Amnesty cases being reopened

EL PASO (AP) — Refugee and immigration groups are trying to get in touch with tens of thousands of farm workers who were denied amnesty but are now eligible to reapply.

A settlement in a November 1988 lawsuit filed by the workers and an order signed by federal Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth in El Paso requires the INS to reopen the cases of undocumented immigrants who worked on farms in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Already thousands of workers who were denied amnesty under 1986 immigration reform laws have been issued worker cards, said Mark Schneider, managing attorney for Texas Rural Legal Aid Inc. in El Paso.

"It's going to take a big effort to make people aware of this ruling," Schneider said.

The Aug. 29 order by Hudspeth came in a November 1988 lawsuit filed by workers who alleged INS had arbitrarily changed the rules of amnesty eligibility and were requiring the workers to provide more documentation than required by Congress, said Guadalupe Luna of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund. Both parties agreed to settle the lawsuit and Hudspeth approved the agreement in his order.

Hudspeth's order means any seasonal agricultural workers — those who did more than 90 days of farm work in the United States — denied amnesty before November 1988, should reapply, Schneider said.

Workers wanting to know if they are eligible to reapply should contact Jose Moreno at the Migrant and Refugee Services Center at 1-800-331-6695 or 915-532-3975.

Soviets vote to end central rule

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet lawmakers, bowing to Mikhail S. Gorbachev's will, voted today to end seven decades of monolithic Kremlin rule and set up an interim government to be dominated by sovereign republics.

In a sign of the republics' new standing, Gorbachev was poised to formally recognize the independence of the three Baltic states. All but five of the 15 Soviet republics have declared independence.

The 1,900-member Congress of People's Deputies overwhelmingly endorsed the plan to salvage some form of union for the huge but economically troubled country disintegrating in the wake of last month's failed coup by hard-liners.

Even Vladimir Lenin, the founder of the Soviet state, did not escape the upheaval. Before the Congress adjourned, it was proposed that Lenin's body be removed from its stately mausoleum in Red Square and reburied in Leningrad beside his mother.

The Congress effectively put itself out of business, and Lenin's fate is to be taken up by a smaller legislature set up under the restructuring plan.

The plan — approved 1,682 to 43 — was rammed through the Congress by a forceful and commanding Gorbachev, who squelched debate and refused to accept proposals from the chamber.

At one point, he threatened to close the session and suggested changing the constitution to eliminate the need for two-thirds approval.

"I will not yield the microphone to anyone from the floor!" Gorbachev said as some deputies tried to speak. "Either make a decision or not. That's all!"

Many lawmakers believed that if they had not approved the measures, Gorbachev would simply have implemented them by decree. Also, many believed they had to act to stave off the possibility of a chaotic breakup that could even lead to civil war.

The restructuring plan was forged by Gorbachev and the leaders of 10 republics — including Russian President Boris Yeltsin, who emerged as his governing partner after leading nationwide resistance to last month's abortive coup. In the wake of the takeover, central power and the Communist Party collapsed.

Gorbachev had encountered strong resistance from hard-line lawmakers at Wednesday's session of Congress, but afterward, he sent lawmakers into caucuses with their republic leaders. Those leaders had helped write the proposal and stood to gain enormous power with its passage, and by this MOSCOW — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev is surrounded by members of the Congress of People's Deputies at the Kremlin Thursday after the lawmaking body, meeting for perhaps the last time ever, accepted Gorbachev's proposal to transform Soviet government. The proposal transfers power from a strong central union to a loose confederation of sovereign states.

Young fairgoers enjoyed all the wonderful festivities available during the 19th annual Howard County Fair. Attractions include riding horses, lots of children's amusement rides at the Gene Ledell carnival and plenty of soft shoulders to rest upon afterward.

Tonight is canned food night

More than 2,000 people attended the 19th annual Howard County Fair Wednesday, said Fair Association President Bob Nichols.

Although the 72-foot Sky Diver Ferris wheel did not make its scheduled appearance, the other rides at the Gene Ledell Carnival show made quite an impression on some of the younger fair goers.

After leaving the "Gravitron," a revolving apparatus where the riders are left centrifugally stuck to the walls after the floor drops, one 4-year old said, "My face went like this!" and stretched his face flat with his hands.

Tonight is canned food night at the carnival. For a donation of two canned food items, fair goers may purchase a $10 booklet of tickets and receive 16 more tickets free, said Ledell.

The canned goods will be donated to local charities, he said.

The Howard County Coalition for the Environment won the best-booth prize. Its booth used large amounts of foliage to illustrate the coalition's concern for the environment.

"We're proud they chose us," said April Ferguson of the Coalition. "I hope it helps with our cause."

Children were especially attracted to the petting zoo. Goats, llamas and deer were on hand to eat cups of grain offered by children.

As Jodi Nix and his band played classic western swing tunes under a large tent between the fair barns, fairgoers could sample the wares of 15 individual vendors.

Food choices ranged from caramel apples and corn dogs to barbecue and fried catfish.

Today's attractions will include cookie judging, a square dance demonstration at 8 p.m. Clyde Foley Cummins will be the musical guest, and there will be an "old timers" livestock showmanship contest in the judging arena at 7:30 p.m.

It is senior citizens day all day today, said Nichols. There will also be educational activities and the arrival of junior steers for their auction Saturday.

Fair results from Tuesday and Wednesday include:

School officials urge support of bond issue

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Absentee voting for the nearly $12 million school bond election begins Monday, and administration officials for the Big Spring school district are gearing up for an educational and awareness campaign.

William McQueary, superintendent for the district, said the board of trustees and administrative personnel have 40 or more speaking engagements planned to explain the bond election and the need for new facilities to the citizens of Big Spring.

"We're going to present the facts. We'll not have any debates or any adversarial things — this has taken seven long years of study; it's been a long, long process and we've come a long way."

"We're going to present it to the voters and let the voters decide," McQueary said.

The ballot for the election does not specify what the money will be spent for, according to the Howard County District Clerk's office. The ballot reads, "For/Against: The issuance of $11,745,000 of bonds in levying the tax and payment thereof."

McQueary said the bond election law does not require specific mention of how the money will be spent. "That's all it's got to say. That's what sample ballots of bond elections look like. It's got to be in English and Spanish," he said.

He said all bonds have to be approved by the Texas State Attorney General's office prior to the election, with the exact use of the money specified.

The money generated through the sale of the bonds will be used to construct a new junior high school, $7.8 million, and a new elementary school, $2.9 million. The remainder of the funds, about $1.5 million, will be used for upgrading the cooling system at the high school, as well as re-roofing Goliad Middle School and Moss Elementary, he said.

In addition to overcrowded classrooms on the elementary campuses, McQueary said the new buildings will eventually alleviate the need for portable buildings on campus and stop the busing of students from one campus to another.

Woman's notes lead to arrest for assault

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — A note asking for help that a woman slipped to a Colorado City store clerk resulted in a man being arrested for assault in Electra Wednesday, authorities said.

The woman, from Electra, who was accompanied by a man, was later found "severely assaulted," said Colorado City Police Chief David Montgomery. "It could have been worse."

Colorado City police received a call Tuesday night that a woman who paid for gas and food at the B&B One-Stop Deli on Interstate 20 at Hickory Street left a note with the clerk, Montgomery said. "The note said, 'Call police, help me,' and left a tag number to the vehicle that was registered out of Oklahoma," Montgomery said.

A statewide welfare-concern alert was put out by police for the woman, man and car. It was unknown which direction the two were traveling.

It was later learned that travelers early Wednesday reported to the Texas Highway Department in Midland that a similar note was found in some women's underwear left at a rest stop between Westbrook and Big Spring, the chief said. The discovery of the note was reported several hours after it was found, said a highway department dispatcher in Midland.

Meanwhile, the license number was traced back to Ardmore, Okla., but it was discovered that the woman had moved to Electra, Montgomery said. The two apparently had lived together but the woman decided to move out, Montgomery said.

The woman has not been identified, according to state law. "We contacted the grandmother (of the woman) and found out that there probably was reason for concern," Montgomery said.

Police in Electra were notified and an officer went to the woman's home where she was found beaten up. Arrested and charged with assault was Danny Lee Garrard, 36. It is being handled as family violence, police in Electra said.

Holloway given 15-year sentence

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman who begged jurors for mercy was sentenced to 15 years in prison for trying to hire a hit man in a bizarre scheme to increase her daughter's odds of getting elected to a high school cheerleading squad.

Wanda Holloway, 37, also was fined $10,000 Wednesday for attempting to arrange the murder of the mother of her daughter's chief cheerleading rival. Prosecutors had sought the maximum life prison term, while her attorneys had asked for probation.

"She's upset and disappointed," defense attorney Troy McKinney said after the sentencing. "We're certainly going to be pursuing an appeal."

Amarillo dairy settles lawsuit

AUSTIN (AP) — An eighth dairy has settled with the state in a lawsuit charging there was an illegal conspiracy to fix the price of milk sold in Texas schools, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales said.

Amarillo-based Plains Creamery Inc. will pay a $150,000 settlement, Morales said Wednesday.

Creamery owner L.B. Parker said that his company did not charge any schools excessive prices, and that it did not acknowledge wrongdoing by agreeing to settle.

Ground search is launched for missing jet

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A ground search was launched in a jungle area in the Kimanis area of Borneo island Thursday after pilots spotted what they believed may be the crash site of a missing American executive jet, government officials said.

The air search was called off Thursday because of nightfall, but a ground search is continuing in the jungle area of Kimanis, 30 kilometers (18 miles) south of Kota Kinabalu Airport, Department of Civil Aviation Director Mohd Adnan Yahya said.

Marine Police meanwhile said they had scoured the South China sea off Kota Kinabalu in Sabah state on Borneo island with two fast patrol boats since Thursday morning and found no trace of the Grumman Gulf Stream 2 aircraft belonging to the Du Pont company and carrying three crew and nine American passengers.

They called off the search Thursday night because of failing light.

The plane from Tokyo to Jakarta disappeared from the Kota Kinabalu airport radar Wednesday afternoon shortly after it was cleared to land. It was to refuel and take off for Jakarta, Indonesia, Mohd said.

Adnan said the air search resumed

Thursday with three helicopters and two fixed wing planes but was called off at night.

However, the ground search, with the help of villagers, was continuing late Thursday, Mohd said.

He could not confirm reports by officials involved in the search that pilots had sighted what they believed may be the wreckage of the plane in the Kimanis area.

The officials said the pilots could not be sure as the area was covered with thick tropical jungle and visibility was not good at the time of the sighting.

Houston-based Conoco Inc.,

which is owned by Du Pont, said that among those aboard were four of the company's executives, their wives and an administrative assistant.

The New Straits Times said Thursday that a resident in Bongawan, near Kota Kinabalu, had reported flames in the jungles near his village.

Mohd said by telephone the ground search was concentrated in the Kimanis area, 20 kilometers north of Bongawan.

Mohd said the plane was 29 nautical miles south of Kota Kinabalu and 910 miles east of Kuala Lumpur when it lost radar contact with the Kota Kinabalu airport.

Constantine S. Nicandros, president and chief executive of Conoco, a subsidiary of Du Pont said, search conditions were poor as "the area is rugged and mountainous."

"We continue to hope for the best and pray for the safe return of these dear friends," he said.

All were from Houston, where the trip originated Aug. 29. James and Linda Myers were listed as British citizens. The others were all identified as Americans.

Blue Bell doublecrossed in Japan

HOUSTON (AP) — Blue Bell Creameries officials have learned that they won't be able to market their ice cream in Japan because of an industrial doublecross by a Japanese firm.

Ed Kruse, Blue Bell's chief executive officer, said Wednesday that Ezaki Glico, an Osaka-based ice cream manufacturer and food processor, was awarded use of the Blue Bell trademark by the Japanese government.

Kruse said Blue Bell twice gave Ezaki Glico officials a courtesy tour of their facilities in Brenham, about 75 miles from Houston, and had discussed the possibility of the Japanese firm distributing Blue Bell in Japan for them.

The executive said he will not let another Japanese person tour the creamery and will never knowly buy products made in Japan.

Kruse said Blue Bell officials had been excited about the prospects of selling their product in Japan after the country removed quotas on ice cream imports.

"That's a market with 130 million people," Kruse said. "They like ice cream like we like ice cream. It made good sense to pursue that market."

