Odessa hostage situation ends peacefully

Lori Holland, at left of right photo, sister of an armed Odessa man who held police at bay while cloistered with his children Friday, loads her nephew into an Odessa police vehicle. A second sibling looks out from the back seat while Lt. Vic Crumrine holds a door open after the children's release about 6:30 p.m. The four siblings, including a boy carried by Sgt. Milton Tharp, above, were taken to the Odessa Police Department and turned over to the Department of Human Services.

ODESSA — A 25-year-old father, who spent several hours Friday threatening to kill his four young children and himself because of apparent domestic problems, peacefully surrendered to police about 6:30 p.m.

Immediately after heavily armed, masked and camouflage-garbed SWAT team members had moved in to surround the small house at 602 W. 34th St., a police officer at the scene notified other officers that "he threw something out."

Then, police spokesman Cpl. John McAhon announced that officers had Tod Hudson in custody and Odessa Fire Department paramedics were in the home examining his children, 10-month-old Matthew, two-year-old Charles, Tabitha, 3, and Lacey, 5.

Members of the SWAT team and paramedics emerged from the house carrying the four crying children.

The siblings continued to fuss and cry as they were placed in police cars and transported to the Police Department's Juvenile Division. Officers at the downtown location quickly opened up a "playroom" where toys are kept for children and the four were soon playing contentedly.

Hudson and his wife Jeanie, 24, were closeted with a counselor, during that time, according to Deputy Police Chief Jim Dodson, who was trying to help the couple resolve their problems.

Shortly before 10 p.m. Friday the children were released to the temporary custody of the Department of Human Services. According to McAhon, no charges will be filed against the man.

The hostage situation, that drew about 50 Odessa police officers, began shortly after 11 a.m. Friday when representatives from the DHS' Children's Services Division went to the Hudson home to check the welfare of the children at the request of his Mrs. Hudson.

The Children's Services representatives requested what McAhon called "a civil standby" from police. No one answered the door for nearly 45 minutes, according to McAhon.

When a man finally answered the door he "refused to release the children" and became "resentful and threatening," McAhon said.

As the situation became increasingly confrontational, the man produced what Patrol Cpl. Cliff Blackstock said appeared to be a small caliber semi-automatic pistol and threatened to kill the children and himself if any further contact was attempted by the Children's Services people or police.

Cahoon testifies for student loan program

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposal to discontinue the student loan program at the Higher Education Coordinating Board would "amount to breaking faith with generations of Texas students," the state higher education commissioner said Friday.

Even if a replacement loan program was set up elsewhere, Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth told the Texas Sunset Advisory Commission, it could not offer students the same low interest rate as the Hinson-Hazlewood College Student Loan Program.

Board Chairman Hal Daugherty of El Paso and board members Regina Rogers of Houston and Frank Cahoon of Midland also testified in favor of keeping the program. It was established after voters in 1965 approved a constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds to finance it.

"It is a program that is needed more today than when it was created by Texas voters more than 20 years ago," Ashworth said. The program has provided loans to about 161,000 low-income students — about half of whom are black or Hispanic, he said.

C&W buffs pour out beer along with soul

PHOENIX (AP) — Drinkers in country-Western bars pour their alcohol down faster to "wailing, lonesome, self-pitying music," and patrons tend to step up the action when the music picks up the pace, a researchers says.

And despite laws to the contrary, bartenders continue to serve patrons they believe to be drunk, James Schaefer of the University of Minnesota told the American Anthropological Association meeting here.

The findings came from a 10-year study by Schaefer and a team of other anthropologists of a bar in Missoula, Mont., a lumber- and paper-milling town. It was supplemented by study of about 2,000 groups of one to nine people in 65 similar saloons in the Minneapolis area over the past three years.

Schaefer even wrote a country-Western song on the subject, beginning:

"Joe, don't play that slow country music.

"I drink more, and think sore, and sing right along..."

"No doubt about it," Schaefer said Thursday. "Country and Western can be a prescription for trouble among people with little self-control."

One reason, he said, is the lyrics: sad songs about lost love, personal freedom, truck driving and the solace of drinking.

The songs and lyrics of Hank Williams, Jimmy Rodgers, Jerry Lee Lewis, Johnny Cash, Merle Haggard, Jerry Jeff Walker, Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings were particularly powerful drinking inducements, Schaefer found.

Their songs celebrate heavy drinking by making heroes out of drunkards, he added.

In contrast, he said, "rock 'n' roll singers don't glorify anything or anyone" and their music doesn't seem to have the same effect.

But in the country-Western bars, "slower music went with faster drinking," Schaefer said. "Hard drinkers prefer listening to slower-paced, wailing, lonesome, self-pitying music generally during slow times in the bar.

"They seemed to prefer bold, macho, strong-beat-based music when the action scene in the bar picks up."

Runaway train narrowly misses three police cars in Midland

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

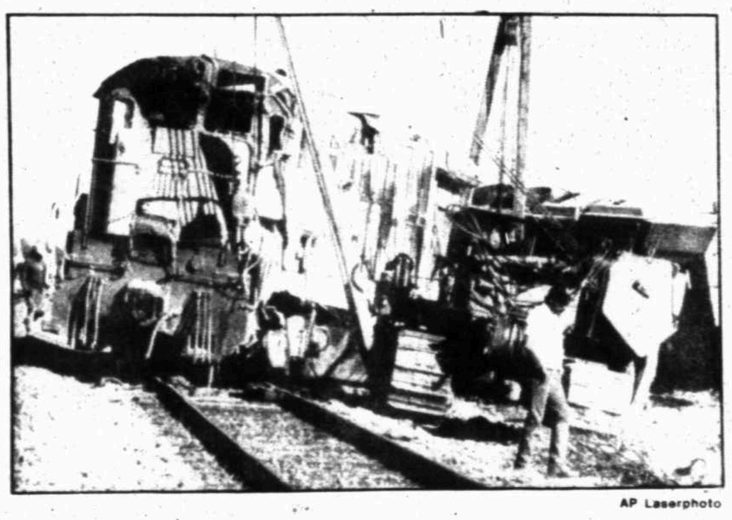

A runaway train that hurtled more than 200 miles through West Texas Friday narrowly missed a trio of police patrol cars at a downtown Midland railroad crossing.

The three out-of-control Union Pacific locomotives were traveling 67 mph when they roared by the crossing at the intersection of Front and Main streets at 1:35 a.m., police Officer Charles Hall said.

"Ten feet before we got to the crossing, that train busted through the intersection," Hall recalled. "I grabbed a radar I had on the seat and clocked it. It was going so fast, it was already a half-block past the intersection before the warning lights at the crossing came on."

The 200-ton diesel locomotives were idling at the Big Spring yard about midnight Friday when someone climbed aboard the lead engine and pushed a throttle forward, Union Pacific spokesman Alex Tice said from the company's Omaha, Neb., headquarters.

Picking up speed, the train ran through two switches and onto the main track in Big Spring, Tice said.

Union Pacific crews work to put three locomotives back on the track Friday afternoon near Van Horn.

Ninety minutes later, with no headlight and no cars attached to slow it down, the hulking three-machine convoy rapidly approached the eastern edge of Midland.

Hall arrested a suspected drunk driver south of the railroad crossing just after 1 a.m., he said. When the suspect became unruly, Hall radioed for help.

Justice Department comes to North's defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department came to Oliver L. North's defense Friday by challenging the Iran-Contra prosecutor's argument that the former presidential aide undermined Congress' foreign-affairs authority.

In a friend-of-the-court brief filed in federal court, the department attacked independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh's theory that North and three co-defendants obstructed congressional oversight "through deceit and concealment" of their clandestine support of the Nicaraguan rebels, known as Contras.

The department said it "does not seek to argue for or against the dismissal" of the conspiracy count charging that North, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and two arms dealers defrauded the government by illegally diverting U.S.-Iran arms-sale profits to the Contras.

But the department disputed Walsh's theory that the Iran-Contra defendants can be prosecuted for deceiving Congress about the clandestine arms-supply operation set up to help the Contras at a time when the so-called Boland Amendments banned U.S. military aide to the rebels.

"This case, in fact, arises in the context of a profound policy dispute between the executive and legislative branches with respect to foreign affairs," the department said, echoing statements by North and his lawyers.

"A prosecutor acting in the midst of such a dispute must exercise great caution — first, to distinguish violations of law from policy disagreements which are the expected and natural by-product of separated powers, and to make certain that the laws are applied consistently with the scope of the president's substantial constitutional authority in the area of foreign affairs."

Assistant Attorneys General Edward S.G. Dennis Jr., head of the criminal division, and Douglas W. Kmiec, from the office of legal counsel, said Walsh's position "does not demonstrate sufficient caution in either respect."

Dennis said the Justice Department's position, if accepted by the court, would "not necessarily" result in dismissal of allegations in the indictment's first count that the defendants covertly gave military aid to the Contras.

"Clearly, count one can stand even if the judge takes all of our arguments and credits them," Dennis told reporters. But adoption of the department's position "may narrow the scope of it somewhat."

WEATHER SUMMARY

Cold sweeps back into Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Much colder temperatures and gusty winds are expected in the Permian Basin this weekend, according to National Weather Service forecasters at Midland International Airport.

Blowing dust should be visible in the Midland area by noon, as winds are expected to be from the north to northeast 10 to 20 mph, then increase from 20 to 35 mph and gusty. A high wind advisory is in effect for Saturday. The high will be near 50, with a 20 percent chance of showers expected.

Saturday night should be clear with diminishing winds and a low expected in the upper 20s.

Sunday will be sunny with a high in the low 50s, forecasters say.

Friday's high of 79 was just four degrees cooler than the record high for the date, which was set in 1950. The record low for the date of 23, which was set just last year, was 17 degrees cooler than Friday's low of 40.

STATE

A winter warning was issued for most of the Texas Panhandle for late Friday night and Saturday, as possibly heavy snow was expected.

And a snow advisory was in effect for the same period for the northwest sections of the South Plains, where rain mixed with snow was possible, the National Weather Service reported.

In other parts of the state, showers and thunderstorms were scattered over Northeast Texas Friday, while Southeast Texas and parts of the coast also got isolated showers.

It was mostly sunny over the High Plains, Permian Basin, Trans-Pecos and South Texas, the National Weather Service reported. The rest of the state had mostly cloudy skies.

Strong southwest winds at 25 mph with gusts to 35 mph produced blowing dust in far West Texas. It was also gusting to near 45 mph from the southwest in some of the mountains passes in the Trans-Pecos, the weather service said. But most of Texas had southerly winds, usually from 10 to 20 mph.

Mid-afternoon temperatures were in the 80s along the Coastal Plains, while 60s and 70s were common elsewhere. The exception was the Panhandle, which had readings in the 50s.

High temperature extremes were 54 degrees at Dalhart in the Panhandle and 89 at McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

NATION

Up to 11 inches of snow fell in parts of the Southwest Friday, and rain and thunderstorms increased over Arkansas and the Mississippi Valley as southerly winds continued bringing moisture from the Gulf of Mexico.

Crested Butte, Colo., reported 11 inches of new snow overnight, and 5 inches fell at the south rim of the Grand Canyon in Arizona.

And they use the music as a "mood-selection device" — picking out three or four songs on a jukebox, he said, explaining that the music maintains "the normative flow of emotions and the rhythm of activity — sort of like the sound track in a movie."

"As the mood and tempo of the songs filtered through the bar, key actors could be seen changing the level and intensity of their drinking activity," said Schaefer, who heads his university's drug- and alcohol-abuse program.

"They might order another drink, drink more rapidly, initiate a contact, shout out a challenge, move about, tip their hat in a more rowdy angle or use other subtle body language to evoke a response from others in their drinking set," he said.

The team's survey of 89 bartenders and waitresses found "the bar staffs in most places were perceptive, but they kept serving drinks anyway," even though they believed 60 percent of their patrons were drunk, he said.

And he reached some conclusions.

"Drinkers need to learn how to drink smarter," he said. "Bar owners need to learn that having a clear alcohol policy leads to better professional service. Licensing authorities need to hold bars more accountable.

"I don't think this warrants a surgeon general's warning or anything," he added. "But people should be aware that they are more likely to lose their control and self-restraint in a country and Western bar than anywhere else."

NORTH

The department said Walsh had overstated Congress' power to regulate the conduct of foreign affairs and covert intelligence operations.

"The president has plenary power which Congress cannot invade to conduct diplomacy, including covert diplomacy that seeks support (including financial contributions) for the foreign policy he articulates on behalf of the nation," the department said.

"The protection of diplomatic and intelligence secrets is also a core executive power," it said.

The department also appeared to be joining North in attacking the constitutionality of the so-called Boland Amendments enacted by Congress that banned direct U.S. military aid to the Contras.

"Congress cannot through its appropriations or other powers invade any sphere of constitutional authority granted exclusively to the president."

The department said it did not disagree with Walsh's legal argument that the defendants may have defrauded President Reagan by corrupting the arms-for-hostages deals.

But the department, invoking the doctrine of executive privilege, said the conspiracy charge cannot be applied to efforts by North and Poindexter to hide from Congress their efforts to arm the Contras when lawmakers had specifically banned such assistance.

"Because of the doctrine of executive privilege and the president's inherent foreign affairs authority, Congress' authority to compel disclosure of information concerning covert activity is necessarily subject to formidable constitutional limitations."

Nor can Congress "prohibit the president and his subordinates from exercising the president's authority to engage in diplomacy or to exercise covert influence in the realm of external affairs," the department said.

"It is not clear to us in reading the filing of the independent counsel how the independent counsel would apply the Boland Amendment in light of constitutional principles and the president's foreign affairs authority," Kmiec told reporters.

"Only after much anguish and with great reluctance did we decide that we had to correct...the statement of those principles," he said.

TRAIN

Officer Rocky Derouen and Midland County Sheriff's Deputy Richard Gillette responded to Hall's call, and the man was restrained. The three officers were approaching the crossing on their way to the city jail on Texas Street when they heard the train rumbling toward them.

"It's a wonder some drunk didn't pull right in front of that train," Hall said.

"I was thinking I was about to get off duty," said Gillette, a former switchman and brakeman for the Santa Fe Railroad. "Then it just blew through the crossing. All you could see was one flashing yellow light. I tried to chase it, and drove westbound on Front Street as fast as I could go, trying to get an engine number.

"I never could catch up with it."

Railroad officials were not notified of the runaway train, which reached speeds up to 80 mph, until the near-collision in Midland, Tice said. Law officers west of Midland were notified of the speeding train by railroad officials.

"When I first heard about it, I thought somebody was pulling a joke," said Gary Ingram of the Reeves County Sheriff's Department. "I told them I might saddle my horse and try to run it down, but I didn't think it could run that fast.

"They didn't find a whole lot of humor in that."

Ingram watched the train pass about 1½ miles south of his ranch in Toyah, 20 miles west of Pecos.

At times, the locomotives were rolling at 80 mph, Tice said.

The train finally was derailed after it was switched to a side track at Wild Horse Siding, about 20 miles east of Van Horn and 125 miles east of El Paso. The runaway engines ran into a barricade of 27 parked boxcars.

"The only person around was a track inspector who threw the switch and I doubt if he was near the derailment," Tice said. "I assume he threw the switch and got out of there."

The lead locomotive was overturned by the collision, but the others remained upright, Tice said.

He said an investigation into the incident was underway Friday, but defended the railroad's role.

"The engines were idling at the time, which is not uncommon," he said. "If you went in there and fooled around long enough, there is some information on the control stand that would allow you to get the thing moving.

"Whether it was done on purpose or by accident we don't know, but when it was derailed and inspected we found the throttle full and the brakes released."

The spokesman said that by late Friday no violations of company procedures had been found.

"That yard is open enough that if someone really wanted to get in there, they could do it," he said.

Although it traveled over 200 miles, Tice said the train was stopped as soon as was possible.

"We would have liked to have stopped it earlier, but from the information we were getting and the amount of time we had, we didn't want to chase it," he said.

"We wanted to get ahead of it. The track maintainer had already set the switches at the Wild Horse siding and was heading for the next switching east when the train passed him."

In a break from company procedure, Union Pacific is offering a $25,000 cash reward to anyone who can supply information that leads to the arrest of those responsible for Friday's incident.

"We've never really had anything like this before," said Tice. "We regard it as a fairly serious incident."

Big Spring and Howard County authorities are assisting in the investigation, he said.

Big Spring Police Chief Joe Cook — who noted Union Pacific officials were "crawling" all over the railroad yard Friday — said his department was involved because state theft statutes were violated.

"There are possibly some federal violations there also, and we are talking with the FBI," Cook said.

Tice was thankful the locomotives sped over 214 miles without causing an injury.

"It couldn't have happened at a better time," he said. "The line was clear, and there wasn't much traffic out at that time of night."

LOAN

The sunset commission, which is considering staff recommendations on the Coordinating Board, will not vote on the issue until next month. One of the proposals would discontinue the loan program, sell its assets and give additional authority to the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Corp.

By expanding the corporation's authority, the state could "ensure that loans not available in the private sector continue to be available to students in need," the staff report said.

There are currently more than 242,000 guaranteed student loans by commercial lenders, making up about 95 percent of the money lent, the staff said. If Hinson-Hazlewood is dismantled, it said, the corporation should be authorized to issue tax-exempt revenue bonds to finance loans should commercial lenders no longer do so.

The Hinson-Hazlewood loan portfolio could be worth $102 million if sold, and the money used to meet other student needs, the report said.

"We think it would be false economy to take a program built up by the students and sell it off in order to provide funds for highways or prisons, and then create a new loan program that would cost the students more to borrow from than the one they have already spent 20 years establishing," Ashworth said.

HOSTAGE

Blackstock and the Children's Services representatives withdrew and Blackstock called for backup; eight units responded to his call.

The situation apparently escalated from an earlier domestic dispute which prompted the wife to seek refuge at a local battered women's shelter.

An earlier police report showed officers responded about 6 a.m. Friday to a disturbance call involving family violence in the 3300-block of North Jackson.

The investigating officer stated that Mrs. Hudson and her husband "had an argument." The report noted, however, there were "no injuries reported."

The police department's hostage negotiation team, headed by Deputy Chief Dodson, along with the SWAT team, arrived on the scene around 1 p.m. and immediately tried to establish contact with Hudson once they set up headquarters in a nearby home. However, Hudson refused to talk to them.

About 2:15 p.m., officers hooked up a phone with a long cable and Hudson was finally persuaded to allow an officer to go to the front door of the small home to give him the phone, McAhon said.

Negotiators, which included Dodson, contacted Hudson and encouraged him to talk, "allowing him to vent his feelings," the police spokesman said.

Dodson, police Chaplain George Golden and other negotiators continued contact with the man, mostly listening. About 4:05 p.m., McAhon said, Hudson said he was thirsty and wanted some cigarettes. He allowed an officer to bring him tobacco and something to drink.

