'Tax relief' bill has preliminary okay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A "tax relief" bill described in terms of both Robin Hood and the Prodigal Son has won preliminary House approval.

House members gave up lunch Thursday and worked to mid-afternoon to advance the bill, which will come up again on Monday for final passage. That would send it to the Senate.

The measure (HB1060) enacts all the optional provisions of the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment and provides more than $430 million in state tax dollars to offset property tax cuts school districts must grant.

The Tax Relief Amendment automatically exempted $5,000 of the market value of owner-occupied homes from school property taxes. It left implementation of its other features to the Legislature.

Key provisions of the bill approved Thursday would:

—Grant the disabled and those 65 and over a $10,000 homestead exemption, in addition to the mandated $5,000 exemption, and freeze school taxes of the elderly at their present levels.

—Exempt two cars or light trucks per family from property taxes.

—Limit increases in state spending to the percentage of growth of Texans' total personal income.

—Exempt intangible property such as stocks, bonds nd bank accounts from taxation, except for the handful of intangibles already taxed — chiefly bank stock.

—Tax farm, ranch and timber land — both family-owned and corporately-owned — according to its crop-producing capacity, not its market value. Taxable value would be estimated net income divided by either 10 percent or the Houston Federal Land Bank's interest rate plus 2½ percent, whichever was greater. If the "capitalization rate" was 10 percent, an acre that could produce a $30 average annual profit would be valued at $300 for taxation.

—Omit intangible property from the measurement of school district wealth that is used to determine how much state aid each district would receive — a step considered essential to avoid ruinous cuts in aid to big city schools.

—Use state tax money to reimburse school districts for revenue losses resulting from property tax cuts mandated by the Tax Relief Amendment and the implementing bill.

Automobile tax losses, minus each district's collection costs, would be reimbursed only for the first year and are estimated at $17 million.

Junior college district revenue losses caused by the change from market value to agricultural value also would be reimbursed, although nobody knows the amount.

School districts whose level of property appraisals for taxation fall below the state average would receive 90 percent of their losses. Some 300 districts that are above the state average could receive more than they actually lost if enough money is available to pay them more than dollar for dollar.

Estimated cost of school district reimbursement is $415 million for the next two years.

Reimbursement was the most controversial issue and received the closest count in Thursday's article-by-article vote on the bill, 81-48.

A largely rural and small town group of lawmakers tried several times Wednesday and Thursday to eliminate the reward-and-punishment aspect of reimbursement.

Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman, attempted to put reimbursement on a strict dollar-for-dollar basis, but lost, 74-57.

"Have you ever heard of Robin Hood, who took from the rich to give to the poor?" asked Rep. Buck Florence, D-Hughes Springs.

"I read it five times when I was a child," Bush said.

"Well, isn't this like Robin Hood in reverse, where you rob from the poor (school districts) and give to the rich?" Florence asked.

"It seems like they are doing that to your school district, Mr. Florence," Bush said.

In Bush's home county, the Sherman school district would receive almost $43,000 less than it would lose from homestead exemptions because its appraisals are below the state average ratio to true market value — 58 percent compared with the statewide average of 68 percent. But Denison Independent School District would receive an $18,000 "bonus" because its appraisals are 71 percent of market value.

"For half this House, this bill is gigantic tax relief. For the rest of this House, it is a tax increase," Bush said.

Begin postpones full-treaty consideration

Discord arises in Israeli Cabinet

By the Associated Press

A faction in the Israeli Cabinet is demanding that the government commit itself to stepped-up Jewish settlement in the West Bank of the Jordan River and continued Israeli security control of the area, it was learned today.

The discord apparently is one reason Prime Minister Menachem Begin has postponed for 24 hours the Cabinet's consideration of the full Egyptian-Israeli treaty, originally scheduled for Sunday.

A Begin spokesman said the delay resulted from the prime minister's illness — he has been ordered to bed because of a cold. But it will also give Begin time to try to head off a clash over the demands of three-men National Religious Party faction in the 17-member Cabinet.

In Egypt, meanwhile, President Anwar Sadat declared today that the "real test" of the peace process will come after the signing of an Egyptian-Israeli treaty, when the two countries open negotiations on establishing self-rule for the Palestinians in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, another Israeli occupied territory.

"I know Begin will be raising hell as he always does, but, by God, I shall be raising hell for him also," Sadat said at an impromptu news conference in his home village.

The White House announced that a U.S. delegation, including President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, and Carter's son Chip, was heading for the Mideast today in an attempt to persuade Arab leaders to change their minds and support the proposed Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

The delegation will meet with leaders of two moderate Arab states, Saudi Arabia and Jordan, whose support is considered crucial to future success of the U.S.-sponsored peace drive.

The Camp David accords call for Jordanian participation in the West Bank-Gaza negotiations, but Jordan has refused to accept the invitation, making it more likely that only Egypt, Israel and the United States will negotiate self-rule arrangements for the Palestinians.

David Glass, a National Religious Party member of the Israeli Parliament, told The Associated Press that the party's demands in the Cabinet are not being presented as an ultimatum as the Cabinet prepares to debate the treaty.

The National Religious Party, Begin's senior partner in his government coalition, is under pressure from Jewish settlers in the West Bank who fear Palestinian autonomy will weaken their control of the area, which they consider theirs by God-given right. But the party's support is not essential for Begin to succeed in having the treaty adopted.

Glass said his faction is demanding that the Cabinet accept five principles on autonomy: that it would not lead to a Palestinian state, and that Israel would control security in the zone, manage its water sources, increase Jewish settlement and apply autonomy to the population but not to the land itself.

Witness in federal tax fraud case found dead in jail cell

Robert Edward Sims, 42, of Big Spring, who was scheduled to testify in a tax fraud case in Lubbock federal district court later this month, was found dead in a Taylor County Jail cell Thursday.

Sims, originally of Wichita Falls, was being transferred from the federal correctional institute at Seagoville to Lubbock. He had been summoned by bench warrants as a witness in a trial involving an alleged West Texas tax fraud.

Roger Berry, Abilene, a detective, sad there was no evidence of foul play but said an autopsy would be performed.

The autopsy, Berry added, was for the protection of Taylor County since Sims was a federal prisoner who died in custody.

A preliminary report from the pathologist who performed the autopsy indicated that death was due to natural causes. Justice of Peace Silas Clark pronounced Sims dead at 7:29 a.m., Thursday.

Sims had arrived at the Taylor County jail Wednesday and had been placed in a cell with two other prisoners.

Sims had been sentenced to five years in prison after entering a guilty plea on federal charges alleging conspiracy, filing false income tax returns and perjury.

Sims' two cellmates said they notified jailers that something was wrong when they tried to awaken Sims Thursday morning. He was still in his bunk. Berry said there was no sign of a struggle.

Berry added that Sims did not have a history of medical problems.

A federal grand jury in Lubbock indicted 26 persons in a tax swindle case in which Sims was to testify. Eleven of the 26 entered guity pleas. The other 15 will go on trial March 26.

Prosecutors will try to show that loans were obtained by the defendents, based on refunds indicated on fake income tax returns.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger McRoberts said in Lubbock he had been told Sims' death had been caused by a massive coronary.

McRoberts added that Sims' testimony would not be crucial to the government's case.

Sims has a wife but funeral plans have not been disclosed. The body is at McBene Allen Funeral Home in Abilene.

Eight arrested in local raid; marijuana plants, pills seized

Seven Big Springers and a Coahoman were arrested in a drug bust at 11 p.m. Thursday.

According to Gilbert Limon, member of the Big Spring Major Crime Task Force, the bust was the result of 40 hours of investigation and surveillance. Limon, Detectives George Quintero, David Spilman and James Van Ness, and nearly all patrolman working the evening shift were involved in the raid.

The raid was set in motion when officers observed a man emerging from a home at 1503 E. 3rd, carrying a package. Police followed the suspects car for several blocks, and intercepted it at 19th and Johnson.

Scott L. Davis, 17, was arrested there for suspicion of possessing a small quantity of hashish.

With Davis in custody, investigators then obtained a search warrant to raid the Third-Street home.

Arrested there were Jerry L. Bacot, 19, 1503 E. 3rd; Mary M. Bacot, 18, 1503 E. 3rd: Steven D. Pherigo, 22, Coahoma; Larry D. Darden, 19, 1218 Lloyd; Charles R. Byrne, 21, Box 1815; Bernice C. Darden, 21, 2701 E. 25th; and Johnny D. Darden, 23, 2701 E. 25th.

Armed man hijacks jetliner in Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A man armed with a knife and demanding $200,000 and transportation to Cuba hijacked a Continental Airlines Boeing 727 jetliner on a flight from Phoenix to Tucson Friday, the airline said.

The plane landed at Tucson International Airport, and everyone but a female flight attendant and the hijacker got off the plane unharmed, Continental spokesman Jack Gregor said in Los Angeles. The plane had carried 89 passengers.

"Everybody is safely off the aircraft, including the cockpit crew, except for one flight attendant," Gregor said. "She is being held hostage."

FBI agents were lying underneath the tail of the plane attempting to negotiate with the hijacker, who Gregor said was dressed in a business suit and had boarded the flight in Los Angeles.

Continental spokesman John Clayton said he was "under the impression that he was using a knife."

A reporter for the Tucson Citizen said the pilot and co-pilot fled through the cockpit windows.

The plane was Flight 62, which originated in Los Angeles and was bound for Miami. It had left Phoenix at 9:15 a.m. MST and arrived at Tucson at 9:40 a.m.

City's sales tax rebate for February declines

Big Spring's sales tax rebate for February dropped slightly compared to the same period last year.

The city received a check totaling $111,923.41 for the month of February. The total for the same month in 1978 was $156,979.79.

This brings total payments so far this year to $191,673.49, compared to $213,450.04 for the same period in 1978.

The drop was even more drastic in a number of area cities. Colorado City received less than half the amount received during February of last year.

The total for that city this year was $10,109.34, compared to $24,396.38 in 1978.

Coahoma's rebate dropped from $4,019.85 last year to $2,475.97 for February of this year. Lamesa's total dropped from $61,658.85 for February of 1978.

According to State officials, the drop in this area was also reflected in totals across Texas. State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Thursday that rebates to Texas cities of the local one percent sales tax have fallen slightly behind the first quarter of 1978.

The dip in city allocations as well as a similar drop in the collection of the state's four percent sales tax is not likely to affect overall state revenue this fiscal year, he said.

"However, I'll be watching tax trends and receipts closer than a hawk watches a a sparrow and plan to give the Legislature an updated revenue estimate for the next two fiscal years in the next 15 to 20 days," Bullock said.

Bullock said more than 915 Texas cities will share $56.6 million in sales tax rebates during March.

He said 1979 rebate payments to cities from the first of the year total $100.3 million, compared to 1978 payments of $101.4 million over the same period.

Bullock said late returns that have not hit the Comptroller's accounting system and not sluggish retail sales during the reporting period seem to be the chief culprit for the downturn in rebates.

Bullock said the Comptroller's office had about 2,400 returns on hand that were't processed for the March allocation.

Houston will receive $11.2 million in rebates, bringing the city's 1979 payments to date to $20.3 million, about the same as last year's payments to date.

Dallas will get a check for $6.6 million, pushing the city's 1979 payments to $11.3 million, a two percent drop in rebates over the same three-month period last year.

Fort Worth will receive $2.3 million for March, bringing this year's total to $4 million, or a 5 percent decrease over the 1978 payments to date.

The rebate check for San Antonio will total $3.2 million. The Alamo City's 1979 total to date is $5.6 million, compared to 1978 payments to date of $5.8 million or afour percent decline.