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, says Blue Bell's experience underscores the need for a get-tough stance in trade talks with the Japanese.

"It further points up the critical need for a tough trade policy as the only means to make real progress in opening up the Japanese market," Bentsen said in a letter to Carla Hills, the U.S. trade representative.

Kruse complained to Bentsen after learning that his company's application to use its trademark in Japan was rejected in favor of the Japanese firm.

In a letter to Bentsen, Kruse said, "It appears to me the Japanese give lip service to opening their trade barriers and then underhandedly use another means to stop, delay or limit imports."

Bentsen is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which has jurisdiction over trade issues between Japan and the United States.

In his letter to Hills, Bentsen complained about the "egregious example of how an American company seeking to export to Japan has seen its efforts frustrated by the actions of the Japanese government."

MADD official alarmed by hate crimes

AUSTIN (AP) — A national crime victim official says she has become alarmed at the increase in hate crimes, and violence against women.

"As victim advocates, we need to do more than what we are doing to stop hate crimes," said Janice Harris Lord, national director of victim programs for Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Lord of Irving also said in a speech to the Governor's Training

Conference on Crime Victim

Assistance on Wednesday that the country has taken important steps toward improving the rights of victims, but more needs to be done.

"We are changing criminal justice. We are changing the way people look at victims of crimes."

She said that during the 1980s, 47 states, including Texas, gave crime victims the right, either through law or constitutional amendment, to become involved in the prosecution of their assailant.

But, she said, other crime activities are producing new problems, such as a soaring rate of crimes against women and an increase in hate crimes.

She said there are six times more animal shelters than there are shelters for abused women.

One of the problems, she said, is that young people become immune to acts of violence because of the constant viewing of violence on television.

Budget changes studied to try to rehire teachers

DALLAS (AP) — In the wake of massive student demonstrations for laid-off teachers, the school system's superintendent was considering budgetary changes to bring some of the educators back to work, administrators said.

In a separate action, a Dallas teachers' union was headed to court today for a hearing on a restraining order to stop the 245 layoffs. Superintendent Marvin Edwards and other administrators were subpoenaed to the hearing.

"I know that he is close to a decision. I know he is close to bringing about some kind of a resolution," Rene Castilla, president of the Dallas Independent School District board, said late Wednesday of Edwards' efforts.

"And I know that before we get into it as a board, we should allow him to resolve the situation as our superintendent, as our chief executive officer," Castilla said.

But, during a meeting Wednesday morning to show support for Edwards, one school board member said the group should have solved the problem.

"I do think there is a lack in the leadership on the board, that I believe the president and the vice president should have by now called an emergency meeting to ensure that we can pull this thing out," said board member Yvonne Ewell.

For a second day, students gathered outside the DISD administration building near downtown to protest the district-wide layoffs. About 300 students were in contrast to the thousands of teachers who were laid off.

Edwards' leadership has been criticized by both students and laid-off teachers. They say the district's top-heavy administration should have been cut to remedy the budget shortfall from the so-called "Robin Hood" school finance law.

Soraya Quiroga, 17-year-old senior at Dallas' Talented and Gifted Magnet School and a protest organizer, had urged students to protest the rest of this week by attending classes and wearing black in solidarity with teachers.

Congress considers insurance woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — After being stung for at least $160 billion in the bailout of savings and loan depositors, Congress is in no hurry to extend federal protection to Americans whose life insurance benefits are threatened.

But the financial troubles of several large insurance companies in recent months have increased pressure on Congress to step up federal oversight of the industry, now regulated almost entirely by the states.

"I don't think anyone is talking about pushing the states out of this," says Rep. Ron Wyden of Oregon, the No. 2 Democrat on the House Energy and Commerce oversight subcommittee, which has been investigating insurance problems for three years. "The federal government ought to augment state regulation of the industry because some states do it better than others."

What is needed most, Wyden said, is a uniform standard for determining the financial health of an insurance company, so that prospective policyholders will have some idea of the risk they face.

But that is a long way from having the federal government guarantee insurance benefits just as it insures S&L and bank deposits. Taxpayers are having to reimburse S&L depositors because so many institutions failed.

Manuel Noriega trial begins today

MIAMI (AP) — Manuel Noriega's lawyers made a last-minute attempt to derail the start of his drug trafficking trial today with allegations that his former attorney — a secret U.S. government informant — sold him out.

The issue arose Wednesday as a federal judge considered final motions in preparation for jury selection for the trial of the former Panamanian dictator, who was brought to the United States after an all-out U.S. invasion in 1989.

Never has the U.S. government gone to such lengths to prosecute a foreign head of state — and a former ally. The defense vows to put the government on trial, documenting its 20-year support of Noriega's activities.

Federal prosecutors don't dispute that former Noriega lawyer Raymond Takiff was a U.S. Justice Department informant in an unrelated case. However, they say it's irrelevant because as a foreigner Noriega had no constitutional rights.

Deaths resulted from blocked exits

HAMLET, N.C. (AP) — Sam Breeden heard the commotion as he walked near the Imperial Food Products Co. plant. Then he saw his sister-in-law, head wreathed in dark smoke, trying to squeeze past a trash bin jammed against the building.

Breeden, a 41-year-old machine shop owner, spent agonizing minutes trying to fan away smoke so his sister-in-law could breathe.

Breeden's was one of the many stories told the day after North Carolina's worst industrial fire left 25 dead and 55 injured in this city of 6,300. Eighteen of the dead were young women, many of them single mothers, officials said.

Those who worked in the front of the building escaped through a main entrance. Those in the back

PHOENIX — Phoenix paramedics wheel an unidentified injured man from in front of a house in Phoenix Wednesday that was the scene of a multi-shooting spree by a gunman who was later found dead inside the house. The gunman sprayed a residential street with weapons fire that killed two, including a policeman.

Phoenix sniper kills two and wounds six

PHOENIX (AP) — A man who had warned he would someday kill someone sprayed a street with gunfire, killing two people, then barricaded himself inside his house for five hours before apparently committing suicide, police said.

Barry W. Kaiser, whose wife had obtained a court order barring him from their house, was found dead after police stormed the home Wednesday.

Among those killed in the five-hour rampage in the middle-class neighborhood was a police officer. Six people were wounded, two critically.

Police Chief Dennis Garrett said Kaiser, who would have been 36 today, barricaded himself inside the house in 1988 but wasn't prosecuted because of a "mental condition." That incident ended peacefully.

"This is a real tragedy because we've been investigating these incidents involving Kaiser for a long time," Garrett said. "In fact, he told us one time that someday he'll kill someone."

Police spokesman Kevin Robinson said Kaiser was served with papers earlier this week ordering him out of the home. His wife, Michelle, filed for divorce last month.

Witnesses said Kaiser opened fire with high-powered weapons in front of the house, then retreated inside and began firing out a window.

Officer Leonard L. Kolodziej, 43, the first officer on the scene, was slain in his patrol car.

A neighbor, Kip Hoskins, said a woman was gunned down as she rode past on her bicycle. She was identified as Jane Finney, 40, of Thorp, Wash.

Police had the electricity to the house cut off toward the end of the siege, hoping the 108-degree heat would make Kaiser surrender. Finally they stormed the house.

"It appears he took his own life," Robinson said. "We didn't fire any guns, but we need to be doubly sure."

Kuwait and U.S. sign defense pact

KUWAIT CITY (AP) — Kuwait has agreed to a 10-year defense pact with the United States that will allow the Pentagon to use Kuwaiti bases and stockpile military hardware in the emirate.

The agreement, endorsed by Kuwait on Wednesday, also aims to achieve "close cooperation between the two countries to boost the military capabilities of the Kuwaiti armed forces through programs and training," said Dhari al-Othman, minister of state for Cabinet affairs.

The minister, quoted by Kuwait's official news agency KUNA, said he hoped the pact would help "deter any aggression or threat to Kuwait's sovereignty."

The United States has repeatedly moved back its plans to withdraw from Kuwait the last contingent of troops sent to the region to drive Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

In Washington, a senior Bush administration official confirmed Wednesday that the defense agreement had been under negotiation with Kuwait but said formal notification of its acceptance hadn't yet reached Washington.

KUNA said Wednesday's announcement came after a Cabinet meeting headed by Sheikh Saad al-Salem al-Sabah, the crown prince.

Congressman: China will cut aid

BEIJING (AP) — A visiting American congressman said today that Chinese officials have indicated they will cut off all aid to the notorious Khmer Rouge rebels once a Cambodian peace plan is enacted.

Also today, the Beijing government accused three other American members of Congress of breaking the law a day earlier when they held up a banner and laid flowers at Tiananmen Square to honor 1989's slain democracy activists.

"This was a premeditated anti-Chinese farce, which could only arouse great indignation from the Chinese people," Foreign Ministry spokesman Wu Jianmin said during a regularly scheduled weekly briefing.

U.S. Reps. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif.; Ben Jones, D-Ga.; and John Miller, R-Wash. were confronted by guards on Wednesday but not detained.

They left the country today as scheduled.

Regarding Cambodia, U.S. Rep. Stephen J. Solarz said today Chinese officials told him "they would cut off all assistance" to the Khmer Rouge when a comprehensive peace settlement in the Cambodian conflict is implemented.

Yugoslav truce difficult to monitor

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — After a long diplomatic haul, the European Community has succeeded in getting warring Yugoslavs to agree to peace talks. But that's only the start.

Monitoring any truce in war-torn Croatia will be more difficult, as the white-uniformed EC observers are finding out. Numerous cease-fire agreements have been dead on arrival since the republic declared independence on June 25.

At least 150 European Community monitors would arrive if the federal army, Serb rebels and Croatian security forces actually agree to stop fighting.

CROATIAN POLICEMAN WATCHES ROAD

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX INCREASE

The Glasscock Co. I.S.D. will hold a public hearing on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in 2,289,416 by 61 percent. Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property.

The public hearing will be held on Sept. 12, 8:00 p.m. at School Admin. Office.

FOR the proposal: Lynn Glass, Glenda Blalock, Dennis Fuchs, Lillie Havlak, Tanya Multer, Ernest Schwartz
AGAINST the proposal: None
PRESENT and not voting: None
ABSENT: Randy Halfmann

The statement above shows the percentage increase the proposed rate represents over the effective tax rate that the unit published on Aug. 22. The following table compares taxes on an average home in this taxing unit last year to taxes proposed on the average home this year. Again, you individual taxes may be higher or lower, depending on the taxable value of your property.

	Last Year	This Year
Average home value	40,000	40,000
General exemptions available (amount available on the average home, not including senior citizen's or disabled person's exemptions)	13,000	13,000
Average taxable value	27,000	27,000
Tax rate	.68	1.101
Tax	183.60	297.27

Under this proposal taxes on the average home would increase by $113.00 or 61 percent compared with last year's taxes.

Comparing tax rates without adjusting for changes in property value, the tax rate would increase by $.421 per $100 of taxable value of 61 percent compared to last year's tax rate. These tax rate figures are not adjusted for changes in the taxable value of property.

NOTICE OF COMPARABLE TAX RATES AND REVENUES

The legislature has enacted a statute on school funding to comply with a court mandate enforcing the state constitution. Under prior statutes (SB 1) the tax rate for last year provides $6384 per student in state and local revenues. Under this statute (SB 351) that same rate now provides $4346 per student in state and local revenues.

State law only requires a minimum tax rate of 72¢ for county education districts. State law does not require a school district to adopt additional taxes. Neither does state law require a school district to adopt a tax rate that maximizes the receipt of state funds.

The board of trustees of the Glasscock Co. School District hereby gives notice that it is considering the adoption of a tax rate of .3111 that will provide $2985 per student in state and local revenues.

Disgraced public figures

We've watched with interest the public figures disgraced by the financial scandals in Japan. Higher-ups resigned. Lesser bureaucrats took pay cuts. In the Soviet Union, some disgraced officials committed suicide.

And in the United States? Of course, you can't compare Jim Wright, the former speaker of the House, with Boris Pugo, Communist thug. It's true that Wright "resigned in disgrace." But resignation was his only penalty. The "disgrace" part apparently never took effect.

After disguising his income from sales of a vanity book, and accepting luxurious gifts from a developer favored in legislation, and strong-arming federal regulators on behalf of sleazy savings-and-loan operators, and threatening to expose the sexual preferences of one of those regulators, and after much, much else, Jim Wright has finally found another job: He's teaching a course on, of all things good government at, of all places, Texas Christian University.

