NEW U. S. POPULATION FIGURES GIVEN

GREAT INCREASE SHOWN IN TEXAS' LEADING CITIES

DALLAS IS FIGURED FOR 200,000; HOUSTON IS NOT ESTIMATED

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Estimates of the population of 229 cities having 20,000 or more inhabitants were announced today by the department of commerce. Ten Texas cities reported all show large increases since 1920. Houston and Wichita Falls increased so rapidly the department believed it unsafe to estimate present population. The estimates, prepared by the census bureau and carrying the figures up to July 1, this year, are based in most cases on the assumption that the annual increase since 1920 has been the same as the average between 1910 and 1920. Four cities in states which took a state census in 1925, the estimates are based on the 1920 to 1925 average increase. Estimates were not given for twelve cities where the last census showed a decrease in population, nor for ten cities where exceptional conditions of growth, which would cause estimates to be far from correct are believed to prevail. Allowance is made for annexations and detachments of territory.

Rank Is Unchanged

The big four, the country's only cities having a million or more population show no change in rank. New York leads with 5,224,699 against 5,229,043 in 1920. New York city's boroughs are estimated as follows: Bronx 896,600; Brooklyn 2,240,900; Manhattan 1,877,000; Queens 764,900; and Richmond 143,600.

Chicago passed the three million mark for the first time with 3,045,606 against 2,791,705 in 1920. Philadelphia, crossing the two million mark, retains third place with 2,698,609 against 1,823,779. Detroit continues fourth with 1,250,000 against 593,678.

Ten cities comprise the half million to a million class.

Cleveland 960,000 against 756,841; St. Louis 830,000 against 772,897; Baltimore 608,000 against 723,526; Boston 873,000 against 748,069; Pittsburgh 637,000 against 594,277; Los Angeles, not estimated, had 576,673 in 1920; San Francisco 567,000 against 506,676; Buffalo 544,000 against 437,571; and Milwaukee 517,000 against 457,147.

According to eye-witnesses the Stanton car was devoid of effective brakes and smashed into the other machine, driven by Mrs. T. J. Davis. The injured girl, whose nose was severely lacerated by glass from the windshield, was brought here for medical aid. Six persons were in each car but she was the only one hurt.

Gun Fight Brings Death To Two Men At Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS, May 24.—Harry Sealing, wealthy Clay county ranchman, member of a pioneer Texas family, and Fred Marion, former employe of Sealing and until recently a mechanic of a motor company in Wichita Falls, are dead, as the result of shooting which followed a dispute over an account at the Sealing ranch house Sunday afternoon. Sealing was shot four times with a revolver. Marion, after firing at Sealing, ran into the bed room and shot himself through the left temple.

"Marion and Mr. Sealing had been sitting on the porch and I knew they were arguing over an account which they had differed," according to Mrs. Agnes Stocks, of Wichita Falls who drove from Wichita Falls to the ranch with Mr. Sealing Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Stocks was in the kitchen of the ranch house when the shooting occurred.

"The came from the front porch into the hall and I heard Mr. Sealing say 'Don't do that,' and Marion fired. Mr. Sealing ran the full length of the hall and attempted to go out of the door but it was locked. He had been shot twice through the arm and before he could unlock the door, Marion fired two more shots which took effect in his body. He ran into the back yard and fell. Marion ran into the bed room where he was found later with a bullet wound through his temple," Mrs. Stocks said.

The colt pranced off down the road, apparently unharmed.

CHALLENGE MADE BY 'MA' IS BUT GAMBLE, HE SAYS

MOODY SHOULD WITHDRAW, LUMBERMAN TELLS THE VOTERS

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, May 24.—"Charging that the two highest offices within the gift of the people of Texas had been placed upon the plane of a 'crap game,' Lynch Davidson, well known financier and lumberman and gubernatorial candidate, decried the Ferguson-Moody wager in a statement issued here last night.

In her opening campaign speech Saturday, Governor Miriam A. Ferguson declared that if Attorney General Dan Moody, also a candidate for governor, would resign immediately, provided Moody would resign if she led him 25,000 votes, Moody countered with an acceptance in an address at San Antonio Saturday night, waving 'Ma's' 25,000 vote margin.

Davidson Raps The Plan

"The Ferguson, proxy governor, offers to bet the office of governor against the office of attorney general, Dan Moody accepts the bet." In these words Mr. Davidson epitomized the challenge and its acceptance.

"The honor and dignity of these two great offices is insulted and slighted by their incumbents to a degree that brings the blush of shame to every decent and right thinking citizen in this state," Davidson declared. "The legal and moral codes of Texas condemn gambling, even when it involves property owned by the gamblers."

"Have No Right To Gamble"

"The offices held by the governor and attorney general are solemn trusts granted by the people of Texas. The holders of these offices have no more right to gamble them away than they

Eighteen Die In Sunday Airplane And Rail Accidents; Most Unusual Types Of Tragedies Are Recorded

Elect Poet

(By The Associated Press)

Death came to eighteen persons on Sunday in the whirl of airplane motors and the roar of passenger trains. Four were killed and three were injured in four flying accidents, while fourteen fatalities were recorded in three major grade crossing accidents. Several persons also were injured in the derailment of a New York, New Haven and Hartford express train at Mansfield, Mass., early today.

