Jim Cornish of the Post Dispatch stopped by this desk the other day and left us one of the catalogs for the annual OS Ranch Steer Roping and Art Exhibit, which is set this year for Oct. 2-3.

This has become a major weekend for artists and ropers from just about the length and breadth of the country, and it benefits West Texas Boys Ranch. The catalog itself is a collector's item and Cornish left a few of them with Rex Robinson at Snyder National Bank where they are for sale at $4 each.

"You'll find a lot of goodies in the catalog," said Cornish. "As for the steer roping, this will be one for the record as it will be the richest steer roping ever held in the world, according to Jim Prather. Each of the 35 entrants will put $1,000 into the jackpot for a total of $35,000 and then $10,000 will be added to make a total of $45,000. The winner of the average, besides a buckle and hand-tooled saddle, will take home $15,000 cash, plus whatever else he may win for having any of the top three times in each of the four rounds."

In addition, the works of artists all the way from California and Montana to Texas and New York, will be included in the exhibit at the OS. The catalog has photographs of art work that will be there, plus roping scenes and individual ropers in action.

By listening in, we learned Friday exactly where Snyder is on the globe. Fran Farmer was making inquiries in behalf of her daughter, Tammy, who needed this information for a school assignment. We suggested that perhaps she could find out at WTC, and she followed up by contacting Dr. James Palmer, the chairman of the division of geography and history. So, if you wonder where you are, if you are in Snyder you are at 100 degrees, 56 minutes west longitude and 32 degrees, 43 minutes north latitude.

ADDRESSES TEXAS REPUBLICANS

Dole Leans Toward Conservative Side

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Republican vice presidential candidiate Bob Dole leaned hard on the conservative side of the campaign today as he addressed the Texas Republican convention, many of whose delegates still ache from Ronald Reagan's defeat at Kansas City.

He attacked Democrat Jimmy Carter on several fronts, including Carter's stances on tax reform and government reorganization.

And he asserted that Carter wanted to add $100 billion in spending programs that would erase progress made against inflation in the past year.

The Kansas senator was to hold a news conference after the speech, then depart for Hot Springs, Ark.

Dole told the Republican delegates that even though Carter brags about reducing Georgia state government from 300 agencies to 22 during his term as governor, the number of persons on the payroll rose by 14 per cent.

"I'd hate to see the federal bureaucracy inflated by 14 per cent. It would cost every American taxpayer an additional $75 to support government reorganization the way Mr. Carter goes about it," Dole said.

He said that Carter had left Georgia's Department of Human Resources in "such a mess that Governor Busbee has asked the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to come in and audit the thing and try to make some sense of it."

He also attacked Carter's declaration that the present federal tax system is "a disgrace to the human race" that should be reformed.

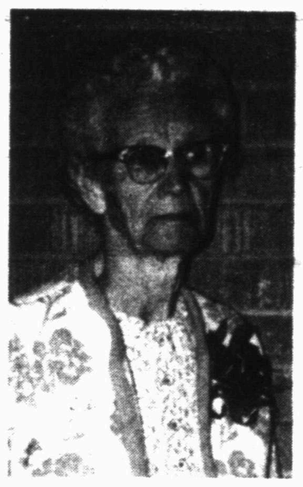

"I don't know what the entire human race thinks about it, but I am sure that 48 million American homeowners don't think the mortgage interest deduction is so disgraceful," the Kansas senator said.

As he did Friday evening in a talk to some 50 persons at a private reception, Dole asserted that just because Carter was from the South did not mean the GOP would write off this region.

"I've been doing a lot of traveling down here and everything I see tells me that the South just may write off Mr. Carter before this campaign is over," he said.

Dole said that Democratic vice presidential nominee Walter Mondale, however, has written off the South.

"They won't bring Mr. Busing to the South. They won't bring the man who wanted to increase this year's deficit by $9 billion to the South. They won't bring the man who consistently votes to slash the defense budget to the South. And this is the man that Mr. Carter says stands for the same things he does," Dole said.

MRS. ADA LEE CLARK

Service Here Saturday For Mrs. Clark

Funeral service was held Saturday afternoon at the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel for Mrs. Ada Lee Clark, 86, a pioneer settler of the Ira Community. Mrs. Clark died at 12:30 p.m. Friday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital, following a short illness.

The Rev. Wayland Dowden, pastor of Ira United Methodist Church, and June Middlebrook, pastor of the Ira Church of God, officiated at the funeral service. Burial was in the Ira Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home. Grandsons served as pallbearers.

A native of Seguin, Mrs. Clark was the daughter of George and Montie Autry, who moved their family to Ira in 1891, where her father was a farmer, merchant and postmaster, taking over this job from Ira Green. She was married on Sept. 13, 1909, to Drew Ephrom Clark at Ira. They moved to Coke County, but returned after a year. Mr. Clark died on Feb. 27, 1955.

She was the oldest living member of the Ira United Methodist Church at the time of her death, and was a charter member. She also was in the first graduating class at Ira High School and the oldest living student of the school.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Leona Smallwood of Ira, and Mrs. Anice Wallace of Snyder; two sons, J.L. Clark of Ira and Jack Clark of Dallas; three sisters, Mrs. Isla Hardee of Snyder, Mrs. Roxie Pool of Slaton and Mrs. Ethel Duke of Wichita, Kan.; two brothers, Norman and Leland Autry, both of Snyder; 11 grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild. Desert Town Flooded In Freak Disaster

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Writer

OCOTILLO, Calif. (AP) — A flash flood unleashed by Tropical Storm Kathleen as it tore through the Southwest sent a four-foot-high wall of water surging through this tiny desert town and the surrounding area.

The flooding killed at least four persons, two of them in Ocotillo, and destroyed homes, bridges and railroad tracks. Authorities said they feared the death toll would rise.

"The town was split right down the middle," J. Leonard Speer, sheriff, coroner and marshal of Imperial County, said Friday. "Some people in the north had built homes right near or in a dry wash and when the waters came down, they were just washed away. A lot of homes are gone."

Two residents of this retirement community of 450 persons about 80 miles east of San Diego were confirmed dead. One drowned, the other was killed when the wall of water crushed his house. Another victim drowned in El Centro, about 30 miles east of here, and a storm-related death was reported in Yuma, Ariz., where a man was hit by a falling tree limb.

Authorities said they were looking for 10 other persons reported missing, including two railroad employes, some campers and occupants of a car washed away when a bridge collapsed on Interstate 8.

The National Weather Service said the freak disaster occurred when Kathleen, losing force as it raced northeast from Mexico, dumped up to 9½ inches of rain in the San Jacinto mountains a few miles east of here Friday morning. The water was channeled into town through washes, or streambeds, which carry spring runoff from snows but are normally dry this time of year.

The storm also destroyed and damaged homes in the luxurious Palm Desert area and caused flooding in parts of Nevada and Arizona.

Speer said dozens of motorists were stranded in cars in the desert east of here.

Most residents had been warned of the danger of flash flooding and had fled to higher ground when the wave hit.

Early in the day winds of between 80 and 90 miles an hour caused sandstorms in the desert areas.

Interstate 8 was washed out west of Ocotillo where the major highway cuts through the Laguna Mountains to San Diego.

Flash floods in the desert washed out most roads leading to the Imperial Valley, a low-lying region of desert and heavily irrigated farms. Two bridges were washed away, and one stretch of Southern Pacific railway track was torn out by the runoff.

More than an inch of rain soaked Los Angeles to the northwest, creating huge jams on the freeways.

Police Capture Six Hijackers

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP) — Police ended a 21-hour waiting game early today and stormed a hijacked Indian Airlines jet at Lahore airport, capturing six skyjackers and freeing seven crew members who had been held hostage, Foreign Ministry officials said.

The 71 passengers aboard the twin-engine Boeing 737, commandeered while on a domestic flight over India, had been released earlier.

There were no injuries reported among the passengers and crew. But it was not learned immediately whether any of the hijackers or police were hurt.

Pakistani officials refused to discuss the details of the commando-style raid or give the nationalities or other description of the hijackers. But sources in New Delhi said all of them were Asians, and the pilot told reporters the gang's leader spoke Urdu, a principal language on the Indian subcontinent.

The pilot, V.N. Reddy, said the hijackers first demanded to be taken to Libya but then changed their destination to Lahore when he told them his fuel supply was too limited. Government officials here would not divulge the demands made by the hijackers during subsequent negotiations.

The Pakistani Foreign Ministry scheduled a briefing for later today.

According to officials of the two governments, the hijackers took over the plane at pistol point shortly after it left New Delhi's Palam International Airport on a flight for Jaipur at 7 a.m. local time Friday (9:30 p.m. EDT Thursday).

Reddy said he was "hustled into the bathroom of the plane after having touched the control panel of the cockpit, despite the hijackers' orders not to touch the controls."

The copilot, a Capt. Yadav, told reporters the hijackers then turned to him and one hit him on the back of the head with a pistol butt, threatening "to shoot me if I did not follow his instructions."

He said two of the hijackers carried hand grenades. Sources here said they also had rifles.

The hijackers ordered Yadav to circle low over this city, 250 miles northwest of New Delhi, so they could verify it was Lahore. Then they landed.

Long hours of negotiations ensued, involving the Indian ambassador to Pakistan, K.S. Bajpai, and Pakistani Foreign Secretary Shah Nawaz. The gunmen quickly released a West German couple and their child, and several hours later they freed three Indians who were ill.

Late Friday, after continuous bargaining with authorities, the hijackers allowed the remaining 65 passengers to leave the plane, keeping only the seven crew members aboard.

After several more hours of futile negotiations, police raided the aircraft at 5:05 a.m. today (8:05 p.m. EDT Friday).

The crew and passengers, most of whom were Indian, were returned to New Delhi today aboard a second plane.

IN YUGOL IN YUGOSLAVIA PLANE CRASE

5 Air Traffic Controllers Are Held For Questioning

By BORIS BOSKOVIC
Associated Press Writer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslav authorities took five air traffic controllers into custody today for questioning on the "one chance in 10 million" air collision that killed all 176 persons aboard two jetliners, the worst aviation collision ever.

The Yugoslav judge in charge of the investigation, Vjeceslav Jakovac, said the British and Yugoslav jetliners collided Friday in one of the busiest air corridors in the world probably because of incorrect assessment of altitudes by air controllers in Zagreb.

All five controllers detained were on duty in the Zagreb control center at the time of the collision, officials said. Sources in Zagreb said, however, that no charges had been filed against them.

Yugoslav authorities said they recovered the "black box" that records flight information from one of the planes. The device often gives investigators information about the cause of crashes.

British Airways began releasing names of those who were aboard its craft. It said the passengers included three Americans, but their names were not among the first group released. Most of those aboard were Britons and Turks.

The two planes — a three-jet Trident of British Airways and a two-jet DC9 of the Yugoslav charter airline Inex-Adria — collided at about 33,000 feet in a clear blue sky Friday morning and rained debris over Croatian farmland near Zagreb, in northern Yugoslavia.

The debris killed a Yugiosav woman working on her farm and caused one boy to cry out to his father that "bombs" were falling on their farm. The father said he became sickened when he realized some of the falling objects were bodies.

Yugoslav courts in the past have given stiff sentences to persons convicted of causing deaths in such accidents. After 153 were killed in a train derailment in Zagreb in August 1974, the locomotive engineer received a 15-year jail sentence and his assistant eight years. Both admitted they had fallen asleep and allowed their train to gain excessive speed.

A spokesman for Inex-Adria indirectly blamed the air controllers for the crash by saying that planes at that altitude were the "absolute responsibility" of controllers on the ground. He said human error of the crew was completely excluded as a cause of the crash.

"It was a frontal collision in midair," said a spokesman for British Airways.

The BA Trident was carrying 54 passengers and a crew of nine from London to Istanbul. The Yugoslav plane was en route from the Yugoslav resort of Split to Cologne, West Germany, with a crew of five and 108 passengers, mostly West German tourists returning from the Adriatic resort.

The crash left a giant question mark over the safety of Europe's crowded air routes. British aviation experts said the disaster took place at a key sky junction for routes to Turkey, Greece and the Mediterranean sunshine resorts.

School Is Weary Of Demolition Project

Snyder School Trustees voted Monday to turn the contract for demolishing the old Travis School building over to the county.

Earlier, the school had instructed its attorney, Dan Cotton, to confer with the county commissioners court to determine its wishes concerning the lagging demolition project. Cotton reported to the board Friday that the commissioners court indicated to him that they were in favor of taking action to complete the demolition and that they favored referring the matter to the contractor's bonding company.

The school district agreed to deed the property to the county last year for annual cash payments of $2,500 for 15 years and subsequently agreed to negotiate a contract to demolish the main building on the property with the county to pay for the demolition. The contract was awarded last October to Jerry Stephens of Big Spring, doing business as Bost Construction Co. The project was originally scheduled for completion within 120 days of the contract date, but still has not been completed.

School trustees met with Stephens on Aug. 31 to discuss the matter and at conclusion of that meeting they instructed Cotton to confer with the county officials. Cotton said that the county is anxious for the demolition to be completed as soon as possible, and school trustees decided Friday that this could best be accomplished by turning the contract over to the county for it to handle in any way it chooses.

Hijackers Demanding Independence

KEFLAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Croatian nationalists in a hijacked American airliner took off from Iceland today and headed east, leaving a trail of one dead and three injured policemen from a bomb explosion in New York. The hijackers are demanding independence from Yugoslavia.

Four major American newspapers published a plea from the hijackers today for Croatian independence after the hijackers warned that another bomb would go off somewhere in the United States if the papers did not do so.

Yugoslavia ordered its envoy to Washington to protest distribution of the statement, Radio Belgrade said.

Bell Ruling Is Said Binding

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — San Antonio attorney Pat Maloney told an en banc session of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday it can't change a legal ruling transferring a $29 million damage suit against Southwestern Bell Telephone out of federal court to a Texas state court.

"You are legally bound to accept the ruling," argued Maloney. "I really don't know why you are here."

