Leader class deadline near

The deadline is fast approaching to apply for initial membership in "Century II: Leadership Scurry County," the new program designed to identify both leaders in the county as well as problem areas to be addressed.

The program is a seminar planned jointly by Snyder Chamber of Commerce and Western Texas College officials. It is for both professional and non-professional individuals.

The non-credit class is scheduled to begin the afternoon of Thursday, Nov. 17 and will meet monthly from November through May. The afternoon-evening session are expected to average about four hours in length.

Monday has been announced as the deadline to apply. Application blanks are available at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, Adventures Unlimited, Williamson Auto Parts and from Dr. Jim Palmer at WTC.

Cost for the seminar is $175 per person, which includes charges for teaching materials and all other activities connected with the class. It will be limited to 15 persons.

An anonymous committee, composed of community leaders, will select the 15 persons chosen for the initial class. Choices will be based on creating a broad representation of the community.

Persons not chosen are asked to consider reapplying for next year's seminar.

"This program is new to us, but not new to Texas cities," said Dr. Don Newbury, WTC president who chaired the chamber committee named to pursue a program of this nature. "When my committee visited Midland several weeks ago to learn more about 'Leadership Midland,' we were overwhelmed and encouraged by the excitment its program has generated for leadership there." Newbury added.

The Midland program is now in its fifth year, and an alumni group has been formed. The Midland class, offered by Midland Chamber of Commerce and Midland College, has become a focal point for agencies, organizations and civic groups seeking leadership for various humanitarian projects.

Other members of the local committee are Murray Ann Ray, Troy Williamson and Max Snider.

"What we are seeking are men and women from all walks of life in our community who want to learn more about leadership, and learn more about the 'heartbeat' of our community, including up-close understanding of local

How to handle disaster taught

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

What do you say after the plant blows up?

This week, some 30 Chevron USA employees have been in training for this type situation in a series of media crisis training seminars here.

These have subjected the participants to a simulated live television news interview — complete with videotape and questions from area television reporters.

The "disaster" is only on paper, however. Participants were given five minutes to read a disaster scenario prior to their interview.

Jerry Barlow, public affairs area manager for Chevron USA in El Paso, says the training is designed to teach company personnel to respond accurately and honestly to questions they might face following a disaster.

Once the first interviews are completed, Barlow and David Valentine, a California-based independent consultant, subject the participants to a second interview several hours later. Then all of one day's subjects are gathered for a review of the videotaped interviews for an evaluation of their performance.

"No comment" does not exist, Barlow said, referring to Chevron's policy for dealing with reporters when a crisis occurs. The training, which begins at the assistant production foremen level, also aids personnel to overcome the mistrust they often have of television and press reporters.

The company has been offering these seminars in all of Chevron's domestic divisions since 1979. This week's session was the first in West Texas and the only offering of the program this year for the Mid-West-Rocky Mountain region.

While most of the participants were local staffers, five others from as far away as Montana, Wyoming and North Dakota traveled here to participate.

Valentine and his crew spared no effort to make the simulations as real as possible. During the week, situations dealt with on location included pipeline and drilling blow outs and a major plant fire.

One scenario had personnel dealing with a protest at a local facility which led to violence between company employees and protesters and the death of a U.S. senator who happened to be on the scene.

To enhance realism, the interviews were conducted in the field near the site of the supposed disasters. Thursday morning's subjects had to face a cold rain in addition to the intimidating TV camera.

To duplicate the physical conditions at a disaster, Valentine used area television reporters from Odessa, Lubbock and Abilene as interviewers for the sessions to highten the sense of realism for the participants.

City's founder participant in historic battle

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Pete Snyder, for whom the city is named, was a Union cavalryman during this nation's Civil War. On Oct. 23, 1864 — 119 years ago today — he participated in one of the major battles of that war. It was fought at Westport along the Missouri-Kansas line and would become known as "Gettysburg of the West." This article is excerpted from Charlie Anderson's forthcoming book "Deep Creek Merchant, The Story of William Henry (Pete) Snyder.")

By Charles G. Anderson

Important battles were developing in the midwest about the time Pvt. Pete Snyder arrived in Kansas.

In his detachment's Muster-out Roll, dated June 20, 1865, a note is made that he participated in the battles of Little Blue, Big Blue, Westport and Mill Creek.

Westport, a small town along the Missouri-Kansas line, was soon to be known as the "Gettysburg of the West." It was a hotbed of Rebel activity and would soon find its place in history as one of the important battles of the Civil War.

In late summer of 1864, Major General Sterling Price of the Confederate Army moved a large force into Missouri. General Price's army con-

Snyder Savings names director

Roger B. Mize, president and chairman of the board of Snyder Savings and Loan, Friday announced the election of Bruce Kallemeyn as a director of the financial institution.

Kallemeyn, 35, is president of RXTX, a rail car leasing company located in Roscoe, and is manager of car services for the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific Railroad.

Kallemeyn has been president of the company the past seven years and prior to that he was associated with Kiker-Seale Funeral Home in Colorado City for two years.

A native of Fort Worth, the new director graduated from Pascal High School and attended New Mexico Highlands University where he played football. He majored in biology and was a business minor.

A member of the Roscoe Lions Club, Kallemeyn also is a 32nd degree Mason and is a member of the Abilene Shriners clown unit.

Married to the former Vicki Mize, the couple has three daughters--Kristen, Kelly and Kameron.

Other directors include Mize, Gene Best, Mel Gilbert, John Boren, M. L. Duke, Lee Smyth, J. B. Tate and Joee Gainer.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There are two ways of spreading light. Be a candle or the mirror that reflects it."

That thought penned many years ago by Edith Wharton can be applied to one Snyder family--a family which has demonstrated courage, faith and patience for more than 20 years.

Wayland Richard Bearden, 21, was buried Friday--the third son of the Ronald Bearden family and the third son to die after a long and painful battle with muscular dystrophy.

One serious illness would be ample tribulation for most, but the Bearden family demonstrated a unique ability to live with adversity and live it with zest.

An older brother, Randy, died on Jan. 31, 1976. Wayland's twin, Gayland died on Dec. 20, 1981.

We remember Wayland and Gayland as perhaps the most dedicated Snyder Tiger boosters. They enjoyed athletics and Ronald wore out a van taking the brothers to watch Snyder football and basketball.

We often wonder how they were able to have that natural and easy smile. Part of the answer may be found in Wayland's decision shortly before he died.

Wayland valued the gift of life and the gift of sight. He was aware of the critical need of donations of human organs, so he contacted the local Lions Club and expressed a desire to donate his kidneys and eyes.

Following his death Wednesday, a part of his request was fulfilled as his eyes were donated to the Lubbock Lions Eye Bank and immediately went to two recipients who will have sight because of Wayland's sensitivity, appreciation for sight and concern for others.

Those close to Wayland admired him for many things. There was no self-pity, no cynicism. When he could have easily been a taker, he was a mirror--a giver.

Ask Us

Q. — Is the current Cowboy season record the longest winning streak the team has ever had?

A. — No. If the Cowboys win Sunday night, they will go to 8-0 for the year. The club record is 12 wins in a row, although this stretched over two seasons. In 1971-72, the Cowboys won the final seven regular-season games and the three playoff games, including Super Bowl VI. They then won the first two games of the 1972 season.

In Brief

Block decision applauded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says Agriculture Secretary John Block's decision to drop his staunch opposition to the release of 80 million bushels of damaged corn for cattle feed is "a good thing" for producers in drought-stricken areas.

On Friday, Block aide Dave Lane said that while the secretary continues to withhold endorsement of any of the bills pending in Congress to provide emergency feed aid to livestock producers, he did tell Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas, "we can accept legislation."

The emergency feed plan, already authorized in law, has been pushed by many livestock-state congressmen whose constituents are struggling with the aftermath of this year's devastating drought.

Witness held in drug case

HOUSTON (AP) — The witness whose testimony is the basis for convicted hitman Charles Harrelson's request for a new trial has been charged with two counts of drug possession.

Hampton Robinson III, 35, was charged Friday with possessing a gram of cocaine and several capsules of synthetic heroin. He was held without bond because he is awaiting trial on unrelated forgery and drug charges.

Harrelson was convicted last December in the May 29, 1979, shooting death of U.S. District Judge John Wood, known as "Maximum John" for the lengthy sentences he gave drug dealers.

In a recent appeal for a new trial, Harrelson claimed Robinson was under treatment for alcoholism when he testified in the trial.

No injuries in mild quake

SANTA MARIA, Calif. (AP) — A mild earthquake rumbled across northern Santa Barbara County early Friday, but authorities said there were no reports of damage or injury.

The 4:13 a.m. temblor registered 3.5 on the Richter scale, said Dennis Meredith, spokesman for the seismology lab at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena.

The epicenter was directly beneath Santa Maria, Meredith said.

The area had been slightly shaken by the same series of aftershocks that have hit Coalinga since a major earthquake devastated that town May 2. Coalinga is about 100 miles north of Santa Maria, which is about 135 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

Police dispatcher Peggy Phiercof described the quake as "just a little bit of rumbling."

War-torn El Salvador has two sides to country

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — In the San Salvador mornings, the parrots glide down from misty volcano slopes, flashing green through the pines, squawking at the city dawn.

Toward noon, the vultures cluster on country roads, eyes keen, heavy beaks mute, hopping on clumsy feet in search of a corpse.

Green macaws and black vultures, beauty and death. The two sides of El Salvador.

"There was killing in the Old Testament, there was killing in the New Testament, and there will be killing in whatever testament they write in the future."

The old leftist politician, in rumpled pajamas, laughs as he sits in the warmth of his leafy patio, sipping sweet Salvador coffee and reflecting on his country's homicidal habits.

"Maybe it's in our blood — the spirit of our Indian ancestors. ... Get drunk and kill."

The Pipil Indians killed and were killed in untold numbers on April 4, 1528, when Spanish conquistadors finally overcame their resistance and captured this great Indian center. It was the Feast of the Holy Savior — "El Salvador."

"Live Your Life Moment to Moment," a billboard advises new arrivals in the Land of the Savior.

The bubbly soft-drink ad overlooks the airport expressway where four American women missionaries disappeared one night three years ago, to be found dead the next day. Allegedly shot by national guardsmen, they were just four victims among more than 40,000 in four years of left-right terror that has made random death a fact of life here.

The slaughter has slowed — perhaps 10 or 20 a day instead of 40. Still, every morning, the bodies appear on roadsides and under bushes, on barren lava fields and in parking lots. Some are victims of the left, but human rights group say most have been "brought to justice" by the phantom death squads, said to be off-duty police or soldiers waging a grisly secret war against suspected "subversives," a murderous campaign that has been bloodier than the above-ground war against leftist guerrillas.

The culture of sudden death seeps through the society:

Automatic gunfire shatters the 5 a.m. peace in the Miramonte district, but its affluent residents drop right back off to sleep. At noon a backfire — or is it a stray shot? — sends a mother and three small children sprawling in fear along a boulevard, but they spring up a second later and stroll on.

From the radio, bells toll and a somber voice announces yet another passing of a beloved — then back to the "salsa" beat. In the newspaper, a terse article reports three bodies were found on the Mariona highway and buried on the spot.

"Anyone interested in the identity of these persons," it says, "can call Guadalupanos Funeral Home, where they have pieces of the clothing." Another public service.

He is short and beefy-faced. Lemon-yellow shirt, dark mustache, calm eyes, quiet manner. He is a Communist, an underground leader of the revolution. He meets with a visitor among the potted plants and coffee cups of a friend's home, a "safehouse" not far from San Salvador's centers of power.

He is 35 years old and has been in "the struggle" for 20 years. He is asked about lost comrades. His bookkeeping is precise.

"There were 25 students in my class in school. Eighteen of them were like-minded. Fourteen of those were in the struggle. Four are still alive — two outside the country, one in jail. I'm the fourth."

The fatalistic young revolutionary, resuming his ideological discourse, leaves out another lost comrade, his wife, seized earlier this year by unidentified men, tortured and killed.

El Salvador's provisional president, Alvaro Magana, is a genial, unpretentious ex-banker, a would-be peacemaker among the country's right-wing factions, an old ally of the United States. A bust of John F. Kennedy adorns his bank office.

"I have always said there were some conditions here of social conflict. That no one could deny," he tells a visitor at La Casona, the presidential mansion.

"And there was a delay in finding solutions.... And maybe they didn't have an opportunity to express their voice in some sectors. I accept that.

"But to come to the conclusion that there is something to justify what the guerrillas are doing, this is another thing. ...

"When you have Nicaragua and Cuba helping them, this is another thing — just to have power, to establish a system I don't believe in. ...

"Maybe the Marxist believes he is going to help the people, but the question is whether it is right."

By whatever means, a lot of people in El Salvador certainly could use help.

The contrasts of life in San Salvador are as vivid as in any Third World capital.

A few minutes from the sprawling lawns and spacious homes of Escalon and Lomas Verdes, the "tugurios," dismal slums of corrugated-metal or mud hovels, cling to each other and to the banks of filthy streams.

The Paseo General Escalon, a well-manicured boulevard of restaurants and shops, slips around a tiny park and gives way to the Alameda F.D. Roosevelt, where bony old women lie begging in rags on the sidewalks, men without work peddle pencils, flocks of small boys rush to "guard" parked cars for a few centavos.

11 teams to compete in Olympic Day fun

Eleven teams will be competing in the annual Olympic Day events Oct. 24-27 at Western Texas College.

"Olympic Days give students the chance to get to know other students they might not know otherwise and to have fun, Mickey Baird, student activities director, said.

Each team is responsible for coordinating one event and enters each of the other events. The contests are held on the intramural field and the dormitory courtyard during activity periods and at noon.

Contests on the schedule include mummy wrap, flour pick, egg toss, broom hockey, dizzy race and tug-of-war.

Teams competiting are Baptist Student Union, Delta Psi Omega, Electro-Mechanical Technology, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Greens Industry Organization, Kappa Chi, Phi Theta Kappa, Press Club, Rodeo Club, Student Senate and Texas Marketing and Managing.

Mary Moore plans to wed

NEW YORK (AP) — Wedding bells won't be ringing right away for actress Mary Tyler Moore — at least not until late next month, her spokeswoman said in response to reports that Miss Moore, 45, is about to get hitched for a third time.

The city clerk's office stayed open late Tuesday night so she and her husband-to-be, cardiologist S. Robert Levine, could pick up their license. However, the wedding date has yet to be set, spokeswoman Jackie Becher said Thursday.