The most unusual of the airplane accidents occurred at Charlton, Ia., when a trapeze performer suspended from a low flying machine at an air circus struck and killed a spectator, in an attempt to take a hat from the latter's head. M. H. Johnson's skull was crushed and he died in a hospital. Alva Murphy of Arlington, Ia., the performer, was seriously injured.

Two Burned To Death

Near Bessemer, Ala., two fliers were burned to death when their airplane caught fire and fell 2,000 feet into a field. The victims were Dennis Gahbert, Fairfield, Ala., and George Eyles, Bessemer.

Several hundred spectators at a flying field near Hobart, Ind., watched for 15 dead-end minutes while a pilot flying high in the air fought desperately for control of his machine, from which a part had fallen.

The man at the stick, Hugh Campbell, pilot for a commercial outfit, was managed by slipping and slipping skillfully to bring the ship down within several hundred feet of the ground when it went into a tail spin and crashed. William Schreeder, Gary, Ind., a passenger, was killed, while the pilot and another passenger were injured.

Passenger Plane Wrecked

A Fokker monoplane, a duplicate of that used by Lieutenant Richard E. Byrd, in polar explorations, was wrecked on the grounds of the country club at Warren, Ohio, while carrying five passengers on a test flight from New York to Detroit. None of the passengers were injured. The pilot said he was forced to land when the gas supply gave out.

Four persons were killed and one seriously injured in a grade crossing accident in North Tonawanda, N. Y., six autoists were killed at Flint, Mich., when their car was struck by a passenger train, and four met death in an automobile-train collision near Wescott, Ia. The Flint victims included a mother and two daughters.

Trainman Killed, Cars

PASSENGERS SNORE ON

Are Smashed In Wreck

(By The Associated Press)

MANSFIELD, Mass., May 24.—In a wreck that caused the death of one trainman, and knocked over a signal tower, some of the passengers of the Owl, a fast train from Boston for New York, were not even awakened from sleep this morning. The train, on the New York, New Haven and Hartford, running 25 miles an hour, hit the tail end of a freight at a crossing. The big passenger locomotive made kindling of three freight cars, and then jumped the rails, heading for the signal tower. The tower man dashed for his door, followed by two companions. All three fell clear of the wreckage.

The passenger locomotive rolled over at the New Haven's three main lines, and Fireman Ernest Riding of Newton, Conn., died a few moments later from injuries. J. W. Durlay, the passenger engineer, and George Hughes, freight conductor, were injured.

Four sleeping car followed the locomotive off the ties, but none of the passengers were reported seriously injured, although a dozen were listed for slight hurts.

FEEDING HENS TO MAKE THEM LAY IMPORTANT

By ZELLA WIGENT
Agricultural Extension Department
International Harvester Company

Spring is the natural laying season for hens, and if we want winter eggs we must duplicate spring conditions. Variety is important in the winter ration. Eggs cannot be produced unless the feed contains the material from which eggs are made.

A hen craves and seeks different kinds of food. If given an opportunity she will pick up bits of gravel and sand. Corn contains carbon and starch—the heat and fat producing foods.

Hens need corn, both for body maintenance and egg production, but corn alone does not contain all the food elements necessary to produce eggs. Equal parts of corn, oats and wheat make a good grain mixture.

Grain should be fed in a deep litter, so that hens will be compelled to scratch for it. Only the busy hen is the laying hen.

Too much grain should not be fed in the morning. If we keep the hens hungry, they will be busy all day. Late in the afternoon give them all the grain they will eat. Their crop should be full when she goes to roost.

The winter laying ration should contain milk feed with either milk or beef scrap. These contain the protein—the tissue and tissue-building feeds. About 15 per cent of an egg is protein.

During the winter hens need some substitute for the grass and clover and other green food which they get in the summer. Alfalfa leaves, either dry or steamed, are a splendid substitute. Clover leaves may be used in place of alfalfa. Both alfalfa and clover are cheap and easily grown on the farm. They should be used more than they are for poultry feed.

Green Feed Necessary. Cabbages, beets, kale, turnips or any root stocks, make good green feed for hens. If you have a surplus of these in the fall, store them and feed them to your hens in the winter.

About 74 per cent of an egg is water. One of the reasons hens do not lay in the winter is that they do not get enough water. Hens should be provided with all the water they can drink. Marrow water is better than cold water in the winter time. Grit helps to grind the food, oyster shell furnishes the lime for egg shells, charcoal aids digestion and helps keep the bowels in good condition.

Menus for the Family

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, white cream, poached eggs on rice, crisp whole toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Tomato chowder, croquettes, cottage cheese sandwiches, cottage pudding with strawberry sauce, milk, tea.

Dinner—Cream of onion soup, veal croquettes, scalloped potatoes, buttered spinach, romaine salad, whole wheat bread, rhubarb bombe, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

This is a delicious, inexpensive dinner menu that might well be planned for guests. The veal croquettes are baked rather than fried in deep fat. If preferred a fruit cup can be used in place of the soup suggested, but, as the meat is light, the soup really adds nourishment and is needed.

Rhubarb Bombe

Two pounds rhubarb, 1 cup water, 2 cups granulated sugar, 1 egg white, 1/2 cup powdered sugar, 1 cup whipping cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Wash rhubarb but do not skin. Cut into inch lengths. Put rhubarb, water and granulated sugar into a baking dish with a close fitting cover and bake about 2 hours in a slow oven. When rhubarb is tender and the juice is clear, strain through a cheesecloth. There should be about 4 cups of syrup. When cold turn into freezer and freeze like any water ice. When well frozen line a melon mold which has been thoroughly chilled, with the frozen mixture, making the ice about an inch thick. Fill the mold with the cream mixture and cover with remaining ice. The mold should be firmly packed and filled "full." Cover with a piece of heavy waxed paper and adjust cover of mold. Pack in four parts of ice to one of ice cream salt and let stand two or more hours.

