BUSINESS SCHOOL PROPOSED FOR JUNCTION

For the past number of years the need of a business school has been the constant worry of the parents of this county. Each year quite a number of our young people have gone to the larger cities for the purpose of taking a course in business training.

Our school boards have pondered over this question time after time, but the limited amount of money at their disposal could not permit this added expenditure.

Recently a proposition has been made to the effect that if a class of as many as 15 young people could be interested in attending and pay a tuition of $10 each per month the services of a man who has had quite a number of years experience in this particular line of work can be secured. We have been informed that several have already agreed to take this course.

If you are interested in a business course, get in touch with Prof. Cowles or some member of the school board.

Mrs. Conde Hardeman is teaching her class in expression at the residence of Mrs. M. E. Blackburn, Mondays and Thursdays. Courses in all branches of the Speech arts, including story telling, pageantry and pantomime, and public speaking and debate, the latter especially arranged for young men and boys. Later Mrs. Hardeman will organize a class in physical training for women.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION

When cooking "wienies" out of doors, try a wire corn popper.

Use the vinegar from a bottle of sweet pickles for making salad dressing.

Corn or any other feed that is badly molded should not be fed to dairy cows.

The United States produced 2 billion dozen eggs last year. This is at the rate of about 760 eggs each second.

A bit of garlic rubbed around the salad bowl—just enough to give a mere suggestion of flavor—makes an acceptable improvement in flavor for many people.

You can brine some of the late vegetables and green tomatoes for making pickle later on. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will tell you how.

Serve fresh tomatoes as often as possible at this season—sliced or stuffed for salads, broiled, fried, baked or for flavoring other dishes. Tomato juice "cocktail" is simply tomato juice seasoned and chilled, taken as an appetizer before any meal.

COUNTY STOPS BOUNTY ON WOLVES AND CATS

At Monday's meeting of the County Commissioners' Court an order was passed stopping the payments on wolf and cat pelts. This order automatically rescinds all previous orders pertaining to this matter. It was the general consensus of opinion of the court that they should continue the paying of the bounties, but the county's treasury could not stand this heavy drain on its finances. So there was only one of two things to do—stopping of these payments or an increase of taxes.

NEW CHEVROLET AGENT FOR JUNCTION

The McDonald Brothers, owners of the Safety First Filling Station, have taken over the agency for the Chevrolet cars in this county.

Preparations are being made to erect a display room and shop adjoining their present building. When completed they will have a building 60x60, half of which will be devoted to a display room.

They have employed a car salesman whose entire time will be devoted to selling cars.

CHINESE ELMS RECOMMENDED FOR SHADE

For shade or as a windbreak, the Chinese elm has proved its value in most sections of the United States. The United States Department of Agriculture introduced this tree nearly 20 years ago and it has been growing in popularity ever since. The Department recommends it as useful and suitable for many climates. The Chinese elm is especially valuable in regions where the rainfall is light and where there are wide extremes of heat and cold—and in places where few trees thrive, in other words. Trials show that the Chinese elm grows even more rapidly in the relatively dry area of the middle West than in the moister regions of the Atlantic coast.

JUNCTION AND KIMBLE COUNTY GIVEN VALUABLE PUBLICITY THROUGH COLUMNS OF STAR-TELEGRAM.

Pathways older than history lead into the rocky clis of Kimble County where are suspended beautiful fronds of ferns and wild flowers in profusion; where dense pecan groves sing with the wind as the rill of the mountain spring sings with the rocks below, where there is a wealth of primeval beauty undisturbed.

Kimble County was organized from the western portion of Bexar County more than half a century ago. Its early history is fraught with stories of wild orgies and lawlessness, for its mountain fastnesses and dense cedar brakes furnished an excellent rendezvous for depredating Indians, cattle rustlers and bad men of the time.

Today the once secluded strongholds of the early desperadoes serve as a playground for visitors, as Kimble County is rapidly becoming one of the most popular resorts and recreational sections of the State. Its eastern boundary line is about 100 miles west of San Antonio, and there contained within its area more than 800,000 acres of forests and mountainous land traversed by more miles of fresh water streams than any other county in Texas. This region is a mecca for the hunter, or the fisherman, as the wooded hills are filled with wild game, and as the famed Llanos team with fish of all kinds.

