A. D. Beck To Coach Burk Bulldogs

SCHOOLS TO START MON.

Seniors To Enroll Friday-Saturday Sept. 4th.

The Burk Burnett Public Schools will be ready to open Monday with all the teachers with the exception of one vacancy.

The trustees and superintendent succeeded in securing A. D. Beck as head coach Thursday morning. Supt. Davis urges that all Seniors to enroll Friday and Saturday of this week, and Coach Beck asks that all prospects for the Bulldog squad to report to him at the school Friday and Saturday.

Principal Douglas announced Thursday that Seniors registering Friday or Saturday would not have to report for school work until Tuesday morning.

The Freshman, Sophomores and Juniors and the grade school students will enroll Monday, September 6th.

You will find some of Burk Burnett boasting about things that other folks in the town try to hide.

tioned at Fort Warren, Wyo., but will report to A&M College for officers' candidate school in the Quartermaster Corps after his visit here.

Mrs. J. A. Morgan received the news here this week that her grandson, Sgt. C. T. Fields, is a prisoner of the Japs at a Philippine Military camp. He was in the battle of Bataan, and was reported missing in action until the word received that he was a prisoner.

Former Rotary Club Secretary Writes

The Editor received the following letter from Geo. Byerly, former Magnolia Wholesale Agent, and secretary of the local Rotary club. He has just completed his basic training and is ready for school. His letter follows:

Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Saturday Nite

Dear Fred— Am exercising the taken for granted right of every soldier to write you a few lines. Haven't had a lot of time since being here for letters or anything else, except learning to be a soldier. Our Company finished our 6-weeks of basic training last night and start to Finance Schooling, August 30 and goes through Nov. 20. As you can see from enclosed clipping from Camp publication, they have extended both the basic and schooling periods—probably better for all of us at that. The basic was a little rough in spots, but I decided to start with. I could make it somehow, and it wasn't too bad.

Have intended writing the Club for sometime. Again expressing my appreciation for the nice pen and pencil set—wish you would do this for me. They have really come in handy here and will probably be more useful from now on in school—that is if I don't flunk out on it. Understand they pitch it at you pretty fast at the start and cull out the misfits pretty quick. They are waiting two weeks before starting another class at our Company. Seems they are getting about all the Finance men they want.

There are lots of men here who have been through school for two months and never been assigned anywhere—just staying here on details. It's the same old army yet—you have to wait.

Enjoy the paper a lot. Must confess I read it more thoroughly than when I was in Burk. Why didn't Frank Clements' going to work make the headlines? Seems it should.

Would appreciate a few lines if you ever have the time. Regards, George.

POWER GAME WHIPS NORTH

Punt Return Breaks Ice In Scoring Splurge

The Westerners accomplished for the first time in the history of the Oil Bowl a victory over the fast and tricky North Texas entry Wednesday night by a score of 13 to 6.

Scoring early in the first quarter on a punt return, the Westerners settled down to pound the Northerners. The second score came in the third period. Tom Pirtle opened the scoring by a 22-yard jaunt on a punt from the North.

Bobby Brewer of Lubbock journeyed 44 yards in the third period for the second score.

Willard Mills, star back of the '42 Bulldog squad, played in part of the game.

W. A. Browning Funeral Held Saturday Morning

Funeral services for W. A. Browning, 80, retired Burk Burnett business man, who died at his home last Thursday night, were conducted from the First Methodist Church here Saturday at 10 a. m., with Rev. Boyd I. DeVore, pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. A. E. Harrison, pastor of First Baptist Church.

Pallbearers were Jim Boyd, Oscar Kemp, R. J. Bills, M. C. Tucker, Henry Prinzing and B. H. Preston. Interment was at Burk Burnett Cemetery under direction of Owens & Brumley Funeral Home.

Browning had resided here 24 years. He is survived by his wife; and Paul of Burk Burnett, Texas, and Edward of Lindrih, N. M.; two sisters, Mrs. Lizzie DeShong and Mrs. Ann Mullins, both of Humboldt, Tenn.; two brothers, Jim and John Browning, Milan, Tenn.; nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Lewallen's Music Studio To Open Sept. 6th.

Mrs. M. E. Lewallen, teacher of Violin, Piano, Accordion and Harmony, will open her fall term Sept. 6th.

Mrs. Lewallen is the only teacher in Burk Burnett who teaches violin, accordion, piano and harmony. Her students, successfully passing their grades are given high school credits.

Tribute Paid Heroes At Opening Of County Fair

Iowa Park, Texas, Sept. 1.—The almost 6,000 Wichita County men and women now in the service of the United States were given high praise here Wednesday at the opening of the 14th Wichita County Fair, by Dr. James B. Boren, Hardin Junior College president, and the mayors of four of the county's communities.

The service group representing the North Texas county in the armed services were honored by the unveiling of a service flag. Maj. Gen. James E. Cheney, commander of Sheppard Field, was introduced, and made brief remarks.

Gov. Coke Stevenson, originally scheduled to speak at the opening ceremony, was unable to attend.

To open the ceremony, Rev. Dan R. Robinson, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Iowa Park, delivered the invocation. Corporal Eddie Johns of Sheppard Field then led the audience in the singing of the National Anthem. The attending crowd, in response to Corporal Johns' leadership, filled the fairground with the melody of the Star-Spangled Banner in such a manner that Mayors Bill Hood, Wichita Falls; N. E. McKinney, Electra; A. R. Hill, Burk Burnett; and Leo Moore of Electra commended them on their spirit. The mayors were introduced for brief remarks honoring service men and women from their respective communities.

An amateur program at 8:45 o'clock started a gala round of free entertainment on the fair grounds, with a square dancing contest starting at 9 o'clock in Fair Park Auditorium. C. H. Featherston of Wichita Falls directed the contest.

Through the rest of the four-day exhibition, a rodeo will be held in the newly-constructed arena in the western end of the grounds at 8 p. m. each night.

Exhibits of agriculture and livestock products from the county drew large crowd-interest Wednesday, and promised to be a feature attraction.

On the midway, young and old alike joined in patronizing the T. J. Tidwell million-dollar carnival display.

It's fair time!

Dev. DeVore Fills Pulpit at First Church Wichita Falls

Last Sunday night Rev. Boyd I. DeVore, of the First Methodist Church here was the guest speaker at the First Methodist Church in Wichita Falls. Rev. Paul E. Martin, pastor, is on vacation and is to be home this week.

About 200 attended the open air service in the court of the church. The robed choir, led by Corporal Johns, rendered a beautiful anthem, and Miss Barbara Murph sang a solo.

Koda Chrome Pictures To Be Shown Meth. Church

Next Sunday night Rev. Ira C. Kiker, executive Secretary of the North Texas Conference, is to show a selection of pictures which he has taken during the past year and speak at the evening hour at the First Methodist Church.

The pictures deal with various phases of the church work and have been taken at S.M.U., Lake Murray, Mt. Sequoyah and in local churches. They are beautifully colored and will add greatly to the interest and inspiration of the service. The public is invited. Services will begin promptly at 8:30.

LIONS CLUB

The club voted to advance W. W. Chambers to Presidency replacing O. B. Jordan, who has moved to South Texas. The other vice presidents were advanced and Rev. A. E. Harrison was elected as 3rd vice.

For the program Dorothy Ann Preston gave a reading, and Miss Francis Clark, accompanied by Dorothy Duke, sang two songs.

A board of directors had a meeting after the club adjourned.