Efforts by negotiators to defuse the situation continued, with Hudson still refusing to release the children at 5:15 p.m. The tense situation continued for more than an hour until negotiators finally persuaded Hudson let the children go and surrender to officers.

Legendary gossip columnist dies

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sheilah Graham, the legendary Hollywood gossip columnist who with Louella Parsons and Hedda Hopper formed what came to be known as the "Unholy Trio," has died in a hospital here.

Her daughter said she was 84.

"She's the last of the Big Three," her friend and former editor Mike Kaplan said Friday. "Of the three of them, she was the most tenacious," said Kaplan, who edited her work at the Variety weekly from 1952 to 1955.

A spokesman at E. Earl Smith and Son Funeral Home in nearby Lake Worth said Graham, who lived in Palm Beach, died Thursday at Good Samaritan Hospital in West Palm Beach.

Graham, born in London's East End, lived a life as controversial as the people she wrote about.

She had a love affair with novelist F. Scott Fitzgerald in the last three years of his life, and once lamented: "I won't be remembered for my writing. I'll be remembered as Scott's mistress."

Fitzgerald died in 1940.

Her autobiography, "Beloved Infidel," was later made into a movie, starring Deborah Kerr and Gregory Peck.

Driven by a childhood of poverty, first in a basement room shared with her mother, then at an orphanage, Graham at the age of 18 married a manufacturing salesman 25 years her senior before trying for careers as a serious actress and a music hall performer.

She also courted the English gentry and managed to get herself presented at Court in 1931.

After settling on journalism, she moved to New York in 1933. Two years later, she got her first assignment in Hollywood.

Graham's survivors include her daughter, Wendy Fairey, son Robert Westbrook, and three grandchildren.

A memorial service was planned in New York in December, her daughter said.

Unlucky thief shot, scolded by elderly woman

HOUSTON (AP) — A car theft suspect was in fair condition Friday, a day after he was shot at by a high school student and scolded by a 74-year-old woman as he tried to elude police.

The suspect, 32, was wounded early Thursday morning during a chase that began when a police officer spotted the man in a car in a known drug-dealing area.

Authorities said the officer was preparing to trace the car's license when it sped off, prompting a five-minute chase through northwest Houston. The man stopped the car — which turned out to be stolen — and then fled on foot through a wooded area before breaking into Jean Johnson's home.

The startled Ms. Johnson said she asked him "to please get out of my house. He said 'No, I need a place to stay because my mother just died.' "

STATE

Ms. Johnson said she called for her 18-year-old son, Bruce, who was asleep in a bedroom. The intruder, meanwhile, spotted her car keys, picked them up and grabbed her.

About that time, her son came down the hallway with a .357-caliber Magnum revolver, saw what was happening and told the man "to turn my mama loose," Ms. Johnson said.

The man started toward the teenager when she told her son to "shoot him." The teen fired at the man as he fled. As he tried to climb a 6-foot fence, Ms. Johnson said, she told her son to shoot him again.

Johnson fired four shots, but the man managed to flee.

"I was afraid he would come back and harm my mother," Johnson said. "I didn't really want to shoot him...I was nervous and scared."

The suspect then broke into Leona Young's home.

When Ms. Young, 74, heard a loud noise at her back door, she thought it was her grandson, who lives next door, she said. She soon was confronted by the suspect.

"He was pleading and begging," Ms. Young said. "He said, Mama, don't let them get me because my mama's dead, and I need a place to stay."

Unmoved, Ms. Young responded, "Why's all that blood coming off you? Get away from my bed." After telling the man he should turn himself in, she walked to her front porch and summoned police who were in the area searching for the suspect.

Officers found the man hiding behind a stove in Ms. Young's home.

In 1979, the man was sentenced to 12 years in the Texas Department of Corrections for burglary of a home. He was paroled in May 1983.

Swaggart ministry's wings clipped

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The ministry of defrocked evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, faced with financial problems following a sex scandal, is selling its jet to a Texas company, according to federal records.

The sale comes at a time when Swaggart's ministry and Bible college are struggling to overcome declining fortunes triggered by Swaggart's encounters with a New Orleans prostitute and his ouster from the Assemblies of God.

The ministry's Grumman Gulfstream II jet has been for sale at a reduced price since the summer, when it was offered in the Wall Street Journal and in at least one aircraft trade journal.

According to records of the Federal Aviation Administration, Tyler Jet Aircraft Sales of Tyler, Texas, is buying the jet at an undisclosed price. Although no selling price was disclosed, a similar plane was on the market recently for $5.25 million.

William Treeby, an attorney for the ministry, said he would try to obtain comment on the sale, but did not call back with an answer.

On Sept. 29, Swaggart put a halt to nearly $13 million in construction projects at the ministry's Baton Rouge complex, shortly after saying the organization was only $50,000 short of being in the black.

Nearly three-fourths of students enrolled at the Jimmy Swaggart Bible College did not return for the current school year. Some employees at the school were laid off or furloughed for the summer, but did not return to work when the new school year began.

AIDS task force to recommend condom sales

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas task force on AIDS agreed Friday to recommend that condoms be made available for sale in state prisons to help stem the spread of the deadly affliction.

The Legislative Task Force on AIDS will probably vote on the proposal today, but panel members already have indicated they are in agreement on the issue.

The panel voted Friday in favor of several sweeping recommendations to address the state's growing AIDS caseload, including a measure that would prohibit discrimination against persons with AIDS in the workplace, housing, education and public accommodations.

Recommendations from the 19-member task force will be forwarded to the Legislature when state lawmakers convene in January.

Task force chairwoman Rev. Chris S. Steele of Houston said the anti-discrimination measure will ensure that people with AIDS will have access to the services they need.

"Until we can get it across to our society that discrimination against people with AIDS is a tremendous health hazard, in addition to being an inhumane act, we are not going to see any dent in controlling this epidemic," she said.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS, is an affliction in which a virus attacks the body's ability to fight diseases and usually leads to death within 18 months of diagnosis. It is most often transmitted through sexual contact, mostly between homosexual males.

Currently, 5,373 Texans have AIDS and that number is expected to increase to more than 45,000 by 1992, task force officials said.

On the issue of selling condoms in prison, task force members said the proposal would reduce the risk of transmission of AIDS in the prisons.

"The point is to give ample access to condoms," said task force member Judy Reiner of Houston.

Charles Alexander, deputy director for health services for the Texas Department of Corrections, told the task force that condoms currently are not made available in state prisons.

But he added, "It would be naive to think that sexual activity is not taking place," inside prisons.

Alexander said the state already has a contract for condoms at 4.5 cents per condom. These are used at other state agencies for educational purposes and for availability at local health departments, he said.

The task force was unable, however, to devise specific language concerning the availability of condoms in state prisons, but a consensus of the panel showed they agreed the measure should be proposed to the Legislature.

Task force member Ray Farabee said the word condoms should be dropped from the proposal and replaced with "risk reduction materials."

Pie makers squeal over secret recipe

New York Times News Service

A dispute over pork pies is heating up in southeastern Massachusetts, an area noted more for its textile mills and fishermen.

At issue is which of two purveyors inherited a secret recipe for English pork pie brought to the area in 1900 by Thomas Hartley, an English immigrant.

"We use only the original Hartley recipe," said Donald Setters, the owner of Hartley's Pork Pies, of Somerset, Mass. "There's nothing else like it made by any other company."

At Hartley's Original Pork Pies of Fall River, Allen C. Johnson, the owner, said: "I have a signed affidavit from the Hartleys that I have the original recipe."

One thing the pies have in common is that people come from around the country to buy them.

A group that calls itself "Pork Pie Lovers United" visits Setters's store twice a year from South Carolina with special refrigerated suitcases. Johnson says many of his regular customers come from New York and from Boston, 50 miles north.

The rival pies look about the same: muffin-sized and yellow, with a hard crust enveloping seasoned pork and broth.

Setters's version, at $1.10, is a dime more expensive than Johnson's. Both bakers say they use antique English equipment and the recipe that Thomas Hartley never wrote down.

Hartley passed his pie business to his sons and grandsons, one of whom opened the Somerset branch in 1959. That grandson sold his business to the Setters family, while another Hartley relative sold the Fall River store that now belongs to Johnson.

"My crust is better," Johnson said. "I would say you have to taste the difference."

His Fall River store offers a variety of pies, including ones with salmon and chicken.

Setters, who sells only pork pies, said he had sampled the competition only once, a long time back.

"My customers say the crust is not as crunchy, the pie is drier, not as juicy as mine," he said. "People like my pie better." He recommends it as a main dish, eaten with mashed potatoes or baked beans.

Yellowstone forest fires to have no lasting effects

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Now that the smoke has cleared, Park Service officials are stating that the forest fires that swept through Yellowstone last summer will have no long-range ill effects on the park's environment and wildlife.

While it was undoubtedly a crisis, they say, the fire will actually enhance the park's ecology.

Preliminary inspections made from the air and on the ground indicate that the damage was less severe than believed while the fires were still raging, the officials said.

No grizzly bears were known to have died in the fire.

Four out of 2,500 bison in the park died, and 250 out of 35,000 elk.

Meanwhile, the Park Service officials report, from 50,000 to a million lodgepole pine seeds are now germinating in each acre of lodgepole forest burned.

Pinegrass, fireweed, sticky geranium and other wildflowers are already coming back.

According to Park Service estimates, the nutrients released into the soil from the fire mean there will be 30 percent more vegetation in the park.

Thus, the agency's officials continue to maintain, fire, even the lamentably uncontrolled fire of 1988, is good for the park.

Or is it?

Several naturalists insist that it is still too early to tell what the impact of the fire will be.

But, they say, there are indications that its effects on some plants and animals will be substantial.

Dr. Frank Craighead, an ecologist who has studied Yellowstone's population of 200 to 250 grizzly bears, said that while some of the animals may find enough food from the carcasses of wildlife burned in the fire, it is entirely possible that many of them will go into hibernation this winter without sufficient stores of fat.

"Some may have problems when they come out of hibernation and that could cause them to wander farther in search of food, increasing their chance of contact with humans," he said.

But Craighead conceded that the long-term prospects for the park's grizzly population were not diminished by the fire and may have been enhanced because berry bushes and other vegetation eaten by the bears will grow in greater profusion.

Some elk herds, however, will have difficulty finding sufficient forage this winter, he said.

In addition, Craighead said, smaller mammals like pine martins, chipmunks and ground nesting birds, which were forced onto small islands of unscathed land, will be easier targets for hawks, owls, coyotes and other carnivores.

He also said that the white bark pine, which produces nuts eaten by bears and other animals, will be much diminished.

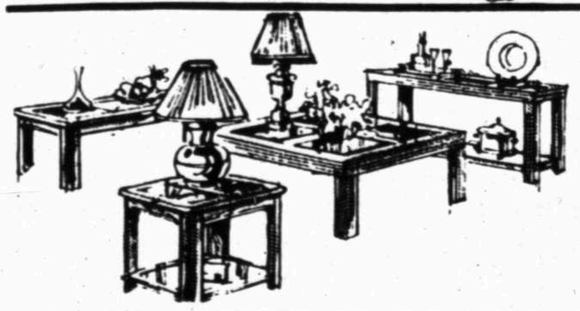

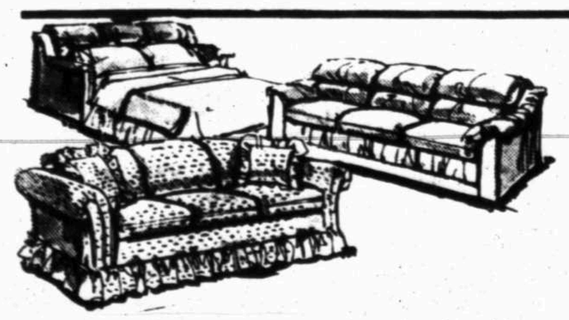

"It's nice to think about having everything natural and similar to pre-Columbian times in Yellowstone," said Craighead.

"In fact, man himself has long been part of that environment and there is no way to separate him from that environment."

Toy cars help officer motor through testimony

By JOHN MITCHELL

FREEPORT, Texas (AP) — When the finer points of his occupational specialty require further study, Police Officer Paul Leach opens the box of metal toy cars and begins to play.

"I know it looks childish," Leach said, laughing. "My kids say 'Daddy, can we play with them when you're done?'"

Through their juvenile exterior, the mite-sized vehicles illustrate a growing trend in law enforcement of which Leach, 37, recently became a part.

With two hefty handfuls of equipment that include a calculator, plumb bob, video camera and his Matchbox racers, Leach is able to reconstruct the scene of an automobile accident. It is an unloved art form that takes a good amount of physics and detective work to do right, he said.

"It's boring and brings lots of complaints, that's why people don't like it," Leach said. "I love math."

Though some Department of Public Safety troopers have similar training and all city officers learn the basics, Police Chief Charles Bankston said Leach is the only one in southern Brazoria County certified as an accident reconstructionist.

The toys are used to play with different scenarios. By tying the back wheels or pushing the cars down a wooden ramp, Police Officer Paul Leach said it becomes easier to get a feel for what really might have happened during a crash.

"He's good at it," Bankston said. "He's studied it hard."

He added that it was an aspect of police work expected to become more important in the future.

"Accidents have become so complicated these days," Bankston said. "Somebody needs to know how to do it."

To gain his certification, Leach took 140 hours of investigation classes and did well enough to be invited to the advanced school at Texas A&M University along with about 20 others from across the state, he said.

It was an opportunity the city's traffic enforcement officer couldn't refuse, one he has worked toward since he began in the profession 13 years ago.

Leach said he would talk with longtime state patrolmen, who utilized car damage, skidmarks, momentum, drag factors and rotational energy in their investigations.

"You started finding out there may be more to an accident than meets the eye," he said. "It's a combination of all these things that make it tick."

Learning the basics of the subject piqued his interest.

"I got the bug," Leach said. "I thought here was an opportunity to better myself."

He has since traveled back to College Station for lessons on braking systems and crush measurements, and hopes to learn more about the field through additional training.

The education has been extensive enough to gain him membership in the Texas Association of Accident Reconstruction Specialists.

On an accident investigation scene, he will normally arrive with about $1,800 in equipment. Leach purchased all of it himself, as a way of preparing for possible future work for an attorney or as a teacher outside of law enforcement.

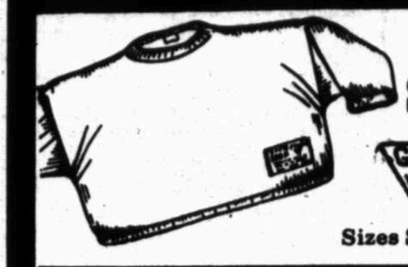

Calculations and use of the materials depends on the nature of the incident. Leach said answers to some accidents can be arrived at to a near degree, the results of a field where even the shards of a broken headlight studied in a laboratory can help solve the puzzle.

The toys are used to play with different scenarios. By tying the back wheels or pushing the cars down a wooden ramp, Leach said it becomes easier to get a feel for what really might have happened during a crash.

Most smaller cities do not do reconstruction work except when serious injuries or death result, and Leach said he hasn't had many opportunities yet to use the certification, which enables him to be recognized as an expert witness in court.

Three die in gunbattle

SAN AUGUSTINE (AP) — Three people died in a gunbattle that erupted when a 60-year-old man surprised his wife and another man Friday afternoon at a rural community about 12 miles west of San Augustine, authorities said.

San Augustine County Sheriff N.L. Tindall identified the victims as Henry Sowell, his 24-year-old wife, Lucille Sowell, and Jose Angel Rodriguez, of San Augustine. No age was available for Rodriguez.

A spokesman from San Augustine Memorial Hospital said Mrs. Sowell and Rodriguez were in a "compromising position" when Sowell entered the residence about 2:30 p.m.

Tindall said Sowell opened fire on his wife and Rodriguez with a shotgun.

Investigators said Rodriguez returned fire with a .38-caliber pistol, hitting Sowell five times in his upper body.

Mrs. Sowell suffered shotgun wounds in her back under the left shoulder. Rodriguez died of shotgun wounds to his chest. She was found in a pickup truck with Rodriguez, who already was dead, and was taken to San Augustine Memorial Hospital where she later died of her injuries.

Sowell, who was found in a car, also died of gunshot wounds at the hospital.

2 die in small-plane crash

FORT WORTH (AP) — Two people were killed Friday when their Cessna 150 crashed on a highway near Meacham Field, said a Federal Aviation Administration official.

The plane crashed on U.S. Highway 287, blocking at least one lane near the intersection of Farm Road 156 about 6:40 p.m., said FAA duty officer Wayne Beckmann in Fort Worth.

FAA officials said they did not know immediately if any cars had been damaged by the plane as it crashed.

The plane had taken off from Meacham about 40 minutes earlier, Beckmann said.

He did not know the identity of the two people on board, but said the plane was locally based.

Officer tells of drug use

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin police vice officer who was indefinitely suspended after being connected to a federal drug probe told investigators this year he was host at parties where other officers used cocaine, a federal agent testified Thursday.

Jack Derington, special agent with the Drug Enforcement Administration in Austin, told a federal arbitrator James Balagia said in interviews that friends, including other officers, would visit his home "and there was communal use of cocaine."

Balagia, testifying before a Civil Service Commission arbitrator considering his reinstatement, denied he had told the DEA agent of drug use at his home, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

The arbitrator will decide whether there was just cause for Balagia's dismissal. A decision may not come for some time.

Union Pacific official blames human error for derailment

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Union Pacific official says human error apparently is to blame for a freight train derailment in which cars from a side track rolled onto the main line and struck a stationary inbound train.

"There are some indications of human error here," Union Pacific spokesman Alex Tice said Friday from the company's headquarters in Omaha, Neb.

Engineer D.R. Castillo, 42, of San Antonio and brakeman Joe Wheatley, 41, of suburban Helotes, were treated at an area hospital and released, a hospital spokesperson said.

Tice said the accident occurred as 93 cars were being made into a train. He could not confirm how many cars broke free and rolled onto the main track. He said 35 cars were derailed in the accident.

Three engines and 74 cars comprised the inbound train, and 58 of the cars were loaded, mostly with trailers loaded on top of flat cars and auto parts.

"There were no hazardous materials on the cars that derailed," Tice said.

A fire broke out in cars carrying baled paper and cardboard, Bexar County Fire Marshall Carl Mixon said, adding that the products were so tightly bound that the fire was difficult to contain.

Earlier, witnesses said heavy fog that limited visibility might have been partly responsible for the accident, which occurred about 6:35 a.m. CST.

Firefighters from the San Antonio Fire Department and Northwest Volunteers fought the blaze without breathing apparatus, an indication no toxic substances were involved.

The Northwest Volunteers were called when it was determined that the accident occurred outside the San Antonio city limits, fire officials said.

Bingo amendment adopted

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock has adopted emergency amendments to clarify general restrictions on bingo games in Texas.