The sales tax is collected by merchants and other sales tax permit holders along with the state sales tax and is rebated monthly to cities in which it is collected by the Comptroller's office.

Women at stag dinner

SASAKWA, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma's oldest stag dinner, where many a state politician got his initial boost, will have a new twist this year — women will be invited.

Dinner spokesman Larry Couch said between 500 and 750 men and women are expected for the March 30 event, started in 1939 as a fund-raising activity for the Future Farmers of America. Among the politicians who used the dinner to launch campaigns were the late Sen. Robert Kerr and former House Speaker Carl Albert. Sponsors credit the dinner with starting the career of singer Anita Bryant, an Oklahoma native.

Blue school house redone

WALLACE, Idaho (AP) — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer wants to re-paint part of this northern Idaho mining town's little blue school house for a movie. The school board has agreed, but thinks the whole building should be painted, with MGM footing part of the $19,000 bill.

The school was painted blue about eight years ago, and for some residents, the blue has made them see red. Board member Dennis Wheeler said he considers a blue school house a "disgrace." MGM says it needs to repaint part of the building to blend in with others in the area, and is willing to paint that portion blue again. But the whole school appears to be another matter. Negotiations are underway.

Robber uses taxi cabs

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A bank robber who uses taxi cabs to make his getaways, usually leaving large tips for the cabbies, is being sought for at least 11 heists totaling more than $55,000 in four states.

Drive-in windows of eight banks in Minnesota and one in Wisconsin, plus financial institutions in Albany, N.Y., and Jackson, Miss., were robbed from cabs. In each case, a man hailed a cab near the bank, told the driver to pull up to a drive-in window and passed the teller a note threatening the life of the cabbie. Afterward, the man has gotten out of the cab a few blocks away, usually leaving a large tip. A couple of times tellers have found a rose in their cash drawers.

Sen. Tower to speak at Pecos C of C banquet

PECOS — Texas' senior U.S. Sen. John Tower will focus on the economy, energy and national security issues as featured speaker here Saturday for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet.

The community-wide event will be held at 7 p.m. in the Pecos High School cafeteria, 1201 S. Park. Tower's speech will be preceded by the Chamber's yearly awards presentation.

Tower, top-ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, is currently serving his fourth term in the Senate. He is chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee and senior GOP member of the Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee.

The senator will be accompanied on the trip by his wife Lilla. The couple last visited Pecos in October, 1978, to participate in a county fair celebration.

On Sunday, Tower has been invited to deliver the lay sermon at the First United Methodist Church, 301 S. Elm. Following services, the Towers will depart for Washington, D.C.

Other weekend stops on the Texas Republican's intinerary include Wichita Falls, Lubbock and Dallas.

In recent statements, Tower has voiced strong opposition to the Carter Administration's proposed standby gasoline rationing and energy conservation measures. He contends the measures discriminate most against states, such as Texas, who have done the most to supply the nation's energy needs and also fail to contribute to improving the domestic energy supply.

During the first three months of the 96th Congress, Tower has introduced several pieces of legislation, including the following:

—a bill to control the unrestricted rulemaking authority of the Federal Trade Commission and free businessmen from the unnecessary time and expense of excessive regulations.

—a banking measure to maintain the present voluntary membership for banks in the Federal Reserve System and allow member banks to earn interest on their reserves.

CRMWD reports lower revenues, expenses up

Lower revenues and increased expenses contributed to a continuation of a slow start for the Colorado River Municipal Water District for the year.

Reduced sales to oil companies, largely because of the cut-off from surface supplies, hammered down deliveries for the first two months of the year, and with them revenues. Receipts of $515,134 in February ran the total for the year to $942,600, or 97,000 less than the first two months of 1978. Revenues from cities amounted to $693,500 for the first two months, $56,000 more than the period last year, but this was due principally to a rate adjustment.

Oil company revenues to the district were $230,508, down $116,000. Municipal sales were off only slightly, but deliveries to oil companies were down 263 million gallons. The 2,173,034,000 gallons sold in the first two months was 363 million gallons off the 1978 pace.

Operating expenses of $556,475 for the initial two months was up $71,257 or 15 percent over the same time last year. Administrative and general expense of $102,002 was about 9 percent over a year ago, but some $3,000 of it in earlier payment of insurance, dues, etc.

The major increase was $305,083 for energy, up 23 percent over a year ago. At the end of February, the CRMWD had 10,650 acre feet reserve in Lake Thomas and 107,700 acre feet in Lake E.V. Spence.

Former oil executive posts bail in Pecos

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A former executive of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association and seven other persons have been indicted on federal drug conspiracy charges.

The sealed indictments were returned Tuesday by a federal grand jury in Midland and made public Thursday.

John R. Dorr, 40, of Pecos, the former oil association executive, was arrested Wednesday morning in Pecos, taken before U.S. Magistrate J.M. Preston in Pecos and released on $150,000 bond.

Also indicted were Kenneth Stuckwish, Alpine, Texas; John Grant Passmore, Royalty, Texas; Alberto Gamboa-Gonzalez, Mazatlan, Mexico; Vivian Gonzalez, Alhambra, Calif.; Gregory Mark Haltman, Tahoe Paradise, Calif.; Joseph Phillip Balfour, Monterrey, Calif.; and Ernest Lee Pemberton, Alhambra, Calif.

They are scheduled to be arraigned at 2 p.m. next Thursday in Midland.

The charges were the result of a raid 11 months ago by the narcotics division of the New Mexico State Police in which 966 pounds of marijuana were seized. Officials said the marijuana had been flown from Mazatlan to near Roswell, N.M.

All defendants were charged with two counts except Dorr and Pemberton, who were named on three counts. They were charged with conspiracy to import a controlled substance and conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute. Dorr was charged also with aiding and abetting in the conspiracy.

Vivian Gonzales was arrested Thursday in Los Angeles, authorities said. The six others named in the indictment were still at large.

Sheriff may plead guilty

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A former Jim Wells County deputy sheriff who had been charged with intent to distribute 300 pounds of marijuana has tentatively agreed to plead guilty to a federal charge stemming from a marijuana smuggling incident in Duval County more than two years ago, according to a motion filed by a federal prosecutor.

Louis Barrera, 34, was tried last month on federal charges here. But U.S. District Judge Owen Cox declared a mistrial when the jury could not reach a verdict.

A new indictment stemming from the incident was returned three weeks ago, but had been kept sealed while attorneys for Barrera and the government conferred.

In a motion to transfer the case to Laredo, U.S. Attorney Emilio Davila said that Barrera had conditionally agreed to plead guilty to a lesser felony in exchange for dismissal of two marijuana charges.

Social workers hear talk on licensing bill

Social workers met Tuesday for lunch at the La Posada to hear Dr. Jim Payne talk about the prospects of passing a bill to license social work practitioners.

Dr. Payne is executive director of the State Chapter Office of the National Association of Social Workers. Additionally, he teaches part-time in the Graduate School of Social Work at the University of Texas at Austin.

The legislative process of getting bills to the floor for vote was discussed. With some 4,000 bills introduced each session, the key committees determine what 10 percent will be presented. The bill to license the practice of social work passed the Senate in 1978 but was not reported out of committee in the House.

There are 22 states currenty licensing social work. Allied professions of psychology, medicine, and psychiatry are licensed. The need for regulating social workers who counsel citizens on social and emotional problems related to pysical and mental illness and economic difficulties is well established.

Social workers are employed in the State Department of Human Resources, Heath, and Mental Health and Mental Retardation; probation services, youth service agencies, family and children's services, educational programs, and in other settings that provide human services. Some are in private practice. The capabilities of persons so employed are not now under regulation by the state of Texas.

March is set aside nationally as Social Work Month. Dr. Payne presented a copy of a proclamation by Governor Bill Clements which gave recognition to the profession in Texas.

ZION! YOUR GOD REIGNS!

How lovely on the mountains
Are the feet of him who brings good news,
Who announces peace
And brings good news of happiness,
Who announces salvation,
And says to Zion, "Your God reigns!".
Listen! Your watchmen lift up their voices,
They shout joyfully together;
For they will see with their own eyes
When the Lord restores Zion. —Isaiah 52:7-8 (NAS)

Keep financial records in order

Keep your fingers crossed and your documents relating to income and expenses in order. You could get audited by the Internal Revenue Service this year.

In Texas, according to a public relations firm, 129,893 taxpayers face that prospect. The only way to feel secure is to keep complete and accurate records. If your tax records have been lost or destroyed, or you have used them to line the bird cage, you could be in big trouble.

THE IRS HAS no sympathy for you if you have lost your tax records. According to Rod Young of the government's tax bureau, the protection and preservation of tax records is the responsibility of each taxpayer.

In other words, those deductions you claim which cannot be justified will generally be disallowed.

A lot of families are prone to keep their records in a drawer of a desk at home. When that drawer is filled, the very vital papers are apt to be spread loosely across the top of a desk and not infrequently used as scratch paper for memos to onesself and other members of the household.

Records kept at home run the risk of being wiped out if there is a major fire — said to be the single most common reason for the loss of personal and business records. According to the National Fire Protection Association, more than a million families and businesses nationwide suffer the tragic consequence of fire each year. The loss in tax records that way can be costly.

The IRS may be inclined to grant a reasonable extension for filing under such circumstances but that's about all. The individual must come up with substitute documentation, which often is hard to come by.

Metal file cabinets and little tin boxes, even those promoted as 'insulated' or 'asbestos-lined,' offer little protection against a major fire. Invariably, their contents burn to a crisp, too.

HOW LONG SHOULD you hold onto your expense records? According to the IRS, records that support an item of income or a deduction appearing on your return should be retained until the statute of limitations expires for that return. Usually this is three years from the date the return was filed, or two years from the date the tax was paid, which ever comes later.

In certain cases, when taxable income is averaged over a four-year period, records may have to be retained for a longer period of time. In many instances, when transactions relating to property are made, records must be retained permanently.

Fire-rated safes and filing cabinets are available. Even families maintaining bank deposit boxes keep some records at home. Take every precaution possible with them or else hope you can beat the odds of an audit.

Despairing Americans

Evans, Novak

TORRANCE, Calif. — Despair over the decline of American power compared to the Soviet Union is unmistakable in this pleasant Los Angeles county suburb of middle-income families who gave slightly more than half their votes to Jimmy Carter in the 1976 election.

By an astonishing 98 percent, the 62 registered voters we interviewed — with the help of experts from the Pat Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research — said that the U.S. has been in steady decline. More important, 98 percent also agreed that this perceived decline would continue over at least the next 10 years.

Why is that? "Because we are letting everyone step all over us," a 47-year-old auto mechanic told us. A 24-year-old carpenter expressed the same thought differently: "My opinion is that the country is going downhill."

ASSISTED BY Caddell field supervisor Lyn Phelps, and pollsters Barb Mirabal and Phyllis Barish, we found near unanimity in this middle-income ($19,000 average family income), heavily white suburb. Fifty voters held that President Carter and his administration could "do a lot more" to maintain the U.S. position in the world. Eight of the remaining 12 voters felt that Carter could do "somewhat more," if he so desired, to restore U.S. influence around the world.