More Butter To Be Provided for Civilians

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A plan to make more butter available for civilian use soon through curtailment of government allotments was disclosed today by officials of the War Food Administration.

These sources who asked that their names not be used, also reported they are considering a number of plans to bolster dairy production by allowing price increases for milk and other products.

An announcement respecting butter may be made next week, they said. Office Supplies at Star Office

Red Cross Seeks Holland Cloth For Bandages

Two items were cited Friday by Jerry Vinson, area salvage chairman, as badly needed at present for the war effort. They were Holland cloth, essential material in the making of Red Cross surgical dressings and bandages and waste fats.

The Holland cloth, obtained mostly from tire recappings, will be obtained under the direction of Earl Hodges of Wichita Falls, whom Vinson named as chairman of a county-wide campaign to obtain this material.

The waste fats appeal was made to creameries and dairies. They were asked to obtain all the fat possible when washing milk and cream bottles, since these waste fats are sorely needed in the war effort.

Rotarians And Wives To Enjoy Barbecued Chicken

Harold VanLoh and his team will be hosts to Jockey Armstrong's team when they will serve them barbecued chicken and accessories at the City Light Plant lawn next Tuesday night.

The chicken supper is the outgrowth of an attendance and new membership contest sponsored by the Rotary club. The contest closed last Tuesday noon.

M. C. Tucker had charge of the program at the Tuesday meeting and presented a quiz program.

President Garland announced that the regular meeting of the club would be held next Tuesday at noon and the barbecue that night. The wives of the Rotarians are urged to be present at the barbecue.

Joe Nichols of the Two Joe's Barber Shop, was introduced as a new guest. His membership was secured by Boyd DeVore.

Three Rotarians from Wichita Falls made up their attendance here. They were: A. C. Moline, Tom Edwards, and E. M. Friend, Jr., Clarence Foster and B. A. Landers were the guests of Jackey Armstrong, and Lester Coats was the guest of Tom Boyd.

B. A. Landers was voted a new member of the club.

AREA SCHOOLS ARE INSPECTED

Virgil L. Nichols, sanitation expert with the Wichita Health Unit, and J. B. Golden, county school superintendent, made inspections Monday of all rural school plants which are to be used during the coming school year.

Samples of drinking water were taken for analysis, toilet facilities were checked, the school buildings marked for any repairs required to make them safe and sanitary.

Golden said that all improvements recommended by the health unit would be completed before school-opening time.

Former Coyote Coach Discharged From U. S. Army

A deal was closed Thursday morning between Ralph Davis, superintendent of the School, and A. D. Beck, in which Mr. Beck will coach the Bulldogs the coming season.

Beck is former assistant coach of the Coyotes of Wichita Falls. He entered the army June 3rd, and was recently given a medical discharge from the army.

Burkburnett is indeed fortunate in securing Beck as head coach. He has had a wonderful success with Coyotes team he has helped coach and with the material he has here it is expected that a winning team will be produced.

He requests that all boys interested in football to meet him at the "Doghouse" Friday and Saturday for equipment and instructions.

Wasted Food Supply Figures Are Given

HOUSTON, Aug. 27.—Fifteen per cent of last year's total food supply, or enough to feed the entire population, including the armed forces, for eight weeks, was wasted. C. T. Watson, state director of the Farm Security Administration, asserted today.

Speaking to FSA workers from 27 South Texas counties, Watson termed the FSA the "only agricultural agency that can sit down with a family and help plan its needs, then finance them."

Watson said, "our purpose is to service low income farm groups who are potentially possible of making a real food contribution to the war effort."

BURKBURNETT STAR, THURSDAY, SEPT. 2, 1943

Our Capital's Birthday

The center of national activity is our capital, the seat of our government, located in the District of Columbia and called Washington. It was July 16, 1790 the Congress of the United States then in session in the city of Philadelphia, provided for a site of ten miles square on the banks of the Potomac. Our capital was so born and though the act named the capital there was a ten year delay in order to build the public offices and provide for living quarters. Although no money was voted for the project, Maryland and Virginia ceded the land that was chosen by George Washington for the spot, and they also gave the first funds to construct the buildings. Later the government retroceded the portion of the site given by Virginia. A Frenchman was the first one to plan the federal city but ran into difficulty by demolishing a private house that conflicted with his plans, and the job was then given to surveyor named Ellicott. The first census of Washington's population was taken in 1800 and we find 14,093 persons listed. During the period in trying to build the White House there was confusion, discharges, alterations and no finances. At one time the state of Maryland held a lottery to come to the rescue with funds to go on. It was a long drawn out process and two wars interfered with its progress. Land occupied finally totaled 58.8 acres, renovation added steam heating, elevators, fireproofing, electric lights, modern drainage, light, heat and power plant, and wide landscaping of exterior has enhanced the beauty. This is the site of our law, the campus of governmental order. Happy birthday!

Our Ally, The Chinese

Chinese Independence Day is July 7th, as we revere our own day of Independence considering it the groundwork for the nation that we have become and hope to be, so does China celebrate her holiday. It comes as good news that a way has been opened for us to supply planes for operations in China. We have not sent the necessary planes to fight the Japs as long as there was the situation in India that prevented keeping the planes supplied with bombs and fuel. Now we can increase our combat force at the end of the line, and this is good news to every American who has long felt the Japanese menace. The Chinese have been pointed out as a race that has much to teach us in the way of civilization. Patience is an attribute not to be overlooked.

The Chinese have lessons to give us in the field of cookery. They can offer suggestions for nutritious meals, combined flavors that are unusual but delicious. Food experts tell us to preserve vitamins we should cook vegetables in a little water as possible. The Chinese have used this method always. They have the advantage of water chestnuts, bamboo shoots, dry rice, but so do we have shrimps, lettuce, chicken, eggs. They use crabmeat, mustard greens, lobster, pork and good old string beans. So can we. Lin Yutang, whose books some of our Burk Burnett readers know, quoted an ancient Chinese poet who likened cooking to matrimony, "a matching and blending of the tastes." Mr. Lin himself, suggests, "let meat and vegetables be combined and married." Yes, we have much to learn from China, stretching ration points is one of them.

On Again, Off Again

Strikes and more strikes, we can't stop the flood it seems. The atmosphere grows tense with wondering where the blow will fall next. Spreading through plants manufacturing armament, to mines producing power through steel, into this industry and that one are the debates over rights and wrongs. The motive is not too clear in some cases, in other instances it takes on a political angle. Economically the trouble appears to be on pay increase grounds, using the high cost of living as the reason. Inflation appears as an argument on the other side and then stalemate. As for politics, some union leaders feel that Lewis would like nothing better than to win a victory on the pay increase and show up the group that is supporting the anti-inflation principle BECAUSE the founder of the CIO and the president have not seen eye to eye and after Mr. Lewis swung his support to Willkie in 1940 the breach was made. Perhaps we might be ashamed.

Poison Ivy

Guard as you will against the infection, sidestep the pronged leaf, steer clear of contact, avoid the paths and hie to the sidewalk and what have you? Usually poison ivy! Start here to itch, scratching develops there and the deceitful leaf has won again as we get out the lotions and unguents to ease the burning itch. We try to eliminate the vines that spell poison ivy, watch our step through woods, are wise to ways of the five-pointed leaf, but still the fight goes on. There are people in Burk Burnett who year after year, at about the same time, have this breaking out and can't account for it, unless it's in the air. But it all proves the point that into each life some poison will fall even if it is diagnosed as poison ivy.