He referred to the latest twist in a tangled slander and libel suit filed by the wife and children of the late T. O. Gravitt, and by James H. Ashley of San Antonio.

Leonard Joseph of New York, attorney for Southwestern Bell, argued that the appeals court does have a toehold of jurisdiction, although it is limited to determining whether the judge "had the proper criteria" for his ruling.

Maloney said federal law specifically holds that the type of ruling made by U.S. Dist. Judge Adrian Spears in San Antonio last April 27 is not subject to review.

Judge Spears held that, since Southwestern Bell had once claimed it was a "citizen" of Texas, it could not come along in this case and claim it was incorporated in Missouri, and thus be entitled to have the case tried in federal court.

The en banc session, by all judges of the circuit, was ordered after the 5th's normal three-judge panel ordered Judge Spears to hold further hearings.

Maloney wants a state court trial, where trial restrictions are less binding.

Under questioning by the 10 judges present for the session, Maloney said it made no difference whether or not they like the reasons for Judge Spears ruling, because they can't rule on it anyhow.

"I don't care why he did it, he found it," said Maloney.

"If you feel the facts are so solidly in your favor, why do you so dread a hearing on the issue?" asked Judge Walter P. Gewin.

"Because we have gotten a 'jury verdict' and I am entitled to it," replied Maloney. "And I got it from the only jury possible. He's the guy to do it...that's the law."

Gravitt was the former head of the company's Texas operations. He committed suicide in 1974. A month later, the family and James Ashley, an exectuve in the company's San Antonio office, filed the libel and slander suit.

The suit charges that Ashely and Gravitt were libeled and slandered during an in-house investigation by Southwestern Bell which produced accusations of expense account abuse and sexual hijinks.

The Gravitts contend the stress drove Gravitt to lock himself in the garage and leave the car engine running. Ashley was fired several weeks afterward.

Tito Has Acute Liver Disease

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Josip Broz Tito has an acute liver disease and needs several weeks of treatment and rest, the official Tanjug news agency reported today. Tito is 84 years old, has led Yugoslavia since 1945 and has the official title of president for life.

Tanjug said doctors had examined Tito on Wednesday and diagnosed the disease, but the news agency did not say what the disease was or anything more about the treatment he would undergo.

Tito showed signs of the illness at the end of August, Tanjug said, when he returned from Sri Lanka, where he was one of the most prominent international leaders at the nonaligned summit meeting.

Because of Tito's illness, a visit by French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing to Belgrade, scheduled for next Wednesday, has been postponed.

Tito went hunting Thursday with visiting President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania and looked fit in published photographs.

The two presidents returned together to Belgrade on Friday and Tito again appeared in good health and showed no signs of fatigue when a joint Yugoslav-Romanian communique was signed.

This morning Tito and his wife saw Ceausescu off at the end of his visit.

Corn Crop Is Still Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 5.89 billion bushels of corn nearly ready for the full harvest across the United States is more than corn-growers were expecting last week but less than the estimate of some crop analysts.

Officials quietly note it is still a record — the largest corn crop in history by nearly 125 million bushels, if the weather doesn't further shrivel it.

But not even Don Paarlberg, chief economist for the Agriculture Department, tried to pretty up the damage of August in meetings with reporters Friday after release of the Crop Reporting Board's latest estimates, based on Sept. 1 field surveys.

"August weather treated U.S. farmers unkindly," he began, and then he ticked it off:

—Corn down 5 per cent in a month, the yield down to 82.8 bushels an acre from 86.2 bushels last year, with losses averaging three bushels an acre nationwide and up to eight in Iowa and five in Illinois.

—The four major feedgrains of corn, barley, oats and sorghum combined, 184 million metric tons, virtually the same as last season.

—Wheat, 2.139 billion bushels, a record by five million bushels thanks to better prospects for durum.

—Wheat and rice combined, the world's major foodgrains, 64 million metric tons, 1 per cent below last year.

—Soybeans, with the supply situation already the "one of tightest" on the market, 1.27 million bushels, down 70 million bushels from a month ago and 16 per cent below 1975.

—All oilseeds, 40 million tons, a drop of 13 per cent from last year.

"If weather is normal for the rest of the year," he said, "over-all crop production for 1976 will be third largest in history, exceeded only by the crops of 1973 and 1975."

A month ago, Paarlberg was emphasizing an incoming "second-largest harvest in our history."

Continued stress on the crops in the north-central states caused the drops, as summer-long pockets of drought persisted.

About one million of the almost 73 million acres still in corn was tagged for silage instead of grain in August, mostly in the worst-hit states of South Dakota and Minnesota, the board said.

For consumers, the message of the report is that USDA may have to make a "modest upward adjustment" — perhaps 1 per cent — in its current expectation that retail food prices will rise 3 to 4 per cent in the first six months of 1977 over the first half of this year, Paarlberg said.

Kissinger Heads For Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, his mothballed shuttle diplomacy abruptly freshened, is heading for Africa and a perilous mission of trying to avert racial warfare.

Kissinger was to meet today with President Ford, who ordered the trip, to discuss what the United States hopes to accomplish by it.

The secretary leaves Monday for discussions with leaders of at least three nations — Tanzania, Zambia and strife-torn South Africa. The White House said "visits to other African capitals will depend on the needs of the situation and his schedule."

He and his policies bitterly criticized by Democrats and many Republicans in this election year, Kissinger in recent months had maintained a low profile.

But last week he traveled to Zurich, Switzerland, for a dialogue with South African Prime Minister John Vorster. Now, he embarks on a mission reminiscent of his hop-scotching days throughout the Middle East in attempts to ease tensions.

Kissinger's immediate aim, according to some U.S. officials, is to buy time needed to achieve long-term solutions in a region where the Soviet Union already has established its influence.

Ford Expected To Ink Postal Bill

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is expected to sign a bill that will provide an emergency $1 billion to the financially strapped Postal Service while barring any new increases in postal rates until next March.

The House of Representatives gave final approval to the postal bill Friday on a vote of 276 to 33, sending the stopgap funding measure to Ford.

But Congress has put off until next year any final decision on what to do to solve the massive financial problems plaguing the mail agency.

The bill sent to Ford authorizes an extra $1 billion subsidy for the debt-ridden mail agency to keep it solvent until a new study commission formulates recommendations on the postal problem.

Postal officials say the extra $1 billion won't solve the agency's problem, but will merely take care of anticipated deficits and keep the service in operation at current levels. The postal service currently is getting a regular subsidy of about $1.5 billion a year.

The measure bars any increases in postal rates or any cuts in mail service before the study commission delivers its report next March 15.

"This is not the final solution to the multiple problems confronting the Postal Service but it is a meaningful step in the right direction," said Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill., after passage of the measure. "Based on the work of the study commission, the next Congress should be better able to come up with a long-term solution."

An opponent of the bill, Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., argued that Congress was "passing the buck to the next Congress to solve the serious problems that persist in our Postal Service."

Congress reorganized the Cabinet-level Post Office Department into the Postal Service in 1971, after receiving assurances that a new mail agency patterned after a private business could end postal deficits.

Instead, the Postal Service amassed $3 billion in debts during its first five years and lost a record $1.4 billion in the last fiscal year.

Service For Mrs. Rodgers

Funeral services for Mrs. Irene Rodgers, a Garza County pioneer, will be at 3 p.m. today in the First United Methodist Church of Post. Burial will be in the Terrace Cemetery in Post.

Mrs. Rodgers, 87, died at 7:30 a.m. Friday in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock following a lengthy illness.

A native of Coleman County, she and her husband, Norman Rodgers, moved to Garza County in the early 1900s.

In addition to her ranching interests, Mrs. Rodgers had served three terms as Garza County Treasurer. She had been a Lubbock resident since 1964.

Mrs. Rodgers was preceded in death by her husband and by one son, Novis Rodgers.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Ernest Griffith of Post; a son, Dan Rodgers of Midland; six grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Seek Animals For Barnyard

People who have farm animals suitable for use in the "Kiddie Barnyard" at the Scurry County Fair and who would bring them to the fair have been asked to call the Chamber of Commerce.

The barnyard feature was popular at the fair last year and the Chamber's agriculture committee hopes that it can be set up again for the 1976 fair, which will begin a three-day run Thursday at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Various animals, such as Shetland ponies, lambs, goats, ducks, geese, etc., are desired.

Peso Squeeze Evident

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Border Mexicans who grew up with the U.S. dollar are finding dealing in dollars is too expensive since the peso was devalued.

A dreary future faces families who owe dollars on credit purchases, say government officials. If the present exchange rate holds, they may have to pay 40 per cent more than they expected.

"The situation involves problems so complicated they are almost beyond imagination," said Eleutero Cacho, assistant director of the federal office for consumer protection in Tijuana.

Cacho said several thousand Tijuana residents alone are paying for millions of dollars in consumer goods with prices and payments demanded in U.S. money.

The peso's value has fallen from 12.5 to the American dollar to about 20 since President Luis Echeverria announced Sept. 1 that the peso would be allowed to float free in monetary markets. For many Mexicans, especially those far from the border, it has become cheaper to trade in pesos for Mexican-produced products and goods, although luxuries and import goods cost more.

But along the border, many are no longer able to deal in dollars and many Mexicans have stopped buying in U.S. stores across the border.

"The situation in Baja California is unique in Mexico," said Guillermo Cardenas, an official in the Tijuana office of the federal Ministry of Industry and Commerce.

"People have been so used to dealing with dollars that they are now having a terrible time converting it to a Mexican economy although they have always lived in Mexico."

Cacho said in an interview that his office is trying to talk merchants into renegotiating installment contracts so they can be paid off in pesos at the previously expected costs.

A number of hotel and cafe operators in Ensenada to the south have signed an agreement to cut prices by 20 per cent on weekends and 40 per cent during the week in a move to keep business.

Weary Carter Irked At Ford

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

Jimmy Carter, haunted by anti-abortion protestors and weary after a week on the road, appears increasingly annoyed by President Ford's refusal to leave the White House for the campaign trail.

Carter returned home to Plains, Ga., on Friday night, ending an 11-state tour in which he was shadowed and sometimes drowned out by protestors who dislike his stand on abortion.

But the Democratic presidential nominee declared his initial campaign trip a success after five days of speeches, handshaking and a colorful fireworks and flare-lighted parade through the streets of Chicago.

President Ford has seen no demonstrators as he concentrates on a campaign strategy designed to make him look at home in the White House and busy with presidential chores.

While Carter was campaigning through the eastern states and deep into the Midwest, Ford ventured from the White House only once, for a speech to the Jewish service group B'nai B'rith at its convention in Washington.

And the contrast between the campaign strategies obviously was beginning to grate on the Democratic nominee.

"We have a President who's not campaigning among the people. I'm not hiding. I'm out meeting people," Carter said Thursday. It was a theme he hit more and more often during the week.

And as anti-abortion pickets tried to shout him down in Chicago, he said it was good for candidates to be exposed to those who disagree with them.

But by Friday, Carter was more insistent.

"I think its time now for Mr. Ford to come forward and explain about his policies," Carter said in a speech to the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers convention in Hollywood, Fla. "But he's not doing that. The time to debate tough issues, as you know, is during an election campaign.

"But he's not out meeting people in factory shift lines, shopping centers, in the streets, union halls. He's hiding in the White House, not willing to face the American people and to account for what he's done.

"We Democrats have always run on our record," Carter told them. "Sometimes we've made mistakes. But we never have been afraid to go out and listen to questions and give our excuses, our reasons, and learn in the process how to be better in the future."

Ford was quick to respond from the White House to individual Carter statements, but he still plans no formal campaign appearance before next Wednesday when he will make a speech at the University of Michigan.

After that, his aides say they doubt there'll be much more, at least until the end of September.

But Ford has been busy, seeking support from leaders of various groups summoned to the White House.

Man Facing New Charge

Another charge has been filed against a 21-year-old man arrested Wednesday night by city police officers.

Vance Montgomery, who was charged Thursday with burglary with intent to commit theft, has also now been charged with burglary of an auto.

The auto burglary charge was filed Friday after police officers reported discovering numerous tapes in Montgomery's possession that allegedly matched the description of some tapes taken in a recent car burglary.

Saturday morning, Montgomery remained in county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

THE PASTORAL COUNSELOR

By JOHN ZELL GASTON III

I GET SO MAD!

It was their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren had gathered from the four corners to celebrate the occasion with them. The local newspaper sent out a photographer and reporter to write an article on this happy occasion. The reporter asked, "A good many people have told me that you have not only lived together a long time, but that your marriage seems exceptionally happy. Tell me, in all this time, have you ever thought about getting a divorce?"

The answer came quickly. The two looked at each other, smiled, turned to the reporter, and then almost with one voice they replied, "Divorce–never! Murder–frequently!"

The reason this story brought a smile to your face is because you know that feeling only too well. People do get mad at each other, even married people. Especially married people, because only someone important can make you mad, and married people are usually pretty important to each other. And, of course, the more happily married you are, the more important you and your mate are to each other, and so the easier it is for you to get mad at each other.

The problem is not whether we get mad, the problem is how we handle our anger. Sometimes we try to hide it, even from ourselves. Sometimes we try to call it by a different name: like "righteous indignation." Sometimes we try to say it is someone else's fault, and sometimes we take it out on almost anything or anyone except where it should go.