In the United States, disgraced public figures have more lives than an alley cat, and even less capacity for shame.

Passing health-care buck

It's official: The governors of the 50 states want something to be done about America's health-care system. And they want the federal government to do it.

Governors complain, justifiably, about Medicaid; the federal government pushes ever larger chunks of this "federal-state" health insurance program onto the states. But the problem will be the same, whether centered in states or in Washington.

As analyst Stuart Butler points out, there are two remedies to the dilemma. Either restore the link between demand and supply by giving consumers control of the funds they use for health care, or give government control over every aspect of the system: that is, who provides how much care to whom at what price.

With their buck-passing resolution, the governors may seem to be opting for the second choice. But more likely they're trying to avoid the issue altogether. In so doing, they make themselves part of the problem rather than its solution.

San Antonio Express-News

Highway deaths reduced

Some people accuse the news media of ignoring good news, so we didn't want to let pass without comment this recent item: The nation's traffic fatality rate dropped last year to an all-time low.

In 1990 there were 2.1 traffic deaths per 100 million travel miles in the United States, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration announced last week.

A decade earlier the rate had been 3.3. If that rate had not been improved upon, tens of thousands of Americans alive today would have died violent deaths on the nation's roads and highways since 1980.

What made the difference? One important factor was aggressive safety programs, such as laws mandating seat belt use and protective seats for children, and a national crackdown on drunken driving.

The point here is that this bit of good news did not just happen. An effort was mounted to reduce traffic deaths, and it has been successful.

San Antonio Light

Doing indigent care right

Houston still isn't doing indigent pregnancies right.

A city known for its world-class medical facilities has both city and county health departments where an indigent mother-to-be still must wait 27 days or more to get an appointment for pre-natal care. An Aug. 15 survey by the March of Dimes showed some callers couldn't even get an appointment at any time at county clinics designed for high-risk pregnancies.

Despite repeated attempts to get tax-funded health providers to improve situations such as these, the city and county clinics continue to have problems. When will this situation improve? It wastes tax money. Far more important, it ruins large numbers of human lives.

Here we go again with the "ounce of prevention" position. Until the city and county get their acts together, this will be repeated.

City and county officials should more closely supervise their personnel so services can be delivered in a timely fashion. This is not the type of medical service for which the city that is the home of the Texas Medical Center should be noted.

"I stopped doubting we'd get a free market economy when they tore Lenin down and put this up!"

Plot to take over McDonald's

One of the dramas played out in the recent coup story in the U.S.S.R. concerned the fate of the McDonald's restaurant in Moscow.

Papers captured in Communist Party headquarters indicate that the architects of the coup intended to take over McDonald's and turn it into the Lenin People's First of May Fast Food Blini Stand. The object was to crush America's most important symbol since the advent of perestroika.

Fortuitous circumstances and poor planning prevented the hard-liners from doing this.

The first thing that happened was that the U.S. intelligence sources received word of the Big Mac takeover 24 hours after the coup. The White House acted immediately and warned the coup leaders that it considered McDonald's as much American soil as the U.S. Embassy.

The right-wingers, who by this time had all of Gorbachev's nuclear codes, said that they would not be cowed into giving in to the United States. They insisted that McDonald's and Estonia belonged to the U.S.S.R.

It was one of those tense moments that could have changed the course of history. Would Bush push the button to save McDonald's, or would he institute sanctions and cut off all the malted milk supplies that the restaurant depended on for its thick shakes?

Fortunately, word leaked to Boris Yeltsin about what the illegal leaders were up to. He told 5 million of his followers who were waiting in line for a bag of french fries to surround McDonald's so that the Gang of Eight could not get in.

Any time a right-wing tank driver tried to enter the restaurant for a takeout order, he was pelted with catsup bottles.

The Yeltsin supporters threw Molotov cocktails at a KGB armored vehicle that came to confiscate all the fried onions in the name of the new government.

When an army truck, operated by a young captain, arrived to bring back eight orders of McNuggets and coffee — three black, two with cream and three with sugar — to the coup leaders in the Kremlin, the crowd persuaded him to tear up the order and join them in the streets.

In the meantime, President Bush and his advisers were closeted in the situation room at the Kennebunkport Country Club. Should they keep McDonald's open to show support for the arrested Gorbachev, or surgically bomb it to prevent it from falling into the hands of the turncoats at Pravda?

The CIA advised against blowing it up because McDonald's was the meeting place for all its agents in Moscow. Most of the information the West had about the U.S.S.R. was transmitted on used napkins from the trash bin.

The Pentagon didn't think that it could protect McDonald's with less than the number of troops it mobilized for Desert Storm.

The President decided to be tough. He announced that he would not recognize the new chef at McDonald's who had been appointed by an illegal government. He also withdrew all Soviet rights to use the Golden Arches as its trademark.

Fortunately, the junta collapsed and McDonald's reopened to a cheering crowd of 6 million people. To celebrate the event, the franchise owner announced that everyone who purchased a Big Mac would receive a large soda for nothing. At their first press conference, Ronald McDonald was seated between Gorbachev and Yeltsin, which many consider to be the clown's finest hour.

Candidates should explain the issues

To whom it may concern:

Concerning the voters' turnout after each election, it seems there are always "why's," "if's," etc. My opinion is that each candidate should go out and mingle with as many people as he can, explaining the "pros and cons" in simple words since there are a lot of people who really don't understand the words, unless it's broken down to "just" plain English.

Even if the candidate has to go from level to level for each individual, in order for him to understand the matter, he should so they will know what they're voting for. For instance in the last election, many on the northside — and I'm sure many on the southside too — didn't know what they were doing. Many don't know and they just stay away and don't vote. Others go and make a check or X-mark just to say they voted. I've heard rumors that many are going to pay higher taxes and they really didn't mean to vote for that. But once the vote is in, what can you do? That's one of the main points on the northside, half of them don't really know what's going on.

And candidates need to come out and talk to people, not only on "voting day" or while campaigning. Afterwards they forget. People who are elected in office were elected to make decisions, why ask the public? If something was put in the local newspaper (and skip all the gossips), we might even have a better newspaper. I've been working at the voting polls close to, or over, 30 years and have noticed a lot of changes among the people that come to vote. Consider how many people on the northside voted — 21 voted and that's counting the 5 working at the poll. We could have a better turnout if everyone would work as a "team." That boils down to having "teamwork."

See you at the next election and I hope the turnout will increase.

Help for football illiterates

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Random thoughts while getting ready for Football Friday:

A football coach is assigned to a remote post in West Texas, where he befriends the natives and establishes a rapport with a group of bovines.

Coming soon to a football stadium near you: Dwight Butler, starring in — Dances With Steers.

Football season, as they say, is upon us (if that statement sounds rather weighty, just imagine how coaches and sportswriters feel) and what that means depends a great deal on how seriously you take the sport.

If, for example, you think the sun rises and sets on the Cowboys (or Steers or whatever), the next few months will be sheer bliss.

On the other hand, if you think football is a game for the slightly addled, most likely you will be contemplating various felonies by the time December rolls around.

If you count yourself among the latter, however, there is help. You can, with just a few pointers, grow to understand and — dare I say it? — appreciate the 100-yard war.

And that's where I come in.

That's right, folks, it's time for Reagan's somewhat-annual Quiz for the Football Deficient, designed to help smooth the rocky path most football widows will face in the next few months.

Plus, it's a sure-fire way to take up space.

There is no scoring, so don't worry if you don't ace the thing. If you don't get any questions right, well, you might want to plan to be out of the house on Sunday afternoons.

Ready? Set? Go, team, go!

- The clock reaches 0:00.

Putting up with bad mannered son-in-law

DEAR ABBY: My problem is the 40-year-old husband of my 30-year-old daughter. He believes that because he is "family," he is entitled to come into my home and help himself to anything he wants in my fridge or cupboards. He has done this for several years, even after having been told (by me) that this is unacceptable. After complying for a while, he went back to helping himself to food and drink as though he were in his own home.

His manners are atrocious. He doesn't wait to be offered a second helping — he takes what he wants, sometimes ignoring the serving utensils and using his fingers. He weighs 260 and is a big eater. He complains if I don't have his favorite beer, suggesting that I buy it by the case so I won't run out!

My daughter caters to him, asking him (in my home) if he wants more of anything. Because of the distance they have to travel to visit us, they always spend the night. My husband and I always give them our bedroom. When we spent the night at their place, we slept on a broken-down sofa that they brought in from the toolshed.

I know there is very little you can do to help me, Abby, but I need to know if being "family" is a legitimate reason for my son-in-law's behavior. — APPALLED IN CANADA

DEAR APPALLED: Being "family" in a family of pigs might excuse this inconsiderate oaf, but in a family of reasonably well-bred people, his behavior is not acceptable.

property for a large hospital, and I see so much heartache, I feel compelled to write. Abby, advise your readers to please leave all valuables at home, especially their precious wedding rings with stones and other "real" jewelry or religious medals.

I cannot tell you how many people I have seen who have been robbed of their jewelry and other valuables. The elderly are especially vulnerable, as they are sometimes confused. Their rings are often loose after years of wear and are easily slipped off by thieves.

A tip: Never tape a ring to a finger — it's an advertisement to come and get it.

Even the dead are being robbed. If you arrive at the hospital unexpectedly, send your valuables home immediately with a friend. If you're alone, insist that the nurse (no one else) lock up your rings in the hospital safe. She will place them in a special "valuables" envelope and will give you a receipt.

Most hospitals are wide open to the public, and that includes thieves as well as fine and dedicated employees. Also, hospitals are not responsible for lost valuables. We cannot afford to reimburse patients for theft. Please sign this... WORKING A NICE BAY AREA HOSPITAL

Camcorder empowers 'ordinary people'

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

It is 1984-plus-7, and Big Brother isn't watching you: George Holliday is.

Before March 3, Holliday, a plumber, was best known for unclogging drains. But then he tested his new camcorder on a Los Angeles street, and instead of the usual mugging relatives — "HI, MOM!" — he recorded two minutes of police officers kicking, stomping and clubbing a defenseless man.

The attack on Rodney Allen King did more than turn a city on its ear and provide dramatic footage for the evening news.

It underscored a development George Orwell never envisioned: the emergence of Little Brother (or Sister), average folks who turn their video cameras on cops, crooks and each other, often with remarkable results.

About 14 million Americans now own hand-held video cameras; they cost as little as $600, and some are so small they can be carried in a coat pocket. They can be used for weddings and baby's first steps; they can, and are, used to record prenuptial agreements and wills.

But they also serve as amateur arms of the criminal justice system:

— In Chattanooga, Tenn., a camera set up by a suspicious father caught baby sitter Donna Walterhouse slapping a 6-month-old baby. She pleaded guilty and got the maximum of 11 months and 29 days. "It destroyed her life," said her lawyer, James Purple. "We have developed a better understanding of the power of the atom bomb than we have of the video camera."

— In San Jose, Calif., William Kiley videotaped his own beating at the hands of a neighbor who previously had harassed him with anti-gay taunts. The 45-minute tape showed Kiley being pummeled by the fists and feet of Joshua Huff, 18. Huff was convicted of assault and battery on Aug. 13.

— In Fort Worth, Texas, a woman videotaped a policeman striking a handcuffed man 28

Roberta Owens, secretary of the Gordon Heights Community Watch on Long Island, N.Y., prepares her camcorder for surveillance recently. Members of this community watch group hope to curb prostitution by making videotapes of men picking up hookers with the intention of sending the visual evidence to their wives.

times, sometimes with two-handed blows. Officer E. J. Parnell was charged in July with assault with a deadly weapon. He said the car theft suspect kicked out a rear window and tried to jump out of the squad car.

Activist gay groups videotape their own demonstrations and the responses by police, as do anti-abortion groups.

"The camcorder is protecting us from Big Brother. This empowers the ordinary citizen in a whole new way," said Brenth Butterworth, senior editor of Video magazine.

But others worry that the gadgetry's power comes with the peril of invading privacy, of prying too far. For now, there are no legal restraints on neighbors videotaping neighbors, according to the American Civil Liberties Union.

"Big Brother is now our neighbors, our employers, people we're dating, strangers on the street," the ACLU's Janlori Goldman said. "The danger comes when you are being videotaped against your knowledge and the information is later used in a manner harmful to you. Do we really want to live in a society where a video camera is aimed at every movement?"