Burk Burnett . . . History

As revealed by the files of the Star 20 years ago.

Twenty Years Ago—

At a meeting of the Superintendents, principals, and teachers of Wichita County, held in Wichita Falls, during the Teachers' Institute last week it was voted to hold the next Interscholastic League Meet at Burk Burnett. At that time all of the schools of Wichita County will participate in various contests consisting of debate, declamation, essay writing, spelling, music memory, track and field events, tennis, volley ball, and various other events.

A special program of entertainment has been planned for the town days of Burk Burnett's Community Fair to be held Friday and Saturday, September 21 and 22. Dudley Ellis has been appointed by the Fair Committee and will have absolute charge of all entertainments on these days.

The Red Cross campaign for the Japan Earthquake sufferers opened Wednesday night when the local committee met at the Lotus Club and planned for a house to house canvas Thursday morning, to raise the $600 quota for Burk Burnett.

The Wichita County Baptist Association is in session here. All churches of the county were represented. The conference began Wednesday night and continued through Thursday and noon today. It is being held in the First Baptist Church building. Luncheon was served each day to the visiting delegates at the Baptist hut.

Closer friendship was made between Burk Burnett business men and the farmers of Oklahoma, recently when the road repair work done immediately across Red River was completed. The work was paid in equal parts by the Burk Burnett Bridge Company, Chamber of Commerce, and Cotton County, Okla. On last Wednesday a committee of Burk Burnett business men loaded with ice cream, met the farmers on their work and enjoyed about one hour of social contact.

Doc Goins of Wichita Falls, who owns the Huebener tract, was here this week preparing his wheat land.

THE STATE OF TEXAS.

To James Burton McWhorter Defendant, Greeting:

You are hereby Commanded to appear before the Honorable 78th District Court of Wichita County at the Court House thereof, in Wichita Falls, Texas, at or before 10 o'clock A. M. of the first Monday next after the expiration of forty-two days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being the 18th day of October A. D. 1943, then and there to answer Plaintiff's Petition filed in said Court, on the 10th day of July A. D. 1943, in this cause, numbered 38283-B on the docket of said court and styled Ola McWhorter Plaintiff, vs. James Burton McWhorter Defendant.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to-wit: After alleging jurisdiction, Plaintiff further alleges that she and defendant were married March 2, 1929, and separated April 10, 1932, since which time they have not lived together as man and wife. Plaintiff further alleges that there was one child born of this marriage, Roy Lee McWhorter, and that she is the fit and proper person to have custody and control of said child.

Wherefore Plaintiff prays that on final hearing she have judgment for divorce, for custody and control of above named child and such other and further relief to which she may show herself justly entitled.

The officer executing this process shall promptly execute the same according to law, and make due return as the law directs.

Issued and given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this 30th day of August A. D. 1943.

Attest:
Glenn Haynes, Clerk 78th District Court, Wichita County, Tex.

3RD WAR LOAN DRIVE — FOR INVASION

Put a circle around the date—Thursday, September 9th. For that's the day the 3rd War Loan Drive starts.

On that day, you will be asked to go the limit to back our valiant fighting men. You will be asked to do your share in the greatest invasion the world has ever seen. Answer your country's roll call!

Your part is to back this invasion by investing in at least one EXTRA $100 War Bond in September. That's in addition to your regular War Bond purchases. Invest more than $100—a lot more—if you possibly can.

The job is big. Everyone must do his full share if we are to put this drive over the top.

War Bonds are the safest investment in the world. For your own sake, for your Country's sake, put every spare dime and dollar in War Bonds during the 3rd War Loan Drive.

ISRAEL CALLED TO BE A HOLY PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 19:1-4, 11-18, 32-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye holy; for I am holy.—1 Peter 1:16.

Labor Day, 1943, with a war-torn world, finds us facing a social order deeply divided regarding the rights and wrongs of the relationship between man and man, especially capital and labor.

For these many years we have talked of a planned economy where kindness and justice shall control all dealings of man with his fellow man. But to accomplish such a result apart from the hand of God to guide and restrain, has proved to be impossible.

Selfishness and sin control too much of the thought and action of our world. We need to be reminded, as was Israel in our lesson, that God has called us to be a holy people. His holiness is not just something of which one sings in a hymn or talks in a sermon. It means among other things, real social justice.

God has always stood for social righteousness. The underlying moral law of the universe demands it, and the law of God as revealed to His people developed and implemented it for successful functioning, were we only wise enough to see and follow it.

It is time that all God's people emphasize God's moral principles in the life of society. Never forgetting that its first business is to preach the redeeming gospel of Christ, the church ought also to make its influence felt for social righteousness.

Our lesson speaks first of the foundational matter in all social justice, namely:

I. Holiness of Heart Before God (Lev. 19:1-4).

Because God is holy, His people were to be holy. It was not a matter of choice or impulse. They belonged to a holy God, they were to be a holy people.

There is an idea current in the church today which has served Satan well, namely, that holiness of life is something which is not required; that it is expected only of a few folk who are spiritually minded, and that the other professed followers of Christ may go on living a worldly, careless, powerless life. It is the devil's own lie. God expects every Christian to be holy.

Such rightness with God shows itself in a rightness with others, which we note as our second point:

II. Holiness of Life Before Men (Lev. 19:11-18, 32-34).

How intensely practical and workable in daily experience were the laws here given to Israel. They are just as appropos to our present day.

1. Honesty (vv. 11-13). No stealing, no perjury, no lying, no oppression, no withholding of wages, none of these could be tolerated, for they dishonored God's name. Think what the elimination of dishonesty in dealing between men would accomplish. Most of our social problems would be solved overnight. Merchants would do well to read verses 35 and 36 in this connection.

2. Kindness (v. 14). The deaf cannot hear what we say about them, nor can the blind see what we do. But the eternal God hears and sees, and He expects us to be kind to them.

3. Fairness (vv. 15, 16). Some assume that a man must be right because he is rich. Others are equally sure that the poor are always worthy of special consideration.

Note the condemnation of the tale-bearer. Every gossip who reads these words knows that God condemns that evil practice. Nor does He countenance indifference to the welfare of others. Their blood cries out to Him for deliverance (v. 16).

4. Love (vv. 17, 18). "Love thy neighbor as thyself." That is the standard. How much have we done to meet it?

A rebuke may be necessary, but love will not permit grudges, or the seeking of vengeance, even when we have been wronged.

5. Respect (vv. 3, 32). God's Word always stresses the need of a right attitude toward parents. Children need to learn anew the lesson of verse 3.

Then there are the aged (v. 32). Old age pensions doubtless have their place in our complex social order, but perhaps they would not be needed if men and women honored the hoary head and the face of an old man.

A pension does not take the place of honor and love for the aged, even though it may pay the bills. God has high standards.

6. Consideration (vv. 33, 34). The man who knows God will not be party to taking advantage of a stranger. He remembers that he too has been a stranger. To meet with loving kindness and tender care when one is in a strange place should inspire one to go and do likewise.

CARIBBEAN CONSPIRACY

by BRENDA CONRAD

THE STORY SO FAR: Anne Heywood, beautiful daughter of a wealthy New York newspaper publisher, goes to Puerto Rico on an assignment for her father's paper. Also on the island are Pete Wilcox, a reporter on her father's paper, now a U. S. Army intelligence officer; Miguel Valera, a Puerto Rican educated in the United States who is a secret U. S. agent; Richard Taussig, an engineer whose identity as a German agent is suspected but not yet proved; and Russell Porter, a young American engineer, and his wife, Sue, who has given Mr. Taussig some valuable plans. Realizing her mistake, Sue has come to Anne for help. Anne agrees to meet Mr. Taussig, who thinks she has him.