Kimble County abounds in a rugged, natural beauty that makes it without a peer as a recreation point. Great plateaus form the highlands, with sentinel hills towering above here and there. Its more than 500 miles of running mountain streams, fed by thousands of springs, form many picturesque spots on rocky ledges, flower scloped canyons, and ferned bluffs.

Here resort visitors may find any pleasure; those who want action are in a paradise for game hunts, for fishing expeditions, for swimming, and boating. Those who desire rest and milder forms of recreation can enjoy the beautiful marvel of scenery, trips to the numerous big ranches of the section, and watching the thrilling polo games which form one of the leading sports of Kimble County.

Resort features of the Junction section have but recently become accessible to Texans and out-of-state visitors. With the completion of the "Old Spanish Trail" through the county, however, multiple numbers have been coming to enjoy the wealth of entertainment of the region. Since 1922 the number of visitors has increased more than 500 per cent.

Kimble County and the Llanos have long been known as a great ranch country. Being admirably adapted to diversified stock raising, there are many notable ranches located there which specialize in registered sheep, goats and cattle. These are shipped to all points and they have taken many high awards and prizes all over the United States.

Natural vegetation in the region makes winter feeding unnecessary, and there is ample range throughout the seasons. Though early stockmen suffered losses from predatory animals, this hazard has been overcome largely through installation of wolf-proof fences and herders today have little trouble in safeguarding their flocks. The annual production of the county figures 800,000 pounds of mohair, and 1,200,000 of wool.

The pecan industry represents the greatest potential industry of Kimble County. In good years, 150,000 pecan trees on the river bottoms have borne 1,000,000 pounds of nuts that sold for $150,000. This amount has come from trees that were given no cultivation, irrigation, spraying or any other care excepting harvesting nuts when ripened. Since Kimble County is the natural habitat for large and well-bearing pecan trees, it is indicated that it will only be a matter of time until the industry will be developed into one of the leading ones of the sector.

Though sheep, goat and cattle raising form the major occupation of Kimble County, there is a sizeable area of the northeastern part of the county devoted to agriculture. This area lies along the valleys of the main Llano river; other localities in the north and south Llanos have likewise been cultivated. The center of the farming interest of Kimble County is located in the town of London.

Fifty-one years ago some hardy pioneers camped at the junction of the North and South Llano Rivers. This spot was the exact geographical center of Kimble County, and when a town was started, it became known as Junction and was designated as the county site. The altitude, according to United States Government Service Survey, is 2,180 feet.

Junction today is a well-organized commercial center. Last year the town constructed a 23-room $60,000 hotel through a local stock company. The new Junction Hotel, as it is called, is of Spanish type architecture and entirely modern. Mr. and Mrs. Fritz are managers. Today a block of business houses is under course of construction. These include two cafes, four stores, a rooming house and offices. There are six active church organizations in Junction: Presbyterian, Methodist, Christian, Church of Christ, Episcopal and Baptist.

Junction has a live wire commercial organization. The Chamber of Commerce is devoting its efforts to getting the town incorporated. It is also seeking to secure a railroad, and plans to start a campaign for voting bonds to get highway connection with Fort Worth. H. O. Denman is secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.—Fort Worth Star Telegram.

COURT AUTHORIZES ISSUANCE OF $54,000 BONDS

At Monday's meeting of the Commissioners' Court the returns of the bond election held in road district No. 4 was canvassed and an order passed authorizing the issuance of $50,000 worth of road bonds against that district.

The returns from a bond election held in Consolidated Common School district No. 19 were also canvassed and an order passed authorizing the issuance of $4,000 worth of school bonds against that school district.

"MADE IN U. S. A."

Reports received by the Government through consuls and commercial attaches indicate that foreign manufacturers are moving Heaven and earth to break into the American market. At the same time there is a struggle in many parts of the world where the foreign manufacturers are having difficulty to hold their own markets against the superior goods "made in U. S. A." German articles were shut out of this country by the war, and the United States built many new industries to the point where the Nation became independent of all Europeans. One instance of American progress was shown in the production of the new fountain pens made of the highest grade of materials. These pens retail at $7 or thereabouts, and are guaranteed in many cases by the manufacturers. Certain colors such as burnt orange and jade green and other hues were selected by the American manufacturers and expensive nation-wide advertising campaigns were entered into to popularize them. As soon as the market was developed it was learned that the cheapest kind of German imitation of America's superior pyroxilin plastic was sent over in great quantities to take advantage of the popularity thus created. The German goods are mounted with inferior metal and the barrels are soft and frequently bend out of shape.