"It's the greatest of all ironies, isn't it? We could lose our privacy by spying on each other," said George Washington University law professor Jonathan Turley.

"Video cam operators are not a drooling class of voyeurs. They are ordinary people empowered by new technology to become an army of private gumshoes," Turley said. "The explosion of the video camera has led to a society under surveillance."

A case in point: the Gordon Heights Community Watch on New York's Long Island, which is using cameras to fight prostitution.

The community group intends to make tapes of men picking up hookers and send the visual evidence to their wives. "We want to make our community clean again," said video vigilante Carl Owens, who tapes from behind bushes. "If they don't stay out, let's go to the videotape."

A Tampa, Fla., couple has suffered a similar embarrassment. In July, a neighbor filming through their condo blinds videotaped them having sex. They were charged with lewd and lascivious conduct — punishable by 15 years in prison — because children outside could see them. Prosecutors later dropped all charges.

Women's obsession with food

NEW YORK (AP) — Most every woman who has spent her life weighing more than she would like knows the tremendous amount of energy that goes into striving for the monolithic ideal of beauty.

A new documentary, "The Famine Within," hammers home the damage done by a society that accepts only one ideal image. In contrast to the indulgent but popular comedy "Eating," this movie looks critically at why women do not accept themselves as they are.

"The Famine Within" notes the "peculiar irony" that at a time when women are making professional advances, they "have never felt more pressure to define ourselves through the way our bodies look."

Katherine Gilday, the documentary's writer, director and producer, said in an interview that she wanted to connect the spectrum from eating disorders to the average woman's eating habits.

"It is considered obligatory to feel dissatisfied with your looks," Gilday said. Achieving the "perfect" body is "almost another religion," she said.

Trying to balance families and careers, and lacking role models, women can feel out of control. Gilday, who said she has not suffered from eating disorders, suggests that one way women exert control is by controlling what they eat.

"The cult of the body is the only coherent philosophy of the self that is offered to women," social historian Joan Brumberg of Cornell University says in the movie.

At health clubs, aerobics classes, runways for models and a treatment center for anorexic women and in conversations with dieters, therapists, modeling agents and other women, Gilday studies the obsession with the perfect body with intelligence and poignancy. The 90-minute movie, a Direct Cinema Ltd. release, opened July 17 in New York and is scheduled for San Francisco, Boston, Los Angeles, Chicago and Portland, Ore.

One striking tale in "The Famine Within" is that of Chris Alt, sister of model Carol Alt and herself a model. At one point, Chris had dieted to a size 4, despite her 5-foot-10½ frame.

She recalled from those days her thoughts when she saw photographs of singer Karen Carpenter, who died because of her eating disorders: "I was wondering how I could get that skinny without dying."

Another young woman, this one recovering from anorexia, says, "I'd rather be dead than fat." She's not alone: A survey has found that more women feared being fat than death.

Author-actor Tom Tryon dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thomas Tryon, a Hollywood leading man who became the best-selling author of books like "The Other," died of stomach cancer. He was 65.

Tryon died Wednesday at his home in the Hollywood hills, after an illness of several months, said Judy Hilsinger, his publicist.

Tryon's works included "Harvest Home," "Crowned Heads," "Lady," "All That Glitters" and "The Night of the Moonbow," along with last year's epic, "The Wings of Morning."

That book and many others were set in Wethersfield, Conn., where Tryon grew up and where his ancestors settled in 1640. He was born Jan. 14, 1926, in nearby Hartford.

"The Wings of Morning" was meant to be the start of a series of historical novels called "Kingdom Come," about two families in a New England town. The second volume, "By the Rivers of Babylon," will be published by Alfred Knopf in spring 1992. A children's novel is also planned.

A strong-featured, muscular man with black hair, Tryon appeared in several film roles, but made the dramatic switch to literature after a run-in with hot-tempered Otto Preminger.

The director gave Tryon his biggest role, playing the lead in a film based on the best-selling "The Cardinal."

"On the second day of filming, Preminger fired and rehired me within one hour," Tryon recalled in an interview last October. "He repeatedly berated me in front of the whole company, calling me a lousy actor."

He was also directed by Preminger in "In Harm's Way" with John Wayne and Henry Fonda, and appeared in "The Glory Guys" and TV westerns.

Tryon was inspired to write his own suspense novel after reading Ira Levin's "Rosemary's Baby."

Tryon's "The Other" was a gothic tale of tragedies caused by 12-year-old twins. It was a huge hit in 1971 and was made into a successful movie for which Tryon wrote the screenplay. The success prompted Tryon to quit acting.

"I had a good run," he commented in 1990. "I could have gone on, but I was afraid someone was going to holler at me."

Tryon served in the Navy as a radio specialist in World War II and later studied at the Art Students League in New York City.

He painted scenery at a Cape Cod summer theater, filled in as a centurion in Shaw's "Anthony and Cleopatra," and was advised by actress Gertrude Lawrence to study acting.

After a contract with producer Hal Wallis fell through, Tryon picked up films such as "Screaming Eagles" and "I Married a Monster from Outer Space."

His career improved when Walt Disney cast him in a series of TV westerns based on the legend of "Texas John Slaughter."

Tryon appeared in Disney's "Moon Pilot," "The Story of Ruth," "Marines, Let's Go!" "The Longest Day" and Marilyn Monroe's last, unfinished movie, "Something's Got to Give."

Cowboy for cancer riding to Texas

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A Canadian man who had never ridden a horse before June 28 is on horseback to Texas to draw attention to cancer and its need for a cure.

Eugene Seaward, 32, of Alberta, passed through Wyoming this week with his pack horses, Beauty and Feather.

On Beauty's saddlebag, a sign reads, "2 Texas 4 Cancer."

The objective of the ride is to "make people aware of cancer and realize that it doesn't always happen to other people," he said during a stop in Cheyenne.

Seaward has lost some family members to cancer and hopes the trek through America will draw attention to the disease and demonstrate his care for others.

A former power plant engineer from Alberta, Seaward said he planned to travel with his horses through parts of Cheyenne before heading down U.S. Highway 85 to Greeley, Colo. His destination is

Fort Worth, Texas.

Even before starting the trip on the Montana-British Columbia border on June 28, Seaward admitted he had one concern.

"I never rode on a horse since I started this trip," he said. "I was really sore."

But with help from people he met along the way and after 1,000 miles on the back of a horse, Seaward seems to be an old hand.

He intends to reach Fort Worth by the mid-November.

Louisiana trying out lottery — again

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Louisiana, the state that gave lotteries a bad name a century ago with a wildly crooked game that lined the pockets of politicians and other rascals, is trying again.

This time, organizers say, the game's squeaky clean.

"I was kind of surprised. They've done this very professionally. It's good to see something run by the state working efficiently," said Jimmy Brothers Jr., who runs a pharmacy in New Orleans with his parents.

Brothers Pharmacy is among 4,500 drug stores, gas stations and other outlets that will begin selling tickets Friday for Louisiana's first lottery since 1893 — when fed-up voters outlawed a private lottery after a 25-year run greased with bribery and patronage.

The post-Civil War game had honest — if infrequent — drawings, supervised by luminaries such as Confederate heroes P.G.T. Beauregard and Jubal Early. But thanks to political payoffs, only a small percentage went out in prizes.

"The people of all states are debauched and defrauded ... by the Louisiana lottery," President Benjamin Harrison told Congress in 1890.

Under the 25-year contract bought with bribes, the Louisiana State Lottery Co. paid a $40,000-a-year fee to the state. That was fat money at a time when many laborers earned a dollar a day. But the lottery was fatter by far.

The Louisiana State Lottery Co. dispensed $300,000 in bribes in its first seven years. Payoffs were for protection not only from moralists who wanted to eliminate all lotteries but also from a proposed state-run lottery. Ticket sellers were chosen on the basis of politics.

"By the time it was put out of business in the 1890s, it was a $28 million business with $8 million net profits," said Jerah Johnson, a history professor at the University of New Orleans.

Times have changed. In October 1990, voters overturned the lottery ban by a 2-1 margin. Opponents decry the new version as a "bloodsucker," but supporters say it will help rejuvenate the economically depressed state.

The lottery will be managed by a quasi-governmental corporation under a lottery law that allocates 35 percent of all proceeds to Louisiana's treasury. It features bar-coded $1 scratch-off tickets designed to prevent fraud.

The state is throwing a huge party tonight at the Superdome to get things off to a festive start. Vanna White will be the emcee, with entertainment by Huey Lewis & the News, Gladys Knight and Fats Domino.

"The only thing fixed under statute is the 35 percent that is returned to the state," Louisiana Lottery Corp. President Michael Carr said. "Having said that, I can tell you that we're paying 50 percent back — a little better in this game — to players, 10 percent to overhead operations and 5 percent to retailers."

The game is expected to bring in $300 million in the first year, Carr said.

For now, only scratch-off tickets good for prizes of $2 to $250,000 are available, but officials expect to start a computerized big-money drawing next year.

"It's been very well organized. Everyone's been real helpful. They've bent over backwards to do what we needed," said Glen Sawyer of Power Safe and Lock in Vidalia.

OPEN HOUSE FOR INCOME TAX SCHOOL

Curious about how income taxes are taught? H&R Block, the country's largest income tax preparation firm, will hold an open house on September 7th. According to Tommy Richmond, H&R Block franchise owner, "We invite anyone interested in income tax preparation to attend."

Experienced H&R Block tax preparers will be available to answer the public's questions about income taxes and tax return preparation. Tax manuals and class-room study materials will be on display.

The 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. open house will be held at 1512 S. Gregg, the location of Block's Income Tax School. One of more than 1,500 schools conducted throughout the United States, the 75-hour course will begin on September 9th.

The school's curriculum of more than 40 tax topics includes filing requirements, itemized deductions, farm returns, retirement plans, rental property, and business schedules, among others. Graduates receive certificates and 7.5 continuing education units.

"You do not need an accounting background or tax experience to enroll," said Tommy Richmond. "Our students range from homemakers and college students to retirees and people studying toward careers in tax preparation. You can find all ages and educational backgrounds represented in a typical Income Tax School course."

Anyone interested in attending the open house or enrolling in the Income Tax School can contact Tommy Richmond or Gladys Custer at the H&R Block office at 1512 S. Gregg or call 263-4572.

Bats (literally) at new school

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Would the black cloud parked over Harriet Johnson Elementary School please drift away? Quickly?

As if the woes swirling around the Tucson Unified School District's newest school weren't troubling enough, now there are bats.

First were the abandoned mine shafts and open pits, some within 100 yards of the new school near the Pascua Yaqui Indian Reservation.

Then came the discovery of heavy-metal contamination in soil within a half-mile, where copper, silver and gold were mined some 80 years ago. The school is in the foothills of the Tucson Mountains.

Next, water with unacceptable levels of lead poured forth from the school's faucets and drinking fountains, prompting tribal leaders to urge a boycott of the school.

Now, bats have halted work to seal the mine shafts.

"It just seems like one thing pig-gybacks on another," said district spokeswoman Patricia Murphy.

Some school board members alleged a cover-up and "institutionalized racism" by district administrators who knew about the mine shafts in November but never told the school board.

Former Superintendent Paul Houston said Monday he did not notify the board because he did not think the shafts would endanger the pupils.

The $4.2 million school — which blends in with the desert setting and has a free-standing rainbow arch, a Yaqui symbol of hope — was to have an enrollment of 412 pupils in kindergarten through second grade. It opened Aug. 19.

Instead, about 42 Indian children are attending a makeshift reservation school, about 40 enrolled in other Tucson schools and up to 30 aren't going to school at all, said tribal executive assistant Luis Gonzales.

Seventy Indian children are going to the school — against the tribe's recommendation — along with about other 230 pupils.

Bottled water is being served while tests continue to determine the source of the lead. Samples show lead levels of up to 500 parts per billion, 30 times the recommended level.

Meanwhile, the federal Bureau of Land Management, Pima County, the state Mine Inspector's Office, the tribe and the school district set about earlier this month filling in about 24 open mine shafts.

A 100-foot-long, 40-foot-deep cut several hundred yards away from campus is considered the most dangerous.

A mining company offered to pay to seal it and a construction company volunteered to do the explosives work. But the work was postponed Tuesday when dozens — and perhaps hundreds — of bats were found in the shaft.