CHAPTER XVII

The little hills along the horizon were like small conical dips of green and brick-red ice cream dotted over the landscape. The narrow road, winding and curving between the sweeping lanes of flamboyants was lovely. It must be very beautiful, Anne thought, when the trees were scarlet with bloom.

"Where are we going?" she asked. Mr. Taussig turned back with a smile. "I think we might tell her. Or shall we surprise her?"

"We are going to a coffee plantation, Miss Heywood," Diego Gongaro said.

The road was full of Army trucks now. She kept thinking how easy it would be to call out to one of the blond sunburnt boys at the wheel. But she didn't do it. Then they were climbing, the tires shrieking as they went around hairpin curves with steep banks on one side and scarred bare cuts on the other, in the face of the hill where they'd widened the road. Below them was a river and a power plant. Mr. Taussig opened his guide book and unfolded the map on the back cover. Anne saw him take a pencil out of his pocket, make a circle on the map and fold it again. She straightened up a little, a sudden idea dawning in her mind.

The map was not like the one in her book. The island in the center of it was not the same size, or the same color. It was more elaborate and detailed and took up most of the page, while hers was a small rectangle in the middle of a lot of ocean. She settled back in the corner feeling Diego Gongaro's eyes on her face. It was in the car again, the thing she'd felt on the way to the sugar mill. It was danger.

On the left the bank sloped across a field of cane to a narrow valley of pasture land. She could see a few cows grazing, and as they rounded a sharp curve she saw a yellow and black airplane sprawled in the pasture, like a great grounded wasp. She sat quietly waiting. The road curved again, and they came up to a faded blue stucco wall with a broad archway in the center. They drove through open iron gates and pulled up at the house, blue stucco also, with dark balconies at the upstairs windows, closed tight and heavily shuttered.

"Here we are," Gongaro said. He handed her out onto the marble slab in front of the door, then reached into the car and picked up her handkerchief. "Is this yours, Señorita?"

"Thanks," she said. "I'm always doing that."

"I know," Diego Gongaro said. She understood that the remark had some meaning, but not knowing what, let it go.

"The house is yours, as the Spanish say, Miss Heywood," Taussig said.

He followed her into the cool foyer. The irony in his voice tapped out a sharp warning in the back of her head.

"Upstairs, please, Miss Heywood," Diego Gongaro said. He opened a double door at the top of the stairs.

"There is your story, Miss Heywood," Taussig said. He pointed to the plane lying in the field.

Anne waited. She was not afraid now. It was as if the alert had sounded, and she was ready, every nerve poised and keen.

"Please—sit down, Miss Heywood."

His whole intonation and the rigid posture of his body made it sound exactly as if he'd said, "Bitte—setzen Sie sich, Fraulein." She hadn't thought of him that way before. She sat down. Gongaro moved to the gallery and stood there, his hands behind his back twitching impatiently. Through the spindles of the balustrade Anne could see a man crossing the field to the plane. It was their chauffeur. She could tell by his cap and the outline of his head.

She looked back at Taussig. He was pulling open the fastener of his brief case. She watched calmly as he took out a small blue steel automatic and put it on the desk beside him. She wasn't frightened. It came to her with a burst of something like joy that she wasn't.

"Go on, Mr. Taussig," she said. "Airplanes themselves are no longer news. Perhaps you know that."

"That plane is news, Miss Heywood," he said curtly. "As you will soon see."

The khaki-colored field car mounted the steep road above Cayay. Two long fingers of light reached out in the dark. The sharp empty curves sprang into relief and vanished in the blackness as the powerful motor skirted high naked banks. Below them the valleys were heavily blanketed with mist as dense as white snow.

Pete Wilcox sat behind the driver and the soldier with him, perched up in the topless vehicle built for speed over rough terrain and not for looks. He hung on with one hand and held the ear phone of the two-way radio to his ears. The first message had come through as he passed the barracks at Cayay. "Calling P.J.W. Calling P.J.W." Then the code. Their car was leaving the Granada. He was waiting impatiently. "Acting on Information Received," as they put it in G 2, it wasn't the first time since he'd left San Juan at 4:45 that the ghostly doubt had come to him that Information Received might have been cooked up especially to get him out here.

He waited. "Calling P.J.W. Calling P.J.W." the soft monotonous voice said in his ear. Their car was passing Fort Buchanan.

He looked at the spot on his map that was supposed to be their destination, and settled back, grim-faced and hard-eyed. They had begun to descend the hairpin curves. The scout car swayed from side to side around the hairpin curves. The soldier in front of him was pale green but not actively sick . . . yet.

"This about it, sir?" he called back over his shoulder. The bank dropped down below them in a tropical jungle, lush and green and dense.

"We want an iron gate on the right," Pete said.

"Okay, sir."

They made another sharp turn. "That it, sir?" Pete saw it at the same time, set in a ten-foot hedge

"My people," Miguel said calmly. "That depends on your point of view, doesn't it?"

"I think not—Be quiet. They're coming."

Pete looked at him in the half-dark. It could still be a trap.

"—It is a story, Miss Heywood," Mr. Taussig said, "that I should not have told you if you'd minded your own business. Perhaps I should be as concise as possible, because time is precious."

Anne crossed her knees and leaned back in her chair.

"There is not much point in your taking notes, since unfortunately you will not be able to write the story. I'm telling it to you to keep my end of the bargain, and because there is a little writing I'm going to ask you to do.—And please, Miss Heywood, don't be so detached. It's annoying. If you think this is a joke, you are quite wrong."

"I'm just interested, Mr. Taussig."

She spoke calmly. It was the fatalism of the end of the road. It was even a pleasure to be able to make him angry.

He recovered from his annoyance. "You may remember the five gentlemen you spied on under the courtyard stairs night before last," he said. "If you had not left your handkerchief there we might not have realized how stupid you were being."

"—He doesn't know Miguel was there," Anne thought. "It was stupid," she said.

"The gentlemen—three of whom are with you today—feel that something must be done to save their work. For your . . . story, our work is simply to render the Gibraltar of America hors de combat when the signal is given."

He tapped his brief case. "The plans are simple and very carefully organized. I regret there isn't time to go into them in detail. I think I hear the motor of our plane being tuned up. We have a skeleton organization, however, that will function. The plane you see out there, for instance, serves a dual purpose. It brings money, and it brings ammunition. Both are downstairs in the storage rooms we passed, under a couple of feet of coffee beans—since the market is so bad, Don Alvaro wisely refuses to sell."

"Does Don Alvaro know about it?" Anne asked slowly.

"Don Alvaro," said Mr. Taussig, "has the old-fashioned idea that wars are fought and won or lost on the field of honor."

"How very quaint of him."

A cobra glinted in the concentric circles of his spectacles for an instant.

"His brother-in-law, however, has the modern notion of the bloodless war. When the time comes, for instance, your Panama Canal will fall with very little loss of life, and quite intact."

"I wouldn't count on it too heavily," Anne said.

"As you won't be here to see it, Miss Heywood, you can take my word that it will. There are a great many Sue Porters in the world."

He reached under his coat, brought a tiny camera out of the concealed pocket in his sleeve and put it on the table.

