9-1-1 Personnel Honored For 1st Years Service

Helde Airedendo with the Concho Valley Council of Governments recognized the Schleicher County law enforcement agency with jackets after the first year's service of 9-1-1. Training has been provided for the dispatchers, jailers and deputy's.

Emergency calls come in through the 9-1-1 line into a console that can identify the number of the caller. After the number is identified, a cross reference is then used to find the location of the caller. Through the efforts of 9-1-1, the response time is much faster for an incoming emergency call. The personnel of the Schleicher County Sheriff's Department are in agreement that 9-1-1 really works.

Citizens are urged to dial 9-1-1 in an emergency. (Please keep in mind that this is an emergency number and should not be used for play.)

SCMC Hires New Doctor

Dr. John Storey, a Family Practitioner from Pottsboro, Texas, will begin practice in Eldorado the first of August.

William Edmiston, chairman, De Lux and Jim Blum were on a search committee to help find a doctor. This committee has spent much time and effort in finding a new doctor for Eldorado.

According to a National Study done by the Minnesota Hospital Association, the average cost for a rural community in finding a doctor is $23,000 and the average time is 26 months. Thanks to the efforts of this committee, the SCMC was able to hire a doctor in only four months. Jim Blum spent many week-ends visiting other communities and sent out over 1700 mailings to doctors across the state informing them of the position available in Eldorado.

We salute the effort and hard work of this committee and welcome Dr. Storey to Eldorado.

TOP OF THE DIVIDE

by Thomas Giovannitti

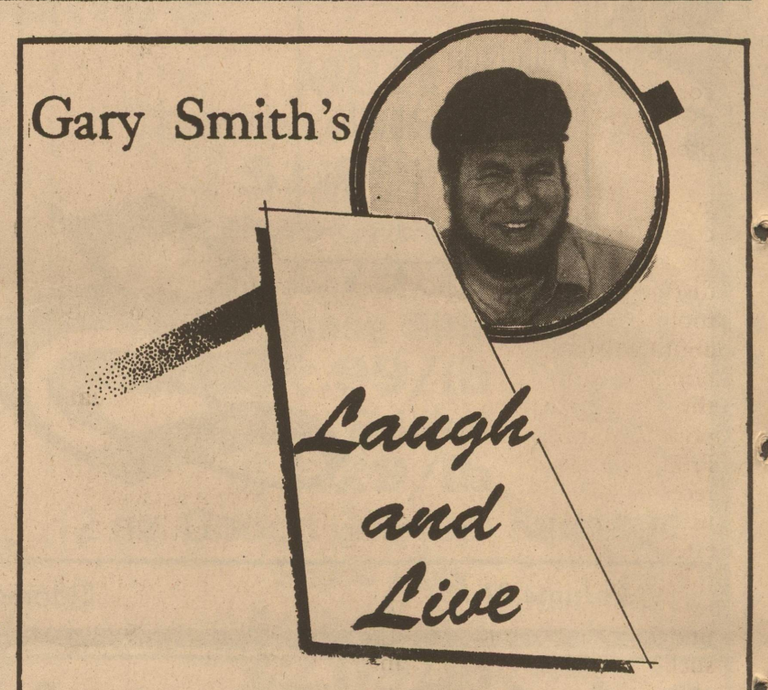

My family and I have resisted the urge to purchase the triple cast coverage of the Olympics. I think that was a good decision. NBC is already blanketing the air waves with considerable coverage that ought to satisfy the most avid of sports fans.

The U.S basketball team had a bit of scare, with two of its million dollar players out with injury they could only manage a 33 point win margin over Croatia. (Croatia was once part of Yugoslavia.) I realize that a lot of fans want to see the "Dream Team" but the games lack suspense.

Our swimmers seem to be on again off again but four being fourteen they are doing pretty well. One young lady only managed a bronze metal at the ripe old age of fourteen and she cried. Of course she cried. She had every right to cry. Just being in such a meet at fourteen would be reason enough to get a little emotional.

They did show, very late at night, a U.S. Greco Roman wrestler, who is one match away from a possible gold medal.