To make the filling beat the white of egg until stiff and dry and beat in half the powdered sugar. Whip cream until thick, adding remaining sugar and vanilla. Combine whipped cream and white of egg mixture. Chill thoroughly but do not freeze before using as filling.

These proportions will fill a three-pint melon mold. The mold can be packed in a wooden pan, large dishpan or small tub.

HUBBERS WIN HARD CONTEST FROM LITTLEFIELD

Frank Hudspeth, appearing in the uniform of the Lubbock Hubbers for the first time this season, held Emma Goble's Littlefield ball nine to three hit, two of which were doubles, here Sunday afternoon in a nine-inning contest, while his teammates were driving out eight safeties of the delivery of Virden, and the Hubbers got away to a win 4 to 0 in one of the best exhibitions seen here this season.

Hudspeth, with his usual easy motion and steadiness, had the visitors helpless all the way, even though two or three times they had men in scoring position. Virden delivered a pretty game for the visiting delegation, but three singles, a walk, and a sacrifice hit in the seventh was too much after E. Mueller had kicked one in the preceding inning to allow a run.

Through the sixth inning a pretty pitchers' battle was witnessed, with odds and breath above even all the way round. Hudspeth gave up his three hits during the first five sessions, and Virden allowed but four in the fourth and fifth. While in each frame the Littlefield placed a man in scoring position, one time with one out and the other time none, but Hudspeth lengthened his stride a bit in these pitches to come out unharmed. In the fifth he struck out the last two men up.

Hudspeth drew a total of eight strike outs, allowed two free passes, while Virden struck out three and walked a pair. Only one bobbie marred the contest, this coming in the sixth when Mueller kicked Connolly's drive to short to allow Shepard to score.

Score by innings: 000 000 0-0 2 1
 Littlefield 000 001 30x-4 8 0
 Lubbock 000 000 000-0 0 0

TECH COACH WINS CALCUTTA POOL TOURNAMENT

Grady Higginbotham, assistant director of athletics at the Tech college, who entered the second Calcutta Pool golf tournament of the Lubbock country club, as somewhat of a "dark horse," won the tournament two up and one, defeating John Jarrott in the round of the tourney Sunday afternoon on the Country club course here.

Higginbotham was leading Jarrott as they approached the eighth hole in the nine-hole final round two up and one, and he won the hole by a margin of one stroke. Higginbotham's ability with the iron placed him among the leaders of the tourney from the first round of elimination.

Higginbotham, Jarrott, Bob Peck and Herbert Stubbs went into the semi-finals after eliminating the balance of a field of sixteen of the best that Lubbock affords, and Peck and Stubbs went out in this round after a hard struggle.

The tournament was termed one of the most successful ever attempted here, and attracted a large gallery throughout the day of play, which was started at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

LONGHORN HURLER QUALIFIES FOR HALL OF FAME

AUSTIN, May 24. (AP) — By letting down the Baylor Bruins with three hits and winning the fourteenth Southwest Conference diamond title for Coach Billy Ditch, Neal V. Baker, Texas university mound ace, Monday, qualified for a ranking among the star twirlers of conference history.

In that section of the conference's "Hall of Fame," set aside for hurlers of rare merit, one finds the names of Ted Lyons, Baylor's former ace, now the ace of the Chicago White Sox mound corps; the great southpaw of Texas university, Manny Ponsford; Eddie Dyes, one of Rice Institute's outstanding athletic products now with the St. Louis Cards; "Bub" Gillies, a Texas Longhorn right-hander who seemed headed for the "big show" until he injured his arm; Jake Freeze, Baylor's 1925 captain; and "Bib" Pate, who in three years service for the Texas University Steers, lost not one of a large number of games he worked on the hillock. "Bib" now first fielder of the Chicks, is one of the most valuable outfielders of the game.

Most diamond fans would place in the "Hall of Fame" Pete Donohue, great twirler of the Cincy Redlegs, though when Pete was toiling for Texas Christian university that school was not a member of the Southwest Conference. However, Pete worked against the Longhorns, the Texas Aggies, the Rice Owls and the other schools that were in the conference, and scamped himself as good a pitcher as ever toed the rubber in the conference.

To date the ruddy checked Baker has won five conference titles and lost none. He likely will work Saturday against the Texas Aggies and if he does will be favored to chalk up his fifth conference win. Among his victories was a 11-0 triumph over Texas Christian university. Baker allowed the Horned Toads but four hits. Hal Tonds defeated Texas in that game they would have won the conference title.

Some idea of Baker's effectiveness may be gained from the fact that he is allowed conference averages of an average of just .432 hits an inning.

RUTH'S HITTING IS SENSATION IN MAJORS

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, May 24. — Any judging on the part of George Herman Ruth during spring training is NOT reflected in the shadow. The Babe again is casting wherever three strikes are out and a ball driven over the fence or into the bleachers on the other side of the field is good for four bases.

After all, smart hitting brings the fans to their feet more often than does smart fielding, and the Yankee slugger is the outstanding batsman among the several major leaguers currently chasing pennants.