"I was able to micro-photograph the charts before you stole them, fortunately. One of the notes I will require you to write will be to Mrs. Porter, telling her where you put them.—So, if you will just take this pen, Miss Heywood, and write as I dictate, we will get under way."

Suddenly he straightened up at a new sound in the stillness of the green mountain top, dropped his cigarette, put his foot on it and waited, his face grim and his jaw tight. Miguel Valera was coming up the mule track.

He came into the clearing and stopped. For a moment the two of them stood looking at each other with steady appraisal. Miguel Valera came forward.

"We're going to start down," he said. "We can get there before they do. If you don't mind doing as I tell you, there ought not to be any trouble. We have plenty of time."

"Before we go," Pete said quietly. "I'd like to know where you stand in this business."

"At the moment my chief interest is Miss Heywood," Valera answered evenly. "The rest of it is up to you. I'd like to keep out of sight if possible, for reasons of my own. If I can't, Okay. Are you ready?"

Pete looked at him for an instant. "All set," he said. They crossed a ravine and started up a rounding slope.

"What about your people?" Pete asked.

"The peons?"

"Yes."

"They're all right. The common people have an idea what democracy means, even out here."

The road ahead of them was lined with royal palms. A man came riding out of an archway in the blue stucco wall. He nodded at Miguel and set off down the road. They crossed the dirt compound and entered the house.

"Upstairs," Miguel said.

"I don't get your part in all this," Pete said. "Whose side are you on?"

"My people," Miguel said calmly. "That depends on your point of view, doesn't it?"

"I think not—Be quiet. They're coming."

Pete looked at him in the half-dark. It could still be a trap.

"—It is a story, Miss Heywood," Mr. Taussig said, "that I should not have told you if you'd minded your own business. Perhaps I should be as concise as possible, because time is precious."

When you see news photos of soldiers "off duty" in camp or behind the battle-lines—notice how often you'll see them smoking a cigarette. There's a good reason for that. Army officials say that cigarettes are an appreciable factor in maintaining morale—and the soldiers themselves add that a carton of cigarettes from home is always welcome. What brand? Well, sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens show that Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in all the services. Though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are.—Adv.

Things to do

SOME of your garden favorites framing your initial will bring decoration and color to your linens. A pair of pillow cases or guest towels done this colorful way would make an ideal shower gift! It's all simplest stitching.

Pattern 7573 contains a transfer pattern of six 4 by 5 inch frames and two 13 1/2 inch alphabets; stitches: materials needed. Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Send your order to:

Sewing Circle Needlecraft Dept.
564 W. Randolph St. Chicago 30 Ill.

Enclose 15 cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for Pattern No.

Household Hints

Should the clothes closet become moldy, air it with an electric fan. An electric lamp kept burning for a time will help dissipate the moisture.

Hulls of lima beans make good soup if they are put through a coarse sieve or colander. The pods cook quickly, and are rich in their taste of the bean.

War-time canning jar rings are made of unelastic reclaimed rubber. Stretch them as little as possible.

Grape juice frosting is delicious and different. Put three tablespoons grape juice into a pint bowl, then stir in one to one and a half cups of confectioner's sugar till mixture is thick enough to spread on your cake.

Inoculate all Legumes with NITRAGIN

Don't gamble... inoculate all legumes—vetch, winter peas, clovers with NITRAGIN. It costs only a few cents an acre... but makes up to 50% bigger yields of richer feed, and helps build soil fertility. Tests show it pays to inoculate every planting of legumes regardless of previous cropping. NITRAGIN is the oldest, most widely used legume inoculant. Ask your seed supplier for NITRAGIN.

FREE BOOKLETS
Properly inoculated legumes can add 50 to 150 lbs. of nitrogen per acre. Free booklets tell how to grow profitable legumes. Write.

Rationing Manpower

By PAUL V. McNUTT

Chairman War Manpower Commission.

The new frontier in manpower is effective use of manpower. Management, labor, and the public must see to it that no workers and no hour of any worker's time is wasted.

During the past two years manpower problems have changed from time to time. At first it was largely a matter of "getting the right workers in the right jobs in the right numbers at the right time." Workers to be put into right jobs were drawn largely from the unemployed.

At the same time there was the job of training workers to take their part in the production of goods needed in our war effort. Many workers had lost their skills through years of unemployment and needed retraining. Many others took jobs for the first time and needed training to give them skills which they did not have.

In meeting these manpower needs United States Employment service offices of the War Manpower Commission placed more than 11,000,000 workers from May, 1942, to May, 1943, of whom 7,921,000 were in war industries and 3,727,000 in agriculture. During this war training facilities gave training to more than 10,000,000 enrollees.

We now have fewer than 1,000,000 persons unemployed in the country, and this is thought to be an irreducible minimum. As we get nearer the bottom of the manpower barrel the manpower problems to be met change in character.

More Workers Needed Than Are Available

Even though several million more women join their sisters in overalls by July of next year and other millions of youth, handicapped persons, older workers, etc., take jobs by July of next year, the demand for workers is so great that there still will be many more persons needed than are available.

Consequently, we will have to be very careful in sending new workers into places where they are needed most and in using them, and other employed workers so that their work time is not wasted.

It used to be that when a war plant, let us say, wanted 10,000 workers, the employment service could go out and find the needed people.

Now the War Manpower Commission officials have to find out whether or not these workers are really needed.

Using the experience of other war plants they may find that the plant has a very high percentage of highly skilled workers whose skills are not being fully used and that some of those could be shifted into other jobs. Then less skilled persons or persons with physical disabilities could be put in their place.

In other words, with as few workers available as we have today, the shipyard should justify its request for more workers by showing that it is making the best possible use of all the workers it already has.

That is just common sense. It represents a kind of rationing of manpower to those who can use the manpower best.

Job of Bureau of Manpower Utilization

The Bureau of Manpower Utilization, that has the job of ensuring effective use of workers, is the newest of the War Manpower Commission's bureaus. The work is done largely in the field by a small staff. They are skilled management engineers and practical business men.

This staff is at the service of American industry on the call of industries and area manpower officials. It is their job to consult with and assist management to make the best possible use of workers.

The field force will be supplemented by a volunteer group of skilled engineers and managers.

The manpower officials in the various regions feel free to call upon these individuals when it is felt that they can be of special service in solving problems of the best use of workers. However, the great bulk of the commission's work will be done by the staff of about 175 Manpower Utilization consultants.

There is another side to effective use of workers that many persons don't recognize. Workers frequently have to stay away from their jobs to visit ration boards, selective service boards, do shopping, do the laundry, or to take care of children.

Women, particularly, often quit because they find it impossible to carry on a full-time job and manage their household with the shortage of community services.

All such absenteeism and turnover holds down production. Therefore, effective use of local labor supply depends in good part on adjustments within the community.

The program of an eastern city shows the extent to which a community can adjust itself to the needs of war workers. In this city great emphasis has been put on the provision of wide recreational facilities hours of employees in the war plants. In addition, child care centers have been established to take care of the children of working parents.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Military Representatives Plan Over-All Strategy for Defeat of Axis; Red Troops Close on Nazi Strongholds; October Draft Quota to Include Dads

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

With the historic Chateau Frontenac in the background, English-American political and military leaders meet for memorable conference. Seated from left to right are Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada; President Roosevelt, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England. Standing from left to right, Gen. H. H. Arnold, Sir Charles Portal, Sir Allan Brooke, Adm. Ernest King, Sir John Dill, Gen. George Marshall, Adm. Sir Dudley Pound, and Adm. William Leahy.