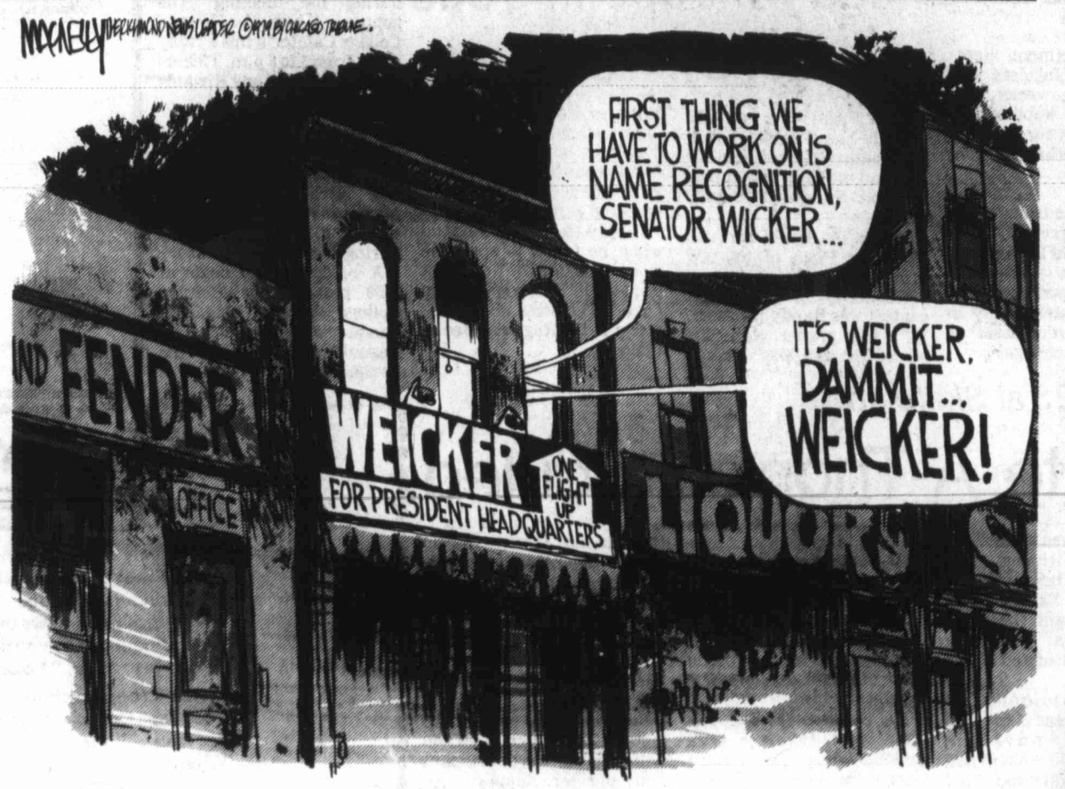

The despair surfaces in the follow-up question: the way things are going today, do you think the Soviet Union will be stronger or weaker compared to the U.S. 10 years from now? Of 23 Carter voters, only one had enough confidence in their president to answer "weaker." Of the 39 voters who voted for Jerry Ford or have forgotten how they voted, all replied that Moscow would be relatively "stronger" than it is today.

Not since we started interviewing voters nearly 16 years ago has there been such monolithic agreement on an issue so politically explosive. Significantly, the pessimism expressed about the Carter administration changing the downward course of American power does not apply to other major issues facing the president — and the voters of Torrance. Asked whether the administration "can control" inflation, these voters, by 4-to-1, said inflation definitely is controllable and implied they think it will be controlled.

But on Carter's recent efforts abroad, disapproval outweighed approval. Negotiations for a new strategic arms limitation agreement (SALT II) with the Russians got less than 25 percent approval, Carter's conduct during the Iranian crisis less than 20 percent, and his diplomacy on the recent Mexico City trip about the same. Only normalization with communist China received more "approvals" than "disapprovals."

THE WHITE HOUSE is known to be deeply disturbed by its own secret voter surveys showing politically-damaging concern over the perceived decline of the U.S. The President dispatched the aircraft carrier Constellation to the Indian Ocean, without knowing its exact destination — intent on getting a badly needed headline.

Such imagery is not likely to make much of a dent in the perceptions of the voters here. Those perceptions have congealed to a point requiring extensive political surgery. "Every administration back to Kennedy seems to have made a decision to make our country weaker," a 32-year-old foreman at Western Airlines said. "President Carter doesn't seem to be informed about what is going on."

Genital veins can be troublesome

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I appreciate your common sense approach to nutrition, medicines, etc. I have a rather unusual problem I've not seen discussed.

I am in my fourth pregnancy. In my second one I noticed varicose veins in the labia majora and the vulva. I also had this in my third pregnancy. After delivery they return to normal, although not quite completely after the last.

Recently it has gotten quite large and there is a bit of pressure. Do you have any advice for this? How serious is it? After delivery, what can be done to correct it? Will it get worse as I get older? Is this a reason to avoid another pregnancy? — Mrs. J.C.

The labia majora and the vulva are outer portions of the female genital structure. Varicose (enlarged) veins can occur here and be a problem during pregnancy. They result from the increase in pressure and circulation in the womb area during that time. For most women the enlarged veins usually return to normal, but the strain of repeated pregnancies can take a toll and the return may be less complete with succeeding pregnancies.

For some women such veins may be a sign of a generalized vein circulation problem. After your delivery, you should have a thorough investigation of your general circulation, especially if you intend to have another baby. A doctor specializing in blood vessel problems might be able to pinpoint a specific vein or artery causing the problem. For that, surgery might help. Usually it is not a local problem of this kind, however.

For now, take the usual precautions. The problem is partially "mechanical." Stay off your feet as much as you can. Elevate your hips during rests. Some women do this by placing a pillow under their hips with the legs resting upward on a soft chair. Try sleeping on the side opposite the varicose vein with a pillow under that hip. Avoid leg crossing and tight undergarments.

You may have to continue this for a time after delivery to save yourself other vein problems in the future. Its good prevention for any woman incidentally. You might expect some worsening of the situation in any future pregnancies.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am a 13-year-old girl with a big problem. I have skipped my period. I know that I cannot be pregnant because I am a virgin. It is scaring me to death. Also, I was sick at the time my period should have started. Does that have any connection? I'm afraid it is serious. — S.M.

I doubt this will reach you in time to allay your fears, but it might allay those of other young girls in your situation. Yes, an illness can cause periods to be irregular or to be skipped. Also, young women often experience irregular periods until their ovulation and menstruation patterns become set.

Dear Dr. Ruble: What would make one's stool look a pale green? Is that a sign of something bad? — Mrs. P.W.

Stool color is important, but green is not one of the ominous shades. It is probably due to consumption of greef leafy vegetables — lettuce, spinach, etc. With so many people taking so many vitamins there are many anxious reports of black stool that are often caused by the iron in them. Bismuth in diarrhea medicine may also cause this. A red discoloration may be caused by eating of beets, although any dark or red stool should be investigated because it can mean bleeding somewhere in the gastrointestinal tract. A very light color may indicate an obstruction of bile flow.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been told that if I take one teaspoon of apple cider and two teaspoons of blackstrap molasses it will keep my hair from turning gray. Is this true, and could this cause some other ailment? — Mrs. M.K.

Won't hurt, won't help. Must taste awful!

Bump back

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Robert Byrd is the Horatio Alger of the Senate, a God-fearing, nose-to-the-grindstone politican who worked his way up from dirt-poor beginnings to become the Senate majority leader. Byrd, a humorless workaholic who's a stickler for detail, has been around Capitol Hill long enough to be circumspect in the use of his political muscle.

But we've caught the fiddle-playing West Virginia Democrat bullyragging Transportation Secretary Brock Adams and traffic safety boss Joan Claybrook for nearly a year, trying to get them to lower the collision requirement for car bumpers. The object of his concern is Houdaille Industries, Inc. of Huntington, W. Va., which manufactures steel bumpers.

IN ONE INTEMPERATE letter to Claybrook, Byrd demanded that the bumper standards be changed "immediately" — an apparent breach of the rule-making procedure he himself helped to set up. Only later did he pull back a bit from this surprising outburst.

Beginning with 1979 model cars, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration required that bumpers be sturdy enough to withstand collisions at speeds up to five miles an hour without damage to the auto body. The standard was set in response to howls from motorists tired of paying hundreds of dollars in repair bills when they bumped into anything harder than an eggshell.

Even the modest five-mile-an-hour standard was too rigorous for Houdaille Industries, however, and they sent a delegation to Byrd asking for help. Unless the standards were reduced to 2 and one-half miles an hour, they told the senator, Houdaille's plant would have to close and 550 of Byrd's constituents would be thrown out of work.

Byrd, who is not only majority leader but member of the appropriations subcommittee that passes on NHTSA's budget, summoned Adams and Claybrook to his office last April. There they were confronted by Houdaille representatives. Under pressure from Byrd and his staff, Adams and Claybrook agreed to re-evaluate the bumper standard by the end of the year.

Taking no chances, Byrd went straight to the White House. He sent a private letter to Barry Bosworth, the director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

Enclosed was a private study paid for by Houdaille which, not surprisingly, showed that the five mile-per-hour-standard was costing consumers $700 million.

"I urge your immediate consideration and action to eliminate the existing inflationary regulatory bumper standard," said Byrd. The safety standard, he wrote, is "an ideal candidate for elimination."

The real drama

Around the rim

James Werrell

Where was the real drama in President Carter's quest for peace in the Mideast?

From where I sat, it was often difficult to discern amidst the multitude of political slings and arrows that darkened the skies over Washington while the chief executive was out of town.

Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, a presidential hopeful himself, darkly ruminated that if Carter's mission failed the President would surely not be nominated to run again in 1980. Wishful thinking perhaps?

SUCH LOADED phrases as "high risk gamble" and "political life and death" abounded in media accounts of the peace effort. Every two-bit pundit in the country seemed to think that the very future of the U.S. hung in the balance.

Members of the Democratic Party even succumbed to the hype. House Speaker Tip O'Neill commented on how "strained" the President looked as he departed Washington because "the stakes are high."

The President's efforts and the eventual signing of a peace treaty should not be demeaned in any way. But the American people deserve a more level-headed presentation of what happened than what they got, especially on nationally televised news.

In an effort to suffuse the event with drama, the networks made it sound like a trip to the roulette tables in Monte Carlo.

Just what were the political risks Carter had taken? Just who among us would hold him accountable for a failure to bring lasting peace to the Mideast? Just where was America's prestige on the line?

We were never told!

Carter's effort was dramatic enough by itself, without the embellishment. The President had realized that at Camp David he had been able to lend a quantity of personal magic to proceedings that paved the way for peace between two ancient enemies.

He was willing to see if he could work that magic twice; to try to finish the job he had started. Nothing less, not much more.

MIDWAY THROUGH the negotiations, CBS News concocted a report that hinted at scandal and subterfuge on the part of the Administration.

Perhaps, the report said, the President had had more assurances of the success of the mission than he had let on before he left. Were he and his subordinates falsely exaggerating the risks in order to boost their ratings in polls at home?

In light of the fact that CBS and some other members of the media were, themselves, responsible for falsly exaggerating the risks, the suggestion of scandal on the part of the Administration came across as being rather cheeky.

Carter deserves the hero's welcome he received on his return to the United States. He also deserves the opportunity at this point to make political hay out of his achievement.

I like to stay at the other end of the political arena that Senator Barry Goldwater occupies. But he, nonetheless, made the most sense recently with his terse assessment of Carter's peace mission.

"I think the guy had guts for trying no matter what the outcome, and he should be given credit for that," said the Senator.

That's it in a nutshell.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I disagree with you that Jesus is really God. After all, the Bible says that He was "the beginning of the creation of God" (Revelation 3:14). This means that He was part of creation, not God Himself. — R.W.

Dear R. W.: I believe a modern translation of the New Testament will clear up for you what this passage is actually saying about Jesus. It means that Christ was the One who began the creation — who got it started. Barclay says the phrase means that Christ was "the moving cause of the creation." The New International Version gives a slightly fuller meaning: "The ruler of God's creation." The New Testament scholar Dr. Leon Morris, in his commentary on Revelation, says, "Christ is not saying that He was created first of all, but rather that He has the supreme authority over creation and that He is the origin of created being."