"This should answer any questions on the spot about whether or not a bingo game is being run fairly," Bullock said in a Friday statement.

The amendments state that winning bingo cards now must be verified by one or more players other than the winner. Players also may ask to see the numbers on bingo balls that remain in the machines.

Nation's median age heading upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-nine, that magic age teetering between youth and maturity, will be the most typical age for Americans early in the next century, according to Census Bureau projections.

Historically a nation of youthful orientation, the United States is now thirty-something, heading upward, the Bureau reports.

Combining to increase the median age of the population are the maturing of the massive post World War II Baby Boom and that generation's relatively low birth rates, which reduce the number of babies to pull down the numbers.

So if present trends continue, census officials expect that half of all Americans will be over the age of 39 by the year 2010, and half younger. The agency's most recent estimate of median age was 31.7, as of 1986.

Whether America will plateau at 39 — as did the late comedian Jack Benny — remains to be seen.

The median age of the country touched 30 for the first time in 1950, then slipped back as the Baby Boom produced a bouncing crop of youngsters to lower the numbers.

It took until the 1980 census to hit 30 again, edged up to 31.7 as of 1986 and is expected to climb to 33 by 1990, 36.5 by 2000 and 39 by the year 2010, according to the new projections from the Census Bureau.

Despite the aging of the population, however, the report anticipates that the so-called dependency ratio will decline.

That ratio is the number of people under 18 and over 65 compared to the number of people of working age in between. The younger and older groups are most likely to "depend" on those working.

The 1986 ratio of 62.2 dependents per 100 workers is expected to slip to 56.7 by the year 2010, with the low birth rate reducing the number of young dependents to a greater extent than aging adds to the older group.

While there have been reports of increases in the total number of births in the last few years, that is because the giant Baby Boom generation is largely in its prime childbearing years. The rate of births per 1,000 remains well below that of the post-World War II period.

The new census study also estimates that the nation's black population will increase to 13.7 percent by 2010. Blacks made up 11.8 percent of the population in the 1980 census.

Nearly one in five Southerners will be black in 2010, 19.7 percent of the population. That will be up from 18.7 percent in 1980.

In the Northeast, blacks will increase from 10.1 percent to 13.2 percent. They will go from 9.1 percent to 11.9 percent in the Midwest and from 5.3 percent to 6.3 percent in the West.

The projections show the Northeast remaining the oldest section of the country, with the median age for that region increasing from 33.6 in 1986 to 40.3 in 2010.

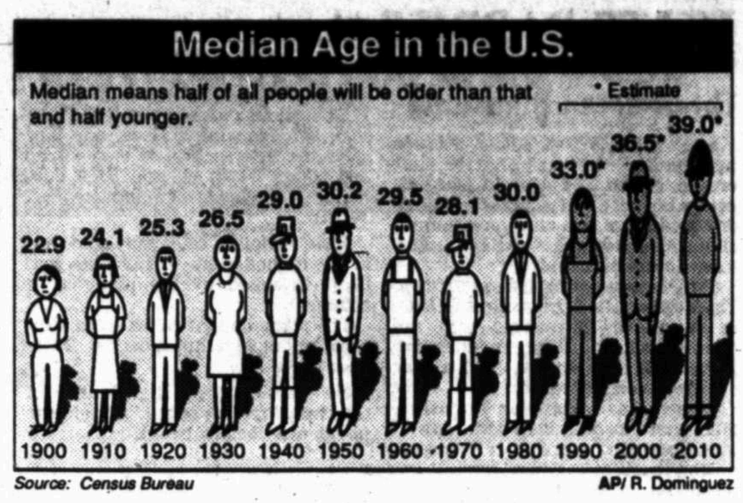

The South will be second in 2010 at a median age of 38.4, up from 31.4 in 1986. The Midwest will mature from 31.6 to 38.8 and the West will go from 31.0 to 37.4.

Florida will remain the state with the highest median age and Utah will still be the youngest state, according to the projections.

Florida, with a median age of 36.0 in 1986, will age to 45.3. Utah's median will rise from 25.5 to 27.6, leaving it the only state with a median age below 30 years.

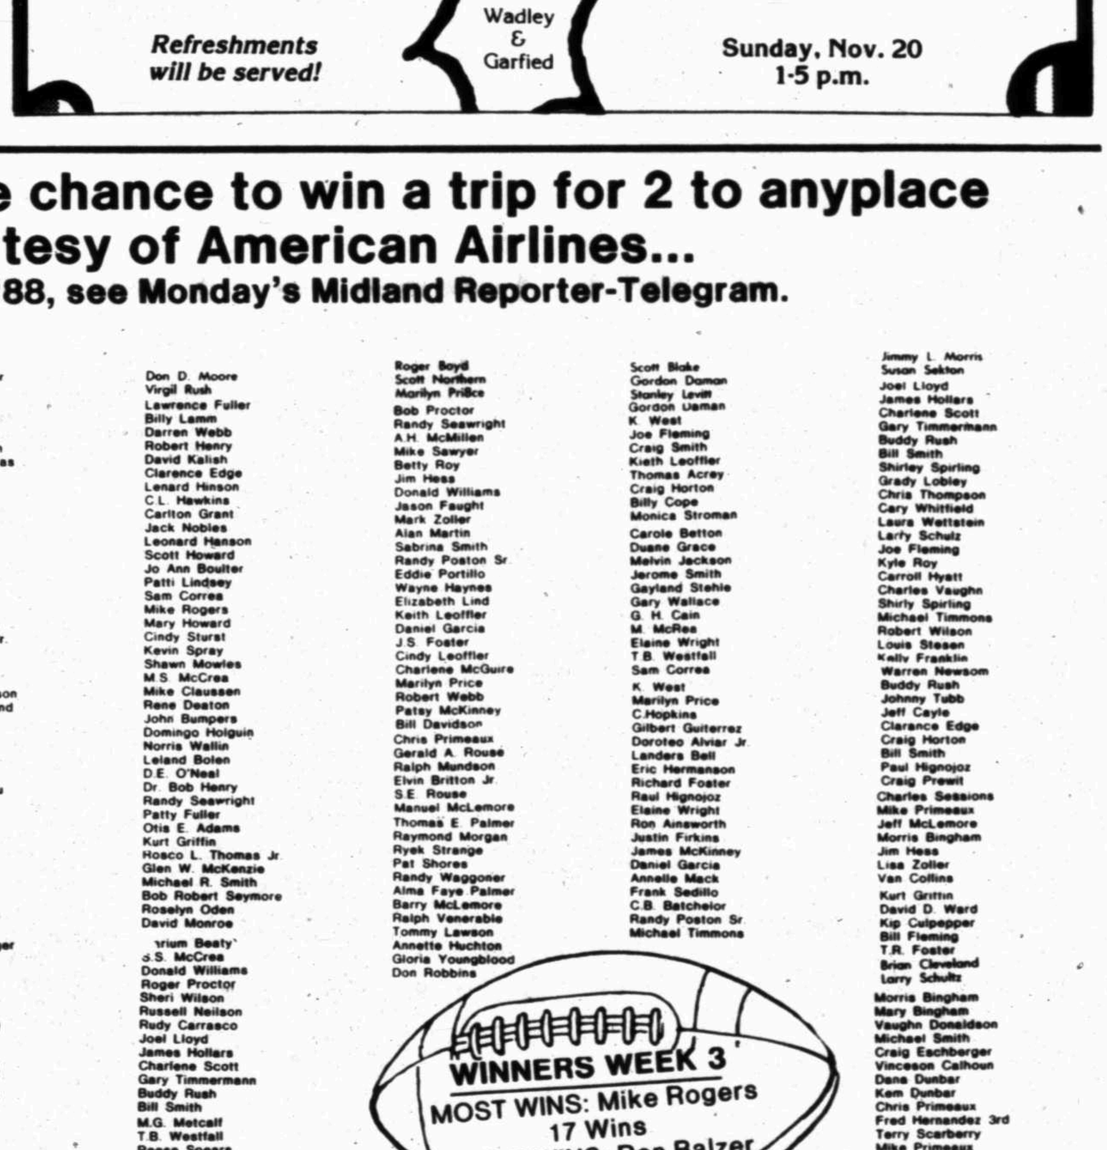

In the 1986 estimates no state had a median over 40 but several were under 30, including — besides Utah — Alaska, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, Texas and Wyoming.

In 2010 not only Florida will have topped 40. Other states with median ages above that milestone will include Arkansas, Connecticut, Iowa, Maine, Nevada, New Jersey, Oregon.

Secrecy routine in politics, sports, cooking in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Secrecy is a part of life in South Africa, extending far beyond national security to corporate boardrooms, athletic fields, even cooking contests and a zoo director's office.

Because of the stigma attached abroad to dealings with South Africa, leaders in government, business, entertainment and sports consider clandestine tactics necessary.

An editorial in Business Day, a Johannesburg newspaper, said the National Party government engages in "a systematic concealment of the truth from the public. The idea of simple public accountability has decayed so far that not only invasions, but even the salaries of public servants are concealed."

Base salaries of officials are disclosed but extensive allowances for homes, travel, cars and other expenses are not.

Peter Soal, a member of Parliament for the anti-apartheid Progressive Federal Party, declared it "impossible for the average citizen to keep abreast of what's going on."

This penchant for secrets reaches high levels. Foreign Minister Roelof F. Botha peeled off for two days during a visit to Europe with President P.W. Botha, who is not related.

"I am not prepared to say publicly exactly where I was, except to say I visited one or two countries in the East or in Africa," he said after rejoining the presidential party.

The government, controlled by the white minority, claims several statesmen from black Africa have paid clandestine visits to South Africa in recent years.

Officials also say prominent blacks in South Africa have negotiated secretly with the government about possible political reforms, but that identifying them might discredit those leaders in the eyes of other blacks.

Much of the nation's foreign trade is enveloped in secrecy, particularly when it involves efforts to circumvent economic sanctions. The government says South Africa trades with 40 of the 50 other African countries, but refuses to name them.

Statistics on arms imports and exports are secret, as is most information about energy and the nuclear program..

South Africa does not say how much oil it consumes or where it comes from. Disclosing information on how petroleum is obtained has been made a crime to protect those supplying oil in violation of a U.N. embargo.

The Defense Act prohibits unauthorized reports about the composition and activities of the armed forces. Statistics on draft resistance are not revealed and past incursions into Angola have been kept secret.

South Africa did not confirm its renewed presence in Angola last year until many weeks after large numbers of troops crossed the border. Military headquarters did not issue comprehensive statistics on casualties among its black troops involved in the campaign.

Members of Parliament have the right to ask Cabinet ministers for information and statistics that might not be disclosed otherwise, but ministers often refuse to respond on grounds disclosure would not be in the national interest.

"That answer has become more prevalent lately," Soal said in an interview. "The Nationalists have a passion for secrecy."

Emergency regulations forbid unauthorized reports about detainees or action by security forces. Justice Minister Kobie Coetzee recently proposed restricting news reports of trials.

Because of the extensive international sports boycott, foreign athletes sometimes arrive using pseudonyms. Occasionally, with the cooperation of South African media, teams compete without their nationality or the names of the players being disclosed.

On many occasions the locations of sports events are not announced until foreign competitors are en route to South Africa and thus less susceptible to last-minute political pressure.

Even non-sports competitions can assume a cloak-and-dagger aspect. The departure of four young South African chefs for an international cooking contest this month was kept secret until the eve of their departure.

A white tiger arrived at the Pretoria Zoo in early October in a trade with an American zoo, which received a king cheetah. Zoo director Willie Labuschagne said the zoo in the United States asked not to be identified.

Foreign film crews produce movies here secretly. They like the relatively low production costs but want to avoid international publicity about the choice of locale.

U.S. Air Force personnel inspect the site where a B-1B bomber assigned to Ellsworth Air Force Base — in South Dakota — crashed while attempting a landing late Thursday.

Second crash not likely to ground rest of B-1Bs

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — The second crash of a B-1B bomber in nine days probably will not force another grounding of the nation's fleet of advanced jet bombers, an Air Force general said Friday.

The four crewmen parachuted to safety Thursday night, but the $280 million plane was destroyed after smashing onto a runway at Ellsworth Air Force Base during a routine training flight.

The crash came two days after officials reported the Air Force had inspected and cleared more than two-thirds of the 98 B-1B bombers, which were grounded briefly following a crash Nov. 8 that destroyed a plane in Texas.

"I see no reason to believe we will ground the fleet. I've talked to my bosses, and there is no intention at this time to ground them," said Brig. Gen. Robert Marquette Jr., commander of the 12th Air Division at Ellsworth.

The Ellsworth crash and a B-1B crash last week in Texas do not appear to be linked to the same cause, Marquette said after a tour of the crash site. "We have evidence there was an engine fire" in the Texas crash, he said.

It will take a team of military and civilian experts at least 30 days to evaluate crash evidence, he said.

The ejection system can propel crew members 100 to 150 feet into the air, allowing them to parachute safely to the ground, he said. Marquette said he did not know how fast or high the plane was flying when the crew bailed out.

Marquette refused to speculate on the cause of Thursday's crash but said there was no evidence of an engine fire. At least one witness reported seeing an engine on fire before the crash.

An Air Force statement released at the Pentagon in Washington said there was no fire on board, and Pentagon sources said Thursday the plane apparently clipped utility lines as it came in for its final landing.

The long-range strategic bomber was trying to land when it crashed at 10:40 p.m., toppling a utility pole that cut off power to two schools and a housing area.

"I could hear the plane coming in for a landing," said John Hanzel, who lives next to the base. "I heard a muffled boom. It just lit the field up, probably for about 10 minutes."

"The engine was on fire before it (the plane) hit the ground," witness Dale Landreth told Rapid City radio station KOTA.

Another eyewitness, Ron Fisher, said, "We saw a big ball of fire that lit up the sky."

Todd Heinle, a police officer in the nearby town of Box Elder, said he was less than a mile away in a convenience store parking lot and noticed the plane because of a noise.

Ex-congressmen gets eight-year prison term

NEW YORK (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. Mario Biaggi, a hero cop turned rogue congressman, reasserted his innocence and sought mercy for his son Friday before he was sentenced to eight years in prison for racketeering in the Wedtech corruption scandal.

"I'm still of the belief, I always have been, that I am innocent," the 10-term congressman told U.S. District Judge Constance Baker Motley before she sentenced him to eight years in prison and fined him $242,000.

The judge said a prison term was necessary to assure the community that "the punishment for such crimes upon conviction will be certain and substantial."

Biaggi, 71, in a voice wracked by sobs, pleaded with the judge to spare his eldest son and co-defendant, Richard, from prison.

"The worst possible punishment Your Honor could administer would be to put my son in prison," said Biaggi, his eyes brimming with tears. "I appeal to you as a father...Do what you want with me. My time is done. Don't hurt Richard."

Richard Biaggi, 39, of Fort Lee, N.J., took off his glasses, buried his face in his hands and wept at the defense table during his father's plea.

Motley later sentenced the younger Biaggi to two years in prison and fined him $71,000.

The elder Biaggi slumped in his chair but showed no emotion while Motley sentenced him.

Prosecutors said afterward that the elder Biaggi would be eligible for parole after serving 40 months in prison.

Despite the emotional turmoil in the courtroom, the elder Biaggi was seen in the hall during a break, chatting amiably with relatives and even chuckling occasionally.

"I think he's upset at the sentence of his son more than anything else. I think he's upset at whether he himself can fulfill (his own) sentence — physically fulfill the sentence," said Biaggi lawyer James LaRossa.

Biaggi, a highly decorated city police officer from 1942 to 1965, was convicted Aug. 5 of all but one of the 16 counts against him including racketeering, extortion and mail fraud.

He was accused of turning Wedtech Corp., a defunct South Bronx defense contractor, into a racketeering enterprise that paid out millions of dollars in bribes to public officials for help in winning no-bid contracts.

Richard Biaggi was acquitted of racketeering charges but was found guilty of bribe receiving, mail fraud and tax charges.

The elder Biaggi left the courtroom without comment after the nearly three-hour sentencing session. He was ordered to surrender to authorities on Jan. 9.

He resigned from office a day after his conviction. He already has been sentenced to 2½ years in prison for obstruction and taking an illegal gratuity in an unrelated case.

The most notable recent convictions of members of Congress came from the Abscam investigation, which led to the conviction of Sen. Harrison A. Williams of New Jersey and six members of the house, including John M. Murphy of New York and Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey.

Biaggi, who could have been sentenced to a maximum total sentence of 146 years in prison and $7 million in fines, was sentenced to between two and eight years on numerous counts which Motley ordered to run concurrently.

The judge said Biaggi's Wedtech sentence would run concurrently with the previous one.

"But for the defendant's age and the state of his health, his prison term would be substantially longer," Motley said.

Biaggi's lawyer noted before sentencing that his client suffers from heart problems that require daily medication as well as a pronounced limp caused by a leg injury suffered in the line of duty as a policeman.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Edward J. Little told Motley the trial evidence showed "Biaggi is corrupt. Biaggi took bribes...and sold out his office for nearly $1 million in fees and $2 million in stocks."

In a final plea before sentencing, Biaggi said the five-month trial and the month of "devastating publicity" before his indictment were punishment enough.

Painter soaring to fame with military art

MEDFORD, Ore. (AP) — The highly specialized field of military art — paintings of the weapons of war — has brought international fame to William S. Phillips, who describes himself as an aviation historian and artist.

His chosen specialty has taken him around the world on military missions, but none of his work is paid for by the military. His accurate, detailed views of military activities are in great public demand.

Phillips has no trouble selling his work to private collectors through galleries in the United States and Europe.

His paintings have more to them than just a portrayal of battleships and Air Force planes. The military hardware is own in careful detail, while the backgrounds are beautifully developed landscapes filled with a luminosity that brings the painting into focus and makes it a work of art.

"I consider myself a student of the Hudson River school," Phillips says, referring to a group of pre-Civil War Americans who painted landscapes of the Hudson River Valley in Romantic style. "My landscapes are more impressionistic than the planes."

One impressive 4-by-6-foot painting of an F-16 flying over the Grand Canyon shows the plane as if in a color photograph. But the peaks and geological forms of the Grand Canyon are glowing with orange and gold under a dark blue sky.

This particular painting shows an aircraft from Hill Air Force Base in Utah. Phillips donated it to the Air Force, and it hangs in the Secretary of the Air Force's office in Washington.

"If I sold this through a gallery, there would be a good price on it," he says.

Phillips has loved airplanes since he was a child. His fascination with flight led him to hang around airports and then to interpret in his drawings what he had seen there.

Phillips moved to Ashland 20 years ago and received a degree in criminal justice at Southern Oregon State College, all the while painting aircraft.

One day he asked the owner of the Red Baron Restaurant at the Medford-Jackson County Airport if he could hang four of his paintings in the lounge. Before he could get them all up, he sold one for $150.

"I was ecstatic," Phillips says. "I decided to try to earn a living as an artist."