MEDITERRANEAN: Zero Hour

The zero hour for Italy arrived.

Across the Mediterranean, Allied transports massed in North African ports. Axis planes flying in to bomb the shipping were met by walls of steel anti-aircraft fire and scores of fighter planes.

Plowing along the Italian shoreline, Allied cruisers and destroyers poured heavy shells into important railroad junctions and power stations. Overhead, all kinds of bombers—fighter, medium and heavy—dropped high explosives on Axis troops moving along open roads and through mountain passes.

As Allied artillery pumped shells into Italy from Sicily, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower counted 167,000 Axis casualties in the 39-day campaign which won the island. Our own losses were placed at 25,000.

lery pumped shells into Italy from Sicily, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower counted 167,000 Axis casualties in the 39-day campaign which won the island. Our own losses were placed at 25,000.

Peace and the Sword

Assault of Hitler's European fortress and policies for dealing with re-occupied countries—upon these momentous questions turned the sixth conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Quebec.

Formulating the military grand strategy were approximately 350 army and navy officials from the U. S., Great Britain and Canada. Over their maps they planned, first, the invasion of Europe, then, the conquest of Japan.

Joining Roosevelt and Churchill were their foreign secretaries, Cordell Hull and Anthony Eden. With them, the two Allied leaders discussed the measures to be taken in restoring order in re-occupied nations, and the policies to be pursued to meet Russia's territorial claims and demand for participation in the rehabilitation of Europe.

RUSSIA: Push Nazis Back

Russian troops closing in on the charred ruins of what was once the mighty industrial city of Kharkov, found their advance delayed by strong German counter-attacks. But as fighting raged at the gates of the former "Pittsburgh" of the Ukraine, other Red forces worked their way northwest to seal off the last railroad running out of the embattled city.

Farther to the south, the Nazis claimed the Russians threw in tanks to re-enforce 150,000 Red troops hammering along the big bend of the Donetz river. This would indicate the Russians concentrated their striking power along the whole Ukrainian front, where the Germans have been making a slow retreat with the Reds pressing forward in the teeth of intensive defensive artillery, mortar and machine gun fire.

The Russians claim the Nazis have 211 divisions, approximately 3,000,000 men, on the eastern front, with 38 divisions in reserve in Poland.

TAXES

Americans buying goods over and above actual necessities may have to pay a spending tax in 1944. Such a tax is under study by the treasury department, which is considering sources for raising an additional 12 billion dollars in revenue next year.

The treasury also has under study a congressional proposal for taxing all income over and above an individual's normal peacetime return. At any rate, individual and corporate income taxes, excess profits and goods' taxes face an increase.

WORK-STOPPAGE: Strikers, Plants Hit

Cancellation of draft deferments and suspension of a striker's privilege for other employment were authorized by President Roosevelt for refusal to comply with orders issued by the War Labor board for settlement of industrial disputes.

Mr. Roosevelt also recommended that war contracts, priorities, fuel or transportation be withheld from companies failing to observe the WLB directives.

Other penalties for non-compliance authorized by Mr. Roosevelt include government seizure of plants in extreme cases, and withholding of dues and cancellation of other union benefits until compliance with the WLB orders.

Office of Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson was charged with imposition of the penalties. Of 1,000 cases settled by WLB, there have been only seven instances of non-compliance.

Miners on Trial

Thirty miners who appealed for dismissal of indictments against them for conspiring to conduct a strike in government held pits on the grounds that the Smith-Connelly anti-strike law was unconstitutional, were denied their motion and ordered to trial by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Pittsburgh.

Judge Schoonmaker answered the miners' contentions that the law violated the constitutional provisions for freedom of speech and against involuntary servitude, by declaring that the government's war powers were unlimited.

To the miners' charge that the law would prevent them from discussing working conditions in any plant, the government attorney contended the crime of sedition was almost always committed by the utterance of words alone. But that did not prevent punishment for such speech, he said.

DADS' DRAFT: Certain to Go

With the draft quota for October set at 312,000 men, the War Manpower Commission reported that induction of pre-Pearl Harbor dads would begin, with those in non-deferrable jobs being the first to go.

While the WMC was making its announcement, Sen. Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina declared that Congress soon would act to establish a definite draft policy and eliminate the confusion arising from varying WMC directives. Reynolds favored the induction of all single men in the nation before drafting any fathers.

The October quota was set on the basis of the services' goal of 10,800,000 men by January 1. Of these, the army will get 8,200,000, and the navy the rest. However, the navy recently revealed that it had already achieved its mark of 2,665,000 in uniform.

Explosives
So huge a quantity of explosives is being turned out by the nation's chemical companies that the government has ordered output be reduced. Less than four months after Pearl Harbor, powder production had surpassed the peak of the first World War. Because of decreased demands for the army and lend-lease shipments, eight army ordnance plants have been placed in a "stand-by" or non-producing status, by Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson.

FOREIGN PACTS:

Due for Congress' O. K.

Agreements that the executive branch of the government may enter into for the temporary management of conquered countries will be subject to a majority vote of the house and senate, according to plans developed in conferences between Secretary of State Cordell Hull and congressional representatives.

Such action would give congress a Vandenberg check over the government's policies in the restoration of order in the devastated areas. Since congress would be called upon to appropriate funds for the execution of such policies, it demanded the right to control their expenditures to protect this country's best interests.

In discussing the plan, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan stated that mere congressional majorities for approving temporary agreements in no way would affect the constitutional provision for a two-thirds vote of the senate for the ratification of a final post-war treaty.

SOUTH PACIFIC: Finish Job

Heading northward, American airmen nosed their craft for Weewak, New Guinea. Raiding that Jap air and supply base the day before, they had surprised the enemy and shot up 120 planes parked wing-to-wing on the ground.

As they returned, 30 Jap interceptor planes zoomed up. But the American air armada mowed it away through the attackers, knocking out 28. Then sweeping low over the airfield, the Yanks bombed and canonaded the planes and hangars that had been spared. Of the total of 222 enemy craft that had been sent to Weewak to re-enforce the Japs on the Australian front, 215 were demolished.

Meanwhile, American warships lurking in the Solomons, pounced on a Jap convoy moving supplies to its beleaguered forces. Broadside struck three enemy destroyers, sinking one. Most of the barges in the convoy were shot up in splinters.

FASTEST TANK

Killing two birds with one stone, the army has produced the M-5 tank, with an automatic gear shift and two Cadillac engines which auto mechanics can easily service on the battle field.

Reputed to be the fastest tank, the M-5 has two hydraulic transmissions which operate through a transfer unit, to deliver the power of the engines to the tank tracks. This is said to be the first automatic shift ever installed in a military vehicle.

To every one mechanic schooled in air-cooled aircraft engines generally used in tanks, there are 10 mechanics familiar with automobile engines, army officials said. Hence, adoption of an auto engine for tank use will allow the use of many mechanics for servicing on the front with a minimum of instruction.

GAS: Planes Fill Up

Gasoline for airplanes, ships, tanks, trucks and other vehicles of the armed forces will consume 30.6 per cent of total production east of the Rocky mountains for the rest of this year and approximately 40 per cent by 1945.

Airplane consumption of gas is enormous, heavy bombers eating up a weight of fuel equal to the weight of its engines for each two hours aloft. Flying Fortresses average more than one gallon to a mile. In the Tunisian campaign, 1,100,000 gallons of gas were burned daily in the planes in Maj. Gen. James Doolittle's command.