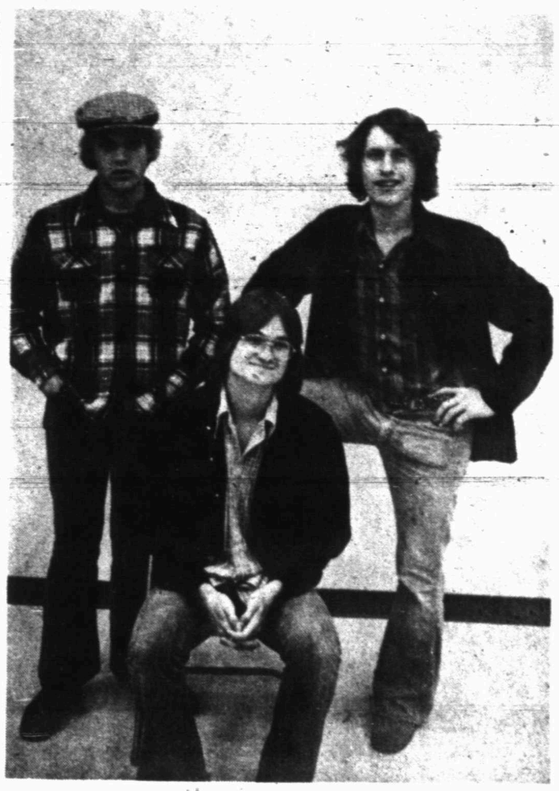

The reason this couple lived together so long and so happily is that they had mastered the trick of getting mad at each other without confusing "anger" with "rejection," and they were able to permit love and anger to mix. The couple who does not do this is in for a hard time, because, being ashamed of their anger, they try to deny it.

I knew a man who had the nicest smile. He seemed so very kind. Everyone he knew agreed that they had never seen him act the least bit disturbed about anything anyone ever did to him. He was the sort of man that no one could make mad, no matter what they tried. A lot of people tried all sorts of dirty tricks, but he kept smiling. His wife claimed that he was a saint, but she never knew how he felt about anything. One day his wife got out of a cab, glanced up toward his tenth story office, and saw him jump out of it. He hit at her feet. Apparently he swallowed his anger, swallowed his anger and kept on swallowing it until he had to explode. Other people get ulcers or heart trouble or high blood pressure, often for the same reason. They swallow their anger, or they express it toward someone other than whoever makes them mad.

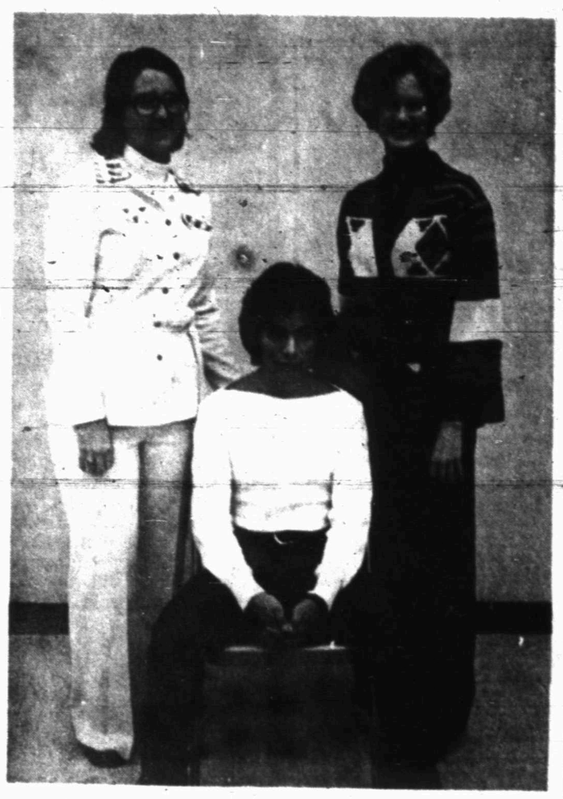

I knew another man who was mad all the time, but never at whoever he was with. He had ulcers and high blood pressure. When he and his wife learned to talk to each other about how they were hurting each other, and also learned how to heal one another, then his blood pressure went down, his ulcers dried up, and he stopped being mad all the time. I predict for him that he will have a good chance of making it to his fiftieth. Before he and his wife learned how to handle their anger, the smart money would bet two to one against his reaching his twenty-fifth. Either he would die, or she would leave before then.

I have tried to work with a good many couples to try to either save their marriage or to improve what was there. In about a fourth of the couples, I have failed to help them. Every time there has been such a failure, one or the other or both have been unable or unwilling to face their own nager and take it to their partner, or they have been unwilling to accept that the other can get mad, too. Every time that there has been a success, both have learned to talk things over with each other, and settle matters. The motto of a long, happy, successful marriage really is, "Divorce–never! Murder–frequently!"

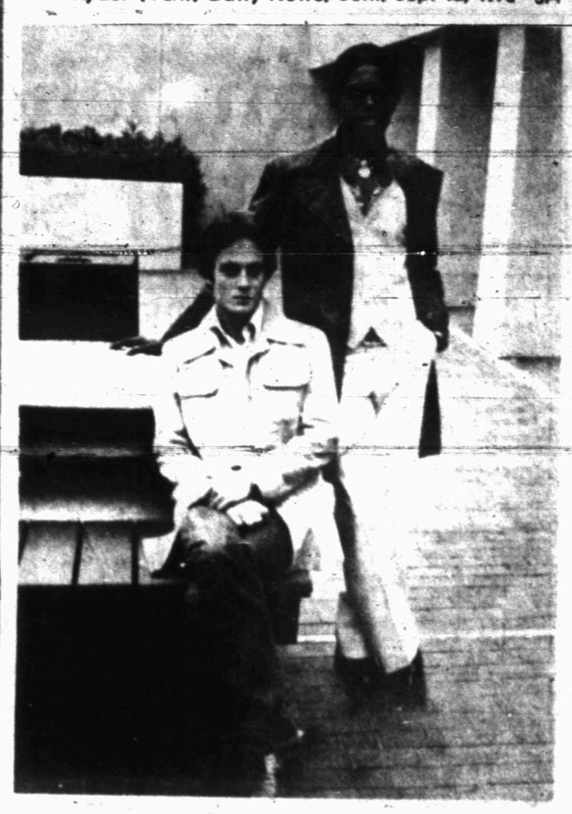

EDITOR'S NOTE–These columns are presented as a public service by the Pastoral Care Center, 1804 Twenty-sixth Street, in the hopes that readers will find in them hints on how to live happier and more effective lives. 'Bus Stop' Selected As WTC's Drama Opener

"Bus Stop" has been scheduled as the season opener for the Western Texas College drama department, Charles Holland, drama director, has announced.

The play is scheduled to run Oct. 5-9 in the WTC Fine Arts Theatre. It will be followed by "All My Sons" on Nov. 18-21.

Appearing in the "Bus Stop" cast will be seven new drama scholarship students along with Brian Nobles, who is returning for his second year at WTC.

Nobles is a graduate of Coronado High School in Lubbock. He appeared in "The Matchmaker" and "Play It Again, Sam" at WTC last season. He was student director for the one act version of "The Rainmaker" and designed the set for "The Glass Menagerie."

Four of the new students are also from Lubbock. Sam Thompson, Scott Purkeypile and Lee Korby are former students at Monterey High School, while Joy Evans was graduated from Dunbar High School.

Already familiar to Snyder audiences is Sarah Coleman, a 1976 graduate of Snyder High School where she appeared in several productions. She was named Best Actress at the Regional UIL meet and was named to the All-Star cast at state competition.

Also from Snyder is Pete Tercero. He will not be appearing in the "Bus Stop" cast, but is working with scenery and with poster and program design.

Tesa Mohler from San Angelo will also be working backstage. She became ill shortly after the fall semester opened and was not able to work with the cast of the first production.,

Miss Mohler was named Best Actress for her role as Maggie in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." She has worked with the San Angelo Civic Theatre and a professional repertory company which has its home base in Red River, N.M.

Teresa Johnson comes to WTC from Rankin High School.

Jackie Byrne of Sweetwater was a spring graduate of Sweetwater High School where she was active in several drama department productions. She was in the case of the one act play "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead" which advanced to state level competition.

Dallas Firm Buys Vail Stock

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — A Dallas company on Friday bought 400,000 shares of Vail Associates, Inc., stock for $5.6 million, giving brothers Richard and Harry W. Bass Jr. a majority interest in the ski resort.

Goliad Oil and Gas Co. of Dallas had initially offered to buy up to 250,000 shares of Vail Associates stock for $12 a share. The offer was raised to $14 a share for up to 400,000 shares after Vail Associates officials opposed the initial offer as too low.

About 770,800 shares were tendered to Goliad, which is owned by Harry Bass, a director of Vail Associates.

Richard Bass is developer of the Snowbird ski area in Utah and has been a director of Great Western United Corp. in Denver since October 1975.

Dick Whitesell, an attorney for Goliad, said the purchase isn't expected to effect operations at the Vail ski area.

Meanwhile, Vail Associates on Friday reported a slightly higher operating loss for the first quarter which ended July 31, compared with the same period a year ago.

Richard Peterson, Vail Associates president, said this year's first-quarter loss was $570,000, or 58 cents per share, compared with $522,300, or 54 cents a share, last year.

He blamed suspension of summer mountain operations and an increase in lift maintenance expenses for the higher loss.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Troubled with insomnia - sleeplessness? You might avoid drinking tea, coffee, cocoa, and other caffein drinks before bedtime. The answer lies in relaxing your tensions. A warm bath before bedtime can relax you and induce sleep. Avoid mentally stimulating TV programs or reading. Don't ponder your problems - rather blank out all thought from your mind to allow sleep. One may be mentally or emotionally tired, but not physically tired enough to sleep. Sufficient exercise may be the answer to relaxation and sleep.

Pope Meets With Rebel Bishop

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Rebel Bishop Marcel Lefebvre met Pope Paul VI today, seven weeks after the Vatican suspended the French prelate from his priestly functions because of his defiant rejection of change in the church.

Bishop Lefebvre smiled as he left the Pope's hilltop summer residence and confirmed to reporters that he had been received by the pontiff.

A Vatican statement on Aug. 27 had said that "the arms of the Pope are open" to receive the maverick bishop.

Bishop Lefebvre received the toughest Vatican punishment, short of excommunication, that can be imposed on a bishop after he ignored a papal ban against ordaining priests at his seminary in Econe, Switzerland.

At the seminary, students are taught to disregard the teachings of the 1962-65 Vatican II ecumenical council and the changes in the Mass and other church rites that Pope Paul has decreed since then.

The bishop entered the Renaissance palace that serves as the Pope's summer retreat at midmorning and emerged one hour later.

Bishop Lefebvre was accompanied by one of his disciples, a French priest.

A source close to the bishop said he had arrived in Rome Thursday and first spoke with Pope Paul's aides Friday.

The source said an Italian priest and friend of Bishop Lefebvre was a middleman in arranging the audience.

Archbishop Giovanni Benelli, the powerful Vatican deputy secretary of state, reportedly attended today's unusual meeting.

Rains Improve Crops, Livestock Conditions

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Rains last week helped dryland crops, pastures and ranges and the stock water situation over much of Texas, Dr. Daniel Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Despite the moisture, most of the Panhandle remains dry as well as parts of the South and Rolling Plains, he said.

Sorghum harvesting is nearing completion in North Central Texas and is increasing in the Rolling Plains, East Central and Far West Texas, Pfannstiel said. Yields have ranged from good to poor.

Cotton harvesting is gaining momentum in South Central Texas and some harvesting has started in the Central Texas Blacklands, Pfannstiel said. Crop quality is from good to poor, with insect damage heavy in parts of Central Texas and in the Rolling Plains.

Cutting of the first rice crop is generally complete in the Coastal Plains and farmers will be making the second cutting in a few weeks, he said. Yields have been excellent in most areas.

Livestock conditions should improve over the state as forage increases from the recent rains, Pfannstiel said. Some feeders are moving into the Plains in anticipation of fall wheat grazing.

District agricultural agents gave these reports:

Panhandle: Dryland sorghum is under severe moisture stress and cotton is shedding fruit. Pastures and ranges are below average. Forage will be short this winter unless rain comes soon. Wheat planting is active but moisture is needed in dryland areas.

South Plains: Cotton needs dry weather to develop before cold weather hits. The crop generally looks good except in western counties. Harvesting of early sorghum has started. Wheat planting is active.

Rolling Plains: Sorghum harvesting is past the halfway point in some counties. Most of the alfalfa crop is being cut for the fourth time. More rain is needed for stock water. An anthrax outbreak in Foard County has been contained.

North Central: Corn and sorghum harvesting is from 85 to 90 per cent complete. Yields are generally good. Fall vegetable gardens are being planted.

Northeast: The sorghum harvest is about complete. Sweet potatoes are being harvested. Recent rains should provide additional hay cuttings and boost soybeans. Fall gardens are being planted. Pecans are falling prematurely.

Far West: Sorghum harvesting is under way. Early yields are good. Cotton continues to make good progress. Harvesting of bell peppers has started. Livestock are in good shape. Calves are showing good weight gains. Goat shearing is active.

West Central: Sorghum harvesting has resumed following good rains. Peanut harvesting will start soon. Cotton is fruiting well although there are some insect problems. Some early oats are being planted. Pecans continue to fall prematurely because scab and other diseases.

Central: Sorghum harvesting is generally complete with average yields. The cotton harvest has started in Bell County. Early peanuts are being dug. The crop looks good. Some lakes and stock ponds are still low.

East: Most of the corn and sorghum is in. Yields have generally been good. Cotton is opening. Peanuts are being plagued by disease problems. Diseases and insects are lowering pecan prospects. Hay making is about complete.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: Cotton harvesting is complete in a few counties. Corn is producing excellent yields in Matagorda and Wharton counties. The first rice cutting is about complete. Prospects are good for a second crop. Recent rains helped grazing conditions.

South Central: Cotton harvesting is active in most counties. Most of the sorghum is in. Yields are fair to good. Peanut harvesting has started. The corn harvest is from 10 to 90 per cent complete. Early planting of wheat and oats.

Southwest: Corn yields have been excellent but the sorghum crop was hurt by earlier heavy rains. Harvesting of early peanuts is about 75 per cent complete. Yields have been excellent. Sheep and goat shearing is about 75 per cent complete.