Ruth's remarkable home run hitting is part of a batting performance seldom seen. When he hit his thirteenth and fourteenth circuit drives in last Wednesday's game, he jumped "way ahead of his homer slugging in 1921, when the record of 19 was made. The thirteenth put him on a par with his total on May 25 in 1921.

Additionally, The Babe ranks second in the American individual batting with a percentage of .393, and so far has averaged considerably more than two bases per hit, with a total of 58 bases on 44 singles, which is pretty efficient. In last Wednesday's game he crossed the plate with his fortieth run, and that total in 21 games.

The Yankees generally are showing both leagues how to hit, leading the American team averages with .314. Chicago has clung to a .294 percentage to stay in second place and Washington continues third with a rating of .291. The Chicago Cubs forced ahead to lead the National teams with hitting of .296 variety, the Reds having slipped into second place with .286. The Giants finished the first five week with an average of .281.

Joe Dugan leads the individual hitting in the majors with an average of .414, with his team-mates Ruth and Meusel ranking just below in the Junior league. Southworth of the Giants tumbled from his winning margin lead over everybody to lead the National batsmen with .406. Otherwise, a number of new faces show among the leading hitters in both leagues, although the veterans hold their own. Rogers Hornsby, slugging playing-manager of the Cardinals whom St. Louis honors today, is hitting .255 in the National, slightly below the batting of the veteran Cobb with his .385 to date.

Cuyler of the Pirates continues to outclass them all, his ten piffered sacks bring two above the total acquired by Meusel in Yankee games.

Bostoney of the Cardinals leads the consolation race for home runs with seven, closely pressed by several players in each league who have collected four and five apiece.

The White Sox have made the best fielding record in either league so far this year, the St. Louis Browns looking worse than any other team, on paper, but in spite of that having the lead in one-two putouts with a total of 42 doubles.

Donohue of the Reds rates the most effective pitcher in the National League, with Keen and Rhem, both Cardinal flingers, close behind, among the hurlers who labor often. Penneck, Hoyt and Shocker of the Yankees and Quinn of the Athletics, closely followed by Walter Johnson, lead among American mountainers. Both Donohue and Penneck have so far won six and lost one game.

Leading American hitters in 15 or more games: Dugan of New York, .414; Ruth, New York, .393; Meusel, New York, .392; Bennett of St. Louis, .390; Cobb of Detroit, .388; McNeely, Washington, .383; Goslin of Washington, .376; Simmons, Athletics, .355; Burns, Cleveland, .352; Neun of Detroit, .350.

Leading National hitters in 15 or more games including Wednesday's Southworth, Giants, .406; Bressler, Cincinnati, .388; L. Wilson of Chicago, .385; High of Boston, .380; Heathcote of Chicago, .375; Lindstrom, New York, .374; Dean of the Phillies, .364; Herman of Brooklyn, .358; Hornsby of St. Louis, .355; Cuyler, Pittsburgh, .342.

Reds' And Babe Herman Halted In Forward Drives; Jess Petty Wins And Yankees Continue Victories

(By The Associated Press)

Two streaks that have flashed across the baseball sky of late have disappeared but that of the New York Yankees, now boasting their twelfth straight conquest, is brighter than ever. Cincinnati leading the National effort, has been stopped after five straight victories, the advancing Pittsburgh Pirates checking the rush yesterday, 1 to 2, when Yde limited the Redlegs to three safe hits. Donohue, May and Lucas were the victims of the Pirate attack, 15 hits being gathered from their servings.

Herman Is Stopped

The hitting spree of Babe Herman of Brooklyn, which had extended to eleven contests, was ended by King and Davies of the New York Giants, but Brooklyn won the game, 2 to 1, after losing five in succession.

Jess Petty, big left-hander, pitched for the Dodgers and the Giants found him safely only five times. There was great sadness behind the good left arm, for just before the game, Jess learned by letter that his mother had died in Texas.

Seven runs in the eighth inning gave the Chicago Cubs a victory over the Boston Braves after an uphill struggle, 14 to 8. Thirty-two players participated.

Bentley Hits The Ball

Jack Bentley, with a double and triple, led a successful attack on four pitchers and the Phillies defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 5. Huntering lasted only 1-2-3 innings and Dyer one. Walter Hoyt served straight ball behind a sustained onslaught from Yankee bats and Boston became the twelfth straight victim of the New Yorkers, 8 to 3. Ruth was robbed of a homer by Flanagan, who raced to the centerfield bleachers for the catch and Jenkins caught Lazzeri's long shot so far away in left field that Bob Meusel scored from second base.

Walter Johnson was knocked out of the box and Philadelphia downed Washington, five to three, Simmons getting a homer. Harris was taken from the mound in the eighth and "ate held the Athletics' lead.

Lyons was effective in the places, giving the White Sox a victory over Cleveland, 1 to 0. The Sox caught six hits off Smith and the Indians seven.

Two runs in the third on three singles and a pass gave Detroit two runs, enough to beat St. Louis, 2 to 1, with Holloway keeping eight hits well distributed.

Billy Evans Says

Pitching Wisdom

I doubt if there is a smarter pitcher in the American League than Urban Shocker of the New York Yankees. Shocker's pitching repertoire includes everything and he mixes the varied assortment up most deftly. "Pitch to the small end of the bat," is Shocker's favorite bit of advice on how to succeed as a pitcher.

In other words, Shocker simply means pitch inside, make the batter hit the ball on the handle rather than at the end of the bat.