This is the consistent witness of the rest of the New Testament as well. The fact that Christ was the Creator is echoed, for example, in Colossians: "For by him all things were created: things in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones or powers or rulers or authorities; all things were created by him and for him. He is before all things (Colossians 1:16-17, NIV).

This is just one of the ways the Bible underlines a very important fact — Jesus Christ was God Himself. Only God could create the universe.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I offer a few comments about a front page article from the Associated Press which appeared in the March 8 Herald.

The headline read "Food prices jump sharply" and the thrust of the article is about farm prices jumping about 40 percent over a period of 3 months.

The following paragraph repeats a statement by Alfred E. Kahn to the effect that officials are considering ways of slowing price hikes at the farm level.

They are not just considering this. They have wrecked our farm prices for many years but never like under the Carter administration.

On Jan. 22 this year, they beat the price of cotton down 30 to 35 dollars a bale with an estimate of planting intentions of some 14 million bales and this right when we were trying to market a very short crop. They were supposed to give another crop planting estimate on cotton March 12. This was necessary because some of us haven't sold our cotton and they need to beat the price down some more.

This article is pure propaganda, to brain wash the American people and enlist their support to get rid of the family farmers. We have had a propaganda blitz ever since the grass roots farmers have started trying to show the plight of the American farmer. 'Shades of Hitler and Goering in WW II.'

It would be well in line for our government to put a bounty on farmers and have us shot. They have murdered us economically for years with their cheap food and fiber policies.

For 30 years we have lost 2,000 farmers a week and we are still losing them att he rate of 1,800 a week. This is government policy.

I wonder how many people will like socialized medicine? Look at England. How about socialized farming? How does that grab you? Look at Russia where one farmer feeds ten people. In America, one farmer feeds 65 people.

American farmers are being squeezed out by monopolies and government policy and regulations. There are 1,700,000 farms in the U.S. with sales of $2,500 or more per year.

We have 3 choices as I see it in this country unless government policies are changed: (1 Part time farmers; (2 Virtually integrated corporate farming; (3 The government taking over agriculture. They can't even do a good job of carrying the mail. The five basic farm commodities of cotton, wheat, corn, feed grains and soy beans are still selling at near or less than production costs.

Every time we get in a decent shape on farm prices we have embargos and government meddling to wreck our prices.

Our foreign policy for years has been bread and butter in one hand and an atomic club in the other. The State Department has wrecked agriculture by cheating the farmers out of the fruits of our labors and giving it to every country on earth. There is a trail of carnage from the farms and rural areas to the slums and ghettos of our great cities of the displaced people of agriculture brought on by goverment planning . . . People or agriculture are a resource, not people. Yet with all our slums over 2-3rds of our poverty is in rural areas.

We have replaced the worth ethic of agriculture with food stamps, welfare, CETA, job corps, urban renewal and big brother government that wishes to make a basket case out of the family farms.

Our constitution and Bill of Rights are in jeopardy by our encroaching bureaucracy. We don't have a government but of men. We also have a government of men instead of laws at the bottom, too.

Example: drunk driving charges reduced to non-moving violations. This is utterly ridiculous and nothing more than kangaroo court. If a county judge can make his laws, we are in bad shape.

The next step in this process is everybody for himself and the devil take the hindmost.

The apathy of the voter, with 1-3rd voting, is bad for our country, too. Also, the apathy of my fellow farmers in the struggle for economic survival isn't so good, either.

In closing, I believe it is better to light a candle than to curse the darkness and as a member of the AAM we have done our best to light the candle.

Action designed to slow increase in beef prices

Cong. Charles Stenholm advised today that farmers who planted wheat for the 1979 harvest now have another option to consider: They may graze cattle or cut hay on their wheat acreage.

Wheat grazed or cut for hay under the special wheat acreage grazing and hay program will qualify for the same deficiency payment rate as wheat harvested for grain.

Wheat program participants will be allowed to graze cattle or cut hay on wheat acreage equal to the higher of 50 acres or 40 percent of the total intended planning of wheat, feed grain and upland cotton.

This action is being taken to encourage the production of more beef later in the year.

While the impact of the action will be slight, it will nonetheless slow the expected increase in beef prices.

Producers participating in the special wheat acreage grazing and hay program must also comply with normal crop acreage requirements and with set-aside requirements for wheat harvested for grain and feed grain crops planted on their farms.

There will be no advance payment or minimum payment guarantee this year as was provided to 1978 special wheat acreage grazing and hay program participants.

The 1979 deficiency payment rate will be determined in December and will be the difference between the established target price of $3.40 a bushel and the higher of either the national average market price during the first five months June through October of the marketing year or the national loan rate of $2.35.

Producers wishing to use the option may indicate their intentions at their local ASCS office during their 1979 wheat and feed grains program sign-up period currently under way.

The sign-up period ends April 30.

On the light side

No saints in the Senate

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia's teachers haven't been at all shy about letting state legislators know their feelings concerning proposed pay raises in the budget now under consideration.

One irate teacher vented her wrath Thursday on Sen. Beverly Langford, D-Calhoun, saying, "I wouldn't vote for you if you were St. Peter."

Langford replied: "Ma'am, if I were St. Peter, you wouldn't be in my district."

Town, toilets, taxes

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The topics at Maine's annual town meetings this year are running the gamut from budgets to bathrooms.

Consider last week's meeting at tiny Limerick, where a heated debate was interrupted by a persistent banging above the meeting hall.

"Mr. Moderator, can't they choose some other time to do repairs to Town Hall?" an irate resident demanded of Moderator Lendall Knight.

Knight quickly determined no repairs were being made. A hasty inspection revealed a woman trapped in an upstairs toilet.

While laughter rocked the hall, Knight declared a five-minute "municipal emergency," and a town official dashed off the stage, keys in hand, to rescue the woman.

Limerick's attendance at town meetings may have been the envy of civic leaders in Milo, but that was before Town Mangager Stephen Law figured a way to get their attention.

Well in advance of the meeting, Law publicly estimated taxes might jump by 23 percent. About 350 people showed up — about six times the usual turnout.

When the residents got through with the budget, they had actually cut property taxes by two mills.

Art show scheduled

COLORADO CITY — An art show, sponsored by the Cultural Committee of the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce, will be held from 1-5 p.m., in the C.C. Thompson Room of the City National Bank here Sunday.

Members of the Colorado City Brush and Palette Club will each have four pieces of work on display.

Carolyn K. Walker of Colorado City will present a demonstration from 2 to 4 p.m., in conjunction with the art show. Mrs. Walker will do an oil painting of Indian pottery.

Mrs. Walker teaches in art workshops throughout the southwest and spends summers teaching painting in Cloudcroft, N.M.

No admission will be charged for the art show and refreshments will be served by the Cultural Committee.

Challenge crucial tapes

Burnett's defense rests

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The defense has rested its case in the capital murder trial of Linda May Burnett after making final stabs at challenging a crucial tape.

The jury will hear final arguments Saturday. District Judge Larry Gist said he and lawyers would spend today working on the charge and "resolve anything that needs resolving."

Mrs. Burnett, a 31-year-old Nederland housewife, is charged with the slayings last July of five members of a Winnie, Texas, family. Joe Dugas Jr., of Port Arthur, is scheduled to go on trial later this year at Corpus Christi.

Visiting Bishop and Ester Phillips of Winnie, and also slain over the July Fourth holidays last year, were their son, Elmer, his wife, Martha, and their son, Jason, 3, all from Woodward, Okla.

A clinical psychologist, Dr. G.W. Graham of Beaumont, testified the portion of a tape heard by the jury earlier in the week could have been recorded when she was under hypnosis.

On the tape, Mrs. Burnett admitting to killing four adult members of the Bishop Phillips family and said "Joe" killed Jason Phillips.

The 30-minute segment of the tape was purported to have been recorded before she was put under hypnosis and was played to the jury only after a week-long legal battle aboutits admissibility.

Aging agency to hold two hearings

The Permian Basin Area Agency on Aging will conduct two public hearings on the 1979-80 regional plan for aging services. On March 28, the meeting will be at 1 p.m. in Big Spring at the Dora Roberts Community Center. On April 11, the hearing will be conducted in the conference room at the Midland Terminal Office Building at 1 p.m.

All interested persons are invited and encouraged to attend either of these hearings. Input will be received regarding the needs for services and an outline of goals and objectives for the next fiscal year will be presented.

God must have known we'd have frustrations. That's why He gave us the capacity to walk away from them . . . even on crutches.

Often in walking away from our frustrations we find ourselves. We discover spiritual depths we never knew we had. Finding oneself is part of the deeper quest — finding God.

We are not alone. Life is the Creator's gift. To fulfill its potentials we need His help — especially when our own hopes dissolve in disappointment.

Bring your frustrations to church. Learn how to walk away from them with courage and faith.

That man stands mighty straight who has learned to believe in himself . . . and in God.

37 Years Later, An Indiscretion Calls Him Daddy

DEAR ABBY: Please answer in the paper because I live in a very small town and if anyone ever found out my name I'd be a laughing stock.

What would you do if your husband, after 34 years of marriage, suddenly announced that he has a 37-year-old daughter? I raised hell. Was I in error?

My husband told me that a woman came to his place of work and identified herself as the girl he got pregnant 37 years ago. She reminded him that when she told him she was expecting, he said he'd do anything but marry her because he wasn't ready for marriage. She then disappeared. Now, after all this time, she suddenly finds him and says her daughter would like to know her father! My husband says he recalls the incident vagely. Without consulting me, he agreed to meet this so-called daughter and also promised to tell our children about her!

I say this woman is out to make trouble and wreck our home. I forbade my husband to tell our children about it. (We have two.) I told him this woman may not even know who fathered her daughter, and he shouldn't get involved.

Our family life has been good up to now, but this is upsetting. What should I do.

FROM A SMALL TOWN

DEAR FROM: Advise your husband to see a lawyer and find out (a) how much (if any) legal responsibility he has to this woman and her daughter, and (b) how to handle it.

If your husband feels a moral obligation to the woman, he will have to deal with it as he sees fit. In the meantime, the word from here is—keep cool and keep quiet!

DEAR ABBY: I know this is a dumb question for an 18-year-old girl to ask, but when is a girl no longer considered a virgin?

I had a boyfriend and we were very, very close, but we never had sexual intercourse. (We did everything BUT.) Am I still considered a virgin?

Please answer in the paper, as I don't want this kind of information coming to my house in a letter. Also, I'm sure there are other girls who would like to know.

VIRGIN OR NOT

DEAR VIRGIN: Although you have done everything BUT—the "but" makes the difference. Technically, you are a virgin.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOTS OF PROBLEMS IN MILWAUKEE: You need a "parentectomy—which means to become completely independent from your parents. You must support yourself, make your own decisions and assume total responsibility for your own actions. At 30, you are old enough. Get going.

The teen years are the questioning years. Abby has the answers to all your questions in her booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know." Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

Energy program given to T.E.H.A.

Janet Rogers, county extension agent, presented a program on the effect of the energy situation on home furnishings to 16 members of the Center Point T.E.H.A. as they met Tuesday.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Lindley as the group met in her home, 1405 E. 19. Mrs. Lucille Petty voiced the prayer.

Roll call was answered by naming old fashioned customs we wouldn't want to come back.

Members volunteered to help put on a program April 28 at the Winwood Mall in Odessa.