He has been painting military subjects since 1972, although his interests are aviation in general.

"I use military planes," he says, "because the military has the advanced, high-performance flights."

The military calls him when artwork is wanted, and he produces the work. The government pays his expenses in return for the paintings.

Last February, Phillips was invited to the Persian Gulf, where he could see U.S. military hardware firsthand and make some paintings. He was based in Manama, the capital of Bahrain, for three months.

Denver has Santa shortage

DENVER (AP) — If you're a Scrooge about Christmas you might want to head for Denver, where it seems there's a Santa shortage.

Ken Galey, director of the non-profit Rent-A-Santa program, says that for the first time in the program's six-year history it is short on recruits for the ho-ho-ho role.

"We have 10 and need 40," he said.

The recruits undergo a week-long training program for duty beginning right after Thanksgiving, Galey said. The program is part of the the Mile High Child Care unit of United Way.

The job pays $10 the first hour and $5 per hour after that, he said. Costumes are supplied.

"Last year we did 375 assignments between Thanksgiving and Christmas Eve and that was with about 28 Santas. This year we need 40 already," Galey said.

"I'm just thinking off the top of my head that because our economy has been a bit in the doldrums, people aren't looking forward to the Christmas holidays as early this year as they have in past years," he said to explain the shortage of Santas in training.

The program's Santas, which have ranged from truck drivers to attorneys, see duty at private parties in homes, office parties, shopping centers, day care centers and anywhere else that Christmas parties are held for children.

Florida schools help immigrants deal with migration obstacles

By SANDRA WALEWSKI

SWEETWATER, Fla. (AP) — He's a bright and engaging 7-year-old with a winning smile and a little secret.

"I have to tell you something," the boy, recently arrived from South America, confided to a reporter as he leaned across a noisy lunchroom table at Sweetwater Elementary School.

"My name is not really Mike; it's Patricio."

And why did he change his name?

"Because I like Mike better," he said, scrunching up his face.

Schools across Dade County are coping with a steady flow of immigrant students, helping them through an often difficult transition. Peruvian-born "Mike" has fared better than most immigrant children because of his exuberant personality, said his teacher Maritza Prieto.

"It doesn't matter if he makes three mistakes. He'll tell you what's on his mind," said Ms. Prieto, who teaches a class called English for speakers of other languages, which awaits nearly all of the immigrant children at the 95 percent Hispanic school.

Some 6,000 of the students in Dade County's public schools arrived from foreign countries since June 1, and that number is in addition to 60,000 immigrant students who were already in the system, according to Jean Sullivan of the Department of Attendance.

Between 80 and 250 foreign students are registered daily in Dade public schools, the country's fourth largest district with 262,000 students.

The schools reflect the politics and economies of troubled nations worldwide.

Civil war at home has made Nicaraguans the largest group of students flooding into Dade now.

But problems in impoverished Haiti and immigration programs with Cubans in third countries have also contributed to the influx of immigrant children in Miami. Students come in large numbers from Colombia, Jamaica and 124 other countries.

Dade County is not alone. In Los Angeles students from Spanish-speaking countries continue to swell the public school population. At the same time, a steady rise in Korean children has now surpassed the number of Vietnamese, previously the largest Asian group, said Dr. Angel Sanchez, administrative coordinator of information services in Los Angeles.

Relaxed Soviet emigration policies and ethnic unrest are being felt with more Armenian students there.

For many teachers, it means dealing with schoolchildren who, aside from having language difficulties, are often disoriented, shy and require a lot of attention and understanding while they adjust during the first few months.

"I think it's very difficult for them. It's a new country, new culture, and they have to learn a lot of things," said Ms. Prieto, herself an immigrant from Cuba.

The Nicaraguan youths, in particular, face more struggles than most adapting in a new country because of previous experiences.

"They come from a very violent world," said Joyce Sanchez, a junior high school teacher, in a recent newspaper interview.

"They talk about guns, about seeing people shot, about relatives who have died. Many of them have been brought for the sole purpose of keeping them out of war."

Seven-year-old Marielo Bassett is fairly typical of incoming foreign students. She started school over the summer after arriving from Nicaragua, where she lived in the countryside and apparently did not attend school regularly because of the fighting in that Central American nation.

Asked if she knew any English, she said quietly, "Solo un poquito (only a little)."

"She's very emotional. Once when I told her she'd done something wrong, she started to cry," Ms. Prieto recalled, adding Marielo frequently complained of stomach aches at first, probably emotionally-related. "Her reaction to things is kind of lost, disoriented."

"Take your time" is a phrase heard often in Ms. Prieto's classroom.

"There's a lot of strain," acknowledged Dr. Jacob Gewirtz, an expert in child developmental psychology at Florida International University.

With some of the teen-agers, there may be clashes in values held in the old country compared with those of their new home, Gewirtz said.

Many of the youths also have other family concerns, such as a relative left behind or being unable to get homework help from parents because the adults don't speak English.

"I think they (the parents) have a lot on their shoulders — work problems...they don't have as much time as they want (to help) but are generally supportive," Ms. Prieto said.

Despite their difficulties, the students learn quickly, said Sweetwater Principal Maria Rodriguez. "They adapt quite fast. After a year or two, they are ready to move into a regular classroom — completely bilingual."

Fifth grade teacher Cary Perez said much has changed over the years for the immigrant children. "Now these kids have all the benefits — teachers who've been trained to approach them."

It helps, she adds, if a teacher can tell them, "I've been in your shoes'"

In the crowded Sweetwater school, Ms. Prieto shares a classroom with another ESOL teacher and 28 second-graders. An oversized chalkboard on rollers is the only thing that divides the classes, but they cope — and sometimes shout to get their point across.

"What country do we live in?" asked the teacher.

"U-S-A," shouted Naomi from Ecuador, Milagros of Nicaragua and Maria from Guatemala, along with the rest of the class.

"And what is the long name?" the teacher continued, getting a "United States of America" after some prodding.

Scott brothers menace Eagles

By DEENE EHLIS
MRT Correspondent

MCCAMEY — Great Scott! What a game for the Garden City Bearkats. Head coach Sam Scott and his staff enjoyed a 50-6 Class A area playoff blitzing of the Sanderson Eagles Friday night at McCamey Badger Stadium. Scott was doubly pleased with the performance of his twin sons Codie and Jodie.

Quarterback Codie Scott was 7 of 9 passing for 120 yards and two touchdowns through the air and one rushing. His first T.D. pass was to brother Jodie off a wild scramble. With five Sanderson defenders giving chase, Codie lofted a perfect 20 yard spiral for Jodie to run under in the end zone. It was one of three catches for Jodie on the night, good for 65 yards. By the way, the Scotts also play in the Kat defensive secondary.

"Codie has done a good job for us," states Coach Scott. "I stuck him in a position last year when I moved into Garden City, he was a junior, and had never quarterbacked a whole season, he'd had broken bones all his life ... last year was his first full year as a quarterback." This year, Codie has responded to his father's faith in him by leading the Bearkats to a 10-1 record, not only as the team's quarterback, but also by handling the placekicking chores. He booted a 34 yard field goal last night.

Another twin terror for Garden City were running backs Tony Ramirez and Weldon Hillger. They both eclipsed the 100 yard rushing mark ... Ramirez with 130 yards on 25 carries and Hillger with 111 on 12 carries. Ramirez scored three touchdowns and Hillger one. Ramirez was injured late in the game, but Coach Scott reported that it was just a "knee sting" and he'll be ready for next week's playoff game with the White Deer Bucks.

Garden City's potent offense was possible because of superlative play from their defensive unit. The Kats forced six Eagle turnovers, scoring 37 of their 50 points off the miscues. Coach Scott said "we had a tremendous effort tonight, executed on offense, got some turnovers early we took advantage of, got them in the end zone. Sanderson got down a bit, that's what happens. You get somebody down, you just gotta stay on them, hope to get 'em down a little bit more."

SCANDAL TIMES THREE

Aggie coach benches himself amidst charges

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M football coach Jackie Sherrill says he will not coach Saturday against Texas Christian in order to relieve pressure on his team following allegations Sherrill payed "hush money" to a former player.

"First, I want it known that I am still the athletic director and head football coach at Texas A&M University with full authority," Sherrill said in a statement released by the school Friday.

Related Story, Page 10B

But due to "many distractions" since The Dallas Morning News reported the allegations, Sherrill said, he is appointing assistant coach and defensive coordinator R.C. Slocum to direct the team Saturday against TCU.

"Under this temporary arrangement, I feel that the players and coaches will be able to focus their full attention to the job at hand, playing TCU," he said. "Hopefully, early next week, this situation will be clearer and the issue will be settled. I will be here next week preparing our team for the Texas game."

Former Aggie fullback George Smith told The News in a copyright story that Sherrill paid him $4,400 in a series of cash and money order transactions dating to November, 1986.

Smith termed the payments "hush money" that were made as Sherrill's athletic program was being investigated for violations by the NCAA, the newspaper reported Friday.

Texas A&M officials said Friday they will seek sworn statements from athletic department personnel as part of their investigation into Smith's claims.

The NCAA assessed Texas A&M a two-year probation in September after investigators substantiated numerous violations of regulations that govern extra benefits to athletes. The Aggies also were barred from post-season play this season.

Texas A&M spokesman Lane Stephenson told The Associated Press that the school told the NCAA about the allegations Wednesday and launched its own internal investigation.

Permian players investigated

ODESSA (AP) — The University Interscholastic League is looking into allegations that a journalist writing a book about Odessa Permian's football team paid for players' meals in violation of amateur rules, officials said Friday.

A Permian player told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that writer H.G. "Buzz" Bissinger took players out to eat, interviewing them over meals.

But UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney said Permian's area playoff game Friday night in El Paso against Andress shouldn't be affected.

"We have made an inquiry," Farney said in a published report. "But we have not made a deposition ... We've just received this and we have a hectic schedule today. We'll probably sit down as staff and decide how to proceed."

Bissinger is on a leave of absence from the Phildelphia Inquirer to write a book about the Panthers, ranked third in the state with a 9-2 record, and their rabid fan support.

"I am mystified about the whole thing," Bissinger said. "I need to interview them in a setting that is comfortable for them and they feel free to talk to me. It's upsetting to the team and they don't need this."

Bissinger said the average cost of the meals was about $5.

"I did what I've done as a journalist hundreds of times," he said. "I'm not a booster, I'm not a recruiter. I'm a journalist performing a common and accepted practice."

Permian Athletic Director John Wilkins said he is anxious for a final ruling on the matter.

"At this point everything has been cleared," Wilkins said. "We've talked to some people at the UIL and the district executive committee."

The committee is made up of representatives from each District 4-5A school and would enforce any UIL regulations or rulings among district teams.

Dallas Carter ousted again

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Education Commissioner William Kirby on Friday reversed a previous decision and said Dallas Carter High School is ineligible to continue in the state football playoffs, sending Plano East to the contest instead.

Carter was to meet Dallas Samuell Friday night in the second round of the Class 5-A playoffs. The 7:30 p.m. game in the Cotton Bowl was called off as a result of the ruling.

The University Interscholastic League said Plano East and Dallas Samuell had until midnight Saturday to play.

Buffaloes finish season on up note

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

ABILENE — The Stanton Buffaloes ran their last post game wind sprints here at Shotwell Stadium Friday night after a 20-6 loss to the Eastland Mavericks in a Class 2A area football playoff game.

But heads were high as Coach Dale Ruth's Buffs carried through with the traditional post game run. Ruth couldn't be disappointed with this group and he thinks the "real" tradition is just beginning at Stanton.

"We had 19 seniors on this team that have given us everything they have since they were in the eighth grade and they've set a tradition for the kids under them to follow. We accomplished a lot more than a lot of people thought we would and we have to go on from here," said Ruth after the loss.

Reagan County takes early exit from playoffs

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

BALLINGER - Rebuilding?

That's what the "experts" said about the Reagan County Owls this season, the first in several without all-staters Junior Romero and Scott Lipsey.

Well, a group of Owls heavily laden with first-time starters almost upset fifth-ranked and undefeated DeLeon here Friday.

The Owls came within one minute and 50 seconds of upsetting the Bearcats, but DeLeon kicker Paul Burk nailed a 43-yard field goal with nine seconds left to pull out a 17-14 DeLeon win.

Reagan County, 10-1, tied the game on a 95-yard pass paly from Rodolfo Guerrero to sophomore tight end Ken Neill with 1:50 left and Roland Saldibar's second extra-point kick of the evening.

More importantly, the Owls were ahead on penetrations and celebrating was rampant on the Owl sideline.

It appeared that the Bearcats had a tall order after Chad Nabors managed only a 12-yard kickoff return to the DeLeon 29-yard line. But all-state candidate Brent West drove the 'Cats 44 yards in five plays to set up Burk's field goal try.

DeLeon coach Grady West said a touchdown drive was the furthest thing from his mind in the final minute-plus.

"We felt like a touchdown was out of our reach," Coach West said. "Paul has kicked 65-yard field goals in practice, so we knew we only had to get so far."

Burk cleared the crossbar with several yards to spare to end an emotional ride for Coach Ronnie Reeger's Owls.

Mark today on your calendar: College football's finest hour

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It is doubtful there has ever been a college football Saturday like this Super Saturday — at least, not in a long while.

No fewer than eight of the Associated Press Top Twenty will go at it head-to-head and next week's rankings may bear scant resemblance to the current poll.

Saturday's schedule is so scintillating that the Michigan-Ohio State game, for years the one that decided the Big Ten's Rose Bowl representative, has been relegated to also-ran status. Even the Nebraska-Oklahoma Big Eight shootout has lost some of its luster, although both teams are in the Top Ten and the winner, as usual, will go to the Orange Bowl, with the loser bound for the Florida Citrus Bowl.

Topping the schedule is "Measles Mania" — second-ranked Southern California at No. 6 UCLA for the Pac-10 crown and a Rose Bowl berth. Ironically, the game will be played in the Rose Bowl, which also serves as UCLA's home field. If USC wins — the Trojans are 0-3 against UCLA at the Rose Bowl — UCLA goes to the Cotton Bowl; if UCLA wins, Southern Cal goes to the Sugar Bowl.

Hopefully, the game within the game — the long-awaited battle of the dueling quarterbacks, UCLA's Troy Aikman vs. USC's Rodney Peete — also will take place. Peete was suffering from the measles.

Southern Cal must win to set up next week's 1-2 shootout with top-ranked Notre Dame, which has a home game against a 5-5 Penn State team that is trying to avoid its first losing season in 50 years.

Third-ranked Miami, bound for the Orange Bowl again and still hoping to repeat its 1987 national championship, has a night game at No. 11 LSU, which will play in either the Sugar or Hall of Fame Bowls, depending on Saturday night's game, plus what Auburn does against Alabama next Friday.

Fourth-ranked West Virginia, Notre Dame's Fiesta Bowl opponent in a possible national championship game, entertains No. 14 Syracuse (Hall of Fame Bowl) under the lights and No. 7 Nebraska visits No. 9 Oklahoma.

In the Second Ten, No. 12 Michigan (Rose Bowl) is at Ohio State, No. 13 Oklahoma State (Holiday) at Iowa State, South Carolina (Liberty) at No. 15 Clemson (Citrus), No. 16 Wyoming (Holiday) at Hawaii in a night game, No. 17 Houston (Aloha) at Texas Tech and Washington at No. 19 Washington State (Aloha).

Fifth-ranked Florida State (Cotton or Sugar), No. 8 Auburn (Sugar or Hall of Fame), No. 10 Arkansas (Cotton), No. 18 Alabama (Sun) and No. 20 Georgia (Gator) are idle.

Among Saturday's most concerned spectators will be the bowl scouts, who will re-enact for the NCAA the invitations they actually issued a week or more ago.

Other games involving bowl teams or hopefuls include Army (Sun) vs. Boston College in Dublin, Ireland; Pitt at North Carolina State (Peach), Appalachian State at Wake Forest (Independence, if it wins), Northwestern at Illinois (All American, if it wins), Wisconsin at Michigan State (Gator, if it wins), Iowa (Peach) at Minnesota under the lights, Indiana (Liberty) at Purdue, Kansas State at Colorado (Freedom) and Brigham Young (Freedom) at Utah.

Penn State hasn't had a losing season since 1938 (3-4-1) — an NCAA record 49 years — but Coach Joe Paterno is more concerned about the long-range future than the immediate one.

"I never thought about the streak, and I'm not thinking about it now," he said.

He also said — and you can bet Notre Dame's Lou Holtz was listening — that a young Penn State team's athletic ability is "good enough for them in a couple of years to have a shot" at the national championship.

Holtz also is aware that Penn State has won the last three games in the series and six of the last seven.

"I don't think that there's any doubt that Penn State will come in here and play as fine a football game as they've played all year," Holtz said. "They've got one of the best defenses against the rush in the country.

"Penn State matches up very well against us in terms of personnel. They're a big, strong, physical Penn State team that blocks and tackles awfully well. They're a multiple defense team, and that concerns me.

"They've run at least 40 different defenses this year. Their defensive scheme is as complex as anything we see all year."

After upsets over California and Arizona State the last two weeks with his biggest games of the season — a combined 45-of-62 for 696 yards and six touchdowns — Peete came down with the measles. His illness is part of a recent outbreak on the USC campus and all the Trojans were inoculated Tuesday night.

"We're a team first, although Rodney is a very valuable component of our team," Coach Larry Smith said. "If it means we have to play Rodney's backup, Pat O'Hara, we have a lot of confidence in him.

"We'll go ahead with the basic game plan that we've prepared. This is something that we have to be good enough as a team to overcome."

The Trojans need only a tie to return to the Rose Bowl, but that result could puncture their national champion hopes.

This is the 34th time the game has meant the Rose Bowl for one or both teams; USC leads in those encounters 20-11-2, including 12-3 since 1967. It's the 20th time the Rose Bowl is on the line for both teams; in those situations, USC leads 13-5-1, including eight in a row.

For the record, Aikman is fourth nationally in passing efficiency (177-of-279, 1,903 yards, 15 touchdowns, seven interceptions), Peete is seventh (166-for-266, 2,240 yards, 17 TDs, eight interceptions).

Rankin rips Grandfalls-Royalty, 48-0

By JOHN FREY
MRT Correspondent

FORT STOCKTON — The Rankin Red Devils scored early and often Friday night and cruised to an easy 48-0 area playoff win over the Grandfalls-Royalty Cowboys.

"We felt if we executed well we could run the ball tonight," Rankin Coach Troy Kennedy said. "And we broke a few long runs early and that kind of broke their back."

And run they did, aiming 340 yards rushing on the night. They were led by Jody Abalos' 139 yards rushing on only 9 carries. Abalos sat out much of the game with stomach cramps.