It is practically impossible to get distance to any ball that is pitched inside, to the small end of the bat.

Wait 'Em Out

With the slowing down of the baseball, the importance of a good leadoff man becomes all the greater.

In the old days he was a player possessing the uncanny ability to wait out a pitcher, ultimately drawing a base on balls.

Such a player was not necessarily a good hitter, but usually he was fast and also was an adept at the bunting game.

In Max Bishop the Philadelphia Athletics have one of the best leadoff players in the big show.

The other day in a game with St. Louis he came within one ball of equalling the American League record of five bases on balls. I happened to be calling balls and strikes in that game.

After getting four passes he worked the count to three balls and two strikes on his fifth and final appearance at the plate, only to have me decide the pitch a strike.

Many Upsets

Never in the history of baseball has the game experienced such upsets as have featured the play this year.

Take the case of the Philadelphia Athletics, generally picked to be a pennant-contender from the spring cry of "Play ball!"

The Mackmen lost 10 of the first 14 games played, then started a winning spurt that brought their mark to the 500 point, 12 victories against as many defeats.

In figuring the Athletics a pennant-contender, the pitching ability of Rommel, Gray and Harris was given much consideration.

Yet in the first 12 victories scored

Stanford Star

Presenting Roger Babcock, sensational pitcher and member of Stanford University's famous mile relay team. He's one of the fastest under-paths afield the far western school has had in some time. Babcock will be seen in several big upsets this season.

by Mack's team, his trio of star twirlers turned in only two wins.

Fatal Fault

A weakness around second base, either upon the part of the player guarding that sack or the shortstop, is a fatal fault to pennant chances.

Every pennant-winning ball club in the history of the game has featured a snappy combination around the keystone sack.

Inexperience in big league ways is a big handicap to players holding down such positions. Both the New York and Detroit clubs of the American League have recruits playing the all-important positions.

No matter how great the ability of the player, one cannot expect him to step into the difficult positions of the shortstop or second baseman and deliver in his first year.

While inexperience may handicap both clubs some this year, they are preparing for the future.

Hausser's Comeback

The belief that First Baseman Joe Hausser will be able to play that position all season for the Athletics has done more to revive the spirits of the club after a bad start than any one other thing.

For a time it seemed as if Hausser would be fortunate if able to divide the work at first base with Jim Pook. At first he favored his injured leg but since the opening of the season has put it to every test, including the most dangerous form of the hook slide, with no ill effects.

Now that Hausser has recovered confidence in himself, he has started to hit and the club appears to have taken on the same optimistic angle.

The loss of a player, who can hit the ball like Joe Hausser, is a terrific handicap to a ball club with pennant hopes.

STUDY IN PRIDE

A convicted wife-beater was sentenced to the whipping post in a Baltimore jail and received five lashes across his back. A crowd of about 150 spectators watched the primitive punishment.

"I don't mind taking my medicine," the man told his jailers as they locked his hands around the whipping post, "but I don't think you ought to make a circus of it."

A man who beats his wife, who then shows contempt for physical punishment but feels his pride and self-respect injured by being publicly insulted would make a suitable subject for psychological study. A pride which governs our public and not our private life not only lacks sincerity but is valueless and a mask which falls to hide true character.

GIVE HIM CREDIT

Generally speaking the highways of Lubbock county and Division 5 of the State Highway department are in better condition now than they have ever been.

Certainly there has been more improvement, more efficient treatment on these highways during the past eighteen months than ever before and Lubbock people, as a part of the division, should appreciate the fact.

Over in the courthouse there's a young fellow named George Field, who is Division engineer. The chances are you won't find him in his office because he's not an office engineer—he's one of these kind who gets out in the dirt himself and shows the crews how the work should be done. But if by chance you should catch him in the courthouse sometime, reach out and shake hands with him—tell him Lubbock folks are appreciating his work. He deserves it.

GRADUATION

One hundred six youngsters this week completed their work in Lubbock high school and one hundred six of the finest boys and girls to be found anywhere are facing the future and what it holds for them, ready, willing and unafraid.

It is the spirit of youth—that surety which can be quenched only by the years which are to come—which will carry them into the sea of life, some to survive the battering of the waves of adversity to later float peacefully upon the surface of plenty; some to be whipped by angry breakers into the back eddies of failure.

It is the way of life—a glorious beginning and an end which time alone can decide. Yet sustained and strengthened by the education and training which they have received we cannot help but feel that the majority will attain heights of endeavor and will merge from the battle of existence better off than is the average.

A GOOD START

The 1934 Panhandle-Plains wheat crop will top 22,000,000 bushels, a survey made this week indicates.

Thus the Panhandle-Plains section has a good start toward prosperity for this year.

What the cotton crop will do—and of course it is in this yield that Lubbock is most highly interested—remains to be seen, but the good wheat yield, the overflow of which will be happily felt here, is getting our territory off to a good start.

The Sincerest of Flattery

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON. — You'll hardly know whether it is money or a merchandise coupon after the treasury's committee on redesign of the currency gets through.

Their plans for revamped paper money are expected to save about $4,000,000 a year and to provide much handier currency. Their problem is to take care of the paper money—and let the coins take care of themselves.