Meanwhile "made in U. S. A." satisfies the American market better than in any former time.

DRUG STORE SITE BEING CLEARED

Tuesday workmen started to carting away the debris created by the fire at Hankins' corner.

When asked as to when work would be started on his new building Mr. Hankins informed us that he hopes to have his building complete within 90 days, but as to just when work would start he was unable to state.

PONTIAC AGENCY FOR JUNCTION

The Powell Motor Co. have assumed the agency for the Pontiac cars. At present there are only a few of this make of cars in this county, but they are fast becoming popular among the light six owners of more thickly populated communities, and are gradually finding their way into every corner of our country. They are a General Motors product.

FAR LANDS ECHO HONK OF AMERICAN AUTO

The remote countries of the world have been slow to follow the lead of more civilized nations in the adoption of modern methods either in their social or their political lives. It has been difficult to persuade the Egyptian that a modern water pump is more efficient than a treadmill operated by slaves, or the inhabitant of Palestine that a plow, or even a steel hoe was a certain means to greater crops.

Yet these people are awakening gradually, and it is surprising to find motor cars and trucks replacing the ship of the desert and the donkey in Asia and Africa, where civilization is perhaps oldest, but least susceptible to change.

Between Nazareth and Bagdad it is no uncommon occurrence for a line of motor cars to crowd a caravan of camels off the road. Shops have been opened within the last few years where Joseph taught the carpenter's trade that would do credit to an American city of the same size. And science is driving the germ-laden mosquito from the malaria-plagued districts of the Near East, just as it has done in the Southern States and in the Canal Zone.

These are some of the high lights of interesting information provided to the Department of Commerce by J. J. Handsaker, regional director of the Near East Relief. In telling of his recent visit to Bible Lands, Mr. Handsaker says:

"The automobile and motor truck has been of great value to American relief agencies in transferring food and clothing supplies to the unhappy refugee children. Many of our cars are driven by orphans who have graduated from trade schools, and probably half of the commercial cars in Palestine and Syria are driven by graduates of the same schools, trained by Americans in modern transportation methods and technique. The American motor car has conquered the desert, and its honk is now heard in the most remote and ancient regions of the world."

TWO BITTEN BY RATS

Sinton, Texas.—E. M. Wiginton, superintendent of the schools at Sidville, a prosperous farming community six miles south of Sinton, and his 12-year-old daughter, Elberta Wiginton, are in Austin for Pasteur treatment, after having been bitten by rats. They were sleeping on the porch of their home on a very hot night, when they were awakened by something biting them. Next morning Wiginton found and killed a large rat on the porch. He thought nothing of it and did not connect it with the bites till places on their hands and feet began to give trouble and they had to consult a doctor. The physician advised them to telephone to Austin to the Pasteur Institute. They were advised to come to Austin immediately for treatment.

If you don't want rats, take down the welcome sign, advises Dr. J. C. Anderson, State health officer, who reports that rat infestation seems prevalent throughout the State at this time. "Rats infest buildings and premises where they can obtain food and shelter, and if they cannot get these accommodatations, they go elsewhere," Dr. Anderson stated.

"Waste scraps or other food left on kitchen tables or cupboard shelves will draw an army of rat boarders. To prevent this, all garbage should be placed in metal containers with close-fitting covers, and meal, potatoes, oatmeal, and other foodstuffs should be placed in containers that are rat-proof."

"Damage by rats to produce and property in the United States is estimated by the Federal Department of Agriculture to be approximately $200,000,000 annually. Rats are also disease-carriers, and are filthy and full of vermin. When infesting large areas, it takes concerted community action to get rid of these pests."

"Trapping rats with snap traps is effective in buildings and is recommended where the use of poison seems inadvisable. If other food is available to rats, it makes trapping difficult."

"The most efficient means of destroying rats is by poisoning and is recommended for use outside the home. There are a number of commercial poisons that are good, but barium carbonate is perhaps the best suited for this purpose, as it is inexpensive and slow in action. Powdered barium carbonate should be thoroughly mixed and worked into soft baits in the proportion of this mineral, one part to four parts of selected food. This poison can also be sifted over or rubbed into sliced baits. In using any kind of poison be careful not to leave it or poison bait in reach of children or domestic animals."

