Jason Davis and his butterfly have forged a special friendship that's weathered separation, injury and an ill-fated attempt at euthanasia.

Pet butterfly flutters its way into hearts of Midland family

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Ever since Timmy and Lassie, the story of relationships between little boys and their pets have touched the hearts of many.

But the tale of 6-year-old Jason Davis and his bedraggled pet butterfly that can't fly but won't die borders on the unbelievable.

On Sunday, April 23, Jason's father called his young son outside to view a caterpillar peacefully inching across the porch.

Jason, allergic to dogs and cats, saw the potential for a new friend. He scooped the fuzzy creature off the porch and into a mason jar.

The next Monday, Jason took the caterpillar to his primer class at Trinity School so all could chronicle the metamorphosis about to take place.

Ten days later his teacher called to tell the Davis family the cocoon had blossomed into a butterfly.

Jason took the butterfly home for a last meeting with the family and then walked into his front yard to liberate the brown creature into the blue skies above.

Chinese protesters block army trucks

BEIJING (AP) — China declared martial law in parts of the capital Saturday to crack down on hundreds of thousands of people demonstrating for political reform. The government sent in troops, but residents blocked army trucks and some soldiers turned back waving victory signs.

Martial law began at 10 a.m. (8 p.m. CDT Friday) in eight districts in the central city, including Tiananmen Square, the center of the protests. No curfew was imposed, and no date was given for lifting martial law.

Shortly after martial law took effect, military helicopters were seen flying over the 100-acre square.

ABC's "Nightline" reported that witnesses had seen police clubbing protesters.

The protesters, thousands of them on a hunger strike, have occupied Tiananmen Square for a week, demanding talks with the government, a free press and an end to official corruption.

Three tanks just south of the square were being blocked by buses deliberately placed across the road by protesters. No troops were seen in the square, but medical workers were distributing gauze in case of a tear gas attack.

Premier Li Peng said the protesters threatened Communist Party rule and were being manipulated by people who wanted to overthrow the government.

Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang, who opposed a crackdown, offered to resign but the party had not acted on his offer, sources said.

The English-language China Daily still referred to Zhao in Saturday's edition as party general secretary. A reporter said he did not know about Zhao's political status but had heard he was sick.

It appeared clear, however, that the moderate Zhao had lost out to the hard-line Li in the government's decision to confront the protesting students.

The official Xinhua News Agency said Li signed the martial law order to put an end to "serious turmoil...(that) destroyed people's life and social order."

Beijing Mayor Chen Xitong signed six measures forbidding marches, strikes, class boycotts, distribution of pamphlets, spreading rumors, attacks on leaders and media outlets and "any other destructive actions."

In a separate order, he said foreign reporters were forbidden to "incite or instigate Chinese to to march" and could not conduct interviews or make tapes or videos on the streets or at government offices, schools, factories and mines.

Woman pleads guilty, given 48-year sentence in disc jockey's murder

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A 22-year-old woman accused of the robbery-killing of a popular West Texas radio personality more than a year ago pleaded guilty Friday in exchange for a 48-year state prison sentence.

Jury selection for the capital murder trial of Pamela Marie Newton had been scheduled to begin Monday before 118th District Judge James Gregg.

But Ms. Newton pleaded guilty late Friday to a lesser charge of murder, avoiding the death penalty prosecutors said they would pursue.

Vance Kimble, 61, was found fatally shot in the chest at his rural Howard County home April 1, 1988. His death was first ruled questionable, then a homicide, Howard County Justice of the Peace William Shankles said.

"We are proceeding with the death penalty," said William Dupree, Assistant District Attorney for the 118th District before the plea agreement was announced. "We will try a death penalty case if it goes to trial."

Dupree, who along with District Attorney Rick Hamby was scheduled to prosecute Ms. Newton, said early Friday that plea negotiations were under way but had reached an impasse.

"Unless there is a last-minute plea, we are going to trial," Dupree said. "It is always possible, when you press people to trial, that they will at the last possible minute change their mind."

A jury pool of 250 had been summoned for the trial, and with each potential juror expected to be questioned separately, selection was expected to take about two weeks.

Ms. Newton, a Bowie County native, was scheduled to be tried first "because she is the only one in jail. The persons in jail are a higher priority," Dupree said.

The others accused of the crime, Ms. Newton's brother 18-year-old Patrick, Michael Lee Hodnett, 24, and Dennis Noggler, 18, are free on bond, Dupree said. Each has been indicted for capital murder, he said.

One of Ms. Newton's attorneys, Mike Thomas, would have no comment on the case, his secretary said. Attorney Wayne Basden, also of Big Spring, could not be reached for comment.

The attorneys had been "desperately" discussing "potential" plea offers with Ms. Newton, according to Dupree. Prior to the plea agreement, he declined to discuss what prosecutors had offered the woman to plead guilty to the crime.

On March 20, Basden asked Gregg to dismiss him from the case after he complained that he had not been able to visit his client. He told Gregg he visited the woman 30 times in the Howard County Jail, and each time she refused to talk to him, according to court documents.

Gregg refused to dismiss Basden, according to the documents.

Ms. Newton had been examined by a psychologist, who concluded the defendant was mentally competent to stand trial, according to a May 16 report to Gregg.

Co-workers at KBYG, the Big Spring radio station where Kimble worked, became suspicious when he did not show up on April 1 to work his regular five-hour shift at 5 a.m.

At first, some thought the disappearance was an April Fools' Day prank. But his body was found midmorning at his home on U.S. Highway 87, three miles south of Big Spring.

George W. Bush urges energy independence

DALLAS (AP) — The United States can become energy independent only through a national policy that mixes clean nuclear power with incentives for increased exploration for oil and natural gas, George W. Bush said Friday.

"How is the United States doing on energy independence? We're not doing very well right now," Bush said following his speech to the National Association of Royalty Owners.

Energy independence requires a "comprehensive policy," said Bush, the president's eldest son and considered a likely Texas gubernatorial candidate in 1990.

"We will not get energy independent on sunshine energy, or windmills or any of these exotics. It's going to require basic, basic hydrocarbons and certain forms of nuclear.

Brown estimates corrosion damage at $40 million

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland oilman Jack Brown says corrosion from the use of "junk" cement has caused $40 million in damages to company wells in the Conger (Penn) Field.

Brown's estimate came in Friday testimony in Wagner & Brown's suit against Dow Chemical Co. of Midland, Mich., and Dowell Schlumberger Inc. of Houston.

Brown, a partner with the Midland-based exploration and production company, alleges that Dow and DSI had "cheated" the firm on oilwell services by doing inferior work and using inferior materials in acidizing, fracturing and cementing work on Wagner & Brown wells between 1978-86.

Testifying before a six-woman, one-man jury in U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton's court, Brown said the price tag for damages caused by corrosion to the Sterling County wells is likely to be double the $20 million previously estimated by a market value study by Austin petroleum engineer Ron Platt.

"Being the owner and the one suffering the loss, I would think that it would be a little higher," he said of the study estimate.

In suing Dow and DSI, Wagner & Brown maintains that the firms used "junk" or "blowdown" cement in cementing projects and used "waste" acid or provided a "lesser amount" of sand, acid, gelling agents and other chemicals and additives in acidizing and fracturing projects.

Firefighters busy with grass fires

From Staff Reports

The persistent threat of grass fires burst into flames for Midland firefighters battling blazes with winds gusting up to 33 mph under a Friday afternoon high in the upper 90s.

A handful of blazes broke out Friday afternoon, wreaking havoc on grasslands along U.S. Interstate 20 as far west as Loop 250 and east to near Lamesa Road.

In each case, the cause of the fires has not been determined, according to Midland Fire Department reports.

Among the most difficult to contain were a group of blazes that scorched four or five separate areas between I-20 and Loop 250 and County Road 1223 South.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Skies will be clear today

From Staff and Wire Reports

Skies will be clear today, according to forecasters with the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. Winds will be out of the northeast at 10 to 15 mph, becoming southeasterly by afternoon.

The low tonight will be in the lower 60s under fair skies.

On Sunday, fair skies are forecast, with a high in the lower 90s.

Friday's high of 99 was 1 degree short of the record of 100, set May 19, 1939. The low of 61 was 15 degrees warmer than the record of 46, set on that date in 1931.

STATE

Mostly sunny skies prevailed over Texas Friday, with a few scattered clouds, as a cold front moved south across Kansas and sped toward the Texas Panhandle.

A weak low pressure center was located at the surface near Childress Friday afternoon, while a dry line extended from near San Angelo to the Big Bend and south of the low pressure area.

Most of the state began to dry out from several days of heavy rain as afternoon temperatures reached into the 80s and 90s. Afternoon temperatures ranged from 82 at Dalhart to 102 at Cotulla and Laredo.

The National Weather Service forecast clear to partly cloudy skies through Saturday, with a chance of thunderstorms over the eastern half of the state through Saturday. Thunderstorms were expected to become severe in some areas.

Highs Saturday were to range from the low 80s to near 100.

NATION

Unseasonably high temperatures crept to 90 degrees Friday afternoon in portions of New York and interior New England, while southern and western Texas wilted under another day of heat and humidity.

In the northern Rockies, however, afternoon temperatures were near the freezing mark in Yellowstone National Park and several inches of snow accompanied by high winds fell overnight on some of the higher mountains. Dixie, Idaho, reported 9 inches of snow and 4 inches fell at Lolo Pass, Mont.

Temperatures fell into the teens in some of the higher elevations of the Northwest.

The cold waters of the Atlantic Ocean likewise kept eastern Boston in the 50s through mid-afternoon, while a short distance inland temperatures were in the 70s and 80s.

Lawmakers differ on chances of UTPB amendment

By RICK BROWN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Legislators from Midland and Odessa Friday offered conflicting assessments of a potential move on the House floor to make the University of Texas of the Permian Basin a four-year school.

Rep. Gary Watkins, D-Odessa, said any amendment he might offer would face a "tough" fight.

In fact, the bill targeted for the amendment — one that would make the same change at the University of Texas at Dallas — "may be dead of itself, anyway," he said.

Opposition within the House Calendars Committee, where all bills must go before receiving a floor hearing, could preclude the Dallas measure from appearing before the full House, he said.

In addition, the proposals face building opposition from junior and community college supporters, who see no need for additional four-year schools in the state.

But Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, said supporters of the Dallas change have a good chance of getting the bill out of the Calendars Committee.

"The Dallas people have been pushing pretty hard," he said.

Should the bill make the House agenda, Craddick estimated members would hear it next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The Midland representative was unsure which way House members would vote on the idea, which he opposes.

Acknowledged Watkins, "Tom and I have been doing a good bit of polling."

The UT-Dallas bill contained the Permian Basin proposal when it first came to the House from the Senate, where Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, had attached it as an amendment.

But Watkins, a member of the House Higher Education Committee, arrived late to a meeting of the committee Thursday night to find the bill already had been stripped of the UTPB change.

The committee vice-chairman, Rep. Irma Rangel, D-Kingsville, said Friday that Chairman Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, had wanted to dispose of the matter quickly.

Delco, whose sister died this week, had come to the Capitol especially for the meeting, Rangel said.

CHINA

The government ordered the Cable News Network to halt transmissions, and the network had to end its coverage at about 10:10 p.m. EDT. CBS and ABC also said officials cut off their transmissions.

CNN reported that even China Central Television, the state-run network, had been shut down after the martial-law order was broadcast.

It was the first time martial law was declared in Beijing since Communist China was founded in 1949. Beijing becomes the second city under martial law. Lhasa, capital of Tibet, has been under martial law since March after anti-Chinese riots.

Soldiers began moving into the city from the east and west before dawn, but thousands of local residents poured into the streets to surround troop trucks. They parked factory trucks and buses across key intersections to serve as barriers, lifted lane dividers across the road and at some places formed human barricades.

"We are people and you are people! Why do you have no feelings?" one demonstrator shouted at the troopers.

Military helicopters made repeated low runs over the city, a rare sight.

About 15 trucks, each filled with about two dozen soldiers, turned around and drove back the way they came after about 500 students and supporters surrounded them for several hours in western Beijing and urged them to leave.

"You should think about what you are doing," one young man said earnestly, standing on a truck's rear bumper and looking in the faces of about a dozen soldiers. No weapons were visible.

When the trucks turned around, the crowd cheered and some soldiers smiled, waved and flashed V-for-victory signs.

More than 200 trucks and 50 vans filled with soldiers still stood further down the road to the west, blocked by thousands of protesters. About 10 sat on the east side of the city, but a bus parked across the road blocked the way.

President Yang Shangkun said the army's task was to protect important ministries and key installations.

Zhao was not visible in the audience as Li and Yang announced the troop deployment in a nationally televised address. Also not shown was senior leader Deng Xiaoping, 84, believed to be the main force behind the crackdown.

After Li's announcement, some students at Tiananmen Square said they would resume a week-old hunger strike.

TRIAL

Brown, who began a career in the oil business after graduating from Texas A&M University in 1950, told jurors he has never given any thought to cutting corners to save money while drilling for oil, despite Dow and DSI's allegations to the contrary.

"It seems funny to me that Dow and DSI would use 'junk' cement only in wells that they said had large lead slurry systems and that those turned out to be Wagner & Brown wells. How can that be if we were the 'corner-cutters'?" Brown said, under direct examination by Houston attorney William White.

Wagner & Brown attorneys have tried to show that Dow and DSI used a "systematic" plan designed "to cheat Wagner & Brown and every other customer with which Dow and DSI did business" and that the plan was "encouraged and sponsored" by the Dow and DSI management.

The alleged scheme "makes me very angry," Brown said. "I will never allow Dow or DSI out in my fields again; otherwise they will be trespassing."

Dow and DSI have denied concealing the use of "returned" cement on Wagner & Brown jobs, which were handled by its Colorado City district.

During the past five days, former Dow and DSI employees have testified the two firms concealed the use of "blow-down" cement in wells serviced by the companies' Andrews and Colorado City divisions.

In other testimony Friday, plaintiff witness Fred Brooks said an analysis of temperature logs detected the existence of improperly set cement on top of the good columns of cement in many of those wells.

The results of X-ray defraction tests of at least two samples taken from a DSI-serviced well in the Conger (Penn) Field, indicated "little or no cement present" in the well.

Moreover, he said chemical analysis of the samples tested by a Waco laboratory showed similar results.

Wagner & Brown, which owns and operates working interests in oil and gas wells in Texas and Oklahoma, filed suit in September 1988 in 238th Texas District Court in Midland.

The litigation, which was later moved to federal court in Midland, charges Dow and DSI with violating the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act. Under those violations, Wagner & Brown is asking treble the alleged $5 million in actual damages.

The company has not specified the total amount of actual damages sought in the litigation.

Although Dow and DSI service tickets spelled out appropriate recipes and volumes for cement, Wagner & Brown attorneys suggest that Dow and DSI did not deliver cement according to the recipe it claimed to be delivering.

The plaintiffs say they ordered enough "good cement" to protect their casing up to the surface casing, specifically through a zone containing corrosive water.

In dry form, "blow-down" or "junk" cement would be of a type that set more slowly — if at all — in a "critical zone" with corrosive waters located between the bottom of the surface casing — about 2,000 feet deep — and the bottom of a corrosive zone — about 3,000 feet below the surface.

Arms outstretched and palms placed together, Jason spread them apart and the butterfly took off.

"But it came back into my hand," Jason recalled in amazement.

The winged friend still hasn't left.

"I treat him nice. I think he thinks I'm his mother," Jason speculated.

During the day, the butterfly stays in a fish bowl stocked with tree branches, a cork stopper from a small terrarium and a camera film canister lid full of honey- or sugar-water for food.

At night, the creature flutters out of the bowl to a Lego building block home near Jason's bed. The brown butterfly with yellow- and violet-edged wings sleeps bat-like upside down on the Lego house.

One evening before bedtime during the butterfly's exodus from fish bowl to Lego house, it stumbled on the rim and fell injured to the dresser.

It had broken off one of its two right legs and a portion of its left wing.

Mother Fern Davis explained the family chose euthanasia as the only humane option.

Jason's parents mapped out a plan for the unnamed family pet to be sealed in a baby food jar with a cotton ball soaked in camphor oil and peacefully enter the "flower garden in the sky."

Toddler daughter Julie was "devastated," Mrs. Davis recalled.

"Why did daddy put the butterfly in a jar, mommy?" the tot queried. Smart mother that she is, Mrs. Davis put the question back to Julie.

"So it could go be with Jesus," the daughter replied confidently.

Jason was a bit more introspective and asked his mother for time alone with his butterfly friend.

In a slow, almost choked voice, Jason remembered those last moments.

"I was crying. (I said) I'm sorry that you're going to have to go away. I'll always think of you and I'll always love you very much."

A sad Davis family went to sleep that night expecting to stage the butterfly "funeral" the next day.

The next morning "it looked dead," Mrs. Davis recalled. "We opened the jar to put the butterfly in a box to bury it."

But then something magical happened. The butterfly's wings began to flutter in the father's hands.

"It's alive!" cried the Davis family.

"We decided if it was that spunky, it deserved to live."

The handicapped butterfly and Jason remain best buddies.

At night after Jason has finished his homework and bath, he and the butterfly share quality bonding time.

Jason sits on the couch to watch television and the butterfly contentedly "roosts" on the young boy's finger.

"I think he gets sleepy in the evening," he noted.

Jason is well aware, however, that even a healthy butterfly won't live forever. But after the ill-fated euthanasia attempt, who knows?

Chances might seem good for a repeat miracle when you're 6-years-old and your best friend is a wounded butterfly that has refused to die.

BUSH

Figures released by the American Petroleum Institute earlier this week show that during April, U.S. domestic crude oil and natural gas liquid production averaged 9.4 million barrels a day, about 55.8 percent of usage.

Total petroleum imports in April, meanwhile, averaged 8.04 million barrels a day, the API said.

In his speech, Bush urged the royalty owners to band together with other parts of the industry to work for a national policy that would provide incentives such as depletion allowances and tax breaks to encourage exploration.

"We are an industry that is incentive sensitive," said Bush, a former independent oilman who currently is a consultant with Harkin Energy Corp. of Fort Worth.

Referring to the "fantastic oil and gas fields" of West Texas, Bush said, "The hardest work has been done; they have been found. The second hardest work is to make sure we are efficient recoverers of oil and gas."

To do that, Bush called for tax incentives to encourage research and development of methods to enhance production from oil fields.

As much as 70 percent of the nation's oil and gas reserves remain untouched by primary recovery methods, NARO officials said.

Although NARO represents many of the "little people" of the industry — and has been at odds frequently with the industry giants, Bush said, "there are times when it is important to join hands and represent the collective interest of the energy business as a whole.

"When you're talking domestic energy and independence from foreign sources of oil, you're really talking about national security. The call, sometimes is to put aside individual interest and fight collectively as an industry not only for our own good, but as important for the national security of the United States.

"Hopefully the congressmen representing the so-called consumer interests are understanding that when we folks in the energy business talk about drilling more wells, we're really taking about national security. And when we're talking about decontrol of natural gas, we're really taking about national security."

Congress is debating deregulation of natural gas, with the House already passing a bill and a Senate committee having given its approval.

NARO President James L. Stafford, of Ada, Okla., claimed Friday that the nation's energy policy is directed more toward satisfying foreign interests than domestic producers.

MISD's Distributive Education Club thanks employers

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Local students took time out Friday to say thanks to their employers for business support of vocational education programs.

Midland High's Distributive Education Club — for those interested in marketing and retailing careers — hosted a luncheon at Midland Center honoring their employers. Club member Manuel Rodelo summed it up, telling the businessmen who have hired students, "thanks for training us, for giving us confidence, for trusting us and for giving us the chance to prove ourselves."

