And in the next 25 years we will produce another amount of oil equivalent to what we have produced to date," Clements said.

Houston leads major metro growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Houston and Dallas have grown the fastest since 1980 among U.S. urban areas with more than 1 million people, while Salt Lake City joined that select million-plus population club for the first time, the Census Bureau reports.

The new Census study of metropolitan areas released Tuesday reflected a continuing Western and Southern population shift, with the Houston-Galveston-Brazoria region becoming the nation's fastest-growing major metropolitan area with a 15 percent population spurt between 1980 and 1984.

That growth, to 3,565,700, pushed the Houston area past Washington, D.C., and its suburbs on the list of large metro areas. The nation's capital dropped from eighth to ninth place despite a 5.5 percent growth to 3,429,400 residents.

The study also reported that the number of metropolitan areas with more than a million people has climbed to 37, with the addition of Salt Lake City-Ogden. Charlotte-Gastonia-Rock Hill, N.C.-S.C. joined that list last year to add to the 35 such places counted in the 1980 census.

In general, metropolitan statistical areas are defined as regions of common economic interest with a city of at least 50,000 people at the center.

Nationally, there are 277 such areas designated by the Office of Management and Budget, ranging from massive New York City down to Enid, Okla., with a population estimated at 65,400.

In the growth sweepstakes, close behind Houston was Dallas-Fort Worth, with 14.2 percent growth to bring its population to 3,348,000. It ranked 10th in both 1980 and 1984.

The New York City metro area, including portions of New Jersey and Connecticut, remained firmly atop the list with a 1984 population of 17,807,100 people.

That was an increase of 1.5 percent from 1980, reversing a decline that had occurred during the 1970s, Census officials said.

Of the 37 largest metropolitan areas, besides Houston and Dallas, eight others grew by 10 percent or more between 1980 and 1984, all in the South or West.

They were Atlanta, San Diego, Tampa-St. Petersburg-Clearwater, Fla.; Denver-Boulder; Phoenix, Ariz.; Sacramento, Calif.; San Antonio, Texas, and Salt Lake City-Ogden.

Five large metropopolitan areas continued losing population, as they did during the 1970s. These were Detroit-Ann Arbor; Cleveland-Akron-Lorain; Pittsburgh-Beaver Valley; Milwaukee-Racine, and Buffalo-Niagara Falls, N.Y.

In addition to New York City, major metropolitan areas that lost people in the 1970s but reversed that trend since 1980 included Philadelphia-Wilmington-Trenton and St. Louis.

Some of the smaller metropolitan areas, with less of a population base to start with, showed even greater percentages of growth than the large areas, the Census Bureau added. And Florida and Texas accounted for 10 of the 11 fastest-growing metro areas, the bureau said.

On a percentage basis, the bureau listed the fastest growing metro areas as: Midland, Texas, 113,600, up 38 percent; Anchorage, Alaska, 226,700, up 30 percent; Naples, Fla., 110,800, up 29 percent; Ocala, Fla., 155,600, up 27 percent; Fort Pierce, Fla., 190,200, up 26 percent;

Also Bryan-College Station, Texas, 117,400, up 25 percent; Odessa, Texas, 144,500, up 25 percent; Fort Myers-Cape Coral, Fla., 252,900, up 23 percent; Melbourne-Titusville-Palm Bay, Fla., 329,500, up 21 percent; Austin, Texas, 645,400, up 20 percent; West Palm Beach-Boca Raton-Delray Beach, Fla., 692,200, up 20 percent.

Wheat sale marks beginning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Firing the first shot from its new farm export weapon, the United States has announced a million-ton subsidized sale of wheat to Algeria.

Agriculture Secretary John Block announced the sale on Tuesday as the first transaction under what could total $2 billion in export subsidies over the next three years.

Block said the sale would add $117 million to American farm exports this year and would strike back at what the United States considers unfair subsidies which the European Economic Community has used to steal U.S. customers, especially in the Mediterranean region.

"We have found our back to the wall, and we are prepared to go out and compete and play some hardball if we have to," Block said in announcing the sale, which represents one-third of Algeria's annual wheat import needs. "It is a risky, yet necessary step."

The U.S. share of the Algerian wheat market dropped from 41 percent in 1979-80 to 16 percent five years later. During the same period EEC exports to that country grew from 29 percent to 59 percent.

"The world must realize that the American farmer has lost 25 percent of our export markets in the last five years," Block told a news conference. "That is economically nothing short of intolerable, and politically it is intolerable."

Block said the sale would be limited to non-durum wheat, the kind used to make bread.