Now, I realize that Greco Roman wrestling is not that popular a sport in west Texas but it is one of the original sports of the original Olympics. That is where the Greco in Roman comes from. Unlike the popular World Federation of Wrestling on television there are no masked villains or caped warriors just men who have a keen interest in testing themselves against other men. This type of wrestling requires each wrestler to make all of his holds or moves only against the upper part of his body and the body of his opponent. I know this does not sound interesting and it probably isn't except to people who have participated in this sport. In fact it isn't very exciting unless you are either related to the wrestler or you have ever competitively wrestled. I was amazed by the dedication and zeal of this American who has toiled long and hard to return to the Olympics in a sport where the most he can ever hope for is to coach at some college or high school. This young man is what the Olympics should be all about, in fact, what all competitive sports should be about.

Loyalty to perified opinion never yet broke a chain or freed a human soul.
Mark Twain

The Eldorado Golf Club Championship Tournament is being held this week-end. It has been reported (by a very reliable source)that last years Champion, Mighty Micky Rathbone will not be playing in this years event. The field will not lack talent, however. We expect such local stars as Gary Smith, Grandslam Gary Warnock, Gary Smith, Lightning Leroy Reeves, Gary Smith, Driven' David Hill and of course, the ever popular, Gary Smith.

My overwhelming sense of modesty and humility prevent me from pointing out that I, Gary Smith, won this event several years ago. Unfortunately, I am not playing as well as I was back then and do not expect to win this year.

I have decided that this match would be fairer if it were made into a handicap tournament. The handicap that I would propose for everyone would be to play with one hand. This seems fair. I have heard that David Hill would like for everyone to play dumb, but this just doesn't seem right to me.

My favorite for this year's tournament is Bob Bland. Bob has the best swing I have seen around here. Ronnie Sauer plays remarkably well for a man of his age and John Cartwright would be great if it wasn't for his limited ability.

Raymond Wilson won two years ago. If he is playing well, he will be hard to beat.

Jo Ed "The Wolf" Hill, who has just about mastered the fading skull shot, has been putting like a pro.

Bill "The South Paw" Freitag has a good chance for being in the top three left-handed players.

Several years ago, I was playing in Iraan. I was about to hit over a water hole and could not decide if I should use a new ball or an old ball.

Suddenly, I heard a voice, "USE A NEW BALL." I teed it up. Voice said, "TAKE A PRACTICE SWING." I took a practice swing.

Voice said,"TAKE ANOTHER PRACTICE SWING."

I took another practice swing.

Voice said,"USE AN OLD BALL."

Well, gotta go. It's time to take a few practice swings.

County Agent's Report

With flea season right around the corner, it's time to review some of the "less-toxic" options for flea control. Without getting into a debate over the safety of conventional insecticides, I think it worthwhile to review some of the alternative flea control approaches available today.

Regardless of whether you decide to use "less-toxic" treatments or conventional insecticides, the steps for managing flea problems around the home remain the same: 1.) sanitation; 2.) pet treatment; 3.) premise treatment; and 4.) follow-up. The difference lies in the tools available to do the job. Let's look at each step in order.

Sanitation. When fleas are a problem in the house, the good housekeeper must become even better. Fleas lay eggs that drop off the animal and into carpet, bedding, furniture, or on the floor. These eggs then hatch into small, legless larvae which feed on the dried blood that drops continually from a flea-infested pet. Thorough vacuuming with a good, beater-type vacuum removes 15-30 percent of the larvae and 30-60 percent of the eggs from carpeting. In addition, vacuuming helps remove some of the flea larva's food supply and, by causing the carpet to stand erect, helps achieve better penetration of the carpet by insecticide sprays. When vacuuming, pay special attention to areas where the pet spends a lot of time. These are the sites most likely to harbor eggs, larvae, and the blood that larvae require. don't neglect to vacuum under furniture cushions, chairs and beds, and along the edges of walls, favored breeding sites. Also, be sure to discard your vacuum cleaner bag at least once a week. Fleas will continue to develop inside a vacuum cleaner bag and can reinfest the house.

Pet Treatment. This is best done by a veterinarian. Your veterinarian knows what can be safely used on your pet and can supply you with materials to do it at home as well. Two types of newer and safer insecticides for flea control on pets include methoprene and citrus-based products.