Levine works at Mount Sinai Hospital and the Bronx Veterans Administration Hospital.

Miss Moore's most recent marriage was to Grant Tinker, now head of NBC, from whom she was divorced last year.

Europeans nix NATO missiles

LONDON (AP) — Protesters across Western Europe today came out by the tens of thousands to demand that NATO abandon plans to start installing new nuclear missiles this winter.

More than 100,000 demonstrators massed in Bonn while other West German protesters began linking arms to form a 70-mile chain between a U.S. Army base in southern Germany and NATO's European Command Headquarters in Stuttgart.

Police dragged 250 of the demonstrators away from the gates of Wiley Barracks in Neu-Ulm overnight, but no violence or arrests were reported. Pershing missiles, one of two kinds of nuclear weapons NATO plans to install, are stored at the U.S. Army base.

In London, tens of thousands of anti-missile protesters packed a two-mile stretch along the Thames river.

Organizers predicted nearly 2 million people would join in marches, rallies, blockades, human chains, sit-ins and "die-ins" in London, Paris, Rome, Vienna, Stockholm. More demonstrations were planned Sunday and Monday in other European countries.

In Paris and other French cities, demonstrations being strongly backed by the French Communist Party, were expected to draw thousands of people.

In Rome, 3,500 buses ferried protesters to an afternoon march and rally. Police helicopters monitored the outpouring and 4,000 extra officers were called to duty.

Thousands of demonstrators converged on Wiley Barracks at Neu-Ulm for an afternoon rally.

Organizers estimated that 150,000 people would have to link hands to complete the chain from the NATO command headquarters in Stuttgart to Wiley Barracks.

Joe Bright to speak Sunday

Joe Bright, a Snyder native and son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Bright, will speak at the 6 p.m. worship service Sunday at the 37th Street Church of Christ.

Bright is a missionary in Ireland. He and his wife, Vicki, and two children will return to Ireland on Oct. 28.

government, education, health care, oil and related industries, agriculture and business," Newbury said. He emphasized there is no pre-requisite for application.

"Many will be professional people with extensive education and experience, and others may not have finished high school," he said.

Of the some dozen applications received so far, ages range from 26 to 60, with applicants currently working in education, business, government and the oil industry.

Leading the seminar will be Dr. Jim Palmer, division chairman for social science at WTC. In 1981, he was chosen to attend a seminar on economic development at Ohio State University. Much of the program there dealt with leadership strategies.

Program resources will come from citizen leaders and specialists in various fields. Included will be lectures, on-site visits, panels and dialogue with seminar participants. The purpose is to identify channels of responsibility, needs and problems and the solutions to these now and in the future.

Persons desiring additional information may contact Mort Ewing, chamber manager, or Palmer at WTC.

Theft noted, one cleared

A single misdemeanor theft was reported in Snyder Friday afternoon.

Gandy's employee Dwayne Merritt called city police at 3:25 p.m. and reported the theft of a two-wheel hand truck valued at $150. It was apparently taken earlier in the day from a milk truck parked at the Fina service station at the intersection of Ave. J and 25th St.

Late Friday afternoon, police reported also clearing a misdemeanor theft reported earlier at the WTC Dorm.

Two rings and a watch reported stolen from Karen Kuykendall on Sept. 26 were recovered. A female suspect in the case was questioned in connection with the case but no arrest was made.

In other routine action, city police jailed three men on public intoxication charges after midnight Friday.

Snyder fights at Westport sisted of about 15,000 men. They first engaged in battle with the State Militia of Missouri.

Some of Price's men were captured and from these soldiers the militia learned that Price had as his main objective the capture of St. Louis.

It was said of Price that he was debonair and highly popular with his men. The Rebel soldiers fondly called him "Old Pap" and they never thought that he would lead them to anything but victory.

When the Confederates were deterred from their main objective of St. Louis, the Rebel Army was drawn into battles at Little Blue and Big Blue Rivers. The cavalry, of which Snyder was a part, attacked Price's army on Oct. 22, 1864, and drove it into disorder. On Oct. 23, the horsemen attacked the rear of Price's Army and the foot soliders at the front began to close in on the Rebels.

Private Snyder was engaged in furious hand to hand battle that involved thousands of others and raged over an area of five or six square miles.

About the middle of the afternoon of Oct. 23, the entire Confederate Army was in full retreat along the state borders of Missouri and Kansas, pursued closely by the victorious Union Army.

That night, campfires could be seen for miles around near the Little Blue River. Union soldiers celebrated their victory and Rebel soldiers fled into the darkness.

The important battle at Westport helped set the stage for Pete Snyder to eventually make his way to Scurry County.

There would be other battles in setting up the town of Snyder, but not like the one at Westport. These would be battles with his neighbors which eventually went all the way to the Supreme Court of Texas.

The final decision would leave him without land, but a town would be named for him.

The battle of Westport would condition him for tough years in West Texas. But, he would not always win as he did 119 years ago today.

By recent rains...

Cotton crops destroyed

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Torrential rains that besieged the South Plains this week came right at the wrong time for farmers and devastated the region's cotton crop.

The heavy rains began Tuesday, and in a little over 24 hours the area around Lubbock had received more than six inches — more than a third of its average annual rainfall.

Many farmers hit with heavy losses carried no crop insurance and faced the danger of being forced out of business.

Hockley County extension agent Bill R. Taylor of Levelland, 25 miles west of Lubbock, said Friday that the deluge was another in a series of disasters that assured "the fifth disaster year in a row" for South Plains farmers.

"In the last 24 hours, it's rained almost as much as it has all year," Taylor said of weather in the Levelland area. He estimated that Hockley County farmers will lose about 25 percent of their potential yield on the 140,000 to 145,000 acres of cotton that still could be harvested.

Many farmers west of Lubbock, in Hockley and Lamb counties, had lost their entire cotton crops earlier in the week to hail before the rains even began.

"The hail, rain and wind have knocked a lot of cotton into the mud," Taylor said.

The region was hit by record snows last winter followed by a colder planting season than normal and a dry summer. Despite the drought, farmers managed to get a cotton crop up with the help of irrigation.

Acreage was already down because of heavy participation in a federal program. Then came the earliest recorded freeze in Lubbock's history last month, stopping the growth of the cotton, said Lyndon Schoenhals, a cotton breeding specialist in Lubbock.

The series of events — even before the hail and record rains — had left the outlook for the state's biggest cotton-producing counties at 2.25 million bales, which would have been the South Plains' smallest cotton harvest in 37 years.

"The rains came right when we didn't need it," said Kary Mathis, agricultural economist at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Losses in both cotton quality and yields are being reported in Hockley, Lubbock, Lamb, Hale and Crosby counties, which perennially rank among the state's leaders in production, Mathis said.

"We lost 400 acres of cotton, about one-third of the total we farm," said Gale Davis, whose husband, Jimmie, works 1,200 acres near Abernathy, about 25 miles north of Lubbock.

They, like many area farmers, held no crop insurance, she said. How the uninsured losses will affect her family-owned farm is unclear, she said.

Narrows definition of deceptive ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission on Friday told Congress that it is narrowing the definition of what constitutes deceptive advertising.

The FTC said in a letter to Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., and Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., that it has adopted a standard requiring proof that a "reasonable" consumer had suffered actual injury before an advertiser can be accused of deceptive practices. FTC officials say the new policy will block many trivial lawsuits in the past that have been rejected in court.

A congressman and a state attorney general objected to the change. The commission voted 3-2 a week ago in favor of the new definition, which was pushed strongly by FTC Chairman James C. Miller, a 1981 appointee to the commission.

The FTC has brought lawsuits in recent years against advertisers of such products as denture creams, mouthwash and autos under language that outlaws broadly defined deceptive practices. Now, the commission will have to prove that the ads mislead the consumer acting reasonably in circumstances to the consumers' detriment.

"That means you can't go after them (advertisers) if you have a dumb consumer," said Bronson LaFollette, the attorney general of Wisconsin. "I think consumer protection ought to be available for all people, whether you have an IQ of 50 or an IQ of 150."

Relieving emphysema

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm writing about emphysema. The doctor says I have it. I'm short of breath and sometimes I can hardly breathe, especially in foggy weather.

They had me take a breathing test. They clamped my nose so I couldn't breathe through it and put a hose in my mouth to breathe in and out. My breathing level was way below what it was supposed to be.

My doctor gave me Dimetapp Extentabs but he said it didn't help me. Now he has me on another medicine called Theo-Dur. Is that for emphysema? Isn't there any cure for emphysema?

DEAR READER — Unfortunately there is no cure for emphysema. But you can do a lot to prevent its progression and to relieve the symptoms such as shortness of breath in many people. For the best results you need to start early and before the disease has progressed to the point that little can be done.

Chronic bronchitis and emphysema are common problems. Some people inherit factors that make them develop obstructions to air flow in the lungs, but most people develop these conditions from air pollutants. That usually means smoking cigarettes. Almost everyone who has smoked several years already has chronic bronchitis. Obviously the most important treatment is to avoid the pollutants, specifically tobacco smoke.

Theo-Dur is a bronchial dilator. It helps to open up the air passages in your lungs.

In addition to not smoking there are other things that help. That includes developing good posture and good breathing exercises. It is very important to avoid respiratory infections. And that reminds me to tell everyone with such problems that they really need flu shots to help protect them. Flu in people who have such lung problems can be quite serious.

To update you on what you need to do for such problems I am sending you the Health Letter 17-8, Chronic Bronchitis and Emphysema. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you tell me anything about the parathyroid gland? I know there are four parathyroid glands in the neck area. I had one removed three years ago and now blood tests show that I have another abnormal parathyroid.

DEAR READER — They are small glands located along the side of the thyroid gland or parallel to the thyroid gland, hence the name parathyroid.

Their chief role is to form parathyroid hormones. They are endocrine glands. The parathyroid hormone regulates the level of calcium in the blood and body fluids to some extent independent of dietary calcium intake.

Too much hormone may cause mobilization of calcium from your bones. This may lead to a high blood calcium level and deposits of calcium in soft tissues as well as calcium kidney stones. Digestive complaints may occur also, giving rise to the old medical aphorism to identify hyperparathyroidism of "bones, stones and groans."

The usual treatment of an overactive parathyroid gland is to remove the overactive portion, usually a small tumor.

The parathyroid glands may also be damaged or even removed when the thyroid gland is operated upon since the small glands are embedded in the thyroid. That causes low blood calcium levels which leads to other important medical problems.

The island of St. Kitts was Britain's first Caribbean colony. It was settled in 1623 and called the mother isle of the West Indies. Its Brimstone Hill, with a colossal stone fortress, was often referred to as the "Gibraltar of the West Indies," according to National Geographic.

Inmate confesses to Walsh killing

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A prison inmate linked to slayings across the country has signed a confession admitting to kidnapping and killing Adam Walsh, the child whose disappearance inspired a federal law and a television movie, police announced Friday night.

Ottis Elwood Toole, 36, also admitted to killing 35 to 50 people in nearly every state in the country, said Police Chief Sam Martin. Toole said he committed the crimes with Henry Lee Lucas, 47, a drifter who claims to have killed 165 people across the country.

Toole and Lucas are charged in the death of a Louisiana woman and police say the two traveled together between Florida and Texas. Lucas, 47, was convicted of killing his mother in 1960.

Lucas and Toole "make Charles Manson sound like Tom Sawyer (and) Huck Finn," said Assistant Chief Leroy Hessler.

Toole, of Jacksonville, is serving a 20-year prison term for arson at the Union Correctional Institution in Raiford. Martin said charges in the Walsh case would be filed in the next week.

Adam, 6, disappeared from a Hollywood shopping center on July 27, 1981, prompting a statewide search. Friends and strangers saddened by the child's disappearance circulated photos of a gap-toothed Adam clad in a baseball cap and holding his bat.

The child was decapitated. His head was found on August 10, 1981, in a canal near Vero Beach, about 120 miles north of here.

Toole said he drove to the Fort Lauderdale area intending to abduct someone, spotted Adam on the sidewalk outside a Sears, Roebuck and Co. store and "lured him over to his car. He promised him candy and toys and forced him inside the car," Hessler said.

Toole led detectives to a site where he claimed to have buried Adam's body, but officers were unable to find anything, Martin said.

Martin said, "Certain statements this man has given us have convinced us" the confession is real.

Adam's parents, John and Reve Walsh, were not at home Friday night so could not immediately be reached for comment.

The Walshes have sued Sears and the mall, charging them with lax security and negligence and asking for unspecified damages of more than $5,000. Attorneys for Sears denied the charges and filed a countermotion saying Mrs. Walsh was negligent for leaving her son.

The Walshs lobbied Congress for passage of the Missing Children's Act, and they brought their new daughter, born after Adam's death, to the White House when President Reagan signed it into law.

The movie "Adam," broadcast Oct. 10, rekindled interest in the Walsh case and those of other missing youngsters. It starred Daniel Travanti, who plays Capt. Frank Furillo on NBC's "Hill Street Blues," and was made with the advice and assistance of John Walsh.

Officials estimate that 1.8 million children are missing in the United States and 50,000 of those have been kidnnapped.

Celebrities asked to tell about mothers

NEW YORK (AP) — It seemed like Mother's Day when Walter Cronkite, John Ritter and Phil Donahue were asked to described the influence their moms had on their lives.

"Besides being particularly pretty, a superb dancer and a marvelous companion, she inculcated in me a sense of honesty, integrity and social responsibility," Cronkite, the longtime CBS news anchor, said of his mother, Helen. "At every moment of crisis when such qualities are strained, I have felt her hand on my shoulder."

At Wit's End

by erma bombeck

Today I salute that brave band of lonely women who do aerobics in their living rooms all by themselves.

I used to think the spoils belonged to the ones who dragged out of bed, sacked themselves into a pair of purple tights, drove four or five miles to a studio and bared their varicose veins to 15 or 20 other women.

I was wrong.

Doing aerobics by yourself takes every bit of discipline you will ever have. It's as pointless as putting on lipstick when your husband is out of town. It's as rewarding as making a broccoli casserole for a child's birthday party. It's as ludicrous as painting a happy face on the inside of your garage can lid.

Who cares?

You find out a lot of things about yourself when you do aerobics alone that you don't want to know. For example, I found out why I really went to aerobics class: to dress up in cute clothes and show off.

In my aerobics class, I never breathed hard, did 15 jumping jacks without fainting and was careful not to sweat like a pig. I took pride in walking to the car before I let my stomach hang out.

