ORDER MOVING CASE FOLLOWS 2-DAY HEARING

Court Finds From Evidence By Defense That Case Must Be Moved

TRIAL DATE NOT SET

Court Fixes Texas Capital As Trial Site After Agreement

FORT WORTH, Nov. 2.—(AP) Fort Worth today lost the murder trial of its leading fundamentalist pastor. Judge George Hosey of criminal district court after hearing about 20 witnesses testify that Norris could not obtain a fair and impartial trial on the indictment charging him with the murder of Dexter Elliott Chipps decided to grant the pastor a change of venue. He selected Austin, the Texas capital for the trial city.

Some of the witnesses said they had heard men express the belief that Norris' neck should be broken, that he should be shot, and that he should be hanged and the testimony of the mayor of Fort Worth, H. C. Meacham, that he had hired special prosecutors at a $15,000 fee to prosecute Norris for killing his friend Chipps, was considered to have no little weight with the judge.

No "Combine" Evidence.

No evidence was heard on Norris' allegation that "a combine" of politics and religion, of the city administration and Roman Catholics, had been created to prosecute him all of the testimony going to the question of alleged widespread fixed opinions in the case. The judge announced after noon recess that the defense had established its case on the change of venue and that he didn't wish to hear any more evidence on the question. Prosecution attorneys vigorously protested that they should be heard on the "combination" charge, and intimated that they wished to defend Mayor Meacham and the citizenship of Tarrant county as they stated the impression had been left that the citizenship was not fair minded, but the judge declined to reverse his stand.

The question of where the case should be sent then became a knotty problem. The attorneys announced at one time that they had agreed on Austin, the state capital, but when it developed that District Attorney Hanger had not been a party to this agreement and that he wanted a more populous county, the agreement was withdrawn by prosecution attorneys.

Hanger Out of Case.

Hanger pointed out, however, that since his term expires January 1, and it is probable the case cannot come to trial before that date, no personal desire influenced his judgment. He believed the case was of such magnitude that the facilities of a larger city would be needed.

Judge Hosey said he did not want to send it to San Antonio because of the large Catholic population there which might be an injustice to Norris, and that he had heard Norris had experienced trouble in Dallas and Houston and that he would rather select some other place.

Many Towns Considered.

Attorneys consumed hours following the judge's announcement in arguing relative merits of Texas cities. Almost every town in the state was mentioned in conference and in the court room.

The date of the trial at Austin is unknown, as the case must be set by the criminal court there, Mr. Hanger said he thought it would be set for the January term. The only step now is to transfer the papers to the Austin court and certify that the change of venue has been placed in that county.

Dr. Norris was elated at the turn of the case, characterizing his application for change as a bombshell" to the prosecution and declaring that the state "now hasn't a leg to stand on; the case is all over." He said any county but Tarrant would suit him.

Many Have Opinions.

One of the weighty considerations in the judge's decision was the response of the court room of prospective jurors to the judge's question as to how many of them had formed opinions. About 80 per cent of the veniremen held up their hands, and when the judge asked how many did not have a fixed opinion only a few put up their hands.

State Protests When Norris' Counsel Suggests Wichita Falls As Site For Murder Trial On Change of Venue

Norris Cracks Joke For Newspaper Reporters Tuesday While Court Hears Arguments Which Send Pastor's Trial To Texas Capital

BY FRANK BALDWIN
(The Record News Staff Writer)

FORT WORTH, Nov. 2.—Rev. J. Frank Norris, sometimes said to be a lover of publicity and who admits that he is not adverse to it, entertained a group of newspaper men from many states Tuesday afternoon while attorneys for state and defense held a conference to discuss what county his murder case should be tried in.

"It's all over now since the venue change has been granted," said the pastor, "they thought they were going to try me. But it looks like they tried someone else."

To Expose Conspiracy

"The purpose of our filing the application for a venue change was not because we did not want the case tried in Tarrant county. I would have been acquitted here or in any other county. We filed the motion to show that there was a conspiracy against me. Of course the state will say that we did not prove it, but we alleged it in open court. It's a matter of public record and it was not denied by witnesses."

The pastor insisted that he was ready for trial any time "It's just a matter of time until I will be acquitted," he said.

As forecast late Monday, Judge Hosey came to the conclusion that the case was prejudiced in this county. The venire of five hundred was dismissed early Tuesday afternoop. But the crowd lingered to hear what the court would say on the county where the pastor is to face trial. It was 4:15 p. m. when attorneys came from their conference with the statement that they would agree on travis county.

Left To Attorneys

Judge Hosey previously said that he would accept the county picked by the counsel. Then the defense objected to Travis. During the parley between the lawyers, Norris, surrounded by reporters and representatives of the nation's largest news gathering agencies, told jokes. He related several incidents that had occured while he was holding revivals. "All the newspaper men are not my friends," he said, "some of them don't like me. There is one certain man, he's dead now, and I hope he's in heaven."

"You mean if there is a heaven," interrupted one of the reporters.

"Well, there is a heaven and you know it, too," Norris replied.

"That calls for a column interview," smiled another news gatherers, "go on with your story."

Norris then related the story of the editor he did not like and who did not like him.

Norris Tells Yarn

"He kept taking a crack at me in his columns and unjustly," said the pastor defendant, "finally I got enough. I asked my audience how long it takes a man dressed in blue pajamas to go down a hotel fire escape in below zero weather when a husband unexpectedly arrives in town. The folks laughed. The editor left town until after my meeting was over."

Norris declared that any county in Texas would be agreeable as far as the venue was concerned. McLennan and Wichita counties were discussed at the attorneys conference. Wichita Falls was objected to by the state.

A factional fight might develop at Waco which would probably interfere with jury selection, the defense attorneys remarked.

COUNTY POLLS LIGHTEST VOTE IN MANY YEARS

Democrats Leading By 6 to 1 On Face of Early Returns In This Precinct

In what was probably the lightest vote polled in a general election in recent years, Wichita county retained its democratic complex Tuesday when it voted the democratic ticket by a margin of about six to one. With 29 boxes complete last night out of 39 in the county, a total vote of 1,824 had been polled. This contrasts with a vote of about 10,600 in the first primary last July and a vote of about 1,000 less in the runoff in August.

In 19 boxes complete in Wichita Falls, a vote of 1,202 was polled. The three boxes at Burkburnett, all complete, polled 263; two boxes at Iowa Park, complete, polled 173, and five boxes at Electra, all complete, polled 186.

The four constitutional amendments voted on all carried in the county with the exception of one reported box. In precinct 2, Wichita Falls, election judges reported that the amendments lost by a slight margin. They gave no figures. In all other boxes reporting, however, the proposed changes carried almost without exception. In some instances the margin of difference was not great, but it

The Quanah, Acme and Pacific of the Frisco lines have filed protests against the construction of the new railroad. The Fort Worth and Denver and other interested roads have made no announcements.

PASSAGE OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS INDICATED BY SCATTERED VOTE IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Nov. 2. (AP)—Returns to the Texas Election Bureau at 11:30 p. m., from 109 out of 252 counties, including five complete, show the following totals:

Governor: Moody 65,069; Haines 7,221.
Prison amendment: For 25,787; against 11,293.
Soldier amendment: for 24,461; against 12,250.
District amendment: for 24,169; against 11,322.
Tax amendment: for 26,272; against 10,685.
Congress, 14th district: Rogers 6,249; Wurzbach 7,201.

Few or no upsets were indicated in the general election returns received up to 11 o'clock Tuesday night. The entire Democratic state ticket apparently would receive a majority of around 10 to 1 over the Republican ticket, and all but one of the Democratic congressional candidates seemed sure of election. In the 14th district Harry M. Wurzbach, Republican, had a slight lead over his Democratic opponent, Rogers, and was gaining.

Cold weather and mud curtailed the voting in some sections, but in others, especially where local issues were involved the voting was unusually heavy for a general election. Allen Seale, who lost to Schuyler Marshall, Jr., a contest to be named Democratic nominee for sheriff of Dallas county, apparently had been elected, his followers holding a parade on the strength of the lead he held.

Outcome of the election in Willacy county where a strong independent ticket was in the field, was still in doubt at a late hour, only a small margin separating the opponents. No disturbances were reported there or in other border towns, to some of which rangers had been sent by Governor Ferguson.

BOYS HELD IN HASKELL CASE

Electra Police Arrest Youths As Suspects in Murder Of Watchman

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Nov. 2.—Electra police placed under arrest about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning two men who they believe are the slayers of J. K. Beauchamp, Haskell night watchman found dead in the entrance of a Haskell store nearly two weeks ago.

The two had been driving about the city all evening with apparently no purpose and had been closely watched. At 3 o'clock in the morning they were placed under arrest as they halted in front of the First State bank. They had in their possession a high-powered rifle and an automatic pistol, along with a large box of corks, officers said.

Engine Number Marred

The car in which they were riding, a Chevrolet roadster, had had its serial number mutilated and bore the license plate of a 1926 Ford sedan belonging to Lee Anderson of Acme.

One of the men arrested carried papers showing discharge from the navy about two months ago, and this is considered very important in view of the fact that the Haskell burglars left a navy seabag packed with loot in their flight. When they were questioned separately, one of the men declared that they had been "out on a big party," while the other claimed that they were on their way to Wichita Falls to hire cotton pickers.

Claim Acme Home

They claimed to be brothers, with a father living at Acme. Their ages were given as 23 and 25.

Chief of Police Walsh of Haskell is on his way to Electra to aid Chief Taylor in questioning the men.

MANY RACES IN DOUBT AS VOTE COUNT DELAYS

Senator Butler, Coolidge Choice in Massachusetts, Loses to Democrat

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—Slowly accumulating returns from yesterday's general elections developed so many uncertainties that despite notable democratic gains some of the outstanding contests remained in the doubtful column.

Coolidge Man Loses.

The democrats not only reelected Governor Smith in New York, but picked up one senatorial seat in Massachusetts, defeating Senator Butler, personal friend of President Coolidge and chairman of the republican national committee. Senator Wadsworth of New York also appeared to be in danger.

Two seats in the house of representatives one in Pennsylvania and one in New York had swung over from the republican to the democratic column, but most of the congressional districts which had been debatable ground still were to report.

Democrats Leading.

On top of their victories in Massachusetts and New York, the democrats were keeping their senatorial candidates in the lead in Arizona, Missouri, Maryland, Oklahoma and Kentucky, although the returns were not decisive, all of these states now are represented by republicans.

In all, the democrats must pick up nine seats to overturn the present republican majority in the senate.

Klan Issue Stirs.

In Indiana, stirred in the closing days of the campaign by charges of a corrupt republican ku klux klan combination, Senators Watson and Robinson, both republicans, were leading on partial returns, but by comparatively narrow margins.

Illinois and Pennsylvania, on which the senate's "slush fund" committee concentrated its action showed widely differing returns. Representative William S. Vare, the republican senatorial nominee in Pennsylvania, had a comfortable majority but Frank L. Smith, manager for the senate by Illinois republicans was faced with paring away down-state a heavy majority rolled up in Chicago by George E. Brennan, his democratic opponent. The Smith managers professed confidence in the outcome.

Many Races In Doubt.

The slowness of the returns left in doubt many contests for state and local offices. Of the thirty-three states electing governors only six had reported the result early today and except for New York all of them were either in the democratic solid south or in undisputed republican territory.

Although the democrats had gained only two seats in the new house out of the 213, Chairman Oldfield of the democratic congressional campaign committee still was claiming that the new congress would be democratic.

213 Seats Involved.

Besides the returns from the solid south, where the democrats only had serious opposition in a few instances, the 213 contests decided include those involving most of the house seats in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois.

In addition to the two seats thus far gained from the republicans, the democrats will need 34 more to get control of the house. They have to win nine of the senate contests to obtain a clear majority in that branch of congress.

Indiana Race Tight.

A close contest for each of the two senatorial seats in Indiana was forcast by the midnight returns, with Senator James E. Watson, republican, leading Albert Stump, democrat, by approximately 10,000 with one-eighth of the state accounted for. Senator Arthur R. Robinson was 8,000 ahead of his democratic opponent, Evans Woolen.

In Kentucky, Alben W. Berkley was approximately 1,000 ahead of Senator Richard P. Ernst, republican, on the face of incomplete returns from 43 out of the state's 120 counties.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES SWEEPING OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 2 (AP)—Senator John W. Harreld, republican tonight apparently had been buried beneath a democratic avalanche that swept the state of Oklahoma in today's general election. With more than one-third of the state precincts reported, Harreld was more than 17,000 votes behind Congressman Elmer Thomas, democrat.

Henry S. Johnson, democrat, had a lead of more than 10,000 votes over Omak K. Benedict, republi-

State Protests When Norris' Counsel Suggests Wichita Falls As Site For Murder Trial On Change of Venue

Norris Cracks Joke For Newspaper Reporters Tuesday While Court Hears Arguments Which Send Pastor's Trial To Texas Capital

BY FRANK BALDWIN
(The Record News Staff Writer)

FORT WORTH, Nov. 2.—Rev. J. Frank Norris, sometimes said to be a lover of publicity and who admits that he is not adverse to it, entertained a group of newspaper men from many states Tuesday afternoon while attorneys for state and defense held a conference to discuss what county his murder case should be tried in.

"It's all over now since the venue change has been granted," said the pastor, "they thought they were going to try me. But it looks like they tried someone else."

To Expose Conspiracy

"The purpose of our filing the application for a venue change was not because we did not want the case tried in Tarrant county. I would have been acquitted here or in any other county. We filed the motion to show that there was a conspiracy against me. Of course the state will say that we did not prove it, but we alleged it in open court. It's a matter of public record and it was not denied by witnesses."

The pastor insisted that he was ready for trial any time "It's just a matter of time until I will be acquitted," he said.

As forecast late Monday, Judge Hosey came to the conclusion that the case was prejudiced in this county. The venire of five hundred was dismissed early Tuesday afternoon. But the crowd lingered to hear what the court would say on the county where the pastor is to face trial. It was 4:15 p. m. when attorneys came from their conference with the statement that they would agree on travis county.

Judge Hosey previously said that he would accept the county picked by the counsel. Then the defense objected to Travis. During the parley between the lawyers, Norris, surrounded by reporters and representatives of the nation's largest news gathering agencies, told jokes. He related several incidents that had occured while he was holding revivals. "All the newspaper men are not my friends," he said, "some of them don't like me. There is one certain man, he's dead now, and I hope he's in heaven."

"You mean if there is a heaven," interrupted one of the reporters.

"Well, there is a heaven and you know it, too," Norris replied.

"That calls for a column interview," smiled another news gatherers, "go on with your story."

Norris then related the story of the editor he did not like and who did not like him.

Norris Tells Yarn

"He kept taking a crack at me in his columns and unjustly," said the pastor defendant, "finally I got enough. I asked my audience how long it takes a man dressed in blue pajamas to go down a hotel fire escape in below zero weather when a husband unexpectedly arrives in town. The folks laughed. The editor left town until after my meeting was over."