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S EYES

An analysis made by industrial interests of the effect of the sun's ray on children's eyes is attracting considerable attention. Doctor Hazen, of Des Moines University, declares that "there are people dying in every community from eyestrain as first cause, and others are driven to desperation, suicide, drug habits and stimulants." A New York police court judge says that "in my opinion defective eyesight is the most prolific cause of crime and delinquency. If children's eyes are to give good service and good sight in old age, they must be properly taken care of during the school days. No child should be forced to acquire an education under the handicap of faulty window shades. Eyestrain that shuts out the desired light causes headaches, eyeaches, tired feeling, blurred vision and watery eyes. They are a warning of the coming eye trouble, and numerous boards of education are aware of the fact today that no organs of the body are so delicate, so complicated, so little understood, so much used, and so much abused, as the eyes."

A practical solution of a large part of the difficulty comes from a practical home furnisher of Jefferson City, Missouri. This is Henry Crevelt, who declares that the new form of Tontine window shades that have been manufactured, "will go a long way toward correcting this evil." Mr. Crevelt adds: "Efficiency cannot be as high as it should be, life cannot be as full of enjoyment and of usefulness, if eyesight is faulty. Proper window shades will correct a great majority of the trouble."

BELL PHONE SYSTEM HAS 50,000,000 MILES OF WIRE

Fifty-five million miles of wire are now in use in the United States, according to the latest figures of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, says the Texas Public Service Information Bureau. This is enough to circle the earth 2,200 times at the equator.

Of the total amount of telephone wire in the country about 50,000,000 miles were in use by the Bell Telephone System at the beginning of the year. The other mileage serves telephone connected to the switchboards of independent companies. About 10,000 of these companies were operating on January 1, 1927. More than 9,000 of them have connections with Bell switchboards, thus enabling them to use the long distance lines of the Bell System.

Three hundred and eighty-five thousand miles of telephone pole lines are needed to carry the overhead cables and wires of the Bell System. About 750,000 telephone poles are required every year for Bell System construction and replacements. Around 90 per cent of the Bell System lines are in storm proof cable and about 900,000,000 pounds of copper are contained in the Bell System plant.

BRADY TO STAGE TURKEY TROT NOV. 11

November 11 is the date set for the annual Turkey Trot, it was announced at the Luncheon Club today by secretary Carl Blasig, if it is satisfactory with the American Legion and others who are planning an event for that date.

The date must also meet with the approval of the Pathe News man, who will be here to make pictures of the main events. By combining these two attractions it was brought out, a larger crowd will be in attendance and both will be more successful. The point was also brought out that Nov. 11 was one of the five main holidays of the year agreed on by the Retail Merchants' Association for closing and that every merchant in Brady should close for the day, with the exception of eating and drinking places.—Brady Standard.

LONDON LOCALS

Mrs. Maude Francis of Seymour passed through London the 6th on her way to Junction. Mrs. Francis is well and favorably known by the old settlers of this community, she having been raised in this section.

The McCollum shower party was well attended. All report a pleasant evening with many presents for Bill and Mabel.

The strange prowling about the residence of E. F. Amaon, the hasty barefooted tracks left in the road when challenged, caused our people to think they may have had a burglar in their midst the night of the 6th.

Judge D. M. Slaytor was in town Thursday of last week. The judge says pasture and cattle are fine.

The Parent-Teachers' entertainment of Friday night was well attended and the result was $38.15. Other donations since gave a total of $41.86. The good women of this community are resolved to put the library proposition over. They never fail when they take a matter in hand. On with the good work, girls, but I always hate to see things so one-sided. Why not us men do something just to show that we can. We can accomplish a small task, don't you think? Let's seat that community hall. At present we have but few seats that belong to the community. When we call together a large crowd we have to borrow seats from the Baptist church. That is alright; they don't mind, but it is a great bother, besides it is hard on the seats to be handled rough so much. Let's put seats there that belong there. Let's not give any entertainment to do it; if we do then the women can say they assisted. Let's donate outright sufficient funds to do this work. I will give $2.50; if you will give according to what you have, a relative portion to what I offer, we will seat that old hall and be as proud of its seating capacity as we are of the floor we have recently put in. Let's go!

Over 800 bales ginned to this hour and lots of cotton to pick.