Mrs. Rogers used slides in her presentation, stressing that light color gives a cool effect and bright colors give warm effects. Floor coverings were discussed.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Rogers.

The next meeting will be March 27 at the Kentwood Older Activities Center with Zan Ryan and Frankie Walter serving as hostesses.

Music club hears hymns

Mrs. Arnold Tonn presented a program of sacred music in America to the Music Study Club as it met Wednesday afternoon in her home. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Carroll Moore and Mrs. J.W. Kuykendall.

Mrs. Tonn said that sacred music goes to the heart, not just the mind. The message from the music takes burdens away. Sacred music is both inspiring and enjoyable. Background music on cassette tapes accompanied Mrs. Tonn as she sang for the group.

Arnold Tonn, her husband, has taught Sunday School at Parkview Manor Nursing Home for 13 years while Mrs. Tonn provides special music. Mrs. Tonn also sings at the Veteran Administration Hospital services.

The romance is over

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: Help! I'm hoping you'll have some advice to help me get rid of this problem which seems to be wrecking my whole life at the moment.

I was going with this boy last summer and I thought I really liked him. He joined the Army and that's when I began to realize that I didn't like him all that much. Other guys kept looking better and better.

I decided that we should break up after thinking things over. We had a lot of differences: he was pushy — I didn't want that. I practically live at church — he didn't like that plus a whole lot more.

Anyway, now that you kind of have an idea, here's the problem: I wrote to him and he returned my letter by saying that he understood and maybe it was for the better.

I was so happy to know he understood, so I kept writing (which he had asked me to do) and I made sure he knew we were only friends.

Well, just recently he wrote saying, "I don't want you pretending that you don't love me if you still do!"

I couldn't believe it! I have told him so many times how I feel. I'm only 17 and have no intentions of getting serious with anybody. He wants to get married. NO WAY!

I know in my heart everything is over between us but he doesn't. How can I keep him from bugging me about things when I only have one answer each time — "NO."
— Bonnie, La Habra, Calif.

Bonnie: At this time in your relationship with this boy, you cannot be "friends."

Your next letter to him should be your last. Tell him that, but also tell him you will see him when he comes home (if he does) on leave. At that time, face to face, kiss him goodbye.

For Dr. Wallce's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. R. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

No one stops to assist woman dying on roadside

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (AP) — An old woman lay in the road dying of a heart attack. Rush-hour commuters slowed for a look. No one stopped.

Bessie Glasco, 75, was short of breath. Her son-in-law pulled off to the side of Tennessee 96. Mrs. Glasco staggered from the car.

The son-in-law, John Willard, and his wife, Magaline, Mrs. Glasco's daughter, waved for help but their frenzied flagging fazed no one.

When Franklin policeman Ewing Marberry Jr. arrived, they were hysterical.

"A motorist stopped me and told me there was a lady having a heart attack in the middle of the road but nobody would stop," Mayberry said Thursday night. "She was in the road when I got there — off by the curb, but people had to have seen her. Several cars passed me when I was giving her CPR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation). They slowed down and looked."

Mayberry said he could detect no pulse on Mrs. Glasco when he got to her. He spent 20 minutes trying to revive Mrs. Glasco once he reached her at 5:03 p.m. Wednesday. She was to be buried today.

"The highway was busy at the time because it was when everybody was going in to town and coming out from work," Mayberry said.

"At first, when I was nearing the area, I thought the report was a joke. Traffic was like normal — busy. But once I got near the car, I could see her.

"Others must have seen her, too. Just was no one stopped. They slowed down and looked but no one stopped. People acted like nothing was going on."

Franklin Woodard, one of Mrs. Glasco's sons, said his mother had a history of heart problems and was on her way to a doctor in Nashville, just north of Franklin.

Bids for modern traffic lights opened in Austin

Bids for the installation of modern traffic signals in the city of Big Spring were opened March 14 by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation in Austin.

Existing traffic signals at various locations throughout the city will be upgraded to modern state and national standards by mounting them on mast arms, making them visible to motorists at greater distances.

Joe Smoot of Big Spring, the department's engineer in charge, estimates that about 180 working days will be required to complete the work. Abilene District Engineer Roger Welsch will provide overall project supervision.

Texas may be on losing end of plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Energy Advisory Council says the state will be on the losing end if the Carter administration's standby gas rationing plan is adopted.

Milton Holloway, the council's executive director, said Thursday that Texans would have to spend $116.4 million a month to purchase sufficient gas coupons from states that have extra ones.

The estimate was made by the U.S. Department of Energy, he said.

The council adopted a resolution Thursday opposing the proposed rationing plan, which is based on a national average.

It said any rationing plan should take state-by-state driving patterns into account.

The resolution said under the administration plan certain groups would "bear a disproportionate share of the burden of shortages."

The plan "would result in massive income transfers from the lower income, more rural areas of the South (including Texas) to the high income areas of the Northeast and the West Coast."

The council stressed the "production oriented" energy policy favored by top Texas officials should be adopted before the federal government puts any gas rationing plan into effect.

The council said it recognized energy shortages put the nation in a vulnerable position, but removal of regulatory barriers would be the most sensible solution.

The council also voted to ask the Legislature for three times as much money over the next two years for the Texas Energy Development Fund, established in 1977.

The budget proposal is for an extra $1.1 million for each of the next two years, or an annual budget of $1.8 million. The Legislative Budget Board recommended $675,000 annually.

Seminar for ministers

CHAPLAIN TOM COLE

Sickness and disease are a part of any minister's life, and so hospitals become a regular part of their weekly pastoral routine. Names of members on the sick list are posted in every church office, and a procedure for visitation of the member in the hospital is a formalized routine for church staff. Knowing the names and phone numbers of hospitals in town become part of each staff job description. In short, hospitals become familiar synonyms for the word "crisis" in most churches.

Yet hospital routine still remains for most a foreign land and language. The white caps and uniforms become a blur that come in and out of the patient's room. The doctor is a hurried figure the minister passes in the hall, vaguely aware that the two have much in common, though they rarely have time for dialogue.

The sterile white and gleaming steel of the hospital setting itself is a glaring opposite of the warm wood of the sanctuary pew. And somehow the cool, somewhat impersonal efficiency of monitors and sterlized instruments of the hospital technician is a contract to the one-on-one nurturing posture of the church downtown, or on the outskirts of the community.

The seminar, "Ministering in Times of Crisus", slated for Friday and Saturday, March 23-24 at Malone-Hogan Hospital, will combine dialogue, clinical experience, and moments of informality to help ministers "experience" the hospital setting, and the trauma and crisis of the patient, according to a hospital spokesman.

Opening with registration in the lobby of Malone-Hogan at 2 p.m. on Friday, March 23, Chaplain Tom Cole, director of pastoral care at Memorial Hospital Systems in Houston, will lead the two day workshop.

At 3 o'clock, Chaplain Cole will start the dialog with a discussion on the difference between pastoral care and pastoral counseling. A tour of the hospital acute-care units will follow. This will be an indepth tour, with hospital staff on hand to answer questions that may be asked. "Our reason for doing this is to give the minister an inside look at what is going on in the tests and treatment the patient receives," public relations director Emily Ward said.

At 7 p.m., a dinner reception will be given for participating ministers and spouses at the Big Spring County Club, with members of the Permian Basin Medical Society as special guests.

The seiminar will focus on the physician's approach to treating the patient on Saturday, March 24. Beginning at 9 a.m., Dr. James E. Mathews, chief of surgery at Malone-Hogan Hospital will speak on facing the crisis of surgery, in terms of how the physician sees the reaction of the patient, the family, and how he sees it himself. Dr. M.A. Porter, gynecologist at Malone & Hogan Clinic, will speak on a crisis that is not ordinarily seen as one: the crisis of birth.

Following the two physicians' viewpoint on treating these crisis, Chaplain Cole will speak on the problem of how ministers may effectively relate to the crisis themselves. A panel, composed of all seminar leaders, will follow. Lunch will be served before adjournment of the seminar.

Dr. Lee Butler, director of pastoral services at Big Spring State Hospital is coordinator of the seminar, Dr. Butler will speak briefly at the Friday night dinner on the importance of treating the whole person.

Other participants in the seminar will be Chaplain Clayton Hicks, Veterans Administration Hospital, and Chaplain Jim Powell, Big Spring State Hospital.

Sponsoring the seminar are the Malone-Hogan Hospital Volunteers. For further information, call Emily Ward, director of public relations, Malone-Hogan Hospital, (915) 263-1211, Ext. 107.

'Don't idealize nuclear family'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A United Methodist bishop says churches should avoid idealizing the so-called "nuclear family," which he characterizes as "mother, father and two kids in the suburbs."

Such a limited family is "barren and boring," Bishop C. Dale White of Princeton, N.J., told a national ethnic minority family consultation.

"There is nothing in the New Testament which can be read to baptize our isolated, emotionally incestuous, image-conscious, conspicuously consuming, shrunken family," he said. He said the New Testament word for family was "household," including a wide range of relatives.

Sister Andre Brennan talks on parish role

The Immaculate Heart of Mary Altar Society heard Sister Andre Brennan of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish in its regular meeting March 5 after the 7 p.m. mass. She spoke on her role in the parish.

Discussions were held on the Church Women United's Tasting Tea to be held on April 22, and the Leadership Workshop slated for March 10 and 11.

Also discussed was Department of Human Resources (DHR) and Big Spring State Hospital (BSSH) requests for volunteers. DHR requested volunteers for various programs and BSSH wanted volunteers for an out-patient Re-Motivation Program.

The church women also decided to have a reception for the children and their families who will receive their first Holy Communion on Holy Thursday.

Next meeting is at 7 p.m., April 2.

Baptist bid for increase in payments

DALLAS (AP) — Representatives of 2.1 million Texas Baptists have called on the Legislature to raise welfare payments for dependent children by $8.89 a month.

The executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas adopted a resolution pointing out that Texas is the fourth richest state but ranks 48th in child welfare payments.

Current welfare level is $32 per person per month and has not been increased since 1969.

Estimated cost of the Baptist proposal is $100 million for the next two fiscal years.

Phil Strickland, associate director of the Texas Baptists' Christian Life Commission, said action on increasing child welfare payments is "the litmus test of whether this legislature really cares for people."

Gleaners meet in Steele home

An Annie Armstrong Home Mission Program offering was taken and visitis to those who are ill were reported. Mrs. Louise Dunlap gave the consecration and devotional.

Several birthdays were announced and the next quarterly meeting date was set for June 14.

Hilbrick has much interest in evangelism and Bible memory. He promotes a practical approach to Christian witness and living.

Polish pope helps church position

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. ambassador to Poland, William E. Schaufele Jr., says the fact that Pope John Paul II is from Poland indicates a strengthening of the church's position in that Communist country.

But he adds the situation also makes for a time of touchy readjustments.

"The struggle of the Polish church will continue but the presence of a Polish pope is more strengthening than usual," he told a meeting of the Council on Religion and International Affairs.

"Church and state are going to have to find some kind of changed modus vivendi. Very possibly, there will be some concessions to the church, although they may be begrudging. But the church still will have to cope with the realities of Poland's policies and its geographic position (adjoining Russia)."

Schaufele offered the analysis in a two-hour discussion with theologians, foreign affairs experts and church leaders.

He noted that Polish Communist Party Secretary Edward Gierek has met with the pope, and that the pope has life-long, first-hand knowledge in dealing with Communist officials and in church resistance to atheism.

The church has several principal demands, he said, including:

—Some kind of legal status, which all churches in Poland now lack.

—Some church access to the media. Polish radio and television are state controlled and the first time any church service was allowed on the air was at the installation of the new pope.