County Agents Report

Methoprene is an insect growth regulator, a man-made copy of a naturally-occuring insect hormone that can disrupt an insect's ability to molt from one life stage to another. Many readers may be familiar with methoprene as the active ingredient in a popular indoor insecticide, Precor®. Methoprene has recently been reformulated for use directly on the pet and is effective in killing flea eggs as they drop off the animal. This new formulation is sold under various trade names such as Ovitrol®, Fleaban® and Petcor®. Because methoprene is ineffective in killing fully grown fleas, it is usually mixed with a short-lived, low-toxicity insecticide, such as pyrethrum.

Linalool and d-limonene are two chemicals found in nature as constituents of citrus oil. Applied to fleas they are deadly. These products have a pleasant, citrus-like smell and can be found in several different pet sprays. They are low in toxicity to pets and humans, and control all life stages of the flea on contact. On the down side, they kill only when sprayed directly on the flea and don't kill fleas that later get on the pet. Ask your veterinarian about the availability of these products for treating your pet.

Premise Treatments. In addition to treating the pet, the house or yard must be sprayed at the same time. This is particularly important when using products with little or no residual activity, such as pyrethrum and citrus oil products. Indoors, citrus oil products, such as Demize®, can be applied to rugs, carpeting, and pet resting areas. Again, these products do not leave any residual, so follow-up sprays are essential.

Boron-based products, such as disodium octaborate tetrahydrate, are also being marketed for flea control. Chemically similar to the boric acid used for roach control, these materials are relatively low in toxicity to man and act as a stomach poison for immature fleas. Boron-based products do not kill adult fleas, only the larvae. Despite their supposed safety, I would caution against use of dust formulations that are applied dry to carpets. Dust in carpets can become airborne and contaminate furniture and food preparation surfaces. Shampoo-based formulations that are applied to the carpet would be preferred.

Outdoors, product choice is more limited. Methoprene, which is so effective indoors, breaks down too quickly in sunlight to make it a useful outdoor product. Inquire with your pest control operator about another insect growth regulator, Torus®. This product has the effectiveness and low toxicity of methoprene, while being relatively stable under outdoor conditions.

Diatomaceous earth (d.e.), widely promoted as a safe outdoor flea control, was evaluated as a flea insecticide at the Texas A&M Center at Dallas this past summer. Our laboratory studies suggest that d.e. is unlikely to provide practical or satisfactory flea control under normal use conditions in residential lawns. Only under dry conditions and at very high rates, did diatomaccous earth produce significant flea mortality. The recommended practice of applying d.e. as a light dust or spraying surfaces with a suspension of d.e. in water gave no effective control of fleas in this study.

This leaves us with few effective alternatives to conventional insecticides outdoors. Insecticide use can be reduced greatly, however, by applying pesticides only where flea larvae are most likely to occur. Avoid treating the sunny, open areas of the yard. Instead concentrate teatments on pet bedding areas, areas under decks and shrubbery, and other sites where the pet spends considerable amounts of time. These sites are where both larval and adult fleas are most likely to occur.

Follow-up. Follow-up treatments are usually necessary for fleas, especially when insecticides with little or no staying-power are used. The flea pupa, the intermediate form of the flea between the larval and adult life stages, is well protected from the effects of pesticide sprays and very difficult to kill, even with conventional insecticides. Because of this, flea pupae provide the seed for a second "wave" of fleas that can invade the home after a first treatment has been made. The pupal stage normally lasts 7-14 days, but can persist for much longer periods under certain conditions. A follow-up treatment with a pyrethrum- or citrus oil-based spray (or a standard insecticide, if you wish) is usually necessary 5-10 days after the first application.

One final word of caution. Don't wait until fleas get out of hand to begin a flea control program. Start a frequent and thorough sanitation program, inspect your pet for fleas on a regular basis, and follow the label directions of whatever product you choose to treat with. Do this and enjoy the benefits of safe flea control!!

Health News

by Dr. Rico J. Forlano

Lyme disease is rare but most of us have heard about it. You can get Lyme disease, but only a few species carry it.

There are some signs that you should look for if you get bitten by a tick. Three days to a month after getting bitten you might see a red dot which expands to look like a bulls eye; the red dot is not painful but it may be itchy. Along with the rash there are flu like symptoms such as: fatigue, headaches, fever, chills, and an achy body. These symptoms disappear after a week or two even without treatment. After this, about 20% of the people will show up with nerve damage such as: temporary paralysis, burning, tingling and numbness of the skin, irregular heart beat, and heart palpitations. The nerve symptoms usually last only a few weeks. About a half of all the untreated patients develop arthritis one month to two years after the bite. The arthritis usually affects the larger joints of the body especially the knees. The symptoms of arthritis usually last a few weeks at a time on and off for several years, then they disappear. Ten percent of the people live with the arthritic symptoms for life.