Norris declared that any county in Texas would be agreeable as far as the venue was concerned. McLennan and Wichita counties were discussed at the attorneys conference. Wichita Falls was objected to by the state.

A factional fight might develop at Waco which would probably interfere with jury selection, the defense attorneys remarked.

Wichita Falls was the stronghold of North Texas Methodism Tuesday night and promised to be even more so Wednesday night when most of the 50 delegates expected here for the annual conference of this district arrive. The conference opens officially at 9 o'clock this morning with Bishop Sam Hay of Houston presiding. The first guns were fired Tuesday night in preliminary discussions and a sermon by Rev. Thomas J. Beckham of Dallas delivered in the First Methodist church, south, auditorium. The official convention program, however, opens this morning.

General convention headquarters are at the First Methodist church, south, where Rev. Walter J. Johnson and his corps of assistants are in charge. Working hand in hand with them, however, is Rev. S. The opening of the convention this morning marks the first time in 15 years that Wichita Falls has been host to a Methodist conference convention.

COUNTY POLLS LIGHTEST VOTE IN MANY YEARS

Democrats Leading By 6 to 1 On Face of Early Returns In This Precinct

In what was probably the lightest vote polled in a general election in recent years, Wichita county retained its democratic complex Tuesday when it voted the democratic ticket by a margin of about six to one. With 29 boxes complete last night out of 39 in the county, a total vote of 1,824 had been polled. This contrasts with a vote of about 10,600 in the first primary last July and a vote of about 1,000 less in the runoff in August.

In 19 boxes complete in Wichita Falls, a vote of 1,202 was polled. The three boxes at Burkburnett, all complete, polled 263; two boxes at Iowa Park, complete, polled 173, and five boxes at Electra, all complete, polled 186.

The four constitutional amendments voted on all carried in the county with the exception of one reported box. In precinct 2, Wichita Falls, election judges reported that the amendments lost by a slight margin. They gave no figures. In all other boxes reporting, however, the proposed changes carried almost without exception. In some instances the margin of difference was not great, but it

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Nov. 2.—The proposed Ardmore, Vernon and Lubbock railroad has received the approval of the M-K-T officials, whose line the new road will cross at Ardmore, according to a questionnaire sent out by the proposed road, and the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient road has unofficially announced that it favors the construction of the new road. The Quanah, Acme and Pacific of the Frisco lines have filed protests against the construction of the new railroad. The Fort Worth and Denver and other interested roads have made no announcements.

Hallowe'en Rowdies Break 40 School Windows.

VERNON, Nov. 2.—Hallowe'en activities reached a serious nature here when license was taken in regard to the central school building. More than 40 windows were broken and interior decorations were badly damaged by missles. Playground equipment was also torn up.

PASSAGE OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS INDICATED BY SCATTERED VOTE IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Nov. 2. (AP)—Returns to the Texas Election Bureau at 11:30 p. m., from 109 out of 252 counties, including five complete, show the following totals:

Governor: Moody 65,069; Haines 7,221.
Prison amendment: For 25,787; against 11,293.
Soldier amendment: for 24,461; against 12,250.
District amendment: for 24,169; against 11,322.
Tax amendment: for 26,272; against 10,685.
Congress, 14th district: Rogers 6,249; Wurzbach 7,201.

Few or no upsets were indicated in the general election returns received up to 11 o'clock Tuesday night. The entire Democratic state ticket apparently would receive a majority of around 10 to 1 over the Republican ticket, and all but one of the Democratic congressional candidates seemed sure of election. In the 14th district Harry M. Wurzbach, Republican, had a slight lead over his Democratic opponent, Rogers, and was gaining.

Cold weather and mud curtailed the voting in some sections, but in others, especially where local issues were involved the voting was unusually heavy for a general election. Allen Seale, who lost to Schuyler Marshall, Jr., a contest to be named Democratic nominee for sheriff of Dallas county, apparently had been elected, his followers holding a parade on the strength of the lead he held.

Outcome of the election in Willacy county where a strong independent ticket was in the field, was still in doubt at a late hour, only a small margin separating the opponents. No disturbances were reported there or in other border towns, to some of which rangers had been sent by Governor Ferguson.

BOYS HELD IN HASKELL CASE

Electra Police Arrest Youths As Suspects in Murder Of Watchman

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Nov. 2.—Electra police placed under arrest about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning two men who they believe are the slayers of J. K. Beauchamp, Haskell night watchman found dead in the entrance of a Haskell store nearly two weeks ago.

The two had been driving about the city all evening with apparently no purpose and had been closely watched. At 2 o'clock in the morning they were placed under arrest as they halted in front of the First State bank. They had in their possession a high-powered rifle and an automatic pistol, along with a large box of corks, officers said.

Engine Number Marred

The car in which they were riding, a Chevrolet roadster, had had its serial number mutilated and bore the license plate of a 1925 Ford sedan belonging to Ed Anderson of Acme.

One of the men arrested carried papers showing discharge from the navy about two months ago, and this is considered very important in view of the fact that the Haskell burglars left a navy seabag packed with loot in their flight. When they were questioned separately, one of the men declared that they had been "out on a big party," while the other claimed that they were on their way to Wichita Falls to hire cotton pickers.

Claim Acme Home

They claimed to be brothers, with a father living at Acme. Their ages were given as 23 and 25.

Chief of Police Walsh of Haskell is on his way to Electra to aid Chief Taylor in questioning the men.

GEORGETOWN, Nov. 2. (AP)—O. H. MANY RACES IN DOUBT AS VOTE COUNT DELAYS

Senator Butler, Coolidge Choice in Massachusetts, Loses to Democrat

NEW YORK, Nov. 3. (AP)—Slowly accumulating returns from yesterday's general elections developed so many uncertainties that despite notable democratic gains some of the outstanding contests remained in the doubtful column.

Coolidge Man Loses.

The democrats not only reelected Governor Smith in New York, but picked up one senatorial seat in Massachusetts, defeating Senator Butler, personal friend of President Coolidge and chairman of the republican national committee. Senator Wadsworth of New York also appeared to be in danger.

Two seats in the house of representatives one in Pennsylvania, and one in New York had swung over from the republican to the democratic column, but most of the congressional districts which had been debatable ground still were to report.

Democrats Leading.

On top of their victories in Massachusetts and New York, the democrats were keeping their senatorial candidates in the lead in Arizona, Missouri, Maryland, Oklahoma and Kentucky, although the returns were not decisive, all of these states now are represented by republicans.

In all, the democrats must pick up nine seats to overturn the present republican majority in the senate.

Klan Issue Stirs.

In Indiana, stirred in the closing days of the campaign by charges of a corrupt republican ku klux klan combination, Senators Watson and Robinson, both republicans, were leading on partial returns, but by comparatively narrow margins.

Illinois and Pennsylvania, on which the senate's "slush fund" committee concentrated its action showed widely differing returns. Representative William S. Vare, the republican senatorial nominee in Pennsylvania, had a comfortable majority but Frank L. Smith, named for the senate by Illinois republicans was faced with paring away down-state a heavy majority rolled up in Chicago by George E. Brennan, his democratic opponent. The Smith managers professed confidence in the outcome.

Many Races In Doubt.

The slowness of the returns left in doubt many contests for state and local offices. Of the thirty-three states electing governors only six had reported the result early today and except for New York all of them were either in the democratic solid south or in undisputed republican territory.

Although the democrats had gained only two seats in the new house out of the 213, Chairman Oldfield of the democratic congressional campaign committee still was claiming that the new congress would be democratic.

213 Seats Involved.

Besides the returns from the solid south, where the democrats only had serious opposition in a few instances, the 213 contests decided include those involving most of the house seats in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois.

In addition to the two seats thus far gained from the republicans, the democrats will need 34 more to get control of the house. They have to win nine of the senate contests to obtain a clear majority in that branch of congress.

Indiana Race Tight.

A close contest for each of the two senatorial seats in Indiana was forcast by the midnight returns, with Senator James E. Watson, republican, leading Albert Stump, democrat, by approximately 10,000 with one-eighth of the state accounted for. Senator Arthur R. Robinson was 8,000 ahead of his democratic opponent, Evans Woolen.

In Kentucky, Alben W. Berkley was approximately 1,000 ahead of Senator Richard P. Ernst, republican, on the face of incomplete returns from 43 out of the state's 120 counties.

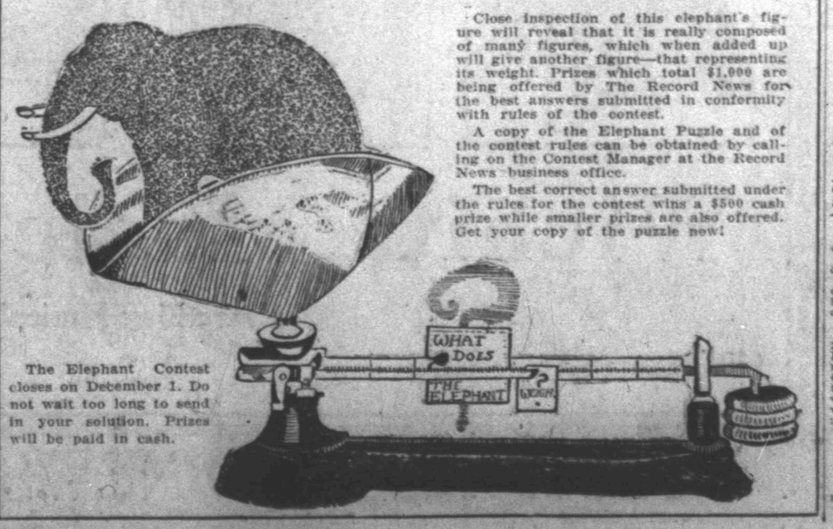

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES SWEEPING OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 2 (AP)—Senator John W. Harreld, republican tonight apparently had been buried beneath a democratic avalanche that swept the state of Oklahoma in today's general election. With more than one-third of the state precincts reported, Harreld was more than 17,000 votes behind Congressman Elmer Thomas, democrat.

Henry S. Johnson, democrat, had a lead of more than 10,000 votes over Omak K. Benedict, republi-

Bradley Speaks At College Meeting On Value of Ideals For Youth

"No boy or girl can rise above his or her ideals" said J. W. Bradley Tuesday afternoon in an address before the Parent-Teachers' association of the Junior college and high school. Mr. Bradley, who talked on problems of the high school age, added that success depended on broadness of vision and height of ideals and put the following questions to the parents: "What are we, as a city, county, state or nation, doing for our young people? Are we holding up to them true or false ideals? Are they getting the whole thing necessary to their future?"

Dean S. H. Rider gave an interesting talk on "Daily Schedule and Organization," and Morell Trevathan, a college student, discussed "Our Writers' Club—Its Hopes and Aims." Aaron Kruger, a high school student, gave an Irish reading, "Katie and Me." The high school orchestra, directed by Mr. Riggs, gave a selection and Alexander Cameron extended the greetings to parents and teachers. Tom McCarty sang "Little Mother of Mine" and "The Sunshine of Your Smile," accompanied at the piano by Edward Smith.

The meeting was opened with prayer by J. W. Bradley and Mrs. O. W. Harvey presided. One hundred mothers and forty teachers were present, and the following were announced as room sponsors for the school: Mesdames D. M. Perkins, D. T. Beaty, J. C. Cumley, J. M. Franklin, G. S. Bays, Minter, S. S. Kourl, Habern, W. E. Dolman, Ehlert, McConnell, Gilbert, Chas. W. Staley, Porter, J. E. Wolf, M. J. Michaelias, W. E. F. Wright, John Ulmer, Paul Von Allman, F. W. Packard Speaks.

"Everybody that travels as folks doesn't succeed," said Dr. Paul Henry Packard in an address to the Junior college and high school Tuesday morning at assembly. "For a young person, to fail in an age such as this, is nothing short of tragedy, and few realize that their lives are already mapped out, that they have definite missions," continued Dr. Packard in speaking of the manifold opportunities of today.

Skyscrapers And Youth.

"We pay the highest of salaries to those who lay foundations for our skyscrapers and pay our school teachers the lowest of salaries—and what is the result? We have skyscraping buildings, but we do not have skyscraping youth," was his comment toward the modern educational system.

Dr. Packard was introduced by S. H. Rider, dean of the college, who also made some announcements to the students. Morell Trevathan gave a report of the college game with N. T. A. C. last week, and Ernest Tarkington reported the high school game with Quanah. Songs were led by Alva Willgus.

Pimples

What can I do?

OH, why can't I have a skin like other girls? Why do I have to have these ugly pimples blotches and blackheads?

"If I could only find something that would clear up my skin and give me back my soft, rosy complexion, I know I would be the happies girl in the world! What can I do?"

Is that you talking? If it is, you don't have to worry a minute! Just build up the rich, red blood in your body. Then your skin will be as clear and soft as anybody's.

That's what S. S. S. has been doing for generations—helping Nature build rich, red blood! You can build red-blood-cells so fast that the impurities that cause breaking out on the skin hardly get into the system before the pure blood annihilates them—kills them right out—stops them from breaking out through the skin.

And then this rich, red, pure blood feeds and nourishes the tissues of the skin and keeps it looking healthy.

That's all there is to it. Healthy, vigorous red blood such as S. S. S. helps Nature build, makes you healthy all over. It beautifies your skin — drives away pimples, blackheads, blotches, rash, boils and eczema—gives you back your appetite—builds firm, plump flesh and fills you full of new life and energy.

A NEW IDEA

Western Film Brings Fast Action To The Garden.

What amounts virtually to an entirely new idea in western film entertainment is presented at the Garden theater, where "The Bonanza Buckaroo," an Associated Exhibitors' release, starring dashing young Buffalo Bill, jr., is being shown. The uniqueness of the picture lies not in its fast action or display of horsemanship. Of course those are features of every good western drama. But "The Bonanza Buckaroo" is chockful of real laughs.

Humor has just as much of a place in this film as have all the other ingredients that go to make up a good outdoor feature. There are laughs by the score—and a thrill for every laugh.

July King, whom we liked immensely as the flapper with Harold Lloyd in "Girl Shy," plays the leading feminine role. She is absolutely fetching with her coy ways and provocative smile. Others who do good work are Lafe McKee, Winifred Landis, Al Taylor, Charles Whitaker, "Dutch" Maley, Emily Barrye and Bill Ryno.

THESE MEN are doers of things. The preacher of the gospel of co-operative effort and the wealthy newspaper publisher applied the tactics and adopted the same methods in the tobacco districts that had won in the orange growing district of the Golden Coast state.

• • •

THERE WAS a revolution in the tobacco business and a transformation that only a wizard and his gospel could have brought about.

• • •

NOW THE growers of tobacco in Kentucky store their own product, they have their own warehouses, they have their own employees who look after the drying and curing process or work, they have their own marketing or selling system, they market their product in an orderly way and their financial agents, who are paid adequate salaries watch conditions, keep in constant touch with the market and the growers and financially independent and the master of their own property, speaking of the tobacco which they produce for the smokers of the world.

• • •

AARON SAPIRO is of the opinion that co-operative effort and the same methods employed in California and Kentucky will do for the cotton growers all that has been accomplished for orange producers and tobacco producers.