On the very first possession the Red Devils took only 2:40 to score. Jody Abalos took a pitchout from Quarterback Doug Braden and scampered 48 yards for the touchdown. Abalos also kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

After a strong defensive stand the Red Devils took over on their own 32 yard line. Six plays later they were in the end zone on a 26 yard scoring strike from Braden to James Watson. Abalos' kick upped the lead to 14-0.

With Abalos on the bench the Red Devils were still able to move the ball at will. On the first play of the second quarter, Braden plunged in from one yard out. Kirk Kennedy's kick put the score at 21-0.

On their next possession Rankin quickly scored again. On a third down play Braden went deep to Watson, this time for 68 yards and the score. In the half, Braden threw only two passes but both were for touchdowns.

And the Red Devils were not finished in the first half yet as Braden added a 10 yard scoring run. The kick failed leaving the halftime score at 34-0.

For the first half Rankin outgained the Cowboys 324 yards to 43 yards including 230 yards on the ground. Rankin's Michael Riojas recorded his first of two second half fumble recoveries to open the third quarter. It took eight straight running plays for the Red Devils to punch it across the goal line as Abalos added his second touchdown of the night, this time from seven yards out.

Rankin's final score came after the second Riojas fumble recovery. Michael Ramos did the honors from one yard out. Abalos kick put the final points on the board for Rankin.

Rankin travels to Hale Center next week to face Follett in a 7:30 start.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You find new sources of outside income. It will take a carefully crafted plan to let you hang on to the extra cash. Although unexpected business developments could slow you down in April, you enjoy the challenge. A temporary setback will lead to positive gains later on. Children become a bigger part of what you want to do. Community service brings multiple rewards. Give romance another chance.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Veronica Hamel, Sen. Joseph Biden, TV host Alistair Cooke, golfer Don January, Robert F. Kennedy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A shared spiritual experience could result in greater domestic harmony. Group activities involving relatives and neighbors are a source of delight. Welcome ideas from siblings; they know you best.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your rapport with partner is at an all-time high. Go ahead and discuss controversial subjects. A good time to form new ties with people in your church or neighborhood. Simple pleasures are favored.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Forget about trying to impress people with your connections and be yourself. Spend the afternoon with a small child exploring the outdoors or attending a sports event. Become a kid again!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A gift from an admirer gives you romantic ideas. Your charm wins you a special invitation. Make the most of a meeting with someone influential. Catch up on your reading this evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Plan activities that will appeal to loved ones of all ages. A day trip could be especially fun. Those seeking new homes could get lucky. Rely on public transportation whenever possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Sponsor activities designed to please every member of the family. Compromises will be necessary. Postpone discussing business lest mate become resentful. Write letters to parents, siblings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A great day to sign documents. Loved ones may become confused if you keep changing your mind. Avoid making romantic partner suspicious and jealous. Keep everything up-front.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your ability to make others laugh eases tension at a family get-together. Simple pleasures hold more appeal than "putting on the Ritz." Choose a potluck dinner over a fancy restaurant meal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Show your vulnerability to a child and a new intimacy will develop. Stay away from someone who cannot seem to make a commitment. Renewing a friendship proves rewarding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Marriage takes greater effort now. Be tolerant. Hidden resentments could surface with a neighbor. Consider someone else's feelings before making a public announcement. A sudden trip is a possibility. Pack a bag!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Excellent child-care arrangements should not be disturbed. The gossip about a former mate or partner is all wrong. Set the record straight. Keep the home fires burning for grown children who need you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Attending church in a different neighborhood could lead to some exciting new friendships. Swallow your pride and admit a mistake. If you insist on going it all alone, you will continue to flounder.

Donna Rice gets cold feet, backs out of appearance before journalists

CINCINNATI (AP) — Donna Rice, the Miami model whose association with Gary Hart ended his 1988 presidential campaign, found more cameras than she had bargained for when she showed up for a meeting with a group of journalists.

Ms. Rice said in a handwritten statement moments before her scheduled appearance that she had expected her meeting with the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi to be private and off-the-record.

"As you are probably aware, for the past year and a half, I have purposely avoided capitalizing on my notoriety, and except for three specific interviews, I have declined all media offers," she said in the statement.

Ms. Rice said she thought the meeting could offer an opportunity to candidly share her experiences.

"But when I arrived a few minutes ago and I saw the cameras, lights and tape recorders, I realized this wasn't the forum I anticipated," she said.

James Plante, national president of SPJ, SDX, said he believed that Ms. Rice knew her appearance at the Albert B. Sabin Cincinnati Convention Center would be on the record.

ROME (AP) — Jerry Lee Lewis, Ray Charles and five other legends of American rock and soul music fired up Romans with an internationally televised concert to raise funds to vaccinate African children.

Charles

Lewis pounded the piano keys with his heels as he did in the '50s, and Charles interrupted a world tour to play two ballads before a rapt audience of 10,000 Thursday at Rome's sports palace.

Little Richard pranced atop a grand piano while crooning a medley of his hits.

James Brown bounced around a stage of steel girders and construction gear, singing "I Feel Good." Fats Domino, wearing a shocking pink jacket, revived "The Fat Man" and "Blueberry Hill."

Bo Diddley and B.B. King, a last-minute replacement for Chuck Berry, also were part of the show, which will be broadcast early next year on Home Box Office.

• • •

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali arrived Friday for a tour of refugee camps housing southern Sudanese displaced by war and famine.

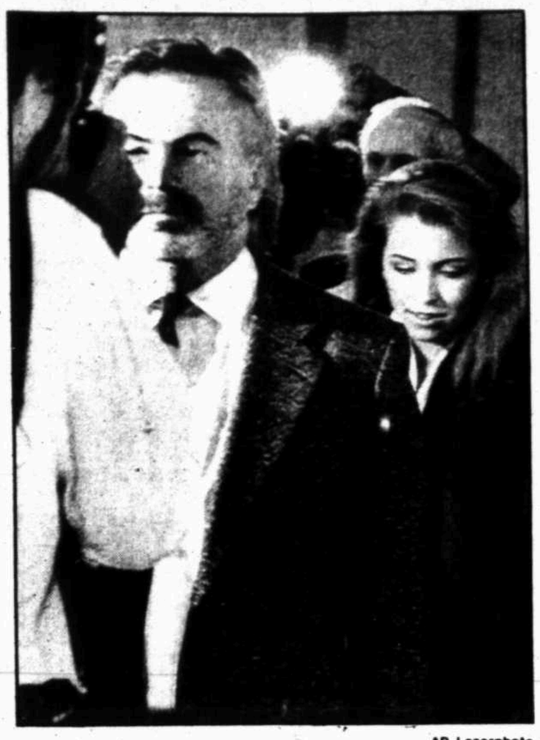

Ali

Ali, an American Moslem, is to meet Saturday with Prime Minister Sadek el-Mahdi. He leaves Tuesday for Uganda's capital, Kampala, where international relief organizations have mounted an airlift to starving people in the south.

Relief officials say 1.3 million people have fled civil war in the area this year. More than a quarter of a million people are said to have starved in the last five years on the way to neighboring Ethiopia or to northern Sudan.

Culture and information minister, Aballa Mohamed Ahmed, met Ali at the airport along with Abdul-Rahman Swareddahab, board chairman of the Islamic Dawa Organization, a religious advocacy group. Swareddahab headed the junta that overthrew President Gaafar Nimeiri in 1985.

Miami model Donna Rice, whose association with presidential candidate Gary Hart helped end his candidacy, is surrounded by reporters as she leaves the Cincinnati Convention Center Friday.

NEW YORK (AP) — James Wyeth beamed at the opening of an exhibition of his paintings in Manhattan when a great American artist unexpectedly turned up to admire his works: his father, Andrew.

"When he came, Jamie said, 'Oh, my God, my father's here. How wonderful,'" said Warren Adelson, the director of Coe Kerr Gallery. "It was a surprise. He didn't know. I guess Andrew didn't want to outshine him."

Several hundred people attended the opening Thursday night on the Upper East Side.

An exhibition of 115 works by James, his father, and his late grandfather, N.C. Wyeth, opens Sunday in Brandywine River Museum in Chadds Ford, Pa., where both James and Andrew Wyeth live. It is the final stop of a 1½-year tour that also included stops in the Soviet Union, Italy, Japan and England.

BOSTON (AP) — Soviet Nobel laureate Andrei Sakharov will not require heart surgery or a pacemaker, his doctor said Friday.

In a statement released by Massachusetts General Hospital, Adolph M. Hutter Jr. said he met with Sakharov, 67, and gave him the news. He said Sakharov would return to Mass General next week for final evaluations.

Sakharov suffers from angina, or heart pain.

Sakharov returned Friday to Boston after a week in Washington and New York. He was to attend a private reception Friday night at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in Cambridge.

Respect returning to SWC hoops

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference celebrates its diamond anniversary basketball season with little hopes for a national title but with the prospect of fielding some exciting teams.

The SWC has never won the national basketball championship, although Houston went to three straight NCAA Final Fours. The only other SWC club to get into the round of four was Baylor.

New coaches at Texas and Southern Methodist add to the intrigue.

Tom Penders will bring a run-and-gun style from Rhode Island to the University of Texas while disciplinarian John Shumate takes over at Southern Methodist, the defending SWC champion.

Penders replaces the dismissed Bob Weltlich while Shumate, an assistant under Digger Phelps at Notre Dame, enters the vacuum created when Dave Bliss left the Mustangs for New Mexico.

There will even be a new facility in Waco — 8,500 seat Ferrell Center — replacing the dank, dusty and dark Heart O' Texas Coliseum, which was good for tractor pulls but a bad place for basketball.

Both Penders and Shumate have studied the SWC from afar and believe the league is rapidly improving.

"There are four teams in this league that could get NCAA bids," Penders said. "It would be a big upset if only two or three got in. There are some great coaches in this league, too. I'm impressed. There are some really good guards in this league."

Ironically, Shumate was helping coach the Notre Dame team which SMU knocked out of the NCAA playoffs last year.

"SMU has a big challenge this year because there are a lot of solid clubs in the conference," Shumate said. "I look at the quality of the teams and the players and I say this is an outstanding conference. There are also some great coaches. I wouldn't be surprised to see two teams in the conference in the Top 20 before the season is over."

Houston is the preseason favorite followed closely by Arkansas, SMU and Texas.

Houston coach Pat Foster admits "It's the best team I've had at Houston. I've got more athletes."

He said he likes Texas.

"Texas has great young talent," Foster said. "Penders is different. Some coaches talk about a running game then walk the ball up the court. Now, he runs it."

Foster said the Cougars also will run it more.

"We've got to run and we have to press on defense," he said. "We have to take advantage of our good guards."

Texas A&M, Baylor, Texas Tech, and Rice could cause plenty of trouble.

"I think it could be a year when an 11-5 record might win the title," said Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson. "There are just so many teams capable of being in the middle of things. The league has a lot of good guards and that will make it interesting."

Told he was one of the favorites, Richardson answered: "Oh, I don't mind. You've got to play the games anyway. It's nice to be picked high."

The regular season doesn't get underway until Wednesday, Jan. 4 with Texas Tech at Arkansas, Rice at Houston, TCU at Texas A&M, and Baylor at Texas.

SMU guard Kato Armstrong will be the most closely watched player and stands the best chance of making All-American mention from the SWC.

BEARKATS

The Bearkats scored on their second possession, following a Sanderson fumble, on Codie Scott's 10 yard run. With four seconds left in the first period, Ramirez scored the first of his three T.D.'s. The second period featured the Scott to Scott touchdown pass and Codie's field goal with four seconds left. It was 23-0 at the half.

Sanderson's hopes for a second half comeback ended early as again Garden City scored on their first possession of the third quarter on a Ramirez 3 yard run. Following an interception by Kat Darren Jost, Codie Scott hooked up with Juan Morales on a 16 yard touchdown pass and the rout was underway. Before the period ended, Ramirez scored again from three yards out and Hilger would smash his way across the goal line from 11 yards out.

The only bright spot for Sanderson was running back Robert Flores. He scored the game's final six points on a three yard run in the fourth quarter. Flores would finish with 128 yards rushing on 18 carries, but even that bright spot was tainted a bit as he lost three first half fumbles.

In looking ahead to next week, Coach Scott states that "once you've reached the playoffs, you've got to have all your momentum going, playing the best football you've been playing because everybody in the playoffs can play or they wouldn't be there."

As Sanderson found out Friday night, everybody in the playoffs can play, expecially if their name is Scott.

Aggies smother Simon Fraser, 82-52

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Donald Thompson, Texas A&M's only returning starter in uniform, had a game-high 24 points and 11 rebounds to lead the Aggies to an 82-52 college basketball victory over Simon Fraser on Friday night.

Junior college transfers David Williams and Darren Rhea scored 14 points each, and returning letterman Freddie Ricks added 12 points in the Aggies' opening basketball game.

Doug Dennis, A&M's other returning starter was sidelined during preseason by an injured back and is expected to begin light workouts next Tuesday.

Simon Fraser, an NAIA school with 15,500 students in Buraby, B.C., was led by guard Darren Thomas with 15 points.

Greenwood suffers overtime loss to Sweetwater

From Staff Reports

GREENWOOD — Sweetwater's girls dumped in a last second shot with two seconds left to defeat the Greenwood Lady Rangers, 35-34, in overtime Friday night.

Greenwood's junior varsity also suffered a one point overtime loss, falling 30-29.

The Lady Rangers were led by Denisa McMullan's 16 points; Tiffany Long and Robbie McCullom combined for an additional 13.

Greenwood's record now stands at 1-1; Sweetwater is 2-0.

The Lady Rangers next visit defending 4-5A champion San Angelo Central Tuesday night. The junior varsity begins play at 5 p.m.; the varsity follows at 6:30.

Timely Tips

Norfolk Island Pines may be decorated to celebrate the Christmas season and enjoyed the rest of the year as an indoor tropical plant! Place your Norfolk Pine in a cool room in moderate to bright light, away from drying heat sources such as heater vents, fireplaces and television sets. Keep the soil moist but never allow to stand in water. Fertilize 3 times a year: Spring, Mid- Summer, and early Fall. Norfolk Pines perform best in a container that is snug. Too large a container will retain too much moisture in the excess soil.

SHERRILL

"A crucial facet of the matter, in our opinion, is that after learning of the content of The Dallas Morning News story before publication, the young man involved called Mr. Robert Smith, the university official in charge of NCAA compliance matters, and essentially denied the allegations to be published," Stephenson said.

"University officials are in the process of setting up a meeting as soon as possible with the young man to determine the facts in the form of a sworn statement. We also will be seeking sworn statements of everyone else involved, including athletic department personnel."

Slocum said: "I have a gut feeling that any time any program has an accusation like that made, it certainly is cause for concern. I would say we are concerned about this."

"Hopefully this is the end (of the accusations)," said Dana Batiste, a senior linebacker for the Aggies. "It's coming to the end of the season and everything will just go off."

Batiste said talk of Sherrill resigning was just rumors.

"That's not my Coach Sherrill you're talking about. The guy I know wouldn't (resign)."

Smith said he received $500 in cash on Sept. 13 — four days after school officials announced at a news conference that the NCAA had levied major sanctions against the university's football program.

The newspaper said that payment, one of three Smith claims to have received since June 6, was sent to Smith's Atlanta home in an overnight express envelope. The envelope bore the return address of Bob Matey, a member of Sherrill's support staff.

Two other overnight express envelopes bore the return names and addresses of A&M receivers coach George Pugh and a Matey associate who is not employed by the athletic department, the newspaper reported.

The News said it obtained all three envelopes from Smith. One dated Sept. 26 was opened in Atlanta in the presence of a newspaper reporter and contained five $100 bills.

In more than eight hours of tape-recorded interviews, Smith later told The News that Sherrill and his staff provided about $10,000 in money, extra benefits and airline tickets.

Smith, a Georgia high school All-American when Sherrill recruited him, joined the Aggies in the summer of 1982 and quit the team in early 1984 to transfer to Clemson University.

On Thursday, he said he had been contacted Wednesday night at his Atlanta home by coach Pugh's wife. As a result of that conversation, Smith said, he would refuse to stand by the statements he made in the tape-recorded newspaper interviews. Before those interviews, Smith signed a notarized, sworn statement that he would "be truthful in the information he provides."

A&M vice president Robert Smith, no relation to the former fullback, said George Smith had contacted him early Thursday, only a short time before A&M officials were to meet a reporter and editor from the Morning News. George Smith refused to say what his conversation with university officials entailed.

"If I say it didn't happen, nothing happened," Smith said Thursday. He said that Pugh, a longtime Sherrill assistant who recruited him, was being unfairly singled out by Sherrill as the allegations unfolded.

In interviews with The News, the ex-player recalled that Sherrill had pledged to "take care of me" and provide a good-paying job working around the head coach's College Station home.

Smith said Sherrill ultimately paid him hundreds of dollars for minor yard work — an apparent violation of NCAA extra benefits regulations.

In other alleged violations of NCAA rules, Smith claimed:

- Sherrill and Pugh routinely paid for round-trip plane flights between College Station and Atlanta.
- Sherrill, who also serves as athletic director, also arranged for Smith to receive credit for a physical education course he did not attend.

Texas A&I competing in first NCAA playoff game today

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Lone Star Conference champion Texas A&I faces Mississippi College Saturday in the first round of the NCAA Division II football playoffs, the Javelinas' first post-season appearance since they became affiliated with the NCAA in 1981.

As a member of the NAIA, Texas A&I was involved in eight post-season playoffs and won seven national championships.

The matchup at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Javelina Stadium is the Mississippi College Choctaws' second appearance in the playoffs. This year's Gulf South Conference co-champions also reached the semifinals in 1979 before losing to eventual champion Delaware.

Texas A&I earned a spot in the playoffs with an 8-2 season record. The Javelinas have been ranked in the NCAA Division II's top 10.

CARTER—

Carter on Nov. 11 beat Plano East — which along with Grand Prairie had protested a previous state ruling allowing Carter to advance through the football playoffs.

Kirby said his decision hinged on a player's daily class grade that was changed by Carter Principal Clarence Russeau.

The commissioner found the principal had no authority to change the grade recorded by the teacher, and that the change violated Texas' no-pass, no-play rules.

"Clearly it was a poor management decision. Clearly policy was violated by Mr. Rousseau. It is clear the district made a calculation error," Kirby said.

The weeklong controversy began Nov. 10 when officials from the UIL and TEA reviewed the algebra grades of football players Gary Edwards and Ramon Wright. An anonymous letter and telephone call prompted officials to look into an alleged grade scandal.

Edwards is a running back and defensive back who scored two touchdowns in last week's playoff game. Wright is a guard.

After test scores were refigured, Dallas Independent School District and Carter High officials decided to forfeit the team's final three games, essentially putting the undefeated 8-0-1 Cowboys out of the running for the state championship.

South Grand Prairie High School, which had lost to Carter during those three games, was told its football team would meet Plano East in the Nov. 11 night game.