Midland High distributive education teacher Ruben Vargas oversees 45 students, whom he says are doing very well.

Dr. Tex Paris, vocational administrator for the Midland Independent School District, said that in January, there were 585 vocationsl students working in the Midland economy in marketing, retail, health and industrial jobs. "They get course credit, they get on-the-job training and they get paid while they learn," he said.

As a rule, businesses are pleased with the performanees of the students, which are monitored closely by the distribuytive education teacher.

In fact, Paris says, there is a list of companies waiting for students from the office administration class, which teaches office skills such as word processing.

The student attends classes part of the day, then spends at least three hours on the job. "This helps them find a direction for their life," Paris says, pointing out that a number of the students go on to higher education after graduation.

Direction is important, guest speaker Terry Hancock told the students. The 30-year-old Realtor and owner of Discount Realtors, told the students that the "Five 'Ps' "of product, place, price, promotion and people were important in business, but there were two "Ds" that were equally important.

They are "Destination. You have to be going somewhere. If you have a specific plan and goals for your life, you'll reach your destination. Write those goals down, paste them on the bathroom mirror and live them," he urged the students.

And, "You have to have dreams" — the second "D." "As long as you have goals, dreams and a destination, no one can stop you.

"The best part is dreams are free — they can be as big as you want them to be."

At least one window at the home had been broken, and he had been dead several hours, according to Howard County Sheriff's officers.

Kimble's 1986 Chrysler sedan, a 1980 Ford pickup truck, gasoline credit cards, and other "personal items" including rifles were missing from the home, investigators said.

Two days after the killing, two of the suspects were spotted by New Orleans police driving a Chrysler similar to Kimble's, and were arrested. A third was arrested a short time later.

Three weeks after Kimble was found dead, a fourth suspect, Noggler, was arrested in Florida and returned to Big Spring.

FIRES

According to reports, it took the Midland Fire Department and Greenwood volunteer firemen more than three hours to extinguish the fires once they began to hop-scotch across fields west of the Midland city limits.

Firefighters enlisted the help of city of Midland and Permian Corp. water tankers to put out the fires.

Also, a grass fire at Lamesa Road and Walnut Lane spread to a nearby residence causing minor damage to the rear of the house owned by Carol Mata, 1102 Walnut Lane. Reports said the fire broke out about 1:30 p.m.

In other fires, no major damage was reported to vacant lots at I-20 and County Road 1270, and Indiana Avenue and Jefferson Street.

An abandoned mobile home park on County Road 135 West sustained only minor damage after a blaze broke out in an adjacent field about 6 p.m., according to reports.

API defends Exxon's clean-up efforts

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — American Petroleum Institute president Charles J. DiBona on Friday defended the Exxon Corp.'s efforts to clean up 11 million gallons of crude oil disgorged March 24 from the tanker Exxon Valdez into Alaska's Prince William Sound.

DiBona's defense came a day after Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner and Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William K. Reilly told President Bush that the response to country's largest oil spill by the oil industry and the federal government was "wholly insufficient."

While DiBona did not dispute that claim and agreed with the officials' assessment that the initial response was "slow and confused," he said the cleanup effort is "massive and moving forward."

What Exxon is doing now "can best be compared to recruiting, training, deploying and coordinating the operations of a small army in difficult wilderness terrain," DiBona said.

"They are working diligently now on the 364 miles of beaches in Prince William Sound that have been oiled," he added.

Disputing reports that Exxon intends to leave some areas uncleaned, DiBona said it will do that only where the Coast Guard and the Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation agree that "some lightly oiled beaches might be more safely cleaned by nature."

DiBona recently returned from inspecting Prince William Sound. He said that almost all the oil is now off the water. Exxon reportedly has recovered almost 50,000 of the 266,000 spilled barrels of oil. DiBona said the bulk of the remaining oil has evaporated or biodegraded.

That assessment, however, was at odds with a report by Alaskan officials who have charged that large pools of oil are still washing up on beaches more than 500 miles from the reef where the Valdez ran aground.

Alaskan officials said only four of 730 miles of the coastline affected by the oil spill have been declared "cleaned" and only one mile is totally free of oil.

DiBona said cleaning of seal "pupping" areas was given top priority. Pupping already is under way. Adult seals are protected from Alaska's cold air and water temperatures by a layer of blubber, but their newborn pups are insulated only by fur.

Cleanup crews went back to the seal birthing areas, DiBona said, to rewash them, "even though each time they picked up only a few gallons."

He said that when the process was completed on Monday in the area targeted, "peatmoss was spread to protect the seals from any small amounts of oil that might seep up from the rocks."

Biologists report, however, that thousands of seals now are giving birth on contaminated beaches.

Alaska's Department of Environmental Conservation said the ecological toll of the spill thus far includes more than 11,000 birds of 30 different species, 700 Pacific sea otters and 20 bald eagles.

NATION

"There are 134 environmental experts in aquatic biology and toxicology on site. Two archaeologists are there to prevent any harm to human artifacts...and a historian is at work to record events."
— API president Charles J. DiBona

Emphasizing positive aspects of the cleanup, DiBona said that other oil companies are providing Exxon with expert management help. More than 7,000 people are involved in the overall Exxon effort, with nearly 3,000 people working directly on the shoreline cleanup in Prince William Sound, he said.

"There are 134 environmental experts in aquatic biology and toxicology on site. Two archaeologists are there to prevent any harm to human artifacts...and a historian is at work to record events.

"Over 500 vessels and 50 aircraft are involved (and) a sophisticated telecommunications system and a huge waste disposal program are in place," he added.

Lack of equipment, not people, has been the biggest problem, DiBona said. Landing barges, particularly, have been difficult to find, but the government recently has made several barges available.

DiBona said Exxon "has taken full responsibility and has apologized." The company is working toward a September deadline on its cleanup, because that is when cold weather sets in, and DiBona said it has promised to return to the job if necessary in the spring.

Marcos reportedly responding to treatment

HONOLULU (AP) — Former Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos was said to be responding to treatment Friday for kidney, heart and lung failure, pneumonia and bacterial infections but hospital officials said he remained in critical condition.

"His condition is episodic," said Gene Tiwanak, assistant administrator of St. Francis Medical Center. "It rises and falls, and in this case he is rallying."

Marcos remained on kidney dialysis and a respirator in the hospital's intensive care unit, and is drifting in and out of consciousness, Tiwanak said. His prognosis is still very poor, he said.

Imelda Marcos, wife of the 71-year-old deposed leader, told reporters Friday that her husband's fever was rising. In a telephone interview later from her home, she said doctors fear for Marcos' life and that he could "go any time."

However, a hospital source who spoke on condition of anonymity told The Associated Press that Marcos was responding to treatment.

Marcos has been hospitalized for more than four months but his condition worsened this week.

He was lapsing in and out of consciousness following a surgical procedure Thursday to prepare him for kidney dialysis, said Dr. Azucena Ignacio, one of Marcos' attending physicians.

Mrs. Marcos was at the hospital early Friday but returned home. She planned to return later in the day.

Marcos' son, Ferdinand Jr., and sister, Fortuna Barba, also were at the hospital. The couple's daughter, Irene Araneta, was heading to Hawaii on Friday from her home in Woodside, Calif., said Joe Lazo, a family friend.

Mrs. Marcos made a public appeal to Philippine President Corazon Aquino to allow Marcos to return to his homeland to die.

Mrs. Aquino said she would not allow Marcos to return and would not permit him to be buried on Philippine soil, out of concern his presence would spark unrest.

"Much as I agree that Mr. Marcos has his rights, I still have to consider also the rights and interests of millions of Filipinos," said Mrs. Aquino, who succeeded Marcos following a popular uprising in February 1986.

Tomas "Buddy" Gomez, Philippine consul general in Honolulu, acknowledged that Marcos is ill, but said reports on his condition have been exaggerated.

"There is an obvious element of exaggeration and orchestration here," he said.

Report of Marcos' condition were released in Manila by a pro-Marcos radio station before the hospital released information in Honolulu, Gomez said.

Marcos has been hospitalized since Jan. 15. He was returned to the intensive care unit on Monday and lapsed into critical condition Tuesday.

The Marcoses are under federal indictment, accused of stealing more than $100 million from the Philippine treasury to buy art and real estate in New York.

Lawmaker discovers he has cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., was chairing a hearing on damage to the ozone layer Friday when he announced that protecting the Earth from the sun's killing rays had suddenly become very personal.

Motioning to the back of his neck, he said, "Three and a half hours ago, my dermatologist called me up and told me I have basal cell carcinoma.

"It's fine. It could be taken care of," he assured witnesses who had come before his subcommittee on environmental protection. "But I understand that it is somewhat caused by ultraviolet rays."

Basal cell carcinoma, the most common form of skin cancer, comes primarily from exposure to ultraviolet radiation in sunlight. It strikes between 300,000 and 400,000 people a year, according to the American Academy of Dermatology. It can cause disfigurement, but it does not spread like other cancers and has a 95 percent cure rate.

Baucus' subcommittee was gathering testimony on legislative proposals to reduce use of chlorofluorocarbons, known as CFCs, which poke holes in the ozone layer and let the ultraviolet rays through.

CFCs, used in refrigerants and some industrial cleaning materials, are non-toxic when released, but break apart into other chemical substances 10 to 100 years later.

Navy training jet crashes in Illinois field

NEW BADEN, Ill. (AP) — A U.S. Navy training jet based at Kingsville, Texas, crashed Friday in a field east of Scott Air Force Base in Southern Illinois, but the two crew members ejected safely before impact, authorities said.

The T-2 twin-engine jet, headed to Scott from Little Rock, Ark., crashed in a field near the intersection of Interstate 64 and Illinois 161 about 6½ miles east of the base, said Air Force Staff Sgt. Jerry Anderson.

No civilians were injured, said Sgt. Paul Stokes of the Illinois State Police. He said the crash was well south of the interstate.

"I was outside and heard what sounded like two big thunderclaps," said Carl Camp, a witness and owner of a gasoline station near the crash site.

"I looked up and saw two guys coming down in parachutes, and knew right away what had happened," he said. "I didn't see any smoke, but I sure could smell it."

The crew members were identified as Capt. Donald F. Meisner, 30, a Marine from McHenry, Ill., and a student pilot, Ensign Mike F. Mahon, 24, of Towaco, N.J., said Master Chief John Caffey from Kingsville Naval Air Station in Texas. It was not immediately clear who was at the controls before the crash occurred.

One of the crew members may have broken an arm, and any other injuries were not serious, Caffey said.

One of the parachutes landed in a tree on a farm belonging to Edward W. Hodel, 68. The crew member jumped clear. He appeared confused, and had injured his arm, Hodel said. The other parachute landed in a bean field adjacent to the farmhouse, and that crew member appeared uninjured, he said.

"There was a small fire" when the jet crashed, said New Baden Police Chief Mike Riley.

He said debris was confined to a small area, and the plane was extensively damaged.

Paper reports Iowa sabotage investigated

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy declined Friday to say whether sabotage is under investigation as a possible cause of the April 19 explosion on the battleship Iowa that killed 47 sailors.

A Virginia newspaper reported that foul play was being looked into after the sister of a crewman who was killed told authorities that her brother and a surviving sailor had taken out life insurance policies naming each other as beneficiary.

Both policies, taken out more than a year ago, were for $50,000, with a double-indemnity clause in case of accidental death, the sister told the Virginian-Pilot and The Ledger-Star of Norfolk. The newspaper said the sister spoke on condition that her and her brother's names not be disclosed.

Officials contacted by the newspaper confirmed that the NIS and the FBI were questioning the beneficiary.

But a Navy spokesman at the Pentagon, Lt. Bruce Cole, said Friday that he had no details on what the NIS was looking into and did not know if sabotage was a target of the investigation.

The newspaper also reported that Navy investigators have learned that the No. 2 gun turret where the explosion occurred was significantly undermanned and that a number of those working in the turret lacked required training.

The gun turret should have had 90 people inside to perform the delicate work of moving gunpowder and shells, according to battle bill. On the day of the explosion, 58 men were inside the turret.

The newspaper quoted an unidentified senior officer as saying it would be wrong to assume a link between the explosion and the manning levels or training levels of those assigned to the turret.

House members looking for AIDS bill compromise

By RICK BROWN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — House debate on omnibus AIDS legislation came to an abrupt halt Friday, as authors and a committee chairman heatedly searched for compromise on key issues.

Rep. Billy Clemons, D-Lufkin, one of the bill's three authors, asked members to take up the controversial matter again Tuesday — during the last week of the session — to allow more time for negotiation.

"If it's not going to be worked out by then, it's not going to be worked out, and we'll just have to fight it out," said Clemons later.

One controversy involves whether state AIDS educational materials should carry language to indicate intravenous use of illegal drugs and some homosexual conduct may lead to AIDS and are against state law.

A second sticking point is what kind of hearing process, if any, the state should employ before agreeing to grant money to community-based AIDS-help organizations.

The bill that House members considered for about 20 minutes Tuesday contained specific provisions on both points that the House Public Health Committee, chaired by Rep. Brad Wright, had added.

Another House author, Rep. Mike McKinney, D-Centerville, said the differences are small but emotional ones compared to the scope of the legislation.

"We have politicized a disease," he said. "I resent the whole Legislature, me included, for letting it happen."

The far-reaching bill would establish statewide education programs, assistence for purchase of AIDS medication, and outreach programs for IV drug users.

It also would establish guidelines for AIDS counseling and testing and set procedures for AIDS programs in state agencies, schools and prisons.

The legislation also sets criminal penalties for intentional infection with the disease.

STATE

"We have politicized a disease (AIDS). I resent the whole Legislature, me included, for letting it happen."
— Rep. Mike McKinney

In addition to those priorities, provisions added in committee would place priority on people under 18 for receiving medication and educational materials.

Also, anti-discrimination language contained in a Senate-approved AIDS bill is "dead as a doornail," said Wright, a Houston Republican.

Wright served notice that the debate would not be a vehicle for changing existing state law on homosexual conduct.

And he decried protest tactics of gay rights groups over the past two weeks, including the silent, single-file marching through Capitol hallways of persons wearing skeleton death masks.

Wright said "those fools" should know that his committee, which had appropriated $47 million for AIDS, was not responsible for subsequent cuts which reduced that amount to $18.4 million.

"We feel like no one should suffer," he said. "It's unfortunate that a few people — extremists — would characterize us as lacking compassion."

The committee chairman maintained that the committee's version could have passed the 150-member House with 100 votes Friday, a claim that Clemons and McKinney disputed.

Both guessed the bill would have garnered 70 to 75 votes, a potential majority they agreed would fail to send the proper message of consensus to the state and to Senate conferees.

The third House author, Rep. Nancy McDonald, D-El Paso, gauged the mood of the bill's principals: "Everybody feels paranoid at this stage. We feel constrained by the time."

Still, McDonald thought a compromise is "a lot closer."

"We're almost there. This is the time to put aside personal insults," she said.

Senate OKs criminal justice bill

By JAMES CULLEN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A criminal justice reform bill that would add 11,000 prison beds and give counties $181 million for local rehabilitation programs won Senate approval Friday.

The bill would consolidate the Texas Department of Corrections, Board of Pardons and Paroles and Adult Probation Commission into one "superagency" under a new Criminal Justice Board and encourage local rehabilitation programs that would reserve prison cells for hardened criminals.

"For the first time, (it) creates a partnership between local communities and the state as we try to commonly address the criminal justice problem," said Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, the Senate sponsor.

On a voice vote the Senate sent an amended version of House Bill 2335 back to the House, where the author, Rep. Allen Hightower, D-Huntsville, said he expects no problems in resolving the differences in the next week.

House and Senate budget conferees have earmarked $525 million — including $334 million for new prisons — to implement the reforms, which are designed to give judges more leeway in sentencing, provide local rehabilitation services and relieve chronic prison and county jail overcrowding.

The bill would provide $50 million to pay for county-operated programs such as "boot camps" for youthful offenders and substance abuse treatment centers to be developed by local criminal justice councils.

The money would be allocated based on a variety of factors, including population density, crime rate and unemployment rate. McFarland said the formula was developed so that counties with a "lock 'em up and throw away the key" mentality would not get a greater share than counties that use diversion programs such as community-based work release projects.

The prison building program includes $200 million in bonds voters would have to approve in November and $134 million in bonds that already have been approved.

With space for an additional 10,000 inmates already under construction, the 11,000 new prison beds would bring the system to a capacity of 60,000 by 1993.

County jails are holding 13,000 state prisoners because a federal court order limits admissions to the prison system.

"I'm hopeful that this will be the tool by which we can finally extricate ourselves from the Ruiz (federal order) and move forward...to the most comprehensive, community-based criminal justice program in the United States," McFarland said.

McFarland also said he hopes counties upset with the cost of holding state prisoners will hold off on a lawsuit at least two years to give the reforms a chance to work.

"I can't tell you we won't need new prison construction along the line," McFarland said. "But we're going to address the backlog in county jails and the redirection of the criminal justice system in the next two years and see how it works."

In other action the Senate:

■ Approved House Bill 1768 by Rep. Ron Lewis, D-Mauriceville, which would give domestic steel producers preference over foreign steel in state highway contracts. Sen. Gene Green, D-Houston, was Senate sponsor of the bill, which goes back to the House for approval of minor amendments.

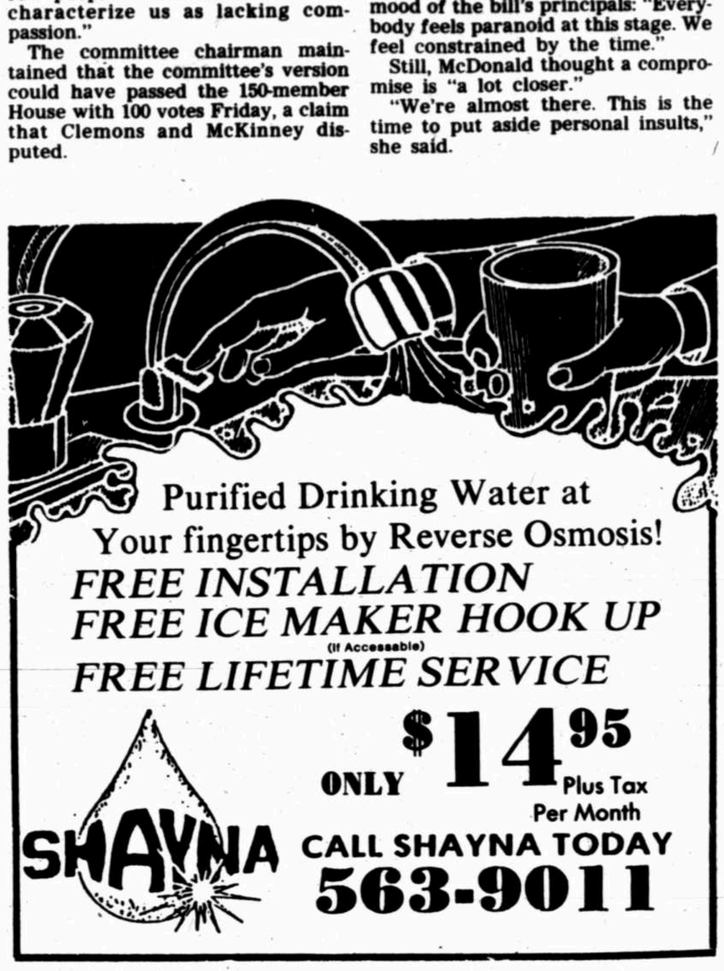

■ Approved House Bill 3 by House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, which would establish a Texas College Work-Study Program to provide jobs for financially needy students and a Texas Educational Opportunity Grant Program to provide grants for needy students, although budget conferees have set aside no money for the programs in the next two years. Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, was Senate sponsor. The bill goes to the governor.