At home, it was a different story. I took every advantage I could think of to quit. I quit exercising when the phone rang. I quit eight times to adjust the volume on the stereo. I was delighted when the washer became unbalanced and started to walk out of the utility room so I could turn it off. Five times I thought I heard a knock on the door.

I whimpered. Yes, whimpered. I took 15 minutes to rub a kink out of my ankle. I openly expressed bitterness that the house was not fit to do aerobics in. The carpets weren't thick enough to protect my knees. There was too much furniture. The wall moved while I was leaning against it stretching my hamstrings. And who could be expected to do aerobics with nothing but a compact mirror to look into?

In time, I became quite ugly. I said things to Jane Fonda that I'm ashamed of. Even today when I hear the words, "Make it burn," I have to hold my head over my mouth to keep from becoming a public embarrassment.

So to all of you women out there who have pushed back the coffee table and have no one to hear you groan and no one to hear your screams, I salute you with a round of applause.

Or did I just walk across the room? I tell you, working out alone can make you squirrely.

Youth aids doctors during surgery

HOUSTON (AP) — David, a 12-year-old with a severe immune deficiency, has tolerated a bone marrow transplant procedure that may eventually permit him to leave the plastic bubble isolation where he has lived for all of his life.

The boy, who suffers from severe combined immune deficiency, a syndrome in which the body lacks the normal protection against germs, helped doctors perform the transfusion-like transplant of bone marrow.

Doctors said he laid out instruments inside his bubble and then assisted them in inserting a needle into his arm.

"He wants to get out of the bubble," said Dr. Murdina M. Desmond, a pediatrician who has been on David's medical team since the boy was born. "He wants to get out of isolation."

The boy, she said, "wants to walk on the grass" of the outside world.

David's lack of immunity is so severe that even a common cold could be fatal. He was born into a sterile environment and immediately placed into a plastic bubble. He has never been touched by a bare human hand and every breath he has taken has been of filtered air.

The transplantation, using one and two-thirds ounces of specially-treated bone marrow from his 15-year-old sister, was tried in hopes that David's body would accept the marrow and that it would thrive and provide the immunity he lacks.

Dr. William Shearer, leader of the medical team caring for David, said the boy's family called and asked doctors to perform the experimental transplant. David signed the consent form and voluntarily participated in the procedure, which is similar to a blood transfusion, Shearer said.

Shearer said the transplant went well and David has not experienced any adverse reaction.

"Throughout all of this he has performed well," said the physician of David. "His general state is excellent."

Signs of rejection could appear in five to seven days, while success of the treatment will not be know for about three months, said Shearer.

David is the oldest surviving victim of severe combined immune deficiency and he has lived because of his sterile environment. The deficiency usually occurs one time in every 50,000 live births, and most children die within two years if untreated.

Shearer said the transplant has been done about 12 times with "some degree of success." He refused to predict David's chances.

"I can't give you odds. David is a unique person. This has never happened before," Shearer said.

But he added, "I wouldn't do it if I didn't think there was a good chance."

David's body lacks the ability to produce the blood cells that provide immunity to disease. Doctors long have said that bone marrow transplants offered the only treatment for David, but such transplants until recently have been possible only when there is an exact match of immune properties. This usually requires an immediate family member to be the donor.

In David's case, nobody in his family had an exact match.

Unmatched bone marrow can cause a fatal reaction called transplant to host reject. The transplanted marrow actually attacks the host's body because cells in the marrow, called T cells, attack and kill foreign tissue.

In David's transplant, the bone marrow from his sister was treated to remove the T cells. The process involves mixing the marrow with monoclonal antibodies which destroys the T cells.

To be successful, the process must leave in tact the stem cells, which are the disease-fighting portion of the marrow. The stem cells could then reproduce, mature and form lymphocytes which provide the immune protection from disease.

"We are optimistic, but we just can't be certain until the transplanted lymphocyte precursors, or stem cells, have a chance to grow in David's body," Shearer said.

The transplanted marrow was injected into David's body where it is expected to circulate and establish itself in his bone marrow.

Shearer said the young patient's blood will be monitored daily to detect signs of stem cell production or a rejection reaction.

If the transplant is successful, David will be given immunizations against the standard childhood diseases. Then he would be allowed to slowly join the world outside the plastic bubble.

While doctors evaluate the transplant, David will live in special sterile quarters at the Children's Hospital. These included three "bubble" rooms built into two hospital rooms.

Mistakes aid Pecos over Tigers

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder's Tigers rallied from a 19-6 deficit to pull within six points early in the third quarter here Friday night, but turnovers and penalties kept the hosts from gaining momentum the rest of the way and they fell to Pecos, 27-13.

The loss set the Tigers back at 0-7 while Pecos improved to 4-3 on the season and 3-1 in District 2-4A play.

"We made too many mistakes again," said Snyder Coach George Byerly. "The effort was there. We stayed at 19-13 for a long time, then we had a good drive but fumbled. We had too many penalties, too. It was those breakdowns again."

Snyder trailed 19-6 at halftime but ignited early in the third quarter when Chad Peterson fell on Wes Bolinger's fumble at the Pecos 26-yard line. Justin Webb got only one yard on first down, but quarterback Jimmy Cain found Peterson open for an 18-yard strike to the 7 on second down. From there, Cain pitched to senior running back Norman Malone, who raced around right end to score with 10:59 still left in the quarter. Malone added the point-after kick, and Pecos' lead had been cut to 19-13.

"Offensively they overpowered us in the first half, but the kids made some adjustments and really shut them down well in the second half. I was proud of that," said Byerly.

At first, it didn't look as if Snyder would halt the Eagle running game in the second half. Halfback James Wilson squirted for 14 yards on Pecos' possession after the touchdown, and the Eagles began a long march.

But penalties - which were to plague Snyder later in the game - helped halt the drive. The Eagles drove to the Tiger 8-yard line before an illegal motion penalty pushed them back to the 13. An incompletion accounted for no yardage, followed by a holding penalty which put the ball at the 23. The Eagles were also flagged for a five-yard markoff to the 28, and when Nolberto Legarda's 46-yard field goal attempt fell short, Snyder took over.

Snyder was unable to advance the ball, but showed good defense again when the Tigers held Pecos on a fourth-and-two play at the 25-yard line.

The Tigers followed the defensive stand with a determined drive of their own. Taking over at their own 23, they quickly advanced up field on two Cain-to-Peterson passes for 30 yards. Malone then broke up the middle for a 13-yard run to the Pecos 24, but fumbled on the play and Lorenzo Alvidrez recovered.

Fortune was with the hosts though, as on the next play, Bolinger returned the compliment and linebacker Paul Thompson jumped on the ball at the 21. Snyder was unable to capitalize, however. Cain lost two yards on first down and Thompson regained to the original line of scrimmage on second. On a third and 10, Alvidrez ran down Cain for a 16 yard loss, and Snyder was forced to punt.

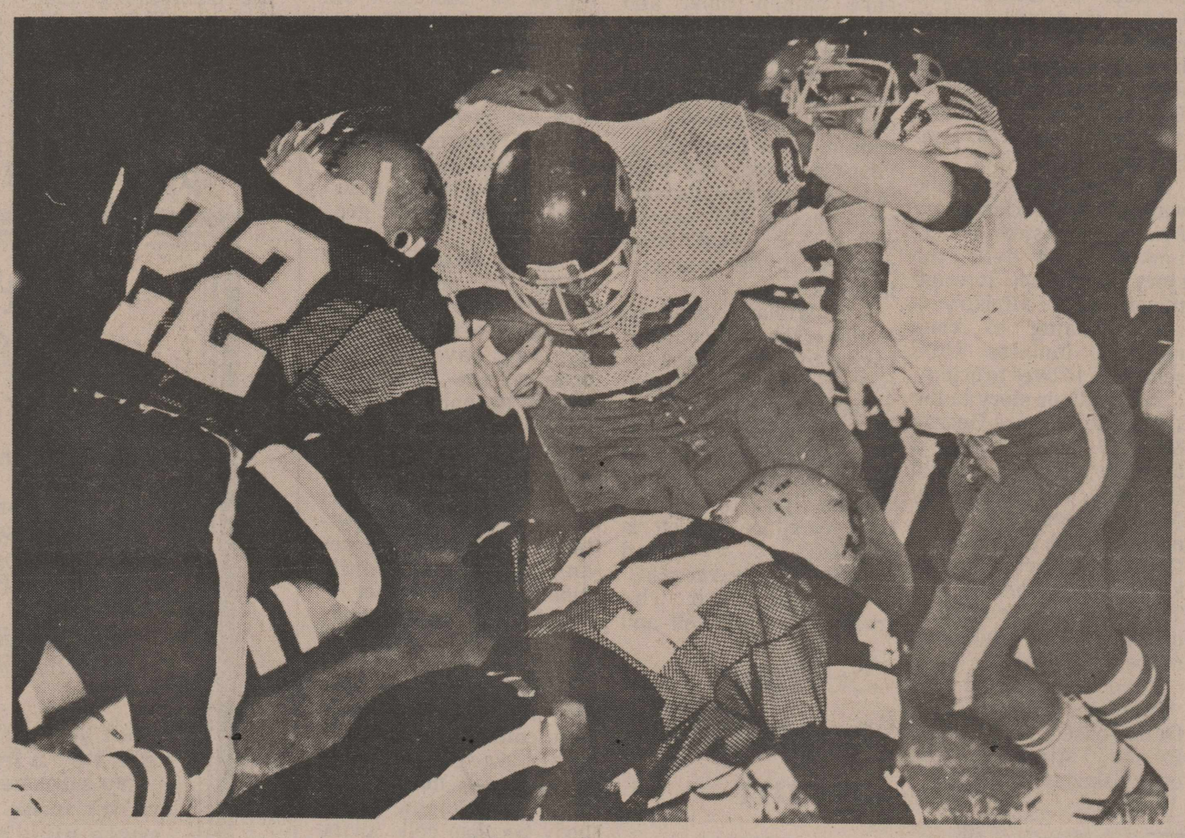

It appeared the change in possession would work for the Tigers when two plays later Wilson apparently fumbled a pitchback and Snyder recovered in the end zone. Officials ruled Wilson down at the 2-yard line however, and Pecos eventually punted out of the hole.

From there, Snyder was unable to sustain a drive. Interceptions - all three picked off by Elias Payan - ended Snyder's next three possessions.

Payan, who had also picked off two in the first half, had five for the game. Teammate Welman Bauer also oskied.

2-4A roundup

Monahans' Loboes - an unlikely candidate before the season began - found itself in the driver's seat of District 2-4A this morning, following outcomes around the loop Friday.

The Loboes rallied from a 14-point deficit to rip Lamesa 36-14 and as a result are the only 2-4A team with a spotless district slate.

Sweetwater kept its unbeaten streak alive, but dropped in the standings after tying Andrews 7-7, while Pecos remained in close contention with a 27-13 victory over Snyder.

Meanwhile, hopeful Lake View handed preseason favorite Fort Stockton its fourth consecuive loss, a 30-6 beating.

Those outcomes leave Monahans atop the ladder with a 4-0 mark, while Sweetwater is 3-0-1 and Pecos is 3-1-0. Lake View is 2-2-0 and Andrews is 1-2-1. Fort Stockton and Snyder are both 0-4.

The puzzle could come together more next Friday as Sweetwater travels to Monahans in a key 2-4A contest. Lake View is at Andrews in another matchup while Pecos is at Lamesa. In a game which could determine last place in the loop, Snyder treks to Fort Stockton.

2-1A roundup

Hermleigh celebrated homecoming by placing Paint Creek in the cellar Friday, while Highland and Trent both kept perfect records intact.

The outcomes set up Friday's game between Highland and Trent as the apparent championship tilt in District 2-1A six-man ball this season. The contest, expected to draw an overflow crowd, is set for 7 p.m. in Highland.

Trent had little trouble defeating Grady 50-15, while Highland tackled Ira 76-54.

Hermleigh enjoyed homecoming by outscoring Paint Creek 65-53 and chalking its first win of the season. Paint Creek, which didn't win a game last year, is now 0-6 in 1983.

In the only other game played Friday, Borden County caged Grady's Wildcats 30-6.

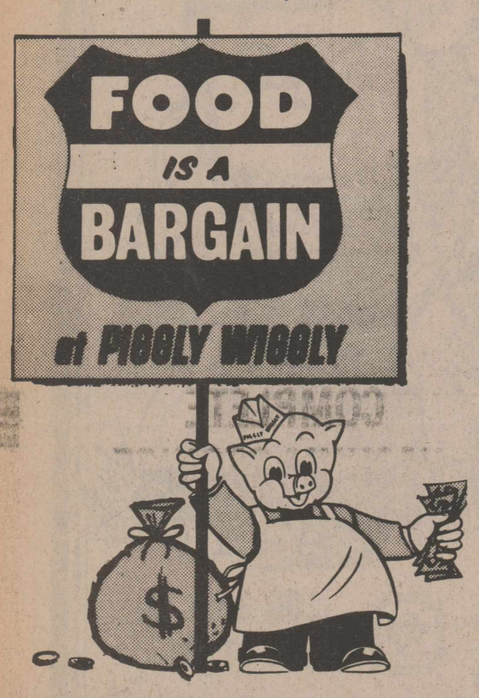

In addition to the Highland-Trent battle next Friday, McCaulley is at Borden County, Hermleigh is at Leuders and Grady is at Paint Creek. Ira will be idle.

Hermleigh wins homecoming tilt

HERMLEIGH - Irene Sanchez was crowned queen and Martin Fuentes was named Pep Squad Hero as Hermleigh celebrated homecoming by out-pointing Paint Creek here Friday, 65-53.

It was Hermleigh's first win of the season while Paint Creek took the cellar in District 2-1A with an 0-7 record.

Hermleigh, now 1-6, travels to Leuders-Avoca next Friday; Paint Creek entertains Grady.

The news was not all happy from Hermleigh, however. Darren Hughes, who scored three touchdowns in the game, suffered a broken collarbone in the third quarter and will miss the remainder of the season.

Paint Creek led 12-7 after the first period, but Hermleigh rattled off 28 points in the second quarter and never trailed again. The Cardinals led 51-31 at one time.

Hermleigh got its first score on a 12 yard run by Hughes. Fuentes passed to Donnie Davis for the conversion.

Scott Kincaid then hit Fuentes on a 7-yard scoring strike before Hughes came back with a 31-yard touchdown run.