But hours before the game, district officials reversed their decision after it obtained additional information. UIL and TEA officials conducted a hearing and supported Carter's eligibility, based on grading standards unique to the high school.

In a 2½-hour meeting with Deputy Commissioner Tom Anderson and other education agency staffers, Dallas Independent School District officials demonstrated that Edwards' unsatisfactory grade was the result of a failure to follow Carter's grading procedure.

Hours after the state's ruling Wednesday, the Plano school board voted to challenge it.

"We have a lot of kiddos out in Plano who want to participate in the playoffs," said Luna. "Some of them have chances to earn scholarships."

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Sidekicks scored four consecutive goals to rally past the Wichita Wings, 8-5, before 9,110 at Reunion Arena.

Wichita took advantage of a five-on-three situation to take a 5-4 lead on Erik Rasmussen's goal :43 into the third quarter.

OWLS

Reagan County had a tough go in the first half, even though DeLeon only outgained the Owls 145-111. While 59 of those Owl yards were on a sweep by halfback Sergio Balderas, the Bearcats put together two long scoring drives that ate up the majority of the first half.

The Bearcats simply executed when they had to in the first half. West's quarterback draw on third-and-long netted 24 yards and pushed the 'Cats into RC territory on their first drive.

DeLeon got even closer on runs by hsifback Chad Nabors and fullback Lance Maltby. Nabors capped a 14-play drive by bouncing off a couple of would-be tacklers for a five-yard scoring run with 3:05 left in the first period. Burk added the PAT kick.

Reagan County took advantage of a roughing the kicker penalty to drive within 20 yards of a touchdown early in the second period, but Guerrero was sacked by DeLeon tackle Gerald Lewis on fourth-and-four to turn the ball over on downs.

The 'Cats then ate up most of the rest of the half with a 13-play drive that was fueled by a 24-yard pass play from West to ... yep, Burk again. The pass was tipped by RC linebacker Johnny Levario, but Burk caught it anyway. West scored the 'Cats second TD with a bootleg run from three yards out just beyond the two-minute mark.

But the Owls weren't done yet. In what was almost a repeat of last week's 79-yard TD scamper against McCamey, Balderas swept around right end, only to be caught from behind by the speedy Nabors.

Still, the Owls were within range of a score and got down to the Bearcat nine before Guerrero was shaken up and backup Robert Subia threw three incomplete passes to end the half.

Subia's tosses were on the money, but alert defensive play from Nabors, West and Seth Davis thwarted Owl hopes.

But the Owls picked up where they left off in the second half, driving 61 yards on 10 plays for their first score on an eight-yard run by sophomore fullback Willie Black at precisely the midway point of the quarter.

Meanwhile, the Owl defense held the 'Cats to nine total yards in the third quarter.

DeLeon finally got untracked again with a 10-play drive in the fourth quarter that looked like trouble for the owls, especially when Burk punted to the RC seven-yard-line with 2:56 left.

Reeger was far from unhappy with the Owl performance, however. "We played as hard as we could, and they played as hard as they could."

In what was almost a postscript, Balderas finished with 140 yards rushing on 21 carries to put him over 1,100 yards for the season.

A&M student newspaper asks for Sherrill's resignation

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M University's student newspaper called for the firing of Athletic Director and Head Football Coach Jackie Sherrill after a Dallas newspaper reported more improprieties in the school's football program.

The Battalion also said that perhaps the school should be given the death penalty by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, a punishment that would abolish the Aggie football program.

In editorials Friday, the Battalion said if allegations published in a copyright story by The Dallas Morning News are found to be true, "Sherrill must resign immediately" and take anyone else involved with him.

Former Aggies fullback George Smith told The News that Sherrill paid him $4,400 in a series of cash and money order transactions dating back to November 1986, including $500 in cash four days after the NCAA slapped the Aggies with a two-year probation in September.

Smith called the payments "hush money" that were made as Sherrill's athletic program was being investigated for violations by the NCAA.

The NCAA placed Texas A&M on probation after investigators substantiated numerous violations of regulations that govern extra benefits to athletes. The Aggies also were barred from post-season play this season.

Sherrill announced Friday evening that he was voluntarily relinquishing his coaching duties for Saturday's game against Texas Christian.

The Battalion said attempts to reform the Aggies football program "has been nothing short of a farce." Sherill's actions, if true, is "an insult to Texas A&M fans, students, former students and the university itself," the editorial said.

"It was Sherrill himself who assured the nation that he was at the forefront of the cleaning-up program. It was Sherrill who said, 'I'm glad it's over with. We'll take the hand that's been dealt to us and give it our best shot.'

"And it was Sherrill who said, if just such an occasion as this should arise, 'President Mobley will not have to fire me. If Jackie Sherrill does something to warrant it, Jackie Sherrill will leave this institution,' " an editorial said.

English teachers recognize the worst

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Doctors at a Philadelphia hospital described a patient's death as a "diagnostic misadventure of a high magnitude."

The 5,000 workers at a Chrysler AMC plant found out a new "career alternative enhancement program" meant their plant was closing and they were out of jobs.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, referred to capital punishment as "our society's recognition of the sanctity of human life."

These are some examples of what the nation's English teachers Friday recognized as the year's worst doublespeak.

"We're corrupting what language is supposed to do, and that's communicate," said William Lutz, a Rutgers University professor who headed the public doublespeak committee of the National Council of Teachers of English, based in Urbana, Ill. "We cannot function without language."

First prize in the 1988 Doublespeak awards went to U.S. military officials for their explanations of the July 3 downing of an Iranian airliner by the U.S. Vincennes in the Persian Gulf.

There aren't many of us left who remember Sixbey's General Store. It was more than a store; it was a gathering place, a new bureau, a bright spot in a boy's summer afternoon.

You would come in from the hot dusty street, and the shaded store was cool. Immediately one encountered a tantalizing blend of scents—apples, licorice, spices and smoked ham. Grown-up conversation enhanced your feeling of excitement as they viewed and reviewed town happenings. One always took a long time to decide between a chocolate or a lemon drop, so that this exciting visit could be prolonged.

Our town has changed since then. For those of us whose memories linger in Sixbey's Store, it hardly seems the same place.

Yet, one thing's the same. At the corner of Elm and Main, St. Mark's steeple still points skyward. Man's need for God never changes. And the Church remains constant as it teaches the truths of God's love and presence.

Why not see for yourself this week.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Greater St. Luke AME to honor its founding

The Rev. W. O. Johnson, pastor of St. Paul AME Church, Beaumont, will be the featured speaker at the celebration of the founding of Greater St. Luke to held at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Johnson

Greater St. Luke AME Church, the second black church organized in Midland, was established in 1928 by the Rev. H.Y. Tyler. Until an adobe structure was completed at the corner of Lee Street and Texas Avenue, members worshiped in homes and under a brush arbor on the lot. The Rev. George A. Lowe was pastor of the church when the second sanctuary was built at the corner of Adams Street and Kentucky Avenue.

The church will celebrate the 60th anniversary of its founding, and the founders and their descendants will be honored.

Johnson is a former pastor of Greater St. Luke. The public is invited to joint this celebration at 3 p.m. Sunday at Greater St. Luke AME Church, 401 S. Adams St.

New pastor welcomed

Members of the Westside Church have recently welcomed Charles Taylor, new minister for the church, and his family to Midland.

Taylor

The Charles Taylor family comes here from Lubbock.

In June, the Taylors returned from an eight-year term as missionaries in the city of Recife, on the northeast coast of Brazil. During the period from 1974 to 1976, Taylor and his wife, Terrie, served as apprentice missionaries in Dublin, Ireland, as part of the Adventures in Missions program.

During their stay in Ireland their first child Kamalyn, now 13 and attending Goddard Jr. High, was born. The Taylors have two other children, both born in Lubbock, Charlton who is 12 and attends DeZavala, and Marissa aged 10, who studies at Quannah Parker.

"The Westside Church invites everyone to come and hear Taylor preach about the loving and eternal truths surrounding Jesus Christ," says a release from the church.

Regular services are on Sundays at 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. and on Wednesday at 7 p.m. at 4410 W. Illinois Ave.

For more information call 694-3614.

Christian Scientists prepared to share service with friends

When Christian Scientists in Midland join with friends and neighbors for Thanksgiving services this Thursday, they'll be sharing gratefully what an understanding of God and His love has done for them, their families and their communities, says a release from the church.

It's a tradition among Christian Science congregations to hold these special services each year for the community. This year the one-hour service at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 1001 W. Tennessee Ave., will begin at 10:30 a.m.

A large portion of the Thanksgiving service will be devoted to spontaneous sharing from the congregation. These services have always been a time when Christian Scientists may tell of their own experience.

Christian Scientist teaching reflects, the release says, Jesus' promise in the Bible: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also... ."

The church service will include hymns, prayer and readings from the Bible and from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by church founder Mary Baker Eddy.

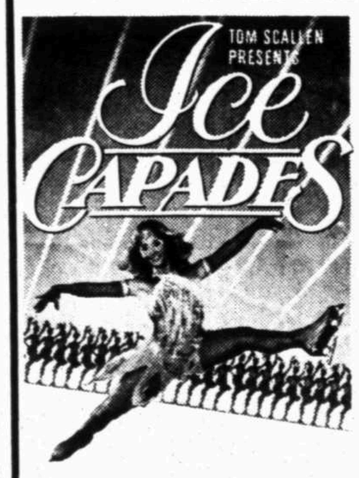

Local members of the Christian Science church "warmly invite the community to join with them in thanks to God" this Thursday.

Care for children too young to attend the service will be available.

East German bishop will be guest speaker

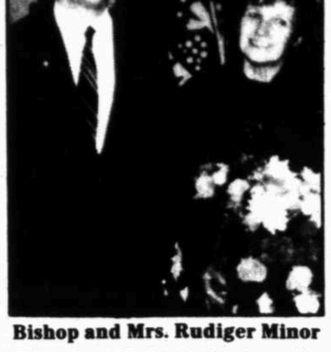

LUBBOCK — Bishop Rudiger R. Minor, presiding bishop over the only United Methodist Annual Conference behind the Iron Curtain, will be the guest of honor during three events in the Northwest Texas Annual Conference Monday and Tuesday.

Minor, who is head of 90,000 United Methodists in the German Democratic Republic, will bring a "State of the Church" address and will focus on religious life in East Germany during the three planned events.

In addition to speaking about the church's role in the Communist-block country, Minor will address two critical needs in the East German United Methodist Church: the retirement center in Schwarzenshof is in desperate need of repair, especially to the roof, and the publishing of books is in great demand.

No funds will be solicited during the three events, but interested persons are invited to contribute to these two crucial needs of United Methodist Christians behind the Iron Curtain.

The public is invited to attend Minor's three stopovers in Northwest Texas: 7 p.m. Monday, at Polk Street United Methodist Church, 1401 S. Polk, Amarillo, no reservation necessary; noon on Tuesday, First United Methodist Church, 1411 Broadway, Lubbock. Luncheon reservation necessary, $6 per person. Call 1-806-792-9997 for reservations; and 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at McMurry College Campus Center, South 14th Street and Sayles Blvd., Abilene, dinner reservations necessary, $6 per person, call 1-698-1841 for reservations.

Freed hostage says faith essential during ordeal

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — Recently freed from nearly two years as a hostage of Islamic fundamentalists in Beirut, a university professor says some kind of religious conviction is necessary to make it through such an ordeal.

"You've got to have courage and faith in some absolute," says Mithileshwar Singh, an India-born American resident dumped on a Bierut street Oct. 3 after 20 months of captivity.

"It was to what I know of God and of myself in relation to God that I had to turn in my 611 days," he said in an interview with Religious News Service, one of his first since his sudden, unexplained release.

"Everybody has an end to his strength. I was near the end of mine. The others (still held) must be coming near the end of theirs, too."

For the last six weeks, he has been staying at a Presbyterian Church retreat center at Stony Point, N.Y., to "collect myself, get well and get ready to go to work."

Singh, 61, a business administration professor who has spent much of his career teaching in the United States but was teaching at Beirut University College when kidnapped, said:

"In the beginning, your span of endurance is large, but as time goes on the span of time grows longer than the span of endurance. You become mentally exhausted, confused, listless."

He said the he and three other hostages were kept together, usually in handcuffs, by the Islamic Jihad (Holy War) Organization for the Liberation of Palestine.

In the 20 months, he said, they were moved six times to different locations, usually a room measuring about 10 by 12 feet, with food adequare, a bath allowed once a week.

"Our captors listened to our physical and medical needs but they did not listen to us as people," Singh said. "To be a captive is to have nobody to rely upon to give meaning to what you are going through except for yourself.

"We had no meaning for the Jihad (kidnappers) as individuals, only as representative figures."

Singh, a Hindu, said at one time to endure while "very sick and weak," he reached back to his adolescence in India when he once continuously chanted mantras (a repetitious prayer form) for a week.

"So now again, in the room I shared with the other captives, I turned to my mantra, wrapping my blanket over my head and chanting softly," Singh relates.

"One million mantras I figure I said in that room. And as I said them I grew grateful for the experience, the chance, to do again at my age what I did in my youth."

It was the "process of saying the mantra, of thinking of God and of myself and the universe, that saved me, I think," he said.

"The point I am trying to make is that we as children, as adolescents, as young people should not try to live in a materialistic vacuum."

GOP governors back attack on deficit

POINT CLEAR, Ala. (AP) — The nation's Republican governors, gathering today for partisan brainstorming, generally hope their party's new man in the White House will attack the budget deficit with tight controls on spending.

"Taxes are still too high in this country," said Delaware Gov. Michael N. Castle, chairman of the National Republican Governors Conference, which is holding its today-through-Tuesday meeting at the Grand Hotel resort on Mobile Bay.

"We need to continue to look for ways to reduce costs, to invest in prevention-oriented solutions at the state level, to collect the billions of (tax) dollars that are not being collected right now," Castle said.

He was among the Republican governors interviewed by The Associated Press before the conference. Most called for restraint in spending, some using President-elect George Bush's phrase of a "flexible freeze," in offering their view of how he should deal with the budget deficits of the Reagan years.

"Cut spending, especially on the entitlement side," recommended New Hampshire Gov.-elect Judd Gregg, who is succeeding Bush's chief of staff-designate John Sununu.

"Go after the COLAS (cost of living adjustments), don't believe anything (House Speaker) Jim Wright has to say relative to the budget and don't make deals."

Alabama Gov. Guy Hunt, the host of the conference and the first Republican elected governor of Alabama this century, was the only GOP chief executive to mention specifically a balanced budget amendment as an answer to the deficit.

But whatever the solution, said Hunt, controlling the deficit must be the highest priority of the new administration. Without it, he said, "I don't think you can address the other matters."

Hunt said Bush, who addresses the conference Tuesday, has indicated to him that deficit reduction will be his "first priority."

"I'm sure the president plans to handle it by continuing to expand the economy and second by working with Congress to reduce the level of expenditure and set spending by priorities," said Florida Gov. Bob Martinez, whose state is host to the governors Sunday on a tour of the USS Lexington at Pensacola.

"Controlling spending is critical to deficit reduction," said Wisconsin Gov. Tommy G. Thompson, "and the line-item veto authority should be enacted to help our next president and the United States succeed in reducing the federal deficit."

New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean advocates spending restraint on the federal level, but not the kind of across-the-board cuts imposed by the Gramm-Rudman Act, said Kean spokesman John Samerjan.

"The governor believes that instead of taking a meat ax to the budget, the federal government should take a scalpel," he said.

Democrats denounce Atwater style

PHOENIX (AP) — Democratic Party officials, trying to avoid a leadership fight of their own, Friday denounced President-elect George Bush's choice for Republican Party chairman as a practitioner of "a pit bull style of politics."

"If Lee Atwater is going to be the next Republican chairman, I think we know what the next election cycle is going to look like," said Texas Democratic Party chairman Robert Slagle.

Atwater managed the Bush presidential campaign against Democrat Michael Dukakis. Many Democrats blame him for the negative tone of the Republican campaign.

"We are ready to take on Lee Atwater and those who would create a pit bull style of politics," said Rick Wiener, the Michigan Democratic Party chairman.

The choice of Atwater gave the Democrats a chance to lash out at a Republican instead of each other as they met for the first time after their fifth defeat in the last six presidential elections.

The occasion was a meeting of the Association of State Democratic Chairs, and the principal order of business was not on the agenda — it was to convince Paul G. Kirk Jr. to serve a second four-year term as national party chairman.

"Keep Kirk," read big red and white buttons worn by many state party officials.

The chairman, sounding reluctant to stay on for another term, has said he would listen to appeals from party officials before making his final decision.

At least five party activists, including three former congressmen, intend to run for the job if Kirk decides not to stay.

One of them, former Rep. James Stanton of Ohio, wore a "Keep Kirk" button and told reporters, "If he's a candidate, I support him. If he's not, I'm a candidate."

More than 4,000 children celebrate 60th birthday of best-loved rodent

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Some kids tweaked Mickey's nose Friday and others sang "It's a Small World" in Russian, German or English when more than 4,000 children joined in celebrating the 60th birthday of the famous Walt Disney mouse.

"Next to winning the hockey championship at school, this is the best thing that's happened to me in my life," said 10-year-old Christopher Leitao of Boston.

Vitaly Yakimov, 9, from Moscow, said the best part was that "everybody smiles, the children and adults, everybody."

Shortly after noon, in groups of 10 to 100, specially invited children — many of them poor or from foster homes — from 116 U.S. cities and several other nations assembled for a parade from Cinderella's Castle down Main Street to town square in the Magic Kingdom.

Decked out in brightly colored Disney T-shirts and mouse-ear hats, youngsters ranging in age from 8 to 12 marched behind Mickey and Minnie Mouse. They waved and sang "M-I-C-K-E-Y" along with the band as they became the center of attention for the tourist crowds in sunny, 80-degree weather.

Mickey Mouse's day-long party celebrated the squeaky-voiced character's debut Nov. 18, 1928, at the Colony Theater in New York City in "Steamboat Willie," the first cartoon to have sound synchronized with the pictures.

"People who saw Mickey Mouse in his heyday during the Depression saw that he had so many of the foibles that they had, and was striving to get ahead in the world just like them," said Disney archivist David Smith. "People looked up to this mouse."

Friday's festivities also included a global sing-along of the "Mickey Mouse Club March," the famous theme song that spells out Mickey's name, on radio stations around the world. Disney said broadcasters on every continent and at the North and South poles played the 12-line classic at 9:50 a.m. EST.

Most of the children were selected by mayors or officials of social service organizations in their communities. Some were from foster homes, many came from poor families and most never had an opportunity to visit Disney parks or similar attractions.

Disney threw a similar party for an equal number of children at Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif.

After their march the youngsters became the spectators for a special Mickey's Birthday Parade of Disney characters, bands, horses and floats.

Cable cut disrupts service

NEW YORK (AP) — Telephone service and computer systems along the entire East Coast were disrupted Friday when a primary transmission cable was severed by a construction crew in New Jersey, AT&T announced.