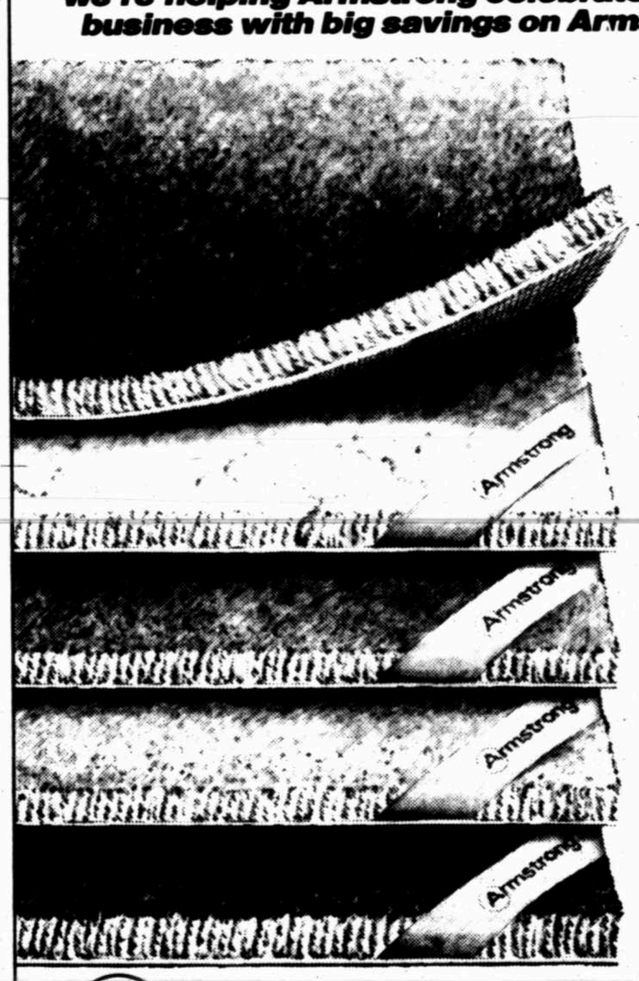

■ Approved Senate Bill 136 by Parker that would limit the liability of volunteer paramedics. The bill goes to the House.

Fort Hood damage may top $600 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Storm damage to helicopters and buildings at the Army's Fort Hood in Texas will cost at least $600 million to repair, the service said Friday.

The Army said it had so far pegged last week's storm damage to almost 200 helicopters at $585 million. Damage to buildings and other facilities was put at $15 million.

"Detailed, exact cost repair figures are not available," said Lt. Col. John Chapla, an Army spokesman who provided the preliminary estimate.

The storm, packing heavy rain and winds of 95 miles per hour, ravaged the area on May 13. Although there were no fatalities, the storm forced 25 military families from their quarters and damaged the helicopters and at least 20 percent of the fort's buildings.

The damage occurred even though the Army said about half the helicopters had been placed inside hangars as the storm approached and the remainder were tied down.

Especially hard hit was the Army's new fleet of AH-64 attack helicopters. Fort Hood is home to the Apache Training Brigade, and the damage forced the base to downgrade its state of aviation readiness.

About 100 of the fort's 150 Apaches were damaged to some extent, and 30 or more were "extensively damaged," according to the Army.

Each Apache, made by McDonnell Douglas Helicopter in Mesa, Ariz., costs about $13.4 million new. It is designed to replace the Vietnam War-era AH-1 Cobra as the nation's premiere tank-killer and battlefield helicopter. It can carry laser-homing Hellfire missiles or Hydra 70 rockets and has a 30mm chain gun.

> "We also don't have a whole lot of experience in storm-damage repair. We have experience in crash repairs and repairs of war damage..."
>
> Lt. Col. John Chapla, Army spokesman

While the Apache fleet was hardest hit, other choppers damaged by the storm included UH-60 Blackhawk transports, UH-1 Huey transports, OH-58 observation copters, AH-1 Cobra attack copters and CH-47 transports.

Chapla said the Army had no timetable for repairs, nor did it know where the money would come from. Some discussions have been held on Capitol Hill about a supplemental appropriation, but those talks are in a very preliminary stage, Chapla said.

"We also don't have a whole lot of experience in storm-damage repair. We have experience in crash repairs and repairs of war damage. Fixing all of these aircraft is not going to be a quick thing," he said.

The spokesman said the dollar estimates could climb since "just determining everything that's wrong is going to take time."

Flood warning system incomplete 2 years after teens drowned

KERRVILLE (AP) — A computerized flash flood warning system is incomplete and untested almost two years after 10 Balch Springs teen-agers died when their buses were swept into the raging Guadalupe River.

The river's watershed has not flooded this year, so the three sensors installed so far by the Upper Guadalupe River Authority have not been used, officials said. Those three sensors are the first of 21 planned for area creeks in a $200,000 project.

On July 17, 1987, the Balch Springs buses were hit by two walls of water as the counselors and teens tried to leave a church camp along the river, which was fed by rain-swollen creeks. The group had been camping at the Pot O' Gold Ranch near Comfort.

Kerrville Fire Department Capt. Ray Crooks said the county's emergency management team relies on 28 people throughout the county for rainfall and stream-flow information.

The sensor system's microprocessors will do the same thing quicker by transmitting data on radios that run on solar-powered batteries. The data will go to a computer at the fire station and at the river authority.

Delays in getting right-of-way easements have hampered the project, said Myrna Olsen, an administrative aide to the Upper Guadalupe River Authority board.

"It's been a slow process. We thought it would be operational by February," she told the Austin American-Statesman.

The state Highway Department approved easements this week for 15 of the sensors, and installation should take two weeks, said Bill Dunn, president of Remote Operating Systems Inc., the company that is installing the devices.

Dunn said the computers will be able to estimate the time and height of floodwater crests at seven points along the river using data from the sensors.

"My expectation is in six weeks we'll be all up and fully operational," Dunn said.

The authority's board discussed the early warning system for years before the July 1987 deaths, Olsen said.

After the disaster, the authority board contracted with a firm in San Antonio to install and maintain the system for five years, Olsen said.

"This had been in the plans a long, long time ago. It was never done, because the board couldn't get anybody to go along with us (on paying for it)," Olsen said.

Spindletop suit transferred to Texas

GREENEVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A federal judge has transferred to Texas a $250 billion lawsuit filed by would-be heirs to the Spindletop oil fortune.

The order from U.S. District Judge Thomas Hull in Greeneville said he has no jurisdiction in the case since the mineral rights sought are in Texas.

Hull on Thursday transferred the suit to the court's Texas eastern district in Tyler.

"Local actions must be prosecuted where the thing on which the suit is founded is situated," Hull's two-page order said.

The suit was filed on behalf of 300 to 500 members of the Humphries Heirs Trust Association, headed by Brown Peregoy of Washington County's Gray community.

The suit filed in February contends those members of the group have traced their kinship to Pelham Humphries, who they say acquired the Spindletop property in 1835.

The suit seeks the oil, gas and other mineral rights from the Texas gusher that came in in 1901.

The suit names as defendants Amoco Oil Co., Mobil Oil Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co., Texaco Inc. and A.E. Development Co.

The suit is only one in a string filed over the years by people who have unsuccessfully tried to lay claim to the oil fortune.

Second vote due workers' comp reform

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — After more than 4½ hours of debate Friday, a divisive committee of the full Senate adopted a workers' compensation overhaul that business groups have rejected.

Meeting as a committee, the Senate approved sweeping changes to the system of compensating workers who are injured in job-related accidents by a 16-12 vote.

The committee of the Senate then voted 20-8 to send the bill to the Senate floor for formal consideration and another vote, which will occur Monday.

Permian Basin senators were split in the crucial 16-12 vote to adopt the workers compensation substitute bill as amended. Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, who represents Ector County, voted in favor of Sen. Ted Lyon's amendment, which he helped develop, and Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, whose district includes Midland, voted against the amended version.

Sims also voted against reporting the substitute bill to the Senate as amended, but he came up on the losing end of the 20-8 vote.

Senators opposed to the plan said it would cause a special legislative session, but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he believed differences between the bill and one passed earlier by the House could be resolved.

"I don't see any reason why things can't be worked out," Hobby said.

The issue of changing the workers' comp system has proven to be one of the most controversial of the session, which ends May 29.

Business interests claim high jury awards to injured workers are driving up the cost of employer-paid workers' comp premiums. But labor groups and lawyers who represent injured workers say unsafe working conditions are to blame.

Lyon, a Democrat from Rockwall, introduced the Senate proposal, saying, "The bill itself covers a broad variety of interests. No one is 100 percent happy with this bill."

Hobby, presiding officer of the Senate, in an unusual move placed his name on the bill that was forged in closed-door negotiations over the past several days.

Leading business representatives ripped the measure as a dressed-up version of current law, and complained they had been excluded from the behind the scenes negotiations.

"It's just the same old broken wagon with a few ribbons attached to it," said Jack Garey, of Austin, who owns Garey Construction.

The business groups wholeheartedly support the House bill, but said they favored a Senate subcommittee bill by Sen. Bob Glasgow, over the one approved Friday.

"When it came out of subcommittee all these business groups said it was just the most terrible thing in the world. Now they're putting out press releases saying it's the greatest thing since bottled beer," Hobby said.

Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, said the Hobby bill ignored the findings of an 18-month, $450,000 interim study into the state workers' comp system. "We have a kangaroo court deciding this issue," he said.

Glasgow, D-Stephenville, complained, the closed-door negotiations were "going on between players that never played."

But Hobby said he selected a new negotiating team to get a compromise bill through the Senate. "When a bill comes out of subcommittee 4-3, that does not bode well for its future," Hobby said.

State Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan, who wrote the House workers' comp bill, said it would be a tough job to resolve the differences in the two plans before the end of the regular session.

Americans advised to leave Lebanon

WORLD

The U.S. Embassy...warning coincided with a prediction by the daily An-Nahar that the Syrians would attack to try to oust Aoun, who heads the Christian Cabinet in Lebanon's divided government and commands about 20,000 men.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. and British embassies Friday advised their citizens to leave Lebanon, and the leading Beirut newspaper predicted a Syrian assault on the Christian enclave defended by Gen. Michel Aoun's army units.

The U.S. Embassy said it was "not in a position to arrange transportation of citizens from Lebanon," but Americans were "strongly advised to depart Lebanon immediately...because of the threat posed by the security situation."

An American official at the embassy, speaking on condition he not be named, said there were "several hundred Americans in Lebanon, most of them dual nationals." He refused to be more specific.

Sixteen embassy employees were evacuated to Cyprus on Feb. 17 during battles between Aoun and the Lebanese Forces, the main Christian militia. That left about 25 in Lebanon.

Christian radio stations broadcast a statement from the British Embassy advising the 99 remaining Britons to leave Lebanon "before the sea shuttle service...stops anew."

Ferry service between Lebanon and Cyprus, suspended during the heaviest fighting of the past two months, resumed last week.

Since March 8, Beirut has been devastated by artillery duels between the Aoun forces and a Moslem alliance of Syrian troops and Druse militiamen that have killed 359 people and wounded 1,393 by police count. Most of the casualties have been civilians.

The U.S. Embassy did not explain its timing, but the warning coincided with a prediction by the daily An-Nahar that the Syrians would attack to try to oust Aoun, who heads the Christian Cabinet in Lebanon's divided government and commands about 20,000 men.

Syria has 40,000 soldiers in Lebanon under a 1976 peacekeeping mandate from the Arab League and has become the country's main power broker during 14 years of civil war.

A spokesman for Aoun's command said Christian troops were exchanging machine gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades with Syrians and their allies at Souk el-Gharb southeast of Beirut.

No casualties were reported, but "they fire on us and we fire on them. This hasn't stopped despite the Arab League-sponsored cease-fire," the spokesman said by telephone, on condition of anonymity.

An-Nahar analyst Sarkis Naaoum said Syria "will not permit" the Arab League to work out a settlement leaving Aoun in charge in the 310-square-mile enclave north and east of Beirut where most of Lebanon's Christians live.

Repeated efforts by the Arab League to implement a truce it called April 28 have failed, mainly because the Syrians and Druse continue shelling the Christian coastline to keep Aoun from receiving supplies by sea.

Naaoum quoted "information recently received in east Beirut," the Christian sector, in saying Syria also "would not allow the emergency Arab summit conference, due in Morocco next week, to become an arena for confronting its policy in Lebanon or criticizing it."

"The practical translation of these two Syrian stands would be a serious military escalation different in power and size from the flareup recently experienced," the analyst wrote. "The main aim of the operation would be to bring Aoun down, either by overthrowing him or by forcing him to step down." He said Syria's plan included "destructive bombardment" of military facilities in the Christian enclave and a major offensive by its own soldiers or militia allies.

Aoun's troops and the Lebanese Forces militia would unite against such an offensive, said Naaoum, a well-connected analyst whose columns usually are taken seriously by Arab and Western diplomats.

As he described the military plan, the main assault would be directed at Aoun's heavily fortified lines in Souk el-Gharb, seven miles southeast of Beirut.

The strategically located mountain resort commands a network of mountain roads leading to the presidential palace at Baabda. Aoun and his family have lived in the palace since President Amin Gemayel, at the end of his six-year term last September, appointed the general to lead a Christian government.

Gemayel acted when Parliament could not agree on a successor. Moslems swore allegiance to Salim Hoss, a Sunni Moslem who was premier under Gemayel, and the army also split into Christian and Moslem commands.

Weightlifter to be in Soviet parliament

MOSCOW (AP) — An Olympic weightlifting champion won a seat in the new Soviet parliament as Moscow finished choosing its more than 20 deputies just a week before the first session, according to results released Friday.

Weightlifter Yuri Vlasov won a run-off election with Viktor Shinkaretsky in Moscow's Lyublinsky district with 66.75 percent of the vote, according to statistics published by in the official daily Vechernaya Moskva.

Run-off elections in the Lyublinsky district and two other districts in Moscow were held Thursday after repeat elections were held on May 14.

In the Kuntsevsky district, assistant editor Valentin Logunov of the newspaper Moskovskaya Pravda won 60.4 percent of the vote in his race against Afghanistan war hero Alexander Rutskoy. In the Proletarsky region, watch factory director Alexander Samsonov won a seat.

Repeat elections were held in almost 200 districts across the Soviet Union where voters were presented with a choice of only one or two candidates in the first round of elections March 26, and rejected them.

In the repeat elections May 14, voters had a choice of an average of six candidates.

Among those elected in the repeat balloting was criminal investigator Nikolai Ivanov in Leningrad. Ivanov said in an election-eve TV debate that the names of Politburo member Yegor K. Ligachev and other top officials had come up in his investigation of corruption.

Officials have called Ivanov's statement a provocation and demanded an investigation of it.

Railroad club members' fantasies reflected in scenes of the model

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — It's the little things that matter most — at least in the world of model railroading. Members of the East Texas Model Railroad Club are joined by a common love for model railroads, an eye for detail and the patience to make those details reality.

The 15 active members of the club range in age from 14 years to "almost 70" and include students, teachers, engineers and hospital personnel. The club has members from beginners to those with more than 30 years experience.

Club member Bob Teeter said model railroaders have a variety of specialties in the genre. "There are some that are completely into scenery, some are into the electrical aspects and some are super detailers. But it all fits and it's all part of the hobby."

The East Texas Model Railroad Club has a permanent home in Greenville in which members are setting up modules, or miniature scenes, to run their trains through.

Member Sam Westwood said with the module idea of model railroads each member owns a four- to six-foot section of the track which they complete as they desire, but is a part of the total layout that occupies the entire first floor of the club's home. Each module can be taken from the layout for transportation to shows and exhibits.

The modules are in HO-scale, Westwood said, which is one inch to 87.5 inches. The club also has started an N-scale club, which is 1 to 160. The N-scale club is constructing a permanent exhibit on a newly refurbished second floor in the club's home.

Westwood said each member of the club can construct modules to their own fantasy. He is building "Shiprock Salvage," which will feature a meticulously made mountain. Westwood said he conceived the idea for the module because he was curious about how to make a model mountain.

The club members are also working on a railroad yard which they purchased at an estate sale. Teeter said the rail lines did not match the configuration already established by the club, so the lines are being pulled up, cleaned and then will be relaid.

Teeter's module contains the mining town of Devil's Gulch in Skull Canyon. Teeter is laying each miniature railroad tie and track individually, in contrast with the more common method of using sections of flex-track, already put together.

Another club member is making an oil field in which each tree is made by hand and the oil derricks take up to 200 hours each to build. Yet another member is making a bridge in which all the glue was applied with a hypodermic needle.

Westwood said some of the modules contain plastic kits, others have only custom-made components and some are a mixture.

Both Teeter and Westwood have a family history that got them interested in railroads. Teeter's grandfather worked for a railroad and he says he remembers visiting the railyards as a youngster. Westwood's grandfather built locomotive for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The club is involved in more than just modeling. They tour operating railroads and are building a collection of railroad videos.

Waxegard leads Chap women to third in U.S.

From Staff Reports

TUCSON, Ariz. — Although the Midland College women's tennis team was unable to gain successive NJCAA titles, the crown remains in the state as Texas squads took the top three places here Friday.

Tyler Junior College grabbed the 1989 National Junior College Athletic Association championship, with Odessa College second and Midland College third.

Midland's Malin Waxegard won the number three singles title with a strange 6-1, 1-6, 6-1 victory over top-seeded Wendy Frazer of Tyler. Of the nine championship matches, it was the only one to go three sets. It also was the only championship match for MC after a disappointing round on Thursday that saw the Chaps lose seven of eight semifinal matches.

Waxegard, seeded fifth, used her steady baseline game to earn the victory.

Houston feared by Preakness foes

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Charlie Whittingham would be happier with a little less company, but he wouldn't mind a crowd around him late Saturday afternoon.

That's when Sunday Silence, Whittingham's Kentucky Derby-winning colt, will race in the Preakness.

"If I had my druthers I'd just as leave have one or two people around," Whittingham said Friday when asked how he felt about the constant media attention.

Of course, the 76-year-old Hall of Fame trainer understands the "why" of the intense attention focused on him, and he has handled it with grace and humor.

"That's about all I have to say," he told a crowd of reporters one morning. "I forgot my harmonica or I'd play you a tune."

Whittingham sees the 1 3-16-mile Preakness as pretty much of a two-horse race, with the other horse being Easy Goer, the beaten favorite in the 1¼-mile Derby.

There is a feeling among some horseman, however, that Midland-owned Houston, who was eighth in the Derby after setting the pace for a mile, could be a factor.

"First of all, I think my horse has more room to improve than the others," trainer D. Wayne Lukas said. "The other two have more seasoning, were raced harder and were certainly tighter than my horse. I think my horse has more room to improve. I don't think he has to improve that much."

"I've been very impressed with him since I have seen him here, a lot more than I was at the Derby," Shug McGaughey, who trains Easy Goer, said of Houston.

Houston is owned by Midlanders L.R. French and Barry Beal.

Six other 3-year-olds were entered for the 114th Preakness, but Awe Inspiring, Easy Goer's stablemate, was still in New York Friday and will not start if the track is fast.