Report: Officials failed to pursue BCCI leads

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials failed to pursue investigations of the Bank of Credit and Commerce International and missed an opportunity to stop the bank's illicit activities much sooner, a congressional report released today charges.

Regulators in the United States, Britain and other countries shut down BCCI's operations in July amid allegations of massive fraud, laundering of drug money and support of terrorists. The new report by the House Judiciary subcommittee on crime and criminal justice found that U.S. officials knew about BCCI's activities as far back as 1983 but overlooked a pattern of misconduct.

The 29-page report was released by Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., the subcommittee's chairman.

"The government simply overlooked the repeated run-ins that it had with BCCI, its officials, customers and accounts," it says. "On at least two occasions, high-ranking officials squelched actions recommended by rank-and-file investigators that might have transformed the government's isolated brushes with BCCI in the United States into a full-scale investigation of a criminal enterprise of international proportions."

For example, the report says, high-ranking Internal Revenue Service officials refused on three separate occasions in 1986 to begin an undercover probe of BCCI at the request of a Florida IRS agent who had information from a former BCCI employee. The IRS officials were not named.

The IRS has identified 13 separate matters in its files involving Luxembourg-based BCCI, "yet no one at the agency appeared to have noticed the pattern," according to the report.

Spokesmen for the IRS and other government agencies named in the report were not immediately available for comment. Two top officials of the Federal Reserve are scheduled to testify at a hearing on BCCI next week by the House Banking Committee.

In another case, an IRS agent in Tampa, Fla., offered to direct a senior Federal Reserve official in Washington to former BCCI officials who could testify about BCCI's secret ownership of First American Bankshares Inc.

On July 29, the Fed announced it had uncovered evidence that BCCI secretly and illegally acquired First American, a Washington-based bank holding company, in 1982. The agency said it was seeking to levy a record $200 million fine on BCCI.

Baker expected in Baltics

RIGA, Latvia (AP) — A high-ranking U.S. official hinted today that President Bush may seek to provide direct economic aid to the Baltics — a step the United States has refused to take for the Soviet Union.

Curtis Kamman, a U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state, also reiterated that Secretary of State James A. Baker III may visit the newly independent nations of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania next week.

Kamman was in Riga to deliver a letter from Bush to Latvian President Anatolijs Gorbunovs expressing pleasure at the re-establishment of the sovereign Baltic states of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia.

Asked about U.S. plans for economic aid to the Baltics, which grew dependent on the Soviet Union during 51 years of Communist rule, Kamman said, "I think we can assume that the approach to the Baltics will be very similar to that in Eastern Europe."

That suggests that Bush is ready to ask Congress for some direct aid of the type that his administration has hesitated to provide to the Soviet Union.

After the disintegration of Communist rule across the former Soviet block, the United States increased aid in the form of credits and loans aimed at helping stabilize the nations' currencies and made available technical assistance. Poland and Hungary also received direct aid from the United States, although in small amounts.

On the subject of a visit by

Baker, Kamman said that Baker "has expressed an interest in making a visit to the Baltic republics," probably after his trip to Moscow, beginning Tuesday, for the 35-nation human rights conference.

Sources at the Estonian Foreign Ministry said Baker was expected to arrive in that republic on Sept. 14.

Kamman said the United States planned to establish an embassy in Riga, the Latvian capital, "in the very near future."

Bush on Wednesday recognized the Baltics' independence from the Soviet Union, and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev was expected to do so.

The Baltics were independent between World War I and World War II but were forcibly annexed by the Soviet Union in 1940.

U.S.S.R.

morning opposition had been beaten down.

Despite his harsh tone during the debate, Gorbachev praised lawmakers after the measures' passage, saying they "rose to the occasion" at a crucial moment in Soviet history.

After lawmakers gave their approval, Gorbachev nodded and clapped, and Yeltsin, seated next to him, smiled broadly.

On Wednesday, Gorbachev had told Baltic representatives he would recognize their independence by decree after the session. Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia have won diplomatic recognition from the United States and most of Europe.

But with Gorbachev's decree, they would become the first breakaway Soviet states to have their independence drives win official Kremlin acceptance.

When it appeared today that parts of the restructuring proposal were running into trouble, Latvian deputy Yuri Boyars said, he instructed his delegation to cast ballots for it. The Latvians usually do not vote in the Congress because they consider their republic independent.

In Washington, the White House termed the lawmakers' actions an internal Soviet affair, but appeared to welcome prospects for an orderly transition of power.

"We've said all along, as long as they continue on the reform path in both economics and politics, as long as they arrive at decisions in a peaceful manner that's mutually acceptable to the center and the republics, the final outcome is something that they have to decide for themselves," said deputy White House press secretary Roman Popadiuk.

The Bush administration has previously expressed concern about keeping central control over the Soviet nuclear arsenal.

Some details of the Soviet plan remained unclear, but under it:

• A new executive body will run

the country, led by the Soviet president and consisting of the leaders of all the republics. It will coordinate decisions on questions of domestic and foreign policy affecting "the common interests of the republic."

The body, the State Council, will run defense, security, law enforcement and foreign affairs. Its decisions are legally binding. There is no vice president; if the president is unable to fulfill his duties, the council will elect an acting leader.

Another body, the inter-republic economic committee, was to coordinate the national economy and implementation of the economic reforms. Its chairman will be named by the president, with the agreement of the State Council.

Lawmakers also overwhelmingly approved a resolution pledging to respect "the declarations of sovereignty and acts of independence taken by the republics." All but five of the 15 Soviet republics have declared their independence.

Firms charged with shipping goods to Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Florida concern and a Japanese aviation parts maker are at the heart of federal investigations into allegedly illegal shipments of military hardware to Iran in the 1980s.

The government on Wednesday charged Miami-based Aero Systems Inc. and two former executives of Aero subsidiaries with conspiring to deliver $7 million worth of navigation gear for F-4 Phantom fighter jets to Iran.

companies for Iran's military.

The transfers allegedly took place from 1984 through 1987 and helped keep Iran's planes in the air in the war against Iraq, said U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens.

Aero subsidiaries in Hong Kong and Singapore allegedly got the equipment from Japan Aviation Electronics Industry Ltd. JAE was indicted, along with three of its employees. The companies and business executives were accused in a 22-count indictment of conspiring to violate the U.S. Arms Export Control Act and arms regulations.

Japanese authorities have cooperated with American investigators and U.S. officials plan to seek extradition of the three Japanese to stand trial in this country, Stephens said at a news conference.

Iran is on the State Department's list of countries that support international terrorism. That means no U.S. arms are supposed to be sold to it.

Utility wants to build more generating plants

DALLAS (AP) — A dozen intervenors were on hand to testify as the Public Utility Commission began a hearing in Austin on a request by Texas Utilities to build four new generating plants.

TU wants to spend $2.5 billion for coal and gas generating plants after spending more than $11 billion for the Comanche Peak nuclear plant near Glen Rose.

"This is from the same people who said Comanche Peak would only cost $770 million — and were wrong on 11 subsequent guesses as to how much it was going to cost and when it would be done," Tom Smith of Texas Public Citizen said Wednesday.

Work on Comanche Peak was begun in 1974 and scheduled for completion in 1980, but is not expected to be fully operational until 1993 at the earliest.

Smith represents one of 12 parties that lined up to testify at the PUC's hearing on TU's initial application for approval to bring four new generators on line in 1997, 1998 and 2000.

Opponents will argue that environmentally acceptable alternatives to coal and gas plants — both of which emit sulfur oxide and carbon dioxide — need to be explored before new plants are approved, Smith said.

Dick Ramsey, a TU spokesman, said the application is very preliminary and just opens the regulatory process in case the utility determines new generators are needed to meet future demand.

In addition to the second Comanche Peak reactor, TU has three coal generators under construction, Ramsey said.

and keep with the neighborhood school concept," he said.

Kenda Jones, speaking for the Citizens For Choice in the School Bond Issue, a group of citizens and parents who oppose the new construction plans, said, "The main thing is we are not against the bond election per se. We all know that these things need to be done to the schools."

"We're against the way they (the trustees) want to spend the money. We have suggestions we want them to consider, but they've already decided what they want to do."

"We think the people who pay the taxes should have the choice over what the money is spent for," Jones said.

A prepared statement signed by Gerald Harris, chairperson for the Citizens For Choice Committee, said, "We recognize the necessity for the school bond issue, but we differ with the proposed bond issue over tearing down a historic building. We believe Runnels needs renovation, but it is a building worth saving."

"We hoped for an opportunity to work with administration and the school board to form an alternative means to deal with the problem of overcrowding. In consideration of the economics at the present time, (we) question the wisdom of an $11.7 million bond issue. We feel the cost should be kept as low as possible by utilizing existing structures. We seek to keep the fifth grades in an elementary school setting."

"We believe we need more citizen input and more publicity as to where the money should be spent. Perhaps it all comes down to a matter of communication."

bench press recordBy STEVE BELVIN

Colorado City native Kenneth Lain, now of Abilene, set his third world record at the Malibu Classic Saturday in Malibu, Calif.

Lain, competing for the first time in the 242-pound weight division, bench pressed 655 pounds, breaking the old record by 16 pounds.

Lain, a 1976 graduate of Colorado City High School, already holds the world record in the heavyweight class (275-pounds and under) at 661 pounds and the super heavyweight (above 275 pounds) at 722 pounds. It is the best lift in bench press history.

Lain, who owns Power Shack Gym in Abilene, lost some 50 pounds to get ready for the competition.

Former Big Springer Pam Gill, now living in New Braunfels, will be continuing her volleyball career in college.

Gill, a setter, signed a letter of intent to play volleyball at the University of Texas at San Antonio. Gill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gill. The Gills moved to New Braunfels four years ago. Pam played varsity volleyball all four years at New Braunfels Canyon. Canyon went to the Class AAAA playoff three times, including the 1989 state-finalist squad.

In her high school volleyball career Gill made the all-district, all-region, all-area, all-metro, all-Greater San Antonio and all-academic teams.

In basketball she was an all-district and all-area performer where she averaged in double figures and made 48 three-pointers her senior year.

She also threw the shot put, discus and long-jumped in track.

Gill may walk on and also play softball at UTSA. She plans to be a physical therapy major.

Gill is the granddaughter of Mary Gill and the niece of Mary Gill of Big Spring.

Forsan starts off with giant task

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

On paper at least, Friday's Forsan-Garden City contest conjures up visions of David vs. Goliath.

The visiting Buffaloes, having won three games the previous two years, enter the game with seven lettermen returning from last year's 2-8 team. Forsan will field 16 players on its varsity squad.

Garden City, meanwhile, enters the game with a three-year winning streak against the Buffaloes and an abundance of returning talent. The Bearkats, ranked first in the pre-season Class A poll, return 26 lettermen from last year's 11-2 squad, including eight starters on both offense and defense.

The Harris ranking system has installed the Bearkats as 42-point favorites for the game, which begins at 8 p.m. Friday in Bearkat Stadium.

As noted, this contest, on paper, looks to be an impending rout — but the game will not be played on paper, as both coaches were quick to say.

"In my opinion, if anyone's going to give up 42 points on a high school football game before the start of the season, they're silly," Garden City Coach Sam Scott said. "Both teams are 0-0 at the start. The point spread... doesn't make a whole lot of difference."

"I'm sure when Forsan comes over here, they're coming expecting to win the football game, same as we are," he said.

"I don't put a whole lot of stock in polls," Forsan coach Jan East said. "They're capable of beating us a whole lot worse than 42 points if we don't play good football. If we get after it, hopefully we'll make a ballgame out of it."

Scott added that the Buffaloes have shown improvement over last year.

FORSAN — Forsan Buffaloes quarterback Clark Fields gets ready to pass as running back Gilbert Rodriguez (40) provides pass protection in scrimmage action against Sterling City last week. The Buffaloes play the No. 1 ranked Garden City Bearkats Friday.

mage action against Sterling City last week. The Buffaloes play the No. 1 ranked Garden City Bearkats Friday.

"They improved greatly from their first scrimmage to their second one," he said. "They're playing as hard as I've ever seen them play. Their kids seem to be giving real good effort."

The Buffaloes were outscored, three touchdowns to none, by Grandfalls in their first scrimmage, but rebounded to best Sterling City, 2-1, the next week, an encouraging sign to East.