Almost immediately after the announcement, Block left for six days of meetings with agriculture officials in the Netherlands, Belgium and France. He has said the EEC will be one of the primary targets of the new program, known as export PIK, for payment in kind.

Besides restoring U.S. market share abroad, Block said, export PIK is intended as leverage to bring other agricultural exporters to the bargaining table to work on "some international rules of order" to govern farm trade.

At a recent seven-nation economic summit, France balked at suggestions for a new multilateral round of trade talks.

Under the export program, the government will give away federally owned commodities acquired under price support programs to exporters who complete sales to countries periodically targeted by the U.S. government.

The amount of the commodity given away will depend on competing bids submitted by exporting companies. Presumably, the government subsidy would be passed through to the ultimate purchaser to bring down the overall price of the deal, but the department has not yet specified exactly how that part of the program will work.

Commodity groups and exporters have expressed worry about whether the new program will have any significant effect on the steady erosion of the U.S. share of world markets in major commodities like wheat, corn and cotton.

Religious 'right' reacts to new court ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some members of the religious right are so outraged over the newest Supreme Court ruling on prayer in the schools that they are calling it "an act of war against this nation's religious heritage."

But to civil libertarians, Tuesday's decision is "a major victory to keep religious activity out of the nation's public schools."

The court fueled the controversy anew with a ruling that forbids daily moments of silence if students are told they may pray during that time. The decision, 6-3, strongly reaffirmed the court's 1962 ban on organized prayer in public schools.

Among conservative members of Congress, the immediate reaction was a vow to renew the push for a constitutional amendment to allow group prayers in public schools.

"We must hold hearings as soon as we can ... on the silent prayer amendment," Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said. "The real issue isn't the form of the prayer. It's ending the governmental ban on school prayer ... which is what is offensive to most people."

set of photos, he was required to literally "freeze" to avoid blur.

"Nobody moves and nobody gets hurt," Collins joked as he prepared to take the picture.

Collins' visit in Snyder was brought about through his friendship with Bynum, who he has met at gatherings of the Professional Photographer's Association.

The photos of Taylor's eagle creation was commissioned through Bynum, who requested Collins help him with the shoot.

With the photo session completed, Collins visited briefly to discuss his career and techniques.

His said his thinking process involves the "specular" range of light — and he says he studies it as it moves from "the brightness of the shine to the brightness of the diffused. Plus all the in-between places."

But he acknowledges his light theories are "like trying to explain math" — a comparison he used often when discussing lighting.

"In my classes, I have a multi-media show of slides to go with the talk. It's funny, but some people get it immediately and others don't.

"I remember once it was the wife of a photographer who came up to me after the show and said, 'I understand it. It's great.'".

reported 2 inches.

The area east of Snyder recorded 2.02 inches. The west area reported 2 inches and the area to the north of the city reported 3 inches. Dunn reported 2.25 inches and Camp Springs recorded three inches.

The heaviest rainfall in West Texas was at Sudan, where 9 inches fell between 7 p.m. Tuesday and dawn Wednesday. Elsewhere rainfall amounts included about 2 inches at Wichita Falls and about one-half inch at Lubbock, Amarillo and Abilene.

Flash flood warnings were issued during the night for several counties in the South Plains, including Lubbock County. A flash flood watch was in effect Wednesday for much of West Texas and western portions of North Texas.

The showers and thunderstorms were being triggered by an upper level low pressure system over New Mexico that was slowly moving eastward toward Texas.

Thunderstorms were widespread from the Panhandle southward through the South Plains and Permian Basin to the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas. The thunderstorms extended eastward into western portions of North Central Texas. Scattered showers are being reported early Wednesday along the middle Texas coast and in South Central Texas.

Forecasters called for showers and thunderstorms across most of the state Wednesday, more numerous in West Texas. Highs were to be mostly in the 70s and 80s, ranging from the 60s in the Panhandle to near 103 in the Big Bend area.

Lows Wednesday night will be mostly 60s and 70s and highs Thursday should be mostly in the 70s and 80s and lowers 90s.

Two arrests here

Police jailed two local men on misdemeanor charges Tuesday.

One was arrested for disorderly conduct while the other was charged with public intoxication.

1 mishap Tuesday

A single minor traffic accident was reported in Snyder Tuesday.

Involved in the 2:50 p.m. mishap at the intersection of 26th St. and Ave. M were a 1980 Chevrolet driven by Rebecca Kelly Eakin of 3900 Ave. O and a 1985 Chevrolet driven by Richard Lynn Chambers of Rt. 2, Snyder.

No injuries were reported to either driver.

House okays legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved and sent to the Senate legislation barring Agriculture Secretary John Block from holding a July vote among the nation's wheat producers on whether to institute strict production quotas for 1986.