Civilian allotment in the 17-state East-coast area approximates 13,726,000 gallons of gas daily. When 12 refineries in the U. S. begin producing 100-octane gas for military planes, their capacity will be in excess of the East-coast area's daily quota. Many are in operation, while others are being rushed to completion.

LEND-LEASE: Record Shipments

America's lend-lease exports during the first half of 1943 exceeded normal U. S. exports for a full year during the 10-year period from 1929 to '39.

In round figures, lend-lease shipments amounted to slightly less than four billion dollars. Other exports of 1 1/2 billion dollars for which America received payment, brought total shipments to nearly 5 1/2 billion dollars.

Washington MERRY GO-ROUND

DREW PEARSON

Washington, D. C.

If you think the U. S. Black Market is profitable, take a look at operations in China. A fountain pen costs $10,000 Chinese currency in Chungking. Even with the Chinese dollar worth only five cents this is $500 in U. S. dollars and a lot of dough to pay for a fountain pen.

You can also understand why U. S. fliers load up with lipstick before going to China. A lipstick brings $5,000 in Chinese dollars in Chungking. This is about $250 in U. S. currency.

This is also why lend-lease has sent a certain amount of silk stockings, champagne, perfume and other luxuries to Chinese war lords. They are sent to counteract similar imports by the Japanese which have a very undermining influence on a war lord worried over maintenance of his love-nest.

RUBBER DELUGE

Officials in the office of the rubber administrator are beginning to wonder what they can do with the hundreds of thousands of tons of synthetic rubber which will come from the new plants next year. It seems a little late, but they are now facing the elementary question of whether or not the tire companies can handle the vast quantities of synthetic rubber.

The greatest amount of rubber ever processed by the nation's rubber companies in one year was $40,000 tons. But next year we shall have nearly one million tons to deal with. Obviously, the present facilities will be inadequate.

But the problem is aggravated by the fact that tire manufacturing machinery has been knocked down and stored away so that rubber companies could convert to production for the war. Instead of tires, they have been making rubber boots, balloons, tank treads and life rafts.

Thus we have the problem of finding new plant space in which to bring that machinery back into production, and the further problem of creating entirely new productive facilities to take care of the increased quantities of rubber which will be available for manufacture.

SOLOMONS ISLAND

Few maps of the world show the location of Solomons Island, Maryland, a pinprick in Chesapeake bay. Locally it is famous only for its fishing and the fact that the steamships Leviathan, Mount Vernon and Monticello were laid up there to rust in deference to private shipowners.

Since the war, however, Solomons Island has become an important naval installation, and the navy department recently arranged for the shipment of some airplanes to Solomons Island on an aircraft carrier built for the British in a West coast yard. While the carrier was going through the Panama canal locks, London radioed asking its whereabouts.

"We're on our way to Solomons Island," replied the carrier's commanding officer.

"Why are you going to Solomons Island and where is it?" London queried in amazement.

"Get in touch with the embassy in Washington," radioed back the ship's commanding officer.

After some anxious moments, London learned in code that the carrier's commanding officer had not mutinied, nor was he going to the Solomons Islands, but to the U. S. naval base at Solomons Island, Maryland.

SMALL BUSINESS BLOW-UP

The government's program for the relief of small business is headed for trouble when congress reconvenes next month.

At secret sessions of the senate small business committee, headed by Senator James Murray of Montana, small business men complained about their inability to get government loans for war contracts and sub-contracts, while billions of dollars of government money is being shelled out to big corporations. The senate committee heard complaints about the tight-fisted loan policies of the Smaller War Plants corporation.

One example given the senate committee was that of the Riverside Boatyard company of Miami, which tried to get a loan of only $10,000 from the Smaller War Plants corporation to complete a war contract. After being turned down, the company got the $10,000 loan from a private bank within 24 hours.

As a result, Senator James Murray of Montana, chairman of the senate small business committee, is planning some close scrutiny of the Smaller War Plants corporation.

MERRY GO-ROUND

Just before Frank Tinsley, former press aide of the British Supply Council, left to join the Royal Canadian Air force, he wrote the Pennsylvania railroad: "As a British subject who has lived in the United States for 14 years, mostly as a newspaper man with Reuters, will you grant me one favor on leaving this grand country? Will you let me ride in a locomotive cab of one of your trains to New York, on my way to Canada?" Tinsley left Washington in the cab.

Lawyer Met His Match In Tinsmith, On and On

A lawyer, noted for his in cross-examination, asked his business of tin-roofing. "I have worked at it for some time."

"How long off and on?"

"Sixty-five years."

"How old are you?"

"Sixty-five."

"Then you have been a tinsmith for birth?"

"No, sir; of course I have."

"Then why do you say you worked at your trade 65 years?"

"Because you asked me off and on I had worked at it—20 years on and 45 off."

Here there was a roar of laughter, but not at the lawyer, who had finished his examination in great confusion.

Interest Growing In H. S. Bible Course

A number of inquiries have been received from High School students, and their parents, regarding the Bible Course to be offered this winter. The elective course carries the regular credit of one-half credit each semester, and is open to all High School students. The Old Testament will be taught the first semester by Rev. Austin Varner. The New Testament will be taught the second semester by Rev. A. E. Harrison. Either semester's work will receive credit without taking the other.

County gave the welcome address for the Odd Fellows, with the response by Henry Richie of Vernon. Musical numbers for the morning session included an accordion solo by Miss Paula Lee Murray; a vocal solo by Miss Peggy Lindsey; a piano solo by Mrs. Eddie J. Saliba; and an accordion number by Miss Betty Key. Reports of credentials and other committees and reports of association officers were heard during the afternoon session, in addition to the election of officers.

More Rebekah IOOF Officers Are Named

Additional officers of the Lower Panhandle Association of Rebekahs and Odd Fellows have been named by Miss Myrtle Russell, Electra, who was elected president at the 35th annual convention here Friday.

The officers are Mrs. Dean Watkins, Electra, Marshal; Mrs. Nora Fancher, Seymour, musician; and Mrs. Lephia Dillard, Wichita Falls, reporter.

Numerous grand and assembly officers were present for the banquet Friday night. President Russell is sponsoring this year the Theta Roe girls club and the "barnyard" degree was conferred on 92 members, which netted $26 to be used for club purposes. Sherman Reed directed the initiation.

Another highlight was a memorial service by the Vernon lodge. Rebekahs attired in white robes and carrying lighted candles formed in the shape of a cross. As each name of the departed members were called, a Rebekah placed a pink carnation into a wreath in the shape of the three links and one candle was extinguished.

Those receiving prizes from Burk in the individual charges were Mary Cecil, Rebekahs, and J. H. Cecil, IOOF. The next meeting to be held in will be in Seymour, August 1944.

Those attending from Burkburnett were Myrtle Kelly, Thelma Martin, Bertha Lynch, Ruth Ramsey, Cecil Patterson, Edna Peed, Mary Cecil, Mike Begun, and J. H. Cecil.

Officers introduced were Mrs. Addie Bell Aston, state Rebekah Assembly president; Mrs. Jane Apple, vice president; Mrs. Ruth Hamilton, conductor; Mrs. Mary Ranbarger, past president; Mrs. Lillie B. Hardesty, first president of the Rebekah Association.

In competitive degree work, the Wichita Falls Rebekah Lodge was awarded a loving cup for the third consecutive time. Seymour won the cup in the Odd Fellows group.