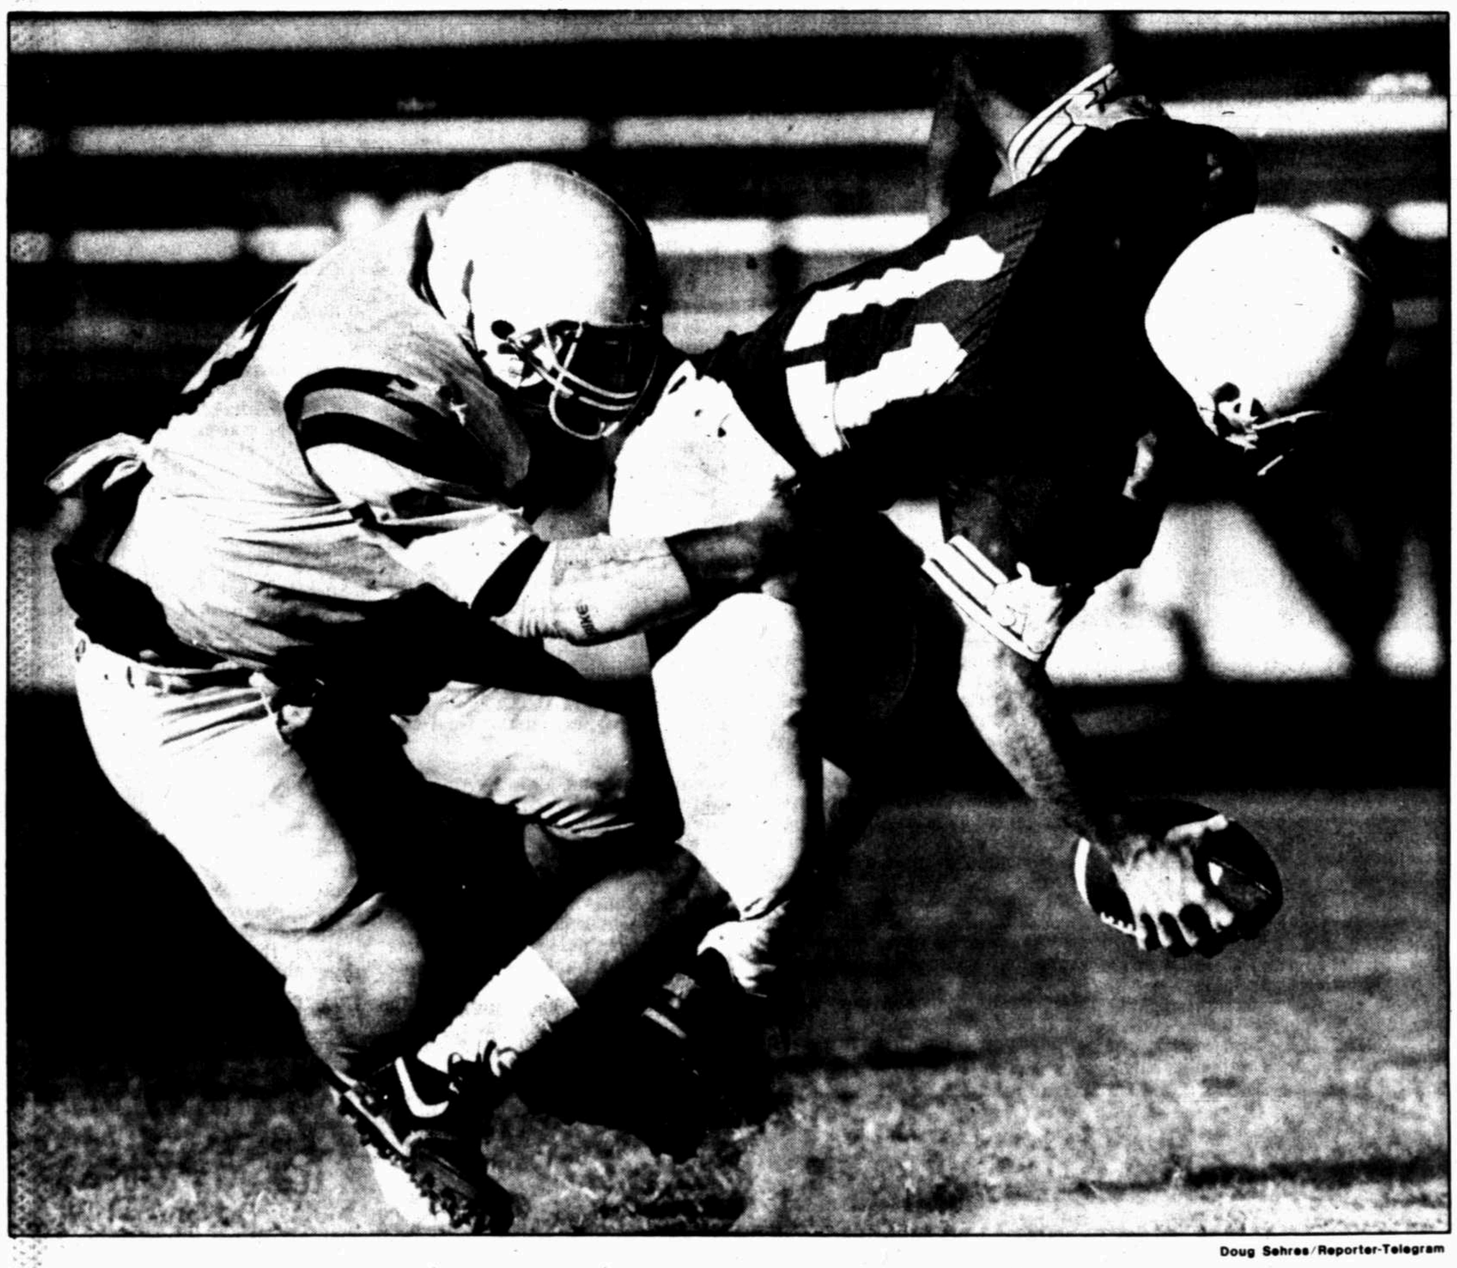

It was sunny and warm Friday with temperatures in the mid-80s. More of the same was forecast for Saturday.

Other Derby starters entered in the Preakness were Dansil, who was fourth; Hawkster, fifth; and Northern Wolf, sixth. Making their debuts in Triple Crown competition will be Rock Point and Pulverizing.

If nine start, each carrying 126 pounds, the race will be worth $679,200, with $441,480 to the winner. If eight start, it will gross $674,200, with $438,230 to the winner.

Posttime is 4:33 p.m. CDT. ABC will televise from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Sunday Silence could become the third Derby winner to win the Preakness in this decade. The first two were Pleasant Colony in 1981 and Alysheba in 1987.

'Stangs split pair; ends playoff tour

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

It was difficult — if not impossible — to find a dry eye among Andrews Mustang followers Friday night.

After winning the first game of a doubleheader, 4-0, Friday night at Angels Stadium, the 'Stangs fell to the Lubbock Estacado Matadors, 5-2, in the final game of a best-of-three area playoff.

An emotional Andrews' head coach Joe Ray Halsey put it best: "We fought 'em a little bit of the way, huh?"

Estacado, which improved to 21-7, will meet the winner of today's doubleheader between Crowley and Leander in Waco.

The Matadors had opened the three-game series Tuesday with a 7-6 win over Andrews in Lubbock.

Game 1
Andrews 4, Estacado 0

Jesse Armendariz threw a gem in the opener, allowing just three hits while striking out 10 in seven innings.

All four runs were scored in the first three innings in a game which lasted just just over 97 minutes.

After jumping in front 2-0 in the first, Andrews centerfielder David Emiliano tripled home Armendariz who had reached on a single to open the inning.

Jason Graham reached on an error in the third and came home for the final tally of the game on Ricky Morris' sacrifice fly.

Morris ended with two RBIs and first baseman Brent Leffingwell was 2-for-4.

Armendariz retired the Mats three up-three down on four different occasions.

The only Estacado threat came in the first when Omar Moore hit a two out triple. Only one other Matador runner got to second — on a throwing error — the rest of the game.

Purple nips White with clutch tackle in final seconds

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Joe Brodnex and Brent Noisette tackled running back James Lee at the one-yard line with 23 seconds left in the game Friday night to preserve a 28-22 victory for the Purple over the White in Midland High's annual Bill Mims football scrimmage at Memorial Stadium.

But more importantly, the 1989 edition of the Bulldogs showed some high powered offensive punch in the scrimmage and that was the most pleasing thing for new head coach Davis Corley, who was making his spring debut as the head man.

"I was pleased that the offense performed so well. I would have been a little worried if we hadn't put some points on the boards," said Corley. "We had a lot of turnovers and that concerned me, but most of them were early in the game and I would like to think it was because of nerves. We've got a lot of young people playing."

No statistics were kept in the game because Corley used his public debut to show local media representatives that coaching isn't as easy as it looks. So instead of cranking out stats, the media was busy calling plays.

Sheldon Haygood and Jay Hendricks, both of TV fame, called plays for a quarter for the Purple while yours truly joined Wally Kleine, the former MHS, Notre Dame and Washington Redskin footballer.

The White fumbled on their first three series with the ball, but when the huge Kleine says run a play, you run the play.

However, even without game statistics, there are a few facts that the Bulldog faithful will like seeing repeated next fall.

Senior quarterbacks Patrick Mowles and Jason Stone both looked good. In fact, it is a problem that Corley likes.

"I have to say that Stone and Mowles went into this scrimmage even and I think they are still even," said Corley. "It's a good problem for us. They both did some good things. We've even talked about running each next fall with a pair of backs on separate series. After tonight, that might get another look because our running backs looked good."

Mowles, the Purple quarterback, threw two touchdown passes of 25 and 39 yards to receiver Brian Conaway and running back Albert Ray and scored on a one-yard run. His passing percentage wasn't known, but it was a high completion rate.

Stone of the White team threw touchdown passes of 37 and 28 yards to receivers Eric Hemphill and Michael Wright. The Stone to Wright combination also worked for a 65-yard TD, but was nullified by a penalty.

The Purple's Ray, a 100-meter Region I qualifier this spring, showed his blazing speed on several occasions while the White's Will Sowders, who started last year, looked stronger and tougher up the gut. Sowders has 4.7 speed, but runs more like a truck.

Conaway, Hemphill and Wright were all impressive. Conaway and Hemphill are receivers the Bulldogs will have to count on all season while Wright looked good on both sides of the ball. He had the block of the game, a hard hit that broke Hemphill loose before a penalty was called.

"We saw some guys out there tonight who don't like to lose and we were looking for that," said Corley.

The offense figured to be the strength of MHS during the spring.

"We placed most of our emphasis on the offense this fall," said Corley. "Basically, we aren't going to change anything defensively, so we worked hard with the offense.

'Horns, Aggies in SEC? Don't laugh

Battles

"What about Colorado? What are you going to do with the Buffs?"

"Hey, Battles, in case no one told you, Houston is more than a race horse owned by some Midlanders. It's a city in Texas and it has an institution of higher edcuation. What are you going to do, dump the University of Houston in the Gulf of Mexico? If there's any realignment, the Cougars belong in there with Oklahoma, Nebraska, Texas and Texas A&M."

Hey, guys, this wasn't my idea. It's the Southeast Conference with its insatiable appetite for members that is allegedly looking at several colleges as possible new members....among them Texas, Texas A&M, South Carolina, Miami and Florida State.

More abuse...."Put Miami in the SEC and you'd never hear from them again. In case you forgot, the Hurricane had more than it could handle with Notre Dame and needed all the luck in Jim Walsh's right arm to beat Michigan. What would they do against a weekly diet of SEC opposition?"

Ed. Note: Seems like Notre Dame won the national championship and Michigan didn't have a bad season either. Of course, Miami without Jimmy Johnson, who knows....

"In your all-powerful Catholic Conference of yesteryear, you listed Fordham, Georgetown, Notre Dame, Marquette, St. Mary's and Santa Clara as strong from top to bottom as any league in the country. You forgot two of the strongest of that era, Holy Cross and Boston College."

Yes, but then we wouldn't have been able to say, "Only Notre Dame takes the game seriously today." Besides I'm sure I missed some other Catholic schools that had strong football programs.

As for Colorado, the Buffs are a swing team. If they straighten out their program, they could be admitted to the "revamped Big Eight" OU, UT, A&M, Nebraska et al. Or they could join the WAC and play in the mountains, where they geographically belong. Or why not join the Yankee Conference, where, with the University of Richmond as a member, nothing should be a surprise.

Another suggestion for the revised Southwest Conference, termed "SWC realignment or demise", a two division league. The West Conference would consist of Angelo State, West Texas State, Southwest Texas State, Texas A&I, UTEP and Texas Tech.

The East Conference would include North Texas State, East Texas State, Sam Houston State, SMU, Rice, TCU, Baylor.

"Send Arkansas to the Big Eight. The University of Texas and Texas A&M—independent."

That's fine, but how do we get Rice back from the Ivy League?

As for the University of Houston, drop football and try to get a basketball membership in the Big East where the real money is...

Did You Hear?: Chicago White Sox catcher Carlton Fisk has a plate inserted in his broken hand, but manager Jeff Torborg doesn't think it will affect his mobility. "Electrial storms might be a problem, however,"....

That stir at San Angelo Central in which the basketball coach, who served also as a grid assistant, was fired by the new football coach, no comment with out more information. But didn't the Midland Independent School District relieve basketball head coaches from mandatory football coaching obligations back in the 1950s?....

This perennial national power was originally known as the Old Gold Knights, Antelopes and Bugeaters. Bet you can't guess what they are called today?...

The Chicago Cubs have banned beer, not in the stands, but in the team locker rooms and the umpires' dressing room....

If you are going to a California Angels game, it will cost you $4 to park and $3 general admission.....That's like skiing at my age....Renting the skis costs more than the lift tickets....

In case you still had hopes, somehow it doesn't look as though Jim Abbott will make it to the Midland Angels. When the California Angels rookie got the best of Roger Clemens the other night, all hope seemed to evaporate....

Last year Dennis Eckersley and Orel Hershiser had the kind of years that captured the imagination. This year, it's Rick Reuschel and Nolan Ryan....

Quickie Quiz: Yesterday's Bugeaters are today's Cornhuskers, but I may never be able to call them anything but Bugeaters again. It's almost as catchy as Webfoots.

Aggies blast Longhorns; Texas faces Hogs today

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Eric Albright drove in seven runs with a pair of 400-foot home runs, including a first-inning grand slam, as No. 1 Texas A&M moved into the championship game Friday night by blasting Texas, 15-6.

The Aggies, 54-5, move into the championship game for the second straight year. Arkansas, which tied A&M for the record-season title, and Texas both have lost one game in the double-elimination tournament and play today for the right to meet A&M at 7 p.m. tonight.

Earlier Friday, Arkansas defeated Houston 5-4 to eliminate the Cougars.

Texas, ranked 10th nationally, fell to 46-16 with the loss, the Longhorns' first to A&M in eight tournament games. It is also the first time since 1967 that the Aggies have won three games in a season against the Longhorns. A&M took 2-of-3 during the regular season

The 16 losses ties a Texas record in the era of UT Coach Cliff Gustafson.

Albright keyed the Aggies' first with a 420-foot grand slam to make it 4-0 early. His three-run blast in the sixth made it 8-0. It was his 14th and 15th four-baggers of the year.

John Byington hit his 12th home run of the year in the fifth on a solo shot and Andy Duke had two doubles and five RBI's.

Keith Langston was the winning pitcher, extending his record to 12-0 for the season.

Scott Bryant went 2-for-5 and established a school record for total bases in a season with 178. He also tied a conference record for most doubles in a season with 29.

David Tollison led Texas with four hits and two RBI's. The Longhorns stranded 12.

Arkansas 5, Houston 4

Fourth-ranked Arkansas stayed alive, eliminating Houston behind Dennis Fletcher's pitching and Troy Eklund's three RBIs.

Arkansas' victory over Houston improved the Razorbacks to 46-12 for the season. The Cougars ended their season at 43-17.

Fletcher improved to 8-3 on the season. He gave up nine hits, four walks and struck out six in seven innings. Phil Stidham got his 10th save.

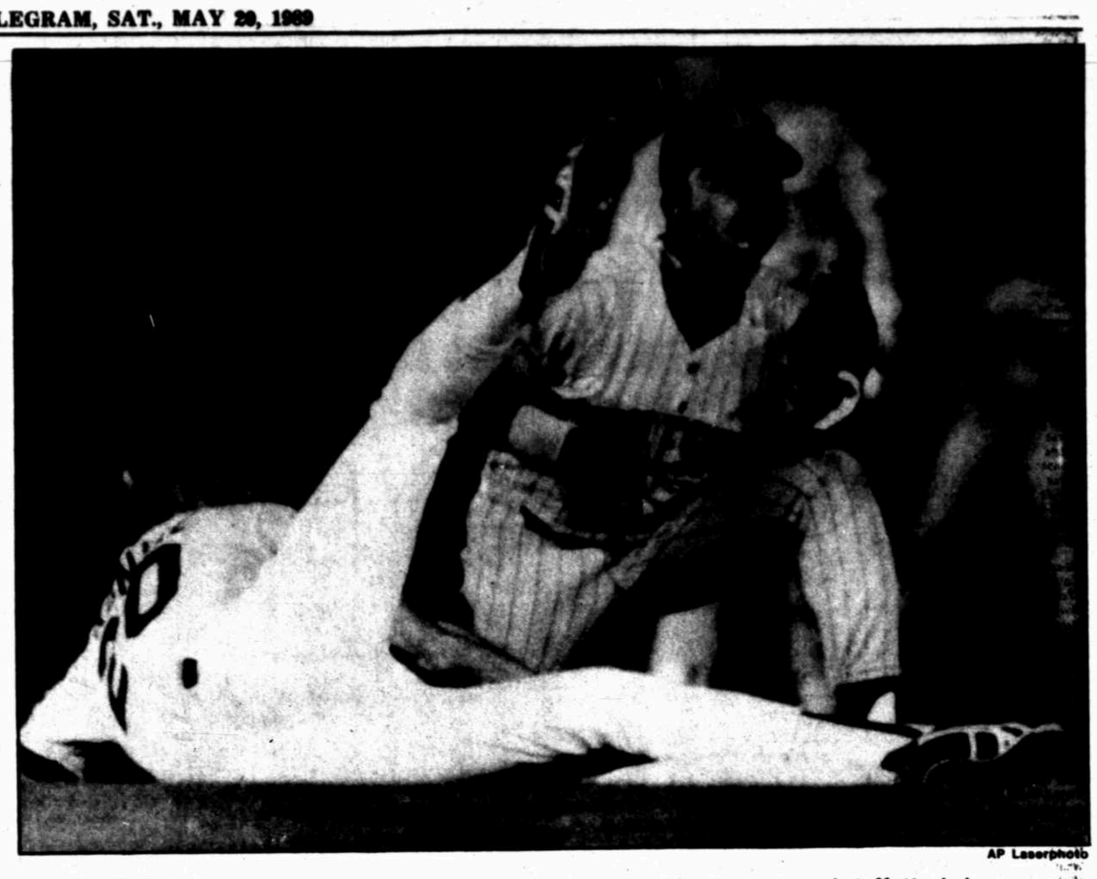

Houston outhit Arkansas, 10-8, but two errors in the field and several base-running miscues kept the Cougars out of the game.

Arkansas took a 2-0 lead in the third inning on Eklund's double to center field, which scored Scott Pose and Tim Thomas.

Houston got one run back, but the Hogs pushed across two more runs in the fourth. The first run scored on Greyson Liles' ground out. After Rod Stillwell got aboard on an infield single, Kirk Piskor was awarded home plate after colliding with Houston first baseman Bret Bartley during a rundown.

Pose scored Arkansas' final run for a 5-2 lead on Eklund's sacrifice fly in the seventh inning.

The Cougars crossed the plate twice in their half of the eighth to close the gap to 5-4 on an error by Greg D'Alexander and a ground out by Scott Sheldon.