—Availability to the church of paper and printing materials so it can put out its own literature.

—Agreement from the state not to draft seminary students, giving them exemptions — now denied — parallel to those given students in state universities.

In regard to the pope's coming visit to Poland, Schaufele observed that "certain brinkmanship" had gone on in the negotiations, eventuating in a compromise.

"The symbolism of that is not lost on anybody in Poland today," Schaufele said.

A Farthing's Worth
A TICKET TO SEE ST. PETER!
Want to be a "saint"? Sainthood is on sale by Kirby J. Hensley of Modesto, California, at the bargain price of $5.00. For one Lincoln, Hensley will send you a certificate to verify your canonized status. He calls it "a ticket to see St. Peter". Fifteen years ago Hensley founded the believe-whatever-you-wish Universal Life Church by selling clergy ordinations for $2.00 each. He has sold 6.5 million "ordinations" and 30,000 church charters. You can purchase a Doctor of Divinity degree for $20.00 and a Doctor of Philosophy in Religion degree for $100.00. Hensleys annual income is around $1,000,000.
..As long as there are people wanting shortcuts to heaven, the Kirby Hensleys of this world will prosper. But there are no shortcuts to heaven. Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no one comes to the Father (heaven) except through Me." Jesus is the door to the sheepfold, which is the church. He died for the church. The church is that for which Jesus is going to return. If you're interested in going to heaven, then you must accept Jesus as the Son of God by obeying the gospel. When you do, God will add you to the church, of which every heaven-bound person is a part.
..Come visit us. You don't need a ticket.

RODDY LLEWELLYN

Llewellyn off the hook

LONDON (AP) — Roddy Llewellyn, close friend of Princess Margaret, is off the hook. A divorce action in which he'd been named by a theater director has been withdrawn.

Director Michael Kelly said Thursday his charges that Llewellyn committed adultery with his Moroccan-born wife were untrue.

The admission was made in a joint statement by lawyers for Kelly and his wife, Naima. Mrs. Kelly said she will sue for divorce in August on grounds they will by then have lived apart for two years.

The 27-year-old Kelly had said Monday he was suing his 30-year-old wife for divorce on grounds of adultery with Llewellyn, 31, a would-be supper club singer. Kelly said his marriage had only been an "immigration dodge" to permit his wife to remain in Britain. He claimed they never lived together.

Princess Margaret, 47, returned last weekend from a Caribbean holiday with Llewellyn on the island of Mustique, where she has a villa.

TV success a problem

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If a television series flops, the network and producers can remain friends, but if the show is a hit, "the adversarial relationship begins," says producer Norman Lear.

"If the show is a smash hit, the system makes us opposing forces in a war that will not end until the series is concluded," said Lear, who has produced such hits as "All in the Family," "One Day at a Time," and "Maude."

Reclassification sought

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — Charles "Tex" Watson, a former Charles Manson "family" member, has been turned down in his second bid to be reclassified as a minimum security prisoner.

The 33-year-old Watson, who was convicted of murder, is listed as a medium security prisoner at the California Men's Colony near here. He appeared before a prison committee Thursday to appeal the rejection of a request he made in early March to be reclassified.

Watson has been at the men's colony since September 1972.

Waste not hard to find

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's No. 2 law-enforcement officer says it's not hard to find waste and fraud in the handling of government money: Just look anywhere.

"Our experience generally is that wherever we look deeply with focused investigations, significant fraud and abuse will be detected," Deputy Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti told the Senate Budget Committee Thursday.

As an example, Civiletti cited a federal task force aimed at rooting out fraud and abuse in the Department of Housing and Urban Development in 23 cities. That effort resulted in indictments of 1,129 persons and brought 854 convictions.

Similar projects are focusing on food stamps, unemployment insurance and Medicare and Medicaid, Civiletti added.

Civiletti joined Elmer B. Staats, who heads the General Accounting Office, and Inspector General Thomas D. Morris of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in bringing the committee up to date on efforts to root out misuse of federal money.

They agreed that waste, abuse, fraud and mismanagement are extensive but impossible to put a dollar amount on.

Civiletti offered a previous guess — and he identified it as such — that between 1 percent and 10 percent of every federal dollar is stolen or wasted.

Two officials who have led efforts to stop abuse and theft involving government programs in their home states said federal carelessness in writing and supervising programs makes it easy for the dishonest and unscrupulous.

The federal government designs new programs "without any fraud or abuse controls" and then burdens them "with thousands of regulations, many of which are meaningless and confusing and create loopholes for the unscrupulous," said Samuel K. Skinner, chairman of the Illinois Fraud Prevention Commission.

"There persists a national climate of irresponsibility about government money," added Charles J. Hynes, head of the New York State Medicaid Fraud Control Union. "Those who receive it and those who administer it have shared a common perception that government money costs nothing — it may be used, however, and its users are entitled to all they can get."

Hangin' Out

It had to happen sooner or later. In this case it is probably later, but Bill Lee's admitting that he has smoked pot since his college days at USC has stirred up more than baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn. It is sure to create a ripple, no matter how large, on each end of the spectrum.

One end of the issue are the coaches that are cursing Lee for admitting that he tokes an occasional joint. Many are now concerned that their players will justify their use by saying: "Well, look coach, Bill Lee uses it and he pitches in the big leagues." So the coaches that let Lee's admission bother them will now surely hope that he will lose 25 games this year. That way they can say: "Yeah, Bill Lee smokes that stuff and he lost 25 games this year."

On the other hand, there will be the supporters of marijuana, whether athletes or not, that will be cheering for Lee this year. If he has a good year, these people will probably say: "The stuff relaxed Bill Lee. He couldn't pitch that way without it."

But I don't think Lee meant to justify his habit, and I especially don't believe that he meant for his statements to influence young people and athletes into smoking pot.

What Lee tried to explain after his admission was that he was trying to emphasize social inconsistencies in our culture. He was trying to say that such things as pollution, cigarettes, processed foods, alcohol, overweight via overindulgence, etc., are just as harmful, if not more so in some cases, than marijuana. In this sense, he has a valid point. I don't know how many times in my short life I have heard either a coach or fellow teammate, in between a gagging hoarse cough, while he chokes on a cigar make a statement about a player on his team such as: "Yeah, we would have been better, but that stupid Joe smokes dope."

Lee's personal habits are no different from many pro atheletes. But he will be castigated by many for his honesty.

The question in this case is simple. Should Bill Lee have kept his mouth shut on the marijuana subject? There are two answers from which to choose. (A) Yes, because it will influece athletes and other youth to try it. Or (B) No, because it is the right of the people to know what is happening today.

I have no comment. But it would make for an interesting column if the readers would write in their pros and-or cons on the subject.

* * * * *

What in the name of Southeast Asia has Bill Walton been smoking? Wild Bill, who has to be my hero if I still have any, is reinforcing the belief this week that he is a wild and crazy guy.

The past two years at this time Walton and the Portland Trailblazers had been in the latter stages of the regular season in the NBA, anxiously and intensely jockeying for upcoming playoff position. But the former three times All-American from UCLA became embroiled in a dispute over Portland's medical practices before the season began and refused to play for them. Walton claims he will play next year when fully recovered, but for what team remains a question mark.

Meanwhile, this year, the 6'11" red head is getting higher by the minute. Literally.

Walton and an ABC film crew for their television series, the 'American Sportsman,' are 610 miles southeast of Manila in the Phillipines. The group has set camp outside the village of Davao City.

Walton is planning to climb 200 feet into a luan tree to weigh one of the world's rarest birds, a baby Philippine Eagle. The eagle is a member of the second largest species of birds in the world. The largest is the harpy of Central and South American. Wild Bill will attempt to visit a nest of two adults and a five-week old newlyborn.

The former NBA Most Valuable Player, whose crisp passes and growling rebounds guided the Trailblazers to the championship two season ago, won't be directing this act, however. An American group, FREE (Films and Research for an Endangered Environment), is conducting a scientific experiment to measure the chick's growth in ten day intervals.

The group did not ask Walton to participate, but are readily accepting him due to his extended body and excellent agility and balance. But the real reason they will be allowing Walton to climb into the nest is the ferociousness of the mother eagle. A typical female intent on protecting her young, she has already gashed the arms of two members of the FREE group that have attempted to weigh the chick.

And although I have nothing but respect for the wild hairs that Walton occasionally is stuck with, it still seems a little strange to me that he would condemn the Portland organization for their pain-killing drug use, and then months later risk life and limb climbing into a 200 foot tree to weigh a humongous eagle.

Tell me it's the principle, Bill. I can't question principle, and surely can't afford to lose my last hero. Or just tell me that you're insane. I'll understand.

Arkansas, Indiana State, UCLA, DePaul score victories

Favored teams advance in NCAA Tourney

By the Associated Press

In a word, it was the Bird.

Larry Bird, Indiana State's high-flying All-American, carried the soaring Sycamores into the championship game of the NCAA Midwest Regional tournament Thursday night at Cincinnati.

Bird, college basketball's Player of the Year, wowed a record Ohio crowd of 17,252 at Riverfront Coliseum with his magnificent all-around skills, leading the unbeaten and top-ranked Sycamores to their 31st victory of the season, a 93-72 rout of No.16 Oklahoma.

"He is one heck of a player," marveled Oklahoma Coach Dave Bliss. "You can't judge him unless you play against him or see him in person."

Bliss came, he saw and he was convinced.

The Birdman of Indiana State destroyed the Sooners with a characteristic performance — 29 points, 15 rebounds and five assists.

The Sycamores will go for victory No.32 Saturday against fifth-ranked Arkansas in the Midwest Regional championship game.

The Razorbacks beat 13th-rated Louisville 73-62 in the opening semifinal game of the Midwest Regional at Cincinnati.

The West Regional semifinals also were completed Thursday night as second-ranked UCLA and No.6 DePaul advanced to Saturday's final at Provo, Utah.

UCLA used a devastating 58-point second-half in crushing No.12 San Francisco 99-81 and DePaul defeated No.10 Marquette 62-56.

Semifinal games will be played tonight in the other two regionals.

In the East Regional at Greensboro, N.C., No.8 Syracuse, 26-3, faces No.14 Penn, 23-5, and 17th-ranked St. John's, 20-10, meets 18th-rated Rutgers, 23-8.

And in the Mideast Regional at Indianapolis, it will be No.19 Toledo, 22-7, against fourth-ranked Notre Dame, 23-5, and seventh-rated Louisiana State, 23-5, vs. No.3 Michigan State, 22-6.

The regional winners will advance to the national semifinals at Salt Lake City next weekend.

"They (Indiana State) are a good basketball team, but he (Bird) makes them a very good basketball team," said Bliss after watching helplessly as the omnipresent Bird swooped all over and around the defenseless Sooners.

Bird's six points keyed a 13-4 burst near the end of the first half that put Indiana State in command 45-37 at intermission.

Despite his impressive show, Bird underscored Indiana State's team approach.

"I just try to play a team game," he emphasized.

Carl Nicks added 20 points for Indiana State, while Ray Whitley topped Oklahoma, 21-10, with 24 points.

All-American Sidney Moncrief guided Arkansas to its 14th consecutive victory and 25th triumph in 29 games this season. Moncrief collected 27 points, including seven when the Razorbacks broke open the game with an 11-2 burst in a three-minute span of the second half for a 66-58 lead.

Just prior to that surge, the onrushing Cardinals appeared to have the momentum. They had overcome a 51-34 deficit and forged ahead 56-55.

"Those six or seven minutes in the second half seemed like an eternity to me," said a relieved Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton. "All of a sudden they got momentum and played like champions."