Lyme disease is rare in this part of the country. If you have a tick on you, you should grab the head of the tick as close to the skin as possible and pull upward steadily, never grab the stomach of the tick.

If you suspect you have Lyme disease contact your doctor immediately. If they find that you have Lyme disease, they will probably treat it with a three week course of antibiotics.

School Lunch Rules

by Mildred Phillips

School lunches need to be paid in the cafeteria in the mornings between 7:30 and 9:00 a.m.

Students cannot pay for more than one day in the lunch line. Charges also need to be paid in the mornings and not in the lunch line.

If you need to send money with a child to pre-pay their lunch, a simple method is to place the money and or check in an envelope with the child's name, grade and teacher's name on the outside and encourage the child to bring it into the cafeteria as soon as they arrive at school. One check can be made to cover several children, just list each child's name with the above information for each child.

Lunch tickets may be purchased in the cafeteria this year form Monday, August 10th through Thursday, August 13th, or on the first day of school. This will help cut down on the long line of parents who are pre-paying the first day of school. Those four days, you may pay any time of the day from 8:00 a.m. until 12:00 p.m. and from 1:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m.

National School Lunch Program

The Schleicher County I.S.D. school serves meals each school day. Children may buy lunch for K-4 for $1.10; 5-8 for $1.20; and 9-12 for $1.30; and breakfast for 50¢. Adult teachers may buy lunch for $1.75 and guests may buy lunch for $3.45. Children may also get meals free or at a reduced price.

If you now get food stamps or AFDC for your children, your children can get free meals. If your total household income is the same or less than the amounts on the income chart below, your children can get free meals or reduced price meals. A foster child may get free or reduced price meals regardless of your income. The reduced price is 40¢ for lunch and 25¢ for breakfast.

To get free or reduced price meals for your children, you must complete an application and return it to the school. We cannot approve an application that is not complete.

How To Apply

If you now get food stamps or AFDC for the child you are applying for, the application must have the child's name, a food stamp or AFDC case number for that child, and the signature of an adult household member.

If you are applying for a foster child, the application must have the child's "personal use" income, and an adult signature.

If you do not list a food stamp or AFDC case number for the child you are applying for, then the application must have the child's name, the names all household members, the amount of income each person got last month and where it came from, the signature of an adult household member and that adult's social security number or the word "none" if the adult does not have a social security number.

INCOME CHART

Household Size	Annual	Monthly	Weekly
1	12,599	1,050	243
2	17,002	1,417	327
3	21,405	1,784	412
4	25,808	2,151	497
5	30,211	2,518	581
6	34,614	2,885	666
7	39,017	3,252	751
8	43,420	3,619	835
For each additional member add	+4,420	+367	+85

Verification: Your eligibility may be checked at any time during the school year. School officials may ask you to send paper showing that your children should get free or reduced price meals.

Fair Hearing: You may talk to school officials if you do not agree with the school's decision on your application or the results of verification. You may also ask for a fair hearing. You may do this by calling or writing: Scott Barton, Superintendent, P.O. Box W, Eldorado, Tx. 76936. Phone number - (915) 853-2514.

Reporting Changes: If your children get free or reduced price meals because of your income, you must tell the school if your household size decreases or your income increases by more than $50 per month or $600 per year. If your children get meals because you get food stamps or AFDC, you must tell the school when you are not getting AFDC or food stamps for them. You may then fill out another application giving income information.

Confidentiality: School officials use the information on the application only to decide if your children should get free or reduced price meals.

Reapplication: You may apply for meals anytime during the school year. If you are not eligible now but have a change in status, like a decrease in household income, an increase in household size, become unemployed or get food stamps or AFDC for your children, you may then complete an application.

Handicapped: Meal substitutions at not additional cost for children who meet the definition of "handicapped" will be served, provided a physician has submitted a statement attesting to this fact and prescribing a substitute.

In the operation of the child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, national origin, age or handicap. If you believe you have been discriminated against, write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

You will be notified when your application is approved or denied.