The pecan crop is now being gathered which will amount to thousands of pounds and selling at a good price. No place on earth has more avenues of income than does this Kimble County of ours. Sheep, wool, goats, mohair, cows, calves, milk, butter, chickens, eggs, corn, cotton and other feed crops, broom corn and hogs, these are some of the things that bring returns and they all grow around London. The sun shines bright in this Southland of ours and the tourist from every state and Canada come to see, thus creating another source of income. We should be contented and happy, without a single grouch.

We will receive a large shipment Saturday of the very latest in fall hats, coats and dresses. We especially invite you to come in and see them. If you are contemplating buying a new fall and winter coat, dress or hat, all we ask is that you compare the quality of material, style, workmanship and prices of our merchandise with others before you buy. WHAT IS A CITY?

When most communities become large enough they become cities by simple methods of the law. None of them have ever been denied, so far as we know, until Gilbertville, Pennsylvania, sought incorporation as a borough, and its right to become such was challenged in court. The judge who sat in judgment refused to permit Gilbertville to become a city. In his ruling he said: "There is no drug store to fill the demand for pills, perfumes or soda water; no tailor administering to the sartorially fastidious; no regular barber applies his trade during the day time and the inhabitants must wait until evening to be shaved, shorn or bobbed. There is no lumber or coal yard, probably because only fourteen new houses have been built within the last 26 years."

"An upright judge, a learned judge," as Shakespeare would say.

ENTHUSIASM

Where you find a bright and growing business, or an advancing community, you almost always find some enthusiastic people. They are sanguine, hopeful and confident. They speak in warm terms of their home community. They see its fine achievements, and its admirable people. They praise its advantages, and utter no words of detraction.

They are confident and hopeful about prospects in their own business. They see everything in bright colors. While that spirit can be overdone, and may be exemplified with lack of judgment, it is one that promotes support and co-operation. People buy goods of a salesman of that type. They like to move into a town that is full of that kind of folks. Things go ahead faster in that kind of a town.

ICE does a perfect job of Refrigeration

The merit of ice lies in its ideal balance of atmospheric conditions. It causes the air in a refrigerator to circulate. It keeps the air cool enough and not too cold; dry enough and not too dry. It keeps the air moist enough to keep food at its best.

And it always works automatically. When the air is warmer the ice melts faster and thus keeps the temperature just right. When it is cooler the ice melts more slowly to maintain the same cold. Ice never gets out of order; does not frost or become insulated.

All that is necessary is to keep the ice chamber properly filled. More and more housewives are doing this all the time—winter as well as summer. They know it pays. There is no refrigerant like ice. It is the ideal and natural way of preserving food and food flavor.

They are manufactured by the builders of the largest broadcast station in the world, WEAf at New York City and others, such as KFKX at Hastings, Nebraska, KOA at Denver, Colorado, and many others.

They employ tubes that use 6 amperes of A Battery per tube while the storage battery set uses 25 amperes per tube, or 4 times as much per tube.

All models are operated by one tuning control.

TEXAS AND TEXANS.

(By Will H. Mayes.)

They Like the Feature

Two editors who use "Texas and Texans" regularly, prompted perhaps by a recent paragraph headed "Make Them Feel Good," wrote me this week to say that they and their readers like the column and that it is doing much to keep Texas people appreciative of our great state and its wonderful resources, or words to that effect. Two citizens of Austin stopped me on the street and said they were regular readers of the articles and liked them. One said he saw them in the Jasper News-Boy and the other was a reader of the Hereford Brand, widely separated publications. The most encouraging statement made to me in a long while came from a Brazos county citizen who wrote that if only half the newspapers in Texas would run the articles regularly they would do Texas more good than any publicity that could be bought, whatever the price. Words like these make a fellow want to do his level best at whatever he is doing. Editors need such encouragement, too. Help them along.

Temple Making Desks

Temple seems determined to become a manufacturing city. For years one of the largest candy and chewing gum factories in the State has been in operation there. Not long ago a Temple Company began building airplanes, the first of the kind in Texas. A building is now being constructed there to house a school desk factory and in a short time expect to be turning out 10,000 desks annually, with facilities for increasing the output to meet the demand. That is the spirit that has built up a lively city on the prairies of Bell county, with no other advantages noticeable than good railroad shipping facilities. The same kind of enterprise can build a city anywhere. All depends on the people, and Temple has the right kind.