But then Moncrief and his teammates regained their poise, and it was they who played like champions — and made Louisville, 24-8, "ex-champions."

U.S. Reed added 18 points for Arkansas, while freshman center Scooter McCray was high for Louisville with 14.

Guards Ray Hamilton and Brad Holland triggered UCLA's high-scoring second half that carried the racehorse Bruins past San Francisco.

UCLA trailed 51-45 before outscoring the Dons 15-1 and surging comfortably in front 60-52. Hamilton finished with a career-high 36 points and Holland scored 22. All-American David Greenwood added 19 points for the determined Bruins, 25-4, who are trying to win their first NCAA title since legendary Coach John Wooden retired after the 1974-75 season.

THE BATTLE FOR POSITION — Marquette's Bernard Toone (33) and De Paul's Curtis Watkins jocky for position during their NCAA West Regional game Thursday night in Provo. De Paul won 62-56 and will play UCLA Saturday for the championship.

Bama rally buries Aggies

HOUSTON (AP) — Alabama went 7:29 of the first half without scoring a point and trailed the Texas Aggies by 17 points at one juncture in the opening 20 minutes. So how did they feel at halftime?

"We felt good at the half because we knew we could come back," said Tide forward Reggie King, who paced a second half surge that vaulted Alabama to a 72-68 victory Thursday night in a quarter-finals game of the National Invitation Tournament in the Summit.

The Tide trailed the fast-starting Aggies 23-6 with 8:07 to go in the first half but cut A&M's lead to a 36-30 margin at the half and streaked into the lead early in the second half.

Alabama's moxy took the Tide into the dressing room with a good feeling and eventually advanced them to New York Monday night for their semifinal game against Purdue.

Alabama Coach C.M. Newton said "When we got down by whatever it was--I'm not much good at subtracting but I knew we were in trouble--we told our players to be patient, to keep their composure and to peck away at it, not try to get it all back at once."

The Tide, now 21-10, got the message.

"We've had to come from behind a lot this season," said Ken Johnson, who pumped in 20 points to lead Tide scorers. "We just kept on executing what we had been doing and the shots started falling."

Alabama outscored the Aggies 24-13 in the final eight minutes of the half and took a 38-36 lead early in the second half. A&M fought back from an eight point deficit and tied the game at 60-60 with 3:43 to play.

But King hit a baseline jumper at 3:27 to put Alabama ahead to stay and a four point play by Eddie Phillips with 1:47 to go iced it for the Tide. Phillips hit a layup, was fouled by A&M's Steve Sylestine after completing the basket and made the two free shots.

"I'm sad," A&M freshman star Rudy Woods said. "The season wasn't supposed to end tonight. It was supposed to continue in New York Monday night. I can't tell you what happened. We just went into a lull. We've done that all season."

A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf, who coached the Aggies to a 24-9 record this season, said "We obviously let up but we didn't go to sleep. Overall I was pleased with our shot selection. We have no excuses. We just got beat by an excellent basketball team.

Woods led the Aggies with 20 points while Sylestine hit 11 and Vernon Smith and Tyron Ladson scored 10 each. King, the Southeastern Conference player of the year, scored 18 and Phillips hit 17 for the Tide.

Smith had scored 23 and 20 points and Rynn Wright hit 23 and 15 points in A&M's two previous NIT victories. Wright scored five points against Alabama.

South Carolina, Oregon fems take national tourney wins

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Cynthia Jacobs scored 15 points and grabbed 17 rebounds to pace top-seeded South Carolina to a 62-51 college basketball victory over California in first round action of the 11th annual National Women's Invitational Tournament.

In other first round games, Drake routed Utah, 88-67; Northern Kentucky upset Mississippi College, 78-72, and Oregon beat Minnesota, 85-74.

Northern Kentucky used its full court press effectively against Mississippi College. Jennifer Lyons had 20 points and Jan Vincent added 18 for the Kentucky squad.

Drake's Sharon Upshaw scored 34 points and grabbed 18 rebounds to offset a 28-point offensive outburst by Lori Parish of Utah.

Bev Smith had 29 points and 12 rebounds to lead Oregon to the victory over Minnesota.

Duo share Rancho lead

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Nayoko Yoshikawa is playing her final Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament in the United States this year before going home to her native Japan.

Vivian Brownlee is complaining about lack of sleep.

But both are shooting solid golf at the $150,000 Rancho Bernardo Classic.

Both women carded 4-underpar 68s Thursday to share the first-round lead in the LPGA event on the 6,212-yard, par-72 Rancho Bernardo Country Club layout.

Brownlee, of Dunedin, Fla., was in the first group off the tee and her 68 stood up until Yoshikawa of Kyoto, Japan, matched her.

NFL owners exonerate Stabler

HONOLULU (AP) — Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler was exonerated by National Football League owners of any implications in a controversial drug case in his hometown but also was the reason for a new playing rule voted in at the annual NFL meeting.

The owners today go into further issues of player safety and looking at the experiment of using television instant replays to aid officials.

It had been implied that Stabler was involved in an incident in which Sacramento Bee reporter Bob Padecky was arrested, then almost immediately released, in what authorities said was a drug frame-up.

Padecky said he was summoned to Stabler's hometown of Gulf Shores, Ala., by the Raider quarterback for an interview.

Padecky said he met with Stabler a couple of times in Gulf Shores without getting an interview, and later Padecky was arrested when authorities, acting on a telephone tip, found a substance believed to be cocaine in a magnetic key case under the fender of the reporter's rented car.

Local authorities in Gulf Shores said it was an attempt to frame Padecky but that Stabler was not involved.

Stabler did admit fumbling forward in the final seconds of an Oakland regular-season game which the Raiders won when Dave Casper recovered the loose ball in the San Diego Chargers' end zone as time expired.

Errol Mann then kicked the extra point for a 21-20 Oakland victory.

The owners put in a new rule stating that if an offensive player fumbles anywhere on the field during a fourth down play or any down during the last two minutes of either half, only the fumbling player is permitted to recover and advance the ball.

Recovery by any other offensive player returns to the ball to the point of the fumble.

Ali-Alzado to box

DENVER (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali will meet a "local heavyweight" in an exhibition bout here and that fighter will be a man named Lyle.

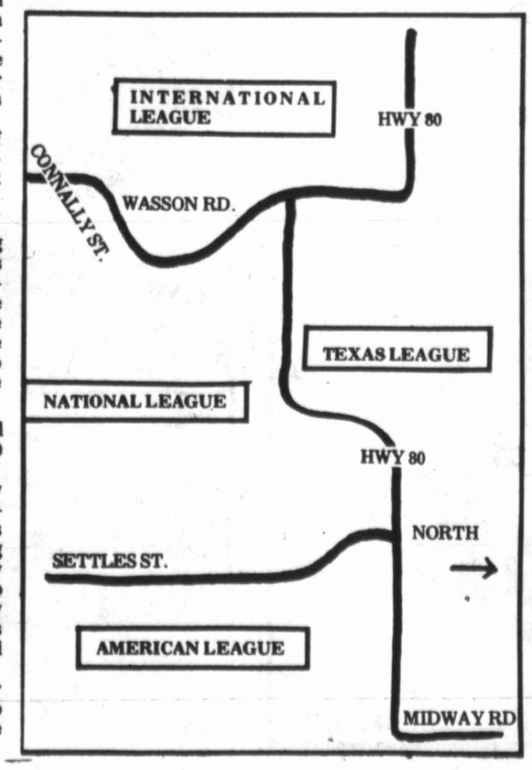

However, that man will not be one-time contender Ron Lyle, but another heavyweight — Lyle Alzado of the Denver Broncos.

"I figure the most important thing I've got to remember is that I don't want to die," Alzado said Thursday. "I just have to hope I duck the right way when he swings at me. A man could get hurt doing that kind of thing. But I think it will be exciting as long as I don't embarrass myself."

Alzedo, who will begin his ninth season with the National Football League Broncos this fall, is no stranger to the boxing ring.

The 6-foot-3, 250-pound defensive end has been in 45 amateur bouts, starting as a collegian at Yankton, S.D. He is a former Golden Gloves heavyweight champion for the Omaha, Neb., region and once had 27 consecutive amateur boxing victories.

Ali and Alzado will fight a four-round exhibition bout in late April or early May in Denver's McNichols Arena. Ali reportedly will receive $750,000, but Alzado's earnings have not been announced.

NBA ROUNDUP

(By the Associated Press)

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Crescent City five.

They'd been horsewhipped one night earlier and barely were alive.

They trailed by 24 with 15:19 left to go.

But they turned around and finally beat San Antonio.

Rich Kelley's layup with two seconds left was the winning basket as the lowly New Orleans Jazz, losers by 56 points Wednesday night at Milwaukee, edged the high-flying San Antonio Spurs 124-122 after falling behind by 24 points with 3:19 left in the third period.

Spencer Haywood led the way with 30 points and Kelley had 27 plus 21 rebounds as the Jazz snapped a six-game National Basketball Association losing streak. San Antonio got 30 points from James Silas and 28 from George Gervin but missed a chance to clinch a playoff berth.

Elsewhere, the Seattle Super-Sonics beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 104-98 and the Detroit Pistons downed the New York Knicks 88-83.

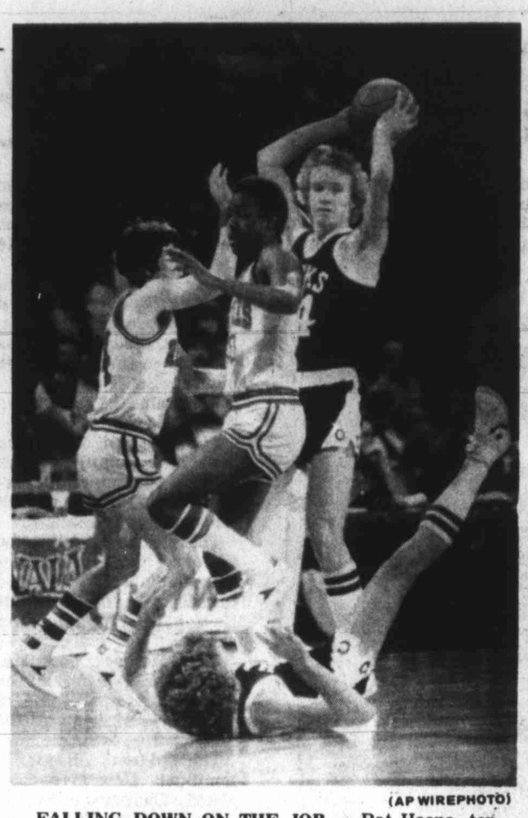

New Orleans Coach Elgin Baylor called the Jazz' rally "a tremendous comeback and a tremendous effort. All the guys on the bench came in and played hard and we didn't quit. We have had a problem of getting behind early, making a run and then fizzling out, but tonight we kept coming."

Sonics 104, Cavaliers 98

Lonnie Shelton scored 28 points on 13-of-13 shooting and Gus Williams added 23 to lead Seattle. Shelton scored 20 points in the second half, including 12 in the third quarter when the Sonics broke a 52-52 halftime deadlock and took an 81-73 lead. Cleveland whittled the lead to 91-90 with 5:38 to play but a three-point play by Shelton gave Seattle some breathing room and Cleveland then went three minutes with only one basket. The Cavaliers were led by Bingo Smith with 24 points, his season high.

Pistons 88, Knicks 83

Detroit blew a big early lead, then rallied behind Bob Lanier's 13 points in the fourth quarter. The Pistons, ahead by 23-5 in the first quarter, trailed 62-51 late in the third period before pulling out their eighth victory in the last 11 games. Lanier, who finished with 21 points, hit nine in a 19-6 fourth quarter burst that gave the Pistons a 70-68 lead.