• • •

THIS ISN'T an argument for co-operative effort. It is a plain statement of fact. It deals with the work of Aaron Sapiro in the co-operative world and his achievements in two American states in work or the betterment of men who grow oranges and men who cultivate the tobacco plant.

• • •

A VERY remarkable man is this evangelist of co-operative effort and in a few short years he has won to his standard many Texans who are growers of the fleecy staple.

AVERT MOVE OF STATE FOR RECEIVERSHIP

Companies to Resume Operations in West Texas As Result of Order

AUSTIN, Nov. 2. (AP)—By agreement of all parties an order impounding $850,000, thereby suspending hearing on the plaintiff's application for a receiver, was entered Tuesday by Judge George Calhoun of the 53rd district court here in the suit for accounting brought by Attorney General Dan Moody against the Reagan County Purchasing company, Inc., et al.

The state alleges that Texas university has not received all the royalties due it from oil taken from its lands in Reagan county.

The Big Lake Oil company will deposit $510,000 and the Group One Oil corporation $340,000 in banks to be approved by the court, and these sums will be held in escrow pending disposition of the suit.

Only Producers.

The companies which must deposit the money within 30 days are the only two that have actually produced oil from the university lands. The others, which have purchased the oil are Reagan County Purchasing company, Inc., Marland Oil, Texas Oil and Land company of Texas, Group Number One Oil corporation; Group Number Two Oil corporation; Humble Oil and Refining company, Humble Pipeline company.

The state contends there is approximately $2,750,000 due the university as its proper one-eighth royalty on all oil produced prior to filing of the suit.

Under the agreed order, each producer, simultaneously with the monthly payment of royalties, during the pendancy of the suit, shall deposit a sum equal to the value of one-eighth of the three per cent of the volume of oil, which three per cent is deducted by the purchasing company for basic sediment and water, computed at the price at which the oil is sold by the producer to the Humble Oil and Refining company and the Reagan County Purchasing company, Inc.

Liability Relieved.

Too, each producer shall deposit one-eighth of 20 cents per barrel of oil sold and pipeline. It was further ordered that the Reagan County Purchasing company, Inc., Marland Oil company, Humble Oil and Refining company and Humble Pipeline company by paying certain prices for oil "shall be fully and finally relieved and acquitted of and from all responsibility and liability whatsoever for and in connection with the sum or sums of money so paid and for the oil, the purchase price of which sum or sums so paid represents, to the extent of such payment or payments of oil subsequent to the institution of this suit.

"Nothing in this clause shall operate to release the purchaser from any liability that might accrue against them on account of any failure of the producers to pay the state the royalty accruing upon oil purchased by said purchasers during the pendancy of this suit."

A competent person, selected by the plaintiff and confirmed by the court, will devote his time to checking the production and sale of the oil during pendency of the suit.

Seminole Hears Decrease Rumor

State Takes Hand in Overproduction of New Field

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 2.—Talk of a shut down, rumors of an announcement of a proration of runs plans, the starting of a flock of new wells and the drilling in of several others tended to keep the Seminole field of western Seminole still in the center of the Oklahoma oil stage yesterday.

With the state corporation commission prepared to conduct an official hearing Wednesday, the Seminole operators again tried Monday to get together on some feasible plan to restrict production in this great new field.

The direct answer to all the agitation was reflected in a decline in the output of the field for Monday morning, the total being 116,397 barrels from 47 wells, of which the 25 Wilcox producers made 106,610 barrels a day and the 22 Hunton lime wells did 9,767 barrels a day.

In the afternoon the 47th producer there, which had made 660 barrels for the first 13 hours to 7 a. m. Monday, was deepened and hit the real Wilcox pay from 4,091 to 4,095 feet for an initial flow of 200 barrels per hour. The production from 4,081 feet to 4,091 feet was the Simpson sand that in many of the wells lies directly over the Wilcox sand.

This new well is the Independent Oil and Gas company and Inter Ocean Oil company No. 1 Jones, in the northwest of the southwest of the southeast of 26-9-6.

CRUDE SLICE BY MAGNOLIA

Other Purchasers Expected To Join in Slash Soon

The only new development in the north Texas crude market reported Tuesday was the adjustment made by the Magnolia Petroleum company, in which the schedule posted by the Humble Oil and Refining company was met.

The Magnolia Petroleum company posted the same prices as the Humble with the exception of oil at 28 degrees gravity and lower for which a flat price of $1.30 is announced. The Humble schedule at the same oil at $1.50 with a five cent differential for each lower degree. The Magnolia's new prices apply to all territory in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas in which crude is bought on a gravity basis and went into effect on the morning of November 2.

No Other Changes.

No change was posted by the Prairie, Gulf or Texas companies, but it is presumed that they will meet the slashes soon. A matter of some conjecture in the Prairie's delay in posting a change. From past actions of this company it is pointed out that a different schedule from the latest one may be announced. It will not be intimated which way the difference might lie but a year ago the Prairie followed the Huble's 6 cent differential with an 8 cent basis, which was subsequently met by the other purchasers. The Continental Oil company posted the new schedule Monday following the Humble's announcement.

WATER IN HOLE

Midwest's Offset Expected In Sand Soon.

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Nov. 2.—Lacking 300 feet of being down to the Winters pay sand the Midwest Exploration company's Thornton No. 1, offsetting the Noodle Creek producer, is drilling with the hole full of water, according to reports here today. The well is at 2,210 feet.

Phillips' No. 1 Tessie, on the Walling farm and a south offset of the Winters well, is drilling at 2,135 feet. The Hurley Oil company's No. 1 John Sears, three miles east of the discovery well, has struck a vein of water at 1,995 feet.

Within eight of ten days the Midwest drillers expect to drill into the sand which made the Winter well an 800-barrel producer. The discovery well has shown practically no diminution in flow since it was brought in nearly two months ago.

"John do you know you have a very clever wife?"

In buying a dress, there are usually a number of garments that might do. But the clever wife isn't satisfied with just any dress. She compares one dress with another until she finds exactly what she wants.

By comparison she is able to choose the dress that suits her best and meets the approval of her husband. The same holds true in buying coffee.

We could use many fine words to describe Folger's Coffee. How appetizing its rare, fragrant aroma. How refreshing and satisfying its rich, distinctive flavor. How economical its high quality.

Instead, we ask you to compare Folger's Coffee with the brand you are now using by making the Folger Coffee Test. It is the logical, easy way to shop for coffee.

The Folger Coffee Test: Drink Folger's Coffee tomorrow morning; the next morning drink the coffee you have been using; the third morning drink Folger's again. You will decidedly favor one brand or the other. The Best Coffee Wins. That's fair, isn't it?

Tears Not Popular With Modern American Women

Tears Used to Be the Cowardly but Most Effective Feminine Weapon Used in the Battle of Sexes. Nowadays Women Work for What They Want And Use Their Handkerchicks for Ornaments Only.

BY DOROTHY DIX

Have you observed that tears have gone out of fashion and that women weep less than they used to? Heaven knows, it is not because there is any less for them to cry over. There has been no diminution of the sorrows that tear at women's hearts. There is still death and sickness and suffering and anxiety and loss and poverty. There are still wayward children and unfaithful husbands.

Probably there are just as many unhappy women now as there ever were, but they no longer do their wailing in public places. Such tears as they have shed they sop in their pillows behind locked doors at night ,and they meet the world dry-eyed the next morning.

Yet this was not always the case. In former days it was considered an elegant feminine accomplishment for a woman to be a free weeper. The heroine in all of the old-fashioind novels are described as having water always standing in their eyes—violets drenched in dew—and would burst into tears at the crook of a finger. Those of us who are middle-aged can remember somber, black-clad ladies who visited our mothers, who were marathon long-distance weepers, who had never "got over" some misfortune that had befallen them 30 or 40 years before and who must, upon conservtive estimates, have literally shed barrels of tears.

There are no such figures of woe now. Women have so thoroughly wipe their eyes that it is almost as startling a thing to see a woman cry as it is to see a man. I often wonder why.

It is because women have become less emotional? It is because there is no really reliable waterproof mascara and rouge? No complexion that doesn't damage in a flood? Is it because men have become so hard-boiled that they are impervious to tears? Or is it because women have got strong enough to fight for what they want instead of sitting down and crying for it?

Time was when the shortest and most direct route to a woman's desires was always by water. All she had to do was to turn on the hydrant and engulf some man in a torrent of tears, and he melted down into a spineless mush before her. Many a man has married the woman he didn't want to marry because he couldn't withstand her tears when she wept for him. Many a husband and father has dried the eyes of his wife and daughters on cars and jewels and trips to Europe that he couldn't afford; but he was willing to do anything rather than perish in the sea of brine into which they plunged him.

Of course, the efficacy of tears has depended to a large degree upon the ability of the crier to weep without getting red in the face and having her nose swell. Also upon whether the weeper pulled the cry-baby line before marriage or after, for it is sadly true that the man who will invite his sweetheart to weep upon the second button of his waistcoat before marriage will tell his wife after marriage not to act like a fool when she cries.

Still and all, tears have been a valuable weapon to women in fighting the battle of the sexes. They have not only proved a potent source of revenue but they have been a tower of refuge to which a woman could flee when she was trying to hold an untenable position in a domestic debate or when she was attempting to excuse some undefendable act.

In such an emergency all that a woman had to do was to burst into tears and the incident was closed, for you can't argue with tears nor is there anything that a man who isn't a perfect brute can say to his poor little weeping wife but: "There, there now. Don't cry," No matter what she has done.

It is the women who can weep literally get away with murder and be acquitted by men jurors who couldn't withstand their tears, and who in domestic circles henpeck their husbands out of their lives. A little two-by-four wife who can throw a fit of hysterics can make a giant of a husband tremble before her and walk on eggs for fear of riling her.

Tears have always been the only menine weapons of which men weer afraid, but they have always been a coward's weapon, and so it shows how immeasureably the morale of women has improved that women have thrown them into the discard and that they no longer play upon man's sympathies and his tenderness in order to bamboozle and browbeat him.

And it shows how women have grown in strength that now they roll up their sleeves and go after what they want, instead of howling for it.

The woman who lost her fortune in former days became thereafter a geyser of tears who spattered over everybody in her vicinity and took out all the starch out of the pleasure in their own possessions. Nowadays, she realizes that no one wants a damp, moist, unpleasant body around them, so she sheds never a tear that is in evidence, but goes to work and makes good and turns a smiling face on the world.

And what a fine, brave attitude toward life it shows for the woman who has had some great sorrow to hide her brief in her own heart and to refuse to sadden all who come in contcat with her by making herself a fountain of tears.

Certainly it is a significant and propitious sign of the times that women are using their handkerchiefs for ornament and not for use, and that they have quit crying and gone to work. There was never any sense in packing troubles down in brine anyway. It only served to preserve them.

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Salmon Patties—Take a can of salmon put in bowl and add one cup of cracker crumbs, one tablespoon melted butter, salt and pepper to taste, one beaten egg and one-half cup milk. Make patties and fry in hot fat until well browned on both sides.

Meat Loaf—Take two pounds of hamberger, add one medium onion chopped fine, two beaten eggs, finely chopped green pepper, then season with salt, pepper and celery salt, and last of all add about one-half cup of tomato catsup. Hard boiled egg may be put in the center of the loaf when ready to put in pan. This makes it look rather nice when it is sliced.

Beet Salad—Cook beets and when done dice them. Have ready cabbage cut in bowl, add onion chopped fine, and then mix in the beets, add salt. Then make the following dressing and pour over all.

Mustard Dressing—Take one-half cup of vinegar and weaken with water to suit your taste, then add two teaspoons of sugar. Put on to boil and thicken with a teaspoon of cornstarch and water mixed. When taking off stove add scant one-half teaspoon of mustard. Pour over beets and cabbage. This may be eaten warm or cold.

SUGGESTIONS.

Where one has a bed-in-door room, or a living room that must be used for the occasional guest, there comes a little chest of three drawers. It is only about two feet high, and is highly decorated. Some are in red Chinese lacquer. It is less than a foot in width, but is excellent for the smaller articles of apparel.

Here is a method of canning sweet peppers. The peppers are always crisp when taken from the can and are fine for sandwiches. To prepare them, wash and remove seeds and let stand in cold water until ready to can. To one quart of vinegar add one pint of cold water, four tablespoons of salt and two tablespoons of sugar. Heat to boiling point and pour over pimentos which have been packed firmly in cans and seal at once. The little half-pint cans are nice for these.

Housewives who are also business women do not like to have their thumbs all crisscrossed and stained from paring fruits and vegetables. To prevent this buy thumb protectors which are used in offices. These protectors may be purchased at any book store or office supply store for a nominal sum, and will afford far more protection to the thumbs than will rubber gloves.

Princess Bakes Chocolate Cake

Bride-to-Be of Belgium's Crown Prince Goes Into Kitchen

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 2. (AP)—Princess Astrid tried on her wedding gown today and found it a perfect fit. Later she went to the kitchen of the family apartment and baked a chocolate frosted cake for the delectation of the Belgian crown prince, Leopold, to whom she will be married Thursday.

The cake will meet its destined fate tomorrow when two kings, two queens, two crown princes and eight princesses sit down to dinner in honor of Leopold and his bride. Tomorrow, incidentally, is Leopold's 25th birthday and extensive preparations have been made for its celebration.

Astrid, although niece of the king of Sweden, will virtually move from apartment to palace by her marriage to Leopold. The home of her parents, the Duke and Duchess of Vastergotland, in which she and her sisters have lived since childhood, is despite its luxuriousness in reality an apartment of the type familiar to Americans.

The 20-year-old princess who is known through Sweden as the personification of modesty, has been overwhelmed by the brilliant preparations for the wedding and the fuss which has generally been made over the event.

Mrs Langford to Lead State Federation Meet

Among the various social features planned for the state federation of women's clubs convention to be held at Dallas three days beginning November 8, will be the club house luncheon at the Baker hotel when Mrs. P. P. Langford, state club house chairman, will preside.

Club women from all over the state are invited to attend. A feature of the program will be five minute talks given by women from various parts of Texas—women whose enthusiasm and perseverance have helped to finance and build their respective club houses. The hour given for this luncheon prevents these women giving a full story of their club houses, but their short talks will be practical and inspiring and will show how the club house movement is not confined to any one locality, but has swept all over Texas, according to Mrs. Langford.

The state president, Mrs. J. U. Fields, will discuss "Why Build Club Houses;" Mrs. Courtney Hunt of Haskell will tell how the Haskell women's club house was built; Mrs. Wignalls of Port Arthur will give practical suggestions about planning club houses and the approximate cost. Mrs. Ola Hamlin will represent Mrs. C. D. Anderson, local chairman of the Wichita Falls' women's club house campaign, and tell how $32,000 was raised in a whirlwind drive of five days. Miss Anne Shelton of Fort Worth Women's Club House, and Mrs. Dunsavage will discuss the western spirit which put over the El Paso club house. Mrs. Alderice will tell how the Waxahachie club house was built, and Mrs. Slater will discuss the future plans of the Dallas Woman's Forum. Mrs. J. Earl Porter will give a brief sketch of the work done in Caldwell.