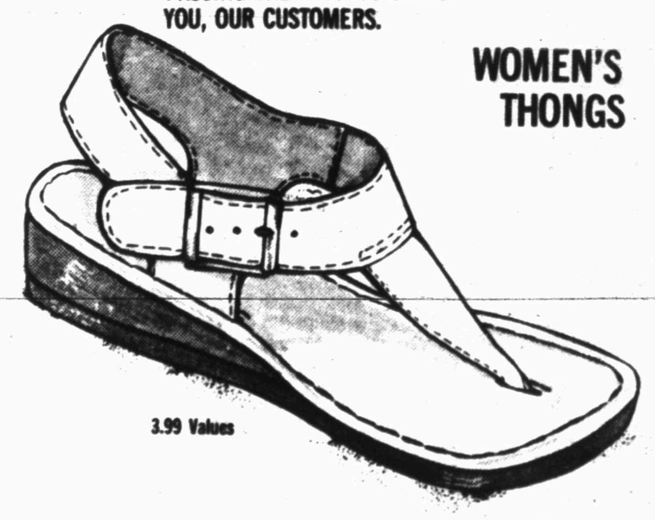

Coastal Bend: The cotton harvest is about complete. About 75 per cent of the corn crop is in. Hay crops are producing second and third cuttings. Grazing conditions are average. More rain is needed in a number of counties.

Top-Ranked Brazoswood Is Knocked Off Perch

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Brazoswood was knocked from its No. 1 perch in Class 4A Texas schoolboy football in ignominious fashion Friday night — losing to Houston Memorial 21-0.

The 1974 state champions joined 10th-ranked Abilene in the loser's ranks in The Associated Press' 4A Top Ten. Abilene was outscored 28-21 by Austin High.

The rest of the 4A kingpins captured victories, with No. 2 Sherman's 35-0 whipping of Denton possibly catapulting it into the top spot. Third-ranked Houston Kashmere swamped Houston Forest Brook 33-6, No. 4 Odessa Permian tripped Amarillo 29-6, fifth-ranked Tyler John Tyler nudged Corsicana 14-12, sixth-rated Longview shut out Fort Worth Paschal 31-0, No. 7 and defending champion Port Neches-Groves stamped out Houston Stratford 35-7, No. 8 Galveston Ball opened its season by beating Fort Worth Trimble 34-6 and No. 9 Killeen slipped past San Angelo Central 21-15.

Two members of the Class 3A Top Ten lost to 4A schools but three others beat upper division rivals. Top-rated Beamont Hebert outlasted crosstown rival Charlton-Pollard 20-14, No. 4 Brazosport mashed Lamar Consolidated 35-12 and No. 6 Brownwood crushed Austin Travis 23-0, but No. 5 New Braunfels was nipped by Austin Crockett 10-7 and No. 8 Cuero was blanked 3-0 by Victoria Stroman. No. 7 Perryton crushed Ponca City, Okla., 35-3, and 10th-ranked Humble outscored Cleveland 30-26. Second-ranked Gainesville, No. 3 Ennis and No. 9 Beeville had open dates.

In Class 2A, the only casualty was No. 3 Kermit, which lost 21-13 to Denver City. Top-ranked Rockdale slashed Taylor 25-6, No. 2 McGregor banged Waco Reicher 28-6, No. 4 Columbus pinned Boling 32-0, No. 5 Bowie whitewashed Olney 21-0, sixth-ranked Childress outlasted Memphis 20-12, No. 7 Pittsburgh manhandled Gilmer 35-0, No. 8 Kirbyville swamped Buna 21-0 and ninth-rated Bellville beat Needville 14-6. Tenth-rated Powderly North Lamar was idle.

No. 1 Aledo and second-rated Big Sandy of Class A both registered shutout triumphs — 7-0 and 26-0, respectively, over Decatur and New Diana, but No. 3 Barber's Hill lost 13-10 to Anahuac of 2A. Tenth-rated Wall was outscored 36-35 by Clyde of 2A, but the rest of the A division's Top Ten won. Fourth-ranked Holliday shocked Electra 19-15, No. 5 Plains clipped Tahoka 29-7, No.6 Hamlin mashed Abilene Wylie 47-2 and No. 9 Hart stopped Silverton 26-0. No. 7 Ore City played Saturday night and No. 8 Falls City was idle.

For the second straight week, the top-ranked team in Class B failed to win and three other Top Ten members lost and one tied. Rochester was held to a 12-12 tie by Munday and No. 9 Hutto had the same score against Granger. No. 5 Sudan lost 16-14 to Anton, No. 6 Mount Enterprise fell 39-14 to Cushing and No. 7 D'Hanis dropped a 20-7 decision to Lytle. Second-rated Chico humbled Little Elm 48-0, No 3 Gorman whipped Dublin 52-0, fourth-ranked Meridian tripped Hico 18-7 and No. 8 Groom, the previous week's No. 1, beat Miami 26-8. Tenth-rated Ben Bolt played Saturday night.

NFL To Appeal Draft Ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle said today the league will appeal "at least portions" of the federal court ruling last Wednesday which declared its college draft illegal.

"The league is obviously disturbed by this further judicial inroad on its ability to maintain a balanced level of competition," Rozelle said in a news release.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge William Bryant in Washington, ruling on a 1970 suit filed by former Washington Redskins defensive back James "Yazoo" Smith, declared the NFL draft in violation of antitrust laws.

3-3A Teams Win 4 Of 7

The District 3-AAA teams had a 4-3 record against outside opposition this week.

Estacado started the week's action with a 20-11 victory over Lubbock High. Snyder's Tigers shot down Borger, 14-6, Dunbar bested Lubbock Coronado 14-13, and Lake View flailed Eagle Pass, 58-0.

In losing efforts, Brownfield was beaten by Seminole, 13-0; Lamesa lost to Andrews, 12-6; and, Sweetwater was a 7-0 victim of Colorado City.

Seattle, Tampa In First Action

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The Seattle Seahawks and Tampa Bay Buccaneers, newest members of the National Football League family, play their first regular season games Sunday when the NFL opens its 57th season.

For standings purposes, Seattle will play in the National Conference West and Tampa Bay in the American Conference West. And for morale purposes within the league, they will play one game against each of the 13 teams in their conference and one against each other.

The Seahawks begin at home against high-powered St. Louis, one of the favorites in the NFC East. Tampa Bay's opener will be against the Oilers in Houston.

Both new teams have some old names on their rosters. The Buccaneers' starting quarterback will be Steve Spurrier, long-time San Francisco 49er. The Seahawks also have a veteran signal caller in Bill Munson, acquired from Detroit. He probably will back up starter Jim Zorn.

Both new teams open against clubs with title hopes.

The Cardinals have speed to burn in all-purpose scatback Terry Metcalf and wide receiver Mel Gray, as well as NFC rushing champion Jim Otis. Imported to shore up the defense were veteran linemen John Zook and Marvin Upshaw, as well as No. 1 draft choice Mike Dawson and saftey Mike Sensibaugh.

The Oilers enjoyed a 10-4 turnaround season last year that just missed earning them a playoff berth. The preseason was an 0-6 disaster with injuries causing major problems. But most of the wounded have healed, including starting running backs Fred Willis and Ronnie Coleman, both expected to start against the Buccaneers.

Sunday's other openers have Pittsburgh at Oakland in a key AFC contest, Los Angeles at Atlanta, Philadelphia at Dallas, Denver at Cincinnati, Minnesota at New Orleans, the New York Giants at Washington, San Diego at Kansas City, Detroit at Chicago, the New York Jets at Cleveland, Baltimore at New England, and San Francisco at Green Bay. Miami plays at Buffalo Monday night to complete the first week's games.

The Pittsburgh-Oakland opener is a rematch of last year's AFC championship game which was won by the Steelers. Pittsburgh went on from there to take its second straight Super Bowl title.

The Steelers are back intact and so are the Raiders, except for the defensive line where injuries have forced some last-minute patchwork by Coach John Madden. To compensate for the loss of regulars Art Thoms and Horace Jones, Oakland probably will use only three down linemen with four linebackers.

With James Harris still nursing a broken thumb, Los Angeles will use Ron Jaworski at quarterback against Atlanta.

Minnesota center Mick Tingelhoff, who has a dislocated shoulder, and defensive end Carl Eller, out with a broken thumb, will miss the Vikings' opener in New Orleans.

Most other prominent injured players, including Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer, Cleveland wide receiver Paul Warfield, and Dallas defensive back Mel Renfro are listed as no worse than probable starters for the openers.

Flag Football Meeting Is Set

Talent-Rich Cowboys To Host Vermeil's Eagles

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The talent-rich Dallas Cowboys, who have replaced eight starters from their Super Bowl X team, officially welcome new Coach Dick Vermeil of the Philadelphia Eagles into the National Football League Sunday in an opener for both teams.

The Eagles lost all six of their preseason games prompting Vermeil, who left Rose Bowl champion UCLA, to conclude: "I didn't expect to walk right into a winning situation. All the jobs with winners have been taken."

Vermeil has put the Eagles, who haven't had a winning season since 1966, through a rough camp and extended two-a-day drills right into August. The six straight exhibition losses marked the longest losing streak in Vermeil's coaching career on any level.

The Eagles come off a 4-10 campaign while Dallas was the direct opposite and lost a heartbreaker 21-17 to Pittsburgh in the Super Bowl.

Vermeil says it's a tough way to open the season against Dallas, a team he has picked to win the National Conference Eastern Division "because they didn't graduate any seniors."

While Vermeil's one-liner brought laughs it should be noted that Dallas Coach Tom Landry, the dean of active NFL coaches, isn't standing pat.

He fired last year's place-kicking specialist Toni Fritsch and replaced him with Efren Herrera and doesn't even have the same backfield that started against Pittsburgh.

Fullback Scott Laidlaw and halfback Charles Young replace the injured Robert Newhouse and Preston Pearson, respectively. Tight end Bill Joe DuPree replaced Jean Fugett now with Washington.

Benny Barnes is at left cornerback for Mark Washington, Randy Hughes is at free safety for Cliff Harris, and Bob Breunig is at strongside linebacker for retired Dave Edwards.

And backup quarterback Danny White beat out Mitch Hoopes for the punting job.

Dallas leads the all-time series 19-12 and is a 14-point favorite for the 1 p.m. kickoff expected to draw some 53,000 fans.

The Cowboys were 3-3 in preseason and Landry kept 10 rookies. He had 12 last year.

"I suppose we are getting young but if all that youth turns out to be good players then we are all right," said Landry. "But if not, then I guess we are in trouble."

Women Golfers Plan Tourney

The members of the Womens' Golf Association will sponsor a city tournament for members of the club. The time is scheduled for 9 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 14.

Registering and pairing will be completed Tuesday. The Tournament will be held Wednesday through Friday. Awards luncheon will be after play Friday. Entry fee is $6 for the three days. Call the pro shop at 573-7107 for additional information.

IT'S A TOUCHDOWN!—Snyder High School tight end David Rice dives into the end zone for a touchdown against the Borger Bulldogs here Friday night. Rice caught a pass from quarterback Tim Falls with the play covering 11 yards. Defenders on the play are Craig Maxwell (64) and Toby Haynes (84). Snyder won, 14-6. (An M&W Photo.

Tigers Trample Borger To Keep Perfect Slate

Snyder High School's Tigers outslugged the Borger Bulldogs, 14-6, in Tiger Stadium here Friday night. The victory boosts the Snyder record to 2-0 while the 'Dogs fell to 0-2.

A good football team is one that can come up with the big play when the chips are down. Friday night, the Tigers were a good football team. Both the offense and the defense came through with the big play when it was needed.

The Tigers tallied seven points in the first and third frames while Borger got its single touchdown in the second quarter.

It was a hard fought contest from start to finish. When the Bulldogs stopped the Tiger backs, then quarterback Tim Falls would keep the offense rolling with his thrusts on keeper plays. When it appeared the visitors would drive in for a touchdown, the Tiger defense rose to the occasion and choked off their marches.

The Tigers scored their first touchdown at 8:29 of the first quarter after Ricky Fritz recovered a fumbled punt on the Borger 19 yard line. The Tigers drove in from that point in five plays. Tailback Clay Peterson burst through for a five yard gain to the 14. Fullback Ricky Beard charged through for a nine yard gain to set up first and goal at the five. Beard then plunged for one more, and Peterson ran for two to set up third and goal from the two. At this point, quarterback Tim Falls slid along the line and sliced over left tackle for the touchdown. Ricky Beard's extra point kick was accurate and Snyder had a 7-0 lead.

Following the ensuing kickoff, the Bulldogs drove from the Snyder 48 to the Tiger nine where they had a third and seven situation. Tailback Danny Hinds took the ball and thrust through the line. He appeared to be goalward bound when a Tiger hit him hard and he fumbled the ball. Beard, playing linebacker, came up with a big play, recovering the fumble at the one to stop the drive.

Biggest plays in the Borger march were an 8-yard keeper by quarterback Robin McCarty, and an 11 yard pass, McCarty to end Dennis Rion.

Later in the opening stanza, the Tigers came up with another big play. Following the fumble recovery, the Bulldogs were able to hold the Tigers deep in their own territory. Doyle Browning punted out from the five to the Snyder 45. With McCarty keeping and handing off to tailback Miles Parker, Borger ground out seven yards to the 38 where they faced fourth and three. They went for it, but Beard slammed McCarty down at the line of scrimmage in another big defensive play, and the Tigers had held again.

Snyder began a drive at its 38 which carried to the Borger 23, but a couple of penalties choked off the march. Big plays in the drive were a 19 yard pass, Falls to end David Rice, and a 13 yard burst by tailback Clay Peterson to the 23.

The Bulldogs' Mark Poole came up with an interception at the 15 to stop the drive, and he returned it to the 18. Borger drove the 82 yards to the goal in seven plays for the touchdown. The score came on a 44 yard pass and run play. Tight end Bobby Scott got behind the safety and McCarty hit him with a perfect strike. Scott made the reception about the 10 yard line and trotted across the goal. It was a perfectly executed play. The march also featured a 26 yard run by Parker from the Bulldog 17 to the 43. Parker also carried three other times in this march, and fullback Kurt Smith contributed short yardage.

Just before halftime, the Tigers penetrated Bulldog territory on a 28 yard run by Falls, but the clock stopped them. Snyder almost scored on a long pass from Falls to Alvin Ollison, but the ball slid off his fingertips and fell harmlessly to the turf.