The proposals, in brief, are to reduce the size of bills by about one-third, to eliminate the yellowback and make other color changes, to simplify and standardize design and to stop printing some of the little-used denominations. These proposals are not yet official. They are revealed now directly from the committee, however, and are believed to be virtually assured of adoption.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has authority to make such changes in the currency without consulting Congress. The committee on redesign has been making exhaustive studies for nearly a year and is expected to report within a few months. After the secretary orders the changes, nearly a year will be required for engraving the plates and for printing and distribution.

The department is convinced that our present paper money system can be made more economical and efficient and is committed to improving it," says Assistant Secretary Charles S. Dewey. He is the official directly in charge of the expert committee on redesign.

The change in size is expected to be most radical. Ever since the first greenbacks were turned out during the Civil War paper money has been approximately 7.28 inches long and 2.64 inches wide. The new bills, it is planned, will be 6 inches long and 2 1/2 inches wide.

A GOOD DIVORCE

"Not a word to his wife in seven years," was the ground upon which a divorce was granted to a woman in an Iowa town. No greater punishment could come to a woman than to deny her for seven years a chance to reply. We believe the grounds for divorce in this incident were well taken. A man who could live with a woman seven years without speaking to her showed some tact to say the least. The husband was the first to rebel against his self-inflicted punishment and appealed to the courts for annulment of their marriage. A history of the case is without parallel in the annals of the courts so says the report. The husband was 70 years of age and the wife 53. They lived together as husband and wife for eight or forty years, and had raised a family of ten children. One day they had a misunderstanding and quarrel over trivial matters and the husband got mad and shouted to his wife, "I'll never speak to you again as long as we live." So they kept the impact that a stubborn husband had imposed upon his faithful wife, the one who had borne him his children and who had stood by him in health, in sickness, in sunshine and shadows. Stubbornness. He went about his farm work and she about her house work, but not a word was spoken for these long years. Summer came, then autumn, to be followed by the blast of Iowa winters; then spring burst upon them with all its glories, yet the silence was unbroken. On they went, struggling in the bonds of bitter misunderstanding, and the green eyed monster, Stubbornness eating out their vitals. They had come to Iowa when land was cheap and bought a quarter section. For thirty-seven years they had worked side by side, through years of toil, happy and contented, in steady accumulation and blessed with a happy family of children, until that fatal day when anger possessed a degree of silence upon his trusting, faithful wife more cruel than had he struck her down in death. The wife showed more courage than the father, who finally broke down and cried out to the divorce courts against his own inflicted decree. Such is here recorded one of life's tragedies. It is one of the most heart-rending experiences of life when we see old people, men and their wives who have lived together for more than three score years, to seek the modern divorce courts to have annulled the bonds that have carried them through so many vicissitudes. It was Governor Bob Taylor of Tennessee, who after years of preaching the gospel of sunshine and fiddling his way through to the governors office and into the hearts and lives of Southern people, to finally end at the divorce courts where the sacred bonds that had made life really worth while between him and the woman of his choice made in early manhood, came to give the lie to all he had preached. It is not so surprising when the younger generations divorce, but when the habit fixes itself upon the lives of the aged, it is indeed a sad commentary upon American society.—Slaton Times.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY JOHN MILBURN, partner in the advertising agency of GRAHAM AND MILBURN, hosts the birth of a baby girl as a big event and the turning point in his and his wife, FAY'S, marriage.

John is of a romantic nature, which finds an outlet in the advertising copy he writes. He is impractical. In his family Fay runs the budget. Just as in his business the financial details are run by NATHANIEL GRAHAM.

While Fay is in the hospital, John is invited to a swimming party at the country place of PAT FORBES and his wife. There he meets several married friends of the Forbes, one of whom, NELL ORME, makes a striking picture in a bathing suit and attracts John with her beauty. Later Pat hints of trouble between Nell Orme and her husband.

Nell challenges John to a swimming race and beats him. That evening, after the party, Pat after remarking again about the Ormes, declares that most marriages are a failure and that he had made a mistake in marrying his own wife. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER VII John grew very sober. "Why, what's the big idea, Pat?" he asked. "Just what I say," answered Forbes. "I'm thirty-three years old, I've been married nine years and I've got three kids. I'm getting fed up. Marian's all right, I guess, but she doesn't interest me any more. I tell you, John, if I were your wife, I'd be getting out of here."

The next morning, as he was taking leave of Marian Forbes, John noticed how fond Pat seemed to be of the children, making quite a ceremony of perpetual amusement to John. Graham seemed to annoy, but John was delighted at Briggs' loud suit and the ever-present flower in his button hole. Sometimes it was a pansy; at others it would be a carnation or a rose, and once in awhile there would be an "occasion" and Briggs would blossom out with the most outlandish looking bouquet imaginable.

John took Briggs part of the way home in his car at quitting time that day and Fay, met him at the door. "What's this," she asked him, "you told Mrs. Bixby about the baby?" "What's wrong now?" he demanded loudly, and Fay put a finger on his lip. "Sh-h-h! She'll hear you. You know she's never far from that window."

"I don't care if she does hear me, the old hen! What did she say this time?" "Why, Mrs. Sanderson was in this afternoon, and spoke of Mrs. Bixby having said that you told her Judith was an extraordinary baby. It seems that you were the proudest papa that ever lived. It's all over the neighborhood."

"Damn!" he exclaimed. "Isn't that just like that old busybody?" "Hush, John, you mustn't give way to your temper like that." "I don't care! The literal-minded old biddy! Of course, I told her it was an extraordinary baby. Anybody with sense would have realized that I was being sarcastic. I knocked her off her feet with a furious description of Judith's brown curls and said something about flat feet."