Scott misses gem

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Scott pitched no-hit ball for seven innings and finished with a one-hitter, while Bill Doran knocked in all of Houston's runs, leading the Astros to a 3-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

Scott, 6-2, didn't allow a hit until Glenn Wilson led off the eighth with a single to center field. He is the the fifth major-league pitcher to throw a one-hitter this season.

Scott retired the first 19 batters before he walked Rafael Belliard with one out in the seventh to lose his perfect game. Scott got out of the inning by getting Andy Van Slyke to pop out to third baseman Ken Caminiti and Bobby Bonilla struck out.

Scott finished with six strikeouts and two walks. Bob Walk, 4-3, gave up five hits in seven-plus innings and got the loss.

Houston took a 2-0 lead on Doran's triple to the center field fence, scoring Billy Hatcher and Craig Reynolds. Hatcher walked and Reynolds singled prior to Doran's hit.

The Astros made it 3-0 in the eighth on Hatcher's double and stolen base, followed by a single from Doran.

Hatcher led off Houston's first with a single before Scott and Walk started a pitchers' duel. Walk retired the next 13 batters until Kevin Bass doubled to center field with two outs in the fifth inning.

Scott came within one out of pitching his second career no-hitter last June 12 before yielding a single to Atlanta's Ken Oberkfell.

Scott pitched a no-hitter Sept. 25, 1986 against San Francisco in a game that clinched the National League West title for the Astros. It was Houston's eighth no-hitter in 27 years.

Mets 3, Giants 2

Darryl Strawberry's walk off Rich Gossage with the bases loaded and two outs in the 10th inning gave the Mets a victory.

With two outs in the 10th, Craig Lefferts, 1-2, walked Len Dykstra and pinch-hitter Tim Teufel. Gossage then relieved and walked Howard Johnson to load the bases.

Strawberry drew four consecutive balls to force in the winning run.

Randy Myers, 4-1, pitched two innings in relief for the victory

Braves 3, Cardinals 2

Andres Thomas' run-scoring single with two outs in the ninth inning pushed the Braves past St. Louis.

Gerald Perry singled with two outs off St. Louis reliever Dan Quisenberry, 1-1. Dale Murphy was intentionally walked before Thomas, who had three hits, drove Perry in with a single to left center to snap Atlanta's three-game losing streak.

Dodgers 8, Expos 0

Tim Belcher pitched a three-hitter for his league-leading third shutout and Jeff Hamilton hit his first career grand slam for the Dodgers.

Belcher, 3-4, struck out six and walked two in his third complete game.

Cubs 8, Reds 2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Chicago manager Don Zimmer won a fourth-inning argument over an interference call against Ryne Sandberg, setting up a four-run rally that carried the Cubs past the Cincinnati Reds 8-2 Friday night.

New York Mets Keith Hernandez, left, and Darryl Strawberry embrace after it was learned that Hernandez would miss two months of the season with a fractured kneecap.

Padres 8, Phillies 2

Benito Santiago had the first first four-hit game of his career and drove in three runs as the Padres won their fourth straight.

Ed Whitson, 6-2, won his fourth consecutive decision. He allowed 10 hits, walked three and struck out two in his second complete game.

Homers lift Rangers by Twins

Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — Ruben Sierra and Julio Franco led off the sixth inning with consecutive homers, lifting the Texas Rangers over the Minnesota Twins.

Reliever Kenny Rogers, 2-0, got the victory, benefitting from the Rangers' hitting back-to-back homers for the second straight game.

Sierra's blast, his fifth, came on the first pitch in the sixth from Twins' starter Frank Viola, 2-6. Sierra had gone 20 straight games without a homer, the longest drought of his major league career.

Franco followed with a 404-foot shot to left-center, his sixth.

The Twins threatened in the seventh, loading the bases against reliever Cecilio Guante, but Guante struck out Gary Gaetti for the third out. Jeff Russell got the last two outs with two runners on and recorded his sixth save.

The Rangers caught a break in the seventh when Dan Gladden's shot to right center glanced off a railing for a ground-rule double. That stopped Al Newman, who had singled, at third.

Minnesota took a 1-0 lead in the second when Kirby Puckett drew a leadoff walk, went to second on a groundout and scored on Brian Harper's double.

Minnesota knocked out Rangers starter Jamie Moyer in the sixth, putting runners on first and second with no outs. The Twins later got a sacrifice fly from Harper off reliever Craig McMurtry, but Rogers came on to strike out Randy Bush with runners on first and third and two outs.

Texas tied the score 1-1 in the third on hot-hitting Jeff Kunkel's RBI double. Kunkel had two homers Thursday night.

Kunkel gave the Rangers a 2-1 lead in the fifth when his one-out bloop single drove in Steve Buechele, who led off with a double.

Blue Jays 9, White Sox 3

CHICAGO — Tony Fernandez broke out of a 1-for-17 slump with a go-ahead three-run homer as the Toronto Blue Jays won for the third time in four games under Manager Cito Gaston, beating the Chicago White Sox.

Mike Flanagan, 3-3, allowed eight hits and three runs in seven innings, walking one and striking out two. Duane Ward pitched the final two innings.

Eric King, 4-4, had his four-game winning snapped, allowing four hits and six runs in five innings, striking out five.

Gaston, Toronto's batting coach, replaced Jimy Williams as Toronto's manager on Monday. General Manager Pat Gillick is still searching for a permament successor.

Fernandez hit his second home run of the season with Toronto trailing 2-1 in the fifth. Toronto made it 7-1 in the sixth when Ernie Whitt hit a two-run single and Nelson Liriano hit a sacrifice fly off Scott Rosenberg.

Tigers 2, Royals 0

DETROIT — Lou Whitaker hit a two-run, two-out homer in the ninth inning off Bret Saberhagen, giving the Detroit Tigers a win over the Kansas City Royals.

Saberhagen, 3-4, walked Gary Pettis with one out. Chet Lemon flied out and Whitaker hit his 10th home run of the season, a drive just inside the right-field foul pole.

Detroit was without Manager Sparky Anderson, who returned to California earlier Friday after he was examined by Dr. Clarence Livingood. It was determined that Anderson was suffering from exhaustion and coach Dick Tracewski will manage the team on an interim basis.

Indians 4, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE — Brook Jacoby hit a pair of two-run homers to back the seven-hit pitching of Tom Candiotti and Doug Jones, leading the Cleveland Indians over the Baltimore Orioles.

Dave Clark singled with one out in the second inning before Jacoby hit a fly ball that fell into the first row of the left-field bleachers for his fifth homer. In the seventh, Clark drew a leadoff walk off Jose Bautista, 2-4, before Jacoby hit the next pitch into the left field bullpen.

It was the fifth time in his career that Jacoby, who singled in the fourth, has hit two or more homers in a game.

Candiotti, 5-2, allowed three hits and Baltimore's only run in the first inning.

Angels shut down Drillers

From Staff Reports

TULSA, Okla. — The Midland Angels got four-hit pitching from three pitchers here Friday night to begin a 10-game road trip through the Texas League East with a 9-2 win over the Tulsa Drillers.

Roberto Hernandez picked up his second victory in six decisions with 6⅔ innings, allowing only three hits and two runs, including a solo homer by Dean Palmer in the first inning.

Vinicio Cedeno relieved Hernandez in the seventh and pitched out of a bases loaded jam by striking out Tulsa's Sammy Sosa.

Gary Buckels ended the game in a bases loaded situation with one pitch, a double play grounder.

Meanwhile, Midland exploded for 11 hits and scored all the runs they needed with a four-run fifth inning. In that frame, the Angels batted around and got a two-run double by Chris Cron and a two-run single by Bob Rose. Cron also had an RBI double in the eighth.

Reed Peters also had a big night with two hits, a sacrifice fly and three RBI on the night.

Midland touched Tulsa starter Barry Manuel (2-3) with five runs on five hits in 4⅓ innings.

The two teams meet again today at 7 p.m. and the game can be heard locally on KCRS radio.

Adventurous sought for worldwide digs

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

The Foundation for Field Research is seeking members of the public to join archaeological expeditions around the world. No previous experience is necessary, only a sense of adventure.

Volunteers are needed to work with professional archaeologists digs around the world.

This summer, projects include excavations at a castle in Wales that was beseiged and burned in 1212 A.D., or at a ringfort in Ireland, or at a prehistoric Indian Village on the island of Grenada in the Caribbean.

Volunteer members are also needed to scuba dive at dock sites from the Hudson Bay Company era in the Pacific Northwest, and to help analyze textiles found on PreColumbian mummies in southern Peru.

Participants provide physical and financial support for the project they join and in return receive adventure, a tax deduction for expenses, including air fare. Each volunteer's tax-deductible share of costs includes lodging, meals, equipment and ground transportations.

Calgary's Theoren Fleury takes a hit from Montreal's Larry Robinson during Game Three of the Stanley Cup finals Friday.

Canadiens sink Flames in OT

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens, hockey's most famous franchise, added to their illustrious history when they won the longest Stanley Cup final-round game in 58 years, beating the Calgary Flames 4-3 on Ryan Walter's goal.

Walter scored at 18:08, just as a penalty to Calgary's Mark Hunter was expiring, to give Montreal a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 series.

The game, which began Friday night and ended early Saturday morning, was the first in the finals to go more than one overtime since Chicago beat Montreal 2-1 in the 1971 opener, and the longest in the final round since 1931, when Chicago beat Montreal 3-2 in a game that lasted 13:50 into the third overtime.

Walter, stationed just outside the crease, rammed Stephane Richer's centering pass from behind the net past Mike Vernon just before he was flattened by Calgary's Hakan Loob. It came exactly two minutes after Hunter was sent off for boarding by referee Kerry Fraser, setting up the first power play in overtime.

Game 4 will be at The Forum Sunday night before the series shifts to Calgary for the fifth game Tuesday.

Mats Naslund sent the game into overtime with 41 seconds left in the third period with his fourth playoff goal. Montreal dominated both extra periods, outshooting the Flames 12-5 in the first overtime and 6-4 in the second.

Doug Gilmour's eighth playoff goal had put Calgary on top 3-2 with 6:58 left in the period.

Mike McPhee had given Montreal a 1-0 lead 1:32 into the game. Joe Mullen, who has 13 playoff goals, tied the game with 2:45 left in the first period and put the Flames in front with a power-play goal with 4:25 remaining in the second. Bobby Smith tied the game at 1:36 of the third period.

At the Forum, the Canadiens were 30-6-4 in the regular season and 5-0 in the playoffs before losing two of their three home games to Philadelphia in the Wales Conference finals.

Calgary, which last lost in The Forum on Dec. 8, 1986, was 22-13-5 on the road during the regular season, the league's second best road mark.

Naslund tied the game while goalie Patrick Roy was out of the net for an extra skater.

Brian Skrudland passed the puck from deep in Calgary's right corner into the slot. Flames defenseman Brad McCrimmon got to it, but his attempted clearing pass was weak.

Naslund stopped it about 40 feet from the goal line and put a slap shot into the upper right corner of the net.

Smith had tied the game at 2-2 with his 10th goal on a pass from Naslund in the left circle. The puck hit McCrimmon's stick and went to Smith, who was alone at the right corner of the crease. He put the puck into the open side of the net, beating Vernon's dive.

Mullen's second goal came on a pass from Al MacInnis, who broke a tie with Philadelphia's Tim Kerr for the playoff scoring lead. MacInnis has 26 points and can become the first defenseman to lead the NHL playoffs in scoring.

New Zealander ties own course record

SCARBOROUGH, N.Y. (AP) — Bob Charles of New Zealand, the defending champion, shot a 7-under-par 63 to tie his course record and take the first-round lead Friday in the $300,000 Commemorative at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club.

Charles, 53, a left-hander, already the winner of two tournaments on this year's Senior Tour, had seven birdies, five of them from the 11th through the 15th holes, on the 6,545-yard layout that he called his type of course.

The 63 matched Charles' opening round of 1988, when he went on to win with a 54-hole total of 196, 14-under-par.

Billy Casper, this year's honoree at the Commemorative in recognition of his winning the U.S. Open 30 years ago, Don Bies and Frank Beard shared second place at 65.

Beard, who turned 50 on May 1, is playing in only his third tournament since meeting the age requirement for the Senior tour.

Dave Hill and Dick Rhyan, who never has won on the regular or senior tours, were tied for fifth at 66. Jimmy Powell and Ben Smith were next at 67.

"This is my kind of course," said Charles, who is seventh on the current money winning list with $139,137. "It's old and traditional, as compared to the real estate developments we have to weave in and out of some weeks."

Charles, the 1963 British Open champion, added, "A lot of the holes give a left-hander like me an advantage. You have plenty of room to the right."

"I had only three bad shots the whole round — the first, the 17th and 18th tee shots ... but fortunately, they didn't cost me," he said.

"It really was a most enjoyable walk, particularly when you shoot a round like this. It would be nice to repeat. I haven't done that very often."

In addition to winning last year, Charles was fourth in this tournament in 1987 after being forced to withdraw in 1986, the first year the tournament was held at Sleepy Hollow.

Aussie leads Colonial

FORT WORTH (AP) — Ian Baker-Finch shot a par 70 Friday and retained the lead of the Colonial National Invitation tournament despite bogeying the final two holes of the second round.

"I was a bit unlucky," said the 28-year-old Australian, a rookie on the PGA Tour but a veteran of five seasons of internatonal play. "I made four bogeys and all of them were the result of misjudging the wind."

Baker-Finch completed two rounds at 135, 5-under par. He was followed Nick Price of Zimbabwe and David Frost of South Africa at 136.

"It seems to be the foreigners' week so far," said Price, who shot a 66. "Now we'll see if we have the finishing power."

"Ian could do it," said Frost, who also shot a 66. "I played with him in Europe. He's new on the American tour, but he's been around. He knows what it's all about."

King stays red-hot despite rainy skies

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Betsy King, continuing her hot play despite rainy weather, shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take a 1-stroke lead through two rounds of the LPGA Championship.

King, the tour's leading money-winner this year, followed an opening 3-under 69 to stand at 8-under 136 at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center.

"I always seem to play well in the rain," said King, who played during a steady drizzle. "I think patience is a key, so I try to stay patient."

Ayako Okamoto, slipping once during her early-round mastery over the 6,359-yar, par-72 course, bogeyed the final hole for a 4-under 68 to finish at 7-under 137 at the midpoint of the tour's second major championship.

At 5-under 139 were first-round leader Pat Bradley, who followed an opening 67 with a 72, and Susie Redman and Susan Sanders. With a 67, Sanders shared the low round of the day with King.

King, seeking her fourth victory this season, began her second round with a bogey. But she went on to birdie two holes on the front side and then birdied four out of the first five on the back for her 67.

King said she didn't get to bed Friday morning until 12:30 because she attended a gospel music concert in nearby Cincinnati. She arose at 6:15 for her 8:40 tee time.

"Maybe I'll stay up late again tonight," she said. "It certainly didn't hurt."

Okamoto has finished tied for third in each of the past three LPGA Championships and her average score of 2-under 70 is the lowest of any player the last three years. Yet she has faltered on the final day each year, shooting her worst round of the tournament.

"This week is so special because I've never won a major and I have come so close so many times," Okamoto said through an interpreter.

Four shots back of King were Hall of Famers Sandra Haynie, who shot a 73 to go with her opening 67, and two-time LPGA Championship winner Nancy Lopez. Lopez shot a 69 after a first-round 71.

Lopez said she was primed to make another run at a major, but admitted it would be difficult.

"I think the girls at the top are going to stay there," she said. "Maybe they'll do even better, even if the weather gets bad. So I need a lot of birdies and consistency. With a good score tomorrow I can still move up."

Patty Sheehan, who won back-to-back LPGA Championships in 1983 and 1984, was at 3-under 141.

Penders gets big bonus

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas basketball coach Tom Penders has been rewarded with a $7,650 bonus and a one-year contract extension after the Longhorns compiled a 25-9 record in Penders' first season.

The record was Texas' best in basketball since 1978. The Longhorns also were invited to the NCAA tournament for the first time in 10 years and upset Georgia Tech in the Midwest Regional before losing to Missouri.

The bonus represented 9 percent of Penders' $85,000 salary. His five-year contract was extended through 1994.

Penders' two assistants, as well as three swimming coaches, also received bonuses in action taken by the men's Intercollegiate Athletic Council.

LPGA names three finalists

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Three finalists for consideration as the new home for the Ladies Professional Golf Association national headquarters are Daytona Beach, Fla., Scottsdale, Ariz., and Wilmington, Del., the LPGA said Friday.

The three came from a list of six sites submitted in February. A total of 115 inquiries had been reviewed since the relocation process began in 1987.

Eliminated were Durham, N.C., Jacksonville, Fla., and Naples, Fla.

Members of the LPGA board of directors, staff, LPGA player directors and LPGA Player Council members will visit the three sites to provide input into the final decision. An announcement of the new headquarters is expected in July.

Sweetwater Country Club in the Houston suburb of Sugar Land, Texas, has been the home of the LPGA since January of 1982.

Gregg Shimanski, a vice president for business affairs for the LPGA, cited the weather and the economy as reasons the association decided to leave Texas.

Midland High Purple's Albert Ray strains toward the end zone in Friday's Bill Mims Game.

Jordan helps Bulls advance

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan's two free throws with four seconds left after Trent Tucker's game-tying four-point play gave Chicago a 113-111 victory over the New York Knicks Friday night and sent the Bulls into the NBA's Eastern Conference final.

Jordan climaxed a brilliant playoff series with 40 points, including eight straight free throws in the final 1:18.

The Bulls won the best-of-7 series 4-2 and advanced to the next round against the Detroit Pistons, who are undefeated in seven postseason games. The first game of the series is Sunday at Auburn Hills, Mich.

The Bulls also got 16 points and eight rebounds from Bill Cartwright and 19 points from Scottie Pippen before he was ejected for a third-quarter fight with New York's Kenny Walker.

New York was led by 22 points each from Mark Jackson, Gerald Wilkins and Patrick Ewing, who added a game-high 13 rebounds, but was outplayed by Cartwright, the man he replaced in the Knicks pivot.

Tucker brought the Knicks into a tie at 111-11 with six seconds left, hitting an off-balance 3-point basket with Chicago's Craig Hodges draped all over him and converting a four-point play by sinking the ensuing free throw.

Chicago called timeout and Jordan, who gave the Knicks fits throughout the series by eluding their vaunted defensive traps, cut to the sideline for the inbounds pass, then slanted to the middle and was fouled shooting a 15-footer. The foul was Wilkins' sixth and Jordan calmly sank both.

Johnny Newman missed a potential game-winning 3-pointer at the buzzer.

The Bulls opened the fourth period with an 86-79 lead and matched that seven-point spread only once more — at 3:33 after Horace Grant slammed a pass from Cartwright and added a free throw for a three-point play.

New York gained its first tie of the second half at 103-103 two minutes later on a layup by Ewing. But Jordan responded with four free throws sandwiched around John Paxson's jumper, then added two more with nine seconds left for a 111-107 lead that Tucker quickly erased.

The Bulls began the third period trailing 61-59, but Craig Hodges opened it with a 3-point jumper to give Chicago its first lead since the end of the first quarter.

He followed that with another long jumper and then Jordan strung together two baskets and finished off an 11-3 Chicago run with a beautiful feed to Pippen for a layup that gave the Bulls a 70-64 advantage with 8:48 left in the quarter.

Seven minutes later, Pippen stole a New York pass and fed Hodges for a breakaway layup to give the Bulls an 86-76 lead, their largest of the game.