Snyder kicked off opening the second half and got good field position at its 45 after holding the Bulldogs. The Tigers covered the 45 yards to the goal in six plays. The offensive line fired out well in this march, opening some good holes for the backs. Ricky Beard carried first, charging from the 45 to the 49, then he romped again, this time for 10 yards to the Borger 41. Falls kept on a 14 yard romp to the 27, then Clay Peterson scooted through the line for a six yard gain to the 21. Falls dialed his own number again and plowed through for a 10 yard gain to the 11. Facing first and 10 from the 11, Falls lofted a short aerial to tight end David Rice, who made the reception at the seven yard line. He lowered his head and plowed across the goal line, carrying a tackler with him. Beard's kick made it 14-6 in favor of the Tigers with 7:51 remaining.

Later in the period, the Tigers came up with another big play. Borger had recovered a Snyder fumble at the 25. Flanker back Danny Hinds added two to the 23, and Borger faced a 4th and two situation at that point. McCarty kept, but the Tiger defense knocked him down a yard short of the necessary point for a first down. Snyder took over and promptly got into Bulldog territory on a 39 yard run by Beard to the 39. However, a penalty stopped that drive.

Neither team could sustain a drive in the fourth quarter, but Snyder came up with another big defensive play after Borger had driven from its 20 to the Tiger 37. Big plays in the march were a 16 yard aerial, McCarty to Rion, and an 8 yard toss, McCarty to Scott. Parker contributed 12 in the drive.

Facing fourth and four at the Tiger 37, the Bulldogs tried to run the ball, but Hurbert Thompson and two other Tigers threw the ball carrier for a two yard loss back to the 42. Again, a Borger drive had been squelched by the big play.

The ability of the Tigers to perform well in crucial situations was the big difference in the contest. Snyder had a great team effort.

Falls was the leading ground gainer, getting 137 yards on 18 carries. Beard contributed 87 paces on 15 thrusts, and Peterson added 40 yards on 11 carries. Big gainer for the Bulldogs was Parker, who netted 63 yards on 10 carries.

Next Friday night, the Tigers host 4A foe Big Spring.

Channel Catfish Biting At Spence

The old faithful-channel catfish–returned to the forefront in fishing at Lake E.V. Spence during the past week.

But there also was a good variety with catches of striped bass, black bass, and crappie.

Baseball Under Scrutiny In New Hearing Series

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball's exclusion from the federal antitrust laws will come under close inspection this month when the Select House Committee on Professional Sports begins it second series of hearings.

Chairman B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., has set aside four days to hear from Justice Department antitrust officials, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, the presidents of the American and National leagues, Lee MacPhail and Chub Feeney, and some baseball owners on how the game would be affected if the sport were covered by antitrust laws.

The Justice Department officials will testify Sept. 16 while the baseball executives and other antitrust witnesses will be heard Sept. 21-23.

Sisk said eight days of hearings, scheduled over the next three weeks, will begin Wednesday with Charles H. Morin and James R. Ritche, chairman and executive director, respectively, of the National Gambling Commission scheduled was witnesses.

Sisk said the hearings in September are being held primarily to review problems facing professional sports and the federal laws under which they operate.

The committee intends to study seven major areas — gambling, communications, safety, immigration, labor-management, tax treatment and antitrust.

The Select committee was created last June after baseball owners refused to expand and put a team in the nation's capital, which has been without a club since the Washington Senators were moved to Texas in 1971.

Sisk, who headed an ad hoc legislative committee which attempted to return baseball to Washington, has made it clear that he will use the sports panel to pressure baseball officials to put a team in Washington.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

BY: DICK MAURICE

The minute Barbara Bain giggled, yes, actually giggled, I relaxed. In person, Barbara is not at all like Cinnamon Carter, the super-sophisticated spy she portrayed on "Mission: Impossible" or the equally as cool and level-headed Dr. Helena Russell, Chief of Medical Services on "Space 1999." Barbara is a warm, charming woman. Her husband and co-star on "Space 1999," Martin Landau, sat on my right. Both Landaus let down their hair. At last the truth about their leaving "Mission: Impossible," and much, much more.

MAURICE: At the time the both of you had left "Mission : Impossible," a story appeared in various magazines that Martin had wanted more money. And when the producers refused, Barbara left the show in protest. Is this true?

MARTIN: Not true! I wanted out. I had originally been asked to do one guest appearance. It had nothing to do with Barbara, who was already set as a regular. A funny aside – the original name of the character I was to play was Martin Hand. When they signed me they changed it to Rollin Hand. You know why? Because it fit in the same number of letter spaces on the typed script! Anyway, I stayed on and in three seasons did 80 'guest'appearances. Then there was a change of management. Desilu was bought out. Some power changes were made, and I thought the show would have to change, too.

BARABARA: We loved doing that show. We were like a family, and we really cared. It was fabulous fun doing it.

MARTIN: Anyhow, before I know it, I was on vacation. I read in the papers that I'm refusing to return because I wanted more money. I just wanted out. Pretty soon, we were cast as the villains.

MAURICE: Why didn't you ever tell your side of the story?

BARBARA: Nobody ever asked. And before you knew it, we were in litigation. I learned a lot of law spending a whole year sitting in a lawyer's office.

MAURICE: To the best of my knowledge, you are the only husband and wife team starring in a TV series. How do you like working together?

BARBARA: We wouldn't have done it if we didn't like it.

MARTIN: When we didn't work together I hardly got a chance to see Barbara and the girls. I was always traveling. So we decided to look around for something we could do together.

BARBARA: Remember, we worked together on "Mission," and so we knew what it would be like.

MAURICE: Do you ever argue?

BARBARA: All the time and loudly! After 19 years of marriage, we have reached the point where we complete each other's sentences. Sometimes, we both talk at the same time, and we end up giving each other dirty looks.

MARTIN: When I tell a story or a joke I rush through it for fear Barbara will tell the punch line before I have a chance to deliver it.

MAURICE: What about your children? How do they feel about having their parents being stars?

BARBARA: I can't really presume to talk for them. But I can remember when they were little girls. Susan would want to stay up and watch "Mission." After only a few minutes she'd fall asleep, but in the morning when she'd wake up, she'd look at me and say 'Mommy, you were wonderful.' Isn't that cute?

MARTIN: Let me tell you this story. The girls got used to seeing us on our television set. And Mel Brooks, who's a dear, dear friend of ours, invited us over with the children one night. He was on his television set. The girls actually grew up thinking that it was normal. We were on our television set, Mel was on his television set, then everyone must be on their own television.

MAURICE: You must have a lot of fans. Do you mind signing autographs?

BARBARA: Not at all! In fact, we still get fan mail. It seems to follow us around the world. We even once got a letter simply marked, 'Martin Landau, Hollywood' and it got to us!

Firm Bugged

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A $200 bug is missing, and the Terminex people would like him back.

The advertising design carried on top of the exterminating company trucks turned up missing from one parked at an employes' home recently.

Des Moines Terminex manager William Keller said Thursday he can't think of any reason to steal the big bugs except maybe to decorate a college dormitory room.

RECEIVES PROMOTION—Erwin Pavlik (right), district conservationist, Snyder Field Office, Soil Conservation Service, congratulates James E. (Jim) Crownover upon his promotion to district conservationist for the Paducah field office. Crownover has been with the Snyder field office staff for the past four years.

Crownover Is Promoted By SC Service

James E. "Jim" Crownover, Soil Conservation Service soil conservationist on the Snyder field office staff for the past four years, has been promoted to district conservationist for the Paducah field office effective today.

Crownover succeeds Wes A. Robbins who transferred to a district conservationist position in Idaho.

Crownoover was an SCS soil conservationist at Brownfield and a soil conservation aid (WAE) at Canyon prior to moving to Snyder in October, 1972.

A native of Claude, Crownover is a 1968 graduate of West Texas State University where he majored in plant science. Active in professional societies, he is a member of the Soil Conservation Society of America and is a director of the Permian Basin Chapter, SCSA.

Truck Fire Is Extinguished

City firemen were called Friday at 12:20 p.m. to extinguish a minor truck fire.

The truck, an 18-wheeler, hadl developed a fire in a right rear tire as the truck was at the overpass of Highways 208 and 84.

The truck was owned by the Standard Parts Co. of Alabama.

Field Day Set At SCS Center

A public field day will be held on Sept. 23 at the Soil Conservation Service plant materials center at Knox City, State Conservationist George C. Marks announced this week.

New grasses, forbs, legumes, and other plants under evaluation at the center will be discussed during the day, Marks said. The center serves both Texas and Oklahoma.

Guided tours will be conducted through the 92-acre tract from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The center is located on FM 1292, 2 miles north and 2½ miles west of Knox City. Box lunches will be on sale for those who wish to eat lunch at the center.

Grass seed growers, seed dealers, conservation district directors, research workers, sportsmen, and others interested in the search for better plants are invited to attend.

Seed or rootstock from plants that show promise for solving specific soil and water conservation problems are collected, then grown and evaluated at Knox City. The more promising ones are then grown under field conditions on farms of soil and water conservation district cooperators under a wide variety of conditions. Selections that prove superior to other strains available are then released by conservation districts to commercial seed growers. These producers then grow seed and sell it to the public.

Approximately 1,200 different grasses, forbs, legumes, and woody plants are being grown at Knox City. Grass strains proven and put into use by SCS include Selection 75 kleingrass; El Reno, Uvalde, and Vaughn sideoats grama; King Ranch bluestem; green sprangletop; and Grenville switchgrass.

SCS plant materials work also developed ways to profitable grow, harvest, and plant most of the range grasses now being planted in Texas.

Some of the groups who cooperate with SCS in its plant materials work in Texas include Agricultural Research Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas A&M University, Texas Tech University, Prairie View A&M, Abilene Christian University, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Corps of Engineers, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, and soil and water conservation districts.

Painting Classes Set For Beginners

Painting was an early love for Mrs. Doris Rudd, Borden County's district-county clerk.

Now she shares her experience and ideas with students of all ages, and has scheduled a series of lessons through the Community Services department of Western Texas College starting on Sept. 14.

Students in grades 2-6 are invited to enroll in a class for beginners scheduled from 6-7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays through Oct. 19. The class for beginning adults will meet from 8-10 p.m., also on Tuesdays. Students in either class will pay fees of $21 and will furnish their own supplies. A minimum of 10 students will be required for the children's class, while 12 will be required for the adult class.

Mrs. Rudd has taught classes in Gail, Fluvanna and Coahoma, and taught an evening course for extension sutdents of Howard College in Lamesa. She holds a teacher's certificate from the National Arts & Crafts Association.

Mrs. Rudd once described her work as "junk painting," referring more to the "canvas" on which she paints rather than to the end result. A weathered board may become the "canvas for an original western scene, for example, and any piece of rusty, unused equipment from field or kitchen can take on a new life with painted decoration.

Persons interested in enrolling for either of the art classes are asked to call the Community Services office at WTC, 573-8511, extension 237, for additional information. A suggested list of supplies may be obtained from the office. Mrs. Rudd will keep students informed of supplies necessary for special projects.

Millionaire Kills Two Burglars

BLUFFTON, S.C. (AP) — Two Marines, who apparently swam three-fourths of a mile across a river to burglarize the isolated island home of a millionaire, were shot to death by the owner of the estate, authorities say.

Henry S. "Harry" Cram, a 69-year-old plantation owner described by neighbors as an avid outdoorsman and proficient with firearms, fired two shots from a .38-caliber revolver, instantly killing the Marines, Beaufort County Coroner Roger Pinckney said Friday.

The men were identified as Sgt. Jon M. Adams Jr., 20, of High Point, N.C., and Lance Cpl. Lawrence R. Powell, 21, of Union Town, N.J.

Pinckney said they apparently swam across the May River from Bluffton to reach Cram's estate on a 40-acre isolated island in the southeastern corner of South Carolina.

A third Marine who authorities said also was believed to be involved was in custody on burglary charges. Officers identified him as Sgt. Robert L. Nunez, 34, of Trinidad, Colo., and said he was arrested in a car at Bluffton shortly after the shooting.

Pinckney said one of the dead Marines wore a rubber diving suit and the other was dressed in cut-off fatigues. He said they both had knives, one of them a Bowie knife which he described as "the largest I ever saw."

Pinckney, who said not all details were immediately available, gave the following account:

The two men entered the modern, three-home complex through an open screen door in the bedroom of Cram's son, Peter. One man wore a stocking over his face; the other had a pillowcase over his head.

Cadets Will Give Affidavits

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Reversing their previous stand, a group of U.S. Military Academy cadets say they will give cadet officials — with no strings attached — affidavits in which they accused 687 classmates of honor code violations.

Cadet Raymond Betler, one of those who signed the affidavits, said Friday the tentative plan was to give the affidavits to the brigade commander and the chairman of the cadet honor committee.

"They keep saying they don't believe that all this is going on," said Betler, a senior from Library, Pa., and spokesman for the signers. "We're going to give the affidavits to them and allow them to make the decision as to how they're used."

Previously, the White House and two congressional subcommittees had refused to accept the affidavits because of the cadets' insistence that the names involved not be used for prosecution. The subcommittees have been investigating the worst cheating scandal in the academy's 174-year history.

"Neither the Senate nor the House wanted to view those affidavits in confidence," said Cadet Betler. "We still felt that people weren't willing to acknowledge that cheating is more widespread than people ae saying. We wanted to bring out the scope without hurting more individuals if possible."

But he said that after consulting their lawyers, the cadets "decided at this point that this is our only alternative. We just want the whole truth out."

The cadets announced their change in position shortly after Lt. Gen. Sidney B. Berry, superintendent of the academy, and Army Secretary Martin R. Hoffmann both criticized public release of some of the affidavits' contents.

"I am outraged by the irresponsibility and disregard for basic rights of the individual demonstrated by those who have possession of affidavits charging West Pointers with honor violations," said Berry.

He said disclosure of the names of some persons implicated in the documents "ignored due process and damaged the reputations of individuals ... . This is public conviction without trial ... . I call it McCarthyism."