Tapie celebrates return

Unknown takes Doral Open lead

MIAMI (AP) — It was at the Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament a year ago that Alan Tapie made a decision.

"It was a change in attitude," said Tapie. "I decided I just had to start believing in myself more, not get down on myself.

"I decided that if I was gonna hit it in the water, well, I'd hit it in the water, but I'd do it with authority.

"It's a mental thing out here on the tour. It's easy to get down on yourself. And if you do, instead of going from shot to shot, you go from crisis to crisis. Who can you turn to? You have to keep reaching down within yourself. And that's tough to do day after day."

But the change in attitude, a more positive approach, resulted in a position on the pro tour's top 60 money-winners last season and Tapie's first exemption from qualifying. And Tapie celebrated the return to the site of his change Thursday with a 6-under-par 66 that staked him to the first-round lead in the $250,000 tournament.

"It's been a slow road for me," said the 29-year-old Tapie, who has yet to win in five years of tour activity. He didn't take up golf seriously until late in his college career at Southern California, then played the mini-tours for a couple of seasons before joining the PGA circuit.

"I was in a break-even situation until last year," he said. "That was a good year. I'm happy with the improvement I've made. And I'm going to improve more."

His major area of improvement in this event was his putting. He one-putted his first six holes, once saving par from off the green, and finished the day with only 25 putts.

He had a 2-shot lead until scoring his only bogey of the day on the final hole, missing the green and failing to get it up and down.

That left him a single shot in front of Rod Curl, Bill Kratzert, rookie Mark McCumber, Gibby Gilbert and Jack Renner, tied at 67.

Carrots high in vitamins

Besides their attractive golden color, carrots are extremely valuable for their vitamin content, expecially vitamin A and vitamin C. Adults often jokingly admonish children to "eat lots of carrots so you can see in the dark". But it's truly no joke, because the vitamin A content of carrots put this vegetable at the top of the list of 49 vegetables with respect to vitamin A. In addition, it ranks ninth in potassium and calcium content.

Carrots are delicious raw or cooked and can be eaten any time after they are "fingerlings". Since young tender carrots are sweeter, it's a good idea to make a succession of sowings throughout the summer. For fall and winter use they can be sown in July and early August. They do best when planted in a deep, loose soil that does not pack down. If grown in soil that packs heavily, they will produce forked roots — several small roots rather than one taproot. Gravel soils will also cause this apparently because of the stones that get in the way of the taproot. Gardeners who have a soil that packs sometimes lay a plank alongside the row so they can stand on this while sowing the seeds. Carrots do not have the pushing up power of some seeds and sometimes gardners will sow radish seeds along with them to break the soil surface. Hybrid seeds will germinate faster and have more pushing-up power than open pollinated varieties as a general rule.

Carrots sometimes develop "hairiness", a condition with a large number of fine fibrous roots on taproot. This can be due to weather that is either too wet or too dry. Also it could be due to a disease known as carrot yellows which is spread by aphids or leaf hoppers. These pests can be easily controlled with a spary made of Black Leaf 40 at the rate of 3 teaspoons per gallon of slightly soapy water. Spray the plants when three or four inches high.

The drift from weed killers can also cause hairiness and so can an excess of fertilizer. In some years, split carrots are a common complaint. This problem is caused by sudden heavy rains just as the roots reach full maturity. It is even more severe after a dry spell, and will happen within 48 hours after a rain. Most of these carrot problems can be minimized by making successive sowing every two or three weeks up to mid-August.

By the way, the "carat", the unit of weight for gem stones, is derived from "garah", the Biblical word for the seed of the carob, which was the smallest measure of weight in ancient times. So, an 18 carat gold piece is worth more than 18 carrots, but it may not make you feel as important as having grown a crop of carrots, with your own hands, in your own backyard.

ALMONDS IN BLOOM — Johnny Johansen, owner of Johansen Landscape Service & Nursery, San Angelo Highway, looks over some of the blooms on one of his almond trees. Almond trees are not the only trees blooming at this time; apricots and plums on some trees have been in bloom for several weeks.

Chain link fence protects garden from pesty intruders

If you're troubled with two or four-legged intruders who race through your yard tromping down tender young plants, breaking off flower stalks and spoiling shrubbery, then you need to install a chain link fence.

A chain link fence provides protection for flower beds and vegetable gardens and peace of mind for you. The neighbors Fido, Sport or Sparky may be whimpering at the back gate and the children in the area may stop and press their faces against the wire mesh fencing, but they all — animals and kids — will be on the outside looking in, not inside, wrecking the garden.

In addition to being a plant protector, a chain link fence provides a perfect backdrop for flowers, vines and shrubs. Nowadays this sturdy, dependable fencing comes in a variety of styles and colors that blend with any landscape. You can choose vinyl-coated green, black or brown chain link. And, of course, the traditional silver or galvanized chain link fence is still available. Redwood in vinyl privacy strips are another innovation that enhance the natural beauty of a chain link fence.

There are a variety of vining plants that work especially well with a chain link fence. Sweet peas, morning glories and climbing roses twining on a chain link fence provide a breath-taking splash of color. And, chain link takes on added beauty blooming with clematis blossoms, silver laceor trumpet vine in a sunny location. In a shady spot, euonymous, Virginia creeper or English ivy might be selected to shield the view from inside out or outside in. Other climbers that grow effectively against a chain link fence are honeysuckle and bitter sweet.

Chain link and gardens are natural go-togethers, but so are chain link and patios, chain link and pools, etc. A chain link fence is one property improvement that will bring satisfaction not only this spring and coming summer but all year long, year after year.

An added plus — chain link is a good buy. Dollar for dollar, no other fence can provide so many features — protection long life, beauty etc. — as a chain link fence. This is good news for property owners who want to get the most value for their money.

"Beauty That Lasts for the Home You Love" is the slogan adopted by the chain link fence manufacturers for their product. Homeowners who have installed this type of fencing and have lived with it for a while are sure to agree that chain link is that . . . and more.

Jumbo-Pink 135-pound banana squash?

World record garden prizes

If you'd like to try for record-size fruits and vetegables, here are a few of the more recent garden prizes submitted for inclusion in the "Guinness Book of World Records."

Earl Miller of Central Point, Ore., raised a Jumbo Pink 135-pound banana squash.

Ed Weeks of Tarboro, N.C., offered a cantaloupe weighing 39 pounds, beating his own 1976 cantaloupe that tipped the scale at 36 pounds and 4 ounces.

Ross Ransford of Graysville, Ind., grew a 44-inch Armenian cucumber.

Dr. Leslie Miller of Columbus, Ohio, has been recognized by the American Gourd Society for the longest straight gourd, a Snake Lonissima variety measuring 80¼ inches. John G. Ritz of Canton, Ohio, grew the heaviest gourd, 185 pounds.

Previous record holders in the United States are listed as:

D.G. Knutsen of Whittier, Calif., biggest lemon, measuring 28¾ inches in circumference. Bill Calendine of Tuscon, Ariz., heaviest orange, 3 pounds 11 ounces.

Recognized for the heaviest squach — a 513-pound Hungarian Mammoth, a world record — is Harold Fulp Jr. of Ninevah, Ind.

George Winn of Gibsonville, Fla., reported the heaviest sweet potato weighing 22½ pounds, and June Rutherford of Hatch, N.M., grew a 13½-inch-long pepper.

If you think you have a record-breaking vegetable, fruit or flower, let Jane Grace of Grace's Gardens, Hackettstown, N.J., know about it. She is American coordinator for the Guinness book.

In addition to the world and national records, Mrs. Grace proposes state competitions, "to give hard-working and dedicated gardeners deserved recognition."

She cited the case of Herman Paskall of Topeka, Kan., who in 1977 grew a 22-foot 4-inch sunflower, just inches short of the world record of 23 feet 6½ inches set by Frank Kelland of Exeter, England, in 1976.

"There are many hard-earned, near-records that have come to my attention," Mrs. Grace said. "I think these gardeners are just as deserving of the type of recognition previously reserved only for world record holders."

Mrs. Grace suggests service organizations and garden clubs might consider sponsoring competitions or act as local or state clearing houses to record the vital statistics. She will provide details.

"Plan Your Own Landscape," by Allan Swenson, Grossett & Dunlap takes you a long way toward making "your own portion of the planet Earth lovelier."

Simply and constructively, Swenson advises how to do most of the planning and planting yourself, providing basic plans. He offers decorative accents and specimens, suggests specific trees, shrubs, hedges and garden flowers.

"The Flower Gardner's Answer Book," by Francesca Morris Van Nostrand Reinhold asks and answers more than 200 of the most common questions about flowering plants.

Mini-farms ideal for small rooms

Want to grow a vegetable garden, but limited on gardening space? You might want to join the ranks of many individuals who have formed the "plant-in container habit."

Tubs, pots, barrels, and window boxes are now popularly transformed into productive mini-farms. The results are both practical and economic and experts agree this provides a most decorative way of planting.

Any containers readily available can be put into service. Drainage holes and sturdy construction are the only essentials. Wooden tubs, buckets, and boxes hold moisture well and are highly recommended.

Most garden shops carry miniature and drarf hybrid vegetable seedlings. For quick results, carrots, radishes, spinach, and several types of lettuce can be sown directly in containers during any season. Very little care is required outside of thinning seedlings after germination to allow plants to mature properly.

Many solid formulas are suitable, but one is particularly favored by experts. This preferred soil is made up of garden or purchased loam, peatmoss, leafmold organic matter, sand perlite, and inert matter. This composition allows easy drainage and is highly effective of itself and when combined with superphosphate, and is mixed fertilizer.

Food plants need six hours of sun daily and good air circulation. Sunny places on your porch, patio, roof, balcony or terrace are ideal locations for miniature farm gardens. If there is ample air circulation and at least six hours of sun, you can plant "climing" vegetables against a doorpost, fence or any tall support.

Certain vegetables adapt easily to hanging baskets; small tomatoes and seasonal herbs do particularly well in such environments.

Cleaning out your garage. easier than you think.

Let someone else carry them off for you, and put money in your pocket!

Rev. Glass denies accusations

Jealousy underlying cause

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — The Rev. Charles E. Glass, who survived an ouster attempt by disgruntled former members of his First United Pentecostal Church here, says jealousy is the underlying cause of his troubles.

Glass, in a copyright interview with the Dallas Times Herald this week, denied accusations of misconduct and said he is the victim of a well-organized conspiracy to crucify him.

"I have been told by other ministers that it's nothing but a good case of jealousy," Glass said of the controversy that has swirled for the last six weeks.

"Anytime you want to get out of mediocrity, you're making yourself a target. I just cannot stand mediocrity. No matter what profession I was in, I wouldn't want to just get by. I'd want to excel. I'd want to do the best."

Former members of the church alleged that Glass, 46, had led his congregation into fanaticism that has torn families apart, driven some families out of town and veered occasionally into emotional terrorist and physical harassment.

The former members, along with three United Pentecostal pastors in the Sherman area, also claimed that Glass and his wife have a peculiar fascination with demons and evil spirits, that outsiders are denounced from the pulpit and that sexual perversion is a frequent topic of discussion at church meetings.

Those accusations provoked a denominational inquiry into Glass' conduct. Last week, after a 22-hour, closed-door hearing in Lufkin, United Pentecostal leaders voted to censure that pastor. It was the mildest possible disciplinary action possible.

"As far as we're concerned," Glass told the Times Herald, "it's over. We feel better for it. Now, we'd just like to forget it and go on."

Glass, who has been pastor of the church here since 1958, denied all the charges against him.