Gerald Johnston got in on the scoring when he ran in from nine yards out. Hughes followed that with another 15-yard touchdown run. Fuentes kicked both extra points.

In the third quarter, Davis scored two touchdowns, one on a 34-yard scamper and the other on a 40-yard pass interception. Fuentes again kicked both PATs.

Hermleigh's final two TDs were on a pass from Kincaid to Fuentes of four yards and a 26-yard run by Davis. Fuentes added one more two-point conversion kick.

Michael Gonzales scored for Paint Creek on a 6-yard run, a pass from Brian Medford and a pass he threw to Lewis Lacy.

Medford hit Bill Campbell on touchdown passes of 8 and 20 yards and Lee Brady on an 8-yard scoring toss. He also ran over touchdowns from 7 and 8 yards out.

"It was a win we really needed," said Hermleigh Coach Clarence Spieker. I'd like to commend our offensive line of Fuentes (Terry) Bratton (Jeff) Gannaway and Davis. Defensively, Fuentes, Kincaid, Hughes, Davis and Todd Dunnam did a fine job. I was well pleased with our hustle all game."

37 players are fined

NEW YORK (AP) - Thirty-seven players from the New York Jets and Los Angeles Rams have been fined a total of $15,750 for their part in an altercation during their game last month, the National Football League confirmed Friday.

A spokesman for the NFL confirmed that the league had fined 21 Rams a total of $8,450 and 16 Jets $7,300. There was no breakdown of the individual assessments, although NFL public relations director Joe Browne admitted that "the fines were higher for the players who were fighting than the players who just left the benches."

According to Browne, the players were fined in three areas for the Sept. 25 melee - "leaving the bench, fighting and both."

The incident occurred late in the third quarter of a Sept. 25 game the Rams lost to the Jets 27-24 in overtime at Shea Stadium.

GRADY -- Borden County broke open a close game late in the first quarter, led 22-6 at halftime, and went on to defeat Grady's Wildcats 30-6 in District 2-1A six-man ball here Friday night.

The loss puts Borden County at 4-4 on the season, 4-2 in district play. Borden celebrates homecoming next Friday by entertaining McCaulley.

Chris Cooley got the Coyotes howling on a 62-yard run in the first quarter. Sammy Williams then booted his first of three two-point conversions for the night.

Grady retaliated as Dennis Sawyer hit Lino Cantu on a 39-yard scoring pass. The PAT was blocked and Borden held a slim, 8-6 lead.

It didn't matter however, as Borden did all the rest of the scoring. Williams crashed over on a 4-yard run still in the first quarter. His conversion kick was no good when it hit the cross bar. Mickey Burkett then found Williams on a 9-yard strike in the second quarter. William's kick-after made it 22-6 at halftime.

The Coyotes iced the game in the fourth quarter on a 22-yard run by Cooley. Williams' kick was good again.

Borden had one other chance to score when it blocked a Grady punt and had first down on the Wildcat 3-yard line. The opportunity slipped away on a fumble, however.

Highland hops past Bulldogs

IRA -- Highland ripped and zipped to roll up a 32-0 first-quarter lead and went on to post a 76-54 victory over Ira here Friday night.

The win kept the defending state champions unbeaten for the season, and sets up their game with also-undefeated Trent next Friday. Ira, now 5-3 for the season, is idle next week.

Despite the loss, assistant coach Mike Holmes could find little fault with Ira, especially since the Bulldogs were left at half-strength when attitude problems led some players to walk off the practice field two weeks ago.

"Highland is awesome. Their speed is unreal. But Mitch (head coach Mitch Lee) and I were delighted about our kids' performance. Particularly in the second half, they got out and started hitting hard and executing well."

Ira actually played most of the game with only seven players. Cornerback Jay Baze back suffered a back injury in first quarter and was taken to the hospital. He was to undergo further tests Saturday to determine the extent of his injuries.

Ira had 43 rushes for 212 yards, was 12 of 19 in passing for 265 yards and had 16 first downs. No statistics were available on Highland.

For the Bulldogs, Reyez Juarez scored two touchdowns of 1 yard and 15 yards. Lloyd Goswick scored on passes of 62 yards and 13 yards from Chris Reyna.

Reyna also hit Bruce Strickland on passes of 9 and 18 yards, and Barry Ezra on a 52-yard strike.

Strickland kicked six extra point kicks.

Highland's Ron Swaringin accounted for four touchdowns. He scored on a 35-yard run, a 70-yard kickoff return, a 33-yard run and a 28-yard pass from Royce Petty. Harold Light had two TD runs of 8 and 42 yards. Duane Hyde scored on a 19-yard run and a 23-yard pass from Petty.

Petty also scored on 55-yard kickoff return and hit Courtney Gothard on a scoring toss.

Hyde kicked seven conversions.

Ira scored 22 points in the second quarter, eight in the third and 24 in the fourth. Highland notched 32 in the first, 22 in the second, 8 in the third and 14 in the fourth.

SWARMING DEFENSE -- Pecos allowed less than 50 yards rushing Friday as the Eagles took a victory from Snyder in District 2-4A ball here. Snyder moved the ball via the airways instead, but mistakes - including six interceptions - made the difference. (SDN Staff Photo by Noble Young)

Golf news

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) - Miller Barber shot a second-round 69 to tie Rod Funseth at 141 for the lead in the $150,000 Seniors' International golf tournament.

to the game so we knew we were playing a fine defensive team," said Byerly. "We were having trouble with our pass blocking at times and with connecting at times. They run that three-deep secondary and when you overthrow the receiver, they are going to be there."

Pecos used one of the interceptions - and some penalties - to score its final TD. Taking over at their 35, the Eagles marched to the Snyder 48 before quarterback Sonny Orona broke free on a 14-yard run. Referees called Snyder's Peterson for a late hit, and his apparent reaction to the call caused another penalty and ejection from the game. The penalties ran the ball all the way to the Snyder 8-yard line. Two plays later Wilson went over from four yards out for the final touchdown of the game. Orona hit Bauer for the conversion pass, 27-13.

Snyder had scored first in the contest, marching 74 yards in only five plays. Malone took the score in from two yards out. The drive was highlighted by a 51-yard pass from Cain to Peyton Claxton.

Pecos came right back and marched 73 yards in eight plays. Tommy Levario got loose on a 28-yard scoring jaunt and Legarda kicked the point-after.

In the second quarter, Pecos was on the march again, pushing 52 yards in 10 plays to score with Wilson going over on a 1-yard plunge. The touchdown spoiled an otherwise fine defensive stand by the Tigers, who had held the Eagles to a fourth-and-one situation. The point-after was no good.

Snyder followed with a drive from its 27 to the Pecos 26 but on a fourth-and-16 Peyan intercepted his first pass of the night.

Pecos then scored again with 1:17 remaining in the half after Bauer had intercepted and returned 24 yards to the Tiger 16. The score came on a 10-yard run by Levario. A fake extra-point kick try was thwarted by the Snyder defense.

Defensive acclaims went out to the entire Tiger squad, but several players, including Jeff Minor, Jeff Sisneros, Justin Webb, Thompson, Peterson and Jimmy Hunter provided several key stops.

Offensively, Snyder managed just 49 yards rushing against the Pecos defense, and hit seven of 24 passes for 153 yards. Peterson caught five for 84, while Claxton had two for 69. Malone led the team in rushing with 42 yards on 11 carries.

Levario had 137 yards of Pecos' total 346 rushing. Wilson grabbed 91 and Bolinger had 54.

The Tigers travel to Fort Stockton next week while Pecos goes to Lamesa.

Rivera charged with driving while drunk

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Pittsburgh Steelers rookie defensive lineman Gabriel Rivera has been charged with drunken driving and speeding in a car accident that may have left him partially paralyzed, authorities say.

Rivera, the Steelers' top draft choice, remained in the trauma unit at Allegheny General Hospital, where he was taken by helicopter after he was injured in nearby Ross Township on Thursday night.

Rivera, 22, suffered "a serious spinal injury and internal chest injuries," said Steelers spokesman Joe Gordon. "The possibility of paralysis still exists."

Gordon said it would be today or Sunday before the extent of the injuries is known. But he said Rivera did not suffer neck injuries as had been thought earlier.

"He's pretty good. He's continuing to improve," Gordon said.

Gordon said Rivera was conscious Friday. "There's encouraging things that are happening," he said.

Rivera underwent about three hours of surgery Thursday night at Allegheny General after he was transferred by helicopter from North Hills Passavant Hospital, according to Gordon.

The surgery to Rivera's stomach and chest areas was performed to check for internal bleeding and damage to vital organs, Gordon said.

Rivera also suffered cuts and bruises to the head and body.

Police and emergency crews found Rivera unconscious about 15 feet from the road about 9 p.m. Thursday, according to Ross Township Police Chief Dwight J. Guthrie.

Guthrie said it appeared the 295-pound, 6-foot-3 Rivera had been thrown through the rear window of his sports car, a 1983 280-Z Datsun.

Dolphins, Colts battle in big division game

by The Associated Press

Facing the prospect of falling below .500, the Miami Dolphins were awesome last week. Facing the opportunity to move into first place in their division last Sunday, the Baltimore Colts collapsed.

This Sunday, the two teams meet in Baltimore, with the Dolphins hopeful they've turned their National Football League fortunes around after belting the New York Jets, and the Colts confident that their lopsided loss to Buffalo was just a temporary slip.

Miami, with rookie Dan Marino putting some life in a previously dormant offense, and the surprising Colts both are 4-3 in the American Football Conference East. They trail Buffalo, which hosts New England on Sunday, by one game.

"Things we had going for us — enthusiasm and pursuit — we've got to continue to have," Colts Coach Frank Kush said.

The Dolphins, who were AFC champions last season, may have overcome their problems on attack thanks to Marino. The rookie from the University of Pittsburgh has completed 59 of 98 attempts for 787 yards with nine touchdowns and three interceptions for a top ranking in the AFC.

Elsewhere, it will be Atlanta at the New York Jets, Pittsburgh at Seattle, Kansas City at Houston, Minnesota at Green Bay, Chicago at Philadelphia, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Detroit at Washington, San Diego at Denver, San Francisco at the Los Angeles Rams, New Orleans at Tampa Bay, the Los Angeles Raiders at Dallas, and, on Monday night, the New York Giants at St. Louis.

The Patriots are coming off a big victory, overcoming an eight-point deficit in the second half thanks to a goal-line stand and the running of Tony Collins to beat San Diego. New England is 3-4.

The Jets, 3-4, and Falcons, 2-5, have been disappointments.

Pittsburgh, riding high at 5-2 and coming off two outstanding defensive performances — including six interceptions and two defensive touchdowns against Cleveland last week — has never won in the Kingdome. Seattle beat the Steelers 24-21 in 1981 and 16-0 last year and comes off a 38-36 decision over the Raiders last week in which Los Angeles turned the ball over five times.

The showcase game this weekend is Sunday night's match at Dallas. The Raiders, who have never played in Texas Stadium, will send the NFL's No. 1 defense at the unbeaten Cowboys. Since 1960, the Cowboys boast they are the winningest team in the NFL with a 209-115-6 record. Only one game back is Oakland-Los Angeles at 208-113-11.

The teams have split the only two games played, both in Oakland. The Raiders won 27-23 in 1974 and Dallas prevailed 19-13 in 1980.

Marc Wilson replaces Jim Plunkett at quarterback for the Raiders.

A battle for first place in the NFC West between the high-scoring 49ers and Rams figures to produce more points than their meeting two weeks ago, when Los Angeles won 10-7 at San Francisco.

Mrs. King says she's satisfied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The widow of Martin Luther King Jr. says she is satisfied President Reagan was sincere when he said he would be proud to sign a bill honoring her late husband with a national holiday, despite his comments displaying reservations about such an observance.

A spokesman for Coretta Scott King confirmed Friday that Reagan called Mrs. King to apologize for remarks he had made at a nationally televised news conference that offended her, and said he'd be proud to sign the holiday bill.

"She talked to the president first-hand and is apparently satisfied with his sincerity," Steve Klein said. "We think 'proud to sign' is a pretty strong statement. ... That's been the main thing all along, to get the president's signature and to get the bill enacted."

Mrs. King, however, had nothing to say about comments Reagan made against the holiday proposal in a letter to former New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson revealed Friday.

Reagan's call to Mrs. King was placed shortly after the former governor disclosed the letter, written 18 days before Reagan first said he would sign the bill.

Thomson had asked Reagan to veto the bill on grounds that King was "a man of immoral character whose frequent association with leading agents of communism is well established."

Reagan's response said: "I have the same reservations you have, but here the perception of too many people is based on an image, not reality."

In his phone call to Mrs. King, Reagan asked her not to be offended by his news conference remark Wednesday that "We'll know in about 35 years" whether her husband was a communist sympathizer.

He was referring to FBI files on King that were ordered sealed by a federal court until the year 2027.

When he arrived Friday in Augusta, Ga. where he is spending the weekend, reporters asked Reagan if Mrs. King had accepted his apology.

"Yes," he said. "We had a nice conversation."

Mrs. King's spokesman said Reagan called the remarks a mistake. Klein said Mrs. King pointed out that the Senate Select Committee on Assassinations found there was no basis for any of the allegations that King had communist ties.

Sheriff admits to harrassing patrons

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — Brazos County Sheriff Bobby Yeager admits his deputies have been harassing patrons at three suspected prostitution houses.

"The way it works is that if we see you come out of one of those places, we hand you a subpoena to testify before the grand jury," Yeager said.

District Attorney Travis Bryan identified two of the suspected dens as the Lion's Den and Lady T, both focal points of at least three separate investigation since 1979. He did not identify the third.

"The sheriff can speak for himself, but I'm not harassing them," Bryan said. "We've had complants. We plan on having a grand jury meeting at some point in the future to investigate alleged prostitution there."

Lady T proprietor Deirdre Linthwaite said the latest crackdown is a sign that an election is approaching.

Judge, lawyer killed in court

CHICAGO (AP) — A wheelchair-bound former policeman was ordered to turn over life insurance assets in his divorce and was refused a new lawyer just before he whipped out a pistol in court and fatally shot a judge and his ex-wife's lawyer, authorities said.

Hutchie Moore, 55, a paraplegic since being wounded in a family quarrel five years ago, was charged with two counts of murder Friday after allegedly pulling a .38-caliber revolver from under a blanket and opening fire at the close of the hearing at the county's Richard J. Daley Center downtown, police said.