Coach Is Jaycees' Speaker

Snyder High Football Coach Mike Jenkins presented the program Friday at the regular luncheon meeting of the Snyder Jaycees. He discussed the football program.

President Clyde Ferguson reminded that Snyder Jaycees would conduct a blood drive from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sept. 14 at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Building in cooperation with Blood Services of Lubbock, which operates the blood bank serving Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Robert Pinkston, chairman of the Jaycees Labor Day Rest Stop, reported that over 460 cars with more than 1,100 people stopped at the facility over the Labor Day weekend.

Ron Kelly reported that the special movie sponsored by Jaycees raised $608 for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon. Kelly also gave a report on "Road Runner" competition, which is based on travel to other Jaycee clubs, and Pinkston reported that 12 area teams were participating in the slowpitch softball tournament being sponsored this weekend by the local club.

Horrace Bostick, high school principal, accompanied Coach Jenkins and other guests were Joe Coronado, Jimmy Don Dyess and Mark Bassham.

SEC Files Fraud Suit

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission has filed a fraud suit against four companies and four individuals alleging misrepresentation of oil and gas leases sold to investors.

Named in the suit were Independence Drilling Corp. and Continental Pacific Corp., both of San Antonio, and Diversified Monetary Systems and Economic Control Corp., both of San Francisco. Individuals named were Walter Wilson Carter Jr., Conrad R. Temp, Richard D. Freeman and Alvin W. Bawks.

The suit alleges the companies often did not own the leases or the leases were not worth their purported values.

The case was assigned to U.S. District Judge D.W. Suttle, but no hearing date on a motion for a temporary injunction and receiver was set.

The leases in question are located in several South Texas counties.

Infinity is a quantity that is greater than any assignable quantity.

Your Birthday

Sept. 12, 1976

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in a stronger position than you realize in dealing with the boss today. Make the most of your advantages. Firm-up the relationship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Ordinarily you don't put too much stock in your hunches, but today your insights will be worth heeding. Don't dismiss them hastily.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You should be far more competent in commercial affairs today than you were yesterday. Don't let others push you. Set your own pace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your loyalties will be adequately repaid when someone you once stood behind will be there to back you up today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions are highly advantageous careerwise today. The sky's the limit. Shoot for the moon instead of aiming at street lights.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're able to see more clearly than your contemporaries today. Rely more on your perspective and judgment than on theirs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something profitable could be developing, due to the efforts of one with whom you have strong ties. This person is not yet ready to show his hand.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Partnerships and one-to-one relationships are promising areas for you today. Team up with those you have faith in.

Your Birthday

Sept. 13, 1976

LITTLE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN "HOPE" AND "HELP"

The old timers, in the hill country of America, often transposed the word "hope" for the word "help." "I'll hope you carry that bag."

Some linguists disclaim such careless use of the language—but hold on—there is really very little difference between the two words. To hope is to help. Hope is one of the most powerful emotions the human heart can generate. "I kept hoping" the laborer said when he was finally and dramatically pulled out of the ditch which had collapsed on him. "My hope never died," the POW's wife exclaimed as she held close to her recently released husband.

One night, aboard ship crossing from Alexandria to Naples, we passed the volcanic island of Stromboli. When I saw those swords of flame and lava shooting thousands of feet into the air, I thought, "fire in the night—defying water and darkness, it streaks up into the blackened sky—like Hope Eternal. Nothing can contain, much less extinguish, its bright burning light."

There is a magnificence about hope—that helps—really helps! I can almost hear God saying, "I'll hope you"—or "I'll help you"—with Him and me, it's the same thing!

COUNTRY DOINGS

Scurry Centennial Cook Book Available At Fair

"Country Doings", Scurry County's Centennial Cook Book will be available at the Scurry County Fair, Sept. 16, 17 and 18 announced Delbert Downing, general chairman of the Bicentennial-Centennial Commission and Jean Everett, centennial co-ordinator.

The cookbook was compiled in celebration of the county's 100th anniversary and was first offered for sale at the Pioneer Skills Festival held on July 3. Since that time it has been handled by Bennett Office Supply and the Chamber of Commerce.

"Country Doings" came into being as a means of paying tribute to the pioneer cooks—those who dished out hearty meals from over a chuck wagon camp fire as well as those who labored over wood burning or kerosene stoves. It is in remembrance and appreciation of those early cooks that the book is dedicated; for that reason all recipes in the book are at least 50 years old, many are much older, some dating back to Civil War years.

In addition to the recipes, the cook book contains a little bit of Scurry County history, home remedies, households hints, and most recipes are preceded by a short paragraph telling the age of the recipe and from whom it came.

The book contains recipes from beef tea to cold soap; suggestions to a new bride for washing clothes (dated 1916); remedies for rheumatism, dropsy, cold in head; cancer cures snake bite remedy, and some animal cures; as well as delicious and practical real-to-goodness home cooked dishes as this Mississippi Chicken Pie from Mrs. Lucille Bynum:

MISSISSIPPI CHICKEN PIE

"This recipe came to Texas in the early 1800s when my great-grandmother, Mrs. Sallie Johnson, settled in Johnson County. When my great-grandfather died enroute, Sallie continued on with 4 small children and 3 servants."

Mrs. Lucille Bynum

SPRAY PROGRAM:

You kinda expect to find boll weevils when you go out to check a field of cotton, but you hardly expect to find any when you take a coffee break. However, this was the case Wednesday afternoon when some of the employes and customers of Stinson Drug discovered a boll weevil on the front window of the store.

Don't guess we will ever know for sure whether he was just taking a coffee break, looking for a home to overwinter in or had heard that manufactured cotton goods in the dry goods stores were better than raw cotton bolls, but he was there in excellent condition.

Which leads us to the fall diapause spray program that got underway Monday, Sept. 6.

Chuck's Flying Service of Bovina began the applicaiton with seven planes operating.

We want to use this space to answer some questions we have received during the past concerning the program.

Only cotton fields are being sprayed. Other crops within the area are not covered by spray, therefore are safe to use in the regular manner. There may be some mechanical drift associated with this program as there is with any other spray program. This is kept to a very minimum since the pesticide applicators are required to follow safety precautions involving wind velocity, cut-off valves, and other measures.

Donnie Arnold, State Dept. of Agriculture is in charge of overseeing the application, monitoring the pesticide and other operations necessary for a program of this type. He also has two other employees of the State Dept. of Agriculture assisting him.

Fruit trees and vegetable gardens located next to sprayed cotton fields with 100 feet or more isolation should be completely safe. Drift usually is not a factor for this distance. These products can be washed or peeled and cause no problems.

Livestock grazing pasture land located near sprayed area does not present problems because of the limited drift. The planes may cross these areas, but the spray is cut off.

There are problems in keeping the public informed as to the area that is being sprayed. The scattered showers we have been having necessitated moving from one area to another at any given time. The applicators are attempting to complete each area before moving to another as near as possible.

Texas Business Below Average

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Texas metropolitan areas are not recovering from the business recession at the same rate as the national recovery because they had not fallen as low, the Texas Bureau of Business Research says.

Nonagricultureal employment in Texas gained 2.7 per cent during the 12-months ended in July, the review says, which is considerably below the national average of 3.8 per cent.

"Those parts of Texas that improved least in employment during that same period were those that suffered the least from unemployment during the recession," says Dr. Lorna Monti, acting director of the bureau.

"Conversely, high rates of manufacturing employment have occurred in those Texas labor market areas where high unemployment continues—Laredo and McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg."

Missouri Has Energy To Spare

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Missouri has energy to spare — about 10,000 years worth.

In 1975, 85 per cent of the state's electric power came from coal (compared to 45 per cent for the U.S. average) and by 1978 nearly 90 per cent of the state's energy will be produced from a slice of the 6-billion tons of recoverable reserves in the state that will take an estimated 10,000 years to deplete at current rates.

Supreme Court Shaping America Differently Now

EDITOR'S NOTE — During his presidency, Richard Nixon said the Supreme Court had "gone too far in weakening the peace forces against the criminal forces." He called for strict construction of the Constitution, and the four men he appointed to the court are carrying out his wishes.

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The justices of the Supreme Court are not known to the public in the way senators and cabinet members are. They do not appear regularly on television. They seldom give press conferences. Their speeches usually deal with arcane legal subjects.

Yet as much as anyone they shape the pattern of life in America. And because of a recent shift in the court, the justices are shaping America far differently than the court did less than a decade ago.

When former President Richard M. Nixon was elected in 1968, the Supreme Court, under the leadership of Chief Justice Earl Warren, was expanding Bill of Rights protections for both accused criminals and law-abiding citizens.

Now, many legal scholars believe, there has been not just a slowing down of this process but a change in direction under Chief Justice Warren Burger — particularly in the court's last term.

During that term the justices upheld capital punishment as a penalty for murder, ruled that defendants may be sentenced to jail by judges not trained in the law, permitted arrests in a public place without a warrant, approved zoning laws that single out X-rated theaters and bookstores for special restrictions, permitted military commanders to bar political campaigning on their bases, and ruled that laws may not be struck down as discriminatory merely because they have a disproportionate impact on members of one race.

The justices also handed down decisions that make it more difficult, in various ways, for persons claiming violations of their constitutional rights to sue in federal courts.

In the term beginning Oct. 4, the court will consider a number of other cases involving an individual's rights.

One is that of a convicted Iowa murderer, Robert Andrew Williams. The court has been asked to overturn or sharply curtail its 10-year-old rule that a confession by a suspect in police custody may not be used against him unless the suspect had been warned in advance of his constitutional rights.

The case illustrates the tendency of this court, unlike the Warren court, to accept for review criminal cases in which the defendant prevailed in the lower court and the state is appealing. The Warren court more often chose to listen to appeals by defendants.

Williams was convicted of the sex slaying of 10-year-old Pamela Powers of Des Moines, Iowa, on the day before Christmas, 1968. The Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned his conviction because remarks made to him by a policeman, in an automobile without an attorney present, led Williams to show officers where the girl was buried. Iowa officials are asking the court to rule that the only test for omission of a statement as evidence should be whether or not it was given voluntarily.

During his presidency, Nixon said the court had "gone too far in weakening the peace forces as against the criminal forces." He called for strict construction of the Constitution. And he appointed four men to the court who agreed with him.

"In retrospect, President Nixon's staffing of the Supreme Court has probably been more effective in terms of his own claims (getting the decisions he wanted) than any other single act of that administration," Prof. William Van Alstyne of the Duke University Law School said in an interview.

"In many areas of the court's work — criminal procedure, the First Amendment, equal protection, and others — the difference between where we are today and where we were at the close of the Warren era is marked and inescapable," says Prof. A.E. Howard of the University of Virginia Law School.

The change began with the appointment in 1969 of Chief Justice Burger, then a federal appeals court judge in Washington, D.C. Nixon was attracted to Burger because of his strong law and order decisions and his off-the-bench criticism of the liberal Warren court.

The second justice named was Harry Blackmun, a college math major who considered studying medicine. But he chose law and eventually rose to the bench of the U.S. Court of Appeals before his appointment to the high court in 1970.

Nixon rounded out his court appointments in 1972 with the selection of justices Lewis Franklin Powell Jr., 68, and William Hubbs Rehnquist, 51.

Powell, a wealthy Virginian and former president of the American Bar Association, is perhaps the most moderate, or centrist, of the four. Rehnquist, who was an assistant U.S. attorney general when appointed to the court, is the most conservative of the justices.

The turning point in the development of the Burger court occurred on May 22, 1972, the date of the first major criminal decision in which all four Nixon appointees participated. In that ruling, the court held 5 to 4 that states may let less-than-unanimous juries convict persons of crime.

Joining the four Nixon appointees in the majority was Justice Byron Raymond White, 59, who has continued to side with them frequently in criminal cases, perhaps reflecting his experience as deputy attorney general before going on the bench. White, a former All-American football player and Rhodes scholar, was appointed by President John F. Kennedy in 1969.

Since 1972, the court has expanded the authority of police to search people without warrants, narrowed the circumstances in which a criminal suspect must be warned of his legal rights, and restricted the power of state prisoners to challenge the way evidence used in their trials was obtained.

"The court seems to be more in line now with the thinking of prosecutors," says Louis P. Bergna, district attorney of Santa Clara County, Calif., and president of the National District Attorneys Association.

Powell recently made the unusual move of speaking out publicly on the trend of the court in criminal law. In a speech at an American Bar Association meeting, he said the court was evolving "a sounder balance ... between the rights of accused persons and the right of a civilized society to have a criminal justice system that is effective as well as fair."

In another area, the court has tended to diminish the Warren court's expansion of the procedural rights of citizens affected by government actions. Take, for example, the cases of Norma Grace Constantineau and Edward Charles Davis III.

Mrs. Constantineau lived in Hartford, Wis. On Jan. 23, 1969, the police chief had notices posted in all retail liquor outlets in the city forbidding them to sell Mrs. Constantineau any beer or liquor because of her "excessive drinking." She was not warned that her name was to be posted, nor was she given a hearing. The Supreme Court ruled in 1970 that this violated a constitutional obligation to provide notice and a hearing "where a person's good name, reputation, honor, or integrity is at stake because of what the government is doing to him."

Davis' story began in somewhat the same way, but ended differently. Davis was a photographer for the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal and Times. In June, 1971, he was arrested by a department store house detective on a shoplifting charge. He pleaded innocent and the charge was placed in an inactive file. In December, 1972, Louisville police included Davis' name and picture in a flyer they distributed to storekeepers identifying "active shoplifters." Shortly after this the charge against Davis was dismissed. He sued, charging a violation of his constitutional rights because of damage to his reputation.

Last March 23, the Supreme Court ruled 5 to 3 that Davis had not been entitled to a hearing or notification before the police included him on a list of shoplifters. The court said that unlike Mrs. Constantineau, who had lost the right to buy liquor in Hartford, Davis was not deprived of any right he previously had. Although he could sue in state courts for libel, the justices said, the Constitution did not protect him from harm to his reputation. The dissenters called the decision "frightening for a free people."