Big Basket Plant

Speaking of factories and people, reminds me that I saw a statement recently that Pittsburg, in Camp county, a place that has never tried especially to extol itself, has a factory that has been manufacturing baskets, crates and hampers for 25 years, and that it is this year turning them out at the rate of 3,000,000 a year. Most of its product is fruit and berry crates and uses no small part of them in its vegetable baskets, and nearly all of them are sold in Texas. Pittsburg sweet potato business, and the Rio Grande Valley draws heavily on the output. The plant employs 160 workmen. It is easy to see that Pittsburg is steadily prosperous.

Junction's Attractiveness

Some pictures of the town and surrounding country have made me want to see Junction, the prosperous and beautiful county site of Kimble County. The pictures tell just why so many Texans now go to Junction for rest and recreation instead of to Colorado and other far-away places. There are beauties in Texas of which Texans have not yet learned. The pictures also partly account for the prosperous appearance of the Junction Eagle, one of the best small town weekly papers in Texas. Such a country furnishes the inspiration that makes a fellow want to do his best in whatever he is doing.

Uvalde Builds Parks

The small cities in Texas—at least some of them—are taking the right steps to insure the future attractiveness as well as the comforts necessary to growing places. Uvalde is among the number that has a park commission with which the citizenship is closely co-operating. The city park is to be improved by a memorial arch in suitable honor of the young men who served in the world war. Another park has been secured in the outskirts of the city, and that is also to be improved. The city that neglects to provide and care for parks shows that it is not interested in its appearance, and this at once becomes obvious to all visitors.

Zapata's Court Record

If you have been thinking of the border counties of Texas as sections where crimes runs rampant, you have "another thought coming." For the second time in twenty years the district court of the county has had a felony case on its docket and such a thing is so unusual that on the invitation of the district judge, the public school children attended court in a body as an object in civil government. Can you beat it?

College Spreading Out

The West Texas State Teachers' College at Canyon has acquired 200 acres of land adjoining the present campus to be used for "farm and stock demonstration purposes and otherwise to relieve the congested campus." The constant spreading out of the grounds of Texas schools is in keeping with the increase in interest in education throughout the State. When the Canyon school was established there were some pessimists who argued that it would never have any students "way up yonder on the edge of nowher."

County Hospitals

Scurry county, of which Snyder is the county site, is to hold an election soon to determine whether the county shall vote an $80,000 bond issue to build a county sanitarium. Indications, as they should be, are that the bonds will be voted by a large majority. Every county owes it to its people to provide adequate hospital facilities at a reasonable charge. In our enthusiasm for providing schools and roads we are too much inclined to overlook the needs of the sick.

Falfurrias Gardens

More than 1,500 acres will be planted to vegetables close around Falfurrias, the grove having gotten together for co-operative planting and marketing. Those who produce from the soil are gradually learning the advantages of co-operative effort.

Brownsville Irrigation Project

A bond issue of $600,000 has been voted by a district in Cameron county for irrigation. The people who own the irrigable lands along the lower valleys of Texas streams are learning that if they would have irrigation they must provide the means, as those along the upper streams are coming more to appreciate the necessity for conserving the water. The time is close when water will be regarded as a section's most valuable asset.

Hill Country Roads

Real county, in the Texas Hill country, has started a movement for better roads. Edwards county, which adjoins Real, is also feeling its isolation because of the lack of roads. That part of Texas is one of the most beautiful sections of the State but thousands of tourists avoid it every year because the roads are bad and at times almost impassable. However attractive a country may be, automobilists will pass it up for the less desirable spots that have good roads. This is as true of the hilly sections of West Texas as of the sandy lands of East Texas.

HUGE INCOME INCREASE LOOMS

Facing the brightest prospects since the war, the farmers of the nation will this year receive in excess of $1,000,000,000 more than the income from their 1926 crops and livestock. So President Coolidge was advised by Eugene Meyer, commissioner of the Federal Farm Loan board in the rosiest report of agricultural conditions since he settled in the Black Hills for the summer.

Meyer declared that the farmers are on their way out of the terrific post-war depression which wrecked more than 2,000 banks, sent 1,000,000 farmers into bankruptcy, caused 3,000,000 to leave the farms for the cities, and depressed the value of agricultural properties by more than twenty billion dollars.

"Everywhere there is a spirit of optimism among them," said Meyer. "They are pleased with the outlook for bumper crops, and satisfied with the market prices, especially livestock."

The tremendous increase in income of this year will enable thousands of farmers to meet long over due payments on farm mortgages and many thousands to redeem their properties in full, Meyer said. "On the whole it will permit them to put their loans in good order," he added.