The accident in the Brown Junction railroad yard in Sayreville, N.J., forced rerouting of thousands of calls which ordinarily use the cable, said AT&T District Manager Jim Nelson.

"It's almost like a highway, in that you have to go along it to get from say, New York to Florida," said Nelson. "This is a major blockage, affecting the whole East Coast."

In addition to affecting phone service, several private customers using phone line transmissions — including The Associated Press — experienced service problems Friday afternoon, said Nelson.

The disruption in service meant many callers either got a recording telling them to dial again or a busy signal, said Nelson.

Air control to be reviewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Jim Burnley, calling the recent handling of Air Force One by air traffic controllers "unacceptable," has ordered an immediate review of air traffic procedures along the Northeast air corridor, it was learned Friday.

Burnley directed that review in a letter to FAA Administrator Allan McArtor after a federal investigation revealed earlier this week that a string of controller errors involving four FAA facilities caused Air Force One and a commuter plane to fly unusually close to one another over New Jersey.

The two aircraft came within 500 feet vertically and 1.5 miles horizontally as they both began their descents into Newark International Airport on Oct. 12. That's about half as close as is normally allowed by federal regulation.

Mrs. Quayle refuses seat

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Marilyn Quayle said Friday she doesn't want the U.S. Senate seat her husband will give up to become vice president, but an aide to Gov. Robert D. Orr says about 25 other people are interested.

Orr has interviewed at least eight candidates, but has made no formal list, said aide James E. Knoop.

Mrs. Quayle, in a statement released by her husband's transition office, said she told Orr she is not interested in succeeding her husband.

Japanese tire of wait for Hirohito's death

TOKYO (AP) — When Emperor Hirohito was stricken two months ago, Japan donned the cloak of "jisshuku," self-restraint in deference to his condition. Now they are weary of waiting and gloom, and many complain of losing money.

Sumiko Iwao, a sociologist at Keio University, said people expected Hirohito, 87, to die fairly soon after he coughed up blood from an intestinal hemorrhage Sept. 19.

"They canceled all these events and toned things down, thinking it would only be two weeks," she said. "Now there are lots of economic repercussions. People are saying, 'Haven't we done too much?'"

Eriko Kurabayashi said: "So many things have been canceled — concerts, year-end parties, sports events. If all this was something that could help the emperor, all right, but it's caused so many problems for people."

She said her company, which sells stuffed animals and party decorations, is in a slump because "stores are buying a lot fewer of our products, especially stores near the Imperial Palace."

Hotel banquet business has declined dramatically because people want to avoid the appearance of celebration. Manufacturers of Christmas ornaments complain of slow sales and some say there will be no traditional year-end bonuses for employees.

Commercial television will lose money when Hirohito dies because commercials will be taken off the air for two days.

A network reporter, speaking on condition of anonymity, said, "Financially, all the television stations are hoping the emperor's death is announced before 6 p.m. It may be terrible to say, but if it comes later in the night, we'll lose advertising income for that night plus two full days."

While the emperor lives, news media spend hundreds of thousands of dollars daily keeping reporters, sound trucks, cars and drivers at the palace and on 24-hour standby.

Some reporters have been hospitalized with fatigue and others spend so much time at the palace they have clean underwear sent by express mail.

The post office has a particular dilemma about New Year greeting cards, which sell for 40 yen (33 cents) and and are marked with the year of the emperor's reign.

It printed 3.7 billion cards marked Showa 64 for the 64th year of Hirohito's Showa Era. But if the emperor dies before 1989 begins, the cards should carry the mark of the new imperial era, as yet unnamed.

Palace and government officials remain resolutely silent about what will happen when Hirohito dies. Any comment would acknowledge that the government is preparing for the death of the man who has ruled longer than any living monarch and once was considered divine.

Some sectors of the public are less deferential. Opposition political parties condemn excessive reverence for the emperor, which they say is fostered by bureaucrats and the press.

A group calling itself Christians Proposing the Emperor's Apology wants Hirohito to apologize for Japan's conduct in World War II.

In a letter to Crown Prince Akihito, the organization said Japan had ruled other Asian countries brutally in the emperor's name and declared:

"Because your father has not taken responsibility for this, the deep anger of many of the people of Asia and of the people of Japan has recently increased. If your father were to end his life without (apologizing), we are deeply concerned that your father might be in the end unable to bear up under the judgment of God, the Lord of history."

OPEC oil ministers try to break impasse

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — OPEC oil ministers huddled Friday to break an impasse between Iran and Iraq that threatens to scuttle the cartel's efforts to raise crude prices.

Oil officials from the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries shuttled among three hotels in the Austrian capital in search of a solution.

The oil ministers are trying to fashion a new production agreement that would limit output and push up prices, which are running $4 or more below the cartel's benchmark of $18 a barrel.

Analysts have been skeptical about chances that the ministers would be able to come up with a strong agreement, however.

Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh met for about 90 minutes with officials from Nigeria, Indonesia and Venezuela.

"I don't have anything new for you," he told reporters after the meeting in the plush Marriott Hotel.

"It's too early to say something...I hope we reach a solution," he said.

Iraq's oil chief, Issam Abdul Raheem al-Chalabi, arrived at the hotel a few hours later for lengthy talks with the other ministers.

"Our position has not changed," he said before the discussions.

OPEC Secretary-General Subroto, the former Indonesian oil minister, said the meetings were "taking place in a good atmosphere."

"We are hearing several approaches that we are trying out," he said. "There are many approaches to the problem and we should not totally follow one track."

He refused to offer any details.

He acknowledged the task was difficult.

"We are realistic enough to understand that these problems we are facing are not easy ones," he said.

At issue is Iraq's insistence on being allowed, under an OPEC agreement, to produce the same amount of oil as rival Iran. Iran has refused such parity.

The cartel sets quotas or ceilings on the amount of oil its 13 members can produce.

The ministers are trying to arrange a new accord — the current one dates to 1986 — that would limit the recent surge in production that has added to the already glutted market.

Iraq refused to join the current arrangement because of its demand for parity with Iran.

Since the two countries agreed to a cease-fire in August in their 8-year-old war, efforts have been stepped up to try to bring Iraq back into the OPEC quota system.

Aghazadeh said he was still pressing for "export parity" with Iran. That refers to his proposal that the rivals be given the same quota for overseas sales.

But Iran wants a higher overall ceiling to account for its greater domestic demand estimated at some 1 million barrels a day. Iraqi internal demand is put at about 300,000 barrels a day.

Yugoslavia's Ethnic Mix

Yugoslavia, a multi-ethnic state of 23 million people, is divided up into the six socialist republics of Slovenia, Croatia, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Serbia, Macedonia and Montenegro. There are three official languages (Serbo-Croat, Slovenian and Macedonian) and at least 20 different ethnic groups.

Serbia: The country's largest republic (8.1 million people) includes the provinces of Vojvodina and Kosovo and is mostly agricultural. Its capital, Belgrade, is the federal capital and the country's largest city with 1.5 million Serbians. Kosovo, the autonomous province bordering Communist Albania, is Yugoslavia's most ethnically troubled and most backward region. It is dominated by ethnic Albanians, who make up 90 percent of Kosovo's 2 million population.

Slovenia: A northern alpine republic bordering Austria and Italy. It has the most prosperous economy with 8 percent of the national population (1.7 million) accounting for 24 percent of the national exports.

Croatia: This second most developed Yugoslav republic and, with Slovenia, has the country's most Roman Catholics. The 4.4 million Croats have resisted attempts by the Serbs to dominate the rest of Yugoslavia. It was the birthplace of Communist Yugoslavia's founding father, the late Josip Broz Tito.

Bosnia-Herzegovina: This mountainous central Yugoslav republic has most of the country's 1.9 million Muslims, a term used to denote descendants of nearly five centuries of Turkish occupation. The capital of Sarajevo was the site of the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand of Austria in June of 1914, the spark that started World War I.

Macedonia: Yugoslavia's southernmost and poorest republic earns its meager earnings from agriculture. Its state-run industrial enterprises are largely unprofitable. It has a population of 1.3 million.

Montenegro: This mountainous home to 600,000 is bordered by Albania at its southernmost tip. It is second poorest with some earnings from tourism along its Adriatic coast.

90,000 ethnic Albanians protest leaders' ouster

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) — More than 90,000 ethnic Albanians rallied throughout Kosovo province Friday to protest the forced resignations of two provincial leaders, and officials warned the demonstrators to go home.

The rally in Pristina, capital of Kosovo province, was estimated by the state news agency Tanjug at 70,000, making it the largest demonstration ever in Kosovo.

At least 22,000 other people gathered for rallies in other Kosovo towns to protest also the continuing pressure from the Serbian republic for more control over its restive southern province, Belgrade radio and television reported.

The protests set off a flurry of meetings and warnings by provincial and federal officials in this communist country.

Kosovo's acting Communist Party President Remzi Koljgeci, an ethnic Albanian, went on Pristina radio late Friday, telling demonstrators to disperse or "we will be forced to undertake all measures available under the constitution." He did not elaborate.

After his appeal, crowds began to break up in Pristina.

Stefan Korosec, secretary of the powerful national Central Committee, made a similar appeal on national radio and television. But he did not make any threats.

Korosec and Interior Minister Dobroslav Culafic, head of Yugoslavia's police forces, traveled to the province Friday to try to quell the unrest, news reports said.

State television appealed to ethnic Albanians, who were descending on Pristina for official celebrations Saturday of the city's 1944 liberation from the Nazis, to stay away. It said the situation was "deteriorating."

Witnesses said at least 20 trucks filled with riot police were seen moving toward Pristina, indicating a crackdown might be imminent.

The national Communist Party's ruling Politburo met in emergency session Friday evening to discuss the protests.

Kosovo's leaders discussed the possibility of "emergency measures...in case the so far peaceful protests turn into riots," an informed source close to the leadership told The Associated Press. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Protesters held thousands of portraits of the late Yugoslavian leader Josip Broz Tito, who signed the 1974 constitution granting Kosovo wide autonomy.

"We don't want changes of Tito's constitution!" the protesters chanted in Albanian. "We will give our lives, but we will not give up Kosovo!"

The protests followed the forced resignations Thursday of two popular Kosovo ethnic Albanian leaders, Azem Vlasi and Kacusa Jasari.

The most recent eruption of ethnic violence in Kosovo was in 1981, when at least nine people died as about 40,000 ethnic Albanians clashed with police after demanding that Kosovo become a full-fledged Yugoslav republic.

Vlasi and Jasari have been the main targets of resignation demands by Serbia's Communist Party chief Slobodan Milosevic in his drive to bring Kosovo under tighter Serbian control. Kosovo's minority Serbs and Montenegrins, mainly Christian, claim discrimination by the predominantly Moslem ethnic Albanian majority.

Vlasi addressed the Pristina crowd at a municipal sports stadium, saying: "I think this gathering is the reaction to the pressures and against ongoing, vulgar, nationalist hatred" at some Serbian rallies.

Milosevic planned to address a mass rally in Belgrade today. It is expected to draw up to 1 million Serbs, a source at Belgrade television said.

Soviets warn Afghan rebels

KABUL, Afghanistan (NYT) — The Soviet military command in Afghanistan formally warned the guerrillas Friday that it would react strongly against "further military escalation."

The command said it had already taken "additional measures to stop subversive and terroristic acts of the armed opposition."

The statement, which was read to the press by Lt. Gen. Lev B. Serebrov, believed to be the head of military intelligence of the Soviet command, was occasioned by two guerrilla attacks this week.

Sunday, the general said, 10 Russians were killed and 11 wounded when a passenger plane of Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, was struck by shellfire as it was about to take off from the Kabul airport.

Wednesday, seven foreign journalists and two Afghan soldiers were wounded in a rocket barrage on the Khyber Pass road near the Pakistani border.

Serebrov asserted that the fire had come from Pakistan. The journalists had been taken to the border region to prove an Afghan government contention that the road links to Pakistan, often cut by guerrilla action, have been secured by government troops.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Canada's Liberal Party comes back

TORONTO (AP) — Whatever the outcome of Monday's election, it will be remembered for the remarkable resurgence of Liberal Party leader John Turner and his relentless attack on the free trade agreement with the United States.

Turner, lambasted for increased deficits when he was finance minister and hiring goofs during a 79-day stint as prime minister, has struck campaign pay dirt with an attack that portrays Canada as a U.S. colony if the trade deal passes.

His forceful charge to Prime Minister Brian Mulroney during a televised debate — "You sold us out!" — invigorated a flagging Liberal campaign and set the tone for its final days.

Turner's nightmare vision of a weakened Canada has catapulted the Liberals into a dead heat with Mulroney's Progressive Conservative Party, according to polls.

Thursday, Turner told voters the deal would let United States overwhelm Canada and turn it into a "branch plant."

Only a Conservative majority government now will ensure that the trade agreement starts Jan. 1 as scheduled. The agreement is to phase out all remaining tariffs between the two countries over a 10-year period.

The socialist New Democratic Party, expected to finish third Monday, also opposes the trade agreement Mulroney signed with President Reagan in January.

The 1988 campaign already stands in sharp contrast to 1984, when the Conservatives devastated the opposition to win 211 of the House of Commons' 282 seats. The Liberals — with Turner at the helm — fell from the 147 seats they won in 1980 to 40.

In 1984, Turner inherited the Liberal Party leadership from Pierre Trudeau and served as prime minister through the election. It was the second-shortest term as prime minister ever in Canada.

Peace proposals discussed

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Lawmakers from the 16 NATO nations said Friday they fear peace pronouncements by Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev may be designed to "weaken Western resolve and cohesion."

The legislators, ending a six-day congress of the advisory North Atlantic Assembly, also called on NATO to urgently develop a comprehensive plan of how to proceed with disarmament negotiations with the Soviet bloc.

City officials said Friday that 69 people were injured when rock-hurling anti-NATO demonstrators clashed with riot police late Thursday. Two people were arrested.

U.S. Sen. William Roth, R-Del., told the assembly there are "serious transatlantic differences" that could threaten unity among NATO's member nations as Gorbachev's popularity in Western Europe increases.

In a resolution passed by the assembly, the lawmakers urged NATO to "develop and make available as a matter of urgency a comprehensive concept of arms control...that will guide alliance policy in current and forthcoming negotiations."

The body also urged the Warsaw Pact to slow down its military modernization program.

Outspoken bishop elected

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Mexico's Roman Catholic bishops have elected an outspoken cleric openly critical of the ruling party as president of their council.

Monterrey Archbishop Adolfo Suarez Rivera was elected to a three-year term Thursday by his peers on the Mexican Espiscopal Conference, news reports said.

Suarez has been critical of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party's nearly 60-year domination of Mexican politics and blamed it for the political apathy he said grips the nation.

The PRI has been in power since 1929.

Allende's widow quoted

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — Hortensia Bussi, widow of Chilean president Salvador Allende, said the fight against dictator Gen. Augusto Pinochet did not end with the recent plebiscite in Chile, the government newspaper said Friday.

"It is not true that this put an end to the exile of more than 1.5 million Chileans," the 74-year-old widow said, according to El Nacional. "Their individual rights still are not respected."

Allende's widow, who lives in exile in Mexico, spoke during a ceremony at which she was awarded an honorary doctorate degree Thursday by Puebla University for her human rights work.

She said that now, more than ever, Chileans must unite against Pinochet, who has ruled the country 15 years.

Seniors at Casa de Amigos are thankful for staff, volunteers who make their life more meaningful

Casa de Amigos has many activities and services available for senior adults. Dolores, Duran, Pinky Elgin, Petra Lujan and Thelma Hubbard are enjoying a weekly craft class.

Due to the super generosity of Midlanders, programs and services abound in the Senior Citizen Program at Casa de Amigos. Recently a couple was referred to Casa by another agency. Their staff made a home visit and assessed the needs of the family which ranged from food to a housing problem.

"Through our discretionary fund, we were able to assist families with food, as well as clothing from our rummage room. And we introduced them to our daily senior citizen programs. We are very thankful that because of the various funding we receive from foundations, the United Way, churches and individuals, we are here to offer these services to them," stated Isabel Gonzales, program director. "In addition to funding, the efforts of caring volunteers have helped our staff carry out the wide scope of programs and services. Volunteers are a wonderful asset to all of our programs."

The programs that are available at Casa de Amigos include health related activities such as monthly general health screening, a bi-monthly diabetic screening and exercise classes, which include walking, that meet three times a week. They also have presentations about nutrition and other health related matters through out each month.

The activities for senior adults are focuses towards enrichment and enjoyment of those participating. "Coming to Casa has renewed my mind," said Eliza Grant. "We smile a lot as we participate in the activities."

These range from ceramic, craft, and rock polishing classes to out of town trips, museum tours and interesting places around Midland. "Senior citizens from Casa also enjoy visiting other senior centers and love going to the Community Theatre," Gonzales stated. "We also have lots of senior adults who come here to play pool or dominoes and dancing is always a favorite past time."

Social services are a very important part of Casa's senior program. The staff help translate items for the senior citizens, as well as help them with their various forms of assistance. One way they keep their participants informed is through presenting informative programs. They also make referrals to other agencies or doctors and advocate for them when necessary.

One person who has benefited by the services offered through Casa de Amigos is Blaz Zuniga. "I started coming to Casa when I retired. I volunteered in the senior program and now that I've had to stay with my wife who is ill, I have found Casa to be a real friend in supporting me and suppling my needs. They often translate for me and advocate for us when we need them to."

Casa de Amigos also offers many opportunities for senior adults to volunteer their time. They are taken to visit residents in a convalescent home, where they have chosen a friend to visit on a regular basis. They assist Casa, as well as other agencies in preparing items for mailing and will assist with programs and meals. Gonzales said that these adults are finding a better and more fulfilling life by participating in the programs and activities that Casa offers them.

"I love to come everyday. We are given special attention from the staff and volunteers," explained Lupe Garza. "I especially enjoy the opportunity of volunteering myself. I work in out little co-op store, sometimes translating for the participants."

"As we celebrate this Thanksgiving, we can all be proud and thankful for the love our community has poured out to our older citizens at Casa all year round," concluded Garza.

Mental skills need to be stimulated especially during 'prime time' years

When elderly people find that their minds are not as sharp as they once were, they may not be suffering from inevitable biological decline, a Penn State researcher has found. It may just be that they have let their mental skills get rusty.

And, as much as 14 years of deterioration mental ability can be quickly reversed with fairly simple training techniques.

"Half of our subjects showed significant improvement after just five one-hour training sessions," says Sherry L. Willis, associate professor of human development.

For her study, Dr. Willis chose 229 participants from the Seattle Longitudinal Study, a Penn State project that has tracked intellectual ability in 3,000 Seattle-area adults since 1956.

The participants in the smaller project had been in the Seattle Longitudinal Study for at least 14 years, and ranged in age from 64 to 95.