Sleeve Treatment

BY MME. LISBETH.

If you want to know if your best friend is wearing a this / year's model coat or one she had left over from last year and you can tell no other way, look at the sleeves. Sleeve treatments are the distinguishing feature of this year's crop of coats, so if you are making over a coat do not neglect your sleeves.

The coat pictured shows you one of the trimming treatments of the sleeve. The material is a two-tone English tweed in straightline style with patch pockets and a belt. The sleeves are also belted at the wrist and long, narrow black bands of seal are placed on the upper side from wrist to elbow. The shawl collar is also seal. Pauline Starke posed.

Sometimes the fur trimming on the sleeves matches the style of the collar, sometimes it is individual. In the former styling a jungle green coat in a woolen resembling needlepoint had a pointed yoke collar of brown dyed squirrel and cuffs that matched in shape and pelt.

FREQUENT HEADACHES AND INDIGESTION PAINS

Telling about the experience he had in the use of Thedford's Black-Draught, Mr. F. M. Huntley, of Neosho, Mo., says:

"Black-Draught has been a family medicine with us for fifteen years. I read about it first in the Ladies Birthday Almanac, and what I read there sounded so convincing I made up my mind to try Black-Draught, as I had been troubled with constipation for a long time.

"I found Black-Draught to be the ideal medicine for this trouble. It gave me quick relief. Frequently I had headaches and pains, due to toxic poison. By taking a course of Black-Draught I gave my system a thorough cleansing, and I have had little or no trouble since then.

"Now, if I am becoming constipated, I take several small doses of Black-Draught, and am very soon feeling fine.

"Black-Draught serves to keep me and my family in good health."

Thousands of other men and women find Black-Draught of great help in relieving and warding off common ailments, due to constipation, biliousness and indigestion. For several generations, the old, well known Thedford's Black-Draught, in a yellow package, has been a familiar item in family medicine chests.

Black-Draught is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, of highest quality, carefully combined and packaged by automatic machinery.

One Of the "Scandals" Here Monday

MEET MISS VERA CONVERSE.

Lovely member of the George White Beauty Chorus in the new Scandals, coming to the Majestic Theatre Monday matinee and night, Nov. 8.

The new George White Scandals, seventh edition, which comes to the Majestic Theatre, Monday, matinee and night, November 8, abounds in comedy. Fearing, no doubt, that the present weighty political questons, and the ever-present European debt problem might depress the spirits of the public more than usual this year, the young producer commissioned his lyric writers and his music composers to write gay and giddy songs and dances, sketches and comic scenes. He hied himself to Europe and there bought the most frivolous and frothy costumes he could find in Paris and on the continent. He came back and forthwith engaged a cast of comedians with a weather eye on their abilities for producing loud and lusty laughter. Then he produced the current Scandals and made the public extremely happy. He packed his stage with beautiful girls who could sing and dance as well as fill the eye, so that the resultant keynote of the entire performance is lightness, brightness, rapidity of action, blithsome humor and over all, the glamour of delectable youth.

SYMBOLISM TAUGHT

The subjects of symbolism and gown decoration were taken up in detail at the training course for Camp Fire guardians Monday evening at headquarters when Miss Louise Lotspiech, instructor of art at Junior college and a former Camp Fire guardian in Chicago, made the talk on "Gown Decoration."

Miss Mary McIlhern discussed the importance of symbolism in the Camp Fire program, showing how it helps the girl to express herself.

"The name Camp Fire Girls is symbolic, as the first homes were built around the camp fires, and the keynote of Camp Fire is the home. The three ranks, Wood Gatherer, Fire Maker and Torch Bearer are symbolic of the progress in the girl's life," she said.

The Council Fire will be discussed at a later meeting. The next meeting on Thursday evening of this week will be held at the First Christian church, due to the convention at the First M. E. church. Songs with motions will be the most important phase of work taken up.

De Reszke Singers After U. S. Songs

Famous Musicians With Rogers All Take Delight In Favored Melodies

The De Reszke singers who are now touring with Will Rogers and will be heard at the Junior college auditorium November 9, under the auspices of the Musicians club, want songs from American composers. Although they have taken the name of their quartet from the great Polish singer Jean De Reszke who was their coach, the men who form the quartet are all native born Americans. Francis Lather, New York City, Floyd Townsley, Holton, Kan., Harold Kellogg, Detroit and Erwyn Mutch from New York City. Wherever they have sung, in Europe or in this country, they have had requests for American numbers. They are unable to sing many compositions written by American composers as they are composed with a large chorus in mind and it is impossible for four voices to get the effect from that form of composition. Their entire repertoire with the exception of the classics and some negro spirituals has been arranged by French and English composers. Many of the great composers of Europe, Cyril Scott, Sir, Richard Terry, Reynaldo Hahn, Henri Block, Anthony Bernard, Amherst Webber, Clarence Olmstead, John Hyatt Brewer, Charles Gilbert Spross, Mark Andrews and others have written special numbers from them. Being an American organization they want American compositions written for them by American composers. They would like at least one group of native sex songs especially written for a quartet composed of an ensemble of two tenors baritone and basso.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY
November 3, 1925
Contract for construction of new day nursery let to Taylor brothers.

THE WORST IS OVER

COTTON crisis hysteria is subsiding throughout the south.

Mills are loading up on southern cotton at present prices. They register the conviction that the price botton has been reached.

Wall street speculators who jump into the cotton market whenever they think the commodity is either too high or too low have been supporting the New York future markets for more than a week. They are betting that quotations for May and July of 1927 are too low and that when these future months roll around, cotton quotations will be higher.

Thus we have the three human factors which have to do with the price of cotton all in agreement that we are either at or near the lowest price which cotton will reach for the coming year.

Since it is generally true that November first sees an oversold future market, it is probable that the price of cotton as quoted in New Orleans, New York and Chicago will slowly improve. It is not to be expected that there will be a rapid improvement.

At the same time the price of cotton, after it has reached its low, will slowly march forward from November 1 in price until it reaches in the vicinity of the cost of production.

Another hopeful sign is that there is more than mere talk this year as to the efforts of the brains and the money of the United States to help the agricultural situation. The multi-millionaires of the east who control billions of insurance and banking capital know that the depression in the west and in the south through low prices has reached a point where their own pocketbooks may be affected. These financial leaders have their stake in America quite as definitely as has the grain farmer of the west and the cotton farmer of the south. They cannot sell automobiles and farm machinery and canned goods and clothing to 30,000,000 people on the farms of the west and the south unless these people have the money with which to buy. These eastern capitalists know that 30,000,000 buyers in the United States are worth all of Europe as a market. And apparently for the purpose of saving their own prosperity the leaders of the commercial east are seriously in sympathy with higher prices for farm products including cotton.

To repeat, the worst is over. Let us go ahead with the regular affairs of living in the feeling that we at least know what the damage has been and that we are moving forward from his point.

NEFF ON THE FIRING LINE

FORMER GOVERNOR NEFF journeyed all the way to New York to tell the people of that state that the state prohibition referendum was or is "the most insincere and hypocritical thing that any state in the nation has undertaken to put over in the history of our republic." Speaking of the regulation of the liquor traffic he said, "you might as well talk about regulating the Texas rattlesnake. The only thing to do is to kill it."

Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York and Elihu Root of New York had something to do with drafting the amendment. They know more about rattlesnakes now than they did before the Texas apostle of a dry Sahara that will cover the world let loose his denunciation of their pet measure. By the way, Norway after giving prohibition a test voted it out and now the French-Canadian plan of control will be tested by the Norwegians. Their majority against the continuance of prohibition was very large. Why the change?

HOOVER ON PROSPERITY

HERBERT HOOVER journeyed all the way from Washington to Oklahoma to appeal to the voters of that state to vote the republican ticket and to denounce a proposal to abolish the principle of protected tairff. He bluntly told the voters of Oklahoma that through its recovery from the war, American has become the economic reservoir of the world. And today, after five and one-half years, "our recuperation and our progress are in evidence on every hand."

He advanced another argument in defense of protective tariff. "There is less poverty in America today than ever before in any great nation and therefore than ever before in any grea naion and herefore rdtdtdlu in the records of the world." He held three republican measures as being responsible in a large part for America's rapid recovery from the war.

"First, the emergency farm tariff, more drastically protecting farm producers than any other tariff law; second, the existing general tariff law, and third, the law limiting immigration into the United States." Why this howl on the part of republican wheat growers? Why this howl on the part of republican corn growers? Why the demand for revival of the McNary-Haughen bill for the relief of the wheat growers and the corn growers, for government pride fixing and government financing of the surplus wheat or the surplus corn grown in any one year.

Herbert Hoover is an economist. He is said to be the business head of the Coolidge administration when it comes to foreign commerce and the expansion of American markets. If the tariff protects the farmer, why is it that in the agricultural states of the northwest and the west there are six or eight republican senators who are tariff reformers and backers of farm legislative relief bills which have been throttled from time to time by a republican president and the republican congressional leaders of the republican party.

Manufacturers are protected. Their skilled employes are said to be protected, but where does the protection of the tiller of the soil come in? As for the immigration act, it is not a republican measure. Four-fifth of the democratic representatives and senators voted for the immigration act, voted for all immigration acts that have been proposed in recent years, but for a quarter of a century before the passage of the immigration act, the great labor organizations of America were clamoring for legislation that would close the ports of entry to the hordes of immigrants from old world countries.

Then came the World war and then came the peace pact. Something had to be done or a tide of aliens would swamp this country and the standards of living would go to the lowest depths possible. Self-preservation demanded the enactment of the law and democrats and republicans alike voted for the measure. This is history, and a man as great as Herbert Hoover should be willing to keep the records straight.

It pays to look out for yourself. The only upper hand it was ever wise to give was the one that used to be given in the wood shed.

Scientists say the moon is bucking away from the earth at the rate of seven feet a century. Possibly that is why moonshine is getting poorer.

Do not censure the Chinese for having a peculiar flair for puzzling fighting. That's probably another thing they had three thousand years ago.

It is impossible to tell how any man will go down in history. He may go way down, and again he may rise.

Laws after all, are not for the purpose of making people be good. They are to make them wish they had been.

Childress Minister To Face 'Trial' In 'Kangaroo Court' As Dimes Disappear

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Nov. 2.—A Childress minister and two others face a mock charge in the disappearance of the Lions club "charity" box—the fine box of cash—in dimes. Rev. John S. Mullen, O. C. Hamilton and F. A. Westmoreland will be brought to trial in kangaroo court on the last Tuesday in this month, before the Lions club as a jury, on charges in connection with the disappearance of the fine box about four or five weeks ago. The charges were preferred at a recent meeting of the club by the Tail Twister, who "orated" some on the occasion. He cited the three men as having been implicated in the mystery.

The accused have already given notice of their intention to fight the case vigorously, protesting their innocence. It is understood that they have employed some high-priced legal talent from within the personnel of the club and will conduct a hot defense.

Citizens of Childress have become interested in this scandal on the local minister and the "kangaroo" trial will prove very interesting. This latest stunt of the Lions club has created more interest than anything that has gone before. The interesting feature of the case is that the fine box really did disappear.

Rev. John S. Mullen came in to the local newspaper office in Childress, the Childress Post, and made a personal request that all reference to his alleged misconduct be deleted from the column, however, the story did manage somehow to get in and now it's "town talk."

THE DEATH TICK.

People used to be extremely afraid of the death tick, a little bettle that bores into furniture and woodwork and ticks away like a watch. It was supposed that the beetle was ticking away the last minutes of someone dying, or was forewarning the listener of approaching death. It is now known that the beetle is calling to his mate, and this he does by knocking his head against the walls of his tunnel, a singular form of love-frenzy indeed. In fact if you rap three or four times, you can usually get a delighted response from the silly beast.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to Yesterday's Questions.

1. A mirage is a reflection, always up-side-down, of some object that is actually out of sight, over the round edge of the world, but due to certain atmospheric conditions casts its image on the horizon; mists and cloud banks resembling water or mountains are not true mirages.
2. A rainbow is a display of the spectrum in the sky seen when the sun shines through rain.
3. The aurora borealis is a little understood display of lights in high latitudes, probably having static electricity as its origin.
4. The corona is a display of light around the firey edges of the sun, always present but visible to us only at eclipses.
5. A nimbo-stratus is a black storm cloud having the form of a great sheet rather than the billowy form of a cumalo-stratus or ordinary summer thunderstorm cloud.
6. Why the sky is blue is not certain; probably it is so because the atmosphere acting like a prism scatters the blue rays of the sunlight as soon as the light strikes the upper atmosphere.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch.

HAVING SERVED.

It sometimes seems a little sad,
The things we use and throw away,
For lots of things a fellow's had
That served him well for many a day;
And then they get too old to use,
Old tools, old chairs, old hats, old shoes,
And, when the new we can afford,
The ash can is the old's reward.

Old chairs have given hours of rest,
Old shoes have borne us many a mile,
Old tools have worked and done their best,
Old hats gave warmth as well as style;
But now they're frayed and now they're worn,
The edge is dull, the rim is torn—
The time will always come to you
When lots of old things will do.

And yet I think old tools, old chairs,
Care less, if things can care at all,
Than even one who owned them cares,
Whatever virtues we recall,
They've played their part, they've done their time,
And not a poet needs to rime
A rime for them—content they find
In having lived, and served mankind.

And we grow old, just like our hats,
And shoes, and chairs, and other things,
The joy that living always brings
Toil may not give us much of gold,
But, when the road has downward curved,
We know the peace of having served.
Tomorrow: I cannot Hate.

"I'M THE GINK"

I'm the self-made gink. I like to blow about sleeping on shuck mattresses and going barefooted until I was twenty-one. I have a set of stories that I tell about walking three miles to school every morning through the snow. I scoff at modern education and modern youth. I am always reminding my wife of the discomforts my mother had to put up with. I don't let her have any more of the modern convenience than I can help. I am proud of myself because I am a self-made man. I don't care what you think of the job. I think it was fine.

A SOLUTION OFFERED

The ruling of the United States supreme court in the Heber case from Louisiana can be studied with profit in local courts.

The case involved a defendant who plead that prosecution in both the state and federal courts exposed him to double jeopardy when he was prosecuted in both courts on the same charge. The supreme court, however, held that this was not the case and that dual prosecution on one complaint was lawful.

In Wichita Falls as well as in many other places, district and federal court officials have observed the rule that when a defendant in a booze case has been prosecuted in one court he has to all intents and purposes served the ends of justice. Accordingly if he has been tried in a state court, the matter is dropped with the end of his trial and federal officials take no cognizance of it. This was held true regardless of the outcome of the state's case.

As a general thing, the double jeopardy clause of the statute is fair and equitable. In most cases, after a man has been tried once by one tribunal, he ought not be exposed to trial in another. This fact has been recognized by the law.