Still on the bench after dividing the property, Cook County Circuit Judge Henry Gentile was shot in the head, and attorney Jim Piszczor was shot in the chest and stomach as several court officials, lawyers and spectators looked on, witnesses said. Both men died shortly afterward at a hospital.

Shocked friends and colleagues remembered the 63-year-old judge as "a gentle man" who hated to "rule against someone and hurt them," while the 34-year-old lawyer, who rarely handled divorce cases, was called "the ideal father" to his two young children.

Moore was scheduled to appear in court for a bond hearing today. A lawyer was to be appointed for him Monday.

Dorothy Moore, who was divorced from Moore four years ago but who had requested the hearing to revise their settlement after learning he had more property, had left the courtroom before the shooting started around 11:30 a.m., police and witnesses said.

Moore's court-appointed attorney, Emory Smith, told the judge that his client wanted a new attorney, and that he was willing to withdraw, according to Piszczor's associates.

But Gentile refused, saying Moore had requested new lawyers several times and calling the request a delaying tactic.

Then Moore pulled out the gun and shot Gentile twice in the head, witnesses told police. Piszczor turned to flee, but Moore shot him twice, police said.

When the shooting began, Smith fled to a conference room, then returned a couple of minutes after hearing the last shot.

"The courtroom had cleared out," Smith said. Moore "was in his wheelchair. He said, 'You can come out now. I'm through.'"

Deputy Sheriff Roberto Silva said he entered the courtroom to find Moore sitting in his wheelchair, his hands raised and a gun lying on the floor.

Moore left the police force in 1979 to go on disability, a year after being shot by his 22-year-old son, Michael, police spokeswoman Paula Darcy said. Moore refused to bring charges against his son.

Gentile, who was born in Italy and came to the United States at age 3, was a careful jurist who sometimes took a long time to decide a case, colleagues said.

"He was the type of fellow who didn't like to make a decision sometimes because he didn't want to rule against someone and hurt them," said his former boss in the Domestic Relations Division, Charles Fleck, now in private law practice.

Friends described Piszczor as a devoted husband and the father of a 6-year-old daughter and a 2-year-old son.

Beer license request protested

MAMMOTH LAKES, Calif. (AP) — Residents may find McDonald's is their kind of place after all, now that the burger chain has corked plans to make one of its restaurants the first in the United States to serve beer and wine under the golden arches.

Andres Management Corp., which owns the new McDonald's franchise in this High Sierra resort community, found itself facing a keg of public protests after its bid for an alcoholic beverage license became public this week.

McDonald's Corp., the Oak Brook, Ill.,-based hamburger chain, initially had OKd the idea. But Vice President Richard G. Starmann changed his order Friday — saying brew with the Big Macs and fries would not be "consistent with the interests of the community."

The state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board also was being pounded with complaints, said Neal Janzen, acting director of the board's office in Bakersfield.

The restaurant would have been the first U.S. franchise of McDonald's to sell alcohol, company spokeswoman Stephanie Skurdy said.

Earlier, Henry had said the school board in the hunting and skiing resort worried because "we will have 70 to 80 students working shifts there. They have marketed their franchise as a family-oriented restaurant. It seems uncharacteristic to serve beer and wine there."

McDonald's intends to work through the school to hire students, Henry said. He also estimated that up to 400 students would eat at the restaurant each day.

Henry said he met with Mike Andres, son of Andres Management Corp. Chairman Whitey Andres, and "felt the meeting went very well." The elder Andres did not return a reporter's phone calls Friday.

McDonald's officials had "considered an exception to our policy (against alcohol) because of the unique location and adult customer base of the Mammoth restaurant," Starmann said in his statement from McDonald's Corp. headquarters in Oak Brook, Ill.

"But our franchise decided it was not consistent with the interests of the community to serve beer and wine. We respect and support his opinion."

Word of the license application inflamed many in the mountain town 250 miles north of Los Angeles.

Montreal passed from French to British control in 1760.

KEEP BRONCHIALS MOIST

Sore throat? Cough? Nature induces the cough to expel waste and to keep air passages open. Drink more fluids - fruit and vegetable juices, herbal tea with lemon juice and hoeny added. Amitie hears honors institute student

New York, New York was the subject of Amitie Study Club's Oct. 11 meeting as WTC sophomore Ray Fuentes, a Psi Zeta member of Phi Theta Kappa Honors Institute, presented a slide display of the organization's summer trip to the city sponsored in part by Amitie.

Fuentes, a Hermleigh native, gave the group a slide tour of New York as well as historic sites in the nation's capitol and surrounding countryside visited during the trip.

After the program, Amitie conducted business mainly concerning the upcomong fund-raising "Country Christmas" dance Dec. 3 at the National Guard Armory.

"Shade Tree," a band out of Abilene has been signed to provide music. Club members voted to price tickets at $15 per couple in advance and $17.50 at the door. Tickets will be on sale from Nov. 8 until dance time and may be purchased from any Amitie member.

Club members also welcomed guest, Jamie Early, to the meeting and voted to allow membership to Tami Hill.

The group decided to treat itself to a catered cocktail party Dec. 11 in the home of Mary and Duane Hood in celebration of the holiday season.

MR. AND MRS. ALAN FLICK

Beason, Flick are wed

ELK CITY, Okla.—Double ring wedding vows were exchanged by Shelly Beason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danne Beason of Elk City, and Alan Flick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Flick of Hammon, Okla. The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Massingill and the great-granddaughter of Ruby Sutton and Ollie Nicks, all of Snyder.

David Flick performed the candlelight ceremony Sept. 16 at Prairieview Baptist Church.

The bride wore a Victorian style ivory dress with a matching hat. She carried a bouquet of red roses on a Bible borrowed from her sister. Enclosed in the bouquet was something old, a lace handkerchief belonging to her great-great grandmother, Lena Grimmett. Something new was a pair of pearl earrings, a gift from her grandmother, Allene Massingill. She wore a blue garter and a sixpence in her shoe.

The bride's attendants were Tammy Cameron, Laura Beason and Renee Poff, all of Elk City, and Shari Scurlock of Dallas. They wore matching red satin dresses with sweetheart necklines and puffed sleeves.

The groom's attendants were Fred Hardin, Rex Allen, and Nicky D'Achille, all of Hammon, and Roger Shockey of Elk City.

The couple is at home in Hammon.

BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

South looked at the queen of clubs lead and took stock. There was good news and bad news. The good news? East was marked for the king of hearts. The bad news? He was marked for the ace of diamonds. Thus, there were three potential diamond losers, plus the ace of clubs to spoil South's fun.

Give East a doubleton heart and South could set up a heart discard. Give him a doubleton diamond and two low diamond leads would knock out the ace. As you readers can see, neither of those possibilities were going to be there, but South found a loser-on-loser elimination play to bring home the bacon.

East took the club ace and returned the suit. South drew trumps, stopping in dummy, took the heart finesse, cashed the ace, ruffed his last club and led dummy's last heart.

East played his king and South discarded a low diamond. East was on lead and thoroughly end played. A club lead would let South ruff in dummy and chuck a second diamond; a diamond lead would establish dummy's king.

If West had had clairvoyance, he would have opened with a diamond lead, but poor West was an ordinary human who merely opened his partner's suit.

Gaby's Family Style Cafeteria

Changes are underway at Gaby's Family Style Cafeteria, or what used to be the American Restaurant. Located on the East Highway by the American Motor Inn in Snyder, Gaby's is in the middle of remodeling, and soon to open as a cafeteria, offering a wide variety of international cuisine as well as down-home cooking.

Afer much research into the type food available here in Snyder and the community's routine, the new owners of Gaby's decided what Snyder needs is a cafeteria with fresh cooked entrees, ready when you are.

Right now, during the remodeling period, Gaby's is offering breakfast and daily specials in the east wing of the restaurant. The west wing is not presently open because of the changes which must be made to convert the restaurant to a cafeteria.

The new breakfast menu is now being planned and will offer the largest variety of breakfast foods in this area, including: crepes, pancakes, waffles, eggs, and many gormet specialties. The breakfast menu promises to be a treat and have the largest selection available in West Texas.

Over 40 delicious food items will be available from the cafeteria line, all prepared from scratch by the finest cooks. Ten to twelve meat entrees will be on the line each day from chicken fried steak to gormet international specialties. Authentic mexican foods (prepared like they do in the interior of Mexico) will be available, as well as such mouth-watering dishes like stuffed meatloaf, and glazed cornish game hens, with specialty entrees changing daily. Of course, a good variety of fresh vegetables, salad entrees and homemade desserts will be on the line to choose from also.

Hopefully the remodeling will be completed by the beginning of November, so keep watching for the opening of Gaby's Family Style Cafeteria. Excellence is the goal Gaby's is strivingw3 obtain by offering quality service and food at reasonable prices with a family atmosphere.

Whataburger

Whataburger Restaurant has become well known in Snyder for their delicious hamburgers and other foods they offer, but the new manager, Jim Allmund is making some changes. The food is still the same at Whataburger, but the atmosphere has changed by the employees taking pride in their work and their community.

Being known for their hamburgers is something Jim doesn't want to lose sight of, but the community plays a vital part in the success of a restaurant, and Whataburger and it's employees want to be a part of the community—not just another restaurant.

Free Whataburgers have been given to all people that gave blood during the Snyder and Ira blood drives. They don't just say they want to get involved, Jim went and donated blood himself. Whataburger has also donated supplies to dances and Cub Scouts.

Many projects and programs have involved Whataburger, such as the work program at Snyder High School, by employing students in the Distributive Education Program. A $150 scholarship is donated to the Business Department at WTC every year and they work closely with the mid-management students by giving programs at WTC. Jim is on the advisory counsel to the Mid-Management Department at WTC and enjoys helping the students in any way he can.

Free Whataburger coupons are sent to the senior citizens in Snyder on their birthdays so they may use the coupon at their convenience, and the Whataparty Birthday Club is available for children who might be interested in having their parties at Whataburger.

At the Shriner Dance held this past summer, 10 Whataburger meals were donated to the Shriners to auction. Quite a profit was made on these meals which makes it possible for the Snyder Shriners to be of help to many people.

Whether you are hungry for breakfast, lunch, or an easy dinner, visit Whataburger at 4612 College Ave. to get a meal made fresh, to your order, and know the money you pay for it, will go to better the community we live in.

Women more concerned with prenatal care

By CAROL DEEGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Is it safe to wash your hair when you're pregnant? A silly question? Not to the woman who is concerned about the well-being of her baby, says Dr. Jonathan Scher, a New York City obstetrician-gynecologist and researcher.

Scher, author with Carol Dix of "Will My Baby Be Normal? How to Make Sure," said women were increasingly concerned about the possible effects that chemicals, cats and dogs, and devices such as microwave ovens, video display terminals and photocopying machines can have on pregnancy.

He said women were having their children at a later age and were therefore more mature and wanted to know more about their pregnancies.

"Women ask questions like, can I wash my hair? Can I perm my hair? And they can't easily find the answers to questions like these in a scientific journal," he said.

Scher says 50 percent of the women he sees in his private practice ask the question, "Will my baby be normal?" particularly toward the end of pregnancy.

Most women deliver normal babies, he said, with congenital abnormalities occuring in only about 2 percent of the births.

However, Scher said, prospective parents should consult their physicians before the woman becomes pregnant so that certain prenatal tests, if necessary, can be performed.

He said genetic counseling could be particularly helpful to women over the age of 35, men over the age of 55, and those people whose medical histories indicate certain hereditary diseases or medical disorders.

Scher said other tests performed during pregnancy could help indicate the well-being of the fetus.

Among the trends noted by Scher:

—A significant number of women in the United States between the ages of 40 to 45 are having babies: "Fertility does decrease slightly as you approach 40, due to irregular ovulation: however, until you're 40, this fall off of fertility is not so significant as to necessitate you give up your job and career to have a baby."

—There is an increased interest in natural childbirth. "People are very much in favor of natural childbirth. Women during labor, because they're older, are more concerned, better informed, and they're having less drug therapy and other techniques during labor."

—Prenatal care is becoming more important. "The introduction of prenatal care is fantastic. Forty or 50 years ago, there was no such thing as prenatal care. It wasn't respectable for the obstetrician to see the woman until she was in labor. And before that, it wasn't respectable for males to attend a woman in labor. It was regarded as beneath their dignity to do that."

Scher said prospective parents should be informed about pregnancy — and what can occur before, during and after pregnancy.

He says it's also important that a pregnant woman see her physician or go to her clinic on a regular basis.

However, he said, the best thing prospective parents can do is to be reassured that most pregnancies produce a healthy baby.

"Today, the chance of having a normal, healthy baby is 98 percent certain," he said.

Scher, who was born in Cape Town, South Africa, is in private practice in New York City and is on the teaching staff of Mt. Sinai Hospital.

EGGS—NUTRITIOUS NATURAL FOOD

An egg is a bundle of nutrition sealed in its own package by the hen and delivered to consumers as fast as possible, practically untouched by human hands.

Americans spend millions each year for health foods and natural products, yet often overlook these qualities in ordinary foods like eggs.

Eggs are a "natural" food in part because there's so little interference in the production process.

A hen's diet, for example, has little influence on the basic makeup of the egg. If a hen receives enough proper nutrients, she will form an egg and all hens of the same species produce eggs of about the same composition.

Any difference a consumer might notice between eggs is minor and really has nothing to do with composition or nutritional value of the eggs. For instance, the natural yellow color of the yolk is from fat soluble pigments in green or yellow plant products sush as alfalfa, grass or corn in the hen's ration. Slight variations are due to the mixture of the feed given the hens and don't affect the quality of the egg.

It's most important for consumers to realize that when it comes to nutrition, an egg is an egg. All of the fat soluble vitamins E, D, E, and K in the diet of the hen transfer well into the egg. This makes eggs a good source of vitamins as well as an efficient and inexpensive source of protein.

Even though organic fertile and other "special" eggs may be sold as health food, there is no evidence to support the idea that they are any more nutritious than ordinary commercial eggs from the grocery store.

IS HONEY HEALTH FOOD?

Health food advocates often claim that honey is a special food. But is honey any more nutritious than sugar?

Table sugar, called sucrose, breaks down during digestion into two single sugars, glucose and fructose. Honey also makes these sugars during digestion, although honey contains more fructose than glucose.

Fructose is about twice as sweet as glucose. Some people report using less honey than table sugar to sweeten beverages because of its sweeter taste. The difference in amounts used is normally so small, however, that there's probably no real savings in calories.

As far as the body is concerened there seems to be very little difference between the final fate of the two sweeteners. Both are used in the body either for immediate energy or for storage in the form of fat.