Meyer found President Coolidge exceedingly anxious to know whether there will be sufficient money to harvest store and market the vast crop already in the making.

"Money is plentiful," said Meyer. "Bad banking had been responsible for the failure of many of the banks as well as for the failure of many of the farmers. Some of the banks have consolidated. There are ample banking facilities for the public."

Meyer told the President that the joint stock and the farm loan banks, under government authority, have $2,000,000,000 outstanding in farm mortgages, and that the intermediate credit banks have an available lending capacity of $600,000,000, which has been tapped to the extent of only $60,000,000.

President Coolidge was assured by Meyer that eastern money is also available for future agricultural needs. Meyer insisted that land speculation by easterners who hope to derive great profit from the farmers' distress is infinitesimal. — San Antonio Express.

SOME HUNGRERS OF MAN

(By E. V. S., London Special Correspondent)
There are several instincts that are associated with the life of man that we shall speak of as hungers.

Since these hungers, or instincts, play an important part in the life of man, we feel that we are justified as we stop to give them meditative consideration.

The most prominent hunger which all men and animals possess, is the hunger for food and shelter. All species of animal life on the earth possess this instinct. The first desire of the new born infant is a desire for food in order that its physical body may be nourished. Since we know that infants and young of animals are not mature enough in their judgment to reason and to have been taught that they should take nourishment to develop their bodies, we therefore concede that they are creatures of instincts having inherited these characteristics from some previous ancestor. Hunger for food is apparent in every form of animal life. For instance the young bird in the nest, opens wide its little mouth as it hears even the rustle of leaves on the branches near its nest, thinking that the mother bird is near with a worm, which will satisfy its hunger.

Hunger for food has a strong influence on the life of man, since it has been demonstrated that if honest men be deprived of food for a long period of time, that they will resort to stealing in order to secure bodily nourishment. The cells of the physical organism require food, and if they fail to receive it, they will soon perish.

After the cells of the organism are supplied, then comes a desire or hunger for clothing and shelter. Even the most savage races of primitive man gave some thought to shelter or places of shelter in times of storm. The wild beasts of the forest who roam the woods in a cave, a hollow log or a place of retreat. Since this hunger is most highly developed among civilized man, we find him occupying houses of stone, brick, concrete or wood, combining both comfort and beauty, thus satisfying the hunger for physical comfort and also satisfying a desire for the beautiful or for art.

The next hunger which man possesses after the hunger for food, clothing and shelter are supplied is the hunger for companionship, or the hunger for society. Animals—cattle, sheep, goats, birds all show this hunger as we see them in groups all to themselves. Man is not an exception to this rule. The infant at first is content with only its parents. As its mind becomes more mature, we note that it desires to associate with children near its own size and age. Later we find the more mature boy or girl grouped with young men and women. People do not care to live alone. They desire companionship and this hunger should not be suppressed any more than the hunger for food but should be cultivated properly.

Then comes a hunger for knowledge manifest more highly among civilized people. Man seeks to know the why and wherefore of things. They seek various forms of knowledge, not because they realize altogether the importance of it, but because it is an inborn instinct. We find the little child a living question box. The world contains to it a multitude of mysteries, therefore it begins at an early age to ask questions, and thus seek knowledge. Of times a parent, who is lacking in patience, scolds his child because it asks too many questions. To suppress a child in this way is very wrong. This question asking trait of the normal child is only a God-given instinct and the dutiful parent should pause long enough to give an intelligent answer to the child's questions, thereby teaching it to think and reason more logically.

Another significant hunger of man is the hunger of love. The human family and also the animal kingdom possess this instinct. Individuals manifest love for other people in many ways—by doing kind deeds for the unfortunate ones, by caring for the sick, aged and infants. The ties of family love are the ones which should be next in importance to the love of God and the love of things divine. The Bible admonishes us to love each other. The instinct of love needs proper guidance. We should learn to love the good traits which our neighbor has and not see only his bad points. Love as well as the other instincts is of a divine origin and should be used for man's betterment.

Another big rain Saturday. Not so heavy as last Saturday but enough to soak the ground thoroughly. While talking with Raleigh Kothmann Saturday he informed us that all the draws and canyons in the Kothmann pasture resembled creeks and that one certain hollow, known as Hog Creek, which has not run for three years, was now running.

Bub Cooper and Joe Goodman returned this week from Los Angeles, California, where they have been at work for the past two weeks.