But there are instances, notably in the realm of prohibition violations, where this practice has worked distinctly to the advantage of notorious bootleggers who, in Wichita county at least, have consistently been able to beat their cases in the state courts. For some reason or other, juries in the local district courts have been shown marked aversion to convicting men brought up for trial on liquor charges. There have been some convictions, it is true, but by far the greater majority of such complaints have resulted in acquittals or hung juries. Then, since the case has once been tried, federal court officials pass it by and nothing is done.

The converse is true of cases in federal court. Juries as a rule have shown a disposition to bring in verdicts of guilty, and the court has shown a disposition to deal with an iron hand unless there was good and sufficient cause to be lenient. For that reason, perhaps, local bootleggers have shown much more preference for trials in the state courts than in the federal tribunals. And, with the double jeopardy practice being as it has been, their pathway has been easy.

The supreme court ruling ought to change this. There is apparently no longer justification for a federal court being barred from a shot at a bootlegger simply because a state court has previously tried to convict him.

The supreme court has had its say in convincing fashion. It offers a solution for the problem of properly handling the bootlegging evil in Wichita Falls—and the solution can be used to advantage.

"Put me down!" cried the [girl]. "Put me down at once."

E. A. BAGGETT, VERNON'S UNEMONTIONAL GRID MENTOR, IS SLIPPING A MARCH ON THE COYOTERS BY DEVELOPING THE UNDER-DOG COMPLEX THIS WEEK IN THE LION CAMP.

* * *

Vernon's sturdy eleven stands in a fair way of bowling over the Coyotes Saturday in annual clash and the odds, if any, are more in its favor if Baggett can produce the psychological background of the Lions, a powerful but not quite as powerful machine as the Maroon and Black, fighting desperately to overcome supposedly heavy barriers to victory when in truth the task be not so difficult. Such a mental attitude in Vernon will go further toward halting the Wichita Falls march than all the intensive fundamental training and trick plays a coach could cram into the few remaining days of preparation.

* * *

On paper, the Coyotes are rated an edge over Vernon but the shade is so slight that anything, the smallest break of the game, could turn the victory tide toward Baggett's charges. The teams are practically evenly matched and there is little doubt but that the Lions can match the Pack in fighting spirit.

* * *

SYMPATHIES, BROTHER.

Speaking of football and the pregame dope, we have heard that Jinx Tucker, Waco's grid impresario enacted a last-minute change of front in regard to the Baylor-Aggie game, much to Jinx's regret. They say Jinx predicted a Farmer victory and even wagered a bit of the long green that Joel Hunt, Aggie back, would gain more ground than the combined Baylor backfield. Tucker became seriously ill during that game. For it is doubtful if Joel covered as much territory as any one of the Baylor ball carriers. Hunt was a marked man and the Bear forwards swarmed him on nearly every play, it is said.

* * *

The nature of some human beings is something to conjecture over. Certain gentleman for many months was a great wrestling fan, at least, he bore the earmarks of such. He was given free admittance to many matches and his wife always was presented a pass, according to the promotor. Not many weeks ago the promoter cut down on the free list. And why not. The man in question was marked off with several other gate crashers. Result? That man has become a chronic knocker of every card staged locally. All the matches are set-ups, all are stalls, and everything is just as it should NOT be, according to this former enthusiast. Yet mat programs of recent weeks appear to the casual observer as not a whit below the standard, if any, of other days.

* * *

Some wisecracker once remarked "each knock is just another boost," or words of similar import. In our own ramblings through life we like to think the same. Knock Blondy Cross and he considers it a boost, in fact, a knock that is a boost and yet as a knock may prove a boomerang.

* * *

Who Will Succeed Matty?

Charley Grip, the Baltimore nitreglycerine parcel, rolled into this sector several weeks ago in quest of the world's welterweight wrestling championship. He defeated Jack Reynolds, the Wrestling News' champion twice at catchweights and has made a standing offer to meet the Indiana speedster at the welter limit. Grip declares Reynolds refuses to speak up for himself, which, according to Charley, matters very little. For Charley considers Matty Matsuda the only legitimate king of the welters.

* * *

Matsuda has retired from the mat and it is doubtful block and tackle could pull the wonder Jap back professionally. He has run his race, seen his best days, and is smart enough to quit while the quitting is good.

* * *

THE POSSIBILITY.

Yaqui Joe, the Indian, has defeated those who formerly were the Jap's most ardent rivals in Jack Gorman and Dutch Mantell. He beat Billy Romonoff, too, who was ranked as a contender. So Grip has become imbued with the idea of tackling Yaqui with the object of downing the Indian and claiming the title. Should Yaqui win, Grip says he would be the logical champion.

* * *

How about Reynolds? We asked Charley. "Well, let him take the winner. I've tried my best to get him in the ring with me and have failed. If Reynolds considers he should have any championship recognition let him beat either me or the Indian, whoever should win."

* * *

POPE FAVORS INDIAN.

Yaqui Joe is all for such a scheme of affairs. Believes he can put the skids under Grip with the latter trained down to 145 pounds. There are a few of the skeptical who do not think the Indian could beat Grip. We are one of these. However, Eddie Pope, who tangled with Grip here Monday, declared Joe would cop the victor's end in such a match. He says, "the Indian is too fast for Grip. Grip could never get behind him. And that Indian's too clever, too."

FEMININITY INVADES GRID

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 2. (AP)—A new page in Kentucky football history was written here Monday when girl gladiators met on the gridiron in a regulation contest with referees, forward passes and everything. The Anchorage high school Mules, captained by Miss Lettie Bliss, defeated the highly touted Pewee Valley Cyclones under leadership of Miss Mary Starr.

JUNIOR SQUAD IN FAIR SHAPE

Indians Expect Victory In Cameron Tilt Here Friday

Nothing short of a victory over the Cameron Aggies in the game to be played here Friday will satisfy Coach Ludgate's Junior college Indians. General practice was resumed Tuesday, the backfield alone having received the attention of Monday's coaching. It is in the backfield where most of the work of coaches and men is needed as the backfield material is nearly all green and inexperienced with the exception of Captain Stephenson.

The team came out of the hard contest with the North Texas Agricultural college eleven at Arlington last Friday without any serious injuries, Boyd's cut eye being about the only casualty. The rest Monday allowed practically all stiffness to make its exit, putting the squad in fine fettle for yesterday's workout. Eligibility lists issued Monday also failed to show casualties, thus leaving the Tribe at top strength for the Aggie tussle.

Work On Passes

Work on the fundamentals, such as blocking, tackling, punt running and signal drill constituted the ingredients of yesterday's stamping menu. The Indians have found defense against returning punts and passes their weakest points thus far; hence the emphasis on these departments of play. Practice on pass receiving, the chief scoring weapon of the team, will also receive more attention this week as the performance of the receivers fell down woefully in the Arlington contest for some reason.

Backs Looking Better

The line has been working rather efficiently most of the season, and with the coming of Frank Rugeley, the backfield should more nearly reach the line par of strength. Rugeley is a good passer, a good plunger, and an experienced player, all of which will add much punch to the offensive of the Maroon and Gold. Thus far Stephenson had to carry much of the burden of the backfield on both attack and defense, although several of the new men have been showing more development lately. Stephenson's importance to the Indian power has been shown several times, as in the fatal third period at Arlington Friday when Steve was injured and the Aggies put over their scores to win a game for which the other three quarters seemed to belong to the Indians.

Army and Navy On Home Stretch

Cadets Must Vault Notre Dame Before Taking Middies

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.(AP)—Army and Navy football elevens will plunge into the last half of the gridiron drive next Saturday with prospects of grappling on November 27 for the mythical championship of the east.

Battles of November 13 will measure the significance of the annual service team struggle. On that day, the powerful Army eleven which so easily brushed aside Yale will face Knute Rockne's unbeaten Notre Dame machine while the Middies will tackle Georgetown. Both will have preparatory games this week for the two struggles with the Cadets opposing Franklin-Marshall and the future admirals meeting West Birginia Wesleyan. Should the Navy add Georgetown to a string of victims which already includes Princeton, Colgate, Michigan, Drake and Purdue and should the West Point team bowl over Notre Dame football critics feel that the Chicago classic would bring together the two most formidable service teams in the history of their gridiron rivalry.

LaFayette Looms.

Of five other unbeaten teams which enter the race with Army and Navy for honors in the east only one candidate appears reasonably certain of keeping its string of triumphs intact.

LaFayette apparently hurdled the last tall barrier in its path by coming from behind to upset Washington and Jefferson last week. With Rutgers, Susquehanna and Lehigh still to come the schedule of the Easton, Pa., university held no serious threat of disaster for all three teams have been defeated this season frequently. Lehigh traditional foe of LaFayette has not yet won a single game.

But there were titantic struggles ahead of New York university, Boston college, Brown and Holy Cross, as well as before Army and Navy.

Carnegie Tech coming here to battle New York university on Saturday will be the first of three rugged foes for the metropolitan contenders.

Davis-Elkins will follow up the invasion of the Pittsburgh aggregation after which the New York team will swing into the west to meet the powerful Nebraska Corn Huskers.

Brown Has it Easy.

Pointing for its annual grapple with Harvard on November 13, Brown will have the advantage of taking on comparatively light opposition in Nodwich while the Crimson is opening the "big three" fight against Princeton. Two weeks later the Bruins will lock with Colgate.

The husky Haskell Indian team looms ahead of Boston college which tackles Villanova this week. Holy Cross also saw storm clouds for the Worcester team on Saturday will be confronted by Fordham.

Other games on the week-end schedule brought together Syracuse and Georgetown; Dartmouth and Boston university; Pittsburgh and West Virginia; Penneylvania and Penn State; Columbia and William-Mary; Cornell and St. Bonaventure; Colgate and Providence; Washington-Jefferson and Bethany; Yale and Maryland.

Harvard Seeks Revenge for Two Massacres In Coming With Tiger; Looks to Harween

Harvard and Princeton are tuning up these days for the resumption of their fall battle, to be staged November 6, at Caambridge, home of fair Harvard.

This will be the fourteenth meeting of the teams since the modern game came into vogue. The schools had met in 1895 and the following year. They did not resume relations than until 1911.

In these twentieth century clashes Harvard has come out victorious six times, Princeton five and two games have ended in ties.

But that margin of one victory means nothing to John Harvard right now. Adherents of the Crimson cannot erase from their minds the memory of the last two years when the Tigers ran up a total of 70 points while the Harvard eleven failed to score even a goal from field.

The game of 1924 ended with the score 24 to 0 in Princeton's favor. Last year the toll in the massacre was 36 to 0. The score of two years ago set a record for the series. To have this record broken again the very next season was too much for Harvard.

The Crimson wound up the season by tieing Yale. In some years this would have been a sort of sop to the feeling of the Cambridge crowd but not so last season. Yale was admittedly having an off year. So the Princeton debacle spelled the end of Bob Fisher's career as coach at Cambridge. He had been under fire for a couple of seasons. The criticisms hurled at him were not taken seriously, however, until last fall. Then came that scalping party.

Now Arnold Horween is in the Saddle. Harvard knows Horween as a brilliant player. The west, whence he migrated later, knows him as a great coach — albeit of professional teams. Now the Crimson crowd want to see what he can do as a "Big Three" coach. For it is still the "big three" to Yale, Harvard and Princeton despite any reverses.

As for Princeton? The defeat at the hands of the Navy and the narrow squeak in the game with Lehigh, when a goal after touchdown, decided the game, have made Princeton folk a bit fearful, Roper himself is not the confident soul of last year when he said, "We'll lick both Yale and Harvard"—and did.

But Princeton is the favorite because of the two great victories in the recent past.

A victory for Princeton will be just cause for six weeks of revelry, crowning of Herween king of coaches and buying the wife a new hat.

1920

The Harvard-Princeton battle of 1920 called in a 14-14 tie after one of the most thrilling games in the history of the annual meeting. Harvard had the edge in the first minutes of play only to see Princeton take the lead. The game seemed lost when, in the last few minutes of play the Crimson team completed three forward passes in succession, which gave them a touchdown and a tie with the Tiger.

1921

Princeton won 10 to 3. Gilroy won the game for the Tigers when he received a forward pass from Snively in midfield and ran down the sidelines 58 yards to a touchdown, eluding one tackler and dragging another over the goal line with him. The scene came with but a few minutes to play in the final period. Owen, a few moments before, had apparently won kick.

1922

Princeton won 10 to 3. Harvard was the first to score, Owen kicking a field goal early in the game. A fumble by Gehrke, Harvard backfield star, gave the Tiger team its chance, however. Recovering the ball as Gehrke dropped it in mid-field the Princeton team worked a criss-cross play for a long gain and then Crum scored. The goal kick ended the scoring.

1923

Harvard won 5 to 0 in a gruelling battle. Dartmouth had whipped Harvard and Notre Dame had trounced Princeton 25 to 2, Bill Roper's team being the weakest Tiger eleven in years. Harvard's line drove the Princeton team back into its own territory most of the time. Harvard's points were scored on a safety and a field goal kicked by Pfaffman, he of the educated toe and accurate eye.

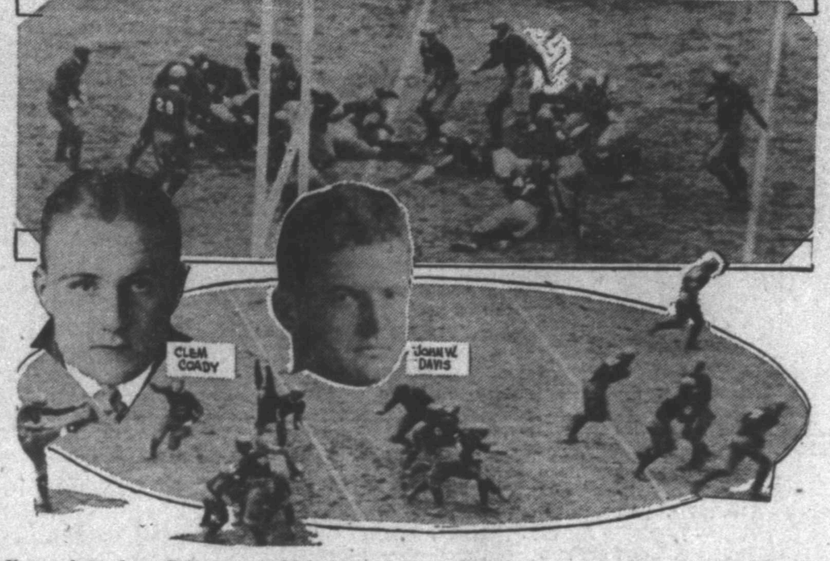

1924

Princeton won 34 to 0. The brilliant work of Gehrke and Cheeks, Harvard's stars, failed to halt the Tigers. Harvard sent in 21 substitutes in a vain effort to check the onslaught. Princeton dazzled the Crimson by changing its style of attack from a conservative close-line type to a wide open style, circling the ends and tossing passes with apparent abandon.

1925

Princeton won 26 to 0. The score was the biggest ever run up against the Crimson in this annual affair. Roper's team stood out as one of the greatest in the east but such a victory was unexpected. The defeat spelled the end of Bob Fisher's reign as coach at Harvard. Cheek and Crosby were the stars for Harvard in the debacle and Slagle and McMillan the Tiger stars.