On a voice vote, the House moved Tuesday to require Block to postpone the vote now scheduled for July 19-26. In the Senate, the Agriculture Committee has approved a similar bill, but with softer language giving Block discretion to put off the vote, not requiring him to do so.

Current farm law expires Sept. 30. If no law is written by then to replace it, policy would revert to a largely outdated law passed in 1938. That law requires farmer referendums on whether to impose acreage controls and marketing quotas on certain commodities, of which wheat is the first to be planted.

The Reagan administration scheduled the vote, saying it is needed to let farmers know what kind of commodity price support and acreage set-aside program to expect so they can make plans for fall-planted crops.

The administration also regards the threat of a wheat referendum as added impetus for Congress to act more quickly on a new farm bill to replace expiring law.

But wheat-state members of Congress opposed the referendum, saying it would be confusing and a waste of the $8 million they said it would cost. The administration contends it can hold the vote for about $700,000.

And they said any vote would be meaningless because it would eventually be superseded by new farm legislation.

The referendum, if passed by a two-thirds majority, would institute strict marketing controls in return for relatively high price supports on the remaining crop. The last time a referendum was actually held under the old law was in 1963, when wheat growers rejected the quotas.

A lottery was held in Bruges, Belgium, in 1446. It is the earliest in recorded history.

Woman is youngest 1985 medical school graduate

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — For years, Lani Kay Douglas said she wanted to graduate from medical school, begin her career and start a family by the time she was 24.

It looks like she's right on schedule — the 22-year-old woman has become what Texas A&M University officials say is the nation's youngest medical school graduate of 1985.

"I don't think my age made a big difference," Ms. Douglas said after receiving her diploma last week from Texas A&M.

The Texas A&M program, which allows a student to apply after two years of college, emphasizes "the level of maturity and the development of a person as a student" rather than age, she said.

Dr. Joyce Davis, head of the admissions committee for the program, agreed, saying that officials didn't pay special attention to Ms. Douglas' age — 18 — when deciding to accept her.

"Her record and work performance while a pre-med student indicated a very high level of responsibility, reliability and capability," said Ms. Davis.

"Our committee makes performance and not age the major factor," she said. "Some of Douglas' classmates are in their late 30s. Her record, plus what the committee saw as a very mature, capable individual, were what counted."

Ms Douglas was 16 when she graduated third in her class from a private high school in North Carolina.

She said one of the most difficult adjustments to graduate-level medical school was that she wasn't making straight A's anymore. But she finished the A&M program as one of five honor students in the class of 30 new physicians.

But she said her young age gave her one advantage over some of her fellow classmates — she did not have the additional responsibilities of being a wife and parent.

"It made it a little easier for me not having those family commitments as a student, too. Although those women in my class with families did great, that would have been much harder for me," she said.

Ms. Douglas said she plans to join a residency program in family practice at John Peter Smith Hospital in Fort Worth.

Ultimately, she said, she want to practice family medicine as an overseas missionary or in a rurai community.

"I was interested in helping people even before I decided to work toward medical school," she said. "As a doctor, I thought I would be able to reach out and benefit people."

State to retrain farmers

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Agriculture hopes some federal job training money the state receives can be used to help thousands of farmers and ranchers driven off the land by the agricultural recession.

The department is proposing that a share of the $7.5 million in federal funds Texas should get this fall for dislocated workers can be used for training, career counseling and job placement for farmers.

"Texas continues to lose more than 100 family farmers and ranchers a week," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said Tuesday. "Many of the producers we're losing are age 35 or younger."

Gary Keith, an agriculture department official, said officials aren't certain how many farmers might need the help, but said, "Certainly it has to be in the thousands."

At the department's request, the state's Job Training Coordinating Council has agreed that retraining services are needed by the displaced farmers and ranchers, Hightower said.

Seven states already offer such assistance to farmers, he said. They are Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Andy Welch, a spokesman for the agriculture department, said TDA officials will make a formal proposal to the Job Training Coordinating Council in August for extending job training services to displaced farmers and ranchers. A request for funding also will be made at that time, Welch said.

Hightower said he hoped some of the state's federal job training money then will be made available so programs for farmers and ranchers could begin on Oct. 1.

Job training, counseling and placement would be coordinated by the Texas Department of Community Affairs and provided by local agencies statewide.

The agencies currently provide similar services for displaced homemakers, unemployed farmworkers, workers laid off in the auto, steel and refinery industries, among others.

Hightower noted that the nation's farmers have continued to face rough times even while many other sectors of the economy have improved.

An anonymous saying has it that, "Leap year is when February has a day that's even rarer than a day in June."