"I felt a little more encouraged after the second scrimmage," he said. "The kids improved a bunch in that week between scrimmages."

But East concedes that his team will have a tall order to fill Friday night.

"(Garden City) looks to be a pretty good outfit," he said. "They run and throw well on offense, and they're pretty scrappy on defense... They're going to have us outmanned, no doubt. If we can control their passing game and their power sweeps, we should be competitive."

The Bearkats will be minus one of their main offensive weapons Friday night. Senior tailback

James Soles, who has rushed for 4,000 yards the past two seasons, recently had arthroscopic knee surgery done to repair cartilage damage and is definitely out for Friday's game.

Scott said either Jody Bradford or Andy Lopez, both juniors, will start in Soles' place. Mario Aguilar, a senior who started four games last season at tailback, also is expected to handle some of the running chores.

If last week's scrimmage with Sanderson is any indication, the Bearkats' offense should be able to take up the slack from Soles' absence.

In Garden City's 10-touchdown performance, Aguilar gained 145 yards on 13 carries and scored three times, while Bradford rushed 12 times for 83 yards and two scores.

Through the air, quarterback Shae Scott completed 11 of 23 passes for 232 yards and two scores.

"Offensively, we've got some good, good skill people," coach Scott said. "I feel like we've got a chance to be a good football team."

But the facet of the Bearkats' pre-season that has Scott smiling the most is the Garden City defense.

"The most improvement we've shown over last year is on defense," he said. "We gave up only five first downs in two scrimmages. Hopefully, we're going to be able to play good, defensively."

Forsan will counter with a Wing-T offense featuring junior Clark Fields at quarterback, Gilbert Rodriguez at fullback and John Reese at tailback. The wideouts are Ryan Hamby and freshman Jacoby Hopper.

The Buffs' short passing game was effective against Sterling City; Forsan completed 8 of 9 passes. East said, however, that his team will try to feature a balanced attack.

"I don't really know if we'll be able to move the football," he said. "We'll throw a little... and run some sweeps and dives. But we'll have to wait and see what we do when we get up there."

A major key to the game, Scott said, will be if the Bearkats get off to a fast start.

"What I look for in us is to come out of the dressing room and play with a high level of intensity. We've had the tendency in the past to be slow starters..." he said. "We're going to see if we can't play well from the opening kickoff."

Martina rebounds to beat Sanchez Vicario

NEW YORK (AP) — Four-time champion Martina Navratilova reached the semifinals of the U.S. Open for the 12th time in the last 17 years today, bouncing from behind to eliminate fourth-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario 6-7 (6-8), 7-6 (7-5), 6-2 in a match that lasted 2 hours, 12 minutes.

Navratilova, 34, next faces top-seeded Steffi Graf, who charged into the semifinals with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over No. 8 Conchita Martinez.

Navratilova, seeded No. 6, broke Sanchez Vicario four times in the final set and rallied to win 12 of the final 13 points against an opponent who last year reached the semis.

"I feel a little bit like I had it in my hands and it went away," Sanchez Vicario said. "It was a good match. She had more luck than me."

Graf, the Wimbledon champion and a two-time winner of this event, needed just 55 minutes to complete her fifth consecutive straight sets victory at the Open.

Graf broke Martinez's serve in the first game of the first set and had an easy time the rest of the way.

"She had a lot of trouble with the wind," Graf said of Martinez. "Her type of game with the heavy topspin, she has to know where the ball is going to go. I think she gave up a little bit in the second set. I had that feeling. That rarely happens (to me), especially lately."

The other women's semifinal bracket was completed Tuesday night when No. 7 Jennifer Capriati eliminated defending champion and No. 3 seed Gabriela Sabatini.

Dancing defiantly near the service line, her sneakers squeaking on the hard court surface, Capriati issued a noisy second serve challenge at Sabatini.

Here I am, it said. Hit the ball and let's see what happens.

Sabatini tried. Oh, did she try. She could not respond, though, committing six double faults as Capriati vaulted into the semifinals with a 6-3, 7-6 (7-1) victory.

What was all that jumping around about? Was it just the exuberance of your average 15-year-old who has won almost $365,000 this year?

"I wasn't planning, you know, on being obnoxious or annoying or anything like that," Capriati said. "It was just that I wanted to intimidate her a little bit, show her that I was going to attack her serve. And I think I did, because she made a couple of double faults."

Sabatini said she heard the sneaker serenade but did not blame it for her second serve blues. "That is not the reason I did the double faults," she said. "I didn't play well. I made too many errors. A couple of moments, I wasn't there mentally. I wasn't strong enough to win those points."

Still, Sabatini did not surrender her title without a fight. She twice broke Capriati as Jennifer served for the match, forcing the tiebreaker. But she was no match for Capriati in the extra session, winning just one point.

Was the ex-champ impressed? "Jennifer is playing very well," Sabatini said. "She has the mentality to win the tournament."

And maybe the right tactic, as well.

Capriati has used the sneaker squeak successfully before, most notably against Navratilova, whom she beat at Wimbledon.

That victory seemed to thrust her to another level. She has played dominating tennis ever since and for the first time, she feels capable of winning a Grand Slam event.

"I've come close," Capriati said, recalling a semifinal berth at the French in 1990 and the semis again this year at Wimbledon, where she lost to Sabatini. "Now I want to go all the way. Winning this would mean the world."

Next, she'll play second-seeded Monica Seles who advanced easily with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Gigi Fernandez. She has played three times before with Seles winning the first two and Capriati taking the last one in San Diego.

"I'm going to try and play like I did against her in San Diego," she said. "I am going to try to be aggressive and really go for it and do the same on her serve."

Both Seles and Capriati have played dominating tennis in the Open.

Yankees end Texas skid

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

So much for all those streaks that were strangling the Yankees.

Early this season, New York ended a 16-game skid against the Athletics by beating Oakland for the first time since 1989.

On Wednesday night, in their last try of the year, the Yankees stopped a 15-game slide at Arlington Stadium, defeating the Rangers 3-2.

New York blunted the Rangers' rally, holding them to one run and stranding the tying run at third base.

The Yankees won in Texas for the first time since May 4, 1989. The Rangers' streak was their longest ever at home over one team.

Steve Sax went 4-for-5 with a home run and two doubles for the Yankees. He hit a go-ahead RBI double in the seventh inning and almost stretched it into a triple.

Scott Sanderson started for the Yankees, but left following the fifth inning after aggravating a groin pull while covering first base. Greg Cadaret (7-5) won in relief.

Steve Howe took over to start the ninth, and Steve Farr entered after Ruben Sierra's double. Farr gave up pinch-hitter Mike Stanley's RBI single, but struck out Ivan Rodriguez to end the game for his 18th save.

Brian Bohanon (3-2) was the loser.

American League

Blue Jays 3, Orioles 1

Joe Carter hit his 30th home run and Todd Stottlemyre held Baltimore to four hits in seven innings as Toronto won at SkyDome to stretch its AL East lead over idle Detroit to three games.

Stottlemyre (13-6) gave up one run, struck out one and walked two. Duane Ward retired six straight batters for his 18th save in 20 chances.

Bob Milacki (8-8) lost despite striking out a career-high 10. He allowed six hits and walked one.

The Blue Jays won for the eighth time in 11 games. The Orioles have lost eight of 12.

Indians 8, Twins 4
Albert Belle homered, doubled and drove in a career-high five runs as Cleveland won at the Metrodome.

Willie Blair (2-2) overcame Kent Hrbek's three-run homer in the first inning and allowed only one other runner past first base in eight innings. Shawn Hillegas got his seventh save.

David West (4-4) lasted only 2 1-3 innings. Belle hit a three-run double in the third and a two-run homer, his 25th, in the fifth.

Red Sox 2, Angels 0
Joe Hesketh pitched 5 2-3 innings and relievers Greg Harris and Jeff Reardon did the rest, leading Boston over California at Fenway Park.

Hesketh (10-3) gave up six hits and struck out six. He left with the bases loaded and Harris retired Lance Parrish on a routine fly to end the sixth.

Reardon set a Red Sox record with his 34th save. He broke a tie with Bob Stanley, who saved 33 games in 1983.

Wade Boggs hit his eighth home run, breaking a scoreless tie in the fifth inning against Kirk McCaskill (10-18), who leads the majors in losses.

Brewers 2, Athletics 0
Bill Wegman's pitching and Greg Vaughn's power again led Milwaukee over Oakland.

Wegman (11-6) gave up four hits in eight innings and struck out a career-high 10, including Jose Canseco three times. Wegman has won a career-best five in a row, and also he shut out the Athletics on Aug. 24.

Doug Henry pitched the ninth for his sixth save. Milwaukee has won 22 of its last 30, while the Athletics have lost nine of their last 10 road games.

Vaughn connected off Ron Darling (3-2) for his 23rd home run of the season.

White Sox 4, Royals 1
Alex Fernandez shut out Kansas City on one hit for seven innings before needing relief help as Chicago won at Comiskey Park.

Murray's shot helps Dodgers to lead

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Murray's shot wasn't heard 'round the world, but it did make a lot of noise in Los Angeles and Atlanta.

With the Dodgers trailing visiting St. Louis 3-0 Wednesday night, Murray hit a three-run pinch homer and Los Angeles went on to beat the Cardinals 8-3. The victory gave LA a one-game lead over Atlanta in the NL West.

"When no one's hitting, you can't jump up and down; there's no reason to cheer," manager Tom Lasorda said. "You get to see the spirit of the team once we start scoring some runs. We've been through some rough waters all year long, but this team definitely has spirit."

The Braves lost 8-4 at Montreal and have dropped four of their last five games to squander the two-game lead they had last week.

The Dodgers and Braves have six games left against each other.

Mike Sharperson, whose two-out single started the Dodgers' three-run seventh, sparked a five-run outburst with an RBI single in the eighth.

"Eddie's homer was the story," Lasorda said. "(Rheal) Cormier had us' stymied for the first six innings."

National League

Murray had dressed and departed by the time reporters reached the clubhouse after the game, but Sharperson said, "He really came through with the big hit when we needed it."

Expos 8, Braves 4
Marquis Grissom's two-run single snapped a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning and Montreal went on to beat Atlanta at Olympic Stadium.

Public Notice

On June 28, 1991, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company (Southwestern Bell) filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission) to add a new optional service offering for business Private Branch Exchange (PBX) Trunk customers called Digital Loop Service. The application has been assigned Docket No. 10461.

Digital Loop Service provides digital transmission of circuit switched voice and data communications between the customer's premises and the central office. This service allows the customer to use a 1.544 Mbps facility capable of delivering up to 24 line terminations. Southwestern Bell will provide Digital Loop Service within the customer's serving central office where facilities are available.

If approved by the Commission, the rates for the Digital Loop Service facilities will be $445 per month for each digital transmission loop arrangement which provides a capacity of up to 24 line terminations, plus $5 per month for each line termination and $0 per month for each channel termination. The proposed rate for the unlimited use of the central office varies from $12.25 up to $18.90 per month for each line termination depending on the rate group classification, determined by the customer's location. Southwestern Bell estimates revenue of $2.1 million from this offering during the first year.

As proposed by Southwestern Bell, customers who currently receive digital loop compatibility through facilities installed under a special construction agreement will have the option to receive their current digital loop arrangements pursuant to the Digital Loop Service Tariff or continue to pay their current charges until they make a change of location or account. Any increase in the number of line terminations to a customer's current digital transmission loop arrangement will be provided pursuant to the proposed Digital Loop Service Tariff; however, the customer will continue to have the option of paying current charges for the existing digital transmission loop capacity. Southwestern Bell's proposal to "grandfather" existing digital loop facility arrangements is subject to review and approval by the Commission.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible, but not later than October 15, 1991. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256. The telecommunications device for the deaf (TDD) number is (512) 458-0221.

Southwestern Bell Telephone started the Expos' seventh with consecutive singles off Jim Clancy (1-4). After Tim Wallach walked to load the bases, Mike Stanton relieved and got Larry Walker to fly out before Grissom's single.

Mel Rojas (2-3) pitched two-thirds of an inning for the win and Barry Jones finished.

Astros 8, Mets 3
Jeff Bagwell and Craig Biggio homered as Houston beat New York at Shea Stadium despite two home runs by NL leader Howard Johnson.