FROGS UNDER DOGS

Undefeated Christians Not Expected to Tag It on Farmers

FORT WORTH, Nov. 2. (AP)—Coach Matty Bell and his squad of Texas Christian University Horned Frogs will leave Thursday morning for College Station where they will do battle Friday afternoon with the Texas Aggies.

Although the Frogs are as yet undefeated they will go into the Aggie fray as underdogs. The Farmers have gone down to defeat twice in two weeks but still are favored to beat Bell's charges by two touchdowns at least. The Frogs however, have been working hard this week, forming special defense for the Aggie running and passing game and developing offensive efforts expected to penetrate the Strong Bible line and secondary defense.

Horace Brewester, giant Frog tackle who has been confined to his bed for two days with a leg injury and broken hand, was reported improved Tuesday night and probably will be out for practice Wednesday.

NEW BACKFIELD EXPECTED TO START FOR PACK AT VERNON

When the long-awaited Coyote-Lion clash opens at the Wilbarger capital Saturday, there probably will be a starting Coyote backfield different from any thus far started in the season's games, according to Coach Bud McCallum. Injuries and changes in the performance of certain members have made the new arrangement likely, although any definite decision on starters will depend partly on work and interest shown during this week's practice.

Perk Ray at fullback, Francis and Mitchell at halves and Rayzor at quarter—this is a combination that looks very much like the Pack's best strength. The performance of Francis at Electra, against Grandfield, and in other games, makes it seem very likely that he will be able to have some luck at puncturing the Lion forward wall. The continuous and rapid development of Mitchell as a runner of the broken field and around the ends makes him probably the Red and Black's best scoring bet from now on. It certainly should give the Wichita Falls team an offensive threat of no mean ability to have two such performers together.

Against Quanah, Perk Ray proved a star. It was evident that he at last was rounding into form. Ray is a heady player, a cool thinker, and a good ball carrier, but various circumstances have hindered his development thus far. Rayzor also has progressed in a highly satisfactory manner. At Electra he ran his team like a veteran and figured strongly in both attack and defense. At Quanah, while his first half performance was somewhat weak, he snapped out of the kinks in the final half and next to Perk Ray was the luminary of the backfield. His generalship was fine, his pass receiving figured in good gains for the Coyotes, and his defensive work stopped many Indian marches short, while his interference running promised to supply one of the great backs of the Coyote play.

PERSSON SUSPENDED

NEW YORK, Nov. 2. (AP)—Harry Persson, the most tatooed boxer actively engaged at the moment, will be under suspension for a month as a result of disqualification for fouling Bud Gorman at Madison Square Garden. Persson met his first defeat in four starts last night since coming to the United States from Sweden. Gorman, who is from Kenosha, Wis., was awarded the bout in the fifth round when Persson twice landed low blows after he had been warned to raise his sights.

BIG TEN SPOT AT ANN ARBOR

Ohio State Squad to Watch Michigan-Wisconsin Battle

CHICAGO, Nov. 2. (AP)—Half a hundred extremely critical spectators will watch Michigan and Wisconsin battle on the football field at Ann Arbor Saturday.

The contingent will be the Ohio State football squad which taking advantage of an open date, will watch the Wolverine team which it will try to wreck a week from Saturday at Columbus. Michigan, its quest for national honors sidetracked by the navy, is anything but a confident bunch this week, though a favorite to beat Wisconsin.

Ohio State thinks it will win the conference crown when it meets Michigan and more than 80,000 seats will be available at the Columbus stadium for the danger battle.

Wolverines Win 9 of 12.

The Wolverines have won nine of 12 previous games with Wiconsin. Little, himself a Michigan star of yore has little hope of making the score somewhat evener Saturday for he watched his defense crumble before Minnesota last Saturday after he had come to regard it as the strongest department of Badger play.

Chicago's bedevilled Maroons, trampled by the Big Ten horde prepared tonight with spirit for Illinois, but drilled again on defense scarcely hoping for more than a "good showing" against the Illini. Stagg's team has looked better each week but Zuppke's squad is improving even more rapidly and approached the peak of its form with the conquest of Pennsylvania.

Purdue Versus Purple.

A Big Ten title aspirant should be eliminated when Pudue meets Northwestern and in no previous year has the battle meant so much to both teams for in other years both have been kicked about in the lower stories of the conference structure. Purdue is unbeaten, but tied by Wisconsin, in the conference while Northwestern has two victories. The coaching staff of the Wild Cats is fighting against over confidence, while Purdue is working on its running attack and promising its adherents victory.

Minnesota will go to Iowa a favorite, although it has not won a game since 1914 on Iowa field. Peplaw, hurt against Wisconsin, is expected to be back in the Gopher backfield, and Iowa is concentrating on defense with some attention to new forward passing plays.

Indiana, which appears to have established the earliest claim to cellar honors in the conference, meets Notre Dame, and, like Chicago finds the week another one of defensive drill.

Saturday will be home coming day at Michigan, Iowa, Northwestern and Notre Dame.

VERNON READY FOR COYOTES

With Exception of Ted Key Baggett's Men In Shape

VERNON, Nov. 2.—With very few injuries reported following the Electra-Vernon game Friday, Coach Baggett Monday indicated that he would grind his squad hard for the invasion of the Wichita Falls Coyotes here Saturday afternoon in an effort to keep the interscholastic league honors in Vernon. With one exception Baggett's gridsters emerged from the Electra game with only minor injury and the squad should be in excellent condition for the Coyote clash.

Ted Key Injured

Ted Key, veteran wing man, and one of the oustanding members of the Lion squad, was injured in the Electra contest and is definitely out of the Coyote melee. He has little hope of donning the moleskins again this season, in the opinion of physicians. His injuries are internal.

While Vernon generally is accepting the position of the under dog in the Wichita Falls contest for the first time in several years, the Lions are showing a determination that promises one of the fiercest battles of the season.

Work Monday afternoon indicated that the Lion mentor would concentrate his activities chiefly on his forward wall, which showed numerous weaknesses in the Electra game. If Monday afternoon was a fair sample of the week's program, the Wichita Falls club, which witnessed the Vernon-Electra game may find the Lion forwards more difficult to handle than they expect after watching the performance of the club last week.

Plan Pass Defense

Forward pass defense work will also be a part of the program of work for the Lions this week, Monday's session indicated. The Lions showed some improvement in this phase of the game when pitted against the Tigers, but their pass defense was far from perfect, nad the Tiger passer completed three forward passes for good yardage during the game.

While Key doubtless will be out of the contest Saturday, there is some hope that Hutto, 210-pound tackle candidate who has been out of the lineup since early season because of an injured shoulder, will be able to take part in the Wichita Falls game. If this is possible, his work in the line should offset any disadvantage resulting from the loss of Key at the wing position. Baggett's line is admittedly the weakest point of his combination. Hutto's stature and speed would be a welcome addition indeed to the lineup.

With Key forced to be content to watch the game from the sideline, Hollar or Nabers probably will start in his place, with the odds favoring the former at the outset of the game. Both men have proven efficient at the position in earlier games, but Hollar has the advantage of experience.

KNUTE "APATHETIC"

Why Should We Join Big Ten? Asks Notre Dame Mentor

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 2. (AP)—Knute Rockne was apathetic today to report from Chicago that Notre Dame was to be invited to join the big ten athletic conference.

"I have not heard any big ten talk around here for eight or nine years," said Rockne. "What's the point in our joining the big ten anyway?"

Notre Dame fans opined that Rockne has all the big ten games, with the exception of Michigan that he wants, regardless of membership and figure that a membership might or might not bring the Wolverines to amicable relationship with the local school.

As matters now stand the Notre Dame schedule usually calls for two or three big ten games each year, ordinarily with the strongest contenders. Michigan always has refused to play Notre Dame, but the other nine members are on friendly relations with the South Bend school.

Junior High Athletics To Be Of Intramural Variety, Says Glass

Wichita Falls junior high school team dropped another hard fought football game Monday afternoon when the junior high eleven of Burkburnett chalked up a 6-0 victory over the locals. The game was played here as a practice skirmish for the Coyote cubs.

A rearrangement of junior high athletics will be in order when the student body is divided into two parts for the new schools. Junior high school athletics will have to be run in a rather limited manner as it is difficult enough to get a team out of the whole junior high school-aged students together. It is likely that most of the competition hereafter for junior high school teams in the city will be betwpen the two local schools, the Broad Street and the Polk Street schools and possibly with other nearby junior teams rather than with other senior high schools in Class B. The boys in junior high school are simply too young and immature to stand the competition of the older boys who play on even the small senior high school teams.

According to Principal H. A. Glass of the present junior high school, the moving over to the new probably will be made this week-end and then Coach Golden will go to the Polk Street institution, while Coach Lewis will preside over the athletic affairs of the Broad Street school. Earlier in the season Coach Golden said the junior high team would be probably kept intact for the remainder of the season for out-of-town competition. No definite plans have been announced as to the exact arrangement to be made.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Vic Gustafson, one of the leading lights of the Northwestern University football eleven, played on the same high school team with Red Grange while the latter was laying the foundation for the most brilliant football career chronicled to date.

Both attended Wheaton, Ill., high school and in Vic's freshman and junior years he was a member of the team with Grange the Iceman. Vic played a half, alongside Red—in fact has played a half ever since he took up the game in the backyard.

He is also a basketball varsity man and played on the same five with Red while the boys were in high school.

One of the usual day's dispatches regarding football activities at Yale stated that Hickok, substitute guard received his chance in scrimmage practice.

This name recalls the "original" Hickok at Yale, one of the famous players o fthe old days. He, Heffelfinger, Glass and Brown were probably the four greatest guards Yale ever boasted.

Heffelfinger, in particular, was an idol in his day. And the name "Heffelfinger" appeared in more football elevens during his career and the years that followed than that of any other player. Those were the happy days when sandlot and professional football were haphazard affairs. High school and college stars were lured into these games because they liked the sport or needed the money offered and were forced to play under assumed names to protect their amateur status. So they naturally adopted the name of some star. And usually it happened to be "Heffelfinger."

I was working on a daily paper in the middle west in those days and recall that the week-end amateur games in the public parks one Sunday included 17 players named "Heffelfinger."

Bobby Quinn, president of the Boston Red Sox, is about to take the great plunge.

Tired of trying to build up a winning ball club at St. Louis and then Boston through the medium of an experienced, brainy manager, Quinn announces his determination to "lay off" the wise old heads and try for a "lucky" manager.

"It's high time we had a little luck," is the defense of his contemplated action.

Bobby doesn't mean to cast any onions at Buck Harris as a manager, but he points out that Griffith had remarkable luck when he named Harris pilot. The Senators won their first pennant under Bucky, taken out of the ranks.

Teh only fly in the ointment as far as Quinn is concerned is the question as to whether or not he has a Bucky Harris on his team. But there always has to be something to ruin an ideal like that.

200 Convicts In Honduras Fight

Leader Commits Suicide in U. S. Consul's Office When Cause is Lost

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 2. (AP)—The story of the shooting of 10 convicts in the public square at Celba, Honduras, and the suicide of one in the United States consulate was related here today by members of the crew of Vaccaro Brothers' fruit ship Amapala, which docked late yesterday.

10 Convicts Executed

Members of the Amapala's crew said that 100 of 200 convicts who escaped taking three machine guns were captured by authorities, lined up in the square at Celba and shot, one after the other.

Any of the convicts caught are immediately executed, they said.

"The leader surrendered to the American consul," one member said, "and pleaded for fast trial at the hands of any authorized tribunal. The consul wired to Washington and received an answer directing him to turn the convict over to Monduran authorities.

Convict Kills Self

"When the wire came the convict was in the consul's room. He glanced over the type casually then reached over the consul's desk picking up a revolver lying there and shot his own brains out."

Captain Robert Simpson of the Amapala said nothing "unusual was going on down in Celba. Of course they've killed a few people and a couple of hundred prisoners got away. But what's that?"

Mystery Death Puzzles Police

FORT WORTH, Nov. 2. (AP)—Officers here today were trying to learn what or who caused the death of T. K. "Red" King, automobile salesman, who died shortly before daybreak with outward evidences of only minor injuries.

King was deserted late last night at a gasoline filling station by a tall, bareheaded companion, yet unidentified, who drove up in King's own touring car, Frank Zolaski, station attendant, told police. The tall man ran to another automobile containing two other men and all fled hastily toward town, Zolaski said.

King, partly conscious, was cut on the lip and forehead. Zolaski said he had the appearance of having been in a minor accident. King, however, could not tell what happened to him.

He was taken to another garage and put to bed with an attendant. The latter, unable to sleep because of King's restlessness, left the bed at 2 a. m. for a cot. Returning at 5 o'clock, he found King dead.

Ghouls Frighten Cemetery Visitor

Houston Police See Attempt To Loot Graves But Fail To Catch Men

HOUSTON, Nov. 2. (AP)—After an all night's investigation, police authorities Tuesday were without additional clues and were unable to explain reports of an apparent frustrated "grave opening" in Hollywood cemetery, Monday night.

Ernest Carnes, 18, employe of a Houston department store, told police he was walking home from the street car line about 10 p. m. and was making a short cut through the cemetery when he came upon an automobile containing one man and two other men with flashlights prowling around the tombs.

He said he tried to walk past them unseen, but the man in the automobile sighted him, whistled and that the three men then chased him through the cemetery.

Tuesday, police said, the apparent theories were that an attempt was being made to open a grave, to dispose of a body, or parts of a body, or to hide and conceal loot of some description.

DANDRUFF?

Now you can control it!

You need worry no more about dandruff, that unsightly nuisance, so embarrassing to both women and men.

As you probably know, dandruff is a germ disease that no intelligent, fastidious person can afford to neglect. Because so often it is a warning of more serious scalp trouble—possibly baldness.

There is one ideal treatment to control dandruff conditions—the systematic use of Listerine, the safe antiseptic. It really works wonders this way.

The use of Listerine for dandruff is not complicated. You simply douse it on your scalp, full strength, and massage thoroughly. You'll enjoy the cleansing refreshing effect. And you will be amazed to see how this treatment, followed systematically, does the trick.

Moreover, Listerine will not discolor the hair nor will it stain fabrics. And it is not greasy.

Try Listerine for dandruff. You'll be delighted with the results.—Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, U. S. A.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON MARKET SHOWS FIVE-POINT PRICE G AIN

NEW YORK HAS HOLIDAY CLOSE FOR ELECTION

Trading Light at New Orleans With Gotham Market Closed

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 2. (AP) There was only a moderate degree of activity in the cotton market today, the fact that New York closed shutting off the usual interchange of business between the markets, contributed to the quiet which prevailed at times. The trend of prices which precailed at times. The trend of prices was upward due to better Liverpool cables than due, general rains over the southern part of the belt and the colder weather, freezing temperatures being reported in the northwest. Prices were 12 to 16 points up at the opening and continued to improve in the first part of the morning until active months showed gains of 18 to 21 points over Saturday's close. The market afterwards ruled quiet with prices fluctuating narrowly, but easing off some on a little realizing until about the middle of the afternoon prices were eight to nine points under the highs. A further reaction in the late trading, due to prospects of clearing weather in the west and fears of the next government report, forced prices down 12 to 14 points below the highs. The close was barely steady showing net gains of five to seven points.