With 12 seconds left in the period and the Bulls' lead at 86-79, Walker used his forearm to move Pippen off the baseline and Pippen threw a left-handed punch in response. He missed and both men squared off, only to be thrown off the floor before any damage was done.

The Knicks got the opening basket of the game, but didn't lead again until Jackson's three-point play in the closing seconds of the period ignited a 10-0 run that carried New York from a 32-28 deficit to a 38-32 lead two minutes into the second quarter.

Jordan hit his first four shots of the contest and finished the opening period with 10 points. But he didn't crack the scoring column in the second period until 8:44 remained, and Jackson's 3-pointer at 7:05 gave New York the biggest lead of the game to that point at 48-41.

Less than a minute later, Bulls' guard John Paxson broke up a Knicks break by grabbing Sidney Green, touching off a shoving match between Green and Chicago's Brad Sellers, who got a technical for his role in the skirmish.

But Kiki Vandeweghe missed the technical and Green made just one of his two free throws for a 49-41 lead with 6:24 left.

Cartwright scored the Bulls' next five points with two short jumpers and a free throw and Jordan hit a 3-pointer and 20-footer from the wing to help Chicago close to within two at halftime.

Rose lawyers ask Giamatti for hearing delay

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose's lawyers on Friday asked for a 30-day postponement of Thursday's hearing before commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti, who is investigating gambling allegations against the Cincinnati manager.

"Late Friday afternoon, the commissioner's office received from Pete Rose's counsel a request for a 30-day extension of the hearing date set for May 25," Giamatti's New York office said. "The commissioner will respond on Monday."

Rose declined comment before the Reds game against the Chicago Cubs. Reuven J. Katz, one of Rose's lawyers, said the postponement was asked "for purposes to prepare."

"It's obvious that originally we got a report and seven volumes," he said of the evidence against Rose. "And when we requested additional information, we got 60 additional transcripts and interviews. This is a serious matter and we need to do a thorough job. The request is reasonable and we expect it will be approved. If not, we'll decide where we go from there."

One individual familiar with the case, who spoke on the condition he not be identified, said that if Giamatti refused to grant the postponement, Rose's lawyers may try to block the hearing in court by claiming their client's rights were being violated in a rush to judgment.

Meanwhile, The Associated Press learned Friday that bodybuilder Paul G. Janszen, now serving a six-month term on tax evasion charges, passed a polygraph test based on claims he ran bets on behalf of Rose.

The polygraph was administered under the direction of investigators for Giamatti, said another source, who also spoke on the condition he would not be identified.

The lie-detector test, which is not admissible in court, was given over two days by Richard O. Arthur, who operates a polygraph center in New York, the source said. Each test lasted two-to-three hours.

The source quoted Arthur as saying that Janszen was "a real honest boy."

"It was the last crossing of the 't' or dotting of the 'i,' " the source said.

Kentucky stands to lose big from sanctions

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The athletics association at the University of Kentucky will lose about $1.4 million as a result of an NCAA sanctions handed down Friday after a probe of the school's basketball program.

The penalties bar the men's basketball program from live television next season and also mandate the forfeiture of some money earned in the 1987-88 season.

The financial loss includes money Kentucky would have received from at least two national television appearances this coming season in the Bank One Big Four Classic played in Indianapolis and the annually televised game with the University of Louisville.

It also includes the share of money Kentucky will not receive from the Southeastern Conference's television package with Jefferson-Pilot Teleproductions.

The university brings back about $325,000 from the Big Four Classic, including television revenue and gate receipts, said Larry Ivy, finance director of the University of Kentucky Athletics Association. That amount would be greatly reduced if the games were not televised.

Ivy said the athletics association, which had a $12.6 million budget last year, would be severely hampered by the loss of revenue. "It's going to be tough for the next two or three years ... financially," he said.

Ivy was unable to identify specific programs that would be hurt by the loss in revenue, but said it was likely that sports such as volleyball, baseball and swimming — all which do not produce revenue — could face cutbacks.

An increase in ticket prices also could be in the offing, he said.

A large chunk of the money the school will be losing is the $431,342 Kentucky received from the 1988 NCAA Tournament.

The forfeiture stems from a sanction that declared Eric Manuel ineligible during the season — his freshman year. The NCAA said he should have known his academic eligibility was in question.

The NCAA found Manuel guilty of committing academic fraud when he cheated on his college entrance examination in June 1987.

Agassi wins, Mats loses at Rome

ROME (AP) — Andre Agassi scored two straight-set victories in four hours Friday and top-seeded Mats Wilander was upset by American Jay Berger at the Italian Open tennis championships.

Agassi, seeded No. 2 and playing at his best of the year, reached the semifinals and became the tournament favorite after Wilander was upset 6-3, 6-4.

Experts critical of S&L plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wall Street financial experts on Friday called President Bush's savings and loan bailout plan a "banana republic" scheme that will cost taxpayers $30 billion to $50 billion more than a Democratic alternative.

A special task force of the House Budget Committee was told the extra expense of paying for the bailout through 30-year, off-budget bonds to preserve the illusion of deficit reduction will likely be 10 times the $3.8 billion to $4.5 billion the administration has acknowledged.

"This is an incredible price to pay for budgetary window dressing," said Bert Ely, who heads a financial consulting firm in Alexandria, Va. "Billions of dollars can be saved if the cleanup is funded for a few years with short-term borrowings until long-term rates decline."

Comptroller General Charles Bowsher, head of the government's General Accounting Office, agreed with Ely and representatives of Wall Street investment houses that Bush's S&L plan will tax the public tens of billions of dollars in unnecessary interest costs.

The administration has acknowledged taxpayers will have to pay up to $4.5 billion more over the 30-year life of the private bonds than if the bailout costs were borrowed directly through the Treasury.

It's Johnson vs. Johnson in Western finals

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — It's time to find out who's the best Johnson in the West.

Magic Johnson and the Los Angeles Lakers play host to Kevin Johnson and the Phoenix Suns Saturday in the first game of the NBA Western Conference finals.

The series winner will advance to the championship series. The Lakers, undefeated in the playoffs after sweeping Portland and Seattle, are looking to send Kareem Abdul-Jabbar into retirement with a third straight NBA title. The rejuvenated Suns, with only one playoff loss, are trying to return to the championship series for the first time since 1976.

"It's going to be a tough series," Magic Johnson said. "Phoenix does a lot of things well. They have an excellent transition game and great outside shooting.

"Kevin Johnson makes it work. He gets down the court so fast. It's going to be up-and-down basketball, that's for sure."

Kevin Johnson — known as KJ — is in his second pro year and first full season with the Suns. He averaged 20.4 points and 12.2 assists during the regular season, becoming only the fifth player in NBA history to accomplish the 20-10 feat.

He is averaging 24 points in the playoffs, second to Tom Chambers' 26.4 average.

Kevin Johnson said backcourt mate Jeff Hornacek probably will have the starting defensive assignment on Magic Johnson, "but we might switch off later on Earvin. I'm calling him Earvin during the playoffs. It'll be back to Magic after the playoffs. I don't want to be in awe of him when I have to play against him."

Phoenix coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said Byron Scott is the only Laker who can contain Kevin Johnson. KJ had 23 points and 12 assists in Phoenix's 114-97 victory over the Lakers on Feb. 1 when Scott was on the injured list.

"The night that Scott was out, they tried Magic and (Michael) Cooper and they couldn't deal with him. People have got to zone him or hold him. That's what you've got to do," Fitzsimmons said.

The Suns have at least one edge in the Johnson vs Johnson category. They have a Johnson in reserve — Eddie, voted the best sixth man in the league.

Phoenix swept Denver in the first round and then beat Golden State 4-1.

"We've wanted L.A. all year long and we've finally got the chance," Kevin Johnson said.

"They've got us, no doubt about that," Scott said, smiling.

Game 2 will be Tuesday night, also at the Forum.

The Lakers finished the regular season just two games ahead of the Suns. They split the season series 3-3, with each team winning all its home games.

The Lakers will have the homecourt edge, meaning they will be host in the seventh game if the series goes that far.

Although Phoenix is winless in all five previous playoff appearances against Los Angeles, and hasn't won at the Forum in five years — a total of 17 games — the Lakers aren't going to take the Suns lightly.

"They're not here by chance," Lakers coach Pat Riley said. "They're here because they're talented and have beaten the pants off people."

No current member of the Suns was with the team in 1985 when the Lakers and Phoenix last met in the playoffs.

"Most people in the world never expected us to be where we are today," Fitzsimmons said. "So this is our greatest challenge. You have to be realistic about it.

"There's not a lot of secrets," Fitzsimmons said. "The Lakers are defending champions, the team of the '80s. They've been there and they've done it.

ANDREWS—

Game 2
Estacado 5, Andrews 2

It was errors — five of them — which made the season-ender look ugly for the Mustangs.

But it was Clyde Boyd, a fullback on the Mat football team, who did the most damage for Estacado.

Boyd, the stocky outfielder who struck out twice in the front end of the double bill, hit a bases-loaded triple in the Matador third to put Estacado ahead to stay.

Only one Andrews error led directly to an Estacado run.

"We battled real hard," Halsey said. "The first game was as good as we could play. The second game, we just had some costly errors. They were aggressive errors and as long as they try as hard as they can, that's all you can ask. I'm real proud of them."

The first of Andrews' runs came in the first when Sidney Mihecoby singled home Brent Leffingwell. The Mustangs final run came in the seventh when David Emiliano tripled with one out and came home on a ground out by Leffingwell.

Estacado's final run came when Anthony McGee hit a two-out inside-the-park solo home run in the seventh.

"That's a big ball park," Estacado head coach Benny Sierra said. "Any other high school game and there'd have been six or seven home runs."

Andrews closes its year at 20-10.

University of Texas freshman Patrik Boden sets a Southwest Conference javelin record with this throw Friday in Waco. Boden nearly broke the national collegiate record.

Texas freshman set javelin mark

WACO (AP) — Texas' Patrik Boden threw the javelin a meet record 269 feet, 11-inches on Friday to highlight the first day of the Southwest Conference Track and Field Championships.

It was the best throw by a collegian this year and just short of the collegiate record of 271-1 by Dag Wennlund of Texas in 1987.

Boden shattered the meet mark of 249-9 by Wennlund set in 1986.

Although he won the first place medal, Boden was disappointed because he fouled on a throw measured at 277-11.

"I fouled by just an inch, it was very close," he said. "But I knew it was a foul."

Boden said he was surprised by the record.

"I felt tired, but perhaps that is good and it made me feel relaxed," Boden said. "I only slept about one hour last night. My roommate (teammate and javelin runnerup Stefan Petersson) snored all night long."

Petersson's best effort was 246-2. Ed Kaminiski of Arkansas was third in 239-10.

Arkansas' Edrick Floreal got the defending champion Razorbacks off and running in defense of their SWC title with a victory in the triple jump.

Floreal, battling a tight hamstring and winds that gusted to 25 miles an hour, jumped 55-feet, 4-1/4 inches on his second jump.

Because he had a knot in his hamstring, Floreal passed on his last three jumps.

"After the third jump, I just couldn't go any more and I wanted to be ready for the long jump on Saturday," Floreal said. "The wind helped me. I couldn't run fast and the wind helped push me forward. I feel I can get first or second in the long jump."

Tyrone Scott of Texas was second in the triple jump at 52-1 3/4. Arkansas' Gary Johnson of Arkansas was third at 52-0.

Arkansas got 18 points in the triple jump with the Hogs' Tony Rice also earning two points in seventh place.

Floreal had placed second in the SWC Indoor Meet. It was his only loss as a collegiation.

"I wanted to establish some respect in the conference again after my indoor performance," said the junior.

All games in the series will be in Abilene. Today's first game begins at 11 a.m. If Austin should win, the deciding game will be played thirty minutes following the conclusion of the first game.

MIMS

"During the scrimmage, we were set in two base defenses with no stunting. Still, it worries you some when the defense gives up the kind of yardage we saw out there."

Splitting Midland High's thin defense for a spring game, however, exaggerates the weakness. The Bulldogs look strong at linebacker with Brandon Govan and Mark Guajardo looking good. Brandt Jordan also has some good hits and Derrick Rosser broke up two passes.

"If I had my wish, I would liked to have played the game with the top 11 defensive players together to build some unity, but we can't do that with the numbers we have," said Corley.

Offensive linemen Joe Phillips and Chris Spratt also had outstanding nights.

"We aren't were we need to be, but we are a lot closer than we were at the beginning of spring training," said Corley.

It's now three months and counting for the 1989 Bulldogs. Spring training says they can be explosive. Depth is a major concern. And the defense will have to come together when two-a-days begin in August.

And that isn't a bad report for the beginning of the Corley era.

Kibbutzim financially insecure

By JOEL BRINKLEY
New York Times News Service

NACHAL OZ, Israel — For most of the last 20 years, a third of the members of this Negev kibbutz have walked down the hill, past the cow shed and the chicken coop, to work in their own little factory, making drill bits and impact-wrench sockets.

But only about two years ago, when Nachal Oz discovered that it was $7.7 million in debt, no one looked at the books closely enough to realize that the factory was losing money.

"We had millions in income, and it sounded good," Yoram Ziv, the kibbutz secretary, said as he shook his head. But a nationwide kibbutz debt crisis struck in the last couple of years, he said "We started analyzing the facts and found we were not making what we thought."

And now Nachal Oz, like dozens of other kibbutzim, is struggling to climb out of an almost hopelessly deep financial hole.

"It was a problem of amateurism and bad government policy," Ziv asserted.

BUT DOV Hartuv, who manages the almond orchards and, like all other kibbutz members, also works in the factory at times, said, "I have a feeling we were out of our depth."

A few kibbutzim are very profitable, and about half of them end the year in the black.

But the successful kibbutzim are helping to shoulder the staggering debts of the failures. So, together, the kibbutzim have a debt that totals more than $4 billion that few people believe they will ever be able to repay — contributing significantly to Israel's current financial difficulties.

Last month, the Finance Ministry, headed by the Labor Party Leader Shimon Peres, came up with a recovery plan.

At the government's insistance, the commerical banks will write off about $560 million of the debt over the next several years. Another $1.7 billion will be rescheduled at a low interest rate.

"We're talking about giving them the ability to deal with some very dire straits," Peres said.

THE PROBLEM was also clear at another kibbutz, about 20 miles west, at kibbutz Mishmar HaNegev, where a member got the idea to build a small factory manufacturing electronic circuit testers for the home.

And since the ideological bedrock of the kibbutz movement is that every member is equally well-suited and well-trained to do any job — no matter what his background or how specialized the job may be — the factory was built several years ago. But as it turned out, the new product had no market.

"We thought we could make millions," said Yaacov Wolfman, secretary of that kibbutz. "But it didn't fly. Now we've shut down the main line. We've lost money, but we don't know how much."

Partly as a result, Mishmar HaNegev is $16.6 million in debt. And its 370 adult members, like the 130,000 other Israelis on the 279 other debt-ridden kibbutzim nationwide, are slowly, painfully, facing up to the fact that they can no longer afford the idealistic, utopian communal ideology on which the kibbutz movement was founded.

"It's very hard to tell the people that the king has no clothes," said Yoram Inbar, a member of Mishmar HaNegev.

It is the kibbutzim's close ties to the Labor Party that helped get the movement in trouble to begin with. Back when Labor was in power, loans were easy to get, and the kibbutzim borrowed heavily.

NOW LABOR is no longer running the government, and the kibbutzim have to pay the money back.

"The basic problem is that the kibbutzim had access to cheap money when Labor was in power, so they depended more on the political sphere than on the market," said Dr. Eliezer Ben Rafael, a socioligist and expert on the kibbutz movement at Tel Aviv University.

"This is a crisis the kibbutzim are going to have to answer. They want to be egalitarian on the one hand and efficient on the other. But the two are mutually exclusive."

In the past, when kibbutzim were almost exclusively agricutural communities, they could afford this contradiction. But no more.

Reaching to bring themselves into the modern world over the last decade, they built industries and improved living conditions, all on borrowed money.

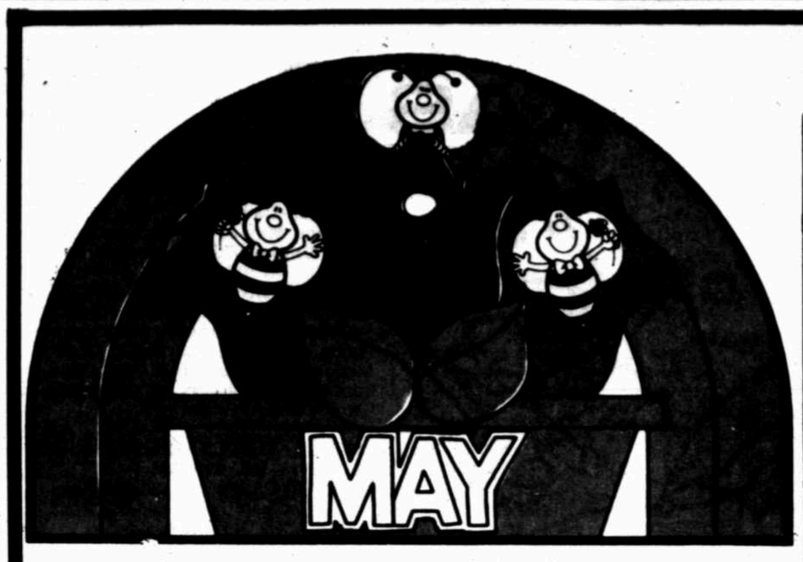

But they did not update their approach to communal living so that it worked as well on the production line as it had in the fields.

AND THEN, when they could not repay their loans, the kibbutzim watched as their debts almost doubled, caught in the interest-rate spirals of Israel's draconian economic recovery program four years ago. Their overall debt grew by 41 percent, Peres said.

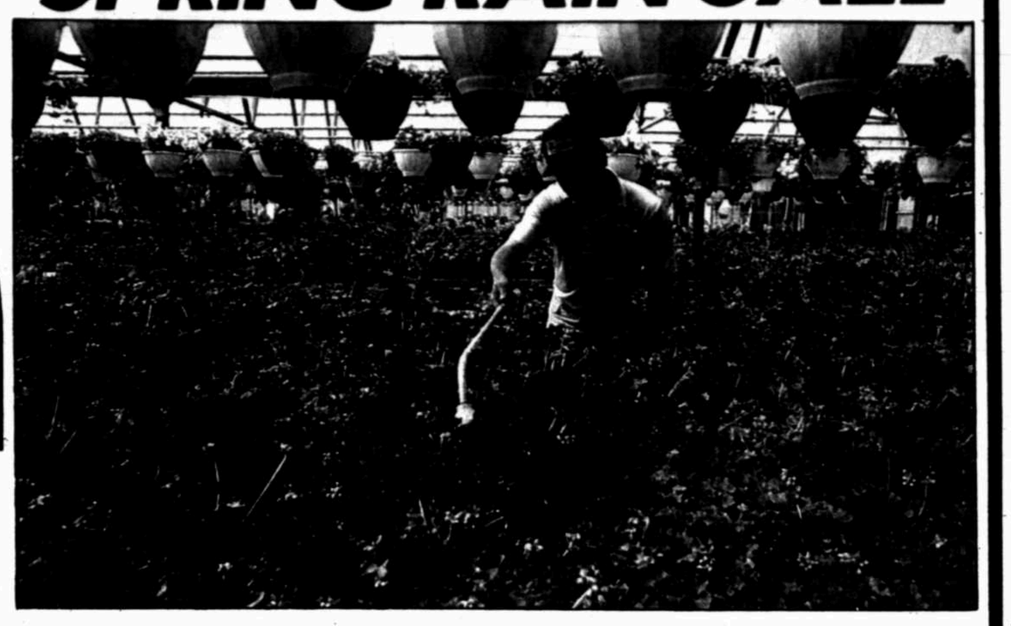

Now, the nation's kibbutz members owe about $31,000 each, though that will fall by about 15 percent under the recovery plan announced last week.