Honey seems to have no advantage nutritionally over table sugar. There are very small amounts of some trace minerals and vitamins in honey that table sugar does not have, but the amounts are insigificant. For example, one cup of honey supplies about the same amount of iron as two slices of whole wheat bread.

Research has shown that honey does not have any special health-giving properties.

Above the Fold

By Donny L. Brown

Any idiot knows that a West Texas autumn doesn't begin in September.

This depite the lyric from the old favorite "September Song," which goes "When the autumn weather turns the leaves to flame."

It's a nice poetic turn, but "out'cheer" it just ain't the case.

Growing up, this was just one of the things marched past us in the form of popular folklore, entertainment, writings or song that made us think we lived in a country somehow "different."

This was considerably before the 1970s and "Texas chic," when the rest of the world discovered that the state is something more than tall tales, rich oil men and giant jackrabbits with antelope horns. ("Everything is Big in Texas," the postcards say.)

West Texas autumns begin in October, and normally not until the middle of the month at that.

And "flame" doesn't describe the leaves we remember of October's past.

Either "Ellums" or willows were the predominate trees of choice in the small West Texas town where we grew up.

Specifically, Chinese elms and these leaves go more brownish in the fall. There were a few American elms, but these leaves turn a shiny yellow which resemble the willow's fall colors.

It takes an oak tree to produce red leaves, and these seemed in short supply.

Instead, we associated autumn more with gin smoke than flaming leaves. Gin smoke equaled burning burrs, a seasonal fragrance the clean air folks in charge of federal regulation have pretty much eliminated.

Another seasonal indicator was the whirring sound of gin motors, which ran non-stop through the balmy autumn days and cool autumn nights.

If you've never dozed off to the rhythmic whirl of a cotton gin, you've missed some good sleeping.

As West Texas autumns seem to start later than the rest of the world, they also never seem to linger for long.

Cotton strippers will suck up all the cotton lint, the paddle blades of harvesters will crunch the maise stalks and the first freeze of early November will crack the leaf stems.

After the freeze, the winds will rattle these leaves airborne to be blown from yard to yard until a fence or house edge snags them.

Before Thanksgiving, much of the land will be clean again and tree branches will show bare against the bluest sky we'll see all year.

Three to four weeks, it seems, and the fall is over.

Regardless, these seem the best days in West Texas. Before the cold and after the heat.

And we're enjoying them right now.

John Dunnam

Every since I asked the sports editor what you would get if you crossed a baboon with a sportswriter (you'd get a retarded baboon), he has refused to let me write a sports column. That's okay, I'll offer my services to another department, hopefully one that has a sense of humor.

I want to do Shirley Gorman's "Kidstuff" column. That is the one in the middle of this page with pictures. I admit Shirley does a respectable job with that column, and it has always been her baby, but come on Shirley, some of the questions you ask ... they're so childish.

For example: "What do you like most about school?" or "What is your favorite pet?" That's kidstuff, who cares?

I would lead off with: "What is the ugliest word you heard your father say this week?" I could follow up next week with: "What do you think that word means?"

The elementary school group is the only segment of the population that will answer a reporter's questions honestly and totally. Why not take advantage of it?

Since I have a gut feeling Shirley's intuition is going to tell her not to let me do that column, perhaps she will at least be open to suggestions. Not, you understand, that I would meddle in anyone else's business.

Pets are a good subject. There is something special about the relationship a child develops with a dog, or heaven forbid, even a cat. An interesting question might be, "What is the meanest thing you ever did to the family's pet.?"

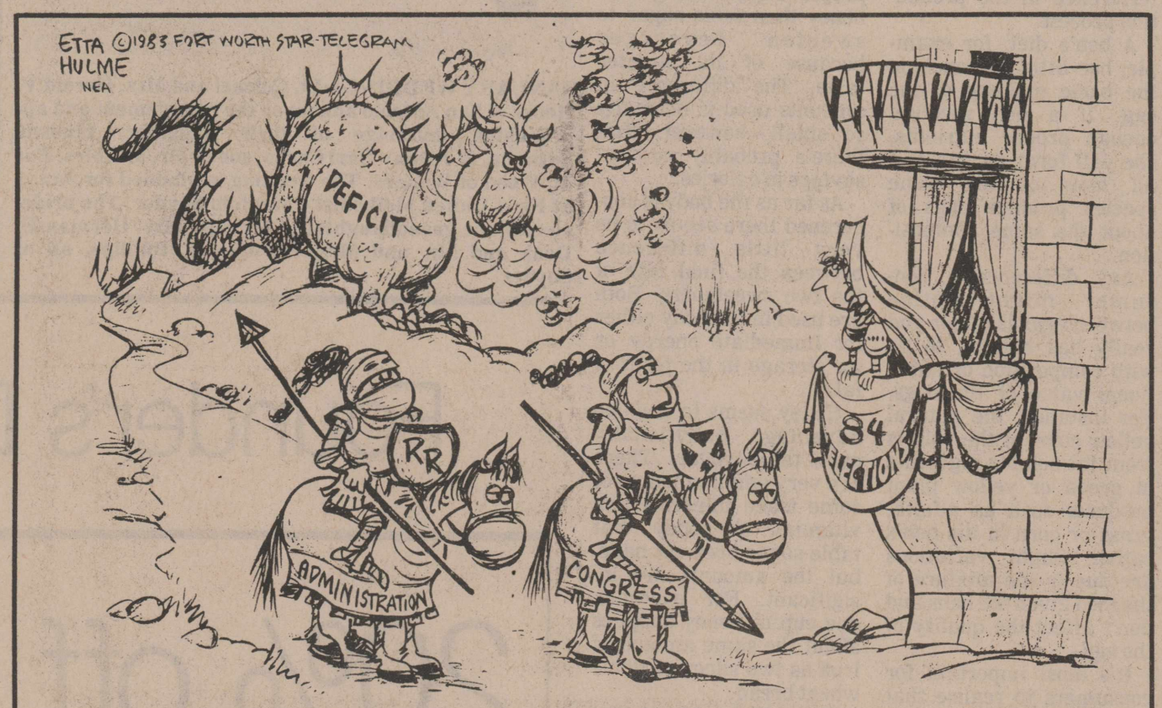

Children see things from a different perspective than their grown-up parents. It might be fun to get a glimpse of a child's view of domestic life. This concept could spawn such questions as: "When your parents quarrel, who usually strikes the first blow?" Or, "Is your mommy nicer to the mailman when daddy is out of town?"

Also enlightening would be to find out how kids relate with other kids, including their brothers and sisters. These queries could keep Shirley busy at least until the lawsuits began piling up.

"What is your favorite way of punishing your little brother for snitching on you?" "What have your older friends told you about sex?" "Have you ever spied on your big sister when her boyfriend came over?"

I firmly believe that when dealing with children they should be given the same respect granted adults, including off-the-record privileges. In this vein, one question I would make standard with every youthful representative of a class would be: "Is your teacher single and good looking. If affirmative, do you think she is free this Saturday night?"

How about giving me a crack at it Shirley G.? I'll even split the blackmail money with you 60-40.

"On second thought, we decided maybe you could flip a coin."

Letter to the Editor

To the editor,

Thanks to Snyder!

I guess it takes someone from a large city plopped down here in Snyder to really appreciate this city and how blessed we all are with such talented and caring people for our friends and neighbors.

What fun we all had last week with the "White Buffalo Days" and "Where the Buffalo Roamed." From the exhibitions at the museums and theatre; to the beginning minutes of Saturday's parade; to the final bid of the auction — Snyder was "Fun City, U.S.A.!"

The excitment created was tremendous. That Hardin-Simmons Cowboy Band will warm my heart forever. Besides the superb marching and playing (both in the parade and at the coliseum), those boys were so open and genuine and full of love. They would actually stop and say "Howdy," tip their hats or get a quick hug from a toddler or a pretty girl. How special, how fine.

And Snyder High School's bands were super, too, along with the other local bands.

All day at the coliseum was great. You could see nearly everyone that you know in Snyder, right there, in full living color. How fine it is to have such friends.

And everyone had a big smile for everyone else and had some kind of talent to share with you. From crafts; to cooking (cooking of all kinds, and all of it delicious); to games; to songs; to whistling; to strumming a guitar; to simply sharing all of the above with loved ones.

"The Whirlagig" still has those in attendance simply agog with color, excitment and love of our heritage. Can you believe those people up there performing were our own loved ones? Super!

And not just this one performance was talent 'a-showin' last week.

Western Texas College's Fine Arts put on their "Reader's Theatre-the American Cowboy." What laughter and memories these young people gave to us all.

And another special gift from Snyder and people who care...

The WTC Theatre had standing room only at Sunday's performance — and ran out of standing room.

Jim Rambo, with WTC's Drama Dept., took pity on those who could not get in and agreed to give another performance for those who would like to come back

SDN Week in Review

MONDAY
Oct. 17

Scurry County Commissioners authorize designating two no-smoking areas in the Scurry County Coliseum following a request from a Snyder citizen.

Snyder police detectives discover the burglary of a downtown clothing store early Monday morning.

Officers on routine patrol find an open door at Margaret's on the south side of the square. Preliminary reports indicate the cash register is gone through and several articles of clothing and jewelry taken.

TUESDAY
Oct. 18

With the October report in, the state sales tax return for Snyder remains at the minus 15 percent level, it is reported.

In actual dollars, the city has received some $114,000 less income through the sales tax with two months of 1983 remaining.

The return — generated by a one percent charge added to city sales — has equaled some $626,000 in income, however. This compares to last year's return through October of almost $741,000.

Unemployment in Scurry County has dipped below the 4 percent level, according to the latest figures released by the local office for the Texas Employment Commission.

The latest figure of 3.8 percent unemployment reflects the work force here for the month of August. In actual numbers, the estimate figures a county work force of 10,602 during the month with 10,198 of these employed.

Snyder High School FFA grass judging teams do well at weekend competition at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas, it is reported.

The senior team places first in its division and the two junior grass judging teams placed first and second in their respective competition categories.

Three years worth of tax payments from two local banks — paid into an escrow account since 1980 pending the outcome of a lawsuit initiated by Dallas-based financial institutions — are expected to be released soon following a decision Tuesday by the Scurry County Appraisal District's board of review.

Tuesday's decision is the first official reaction locally to last July's U.S. Supreme Court decision regarding the lawsuit. That ruling, which passed the high court 6-2, essentially found that "direct governmental securities" owned by banks cannot be included as taxable bank assets.

WEDNESDAY
Oct. 19

It is announced that six Snyder High School seniors (all 1983 graduates) have won first place in a National Future Design Competition.

Their design of an orbiting space station wins the top prize in the high school division for last spring's nationwide competition.

Some 200 WTC dormitory students — with approximately 100 hastily assembled for a called general meeting — receive a surprise gift Wednesday courtesy of a host of anonymous county donors.

Unveiled for the gathering in the lobby of the dorm is a 40-inch screen television purchased entirely through voluntary donations.

THURSDAY
Oct. 20

A cycle of drought-like conditions seems broken Thursday across West Texas and Scurry County as rain which will total from 3 to 5 inches is recorded in the area.

The light, steady rain begins in earnest early Thursday morning and continues through the night.

Late Thursday afternoon, medical tests confirm a case of infectious hepatitis for a local restaurant owner, ironically a local victim of the outbreak stemming from Peoples Restaurant in Lubbock where it is suspected he contracted the germ.

Affected Snyder residents — those who ate at The Shack restaurant between Oct. 7-Oct. 17 — began seeking inoculating gamma globulin shots Thursday and Friday.

A second infectious case confirmed here involving a Western Texas College student is said to be unrelated.

FRIDAY
Oct. 21

The search for a low level radioactive waste disposal site — which at one point included Scurry and surrounding counties — now seems centered in Dimmitt County located in the southwestern portion of the state, it is announced.

Letter to the Editor

To the editor,

Pornography in the United States has grown 139 percent in less than 20 years. Many law enforcement agents believe that there is a connection between sex crimes and the availability of pornography. Lloyd Martin, head of the sexually-exploited child unit of the Los Angeles Police Department, says America is the biggest producer and consumer of child pornography in the world. In our country some 287 publications produce pornography about children. In one study, 50 percent of police chiefs surveyed believed there was a link between sex crimes and pornography.

Public apathy has permitted pornography to flourish. God says in Psalm 94:16 "Who will rise up for me against the evildoers? Who will stand up for me against the workers of iniquity?" Ruth Richert Jones wrote "Many people are unaware of the violence and immorality portrayed in hardcore pornography. One man said his father, a physician, became physically ill when he saw samples of materials police had confiscated."

Not all of this godless, evil material is produced and sold in big cities. Smaller communities (our's is no exception) are not immune from this scourge. We have several retail stores in Snyder that sell hardcore pornography magazines and books. I personally have found pornographic material thrown in the ditches of our public roads. On a farm in Mississippi, a group of men took pictures and movies of homosexual acts with small boys. The boys were brought from Pennsylvania, Florida, Georgia and parts of Mississippi.

John Adams proclaimed in 1815 "democracy never lasts long. It soon wastes, exhausts and murders itself. There never was a democracy that did not commit suicide." The decay of immorality is gnawing at the vitals of our country. Sexual impurity is a cancerous malignant evil that corrodes slowly and fatally. The Bible tells us when man fails to honor, glorify and give thanks unto God, he becomes futile and godless. Failure to give God Almightly preeminence and proper recognition produces vain imaginations, foolish reasoning, stupid speculations and senseless minds.