Friendship Party Is Given for Mrs. Gilchrist

Tuesday evening the home of Mrs. D. R. Peevey, 402 5th St., was the scene of a lovely friendship party given for Mrs. R. M. Gilchrist, who is moving to California. The evening was spent in fellowship and conversation among the friends. Assisting Mrs. Peevey with the hostess duties were Mesdames L. E. Harwell, O. E. Melton, Paul Browning, J. R. Brumley, F. L. Pilkenton, C. C. Gilbert, P. A. Wiggins, and W. R. Hill.

New Time:
Training Union, 7:15.
Preaching Services, 8:15.

Up-Up-Up—We are gradually climbing in our Sunday School attendance. Last Sunday we had 275—were you one of that number? Did you find your place in some class or department? Were you better acquainted with God's word after attending some class—or did you rob yourself and maybe someone else by staying away from the Sunday School?

The Training Union attendance was also up. There were 84 in the Training Union. Good lessons in all the departments.

September has arrived, and we should strive to make it one of the very best Sunday School and Church Attendance Months. Only three more Sundays after this one until our revival will begin.

Each Sunday should see an increase in the Sunday School now. The fourth Sunday—the 26th—the day our meeting begins has been suggested as "Rally Day." Further plans and suggestions will be made at our Teachers' and Officers' meeting Monday night, Sept. 13th. However, let's begin now in every department and class working and praying for a great rally day.

We should have already begun praying for the revival, and should keep on praying for the lost and the revival of the saved.

The offering for the Chinese Relief last Sunday was splendid. There were $155.00 plus came in last Sunday. You will have another opportunity this Sunday to give your dollar—five, or whatever amount you want to give. This is a very worthy cause—we can save the physical life of many Chinese—with our dollars, etc.

Be looking for you Sunday—be in your place—Pray for the service—Remember God can not use empty pews—rooms—auditorium—VERY WELL.

Rev. A. E. Harrison.

Methodist Church Announcements for Next Sunday

Church School attendance is increasing. Classes for all ages begin at 9:45 with B. A. Browning General Superintendent.

Preaching services at 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. Brother DeVore, Pastor, will administer the Communion following the morning sermon and Rev. Ira C. Kiker will speak at the evening hour and show some pictures of Camps and Assemblies.

Nazarene Church

We are very happy over the success of the revival which closed a week ago. Twenty-three expressed receiving spiritual help at an altar of prayer. Six were baptized and more yet to come into the church. Approximately $200 was raised for the expenses of the meeting. We wish to thank those from the other churches of the town for their cooperative help and attendance. From the Methodist came choirs to help seat the large crowds, from a small Baptist Church out of town came a nice offering of "Home Missionary" money in support of the Workers, the broadcasting set was loaned by a member of another Baptist church. We sincerely thank each one.

On Thursday night of last week a large crowd consisting of people of all ages gathered at the City Light Plant for Sunday School picnic and watermelon slicing.

The young people and juniors had a great time riding the play ground equipment and playing games.

As a Church we believe in a three-phase development, physical, mental and spiritual. We invite you to join in with us and help all we can that America may be a God-loving, God-serving people.

Modern Interest In Ancient Wonders

THE HANGING GARDENS OF BABYLON
(By Boyd I. DeVore)

One of the wonders of the Ancient World was the hanging gardens of Babylon. They were built by Nebuchadnezzar during the glorious days of Babylon.

These gardens may best be likened to a modern football stadium grandstand. A great form of rocks were built some four hundred feet wide, a hundred feet high on the back and several hundred feet long. This form was filled with imported, fertile soil. There were our levels, each a hundred feet wide and one in back and above the other.

On these garden plots were planted trees, shrubs, flowers and every kind of vegetables and wine that would live in the sultry climate.

Arches, rooms, and porches were built into the architectural designs to make the gardens resemble a mountain, and to make the beautiful gardens an ample setting for parties and entertainments.

The gardens were watered by an intricate irrigation system supplied by water from the Euphrates river.

The water was pumped from the river to the top of the gardens by slave labor, and then allowed to trickle as living streams throughout the gardens.

The King Married A Hillbilly
King Nebuchadnezzar had married Amytis, a spoiled daughter of the King of the Medes. She became homesick on the flat, desert country of Babylon and longed for the mountain slopes of her homeland. The King built this hanging garden at enormous expense to the State to appease the queen and save a division of the empire.

The hanging gardens of Babylon have completely disappeared. Their most famous counterparts in the modern world are the hanging gardens at Lake Maggiore, Italy, and at the Rockefeller Center, New York.

Nebuchadnezzar is best known to most modern Bible Students for the building of the seven-towered pyramid to the God of Bel.

He built a great platform and on this rose the tower with seven distinct stories. Each story was sacred to its own plant; for in those days of astrology the stars were supposed to have much to do with human destiny.

The first story was painted black, the second white, the third orange, the fourth blue, the fifth blood-red, the sixth was overlaid with silver and the seventh with gold. The beauty of such a structure can scarcely be imagined, but the prophet, Daniel preferred to go into the den of lions rather than worship any such astrology and ruler. Nebuchadnezzar lost his mind and sent out into the fields and ate grass as an ox.

Nation To Be Short Millions Of Tires

CLEVELAND, August 28.—Sparks E. Bennett, national chief of the OPAs tire rationing branch, warned American motorists tonight the nation will be six to seven million tires short of actual needs by the end of 1943.

Bennett said that misconstruction had been placed on remarks of Rubber Director William Jeffers last week when he was reported to have said 17,000,000 tires would be available for use this year with the implication the number would be adequate.

THE STATE OF TEXAS,
To Jack Pierce, Defendant,
Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to appear before the Honorable 78th District Court of Wichita County at the Court House thereof, in Wichita Falls, Texas at or before 10 o'clock A. M. of the first Monday next after the expiration of forty-two days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being the 11th day of October A. D. 1943 then and there to answer Plaintiff's Petition filed in said Court, on the 3rd day of April A. D. 1943, in this cause, numbered 36868-B on the docket of said court and styled Doris Pierce Plaintiff, vs. Jack Pierce Defendant.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to-wit: After alleging jurisdiction, Plaintiff further alleges that she and Defendant were lawfully married and lived together until on or about April 1, 1940 at which time they separated; that excesses and harsh and cruel treatment on the part of the Defendant makes their further living together insupportable; and that there were no children born of this union.

Wherefore, Plaintiff prays that she have judgment for divorce and such other and further relief to which she may show herself justly entitled.

The officer executing this process shall promptly execute the same according to law, and make due return as the law directs. Issued and given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Wichita Falls, Texas this 24th day of August A. D. 1943.

ATTEST:
Glenn Haynes, Clerk, 78th District Court, Wichita County, Texas.
(SEAL) 4-4c-5.

Early Applications For Stoves Urged

Don't wait until winter to apply for the purchase of a new stove if you think you are going to need it, the OPA ration board officials advised Monday.

The quota for Wichita County is limited and unless prospective stove-buyers apply early it may be impossible to meet the demand. Applications for new stove must be filed, since practically all types of stoves used in North Texas are under the rationing restrictions through a recent OPA order, they stated.

The applications are filed on OPA form R-901, available at the Wichita County War Price and Rationing Board office in the Staley Building or at the stove dealer's place of business.

Beginning Sept. 1, all orders for stoves to dealers, distributors and manufacturers must be accompanied by a purchase permit issued by the ration board. It is the same as gasoline rationing, they said, wherein a dealer must surrender coupons before he can purchase more gasoline for resale.