But in the view of many kibbutz members, even if the entire debt were wiped off the books tomorrow, without fundamental and painful changes the movement would quickly find itself in deep trouble again.

"We have to find new ways of communal living, suit ourselves to changing times," said Lea Golan, a political science teacher at Mishmar HaNegev. "Unless we do, we have no chance to survive."

Income tax payments help produce surplus

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unusually large surge in April income tax payments helped produce a record $41.45 billion budget surplus for the government last month, three times the surplus posted in April 1988, the Treasury Department said Friday.

The April surplus, representing the difference between what the government took in and what it spent last month, was fattened by a $68.53 billion bonanza in individual income tax receipts, up from the $53.33 billion collected in April 1988.

It was the largest monthly surplus on record, surpassing the previous high of $38.9 billion posted in April 1987 and far ahead of last April's $13.77 billion surplus, Treasury officials said.

"It's a very encouraging number," said Louis Crandall, chief economist for R.H. Wrightson & Associates in New York. "What we're seeing suggests that the current tax structure ...is generating somewhat higher revenues than we thought ahead of time."

Crandall said government spending also has been smaller than expected so far this year, adding to his optimism about the report.

Analysts said tax revenues may be running ahead of expectations because of increased sales of stocks and other assets that resulted in higher capital gains and because taxpayers shoehorned some of their income from 1987 into 1988, when the top tax rate was lowered.

In April, the government had revenues of $128.95 billion, up 18 percent from the same month a year earlier. Spending, meanwhile, totaled $87.51 billion, down 8.4 percent from April 1988.

For the first seven months of fiscal 1989, which began Oct. 1, the government ran a $86.98 billion deficit, 17.9 percent smaller than the $105.84 billion shortfall at the same point in the previous fiscal year.

For all of fiscal 1989, the government is projecting a $163.3 billion deficit, while the Congressional Budget Office estimates the shortfall will be $159 billion. Either one would represent an increase from last year's $155.1 billion shortfall and would exceed the $146 billion target for this year established under the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law.

Analysts said the surprisingly good showing so far this year could result in a deficit much lower than the official projections.

Crandall said the shortfall might weigh in between $135 billion and $140 billion. He said the good news could carry over into 1990 and help reduce future deficits.

William V. Sullivan of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. estimated the fiscal 1989 deficit will be around $150 billion, but he said the improvement was the result of a "one-shot phenomenon" that won't necessarily repeat itself.

He attributed most of the surge in tax revenues to the shifting of income from 1987 to 1988.

"We're still experiencing the after-effects of the tax reform act of 1986," Sullivan said.

Congress this week completed action on a fiscal 1990 budget blueprint that would hold the next deficit to $99.7 billion, just within Gramm-Rudman's $100 million limit for next year.

Looking To The Future

The future belongs to those who are prepared. More and more, ours is becoming a competitive society. Our young people realize that they must be well equipped to meet tomorrow's social and economic demands.

Education is vastly important, yet it will not meet every need. Many of the social and economic pressures can be met adequately only if one is equipped with spiritual stamina and stability. Something more is required than a diploma signifying academic learning.

God's House is dedicated to the task of strengthening us spiritually. Through the opportunities of worship and study in your local church or synagogue, you can be better prepared to meet the future. Why not attend this week?

Groves to be ordained as minister after long-distance venture

RELIGION

By GEORGIA TODD TEMPLE
Religion Writer

The "Great Day" has come at last. At least that's the way Gary Groves will feel Sunday when he is ordained as a minister of the Christian Church, Disciples of Christ.

Groves

Groves recently received his masters of divinity degree from Brite Divinity School, Texas Christian University, Fort Worth.

His candidacy was approved by the Regional Committee on Ministry of the Christian Church, Disciples of Christ, in the Southwest. He will continue serving as associate minister of Memorial Christian Church, where he has been since October of 1984.

Actually, Sunday's 4 p.m. service marks the end of a venture which began three years ago.

"I've been commuting between Midland and Fort Worth for three years, completing a master of divinity degree at Brite Divinity School," says Groves who officially graduated last weekend.

"My wife has been taking care of our two children while I'm gone for half the week. I've maintained an apartment with two young single men — kind of gone back to college days while trying to maintain my home here in Midland and my ministry work at Memorial Christian Church."

He was one of two students at Brite Divinity School who commuted a long distance.

"We have a number of commuters, but I'm one of two that fly in," Groves says. "A number of individuals will commute in from Waco or Burleson or surrounding metropolitan areas."

Groves' odyssey began some years back when he felt called to the ministry.

"I was an elder in the church," Groves says. "I grew up here in this congregation, as a child, so I have a long history with this church. I felt a call to the ministry and the opportunity provided itself that I could serve in this congregation."

As a licensed minister, Groves could minister to any Christian Church congregation who wanted him, but he didn't have one of the qualifications to become an ordained minister in full-standing in the Christian Church, Disciples of Christ. He lacked a seminary degree.

"I had gone through in my own mind — I can't move, I can't afford school. Then, out of the clear blue comes a family of dear friends who were members of the church who approached me about my desire to go to school. They indicated to me that they would make it possible for me to go if that's what I wanted to do."

Groves secured a scholarship to Brite Divinity School which covered all of the tuition costs. His benefactors made it possible for him to attend without having to move. They covered his additional living expenses and the travel bills.

"This has been a joint venture — it's been an adventure for all of us," Groves says, referring to himself, his family, his benefactors and Memorial Christian Church, which serves as the sponsoring church for his ordination.

The adventure has found him boarding a flight to Dallas Monday nights and returning to Midland Thursday afternoons for three years. He laughs and adds, "I'm sure we've built one of the airline's hangers."

He feels grateful.

"I have been fortunate to have been given the flexibility to do this and to maintain a part-time position with the church as well as having the financial support of benefactors within the congregation that made my schooling possible."

The experience has left him, he says, "very excited and anxious to share what I've learned with this congregation.

"It's going to be a real transition in that both of my daughters can't remember life without going to the airport and me being gone half the week. I have a two-year-old, Kelsey, who doesn't know any other way of life and a 6-year-old, Jenna, who doesn't remember life being any different than taking Daddy to the airport and picking him up on Thursdays."

The public is invited to attend the 4 p.m. service Sunday at Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, and the reception which follows.

"Without Memorial Christian Church's sponsorship, ordination would not be possible at this time," Groves says. "Each candidate for ordination must have a sponsoring church which offers the candidate support and nurturance in many ways."

Perhaps one of the biggest smiles Sunday will be on the face of Groves' wife, Vickie. Although many have sacrificed so that he can achieve this dream, Groves feels his wife has made the greatest sacrifice.

"She has raised two children alone and maintained a household. Even though I have been here on weekends, I have responsibilities at the church so life has been madcap for three years just trying to shuffle around responsibilities and trying to meet them. I've always doubted if I did any of it — ministering, academic responsibilities and responsibilities in the home — as well as I could have."

He pauses and adds, "The responsibility to the home definitely took the brunt of the three-year experience so it makes my wife's contribution to this experience that much more significant."

Baptists' 'holy war' topic of documentary

Bill Moyers' television documentary about a 10-year "holy war" among Southern Baptists, the largest Protestant denomination in the United States, has continued to create debate and response since its first airing on public television in 1987.

As recently as February 1989, the Southern Baptist Executive Committee, controlled now by fundamentalists, charged that the content of the documentary was "biased," and expressed concern about the use of public funds to produce it.

Moyers quickly challenged the action, asking Houston judge Paul Pressler — who organized the fundamentalist protest, and is interviewed in the documentary — to meet jointly before the Executive Committee in June to "compare notes, take questions and discuss these matters in a Christian manner." He has since been informed that no time is available on the agenda of the upcoming meeting, says a release from Public Affairs Television, Inc.

In the interest of continuing the dialogue about the issues discussed in the broadcast, "The Battle for the Bible" is scheduled for an encore presentation at 10 p.m. Sunday on PBS as part of the series, "Moyers: A Second Look," a 13-part retrospective of acclaimed documentaries drawn from Moyers' 18 years in broadcasting at PBS and CBS.

The encore broadcast of "The Battle for the Bible" will feature new introductions and conclusions by Moyers which will address the efforts by Judge Pressler to discredit the program since its original airing in December 1987, the release says.

Moyers says that although Judge Pressler "has declared that he is working for 'the glory of Christ,' it doesn't take a miracle to open one's eyes to the politics. Since the Pressler faction launched its crusade 10 years ago, every president of the Southern Baptist Convention save one has belonged to the American Coalition for Traditional Values, an organization for which a million dollars was raised by a former finance chairman of the Republican Party.

Judge Pressler's son-in-law — once the director of a right-wing organization devoted to exposing liberal professors — now works for President Bush in the White House, as a liason to religious groups. Fundamentalists had placed him on the board of the Baptist Joint Committee for Public Affairs, whose director, James Dun, the fundamentalists are trying to silence...and they are moving to establish in Washington a committee of their own, one that will lobby for the agenda of the Religous Right."

In the original broadcast, Moyers states that "the stakes of this 'holy war' are not only theological, they are also political. The fundamentalist party wants to make one view of the Bible — their view — the test of religious and political truth. For Baptists, that's radical. For America, it's political dynamite, because how Baptists read the Bible affects their votes at the ballot box — and influences such issues as school prayer, abortion, and foreign policy."

In "The Battle for the Bible," Moyers, who was reared as a Southern Baptist himself, returns to his hometown of Marshall, where he remembers the values that pervaded his local Baptist church. He offers a brief history of the denomination, relating how it has grown from a parochial Southern sect into a nationwide influence, with churches in 50 states.

He talks with Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas who is the father figure of the fundamentalist movement within the denomination and who led a campaign to elect fundamentalists into its superstructure; and with Pressler, who has led the movement politically.

"Once you start on the roller coaster of saying that you can superimpose human rationalistic thinking above scripture, and make yourself the judge of scripture, every moral concept — every doctrinal concept — is at the mercy of humanistic, rationalistic thinking of the person who tries to reinterpret scripture to suit himself," Pressler asserts.

On the moderate side are people like Russell Dilday, president of Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth, who believes that the fundamentalist agenda "goes beyond theological issues," and Nancy Hastings Sehested, one of the 450 women who have been ordained in the Southern Baptist church. According to the fundamentalists, women can serve in the church but are prohibited by scripture from exercising authority over men. Sehested sees the fundamentalists as "not being willing to struggle with the real challenge of the gospel, which is to be with the broken and disenfrancised and to offer a word of hope in healing."

Also interviewed is James Dunn, who directs the Baptist Joint Committee for Public Affairs in Washington, D.C. which was created to safeguard the Baptist brithright of religious liberty. The fundamentalists party would prefer that Dunn lobby for a "biblical," or social agenda — such as overturning Supreme Court decisions on abortion and school prayer — and since the original broadcast has cut his budget by 11 percent. Dunn observes: "It's a part of a very big struggle about who ultimately makes decisions about the individual's conduct and future and destiny and course of ordinary life."

The "Battle for the Bible" is the third of 13 programs in "Moyers: A Second Look." Originally the second of three special reports under the title "Moyers: God and Politics," the documentary was originally broadcast Dec. 16, 1987, on PBS.

Scholars writing series on world religions

A team of 30 international scholars under the direction of two professors associated with Temple University has begun work on a major 10-volume series of books on world religions and ideologies in an ambitious effort to promote human understanding.

Inspired by the 1981 United National Declaration on Religious Liberty, the innovative project is expected to be completed by the mid-1990s, and will emphasize aspects of religious traditions that can promote world peace. It is being done under the auspices of the United Nations University in Tokyo and the Temple-based Journal of Ecumenical Studies.

Each volume will be written by scholars from within a religious tradition in collaboration with those from outside the tradition. Efforts will be made to make the books accessible to the general reader, and the series will highlight the role women have played in the development of religion.

Among the contributing scholars are an Apache Indian and a Nigerian scholar who will write sections on indigenous religions. One of the volumes will be devoted to such ideologies as Marxism and secular humanism because the team feels that they function as religions.

Coordinating the project are Dr. Leonard A. Swidler, professor of religion at Temple, and Dr. Paul Mojzes, co-editor of the Journal of Ecumenical Studies and professor of religion at Rosemont College. They will also co-author two volumes in the series.

"We see this as a breakthrough in the teaching of religions and ideologies," Swidler said in a news release from Temple University. "For the first time, these traditions will be presented in the context of real dialogue with each other.

"If we are successful, this project could reshape the way religion is taught throughout the world. We want to offer a sympathetic but critical introduction to world religions.

"The project starts from the realization that on our shrinking globe all these religious and ideological traditions are rubbing shoulders and jostling against each other. We have to learn to talk with each other openly in dialogue if there is to be real peace."

Swidler gave this example of the linkages to other religiouns that the series will make: "Jesus was not the only religious figure who left us a Golden Rule, 'Do unto others...' So did Rabbi Hillel, Confucius, and others. And the tradition of the Christian Saint Josaphat was actually based on the life of Buddha."

Swidler said negotiations are underway with a number of major book publishers interested in publishing the series.

The work of the international team is also being supported by Temple's Institute for Interreligious, Interideological Dialogue.

Charter issued for reforming council

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's largest ecumenical organization, the National Council of Churches, is struggling to overcome an operational and financial crisis and to widen its work for Christian unity.

A proposed charter for that purpose was issued last week by a special action Committee of 15 after six months of work and 35 regional consultations around the country.

The committee's report, was to be considered by the council's governing board of 265 denominational representatives Friday in Lexington, Ky., calls for a reformation of the council's structure and functioning.

The changes "will help our council be a viable entity in the times in which we live," says United Methodist Bishop Melvin G. Talbert of San Francisco, chairman of the reorganization committee.

The council includes most of the nation's mainline Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Churches with memberships totaling 42 million.

Among other things, the plan provides for expanded involvement with Roman Catholics and evangelical bodies, as well as streamlining the council itself into a trimmer framework.

It would fuse a complex, loose-knit array of 11 operational units into three program units — on unity and relationships, witness and service, nuture and discipleship (Christian education). Each unit, including denominational representatives, would have a greater role in its own decision-making, programming and staffing, thereby reducing centralized direction.

This has been a source of recent friction and turmoil in the 39-year-old council.

"Critical problems have too often been papered over rather than named, examined and resolved," says the committee, attributing them to changed situations in the churches and in American culture.

Neither the council "nor even the entire Christian community enjoy or expect the privileged status and moral authority they once took for granted" when the council was formed in 1950, the report says.

It says that not only is religion more pluralistic, but it and the nation are pummeled by racism, sexism, secularism, nationalism and expanding technologies and communications engulfing local communities.

PLEASE RESPOND TO THIS SERIOUS PROBLEM
PETITION #2493
Madalyn Murray O'Hair, an atheist whose efforts successfully eliminated the use of Bible reading and prayer from all public schools 15 years ago, has been granted a Federal hearing in Washington, D.C. on the subject (F.C.C. The Petition, R. M. 249) which would ultimately pave the way to stop the reading of the Gospel on the airways of America. She took her petition, with 27,000 signatures, to back her.
If her attempt is successful (as her last one was), then all Sunday Worship service being broadcast either by radio or television will be stopped.
Madalyn is also campaigning to remove Christmas programs, Christmas songs and carols from the public schools.
You can help this time. We need one million signed letters to show the Federal Communications Commission that there are still many Christians alive, well and CONCERNED in our community.
Sign and mail the form provided. Please do not sign "Mr. and Mrs.", but sign individually. Let each adult sign one separately and send it in. Be sure to put Petition No. 2493 on the lower left-hand corner of the envelope. This is very important.
Please have this letter and petition photo copied and send it to ten people (friends and relatives) who will share our concern.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Thomas to speak at Hollowell UMC

Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St., will celebrate its 43rd year in the Midland community with special services planned for 3 p.m. Sunday.

Thomas

Theme for the celebration is "Hollowell in Retrospect 1946-1989: Experiencing, Sustaining and Sharing God's Love." Speaker for the service is Curtis A. Thomas of Prairie View, a former Hollowell member and resident of Midland.

A native of Lockhart, Thomas came to Midland in 1954 upon being hired by the Midland Independent School District as principal of Carver Junior and Senior High School. He served as principal here until 1968. After 1968, he became registrar at Prairie View A&M University until his retirement in 1982.

Thomas received his education from Sam Houston College, Austin, Prairie View A&M University and The University of Texas at Austin. He was featured in Who's Who in Texas Today in 1968 and Outstanding Educators of America in 1974.

Prior to coming to Midland in 1954, he served in the U.S. Army, was teacher and principal at Roosevelt High School in Luling and was supervisor of instruction at Williamson County Schools.

He and his wife, Lucille, have three grown children.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Hadley R. Edwards, invites the public to attend the celebration.

Texan searches for Israelite treasure

QUMRAN, Israel (AP) — For 21 years, Texan Vendyl Jones has been using the Dead Sea Scrolls like a treasure map to search surrounding desert caves for riches of the Jewish Temple buried by the ancient Israelites.

Among the lost artifacts Jones hopes to recover are the "Ashes of the Red Heifer."

These, according to the Old Testament (Numbers 19) were derived from burning a rare, solid-red cow and using the ashes for purification rites by the ancient Israelite priests.

Many Orthodox Jews and Christian fundamentalists believe that finding the ashes would be a step toward fulfilling the biblical prophesy of rebuilding the Jewish temple on the Temple Mount, currently the site of the Moslem holy shrines known as the Dome of the Rock and Al Aqsa.

"The ashes are the future. This will allow the establishment of the third temple," said Jones, 58, a former Southern Baptist minister from Arlington, Tex.

"To me that's worth 10,000 King Tut tombs," he said, referring to the spectacular ancient Egyptian treasure recovered in 1922 at Luxor.

Rabbi Menachem Burstein, one of a small number of rabbis trained to use the ashes if they are recovered, said the ancient relics would be used to purify Jews so they could enter the Temple Mount without defiling it.

"If it's clear the ashes are authentic, it can help us prepare for building the new temple," he said. "For nearly 2,000 years there haven't been any ashes."

However, any attempt to restore a Jewish temple on the site would be certain to stir tensions throughout the Moslem world.

The Romans destroyed the Second Israelite Temple in 70 A.D. A religious ruling has banned Orthodox Jews from visiting the Temple Mount so they would not walk on the site of the Holy of Holies without being purified.

According to the so-called Copper Scroll, the Ashes of the Red Heifer were buried in the first century A.D. along with other temple treasures by the mystical Essenes sect, who hid the Dead Sea Scrolls in the same desert caves to avoid plundering by the advancing Romans.

The Copper Scroll is one of the Dead Sea Scrolls written by the ancient Essenes and discovered in a cave in Qumran in 1952.

Among the Temple treasures it says were buried with the Ashes of the Red Heifer were gold, silver, the vestments of the high priests, the balsam oil used to annoint the Israelite kings and the original Israelite tabernacle built by Moses and Aaron.

By carefully deciphering the document, etched in Hebrew on three pieces of copper measuring nearly eight feet in length, Jones believes he has been able to locate the cave where the Temple treasures are buried.

"The scroll is filled with descriptions. It's like following a treasure map," said Jones, who began his quest in 1968.

"The scroll says that on the way from Jericho to the biblical town of Secacah, in the Wadi of the Dome, there lies...a cave with two openings separated by a large column," said Jones, who studied Judaism at an ultra-Orthodox seminary in Jerusalem. "It says this is the cave where the treasures are buried."