The ice cream sale at the Community Hall last Friday night, under the auspices of the London Parent-Teachers' Association, was a decided success. The proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase books for the London school library.

The London high school football boys will meet the Burnett high school team at Burnett next Friday for their first matched game with the pig skin. Get 'em, London boys.

Mr. Jesse Smithman, formerly of the Ivy community, but now residing in Blanco County, and Miss Ella Mae Herbst of Red Creek were married last week. Both of these young people have been reared in this section and they have multitudes of friends here who wish for them a very happy and prosperous life.

Ivy school began its term of school Monday, October 10, with Oran Stewart as principal and Miss Mayo of Mason as assistant.

Ed Cummins of Red Creek is now driving the school bus from his community to the London school. Ed is always on time and knows his okra when it comes to engineering a "Shivy" and teaching football.

pointers. We think this is a beautiful season of the year. Just cool enough to be pleasant and nature so gorgeous with her grass and leaves of green with here and there a little tint on a leaf of crimson of gold, just a hint that another season is passing. The historical old Blue Mountains seem more beautiful just now than ever before. We appreciate the natural beauty of nature in Kimble County always, but just now we just love to sit and gaze, dream and admire these things, because they are doubly beautiful during October and November.

THREE CLUBS HONORED

Mesdames Felix Watson and Joe Watson entertained with a bridge luncheon Friday at their home on the Watson Divide, honoring the Merry Wives Club, Laf-a-Lot Club and The Ladies' Tuesday Afternoon Club. The house was decorated with vases of cut flowers. The luncheon was given in honor of Mrs. Henry Hamer of San Antonio. Following a delicious chicken luncheon bridge was enjoyed all afternoon. Four groups of prizes were awarded. In the Merry Wives Club Mrs. Guy Wynne received a lovely feather corsage as high score prize and Mrs. Carl Wolf was consoling with a dainty embroidered guest towel. In the Ladies' Friday Afternoon Club Mrs. Woodward received a clever little salt and pepper set as high score prize. Mrs. Henry Taylor received a decorated bridge score pad. In the Laf-a-Lot Club Miss Fay Taylor received a little apron for high score prize and Mrs. Dorothy Westmoreland received a decorated bridge pad. Mrs. Jim Carpenter was awarded a dainty handkerchief for high score among the guests and Mrs. Tommy Covert also received a handkerchief for consolation. Mrs. Henry Hamer was presented with a dainty handkerchief as honoree's gift.

CULLING CHICKENS

Every fall and spring all laying flocks of hens should be culled. The poultryman, who makes poultry his business, culls the year round, but the average farmer hasn't time to do this. He can cull his hens every fall and every spring by observing the following rules:

Cull out—1. All deformed hens. 2. All hens unless they have made a special record. 3. All of type hens. 4. All brooders, those hens which are late off the roost and back early. 5. All the hens which are lazy, those that are poor hustlers. 6. All those that are early and slow molters. 7. Those that keep a shriveled comb most of the time. 8. Those hens that keep fat all the year (they are fat because they lay so little). 9. Those hens which have beautiful feathers the year round. 10. Those hens which have unbleached shanks, beaks, skin, etc. 11. Those hens which have coarse heads and poorly proportioned bodies. 12. Those hens that lack vigor and seem sickly. 13. Those hens that eat eggs.

Keep hens—1. That you know that lay well. 2. Those that are off the roost early and go back late. 3. All should have normal bodies. 4. Bodies should be well developed, long, with broad backs. 5. Several finger spaces between the pelvic bones. 6. These bones should be thin and pliable. 7. The shanks, beaks, skin, etc., should be bleached. 8. Heads should be smooth, well formed, with brilliant eyes. 9. They should have a good conformation and show vigor. 10. They should be late and fast molters. 11. They should be true to type and well developed.

If any farmer or ranchman wants the flock culled, the vocational agricultural class will be glad to help you with this work. Just call us.

Time is fleeting. Tomorrow—next week—next month—and next year—come and are gone while one still plans to start action for that "someday" of ease, comfort, peace and plenty.

The YOU of today, in the full power of earning capacity, is responsible for the YOU of tomorrow, when earning ability is decreased.

Heed these words from the pages of experience. Call it charity—but start today for the other man—the YOU of tomorrow—so that he may live in comfort and without worry.

Spend less than you make today—and bank the difference.