"Judith's feet are not flat," interrupted Fay. "Well, maybe they're not, but they looked flat. Anyway—" "All babies have funny looking feet when they're born."

"All right. All right. Let it go at that. Anyway, I threw in the little part about the flat feet just to show Old Lady Bixby that I didn't have a swell ed head. And it seems," he added bitterly, "that the only thing she understood was the part about the extraordinary child." Next time I talk to her I'll bring along a pencil and paper ness that set the boy back on his heels nearly every time he caught on. Geoffrey complained once or twice. "Goah, you're stinging me up."

"Well," said the heartless John, "you have to get used to them if you want to be a big league catcher." He felt somehow that he was getting revenge on Geoffrey's mother.

On the way back Geoffrey's left hand was as red as a piece of steak, but John, when he went in the house and flopped down on the davenport, said, "I'll but I suffer more than Geoffrey does. My arm will be sore as a boil tomorrow morning."

Several afternoons later John came home early and he and Fay went house hunting. There were several more such expeditions during the days that followed, but their search was unrewarded with anything that satisfied Fay.

Once John pointed to a "For Sale" sign and exclaimed, "Now there's a house I like! Bet it isn't too much money, either." But Fay set him down. "It's on the east side of the street," she explained, "and it gets the afternoon sun in the front, and there's no porch."

Another time he waxed enthusiastic, but Fay detected water in the cellar and dampness in the walls. Finally they came upon one that satisfied them both, but when they asked the price they found the best that could be done was $13,000. "Let's buy it anyway," urged John. "What's the use of haggling over $3000?"

"I don't propose to haggle over it," Fay answered. "It's just beyond our means, so we might as well forget it." But every time they set out on their little house hunting pilgrimages Fay invariably went first to the house that was priced at $13,000.

Why don't you keep away from it if we're not going to buy it?" John asked. "I simply can't resist it, John. Maybe at the end of the year we'll be in a position to take it," she was beginning.

"What—and wait all that time in our apartment? Nothing doing. We get a of kissing each one goodby, and his thoughts flashed back to Pat's disparted words the night before. He put them down to a temporary irritation of Pat's.

"I'll bet it's that extraordinary child Geoffrey," John observed sarcastically.

Forbes, immaculately dressed as always, drove him downtown, and John was glad to see that his good humor seemed to have been restored.

The days that followed were busy ones for John, what with the accumulation of work at the office and his twice-daily visits to Fay. The day preceding Fay's scheduled return home he installed the housekeeper in their apartment and confused the good woman with a mass of instructions, most of which were entirely unnecessary and some of which, had the woman had little enough sense to follow them, would have been entirely the wrong thing to do.

The day Fay left the hospital John took the morning off and drove her and the baby home in the Ford coupe. He hustled about, making numerous trips to the drug store and grocery and getting himself in the way every time Fay and the housekeeper made a move.

Finally Fay banished him. "Get out of here, John," she laughed, "you're becoming a nuisance." "Tity a man can't stay in his own house," he grumbled. "Where's the baby? I want to kiss her goodby."

"You'll do nothing of the kind. She's asleep, and I'll not have her disturbed." "I won't wake her up."

"Indeed you'll not! I won't let you in. Go on, get out of here," she ordered, smiling. "Just you wait. The day will come when you'll be mighty glad when she does consent to go to sleep. You'll see; she'll be awake at two o'clock tomorrow morning, demanding something to eat. He'll get tired of hearing her cry soon enough, won't he, Mrs. Pettibone?"

The housekeeper smiled. "Indeed, he will," she answered, and went on peeling potatoes. As he went out the front door, John called back over his shoulder, "All right, throw me out. You'll be sorry some day." He closed the door behind him and beheld Mrs. Bixby looking at him in surprise from her post at the window.

and draw pictures." Fay laughed. "Well, it serves you right for saying Judith had flat feet. Come on, dear, dinner's ready."

They had barely sat down when the door bell rang and Mrs. Pettibone went to answer it.

"I'll bet it's that extraordinary child, Geoffrey," John observed sarcastically, pausing in the act of helping Fay. "Probably wanting to play catch again."

From the front door came the sound of a young boy's voice at that uncertain stage when it ranges from a shrill treble to a profound basso in the middle of a word. The voice of a boy at the "growing" age.

"Lord!" groaned John. "What did I tell you?" Mrs. Pettibone came in. "It's a boy wanting to know if Mr. Milburn will play ball with him."

Fay said, "Now don't be cruel, John. You really haven't played with him for quite a while."

"Tell him," John directed the housekeeper, "that I'll be right out after dinner."

He turned once more to his food. "I'd like to play ball with Geoffrey's mother. If I get her hands, all right." His wife laughed violently. "What an imagination!" she uttered, shaking with laughter. "The picture of you playing ball with Mrs. Bixby is simply too funny for words!"

house and get it soon." The next day Nat Graham left town, on a wild chance, he explained to John, that he might be able to "do something with the Milltown tool people."

That night Fay, after dinner had been cleared away, said, "I declare, I'm almost ready to give up looking for a house."

"You won't be happy unless you buy the one we liked, will you?" "You know why," she was beginning, but the telephone rang and John went to answer it. An eager light sprang to his eyes as he listened, and he came back to Fay burning with excitement.

"That was Nat Graham," he explained. "He's in Milltown. Says there's a chance of landing the advertising of the Milltown Tool Company and for me to come down there and help him on a survey."