As Liverpool was better than due at the time the market here opened, first trades showed gains of 12 to 16 points. The market continued to gain after the start on the bad weather until about the middle of the morning December traded as high as 12.85, January at 12.92 and March at 13.09, or 18 to 21 points above the close of Saturday.

The market ruled quiet near noon and during the early afternoon and prices eased off slightly December trading down 12.77, January to 12.83 and March to 13.09.

In the late trading prices eased off further on prospects of clearing weather and on fears of a large government estimate on November 8, Decembr traded down to 12.73, January to 12.79 and March to 12.95 or 12 to 14 points down from the highs but still five to seven points above previous close. The market closed at the lows. Exporxts of the day totalled 88,852 bales.

SHEFFIELD TO LOSE HIS POST

Mexico Expects U. S. Envoy To Be Recalled By His Government

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 2.—The early resignation of James Rockwell Sheffield as American ambassador to Mexico and the decisive defeat of the United States in the alien land and petroleum controversies is forseen here on the basis of developments in Washington in the last 48 hours as reported in special cables to Mexico City newspapers.

Only Ambassador Sheffield's staunch loyalty to the republican party, facing severe tests in New York state and elsewhere in the congressional elections of today, is regarded as the explanation for his delay in taking definite action.

The ambassador's sentiments after again encountering his predecessor, Charles Beecher Warren, in intimate conference with President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg over the Mexican situation, are summarized by the newspaper Excelsior in a lengthy special dispatch from New York under a heading "Sheffield Disgusted With the White House."

Warren Gains Prestige

Whatever may have been the administration's intentions, Mexico City interprets recent incidents at Washington as enhancing the prestige of Warren and injuring Sheffield's influence. No premeditated plan of action on the part of Secretary Kellogg could have operated more effectively to have impaired the ambassador's standing in the eyes of the Mexican capital.

There has been no concealing the feeling among many Mexicans that the elimination of Sheffield would greatly simplify the problem of dealing with the United States in the present controversies. This feeling has been reflected in repeated articles in Mexico City newspapers emphasizing the ambassador's ill health and other considerations likely to bring about his early retirement.

The apparent preferment of Warren over Sheffield, shown by the former being a White House guest while the ambassador did not even see the President, played directly into the hands of those seeking to effect the ambassador's departure. The fact that the Mexican government has been successful in previous dealings with Warren leads many to believe that his continued participation in negotiations simplifies matters for the foreign office.

To Return to Post

While it is regarded as a certainty that the ambassador will return to his post the latter part of next month, the conviction is spreading that he will remain only a comparatively short time before returning to New York to resume his law practice.

Meanwhile time is regarded as operating in favor of Mexico, as Americans claiming to have suffered through the provision of the petroleum and land laws have only until Dec. 31 to apply for confirmation of their 1917 rights and compensation for lands taken prior to 1926, for communal grants.

CAROL'S SON TO RULE SOME DAY

That's the Prediction for Boy Born to Morganatic Bride of Prince

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—According to the information received from Europe there soon will be a general peace-making in the Royal family of Rumania, but the matter lays in the hands of Minister Pratiano, who is not altogether friendly to Prince Carol.

Queen Marie is willing to take her son back and Princess Helene second wife of Carol has given her consent that Carol could bring Madam Lupscu with him. But there is another woman who does not altogether agree to the plans of Crown Prince Carol, Zizi Lambrino, Carl's first wife, is in Paris trying to get Carol on her side. The circumstances are rather strange and it is generally believed among the European aristocracy that there is some diplomatic plot behind all this.

Morganatic Marriage.

In September, 1918, Crown Prince Carol contracted a morganatic marriage at Odessa with Mlle. Zizi Lambrino. The couple fled to Odessa from Rumania to be married. Upon learning of the marriage King Ferdinand sent an emisery to Bender, Bessarabia, where the couple spent their honeymoon, with orders to undo the nuptial knot. But in vain. The bride refused to give up her ring and Carol declined to leave her. In answer to the pleas of his family that he desert his bride of humble birth, Crown Prince Carol of Rumania replied that thrones are so unstable nowadays that he preferred the certainty of having the wife he wanted to chances of losing the succession.

In the meantime King Ferdinand and Queen Marie tried everything in their power to annul the marriage. So the crown price was punished by an imprisonment of 75 days close confinement for leaving his post in the army. This however did not change the love of Carol.

Sanction Refused.

The royal members refused to give their sanction to the marrage as Zizi Lambrino was not of royal blood. But according to law Prince Carol is legally married and there is no such thing as morganatic marriage under the law of Rumania. The royal family of Rumania possesses the same legal status as any other Rumanian family.

In 1919 there was a son born to Zizi Lambrino. It is believed in Rumania that he someday will become king of Rumania as he is born of a Rumanian mother.

Hungary who had a special aristocratic law also permitted Arch Duke Franz Ferdinand and his morgantic wife to become rulers, but he was killed in July 1914 which was the beginning of the World war. There has never been a divorce as the Rumanian court did not recognize the marriage, and only with great diplomatic intrigue and tact was Carol brought to leave his wife. Her brother, Lou Lambrino is a well known lawyer in Paris and a very good friend of Crown Prince Carol.

Many for Lambino.

The court in Paris recently refused to give the son of Zizi Lambrino the name of Hohenzollern. However she is bringing him up as the future king of Rumania and on her side quite a number of powerful nobles are aligned. Zizi Lambrino is not of a Peasant family as of ten described. Her father was a major in the Rumanian army. Her grandmother was a countess Alcasi and her great-grandmother was a countess Strozzi of the well known Italian Strozzi, of Florence. At the present it is hard to say who will win, King Gerdinand understands the situation of Prince Carol, for in his youth he had himself a love affair with Helen Vacarescu his mother's lady-of-honor.

Postoffice Will Be U. S. Biggest

Chicago to Erect Massive Structure to Cover One Whole Block

CHICAGO, Nov. 2. (AP)—Land that once carried a purchase price of $1,250,000 but which now is worth close to $5,000,000 will bear Chicago's new postoffice, bids opened at Washington disclosed.

Agitation first was started for a building to replace the present crowded quarters in the center of the loop district in 1908 when the Chicago plan commission and civic organizations urged the purchase of ground which was listed at $1,250,000. The present postoffice site is immensely valuable for business purposes.

The new building would be the largest postoffice in the world, covering a square block in the vicinity of the new $60,000,000 union station west of the Chicago river.

"Honey Lou"

BY BEATRICE BURTON

READ THIS FIRST:

HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old "GRUMPY" WALLACK, head of the Wallack Fabric Mills. "Grumpy" hired Honey Lou, not only because she is clever, but because she is pleasant to have around. And Honey Lou likes everyone at the mills except JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk, who makes love to her against her will at every opportunity.

JACK WALLACK comes to work in his father's mills to learn the business. He falls in love with Honey Lou's beauty the minute he sees her, and later with her sweetness and lovable charm. Brought up by an unworldly, old-fashioned mother, MRS. HUNTLEY, Honey Lou is a rare mixture of flapper and clinging vine.

At a party given by ANGELA ALLEN, she drinks her first two cocktails, thinking they are fruit punch, and "passes out." While she is unconscious, Angela calls her "hard-boiled" and tells Jack she had not two cocktails but seven. Jack believes her, and for a long time does not go to see Honey Lou.

Angela pretends to be her friend after this, and tells Honey Lou that Jack is not the kind of man to be taken seriously by any girl, and hints that he once had a love affair with her and then dropped her.

Jack begins to call on Honey Lou again, but the matter of the cocktails is never cleared up. He is insanely jealous of Honey Lou; and one night when DR. STEVE MAYHEW, comes to the house in Margret's absence, Jack angrily tells Honey Lou she shouldn't have seen him and goes away. A few nights later while Honey Lou is taking part in a Charleston contest just for a lark, he stalks out of the theatre where the contest is held, furious because Honey Lou was "making a holy show of herself," as he says. Honey Lou decides to leave Wallack's, and goes to work with Margret in the office of Holy Cross hospital. One day she goes to tea with the wily Angela and meets Jack's mother, whom Jack calls THE HEAD because she manages everything at home. She tells Honey Lou that "Grumpy" is not satisfied with his new secretary, ANN LUDLOW, the office vamp. The next day, Jack asks Honey Lou to work for his father, who is at home sick with lumbago, and she promises that she will.

Honey Lou meets Angela who tells her that Jack Wallack is taking her out to dance that evening. Honey Lou calls up Tim Donegal, determined to have him take her to the same place.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII.

There was hash for supper that night in the little flat.

It was not common every day hash, but a glorified dish from an old southern cook book.

Mrs. Huntley made it with chicken left over from the Sunday dinner, with green peppers, potato and cream, all baked to a golden brown in a buttered baking dish.

Made thus, it was a dish fit to set before a king, and Honey Lou loved it ordinarily.

But tonight when she walked into the little hallway of the flat, and the rich odor of it swept up to her nostrils, she made a face like "Grumpy's", when he tasted the spinach and lettuce.

At supper, she could not eat. The little white-clothed table, with its vase of asters, its glass dish of red currant jelly, its bright silver and shining plates and cups, was agleam in the fading glow of the sunset.

There are women who keep house, and women who make an art of housekeeping. Mrs. Huntley made an art of her housekeeping. It meant more to her than clean beds, mended clothes and three well-cooked meals a day.

No matter how simple the food on the little round table might be, the table cloth was always spotless, the silver shining, the vase filled with a few fresh flowers.

Tonight everything looked more appetizing than usual. But when Honey Lou tried to eat, the food choked her.

"Dear, I'm just not hungry," she told her mother, moving uneasily in her chair under the tender anxious eyes. "Mr. Wallack made me so nervous today. He was as cross as a bear with a sore head. And his room smelled of liniment, too. I reckon it just took away my appetite."

She sighed. "I told Donegal I'd go out dancing with him tonight, and I wish I could think of some way to get out of it, without hurting his feelings." She was sorry now that she had invited herself to spend the evening with him. After all, what would she get out of it?

She rolled up her napkin, slipped it into the silver ring that Aunt Lucy had given her for Christmas long ago, and walked out of the dining room.

As she went, she heard Margret say quiety to her mother: "The poor kid's tired out. That's all that's wrong with her. Remember, she hasn't had a vacation all summer."

But Honey Lou was not tired in that way. Her slim lovely little body was fairly vibrant with life and blooming with young health.

But she had reached the time that every woman reaches sooner or later. She was tired — terribly tired—of dashing around from one pleasure to the next, with one man or another.

It was her time to fall in love with the One Man, who should mean everything to her. To settle down with him to the solemn and beautiful business of being married—to living with him, belonging to him.

She had met that One Man, and she had fallen in love with him. And so it was that she looked forward to an evening with Tim Donegal with utter weariness.

"I hate to go out tonight," she said to herself, taking her new fall dress out of the clothes closet. "I don't know why I wanted to go, in the first place."

She put it on, and studied herself in the wavy dim mirror of her dresser.

She liked herself in it, she decided. The old-gold satin rippled over her figure, bringing out the lovely girl-slimness of breast and waist and hips.

The color of the satin was almost the color of Honey Lou's shining hair, and of her amber eyes with gold flecks in them. Even the whiteness of her skin had gold mixed in it that turned it to cream.

Against that velvety whiteness Honey Lou's mouth was like a rose petal fallen on ivory. A mouth that needed none of the paint that she used on it so extravagantly.

She roughed it now, as she stood, grave-eyed, before the toilet glass. Then she "borrowed" a yellow velvet rose from the drawer where Margret kept her gloves and collars and handkerchiefs.

It was just what she needed to pin on her shoulder for a touch of color, and Margret would never use it anyway, most likely. Margret was not given to "fussy" dressing.

She only raised her eyebrows and laughed when Honey Lou walked out into the sitting room, with it pinned on her satin shoulder.

"Pretty swank tonight, aren't you?" she asked, looking up from the pair of stockings she was darning under the yellow lamp. "Much too pretty for Donegal. I don't like him. He looks—wild."

"Am I pretty enough for Jack Wallack?" asked Honey Lou with her quick dazzling smile.

Margret nodded.

"But I thought you said you were going out with that Donegal man," Mrs. Huntley said, glancing up sharply.

"And so I am! But I'm going to see Jack Wallack, too!" Honey Lou dropped a kiss on the soft coil of hair that crowned her mother's head. "We're going to a restaurant to dance and he's going, too, with a crowd."

She made up her mind in a flash that she would go there with Donegal after all. There was no use wearing this lovely new dress, unless Jack Wallack saw her in it. None at all.

She met Donegal downstairs in the sapphire darkness of the September night. And so it was not until they were in the restaurant that she saw that he had been drinking.

His eyes were bloodshot, his black hair rumpled, and there was a loose-lipped smile on his weak good-looking face as he followed Honey Lou unsteadily through the maze of little tables.

Their own place was in the farthest corner of the room with its crowd, its colored lanterns aglwo above a haze of blue cigarette smoke, its red-plush divans against the wall, its noise and its clatter.

From the big round table where Jack Wallack sat with his "crowd" he saw Honey Lou come toward him—pass him—without so much as a glance.

His eyes followed her, as she swayed along like a little flower blowing on its stalk. She always made him think, somehow, of a flower. The freshness — the fragrance—and the frailty of her.

For him, the charm of Honey Lou har lain in her sweetness, her decency, her almost child-like innocence, rather than in her beauty. There were many, many pretty girls these days, when so much beauty depended on powder, cold cream, paint and curling irons.

The blow she had given him the night he had taken her joy-riding and kissed her had meant more to him than any other woman's kiss — even while his cheek still smarted with it.

He had believed her at first when she told him that it was her first kiss. He had believed her when she told him that she never had tasted liquor.

He had been touched by it.

For no matter how short women may cut their hair and their skirts — no matter how much they may smoke or drink or paint themselves—a man's ideal of a woman somehow remains the same. The ideal of unsullied sweetness that is like the sweetness of an old-fashioned high-walled garden.

By the time Honey Lou and Donegal were seated Jack had looked away from them.

When she finally found him with her eyes, he was helping Suzanne Clemens to butter. Suzanne, with her 40-year-old eyes and her little baby face with a plume of cigaret smoke curling out from the round red mouth! On the other side of him sat Angela, all in filmy white, looking more like an angel than ever.

"There's th' old gang over in the other corner," Donegal muttered when he and Honey Lou had finished their soup. "Let's call 'em over here!"

It would have done it, too, but just then the orchestra began to play his favorite "Valencia."

"Let's dance," he said to Honey Lou.

They danced. Donegal had once said that no matter how much he drank he could always do two things—drive his car and dance.