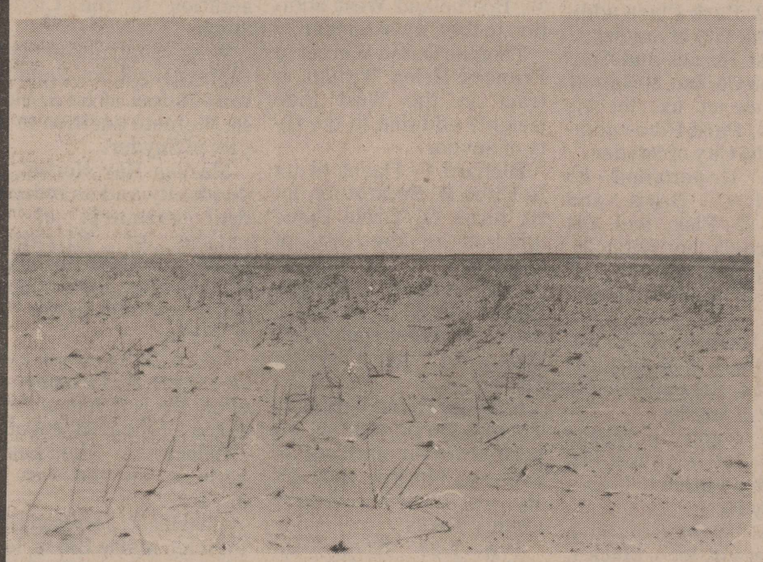

Humanism worships and serves the creature (man himself) instead of the Creator. People that practice and advocate humanism make simpletons of themselves. They become permeated and saturated with every kind of unrighteousness, iniquity, greed and malice that the degrading power of sin can bring upon their senseless minds. Carl F.H. Henry wrote "Secular humanism perceives man as an animal oddity of nature, a mammalian masterpiece; his sex life is reduced to a series of stimulating encounters between biologically-differing mates, events with no moral significance or religious answerability. Chastity is considered prudity and unchastity a virtue. Not hell but herpes is what these moral rebels fear."

UPPER COLORADO SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

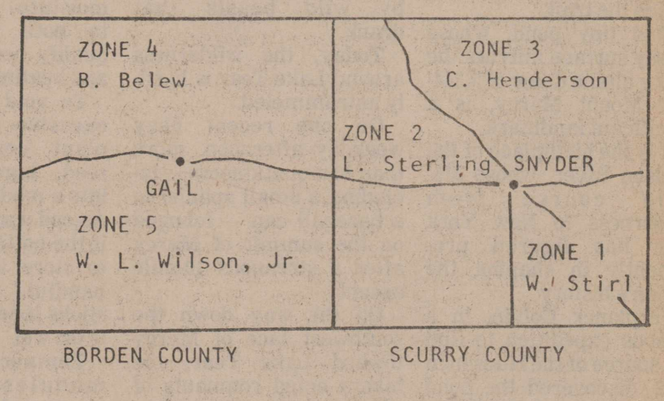

1983 ANNUAL REPORT

Report Sponsored by the Directors of the Upper Colorado SWCD

Tons of topsoil are lost each year, and clean air is severely polluted by wind erosion. No attempt was made to control wind erosion on the field in the above left picture. Conservation cropping systems such as the one shown in the above right picture help prevent both wind and water erosion and at the same time help protect crops from damaging winds. Cotton is planted in a 2x4 pattern with late sorghum drilled in the 4 blank rows. Late planted sorghum does not use moisture that is available for cotton.

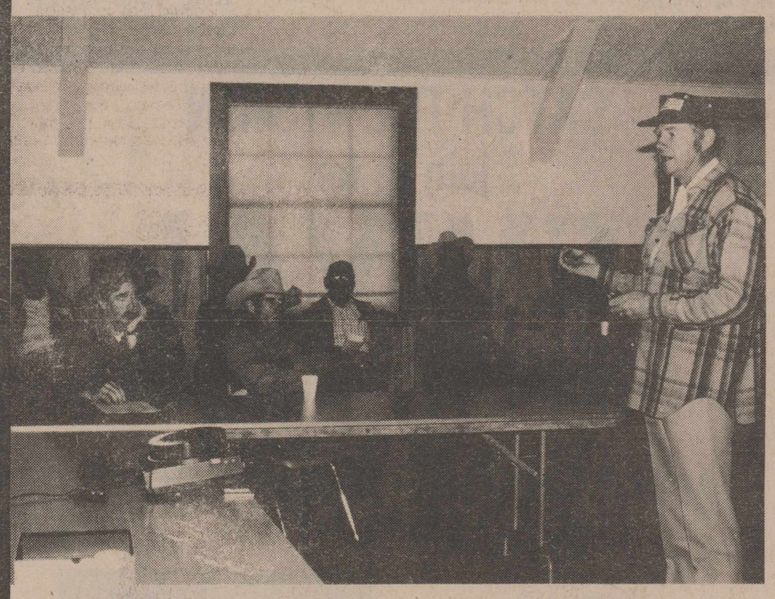

Directors Leon Sterling and W.L. Wilson, Jr. are shown with Mr. & Mrs. W.H. Coonrod (left), selected as Conservation Farmer of the Year and Mr. & Mrs. Scotty Clayton (right), selected as Conservation Rancher of the Year. Mr. Coonrod has done an excellent job of managing his land by rotating cotton with milo and sudan to build up his soil and help control wind and water erosion on his land. Mr. Clayton is a good conservationist and realizes that he is actually selling grass he produces when he takes his cattle to market. Scott was also honored by the Society for Range Management when he received the Excellence in Grazing Management Award in 1981.

The Upper Colorado SWCD, Howard County SWCD, Mitchell County SWCD, Texas A&M Extension Service and the Borden County Range and Livestock Committee co-sponsored a Range Tour in Borden County. This was the first tour in Borden County in many years and was thought by all to be a success. The tour was attended by 111 people. The group looked at prescribed burning on the Moorehouse Ranch, Savory Grazing Method on the McDowell Ranch, infiltration studies on the Anderson Ranch and fly control ear tags on the Warren Beaver Ranch. The group also discussed nutrition and supplemental feeding. After the tour there was a bar-b-que and Dr. Dub Waldrip gave a talk on the activities of the National Cattleman's Association.

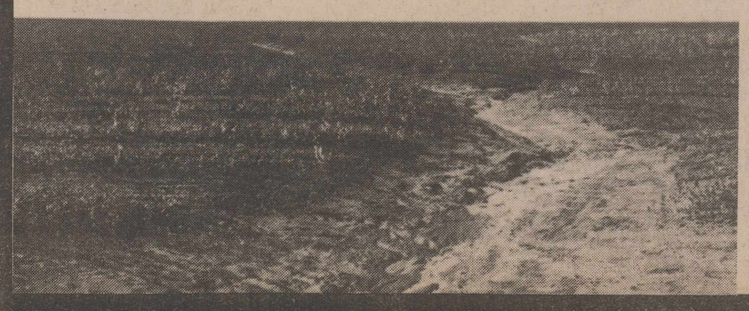

Several producers have begun to recognize prescribed burning as a useful, economical management tool for mesquite suppression, prickly pear control and to improve forage quality on unpalatable grasses such as tobosa. The Moorehouse Ranch, Spade Ranch, Fuller Ranch, Bill Wilson, Martin Murphy, Mozell Roggenstein, Warren Beaver, Borden Gray Jr., Van York, McDowell Ranch and Thompson Land & Cattle Co. all conducted burns this year. In February, the Upper Colorado SWCD, the Texas A&M Extension Service and the Borden County Range and Livestock Committee co-sponsored a prescribed burning workshop (above left). The morning session involved a classroom setting in which Dr. Jake Landers discussed the characteristics and behavior of fire and the principals of conducting a safe prescribed burn. The afternoon session was spent actually conducting a prescribed burn on Van York's ranch in Borden County. The Soil Conservation Service will be glad to discuss and work with any producer contemplating using prescribed burning as a management tool (above right). Burning is economical and cost between $1.00 and $3.00 an acre.

When building a pit type pond, a producer needs to construct them as large as possible. The depth of a pond is critical in that the deeper the pond, the less surface area. This means less evaporation. In Scurry & Borden Counties a 6,000 to 10,000 cubic yard pond with 20 foot depth is a good pond to construct. Several cooperators have built ponds this year including Thompson Land & Cattle Co., Rich Anderson, Scott Clayton, C.L. Marchbanks. The Thompson pond was cost-shared under the Great Plains Conservation Program administered by the Soil Conservation Service and the Marchbanks was built under the ACP Program administered by the ASCS.

Severe soil erosion on cropland fields pollute lakes and streams below. It takes thousands of years to replace topsoil lost after only one rain. Terraces and waterways help control severe water erosion. Approximately 157,873 feet of parallel terraces and 225,923 feet of standard terraces were completed this year with assistance from the Upper Colorado Soil & Water Conservaion District. Producers completing new terraces systems include Larry Smith, Rickey Evans, Lottie Gaither Estate, J.D. Patterson. J.W. Tiner Estate, Wade Davis, Travis Burleson, J.B. Autry, David Shiflett, James Blankenship, Buddy Drum, Leroy key, Gaines Price, Morris Head, Billy Bynum, Don Wills and Margie Toombs.

Tear Lake is not easily seen

LAKE TEAR-OF-THE-CLOUDS, N.Y. (AP) — It's not hard for hikers intent on scaling the last thousand feet of New York's highest peak to overlook a shallow pond nestled among the scrub balsams and Labrador tea beside the trail.

This tiny pond, whose glassy surface mirrors the rocky alpine dome of 5,344-foot Mount Marcy, is a significant landmark.

It is the birthplace of the Hudson River, whose 315-mile course from wilderness to New York City has figured prominently in shaping the nation's history.

Verplanck Colvin, in a famous expedition to find the source of the Hudson in 1872, discovered the pond and named it Lake Tear-of-the-Clouds.

Colvin, an Albany lawyer who devoted his life to surveying the Adirondacks and pushing the idea of a public preserve for the region, was moved to write some of his ripest prose when he described the lake in his survey report:

"Almost hidden between the gigantic mountain domes of Marcy, Skylight and the Gray Peak, this lovely pool lifted on its granite pedestal toward heaven, the loftiest water-mirror of the stars ... fresh, new, unvisited, save by wild beasts that drank."

Today, the wilderness around Lake Tear is hardly untrammeled.

On one recent hazy weekday afternoon, more than 40 mountaineers — including a small spaniel in a baseball cap — lounged on the summit of Marcy after a strenuous 10-mile ascent.

On the way down the southwest face of Marcy toward Lake Tear, the hikers noted remnants of glacial times: chartreuse lichens, Labrador tea, boreal bentgrass, waisthigh firs hundreds of years old.

Lake Tear is surrounded by a lush growth of sweet-scented balsams, grasslike subalpine sedges, deep sphagnum moss and woodland flowers.

Harvesting after wet weather

Producers should be cautious about returning to the field too quickly after a wet spell. Harvesting and storing "wet" cotton (generaly greater than 12 percent moisture) is detrimental to both lint and seed qualify because of rotting and heating.

To void problems with excssive moisture, all plant components--lint, seed, burs, stems--going into a module must be dry. A good way to check to see if the cotton is dry enough to store is to squeeze a handful. If the cotton sticks together in a ball, it is too wet.

Temperature within modules should be monitored with a long stem thermometer designed specifically for this purpose. Daily readings should be obtained and recorded for each module until it becomes apparent that temperatures have stabalized.

Keep those temperature records. They may prove useful later in helping you and your delinter decide whether to save seed from a given module for planting purposes or to send it to the oil mill.

Normally, the temperatures within a module rise 15 to 20 degrees F during the first three to five days as moisture within the module reaches a balance. Thereafter, if the module stays dry, the temperatures will tend to remain fairly stable, fluctuating slightly with changes in air temperature.

Usually, a module with excessive moisture will show a rapid temperature rise, often as much as 30 to 50 degrees within the first few days. Thereafter, the temperatures usually remain fairly high for several days before the module begins to "cool."

The cut-off temperature for sending a module to the gun as quickly as possible is around 110-120 degrees Farenheit. Seed from modules that reach these temperatures could be damaged and shouldn't be saved for planting seed without careful inspection and testing.

Desiccation after rains

The recent rains will encourage regrowth and cotton will be harder to kill with harvest-aid chemicals. Generally, arsenic acid at the highest labelled rate of 1.5 qt/acre is the most effective and cheapest desiccant to use on cotton with new growth. If Paraquat is to be used on such cotton we suggest the highest labelled use rate (2 pt/acre). Accelerate may enhance the effectiveness of both chemicals.

Private applicator's license

Many agricultural producers will need to apply for a private applicator's license in the immediate future. Chemical dealers are no longer able to sell certain chemicals to producers without a license. Chemicals are divided into two categories, "general use" and "restricted use."

Applications for the private applicators license can be obtained at the County Extension Office at 2605 Avenue M. It usually takes two weeks for an applicant to receive their license after application is made to TDA.

SNYDER — 3500 COLLEGE — TEXAS

Melvin Belli influenced trial law

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It's the start of another day in Melvin Belli's law office. He is filing lawsuits against the Soviet Union, fussing over his new telephone system and plotting to pick up his 1983 RollsRoyce.

Waving occasionally to tourists and street people who peer through his office window, Belli answers a doctor's questions about his headaches and arranges to meet his collaborator on another book. He wonders about where to have lunch and whether he'll get to a bullfight in Mexico on the weekend.

In and around all this, Belli rambles through stories about women, boozing, autopsies, Errol Flynn, pasta, money, Willie Mays, natural and unnatural death, headaches, insurance companies, Lana Turner, television, divorce...

...And, of course, the law. All the lawyer's stories come back, in the end, to the law. In his half-century at the bar, Melvin Belli has had more effect on the practice of modern trial law than perhaps any other American lawyer. "And I've had more fun, too," he says.

To Belli, at age 76, the law is not just his life. It is everyone's life.

His first clients — largely because he could get no others — were men condemned to hang. That was back in 1933, after he graduated from Boalt Hall, the University of California's law school at Berkeley. The late Earl Warren, then a young district attorney who was to become chief justice of the United States, once joked that when the trap door sprung open at San Quentin, half of Belli's practice was wiped out.

"He was wrong," Belli says today. "On several occasions my whole practice was wiped out."

The young Belli literally stumbled into "demonstrative evidence," the now-standard trial technique he is credited with developing. It was during the trial of a San Quentin prisoner accused of stamping another inmate to death. Belli pleaded self-defense on the grounds that the dead man had a knife.

To prove how common it was for an inmate to carry a weapon, Belli brought a drawerful of confiscated knives into court. Carrying it toward the jury, he tripped and dozens of knives clattered to the floor. Sensing the effect of all those scattered knives on the jury, Belli gathered them up slowly. He'd pick one knife up, look at it, sigh, shake his head and then put it in the drawer. Then he'd pick up another one. His client was acquitted.

Belli soon found that demonstrative evidence also helped win bigger damage awards in civil cases. "Don't say it, show it," became his motto. In one memorable medical malpractice case, Belli spent most of two days talking about his client's amputated leg. All the while, a leg-sized package wrapped in butcher paper lay on his table.

Belli talked on and on, until he was sure each juror imagined that the amputated leg was in the package. Finally, he carefully unwrapped it. Instead of the amputated leg, which was by then burned into each juror's mind, he pulled forth an artificial one. This, he told the jury, was what his client had in place of the real leg. He handed it into the box. Every juror inspected it.