VACATION SEASON

It's time of the annual vacation season. The closing of the schools has turned pupils out for at least three months of release from school work. Many of them will begin work at some occupation during the summer; others will spend their time loafing. If the boy or girl is given some work he will learn something about it and will avoid that idleness that is the root of all evil. Vacation time means different things to different individuals. To the man reared in town it means fishing trips, picnics, entertainments and other items. To the farmer it usually means "trippers," a form of pest that seems to be rapidly increasing. These trippers, who go to the country to picnic often destroy the shrubbery and trees, take fruit, deplete the melon patch, and leave a heap of rubbish on the land.—Sweetwater Reporter.

Although death is inevitable to all, it is bad taste to think of it, and bad manners to speak of it to others excepting when necessary. Nobody has a definite lease on life, and the child has no assurance that it will outlive its great-grand-father.

Mocking Bird Is Choice Of Texas For Honor Bird

HOUSTON, May 24. (AP)—Sentiment in Texas is rapidly crystallizing to have the mocking bird declared the state bird of Texas when the legislature convenes in regular session, the Outdoor Nature club of Houston has announced in a bulletin.

The club points out that objections in some quarters to having the mocking bird designated as the state bird of Texas because the songster has been chosen by other states, has no bearing, inasmuch as numerous states have the same state flower. The bulletin names, as an example, Louisiana and Mississippi, both having the magnolia as the state flower, and declares that less than four states have selected the pilot.

The scissor-tailed fly catcher has been advanced as a state bird, but the bulletin points out that this bird, sometimes known as the Texas bird of paradise, lacks the geographical range claimed for the singer. The scissor-tail is a mute.

Claims advanced for the cardinal or red bird are derided by the bulletin because of its shyness and comparative rarity. The English sparrow is ruled out of the running "for obvious reasons."

The Outdoor Nature club, while favoring the mocking bird, professes its willingness to abide by the results of the legislature's decision, but pleads that all interested persons make known their views before the bill is up for enactment.

DAN MOODY PICKS UP GAUNTLET FLUNG DOWN BY FERGUSONS AND ACCEPTS CHALLENGE GIVEN HIM

ATTORNEY GENERAL TELLS CHEERING CROWD THAT HE WILL USE ANY HONORABLE METHOD TO RID TEXAS OF 'FERGUSONISM'

(By The Associated Press.)
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 24. (AP)—Facing more than 4,000 cheering voters of Southwest Texas from the stage of the Municipal auditorium here Saturday night, Dan Moody unreservedly and over the telephoned objections of some of his chief advisers, accepted the challenge of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, made earlier in the day at Sulphur Springs, that either the Governor or the Attorney General would resign after the first primary, July 24. She said she would quit if he (Moody) received one more vote than she does, provided Moody would resign if she gets 25,000 more ballots than are counted for Moody.
But Moody distinctly disavowed his belief that the public offices of Texas are to be waged away by a candidate or group of candidates, declaring he is so eager to see the state rid of "Fergusonism" that he will use any honorable means to get the Fergusonism out of office, even a day ahead of the time scheduled for the end of the administration next January. His decision, it was agreed, makes it a question of touch and go—of Moody on one side and Ferguson on the other with the State sure to be rid of one of them shortly after the date of the first primary election. It was the first political speech ever made in San Antonio's great convention hall.
Brings Copy of Challenge.
Moody brought with him to the meeting a copy of an afternoon newspaper containing the challenge of the Fergusonism.
Following his introduction by Judge S. J. Brooks of San Antonio, and payment of his compliments to the traditions of San Antonio, Moody picked up the newspaper and read the Fergusonism statement.
"I assume that the statement is a correct one," he began. "It was contained in the advance copies of Mrs. Ferguson's speech as written by Jim and it will be answered here and now. At the outset, I want to say that the public offices of Texas are not to be waged away, or bartered away, or otherwise disposed of than is provided in the constitution and in the popular will.

"But, I say to you, this campaign is an issue between Fergusonism and the rights of the people between honesty and integrity; between Jim Ferguson and those of us who don't agree with his dictatorship and his ideas of government, and so eager am I to rid Texas of the whole outfit and everything they stand for and represent, that I accept the challenge issued by Jim in his wife's name. It draws the line sharper than ever. It makes unnecessary and impossible to discuss anything else than Fergusonism; it assures the state of a short, quick and decisive engagement with a final result on the night of July 24."
True dignity of character is never attained by place and power, and cannot be lost by absence from it.

would have to gamble away the estate of widows and orphans entrusted to them by a dead friend or relative."
In his acceptance of "Ma's" challenge Moody explained: "I want to say that the public offices of Texas are not to be bartered or bartered away or otherwise disposed of than is provided in the constitution and the popular will. I believe this campaign is an issue between Fergusonism and the rights of the people. So eager am I to rid Texas of everything they stand for, that I accept the challenge issued by Jim Ferguson in his wife's name."
If Mrs. Ferguson wins the wager, Davidson said in his statement, she will win double by keeping the office of governor and the right to name an attorney general, who would serve six months—long enough to dismiss some troublesome road suits.
Davidson censured the attorney general for entering into a "bet with Jim Ferguson" after having proclaimed in his San Antonio address that the issue was "Fergusonism against the rights of the people." The only honorable course, left to Moody, Davidson asserted is to withdraw from the gubernatorial race.