Pepper's condition worsens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The condition of Rep. Claude D. Pepper, the oldest member of Congress, worsened Friday and a friend described him as "in very serious condition."

Pepper, the 88-year-old chairman of the House Rules Committee, has been hospitalized since April 6 with an undisclosed stomach ailment.

"He's pretty weak, but he's not in pain or anything," said Bob Smith, a friend and aide to the Florida Democrat.

Pepper's office issued a statement saying, "Congressman Claude Pepper's condition has worsened overnight. He continues to rest comfortably at Walter Reed Army Medical Center."

Pepper, of Miami, recently received treatment at the Johns Hopkins University Hospital in Baltimore but was transferred back to Walter Reed on Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — John F. Kennedy Jr. got his law degree Friday from New York University.

"I'm very happy it's over," Kennedy said as he posed for photographs with his mother, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, and his sister, Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg.

"I'm looking forward to taking the bar this summer and following in my sister's footsteps," said Kennedy, who will work in the Manhattan district attorney's office.

His 31-year-old sister graduated from Columbia University Law School last year and was notified earlier this month that she passed the state bar examination on her first try.

Kennedy, 28, was among 713 graduates honored during a ceremony at the Felt Forum. Asked how he would celebrate, he replied with a grin, "I can't tell you that."

• • •

OAK PARK, Mich. (AP) — Gov. James Blanchard didn't know Lake Erie is the warmest of the Great Lakes. And he was off a few hundred years in his estimate of when the first European explorers found the lakes.

But the kids at Avery Elementary School didn't mind. They had other questions for Blanchard on Great Lakes Education Day.

The 19 fourth-graders were most impressed Thursday when the 46-year-old governor recounted his first experience with the 700-foot-high Sleeping Bear Dunes along Lake Michigan.

"My mother said, 'Don't run down the hill...you'll break your neck,'" the governor said. "So I ran down the hill and almost broke my neck."

Blanchard also kept the kids' attention when he told of flying in a helicopter over the Great Lakes and tracing their shorelines.

• • •

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music star Willie Nelson will receive a humanitarian award June 20 from the Nashville chapter of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

Nelson has organized benefit concerts in the past few years to help financially ailing American farmers.

The academy announced Thursday that Nelson will be honored at a black tie gala that will feature tributes from Roger Miller, Johnny Cash, the band Asleep at the Wheel and others.

Nelson is known for hit records such as "On the Road Again" and "Always on My Mind."

• • •

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Soul singer James Brown got back to his jail routine Friday after spending a day in New York testifying before a grand jury.

Brown was taken to Albany, N.Y., from the State Park Correctional Center on Wednesday and was returned to South Carolina on Thursday night, state Department of Corrections spokesman Francis X. Archibald said.

The New York Post reported Friday that the grand jury was probing a possible tax evasion case against the Rev. Al Sharpton, a New York City black activist who became widely known as an adviser to Tawana Brawley, a teen-ager who claimed to have been raped by several white men.

Although a spokesman in the state attorney general's office refused to confirm either the probe or Brown's participation, Sharpton himself acknowledged it Friday, calling it a "fishing expedition."

Brown, known as the "godfather of soul," is serving a six-year sentence for aggravated assault and failing to stop for police during a car chase across the Georgia-South Caroina border in September.

• • •

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Divorce proceedings that started out nasty ended quietly for New Orleans jazz trumpeter Al Hirt and his third wife, Zide Jahncke Hirt.

State Civil District Judge Robin M. Giarrusso granted the divorce Thursday on grounds the two had lived apart for more than a year. The judge ruled the parties were "mutually at fault" for the breakup.

Mrs. Hirt, who has moved to California, sued for separation in October 1987, claiming Hirt beat and sexually attacked her. Hirt denied it, saying she hit him with a stick.

The two were married in March 1984. It was the fourth marriage for Mrs. Hirt.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alex Haley, author of "Roots," has set up a fellowship to fund artists in eight disciplines for the next four years.

He will provide $2,500 annually to be matched by state funds, Tennessee Arts Commission chairman Eleanor Barger said Thursday.

The disciplines are crafts, dance, literature, still photography, music composition, vocal music, theater and visual arts.

The first group of fellowship winners will be announced in July.

Haley was raised in Henning, Tenn.

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office on Friday refused to comment on a U.S. magazine report that she keeps her looks by taking electrically charged baths, but London's tabloids plunged into the story.

"Indian Guru Keeps Her Switched On — Maggie's Bathtime Secrets" screamed a bold Daily Mirror headline. "The Switched-On Prime Minister's Amazing Secret," said the Daily Express.

The newspapers quoted a story in Vanity Fair magazine as saying that Mrs. Thatcher visits an Indian woman practitioner of an ancient therapy called Ayurveda.

The magazine said the prime minister pays about $960 a session for treatments inkluding mud therapy, natural herbs and oils and the baths, which are charged with 0.3 amps of electricity.

Asked about the reports, a spokesman for the prime minister's offices, said, "We're not saying anything about it at all because it's a personal matter. That's as far as it goes."

The Daily Express reported it had discovered the Indian woman who was not identified in Vanity Fair. It identified her as a woman named Veronique who lived in a three-story Victorian semi-detached house in Shepherd's Bush, west London.

One of Britain's more serious newspapers, The Guardian, quoted from the Vanity Fair profile, calling it in a headline a "Shock Revelation On The Source of Mrs. T's Vigor."

Panamanian employees of embassy detained

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Police on Friday detained 17 Panamanians employed to provide security at U.S. embassy offices, but 15 were quickly released, U.S. officials reported.

The government said the security guards were questioned as part of an investigation into violence May 10 when three opposition candidates in the national elections were beaten by paramilitary forces.

The 17 detained work for Tesna Protective Services, an American firm that operates in Panama under the name Minsa. The company provides by contract 87 employees who serve as security personnel for U.S. diplomatic offices. They are not employees of the U.S. Embassy.

A bodyguard of opposition vice presidential candidate Guillermo Ford was killed in the May 10 violence, and another bodyguard was seriously wounded. Killed was Alexis Guerra, a Minsa employee who was on leave from the company.

The wounded man, Humberto Montenegro, had been employed by Minsa until early this year when he resigned to work as Ford's bodyguard.

The government, controlled by Defense Forces commander Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, has said five Defense Force troopers were injured in the deadly melee that occurred on the day the government nullified the May 7 elections.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Terence Kneebone said the government was attempting to link the May 10 attacks to the embassy and he called it "propaganda foolishness."

A communique issued Friday night by the attorney general's office accused the U.S. Embassy of lying to the media about the detention of the 17 Minsa employees and claimed it presented the detentions as harassment.

The statement also said "high authorities" of the U.S. Embassy assigned Guerra and Montenegro to guard Ford. It claimed the two men and other Minsa guards were trained in the use of arms and explosives by U.S. military units stationed in Panama.

Kneebone said both allegations were false.

He said most of the 17 were detained as they were beginning or ending their shifts. Others received telephone calls advising them to report to police headquarters and they presented themselves voluntarily, he said.

Kneebone identified the two Minsa employees being held as Alfonso Marino, chief supervisor of the security detail, and Marisabel Marino de Anguizola, wife of the owner of Tesna Protective Services and Marino's sister.

The spokesman said the embassy was conferring with the 15 who were released.

Tesna, a branch of DOD Contracts Inc., of Columbus, Ohio, has a contract to provide security for U.S. embassy offices and employees.

Kneebone said the the embassy is the sole client of Minsa, which employs 87 Panamanians as guards, supervisors and office staff.

The government communique said Guerra and Montenegro were carrying arms and fired them during the May 10 incident.

Also Friday, the pro-Noriega news media attacked the Organization of American States, saying it had prostituted itself in approving a resolution critical of Panama.

The newspaper Critica printed a half-page cartoon on Friday showing a naked Oscar Arias, president of Costa Rica and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, licking the feet of a U.S. Army general. Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez was shown waiting his turn to do the same.

Peruvian bus crash kills 50

HUANCAYO, Peru (AP) — A bus tumbled 90 feet down an embankment and landed upside down in a river in the Andes mountains Friday, killing at least 50 people and injuring about 11, police said.

Authorities said the 52-seat bus, overloaded with extra passengers picked up along the way, had left Lima on a route taking it through winding mountain roads to the city of Huancayo, 140 miles east.

Officials with the Republican Guard, the police unit sent to the disaster site, said that only passengers crammed into the aisle were known to have survived.

Passenger Nelly Suarez said the accident occurred when the driver slammed on his brakes to avoid a pile of construction material blocking a bridge over the Mantaro River.

The bus never made it to the bridge, falling off the embankment and landing upside down in the water.

Mrs. Suarez escaped with minor injuries but her husband and 9-month-old baby were killed. The family got on the bus just outside Lima and had to stand in the aisle.

State official Abilio Fernandez said after visiting the accident site that construction materials had been left at both ends of the bridge to close it off while it was being repaired.

Army and police rescue crews were called in. The injured were sent to a hospital in nearby Jauja.

Iran suing U.S. over airliner

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Iran is suing the United States in the World Court for financial compensation for the 290 people killed when the USS Vincennes shot down an Iranian airliner, a court official said Friday.

Tehran's move came less than a year after the Iran Air jet was hit by two American missiles and exploded thousands of feet above the Persian Gulf. All passengers and crew perished in the July 3, 1988, incident.

Iran's fundamentalist government has asked the court to rule that "the government of the United States is responsible to pay compensation to the Islamic Republic, to the amount to be determined by the court, as measured by the injuries suffered by the Islamic Republic and the bereaved families."

A copy of Iran's request, which was filed Wednesday, was obtained by The Associated Press.

Iran did not provide an estimate of the damage suffered, according to E. Safavi, a spokesman for the Iranian Embassy in The Hague.

At the time of the incident, President Reagan offered compensation to relatives of the victims, but he ruled out any role for the Iranian government in settling damage claims.

It was not immediately known whether the Bush Administration was planning to take part in the proceedings.

Thomas Hodges, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy here, said, "A copy of the Iranian application was sent to the secretary of state in Washington where it is being studied." He declined further comment.

On Friday, the World Court was considering when to proceed with the case. Hearings do not begin until arguments have been filed in writing — a process that usually takes months.

The World Court is the judicial branch of the United Nations. Officially known as the International Court of Justice, it has no enforcement powers and depends on voluntary adherence to its rulings.

The crew of the Vincennes erroneously identified an Iranian passenger Airbus plane as an Iranian air force F-14 fighter plane and shot it down.

Iran's application to the World Court charges the United States has violated an international treaty on terrorism against airplanes — the 1971 Geneva Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts Against the Safety of Civil Aviation.

It is the second case in a decade pitting the United States against Iran at the World Court.

Ten years ago, the Carter administration filed suit against Iran over the fate of 55 American diplomats held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran — the affair which made Washington break relations with Tehran.

Iran, which did not appear in court, was ordered to immediately release the hostages. Tehran ignored the ruling. The hostages ultimately were freed in January 1980 after an elaborate deal was negotiated with the help of Algeria.

The United States withdrew from proceedings in the other major World Court case in which it was involved in 1984, when Nicaragua sought a halt to U.S. support for the rebels known as Contras.

Only days before the complaint was filed, the Reagan administration canceled its acceptance of World Court jurisdiction in Central American affairs. The court sided with the Sandinista government two years later.

Only 49 of the 159 U.N. member nations have accepted the court's authority as compulsory in settling conflicts between states. The United States is one of them.

OVER 50

You can help yourself by helping others

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

The young man, a bachelor in his early 30s, was troubled as he stated his problem. "My mother is 72," he said. "My father died last year and now she doesn't seem to know what to do with herself."

Rosenthal

How often have you heard a similar complaint? A spouse dies and the survivor of the long-term marriage is left alone in a world that suddenly seems strange and frightful. Some people manage magnificently, taking hold of their lives and tackling problems they never faced before.

For others, it seems their reason for being has been lost. Their partner is gone; they don't know what to do with themselves.

In this particular instance, the woman is a retired school teacher. Her health is fine. Her mind, eyesight and hearing are acute. She has no special financial worries. But her apartment has become a prison. She is there alone, no one but herself to care for, without much reason to go anywhere or do anything.

The answer is obvious: Do something for others. Volunteer, get involved. There is no shortage of need.

This column recently discussed get-off-your-duff programs that pair at-risk youth with older adults. But the man said teaching kids is what his mother had done all her working life. What else was there?

Plenty. The federal government sponsors senior volunteer programs in which 400,000 people over 60 take part, but that's a blip on the screen. Millions, literally, are involved in some sort of activity to help others, and there's always room for one more.

It wasn't always that way. The change is partly because people today stay healthier longer, live longer and retire earlier. but mostly it's a change in attitude toward "productive aging."

"As recently as 20 years ago there was an accepted view by society and by older people themselves that, for the most part, the aged were frail and in need of services and support, and that their productive years were behind them," says the publication Ageing International. "In short, the aged were seen as a 'problem' rather than as a 'solution.'"

The federal programs, administered by a volunteer agency called Action, include the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, the Foster Grandparent program--in which 23,000 seniors take part--and the Senior Companion Program. There is a VISTA, a program requiring a full-year, full-time commitment in which 600 seniors take part.

Also, the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), supported by the Small Business Administration, makes well-honed skills available to small enterprises, public and private. There is also the National Executive Service Corps that helps small organizations in the community.

For real excitement, there is the Peace Corps, which placed 450 senior volunteers all over the world. A program called Family Friends has seniors helping families whose members include a child with special needs. AARP has many programs.

"The value and importance of productive aging to older people and to society is gaining acceptance," say authors Helen K. Kerschner and Frances F. Butler in Ageing International. "Today senior volunteers are assisting emotionally disturbed and retarded children; they work with the handicapped and the frail elderly; they help young mothers assume the responsibilities of parenting; they work in libraries, museums and civic centers.

"They lend a helping hand to the poor, the sick and the homeless; they provide expertise in planning and management; they teach crafts and technical skills; and they share the experiences of their lives with younger generations."

There are demonstrated health benefits to doing good for others. It can increase life expectancy and vitality and health. And one more thing: If every American over 65 volunteered only one hour a week, that would amount to 1.5 billion hours. Translated into monetary terms, at the current minimum wage of $3.35 an hour, that's a value of almost $5 billion a year.

(Readers may write Harry F. Rosenthal at: The Associated Press, 50 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10020. Letters of general interest may be used in future columns but unpublished letters cannot be answered individually.)

Grant program helps MCT 'reach out' to others

Have you wished you could see a show at Midland Community Theatre but you can't afford it and you haven't got a way to get there? A grant from the Abell-Hangar Foundation is making it possible for the handicapped or disadvantaged to see theatrical productions for free.

The new program is called Reach Out! Tickets to a Sunday matinee of each of the eight membership shows are available for people who cannot ordinarily attend the theatre. Since transportation is a problem for many people, a driver, friend or relative who makes it possible to get to the theatre will also be admitted free.

Organizations such as the Texas Commission for the Blind, Casa de Amigos, Midland Senior Center and the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children are contacted by theatre staff for reservations, but individuals may make reservations. People who are not disadvantaged or handicapped pay regular price for tickets to the matinee.

The next Reach Out! production will be the drama "Orphans," Sunday, June 11 at 2:30 p.m. in the smaller Mabee Theatre II. "Orphans" is a chilling drama, rated Adult because of language. Directed by Educational Theatre director Mike Kase, the challenging script deals with two orphaned brothers who have their own unique way of getting along in a rough world. Eyes of Texas Clinic and Surgery Center, John H. Sheets Associated, P.A., is co-sponsoring the Reach Out! performance of "Orphans."

Reach Out! began with MCT's first membership show of 1989, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." All 515 seats in the theatre were used for that first matinee. In 1988 a program called Special Friends was started; in which individuals and companies provided theatre memberships through various Midland agencies. Charlotte Windecker headed Special Friends, giving 19 full theatre memberships to individuals recommended by area agencies. The memberships were so well-used that the idea for Reach Out! was developed.

Midland Community Theatre is handicapped-accessible and curb-ramped. A new Infra-red Listening System can be reserved for the hearing-impaired. There are 24 cordless headsets which can be rented during a show for fifty cents each. Theatre rules require that a credit card or license be left at the box office while the headset is used.

For more information about Reach Out!, call MCT's box office at 682-4111.

Volunteer opportunities

Share your lifetime experience. The Volunteer Center has many opportunities that can be filled by seniors. Here are just a few of the jobs currently available.

There is a desperate need for volunteers to assist with the delivery of meals to the homebound. Deliveries are made daily between 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. Commitments of once a month to several times a month are most welcomed.

Enjoy meeting people? Help an agency provide a worthwhile service to senior citizens. Register individuals to receive a discount on goods and services from local businesses. Registration locations vary from banks to malls to grocery stores. Two or four hour shifts, Monday through Friday, are open.

Make a difference without leaving your home. Several agencies have an ongoing need for volunteers to answer community hotlines or to make brief daily phone calls to the homebound. Training is provided.

Handy with woodcrafts? A volunteer is needed to present simple woodworking projects (bird feeders, dollhouses, models, etc.) to senior citizens. This class is scheduled for one day a week between 10:00 and 11:00 a.m. You pick the weekday to suit your timetable and materials are provided. This is perfect for the retired handyman or crafts enthusiast.

For more information on how you can volunteer, please call the Volunteer Center at 697-8781.

MIDLAND COLLEGE

Things are relatively quiet on the campus this week, but they'll get much busier in the near future with the start of Summer I classes. Monday is the final day to come in for a time permit for Summer I registration. Official registration is Thursday from 2-4 p.m. and 6-9 p.m. in the Physical Education Building. Those who come in for time permits are given specific time periods to report for registration. If you don't get a time permit, you will have to come between 6-8 p.m. to be processed.

Summer I classes begin Tuesday, May 30, and end July 6. Summer classes meet daily Monday through Thursday, usually for an hour and 50 minutes each session. Some classes do have labs.

If you are thinking about college but have never attended, summer is a good time to get started. This year there's a special benefit to enrolling for summer classes. Persons who have taken and passed three hours in college don't have to take the TASP (Texas Academic Skills Program) exam prior to their junior year. Starting this fall, those who haven't taken a class will be required to take the TASP at some point.

For information about Summer I classes, just visit the Student Services Office Monday between 7 a.m.-5 p.m. or call 685-4501.

Also scheduled this week is the registration for Kids' College at Midland College. It will be in the P.E. Building Wednesday, but is being handled by time permit this year to solve some of the waiting problems encountered in the past.

Continuing Education Department courses resume the week of May 28, with some really exciting programs. Pick up a bulletin or call 685-4518 for details about these non-credit offerings which can perk up your interest during a time of dull summer re-runs.

REFLECTING UPON OUR LOVED ONES...

Honor and remember your absent loved ones with a special message this Memorial Day.

"In Memorium"

The memory of a great love is kept green forever. -Anon.

TO MOTHER
We do not forget her,
We love her too dearly
For her memory to fade
From our lives like a dream.
Our lips need not speak
When our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells
Where it seldom is seen.
Love, Your Children

1X1 $8.88

HUSBAND
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts we love him still,
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away,
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone.
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
We Miss You
Your Wife and Children

1x2 $13.70

FOR OUR YOUNG SON
Oh, say not that our little son is dead;
Believe instead,
That he has left his little trundle bed
To climb the hills,
Of morning, and to share the joy that fills
God's pleasant land of dreams.
Mommy & Daddy

2x2 $26.72

TO OUR SON WHO SERVED HIS COUNTRY PROUDLY

1935-1965

Greater love hath no man than
To lay down his life for friends.
His kindness did not cease until
The day of dawn, April 9th, 1965
Now memory lingers to us
That are left to remember.