Only two of the Nixon justices had been appointed when the Constantineau case was decided. They dissented. All four of them were on the court for the Davis case and they voted in the majority. Joining them was Justice Potter Stewart, like White a swing justice whose vote often makes the difference in close cases. Stewart, 61, was named to the court in 1958 by President Eisenhower.

In the Davis case, the court did not overrule its earlier decision but simply "distinguished" the two cases — arguing that the old rule did not apply now because the circumstances were different.

In two other cases during the past term, the justices overruled decisions of the Warren era. They did so in holding that there is no constitutional right to picket in a privately owned shopping mall. The court also struck down the extension of federal wage and hour standards to state and local government employes.

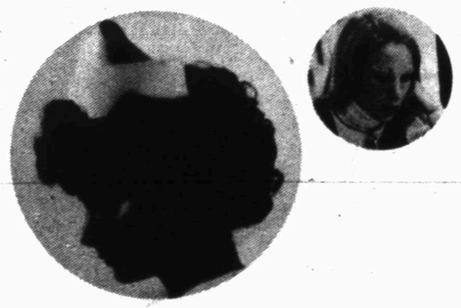

The latter ruling dramatically demonstrated the court's increased reliance on the 10th and 11th Amendments to the Constitution, which limit the powers of the federal government in relation to the states.

Not all of the court's actions, however, run counter to the rulings of the Warren era. The court has desegregated private schools, struck down restrictions on news reporting of criminal cases, overruled abortion regulations, and imposed stiff penalties for job discrimination. Any of these decisions could have come as easily from the Warren court.

But the general trend is unmistakably conservative and appears likely to continue so. Leaving aside the court's two veteran liberals, William Joseph Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall, the average age of the justices is only 61.

Brennan, 70, the court's senior member in both years and service (Eisenhower named him in 1956), is the court's leading dissenter since the retirement of William Douglas.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Scouting Adults Guidance Events (SAGE) will begin on Monday, Sept. 13, at the Girl Scout Service Center in Abilene. Any adults interested in Girl Scouting in any way are invited to attend. These events will aid parents in helping daughters at home; assist those who can help with projects at troop meetings; guide leaders in planning troop program; give everyone a better understanding of Girl Scouts.

These events will be moving out of Abilene later in the fall. Until then, you are invited to come to the Girl Scout Service Center and participate with other adults from around the Big Country.

During the week of Sept. 13-17 there will be events both morning and afternoon and on Thursday evening. Adults will need to bring a handbook (their daughter's is the thing), paper and pencil. Those who are leaders will also need to bring all the other books which are connected with a leader's position. Leaders will share these with others as well as use them. For further information, check with your Unit Chairman or call the Girl Scout Service Center, 698-1738.

Adults who are involved with these age levels are invited to come to camp at the same time for a Rap Session. This will be a time to share their problems with each other and get help in solving them; express their opinions on program development; tell what their troops will be doing through the year; plan for some inter-troop activities; those new to these levels can get help in understanding "what its all about."

Council wide activities planned for these age groups as learning situations will be revealed at this meeting. Girls and adults will be asked to evaluate the plans.

Beef Is Still King Of Meats

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There's an old saying that beef's the king of meat and it certainly reigns supreme in America where a juicy steak is considered the epitome of the good life.

Actually, the tender, seasoned beef we eat today is a far cry from the tough, stringy cuts that graced our forefathers' tables. The famed Texas Longhorn was a lean, sturdy beast who thrived in the arid plains of Texas, but his flesh was pretty tough by modern standards.

Today, we raise plumper breeds originally imported from Britain and developed over the years, such as Black Angus, Durham and Hereford. These sleek animals produce the marbled beef you see in the better restaurants and butcher shops, even if marbled is a dirty word to those who are watching their cholesterol.

Most steak buffs have their favorite cut, which recalls something that has long mystified me. I'm told Britons had never heard of London broil until some Yank informed them what it was. I was born and raised in New York, but I had never heard of the cut called New York steak until I saw it on a restaurant menu in Maryland. And they say that the Top of Iowa steak featured in some places will get you a blank stare from an Iowan. But some steak names do have authentic backgrounds.

For instance, in the mid-19th century, New York became famous for its porterhouse steaks. They were named after a waterfront restaurant which flourished at that time and served a short loin cut with a goblet of ale.

Many people think of steak only as a slab of beef seared in pan or broiler, then served up with mushrooms or onions and French fries. But there are other ways. Steak cooked in beer is delicious and a cut of round simmered in wine can be a delight.

The chefs of New Zealand, which is quite a beef country in its own right, have a number of ingenious ways of serving steak including this spicy version that is relatively economical.

- 2 pounds chuck steak
- 1 tablespoon crushed coriander
- 1 tablespoon tumeric
- 1 teaspoon crushed cuminseed
- 2 teaspoons powdered ginger
- 4 cloves crushed garlic
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup cider vinegar
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 bay leaves

Cut meat in narrow strips 3 inches long. Pound to a paste the coriander, tumeric, cumin, ginger, garlic, salt and onions. Blend in vinegar. Add meat and toss till pieces are covered with spice mixture. Cover and place in refrigerator 24 hours. Melt butter in skillet, add undrained meat and bay leaves. Cover and cook over low heat 45 minutes till meat is tender. Remove cover and simmer stirring frequently last 5 minutes. Serve with boiled rice. Serves 6. Good with chilled ale.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — The outside sill of one of our windows is rotted. I repaired it a couple of times during the past year, but now it is beyond repair and needs to be replaced completely. Can you tell me how to do this?

A. — To do the job properly, the inside sill must first be removed. Now saw the outside sill in two places so that the center section can be lifted off. This will facilitate removal of the two end pieces, which may or may not require the pulling out of a few nails. Either cut or buy a new sill, using the pieces of the old one as a pattern. Insert and nail the new sill to the window casing from the underside, sinking the nail ends. The holes over the heads can be filled with something like an acrylic latex caulk. After shellacking the new sill, replace the inside sill. Caulk where necessary. Give the sill a coat of diluted shellac. When everything is dry, paint the new sill with an exterior paint.

Q. — Is it true that iodine can be used to cover up tiny scratches in a varnished table?

A. — Yes. But this camouflaging of the scratches will work only if the wood has a dark finish on it. Try it out first on the underside of the table to see if the iodine matches the color of the wood.

Q. — Some water was recently spilled on our coffee table and left marks on it. Unfortunately, we did not see what had happened until several hours later. What's the best way to remove the marks?

A. — If the table top had wax on it, it may be that the marks are only in the wax. In that event, use a wax remover and see if the stains disappear. If not — or if there was no wax on the table in the first place — rub the area with a cloth moistened with oil of peppermint. Rub a second time, but use a clean, dry cloth.

Q. — I read in your column about a year ago how to tell whether the dampness on a basement wall is caused by condensation. I don't remember the details, but know it had something to do with a mirror. Can you explain again?

A. — Tape a small mirror to the basement wall. Wait several hours. If the mirror becomes cloudy or damp, it means that the dampness is being caused by condensation.

Package Delivered After Five Years

FAIRMONT, Minn. (AP) — Marvin Carlson paid the 28 cents postage due at the Fairmont Post Office and took the package home to his wife.

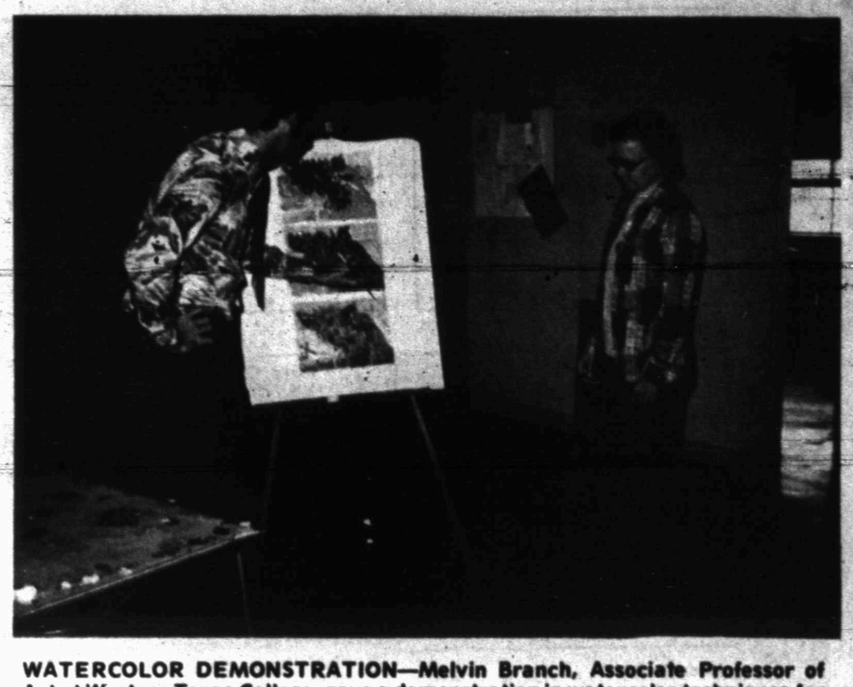

"When I looked at the address on the package, I wondered who was sending (daughter) Connie something and didn't know she was married," said Mrs. Carlson Thursday.

"Then I recognized my own handwriting. It was the package I sent to Connie five years ago."

Mrs. Carlson said the package was correctly addressed and had a correct return address.

She said employes at the Post Office in this southern Minnesota city did not know where the package had been the past five years or what office returned it.

Smugglers Gone To The Birds

By MILLER H. BONNER JR.
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Smuggling has traditionally been a fly-by-night operation but smugglers along the Rio Grande have literally gone to the birds.

Parrots, parakeets and other species of birds with colorful plummage and vocabulary are being smuggled into the United States from Mexico "by the thousands," report U.S. Customs and border Patrol officials.

"Right now, there's probably as much money in smuggling birds as there is in narcotics," said C.B. Williams, a U.S. Department of Agriculture inspector at the international bridge linking Brownsville with the Mexican city of Matamoras.

"The most recent case occurred a few weeks ago when the Border Patrol caught some men attempting to smuggle about 300 parrots across the river on a raft," said Williams. "The men are now in jail and the birds were destroyed."

Williams said yellowheads—parrots with green plummage and a striking yellow crown—are the most popular birds due to "their ability to adapt to a vocabulary."

Merchants along the crowded Matamoras market square sell the birds for $15 to $100 depending on the bird's size, age and rarity.

Across the border, the same bird will sell for $200 to $1,500.

The smuggling activity exists for the obvious monetary reason plus the stringent regulations of the USDA which fears the birds may be carrying a virus deadly to poultry—the exotic Newcastle disease.

"The last outbreak of this disease in the United States occurred a couple of years ago in California," said Williams. "The disease affects all types of poultry and there is no vaccine. The only way to stamp it out is to destroy the birds.

"The California outbreak cost the poultry industry about $50 million and the disease was traced to a smuggled parrot."

The USDA requires a parrot to be in the possession of the owner for at least 90 days before crossing the border said Williams.

Nine-inch round and square pans are useful for baking yeast rolls as well as for cakes.

The student let East hold the first spade and won the continuation. Then he lost the club finesse to East's king. East led a third spade to clear the suit for his partner.

The student ran off the club suit while discarding a diamond from his own hand. West chucked a heart and two diamonds.

The student thought a while, took the heart finesse and was down one when it lost.

"How do you learn to handle such bad breaks?" asked the student. "Two finesses and both wrong. Could I have done anything?"

"Yes. You could and should have made your contract," replied the Professor.

Do you see how the student could have played safe against all bad breaks as long as West hadn't opened a three-card suit?

After winning that second spade the student should have led the queen of hearts. If West ducked the student would go after clubs and be sure of his contract. If West rose and cleared the spades the student would take and lose the club finesse, but East would not be able to lead a spade.

East Germany Alchemists Producing Olympic Gold

EDITOR'S NOTE — Drugs and male hormones play a part. So do menus, training camps in the mountains, a computer in Leipzig and a committee of high commissars. From a variety of sources, an AP correspondent tells how East Germany produces its outstanding athletes.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

EAST BERLIN (AP) — Back behind the floodlit fence in her Communist fatherland, super mermaid Kornelia Ender is a star without a billboard or even a fan club.

Her value to the state, like her role in society, is not as a teenage heroine of the masses but as a factory-proven product of the socialist system designed almost exclusively for the export market.

The comrade in the street doesn't seem to care. He may know from the press and TV that his country won 40 gold, 25 silver and 25 bronze medals at the Montreal Olympics, second only to the Soviet Union in gold medals and six more than the United States. He may even know that Ender won four gold medals — two within less than a half-hour — and a silver. But he feels no personal identification with her or the other athletes. Nor does the state encourage any.

Kornelia Ender and her teammates live in another world, a world as walled off from the everyday masses as the glittering capitalist shops along the Kurfuerstendamm on the opposite side of Checkpoint Charlie.

It is a world of goals and graphs and special diets, of trainers with stopwatches and heavy "performance bibles," of white-coated doctors taking blood tests and injecting hormones, of training camps in the Bulgarian mountains and a computer in Leipzig and a committee of high commissars ruling the jock roost from a ministry in Berlin.

Occasionally prying western eyes are given a guarded glimpse of the East German sports scene: the sports university at Leipzig, some of the 691 gym centers or 890 track and field complexes, the new pool at Rostow or the sports club at Kark Marx Stadt, but always on a carefully guided tour that divulges no secrets of the latter-day alchemists transmuting raw muscle into Olympic gold.

But secrets will out. It is now known how East Germany, with a population of 17.5 million, managed to select 292 athletes for the trip to Montreal and have 159 of them return wearing medals.

The secret of the system is the system itself.

"It was clear in 1973 when I took blood samples from her ear lobes that Kornelia Ender could swim the 100-meter freestyle in 56 seconds flat," said Alois Marder, a sports doctor who was a key part of the system until he defected to the West two years ago.

For 10 years Marder was department chief of research into high-performance athletes at the Chemie Sports Club in Halle, where Fraulein Ender came to be trained as a world-class swimmer.