Honey Lou saw now that what he said was true, so far as the dancing went. Not by a single misstep or stagger did he betray himself. He kept perfect time to the sensuous, stirring music.

But his eyes were almost closed, and once he brushed her cheek with his tiny pointed mustache.

"Lip tickle," he murmured softly to her, holding her so close to him that she could hardly dance.

"Don't Tim!" she said sharply, her lips close to his ear. "People are looking at us!"

He laughed. "Do you care? They're all cabbage heads," he told her. "That's all people are. Jus' cabbage heads. You an' me — we're different. We're somebodies. We can dance. Lordy, woman, how you can dance!" He gave her a sudden hard squeeze that all but sent them flat on the floor.

"Tim, behave yourself!" Honey Lou had gone very white, under the golden radiance of the lanterns above their heads. "Tim, please let's stop dancing! Tim, you've been drinking! You shouldn't have brought me here tonight."

She saw now that he was very drunk, indeed. He could hardly walk when the music stopped and they made their way to their own table in the corner.

Instead of taking the chair he had left, he dropped heavily down into one next to hers. His hot damp hand found hers under the table-top.

"Do something for me. Do me a favor," he said thickly. "Ri' now, before anybody sees us. Give me a kiss—just a little quick one — I'm crazy about you, Honey Lou."

Honey Lou shoved him away from her, and took a chair across from him with the table between them.

"Going to play tag?" Tim asked her. He slid over next to her, once more, and his face sobered.

A look that she hated came into it. It made her remember the day when Joe Meadows had stopped her on the stars behind the shipping room at the Wallack Mills.

She looked wildly around the room, wondering if she could get up and leave the place without having Donegal make a scene.

Then across the smoke-filled room, she saw that Jack Wallack was watching them. Beside him, Suzanne Clemens was rolling her big eyes at him flirtatiously, but he did not see her.

For an instant he seemed to hesitate. Then he got up and came toward Honey Lou through the maze of little tables with a careless stride. He was smiling a little, and his head was up.

"What's the matter, Honey Lou?" he asked quietly and sat down with them.

"I think — Tim's under the weather, a little," the girl faltered. Then her eyes widened with almost frantic appeal.

"Can't you get me out of here?" she asked, throwing her hands out in a helpless desperate sort of way. He's been drinking. I can't stay with him."

Donegal picked up his glass of water and it slipped out of his fingers and fell to the floor with a crash.

"Butter - fingers!" he scolded himself. "Now come on, Honey Louly, be sociable. You can't get away with that touch-me-not stuff any longer with me. See?" He shook his finger at her. Then he laid one hand on her arm and pulled her toward him.

"Get out o' here, Jack," he said, looking at the wall above Jack's head. "Honey Louly and I don't want any third party here. We're all ri', by ourselves." He hiccoughed.

Jack leaned over and looked him square in the eye.

"Listen to me, you picnic egg!" he said very quietly. "You let Miss Huntley alone or I'm going to throw you out on your head. Do you hear me?"

Donegal shook his head. "I'm as deaf as a post," he answered, "when you're talking."

He stopped, and gazed unsteadily across the room. At the top of the three velvet-covered steps that lead down into the room stood two men in plain dark clothes.

It seemed to Honey Lou that they were looking straight at Donegal and herself.

"Dry officers!" said Donegal quickly. A sharp look crossed his face, and he sprang up from the table.

The sight of the two men seemed to have sobered him up like a cup of ice water dashed in his face. In another minute he had vanished through the glass-paneled door that led into the kitchens of the Magic Lantern. Behind him on the table he left a pint bottle of whiskey.

Above the sudden blare of the saxaphones, Honey Lou heard Jack's voice: "Let's get out of here —come on—quick!"

She had a glimpse of great copper kettles of steaming soup, of cooks in white caps and jackets, of shelves filled with cups and plates and bowls—and then she and Jack Wallack were out under the stars, in the cluttered backyard behind the restaurant.

They squeezed through an opening in a broken fence, hurried through another yard, and found themselves on a narrow side street. Across the road from them stood a long black-and-nickle car.

They ran toward it.

REALTORS PLAN

Take Up Discussion of Club Program.

Suggestions for a program of definite aims to be carried out by the Wichita Falls Real Estate Board were given in the regular meeting of that organization Tuesday noon at the Kemp hotel when P. S. Richardson mentioned a number of ideas to be discussed by the board. A board of appraisal work to be done by a committee or committees from the organization was suggested; advertising the city of Wichita Falls to jobbers and factories; the establishment of a library for the Real Estate Board where books on subjects of interest to realtors would be available; launching of a lawn and garden beautiful contest to improve the appearance of the city; working toward a license law, and a weekly bulletin were among others suggested by Mr. Richardson.

That a realtor should be one of the members of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce was discussed and efforts in that direction will be pursued, the members agreed.

A group of realtors will appear at the next meeting of the business council when the slogan, "The City That Faith Built" will be discussed. The Real Estate Board went on record as being one of the first organizations desiring to eliminate the use of the slogan. W. S. Curlee will lead in the discussion.

A. M. McPherson, engineer, who has been in Amarillo and communities near that city for the last two months told his impressions of the city which is beginning to rival Wichita Falls in population.

"Amarillo is growing like a toadstool. If I am any judge of values, it is due for an awful bump," Mr. McPherson said as he described the feverish growth of the oil city. He told of the subdivisions in the city which extend in all directions, and how in many of them, one house to a block is built and the remainder is left for development. "The business development is pronounced in its big buildings," he said.

LIVERPOOL—Magistrate Julius Jacobs fined his son for violation of an automobile ordinance and then paid the fine himself.

CITY AND COUNTY POLLS LIGHT VOTE IN TUESDAY ELECTION

AMENDMENTS CARRIED BY GOOD MARGIN

County Retains Its Demo Complex By a Count Of About Six to One

was sufficient to insure the success of the efforts to alter the constitution—at least so far as Wichita county is concerned.

Veteran political observers here last night were frankly amazed at the small size of the vote cast. Not within recent memory, they said, has such a small outpouring come. It was expected that a fairly heavy republican vote would be cast here, but from the returns as sent in last night, there was apparently little or no concerted effort to get out the G. O. P. vote.

Two Socialist Votes.

One Electra box reported last night two socialist votes had been cast there, but in no others was any mention made of the socialist ticket receiving recognition.

In the accompanying box by box tabulation, the total vote is given, the vote for the first two names on the ticket is given and the vote in the sheriff's race is given. In the tabulation the first name, Williams, denotes Guinn Williams, democratic candidate for congress from the 13th Texas district; the second name, Peters, denotes Melville E. Peters, Williams' republican opponent. The third name, Moody, of course, denotes Dan Moody, democratic candidate for governor; the next, Haines, is for Harry Haines, his republican opponent; the next, Bralley, denotes W. G. Bralley, democratic nominee for sheriff, and the last, Williams, denotes W. B. Williams, Bralley's republican opponent.

Comparative little interest was aroused in Wichita Falls in the election. The same was true in all other parts of the county. In several rural precincts, no election was held since farmers were too busy with cotton picking to bother with a vote or two.

$50,000 BLAZE IN PLANT HERE

Serious Damage to Nu-Grape Bottling Works Early Tuesday Morning

Fire almost destroyed the factory and warehouse of the Nu-Grape bottling works at 1505 Lamar early Tuesday morning. Damage was estimated at $50,000. Some insurance was carried.

The fire was discovered at 2:35 a. m and a second alarm was necessary at 3:15. This is the first second alarm fire of the year. Machinery and stock of the Nu-Grape bottling works, valued at about $30,000, was owned by W. F. Wear of 1722 Pearl street. The building was owned by T. B. Noble and Walter Reid and was valued at $20,000. Both building and contents were practically completely destroyed.

Popping of many cases of filled bottles lent an unusual aspect to the scene . The "shooting" could be heard for several blocks. Several firemen working inside the building directing streams of water on the walls narrowly missed being injured when a skylight fell near them. Three thousand feet of hose was laid in fighting the conflagration, which is one of the largest amounts of line laid at one fire this year.

MANY RACES

can, in the gubernatorial race with 771 precincts counted.

One of the state's two republican congressional seats appeared to be in danger. E. B. Howard, democrat, was leading S. J. Montgomery, republican, incumbent in the first district by less than 100 votes when sixty one of the 511 precincts had been counted. Congressman M. C. Garber, the other republican had a comfortable lead in the eighth district. Democrats were leading in the remaining six districts.

The entire state ticket appeared to be following in the wake of the democratic leads in major races.

ALFRED SMITH ELECTED GOVERNOR FOURTH TIME

NEW YORK, Nov. 2. (AP)—Alfred E. Smith has been elected governor of New York for the fourth time on the basis of returns from approximately three fourths of the state.

Robert F. Wagner, democratic candidate for the United States senate forged ahead of James W. Wadsworth, Jr., republican as additional returns, largely from New York city came in tonight.

Reports from 6,124 districts out of 7,818 in the state including 2,425 out of 3,138 in the metropolitan area gave: Wagner 1,048,922; Wadsworth 962,402. Francis W. Cristman, independent republican was a lagging third with 171,123.

Who Is Haines? They Don't Know

Junior College Students Fail In Questionnaire In Class

Who is Harry H. Haines?

That was one question among others propounded unexplained to two college senior classes at the Junior colleges yesterday to test off-hand the acquaintance of students with present-day affairs. And not one would fall for the question. Not one knew the answer.

The first question asked concerned the election, with the result of only a mere half dozen in both classes together knowing that Tuesday was the date of the national and state elections. Later, when questioned, the majority of the students stated that they had heard nothing in their homes recently about the election.

A third question propounded, "Who is Dan Moody?" was known to everyone generally, but only about two-thirds of the two groups of students could tell what office Moody holds now.

According to R. O. Jonas, the instructor who propounded the questions, the students in the classes are namely seniors and include representatives from many of the principal families of the city and also include a large percentage of the best students in the college.

MUMFORD CASE TRANSFERRED

Brought to Wichita Falls On Order of Judge At Archer City

The case of Carroll Mumford, under indictment in Archer county for robbery in connection with a hi-jacking in Holliday on May 4, has been transferred to the 89th district court by Judge E. G. Thornton. The 30th court is the one having jurisdiction in Archer county.

The transfer was made by the court on belief that a fair trial could not be secured in Archer county. The order making the transfer reads in part:

"The defendant being indicted * * * * and it being within the knowledge of the court that subsequent to such indictments and prior to the July primaries of 1926 that a bitterly contested race for sheriff of Archer county was made and that one of the candidates for sheriff is a brother of said defendant Carroll Mumford, and that one of the main issues in such race was this particular robbery and the relation of said candidate for sheriff to one of said accused; and by reason of such facts and the wide publicity in such political campaign * * * * the court is of the opinion that a trial alike fair and impartial to the state and accused cannot be had in Archer county."

The order then goes on to direct the transfer of the case.

C-C TO RAISE $75,000 FUND

Budget for Next Year's Work Set at This Figure By Directors

President J. C. Mytinger of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce announced a complete budget of $75,000 for the organization for the ensuing year yesterday, and also paid a high compliment to the chamber of commerce management for its success in maintaining the organization during the past year at a less figure than the year's budget called for. The general plans for this year's campaign will be announced at the annual membership banquet to be held November 12, at the Junior college cafeteria. The drive is usually held on November 15, 16 and 17, and will probably be conducted on these dates this year.

"Our chamber of commerce financial budget for 1927, as approved by the campaign committee, will be $75,000," President Mytinger of the chamber of commerce said.

Big Program Closed.

"We have conducted the largest program of work in the history of the city in 1926, at an expense of approximately $70,000 for the year. We started the year $9,000 in debt and our financial statement, October 31, shows we are out of debt and have $8,800 in the bank. We also expect to collect at least $5,000 more outstanding 1926 dues. This will be enough to finish our program for the year as previously outlined.

"In January, 1926, we subscribed $100,000. Of this amount $80,000 was subscribed in the general solicitation and a group of business men underwrote the other $20,000, which was to be held as an emergency industrial development fund. This fund was to be used only in the event the emergency arose. By careful management we have been able to conduct our efficient program on less money than we had thought possible.

More Work Ahead.

"Our program of work for 1927 is along the same general lines of policy pursued by the organization in the past, with increased activity in the publicity depar nent and in the industrial and traffic department. It also contemplates the employment of a staff member, trained in agricultural marketing, who will assist in a more active program for the development of the agricultural resources in the irrigated valley. Full details of the accomplishments of the year and plans for the future will be announced at the great membership banquet to be held Friday night, November 12, at the Junior college.

C.-C. Officers Praised.

"I feel that the chamber of commerce has been most efficiently managed during the past year by our staff, and we are preparing to ask the membership to subscribe $75,000 for 1927, which is just what we believe will be needed, after a careful analysis of the situation."

WHY NOT DO AS THIS YOUNG COUPLE DID?

A certain young couple found themselves with a host of bills all at one time, more than they could take care of on time.

They wanted to keep their credit rating good. But they just didn't have the money right then to meet all the bills. So they borrowed enough from us to pay every bill when it came due.

Then they paid us back over a period of a few months, payments that they were able to take care of conveniently. And they kept their good credit rating.

Why not use that method yourself if you find your bills too large all at once?

We make loans of $50 to $500 at low interest rate, the payments arranged for your convenience.

We will be glad to talk it over with you at any time.

Magnificent Pecan Orchards

Can Be Developed Only From

Supreme Quality Trees

Consider This While It Is Not Yet Too Late

In the World-Wide contest held at Bend, Texas, in 1921, to determine the finest quality pecan, Mr. Mahan, proprietor of Monticello Nursery Company, captured the first prize with the Schley variety. These contests are held about each four years. In December, 1925, in the same contest, held at College Station, Texas, and open to the entire world, as before, he won first prize with the Mahan variety.

World-Wide Prize Winning Nuts Can Be Gathered Only From Supreme Quality Trees

Among those who know the nursery trees of the Monticello Nursery Company are just as noted as the nuts which they produce.

The nuts that were planted to grow these trees were gathered from specially selected native Texas trees and shipped to Monticello, where ideal conditions exist for growing the finest of nursery stock. At the proper time the young trees were budded with buds from BEARING, paper-shell varieties, and a special process employed for developing their wonderful root system.

This season, tens of thousands of unusually fine trees of these royal blooded strains are awaiting shipment. Some, of course, are larger, finer and more vigorous than others. They will continue so after planted in orchards.

In a few days I will leave for the nursery. Upon arrival it will be my special, personal privilege, secured by contract, to be the first to enter and take first choice out of all these fine trees, rejecting every one that is not absolutely perfect. Every tree shipped to my customers will be the choicest of the choice.

The roots of these chosen trees are protected from the atmosphere by wet wrapping and never allowed to become dry for a single moment from the time they are dug until packed in bundles in the big packing sheds ready for shipment. They are shipped in solid car lots by fast freight, so perfectly packed that they always arrive in perfect condition with roots as moist as when taken from their native soil.

It is obvious that I can render my best services only to those who place their orders previous to my departure for the nursery. They are assured of getting SUPREME QUALITY TREES.