Jim Deshaies (5-12) allowed both of Johnson's homers, but was still able to improve his career record to 5-0 against the Mets in New York. Johnson, who has moved to right field, has five homers in his last five games to give him 31 for the season.

Bagwell hit a three-run homer in the first inning off David Cone (12-11).

Padres 5, Cubs 1
Darrin Jackson went 3-for-3 and scored twice against his former team and Dennis Rasmussen and Mike Maddux combined on a six-hitter as San Diego beat visiting Chicago.

Cubs starter Danny Jackson (1-5) pitched 5 1-3 innings, giving up three runs and four hits.

Daddy Hugh

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Make that a cigar with a blue band for Hugh Hefner, who's become a father for the fourth time.

The Playboy founder's wife, Kimberley, gave birth Wednesday at Cedars Sinai Medical Center to an 8-pound, 1-ounce boy, said publicist Bill Farley.

Cooper Bradford Hefner is the second child born to the 65-year-old Hefner and the former Kimberley Conrad, the 1988 Playmate of the Year.

Hefner has two children from a previous marriage: daughter Christie, the head of Playboy Enterprises, and son David.

Allen leaves Orion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Woody Allen is leaving financially troubled Orion Pictures, the studio that's produced his films for 10 years.

In announcing Wednesday that he will make his next film for TriStar

Pictures, Allen praised his former studio, which produced such movies as "Hannah and Her Sisters."

"Every dedicated filmmaker I know is rooting for Orion to return to its old form and rightly so, because as studios go, they don't come any finer," he said.

Orion still intends to release Allen's recently completed movie "Shadows and Fog" next year. It stars Jodie Foster, Madonna and Mia Farrow.

Though few Allen films have been financial blockbusters, several Hollywood studios have tried to lure him.

His "Annie Hall," a United Artists release in 1977, won the Oscar for best picture.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Let tomorrow take care of itself while you get caught up in today! Once you clear up a financial matter, everything else seems to fall into place. By Thanksgiving, set a realistic budget and stick to it. Improving your credit record will be a top priority in early 1992. Next spring brings a wonderful period for romance. You find what you have always wanted.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Swoosie Kurtz, baseball's Vince DiMaggio.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will enjoy life more now that a financial burden is gone. Continue to pursue a prized goal. Your dreams can come true if your faith is strong. Meet a challenge head-on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Life is never dull when children are at home! Your basic financial needs are met. Practice tolerance when it comes to conducting business overseas. A romantic relationship needs more nurturing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Romance is in the air. A passive attitude is not the way to professional or personal success! Get involved in important discussions. Family attitudes are clearer now. Stand up for your beliefs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Resistance to change is holding you back and could prove expensive if you do not wake up soon. Short trips are useful. Postpone signing legal or financial papers until more data are available.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Staying fit and trim is as good for your state of mind as your looks. Teamwork helps everyone make more money! Stretch those dollars. Finesse is the key to romantic success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make a new plan to achieve your career goals. Further study or research will boost your earning potential. Be open to suggestions from your mate or business partner. Fresh ideas are essential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An older person may want to go into business with you but lacks capital. Be flexible. A short conference with an attractive member of the opposite sex could give you romantic ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your spirits are high, thanks to a terrific financial or career break. An unexpected gift will add to the fun. An absorbing artistic project could lead to your starting your own business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A snobbish attitude will only make enemies; show your more generous side. Socialize with younger people when the opportunity arises. A blind date could turn out even better than you anticipated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Routine tasks are boring but necessary. Complete paperwork before starting a new project. A change of scenery sounds delightful. A friend or relative helps you cut through red tape. Buy a special gift.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Extra money comes in, making you wildly happy. Try not to criticize grown offspring. They must lead their own lives now. A social evening perks up your spirits. Wear something really elegant.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be prepared to deal with someone who tries to swipe your business or contacts. A new neighbor could turn your thoughts toward romance. You shine in the role of host. Throw a small party.

Maybe it's time for change

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ Staff Writer

The world we live in has made dramatic changes in the past two years. Some of the changes are met with open arms and others we would rather forget.

Eastern Europe is free, the Berlin wall has been torn down, we defeated Saddam Hussein and the Soviet Union has gone through drastic changes — but not like our great state of Texas has.

Ann Richards beat both the odds and the polls to overcome a deficit win the mudslinging race over Republican Clayton Williams.

Williams, a Midland resident, led Richards in almost every poll, but not in the minds of voters.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein underestimated the strength of the American forces and predicted in the "Mother of all Battles" that he would be sending American soldiers back home in body bags by the thousands. We quickly lessened it to the "Mother of Quick Skirmishes."

We did suffer American losses — even one soldier was more than enough — but we did have a clean cut enemy. It was us against them.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, the Texas Legislature was stirring up a remedy on how to spread the wealth around to poorer school districts.

State legislatures worked and worked and came up with a brilliant idea. They decided to create County Education Districts. Certain areas were designated as head of the CEDs and smaller schools would contribute money so that every school would be equally supplied with money.

Lawmakers went on to say that the CEDs would create money for the school districts to use. They did not mention the fact that state aid was going to be removed and that's why the CEDs were created.

The legislature took the monkey off its backs and gave it to local school board members. In other words, it spent our tax dollars to come up with a plan to get more money out of our pockets and place the blame on our neighbors.

Now, that's the way to do it. It's estimated that by 1995, all school districts will have to be collecting about $1.50 on every $100 property value.

Homeowners will carry the bulk of new taxes. Lawmakers have been able to just about double our property tax, increase our fees to state recreational areas and put another

Stantonites wink past Wildcats

WINK — The Stanton Buffalos accounted for five scoring drives and kept the Wink Wildcats in check during the Buffs' second scrimmage of the football season.

"We went out there and had some fun. Our kids were very enthusiastic and we looked better than last week. On offense our line blocked real well. We had Jim Bob Kelly account for more than 200 yards of rushing, while Allen (Prough) picked up another 100," coach Bill Grissom said.

"It was a real good team effort. Defensively, Rick Posey and Edward Armendariz played exceptional. Edward read the Wink offense real well and they didn't give the Wink runners much room to run," Grissom said.

"Jay (Huckaby) ran the offense very well. He did a good job all through the scrimmage. We had only one turnover and we recovered that one. I don't put much stock in scrimmages, but we did do a good job. And we will have to play even harder every week from now on," he said.

Grissom was very happy with the injury report.

"We came out real good as far as injuries. We feel we will be able to give Seagraves a tough time Friday night," Grissom said.

On the junior varsity side, Grissom expressed concern.

"We did not have the outing we best the Wink Wildcats, 5-1, in the Buffs' second scrimmage of the year. Stanton opens regular season play Friday night at Seagraves.

"They are still young and they will bounce back," Grissom said. Grady takes Coyotes in scrimmage LENORAH — The Grady Wildcats outscored the Borden County Coyotes, 2-1, while the junior varsity scored twice and held the Borden JV scoreless in scrimmage action last week.

"We played 100 percent better against Borden County. We made improvements in our blocking and with a few breaks, we managed to outscore them," Grady head coach Leandro Gonzales said.

"We had some good running by J.J. Morales up the middle and Gilbert (Cortez) running the sweeps and out of our spread offense.

"On defense, L.V. Welch and Manuel Agurrie played very tough. L.V. played the gap position... and he was in the backfield most of the time. He managed to stop their offensive plays before they got started."

Agurrie played very well at the linebacker spot. J.C. Odom played good in the secondary. He picked off a pass and ran it in for a touchdown, but we didn't count it," Gonzales said.

The Wildcats will have their opening game against Midland Christian.

"We will have to prepare for Midland Friday. In the first scrimmage their quarterback hurt us by running out of the pocket scrambling. We're going to try to contain him by sending Agurrie, one of our fastest people to key on him all night. Maybe if we can put pressure on his running and passing and if we can score on offense, we might be able to pull it out," Gonzales said.

Council attends workshop

By TYSHAWN BARNES Four Stanton High School students joined more than 250 other representatives for a student council summer workshop.

The workshop was sponsored by the Texas Association of Student Councils on the campus of Angelo State University in San Angelo.

Blaine Hall, Tyshawn Barnes, James Miller and Innet Brown along with council members from across the state arrived on Sunday, July 21, prepared for a week of work and fun.

"Building Bridges" was the central theme of the week. Students were advised on how to improve their leadership skills. They were advised to use those skills to build bridges in their community and school in order to create a stronger, more powerful council.

After students were settled in their dorm rooms and had eaten dinner, a general assembly was called. In the assembly students participated in some strange and funny songs to loosen up. They proceeded with some brainstorming activities and began the Human Scavenger Hunt, which allowed students to meet each other. At this point, students were separated into 12 groups, each containing approximately 25 students from various schools.

The groups participated in a few games that helped students become better acquainted with their fellow council members. After that, each council was given the task of creating a school.

Each day, an acronym was used from the word BEST:

• BEST — Believe Everyone Succeeds Together.

Students arose early Monday morning for a typical cafeteria breakfast and scurried off to the meeting hall, which was about a half-mile from the dorms and cafeteria. It was time for their "home" council meetings.

This was often the only time students saw and had the chance to speak to the other representative from their school. Each person was given an opportunity to tell about their past day or any new ideas they were interested in trying during the school year.

Next was a general assembly, which always began with the singing of several silly songs, before moving into the lesson. One day's focus was on two films: "Greatest Days" and "One of a Kind."

In the afternoon councils split into four groups according to numbers. Different activities were planned for each group.

After supper, it was back to the designated councils to work on an

By NESTOR HERNANDEZ
Martin County ASCS/CEO

Producers on participating farms that did not request an advance payment during the regular sign-up period may do so now. Requests for 1991 advance payments will be accepted through Sept. 16.

Several bills have been introduced into congress which authorize disaster payments for participating and nonparticipating farms.

If any of your crops have been affected by a recognized disaster, you must file an ASCS-74 (application for disaster credit) and request an appraisal before destroying grazing or harvesting the crop.

A follow up field visit is required on all appraisals made by Multi Peril Crop Adjusters.

For a nominal fee of $20 per farm plus $10 for each additional plot over one, you may request an appraisal on disaster affected acreage.

The United States Department of Agriculture has scheduled a referendum Aug. 19-30 for Wool producers to decide whether to continue a market promotion and improvement program.

If the referendum is approved by a majority of either the producers voting or the producers who own a majority of sheep represented in the referendum, deductions from wool price support payments would be established at a rate not to exceed 35-cents per pound of wool marketed and not to exceed 35-cents per hundred weight of unshorn lambs for calendar year 1991.

For calendar years 1992-95, the deductions may increase up to an additional one-cent per pound of wool marketed and up to an additional five-cents per hundred weight of unshorn lambs, per year.

Since all the rains, weeds have grown to the point that some CRP contracts are in need of some weed control measures. It is your responsibility to inspect and use good judgement in the maintenance of CRP land, not ASCS, SCS or your neighbors that will be affected.

The penalty for failing to maintain your CRP acres is three times the cost of performing the maintenance measures ($6-per acre times three equals $18/acre penalty). The second violation is twice this rate. The third violation is termination of the contract requiring a refund of all cost share payments, all annual rental payments, plus interest and liquidated damages which is 25-percent of the annual payment rate times the CRP acres. All CRP contracts are being spot checked.

Penalty procedures are at our disposal for those producers that fail to properly maintain an eligible cover or practice on designated ACR and CU for paay acres. Let's help our neighbors and work in unity.

Note — Producers that planted black eyed peas on ACR acres and paid $10.00 for a required filed visit are reminded to destroy the black eyed peas while they are still green, please do not let them dry up on you.

Designated ACR and CU for payment acres may not be hayed or grazed during five-month non-grazing period of April 1 through Aug. 31.

Even though you will be allowed to hay or graze ACR and CU for payment acres beginning Sept. 1, you may not remove cover to extent that the land is not protected from wind and water erosion.

Some provisions for the '92 wheat program are: 1. Five-percent required ACR reduction. 2. Target price $4. 3. No paid land diversion.

Foreigners who have bought or sold agricultural land in Texas are required by the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act to report this transaction to the ASCS office. A report must be filed if all of part of the agricultural land is sold, or the title is transferred to another person.

Failure to make this report could result in a civil penalty of up to 25 percent of the fair market value of the interests held in the land.

FSA Plans — We are now entering into the period of the year that farmers either need to have their FSA plans carried out or are now in the process of carrying out their plans.