The Chemie Club is one of 18 sports clubs that serve as laboratories for the new breed of alchemists bubbling up Olympic gold for East Germany. Located in each of the 15 counties or sports districts, plus three run by the army, the clubs concentrate on high-performance athletes attending their specialized sports schools at both elementary and high school level.

Each club and school complex specializes in certain sports: rowing and weight lifting at one, skiing and figure skating at another, etc. Children are selected at age 9 or 10 on the basis of talent, size, and expected body growth, after they have been watched for two years at a local sports center or have distinguished themselves at "sportakiades," youth competitions held on a regional and national basis. Last year 3.5 million children took part in the East German sports program.

Except for those who live in the town, children board at the sports school. Sometimes in the case of a very talented prospect, the whole family is moved to an apartment near the club and the father is given a suitable and usually better job than the one he had.

Kornelia Ender was sent to the Chemie Club, which specializes in rowers, swimmers and middle-distance runners, at age 8, after she had been swimming in the Halle public pool for three years. When Dr. Marder was there, Chemie had a staff of 70, including 11 doctors, and, for its 150 swimmers, eight trainers. His medical speciality was researching the effects of hard training on bodily functions.

The sports schools follow a normal curriculum but training takes precedence and dictates the daily schedule. Swimmers turn up at the pool at 8:30 each morning, train for 2½ hours, attend class for two hours, break for lunch, return to class for three hours then go back to the pool for another two-hour session.

The training programs are not devised by the individual coaches who may know their swimmers best, but by the "scientific center for swim" at Leipzig University's Research Center for Physical Culture in Sport. Experiences of the various trainers with high-performance athletes and data from blood samples taken by the club doctors are collected, studied and fed into the computer at Leipzig on a weekly and monthly basis.

"Each child is given a minimum and maximum goal," Dr. Marder explained. "If at the end of the year, he or she is not inside the figures, the option is given of staying on for another year or going home. A swimmer who grows too fast or gets too heavy may be switched to another sport, like rowing. When a child has reached full growth and still does not meet performance levels, the decision is automatic: there is no purpose in continuing."

The computer has decreed that at age 14 to 15 single-scull rowers must be at least 1.85 meters (six feet) tall, weigh 77 kilos (170 pounds), have at least three full years of growth ahead of them, and have no spine or back defects. Lesser physical specimens need not apply.

The Leipzig center devises menus and diets for the centralized club kitchens to cook for the different sports disciplines. Weight lifters and rowers chomp into 5,000 calories a day. Gymnasts, figure skaters and other weight-watchers have their calories counted for them by the computer.

At the Chemie Sports Club the future medalists often dine on steaks, oranges, eggs and other items not always seen in the markets of Halle.

The entire system of turning out world-class athletes is administered from Berlin by the High Performance Sports Commission. The ministry's chief commissar is Manfred Ewald, who also serves as chairman of East Germany's Olympic Committee. Berlin monitors the Leipzig center and its computer and calls the tune on matters of procedure and protocol.

Athletes below the age of 16 are forbidden to smoke. After that, it is merely frowned upon. Until 1972, the sexes were rigidly separated at the training camps and schools. Now boys and girls train together.

Sex relations used to be strictly forbidden for athletes under 19, but now "partner relations" are allowed and sometimes even "steered" by the commissars.

Kornelia Ender, at 17, is engaged to 25-year-old Roland Matthes, a world-class swimmer who didn't fare too well against the Americans this time.

At age 14 — never earlier, but more often at 15 — the athlete destined for gold first encounters the most controversial part of the system. Where needed, according to Marder, the men in the white coats begin administering steroids, sex hormones, daily over a period of four to five weeks to build up the arm and back muscles.

First used in America, steriods have been in common use for several years among a number of Olympic teams. "East and West are pretty well balanced on manipulating their athletes with steriods," says Dr. Adolf Metzner, a West German sports doctor who specializes in the problems and detection of doped athletes.

Metzner has no doubt that male hormones helped the East German girls win gold medals in 11 of 13 swimming events and nine of 14 track and field events at Montreal. "Anyone who watched on TV was shocked by the sight of those enormous muscle-bound women with huge shoulders and arms that a furniture mover would be proud of. Weight lifting alone would never account for such massive back development."

East German officials at Montreal angrily and adamantly denied that biochemistry had a hand in the medal sweep. A Canadian broadcaster who asked a trainer about the deep voices emanating from some of the strapping water sprites was huffily told: "They have come here to swim, not to sing, why do you concern yourself with their voices?"

Many devotees of the Olympic code look upon the advent of steriods, stabilizers and other medical aides as the most devious development in the alchemist's art.

Willi Daume, head of the West German Olympic Committee, says, "Doctors no longer believe that the health of athletes is their highest objective but rather the manipulation of athletes."

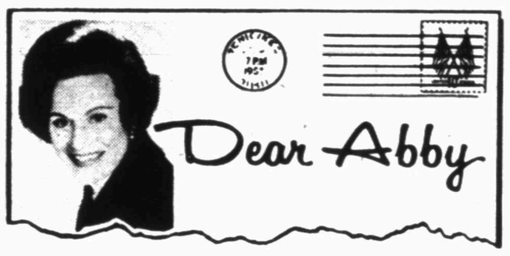

In Dr. Marder's time at the sports club in Halle, steriods were given to both boys and girls to help them "reach high performance levels."

Side effects among girls — a subject many doctors think requires much further study — include basic body changes such as deepening of the voice, a broad back and wide shoulders, flattening of the chest, skin changes, and sometimes among non-Caucasian women hair growths on the chest. The masculinizing process may also result in such delayed psychological effects as pronounced lesbian tendencies.

"Long-range effects are to be expected when the side-effects are disregarded," said Dr. Marder, "but generally within two years after the steriod injections have ceased the muscles diminish and the body returns to more feminine proportions."

Many women athletes in the West refuse male hormone injections from team doctors because of the danger of their bodies becoming too masculine. "They don't want to look like tanks in their tank suits," quipped one of the U.S. trainers.

Dr. Marder is convinced that the West has greatly exaggerated and misread the part played by steriods and drugs in the East German success story at Montreal. "That was only a small part of the picture. It was the system itself that triumphed.

Prof Needs Help As Problem Drinker

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading you for 20 years and have used your common-sense answers to some of life's knottiest problems in teaching my students. (I am a professor in a medical school.)

I have been very successful in the field of mental health, but I can do for others what I can't do for myself.

My problem is one of alcoholism and there is no relief in sight. Your article about the man whose sister got drunk and telephoned him at all hours of the night hit home with me because I've done that hundreds of times. I would hope that the sober man would show some compassion for his alcoholic sister because I know so well the hell she lives in.

Abby, have any of your readers had a successful escape from alcoholism?

LIVING, BUT DEAD

DEAR LIVING: Yes! And the highest rate of successes has been with those who have sought help through Alcoholics Anonymous. (And for the spouse or friend of the alcoholic, Al-Anon, and for the children, Alateen.) I know I am beginning to sound like a broken record, but I cannot say enough for this wonderful non-profit organization.

There are chapters in nearly every city, and they're listed in your telephone directory. If you've given them a try and failed, try again. It's no crime to fail—only to quit trying.

DEAR ABBY: When I travel, I like to take my dog with me, which presents a problem because not all hotels allow dogs.

I recently stopped at a hotel where I was made welcome with my pet, and I saw this framed "notice" hanging in the lobby. It tickled me and if it tickles you, maybe you'll run it in your column.

"Dogs are welcome in this hotel. We never had a dog that smoked in bed and set fire to the blankets. We never had a dog who stole our towels, played the TV too loud or had a noisy fight with his traveling companion. We never had a dog that got drunk and broke up the furniture. So if your dog can vouch for you, you're welcome, too."

DOG LOVER

DEAR DOG LOVER: I've been tickled by a version of that notice, but in case some readers haven't, I'll run it. Thanks for a well-deserved tribute to man's best friend.

DEAR ABBY: I met a very attractive, eligible widower last winter, and we've been keeping steady company since.

My only complaint is the way he keeps talking all the time about Mildred, his deceased wife. I never talk about my deceased husband. Outside of that, he is a decent man, and we get along just fine.

He has asked to marry me, but this is the way he proposed to me: "How would you like to take Mildred's place?"

UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: If he has a sense of humor, tell him that since Mildred is in the cemetery, you don't want to take her place. But if he wants a new life and a new wife, you'll consider it—providing he quits talking about Mildred.

Skateboards Were Popular This Summer

By PHIL SANDLIN
AP Photographer

It's been a summer of cement surf and skateboards. Kids on skateboards everywhere.

Some on sidewalks. Others shooting out dangerously from where you'd least expect them.

In some towns riding is outlawed. In others the schools teach children the fine points.

Often, the place to go is a skateboard track like Skateboard City in Port Orange, Fla., or the Paved Wave in Cocoa Beach, Fla.

Mandatory headgear and pads help hard surface surfers fight "road rash" and "jeans burns."

Pride is the only thing that goes in a fall at the track.

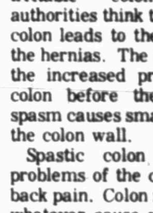

Manufacturers estimated summer sales of 20 million boards with fancy names like "Big Foot" and "Power Paws."

One version has a molded board and sophisticated wheel and bearing design, which facilitates stunt riding.

A decade ago a skateboard fad rolled across the nation and then disappeared over the concrete horizon. Now it's back, perhaps to stay.

What about a cement surf winter?

Well, there's at least one manufacturer turning out skateboards with ski bindings attached — just in case.

Diverticulosis: no link to muscles

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have the Health Letter on diverticulosis and would like to ask some more questions. I have several friends with diverticulosis and one of them told me that is destroys all the muscles in the body. Is that correct? And does it cause a lower backache before and after a bowel movement? Does it make one nervous? Does diverticulosis cause gas and bloating?

DEAR READER—Diverticulosis, the small pockets of the colon, are really tiny ruptures of the inner lining of the colon through the wall of the colon. These small pockets have nothing to do with the muscles in the rest of the body. You can think of them as small blind pouches similar to the appendix except that most of them are on the left side.

Diverticulosis is often associated with spastic or irritable colon. Many authorities think that the spastic colon leads to the formation of the hernias. The thought is that the increased pressure in the colon before the segment in spasm causes small blow-outs in the colon wall.

Spastic colon and related problems of the colon do cause back pain. Colon irritation from whatever cause may be one of many causes of back pain. I know of many people with a sensitive bowel who could not tolerate coffee. When they stopped it entirely the colon problems cleared and the back discomfort went away.

Gas and bloating are common parts of spastic or irritable colon and are often seen as part of the picture of diverticulosis.

Since you already have The Health Letter on diverticulosis, I am sending you the issue on Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation, number 2-1 in the hopes that it will help you. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Will you tell me what Hashimoto's thyroiditis is, what it does to a person and is there any cure?

DEAR READER—It is believed to be an autoimmune disease. What is that? When you are exposed to an infectious disease such as mumps your body forms antibodies to the mumps virus and you are immune to further infections of mumps. There are some disease in which the body forms antibodies to parts of a person's own body. These are autoimmune diseases. In the case of Hashimoto's thyroiditis the body forms antibodies against that person's own thyroid.

The raction with the thyroid gland causes it to show inflammatory changes and undergo destruction. It may swell, sometimes two or five times its normal size. Rarely the gland is painful. In addition to the swollen or enlarged gland the usual accompanying findings, if any, are those of low thyroid function. If too much of the thyroid gland is damaged it can result in permanent marked low thyroid function.

There is no specific treatment to stop the reaction other than giving thyroid hormone. This will replace the deficiency in thyroid hormone, if that is a problem, and even if the thyroid gland function is adequate it helps prevent enlargement and may reverse thyroid enlargement in young patients.

For some reason this disease is now three times as common as it was three decades ago. It is 20 times as common in women as in men.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Could you tell me at what age a woman quits bearing children? Can she become pregnant when she is going through the change of life and more than 51 years old? Can a woman at this age get pregnant when she hasn't had a monthly period for two months or more? I'll be waiting to hear from you real soon.

DEAR READER—This is a frequent question. To start with there is no record of any woman ever having a baby after age 56. Change of life babies are frequent because women wrongly think they can no longer get pregnant.

Your doctor can give you a better idea in your own individual case. You shouldn't assume on your own that you cannot get pregnant unless you are through the menopause and have not had a period for two years. Some doctors think one year without periods is sufficient, but if you don't want to follow the two year interval I would suggest you ask your doctor in regard to your own particular case. He may be able to tell you more on the basis of an examination.

To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause. Others who want this issue can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have a granddaughter with "Tetralogy of Fallot." She's just 14 months old and weighs 17 pounds.

The doctors say operate as soon as possible as her condition is deteriorating. They say the valve is becoming tighter and the hole enlarging.

From what I've read on the subject I think the child is too small to stand such an operation. But how long could she live without it? What can you tell me about this problem? I read she should be at least 5 years old and weigh 40 pounds before surgery.

DEAR READER—Tetralogy of Fallot is a birth defect of the heart and one of the best known types of defects. The two most typical aspects of the defect are obstruction of the pulmonary artery that carries blood to the lungs and an opening between the right and left side of the heart (ventricular septal defect). This, with some other variations, causes unoxygenated blood to be shunted to the left side of the heart and causes the blue discoloration called cyanosis.

Now it is nice to be able to wait until the child is optimal in size but the degree of the defect makes a lot of difference on the decision the doctors have to make. I presume the obstruction to the pulmonary artery is from an overgrowth of tissue just beneath the valve, and the progression of this overgrowth is increasing the obstruction. To make the point clear, if the obstruction were total, there would be no way circulation could be continued. So naturally the doctors are concerned with the degree of obstruction. The more severe the obstruction the more unoxygenated blood is shunted to the left side of the heart.

The location and severity determine the course and time for treatment. I would suggest you trust the doctors' judgment as they have a lot of complex information that has suggested the best course of action to them. In some types of defects it is necessary to operate at once, soon after birth, so there is no hard and fast rule on age or size as you have read.