Dr. Willis's study focused on two skills which commonly begin to decline after age 60: spatial orientation (the ability to solve logical problems.)

Spatial orientation is important for such tasks as assembling a piece of furniture from a diagram or reading a road map. Inductive reasoning is needed for following the instructions on an income-tax form or a medicine-bottle label or for understanding the arguments in a newspaper editorial.

About half of the 229 participants had declined on one or both of the skills over the previous 14 years while the other half had remained stable.

For older adults who want to sharpen their mental skills, Dr. Willis suggests taking advantage of continuing education courses offered by colleges, high schools and churches.

Financial freedom, security at retirement can depend on profit from property sale

Selling your home, whether it is a single-family house, condominium or townhouse, can be a very rewarding experience. Or, it can be a financial disaster, according to Bonnie Cox of Action Realty.

The objective of the sale is always to make as much money as possible. However, at no time is this more important than at retirement. Your financial freedom and future happiness depends on your realizing the maximum profit from your property sale.

To maximize profit from a property sale, three important steps should be taken, one at a time. The steps are quite simple and must be understood before your home goes on the market. One mistake can easily cost thousands of dollars in revenue, or taxes paid unnecessarily. It is far cheaper to pay fees for expert advice than to make a mistake that costs far more.

To get top dollar for any home, it must be clean! Making minor improvements, by spending as little as possible, can make all the difference in the world.

Start with the exterior. A poor first impression will turn many potential buyers away. Make sure the lawn in neatly trimmed and edged. Trees and shrubs should be pruned to compliment your house, not hide it. Paint is one of the cheapest and most profitable improvements you can make.

It is the rare buyer who can overlook sloppy housekeeping, poor maintenance and dirt. And if they do overlook the mess, they will expect to buy at a rock bottom price. So, work on all the little things that will create a positive overall atmosphere. Keep in mind the following quick tips:

- You may be accustomed to the dog smells, cigarettes and cooking odors, but the potential buyers are not. Because you can't anticipate individual likes and dislikes, try to go with an overall clean smell.
- Take full advantage of natural light by keeping window clean and pulling back the drapes.
- Arrange the furniture to make the room look as open as air as possible. Avoid the clutter of too many knick-knacks.
- A few logs placed neatly on the hearth may create a nice, cozy feeling.
- Keep the kitchen free from too many small appliances which can minimize the apparent work-space. Also, deodorize the disposal.
- Create a warm and inviting room by setting out an attractive tablecloth and fresh flowers.
- Cleanliness is especially important in the bathroom. Replace worn shower curtains and non-skid decals. To help camouflage stains, use a colored toilet bowl cleaner.
- A clean car will indicate that you take pride in your possessions and maintain them well. This will reflect positively on your home.
- Don't forget to check for pests! Be sure to exterminate if necessary. One bug may completely turn away potential buyers. Preparing your home for sale can be a lot of work, but the rewards can make it all worthwhile.

When the house is ready to go up for sale, it is time to determine the market value. The market value is not based on how much the seller thinks the house is worth, the amount needed to bring a good profit, how much has been invested in the house or is needed to pay off debts.

The market value depends on what other people are willing to pay for your home at the time it is offered for sale. To determine what people are willing to pay, use recent sales prices (and terms) of residences in your immediate area.

The financing terms offered on the home play an important part in determining market value. If "easy" financing is available, buyers will often pay more than if the seller wants an all cash deal. Consider carrying a first or second mortgage for the buyer. This flexibility will open your home up to the greatest number of potential buyers.

Child, parent may exchange roles in later years

By Mary Buchwald
Copley News Service

Like quietly falling snow, the winter season of life advances slowly.

A birthday slips by unnoticed; an appointment is missed; Dad locks himself out of the house and can't get back in. A bill goes unpaid.

Little things. Insignificant things. But they have the potential to become full-blown crises when Mom or Dad lives alone.

Statistics show that of about 28 million Americans older than 65, about 30 percent live alone. Half are about 75 years old, and most are widows. Statistics also show that less than 25 percent of those older than 85 reside in nursing homes.

That leaves a lot of older people living on their own.

Experts agree that it is best to let seniors live independently for as long as possible. But when health and memory fail, alternatives need to be found. That's usually when a son or daughter gets involved in their parents' decision-making.

Presently, there about 5 million Americans caring for a parent, according to statistics.

That role of "caregiver" can cause profound stress for those "sandwiched" between elderly parents and their own family and home.

They have other concerns besides their elderly parent: careers, jobs, their own children at home, and sometimes financial or personal problems. Distance also complicates matters when the elderly parent lives in another state.

As caregivers, adult children find themselves in the position of having to make the choice whether to enlist outside help for the parent who wants to live independently but is no longer able, to have the parent live with them or to move them to a nursing home, when all else fails.

For many caregivers, it is not a comfortable position. There are, however, several organizations that offer seminars, counseling and other related services to ease the difficulties.

There seems to be a need for support. Having an objective sounding board can be particularly helpful for persons who feel caught in this dilemma — where they have to make decisions that they don't feel emotionally equipped to make.

Sometimes a parent living alone can manage only because caregivers are doing the cooking, cleaning, shopping and other chores — and "burning themselves out" helping.

The older person will allow only his adult child into the home to help, not a stranger from a caregiving agency. As long as the adult child is providing the services, the parent can avoid making a decision to go into a nursing center or having support from an outside source. The parent may not even realize what it's costing that adult child.

Adult children need to be open and honest with a parent in telling them what they can and cannot do. Most parents do not want to impose on their children and are willing, when mentally able, to make some of the decisions about their own care in their declining years.

Wherever possible, parents should have a say in their future — whether it is to go into a nursing center or under the care of a social service agency.

Community service agencies across the United States can play an important role when an adult's aged parents live alone and out of state. Some services that caregivers can look into:

Find a friend or neighbor to keep watch. Arrange for them to call in a crisis. To avoid resentment from the aging relative, clear it with them first.

Arrange for a daily check-in. Most communities have an outreach program. These programs usually are staffed by volunteers who call clients at a prearranged time each day to make sure the older person is all right.

Check into a medical alert system. Most area hospitals have an emergency response system to provide an older or disabled person immediate access to emergency help at any time. They only need to press a button carried in the pocket or attached to clothing. When it is pressed, it automatically sends out a call for help.

Hire a geriatric-care manager. The care manager sees that broken appliances get fixed, Medicare claims are filed, and that someone is hired to assist with housework and do other chores. The care manager reports weekly to the family.

Financial Focus BY VAN M. PEARCY

TAKE TIME TO PLAN YOUR TAX STRATEGY

There's still time in 1988 to plan for taxes. The mistake people most commonly make is to wait until the tax year is over to plan. Then, it's too late.

One thing many investors realized in 1987 is that lower tax brackets do not necessarily mean lower taxes. On the contrary, many taxpayers saw their taxes increase without a proportional increase in earnings.

The key to proper tax planning is to understand what income is taxed, how it is taxed, and what can be deducted from it. Once you establish your taxable income, you know your tax bracket.

Although much has been written about the lower tax rates of 15 percent and 28 percent, they don't apply to everyone. If your taxable income goes above a certain level, a 5 percent "surtax" kicks you into the 33 percent marginal bracket regardless of what the Internal Revenue Service calls it.

For example, let's say you file a joint return with taxable income of $100,000. Your tax bill is $16,264.50 on the first $71,900 plus an additional $9,273, 33 percent, on the rest.

One surprise item that can substantially increase taxable income is capital gains. Investors often sell a long-held asset, such as common stocks or mutual funds, at a profit. At one time that long-term gain was given a reasonable benefit by being taxed only a maximum 20 percent. This is no longer true. Now it is taxed as ordinary income just as if you had gone out and earned it.

The time to calculate capital gains is before the tax year ends. For example, if capital gains have placed you in a high marginal tax bracket, look carefully for any losses to offset the gain. You may deduct those losses from your short- or long-term gains. You may also carry over any losses that you don't use in one year to future tax years.

Review all your securities before year end for tax-loss candidates. What if you own a security you feel has good potential but is currently worth less than you paid for it? Consider selling it, taking the loss and buying it back later. It's a legitimate tax strategy if you are careful to avoid a "wash sale." Understand the rules before you act.

Once the year ends, it's too late to apply sensible tax strategies that could save you hundreds of dollars. If you see taxes are taking an extra big bite out of your income, take time now to meet with a professional and to do some serious tax planning.

Death penalty opponents say innocents have been executed

DALLAS (AP) — Opponents of the death penalty say innocent people are executed but the public generally isn't aware of it.

"I'm not saying everyone on death row is innocent. But innocent people have been executed and one innocent person is one too many," San Francisco attorney Robert R. Bryan said at a speech kicking off this weekend's meeting of the 1988 National Coalition to Abolish the Death Penalty. Bryan is chairman of the group, meeting at Southern Methodist University.

Texas was the obvious choice for the conference because it leads the nation in executions, with 28 since the U.S. Supreme Court resumed capital punishment in 1976, said Rick Halperin, Amnesty International regional co-coordinator for North Texas. The coalition is an umbrella group of religious and other groups opposed to the death penalty, he said.

"We as a human species have been killing each other in the name of God and law for thousands of years...and yet the crime rate doesn't go down, the murder rate doesn't go down. Obviously this is not the answer," Bryan said in a speech at SMU Thursday.

"I think we should start looking to see why people commit crimes rather than just treat the result later."

Bryan said that's what he did when he defended Jerry Bigelow, a California death row inmate convicted of murder. Although Bigelow confessed 10 times to the slaying and begged to be executed, he was acquitted by the jury that heard Bryan's arguments.

Bigelow confessed to the crime because he was accustomed to doing so as a child to avoid beatings from his father, Bryan said.

"Every person I know of who has ever been on death row who actually committed the act, was victimized as a child."

Bigelow's case is on appeal because of a legal question that threw the case into mistrial.

Bryan said the case clearly depicts what the coalition will try to convey this weekend.

"Mistakes do occur. Sometimes things are not as they seem."

But as the conference meets, 10 more execution dates in the next three months are pending in Texas. Nationally, 102 executions have occurred since capital punishment was reinstated.

Dallas trial lawyer Brad Lollar, quoting a recent newspaper poll, said 86 percent of Texans favor use of the death penalty and 90 percent of the white population advocates its use.

"The death penalty does seem to be justified retribution," he said.

And hours before Bryan told the SMU audience how he saved Bigelow from execution, a jury in San Antonio used a new Texas law to sentence a convicted mass murderer to death by lethal injection.

Thursday the jury sentenced Leo Narvaiz Jr., 20, to death for the stabbing deaths of his former girlfriend, Shannon Mann, and three of her siblings. Under a new Texas law, multiple homicide is a capital murder offense punishable by death by lethal injection.

Expansion of the the death penalty to drug-related murders also makes up the core of a new anti-crime package drafted by state lawmakers, who are following the lead of similar national legislation.

"Admittedly, the imposition of capital punishment and life imprisonment are harsh and tragic sanctions," Rep. Dan Morales, D-San Antonio said when he unveiled the package Wednesday. "But severe criminal offenses require correspondingly severe legislative responses."

The proposed expansion of the capital punishment statute would involve murder committed in a situation involving manufacture and delivery of the "more harmful" substances, such as heroin, Morales said.

LULAC director calls English-only amendment 'anti-democratic'

AUSTIN (AP) — The League of United Latin American Citizens blasted the so-called "English Only" movement Friday and said it would try to block any legislation designating English as the official language of Texas.

"English as the official language is anti-democratic," said LULAC state director John T. Garcia of El Paso. LULAC is the largest and oldest Hispanic organization in the nation.

"Even though there may be majority rule, democracy includes protecnority rights do not impinge upon the rights of the majority," said Garcia.

In a news conference, Garcia responded to attempts by the American Ethnic Coalition to push through legislation making English the official language of Texas.

Lou Zaeske, founder of the American Ethnic Coalition, said last week 23 of Texas' 181 legislators would sponsor such a law when the Legislature convenes in January.

The American Ethnic Coalition also said it would try to repeal state laws allowing lower tuition rates for Mexican students attending public colleges in Texas; allow public schools to discard bilingual education; and try to stop all state agencies from engaging in bilingual governmental operations.

Garcia said the lowered tuition rates strengthen relations with Mexico, bilingual education helps Mexican-American students succeed in school and state government runs more effectively with bilingual operations.

"The American Ethnic Coalition by its agenda set out last week demonstrates their hatred, dislike and contempt for anything that has to do with the Spanish language or Spanish culture," Garcia said.

He said if English as the official language were put on a statewide ballot, it might pass because of fear about Hispanic influence spread by its supporters. Hispanics made up about 21 percent of the Texas population, according to the 1980 census.

"The American people should not be apprehensive about the patriotism or loyalty of Hispanic Americans," Garcia said. He said more Hispanics have been war heroes than any other minority group.

In the recent general election, Florida, Colorado and Arizona voters approved establishing English as their states' official language.

Central American refugees overwhelm Border Patrol

By JOEL WILLIAMS

SAN BENITO (AP) — It was a relatively slow day Friday at the Comfort Royale Motel, a haven for Central American refugees, where in a three-day period the Border Patrol has apprehended 136 people.

Those apprehended are among a steadily increasing influx of Central Americans crossing the Mexican border into the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Immigration officials said they barely can keep up with the number of people applying for political asylum once they get across the border.

Border Patrol agents picked up only 11 undocumented Central Americans Friday at the Comfort Royale, but on Wednesday and Thursday apprehended 125 at the motel, which is showing signs of wear from heavy use.

San Benito, about seven miles from the Rio Grande near the southern tip of the state, is not the only city with an influx of aliens, but the sheer numbers have made local residents nervous.

"People are complaining now, with people loitering around all areas of San Benito and with the crime rate going up," said David Trevino, supervisory intelligence agent with the Border Patrol's McAllen Sector, which includes the Valley.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has seen a sharp rise in the number of political asylum applicants, primarily Nicaraguans, since last spring. A total of 1,622 applied for asylum in the INS' Harlingen District for the week ending Friday, the most the district has ever reported in a single week.

The 459 applicants Tuesday exceeded the 405 who applied for asylum in Harlingen for all of 1987, said Virginia Kice, INS spokeswoman for the district.

INS District Director Jerry Sewell said many Central Americans seeking to better themselves economically have learned that applying for political asylum automatically makes them legal, at least temporarily.

"They get coached by other people and then they say, 'I can't go back because I will be persecuted,'" Sewell said.

Once they have submitted applications, the asylum candidates may travel on to their declared destinations in the United States, past the Border Patrol checkpoints north of the Valley.

"Very few of them follow up on their applications once they are in the United States," Sewell said.

The more than 21,000 Central American asylum applicants in South Texas since the end of May have caught the attention of officials in Washington, who are considering new measures to deal with the immigration tide, Sewell said.

Thousands more have been apprehended and deported this year without applying for asylum, officials said.

"We're just about up to all we can handle with available personnel," Sewell said. "Those who are supposed to do the work are pretty much up to their eyebrows."

At the Comfort Royale Motel Friday afternoon, Marcos Elias Blanco Figueroa, a 37-year-old Nicaraguan, said he plans to apply for political asylum soon and move to Miami with his wife and two children.

"You just can't make it in Nicaragua," he said.

The political system and shattered economy drove him to the United States, Blanco said.

At the edge of the parking lot, the motel had set up a stand where it was selling sandwiches, coffee and fruit to the Central American refugees.

A man, who identified himself as the manager, said up to five people may stay in a room for a total of $45. He displayed the hole in a ceiling in one of the rooms, where Border Patrol agents searched for aliens the night before.

He refused to reveal his name, and referred most questions to his lawyers, but would not identify them either.

Outside, when a visitor started talking with some of the tenants in the parking lot, the man ordered them back to their rooms, and they complied.

DS80 JR50

If you know little ones who want to start off-roading, Suzuki knows where to start-the JR50 and DS80. The single-speed transmission, throttle limiter and low seat height make the JR50 perfect for beginners. For slightly bigger beginners, the DS80 has a five-speed transmission and Full Floater suspension. And they'll really go for the enduro styling. Start the little ones out right on a JR50 or DS80.

STATUARYC.. RUSSELL Known worldwide for his works in sketching, painting, watercolors and sculpting, and famous for selling very important works in saloons to drinking acquaintances and passers-by for a shot of his favorite, Russell's importance, like that of so many greats, was only discovered after his death. STAGECOACH & HORSES is extremely detailed, with identifiable passengers inside stage coach, reins on horses, etc. A very impressive work of art in solid bronze. THE ROUNDUP depicts a cowboy rounding up long horn steers.

THE MOUNTAIN MAN & THE MOUNTAIN LION depict a large cat attaking frontiersmen on horseback. THE MEDICINE MAN depicting Indian on horse, holding the skull of a buffalo (a famorite trademark of Russell's) in air praying for longevity of the buffalo. There are several other small bronzes in this collection which are signed or attributed to this noted western artist. It is a very important collection.
FREDERIC REMINGTON The Frederic Remington cast-after-death Bronze collection is second to none. Frederic Remington, known worldwide for his western art and fireside stories, which were done in the old west in the late 13th centrury is also one of the leading sculptors on Bronze. At the turn of the century he began some of the western figures still locked in memories of the days spent sketching, painting and writing stories about the western frontier life which was hungrily awaited by the eastern newspapers and magazines. With the same balance and expression in these clay figures which was characterized in his sketches and paintings, Mr. Remington's friends convinced him to have these figures cast into bronze for an everlasting example of his artistic style. This superb western bronze collection cast after Mr. Remington's death in 1909 will be on the auction. The price realized will be determined by the connoisseur who bids the most on the priceless collection which includes: The Old Dragoons of 1850, depicting soldiers fighting Indians with long knives; Sergeant, depicting bust of Calvary Sergeant; Stampede, a large bronze depicitng cowboy on horse among several stampeding longhorns; Coming Thru The Rye, four horsemen at full gallop with pistols raised in air; Northerner, a horse with rider bundled up against a western winter; Bronco Buster, a rodeo-style rider on a bucking horse; Cheyenne, An Indian on horse leaning into the wind with spear in hand; Buffalo Horse, collision of horse and buffalo, with Indian in flight; Wicked Pony, a rider on ground after being thrown, still holding onto horse's ear; wounded Bunki, a white Calvary office helping wounded black soldier riding sideby side; Outlaw, horse reared on front feet trying to free himself from rider; Rattlesnake, rider on horse, reared on back feet because of snake in path; Scout, Indian on horse holding scalp in hand with mouth open for war whoop; Wooly Chaps, Cowboy with sheepskin chaps on reared horse; Trooper of the Plains, Calvary trooper with pistol drawn, on horse, at full gallop; Mountain Man, a frontiersman descending mountainside on horse with rifle, traps, etc. - exceptional detail; Savage, bust of Indian, artist dated 1908; Buffalo Signal, Indian waiving buffalo hide in air signal his find; and many more fabulous pieces.