Producers are cautioned that residue crops need to be planted and left on the soil surface until Windstrips need to be planted and left standing until April 1.

If you are going to overseed cotton with small grain, you need to start seeding. We have moisture available to get small grains up and produce the pounds and ground cover of residue required.

Remember, do not use a desiccant or defoliant on cotton on the acres that were overseeded, as it can kill the small grain. Producers are reminded that if you are in a crop rotation system, you need to rotate your residue crops to different parts of the field.

Reminder, washes need to be seeded to small grain to help control wind and water erosion.

If a producer does not carry out his/her plan as scheduled and a determination of not actively applying your plan is made, SCS will inform ASCS of this determination. Below are the crops, planting dates and pounds that can be used in FSA plans at this time of the year:

• Blocking planting — Wheat, oats, barley and rye — Planting dates from Aug. 15 until Oct. 1, and a seeding rate of 40-50 pounds per acre.

• Cover crop — Overseeding, Wheat, oats, barley and rye — Planting dates from Aug. 15 until Oct. 1, and a seeding rate of 40-50 pounds per acre.

• Cotton burs — Mulch — three tons per acre.

• Wind stripping — Wheat, oats, barley and rye — Planting dates from Aug. 15 until Oct. 1, and a seeding rate of 40-50 pounds per acre.

SCS would like to encourage all producers to carry out their plans as scheduled so that there will not be any question if your plan is being adequately applied or not. If a producer has a question please call or come by the local SCS office. We are here to serve you.

County committee meetings are held on every second Wednesday of each month at 8:30 a.m.

Eligibility for participation in all programs administered by ASCS is established under law without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex marital status, mental or physical handicap.

Payne recuperating in Dallas

By MARCELLINO CHAVEZ
Staff Writer

Martin County Historical Museum Curator Ruby Payne, who has been suffering from liver cancer, is doing well and is out of immediate danger, according to her son, Michael Payne.

"Mother is doing very well. She was out of ICU (Intensive Care Unit), Thursday morning, after her surgery that Monday morning. She'll probably be in the hospital for another three weeks as they monitor and check on her progress to see if she has any kind of reaction," Payne said.

Mrs. Payne is recuperating from a successful liver transplant Aug. 19 at Dallas Baylor University Medical Hospital.

"The transplant team told us that they didn't have any idea how the cancer started in her. Usually it is more common among young males, but while we were there I met two other lady patients with the same tumor. According to her doctors, the tumor was almost the size of a football. And fortunately it was only found in the liver.

"The doctor said that if we would have waited any longer, they would probably wouldn't be able to do anything, but we were just in time. We are very thankful to the Lord Almighty for amazingly seeing her through this trying time. We would like to thank the community for the wonderful help and support they have shown," Payne said.

According to her son, she will continue her chemotherapy just in case the doctors missed a cancerous cell or two. She will continue on medication and will be under a doctors care for at least two months.

"We are very grateful that we came out in the good side with Mother. Our community has seen many good people lost to cancer, and we know how hard it is to take. We were ready for the worst, but we feel we were given a miracle and our Lord has been on our side. Sometimes we get tested, and he knows why we go through these trying times, now all we want to do is bring her back home," Payne said.

Foundation offers national scholarship

The Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation, Inc. is beginning its fourth annual scholarship competition, the largest business-supported college scholarship in the country. Interested students should see their local guidance counselors for scholarship applications and eligibility information.

Southwest Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Inc., the sponsoring local Coca-Cola bottler, encourages graduating seniors to apply and compete for the 150 scholarships to be awarded in the spring.

Fifty national scholarships worth $5,000 and 100 regional scholarships worth $1,000 are annually awarded and are renewable for up to four years of undergraduate study at any accredited U.S. college or university.

"This is an excellent program that provides education opportunities to outstanding students. We support the efforts of the Foundation to recognize deserving, future leaders," Charles F. Stephenson, Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Southwest Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Inc., stated.

The Coca-Cola Foundation rewards individuals on the basis of personal as well as scholastic merit. Consideration is given to a student's leadership potential, character and intellectual ability in addition to their academic record.

Depot news

By A.L. (BUD) LINDSEY

I would like to apologize for errors in last week's Depot News. Elizabeth Pierce's last name was left off when we mentioned her visit to Paris, Texas. Lucille Payne visited with her sisters instead of her daughters while in California recently.

It's nice to see that Mrs. O.B. Bryan is back practicing with the Old Sore Head band after being released from the hospital.

Some of the seniors from the center traveled to Big Spring last Thursday evening to listen to the Melody Maids play at the Kentwood Center.

This is an all female group that has two of the Old Sorehead band members, Verla Doggett and Nita (Babe) Lindsey. Other Melody Maids are Billy Anderson Miles, Mary Anderson Ellis, Louise Burgess and Margie Schutze.

Last Wednesday's lunch menu featured chicken dumplings. We have to give the cook a "10" again on this dish — super good.

A large crowd attended the supper night on Thursday, Aug. 22.

This is a covered dish affair with a superbly cooked brisket being brought by Dewitt Davis. This is a monthly event with the next supper being scheduled for Sept. 26. After the meal, games such as "golf 88 and 42" are played by the group. The Old Sorehead band will play at Manor Park on West Loop 250 in Midland Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 10. The van with the group is scheduled to leave the senior

Cotton news

By PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, Inc.

LUBBOCK — "Cautious speculation" is the best way to describe the way many experts are estimating the possible outcome of the 1991 High Plains cotton crop.

"Anyone looking for a definitive answer about the amount of production on the High Plains this year is going to be very disappointed."

"The fact that Mother Nature has already thrown this crop a couple of setbacks caused many people to get out of the business of speculating on the size of the '91 crop," said Donald Johnson, executive vice president of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers.

Setbacks took the form of poor soil moisture during planting and virtually uncontrolled aphid infestation that covered the entire area. The lack of moisture caused a good portion of the areas cotton acres to eventually be planted two or more weeks late.

The aphid's impact, not yet estimated in terms of actual yield losses, could also prove to be a serious problem for the crop area-wide. The good news for some area producers is that aphid populations finally appear to be crashing naturally.

High Plains producers found the aphid particularly hard to kill this year. Resistance to many normally effective chemicals used on aphids contributed heavily to the infestations seriousness.

Extension Cotton Specialist James Supak notes that with the onset of a decline in aphid populations the spirits of many area producers are improving. Many, however, are still concerned about the possibility of further crop losses from adverse weather or a return of the aphid population before harvest.

"If we can get some normal September rains and another good period of warm, sunny weather that extends into an open Fall, this crop could go ahead and come through reasonably well," Supak said.

The wild card continues to be weather. If good weather occurs then the combined effect of late planting and aphid infestations will finally be known.

PCG estimates that approximately 3.1 million acres of cotton remain on the High Plains. An average yield of one bale per acre would still put total production for the area a quarter of a million bales below the 3.35 million bale USDA estimate released Aug. 12.

In 1990, the High Plains crop averaged 510 pounds of lint per acre. Should the 1991 crop somehow equal that yield figure final production would total slightly under 3.3 million bales on 3.1 million harvested acres, still short of the USDA estimate.

The Texas A & M University Research and Extension Center will be holding its 82nd Annual Field Day and Open House at its halfway facility. Activities will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 10, from 1-4 p.m.

A number of activities, displays and exhibits are scheduled. Some of the topics that will be discussed are irrigation and chemigation, conservation tillage, weed and insect control, and viticulture. The computer training and education center will also be open and instructors will be available for individual consultation.

tax on gasoline.

No place but Texas.

I am beginning to think like one of our state representatives who suggested that the northern part of the state secede from the rest of the Lone Star State. We can be self-supporting and give the education we need to give our children.

We cannot go as bad as our elected officials, who have nothing better to do than pass the tax burden to us and blame our friends, while they enjoy the good life in Austin.

In a conversation with a local school board member, he said the CEDs may be equal in money, but not in education.

I always thought the most important thing about our future was the education of our youngsters.

Maybe next election we need to remind our legislatures who is in charge.

GISD plans reduced lunch program

LENORAH — The Grady Independent School District released its guideline schedule explaining which students qualify for free or reduced-priced meals this school year.

Regular meal prices at GISD this year will be 60 cents for lunch for all grades while breakfast will be served free to all. A reduced-price meal is 30 cents for lunch for those students that qualify, according to information released by GISD Superintendent Gerald Singleton.

A spokeswoman at the school administration office urged interested persons to apply for the program as soon as possible. She said that the longer people wait to apply, the longer it will be before the applications can be verified.

All persons interested must apply annually, even if they qualified for the program last year and their economic situation is unchanged.

The following students may qualify for free or reduced-price meals:

- If the applicants now receives food stamps or AFDC for the child, you are applying for, the application must have the child's name, food stamp or AFDC number and the signature of an adult household member.

- If applying for a foster child, the application must have the child's name, the child's "personal use" income, and an adult's signature.

If no food stamp or AFDC case

Regular meal prices at GISD this year will be 60 cents for lunch for all grades while breakfast will be served free to all.

number is available, the process becomes a bit more involved. Applicants must then provide the following:

- Names of all household members.

- Household income, its source and how often it is received.

- Social Security number of either the main wage earner or the person signing the application.

To receive free or reduced-priced meals, persons need to obtain the applications from the district's administration office, located between the Tarzan and Lenorah communities on State Highway 176.

Incomplete applications cannot be approved, the information states.

After the application is complete, the applicant will then be verified by school officials. Eligibility can be checked at any time during the school year.

Persons who are not approved for the program have the right to a hearing. This can be done by contacting Singleton at the district's administration office by calling (915) 459-2444 or write to Gerald Singleton, HCR 76, Box 4, Lenorah, Texas 79749.

If your child get free or reduced price meals because of your income, you must tell the school if your household size decreases or your income increases by more than $50 per month or $600 per year. If your children get meals based on AFDC or food stamps, you must advise the school if you no longer get AFDC or food stamps for your children. You may then fill out another application giving income information.

School officials use the information on the application only to decide if your child should get free or reduced price meals.

You may apply for free and reduced-price meals at any time during the school year. If you are not eligible now but have a change, such as a decrease in household income, an increase in household size, become unemployed or get food stamps or AFDC for your children, fill out an application then.

In the operation of the child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, national origin, age, or handicap. If you believe you have been discriminated against, write to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. You will be notified when the application is approved or denied.

For more information, contact the district at (915) 459-2444.

Drive carefully.

original school song, motto and cheer to be presented later that evening in a general assembly.

After the presentations were completed the Junior Olympics began. This activity included competition between councils in such things as frisbee throwing, pencil in a bottle, jumping rope and much more.

- BEST — Best Entertainment Scheduled Tonight.

Everybody gathered in the ballroom for the general assembly. The topic was communications in project planning and completion. After a short lecture and activity councils held individual elections. The elected officers were introduced in another general assembly.

Each council came up with one major goal and projects to help achieve that goal. Another activity was the Swap Shop, a time for sharing different ideas with other schools and taking note of any new and exciting possibilities for our home council.

- BEST — Begin Everyday Supporting the Team.

The week was half over and the fun was just beginning. As usual students had their breakfast, home council meetings, a morning assembly and a brief council meeting. The meetings broke up early and we were given the whole afternoon off to spend it how ever we chose.

- BEST — Be Excellent Stand Tall.

After lunch Thursday, councils organized another skit and decorated their tables for the honors banquet that evening. Everyone dressed in their best attire and enjoyed a catered meal and listened to speeches.

- BEST — Bridges Ensure Successful Tommorrow.

Friday arrived and everyone had made so many close friends that they hated to leave them behind. When it was time to gather for the general assembly the students took the time to say their farewells to their new friends outside of their councils.

The workshop allowed students to improve themselves as well as their home councils. No one left this workshop without new friends, ideas and goals. We will cherish the workshop just reviewed for the rest of our lives.

GOD'S LOVE PROVIDED THE JOYFUL SERENITY OF SUMMER

When springtime flowers fade away
And sunlight warms each golden day.
All work will stop, while everyone
Gets ready for some outdoor fun.
Now some maintain their status quo
Relaxing on the patio.
While those more energetic choose
The picnics and the barbecues;
But when it comes to Sabbath day,

Let one and all decide to pray.
With many members out of town,
Don't let your House of Worship down.
Remember that its help is near
In any season of the year;
Then see the Lord's creation thrive
In summer, when the earth's alive.