He interupts himself to wave at one of his "nuts," a derelict who is trying to talk to him through the window. Belli's office is on a tour bus company's sightseeing itinerary in San Francisco. Occasionally, tourists have wandered in mistaking it for an antique shop. That's because Belli likes to keep mementoes of his conquests, from court and elsewhere, close at hand.

In that cluttered office, safari-slain deer and buffalo heads stare down at Belli. There is a magnificent mahogany bar, "from grandmother's pharmacy," that came around the Horn during the Gold Rush days. There is a skeleton that used to ride shotgun in Belli's red convertible, when both the lawyer and the skeleton were younger. There is a sign for "Fong's Iroquois Inn," a restaurant that Belli owned until it failed.

Over the years, Belli became to the era of demonstrative evidence what Clarence Darrow had been to the era of courtroom oratory. Belli made the use of blackboards common in courtrooms. He introduced "day-in-the-life" films to show jurors the difficulty diseased and maimed clients had in coping with life. He brought in photos of dead people and aerial blowups of countrysides. He built scale models of streets and buildings and factories and railroad yards, and pushed tiny cars and trucks and trains on them to show how accidents had happened. This technique was particularly effective in San Francisco cable car cases. Belli says they sent his children through college.

He made extensive use of expert witnesses in court — though he thinks experts are now overused. He also believes they charge too much; exhibit A is the Australian medical expert whose fee was $5,000 a day. "He charged me for two days when he crossed the international date line," Belli growls.

Nearly 40 years ago, Belli was the plaintiff's attorney in the "exploding Coke bottle" case that spawned today's liability law. The law traditionally held that a plaintiff had to prove exactly how a company was negligent and show how the negligence caused the injury. Belli argued a theory of "res ipsa loquitur," from the Latin for "the thing speaks for itself." When a bottle explodes in someone's hand, he reasoned, the company should be responsible even if you couldn't determine what was wrong with that particular bottle. The courts agreed.

It was 30 years ago that Life magazine anointed Belli "the King of Torts." He shows no sign of relinquishing the crown. His six-volume "Modern Trials," now out in a second edition at $245, remains a plaintiff lawyer's bible. His Melvin M. Belli Society puts on programs for lawyers all over the world, and Belli himself has a busy lecture schedule at $3,000 per speech, plus expenses. His Annual Belli Seminars, which he used to call Annual Famed Belli Seminars until the American Bar Association decided "famed" was not a proper name, still draw hundreds of attorneys at each year's meeting of the American Trial Lawyers Association.

In a way, Belli's troubles with the organized bar are a measure of how far ahead of his time he has been. He was once suspended for a month for appearing in a magazine ad for scotch; now lawyers are allowed to advertise not just products but their own services, too. He was also reprimanded for allowing a non-lawyer to handle some legal papers; now paralegals and legal secretaries routinely do much of the work that used to be exclusively the attorney's domain.

Belli's style, and his way with a jury, have drawn more than his share of famous and infamous clients. They are as varied as Mickey Cohen, Alvin Karpis, Lana Turner, Winnie Ruth Judd, Mae West, Howard Hughes, Lenny Bruce, Muhammad Ali, the Rolling Stones and Martha Mitchell. (The late Mrs. Mitchell hired Belli for her divorce from John Mitchell, but fired him when he refused to seek custody of the former attorney general's suits. "Why would anyone want his suits?" Belli wonders. "They all looked like John Mitchell without John Mitchell inside.")

After President John F. Kennedy was assassinated, Belli argued an insanity defense for Jack Ruby, the man convicted of killing Lee Harvey Oswald, the alleged assassin. Belli's defense team won an appeal, but Ruby died before he could be retried.

Belli's favorite case, however, came in the late 1950s when he sued the San Francisco Giants for the price of his baseball season tickets. Belli claimed the team had promised patrons that Candlestick Park would be heated, but when he went to a game he "froze." He argued the case wearing a parka and mukluks, and the jury decided in his favor. A newspaper headline at the time read: "Chilly Belli Beats Giants $1,597 to 0."

When the Giants still refused to refund Belli's money, he got a lien on the Giants' most valuable asset — centerfielder Willie Mays. "I hope Mr. Belli has a good team," Mays said before the Giants finally paid up.

Today, Belli says, he is personally handling more cases than ever; so many, in fact, that he had to give up teaching human anatomy — with real corpses — to law students. He is scheduled for 12 trials before the end of the year.

On this day, Belli is filing lawsuits for the families of victims on the Korean airliner shot down by the Soviet Union Sept. 1. Belli has decided to sue the United States, Korean Air Lines, the companies that made the plane and its navigation system and, of course, the Soviet Union. He began filing these suits on the day that it became known that the plane had been shot down.

"You can't do anything to fight death," he says. "These families are stunned and want to do something about it. The best tangible thing to do for them is to sue."

What of the fact that the Kremlin doesn't participate in international courts and has never shown any inclination to pay damages for the KAL victims? Belli is unfazed. "That's why they hire me," he allows. "And that's why they pay me a lot of money."

Fourth child is christened

LONDON (AP) — Former King Constantine of Greece gave a kiss on the cheek and hand to Queen Elizabeth II as she arrived at a Greek Orthodox cathedral in west London for the christening of his fourth child.

The child, 4-month-old Theodora, fell asleep soon after the ceremony Thursday as a host of European monarchs looked on.

Constantine, 43, is godfather of the queen's grandson Prince William, the 16-month-old son of Britain's Prince Charles and Princess Diana.

Theodora's godparents include Queen Elizabeth, former Queen Anne-Marie's sister Queen Margarethe II of Denmark and Constantine's sister Queen Sophia of Spain, who was accompanied at the ceremony by her son Prince Philippe. Other guests included the former Greek queen's mother Ingrid — Queen Mother of Denmark — and members of the former Romanian and Yugoslav royal families.

Constantine and his Danish-born wife live in north London, in exile following a 1974 plebiscite banning their return when Greece was proclaimed a republic.

All week the activities were sold out, were packed beyond expectation, and were enjoyed to the fullest extent.

Does that tell everyone involved how much we appreciated last week?

Major changes are in store for you this coming year and, in fact, you may be swamped with more opportunities than in the past. Use wise judgment in selecting only the best.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be patient where major enterprises or ventures are concerned, because you have the potential for large gains. Don't let poor timing sidetrack you. Order now: The NEW Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to give your zodiac sign. Mail an additional $1 for your Scorpio Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, in your eagerness to please, you might try to be all things to all people. This could cause you to make promises you may later have to break.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't put yourself in the embarrassing position today of requesting favors from persons who have turned you down previously. Contact reliable friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Enjoy yourself today, but make moderation your key word. If you plan to party a bit, be careful not to overindulge with food or drink.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) From where you sit today, it may appear that others with be getting breaks to which you are entitled. Don't be dismayed. All will soon change.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your splendid imagination will be working full force today. However, you might just talk about your ideas rather than act upon them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unless you're absolutely certain you know what you're doing, try not to involve yourself in the affairs of others today, especially financial ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Being congenial is a marvelous quality, but today don't permit yourself to be a straw in the wind where you are easily swayed by whomever you're with.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't view life pessimistically today. By the same token, do be realistic regarding problems with which you may have to contend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be noticed wherever you go today, so it won't be necessary to use dramatic measures in order to gain attention. Keep a low profile.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't take anything for granted competitively today. If you get too self-assured or careless you could lose your edge.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually you're a charming conversationalist and friends enjoy listening to what you have to say. Today, however, give everyone a chance to talk.

Dear Abby

Frugal Man Is Stingy Even With Commitments

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am in my late 50s and involved with a man in his middle 60s. I have been waiting for a year and a half for this man to talk marriage, but he doesn't budge. When I ask him if we have a future together, he says that he can't see the end of the tunnel.

He likes money and believes in saving it, so the "entertainment" is at his place or mine (usually mine). He seldom takes me anywhere.

My friends tell me not to expect a commitment from him because a man will not buy a cow if he can get milk for free.

So tell me, Dear Abby, should I give him a time limit and an ultimatum?

TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: Never give anyone an ultimatum unless you are prepared to take no for an answer. And don't expect a man his age to "buy a cow" — the older he gets, the less milk he needs.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my mother-in-law. We've been living with her, trying to save enough money to get on our own. We haven't been married a year yet. We weren't forced into it; it's what we both wanted. I've just turned 17 and Stevie just turned 19. We've been abiding by his mother's rules, which is only right, but she treats us like kids. She makes all the decisions, and if we don't do it her way she takes it out on me. Stevie is no help at all. He doesn't make any decisions on his own. His mother runs our lives, and when she puts me down and picks on me, Stevie doesn't say a word.

It got so bad last week I left her house, and now I'm staying with my mother until I get my mind straight. I love Stevie and want our marriage to last. How can I get back with him and solve my mother-in-law problem?

HURTING IN SOUTH DAKOTA

DEAR HURTING: As long as your mother-in-law is providing you with bed and board, you will be considered "the kids," and she will call the signals. Marriage might have been what you and Stevie wanted, but until he is sufficiently independent to leave his mother's home, don't expect any support from him.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Three months ago, I moved into a third-floor apartment on Nob Hill in San Francisco. A woman on the second floor owns an old dog I'll call "The Howler." The woman leaves "The Howler" locked inside the apartment while she is at work and out on the town, weeknights as well as weekends. He howls incessantly from the time the woman leaves until she comes home.

When I told the woman that her dog's howling was disturbing me, she became hostile and said there was nothing she could do about it.

I called the Police Department and was told that the police will come to the apartment when the owner of the dog is not home, and they will record (from the outside) the sound level of the dog's howling. Then they will decide if the dog is howling at an unacceptable level. If it is, they will send someone from the Noise Abatement Bureau to cite the woman. They said they consider this a "low-priority problem."

What do you say, Abby?

A VICTIM OF HOWLING

DEAR VICTIM: A howling dog is a "low-priority problem" compared to murder, rape and robbery. But it's a top-priority problem to those who are forced to listen to it constantly.

I say you have a large bone to pick with your apartment manager.

DEAR ABBY: I have another response for "Sober in St. Paul," who asked what he should say to people who tell him he's no fun to be with since he quit drinking.

How about: "Gee, since I've been sober, you're not much fun to be with either."

BEEN THERE

Town's labs leading mice breeder

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — In the fall, after tourists depart with kids, dogs and souvenir Maine watercolor, the population of this seaside resort drops to 703,500.

That's 3,500 people and 700,000 mice. Give or take a few thousand.

Bar Harbor is to mice what Maine is to lobster. The source.

The town's Jackson Laboratory is a world leader in breeding mice for scientific research. Each year more than 3 million mice are shipped from Bar Harbor to laboratories as far away as Israel, Japan, India and Australia.

The Jackson Laboratory mice comprise a living catalog of afflictions. Each strain has an ailment or genetic defect mimicking a human disorder.

Find the secret to the mouse's disease, the reasoning goes, and the solution to the human ailment should not be far behind.

Altogether, more than 700 strains and mutants have been bred at Jackson Laboratory, according to director Barbara Sanford.

Some of the strains, which have turned out to be especially useful, are bred by the thousands. Others are rarely called for, and are bred to order. Depending on the difficulty of breeding, the price can vary from $3 to $30 per mouse.

A few years ago, the laboratory's administrators realized something would have to be done to control the proliferation of new strains. If not, the burgeoning mouse population was soon going to push the researchers out into the surrounding woods.

Yet the laboratory did not want to lose the strains it had painstakingly developed. Once lost, the strains could not be recovered. And the possibility existed that new discoveries would make some of the littleused strains more important in the future.

After much discussion, two gleaming, four-foot-high stainless steel tanks were brought into the laboratory. They were filled with liquid nitrogen, temperature: 320 degrees below zero.

Tentatively at first, then with growing confidence, researchers placed mouse embryos in vials and stored them in the tanks.

When the embryos were thawed and implanted in the wombs of female mice, they grew into normal mice.

The tanks now hold some 300,000 frozen embryos, from 500 strains of mice. The measures taken to protect the laboratory's mouse stockpile testify to its importance.

The point of breeding these mutants is that a study of their maladies sheds light on corresponding human diseases.

Mice don't resemble you or me. But appearances, scientifically speaking, are deceiving. Genetically and biologically, mice are much like ourselves. And they make much better experimental subjects.

It's nice, for one thing, to be able to try a potentially risky treatment on a mouse before trying it on a neighbor. Mice are also prolific breeders. Females mate at seven weeks of age, and give birth three weeks later. Each can have three to four litters during her two-or three-year lifespan.

That makes it fairly simple to follow an experiment's consequences in several generations of offspring.

Club gives mayor plaque

NEW YORK (AP) — In this city of concrete, Mayor Edward I. Koch got a piece of a rock which he described as "the biggest diamond I've ever owned" — but actually it wasn't worth much.

The mayor, 58, was given a plaque at the Diamond Dealers Club in the heart of the city's diamond district. It contained a rock made of kimberlite, the diamond-bearing ore, which is practically worthless.

About 300 diamond dealers honored Koch on Thursday for "putting the sparkle back into every facet of city life."

The Spanish Inn, operated in Snyder by the Rodriguez family, is proud of the fact that their business has become a "family tradition".

The Rodriguez' came to Snyder from Big Spring to help Chon Rodriguez, founder of Spanish Inn, operate his business as a family. With the knowledge they acquired from Chon, Sr. and experience of growing up in the food business, many of the Rodriguez family members now own their own restaurants.

Dorothy Rodriguez, co-owner of the Spanish Inn here in Snyder, along with Chon Rodriguez II and Joni Gonzales, are proud to be a part of Snyder and credit their success to the customers they serve and the late Concepcion (Chon) Rodriguez.

Located at 2212 College, the Spanish Inn is open from 6 a.m. until 9 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday for breakfast, lunch and dinner traffic.

Circle "In" Grocery

If you're ever out the Lamesa Highway early in the morning you've probably noticed the crowd of cars and trucks around the Circle "In" Grocery. Literally hundreds of lunches are sold to working men every day at the Circle "In".

Owners Gene and Peggy Vernon prepare at least six dozen fresh homemade sandwiches every morning.

In addition they have fresh donuts, corn dogs, burritos, German sausage, hot links, BBQ sandwiches and much more. New additions to the menu are turkey legs and fried chicken.

The Circle "In" is open from 5:30 a.m. till 9:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 8:00 a.m. till 9:00 p.m. on Sundays.
